The Portland Speed Association.

Last year the Association, the name of which is the caption of this notice, was started at Portland, Oregon, with about a half dozen enthusiastic members. Tho race meeting held in 1889 was a financial success owing to the diligent efforts put forward hy those who had the matter in charge. All the officers worked like heavers and it was owing to their indefatigable efforts that the affair was successful, not only financially hut from a horseman's standpoint. A meeting was given this year which was attended with like results and now the Association has determined to give a first-class meeting beginning Tuesday, Septcmber 9th and ending Saturday, September 13th. To induce owners of first-class horses to enter, the Directors have hung up purses amounting to over $12,000, and as the programme cousists of trotting. pacing and running events, it can readily be surmised that the entries will be much larger than any they have hitherto received. There are also several special premiums offered which are in addition to the money purses, and to those who contemplate paying a visit to Oregon during the fall, we would recommend them to examine carefully the programme as published in another column of this issue. Particular attention must he paid to the fact that entries for the trotting races close on August 1st, while entries for the running races do not close until Septembei 1st.

Pacing Horse Breeder's Association.

On June 25th a meeting of the principal pacing horse breeders of the United States was held at the Gibson House, Cincinnati. Ahout forty gentlemen were present, representing all sections of the country. After the usual preliminary husiness, the association proceeded to the election of the following officers: F. G. Buford, of Buford, Tenn., President; J. W. Neal, of Indianapolis, Ind., Secretary; F. H. Germyn, of Scotland, Pa., Treasurer, and Colonel T. C. Parsons, of Cleveland, O., Registrar.

The Appellate Board is composed of F. G. Buford, Tennessee; D. W. Greene, Ohio; A. W. Parrish, Indiana; Judge Halsey, Kentucky, and John W. Titley, of Pennsylvania.

The Auditing Committoe are O. Forney, Ohio; D. W. Greene, Ohio, and W. Cong, Ohio.

The committee on rules made a report, and also suggested a set for standard purposes and with a few amendments, they were accepted as follows:

RULES OF THE PACING STANDARD.

1—Any stallion that has himself a pacing record of 2:30 or hetter, provided any of his get have a pacing record of 2:35 or hetter, or provided his sire or dam is already a standard pacing animal.

2—Any mare or gelding that has a pacing record of 2:30 or better.

3—Any horse that is the sire of two animals with pacing records of 2:30 or better.

4—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a pacing record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications: (1) A pacing record himself of 2:35 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with pacing records of 2:35 or better. (3) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard pacing animal.

5 -Any mare that has produced an animal with a pacing record of 2.30 or better.

6—The progeny of a standard pacing horse, when out of a standard mare.

7—The female progeny of a standard pacing horse, when out of a mare by a standard pacing horse.

8—The female progeny of a standard pacing horse, when out of a mare whose dam is a standsrd pacing mare.

9—Any mare that has a pacing record of 2:35 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard pacing animal.

10—Any pacing horse that is the sire of two mares, each of which has produced a pacer with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications: (1) A pacing record of 2:30 or hetter. (2) Or is the sire of some pacer with a record of 2:30 or hetter. (3) Or has a sire or dam that is already a standard pacing animal. (4) Or has two pacers with records of 2:35 or hetter.

11—Any pacing stallion that has a pacing record of 2:20 or hetter.

It is unnecessary for us to state that the association has heen organized hy a party of gentlemen who will see that there is as much attention paid to the correctness of pedigrees sent in, as is at present given hy those who have the Wallace Register in charge. The association has heen long needed, and will in no way interfere with the present trotting register.

P. C. T. H. B. A.

On Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the Directors of the P. C. T. H. B. A. was held in their rooms, 313 Bush street, for the purpose of completing a programme for the coming fall meeting.

After a careful examination of the horses now in training in California liahle to trot during the coming season, it was determined to give a purse of $1,500 for the free-for-all trotters, also a purse of $1,500 for the 2:20 class. $800 will be given for the 2.30 pacers and $1,000 for the 2.40 trotters; these with the free-for-all pacing purse mentioned last week, together with stakes already closed, will make an exceptionally good programme, and with fairly good luck it is extremely probable that there will he large fields of horses and hardly fought contests. The Directors also agreed that as some of the 2:20 trotters might also be entered for the free-for-all, that they would leave time enough hetween the two events so that any one horse may take part in hoth of them. All the purses offered are on the nomination plan. The entrance fee will he ten per cent., hut the nominee need not name his horse until ten days prior to the first advertised day of the meeting. The Secretary was also instructed to find out from the various Associations what inducements would be offered to the Breeders' Association for the purpose of having its fall meeting take place over a selected track. The resolution was as follows; "Resolved, That the Secretary communicate with the several Societies, and invite bids or propositions for holding the fall meeting of this Association. That said hids be sealed and submitted to the Secretary on or hefore the first day of Septemher, 1890." As there are quite a number of Associations who desire to have the honor of the hreeders' meeting taking place on their tracks, it is presumed that the contest will be very lively.

Taken all in all, it would he a hard matter to evolve a better programme than that now offered hy the Directors of the Breeders' Association, and as the entries to the purses mentioned above will close on August 1st, at the samo time that the halance of the Coast circuit entries close, it is only fair to assume that the entries will be large and the horses of the hest.

The Quincy Meeting.

The Directors of the Eleventh District Agricultural Association have completed a good programme, and announce this week through the advertising columns of the Breeder and Sportsman that entries will close on Wednesday, August 20th. The money hung up for purses is larger than ever before offered, and there can he no doubt hut what many of the horse owners who hail from the valley counties will be on hand to assist the association in giving satisfaction to the patrons of the fair. Quincy, although called a mountain town, is so situated that there is plenty of room for racing purposes, and an excellent track can he found at the Capitol of Plumas County. The inhabitants are a right royal lot and always make their guests feel that there is "a home away from home." The Directors of the Association are all gentlemen of sterling worth, and those who make entries can rest assured that the conditions will be carried out to the letter. A trip taken to the mountains, hy those who enjoy a change, especially in September, is one of the most desirable things imaginable, and we can confidently recommend Quincy and its environs to those who contemplate a trip at that season of the year.

The Northern Circuit.

During the week we have seen several of the Directors of the four Associations that now comprise the Northern California Circuit and from one and all comes the good news that from the present outlook, 1890 will far surpass auy former years in the number of entries that will ho made on that circuit. The purses offered on tho Northern Circuit are much larger this year than ever before and we have heard of quite a number of stables that are likely to take part at tho Willows, Red Bluff, Chico and Marysville, because as the owners say, there will he too much "hot stuff" in the big circuit this year and they will endeavor to carry off some of the nice plums offered in the North. At Marysville, Chico and the Willows already quito a large number of horses are in training, and as soon as the track is completed at Red Bluff there will be several stahles that will take up their quarters there. The entries do not close until August 1st, so there is ample time for all horsemen to make up their minds whether they will take in the lower circuit or the upper circuit, but as there are so many horses in training this year there is no question hut what both of the circuits will be well patronized.

Capt. J. A. McBeth.

Among the distinguished visitors who came to San Francisco with the Masonic Pilgrims during the week was Capt. McBeth, for some seventeen years last past, a well known and influential resident of Denver, Col. His intimato acquaintance with the business growth of that city and other portions of the mid-continent, and his exhaustive knowledge of the climatic conditions and other factors making for the advantage of Colorado as a horse and stock hreeding section, entitle his opinions to credence, and when after examination of the great horse ranches of California, he does not hesitate to express an opinion that the center of the horse world is in this State, his helief furnishes reason for self-gratulation to Californians. Capt. McBeth is hand and glove with the leading sportsmen of his State, and we can assuro them, has upheld the glory of Colorado in a fitting manner during his visit to San Francisco.

The Ione Meeting.

We desire to call the attention of all horsemen to the fact that the entries for the Ione meeting closes on the 15th inst., and this will he the last opportunity to remind them of the large sum of added money offered at Ione. Those contemplating making entries should do so at once and not overlook the Amador and Sacramento Association.

A young western horse which had evidently beeu pampered up and drugged for sale, was completely let down and suffering from much fever. Finding it necessary to employ an active purge, I, at the reqnest of the owner, used Simmons Liver Regulator, giving one pint doses twelve hours apart, and as soon as he could eat giving it in powder form in bran. In one week he had fully recovered.—Geo. W. Rodfong, V. S. Germantown, Pa.

An Interview With Capt. Tom Merry.

Rough and hearty looked Capt. Tom Merry as he pitched his 2;20 avoirdupois. into one of our office chairs last Monday after an absence of nearly five months.

"Well, how's the antipodes?" we asked.

"Good as new," replied the old man, "they are just out of a drought into a flood, but they were able to stand a good deal of water."

"Well, what is your opinion of Australian thoroughbreds, as far as you have got?"

"Just what it always has been," he said, "since I first saw Sir. Modred. He is an exceptional horse in the matter of quality, however, I don't think I saw over three horses while I was down there that compared with him in that respect. All the wiser old heads now admit that his exportation was a public calamity. You have heard, no doubt, of his two sons, Antæus and Sir William?"

We replied in the affirmative.

"Well," continued Capt. Merry, "those are two good colts in any country and both out of mares vastly inferior to their sire. And, for fear that they would achieve some greatness, both were let to mares last year, being then two years old: Antæus served 12 and Sir William 13, and yet both won some good stakes."

"Which of the two do you prefer?"

"My choice is Antæus, more from his likeness to the old horse than anything else. He is a rich claret bay and the family likeness is very plain to any Californian who has seen the hero of Del Paso. At the same time, I think Sir William the better racehorse. He is of Luke Blackburn type, a rich brown in color and packs weight like a Madras surf boatman."

"What do you consider the best race horse in the Colonies?"

"Oh, Lord, ask me something easy. However, the question is not so hard to answer since Abercorn has let go."

"Which leg did he give way upon?"

"None of 'em He is lame in his back but his legs are sound as ever they were. He is a horse of great length and suburb proportions. He is about such a horse as Carbine, but I think Carbine the better weight carrier. They both want a slow beginning. Give Abercorn a canter for half his race, and he could beat the Australian Peer and Mentor always. But in a "true run race" with the pace set hot from the fall of the flag, and either one of them could nail him. Carbine is a good deal the same sort of horse. In the Champion Stakes last March Dreadnought made the running for nearly two miles and then Melos came with one of his long drawn brushes and wore him down, and Carbine too."

"What is your opinion of Melos?"

"The best horse I ever saw, of his speed. No horse can beat him two miles that cannot beat him at least eight lengths in a mile."

"How about Cardigan and Locksley?"

"The latter is an unknown quality. He belongs to a very shady party who have been very successful so far with Cardigan, who is one of the handsomest horses in the world. Locksley looks more on the English type and is not so heavy a horse. He is royally bred, being by the imported horse Grandmaster out of Vesper by imported Hawthornden, her dam the imported mare Ave Maria by Hermit. So you see he is inbred to Newminster, and a grand looking horse he is. But his performances so far are not equivalent to his breeding and shape."

"What horse do you think has the best chance for the Melbourne Cup?"

"That is a very hard question to answer. Melos ought to win it if he gets in with less than 124 pounds, for Carbine is sure to get at least 140. The dark horses are Prince Consort and the Lawyer. Prince Consort belongs to "Plunger" Broadribb, who gave that phenomenal price for Titan: He has him in doubles all over the colonies with Titan for the Derby at 1000 to 5, so you can account for the high price paid: Prince Consort is by Richmond. The Lawyer belongs to John Crozier, who reserved him when he sold out the St. Albin's stud farm to "Broken Hills" Wilson for £100,000. He was a very shapely colt when I saw him as a three-year-old, but he threw out splints so they stopped his work. He has never won a race and is therefore liable to be "chucked in" with a very light weight."

"What family of horses would you prefer if you were to go into breeding as an enterprise of your own?"

"The Muskets, without a moment's hesitation. I regard Musket as one of the phenomenal sires of the world. I have yet to see the first one that could not gallop some distance at a high rate of speed. Next to them I like the Drummers and the Goldsbroughs. The latter are much to my liking. Abercorn, Nordenfelt and Churchill, are all out of Goldbrough mares."

"What stallion would you purchase if you were sent down there with unlimited backing?"

"Nordenfelt, by all means. I would rather give $15,000 for him than $10,000 for any horse I saw while there. He is so big and strong and of such muscular type that I feel confident he is the Crown Prince of all the Muskets. At the same time, an American in search of an outcross would not well go amiss in the purchase of either Brigadier, Cuirassier, Enfilade or Hotchkiss, all of them magnificent and sightly horses.

"Are there many desirable stallions to be purchased there at moderate prices?"

"Yes, there's a horse called Matador, almost the dead copy of Abercorn, and—by the way, he beat Abercorn at two years old. He is by Newminster out of Constellation by St. Alban's, her dam Evening Star by Panic, the sire of Commotion and Wellington. Newminster is one of the racing sires of Australia, and is now a private stallion at the St. Alban's stud. He is by The Marquis (winner of the Leger of 1862) out of Spa by Leamington. There's a pedigree for you."

"Did you see Lochiel?"

"Yes, and like him next to Nordenfelt for a sire. He cannot be had till after the Melbourne Cup is run in next November, but then I can get him very cheap. He was sired in England and foaled in New Zealand, being by Prince Charlie (sire of Salvator) out of the English mare Nellie Moore by Voltigeur. You can't lick that breeding if you go to the end of the earth."

"Did you see old Malua?"

"Yes, and bought a mare by Wellington out of Swarrow's dam, expressly to breed to him. He stands at $150, and it would not pay to buy any cheap mares for such a sire. I claim Catherine Wheel to be one of the best bred mares in the world. I have her in foal to Dunlap, who has the fastest record on earth in a race between horses. The Rose colors will be in front whenever that colt gets here."

"How about the steamers between here and the colonies—are they convenient for shipping?"

"Yes and no! The Zealandia is only fit during her July or August trip. The Alameda and Mariposa are good little ships, but lacking in room. The Alameda can only carry eight head and the Mariposa six; the latter had no tanks except at the other end of the ship, and I had to bring one for the purpose of having the water handy. I must speak well of all the officers in the Spreckels' line from Captains Hayward and Morse, Mates Dowdell and Hart, clear down to the boatswains. The accommodations are limited, but they are very obliging to shippers."

"How about breeding mares to American time?"

"It's a delusion and a snare. I wouldn't do it again for anybody—not even for Mr. Rose, whom I consider my best friend. In the first place, if the weather is cold and rainy, your mares won't come in season, and if you leave your mares any length of time on those stud farms, they get weak from want of proper care, and then you have all you can do to build them up for a sea-voyage. They are not exactly conscienceless men, but very slack about their own horses, and consequently negligent about those of others. I wish that some of them could come over here and see how mares are taken care of on our farms. Well, I reckon I'd better toddle along, for I have got to take my mares to Los Angeles by this afternoon's train. So long, lads!"

Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society.

Secretary Maclay of the above mentioned Society has forwarded the following list of entries, which were received for the Futurity Stake lately closed. The list is a good one, and reflects credit on the breeders of the District who have shown their appreciation of the efforts of the Directors by making liberal entries. The following are the conditions of the stake. For foals of 1890:

Open to the get of stallions owned in the district, which is comprised of the following counties: Sonoma, Marin, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Solano, Yolo, Colusa and Contra Costa. Mile heats, three in five. Entrance $75, with $25 added for each starter over two and up to five head, and $10 for each additional starter up to ten head. Payments—$5 must accompany the nomination on July 1, 1890; $5 on January 2, 1891; $5 on July 1, 1891; $10 on January 2, 1892; $10 on July 1, 1892; $15 on January 2, 1893; $25 on July 1, 1893; Conditions (1) Neglect to provide payments on the dates stipulated will incur forfeiture of all previous payments. 2. When there is more than one entry to this stake by one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. 3. The stake will be divided into four moneys, viz: 50 per cent to the first· 25 per cent. to the second; 15 per cent. to the third and 10 per cent. to the fourth horse. 4. If only three horses start in this stake, only first, second and third money shall be paid. If but two start, there will be no added money, the stake money paid in will be divided—two-thirds to the first and one-third to the second horse. 5. A horse distancing the field shall only be entitled to first and third moneys. 6. The Board of Directors reserve the right to declare the stake filled or not filled without binding itself to any specified number of entries. 7. Otherwise than the above, National or American Trotting Association Rules, as the Society may select, will govern the stake.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by W. Henry Jones, M. R. C. V. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to W. Henry Jones, M. R. C. V. S., Olympic Stables, Sutter Street, San Francisco.

P. L.

Some time ago I purchased a grey mare, then supposed to be sound, but subsequently proved to be otherwise. She has been lame in the near hock, and my friends say it is a spavin; she is about ten years old. Can you recommend any treatment?

Answer—The only treatment to be adopted in this case is to have the joint fired and blistered, and give her a few months rest. Her age is considerably against her becoming sound.

J. M. C.

I have a black horse that was castrated about 10 months ago, and ever since that time he has troubled the mares considerably. At the time of operation, only one testicle could be found. Do you think that he could get mares in foal?

Answer—There are cases on record where horses castrated when only one testicle was removed, have become sires, but the cases are extremely rare. I would advise you to have him thrown down again, and in all probability you will find that the other testicle has come into the scotum, and in that case remove it at once.

Names Claimed.

I hereby claim the name of GOLD COIN for my dark chestnut colt, foaled March 22, 1890, by Gold Rose, he by Sterling, dam Posse by Poscora Hayward. J. L. EBY, Rohnerville.

I claim the name of ROSA WHIPPLE for bay filly, no white, foaled April 9, 1889, by Whippleton, dam Modela by Alexander also,

FLASH for bay colt, three white feet, strip in face, foaled May 1, 1890, by Secretary, dam Modela by Alexander.

Australian Importations.

On the Steamship Mariposa which arrived last Saturday morning, there were brought to this State five thoroughbred mares from Australia by T. B. Merry, who lately purchased them in the colonies for Mr. L. J. Rose of Los Angeles. They all look in much better form than the previous consignment that came by the steamer before, but the same bad luck attended both consignments, as a valuable mare was lost in each lot. A full description has been given of those sent before, so that it is only necessary to give the pedigrees of those which arrived by the last steamer.

Ricochet, br. m (7) by Musket, dam Erycina by Sledmere; 2nd dam Atlanta by Dainty Ariel; 3rd dam Moonshine by The Libel etc. Ricochet is a full sister to the celebrated Australian race mare Mitrailleuse, and should prove a valuable animal for breeding purposes. She is in foal to Rudee, a full brother to Chester.

The Rose of California, was formerly called Spinnach, but as she never won a match under that name, Capt. Merry has seen fit to rename her. She is by Atlantic, dam Sea Kale by Lady Kirk; 2nd dam Saucepan by Colsterdale etc. This is a handsome chestnut filly, only two years old, and although a little shaky on one side of her legs, looks almost good enough to race again. She is in foal to Dunlop, winner of the Melbourne Cup in 1887.

Gadara, br. f. (2) by Jove, dam Heron by Kingfisher. This filly is in foal to Rudee.

Harmony, b. m. (6) by The Drummer, dam Maritana by New Warrior; 2nd dam Mermaid by Fisherman; 3rd dam Sweetheart by Red Hart etc. Harmony is in foal to Dunlop.

Bessie, ch. m. (4) by John Bull, dam Avalanche by Kingston; 2nd dam Topsy by Young Marquis; 3rd dam by a son of Theorum; 4th dam by Operator. Bessie did not come in season according to American time, so consequently was not bred.

The mare that died on the voyage was Princess Royal by Goldsbrough, dam Queen's Head by Yattenden; 2nd dam Gazelle by Magus; 3rd dam Atalanta by Reprieve etc.

Grim's Gossip.

L. J. Rose won a nice race at Monmouth Park last Thursday, beating a large field starting, at the remunerative price of three to one in New York.

The Directors of the Sonoma and Marin Society have done remarkably well with their Futurity Stake, and the stallions represented are of a high class.

E. J. Baldwin and party left the city last Wednesday evening for Lake Tahoe. Mr. Baldwin will not be seen on the Eastern tracks for some time yet.

Jack Chinn, who lost a number of horses in the late railroad accident on the Wabash Road has filed claims against the company for $60,000 damages.

A. L. Whitney of Petaluma and R. S. Brown of the same place have each a yearling by Dawn, that are spoken highly of by those who have seen them work.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association are talking of giving a $20,000 purse for foals of 1890, to be trotted for in 1893 or the following year.

Tenny, for a mile, can beat Ten Broeck's record; Al Farrow, weight for age, can beat Ten Broeck's record, and Racine, weight for age, can beat them both.

On Thursday last three Californian owned horses came under the wire first on Eastern tracks. It looks as though there was still many a victory for the Golden State.

Mr. J. A. Seward, who lives only a short distance from Wheatland, has completed a first-class half mile track on his farm and will use it exclusively for private purposes.

Late news from Jackson, Mich., gives the information that Margaret S. was defeated in the 2:20 race, she winning the first two heats in 2:24½ and 2:25½, but lost the next three in 2:26¼, 2:27½ and 2:28.

Reports are conflicting concerning Gertrude Russell (2:23½) full sister to Palo Alto (2:12¼). She was bred to Jersey Wilkes recently, but will be campaigned as originally intended, according to latest accounts.

Owing to the great pressure on our columns this week, the regular Australian letter has to remain over until next issue. "The Jungle" is always interesting, and his well written communications are far above the average.

Aleck B. by Electioneer is the second of that celebrated sire's get to enter the charmed circle this year. At Syracuse, N. Y. on June 27th he made a record of 2:29¼ in a seven heat race, winning the third, fourth and seventh heats.

Col. R. S. Strader's son Robert who paid a lengthy visit to the Pacific Coast last spring was considerably stunned by the concussion from a stroke of lightning which struck close to where he was standing, during a late storm at Lexington Ky.

On the morning of July 1st the cannery at Winters was burned to the ground; the building was at one time the stable and barn belonging to Theo. Wintere and in it the celebrated mare, Mollie McCarthy and many other famous horses were born.

Willis Parker, of Stockton has done extremely well with his Electioneer stallion Campaign this year and is now slowly jogging him on the Stockton track. If accident should not intervene he will receive a record this year, commensurate with his breeding.

Look over the advertisement of the P. C. T. H. B. A. and see the good purses offered by the Directors to the horsemen of the Coast. Every man in the State who owns a well bred trotting horse should join the Association and assist in the work that has so far been carried on successfully.

On Friday afternoon there was a trotting and pacing (mixed) race at the Fresno Race Track, best three in five heats for a purse of $250. The entries were Birdie, White Ash, Barbora and Wormwood. The race was won by Birdie in three straight heats. Time 2:32½, 2:32 and 2:34.

Rinfax won his initial race east of the Rockies last Thursday, beating a small field of fair performers at Washington Park. On the same day Senator Hearst's imported Del Mar won a mile dash and E J. Baldwin's Clio ran a good second. A good day's work all things considered for the Californians in Chicago.

Trainer McCormick, who is looking after the interests of the Undine Stable at Chicago has been interviewed by a reporter, and to the question "Is it true that Flambeau can beat Racine after going a mile," answered "Yes, he can beat him after going a mile, and any part of the road before going a mile, and do it easily. That's the kind of a horse Flambeau is."

Before Sir Modred left Australia he was in stallion service for some time, and from Mr. Merry who has just returned from the antipodes, I learn that three of Sir Modred's sons were served twelve mares each, when only two years old. The three are Camden, Sir William and Antaeus. The two latter are well known on the Australian turf having won many races.

At the gentleman's track at Baltimore the management lately advertised a series of trotting races with the entrance fee fixed at five per cent., but much to the surprise of the Board of Directors, there were two of the classes which did not fill, while the others had only meager entries. Evidently the efforts of the Association are not appreciated by Eastern horsemen.

A report has been telegraphed to the daily papers that Orrin A. Hickok has matched Palo Alto 2:12¼ against Jack 2:15. No confirmation of the story has been received, so the rumor cannot be verified. The owner of Jack, Mr. Geo. Middleton, of Chicago, has been eager to match his horse for some time, and it is just probable that there may be something in the report.

Mr. L. J. Rose experienced a dose of bad luck when two of the best mares in the Australian contingent purchased for him by T. B. Merry died en route. And this was followed up by another misfortune, for the Sir Modred—School Girl colt purchased by Mr. Rose for $5,800 at the Rancho Del Palo sale contracted a severe cold on the cars coming back and has since died.

Among the fast trotters being worked at Santg Rosa is Mr. Guy E. Grosse's Sunset. Mr. Lawrence has him in charge; and although the colt is only lately out of stud service, he showed four miles averaging 2:31, the fastest heat being made in 2:29. This is very good for a horse weighing 1225 pounds, and when he gets a little of his fat off he will show up equal to any of the get of Anteeo.

Mr. W. W. Worthing of Stockton has sold recently to T. E. Keating now of Sacramento, a six-year-old gelding by Priam, dam by General Dana. The consideration is $2,000, which was given on the promise of Mr. Worthing that his gelding could beat 2.25. Notwithstanding the horse has had but little work, the mile was easily accomplished in 2.23½ and the sale consummated.

For sometime there has been considerable controversey between the friends of Messrs. Jameson, Pressy and Davenport of Porterville, Tulare Co. as to which one owned the fastest yearling or two year old. To decide the question Mr. C. M. Davenport has challenged Messrs. Jameson and Pressy to trot anytime within two weeks their yearlings or two year old colts for $100 a side for each race.

Mr. F. S. Waters, the owner of Faustino, the celebrated young stallion who made a record of 2.35, at the Bay District Track last fall has received a letter from driver Dickerson in which he received the information that Faustino was given three slow miles on Monday of last week. The time being 2:45, 2:46 and 2:35, the last half of the last mile was made in 1:14 and the last quarter in 35¼ seconds.

It looks as though Senator Stanford would have done better to keep his stable of runners together for they always paid their own expenses and had he sent his able trainer, Henry Walsh East this spring the chances are that with Fairy, Rinfax, Racine, Flambeau, Peel and others well entered, as most of them then were, he could have earned money and fame, besides laying the foundation for an annual thoroughbred yearling sale which would equal if not eclipse anything held in the country.

Among those who have subscribed to the Buffalo stakes are Pleasanton Stock Farm, O. A. Hickok and Palo Alto Stock Farm in the five year old and under trotting class. In the 2:40 class we find Hickok and Salisbury represented. In the 2:27 class there are Palo Alto and Hickok. In the 2:22 class Palo Alto is the only California entry. Hickok and Salisbury are both in the 2:18 class, and the same two are also in the 2:21 class.

The following few lines from a correspondent speak for themselves: "How is this for a stake winner? Horse colt by Director, 2:17, and dead game, dam Belle Echo, 2:20, and dead game. This little fellow was born Monday morning, June 30th, is dark brown, and as fine a looking colt as has been foaled at Pleasanton this year." Any remark on that note would be superfluous, and fortunate indeed the man who can afford to purchase the colt.

Mr. J. P. Sargent of Sargent's Station sends me word that he has sold his Nutwood stallion, Brown Jug, to Merritt Love for $2500. Brown Jug has not been as successful in the stud as he might have been as the class of mares sent to his harem have not been of the gilt edge variety. Brown Jug is a dark bay stallion by Nutwood; 1st dam Young Mollie by Budd Doble, son of George M. Patchen, Jr.; 2nd dam Mollie Trussell by General Taylor; 3rd dam the Livingston mare.

A telegram from Jackson, Mich, gives the gratifying intelligence that Mr. Salisbury has won the two first races for which he started. In the first Katie S. was the entry and she had no difficulty in beating her field in three straight heats the fastest time necessary to win being 2:29¼. In the 2:40 pacing race Cricket also won in straight heats but the time is not given in the dispatch. Mr. Salisbury has started off well and all Californians wish that he may keep up his victories.

It is not very often that we hear of such a strange proceeding as was lately carried out on the streets of Launceston, the second largest city in Tasmania. It seems that a Mr. Crosby had matched his mare Termagant against Mr. Rich's pony, The Devil. The race started from a hotel in Perth. Crosby's mare taking the lead with The Devil close up. The traffic in Wellington street was completely stopped during the race, those who were driving vehicles giving way to the contestants.

Genial Tom Smith of Vallejo paid me a visit a few days ago and does not seem down in the mouth over the reports of fast time made by horses that he will have to tackle on the circuit. He says that Washington has been given some slow work but thinks he will be much faster this year than last, at least there is every reason to believe so. Mr. Smith will also have Mambrino Chief Jr. on the circuit so that if there be any made up races he will have a chance to show what that branch of the family can do.

The sensational Red Wilkes case is liable soon to be settled for good and all. W. C. France has filed a petition praying the court to order the partnership dissolved and have the horse sold. France claims that Smith McCann, the other half owner of the horse, has annoyed him so much about the animal's management that he is not willing to continue as McCann's partner. We do not blame Mr. France for wanting to be rid of McCann. If Red Wilkes is offered at auction many predict it will be the most sensational sale of the year.

Mr. Geo. Woodard, owner of Alexander Button, sire of Yolo Maid, was in the city during the early part of the week, and reports his young horses as all doing well. Belle Button has lost none of her speed, and Alex. Buttou Jr. promises to develop as much speed as any of the rest of the family. Mr. Woodard, while exercising one of his horses a few days ago, was thrown from his sulky and received rather a severe shaking up, but as no bones were broken, it will not take long for him to overcome the effects of his "spill."

At Kankakee, Ill. on July 1st was opened up the first of the kite-shaped tracks which were advocated a long time ago by Mr. Fasig, the enthusiastic Secretary of the Cleveland Association. Whether the new innovation is a success or not, our telegram has not stated but that it is unusually fast is assured by the fact that the 2:29 trot was won by Magna Wilkes in the right good time of 2:23½, that being his fastest mile. In the 2:50 class the fastest mile was 2:28¼, the winner turning up in Alice Black by Jersey Wilkes, this being the second of his get to enter the 2:30 list this year.

A good story is told about Senator Hearst, and as it comes from a very close friend of his, there is a strong probability that considerable truth lies behind the "yarn." It seems that a gentleman approached the Senator last winter, when he was out here, and urged him to buy a very fast running horse, claiming wonderful speed for his equine. Mr. Hearst finally told his importuner that he must wait for a day or two, as he (Hearst) was about to visit Sierra County to look at a mine, and if the "prospect" suited, would probably purchase it, "then," said he, "come and tell me about your horse, for I never buy one but what I also want a mine to pay the expenses of the d—d brute."

An old friend writing from Wheatland informs me that a number of gentlemen living at that point have instituted a Driving Club and elected the following officers: L. Melton, President; J. M. C. Jasper, Vice-President; B. F. Coons, Secretary; J. Seward, Secretary; C. W. Bennet, Superintendent; and C. V. Griffith, Keeper. The Association have already leased some land from Mr. Wm Brewer which is located only a quarter of a mile from the town, and have already commenced work on a three-quarter mile track, which they hope to have finished in short order. This is a move in the right direction as there are plenty of good horses in the neighborhood, and the owners will now have an opportunity to enjoy their favorite sport.

Mr. Valensin brings me the splendid news that his horse Simmoncolon won an eight heat race at Point Breeze Park, Philadelphia, on Wednesday last, and gained a new record for himself of 2:20¼. This young stallion has done remarkably well so far this year and has made many friends. A gentleman writing in Wallace's Monthly says:

"Suisun won the Clay Stake in straight heats. Simmoncolon was entitled to the race, for he is in our judgment a faster and gamer animal than the daughter of Electioneer, but the soft, springy track was unsuitable for his big gait, and threw him off his stride. It is not improbable that when Count Valensin's horse is returned to him, he will have the fastest Wilkes record on the Pacific slope,"

From Mr. Whitney who paid me a visit on Monday last, I learn that the Petalumans were served up with a splendid treat in the shape of trotting at the race track there on Friday last. The first contest was between Lilly Mac, Poco Tiempo and Whalebone. The first heat was won by Whalebone; the second was a dead heat; Lilly Mac won the third; Poco Tiempo the fourth, while the fifth heat was also decided as a dead heat; Lilly Mac ultimately won the sixth and seventh heats and the race.

The second race of the day was between Robbin, Annie L, Nellie Rustic and Chappo. Robbin, driven by Lee Shaner, won easily in three straight heats.

Homestake by Gibraltar, dam Kate by Volunteer 55, has at times in California shown wonderful flights of speed, but he has always proved a bad actor when called upon to face the starter. When Ed Lafferty, trainer for Mr. Kirkendall, returned to Montana a few weeks ago he took with him the erratic trotter and now comes word that "Ed" has carried the son of old "Gib" to victory. The following is the summary:

Fourth race, purse $300, trotting, mile heats 3 in 5. 2:38 class.

Ed. Lafferty's b g Homestake Gibralter, dam by Goldsmith's Volunteer Lafferty	1	1	1
Huntley & Clarke's b g Mikado Maxim—Cicada, by Cleremont; Prentice	3	2	3

Time—2.28½; 2:32; 2:32.

The following about an old time California horse is taken from Dunton's Spirit: General McClellan ch h 15¼ hands, was bred by L. B. James, Pile Station, in Central Ohio, foaled 1855, at Jamesville, Wis., got by North Star, a son of Morgan Emperor, dam a chestnut mare by Ohio Bellfounder. The breeding of the dam of North Star is not given, but Morgan Emperor was got by Bulrush Morgan, out of a mare by imp. Prince William. The dam of Ohio Bellfounder was the thoroughbred mare Bet Singleton by Tormentor. General McClellan when owned in Jamesville was known as Red Iron. Mr. Van Gilder bought and sold him to Mr. Jas. M. Learned, who lived in Jamesville, Wis., and took the horse across the plains to California, with Rattler and other stock, in company with Seneca Daniel. There may or may not be in General McClellan the blood of Blue Bull.

The San Diego County Fair will be held this year at Escondido and the Board of Directors have arranged the following speed programme for four days racing beginning Sept. 30th:

Tuesday—Trotting, 2;40 class, purse, $250.

Running, one and one-fourth mile dash, purse $150.

Wednesday—Mixed race, pacing and trotting, free to all county stallions, purse $200.

Mixed race for all, 2:30 pacers and trotters, purse $250.

San Diego Derby, one and one-half miles, purse $200.

Thursday—Free for all trot, purse $300.

Running race, one half mile and repeat, purse $100.

Friday—Trotting, 3:00 class, for county horses, $150.

Running, three-fourths mile dash, purse $75.

Trotting purses will be divided into four moneys, 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. Running purses will be divided into three moneys, 60, 30 and 10 per cent.

The New York Tribune of last Thursday has the following to say about Mike Kelly, trainer for R. Porter Ashe: "If a subscription paper was passed around at all the great Eastern race courses and turfmen generally were asked to subscribe to a handsome testimonial to Michael Kelly on condition that he would never ride Geraldine again, that worthy and excellent young man would be enriched in a few minutes by an enormous sum of money. Last year Geraldine ran in twenty one races and won thirteen of them. Kelly ran her only once in public, and then she was beaten. This year Kelly, who managed Ashe's stable, has been more aspiring and ambitious. Geraldine has run in eight races in 1890, and has won only one of them, when she was ridden in fine style by Taylor. Kelly has ridden her in four out of her seven defeats. With all due respect to Kelly's many excellent qualities, it may be respectfully submitted that to a very few human beings since the world began has it been given to excel both as trainer and jockey at the same time."

The Valensin Stock Farm.

Pleasanton is fast becoming one of the horse-breeding centers of California, for there is hardly a farm or fruit orchard within the entire Livermore Valley that one cannot find trotting horses highly bred and with long pedigrees. On Saturday last a visit was paid to the breeding establishment of Mr. Valensin, which is now of national repute, his name being known from the Atlantic to the Pacific in connection with the raising of trotting horses.

Sidney, a son of Santa Claus and Old Sweetnesa, has brought both fame and fortune to his lucky owner, the speedy sons and daughtera of that great sire having stamped him as being one of the groatesta speed producers in the country.

Since our last visit, which was almost a year ago, many improvements have been made about the stables, and to-day it stands as well furnished a farm as there is in the State. Magnificent atablea containing large hox atalla, wind breaks, new paddocks and harns, make such a change, that one can hardly believe that it is the aame place that was originally bought by the proprietor such a short time ago. Magnificent green hedgea have been planted around the onter turn of the race track, which, when grown, will make the Valensin track not only beautiful to the eye, bnt will tend greatly to break the force of the winds which daily sweep through the valley. A very pretty lawn has been laid out in front of the residence, and beautiful flowers, comprising rosea of rare varieties, are to be found in vast profusion.

During the late bad winter, a portion of the track became overflowed, and to prevent recurrence of a like kind, the entire course has been raised almost twelve inches, in addition to which drains have been fixed on both the inner and outer circlea, so that in future the track will be in perfect condition to trot on, either in summer or winter. A very noticeable feature about the Valensin Farm is the extreme cleanliness, even the roads being kept in such order that not a speck of dirt will arise to soil the linen of the richly-dressed; the men in and around the stable aeem to take particular pride in this matter, and the example there shown might readily be followed by many others in the business.

The object of the visit was to take a look at the foals by Simmocolon, he having done so remarkably well on the tracks back East since being sent to the educational school of Mr. Jas. Goldsmith. Rumor had reached us that the youngsters were a likely looking lot, but we were hardly prepared to see such a magnificent half-dozen of finely bred trotters, all of them perfect in conformation, with grand legs, plenty of girth around the body, strongly coupled and short backs, topped off with fine, intelligent heads; they have the strong Wilkea characteristic, and it needs but the eye of one who knew the old horse to be able to pick out in a moment the get of Simmocolon from the scorea of others which were to be seen on every hand.

We are much indebted to Mr. Chandler Quinton for a great deal of the pleasure which we had on the trip, as he brought up many recollections of trotting familiea which are now overshadowed by the great sires of the present day, yet still they were happy recollections, for it put us in mind of the days agone when the trotting horsemen of the country were few and far between. If we remember correctly, Mr. Quinton was formerly called "Bashaw Quinton" on account of his extreme knowledge of all branches of the Bashaw family, and if a mistake has been made in calling him by this pseudonym, it is not too late now to attach the prefix to his name, for it is doubtful if there is another man in the country who knows that old family as well as friend Quinton.

The first of the mares to be seen was Ivy, by Buccaneer 2656, dam Fernleaf by Flaxtail, and she has as fine and racy looking a colt by Simmocolon as one could wish to see in a day's walk; this little gentleman is a pure gaited trotter, and gives every indication of speed.

Lightfoot, by Flaxtail, dam Fannie Fern by Irwin's Tuckahoe; 2d dam Daughter of Leffler's Consul, has a blk f by Simmocolon, a grandly put up little miss that will no doubt add credit to both aire and dam from her performances.

Santa Rita, by Sidney, dam Gitania by Buccaneer; 2d dam Cassie Mack, 2:30¼, by General McClellan, has a dark brown filly by Simmocolon which was born only the day before we arrived, yet still she showed the same conformation as those of older growth; has plenty of substance, and is a strong, sturdy little miss.

Maud R., by Whipple's Hambletonian 725, dam by George M. Patchen Jr. 31; 2d dam Queen by Milliman's Bellfounder 62, is the dam of a very handsome, dark chestnut filly, with star in forehead, also by Simmocolon, which gives great promise, and should become a very speedy trotter.

Fernleaf, by Flaxtail, dam Fanny Fern by Tuckahoe; 2d dam by Leffler's Consul, has blk f by the same horse which is fully as good a looker as any of the others, and to see her trot across the field was well worth the visit.

Sultana is a daughter of Del Sur out of the dam of Sir Guy, 2:27, and she has a gray filly by Simmocolon which shows every indication of its great blood lines; royally bred, she has every right to the queenly step with which we saw her, the only pity being that she has taken after her mother in color, for she is as full of trot as any of the rest.

After a most sumptuous meal, in which, as can be readily understood, the conversation was all of a horse nature, a visit was paid to the large paddocks where the get of Sidney are congregated, and it must be confessed that although we were highly pleased with the youngsters by Simmocolon, still the premier stallion of the farm has kept up his past reputation in the good looks of his get. It may not be out of place here to give a short tabulation of a colt which was particularly pleasing to the eye, especially in view of the fact that the blood lines are so nearly perfect. The dam, Florence Wilkes, was purchased in Kentucky in the spring of 1889 by Mr. Valensin when on a visit there, he purchasing at the same time quite a number of others. This colt, as will be seen by looking at the accompanying form, is as well bred as one could wish for, and fortunate indeed will be the man who secures him for his farm:

BAY COLT (no marks)
Florence Wilkes Sidney
- Santa Claus, 2:17. — Strathmore 408 — Hambletonian 10 / Lady Waltermire
  - Lady Thorn Jr. — Williams' Mambrino / Kate
- Sweetness, 2:21¼ — Volunteer 55 — Hambletonian 10 / Lady Patriot
  - Lady Merritt — Edward Everett 31 / Dau. of Harry Clay 45
- Red Wilkes 1749 — Geo. Wilkes 519 — Hambletonian 10 / Dolly Spanker
  - Queen Dido — Mambrino Chief 11 / Dau. of Red Jacket
- Lady Curtis — Hambletonian 539 — Hambletonian 10 / Dolly Martin
  - Daughter of — Pilot Jr. 12 / Ped. being investigated

Flirt, by Buccaneer, dam Mahaska Bell by Flaxtail; 2d dam Daughter of John the Baptist, has a very fine chestnut filly by Sidney, this little lady being full sister to Memo, trial 2:20½.

Towhead, by Echo, has at her side a full brother to St. Nicholas, this youngster being a very handsome and well put together colt.

Lady Hannah by Arthurton, dam Hannah by Lanford, has a full brother to Andy McDowell's pacing filly, who showed a trial mile this spring in 2:22½, although only three years old; though her older filly was a pacer, this little fellow is a clear gaited trotter.

Roseleaf, by Buccaneer, dam Fernleaf by Flaxtail, and is a full sister to Shamrock, two-year-old record of 2.25, has a large filly on foot by Sidney that shows remarkable trotting action, and should be a phenomenon.

Miss Roy is by Buccaneer out of the dam of Allen Roy, 2:17½; she has a chestnut colt by Sidney, and looks as though he could go a distance and stay for any number of heats. Mr. Sutherland, who is training for Mr. Hatch and others, at an adjoining farm, has a colt out of this well put up matron that can show quarters and repeat in forty seconds.

Faustina, by Crown Point 1990, dam Del Foater by A. W. Richmond; 2d dam by George M. Patchen Jr., as most of our readers are aware, is the dam of Fanstino, who made the yearling stallion record last year at the Bay District track of 2:35. This season Faustina has produced a bright bay filly, who, for size and amiability, cannot be beaten anywhere, she is a very handsome young one, and if looks go for anything, should be fully as speedy as her elder brother.

It is only natural that one should pick out an animal from among a large number, and settle the fact in his own mind that that particular one is better than any of the balance, and the writer has to confess a weakness in stating that the filly by Sidney, dam Venus, the dam of Adonis, 2:14, was the one selected as being the most speedy looker on the farm; a big, fine chestnut filly who would take the fancy of almost any judge, and it will have to go on record that the writer predicts extreme speed for this handsome sister to the great pacer.

Patti, by Nutwood, dam Centennial Belle by Woodburn; 2d dam Bonnie Belle by Belmont, is the mother of a lordly looking bay colt by Sidney, that from his breeding should be as fast as any of them.

Ometta, by Aberdeen, dam Kentucky Central by Balsora; 2d dam None Such by Brignoli, has a chestnut filly by Sidney, the blood lines of which in the New York market should entitle this little fellow to great consideration by those who desire to purchase pedigree.

Belle Grande, by La Grande, dam Oak Grove Belle by Arthurton; 2d dam Henrietta by Bell Alta, has a chestnut filly by Sidney, and Oak Grove Belle, the dam of Belle Grande, has a chestnut stallion by the same horse.

A very taking chestnut colt that was much admired was by Sidney out of Alice C. by Wilkes Boy, dam Primrose by Mambrino King, the second dam of Alice C. being Dolly Varden by Consternation Jr.

Juno, by Buccaneer, dam Venus by Captain Webster; 2d dam by Skenendoah, was the proud possessor of a bay filly by Sidney, and she is a superb little creature; as her mother trotted off through the field, this filly followed close at her heels, trotting as fairly and squarely as one could wish for.

There are a great many outside mares sent annually to Sidney, and one that struck the writer as being remarkably good is the property of I. Morehouse, of Montana, and if Mr. Morehouse is not satisfied with his magnificent colt by Sidney, we shall be very much surprised.

Judge Green, of Oakland, has a Whipple's Hambletonian mare there who has had a beautiful filly by Simmocolon; the judge is indeed fortunate to own a filly by this coming sire.

Jno. A. Goldsmith, the skillful reinsman at the San Mateo Stock Farm, is also represented, he owning a bay mare by Alaska which is the dam of a very elegant black colt by Simmocolon. Mr. Goldsmith also has a Elmo mare which has at foot a black or brown colt by Sidney.

Although there were a great many other mares seen and notes taken about them, lack of space prevents us from mentioning any except one more, this is a bay colt by Sidney, dam Ellen Tomlinson by Dictator. As the breeding is so superb, it is also entitled to tabulation with the one out of Florence Wilkes:

BAY COLT (White star; two hind feet white.)
Ellen Tomlinson
- Sidney
  - Santa Claus... — Strathmore... — Hambletonian 10 / Lady Waltermire
    - Lady Thorn Jr. — Williams' Mambrino / Kate, by Highland Chief
  - Sweetness — Volunteer — Hambletonian 10 / Lady Patriot
    - Lady Merritt — Edward Everett / Dau. of Harry Clay 45
- Dictator 113 — Hambletonian 10 — Abdallah 1 / Chas. Kent mare
  - Clara — American Star 14 / McKinstry mare
- Keepsake — Mamb. Patchen — Mambrino Chief 11 / By Gano
  - Sallie Sovereign — Montague's Sovereign / Dau. of Mark Time

Animal Electricity.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.—The muscular force, the magnetic nerve force, the sensory forces and even the conscious force of one person, may be connected with those of another, by a current of electro magnetism generated by the galvanics or forcedic battery; in other words all of the muscles, tissues, fibres and nerves can be connected; the current passing through one to the other from the battery is restrained by the gases of the atmosphere, the natural electricity and magnetism generated in each person, and the earth's magnetism. No other conductors are needed. It may be necessary to overcome the resistance of the will power temporarily in order to establish the connection from the brain of one person to the other.

This being the case, mind reading, thought transference, seeing at a distance, the Asiatic secret mail service, and the many other so-called mystic phenomona can be explained.

The subject of animal electricity has not been sufficiently studied. By reference to experiments being carried on near London, a magnetic reel has been invented, which moves by the mill power without touch.

It is asserted that a person can be artificially charged with electricity, if this is the case, why cannot our racers be now charged to increase their speed? H.

Athletics—Continued.

The Alpine Club is rather unfortunate in losing such good members as Little and Sexsmith. Both men are out and out professionals and of course had to resign from the club. Eldridge was also forced to follow the example.

I overheard a conversation the other day between a couple of prominent athletes who were speaking about the respective merits of Cooley and Casidy. One of the talkers was of the opinion that Casidy could beat Cooley at any distance, while the other argued that Cooley was competent to allow Casidy a start either in a mile or two miles. At all events I think a race between the two men would prove highly interesting. Casidy has picked up wonderfully of late and when he next meets Cooley neither man can afford to let the grass grow under his feet.

I am informed that the Alpine boys are organizing a team of Cricketers to play a match game with the Alameda Cricket Club in a couple of weeks time.

The Olympic boys who visited Willows on the Fourth of July were well received by the people of that town. The athletic exhibition which was given in a large grain warehouse attracted a large crowd of about 5,000 persons and many were unable to gain admission. "Jim" Corbett of course was the main attraction. His appearance on the stage was the signal for an outburst of applause. Cooley recited a comic recitation and brought down the house. Later on his scientific boxing with Boulo also gained the good will and hearty applause of the Willowites. The first event on the programme was a horizontal bar act, in which Mr. Boulo and the Stack Brothers participated. Their work was fine and up to the professional standard. F. L. Cooley next read a very comical poem in fine style. Jim Corbett and J. L. Lafferty, Champion Welter weight of the Coast then put on the mittens, and Corbett fairly electrified the country people with his great show of science and agility. Lafferty who made a creditable showing with the champion got great applause also. Champion McGill swung his clubs in excellent shape, and won much applause.

There were several other events. The Olympic Club boys were sent home on a special train. During the afternoon Cooley was wandering around the town when suddenly he found himself in the presence of no less a personage than the champion runner of Willows, who, by the way, is a colored boothlack. The colored man calmly informed Frank that he would run any man in the world a mile, barring Johnson. 'I'll go you a mile" said Cooley. "All right," said the boothlack and so it was arranged and they at once set out for the race track. The word to go was given and when the half mile was reached Cooley was leading by 100 yards. Here the shoe cleaner fainted from sheer exhaustion and the Willows sports had to procure a buggy to carry their defeated pet off the field Cooley finished the mile in 5:6, which, considering the bad condition of the track was fine.

I very frequently take in Sunday pionics, and it is surprising what a number of our local amateurs take part in the races usually given. I have in my mind a list of names which would be sufficient almost to fill a whole page. If these men were thrown out of the P C A A A one club which I know well would lose a good many of its "amateur" members.

Several of the Alpine club boys are going out to the Bay District track to morrow morning to have themselves photographed in a group by the club photographer Hemway.

CONDITIONS.

No horses owned on the Pacific Coast by others than members of the P. C. T. H. B. A. are eligible to the above purses, but horses and colts owned outside of the Pacific Coast are eligible thereto regardless of membership.

All States and Territories lying in whole or in part west of the Rocky Mountains are held to be part of the Pacific Coast.

The Directors reserve the right to change the hour and day of any race except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominator will receive three day's notice of change by mail to address of entry.

Entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race, shall be required to start.

Purses will be divided into four moneys, viz., 50 per cent. to the winner, 25 per cent to the second horse, 15 per cent. to the third horse, and 10 per cent. to the fourth horse.

A horse distancing the field shall only be entitled to first and third moneys.

All the above purses are best three in five. Entrance fee 10 per cent to accompany nomination.

Horses to be named 10 days before the first day of meeting.

Trotting and racing colors shall be named by six o'clock on the day preceding the race, and MUST be worn upon the track.

Otherwise than the above National Trotting Association Rules will govern.

Persons desirous of making entries in the above purses, and who have not as yet joined the P. C. T. H. B. A., should make application for membership to the Secretary, and remit the sum of $25 to cover membership fee.

Californians at Washington Park.

One of the breeziest writers on the New York Spirit of the Times is "Pilgrim", whose racy articles are always read with interest. In the current number he says:

Thursday evening I met Alf Estell, the Californian, in the Palmer House corridor. The Kenwood Stakes had been run that day and the Winters colt, San Juan, had been beaten by Palestine. Mr. Estell looks after the Winters stable, a fact well known. He is one of the silent men, but when interested a most fluent and agreeable talker. He was sitting alone trying to catch a breath of fresh air from the Lake, for it was very warm. I leaned over his chair and said: "San Juan was beaten but I like him just the same yet." He answered: "I will tell you a story that will give you the real reason of his defeat. Some three or four years ago I was one of the judges at a fair and race meeting in California. There was to be an Indian pony race, and it was presumed horses were to be owned and ridden by Indians. The Chief had the ponies tested and, selecting the best as his entry, went around telling everybody with great pomp and pride that he would win sure Up at Haggin's ranch John Mackay had a lot of Indian boys picking hops. Selecting the brightest little fellow, Mackay asked him if he could ride. The boy was right at home, and tickled to death he answered, "Oh yes; me sabe hoss." Mackay mounted him, and after giving him a trial satisfied himself the boy would do. He then picked out one of their smallest thoroughbreds, rubbed his hair full of oil and dirt, and the three blew into the gates. The horse looked pretty rough, the chief thinking him a veritable cayuse. Going to the chief Mackay begged to be allowed to start. The chief readily consented, giving Mackay to understand, however, that there were no fleas on him, and that he was going to win. When they got the word Mackay's horse went off with the track, and the further they went the further he left the rest behind. There was nothing in it from end to end but Mackay's horse and little Jim. After it was over the chief went up into the stand to explain it. His pride was humbled, but he was game. He went on in broken English to tell how it happened. He said his own horse was a good one, etc., then gave this as the reason of his defeat: "Little Jim got good hoss; he too quick, no catchee." So it was with Palestine that day, "too quick no catchee," was the only reason San Juan was beaten." Mr. Estell enjoyed the thonght of the chief's reason for defeat taking it home to himself, without one particle of soreness over his own, and I know he backed his colt, too. A level headed man is Alf Estell.

Another Californian that I admire is W. H. E. Smith, owner of Al Farrow, Susie S. and Longshot. He is a six-footer, with a heart as big as his herculean frame. He is looked upon by Pacific Coast people as a man that will do to tie to. He likes to win, and turns loose for first money always. He is one of God's noblemen. Last Tuesday Al Farrow started in a race, and though Mr. Smith had his money on him to my certain knowledge, the horse was not in it. The distance was too far for the 126 lbs. he carried, that is the fact of the matter. Robespierre, who is blamed near to first-class just now, had but 103 lbs. on and won almost as he pleased, simply because he was by long odds the best horse at the weights. I begged Mr. Smith to scratch out his horse, for I did not think there was a ghost of a chance for him. Like Uncle Jim Gray, he was so bent on winning that he wouldn't listen to me, left him in, backed him and lost all around. He was all cut up over it and felt like thunder. Two days afterward he came to me, and, pulling an evening newspaper out of his pocket, said: "Some reporter acouses me of pulling Al Farrow Tuesday; says that he was expelled on the Coast, but fails to say that I didn't own him nor have anything to do with him then, but just about calls me a thief. You know all about it, that I tried to win, and I want you to set me right." I told Mr. Smith it was not necessary to say a word, but his feelings were hurt down deep and I could not talk him out of the idea he ought to be set straight. He went to Mr. Brewster with it and fully explained everything. How anxious he was to win; how he lost, and all that, and I do know that Brewster believes in his manhood and honesty. I believe in him, also, and right here I declare myself.

Sunol and Axtell.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the much talked of race between Axtell and Sunol will take place, so that the question of which is the better race horse may be settled, says the Breeders' Gazette. There are a lot of people who, without any good reason therefor, are continually asserting that Axtell is the superior of the filly. On what they base this assertion it is difficult to see. As a two year old, at which age both the stallion and the filly began trotting, she was immeasurably the superior of Axtell, his best mile being 2:23, while Sunol did the distance in 2:18, completely eclipsing all previous records for that age. As a three year old her 2:10½, in the opinion of thinking men, is just as much ahead of his 2:12 as her 2:18 was superior to his 2:23 when both were two years of age. There is no use butting against a stone wall of unassailable facts. Axtell is the greatest stallion, in point of speed, that has thus far been produced, but Sunol has for two years shown herself his superior. What may occur when they meet in a race it would be foolish to predict or speculate on. The filly is a nervous thing, while Axtell is as steady under all circumstances as a clock, and in a race this matter of disposition alone might settle the contest. If ever they meet and Axtell should win without going a better mile than the 2:10½ of Sunol it would simply prove that she did not have her speed. In order to show himself unquestionably the best of the pair he will have to beat Sunol and 2:10½ at the same time. If any driver can put him in shape to do this Budd Doble is the man. He will go along carefully with the stallion, and should he decide to start him against the watch or in a race where Sunol was the competitor the public would flock to see the performance, knowing that Doble never brings an inferior article of goods out for show.

"Pulling Matches."

The following timely words taken from the Kentucky Stock Farm should be taken to heart by all who are interested in the trotting horse in California, as the remarks apply equally to this State: "There seems to be a decided disposition among some drivers to convert trotting races into "pulling matches"; the one who can get the tightest grip on his horse and drive him under the wire in the slowest time and still save his distance is regarded as the best man. Sometimes this style of driving pays pretty well, but occasionally it results in "laying up" a driver for an indefinite number of heats. The scheme seems to work better on some tracks than on others. The attention of one gentleman who was using rather extraordinary skill, in, bringing his horse in towards the rear of the procession was called to this as the possible result of an exhibition of too great dexterity in the way of preventing his horse from showing too lively a rate of speed, and the driver claimed that he was merely carrying out an arraugement that he had previously made with the judges' stand. About the next race be was in the same tactics were pursued, resulting in a mild intimitation from the stand to the fact that a persistance in that sort of driving would in all probability lead to the substitution of a new driver. This was one of the neatest pulling matches yet known. As it turned out, the favorite won the race.

At some of the tracks driving of this character is not at all popular, and the men who indulge in it are liable to get into trouble when they least expect it.

If it should so happen that the track should be deprived of the valuable services, for two or three seasons, of a few of the gentlemen who are so peculiarly skillful in not winning races, the lamentations of the friends of honest racing will not be violent or protracted in their duration."

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him awey from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure. This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

No. 1. All trotting races are the best 3 in 5 (except the two year olds and yearlings) 6 to enter and three to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than 6 to fill by the deduction of a proportionate amount of the purse.

No. 2. Any races filling with 10 or more paid up entries the Society will add all monies over and also 2½ per cent. of the purse.

No 3. The National Association rules to govern, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, or to trot a special race between heats.

No. 4. A horse making a walk over is entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided as follows: two-thirds to first one-third to second.

No. 5. The State Agricultural Society rules of 1890 to govern all running races, except when conditions named are otherwise.

No. 6. Non-starters in running races will be held for entrance.

No. 7. In all of the above races the entrance will be 10 per cent. of purse, and to accompany nominations. Purses will be divided into 60 40 and 10 per cent.

No. 8. In all races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race will be required to start.

No. 9. When there is more than one entry by one person or in one interest the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race.

No. 10. In races designated as District all horses are eligible that were owned in the counties of Nevada, Placer, Yuba, Sutter, Colusa Butte, Sierra, Shasta, Plumas, Tehama and Lassen, and Washoe and Ormsby counties of the State of Nevada, prior to July 1st; also horses training on the Society's track from July 1st.

No. 11. Horses are eligible in county races if owned in the county prior to July 1st, or trained on the Society's track from July 1st.

No. 12. Hay, straw and Feed will not be furnished by the Society, but will be for sale on the grounds at reasonable rates.

Entries close with the Secretary on August 1st.

All purses are free to all unless otherwise designated.

The track at Glenbrook Park is now in first-class condition, and will be kept so and is free to all who wish to train on the course.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50,

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M, on Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

In all races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

If, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse; and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted.

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

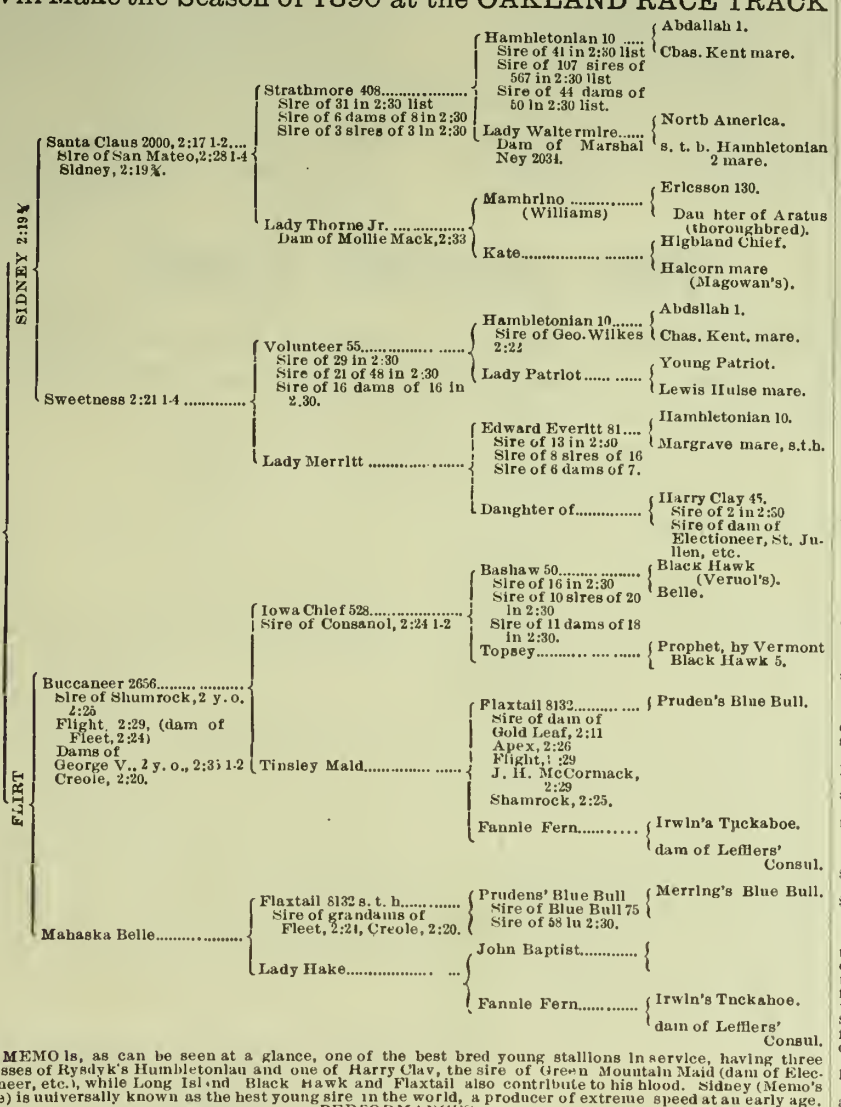
Memo.

The Best Son of SIDNEY

Will Make the Season of 1890 at the OAKLAND RACE TRACK



MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Ryadyk's Humbletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31 1-2, the first in 2 32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore fetlock, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, gave hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address or, JOHN ROWEN, Race Track, Oakland, Cal.

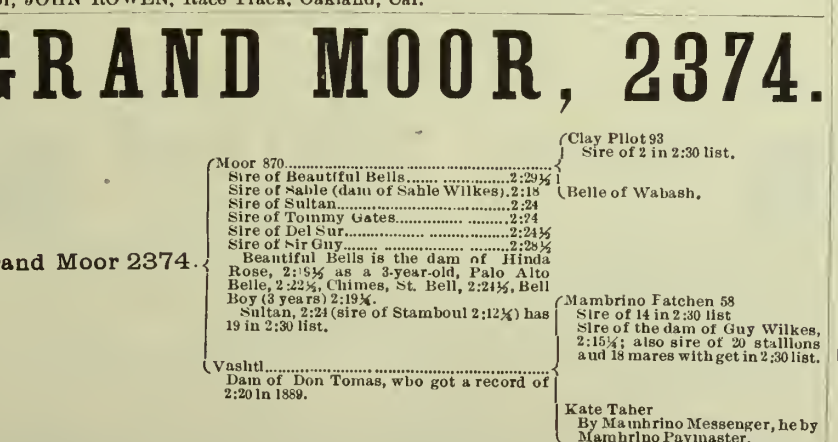
GRAND MOOR, 2374.



Foaled 1876. Black. Sixteen hands high. Bred by L. J. Rose

A horse of highest form and quality; of great excellence in every point; a type of his celebrated family; of marked individuality, spirit and endurance; never properly trained or raced, but shows the possession of great speed; perfectly manageable in the stable and on the road and track.

As he is sired by The Moor 870, a son of CLAY PILOT, out of Vashti by MAMBRINO PATCHEN, he is a most valuable cross for mares of other families. THE MOOR sired Beautiful Bells and the dams of Sable Wilkes and Margaret 2:28 (dam of Regal Wilkes, 2-year-old record 2:20¾).

MAMBRINO PATCHEN is regarded as the unsurpassed sire of broodmares, having, among many others, sired the dam of Guy Wilkes and of Wm. L (the sire of Axtell), and a son of his sired the dam of Axtell. The public sales this year have demonstrated with renewed emphasis the value of The Moor and Mambrino Patchen strains of blood. For combining particularly with the Hambletonians it may be called "the ready money cross."

GRAND MOOR will make the season of 1890 for a time at the Oakland Race Track and afterwards at my Ranch, fifteen miles from Oakland. Mares can be delivered at the race track to the groom in charge. Pasture at $5 per month. For other food, if requested, an additional charge will be made.

TERMS, $150 for the season, with privileges of return if the horse does not change hands.

Every care exercised, but no liability for escapes or accidents.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

No matter how stormy the weather. All Stock under cover when it rains.

VISITORS WELCOME ANY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come. On horses that stay three months or over there is no charge for getting or delivering. Where a horse stays a short time the actual time and expense only is charged to him.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable.

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once command the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

The BOYCE WASH can be applied ALL OVER THE BODY WITHOUT FEAR OF BLISTERING NOR DOES IT AFFECT THE KIDNEYS.

The BOYCE WASH will cure CRACKED HEELS, PUFFS, STOCKINGS, SCRATCHES, INFLAMED TENDONS and FEVERED LEGS.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States; six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on application. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

No. 313 BUSH STREET.

SAN FRANCISCO, SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1890.

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR

My First Steeplechase.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

I was loitering around the Army and Navy Club one foggy November morning, waiting to see a cousin of mine who had just returned from India, and not finding him at the Club was just on the point of hailing a hansom cab to go home, when I heard the cheery voice of Jack Hooper, of the 17th Lancers, calling out my name. In another second we were shaking hands and soon settled down to a cigar and brandy and soda in the smoking room.

"I thought your regiment was quartered at York, Jack," said I. "What the deuce brings you up to town?"

"Well, I'll tell you. I've made a match for £500 a side between my mare Violet and Colonel Cranmer's horse Rover. We are to go three miles over the Malton steeplechase course, and each is to carry 10 stone 6 lbs. Of course I cannot possibly get down to weight, in fact won't try to, so I have come to town to see if I can persuade some of my hunting friends who don't pack so much weight as I do, to ride for me. It is stipulated in the agreement that only gentlemen riders can be up and that they shall be men that have never won a race across country."

"Rather a queer sort of a match to make, is it not, with such conditions?"

"Well, yes, it does look a little odd, but Cranmer is a devilish sharp fellow and he has a young brother who can ride like the devil and can scale without any trouble."

"Who were you thinking of getting to ride for you?"

"I had my mind set on getting little "Chappie" Brooke on the 10th, but confound him, he has got so fat since he got married, that he can't ride the weight, at least so he says, but I fancy his wife won't let him ride. By Jove Will, what do you weigh?"

"Just ten stone as I stand."

"Did you ever win a steeplechase?"

"I never even rode in one. I've ridden to hounds since I was ten years old, but I never yet rode a race on the flat or otherwise."

Yes, I've seen you flying the post and rails in Leicestershire, Will, and the dikes in Holderness, too, and know you are made of the proper stuff. Gad! I wish you would ride my mare for me. You can stand in £100 to nothing on the race."

I was, I confess, somewhat diffident as to my qualification as a steeplechase jockey, but Hooper at last made me promise I would go back with him next day to York and ride Violet in the match which was to come off three days after, so promising to meet him the next morning at King's Cross station, I went home to my rooms at the Tavistock, and packed my hunting paraphernalia and other traps ready for the morrow.

I did not sleep much that night, for I was too excited, and when I did it was to dream of flying over impossible fences on a most improbable horse—in fact, a nightmare. In the morning I weighed myself, and was pleased to find that I only scaled 9st. 11lbs. with coat and waist-coat off. This left me with 9lbs. for saddle and bridle, and as I had a seven-pound saddle with me, I felt all right as to weight, as my pelham did not weigh quite two pounds.

I found Jack anxiously waiting for me at the station when I arrived, and we were soon settled down in a first class coupe, and going Yorkwards as fast as the Caledonian express could carry us.

Jack wanted me to stay with him at the barracks, but I insisted upon staying at the Great Northern Hotel, as I well knew there would be more drinking at the mess than I cared for.

Of course, as soon as we had had lunch, we went to look at the mare. She was a likely looking animal, by King of Trumps out of a mare called Stella, who had won several races herself, and just came in as a half bred. Violet was a dark chestnut, with a white fetlock, and stood about 15 hands 2 inches, well ribbed up, with a good sloping shoulder, large flat bocks and sinewey thighs. Her crest and forehand were racing looking, and her quarters had that peculiar slope that denotes speed and good propelling power. Her eye was large but full of fire, and showed a little more of the white than I quite liked.

"Well, what do you think of her?" asked Hooper, when I had taken in all her points.

"I think she will do, but how about her temper?"

"O! a trifle hot, but not vicious. She goes best on the snaffle. A better fencer never stood on four legs, and she does not know what it is to refuse."

The next morning I took her out for a gallop on Knavesmire, and was well pleased with the way she went. She had a long even stride, and when I extended her alongside some race horses that were out at exercise, I found that she had more pace than I gave her credit for.

I rode her each morning, and we soon became good friends though once or twice she showed temper, but a little coaxing soon brought her round. At last the eventful day of the race came. The 17th had gone to Malton en masse to see the match, and the old Talbot Inn was crowded with lancers and their friends. The race was to be run at 11 A. M, and after breakfast I went to take a look at Rover, Cranmer's horse. He was a dark bay with black points and stood fully 16 hands. One foreleg looked a trifle puffed I thought, but otherwise there was no fault to find. He was an aged horse, probably nine or so, and was as thoroughbred as Eclipse, being by Maccaroni out of a mare by Blair Athol.

Eleven o'clock came, the saddling bell rang. Violet stripped beautifully, her coat was like satin and she looked as fit as a fiddle. I gulped down a stiff glass of brandy, as I felt somewhat nervous, weighed out and mounted. The stand was crowded as I cantered passed and the cheers that greeted me made me feel more at home.

Rover was soon out too with young Ralph Cranmer up, looking a trifle pale (as no doubt I did) and nervous.

We got off at the first attempt and were over two fences before I could get a pull on the mare who flew the hedges like a cannon ball. When I had steadied her a little I looked over my shoulder and saw Rover a length or so behind. I let him come up and we cleared the next five fences almost abreast. We had to go three times round the course, and the last field before we came into the flat was plough. Here I eased Violet and let my opponent take the lead. A heavy stake fence lay between us and the grass, with a drop of fully four feet. Rover went at it with a rush, stumbled on landing and came very near unshipping his rider, who was right onto his neck but managed to scramble back into the saddle. This blundering delayed him and I was leading by three lengths when we passed the stand the first time round. I saw Hooper making some signs to me which I could not quite understand. He was moving his arms as if whipping furiously. I took it to mean "force the pace" and did so, but the bay was not to be denied and I felt he had the pace of me if he could only stay.

Inch by inch he crept up until when we entered the flat the second time we were neck and neck. Violet was going strong and was full of running, so I did not try to check her but kept right at Rover's girths. At length we came to the last field, the heavy plough, and I shook her up, raced alongside of Cranmer's flyer, and passing him, led over the last fence, and led into the flat. I was not a bit excited now, nor nervous and a hundred "finishes" I had seen flashed through my mind as I took a sly look back at Rover, and at the same time touched Violet with the spur. It was unnecessary, for to my utter astonishment my opponent was dismounted and leading his horse, which could barely limp along. I cantered in alone amid deafening cheers from the men of the 17th. Rover's doubtful back sinew had given way at the last fence with the big drop, and he was a hopeless cripple.

If we didn't make Rome howl at the Barracks that night it was not our faults. We tried our best. Thus ended my maiden ride in a steeplechase, and I must own that I was glad when it was all over, for the strain on a young man not far out of his 'teens was peculiarly trying.

WM. L. EYRE.

The Eureka Meeting.

For some unaccountable reason the horsemen from this section of the State who usually attend the meetings annually held at Eureka did not enter this year, and as a consequence the entry list was not of the best. Many of the horses that are now in the East or in Montana or Oregon, are those which have usually been taken up to Humboldt County for the July meeting, and it is only on account of their absence that a reason can be given for the non-attendance of many who are usualty to be seen there.

On Friday, the 4th of July, an attendance of over 1000 persons was present at South Park, many of whom were ladies, to witness the opening race of the day. The initial event on the card was a mile dash for runners, the purse being $200 of which $50 went to the second. Three starters came to the post, the entries being Nellie G., Wild Robin and Farewell. Nellie G. acted very unruly, and once made the circuit of the track on a false start. Although this seemingly would have lessened her chances considerably, the mare had no difficulty in winning, Wild Robin being second. Time 1:49.

The second race of the day was a trot for named horses, the entries being Johnny Moore, Tom and Cling. Tom and Johnny Moore were so decidedly out-classed that the race had but very little interest for the spectators. Only those who had been given a quiet tip on Cling's chance feeling any interest whatever in the result. When the word was given, Gillete, the driver of Cling took his horse to the front and was never headed in the heat, passing under the wire in 2:35, the other two being distanced. Complaint was made to the judges that Tom was not driven as he should have been, and they decided that the first heat should be trotted over again, substituting T. F. Rix for Hellman, the driver of Tom. Notwithstanding the change, the result was the same as in the preliminary heat, Cling winning in 2:36, distancing both the other horses.

The third race of the day was for the runners, a 600 yard dash, the winner to receive $75 and $25 to go to the second horse. Those who started for the money were Black Pet, Rondo and Monte. A long time was consumed in getting them off evenly, Black pet acting in a very mischievous manner. When the flag fell, Rondo got off in advance and was never headed, winning in 33 seconds with Monte second, and Black Pet last.

The concluding race on the card was a three eighths of a mile dash for horses raised in Humboldt County, for foals of 1888 only. There were starters, G. W., Ella C. and Sundown. At the first attempt the horses were sent off in first-class order, and although the race was a short one, it was the most interesting of the day. Ella C. headed her opponents, winning in 41 seconds, Sundown being second and G. W. third.

The attendance for the second day was somewhat meagre, the population not turning out in the numbers they should have, after the strenuous efforts made by the Directors to give them a good two-days' meeting.

The first race on the programme was for two-year-olds raised in Humboldt County. Distance five-eighths of a mile. The entrance fee being $30, with $150 added by the Association. The entries were Lanini, Ella C. and Sundown. As on the previous day, Ella C. had little difficulty in winning; Sundown being second, Time 1:11½.

The second event was a half-mile dash for a purse of $150, of which $25 went to the second horse. The entries were Rondo, Monte and Little Cap. Monte proved the winner, with Little Cap second. Time 50 seconds.

The concluding race of the meeting was for a purse of $200 the distance being seven-eighths of a mile and repeat. Three horses again faced the starter, they being McCormack, Night Time and Wild Robin. Wild Robin won the first two heats, with Night Time second in each. The time of the first heat being 1:37 and that of the second 1:39.

Our Australian Letter.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, June 11, 1890.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: When the weights came out for the Birthday meeting of the Australian Jockey Club, an annual run at Randwick, it was seen that the plucky little son of Sir Modred, Sir William, was placed at the head of affairs in both big events. For the Royal stakes, one of our Champion Sprint races, he was weighed at 9 stone 5 lb., but as it was patent he was over handicapped, his name was quickly struck out of the event. For the big handicap of the meeting he was allotted 9 stone, but unreasonable as the impost was considered by most racing men, his owner decided to send him. These unfair and ridiculous weights are the outcome of his owner running him fair and square for all his engagements. Other owners with equally good animals run them "bye" after "bye," and although it must be known by the handicapper, they are let in at pounds lighter than a consistent runner like Sir William, from which it would appear the A. J. C. handicapper would work more in the interests of the morality of the turf if he gave the "tryer" a show, and smothered the "stiff'un." In this connection, Melbourne has been the venu of a big turf scandal law suit. One Kelly, who had been a trainer in England and South Africa, had in his hands a horse called Moorehank, which was engaged in the Caulfield Cup. The horse was reported to have done some wonderful trials, and on Kelly's recommendation a syndicate backed the horse to win them some £5,000. In the race the horse finished second last, the last horse having broken a blood vessel, or he would have probably finished ahead of the much-backed one. Recriminations followed and Gill, one of the syndicate and a heavy loser, openly charged Kelly with having "stuffed" the horse and preventing his winning. This was the subject of the libel suit, Kelly claiming £5,000 damages. Wilson, who owned the horse, swore that Kelly told him that Alf Josephs, the Australian bookmaker now in England, had offered him £700 to "stiffen" the quadruped. Kelly was "damned by faint praise" by obtaining a verdict for £5. Young Brodribb, who is the coming Australian "plunger," was one of the principals in the syndicate. A Sydney paper ominously draws Mr. Brodribb's attention to the fate of the American and English "plungers." "Walton," says the paper, "is now opening oysters," and Benzon at latest was picking oakum." Australians scarcely expected to see Kirkham win the English Derby, but they were surprised to hear their representative had finished nearly last, with his nose down to his knees, and the cry at once went up that the horse which in the morning was described as in perfect health, could not have been in condition at least what we consider "condition" out here. Cranbrook and Acme, brother and sister to the pair sent home, were not good enough to win a Derby in Australia, but in the batch last sent to England there is a brother to our last Derby winner Dreadnought, so Mr. White next year may have a better show. Mr. White is inundated with advice, which is so cheap, by the way, that he should give Australian training and jockeyship a show.

The Hobartville Stud Farm, near Sydney, one of the principal breeding establishments in Australia, carried on for a life time by Andrew Towns, pere and fils, was finally broken up last month, when the sires and matrons were brought under the hammer. The crack Trenton, the beautiful brown nine-year-old by Musket, from Frailty, caused no end of enthusiasm. He started at 500 guineas, and continued to rise at 100 guinea-bids until 2,950 was reached, the last bid being by Mr. W. Inglis, of Sydney. Mr. W. R. Wilson put on another 50 guineas, and Mr. Inglis being silent, the crack sire went to Victoria for 3,000 guineas.

Some of the broodmares fetched good prices, the fourteen-year-old mare White and Blue (imported), served by Somnus, being secured by the Hon. James White for 1,070 guineas. The sires brought 4,360 guineas, and the whole sale amounted to 13,935 guineas.

Queen's Birthday meetings are annual affairs both in Victoria and New South Wales; Sydney extending the meeting over two Saturdays. The principal event on the first day was the Royal Stakes, a handicap six-furlong flutter. The winner turned up in Little Lady, a three-year old filly by Julian Avenal, from Tiara, who was weighed at 6 stone. She started at 20 to 1, as the public did not fancy her, but her owner and stable won handsomely over the event. Mr. Oatley, her owner, is a lucky fellow, who was recently left some £150,000 by the Hon. Edward Flood, an old Sydney identity, and as Mr. Oatley has long had the inclination, and now has the means, he is likely to develop into one of Australia's foremost racing men. He is connected with the Forrester Stable, which is looked upon as one of the most astute racing establishments in New South Wales. We have some good hurdle racers in Australia, and one of the best of them is Bellringer, owned by the Messrs. Anthony, whose stable "holds a mortgage" on most of the jumping events. Bellringer won the hurdle race at the Sydney J. C. Birthday meeting with the crusher of 13 stone 4 pounds on his back.

For the steeplechase on the same day, Bushman was backed heavily by the public. In these races the horses continue on the steeplechase course until nearing the finish, when they go into the course proper. Bushman was winning in a canter, and notwithstanding the clerk of the course stood at the turn to warn riders into the right track, the rider of Bushman kept on the jumping course, and Grafton won. This is not the first time such a blunder has been made, and the authorities are to blame in not hurdling off all but the proper track before the horses come round for the spurt home. For the Queen's Birthday Cup, Swing, who had won the Birthday Cup on the previous Saturday in Victoria, was most fancied, but she failed to run into a place, and Eclipse, a rank outsider so far as the betting was concerned, won from the much fancied Insigna. Eclipse is by The Drummer (imported), whose get are ever to be feared as upsetting a "certainty" or a "dead bird," as a sure thing is now termed in certain Australian sporting circles. Sir William, 9 stone, and Antaeus, 8 stone 5 pounds, both by Sir Modred, started, but were never in the hunt. The winner Eclipse is a four-year old, and carried 6st. 3lbs.

The principal fixture at the Victoria Racing Club's meeting on the 24th of May was the Birthday Handicap, a mile and a half sweepstakes of 10 sovs. each with 1000 sovereigns added. The winner turned up in Swing, 3 year old filly by St. Albans from See Saw, the runner up being Tartar, a four year old colt by the ever dangerous sire Musket, who carried a pound less than Swing. On the strength of their running they were at once railed over to Sydney to run in the A. J. C. Birthday Cup, but as stated elsewhere they were unable to run into a place. The Royal Handicap, a six furlong flutter was won by the Admiral, a two year old carrying 7 st 12lb, and ridden by the crack jockey Tom Hales. The Admiral is by Richmond, a well performed horse who won the Sydney Derby in 1875. The entries for the Melbourne Cup meeting, which ever cause a flutter of excitement in Australian Sporting Circles, are just out, and the interest this year has not been lessened by the fact that the added money will be £10,000. The largest number ever entered for this race was in Sheet Anchor's year 1885, when 165 subscribed. This year they number 150, and as may be imagined pretty well all the crack horses in Australia and New Zealand are to be found amongst the number. Last year's winner Bravo is absent, as he goes to India shortly. "THE JUNGLE."

Our Siskiyou Letter.

YREKA, CAL., July 15th., 1890

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—The weekly advent of your delightful and breezy "hosa" paper is now becoming one of the "events of note" with a small knot of thoroughbred sportsmen in this corner of the commonwealth, and accepting in good faith your invitation to furnish items from different sections of the State touching on such matters as may be of interest to your readers, I have concluded to furnish you a budget from old Siskiyou. Yreka is one of the oldest towns in the State, and is the county seat of our county. We have a fairly good race track near town, and indulge extensively in "agricultural hoss trots". The society is in a flourishing condition, and is admirably officered, its president being one of our most popular and energetic merchants, James Vance, and it is of record that whatever "Jim" takes hold of just naturally has to go? En passante, Mr. Vance is the owner of two or three Altamonts that can go some, too, one particularly, a young and remarkably handsome bay mare that has a future before her, if nothing goes wrong. Altamont's get are highly appreciated here, and his blood is being strongly infused into our stock.

We are somewhat eclectic in our predilections, however, and have several other very valuable strains of fast blood to breed to in our county. L. Swan, the former owner of Alteena and Stemwinder, has recently purchased two young Antevolo stallions, out of Echo mares, which are being handled by the veteran driver and trainer, Al Peacock, on our track. Al is terribly sweet on them, and claims that one of them, Aradid, is good enough to take back to Kentucky.

Until very recently, the matter of pedigrees has received but little attention in our county, although our fine pasture and gravelly soil are giving to our horses the very best of legs and feet. We have much desirable horseflesh up here, but the purchaser in response to the question of breeding, is most usually met with the reply: "Oh! it is Keokuk an' Abdaller;" occasionally varied with "Lummox an' ole Messenger," all of which is true in diverse degrees. But we are getting down to business now, and our really good brood mares are being largely stinted to choice stallions of well authenticated pedigrees, and the result is beginning to tell in the fine crop of youngsters now coming on in our midst.

Two other fine stallions, owned by the Siskiyou Land and Cattle Co. near Montague, are worthy of note. They are Admar by Admiral and Derby by Newland's Hamiltonian, and out of Phaceola. Admar is the sire of Lenmar, now being handled in Petaluma, I think. Lenmar is owned by A. T. Hatch, and is good for a record away below 20 this fall, if he will stand the necessary amount of training. By the way, we have a younger full brother of Lenmar staked out up here. We have, besides, a large number of Admar colts here, and they are all good ones.

But our sport is not entirely confined to horse racing, as old Siskiyou is in all respects an "out and out" sportsman's paradise, with practically inexhaustible supplies of game and fish. And now, that we are in direct connection with San Francisco by rail, we shall every year expect an increased number of nimrods to visit us; and if mule-deer, jack rabbits and quail are too common, the more aspiring gunner can, with but little trouble, flush a flock of mountain lions, or run onto a bevy of panthers, or take a pot-shot at a grizzly. As for fish, the Klamath and Shasta rivers, as well as our hundreds of mountain streams, are literally swarming with them; salmon, salmon-trout and mountain-trout, great speckled beauties who are fairly longing to be caught.

We have organized a sportsman's club in Yreka, and are endeavoring with some success to enforce the game-laws, but the task is an up hill one. Fortunately, we are ably assisted by C. H. Bogart of our town, who holds the appointment of local deputy fish commissioner.

Charley is not only an enthusiastic sportsman, but is also a very active and efficient officer, and we feel much indebted to him for the zeal which he has manifested in protecting our game and fish from indiscriminate slaughter. Unfortunately, he has not received that support and assistance from the Board of Fish Commissioners to which we think he is entitled. It is a matter in which we are all interested, and our club is not able to afford him all the pecuniary assistance he really needs in enforcing the law, although we have already and will again tax ourselves liberally to that end. In the eastern end of our county we still have a number of bands of antelope. Last winter the snow was so deep as to render these little animals helpless, and in one instance, a human brute, out on the Butte Creek desert, took a pitchfork and went out and stabbed ten or twelve of them to death, merely to satisfy his lust for slaughter. We tried to make out a case against him, but he had destroyed the evidences of his crime, and none of his neighbors would testify against him, and we were reluctantly compelled to abandon the prosecution. By the way, dear Sportsman, isn't it odd how difficult it appears to be to convict for offenses against the game law?

Deputy Fred Callnnden had a racy experience with violators of the fish-law in this county last summer, and, although, owing to the usual perverseness of a petit jury, he was unable to convict the guilty parties, yet his efforts have had a very healthy effect on public morals. A word further as to antelope. Not many years since, there were thousands of them in this County, and now there are only a few hundred left, and in a few more years they will be only a memory. Would it not be a good idea to have a state law enacted entirely prohibiting their slaughter? All the better class of people in our County would highly approve such a measure.

Our local deputy C. H. Bogart seized about 2500 deer hides last season, in one lot, taken from deer illegally slaughtered. He also seized over 300 in another lot, and thinks he knows of about 2000 in a third lot which he will seize, shortly. This will give you some idea of the necessity for having active deputies in every County in the state. It is to be sincerely hoped that the legislature will enact a law that will authorize the employment of paid deputies. The employment of competent men would have the effect of re-stocking our mountains with game, and if it is not done, it will be impossible to prevent their depopulation, in a few years.

For those who desire to camp out and fish and hunt, our mountain recesses are unsurpassible, or if one desires sport coupled with the luxury of city life (barring the opera) he can find it, to his hearts content at the Klamath Hot Springs, now under the management of Clint Edson, formerly of the Alameda Baths. Clint is running the place to the queen's taste, I am told, and this, combined with the natural beauty of the place, situated as it is on the Klamath River, the rare hunting and fishing in its immediate vicinity, and the value of its medicinal springs all combine to push it to the very front, as an ideal spot for a summer outing. G. B. R.

Two-Year-Olds.

A very warm friend of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, who has paid particular attention to thoroughbreds for many years, has sent us a communication relative to the three great two-year-olds of their respective years, to-wit: El Rio Rey, Tremont and Sensation. Our friend says: These were all unbeaten two-year-olds; misfortune of one kind or another prevented them from running a race at three years of age. How can we compare them as race horses? Performance is the only reliable test. We will not now speculate on what they might have done as three-year-olds, nor upon what greater things they might have done than they did do at two years; we will only look at what they actually accomplished in public, this simplifies the comparison, and makes it clear and satisfactory. While we consider them only in their two-year-old form, we can confine them also to their races at three-quarters of a mile, for this is the distance for that age, and neither of them did anything phenomenal at any other distance to influence a better conclusion as to their respective merits.

El Rio Ray, three-quarters, carrying 126 pounds, time, 1:11.
Tremont, three-quarters, carrying 115 pounds, time, 1:15.
Sensation, three-quarters, carrying 110 pounds, time, 1:18.

El Rio Rey ran four races at three-quarters of a mile, and the slowest was 1:14¾, but if he so far surpassed the famous horses of former days, let us also compare his two-year old performances with those of Racine, also bred in California, and now so distinguished for the great mile at three years of age, beating the record which has so long been held by Ten Broeck. The fastest race of Racine as a two-year-old was three-quarters of a mile, with 110 pounds, in 1:14¼, although it must be confessed that there was nothing on the California turf during 1889 to push the great son of Bishop to his utmost speed, still with what he has done in the East since his departure from this State, we surely have just grounds and good cause for State pride in the thoroughbreds which have made the name of this glorious State so famous. THE FARM.

The Over Fatted Beast..

As the season of fsirs ia not far off, and that of fat stock showa will not be long thereafter delayed, it is well to consider the effect of feeding for show npon such animals aa are to be sold to the butchers for immediate use as food, or otherwise retained npon the premises ss breeders.

A thin beast is of course unfit for show, and it is equally true that the flesh of a beast in a state of poverty is unfit for human food. But it is equally true that except to the eye of the novice the excessively fatted beast is, to a degree, a monstrosity. No infant in a baby show, nor any man or woman on the street or elsewhere, receives compliments on great fatness.

It is a perverted taste that brings enconiums upon the excessively fat beast in the show ring; for the beast is drifting from its natural stste of usefulness, whether thia be in the breeding yard or upon the butcher's hooks.

The two extremes, acant flesh and great obesity, ahould be ruled out of all exhibitions where usefulness is the end sought.

Rnles governing fairs ahould so far make it a misdemeanor to greatly overfeed as to entirely chance the drift of public sentiment on this subject. There is no diversity of opinion as to the ends songht being usefnlness and profit to the grower; yet such extremes are tolerated and even encouraged, that the points of usefnlness and profit are overleaped, the real ends sought being thwarted.

A loaf of bread so puffed np by chemicals as to unfit it for use upon the table would certainly be ruled out by the proper committee. Yet from year to year awards are made upon breeding cows and upon heifers intended for breeding that have had their usefulness utterly taken from them by such long continued and excessive feeding that every fat vesicle in the body is crammed till degeneration of tissue is reached, or very nearly so. Impregnation becomes diffionlt, and not in a few inatancea impossible, simply because the ovaries and fallopian tubes are hemmed in by pressure, and prevented from acting in the way intended by nature.

Regarding the fatted steer, made so for show nnrposes, it is well known to many that the carcasses of some of these have been hought by hotel keepers, and that the long continued excessively fat state had so dwarfed the muscular tissues and so filled tbese with grease as to have changed the flavor, rendering the meat entirely unlike a properly fed and fatted beast · this being carried to such a degree that the meat was rejected by guests.

The rich juices that belong to meat properly fitted for use as food are in over fatted meat driven out, mere fat being substituted. The term "ripeness," when applied to an overfatted beast, is a perversion of the term. The meat is over ripe, and like an over ripa peach—a peach, in fact, just verging on decay—has, at one period dnring the feeding process, been just right for the butcher's knite. It has seen a condition whicb, if a vein had been opened and the hide taken off at that time, the palate of an epicure would have asked for nothing better. But, as with the peach, the grape and the nectarine, when held too long, the flavor that invites gives place to that which repels.

No committee on fruit awards upon specimena that have paaaed the atate and condition of highest flavor and usefulness. Fruit that haa passed its best atate haa undergone degeneration of tiaaue. Tbia ia a condition akin to degeneration of tbe muscular tissue; always the resnlt of a long continned atate of obeisity. The musclea of the body are so preased upon, ao restricted in motion, and ao exceasively charged with fat, that wbile fatty degeneration may not fully occur, there is ao near an approach to this that the natural flavor of the meat is so nearly destroyed that it is far from satisfactory when served upon the plate.

As fully outlined in these columns a year ago, the atate of perfection is reached in meat when animals are so bred that there is within tbe muscles' cell tiaaue into which fat may be deposited, resulting in that state known as "marbling." When this marbling occurs early in the fattening procesa, we are quite certain to have well flavored, juicy meat as the reault. But, aa stated, when tbe fattening procesa is puahed beyond a reasonable limit and long continued, a degree of degeneration of the lean tissuea will occur; and thereupon all inviting flavor is parted with, and we have not by any meana the taste of meat under a state of decay, but it has a greasy, ill-flavored taste. The meat may reasonably be suspected of having approached too nearly to a state of degeneration of tissue.—G. S., in Chicago Prairie Farmer.

Points About Dairying.

1. In making butter, good sound, wholesome food is indispenaable. To make a good article from poor material is as impossible in dairying as in any manufacturing industry.

2. In making cheeae the full heat in scalding should be reached very gradually. To suddenly heat a cube ia to contract the pores so that the whey and gaa of the interior are not fully liberated, and going into the cheese cause bad effects.

3. Excessive acidity in oream before churning causea a partial separation of the butter fata, and the acid alao developa glycerine from one of the oils compoaing theae fata. Souring cream does not add to the quality of butter; it aimply creates a atronger flavor in contrast to the delicate flavor of nnsoured cream, which ia the true flavor or aroma.

4. Natural vegetable acids do not harm milk, but the artificial acid of fermenting food introducea an element into the consumption that it ia not posaible for nature to neutralize, and hence affects the milk. The amount of ferment may be small and do little injury, but if carried beyond a certain point will have a deleterious effect, which experiment, time and again, has demonstrated

5. Butter should alwaya be churned several degrees colder in summer than in winter. The reason is that the caseinoua matter of milk more readily attaches itself to the globulea in aummer than in winter, and that thia adheaion can beat be prevented by a cooler temperature of the cream when churning, is a fact.—Can. Clover Fed Pigs.

Difference Between Them and Pigs Raised on Corn and Swill

Pigs raised on clover are becoming very profitable, for people are beginning to appreciate the difference between the meat of pigs raised on a diet of corn and those which are fed clover and grassea. Where the swine are raised npon a large scale for the pork factories it doesn't matter much what their diet is, so long as they grow rapidly and increase in weight. It ia quantity and not quality that takes. The great farms of the west devoted to raising pork for the market are largely to blame for bringing pork into disfavor. Many people wont eat pork, for they think it is unclean and liable to contain the germa of some disease. One cannot wonder that this impression has gone abroad, when alops and dirty dish water with corn added, are supposed to be the diet of the pigs, whoae time, when not eating this filthy compound, is spent in wallowing in dirt and mire.

In order to raise piga for profit it is necessary to feed them food that will improve the quality of the pork as well as increase the quantity. In the spring of the year the question of raising more awine comes up anew, and new methods of treatment of them should also enter into consideration. The farmer that gets the nsme of raising pork of the best quality never lacks for cnstomers who are ready to pay good prices for it. Tbere are thoae who are willing to pay fancy pirces for a high grade article. In this age of deception and fraud city consumers are never certain of what they are eating, unleas they buy direct from some farmer. Many prefer to buy their eggs, butter, milk, vegetables, fruits and meat direct from the producers, for then they know they are getting a genuine article. Farmers living close to large cities can find nothing more profitable than establiahing a name for raising nothing but the beat, and then charging fair prices for all of their products.

It is only recently that a change and reform in pig raising have generally been known by city people. They are beginning to nnderstand now that some of the pork is raised from clover, grains and clean food. The ordinary swill compound has been auperceded by a diet of milk, clover, grassea and grains. Grass-fed pigs produce snperior pork, and they run less danger of sickness. There would be less mortality among the swine if they were given the range of fields, and allowed to root around in clean soil; It will not always pay to inclose large pastures for swine, bnt aome good system of soiling should be adopted. They shonld have green food in summer, and roots, clover snd hay ailage in winter.

Corn is probably the cheapest ration for them, but the pork of such hogs is alwaya fat, and lacking in the flavor that always characterizes the clover fed hog. The pen and house for pigs shonld also receive some consideration from the owner, for the filth of such places has mnch to do in breeding disease during the hot weather, and also in tainting the meat. They should alwaya have a decent pen or house, and plenty of fresh, clean water near them. Those who raise pigs in the best approved ways will inevitably find profit in them, and will find that in the course of time, as thia pork becomes known, the demand will exceed the supply.—S. W. Chambers in American Cultivator.

Young Pigs—How to Feed Them.

As soon as the yonng pigs are three weeks old arrange aome tronghs made V sbape, from one six-inch and one four-inch board, in some lot where large hoga are excluded, and wbere the pigs will find them easily. Put in the troughs aome good milk or slop and aoaked corn, or better still, two-tbirds corn and one-third oats. in other troughs. Aa aoon as piga have learned to eat give only what they will eat up at each feed. Be particular to keep their troughs clean. Castrate the boars when four to eight weeks old. Wben the piga are to be weaned leave them in their accustomed range and remove the sow. Continue feeding soaked corn and alop made from ahorts, bran, milk, house slop, water, etc., until September 1st. when new corn will be fed. When making the change from old to new corn the slop may be taken away, aa it will likely be needed for more young piga. But continue if posaible to give some slop. It ia now time to finiah the stock for market. If the pigs have been well fed and cared for they will now average 125 to 140 pounda each. They ahould now be pushed as rapidly as possible. See that there ia abundance of pure water, and salt in a tronch in some convenient place. Rake up and burn the coba and waste matter aa often as they accumnlate. By November 1st they ahould weigh 200 pounds or over, and may be marketed or fed two months longer at a gain of 50 ponnds per month, as circumatances may dictate. You now have a nice smooth lot of medium-weights, with fine finiah. All the local buyera wisb first choice, hence yon get the extreme top price. The buyer returns from market well pleased and requeata yon to notify him when the next lot is ready for sale.—Exchange.

Angora Goats.

Why not rear Angora goats in this country? Their wool ia used in the manufacture of mohair goods, and these goods are very faahionable again. The Angora or mohair goat can be raised anywhere that sheep can. Its native climate in Asia Minor is similar to than of Texas and some of the Southern atates; still, the Angora has been tried with perfect succeaa in New England. On the Pacific coast there are large flocka of these animals. They are more eaaily kept than sheep, and doga will not diaturb them, which goea a long way in their favor. It is said, by thoae who have tried it, that if one Angora goat is put to run with a flock of aheep, the doga will keep away from that flock as if it was poison.

The cleansed mohair fleece weigha about four pounds. Ita price, free of burrs and waahed, ranged laat year from 36 centa to 52 cents in New York, and from 45 cents to 50 centa on the Pacific Coast. Tht wool is very long and silky, hanging in curls nearly to the animal's feet. The Angora is extremely hardy, and is less liable to diaease than the sheep. It will eat almost anything short of the traditional rubber boot and tomato can, which furnish the delicacies of the billy in the old song. For clearing fields and pastures that have become foul with briara and weeda theae little creatures are invaluable. They are inquisitive and great olimbers. It ia likely that they prove especially deairable for the Southern atates, owing to the greater pasture range in the sheep raising regions there.

Last year 685,106 pounda of mohair wool was raised in the union. Tbis waa all nsed up by the manufacturers, and 1,720,432 pounds more, which was imported. Here is certainly one market not yet overstocked.—Daily Gazette.

Cooling Without Ice.

In many sections the use of ice will be very expensive dnring the snmmer, so that some method that will do the work passably must be used. Water at a temperature of 50 degrees can be used so as to furnish a cooling room and hold it at 50 degrees to 60 degrees if proper tanks and a continnal flow can be had. Many creamermen in fact, are and have nsed water refrigeration in preference to ice; even when the latter are to be had at little cost, for the reason that a temperature of 50 degrees to 60 degrees in their opinion, was preferable to 40 degrees. A cooling room of sufficient aize to hold a week's output of butter can be built, say 50 to 150 packages, in one corner or end of the factory. The room should be perfectly insnlated, by not less than three dead air spaces on all sides and the top, with a ventilator at one side, with openings at various heights. The floor ahould be of cement, or what is as well if they are to be had, burned brick laid in sand and cement, with a drain leading to an outlet some distance from the factory. Thia drain shoubd be so arranged as to close entirely, for the purpose of flooding with water. when the weather ia very hot. In the top of the cooling room place a galvanized iron tank, built in tbe shape of a broad trough, with an over flow at the top, connecting with the drain. A continuous stream of water running through thia tank will bring the temperature to within 4 degrees oa 5 degrees of the water, and give a cooling room that will be very satiafactory. The arrangement of the tank should be snch that a circulation can be secured so that the air will, as cooled, find its way to the bottom, and the warm air continually brought into contract with the cold water will be cooled. Thia can be done by having a false ceiling on one side of the room extending from the tank to within a few inches of the floor, thus furnishing an outlet for the cooled air as it drops down to the lower level. Those who do without ice should avail themselves of this water refrigerator, and by so doing they will aave many times its cost in their butter. A large number of the best creameries in the Elgin district use this system exclusively, not disparaging ice at all.—Elgin in The Farmers' Review.

Ranching in South America.

In 1885 there were 41,000,000 sheep in the United Statea, 72,00,000 in Australia, and 100,000,000 in the Argentine Republic. We have two-thirds of sheep to every inhabitant; in the Argentine Republic there are twenty-five aheep, and in Uruguay forty aheep to every man, woman and child. We have 40,000,000 of horned cattle, a population of 60,000,000; the Argentine Repubiic and Uruguay have 38,000,000 of cattle to a population of 4,000,000. In Uruguay with a population of 500,000 aouls, there are 8,000,000 of cattle, 20 000,000 of sheep, 2,000,000 of horses, or 60 head of stock for each man, woman and child. Fifteen million dollars have been invested in wire fencea in Uruguay alone, and more than twice as much in the Argentine Republic. In either of these countries a cow can be bought for $5, a steer fattened for tbe market for $10 or $12, a pair of oxen for $25, a sheep for 50 or 60 cents, an ordinary working horse for $8 or $10, and a roadster for $25, a mnle for $15, and a mare for whatever her hide will bring. Mares are never broken to saddle or harness, but are allowed to run wild in the pastnres from the time they are foaled until they cease to be of value for breeding, when tbey are driven to the sale-dros or slaughter honses and killed for their hidea. A man who wonld nae a mare nnder the saddle or before a wagon would be considered of unsound mind. There is a superatition againat it.—Harper's Magazine.

Tuberculosis.

The dangers from tuberoulosis in cattle, so strongly commented on by the press, is emphasized by Dr. Ernat, an expert who haa communicated the resulta of hia experiments to the New York Medical Journal. That authority indoraea Dr. Ernst's conclnsions, which were arrived at after long and earnest study. The buildings in which the cowa were kept were cleaned, acrubbed, washed with bichloride of mercury solution, and then white washed. Before the cows were milked the udders and teats were thoroughly cleanaed. The milk was drawn into aterilized flasks and examined for Bacillus tuberculosis. Milk waa thns taken from thirty-aix cows, all presenting diatinct symptoms of the tuberculoais, but none having discoverable disease of the udder or teats. In the milk of ten of these cows the Bacillus tubercnloais was found, that is, in 27.7 per cent. The cream after rising was found to contain bacilli nearly as often as the milk upon which it floated. Numerous inoculation experiments were made with the milk upon rabbits and guinea piga, producing tuberculosia in many casea. Feeding experimenta on calves and yonng pigs gave aimilar results. Theae experimenta were made nnder the auspicea of the Maasachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture, the microscopic work being done at the Society's laboratory and in that of the Harvard Medical School. The remedy recommended by the professionals ia the boiling of all milk t ken into the human atomach. All water taken from wells ahonld be aubmitted to a similar purification.—Colman's Rural World.

Horses, Cattle and Chickens.

For colic and grubs, for lung fever, cough or hide bound, I give Simmons Liver Regulator (liqnid) in one ounce doaea, or, one teaspoonful of the powder in a maah twice a day. You can recommend it to any one having stock as the beat medicine known for the above complaints. In using it with my chickens for cholera or gapes I mix it with the dough and feed it to them once a day. By thia treatment I have lost none where the Regulator was given promptly and regularly.—E. T. Taylor, Agt. for Grangers of Ga.

Wells, Richardson & Co , Burlington, Vt., have gotten up a convenient Dairyman'a Account Book which they will aend to any addreas on receipt of a atamp. This book contains a ruled page for each month in the year, by which the amount of milk given by the herd or any individual oow may be recorded night and morning, also the number of pounds of butter churned. If you send for it, mention the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The Prince of Wales stakes at Leicester was worth £8500 ($42500) to the winner—Surefoot, who beat the Oaks winner Memoir after a close race. The distance was one mile and sixty yards and evidently Surefoot does not care about going the mile and a half he was asked to in the Derby.

There were eighteen starters for the Chicsgo end of the Friendly Stakes last Sstnrday, which was won by the Undine stables Rinfax, with Homer in the same stable second. Homer, whose first rsce it waa in the East, ran second nnder a good pull and could have won had it been necessary.

"The winning card of the future, so far as the leading fashion in blood is concerned, will be capacity to train on," says Hark Comstock. "Horses that can place three or four heats below a very fast mark will be the sensational horses of the near futnre, aa indsed they have always heen."

Gibson'a Tom Hal, hy Kittrell Hal, dam Julie Johnson, disd st Rockdale Farm Nashville on July 16th. He was eighteen yeara old, and the sire of Little Brown Jug 2:11¾, Hal 2:12½ and Hal Pointer 2:13. The remaina of the great stallion were buried on the farm owned by F. G. Buford.

F. B. Baldwin was in the city last Saturday and Snnday; he expects to have good entries for their fall meeling, and assnred me that their elahorate grand stand, large as it is, will not hold all of their spectstora. Mr. Baldwin went East last Wednesday to see hia relatives, bnt will he back in August.

Chris. Smith, the Wilkes—Lucy pacer, will make his debut at Detroit on ths 25th. In the same race is Pleasanton Stock Farm's Cricket. Hickok mnst have as good an opinion of the pacer as he had prsvious to leaving here for he hss entered him everywhere he could and bought aeveral nominations.

The breeders of trottera in Kentucky say that this sesson has been the most disastrons they have ever had. A disease resembling la grippe, with which the horses were affected last winter, has been the cause of hundreds of fosls heing alipped or lost after foaling, and it ia now very difficult to get mares with fosl.

It is rumored that Albert Cooper will train the Rosemeade stable next season. Albert in his day has trained many cracks for J. B. Haggin, E. J. Baldwin, Theo. Winters and others, while this year he ahowed his matchless skill in handling the threo-year-old Burlington who was unbeaten when he left the Hongh stable.

Buck Dickerson started Reality 2:23½, sgsinst the pacers Minnie Bell snd Country Girl on the Fourth at Rnshville, bnt the pacers proved too good for the trottsr, who finished third. Reality is owned by Mr. Larabie of Deer Lodge, Mont., foaled 1881, hy Reliance 2:22½. She is inbred, as her dam and her sire'a dam are daughtera of Mambrino Rattler, son of Biggart's Rattler.

Theo. Winters won two races st Washington Psrk, Chicago, last Wednssday. The first wss a two yesr old race for msidens which was won by San Jnsn, ths two-year old brother to Alta, carrying 111 lbs. best fonrteen two year olds in 1.03¾. The speedy four year old Joe Conrtney csrried 107 lbs. and beat thirteen others, rnnning the mile in 1.45.

P. A. Brsdy, John F. Donovan and Edward C. Botay hsve incorporated the Jackson Psrk race trsck that is to bs sitnated about a mite south of the Wsshington Park track, a tract of land there having besn bought lsst fall. The incorporators of the new track are well-known bookmskers, and Botay is the heaviest turf speculator in Illinois.

The Ssn Diego County District Agricultural Association should have a good meeting in September and October at Escondido. The directors are L. Steadman, President; W. H. H. Dinwiddie, Valley Center; John Judson, San Pasqnal; W. W. Stewart, San Diego; F. A. Kimball, National City; Chester Gunn, Julian; John M. Harvey, Coronado; C. A. McDongsll, Escondido.

Connt Valensin's chestnut stallion Simmocolon won a grand race at Philadelphia on the ninth. There were thirteen starters. Simmocolon took the first heat in 2:20¼ snd judging from the Eastern reports was laid up for several hests, the race wss postponed to the next day and as Camilla was nnable to go the pace Simmocolon wonnd it up going the eighth heat in 2:24¼.

Last Saturday morning Lot Slocum and some friends went to Petalnma to see how the trotters were moving. Lee Shaner drove Anna Bslle a mile ont in 2:42¾, then Murphy—Hickock's understndy, drove A. T. Hatch's Lenmar two heats in 2:26 and 2:22. Henry Agnew'a Emms Temple was driven s mile by Shaner in 2.24, last qnarter in 35, bsr wind seemed affected, but it may improve later on. Harry Slocum was given a mile in 2:26.

Mr. Abingdon Baird, the millionaire (iron) Scottish racing man has lately invested in a stable of trotters in England among them being Little Sioux 2:22¼, who was taken over, by the only Splsn, in the Bsrnnm show. It is to be hoped Mr. Baird will, if he drives, make a better dshut than he did on the turf, he certainly—judging from his performancea on the turf and as a backer in the prize ring, will not elevate the trotting interest by his assooiation with it.

Quite a cnrious case croppsd up in Canada, the end of which is not yet as fsr as can be gleaned from the Canadian Sportsman which says: Mr. Martin O'Mera, of London, Ont., lately imported from the U. S. a trotter called Tommy O, and psid duty on him to the extent of $100. Since the horse's arrival in Canada, howsver, he has shown so much speed that the anthoritiea declare he was passed at undervalnation, and have seized the animsl pending an investigation.

William Johnston, representing the National Association at the Inter-State Fair trotting meeting at Trenton, N. J., on the 5th of July, expelled John E. Walsh from further racing on the ground that the mare Maggie W, which he had entered in various slow class racea, was formerly known as Fame, and was owned in Toronto, whers she is said to have a low record. The owner claims no knowledge of snch a record and will appeal from the dscision at the meeting of the association.

There have been many enquiries as to which were the four Electioneers in the 2:30 list this year mentioned in Turf and Track last week. They are Snisun 2:22½, a 6-year-old bay mare out of Susie 2:26½ by Gso. M. Patchen Jr. 31; May King, 2:29 4-year-old stallion, brother to Maiden 2:23, ont of May Queen 2;20 by Alexander's Norman 25; Aleck B. 2:29¼, a bay gelding eight yesrs old ont of Alvaretta by George Lancaster and Fay 2:29¾ an eleven-year-old bay gelding out of Mary by Fred Low 656.

Every one seemed afraid to start the hidding on the yearling brother to Firenzi at the Elmendorff sale. Eventnally Jack Joyner offered $500, Matt Byrnsa and Wyndham Walden raised, Walden ontstayed Byrnes bnt had to let the colt go to W. L. Scott for $4,200—cheap is no way of expressing it. The half sister, by Glenelg, to Tremont shonld prove a hargain st $3,050; she wss sold to C. Boyle while Messrs. Morris gave $2,600 for a brother to Dry Monople and $2,300 for a brother to Grisette.

The Executive Committee of the State Board of Agriculture, Directors Green, Chase, LaRue, Shippse and Hancock present, decided at the forthcoming State Fsir to devote one morning to amateur athletic sports. It wss also decided to give an old-time California vaquero cattle roping and bronco riding exhibition open to the world. The committse added a young herd cattle premium for all classes of cattle. Liberati's celebrated New York military band has been engaged for the last week of the fair.

Superintendent Mulcahy, of the Industrial Department of the Nevada State Board of Agriculture, proposes to make the pavilion display at the State Fair at Reno, on Sept. 22nd and following days, one of the features of the meeting. The sgricultnral department is expected to present a grand display of the splsndid productions of the State. The speed programme is so good that it is tonnd to procure a great entry of the best horses in California and Montana as well as Nevada.

A remarkable incident occurred in the first race on the opening day of the Wilkesbarre meeting. The first heat waa won by Electra, the second and third heats by Burt Sheldon, and the fourth and fifth heats hy Buckskin Dick. In the latter heat both Burt Sheldon and Electra were distsnced As five heats had been trotted the other three competitors, Verona, Richard Wilkes and Stephie, went to the barn under the rule, and there was nothing left in the race. Buckskin Dick therefore had a walkover in the sixth heat.

Henry Walsh is training at Mayfield, imp. Bruce a 5-year-old by Foxhall out of imp Gonsaway, Muta, Flambeau, Tearless, who is a sister to Raindrop, at wo-year-old chestnut colt hy Wildidle out of Moselle, a hay colt by Flood ont ol imp Queen Bess, and a hay colt hy imp Cyrus out of Katharion by Harry of the West. Pcel is in good order and ahould have a mortgage on all the circuit races he starts in. Flambeau still has a leg hnt Mr. Walsh hopes he will stand up. Muta is in fsir trim and will be dangerous among the three-year olds on the coast.

It is related in a foreign exchange that the King of the Belgians has been considerably disappointed with the ten pure Arabian steeds lately presented to him by the Sultan of Morocco. They were reported to have been the pick of the country, and they were selected personally by the Sultan, but they nevertheless turned out to be very ordinary animals. However, the matter is explained by the fact that the officials who had charge of their shipment, Oriental like, sold the original animals and substituted inferior ones.

There were two saddle horse races at Greenville on the 5th, the first a half mile and repeat with eight starters. The first heat was won by Branley's Black Puss, Stark's Susie second, Smith's Rock third. Time, :55. The second heat was taken by Stark's Susie in 57½, Black Puss second, Rock third. The third heat and race was won by Susie in :59½. Black Puss second. The quarter race had four entries, Rock, Coyote, Blue Jay and D. L. Rock won first and second heats in :27 and 27½ respectively, Coyote being second.

Fannie Swope, a four-year-old daughter of Florida, for which a cash offer of $6,000 has been refused, was purchased at a Kentucky auction sale last year for $620 by a Boston horseman who liked her looks and remembered what Fortuna, Frenzy and Faust, all by Florida, had been doing. Florida is another instance of a horse beginning to sire speed in his old age. Barring Walnut and Lotta, Florida never got anything that was of much account during the many years he stood in New York and Illinois, but since going to Kentucky he has done wonderfully well and is now largely patronized at a large fee.

W. McCormick is credited with saying that "Flambeau (Wildidle—Flirt (imp)) can best Racine after going a mile and any part of the road before going it and do it easily." Henry Walsh assured me both last year and this spring that from one jump to the Rocky Mountains Flambeau could beat Racine, and slowly but surely I had to acknowledge that the veteran was right. Flambeau had he been out east, all right, this year would have romped away from all the three year olds, and even Salvator would have known he had had a race when he got through with the royally bred son of Wildidle and imp Flirt by Hermit, grand dam by Wild Dayrell, who like Hermit was a Derby winner, Splan tells a very good story about Doble's experience at one of the Northwestern Circuit meetings last year. A farmer had a horse entered at the meeting and managed to get Doble to drive him. He was very well pleased with the showing until his horse was not returned as a winner, and sought out Splan in order to learn how much he should give the present trainer of Axtell. "Well," said Splan, "Budd trains horses for three dollars a day, I think, and about half that should be all right." The countryman swallowed the bait, and started out to find Doble. Splan followed, but was annoyed to see Budd decline the agriculturalist's munificent offer of $2 for the afternoon's work.

The New York Spirit in the racing gossip anent the pedigree of Salvator (taken from a western Exchange) says Prince Charlie was dubbed the Prince of the T. Y. C., and says that it means the two-year-old course distance about a mile. As a matter of fact, the T. Y. C. varies from 5 to 6 furlongs, but is never understood to be a mile. At Newmarket the two-year-old course on the flat is 5 furlongs and 14 yards, while the new two-year-old course on which the July stakes is run is 5 furlongs and 136 yards, as is the Ascot T. Y. C. At Epsom the T. Y. C. is 6 furlongs, as it is at Brighton, Goodwood and Stockbridge. The T. Y. C. at Doncaster is 7 furlongs, 214 yards. Bath, Lincoln, Beverley, Durham, Manchester, Sandown and York call 5 furlongs the T. Y C.

A distinguished man once remarked that a mule has no pride of ancestry nor hope of posterity. When nature has produced a mule she generally stops there and the series ends, as with other hybrids. There are, however, a few cases on record of productive mare mules but they are so rare as to be justly regarded as freaks of nature. A case of this sort is reported in the American Agriculturist. The mare mule is owned on the ranch of Mr. Timothy Dyer, Wyoming. The sire is a gray stallion, also owned by Mr. Dyer. The colt is piebald brown and white. On the haunches it shows the short hair and dark brown hide of its dam. Two other authenticated cases are reported of mare mules producing foals, both of which were exhibited for a long time in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris.

Rosie C was given by our reporter as by Hambletonian Mambrino—dam by Pathfinder. There appears to be considerable doubt yet as to the pedigree of Clancey's pacer, Rosie C, who made the great record of 2:22½ last week at Tacoma. The Oregonian, says: She was entered last year as a Ham mare, and Goddard, who came near buying her once, says she is by old Ham out of a Rockwood mare. Mr. Smiley says the same. Mr. Tongue thinks she is by Duroc Prince, dam by Pathfinder. At any rate, De Lashmutt owns her mother. If it is the Rockwood mare, she is out of the Pathfinder mare, and the latter will foal again in a few days. As the City View fall programme gives a $1000 purse for pacers, Rosie C will have an opportunity to show if she can beat this time.

A measure is now before the British Parliament which has for its object the official and systematic registration of farriers and shoeing smiths throughout the country. It is proposed that no one should be permitted to shoe horses who has not previously obtained from the Farrier's Company a diploma, which would only be delivered after careful examination into the man's technical and practical knowledge of the business. The latter is one in which technical instruction is essentially requisite. For unskillful treatment, whether in medicine, surgery, or even in the shoeing of a horse, is only one remove from criminal carelessness, and whereas the human creatures are able to protest and complain, the poor beast is obliged to bear in silence, and can only indicate its suffering by a limp.

The owners of the City View park seem to have a kindlier feeling for the race interests than was generally supposed, says the Portland Oregonian. At the last meeting of the stockholders it was agreed that a committee should be appointed to see if the grounds could be disposed of for race track purposes for $125,000. It is understood that the majority of the stockholders favor having a race track kept up there. It appears to be the only convenient and adequate ground for a race track near the city. The project has been proposed and urgently pressed, to cut up the tract for suburban property. By this arrangement, probably $200,000 could be realized from the 178 acres which compose the tract. The stockholders of the association are ten: K. B. Knapp, George Flavel. R E. Bybee. H. L. Pittock, F. E. Goodin, William McFall, S. Farrell, James Steel, C. P. Church and F. Rode.

Two trotting matches have been arranged to take place on August 2nd on Kelly's track. One race will be between the yearling colts, "Geneva," owned by G. W Pressy, and "Little Ben," owned by B. G. Labachotte, a distance of half a mile, for $100 a side; the other between the 2-year-old colts, "Mabel Almont," owned by S. L. Jameson, and "King Bernard," owned by B. G. Labachotte, a distance of one mile, for $100 a side. The Porterville Enterprise says: There is no doubt but that there will be some good racing, and we hope the best horse will win.

An Eastern exchange speaking of Al Farrow who has been very successful at Chicago says: "Al Farrow, the California race horse now at the Washington Park track, is a specimen of the substantial type of thoroughbreds. Though a horse of almost massive substance he does not exhibit coarseness. He has quarters like a stoutly built trotter, and though he looks to be coupled a trifle long he handles weight well. He first distinguished himself at the San Jose (Cal.) meeting in the spring of 1889, beating Geraldine at a mile in 1:40. He and his trainer and jockey were afterward ruled off, the latter confessing that he pulled the horse on the opening day of the Blood Horse meeting at San Francisco, where he went to the post a 3 to 1 favorite and finished fourth to imp. Brutus. He is by Conner, and his dam, Della Walker, is an Oregon mare of untraced breeding. At a mile at fair weight he will give any horse in the country a determined argument, but he has yet to demonstrate his ability to stay at a distance."

Old John Kent who was trainer for Lord George Bentinck is still living, and if he sees this year's Goodwood Cup run for on the 31st of July, will have been present on sixty-four successive Cup days It is interesting to note that the veteran says the best horse he ever saw win and at the same time the most perfect race horse he ever saw was Priam, who won as a four-year-old in 1831, carrying 137 pounds, beating among others Fleur De Lis, and the next year carried 139 to victory. Priam was imported to America in 1837. He left three daughters in England, Crucifix, Miss Letty and Industry, who were all good racehorses and proved good mares. Crucifix being the dam of Cowl and Surplice, while Miss Letty is the dam of Brown Bread, and Industry was the dam of Stitch. In America Priam did not do as well as he should have done, for he was worked to death—serving over a hundred mares the first year. Afterwards when he was out of favor and only had a few mares, he sired several good racehorses, his son, imported Monarch, has also done well here.

An opinion has recently been rendered by the Supreme Court of New York that will be of great interest to those who buy and those who sell horses. The case was this. A man sold another a pair of horses and warranted them sound and kind in every respect. The first time he used them one of the horses put down his head without cause and rushed away to one side of the road and barely escaped running into another carriage. Subsequently he plunged across the road. Again, when the team arrived at the plaintiff's residence and the family had gone into the house, and the team started for the barn, the same horse made a sudden turn to the side of the road. To show that this was not due to poor driving it was proved that the driver was careful and skillful. The buyer sued for breach of warranty and won. The defendant appealed to the general term, which sustained the judgment. Presiding Judge Barnard says that, according to the evidence, "the horse was obviously vicious and ungovernable and unsafe to be used in a family carriage." The seller did not contradict this evidence, but insisted that it did not show that the horse was not gentle when he sold him. To this the court says: "When the actions of the horse, showing a bad, ungovernable temper, are shown soon after the sale and continue, and are without reason, the jury were entitled to take the evidence of subsequent conduct as evidence of previous unkindnesses."

Lord Durham was the recipient of an elegant presentation album at Ashburnham House, the London residence of Mr. Vyner, a fortnight ago. It was at first intended to start a fund to defray the legal expenses of Lord Durham in the Chetwynd-Durham case but his Lordship declined to accept anything except the list of names and as a sum of money had already being contributed by about four hundred subscribers, it was decided to present Lord Durham with an elaborately decorated book with the names of the subscribers on vellum and donate the balance $1650 to any fund he should select (Rous Memorial Fund was selected). The inscription on title page runs:

"This book is presented to the Earl of Durham by the subscribers to the Durham Fund to commemorate their appreciation of his successful efforts in the cause of Turf Reform." Among the subscribers are the Duke of Cambridge, Earl of Scarborough, Count Mokronoski, Duchess of Montrose, Sir J. Willoughby, General O. Williams, Major Egerton, Colonel Roberts, Lord Rodney, Duke of Westminister, Lord Wenlock, Sir J. Kitson, Earl Percy, Sir H. Williamson, Colonel Monks, Sir J. Kelk, Major A. Davidson, Earl of Ravensworth, Major Browne, Major-General Lambert, Lady Forester, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Marquis of Londonderry, Marquis Talon, Earl of Feversham, Lord Alwyne Compton, Lieut. Colonel Telford. Major Stapylton, Colonel Brabazon, Sir Joseph Terry, Lord Kensington, Major Brocklehurst, Mr. Agar-Ellis, Colonel Rowlandson, the Pontefract Race Committee, the York Race Committee, &c.

New Yorkers are not easily taken aback, says the New York Tribune, but a number of those who happened to be in the neighborhood of the Tribune building about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon were considerably surprised, to say the least. At that hour a man seated in a buggy, and driving what at first sight appeared to be a horse, drew up at the curb. The man's name is Frank Fraundfelter, of Easton, Pa., and he said the animal was a "buffalo horse." He had just bought it from Oscar Stempler, in Monroe county Pa., who had bought the animal's mother, (a mare) out of a drove of Texas horses about twelve years ago. The "buffalo horse" is a gelding, fifteen and one-third hands in height, and weighs 1160 pounds. It is completely covered with a coat resembling coarse buffalo fur in close curls eight inches long, growing equally thick and long on all portions of the body and legs.

In the winter, Mr. Fraundfelter said, the hair grows much longer. This long, curly buffalo hair gives the horse a remarkable appearance, the more so as the hair on the legs is as dense as on any other part, making them look like four thick fur-covered posts. In its gait it resembles a cow more than a horse. Nevertheless, it is said to be a good roadster, and has the pulling power of a mule. The shape of the animal's head is distinctly that of a buffalo, and in lieu of a mane there is an extra growth of brown hair. In its hindquarters, also, the horse closely resembles the buffalo. The owner said that neither he nor Mr. Stempler had ever heard of a similar animal. The latter had not been able to secure any satisfactory pedigree of it.

The gentlemen drivers were not patronized so extensively at the Oakland Trotting Park last Saturday as they had been on previous occasions, but the weather was delightfully cool and pleasant and the sport was of an excellent order. The first race was for pacers. Mr. Landregan entered Berkeley Maid, Dr. Walker, Woodchuck, Mr. George Anderson, Gypsy and Mr. F. M. Farewell Linwood. Woodchuck won the first heat in clever style with Berkeley Maid second and Gypsy third; time, 2:52. Berkeley Maid just did beat Woodchuck after a close race all the way down the stretch; time, 2:58. The second race was between Col. W. J. Ashby's Pet and Mr. W. White's Pet. Mr. Ashby's black mare, after a close race, won in 2:53 and 2:58; A race to wagon between Judge Elsworth's Black Cloud, W. White's Beauty and L. Martin's Stanhope was won by Stanhope in a jog in 3:00. Col. Ashby drove his favorite mare, Mabel a mile in 2:42, and the pacers went another heat, Gypsy winning in 2:54, with Berkeley Maid second and Woodchuck third. Messrs. R. F. Simpson, L. J. Smith and P. W. Bellingall officiated in the stand.

The Lower Lake Jockey Club held a very successful meeting in Clayton Park on the Fourth, Dr. C. W. Aby, the Guenoc Farm's Superintendent, officiated as starter giving great satisfaction to all the competitors. The judges were Messrs. M. Keating, W. J. Clayton and W. H. Hutchinson. The first race had four starters: One-fourth mile dash, free to all. First horse, $100; second horse, $30. Entrance fee, $15. F. Bradford's Fresno Buck, (A. Hastie), 1; W. Ernst's Hobo, (W. Coates), 2; J. King's Joker, (J. King), 3; P. Smith's Twilight, (F. Correagh), 0. Hobo was quickest on his feet but was passed at the furlong post by Fresno Buck who won easily by two lengths in 0:25¼.

Second Race—Trotting, open to the following named horses: L. H. Gruwell's Almonta, D. M. Hanson's Aline, R. H. Leaman's Baby. One mile heats, two in three. First horse, $75; second horse, $15. Entrance fee, $15. Aline won in a jog in straight heats with Baby second, 3:23, 3:14.

The third race was running, one-half mile, free to all horses having no better record than fifty two seconds. First horse, $100; second horse, $30. Entrance fee, $15. Heats two in three.

J. Davis' Gold Dollar ..... Davis	2	*	1	1
P. Smith's Twilight ..... Hastie	1	*	2	2
T. King's Joker ..... King	3	3

Time, 0;54, 0 55, 0:54, 0:56.

Twilight won the first heat cleverly by a length and a half. In the second Twilight and Gold Dollar ran head and head all the way, the judges being unable to separate them. Joker was ruled out and after a sharp contest Gold Dollar outstayed Twilight and won the third heat by a neck and romped in for the fourth with Twilight pumped out. A saddle horse race two furlongs, open to saddle horses in Lake Co., wound up the day's sport, Miss Hanson's Zella winning hands down by ten lengths in 0:25½.

A very slim crowd attended the Bay District track last Saturday to witness the two trots; Messrs. Gonzalez, Clawson, Burke, Killip, Havens, Kingsley, and a few other trotting men making up the small assemblage. It was expected that Wamba, a six-year-old mare by Electioneer, out of Winona by Almont, from Dolly, the dam of Director 2:17, Onward 2:25¼, Thorndale 2:22¼, and Czarina 2:27½, would enter the 2:30 list. She is the property of G. W. Onthwaite, and was formerly driven for a short time on the road by Johnny Murphy, but was this year sent to Stamboul, and was the first mare served by him. When Mr. Onthwaite sent her, he asked Sam Gamble to give her a record if possible. The mare had shown enough on the ranch to warrant Gamble's belief that she would trot in about 2:27, but seemed to be quite unsettled and nervous since her arrival at the Bay District track, and though she won the first heat in 2:41, she was up and down several times in the next heat, Abbotsford Jr. winning the heat, and also the third, easily in 2:42 and 2:39½, and in the fourth finished second to Wamba in 2:40. Wamba ran from the drawgate and was set back, giving Abbolsford Jr. the heat and race.

The second race had only two starters, Jack Garrity's chestnut pacer Swift and F. H. Burke's three-year-old mare Maraquita. The mare won the first, second and fourth heats, the pacer, who was a little green, taking the third.

Purse $150. Mile heats 3 in 5.

Since she was purchased by Mr. Shults and taken to his farm near New York City, it has been discovered that the pacer Gold Leaf, whose record of 2:11¼ was made last year when she was four years old, is quite a trotter, it being possible to drive her a mile on a trot better than 2:30 any day. The Breeder's Gazette says: It is understood that before the present season closes, Gold Leaf will be fitted for as fast a mile as she can show at the trot, the idea being that two records, both better than 2:30 and at different ways of going, will enhance her value for selling purposes as well as make her colts worth more than they otherwise would be. Gold Leaf is in foal to Baron Rose, and the product will have a great combination of Hambletonian blood in its veins. In the first place the sire of Gold Leaf, Sidney is inbred to Hambletonian, his sire and dam being by sons of that horse, while his second dam in the maternal line was by another son of Hambletonian, so that in Sidney alone there are three direct strains of the blood of "the Hero of Chester." Baron Wilkes is by George Wilkes, another son of the old horse, so that when Gold Leaf has a foal it will be literally full of Hambletonian blood. There will also be a very pretty array of records clustering around the pedigree. In the first place will come the 2:11¼, pacing of Gold Leaf and the 2:18 of Baron Wilkes. Then will come the 2:19¾, pacing of Sidney, and the 2:17½ and 2:21½ of Santa Claus and Sweetness, the sire and dam of Sidney, all backed up by the 2:22 of George Wilkes, sire of Baron Wilkes. When pedigrees are studded with records in this fashion, the day when we shall have the thoroughbred trotter—one whose ancestors for five generations have, in the male line, records of 2:30 or better, and in the female line either have 2:30 records or have produced 2:30 speed—is not far distant "The Gazette somehow mixes up Baron Rose and Baron Wilkes. Baron Rose, to whom Gold Leaf is bred, is registered 10970, foaled 1888, sired by Stamboul, 2:12½, dam Minnehaha, the dam of Alcazar, 2:20½, Sweetheart, three-year-old record, 2:22½, Eva, 2:23½, San Gabriel, 2:29¾, and the celebrated Beautiful Bells, 2:29½, who is the dam of Bell Boy, three-year-old 2:19½, Hinda Rose, three-year-old 2:19½, Palo Alto, three-year old 2:22½, and St. Bel, 2:24½. Thus it will be seen that the embryo trotter has records all round it such as hardly any other ever had."

Selecting Judges For Trotting Races.

As the trotting season is now open, it should be the duty of the managers of the various associations who conduct the trotting meetings to consider well the importance of selecting proper persons to preside in the judges' stand, especially the one who is to act as starter, for the success of the meeting, the reputation of the contending horses, and more important still, the reputation of the association or getters-up of the trot for doing things on the square, letting the best horse win, and giving correct time, all depend to a certain extent on the honesty and capability of the judges in the stand. It often happens that in spite of the honest intentions of the managers, a horse will be pulled, and false time will be hung out, for the reason that the judges are corrupt and inclined to favor some particular horse or driver.

We think the trouble frequently is that those who are chosen to select the judges are more anxious to obtain men of prominence in public or business circles than they are to obtain those that understand the rules governing contests, and who would be likely to enforce them without fear or favor. Perhaps some wealthy man starts a great breeding enterprise, buys a lot of fashionably-bred stallions and mares, and creates a sensation in the horse world. Perhaps, beside this, he is that kind of a man who is popular with the masses—a person of importance generally. Let such a man be seen on the grounds when judges are wanted, and he is sure to be importuned to accept the stand, when there is not the slightest reason for thinking that he is well posted on the rules, or would enforce them fairly and honestly if he was.

Perhaps a man is found who has gained notoriety as a dealer in horses and is counted a successful man; then of course it is in order to get him into the stand as one of the judges. But a man may be a shrewd judge of the market value of a horse and a keen judge of human nature, and yet be an not inefficient judge in the stand. It is not the popular man, or the man of imposing personal appearance, or the shrewd man, that we need in the stand, but it is the square man, the intelligent, the well informed man; the man that has neither personal friends nor personal enemies among the owners and drivers, and one who is not to be bribed or bullied into allowing any jobs to pass unnoticed. Such a man is just as likely to be found among the ranks of the ordinary everyday horsemen as from among the prominent "I-own-the-earth" sort of fellows. One who is a professional driver himself ought not to be placed in the stand, for the chances are that one or more of the drivers in the race he is to judge are his chums, while others may be his enemies. Exceptions to the above might be made where, as is sometimes the case, a driver is in a far country and a stranger to all the local drivers. The position of judge in a trotting race is no enviable one, and even when exact justice is done to all, there will be some kicking.—Ex.

How to Treat Aged Horses.

The following interesting communication is from our occasional correspondent, Geo. S. Hall, former owner of Mohawk, the sire of Elmo. His long knowledge of the business entitles his letter to due consideration:

In my last letter I said I would write again and tell your many readers how to feed an old stallion so as to have him vigorous and a sure foal getter. I have received a number of letters from gentlemen that own old stallions requesting me to tell them by letter. I will try and fulfill my promise and let them get it through your valuable paper. In 1883 I purchased Hall's Mohawk Jr., record 2:26. He was then 22 years old, and his digestive organs were in a bad condition; his bowels seemed to trouble him all the time; he had the scours so bad he would keep his stall wet all the time. His being in this condition caused him to have spasmodic colic. I make a medicine that all your subscribers ought to have a receipt for making. It is called the never failing Colic and Indigestion remedy, and has never failed to cure when given in time. I always gave it to Mohawk Jr., when colic attacked him, and in 30 minutes it would relieve him. I knew I must overcome the cause of indigestion and colic to make him a sure foal getter, for no stallion can be a sure foal getter when his digestion is all out of fix. More old people die of indigestion than any other disease, and an old horse is very much like an old person. I first fed him ground oats, but soon found that something else was needed; so I mixed one pound of wheat flour once a day in one gallon of ground oats; this helped the cause, but still he scoured too much. I increased the pint of flour to twice a day—could see that it continued to help, but didn't stop the scouring entirely, so I put one pint of the flour in one gallon of oats three times a day. This method stopped the scours for about three weeks, when he was as bad as over. I concluded he wanted something to make digestion easier, so I put one tablespoonful of flax seed meal in every feed; there appeared to be too much gas on his stomach; to remedy that tried feeding one teaspoonful of saleratus every evening. I mixed one gallon of fine ground oats with one pint of wheat flour, one heaping tablespoonful of flax seed meal and one teaspoonful of saleratus; mix the above ingredients with one quart of boiling water. I feed him the same in the morning, except I keep out the saleratus, and add one tablespoonful of salt. At noon I feed him the ground oats, flax seed and flour. I feed him clover hay; it is softer and easier digested. He improved every day, and is now the surest stallion in Ohio. He served 109 mares last season and got 80 colts. He has served 125 mares this season, and I am confident near 100 are in foal. He is fat and vigorous, will serve three mares a day and feel playful in the evening. His digestive organs have been all right ever since I commenced feeding the ingredients named. Before I commenced feeding him in this way he couldn't serve more than one mare in two days. I venture to say that there is not another stallion in the world 25 years old that has served 125 mares this season and 90 per cent. of them in foal. My mode of feeding kept him up and made him a sure foal getter. He is the sire of six with records of 2:30 or better. His younger colts show more speed, and are larger and stronger than his older ones were at their age. I have a yearling stallion by him that showed us a quarter in forty seconds, and if Senator Leland Stanford had him in California he would give him a record of 2:25 when he is two years old. Some of your readers may think I am exaggerating: if they do I would like to have them come and see for themselves. If they don't find the statements I have made correct, I will pay them all their expenses and pay them for their time. I will show them some of the fastest trotting yearling and spring colts by this horse that can be found in Ohio. I am confident that if Old Almont, Almont Lightning and many other stallions that have died of colic and indigestion had been fed as I feed Mohawk Jr., they would be living and useful in the stud. I think if their owners had given my colic remedy when they were first taken sick they would have recovered. Yours, GEO. S. HALL.

THE GUN.

Alameda County Club.

The monthly meeting of the Alameda County Sportsmen's Club for July was held on Saturday last at Oakland track. It was the fifth shoot of the season, and several more contests will be necessary to decide who shall take the three valuable medals offered. In all these contests live pigeons are used, and are shot under A. S. A. rules, which are rigidly inforced. The scores were as follows:

Kellogg	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	0	2	1	1	2—11
Knowles	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	2	1	2	0	5—11
Haskell	1	1	2	2	1	1	0	1	2	2	0	1—10
Osborn	1	1	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1	1	1—12
Cadman	1	1	1	0	1	0	2	1	1	1	0	1— 9
Plummer	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	2	2	1	1	1—11
Daisey	1	1	1	1	2	1	0	0	0	1	2	2— 9
Tebbets	1	1	0	2	0	0	1	1	2	0	0	0— 6
Mayhew	0	1	1	1	0	0	2	1	2	1	1	1— 9
Adams	1	1	0	1	1	0	2	1	0	1	1	1— 9
Bell	2	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	1	0	0	0— 6
Schroeder	1	0	1	1	2	1	1	1	1	2	2	2—11

Kellogg, Knowles, Plummer and Schroder each having killed 11 birds, the tie was shot off, giving Knowles the second prize and Plummer third.

After the regular contest nine men entered a pool match of six birds each, same rules as in the regular shoot. The result was as follows:

Pixley	0	1	1	1	1	1—5
Lake	0	0	1	1	1	1—4
Jones	0	1	1	1	0	0—3
Schroeder	1	1	1	0	0	1—4
Deasy	1	1	1	1	1	1—6
Foote	1	1	0	1	0	1—4
Bell	1	1	1	1	1	1—6
Edwards	1	0	1	1	1	1—5
Kellogg	0	1	1	1	1	1—5

Pacific Sportsman's Club.

On Sunday last the Pacific Sportsmen's Club held its July trap shooting match at the Gerber ranch, near Oak Park, Sacramento. It was conducted under the new rules of the American Shooting Association, adopted in January last.

Under these rules the boundary materially reduces the distance to the "dead line." The traps were live yards apart, and thirty yards from the "dead line." The birds were all strong fliers. Following are the scores:

Ruhstaller	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1—11
Chapman	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1—10
Gruhler	1	0	1	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	1	1— 9
Mannix	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1— 9
Damm	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1— 8
Glatz	1	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	1	0	0	1— 8
George	1	0	1	1	1	0	0	1	0	1	1	1— 8
LeMay	1	1	1	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	0— 7
Maddux	0	1	1	1	0	0	1	0	1	1	1	0— 7
Flohr, C	1	1	1	0	1	1	0	1	0	0	1	0— 7
Wittenbrock	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	1—10
Bergman	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1— 5

Captain Ruhstailer won the gold medal for the second successive time, and should he be so fortunate as to win it again it will become his individual property.

After the medal contest a pool was made up, in which the following scores were made, the supply of birds giving out before the match was ended.

Ruhstaller	1	1	1	1	1	1—6
Knox	1	1	1	1	1	0—5
Chapman	1	1	0	1	0	1—4
Flohr, C	0	0	1	1	1	1—4
Booth	0	1	1	0	1	dr
Gruhler	1	0	1	1	1	dr
Maddux	1	1	1	1	1	dr
George	1	0	1	0	0	dr

In a Blue Rock match the following scores were made: Flohr 9; Knox 9; Wohick 9; Knox 8; Glatz 9; Booth 4; George 6; Gruhler 2; Wittenbrock 8.

A New Gun Club.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The Lathrop Gun Club was organized yesterday and the following officers were elected; President, F. O. Scarlett; vice-President, Warren Patchen; Secretary and Treasurer, Ira B. Keeler: Directors, W. C. Scarlett, Tom Sutherland, A. Litchfield. The club will meet on the first Sunday in August for the purpose of completing its organization, and after the transaction of business will engage in practice. I. B. KEELER, Sec'y.

The Gun Club meets this afternoon at Oakland Trotting Park, going over by the 1 P. M. boat.

J. S. Wiley has received a lot of Arizona quail from Col. Hafford, which he will turn out in Col. Hayward's place, in San Mateo. The birds are much prettier than those found in thes sections.

On Friday and Saturday next at the Hotel Del Monte, Monterey the Country Club will indulge in a pigeon shooting tournament. Murphy's best birds have been ordered and a grand affair is certain to result.

A new bird has made its appearance this summer in the Black Mountain Valley on Middle Tule. It is made somewhat after the shape of a small sap-sucker, but is in color resembling a canary. It is a very pretty little denizen of the woods, but like most of California's birds is songless. It inhabits the timber on the banks of the river, and lives in the rocks.

Messrs. Nash, Linville and Schreiber of the Beaver—Schriber—Linville deer hunting party returned on Monday last with three fine bucks, all of them in velvet. Six deer were killed in two days, using hounds. All of those brought down to the city were shot either through the neck or shoulders. After being exhibited to a swarm of friends, the bucks were taken into Mr. Schreiber's cellar where Mr. Linville performed great feats in skinning and breaking up the meat. It was sent out to friends of the doughty hunters in portions suitable for use and was doubtless appreciated.

Some greedy sportsmen have been breaking the quail law here of late, and the gun club is on the lookout for them. It has come to the ears of several members of the club that parties are in the habit of going to Cache Creek and vicinity every few days and shooting quail, regardless of the law. The quail are young and quite tame at this time of the year, and they can be killed quite easily. The members of the gun club are in earnest about all such matters; that is one of the principal reasons why the club was formed, and any one, be he friend or foe, will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law if found transgressing.—Woodland Democrat.

[The Democrat sets a grand pattern for all newspapers, in its unequivocal utterances about game and fish. We hope other exchanges will take the matter up in like manner.—Ed.]

A San Diego correspondent writes: "Quail are very plentiful here, young birds half grown can be seen by the thousands, and the farmers are complaining about the quail eating the crops. Deer are also reported to be very numerous, the grape growers 12 miles from here report that the deer are eating the vines badly, and bands with ten and more are seen often. Dove shooting is fairly good and some small bags have been made by our local sportsmen. The fishing is good and fine strings are captured from the pier below town. The surf fishing is also good, and just now we have been treated to a big whale; he was stranded below town on the beach and a large crew have been busy for the past few days trying out the blubber and saving the whale bone; his measure was 65 feet long, 10 feet through the body. Our San Diego people feel proud to know they have Chick who we think is able to meet the old champion "Bogardus." With Bruner, Taber and Chick, Southern California feels proud."

J. W. Funk, a farmer of Heyworth, Ill., is one of the 14,000 inventors who are competing for the prize of $125,000 offered by the government of New South Wales for the trap which may be decided to be the most likely to be effective in ridding that country of its fearful pests of crop destroying rabbits. He has received a letter from Australia saying that the committee which is to decide the matter has looked with favor upon his models, and inviting him to visit Australia and demonstrate the working of the trap. He will probably do so in a few weeks. The trap is simple and cheap. It is a device to dump the rabbits, one at the time, into the pit by means of a platform swung on pivots below a suspended bait. In a trap of similar device has he caught fifty-seven in one night in a cornfield.

A device in use in Kern County, this State is to lay a section of say eight inch stove pipe over a pit, the pipe being cut away directly over the mouth of the hole. The rabbits, in trying to pass through the pips, fall into the pit in numbers, more than a hundred have been taken at one time.

Several notes bearing upon the question whether the bite of the polecat, Mephitis Mephitics, gives rise to rabies or not have come to hand. On June 18th, near Prescott Arizona, a cowboy named Charles Morris died from rabies caused by the bite of a skunk. From later advices it is learned that Morris was out on a round-up near Camp Verd and, of course, made his bed on the ground. While asleep one night about May 1st, he was attacked by a small skunk, which bit him on the nose and showed fight when Morris jumped up. The animal was killed and the man felt but little worse for the bite until a week had passed, when he was taken with severe pains in the head. The trouble appeared to develope slowly and it was not until five weeks had passed that he died, in dreadful convulsions, foaming at the mouth and snapping.

In Chino Valley, sixty miles from Prescott, another man was bitten by a skunk about the same time. He also died within a few weeks and with every indication of rabies.

Near Pleasant Valley, Gila county Arizona, during the latter part of May a cattle-man named Conway, who was lying asleep on the ground in the early evening, was bitten through the ear by one of the little creatures. He caught it by the tail and knocked its head off against a rock, laid down to sleep again and not even washed his ear on which the animal's saliva had left a gummy froth. The marks of the skunk's teeth are plainly to be seen, two small pieces being bitten out, but as yet Conway has experienced no bad effects. It may be that the poison of the saliva did not get into the blood.

The larger or spotted skunk does not seem to be as offensive as the smaller variety, but is a peaceful creature only defending itself when attacked.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Mr. A. B. Truman's (Elcho Kennel) pointer Patti Croxteth T. (Croxteth—Patti M) whelped July 9th, '90, nine, seven dogs all white and liver to Rush T (Sensation—Seph G.)

From Mr. H. C. Lowe.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—You will doubtless have forgotten me, but I had the pleasure of meeting you some three years ago at the Western Field Trials, held at Abilene, Kansas, and yourself, Mr. Pray, Mr. Hutchins of Texas, and myself, spent two or three very pleasant evenings together talking over pointers and setters.

I returned to England soon after that, but as a great interest seemed to be springing up for coursing in this country, and being passionately fond of the sport, I came out again and brought two greyhounds, "Partera" and "White Lips," with me. The former I purchased of Mr. Leonard Pilkington, the well known Lancashire courser and owner of Burnaby, winner of the Waterloo Cup. I got Partera quite as a personal favor from him, as he never sells any greyhounds from his kennels. She won seven courses out of nine when owned by Mr. Pilkington. She is by Mortimer out of Mrs. Jinks, Mortimer by Peter out of the great Coomassie, twice winner of the Waterloo Cup. Peter is a litter brother to Paris, sire of Miss Glendyne and Bit of Fashion, who is the mother of Col. North's Fullerton, twice winner of the Waterloo Cup.

White Lips won the Midway puppy stakes in England before I bought her, and since living in this country she was the runner up in the Field Cup at Gr. Bend in 1888, and also in 1889, and you will have seen by the reports of those meetings in the papers, that it was the general opinion of those that saw the races, that it was only a bit of bad luck that prevented her winning each year. She is by Hotspur out of Kiss, by Misterton, winner of the Waterloo Cup. White Lips has a double cross of King Death in her. She is a wonderfully true and game running bitch, and very handsome.

Last year I sent over and purchased Lord Neversettle in England, as I wanted his blood to cross with Partera. This connection gives me two crosses of the Ptarmigan and Gallant Foe blood in their puppies, as Lord Neversettle is by Jester, he by Ptarmigan out of Gallant Foe, own brother to Peter Pathfinder and Paris. If you look back to the greatest winners in England during the last ten years you will notice they have all been closely connected to Ptarmigan and Gallant Foe, Princess Dagmar, Miss Glendyne, Bit of Fashion, Fullerton, all winners of the Waterloo Cup had lots of the Ptarmigan and Gallant Foe blood in them, and the puppies I have bred by Lord Neversettle out of Partera are bred as near as possibly like Col. North's Fullerton, the winner of the Cup this year, and I am told Mr. Dent in England has a puppy brother to Fullerton, now 14 months old, who can lead Fullerton, and is a perfect wonder. I notice in the American Field that they are likely to hold a big coursing meeting at San Francisco in November, and a handsome prize will be given. I hope to attend the meeting with three or four greyhounds. I think November is a good time to hold the meetings, to come on after Gr. Bend which takes place on the 21st of October.

I have a very fine litter of puppies from Partera by Lord Neversettle whelped on the 1st of December last. I have 7 of them, all five well grown puppies. If you know any coursing man in your country who would like to purchase one or two, I can part with two. They will be quite old enough to take part in the puppy stakes at your meeting in November, as they are very forward puppies. I have a fine place here for them to run about, and they have the best of food and lots of it. I have had one litter of puppies from White Lips by Lord W they were whelped on the 7th of December last, I have 6, they are a very handsome lot, and look like runners. I can part with one of them either a dog or bitch pup, if you know any one who would like to purchase. Of course all the puppies from Partera and White Lips are all untried as they are too young to know anything about their running qualities yet, so any one purchasing one now may get the best runner.

I am quite sure puppies of the best running blood, whelped in this country have an advantage over dogs first brought to this country from England. I have found that it takes some little time to get them acclimatized. Hoping to have the pleasure of renewing your acquaintance in November.

Lawrence, Kansas. H. C. Lowe.

Mr. Stewart L. Unson of Sacramento had two fine greyhounds, "Bell Boy" and "H. M, & S." poisoned last week. There is no clue to the criminal.

Doctor A. C. Heffenger, surgeon of the U. S. S. Ranger, has gone to the Coast of Guatemala and San Salvador, probably not to return before October.

A subscriber writes us asking for a pointer dog trained. Any reader who chances to have such a one will confer a favor by sending word to this paper.

Mr. Truman's Patti Croxteth T. is again to the fore with a fine litter of young pointers. Between Irish red setters and pointers Mr. Truman's residence is lively at all times.

The Pacific Coast Field Trials Club should select and announce its judges. The club in the past has deferred the matter too long each year. Handlers and owners alike are interested in knowing who will judge the trials.

Mr. Howard Vernon sent his handsome pointer Belle V. to be bred to Tom Pinch last week, and in acknowledging receipt of the animal, Mr. J. Martin Barney, the owner of Tom Pinch, and a rare good judge of a pointer, writes: "She is a beauty, and the pups should be as fine as silk, and fit to compete with anything either here or in the East."

The Eastern Field Trials Club has secured most excellent judges in Col. Arthur Merriman of Memphis, Tenn., F. I. Stone of Chattanooga, Tenn., and H. B. Duryea of Red Bank, N. J. All are men of great experience, activity, soundness of judgment and honesty. The trials of the club will be held at Ottenburn Springs, Amelia County, Va., in November.

As was expected, the outcome of the controversy between Judge C. J. Peshall and the American Kennel Club has resulted disastrously to Judge Peshall, his claims of irregularity in connection with the accounts of the Club have all been proved unfounded and consequently all of his deductions fall. It is to be hoped that the heroic treatment administered by the American Kennel Club, and rightly, will cure Judge Peshall's distemper, and that the haw will not show as he looks at Kennel matters hereafter.

Our coursing readers will find much interest in the letter from Mr. H. C. Lowe, published elsewhere. Mr. Lowe is a plain, sensible sportsman fond of dogs of all breeds and especially of Pointers, Setters and Greyhounds. We recall vividly his sturdy tramp through the Field Trials of 1886 at Abilene. While others were even tired although on horseback, Mr. Lowe was at all times as close to the judges as the rules permitted. We are pleased to learn that he will be in California soon, and hope that he will bring a fine string of Greyhounds with him.

The Glover's Dog Remedies and Spratt's Dog Biscuits advertised elsewhere are as nearly standard as can be and for about the same reasons, viz.: their essential excellence and unvarying good quality. Dr. H. Clay Glover has devoted many years to the study of diseases of dogs and to experiments upon them with various medicines. His prescriptions go straight to the mark, are pleasant to use and are within the reach of all. The Spratt Dog Biscuit has come to be the accepted food for dogs throughout the English speaking world as well as on the continent and even into far away St. Petersburg.

The Inter-State coursing project is not moving with as much activity as might be desired. The monster celebration to be held during September by the Native Sons of the Golden West is absorbing the energies of the city and its attention to such an extent that it is only with difficulty that subscriptions can be secured in fairly large amounts. The committee having the matter in charge is in nowise neglectful, and may be relied upon to gather as great a sum as possible, not only because of their interest in coursing, but also for the credit of the State. It takes money to bring out good dogs; $5,000 would not be too large an amount to hang up in the various events. The proposition to run a 128 dog stake does not impress us so favorably as another to run several smaller stakes. The larger stake makes it practically impossible to keep dogs well keyed up for the several days necessary to run off a stake of such magnitude; 64 dogs is enough in any one event.

Mr. M. D. Walter, whose Field Trial training kennel at Galt is one of the most popular in the west, visited San Francisco early in the week, partly on business and partly to inhale a few whiffs of the salt laden air, which makes San Francisco so enjoyable a place of residence for all reasonably healthy persons. Mr. Walter reports his Field Trial puppies in fine condition and most promising. The pair owned by Senator Goucher and F. B. Dexter of Fresno, both of them by Loadstone—Enid, are particularly pretty, fast and biddable. Mr. J. S. Dunham's Rodney—Phyllis II. puppy is like his sire, a sizable, free-going, fearless youngster. Mr. Walter remarked that he had sent to her owner, Mr. E. M. Arthur of Portland, the red setter Countess by Kading's Duke—California Belle. Countess, in Mr. Walter's hands, developed beautifully in all respects, her nose not, however, having yet reached perfection. She will doubtless in time develop all the strong hunting instinct of her dam.

At last that pointer enthusiast and keen sportsman Mr. J. Martin Barney, condescends to explain his long silence in these words, from Dutch Flat:

"I have been so busy since my return from the East that I have not taken a gun in my hands. In fact I have not been away from home but very little. I had made up my mind to have lots of sport with the dogs during the last quail season, "but the best laid plans, etc., etc." You know what a terrible winter we had, and although we had "La grippe," we were forced to stand by our shovels or get snowed under. It was nothing but snow, snow, snow, and it was almost impossible to get help of any kind. I managed to save my buildings here, but my dump houses, blacksmith shops and other buildings at Lowell Hill succumbed to the immense weight of snow, and collapsing smashed the cars into splinters and destroyed quite a quantity of pipe, tools, etc. All of this plant had to be put in shape again before we could take out a dollar, and although it looked like a summer job when we started, a few weeks more and we will be rolling out the gravel again."

As an illustration of the extremes to which doggy men can go in opinions, we present a few extracts from a letter received from a resident of the South and East who has seen more or less of the dogs he mentions and of field trials for some years. He writes:

"I am not what they call a doggy man," as you know. I run dogs in the field because God gave them four legs. I think it very doubtful if bench shows have done anything to give us any improvement. It is much like the country fair against the race course. Mr. Londsdale has sent a crowd to beat us in trials. He may, but if he does it will be the first instance of a turnip field against our rangers. There has been no contest that I remember where an English imported dog has done anything in his first year on our birds.

Bang Bang, a second rate any way, under the skillful hands of Capt. McMurdo, did nothing till he was too old to do anything good, and then he took a second place in performance.

Mainspring may be quoted as an exception, but he was phenomenal and did nothing till his second year.

Graphic has been a soft failure.

Beaufort was below criticism in the field, though bred in this country, and is perhaps beyond the range of my present remark.

I never knew of Osborne Ale's doing anything except through his descendants.

Sensation, a much advertised dog, was worthless.

Of course we owe everything to English blood, but never to my knowledge in the first generation. Look at the setters Rockingham, Count Howard, etc. You might as well put a poodle in the race."

The Fish Commission Investigation.

On Tuesday afternoon last, at the office of Hon. J. Downey Harvey, the charges made by Thomas Tunstead against Chief of Patrol, F. P. Callundan, were investigated. The meeting was held with closed doors, none but the Fish Commissioners and Messrs. Tunstead, Callundan, Ennis and Curley being present. Mr. Tunstead charged under oath that F. P. Callundan had, during April, May and June 1890, received $15 per month from each of three Chinese whom he mentioned. When asked to produce his evidence Mr. Tunstead said he could not compel his witnesses to attend, but would take the Commissioners into the presence of the Chinese mentioned in his charges. This was done, and in each instance the Chinese denied having at any time or in any connection paid F. P. Callundan any money for any purpose whatsoever. When asked for further evidence Mr. Tunstead said he had none. The result was the complete and absolute exoneration of F. P. Callundan from the charges made under oath by Tunstead. Not one jot of evidence was produced that even implicated Callundan. We are assured upon the best authority that Tunstead's charges were wholly without foundation, in so far as F. P. Callundan was concerned: There was no basis for them, and the reasonable conclusion is that they were made in malice.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

THURSDAY, JULY 10TH AT SACRAMENTO.

Harper pitched another of his wonderful games, the Stocktons getting but one little hit off his delivery. Perrott was hit rather lively and at times hard, Godar and McHale securing home runs. Both teams fielded excellently, but that of the Senators was the more brilliant, Reitz, Harper and Stapleton's work being especially noteworthy. For Stockton, Fogarty and Wilson performed the best fielding work. It was not till the sixth inning that the Sacramentos scored. With two men out Godar drove a "heant" to deep center making the circuit of the bases on the hit. The next inning four hits, one a home run by McHale, an error of Fudger's and a passed ball allowed four runs and this won the game for the home team. Goodenough, Stapleton, Bowman, Godar and Reitz were very effective with the bat. Umpire Stafford's decisions met with favor both from the contesting teams and the spectators. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, JULY 11TH, AT OAKLAND.

One of the largest crowds ever assembled at the Emery grounds were present last Friday afternoon. They came to see Robinson's men "do" the Goblins, but were disappointed. It took twelve innings for Finn's men to win the game though, which was one of the prettiest ever played on a California diamond. Lookabaugh and Stevens formed the Frisco battery, and Lookabaugh pitched fine ball. The team back of him played like fiends, but Speer's error in the seventh was disastrous, permitting the Oaklands to tie the score and occasioned the protracting of the game beyond the usual number of innings. The infield playing was superb. Stickney and Ebright at third base had twenty-one chances between them, all of which were accepted in excellent style. Josh Reilly and O'Neill at short, Shea and McDonald at second, and Hanley, Levy and O'Neill in the field, also did marvellous work in their positions. "Old man" Perrier played first in good style, but Sweeney's absence was very conspicuous when Perrier was at the bat. The Colonels scored one in each the first and seventh innings, while Frisco's runs came in at the fourth, sixth and twelfth, all three being earned. The winning run was made by Stevens who was the first man up in the twelfth. He drove a hot one to deep left, getting two bases on it. Ebright then sacrificed Stevens, taking third, and Levy's single sent the backstop across the plate. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY, JULY 11TH AT STOCKTON.

With a lead of six runs after the Stooktons had completed their half of the sixth inning they presented the game to the Senatorial party by allowing them to add seven runs in two innings to the six already secured by them. Errors of judgment, Hapeman's wildness, a passed ball and some little hitting did the work. The game was a zig zag one and although errors were freqnent and expensive the hitting was free and the excitement intense. Hapeman had one of his off days being very wild and giving Armstrong, his backstop, plenty of work. Wilson and Fogarty also were kept busy but accepted all their chances in line style. Hoffman was batted out of the box, being superseded by Farrell in the fourth inning who pitched out a good game. The best hitting in the game was done by Bowman, Roberts, Goodenough, Cahill, Fudger and Wilson. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY, JULY 12TH AT HAIGHT ST.

Three thousand disgusted spectators raved and swore and hurled anathemas at the heads of half a dozen bungling ball players who largely contributed to one of the rockiest exhibitions of the national game ever perpetrated on this coast. The Frisco team lost and deserved to. The brilliant management of that team found itself without the full complement of players and so drew on the amateur ranks. Reilly was placed short, but Josh was too anxious and his one very costly error in the second inning so completely unnerved him that he slipped up on nearly ever chance offered afterward. Finn did not use much discretion in placing Stanley, a crippled man, at first. Stanley is a backstop, and a good one, but has never made any pretensions to being a first base man, and were he in the best of condition he would have been out of his element playing that bag. His hand being badly bruised and his total unacquaintance with the position will excuse the poor showing he made. But there were others besides the amateurs who figured conspicuously in the error making. The "grand mogul's" captain and short stop, N. O'Neill, and also Lohman and Dungan took an active part in lessening their own and their clubs fielding record. However, some of the players did field well, so we mention them. They were McDonald, Shea, Stickney, Hanley and Levy, who accepted all their chances in a neat and finished manner. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, JULY 12TH AT STOCKTON.

Stapleton's Senators shut out the Stocktons in this game—the first time that team was goose egged this season. It was a magnificent contest full of smart and at times brilliant playing, but the cream of the honors go the pitchers. Hoffman was almost invincible, Fogarty being the only man of Gas City aggregation being able to touch him for a hit Kilroy was also in line condition, not a hit being secured off him till the eight inning. But this was the inning the Senators developed their delayed batting streak and before the third man went out, Roberts, Reitz, McHale and Goodenough had scored. The runs came in on two singles, a triple, some daring base running, a base on balls and an error by Fudger. Daly, Reitz, Stapleton, Fogarty and Wilson had several difficult chances but accepted them all, with the exception of Reitz who had one excusable error. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, JULY 13TH AT HAIGHT ST.

This was what might be called a spreckled game. It was a conglomeration of good hitting, fine pitching, nice base running, but very poor fielding, especially on the part of the Stockton "beauties." The runs came in spasmodically. For the Gas City, they came in one by one, while the Goblins came home in pairs. Finn had another new man in his team and he was a success. Pokey Chase is his name, and Pokey is quite a pitcher. His work was excellent, as will be attested by a glance at the score and also by several members of the Stockton team. Perrott was also in fine form, but the people back of him displayed a tendancy to make errors just when they should have fielded best, and to these gentlemen, and not to Mr. Perrott, is the defeat of the Slough City team attributable. Every player in the team had an error, with the exception of Perrott, while Duane, the new back stop, made three bad misplays, all poor throws. Josh Reilly was stationed at short again, for Frisco and Josh did play ball in great style, accepting six chances cleverly and gracefully, and erring on two—one a wild throw and the other failing to get a very meanly bit bonnder. "Old man" Perrier also covered first base in a creditable manner, but was again weak at the bat. The fielding of the Frisco was generally perfect. At the bat Ebright and Amstrong excelled and were closely followed by Shea and Cahill. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, JULY 13TH, AT SACRAMENTO.

Four thousand people saw the Senators put up a great game last Sunday. The Colonels were their opponents, but the "warriors" were never "in it" with the "legislators." It promised to be a most exciting battle, as both teams were on their mettle and in great playing condition. Harper was in fine trim and Bowman, together with all the rest of the Sacramentos gave him grand support. Carsey was hit rather freely and was not as well supported as Harper. Charley Sweeney played second for the Oaklands on account of McDonald suffering from an injured hand, while Jim played right field. The score was close and in favor of the Senators by one run up to the seventh inning when they added five more to their string. With one man out, Goodenough got his base on balls and was advanced to second on Daley's safe drive to left. Godar sacrificed, each man advancing a base, and both scoring on Stapleton's beauty past short. Bowman cracked out a safe one to right and "Stape" came home on McDonald's poor throw in. Roberts then hit to O'Neill who overthrew to first, Bowman scoring. Reitz hit a high one which O'Neill also erred on, and Roberts tallied. This was run getting by the wholesale. Iso McHale quieted the Colonel's agony by flying ont to O'Neill. The features of the game were the brilliant fielding of every player in the Sacramento team, Dungan's general work and the hitttng of Daley, Goodenough and Roberts. The score:

SAN FRANCISCOS vs STOCKTONS.

THURSDAY JULY 17TH., AT HAIGHT STREET.

This wss another very tame exhibition, especially on the part of the "Goblins". This team seemed utterly without head or tail, and gsve a great performsnce of juggling and overthrowing. Josh Reilly and Hanley were away off in their work, the former in throwing and the latter making some unpardonable fumbles. One error seems to unnerve young Reilly to such an extent that he csn't steady himself for several innings. It is nothing bnt nervousness however, for he has heretofore shown ability, and hss the actions of a good hall player. When he overcomea this drawback we have no doubt but that he will snrprise the dubious ones. Perrott and Chase, both grangers from the same district, werc the opposing pitchers. Perrott pitched another wonderful game, getting very fair support. Duand's work behind the hat was only ordinary. He dropped several foul flys which would have gone as errors against him had not the batsmen in every case subsequently gone out to the infield. "Pokey" Chase pitched well hut one earned run being scored. His aupport was poor at the receiving end and in the field. Both he and Speer were very weak in watching base runners. The hitting, fielding and base stealing of Cahill, Fudger'a fine work on the paths and in his position, and the base playing of Selna, Fogarty, Wilson and Shea were the redeeming featnres of the game. Charlie Gagns again officiated aa umpire and was very successful in all his decisiona. The score.

The Friscos as now constituted, are the weakest team in the League.

Duane is not much of a back stop, but is a rattling hard sticker.

Charley Krehmeyer of last year'a Sacramentos has joined the Joplin tesm.

Issacson has long been a doomed man, but he still continues to play his position.

If Hapeman could get over his wildness he would be one of the greatest pitchers in the country.

Pitcher Fanning, whom Finn was contemplating giving an engagement, has been signed by Quincy.

Of the five Frisco players Hsrris took to Portland bnt one—Dave Levy—is with the team now.

Borchers recently played left field for the Portlands, and by msking two errors lost the gsme for them.

Nick Smith is not in playing condition. It is doubtful if he will be seen on the diamond again this yesr.

Holliday is the greatest circus catcher ever seen here. Its on the easiest kind of chances the center fielder errs.

Bob Blackiaton wonld like to play again. Bob thinks that he can more than hold hia end up as a fielder and hitter.

Catcher Lauer whom Coughlin wanted the Sacramento team to sign is now stationed at third base for Indianapolis.

Mobile Bill Stickney plays the racea just as safely as he plays his bag. Thns far Bill has made several good winnings.

It is thought by many that Rohinson'a new players are coming by "slow freight" ao long they are in arriving.

Rube Levy is hitting well and taking good care of all the sky scrapers coming his way, but occasionally errs in throwing.

Elmer Foster, the great fielder and terrific hitter of the Minneapolis team, threatens to jump to the Boston Brotherhood.

Finn has his lines out for pitoher McCarthy, third baseman Hill of Washington, and first haseman Hawes of St. Paul.

Up to July 17th Charlie Zimmer of the Cleveland League team has caught seventy consecutive games. This ia the record.

Big Bill Brown of the New Yorks has been playing first base in great style and is hitting the ball regularly and safely.

Hen Harris is credited with saying that the teams of the Pacifio North-West League are superior to those of the California League.

Chick Speer's catching has not been up to his nsual standard of excellence of late which is prohably accounted for by his injured ankle.

Armstrong while not a "star" fielder is better than the average and his timely hitting is much appreciated by the Stockton management.

Harry O'Day and seven other players of the Minneapolis team were released by Manager Morton. This is weeding out hy the wholesale.

Pete Sweeney has scored a tremendous success with the St. Paul team. When Pete wants to play ball he hss but few superiors in the business.

Tbe csse of first base man Selna comes up at the directors meeting to-night, but nothing more than a reprimand to curb his temper ia anticipated.

Lohman'a throwing is the feature of his playing. For getting the ball speedily and accurately to second Lohman has few superiors in the buainess.

The Colonel has found out that Meegan is a first class man in more respects than one, for Pete can play almost any position on tbe diamond acceptably.

"They say that Catoher Bliffkins, of the Acme nine, always has a dog with him." "Mascot?" "No. To growl at the umpire. They can't fine a dog."

Perrott is certainly one of the "finds" of the season. His work in the box has been excellent, and with good snpport Stockton would lose few games with him in the points.

Cahill has been made Captain of the Stocktons. A wise selection. There is no player in the team better fitted for the position and if Patsy cant make them play ball no one can.

Pitchers, generally speaking, are not very heavy hitters. However, with the Oaklands it ia an exceptional case, as both Carsey and Cobb have done some tremendous work at the bat this seaaon.

Roscoe Coughlin led the batting liat of the Inter State League. While with Evansville he played five games, was twenty-two timea at bat, and made eight hits, giving him a percentage of 363.

Joe Shea is playing the best sll round game for the Friscos. There is a silver hat and ball offered hy Nat Rafael for the beat all rounder, and Joe stands a good chance of claiming the trophy at the end of the season.

Harry O'Day, the boy wonder, has been signed by Manager Harris to play second for the Portlands. Hulen or Howard, of last years Stocktons and recently with Detroit and Ontario, will also play with the same team.

Josh Reilly has not been hitting so well lately, which may be ascribed to his anxiety to make a hit every time he comes to the hat. Take your time Josh, you've got a good eye and be satisfied to take your base occasionally on balls.

The hardest kind of luck seems to pursne Hen Moore. He secured an engagement with Indianapolis, but in the first gsme threw his arm out in making a throw from center-field to the plate. When last heard from he was at Quincy, Ill.

Ball players had better save their money. Salaries are destined to take an awful drop next season and Petey Outcurve won't be able to draw a United States Senator's salary for "troing de ball" for a couple of hours three days in the week.—Exchange.

The pitcher who had won the most games for their respective clubs in the League are Rhines, Lovett, Gleaaon, Clarkson, Hutchinson, Rusie, Beatin and Jones. In the Brotherhood the list ia King, Radbonrn, Knell, Van Haltren, Maul, Keefe, Gruber and Keefe of Buffalo.

We cannot see any wisdom displayed on the part of Manager Finn in releasing Charley Sweeney. True Sweeney had not been placing the hall as safely in the past few weeks as he did from the opening of the aeason up to the middle of June, but he was bitting it just as frequently and his base playing could not have been improved on. Finn will find it a difficult task to secure a player to fill Sweeney's shoes as men of his calibre are seldom without engagements.

The California Leagues look forward to the time when a powerfnl Pscifio coast lesgue shsll he formed, possibly next year. It is proposed to have this enlsrged organizstion composed of clubs from Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spoksne Falsl, San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton, Sacramento, San Jose, Los Angeles, Fresno and possibly San Diego.—Sporting Life. Quite possible but not probable.

It is rumored that there is a possibility of Vincent Dailey and Peek-a-boo Vesch heing seen again in a Colonels uniform. If such news is true, it is gladly welcomed, and they can't get here too soon, for both men are big favorites and great hall players. With the assistance these two "cracker-jacks" would lend the Oakland team, the chances for pennant winning would be more anspicious than they now appear.

Just watch the Lesgue averages when they come ont again and see if Smalley and Veaoh don't lead their respective positions on assists. Veach isn't afraid to line her over to third any day, and up to July 7th he had 43 assists to his credit. And Smslley's swift pick-ups and throws make many a put out when such players as McGarr or Pinckney would think it an impossibility. The two Williams are great local favorites.—Cleveland Correspondent Sporting News.

It is now definitely settled that Joe Purcell will never appear on the diamond again professionally. Had a straight forward proposition been made him the chances are he would have signed for this season with the San Francisco team, but two weeks ago he received a letter from the Secretary of Archbishop Riordan stating that professional ball playing hy one of his religious intentions would he displeasing to his Grace. Thia letter will cause Joe to depart to the Novitiate at Baltimore in September, a mnch earlier date than he had contemplated.

The Stockton team has not been improved in the catching department by the accesaion of Armatrong and Duane. Neither are first class men in that position, though both are fine hitters. Stanley who oaught four games for the team in excellent style and who would have been signed were it not for the fact that the above named playera were then on the way out, is a far superior backstop to either of tbem, and should he again in their ranks. With a good catcher and the rest of the team doing their work in proper style, Stockton could win games. But with an inferior man in thia position (the most important on the diamond) no matter how well the others play, it is almost certain defeat. By all means, gentlemen, sign Stanley.

Roscoe Coughlin, the gentlemanly clever twirler, arrived in Sacramento last Monday and has clearly defined his position in the matter of the negotiations between the Sacramento and San Francisco managementa and himself. Coughlin gives his reasons, which were purely businesa ones, for signing with Sacramento, and backs his statements with the telegrams whioh passed between the managers and himself. There is no doubt of Coughlins honeaty, and we believe his actions will be fully vindicated at the meeting of the directors which occurs to-night. This will place those who songht to injure his reputation by disclaiming against his heretofore undisputed honesty in just about the same position as they endeavored to make him appear in.

Buck Ewing is a great, strong man, hut several people who saw him yesterday are of the opinion that he has a tender heart. It was an inning during the afternoon game in which Chicago needed two runs to the soore. The Whites had three men on hases, Duffy at the bat. Duffy is a power as a hitter, and Buck knew that his life meant defeat for New York. The batter knocked a high foul which Buck should have oaught without an effort. It fell within a short distance of the plate. Buck was nnder it in a trice. Among the crowd, on tbe field directly nnder the ball were four or five little chapa not more than five yeara of age, and one of these was in Ewing'a way. If the great catcher had shoved the little boy aside (as nine out of ten would have done) he might have canght the ball. Rather than use the little fellow roughly Buck deliberately permitted the ball to drop to the ground. This act lost the game for New York, doubtlessly, but a defeat of that sort ia brighter than the most brilliant victory won on the hazard of a child's safety.—Chicago Poat.

We have never heard a satisfactory reason given why the Haight Street grounds are not kept in better condition. Is it becaase the local managers, like many in the East, think that the great American game will be irretrievably loat in obscurity in a couple of seasons, and, while it is paying, intend, with an "itching palm," to grasp every quarter and make the least possible outlay in return? Surely the liberal support accorded the games by a very generous and indulgent public, warrants the expenditure of a few hundred dollars in besutifying the grounds. We read of the gronnds in Esstern cities, where the climatic advantages don't commence to equal ours, as being veritable flower gardens, but here, with everything favorable, we have a gronnd of no better appearance, and but little more accommodations, than a level sand lot. Its high time, gentlemen, that you do aomething for the public, for you've been a long time drawing on their purse atrings, and often have they departed through your gates disgusted both at your exhibitions and the condition of your grounds. Having been in the contracting bnsiness, you can form a very close estimate as to the expenditure required to put in a turf or grass diamond, pull out the weeds, mow down the rank growth of grass in the outfield, paint the seats instead of having them dobbed over with a cheap colored wash, and increase the Spring Valley's revenne by a more liberal use of water in all portions of the field. Do this, and there will be no need of the newspapers coming out with "increasing crowds," etc., etc., for the stands and bleachers will speak for themselves.

The Ball Player's Creed.

I firmly believe in the elevation of the game, the infallibility of the ball player and the total depravity of the manager and the base ball reporter.

I have no hesitation in saying—and I say it boldly—that I consider myself to be the coming ball player.

I believe in the elevation of the game, in the final extinction of the manager, in the abolishment of the two games a day plan and the general cussedness of the "fan,"

I have no doubt whatever of future punishment in relation to the man who calls balls and strikes and imposes fines.

I have played nnder Chris Von der Ahe, and I believe in Hell.

I am strongly in favor of the theory; "Every actor his own manager."

I shall always do everything in my power to uphold the high atandard of the game hy demanding the largest salary for the least work; but, if I can't get what I want, I shall take what I can get.—Sporting News.

The Amateurs.

Games Played by the California Amateur League.

The positions of the different teams have not been affected by the results of the games of last Sunday but with the leaders there is a very noticeable drop in the percentage column while the tail enders are rapidly crawling up. Vallejo is still fourth but is being closely pursued by the Burlingtons. The Allens are also showing big improvement in the percentages of games won.

E. T. ALLENS vs. DAILY REPORTS.

Sunday, July 13th at Haight St.

The leaders and the tail enders came together last Sunday morning and the result of the game was in favor of the Allen team. It would have gone to the Reports however, if they had not been guilty of some very stupid base running. The "Newsies" had out their strongest team, while the "Sports" were minus the services of Stanley and Reilly. Philpot was in the box for the winners and acquitted himself creditably. His support from catcher Parker was good. The Allens had another change in their infield, Buckley being on first, Lewis at second, Evatt short and Gene Broderick at third. The latter, but recently released by the Vallejos, was the "star" of the game, accepting ten hard chances in perfect style. The outfield had but little to do. The Reports played their usual strong game with the exception of Gray at first who made three bad errors. Ashman's men hit Philpot safely but six times and these hits were widely scattered. Besides the powerful work at the bat by Van Haltren, Evatt and Monet, the prominent features were the fielding of Broderick, Buckley, Evatt and Thompson. Rube Levy umpired and gave fair satisfaction.

SANTA ROSA vs VALLEJO.

Sunday, July 13th., at Santa Rosa.

The Marines visited Santa Rosa last Sunday and defeated the home team in a very closely contested game by a score of three to one. The fielding on both sides was excellent, but the hitting was very light. Baltz and Callen, the opposing pitchers did wonderful work, the Vallejo twirler having slightly the best of it. Farrell's work behind the bat was something magnificent, twelve put outs and six assists without an error being an extraordinary performance for an amateur. Utt for the Santa Rosas, did not do so well having four passed balls and making two errors. There was but little work for either team in the out-field, while the in-fields had several different chances, Pace, Arlett, Kelly, Lee and Ryan capturing the honors. The result of the game brings Vallejo up considerably in the race, and caused the Sonoma boys to drop below the 700 mark for the first time since the opening of the season. The game was umpired satisfactorily by Clipper. The score:

BURLINGTON vs. WILL & FINKS.

Sunday, July 13th at Vallejo.

The above teams visited Vallejo last Sunday and played a poor game in presence of a few hundred spectators. The Young Giants, as is usually the case when taking a country trip, had a patched up team. Cusick, Tillson and Leveque, three of the best players, being the absentees on this occasion. The Railroader's team was a strong one, and although making more errors than their opponents, they hit harder and ran bases furiously. Walcott was their pitcher, and this youngster is quite a winner, the Fincks getting but five hits off his delivery, while he struck out ten and gave but one base on balls. Coughlin is back again at short for them, and Billy Kennedy placed in right field, but we do not think the change, if permanent, will be a beneficial one. Little Howell was touched up pretty lively, and when runners got on bases they lost but little time in getting round. The most prominent features of the game was the great base running of Bradley and McKenzie, the solid hitting of Strand, Coughlin and McKenzie, and the third base playing of Jerry Denny Dunn. The game was umpired by Gene Murphy. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Cartright's arm is said to be gone.

The Reports are now "the people."

Santa Rosa stock is on the decline.

Stanley's broken thumb is mending.

Abe Cahalin captain's the Maxwell team.

The Allens are gradually getting in shape.

Maguire leads the Vallejos in base stealing.

What has become of Jack Hyde, the pitcher?

The Marines played their best game last Sunday.

Scotty Evatt showed up well at short last Sunday.

Strand's brother played with the Fincks Sunday.

Frank Finnigan has retired from the diamond for good.

Burt Parker has made a hit with the Allen management.

McGlade and Stanley will be "Sports" battery for Sunday.

Keller contemplates taking his team to Los Angeles soon.

Philpot did some great work in the box for the Allens Sunday.

Hagerty's best friend when the Allen team plays—Old man Mac.

The Vallejos are jubilant over their victory at Santa Rosa Sunday.

Alec. Bradley is undoubtedly the best base runner in the amateur ranks.

The tailenders, Allens, Burlingtons and Vallejos, were all winners Sunday.

Second baseman Lee has gained an unenviable reputation for playing dirty ball.

Since with the Sports, Charley Van Haltran has done some good work at the bat.

"Blondie Callen" of the Santa Rosas, is enjoying a weeks' vacation at Little Lake.

"South Paw" Nolan, of the old Cleveland's, is now pitching for Port Townsend.

A strong hitter and excellent second base man who is unsigned—Merve Thompson.

Kennedy is a better short stop than Coughlin and should be kept in his right position.

Deeney, formerly of the Neuberger—Reiss team, is now a regular member of the Fincks.

Harris, formerly captain and short stop of the Oaklands is now playing with the Merceds.

Jack Ryan is covering first base for Vallejo in A 1 style but his batting has been rather light.

Dan Armbuster's arm has lost its cunning. His delivery is now "pie" for opposing batsmen.

The amateurs would like to have a regular umpire appointed for their games at Haight street.

The Young Giants have taken quite a tobogan slide. Its time they were climbing up hill again.

Vallejo is Santa Rosas stumbling block. Grace's men have lost three of four games played to the Marines.

Finn was seriously thinking of giving Baltz a chance to show what he could do with the professionals.

It is whispered and rumored in private circles that Frank Loughran has, or is soon to, become a Benedict.

Russ Pace, the catcher and center fielder of the Santa Rosas has been offered an engagement by the Port Townsends.

Tom Buckley can play a great first bag and will divide honors with the veteran amateur in this position—Frank Delmas.

Tillson, Leveque and Cusick, the Giant's best hitters and fielders were absent from the team Sunday and consequently they lost.

That boy Sharp failed to get his customary three safe shots in last Sunday's game and was "chewing the rag" with himself all afternoon.

Manager Warren needs to brace up his team in several weak places. They have been losing too steadily of late, and the reason is quite apparent.

The new grounds at Fresno will be opened next Sunday, and the game will be played by the Merceds and Fresnos. The Fresnos will wear their new uniforms on this occasion.

Monet is the steadiest pitcher in the amateur ranks. About eight hits is the maximum number ever secured off him, and no matter how poorly the team plays back of him, he is never rattled.

Tom Agnew's services are now much in demand. According to many, Agnew is the greatest amateur pitcher on the coast, and is a slashing hard hitter and great out-fielder. He formerly played with the Phœnix team of St. Mary's College.

Green of the Reports has the physique and actions of a fine catcher, and if we can judge by what work we have seen him do thus far this season, we have no hesitancy in proclaiming that he will be one of the coming backstops of the country.

Lolly Dunn of the Burlingtons is known as "Scissors" in Vallejo. Some one must have "given the snap away" that Jerry Denny the Second, puts in his time during the week measuring calico for a large retail dry goods establishment in this city.

Last Sunday, Dick Nagle, who was formerly captain of the Emersons of this city and who now acptains the Merceds, played a magnificent game for that team against the Fresno's. Nagle made two runs, two hits, had three base steals and as catcher had eight put outs, four assists and but one passed ball. Nagle is strong enough for any of our big league teams.

Jimmy English has developed into quite a twirler since he has taken up his residence in Merced, his delivery being said to be far more deceptive than that of his brother Billy, who but a few years ago was reckoned one of the most promising pitchers in this country. Both the English boys were great players when here and were never without an engagement.

Talk about the Will & Fincks being Giants! Why, they are like midgets beside my aggregation of ball tossers, said Manager Keller the other day. I've got the biggest, heaviest, best looking lot of amateurs ever got together in one team, and they're just commencing to show what they can do. Look at Evatt, Lewis, Buckley, McGlade, Van Haltren, McCarthy for stalwarts, and if I get Agnew, who stands six feet four, I'll have the "daddy of them all," both as regards size and pitching abilities

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS,

SUMMARY.

The reports of the Fourth of July sports which were unavoidably crowded out last week will be found in our columns this week. In the wheeling world the next event of importance will be the great road race, which will be decided in Septembsr. The athletes are looking forward to September 17th, when the meeting at Sacramento will be had. The oarsmsn are undecided in their movementa as no event of importance is assured for the present. The wrestlers and amateur boxers are patiently awaiting the long eveninga when their sports will be in favor.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I had a lettsr a couple of days ago from Joseph Barr Buchanan, the champion amateur all round athlete, who is at present atudying to be a surgson in one of the leading medical colleges in Chicago. Mr. Buchanan informed me tbat he has resolved to tske up athletics again, and will make a big effort to break Gray's shot putting record of 45 feet 1 inch at the game which will be held in Chicago during the month of September.

I notice that ex-President Giry of the Alpine Club is striving to gain popularity as a boxing manager. If he has any intention of becoming popular aa a business man, I would adviae him to keep clsar of tbe would be pugiliats that conatantly hang around him.

If the Olympic Club desires to retain its amateur athletes it would act very wisely in forbidding some of its officers from giving information to the Sporting Editor of a prominent evening paper which makes it a rule nsver to miss a chance to make the public believe that there are two factions in the Olympic Club. Tbe paper in question haa always been noted for its untiring efforts in thia behalf, and if it is allowed to continue in its course unchecked there will in reality be a division of opinion amongst the members of the Winged O Club.

The approaching 25 mile road race of the Bay City Whselmen ia attracting all tbe attention of tbe wheelmen. I underatand tbat a good many of the San Jose boys are in atrict training for the event, and if reports be tnue tbe Smyth brothers of tbat city are determined to win the two first prizes. Some of tbe Bay City boys smile, however, at the idea, and assert that all the first places will be captured by men who represent the B. C. W.

The 11tb crosa country run of the Olympic Club will take place to-morrow from Roas Jackson's cottage at Sausalito. A large number of the Olympiana will participate, and I have bsen told on the quiet tbat a couple of tbe participants will make an effort to knock spots out of all previous records ovsr the couise.

The Alpine Club officers are addreasing circulars to all members notifying them tbat tbe club will move to Central Park, corner 8th and Market Streets, on or about Auguat 1st. Members who are two or more months in arrears by that time will be exnelled.

The last iasue of the New York Clipper contains an excellent picture of W A. Scott of tbe O A C., t gether with a summary of his wins.

I am inclined to think that tbere will be no club competition at next years' championship meeting. In less than a year from now tbe O A C team will be so powerful that none of the other cluba will make any effort to win the pennant. Of course there will alwaya be an individual jeslousy, and the competitions on this score will not lack in interest.

The prizes won at tbe Scottish Thiatle Club gamea on the Fourth of July were distributed in the Mechanics' Pavilion on Friday evening. The amateur runners especially received great applause.

The Hand Book of the California division L. A. W. has just been issued to the membera. It ia a very neat publication and ahould prove a valuable acquisition to all wheelmen. It contains 92 pagea of very interesting matter besides severs1 photographs of the leading coast wbeelmen and other viewa of importance. As a supplement it has a large, excellent map of California.

The following is a summary of the reading matter:

Jelleneak is a promiaing novice, and his running apeaks well for bia future performances.

Foster, a youngater in appearance, surprised every one with hia hurdle jumping. He is most undoubtedly the coming champion at this event.

THE WHEELMEN AT SAN JOSE.

Fine Racing, a Grand Parade, and a Successful Ball.

The race meet of the L. A. W. which took place at San Jose, Cal., on Friday, July 4th, was a flattering auccea. The all weather and attendance were that could be desired. The track, however, might have been in better condition, and it was owing to its roughness that many of the recorda made were so poor. The following is a summary of the competitors;

One Mile Ssfety State Championship Race—J F Ives, Alameda, 1st; T H Doane, San Francisco, 2nd. Time, 3min 18 3-5secs. Also completed: R W Turner, San Francisco; C P Fouda, San Francisco.

One Mile Novice Race—A Renett, Sacramento, 1st; W W Needham, San Joae, Cal., 2nd. Time, 3min 12secs. Alao completed: O L Peckaw, Oakland; E C Wagner, Stockton.

One Mile District Championship—Henry Smith, San Jose, 1st; D L Burke, Los Angeles 2nd. Time, 3 minutes, 3 3-5 seconds.

Tbree Mile Handicap—W R Lipsett, San Joae, 1st; E C Wagner, San Franciaco, 2nd; R W Turner, Stockton, 3d. Time, 10min 9 2 5secs. Julius Smith, San Jose, the scratch man, withdrew in order to save himself for the five mile district championship.

Half-mile Dash, State Championsdip—D L Burke, Loa Angelea, 1st; C E Townsend, Berkeley, 2nd. Time, 1min 33secs. J E Hickenbotham, Stockton, slso started but witbdiew early in the race.

One Mile Tandem Safety—George Osen and W Edwarda, San Jose, 1st; F H Doane and F W Gilmonr, San Francisco, 2nd. Time, 3min 19secs.

Five Mile District Championship Race—Julius Smith, San Jose, 1st; Al Bivett. 2nd. Time, 16min 58 1-5seca; R W Turner, San Francisco, D L Burke, Los Angeles, C B Townsend, Berkeley, started but withdrew before the close of tbe contest.

One Mile Handicap—George Swan, Stockton, 1st; R E Dow, San Jose, 2nd. Time, 3min 1 2-5seca. Also started, W R Lipsett. San Jose, Al Rinett, Sacramsnto, Oscar Osen, San Jose, J E Alexander, San Joae, F Drake, Oakland.

Two Mile Safety Handicap—J F Ives, San Francisco, 1st. Time, 6min 44 1-5secs. Also entered: Sam Small, Oakland; R W Turner, San Francisco, Geo Osen, San Jose; T H Doane San Francisco, Joe Delmas, San Jose.

STRAY SPOKES.

Tne weather waa simply splendid.

The fair sex were out in full force.

Tbe morning parade on the Fourth brougbt out over 200 wheelmen and was a big aucceas.

The parading wheelmen were nobly received along the route. Every window was filled with the admirers of the bicycle men.

The track was very uneven and hard to travel on.

Tbe attendance at the races was about 1200.

Henry Lichtenstein, of San Francisco, waa kept busy all day explaining the proceedinga to his many fair admirers.

G. P. Wetmore, of the B. C. W., waa an interested spectator and when any good psrformance was done he was one of the first to applaud.

Several of tbe San Francisco wbeelmen rode on to Santa Cruz in preference to staying over at San Jose.

The young maidens of San Jose are anxiously looking forward to another meeting.

The night parade was but poorly attended aa the majority of tbe wheelmen were either tired or else getting ready for tbe ball.

The ball was a great affair. Several hundred couples were on the floor and the main ball room looked dazzling. The gentlemen all appeared in evening dress. The music waa fine.

Burke, of Los Angeles, did not do as well as waa expected of him. He hurt his knee, and was unable to appear at his best.

The Smiths had thinga all their own way. Julius appeara to be rapidly improving, and in future will make the pace very hot in any racea he may enter. It is hardly possible that either of tbe brothers will be sent Easl, for it is almost a certainty that there are much better men to be found in the State.

Up to tbe present time, Julius Smith has been singularly fortunate in not having had to compete with some of the cracks. Wben he does meet some of tbe best men, it is certain that he will bring much credit on his native town.

The ahape of the track was perfect, but that was about its only redeeming feature.

The Bay City Wheelmen membera did not appear to take a genuine interest in the meet. The few that did attend, bowever, were very enthuaiastic.

Captain Sig. B. Morse, of the American Bicycle Club, preferred travelling on to Santa Cruz.

Most of the winners were new men, and they will take great pride in showing their dearly won prizea.

A regular meeling of the Bay City Wheelmen was held on Monday evening.

A regular meeting of tbe Oakland Bioycling Club was held at tbe residence of Secretary, Sam S. Small, 804 10th Street, Oakland, on Tuesday evening.

The Bay City Wheelmsn may give a grand road race on September 8th on the San Leandro triangle Time handicaps will be allowed, and valuable prizea will be awarded.

It ia expscted that a good many entries will be received from the other clubs.

G. H. Gihon, of tbe Oakland Bicycle Club, is enjoying a couple of week's rest in the Yosemite Valley.

The San Francisco Wheelmen were left out in the cold at San Jose, and now psrhaps aome of them may wake up and begin training.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The lawn tennis tournament for the Pacific Coaat championship closed on Sunday last at San Rafael. W. H. Taylor, of San Francisco, won the title of champion. The game deciding tbe championship closed aa followa:

Taylor	6	9	6
Yatea	4	7	0

President W. M. Newhall, of the Pacific Statea Tennis Tournament, in an appropriate manner presented the chsmpionahip Cup to Taylor.

A picked team of famous footbsll players of Scotland will reach tbia city early in August, and on Labor Day will meet the champions of America.

The married members of the Burnaby Cricket Club, defeated the single members on Sunday last at the Alameda grounds by a score of sixty-four runs and one wicket.

The Shelter Cove baths at tbe foot of Mason Street haa been doing a livsly buainesa for some time past. The Lurline Club swimmera, who practice there, generally attract a large crowd of fair spectators.

The Crystal and Palace batbs are thronged nightly. Swimming and diving contesta are held a couple of timea a week at each resort.

Over 1,500 viaitors sat in the gallery of the Terrace baths at Alameda on Sunday watching the bathera. Spiller and Captain Volliner, of the Pacific Swimming Club, were in the watsr the greater part of the afternoon, and kspt the crowd interested with their scisntific and daring feats.

THE SCOTTISH THISTLE CLUB GAMES.

Tip-top Performance by Professional and Amateur Athletes.

OVER 7,000 PEOPLE WITNESS THE SPORTS.

The eighth annual games and picnic of the Scottish Thistle Club were held at Shell Mound Park, Berkeley on Friday, July 4th, commencing at 9 A. M. Attendsnce, 7,000; track ten laps to the mile and in fair condition. Weather charming and suitable for out-door sports. It wsa expscted that Peter McIntyre would meet Charley Little in the long race for professionals, but aa the former had to be in attendance at the Olympic Club grounds, where games were being held, the spectators were disappointsd. Tbe race was won by Tom Kendal with Little a cloae second. The knowing sporta seem to think that if McIntyre had been able to enter the race the Scotchmen would have backed him heavily and then Little would have shown his hand by cantering away from bia opponents.

The amateur races brought out some of the fastest men on tbe coaat and were splendidly contssted. A little kicking was done regarding the handicaps, but every one cannot be pleased on such an occasion. and Captain Jordan, under the circumstances, showed good judgment in his handicapping. Tbe following ia a summaiy of the different contests with the names of the runners:

The Ormsby County Agricultural Society.

As will be seen by the advertisement in another column, the Ormsby County Agricultural Association asks for entries to a first class programme for races to take place from September 29th to October 4th inclusive. Those of the California contingent who saw fit to go over to the sister State last fall were highly delighted with the treatment that they received, and spoke in the high est terms of the management. The purses offered by this Association are extremely liberal and will warrant many of our horse owners in taking their trotters and runners over into Nevada. There are twenty-four events in all, consisting of trotting, pacing and running races, the large majority of which are open to all; however, wherever the word District occurs in the programme it is intended to mean the State of Nevada and Mono, Inyo, Alpine, Modoc, Lassen, Sierra and Plumas Counties in California. The entries do not close until the 15th day of August, so that it will give all ample opportunity to determine whether they will take advantage of the liberality of the Directors of the Nevada Association. As the time draws near to make entries, we shall have occasion again to call attention to this exceedingly good programme.

Arrangements have been made with a prominent turf writer to furnish the Breeder and Sportsman with a full and detailed account of the great race between Jack 2:15, and Palo Alto, 2:12¼, which will take place at either Cleveland or Detroit, in the last week of this month. Naturally, the match race will have great interest for our readers, and a full report will be given.

The Horseman's Stake.

Week before last an advertisement appeared in the Breeder and Sportsman asking for entries to the Horseman's Guaranteed $12,500 Stake for trotting foals of 1890, and no better illustration can be given of the great value of this paper as an advertising medium than the fact that notwithstanding the great number of breeding farms now located east of the Rocky Mountains, that a larger number of entries were made from California than from any other State or Territory in the Union. The four largest representations are California 86, Kentucky 61, New York 52, and Illinois 40, while there is a total number of 532 nominations, the produce of 234 different stallions, and representing 267 different breeders. In speaking of the event, the Horseman says:

California, with the eighty-six representatives of its genial climate, will be a strong factor when the stake is narrowed down to a decision. Kentucky, New York, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania contribute liberally, as do all the principal breeding States, while from away down East in New Brunswick four youngsters are named to meet one from Washington, one from Alabama, one from Utah and two from the Indian Territory. From all the points and extremes they come to claim supremacy for each breeding section, and to uphold the glory of the blood they carry. The other States no longer propose to leave the richest prizes for California and Kentucky to decide alone. The spread and growth of the breeding interest has demonstrated that when Iowa can grow an Axtell, Michigan a Jack and Alcryon, and Maine a Nelson, it is not vain for Northern breeders to dispute the prestige of the blue-grass region and the golden slope.

Those who entered from California are as follows: Palo Alto Stock Farm 30, G. Valensin 14, San Mateo Stock Farm 10, Pleasanton Stock Farm 8, Sam Gamble 4, Souther Farm 3, La Siesta Ranch 3, Geo. E. Guerne 2, Wilfred Page 2, Ariel Lathrop, Jno. A. Goldsmith, Henry T. Rudisill, G. W. Stimpson, L. U. Shippee, and W. A. Gamble, one each. This makes a total of 82 represented by California breeders, but there are four others entered from California, the mares now being in this State, although owned in the East.

The "Horseman" may well feel complimented on the result of its generosity, for up to the present time no association or individual has had the courage to guarantee such a large amount for trotting foals, and we sincerely trust that the gentlemen who have seen fit to launch this purse to the trotting world may receive due recompense for their liberality.

Politics and the Fish Commission.

At intervals during the few weeks last passed, the newspapers in the city have contained what purported to be reports of the transactions of the Board of Fish Commissioners. We readily concede to every newspaper the desire to publish facts in its news columns, and are not disposed so take exceptions to any editorial based upon what really are facts, but we feel constrained to say that never during an experience of some years have all of the daily newspapers of San Francisco concurred in stating as facts what were really not so, as in the case of the reports of the investigation of charges made against Chief of Patrol Callundan by Tunstead, formerly a deputy Fish Commissioner. The Commission, very unwisely, we think, resolved to hold its session privately so that such reports as have been made must have resulted from interviews with some one, or all of those present; no reporters being permitted to attend. We are advised by three of the gentlemen present, including the two honorably gentlemen, members of the Board and the Chief of Patrol, that they had furnished no statement to the press, thus leaving the responsibility for the reports published to rest upon Tunstead, Curley and Ennis. We are told at second hand that Ennis furnished nothing to the reporters, and we believe that such statements as were made for publication were made by Tunstead. In his formal charges, sworn to, Tunstead mentioned but one man as guilty, viz., the Chief of Patrol. The Board convened to investigate the charges against the Chief and for no other purpose. We are advised by Hon. Jos Routier, President of the Commission, that not only was no proof in support of the charges presented by Tunstead, but the witnesses denied absolutely ever having had any transactions with the Chief of Patrol, or having paid him any money at any time for any purpose. If the daily newspapers received their information from Mr. Tunstead, and he failed to state the fact just mentioned, then he must be guilty of lack of candor; if he stated the fact and the newspapers suppressed it, then the onus of course rests upon them. To account for the squabbles and the unpleasantness incident to the work of the Fish Commission is not an easy matter. The office of commission is one without salary, and it must be conceded that it is held either for personal gratification or for political reasons. We hesitate to ascribe to either of the present incumbents and such little vanity as can be made to plume itself for such slight reason, and we conclude that political forces are subserved by membership in the Board. If this be so, then the appointments made by the Board are likely to be made primarily as political rewards, a reason which may induce the service of a good man, but is as likely not to do so. Of all State Boards, it would seem that the Fish and Game Commission should last come under political management, pure and simple, its duties are so directly at varience with those of other Boards. To conserve a food supply; to increase and distribute edible and desirable fishes; to introduce and maintain and protect such wild birds and varieties of game as are likely to become acclimatized, these are the simple and pacific duties of a Fish Commissioner and of Deputy Fish Commissioners; not to brawl unceasingly. It is probably easier to suggest than to change, but we submit that the Fish Commission should be taken absolutely out of politics.

Auction Sales.

Messrs. Killip & Co. announce to our readers this week that on next Monday they will sell a consignment of trotting and thoroughbred horses, the property of M. A. Foster, Esq. of Los Angeles, at the City Front Stables, Washington street, this city, at 11 o'clock A. M. The majority of the animals to be offered are from four to six years of age, and comprise the get of such well known sires as Grinstead, Silvercloud, Silverthread, and by sons of Overland and Sacramento. No doubt there will be many bargains picked up at this offering, and those who are looking for good, cheap horses would do well to attend the sale. Full description and pedigree of the animals will be ready on Monday, and those who desire to purchase may know exactly what they are getting.

The same firm also announces that they will sell at the Railroad Stables, corner of Turk and Steiner streets, on Thursday and Friday, September 4th and 5th, an important consignment of trotting horses and thoroughbred Holstein cattle, the property of J. H. White, Esq., of Lakeville, Sonoma County. This lot will comprise over forty head of highly bred trotting stallions, broodmares, colts and fillies, many of them standard. From personal knowledge we can truthfully say that they are all exceptionally fine individuals. Electioneer, Director and Antevolo blood is prominently mixed up in Mr. White's stable, and we feel assured that those who purchase will get good value for their money. The cattle comprise over 100 heads of thoroughbred, registered Holsteins, and as the progenitors of this herd were selected from the most famous breeding establishments of the East, it can readily be seen that an extraordinarily good chance is offered for those who wish to purchase this particular breed. The herd have taken many premiums whenever shown, and we can confidently recommend them to the cattlemen of the State.

The Breeder and Sportsman Futurity Stake.

On the first day of last January the Breeder and Sportsman Futurity Stake closed with 284 entries, which up to that date was one of the largest Futurity Stakes for trotting foals that had ever been started in the United States. According to the conditions, the second payment of $10 each falls due on Friday, August 1st by which time it will become necessary for all who desire to remain in the stake to make their second payment. As is well known this paper guarantees the purse to be worth $3000 at maturity, and from the present indications it will be worth a great deal more.

Following in the footsteps of the Breeder and Sportsman many other associations have opened up like stakes and all of them have met with great success, but even then from the large number who entered in this stake, there can be no reasonable doubt but what the winner of the first money will receive a larger amount than was ever paid over before in a trotting race in this State. Those having entries must remember that on Friday, August 1st the second payment of $10 each is due.

Pedigrees of Trotting Horses.

We particularly call the attention of all Secretaries of Associations to the rules of both the National and American Trotting Associations, which require that the name, color, sire and dam of horses entered, be given. For the past few months we have been endeavoring to straighten out as far as possible the pedigrees of as many of the old California horses as we could, but we find it very up-hill work, as in looking over the old newspapers we find that but very rarely have pedigrees ever been given for the contestants. It is particularly desirous that pedigrees be given in full, or if not known, to be so stated. There is another point too that has great bearing in the matter of pedigrees, and that is to the student who wishes to study the blood lines of prominent horses so as to discover what are the best lines to breed to, what crosses would prove the most effective, and at the same time produce speed; this is impossible when horses are started as they have been in the past and no pedigrees given. It is to be hoped that the Directors of all Associations in conjunction with the Secretary will demand from those who make entries that a full pedigree be given whenever it is possible to do so.

The Corbitt Horses.

As is only natural at this season of the year, rumors fly thick and fast in reference to the work done by horses who may be entered in their various classes throughout the coming circuit, and it is not long ago that we heard an accounnt of some phenominal yearlings that might be seen at the San Mateo Stock Farm: happening by chance to meet Mr. Goldsmith, he informed the writer that there were several Sable Wilkes youngsters down at the farm which would bear iuspection, not only for good looks but also for the amount of speed that they could show.

Having an idle day on Saturday lsst a trip was made to the home of Guy Wilkes for the purpose of taking a look at the stock in general, and the wonderful yearlings in particular. As good luck would have it, the trip was not made alone, for on arriving at the depot at Fonrth and Townsend streets, we were more than pleased to find as companions Mr. Valensin, the owner of Sidney, and also that old and well known trotting horse driver, Wilber Field Smith of Sacramento, both of these gentlemen being on their way to see the same sights that had actuated the writer in making the trip. As is only natural to suppose, in such pleasant company the time passed very speedily and it seemed but a few minntes before we were at Oak Grove, a station which is situated on Mr. Corbitt's place. We found the proprietor in waiting with a team to drive us np to the stables and in little or no time we were shaking hands with Mr. G. Ilsmith and his able assistants, John Rogers and Chris. Lang.

Since our last visit to the farm msny improvements have been made, in fact, as the proprietor says, "We try to keep improving all the time". The kindergarten track, without which no first-class farm is supposed to be complete, has been finished and is one of the very best in the country; no expense having been spared to make it perfect in every particular.

La Grande having died, his place is now filled by Leo Wilkes and the stallion service has also been angumented by the entrance to stud duty of Regal Wilkes 2:20¾, that being the fastest two-year-old stallion record in the world. It is true that the young son of Guy Wilkes has only been bred to a very few mares, bnt it is to be hoped that his days may be long on the San Mateo Stock Farm for stallion duty.

On our arrival, although we started at an early hour, the sun was well np in the Heavens, and after a very short glance around the stables, Mr. Goldsmith ordered ou the yearlings for the work of the day; and taken all in all, it mnst be confessed that there is a doubt existing as to whether there is another stock farm in the country where five yearlings can be seen, each and every one of which has gone a quarter in 41 seconds or better, one of them having completed the distance in 37 seconds. It is true that while we were present the time was not quite so fast, yet still enough was shown to convince us that Mr. Corbitt has some of the best yearlings in the country.

The first one brought out for inspection was by Sable Wilkes and out of Laura Drew. This representative of a noted stallion was shown to us twice during the forenoon; the first quarter being accomplished in 41¼ seconds, while on a second attempt the youngster had no trouble in going the same distance in even time. It is so rarely that one can see even in this great breeding State, yearlings going qnarters in 40 seconds that the spectators were more than pleased at the sight, and Mr. Corbitt was hesrtily congratnlated on the possession of such a speedy yearling.

Another of the young ones was by Sable Wilkes and out of Blanche, the dam of Hazel Wilkes 2:20, who is a credit to both sire and dam; this one completed a quarter in 40¼ seconds, proving the right to be claimed a fast one.

However, the one that seemed to more particularly please the onlookers than any of the others, was a blaok yearling by Sable Wilkes, dam Mamie Comet 2:23¼ by Nutwood; for perfect and complete trotting action this was given the palm by all of ns, notwithstanding that it took him 41 seconds to go the same distance that the others did; clean gaited, handsomely put up, without a point that would be changed if it could, he is a representative colt, an honor to the great breeding farm from which he comes.

In between the heats of the "babies" we were shown Rupee and Hazel Wilkes, Rupee being a pacer from whom much is expected. He is a big sturdy fellow by Guy Wilkes, dam Sable Haywood and had little or no trouble in showing us a mile in 2:28. However, it might be here stated that he and Hazel were worked together, Rodgers driving the mare while Goldsmith handled the ribbons over Rupee; the last half of the mile was made in 1:12½ while the last qnarter was completed in 35 seconds. Hazel does not seem to have lost any of her old speed and it is extremely probable that when she is brought to face the starter on the coming circnit she will be able to show miles faster than ever she did.

The pride of the farm, Regal Wilkes, was also bronght out for exercise, his time for a mile being 2:36. However, Goldsmith extended him in the last quarter and the great young stallion was timed by Mr. Valensin in 34½, while Mr. Corbitt and Mr. Smith made it 35.

Lillian Wilkes 2:17¾ as will be remembered by our readers was withdrawn from the turf last year after a very short campaign, she developing lameness in her left foreleg; after some time a splint became noticeable, for which she was fired and blistered and was turned out for nearly all the winter months. However, a short time ago she was again taken up and given very slow work, as Mr. Goldsmith does not wish to have a recnrrence of last year's trouble if it can possibly be avoided. The mare looks well, seems in the pink of condition, although a little stout for track work but seems eager to take hard work once more.

Neither Mr. Goldsmith nor Mr. Corbitt could give any assurance that she wonld be seen this season on the circuit, but the proprietor did not hesitate to say that if in future she showed np well in her work, able to beat her former record, that most assuredly the race going public of California would have a chance to see her later on in the year.

After the speed trials a look was taken at the various brood mares and their foals, which are to be found scattered over the entire farm. Mr. Corbitt unhesitatingly said that all of his yearlings of 1891 wonld be sold at public auction, as he did not wish to be accused of keeping back any stock at all for racing pnrposes, and consequently he was going to give Eastern buyers a chance at all of the gilt edged yonng ones which are at present to be found at San Mateo Stock Farm.

"The King Bee" of the lot, if he may be so termed, is a suckling foal by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Ruby 2:19¾, by Sultan 2:24; second dam Fleetwing (dam of Stamboul 2:12¼) by Hambletonian 10; third dam Patchen Maid by George M. Patchen 2:23¼. This little lord, accompanied by his mother, are in a paddock by themselves, and he wants to make friends with all who will come near him: already he shows himself to be a "sure enough" trotter, and all of the party present expressed themselves in favor of Mr. Corbitt's keeping this royally bred young horse, as it would be a shame for a stallion bred as he is to go out of the State. It may not be out of place to state here that Mr. Corbitt was offered $15,000 for this snckling when only two days old and refnsed it, as he did not feel justified in selling off any of the best of his stock until the entire lot are offered for sale.

A Carload of Horses for Marcus Daly.

During the spring and early summer B. C. Holly of Vallejo has been picking np choice fillies and brood mares for Marcus Daly whenever opportunity offered. From time to time we have had occasion to call the attention of our readers to the well-bred horses purchased by Mr. Holly, and on Wednesday last he shipped to the Bitter Root Ranch of Mr. Daly a carload of horses, consisting of the following: Manon 2;21 by Nutwood, dam Addie by Hasbrook's Hambletonian Chief; also her three fosls, the first being a ch. f. two years old by Guy Wilkes; the second, a yearling black colt called Milroy, by Guy Wilkes, and a suckling horse colt by the same sire. Manon has been stinted to Gny Wilkes.

Stamina, b. m. by Stamboul, dam Nettie Ward by Echo, 2nd dam by Rifleman.

Bay filly Rosie; two years old, by Alcazar, dam Flower Girl by Arthurton; 2nd dam Flora by General McClellan.

Bay filly by Anteeo, dam by Whippleton 1883; 2nd dam by Sam Purdy 918; 3rd dam by Rifleman, 4th dam Lady Crum, the dam of Alexander, 490.

Alano, b. f. by Steinway, dam Inex by Sweepstakes; 2nd dam Dolly Bull, (the dam of Inez 2:22¼); 3rd dam Nancy by American Star 14.

Sunlight b. f. by Steinway, dam Katie G. by Electioneer 125; 2nd dam Fanny Malone by Niagara; 3rd dam Fanny Wickham by Herald.

Firefly, roan filly by Director 1989, dam Steinola by Steinway, 1808; 2nd dam Phaceola by Silverthreads; 3rd dam Minnehaha.

Bay filly Blanche, bred by B. C. Holly, sire Woodnnt 2:16½; 1st dam Molly McCarthy 2:41 by Eugene Casserly; 2nd dam by imported Glencoe.

Our Los Angeles Letter.

The prospects for a brilliant meeting were never brighter in the history of the Sixth District Agricultural Association. Horses are coming in daily from all points, and the track now presents a busy scene every morning. The Northern trotting horse men did not patronize the meeting to any extent, but there were enough good horses in the district to fill all but two events on the pro ramme, and one of those had four in. The owners of bangtails came to the rescne in gallant style, however, and as a consequence the best rnnning races on the circuit will come off at the Los Angeles meeting The Los Angeles public are partial to running races, so a large attendance can confidently be anticipated at the opening meeting of the grand circuit of 1890.

Dave Sheehan, well known to all borsemen on the coast, is training the Rickabangh & Harold string at Santa Anita. The running qualities of Gladiator, Santa Ana, San Rafael, Clara I., and several others, have been leased by "Lucky" Baldwin to Messrs. Rickabaugh & Harold. The string will in all probability make the California circuit, if they show np fairly good in their work during the latter part of the month.

It is reported here that Albert Cooper will train for L. J. Rose next season. Whether there is anything in the story I am not prepared to say, but it is common talk among the men at the race track. Dave Bridges, who went East with the string, is now located at the old stand. He has leased the running qnalities of Peri, who is well entered at the coming meeting.

QUARTER STRETCH GOSSIP.

Manager Baldwin, of the Fresno and Coronado tracks, passed through this city last week.

The Escondido Fair begins September 30th.

Santa Ana and San Bernardino both hold their initial fair this year. What's the matter with a Southern California circuit?

The new secretary is booming the opening day in all the Southern California papers, and every town within a hundred miles of Los Angeles is being billed with handsome lithographs.

The handicap for the Nadeau Hotel Handicapand Southern California Handicap, will be announced on Tuesday. There are seventeen entered in the latter event.

Charley Durfee's handsome three year-old colt McKinney by Alcyone, is showing up grandly in his work. He is a handsome colt, and will make a low mark for himself in the near future.

The Jack Hawkins you allude to is the one found in Vol. 2 of the Stud book, page 72. He was owned by Ross Sargent of Stockton and he stood there for years. We do not know anything about George Moore, except that there was a horse of that name in California many years ago.

H. G. A. L.

What races has Sir Ladd won on the flat, and what is his pedigree?

Answer.—It would be difficult to answer your first question as he has been "jobbed" all over the Northwest. He was bred by John R. Ladd, of La Grande, Or, and his pedigree is given as by Richard III, he by Crichton, a son of imp Glencoe. The dam of Sir Ladd has been stated as Queen by Osceola, a son of Norfolk. It would be hard to verify the above as Mr. Ladd is now dead. The horse was at one time owned by J. R. Ross, the owner of Kitty Van, Oro and others, and it is barely possible that Mr. Ross may know something of his pedigree.

C. H. B.

Can yon give me the pedigree of a mare called Trixey, raised on the Pritchard Ranch in California? She is said to be foaled Jannary 7, 1884, by Old Bazor, ont of Avail. Will yon kindly look this up? I bought the mare and her pedigree is good if trne. Give me all the sires and dams so far as yon can find ont, and oblige.

Answer.—The mare ont of Avail, foaled in 1884, was Laura Gardner by Jim Brown. The only mare Trixey we know of was the one foaled in 1885 by Joe Hooker, dam Abbie W., and which is now owned by Col. Harry I. Thornton of the Rancho Resaca.

Thomas Quinn.

Will you please give pedigree of Fire Tail, sired by Norfolk; also pedigree of Murphy's Patchen?

Answer—Firetail by Norfolk, dam Fanny Howard by Illinois Medoc; 2d dam Fanny Howard by imp. Riddleswortb; 3d dam Isabel bv Doublehead; 4th dam by imp. Whip; 5th dam by Albert; 6th dam by Union, etc. If you mean D. J. Mnrphy's Patchen, the pedigree is given as follows: Dick Patchen by Tom Patchen (son of Geo. M. Patchen Jr.), dam Lady Fisher by Capt. Fisher; 2d dam by Sir George; 3d dam by American Eclipse.

D. R. H.

The two lines are misplaced, it probably being an oversight of the proof-reader. The article in the Monthly should read: Volnnteer's fastest, St. Julien, 2:11¼; Blue Bull's fastest, Zoe B., 2:17¼.

P. O. H. A.

Please answer throngh your valable paper the best way to procnre the services of a State veterinary snrgeon to make an examination of horses in Santa Rita Valley supposed to be suffering from glanders. Some of them have already been killed by their owners.

Answer.—There is no such thing as a State Veterinary.

Names Claimed.

Thomas Clark, Esq., of Springville, Ventura County, claims the following names, all of the foals being by his stallion Wilkes Moor, by Guy Wilkes, dam by Del Sur; 2d dam by The Moor:

BANSHEE, for b f, no white, black stripe all the length of back about one inch in width, foaled March 17, 1889, dam by Patchen Vernon; 2d dam by Geo. M. Patchen.

GEM, br f, a little white around both hind feet, foaled March 6, 1890, dam by Nephew.

DANDY, for br c, few white hairs in forehead, foaled March 15, 1890, dam by Hamlet by Gen. McClellan; 2d dam by Overland.

CHESTERFIELD, for ch c, white face and down to its nose, white hind feet above the ankles, foaled March 31, 1890, dam by Corbett by Arthurton; 2d dam by Yonng Echo.

CLYTIE, b f, no white, foaled May 3, 1890, dam by Clipper.

Grim's Gossip.

Second psyments sre due for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake on August 1st.

Well, the fun opens on the "big" circuit at Detroit next week, and we may expect to find trotting news as well as the doings of the runners in the dailies of next week.

We have received No. 6 of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide which gives a full record of all running races up to, and including July 2nd. It is as full of interesting matter as usual.

W. C. France, the well known breeder of Lexington, Ky., has taken into partnership his son Albert and Dr. W. F. Smith. Hereafter the firm will be known as W. C. France & Son.

The Parkville Farm started Gold Leaf at Philadelphia last week, but the best her driver could do was to bring her in second in the third heat, the time of which was 2:23¾. Her new driver evidently lacks ginger.

Last week, an item in "Turf and Track", stated that Electioneer had four new performere in the 2:30 class and at least half a dozen persons have written asking for the namee of the four. They are as follows Suisun 2:22¼, Aleck B 2:29½ May King 2:29 and Fay 2:29¾.

In a note from the Secretary of the Ione meeting I learn that the entry list is large and good sport assured. The Association have secured special rates for excursionists, and return tickets will be sold at one and a third fare. Special excursion trains will also be run.

There is a rumor prevalent that one of the principal breeders of trotting horses will go out of the business between this and the first of the year. The gentleman has some splendid stock, and if he should decide to sell off all that he has, there will no doubt be keen competition at the sale.

It will be noticed in an advertisement in another column that any one desirous of purchasing a first class young gelding, who has no record, can do so by applying at this office. Three heats in 2:25 will be shown a prospective purchaser, which should make him a valuable animal for any of the green classes.

On Sunday last there appeared at Morshead stable the trotting horse Ira 2;24½ which had just been brought down from Humboldt County to take part in the fall races. If this horse is handled properly there is no question of doubt but what he can make a very low mark for himself, if only needing a competent driver and plenty of work to place him well within the "teens."

Fanstino has been given some speedy work during the last week, and Dickerson, the driver, feels confident that he will be able to lower the two-year-old stallion record of Regal Wilkes. Mr. Waters, the owner of Fanstino, writes and says that he has refused $15,000 for the colt from a Chicago gentleman, as he considers him one of the most prominent horses in the country.

One of the horses at the Petaluma race track that can show a very fast burst of speed for a distance is Harry Slocum, owned by Slocum & Hastings. On Saturday last he was given a little hard work, being driven to the three-quarters pole at a 2:20 gait, where he broke owing to a lack of work. It is extremely probable that before this season ends, Harry Slocum will be heard from and that he will make a low record for himself.

Allerton 2:18¼ at three years old, who was supposed to be broken down, was given a mile Friday of last week over the Independence, Iowa, new kite-shaped track in 2:16¾. The quarters were 38, 106, 141 2;16¾. If this fellow keeps right the California filly, Margaret S., will have a race from wire to wire for the Horseman's stake at Detroit. It would be just William's luck to patch the colt up and take in the race says the Terra Haute Express.

Last week notice was made on the gossip page that Mr. Sanlehury's Homestake had at last won a race and made a record of 2:28½. We now learn that on Saturday, the last day of the July meeting Homestake was again started; this time in the 2:30 class, his competitors being Vera by Kentucky Volunteer, and John F. Vera had no difficulty in winning in straight heats, Homestake getting second money. The time being 2:27½, 2:30 and 2:25.

It would seem from the Philadelphia newspapers to hand that considerable dissatisfaction was expressed on the manner in which Jas. Goldsmith drove Simmoeelon in the eight heat race at Point Breeze Park. The public seemed to have an idea that the California stallion should win in three straight heats, but from the manner in which the summary reads it would seem as though the pool box played a very important part in the race.

Lee Shaner has Emma Temple in the very pink of condition at the Petaluma track. This daughter of Jackson Temple proved to the race goers of California what she could do last year, and stamped herself as a thoroughly game mare. In appearance she has much improved, and her speed is just a little better than it was last season. It will not surprise the knowing ones if she beats 2:18 in the first race she goes into, if it is necessary to go that fast.

Rumors from Palo Alto are not very encouraging with regard to Electricity, the large son of Electioneer and Midnight. Early in the season it was supposed that he would be able to face the wire this season, but if current rumors are to be believed, he will not be seen on a California track this year. He has a bad habit of interfering, and notwithstanding almost everything has been done possible to overcome the difficulty, he does not seem to improve at all.

Wm. F. Eagan, member of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, England, has established himself as one of the best "Vets" in California, and as a result has built up a first class practice. He was formerly located at the corner of Jackson and Buchanan streets, but owing to an increase of business he has had to secure more commodious quarters, and to that end has located at 1117 Golden Gate avenue. In the advertisement will be found the telephone number and also the branch offices.

I had the pleasure of reading a letter which was sent by Major Campbell of Tennessee to Mr. Valensin a few days ago, in which the writer says that he has an extremely fast pacing colt by Sidney, dam Juno by Buccaneer, 2nd dam Venus, the dam of Adonis 2:14. The Major says that "Mercury," as he calls the youngster, has shown already several very fast quarters and halves, and he proposes to take him out on the big circuit later in the season.

John Mackey, of the Ranche Del Paso, arrived in Queenstown, Ireland on Wednesday last, he being on a visit to the "ould sod". There are some horsemen who claim that John has no desire to see the sights of Erin, but that his main object is to secure a number of first class brood mares for the Haggin breeding establishment, and that he also has his eye on a celebrated English stallion which is known to be for sale. We trust that sea sickness had no terrors for the genial John.

Mr. J. O'Kane, the well known manufacturer of Trotting Horse Boots, shipped on Saturday last to Paris, France, $500 worth of his latest and most improved accoutrements for horse leg wear. This order in itself goes to show how firmly the trotting horse interests are becoming imbedded in France, and it is also a great compliment paid to Mr. O'Kane that those who use the articles should send such a long distance for them. Truly California cannot only provide first-class horses, but everything that is necessary for their use.

As is probably well known by this time, Rey Del Rey proved a great disappointment to his backers. When he started on Thursday last, it would seem from the reports that he got off first rate and led into the home stretch but from there was beaten out, he not getting better than third. As this is his first race of the year and it is generally considered that the stable has been pretty badly messed about, we must confess that the result is not a surprise and we look for many brackets to his credit before the season closes.

Ex-Senator Ben Langford has at the Lodi track three very promising youngsters who are showing up well in their work. The first is called The Dude, he being by Dexter Prince, dam by Mt. Vernon. The second is a filly by Hawthorne, dam Bessie Sedgwick by Joe Daniels. The third is a two year old colt by Dexter Prince, dam Lady Bayswater by Bayswater. These young animals are all entered in the local District Stakes at Stockton, and there is every reason to believe that they will make good records for themselves.

Last year Mr. A. T. Hatch was very much disappointed because his horse Lenmar was not in condition to trot, although in the early part of the season he had shown up very well; however, he was given a good long rest, and this year was put in the hands of Tom Murphy at Petaluma. From those who have seen the horse work, great stories are told about his speed, a gentleman on Tuesday last assuring me that Lenmar could put three heats inside of 2:22; if this story is correct, Lenmar will prove a dangerous competitor in the various classes in which he is entered.

Quite a number of horsemen have noticed the fact that Mr. Wilfred Page, one of California's most enthusiastic breeders has failed to pay up in the stakes for which he had entries. A letter from Mr. Page informs me that he wrote to the Secretary of the Breeders Association and enclosed a check for the amount necessary but owing to an oversight, failed to post his letter and did not discover the mistake until almost a week had elapsed. It is a pity that this oversight has occurred for Mr. Page has several very promising colts that are worthy to be seen in any company.

There are quite a number of two-year-olds of which rumor speaks very highly, and it is expected that either at San Jose or Napa several sensations will be furnished by the horses of that age. I learn that one day last week Elleneer was trotted a full mile at Palo Alto in 2:24, which looks as though the Palo Alto farm had another speedy one to follow in the steps of the great Sunol. However, even that speed will not deter many owners from bringing out those at present in training, and there is reason to believe that two or three others, even this early in the season, can show equal speed.

By a telegram in the Examiner of Friday morning I learn that Matt Allen has received his walking papers from the Hearst Stable. The news can hardly be believed, for it sounds too good to be true. The same telegram also says that Albert Cooper will handle the horses in future. If such be the case the public will find the "orange and green" a decided favorite in the betting, and that before many days. The Senator is now on the road to success and if winning mounts can be had from the stable, rest assured Albert will send them to the front.

Some time ago I made mention of a mile which Guide 2:28½, had made on a half-mile track near Pleasanton. He accomplished the distance so readily in 2:31½ that every assurance was felt that before the rains of winter come on that he would show a very much higher rate of speed. From two or three horsemen information is brought that during the last week this son of Director was speeded for a short distance at a 2:15 gait, and as there is plenty of opportunity between now and the opening of the circuit, undoubtedly he will make his first appearance ready to uphold the colors of the Director family.

A telegram from Saginaw, Mich., states that Cricket won the 2 30 pacing race there in three straight heats; the time being 2:19¼, 2:21½ and 2:21. Letters received from the East also give a very peculiar coloring to the race in which Margaret S. was beaten. From one of the letters received, I quote the following: "We won the race in three straight heats but evidently the money in the pool box was in the other way, and the judges took the third heat away from us. After this we did'nt try to win but just saved our distance in each heat. We could not beat the combination in the judges' stand.

As is only natural all Californians have felt supreme delight in thinking that Salvator, a California owned horse reduced the mile and a quarter record to 2:05, but our joy has been of short duration, as on Thursday last at Monmouth Park, Tournament and Banquet, the latter owned by W. L. Scott, finished the same distance under a driving finish in the almost incredible time of 2;03¾. It is true that while the time made is surprising, still due allowance must be made for the fact that Salvator's record was made on an oval track while the new record of Banquet was made on a straight away course, he beating Tournament by a head only.

It is always a pleasure to have to announce anything favorable from the breeding farms of California, and it is also distasteful to have to give bad news. Under the latter category we have to announce this week that Mr. B. C. Holly, of Vallejo, has lost by death the ch f Hazelwood by Woodnut, dam Economy by Echo. Mr. Holly thought so favorably of this little miss, that on the first of the month he entered her in the Sonoma and Marin Futurity Stake, but on the morning of the Fourth she was taken with spasmodic colic, and did not survive the day. She was an exceedingly well formed filly, and Mr. Holly had great expectations of her.

Quite a number of gentlemen have called my attention to the fact that the current number of Wallace's Monthly makes no mention of the fact that John Nelson died in a much later year than was given in the Year Book. Mr. Wallace is usually very methodical in what he does, and although several weeks have now elapsed since the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN furnished the proofs of when the old horse really did die, still it is to be expected that the publisher of the Year Book will send to the parties, whose names we gave, securing confirmation of the report. It is probable that in the next number of the Monthly there will be found a correction.

The Terre Haute Express says: "It is reported that Hickok has purchased the entry Marvin had for the dead Arol in the Detroit $10,000 2:24 class stake, and will start the green horse Prince Warwick. If this proves to be the case, truly a new warrior is in the field fully equipped to do battle, and one who will not disgrace the name he bears, that of the "King Maker," who never recognized defeat. Those of the boys who have already picked the winner must dealover and count this fellow in for the horse that peddles fish in the fourth quarter is very liable to see the "Talleyrand of the turf" brush this youngster by them, and oh! how he can brush. Hickok has set on the tail of many a fast trotter, but it is doubted if any of them has carried him the clip this inbred Almont has."

C. H. Corey of San Jose, owner of Almont Patchen 2:15, has been in town two days this week interviewing horsemen in reference to the approaching Fair at San Jose. It would seem that some one has circulated a report that the track there is not in the best of condition, but Mr. Corey states that the report has been maliciously started, and that the track was never in better condition than it is at present. He says the horses now located there are in splendid fix and almost ready for the work of the circuit. On the first of the month John A. Goldsmith will remove his string from the San Mateo Stock Farm to the San Jose track, and on the same date B. C Holly of Vallejo will also go there, he having secured a number of stalls. The intention of the management is to make the meeting of 1890 the most successful that has ever been held at that point, and if hard work will consummate their desires, the Directors will leave no stone unturned towards making the meeting a grand success.

A great deal of talk has been indulged in by the newspapers in regard to a match race between Sunol and Belle Hamlin, many of the writers seeming to fancy that the match is as good as made. But they do not know Mr. Hamlin if they think that he will accede to the terms of Hickok. Why, bless my soul, the Californian is known as the Tallyrand of the Turf, and the Buffalo gentleman has a mare that likes one mile better than two and cannot go three, so a man up a tree can see what the result will be, especially as Hickok wants the gate receipts to go to the winner. Mr. Hamlin in all probability will come back with a counter challenge, saying that the match must be two in three, and that the gate receipts must go to the Association over whose track the race takes place and then will refuse to have it at any other place than at Buffalo as he is the principal owner. The "gate" from such a match would be enormous, and if Belle Hamlin lost the investment would be a good one to her owner in a financial sense, if it takes place over his track, and put a pin in just here, it will not take place over any other. Hamlin's game is free advertising, and I will not charge him anything for this.

It is always a pleasure to meet Frank Baldwin, the Secretary of the Fresno Association. Of the indefatigable kind, he is constantly striving to increase the interests of the trotting horse, and towards that end works with a will that is worthy of emulation by many of the Secretaries. In conversation a few days ago, Frank informed me that there is every prospect that a strong circuit will be formed commencing with Fresno and continuing to Los Angeles, San Bernardine, Santa Ana and San Diego. Mr. Baldwin managed the 4th of July races at Coronado Beach and notwithstanding the many counter attractions there were over 3,000 persons who paid admission at the gate, showing the strong interest taken in horse racing in the southern section of the State. Mr. Baldwin thinks it would be a good idea for the Los Angeles Association to try and have the Breeders' meeting of this year held at Los Angeles and to that end has interviewed many of the Directors, so it is extremely probable that the Association in the Angel City will make a bid for the meeting of 1890 to be held down there. Mr. Baldwin is at present on his way East where he will take in the meetings at Detroit and Buffalo, returning in time to meet the horsemen of California at the San Jose meeting.

Speaking of the Jack and Palo Alto match the Terre Haute Express says: There are several reasons why Jack has the worst of the match from an outside point of view. We can recall no horse that is as hard to condition and keep to speed as he is. It is only by his consumate skill that Doble is enabled to keep him balanced and gaited. He requires nursing every two weeks and is never shod twice alike. He is gross and should have plenty of work. His feet being bad nothing can be done in the way of reading him and much track work gets him sour. He has so far this year not moved as it would be liked, and it is doubtful if he will be a race horse until late in the fall. On the other hand, Palo Alto to start with has 2¾ seconds the best record; is just right and ready for the effort of his life. His ailing leg has so far not troubled him in the least, and while some good judges think it will not last out a hard campaign it has not stood in the way of his keying up. If when they come together Jack is the Jack of last fall at Lexington and can brush and bulldog the stallion, it will be an even thing, but if he is the least bit under his Lexington form the Californian will never be headed. However the result, it will be a race for all there is in it; integrity is the load star by which Doble has always steered his course. No fixing in his.

Peculiarities of Drivers.

James Goldsmith's success in the snlky this year and last, and the skill he displays in balancing and conditioning his horses, as well as driving desperate finishes, recalls many of the characteristics of prominent reinsmen when up in a race. When Goldsmith sets himself for a desperate finish the erect figure seen in the hotel corridors dnring race week is bent forward, while the head wearing the cherry and black cap is almost in a line with the horse's withers. With a steady hand, light yet firm, or, as an English writer puts it, "a hand of steel with a lady's touch," a cool head and an inexhaustable supply of patience, James Goldsmith is doubly fortified at almost any stage of the game. His success with Company at Poughkeepsie is one of the many instances where patience, a light hand and a strong arm pulled off a race, but the defeat at Hartford later on, when in the seventh heat he began acting as badly as Guy ever did, and after an hour's scoring Captain beat him as he pleased, showed Goldsmith's qualities to even greater advantage.

John Turner can be quoted almost as an anthesis to the present owner of Walnut Grove where Volunteer, Domestic and Libby S. are buried. Like Goldsmith, however, he holds his own council when necessary, never loses his head and can map out a campaign with any man in the business. Having risen from the ranks Turner is a master of every detail in his stable, and favors kindness to punishment and absolute cruelty.

When asked a few years ago why he did not hit Edwin Thorne a cut with the whip at the finish of the first heat in the special at Buffalo nine years ago, and which Clingstone won by a head in 2:14½, he said he was not ready to defeat the Rysdyk gelding and that Thorne was doing his utmost and he would not discourage him with a stoke of the whip. Turner never carries a heavy whip when driving a race, a scraper being seen in his hand as often as a light whalebone that would not at the best sting a horse, although it would remind him that a little more speed was wanted. He teaches them to do their best at a word of command or a light tap, and will not keep a horse in his string that will not perform under such treatment. It frequently takes some time, but when a first class article is found no one can wait longer for it to materialize than the Ambler Park sage. In all probability Spofford is one of the best illustrations of the fact. Turner got him after he had trotted a few races and kept him on the move for a couple of seasons before he found that he had the black gelding at the desirable point for him to land the coveted prize of the season. Prior to this time, however, the Kentucky Prince gelding had always paid expenses and no one interested in him spent much time on the anxious seat. When Turner found he had him coming to an edge, however, he dropped into the sick list, and Dohle was asked to drive the horse a race or two. At Rochester Spofford stepped a quarter close to 32 seconds and the nncovering process almost frightened the General to death. As the Charter Oak Stake was the desired goal Spofford was shipped to Hartford, where he was carefully worked, guarded night and day against intruders that might have an object in getting at him, and stripped on the day of the race in condition to trot for his life. That day was a memorable one in Turner's history. Never was the green cap and jacket donned with as much determination and never, since the days May Queen and Nettie were in their glory did the man that developed Edwin Thorne, Daisy Dale and Hannis appear to such advantage, as each heat of Spofford's Charter Oak Stake was won in the stretch.

Dohle is a man that makes very little display in the sulky, as on wheels he is as unassuming as on the ground, but always fortified with that experience which comes with repeated successes and is based on actual merit. Practically beginning with Dexter and following up his triumphs with Goldsmith Maid and now opening 1890 with Jack and Axtell in his training school. Doble stands as the actual helm of trotting affairs. The check cap and jacket has been seen behind many another good one besides the remarkable horses mentioned, and many a resident of large cities as well as the agricultural visitor, has asked; "Which is Doble in that race?" and when told, replies with an incredulous look. "Man alive! He is older than that! What! that Budd Dohle? That is a little too new! Why, I can remember hearing of him as a boy thirty years ago. Of course it is a true state of affairs, but the average follower of the trotters does not know that Dohle began at the top when still a boy and has remained there for almost a quarter of a century.

Last year Dohle carried a light whip of the regulation length with a bone handle bearing his name, and he can use it as freely as any man in the business when he has a tired horse that shows a disposition to come back to him or play the rogue. As he passes the seventh furlong mark and makes his play for the heat, if it is left to that point, he can be seen bending not so far forward as Goldsmith, but far from being as erect as Turner, lifting his horse along and by some unknown power that is defined as personal magnetism, getting as much or more speed than any one else can. Like Goldsmith, Doble is a remarkable conditioner, and seldom gives a horse a hard race before he is keyed up to it. He is also like his contemporary, as apt to win his first race of the season as any other, while Turner and a few of the old guard, prefer to let the youngsters move out until they find what they will have to contend with later on. Just before Doble makes his hardest drive for a heat, he stoops forward a little further than the angle he drives at, takes a firm hold on his horse, looks to the right then to the left, tilts back again and sets sail. The motions do not occupy the time the horse is making two strides, and when he settles down for business something must come. Unlike Crit Davis, Doble seldom takes the outside of the track in the stretch bnt he can frequently be found there when the fields are large or when he has a faint-hearted horse. With a game horse in front of him, Doble will, as a rule, take as many chances as anyone, hut he can be depended on to never make the wild cat drives that years ago made "Red Bill" McLaughlin famous, and which terrified the less resolute knights of the sulky.

While a parallel could he drawn between the Goldsmith and Dohle's styles of reinsmanship, Snlan presents a study that is peculiarly his own. When compared with Turner's it is like the mountain torrent in comparison with the placid but irresistible river in the valley. Both have their powers and uses. The one to arouse latent powers, give courage to the faint-hearted, and the other hears good matter to the desired haven. With a yell that would grace the lips of a Sioux on the war path Splah takes hoid of his horse to rally him. From that moment, and until the wire is reached or heat won, he is a regular "Snapper" Garrison in the sulky. Every device known to man to arouse a horse and send him ahead comes into play instinctively, and man, horse and snlky appear to unite in one mass the only object of which is to get to the judges first.

One of T. J. Dunbar's strong points is the skill he displays in handling a tired horse. While a good conditioner and a capital race driver, he has of late years been handicapped through being called on to handle colts and stallions in service. It was with one of the latter he gave a remarkable exhibition over the half mile track at Summerville, N. J., two years ago. He had Rumor, 2:20, in a race, and as the horse had only been out of the stud a few days he was not in shape to go more than a couple of miles. He was in against an old track warrior, and after Rumor had won a heat "Curly" Sampson's horse came to him. In what proved to be the deciding heat, Dunbar started out to worry the enemy. Shooting away at the word, Rumor led for the first three-quarters, hut at that point the lack of condition began to tell. As Rumor was a handy horse, he kept hopping up and down, lapped on the ontside of the winner until the wire was reached. At Philadelphia a few years ago Dunbar also pulled off a race with Patti long after the Fashion Farm pennant had been pulled down from the mast head. When he has time, Dunbar, like Horace Brown wins his races in the stable through seeing that every little detail is attended to and that a horse's wants are anticipated. In this way the let up and retired list is reduced to a margin, and the loss account through break downs made a very small item.

Speaking of Horace Brown recalls the fact that he is one of the few drivers that have been successful with dainty feeders. For a horse to trot fast and repeat he must be able to eat at all times and never refuse a feed. The trouble with those delicate pupils usually comes after a hard race or two. They do not eat well for a couple of days, and the necessary let-up sets them back for a time. Brown's skill was first displayed with Orient and Chestnut Hill, but his crowning success was with Captain Lewis, and later with Belle Hamlin. The latter trotted a race a week in her class for him from Cleveland to Utica, rattling off her miles in close order when everyone said that she could not step three heats in 2:20, and closed the year with a record of 2:13¾ after her name. Brown has at the present writing three select performers in Andante, Quartermaster and Albion. He sits down firmly in the sulky at an angle of forty-five degrees; always has his horse well in hand, and sees what his neighbors are doing. At no time a reckless driver, Horace, as the years pass by, has become cautious, and Turner-like, studies his horses so closely that he knows he can hold a position when taken. While he will never try to put a sulky through where a horse can find space enough to trot, he rushes in at the finish ready to lock wheels or roll over an axle if necessary to win a heat.

"Happy Jack" Phillips is a master-mechanic on wheels, and one that has a conscience easy enough to place a horse where he thinks proper at the finish. With an object ahead he will be as happy in fourth place as under the judges' eyes, providing that said judges are not in a communicative mood, and demand a little more fast work and less muscular gymnastics. The dreaded record bee still buzzes in Jack's head, and when he doubles up for a rally, there is more sawdust argument than pepper-sauce on the market. With a horse that he is not afraid of handicapping with a record, Phillips can give most any man in the business points and a beating, hut he will never rip a colt up the back even at the risk of being taken up and a driver not belonging to the royal order of "help me and I'll help you" being put up. With all his peculiarities and light-heartedness, Phillips is one of the most popular men in the business, and can be considered a wonder, as he has been on the turf fully twenty years, and never wrote or tried to write a book. Nor will it be necessary for him to do so, as the last manager of Suffolk Park has left a train of records behind him that will illumine his trail when he finally retires to mine host's chair at Pete Ravenhall's place on the Coney Island boulevard.

Speaking of books brings up the memory of a conversation with an expert reinsman who now has under advisement a chapter that would be interesting. The text reads: "Horses I Have Pulled and the Results." After pouring over it for weeks he found it too bulky for publication and the result so disastrous that should it be given to the public all the youngsters in the business would be abroad looking for a recipe to make their arms or reins elastic when the tempter creeps into their terrestrial Eden. Still there is not as much pulling done as many imagine, for to some every trotting race is a deception and a snare, born in deceit and developed under the cloud of duplicity. Such diseased minds, however, find a place in every community and through a standing on some particular subject get an opportunity of pouring their hobgoblin lava of corruption upon the public platter. The race field, however, should be like a court of justice, in which men are regarded innocent, although under restraint, until proven guilty. The temptations are numerous, but seldom forced on any one unless a hint is thrown out that business can be transacted. It was a rare thing for a man to approach the late John Murphy, as they knew his brand and what would be the result. Yes, Honest John, you were true to the core. Honor was the guiding star of your career. Never did deception's finger place a mark upon your brow, or dishonor come like Mother Carey's chickens home at nightfall to roost. The last mass has been said to your memory, but the rites of the church is not the last one over your name, as it will live and linger long in the hearts of all that knew you, respected you, and followed you through your career on the turf from a boy in "Old Peg's" stable to the most popular of metropolitan reinsman. At sunset, when your associates gather in the hotels during race week, they will tell how Murphy broke up a combination or was put up to check one. Of course, there were times when you did not succeed, the last possibly being at Poughkeepsie in 1888 when Thornless defeated White Stockings. The scheme was one of the boldest ever planned since the Edwin Forrest steal at Utica. Like it, it went through and with less kicking, but not until a few of the sharks that manipulated the deal had a few cold chills run up their back. When it was seen that Stewart was not in condition to drive the Kansas City horse Murphy turned White Stockings over to Stewart's men after the heat, asking them to cool him out. In the meantime the betting had chopped about at such a clip that the scheme was uncovered. The betting was simply ridiculous, as it was necessary to get the Thornless money out at any price. As a last resort some one reached Stewart's rubbers and had White Stockings hitched so close to the sulky that he would hit his hocks on the back stretch. Murphy jumped in, took the word on the up grade, which made the first quarter of the Hudson River Driving Park slow until it was cut down last year, and trotted away from Thornless. In the second quarter, where the track dropped considerably, White Stockings hit his hocks, broke and caught. Murphy took him back, but as he did the horse struck the sulky again, broke and lost the race, Thornless jogging home. The deal was successful but no one but the poolsellers made any money, as all of the heavy commission men shifted as soon as the judges saw what was going on.—American Sportsman.

A Match Race Between Two-Year Olds for $500.

A very interested and enthusiastic crowd witnessed the quarter mile dash between J. W. Cooper's bay colt Solano and H. Ferguson's grey filly Lathrop Bell this afternoon at the Agricultural race track. The match grew out of a rivalry between the Jockies of both two year olds Mr. Cooper, although the owner of the handsome bay colt Solano, knew nothing of the match until it had been made, and as he never wagers a cent on a horse race, the result of the match was of no pecuniary interest to him, but he takes much interest in his colt as he has him in training to compete for purses alone.

At 10 A. M. the colt and filly were given to the starter, R. J. Broughton, Sheriff of Santa Barbara. The judges were Mr. Lelavel, H. B. Braston and A. B. Williams. Solano had the pole. The grey filly was ridden by an eighteen year old boy Steve Rofferer, who promises to be a good Jockey and who will be in demand as he will always be able to ride light-weight. He has a good head on him and uses much judgment while riding his horse. Solano had on his back a young boy of fourteen summers. After the colts scored a couple of times, they came up the home stretch at a lively clip, both whipping their mounts even after they had crossed the wire. Solano led the grey filly by two lengths. As the flag was not lowered the judges took no time, but the quarter was run in 24 seconds. The riders were surprised when the judges commanded them to return to the starting point and get off as soon as possible. They believed that it had been a go. Again the horses face the starter and again the starter admonishes them that when he wants them to go that the flag will fall. The young boy on Solano completely lost his wits. Again the horses are turned for the wire and again the boys think it is a race and they go up the stretch whipping and spurring till within one hundred feet of the wire, when Solano's rider realizes that it is no "go." This was the second heat they had run and still no race had been decided. It was hard on Solano, for he has been at work only three weeks and had never been run over a single quarter. At 11:45 the word was actually given and the colts came at a lively pace.

Solano led and ran easily, but when he got within one hundred feet of the wire he stopped running, thinking he must stop there as he was pulled up the run before. His rider was so excited that he forgot his whip and spurs, and the grey filly, that was well ridden and under severe punishment found the colt, and she won with scarcely half a length in :24½. If we did not have such implicit confidence in Solano's rider we should surely suspect him of purposely letting up on his mount, hut we know him so well and feel that he was excited, and that he thought that it was a third false start $250 is a great sum of money to lose, and lose through a mistake made by the rider. Although Solano lost the race, our faith in his speed and running qualities have not diminished. In fact, he proved that although he had had no work, still he ran a three heat race, and could have won then if properly ridden. We are certain that this race will be a lesson to the amateur jockey, and that he will never again quit riding a horse until he gets him safely past the wire.

At least three hundred people gathered on the track to witness the race, although the match had been made hut the day before. Solano's admirers were, although beaten, satisfied with the colt, and that the colt could have won the race if he had been asked to by the little whip the rider carried, which we supposed was given to him to be used when he needed it. Solano's trainer was too certain of the race. He knew that his colt could run the quarter in 23½ seconds. The grey filly ran with no shoes, while Solano was run with his training shoes. There is an old Spanish proverb that Solano's trainer should consult when he makes another match race: "Mas amarado, mas seguro." The colts will meet again in the fall races, when they will be called upon to run half a mile, and if Solano is as good a colt then as he was to-day he will outrun the grey filly. The grey filly is a stable companion of George Sherman's Midnight, both of which are entered in the Los Angeles races. Midnight has shown great speed in his trials. He worked out a half a mile in :50½ and five-eighths in 1:04.

Lathrop Bell is by Bryant W. by Monday. She is a picture of a thoroughbred colt and she will make a race mare. She will run a mile or mile and a quarter and finish strong.

Commodore Nutwood was brought from Lompoc and placed under the able management of Mr. Henry Delaney. This promising son of the great Nutwood is expected to enter the 2:30 list this year. Rosewall, by A. W. Richmond is also in Mr. Delaney's string, and a bay gelding by Dexter, by Budd Dohle. George M. Patchen, Jr., Menchaca's thoroughbreds are doing well, also the yearling Harry Stamboul by Stamboul—Carrie B.

Colic in Horses.

Bulletin No. 2, Vol. 2, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station, is devoted exclusively to "Colic in Horses," by Dr. H. J. Detmers. In this bulletin it is claimed that nearly every aged horse has an aneurism, or pulsating tumor in an artery, that is produced by a small worm; that in a majority of cases the existence of such an aneurism must be considered, as a principal cause, if not the sole cause of colic. During the year every one of sixteen horses killed for anatomical purposes at the Veterinary College, including young horses, had such an aneurism. The doctor believed that colic in horses is often the subject of the grossest kind of quakery. Colics are divided into three classes: 1. True colics. 2. Spurious colics. 3. Symptomatic colics. The first may also be subdivided into colics produced by natural causes, and those not produced by natural causes, of which the former may be caused by over-feeding, the development of gases, or obstructions. So it may be seen that what is frequently called colic is not a definite disease, but may be produced by a variety of morbid processes due to various causes which may all have one thing in common, violent pains in the stomach or intestines. With this view of the case it is clear, that if possible, before applying remedies, the real cause of the trouble should become known, or else the efforts to relieve may become a cause of unnecessary pain and of great danger to the animal.

Princess Alice from whom so much was expected last year, owing to the good time she had shown on the Stockton track, is again hard at work and word is brought to me that during the early portion of the week she compassed two easy miles in 2:22 and repeated in 2:21, the middle half of the last mile being negotiated in 1:06. This daughter of Dexter Prince is undoubtedly far above the average and it is to be hoped that she will make an appearance this year ready to contest with the giants of the pacing brigade against whom she will have to go.

Simmocolon's Great Race.

A short psragraph appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last week, etating that a telegram had been received from Jae. Goldemith announcing that Simmocolon had won an eight heat race, his faetest time being 2:20¼. By mail we have received the particnlars, which show that Simmocolon and Royal were eqnal favorites in the pools, the balance of the field not being thought much of. In all there were thirteen starters, and only four heats were trotted the first day, a postponement being necesesry owing to darkness coming on. On the second day the pool selling ehowed that Camille was the decided favorite, but the hot work of the day before was too much for her and the balance of the fight lay between Royal and Simmocolon. Mr. Valensin's horse by this great performance has stamped himself as one of the very best in the country, for while he hae not a record as low as many others, etill he ehows himself to be a dead game horse snd fit to go in with the best of them.

Simmocolon hae many engagements throughont the East, and it is to be hoped that he will be as succeseful in the future as he has been in the past. The following is the summary of the race at Point Breeze Park:

Athletics—Continued.

Reel o'Tulloch, for lads and laseies in costnme—A prize was given to each lad and lassie in thie dance.

Sword dance for lade and lassies in costnme—Cash prize to each competitor.

Young ladies' race—First prize, handsome dreseing case; second prize, silk umbrella; third prize, beautiful fan. Lillie Caccia first; Amelia Stewart second, and Georgina Seymour third.

Married ladies' race—Firet prize, plaid shawl; second prize pair hand-made pillowshams; third prize, silver cake basket. Mrs. McGreavy first; Mrs. Winn second and Mrs. Wordsmith third.

Bagpipe competition—First prize, $10; second prize, $8; third prize, $6. R M. Monroe, firet, Donald Weir second, and I. R. S. Twendale third.

Grand bicycle race for amateurs, ten times round the track—First prize, gold medal, value $30; second prize, gold and silver medal, value $20. B. C. Leslie first, and E. Clark second.

Highland fling for men in costume—First prize, $7; second prize, $5; third prize, $3. R M. Monroe, first; Ed Ross second and G. W. Patterson third.

Running high leap—Entrance fee, 50 cents; first prize, $7; second prize, $4, third prize, $3. D. E. Fletcher, first; Charlee Reid second, J W. Geogan third.

Race for representatives of the press—First prize, case of wine; second prize, box of fine cigars. W. R. Daley of the Illnstrated World first; Will T. Dorrance, Examiner, second; Charles Ulrich, Chronicle, third.

Highland fling for lads and lassies in costume—Cash prize to each competitor.

Sword dance for men in costume—First prize, $7; second prize, $5; third prize, $3 R. M. Monroe first; Ed Ross second and J. F. McDonald third.

Long race for professionals—Ten times round track; entrance fee, $1; firet prize, $40; second prize, $25; third prize, $10. Thomae Kendall, first; J. C. Little second and Archie D. Leighton third.

Vaulting with the pole; entrance fee 50 cents—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. Charles Reid first; J. Sexsmith second, and D. E. Fletcher third.

Tossing the caber; for members only—First prize $8; second prize, $6; third prize, $4. A. Campbell, first, D. McLeod, second, D. S. McLeod third.

Sack race—First prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2. Ed Rae first, J W Guirley second, W Girliee third.

Sailors' Hornpipe—First prize, $7; second prize $5; third prize, $3. R M Monroe first, W D Ross second, George W Patterson third.

Obstruction race—First prize, $7; second prize, $5; third prize, $3. Thomas F Delehanty first, T Byrnes second, C Morrow third.

Hitch and Kick—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. D A Fletcher first, Charles Reid second. W Curley third.

Shean trews for children nnder 13 years—First prize medal donated by John F McDonald; second prize, cash; third prize, cash. Sibyl Campbell, first, Elaine Talfor second, Jeanie Wilson third.

Short race for men, once round track—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. J P Haugnn first, Ed Rae second, Thomas Kendall third.

Race for membere only, once round track—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. Archie D Leighton first, Ed Ross second, John Grant third.

Reel o'Tulloch for men in Highland costume—First prize, $7; second prize, $5; third prize, $3. R M Monroe first, D M McKenzie second, George W Patterson third.

Throwing light hammers, members only—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. D S McLeod first, J F Urquart second, J Carmichael third.

Putting light stone, members only—First prize, $7; second prize, $4; third prize, $3. A Coutts first. D S McLeod second, D McLeod third.

Games' Committee race—First prize, pair pants, value $10; second prize, fine meerschaum pipe; third prize, Burns' Poems. A Campbell first, J Grant second, J C McEwen third.

George W Jordan started the amateur races.

OLYMPIAN GAMES.

Good Contests But a Poor Audience.

The field-day of the Olympic Club which was held at the new grounds on the Fourth of July succeeded athletically speaking, but finsncially it was a failnre. There were too many cheap counter attractions, and the club would have done better had it postponed the meeting until the following day. Scarcely a quarter of a hundred people paid admiesion at the gate, and the clnb will be out of pocket by the venture. The day was find, but the nsual gall blew over the grounds and rendered good time impossible. P. D. Skillman of the New York Athletic Club started from scratch in the 2-mile run, but as he was tired and worn out from his recent journey across the continent, he was unable to run up to his regular trained form. He made a very creditable ehowing however. Casady of the O C did great work and showed that he means to do eome record breaking before long. Schifferstein was not feeling in the best of condition and did not compete. Jarvis did not start in the walk in order to give the club novices a ehow to win a medal. Harry C. Casidy of the Alpine Club ran the two milee in splendid form, and he will be heard from next year at the championehip games.

We would remind the Secretary of the Olympic Club that he forgot to eend us the usual "complimenary," and we hope that he will not let us slip from his memory in future, Peter McIntyre worked hard on the track for several days previous to the Fourth of July, snd it was in nice condition, even better than it was when the championship games were decided. The handicapping wae very well done, the manegement excellent, and the games started promptly on time. Appended are the reeults:

The introdnctory event wss the 440 yards run for the Hammersmith medal. C V Cassdy, A S Hendereon snd S V Winslow started. Henderson cut out the running and led for 300 yarde, when Casady, who wss making a waiting race of it, rushed to the front and won cleverly in 0:51 4-5, which is a second faster than the time of any previous winner of the medal, and a very creditable performance for any amateur. Winslow took second place, Henderson having epun himself out in the effort to beat Casady.

The first heat of the 100 yards open handicap run wae won by C A Jellinck in 10 1-5secs, P M Ward, second. The second heat wae won by J Kortick in 10 1-5secs, N L Williams second. F G O'Kane who had only six yards start, was third. In the finsl hest the startere were Jellinck, 7 yards handicap; Kortick, 7 yards; Ward, 9 yards; Williams, 9½yds. Jellinck won a good race by a foot, Ward second. Time, 9 4-5secs.

For the 1000 yards handicap run the entries were A S Henderson, scratch; M L Espinoes, 30yde; W H Toomey, 55 yds; V G Linquiet, 55yds. Espinosa made the pace till the second laet lap, when Henderson came up with a rush, evidently thinking it was the last. The effort exhaueted him, and Espinosa again went to the front and won handily in 2 min 30secs., Toomey a good second.

F F Foster won the 220 yards open scratch hurdle race very neatly from S V Casady, who made the pace. Foster took the sticks in fine style, and, collaring the leader at 220 yarde, won by a yard in 29 4-5secs. S V Winelow was the third competitor.

N L Williams, 3½ feet handicap, won the running broad handicap jnmp with 22ft 1in. F F Foster, 3 feet handicap, was second with 20ft 9in.

The 100-yard partnership race, in which the partners carry each other, was won by Ward and Kortick from Casady and Henderson.

Much intereet was taken in the two-mile open handicap, as P. D. Skillman, the New York Athletic Club crack long distance man was entered. The Olympic Clnb entries were H. M. Collins who had 205 yarde, and A. Cook who had 230 yards. The Alpine Club was represented by H. C. Cassidy who had 155 yarde. At the mile Cassidy passed Colline and Cook and won easily by 90 yarde in 10 min. 10 eec. Skillman'e time wss half mile 2 min. 28 sec., three-quarters, 3 min. 46 sec, mile 5 min. 6 sec., mile snd a half 7 min. 45 eec., two milee 10 min. 19½ sec. He ran in good style and finished at a epurt, but Cassidy was too fresh to have been given such a handicap, and in the first mile Skillman did not gain ten yards.

S. V. Casady won the 300 yarde handicap run by a yard from Jellineak, who led to the last ten yards. Time, 33 4 5 seconds. Ward also etarted.

In the one mile handicap walk W. H. Toomy, with 250 yarde start, stopped at the half mile after C. F. Landner, the other competitor, had passed him.

The meeting ended with an attempt by H. M. Johnson, the well known professional, to beat the record for 100 yards. The wind blowing a gale down the track eeemed to assure a wonderful performance, but two watches recorded 10 1 5 eeconde, while a third showed 9 4-5 seconds. Johneon complained that the start was bad snd he was not in the best condition, having only just arrived from Carson, where he had beaten Gibson in a 125 yard race.

The officers of the day were: E. A. Rix, Referee; W. Greer Harrison, John Elliott, T. H. Reynolde, J H. Gilhuly, Judges; J. A. Hammersmith, Walter A. Scott, Peter McIntyre, Timers; J. J. Theobald, Judge of Walking; George W. Jordan, Starter; John Purcell, W. T. Haberly, Fred W. Lees, Clerks of the Coures; Eugene Van Court, Scorer; J. F. McDonald, Official Announcer; P. P. Bernhardt, Marshal.

O'Connor's Rowing Discussed.

In the Sydney Mail "Trident" criticises William O'Connor's style of rowing as follows: "From the very great interest already taken in O'Connor and Stansbnry, it is very probable that the public will be deeply interested long before the day has arrived for the race. It is a very general topic of conversation now, and promises to occupy a vast amount of attention later on. A great number of persons have made tripe np the river on the Gosford to view the men at work, and laet Sunday there were several well filled steamere on the river. All eyes are turned toward O'Connor first, for every one is anxione to see the man at work who has been plucky enongh to come here for the championship. He ie very much over weight, and looks bulky bnt healthy, His arms and lege are large, but it is too eoon to eay what kind of muscles he has, for at present they are soft and fleshy. The Canadian has been rowing a elow, easy stroke, and has not made any attempt at pace. He reachee out freely, and drops the sculls into the water very cleanly. Not much power has been put into the work when I have seen him, and the scull leaves the water without disturbing it. The back work is nice and does not show the fault we were led to look fo.. Taken as a whole, the rowing is excellent form, and the Hanlan jerk is not noticed O'Connor is no 'slouch' for style, and we may soon have an opportunity of eeeing how he can apply his weight. I think he will be a very fast man, for he can row well, and has a splendid appearance for a rower when in action. O'Connor seems to know just what he requiree in boats, fittinge and training. Stansbury ie still showing fleeh, but is far more advanced in his training than the Canadian. He hae splendid limbs, and sits well up in his boat, and hie action is very good. Spurting he shines in, and his form is of the best. He gets a splendid hold of the water, and, swinging in the whole of his weight, his sculls do wonderful work. For grace and power we have a real good man, and that he can etay we know ie certain. When Jim Stanebury is fit and well he will be good enough to repreeent Australia. In a emart spin with an eight on Sunday he showed up well and was fully extended. He stood the strain well, but was short of wind at the finish, and so was the eight, which was a fast crew, and in a racing boat."

Standard and High-Bred TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in eize and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California, and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations to stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890.

Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start, the day before the race at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close September 1st with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all races for purses.

National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Entrance fee 10 per cent. on purse to accompany nomination.

National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

In all races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at 1 P. M.

All entries must be directed to the Secretary.

S. L. LEE, President.

J. D. TORREYSON, Secretary,
Carson, Nev.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure. This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

TROTTING AND PACING.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, except the two-year old, unless otherwise specified; five to enter, and three to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the deduction of the entrance money from the purse for each horse less than five. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination. Trotting and pacing purses divided at the rate of 50 per cent. to first horse, 25 per cent to second, 15 per cent. to third, and 10 per cent. to fourth.

In the two, three and four-year old sweepstakes, unless otherwise provided, moneys are divided as follows: To winning colt, all the stakes and 50 per cent. of the added money; second colt, 33⅓ per cent.; third colt, 16⅔ per cent. of added money. In all stakes payments not made as they become due forfeits all money paid in, and declares entry out.

The National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk-over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In trotting and pacing races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. day before must start.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps and jackets of distinct colors, WHICH MUST BE NAMED IN THEIR ENTRIES.

RUNNING.

The State Agricultural Society's rules of 1889 to govern running races, except when conditions named are otherwise.

Please observe that in the foregoing stakes declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void, unless accompanied by the money.

Starters in stake races must be named on or before 6 P. M. of day before race. All entries in purse races not declared out by 6 P. M. day before must start.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

Final settlement of all purses and stakes won will be made on Saturday morning, September 20th, at the office of the Secretary.

Entry blanks and racing rules will be furnished upon application to the Secretary. Entries in all races, except otherwise stated, to close with the Secretary on Friday, August 1, 1890.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, Aug. 20 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

In all races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

If, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse; and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted.

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp

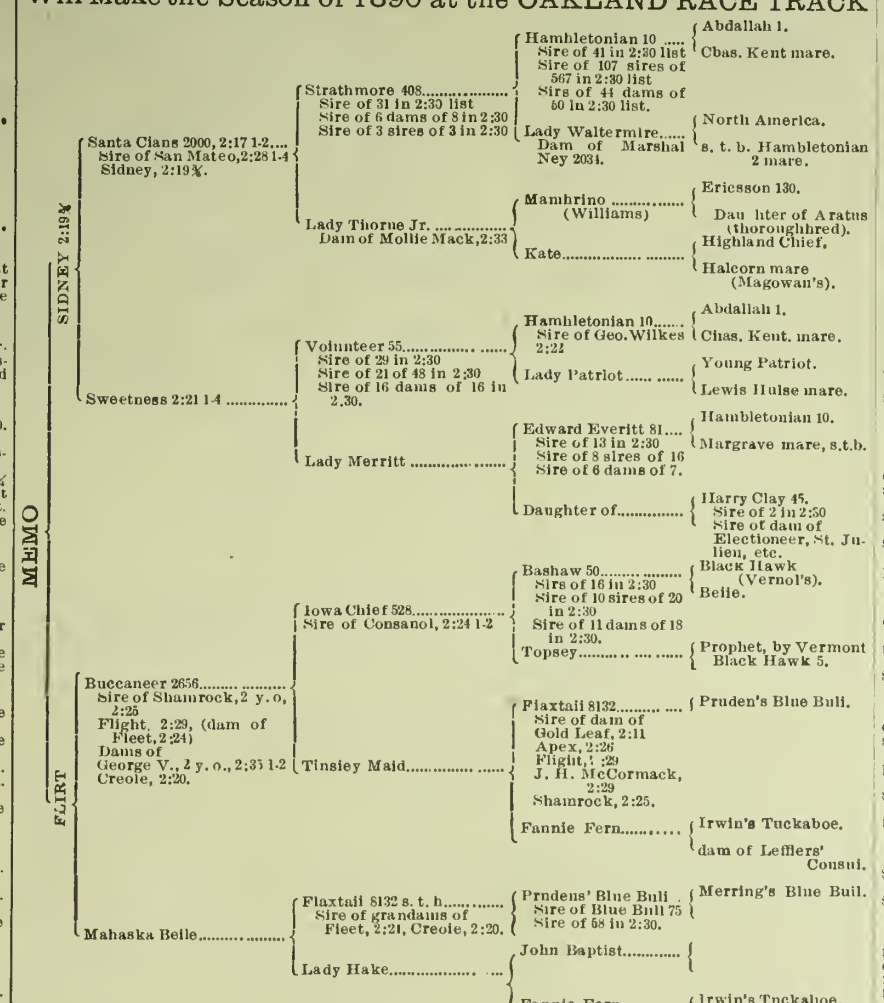
Memo.

The Best Son of SIDNEY

Will Make the Season of 1890 at the OAKLAND RACE TRACK



MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second beat of which was made in 2:31 1-2, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore fetlock, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

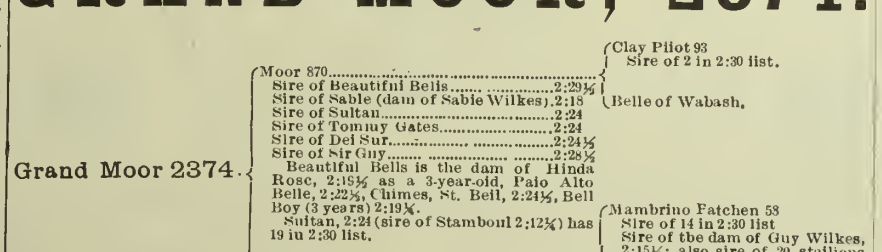
As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, great hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address

J. P. KERR, 313 Bush Street, San Francisco,

or, JOHN ROWEN, Race Track, Oakland, Cal.

GRAND MOOR, 2374.



Foaled 1876. Black. Sixteen hands high. Bred by L. J. Rose

A horse of highest form and quality; of great excellence in every point; a type of his celebrated family; of marked individuality, spirit and endurance; never properly trained or raced, but shows the possession of great speed; perfectly manageable in the stable and on the road and track.

As he is sired by The Moor 870, a son of CLAY PILOT, out of Vashti by MAMBRINO PATCHEN, he is a most valuable cross for mares of other families. THE MOOR sired Beautiful Bells and the dams of Sable Wilkes and Margaret 2:28 (dam of Regal Wilkes, 2-year-old record 2:20¾).

MAMBRINO PATCHEN is regarded as the unsurpassed sire of broodmares, having, among many others, sired the dam of Guy Wilkes and of Wm. L (the sire of Axtell), and a son of his sired the dam of Axtell. The public sales this year have demonstrated with renewed emphasis the value of The Moor and Mambrino Patchen strains of blood. For combining particularly with the Hambletonians it may be called "the ready money cross."

GRAND MOOR will make the season of 1890 for a time at the Oakland Race Track and afterwards at my Ranch, fifteen miles from Oakland. Mares can be delivered at the race track to the groom in charge. Pasture at $5 per month. For other food, if requested, an additional charge will be made.

TERMS, $150 for the season, with privileges of return if the horse does not change hands.

Every care exercised, but no liability for escapes or accidents.

JUANITO ALMONT is a bright bay, 16-1 hands in height, and weighs 1,200 pounds.

PEDIGREE.

By Tilton Almont, 2:26, he by the great Almont 33; dam by Signal 3327; he by Bunday's Rob Roy.

JUANITO ALMONT, if given a chance would undoubtedly prove a great sire, and should prove a desirable acquisition to any stock farm in the State.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start this day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o'clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,

C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

A Dry, Warm Place to Sleep,

No matter how stormy the weather. All Stock under cover when it rains.

VISITORS WELCOME ANY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come. On horses that stay three months or over there is no charge for getting or delivering. Where a horse stays a short time the actual time and expense only is charged to him.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The Californian Indian has not the same opportunities to ride or need of ponies as his wilder brother east of the Rockies and in Arizona, but still he has the same fondness for a horse, and takes as naturally to riding as a duck does to swimming.

In 1875 there used to be quite a number of Indians around Yosemite Valley, and not a few of them had good ponies, which they were willing to race, and race for money too. There was one young buck called Joe, who owned a little black pony that nearly broke the white sports around Yosemite and won for its owner all the ready cash that the rest of the Indians had. This was sometimes quite a large sum as the noble red man at that time made quite a good thing in the valley and outside. In the valley they fished and did "chores," etc., selling the trout for good prices to tourists who were not skillful enough to catch them themselves. Outside they used to herd cattle and sheep and also to shear for the large sheep pastures on the plains below.

Joe's pony Bob was a wonderful little animal. It stood only about fourteen hands, but was as long as a ship and would go a quarter at a pace that was astonishing.

Now there happened to be in Yosemite Valley at the time I am writing about a certain Bill Howard who had a lot of milk cows and horses and who leased Laman's house, orchard and the Mirror Lake house. Howard was a good deal of a sport, and as he had a number of horses in the valley with him that could sprint a bit, he was soon accommodated with a race against some of the Indian ponies. He cleaned out most of them when Joe, happening to hear there was sport going on, left a job at shearing near Merced, and came into the valley with his famous pony Bob, and a hundred dollars or so to back him with. Howard of course had heard of this famous black pony, but when he had seen him, was so deceived by his generally mean appearance, that he at once made a match for $25 a side with a little mare of his called Kitty. The match was to be at a quarter of a mile, catch weights, and Howard put up his son Willie, aged then about thirteen, who could ride as well or better than most men, and did not weigh more than eighty pounds, being a thin long-legged lad. Howard had made a track, such as it was, nearly opposite to where he lived, and it was mutually agreed that the race should be run there on the following Sunday.

When the day arrived there was a grand muster of Indians from miles around, and all the white sports in the valley, besides rancheros from the plains. The Indians to a man put their money up on Bob, and not a few whites followed their examples. When the ponies went to the post, the betting was about even, with perhaps a shade of odds in favor of Howard's mare. Joe had his little brother, a lad of ten or so, to ride for him, and both he and young Howard rode bareback, except that Howard had a sircingle on under which he tucked his knees. Three judges were chosen and a starter, and after three break-aways, the ponies got off to an even start.

At three hundred yards Howard's mare led by more than two lengths, when the little black demon on Bob gave the pony a cut with his rawhide, and in a stride or two was neck and neck with Kitty, with Howard flogging away for dear life. But it was no good, for the little long, low, black nag slowly but surely gained on him, and at the finish won by a good length. The Indians were wild with joy, and Howard looked terribly crest-fallen as he paid his bets and led away his beaten animal.

There is a stringent law against selling whisky to Indians in this valley, but to judge from the wild yells of the Indians that night, and their sorry appearance next day, it was probably evaded.

Now Bill Howard was not a man to sit quietly down after defeat and accept the inevitable. He got chaffed unmercifully, and determined to get even with the redskins. He had owned a thoroughbred stud called Black Prince, and had some of his progeny out at grass on the plains. Among these was a little chestnut filly out of a blooded mare. It was only three years old, but was a model of a small race horse. It did not take him long to get the mare up in the valley, and he soon had her gentle to ride, and taught to run like a flash, and start in a decimal of a second. In two months he had her in fair trim, and gave her a private trial with the mare Kitty that had been beaten by Bob. The chestnut, which he called Bell, beat Kitty by six lengths, and had twenty more pounds up. The trial was run just at daylight, and was only witnessed by three people, Howard, his son, and the rider of Bell, a lad who worked for Howard, and who was in too much dread of his master to be liable to divulge the secret.

As soon as Howard got the line from Kitty he sent a trusted friend to get on a match with Bob, and so well did the go-between work matters, that a race was arranged for $50 a side under similar conditions as the former. Again the Indians from far and near flocked into the valley to back their champion pony, and this time the whites, too, piled their money on Bob, who was considered invincible. Howard had men out a week before the race, taking all the bets they would put against Bell, and must have had at least $300 besides the stake money on the race. Two days before the match was to come off, Howard was horrified to find Bell cast in her stall when he went to look at her in the morning. He got her up and found that she had strained a muscle in one of her hind legs. Here was a pretty go. The forfeit was $25, and all the bets were "play a pay." A consultation was held and it was decided to take the mare out for a canter to see if the stiffness would not wear off. The idea was a good one, for after warming up a bit all traces of lameness were gone. The report, however, got out that Howard's mare was dead lame, and odds of two to one were freely offered against her, and (apparently) reluctanly taken by Howard's commissioners, who got on at least $200 at that remunerative price. There must have been at least two hundred people at the race on the Sunday of the match, and a curious crowd it was.

The Indians were out in great force with their squaws and papooses. The guides were there to a man, and the "bay seed brigade" from the ranches on the plains was well represented. The British tourist with his check suit, field glass and umbrella was there, and low be it spoken, two Boston school teachers in bloomer costume happened that way—quite an accident, and attracted by the queer gathering, stayed to see the fun.

When Bell appeared she had bandages on her near hind leg, and the knowing ones shook their heads and said, "I told you so. Howard's mare is dead lame, and its a gift for the black pony." Bob looked fit as a fiddle, and had evidently been well taken care of since his last race. His coat shone like satin, and his eye had more fire in it than is usually seen in that of an Indian's horse.

Young Howard gave Bell a gallop down the track and then removed the bandage. She moved with that easy grace and "poetry of motion" peculiar to the thoroughbred, and those who knew a race horse from a mule tried in vain to hedge their money. It was Lombard street to a Chinese orange on the chestnut.

At the first attempt the horses got off and like an arrow Bell shot to the front. In vain did the little Indian lash the sides of his pony with his stinging rawhide. In vain did the little sinner yell at the top of his voice. Bell took the bit between her teeth and young Howard had to sit still and keep her on the track as well as he could. She passed the winning post ten lengths ahead of Bob and went half a mile before she could be pulled up.

Howard smiled grimly as he whispered to his son on his return, "Why in thunder didn't you make it a closer finish. The game is all up now."

But when Willie told him what had happened he contented himself with his winnings which must have footed up some $500.

There was no hilarity in the Indian ranchero that night, and poor Joe had to sell his pony to pay his debts.

The British tourist was heard to observe at the hotel that night that "What's his name's mare was a blarsted good bit of horseflesh. Looked quite like a race horse, by Jove!"

As Howard observed, the "game was up" and no more matches could be got on with the Indians. They had been hit so hard that dollars were very scarce articles with all of them for months to come and what few whites there were around the valley who also owned horses that they thought would run a bit, were very shy about tackling Bill Howard.

Bell, unfortunately got pneumonia a few months afterwards and died, or she might have won a decent race had she had half a show.

W. L. EYRE.

July, 1890.

Death of Old Shiloh.

Mr. F. D. Waite of the San Diegan has kindly sent us an advance proof of an article on Shiloh which is as follows:

Grand old Shiloh is no more. He lived out a life of usefulness and quietly and painlessly passed into the race horse eternity. The horse was taken down with infirm old age on Saturday last, and lying down in his stall at James Madison's ranch near Julian, prepared to meet the inevitable.

Mr. Madison and James Duffy came to the city yesterday afternoon and in conversation, the farmer said: "Yes, the old fellow is gone and I feel that I have lost one of my best friends. He was as gentle and loving as a woman, and knew me as well as a dog knows his master. He died at 6 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, but I was not present at the time of his demise. I could not see him die and so I went to the house and staid there until it was all over. I told one of my men to see that he was given a decent burial on the ranch, and then I left the ranch and went over to Jim Duffy's. Sunday we drove into San Diego."

The writer spent several days on Mr. Madison's ranch a month or so ago, and he watched with interest the care and kindness the old horse received,

The stall in which he lived was better than some good men sleep in. He was too old to eat hay or hard grain, and Mr. Madison provided him with the culinary horse luxuries of all seasons. The horse was as near human in intelligence as it is possible for the lower animals to approach. He knew Mr. Madisen, not only in physical presence but by the sound of his voice. For instance, in order to prove that Shiloh knew him and loved him, Mr. Madison would go to the stable door when it was locked and from the outside say "Well, how is the old boy now?" The horse would whinny in a subdued and affectionate manner, and as often as his master and friend would speak the same evidence of recognition would follow. The very moment that Madison opened the door you would discover the handsome head of Shiloh protruding through the opening in the stall; his eyes snapping in eager expectancy and whinnying continuously. As the owner neared the stall the old fellow would arch his neck and begin to prance and create a terrible noise, but as soon as the man entered he was as docile as a lamb. As Madison says, "He lived better than I did and had better care."

Shiloh was in his twenty-ninth year, and old age was the cause of his death. For several years he has been unable to masticate coarse feed and has been kept up on bran mashes and cooked feed, but his owner has never neglected him, and as a result the horse's vitality and potency was maintained to the last. In fact he continued in stud service until the day before his death.

Shiloh was not a large horse, and at his best was rather below 16 hands. He was long bodied and closely ribbed, and was marked by two peculiarities, one in his extreme length from the apex of his foreshoulder blades to the poll, and the other the prominence of his forehead, a feature which he imparted to all of his colts. An observer also noticed that he was fully a hand higher over the shoulders than he was over the hips, a conformation that is unobjectionable in a runner, but which is unfortunately unfashionable in these days in a trotter. If present theory prevails therefore, it will be hard to convert Shiloh's progeny into trotters.

Shiloh was thoroughbred. He was sired by Cosmo, dam Fannie Harper, by Grey Eagle; second dam Julia Ann by Medoc, etc.

He was brought to this country by John Treat, subsequently became the property of Mrs. Treat, and from her passed to James Madison.

The major portion of his years were passed in the mountains, where he could be mated only with mares of native stock. From these mares, however, he invariably produced horses of great speed for a short distance. Tradition tells of Shiloh himself doing a four mile race in younger days with credit. Shiloh was the sire of Gladstone, who broke the world's half mile and repeat record by running in 48½ and 48½, of Adam, who won the first Southern California Derby, of Mikado, who is now successfully racing in the East, of Johnny Grey, and John Treat, and of a dozen others who have proved speedy. He was also the sire of a number of roadsters now in use about the city, including a team owned by Mr. Babcock, another by W. J. Hunsaker, another owned by Attorney Darby, and there are dozens of others about the city.

The stallion Reveille, formerly owned by Ben Hill, but now at B. C. Holly's ranch near Vallejo, is also a son of Shiloh and is getting speedy colts, showing that Shiloh has the capacity to breed on.

Salinas Notes.

Our correspondent at Salinas writes to say that the lessee of the track at that place, Mr. Jas. Dwain, has the course in first class condition, and many horses are now being exercised over it. Mr. Dwain also has a large number of horses under his own charge, of which probably the best one is Eugene by Electioneer, dam Lady Ellen, 2:29½. Eugene was lately purchased by a syndicate of gentlemen living in and about Salinas, who wished to get a first class horse to breed to the many really good mares that are in that locality. Eugene was bought at Palo Alto some months ago, and made his first season at Salinas this year. He is a handsome bay with one hind foot white; is three years old, and is commencing to show considerable speed. Mr. Dwain also has the following horses:

Abel Watson's Guy Davis, h s, 4 yrs., by Erwin Davis 5558, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31.

John Dougherty's b s, 3 yrs., by Junio 2:22, dam by Gilpatrick, a son of Bailey's Leviathan.

James Storn's Mariano, b s, 3 yrs., by Junio, dam by Speculation.

Wm. Vanderhurst's Salinas Maid, b f, 2 yrs., by Junio, dam Mamie by Carr's Mambrino 1789.

Paris Kilburn's Auntie Wilkes, br f, 2 yrs., by Guy Wilkes, dam by Speculation.

J. B. Iverson's Alex S, b g, 5 yrs., by Mambrino Jr., a son of Carr's Mambrino, dam Salinas Belle by Vermont 322.

Alfred G., h g, 3yrs., by Junio, dam by Oliver Cromwell, a son of Lodi.

Jas. Storn's br g, 3yrs., by Exile, a son of Echo, dam by —

M. J. Smeltzer's Billy Baxter, 2:40½, b g, 7 yrs., by Tom Vernon, dam not traced.

Pat McCartney's lot consists of:

Henry Wisecarver's St. Patrick 2:35½, b s, 5yrs, by Carr's Mambrino 1789, dam by Dan Vorhees.

George W. Graves' John L., hr s, 3yrs, by Junio, dam by Carr's Mambrino; 2d dam by Vermont 322.

Hebert's Spokane, b c, 2 yrs, by Junio, dam by Carr's Mambrino.

Orr's Mary O, sor m, 5yrs., by Brown Jug.

Gray mare, 3yrs., by Jim Mulvenna, belonging to a party at Hollister.

Cockrill & Co.'s Alta, blk s, 4yrs., by Altoona 8850, dam Clarisa by Gen. McClellan, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31.

Lem Ladd's Billy Matthews Jr., h s, 5yrs., by Billy Matthews, dam by Chieftain.

Eugene Breen's gr s, 4yrs., by Jim Mulvenna, dam by Carr's Mambrino.

Hebert's h c, 1yr., by Junio, dam Dolly by Mozart.

Hebert's h c, 1yr., by St. Patrick 2:35½, dam Laura H. by Altoona 8850.

Alex Sweeten has in charge Altoona 8850 by Almont 33. Altoona is the sire of Allo 2:22½, Alloretta 2:26¼ and Flora G. 2:29¼.

Mr. Sweeten is also handling Hiram Corey's h c, 1 yr., by Alban 2:24, a son of Gen. Benton 1755. This is the youngster that Mr. Corey recently purchased at the Palo Alto Stock Farm for $2,500. He is a pure gaited, level headed fellow, with good size, clean limbed, and of fine style and finish, and if handled for speed cannot fail, barring accidents, to make a trotter. Mr. Sweeten is very sweet on him.

W. H. Clark has in training

Gabilan, hr s. 3 yrs., by Ansel, a son of Electioneer, dam Gabilan Maid, a full sister to Lady Ellen 2:29½ by Carr's Mambrino 1789.

Unique, br f, 2 yrs., by Carr's Mambrino, dam Emma by Elmo 891, sire of Alfred S. and other fast ones.

Lucky Girl, h f, 1 yr., by Carr's Mambrino, dam Flossie by Carr's Mambrino.

B. V. Sargent's stable, which is in charge of Cabel Rodrignez, consists of but two horses, both pacers:

Keno, blk g, 4 yrs, by Jim Mulvenna 2:27¾, a son of the great Nutwood, dam Hattie S by Budd Doble, he by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31.

San Carlos, sor g, 3 yrs., by Brown Jug, a son of Nutwood, dam Hattie S, as above.

James H. Harris has in charge the following:

Maud H. 2:30, owned by himself, sor m, 7 yrs., by Carr's Mambrino 1789, dam by Dan Voorhees 2:23¾.

J. D. Carr's Prince, sor g by Reno, a son of Carr's Mambrino, dam by General Lee, a son of George M. Patchen Jr. 31.

Charley Allen's Pocahontas, b f, 2 yrs, by Erwin Davis 5558, dam Nellie by Anderson's Abdallah, a son of Alexander's Abdallab 15.

J. D. Carr's Thurman, br g, 3 yrs., by Mambrino Jr., he by Carr's Mambrino 1789, dam by Carr's Mambrino, second dam by The Moor.

W. A. Shepherd's Prince Albert, h s, 3 yrs., by Chieftain Jr., dam by Algona, a son of Almont 33.

Thos. Graves' Brown Tom, hr s by Junio 2:22, dam Kate by Vermont 322.

Charley Allen's Charley A., blk c, 1 yr., by Erwin Davis 5558, dam Kitty by De Groat's Starr's King, he by Oliver Cromwell, thoroughbred.

Last year a racing meeting was given at Redding under the auspices of the Agricultural Society, but this season it was deemed expedient to hold the Fair with no speed programme. As there are large numbers of gentlemen interested in horse breeding in and around that section, a meeting was called last week for the purpose of organizing a Jockey Club. There was quite a large attendance and after some preliminary talk it was finally decided to organize, and the following officers were elected: A. C. Brigman president, H. Clineschmidt, vice-president, H. R. Hodson secretary, Fred Grotefend treasurer; the executive committee being L. F. Basset, F. Burnell, W. Bughee, F. B. Simond and D. Chambers. Five days' racing was agreed upon; the meeting to open September 23rd, which is the same date on which the County Fair will open. We have no doubt but what the enterprise of these gentlemen will be amply rewarded, and those who delight in horse racing will see some good contests.

Foals at the Hobart Farm.

SAN MATEO, July 22nd, 1820.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Enclosed please find list of foals foaled on this farm this year, also those and their names intered in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake:

DE-ORO, bay colt, faint star, both hind ankles white, foaled February 14th by Stamboul (5101); 1st dam Bon Bon 2:26¼ by Simmons (2744); 2nd dam Bonny Wilkes 2:29 by Geo. Wilkes (516); 3d dam Billy Viley by Bob Johnson (a son of Boston); 4th dam May Viley by American Eclipse. Entered in BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake.

MY TRINKET, bay filly, small star, both hind pastures white, by Stamboul 5101; 1st dam Trinket, 2:14 by Princess 536; 2nd dam Onida by Hambletonian 10; 3d dam Morning Glory by imp. Consternation. Entered in BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake.

COMOR BELL, bay filly, foaled March 25, 1890 by Bell Boy 2:19½, 1st dam Four Corners, 2:20¼ by Mambrino Time; 2nd dam by Abdallah, Jr., son of Alexander Abdallab; 3d dam by Golddust 150, the sire of dam Rosaline Wilkes 214½.

Bay colt foaled July 21st, 1890, 1st dam by Mambrino Patchen; 2nd dam by Stralbmore the dam of Clemore 2122; 3d dam by Mambrino Chief.

A black filly by the great Noonday No. 10,000, 1st dam Belle H. 2:24½, the property of S. Reed, Portland Or.

A gray filly by Eros, 1st dam Oakland Maid 2:22, the property of Senator Fair, San Francisco.

BOSWELL, chestnut colt, foaled May 25. 1890, by Onward 225¾; by Geo. Wilkes; 1st dam Nancy Lee (the dam of Nancy Hanks 2:24½) by Dictator, second dam by Edwin Forrest 49, third dam Sophronia (dam of Mike Wilkes 2:26½.

MADRAS, bay colt, foaled April 8, '90, by Alcazar 2:20½; 1st dam Empress Eugenie, trotting record 2:28 and pacing record 2:19, by Alcantara 2:23½, second dam Lady Conklin, trial 2.24 by Strathmore (408).

KOPIITA, black filly, foaled March 26, 1890, by Simmons (2644) 2:28; first dam Jassamine 2:31, (the dam of N. Y. Central 2:29½ by Mambrino Boy 2:24½) the sire of the dam of Axtel 2:12, second dam the dam of Lida Bassett 2:20½ by Alcalda (103) by Mambrino Chief, third dam by Pilot Jr., sire of dam of Maud S 2:08¾.

BELAIR, dark bay colt, faint star off hind pastern white, foaled May 24, 1890, by Stamboul (5101) 2:12¼; first dam Alta Bell by Electioneer, second dam Beautiful Bells 2:29½ (the dam of Bell Boy) by The Moor, third dam Minnehaha (the dam of Alcazar 2:20¼), entered in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake.

ETTA, bay filly, star both hind ankels white, foaled June 18, 1890, by Stamboul 5101; first dam Kittie Wilkes (the dam of Roper 2:29) by Geo. Wilkes, second dam Snip Nose (the dam of Garnet 2:19) by American Clay, third dam by Dowing Boy Messenger; enter d in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake.

DE MARS, dark bay colt, foaled May 19, 1890, by Stamboul 2:12¼; first dam Asterione (sister to Iona 2:17½) by Alcyone 732; second dam Jessie Pepper (dam of three in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Chief.

In a foot-note to the above, Mr. Gamble, the superintendent of the farm says: I think that all the entries for the Futurity Stake should have marks, descriptions, time of foaling, etc., so that there will be no chance for fraud. He also says that he has every confidence that when this great stake is trotted for, that a Noonday colt will be found fighting with his month wide open, and it will take an Axtell or a Sunol to beat it.

The American Trotting Association.

July 15, 1890.

The following persons and horses, suspended for non-payment of entrance and other causes, have been reinstated, provision having been made for the claims, viz.:

John Kingston, Carthage, Mo., and ch g Monte K., suspended by order of the member at Webb City, Missouri.
The ch h Kentuckian, alias Captain Mack, expelled by order of the Board of Appeals, temporarily reinstated.
The b g Politics, suspended by order of the member at Columbus, Ind.

THE FARM.

Sugar from Beets.

Prof. D. N. Harper in Farm, Stock and Home, says: The recent importation and distribution of sugar-beet seed has caused much discussion of the possibilities of making beets a paying crop in Minnesota. Last year very favorable results were obtained at various places in other states, and with our soil, and long, sunny days, it is assumed we can make a success, too; but for Minnesota other considerations than mere beet growing must be met.

Beets, to be fit for sugar making must be (1) of rather small size, (2) of uniform size, (3) without branching roots, and (4) must contain a large amount of sugar. In the early days of the beet sugar industry beets matured with about 5 to 7 per cent of sugar; but now it is not uncommon for beets to develop over 20 per cent of sugar. The average in Europe in 1888 was about 12 5 per cent, and if less than 10 per cent they could not be profitably worked. The seed planted at the station this year was from stock that contained 14 per cent of sugar.

In Minnesota we may develop the proper amount of sugar yet fail to make a success of sugar making. Frosts come early, and prevent our making sugar economically from sorghum, and it is a question whether frosts will not also interfere with the beet sugar manufacturing. But beets develop below ground, and frosts that would kill cane may not injure beets. But weather quickly follows that will freeze them whether left in the ground or dug. This might indicate that we cannot make the industry successful, but it may really prove to our advantage. Sugar is not destroyed by the act of freezing, but by the subsequent fermentation which this induces. If the frosts we have do not destroy the sugar in beets it will remain uninjured during the winter, or so long as the beet remains frozen, and the problem becomes one for the sugar manufacturer and not the farmer to solve. Our experiments, then, are chiefly as to methods of caring for the beets after they are ripe. Various means will suggest themselves to every one, and I shall be glad to correspond with any one concerning this. When the beets are ripe and from time to time afterwards I shall analyze such samples as may be sent to me. A careful record should be kept by every one, (1) date planted, (2) date thinned out, (3) when ripe, (4) dates and severity of frosts, etc., (5) date of permanent freezing weather, (6) methods of caring for the beets. One season's careful work in all parts of the state will prove a great deal.

[The word "destroys" is popularly used in this connection, but its meaning needs to be explained. There are many kinds of sugar—some crystallize and some do not. The sugar in beets, sorghum and sugar cane is illiptical and this crystallizes well. If fermentation takes place the acid bodies change this sugar into two others which will not thus crystallize. In this way, although sugar remains, its property of crystallizing is destroyed.]

The "Jerseys" of Honduras.

Riding across the wide and grassy savannas, through the fertile valleys, or among the scattered pines of the breezy hills of Honduras, one passes through many a bunch of cattle descended from stock brought from Spain by the cruel conquistadors and their followers. On the arid plains of Texas and the sun-scorched and blizzard-swept barrens of the new West such cattle become long of leg and short in flank, thin in loin and thin in neck, heavy of shoulder and light of quarter, swift in running and slow to fatten, timid as deer, yet fierce as a tiger, the picture of all that beeves should not, and the antithesis of all that cattle should, be.

But the cattle of Honduras have for nearly 400 years cropped luxuriant foliage in pastures every league—nearly every square mile—of which has its streams of sweet water. On the northern slope, which comprises nearly four-fifths of the republic, the waters come from quartz or from basaltic or lava hills, and are clear as the air, sweet and pure. On the Pacific side and high up the mountains of the Atlantic slope the waters are often milky, as they flow over the soft and chalk-like talpatati; but this bluish-white water is very good indeed to drink, if one may judge by the healthfulness of those who have used it these many years.

Never driven by hunger, thirst or storm from their favorite feeding grounds, the cattle of the pleasant little republic have at least not deteriorated, but are fair in size and quality, and almost always moderately fat. Yet the course of the Hondurano in the management of his cattle has not usually been that followed by eminent breeders in other lands. Indeed the power of hereditary influence seems to have been unknown or ignored in Honduras. The custom seems to have been to select for slaughter the biggest and best bulls, and to save the runty little good-for-nothings to breed.

Thousands of the cattle of Honduras have every "point" or characteristic, except one, which breeders of fashionable Jerseys in the States sought to establish several years ago. They have the black horns, hoofs and muzzle, tongue and switch, the rich yellow udder, twist and ears, and the solid color ranging from the creamy white through all shades of fawn to a mottled black, with a grey line along the backbone and the "mealy" ring around the nose. Not a few are wide and hollow between the eyes; but their horns are larger than those of Jerseys usually are.

The milk of some of these Central American "Jerseys" without a touch of Jersey blood, is comparatively rich, although they are never fed with grain or other fattening food. What might be done with these cattle by systematic efforts to improve their milk yield, by selection and feeding, is perhaps scarcely worth asking, since all that might be accomplished by generations of such effort could be better done by two or three infusions of pure Jersey blood. But does it not seem that cows having so strong a resemblance to pure Jerseys should make unusually good stock to begin crossing upon?

In Honduras, as in the great cattle-growing regions of the West, one may see thousands of cattle about him and be unable to get a drink of milk. On one of the largest and best stocked haciendas in Olancho I asked, one day:

"Can you give me a little milk for my coffee?"

"Certainly, with great pleasure. Pardon us for not thinking to do so before you asked."

Of course they could furnish milk. A thousand cows could be seen from where we sat on the wide, cool veranda of the great house in which the Zelayas have dwelt for many generations. A word to the major-domo, an order to a mozo, and three or four Indian lads were scouring across the savanna. A few minutes later they came back, swinging their lassoes around their heads, and driving a flock of goats and kids. The kids were hurried into a room, and the door closed on them. Then one of the goats was lassoed and dragged out. One boy held her head, another squatted behind and, seizing her hind feet, held them an inch or two from the pavement of the corridor, while the third stripped the milk from her bag. The second and the third goat were served in a like manner, and enough milk obtained to reduce somewhat the strength of my coffee.

The butter of the country is soured cream. Just how it is made I do not know. What I do know about "mantequilla" is that it quickly becomes rancid. The cheese made there resembles the "cottage" or 'Dutch" cheese of the northern States, except that the Honduras caso is pressed into solid cakes 12 to 14 inches in diameter, and about 4 inches thick. When new and not too heavily salted, this cheese is by no means bad; nevertheless, both natives and foreigners prefer good imported cheese. For the little they buy of this they pay 50 and 75 cents per pound.—E. W. Perry in Cultivator and Country Gentleman.

Selling Tinned Beef for Mutton.

Lewis S. Cohen was charged before Alderman Shallcross and Mr. Isaac Morris, at the Liverpool city police court, on Wednesday, under the sale of food and drugs act, 1875, with selling to a purchaser an article not of the nature, substance and quality of the article demanded by the purchaser. Mr. W. W. Marks conducted the case for the prosecution, and Mr. F. Smith defended. The prosecuting solicitor stated that defendant was senior partner or proprietor of Lewis' establishment in Ranleagh street. As the bench was doubtless aware the firm sold a variety of things, including tins of mutton imported from America. On the 14th of last month an officer in the service of the city corporation, named Lloyd visited Lewis', where he paid a shilling for a tin of roast mutton. A sample of this was submitted to the public analyst Dr. Campbell Brown, who testified that it was not mutton at all, but beef. It was perfectly clear that in substituting beef for mutton and in pretending to sell mutton when he was really selling beef, the defendant must have had a motive. His reason undoubtedly was that beef was cheaper than mutton. It was not suggested that Mr. Cohen himself knew about the substitution in the tins of beef for mutton. In all probability he had been misled in the same way that the purchasers of a single tin had been. But that fact of course did not protect him from the consequences of having sold tinned beef for mutton. Mr. Cohen could recover any penalty that might be imposed upon him from the persons from whom he purchased the tins Mr. Lloyd and Inspector Baker proved the offense, the latter stating the tin in question was labelled "Armour's Canning Company. Superior Roast Mutton. Chicago, United States of America." Mr. Smith, for the defense, said that it was a fact that his client knew nothing whatever about the contents of the tins, of which there were three in the establishment at the time. The sale of them was stopped after the visit of Mr. Lloyd, and the two tins were returned to the people from whom they were obtained. The bench imposed a fine of 20s. and costs.—London Meat Trades.

Constitutional Vigor.

From the time existence begins until it ceases, every organism must wage warfare against besetting forces which seek its destruction. As to the time it eventually succumbs to these adverse circumstances we might surmise if we knew the exact power of resistance. This counteracting force may be termed vitality, or constitutional vigor. In the ordinary course of existence. this element may be both impaired and strengthened. That those living things whose vitality, from the nature of the case, is being constantly exhausted must soon begin to decay is apparent to all, while on the other hand those upon which but little demand is made beyond what is needed for development usually attain to greater longevity as is plainly seen. Witness the verification of this in the growth of fruit and forest trees. The former, after bearing a few heavy crops of fruit, are liable to suffer from parasites and diseases, and while the latter may be subjected to similar attacks, they receive no material injury because they easily withstand them.

From this it is obvious that constitutional vigor as a means of warding off disease is of importance in every form of life. The stockraiser, in particular, should not overlook this principle. He doubtless has observed the difference of growth and fattening qualities among his animals that receive similar treatment. In a litter of pigs there is usually a runt. This unfortunate may be fed just as carefully as the others, but it will not mature in proportion to the care it receives. It is constitutionally weakened, and it will be the first to succumb to disease.

There is a farmer of my acquaintance who has never been troubled with cholera among his hogs, although these have had access to a stream of water which flowed from neighboring farms where the disease not only raged but the sick hogs actually wallowed in it. He attributes the freedom from disease not merely to careful breeding but to care in breeding. He has been careful to maintain a line of healthy and vigorous blood, and by making this point a specialty he has developed a stock that has been proof against this prevalent disease.

There is too great a tendency to use diseased or unsound animals for breeding. As a result, in the majority of cases the progeny may not partake of the weakness to the extent of being unfit to send to market, yet to that extent which precludes easy possibilities in fattening and development. Our animals are, in a sense, machines to convert food into flesh, milk, etc. How easy then for these to be impaired naturally that they may be at a disadvantage in the utilization of this food, and thereby occasion unnecessary loss. It is true, no doubt, that constitutional weaknesses may be overcome by attention. I have seen the runt of the litter made as comely a shoat as the others, but this was done only by extra care, and the same pains expended upon vigorous stock would have gone many times farther toward profit. It may not be possible to dispense with runts, but it is possible to dispense with scrubs. When we realize that blood will tell as nothing else can, and that this matter is really far-reaching, there can be no doubt that our stock will not only be healthier, but also more readily brought to a condition for market.—J. L., in National Stockman.

Get a Uniform Herd.

If it should happen that the daughters of one particular cow—for instance, the brindle one—should average considerably better than those of the others, she is the cow to tie to, to be the source from which shall in time spring your whole herd. She may not produce as much as some of your other cows, but she has no doubt got good blood back of her that shows in her descendents, all of which you should keep (except some poor ones if there should happen to be any), and in few years your whole herd will have some strong resemblance, with their pedigree all tracing back to "Old Brin."—Wisconsin Institutes.

French Tariff.

A general press cable of last week brought the information, says the Breeder's Gazette, that a committee from the Chamber of Deputies, representing the departments of Finistere, Cotes du Nord and Loire, called upon M. Roche, the French Minister of Commerce, to urge that the prohibition of the importation of American lard be maintained. To this deputation the Minister made reply that the passage of the McKinley Tariff Bill by the House had changed the commercial position of France toward America, so that the question of the importation of American lard had become secondary as compared with the entire commerce between the two nations. Under the circumstances, Minister Roche declared, France was not prepared to meet with any concessions at all America's avowal of an economic war, as voiced by the adoption of the tariff bill, so that there need be no fear of an immediate change of the attitude of the Government toward the importation this product of the American hog. A word dropped by M. Roche would seem to indicate that further negotations between the two countries might result in a modification of the present prohibitory order in some way. but the report of that part of his reply is too indefinite to rest any assurance upon. It is evident that the tariff legislation, as enacted by the House of Representatives, would be made the bulwark behind which France could entrench herself for defence against the movement now on foot for raising the unjust embargo which she has placed on our pork products. Well, if it were not this it would doubtless be something else as an excuse, at least such frank avowals of retaliation as this from the French Minister of Commerce tend to bring out in strong relief the dishonesty of the claim that our products are excluded on account of their unwholesomeness. It will much gained when all nations which now discriminate against American meats shall honestly proclaim that such action is based either on a desire for retaliation or protection to home producers. America sets an example which they may well follow in this regard. Whatever may be thought of the policy of exclusion of imports by tariff duties it is distinctly stated that it is purely for purposes of protection to American industries, and no assassin-like attacks are made on the wholesomeness of the products which our foreign neighbors seek to dispose of in our markets. If the American policy is exclusive it is also frank and honest, and frankness and honesty are virtues which may well be emulated by our friends across the sea.

Scarcity of Texan Cattle.

It is evident that steer cattle are getting scarce in Texas, and it is hard to find them in any large bunches. It has been supposed for some time that South Texas was pretty well supplied with them, but late advices from there are to the effect that they are pretty well cleaned out. Jesse Presnell and Dan Lewis were in the city yesterday en route to the Territory, and they report there are no steer cattle to amount to anything in that part of the State. The beeves have been moving quite lively recently, Presnell having shipped for his company 8,000 since the season set in. Other parties have also been moving cattle quite freely, until between those shipped to the maturing pastures and those shipped to the markets the supply has been pretty well exhausted. This is not only the case in South Texas, but there is a marked scarcity of steers in all parts of the State, and when the movement of cattle is over the scarcity will be still more marked. There is nothing alarming in this condition of affairs—to the contrary it is rather encouraging for those who have cattle that will make beeves next year. It used to be the case that from all quarters of the State could be heard reports of the large number of steer cattle, and they were to be found on every hill. It was that abundance that caused so many to be rushed to market, having a tendency to depress prices. Now just the reverse is the case so far as numbers are concerned, and just the reverse will be the case as to prices when next spring's markets open up. Every indication is in favor of better prices, and the cattlemen see it. —Fort Worth Gazette.

Dark Brahma Fowls.

The dark Brahmas are ranked by one authority as next in merit, among the Asiastic breeds, to the light Brahmas, and many breeders claim that they are the best of the Brahma variety. It is stated that this breed was perfected by English breeders out of a brood of chickens that were bred by mating a black red Shanghai cock with a grey Shanghai hen. The first importations known as dark Brahmas were made about 1865, and many of them were of the single comb kind. The breeding of pea comb Brahmas to Partridge Cochins produced new blood, and later they were bred with less of the Cochin shape. The first dark Brahmas showed more or less bronze in the wing coloring of the cocks, and the ground coloring of the female was a bronze grey, the steel gray, which is now the standard American color, being secured by an occasional cross with Light Brahma cocks.

The pea comb which should surmount the head of the dark Brahma cock resembles three small combs running parallel the length of the head, the center one the highest; beak strong, well curved, wattles full, ear lobes red, well rounded and falling below wattles; the breast should be full and broad, wings small and well tucked up under the saddle feathers and thick fluff. The markings of the hen, except the neck and tail, are the same all over, each feather having a dingy white ground closely penciled with dark steel gray.

White Specks in Butter.

Geo. Parr, a leading Dakota dairyman, says that white specks in butter are often caused by setting the milk in open pans and keeping it too warm while cream is in raising. They are also caused by a too high temperature of the cream while souring. He says: "I would not allow cream set in open pans to rise above a temperature of 50 degrees, and would not allow the cream while souring to rise above 65 degrees, when churning has to be done twice or three times a week; when churning has to be done every 70 degrees is about the proper temperature. In case the morning's and evening's cream is to be churned together the cream should be well mixed with a large spoon. Notwithstanding dairyman differ on these points, if the above instructions are observed closely while using the open pans, there will be little danger of white specks appearing."—Farm Stock and Home.

Wood Wattles haa bred Yonng Miami, by Paul's Abdallah, to Dawn, 2:18¾. She has a good looking colt at foot hy Director. Mr. Wattles also sent his A. W. Richmond mare to Secretary.

Senator 2:21½ hy Echo out of the Jones mare hy Winthrop Morrill 373 was given away to a neighbor last fall hy Marcus Daly, who did not like the looks of his legs on his return from California.

Alicia hy George Wilkes 2:22 (the sire of 60 trotters and 6 pacers in the 2:30 list) out of that great brood mare Alma Mater, is now in tbe 2:30 list after producing four colts at the Highland Farm.

Tom Oshorne, the English jockey, who won the St. Leger on Marie Stnart in 1873, and won alao many other of the important eventa in England, is at present a visitor at Brighton Beach, and takes in the races.

W. J. Kerlin, Montgomery, Ala., has sold to G. W. Leihy, Chicago, the chestnut gelding Playboy 2:20½ for $5,000. Mr. Leihy sold to Mr. Kerlin, a four-year-old by Sir Pilot out of a Snnhurst mare for $3,500.

R. P. Ashe's speedy mare Geraldine once more disappointed her backers, the bearer of the pretty cherry jacket being unable to sprint with Blue Rock in the first race, 5 furlongs at the Saratoga meeting.

When Al Farrow is not asked to give the platers over fifteen ponnds he can make their heads swim, aays the American Sportsman. He can give any number of them twenty pounds and a heating at a mile.

At the first annnal fair of Lassen connty, which commences at Snsanville, Oct. 6th, $5,000 in premiums and $3,500 in parses will he hung up. Among the novelties will he a sheep shearing contest, a vaqnero contest, etc.

Five Electioneers already in the 2.30 list this year the last is Conductor, a three-year-old grey atallion, hrother to Eros 2:29½ Electioneer—Sontag Mohawk, dam of Sallie Benton 2:17¾, Sport 2:22¾ and Eros 2:29½.

Rico seems to have come back to form. On Wednesday last carrying 116 lhs. in the fifth race at Monmouth he ran the five furlongs in 1:01¼ hut was placed second tbough the general opinion was that he won by a longish head.

Allen Maid, 2:16½ hy Ashley's Ethan Allen, dam Morgan Maid, a faat racing mare owned in Boston, has been sold to Western partiea for $4,000, and will be driven double hereafter hy her new owner, who will retire her from the turf.

Senator Hearst's western contingent seem to have better luck than the eastern stahle. On Saturday last Anarchist won a five furlong race at Washiugton Park in 1:02¼. Anarchist is an aptly named hrother to Dynamite by Joe Hooker out of Chestnut Belle.

H. R. H. The Prince of Walea, won his first race of the season on July 3rd at Newmarket with Pierrette, a hay two year old filly by Mask out of Poetry, who beat fifteen othera in a maiden race. She was hred hy the Prince which made the victory doubly sweet.

Another plnnger, now known as Mike Fletcher, has been raking in considerahle money from the Eastern bookmakers recently. His lnck has been marvellous of late, and his play haa many followers. Brooklynites know him well, hut to the outside world he ia still on the perch.

John H. Kimbrongh, the well known turfman, died on July 14th at Lexington, Ken., aged 39. He owned Avondale, Sportsman, Eberlee and others. He was a son-in-law of the late T. J. Megibhen, was preaident of the Lexington City Council, and held many other positiona.

Wyatt Earp and George Brann are said to have a lively candidate for the 2:30 claas round the circuit in their recent purchase, Jim Leach. He is hy Inca 2:27, dam hy Sacramento, and cost $1,000. W. Earp moved his string from San Diego to Los Angeles early tbis week.

James Dumas, who formerly trained the Castle Stahle horses, won $16,000 on July 15th at Monmouth Park hy backing Eon, Sallie McClelland, Kempland and Equimau. He did not back Diablo, probably becanse he didn't think any one elae could train him aa well aa he.

A set of electric bells was put in at the Saginaw track. The distance flag was dropped hy this method, the gong in the jndges' atand rung by it, and electric bell placed near the quarter to call the horsea back in the case of a false start, and another placed at the atables to call up the horses.

Messrs. Tattersall say that the number of thoroughbred yearlings they had catalogned for sale at the Newmarket meeting this year was unprecedented. People on the other side are evidently beginning to realize the fact tbat the breeding of thoronghbreda ia the most safe and lucrative style of farming in which to invest capital.

Father William Daly started Rover, whom he hought from L. J. Rose a month or so ago. in a steeplechase, one mile and a half, at Brighton Beacb last week, and gave him to his friends aa a snre thing. The Californian disappointed his backers, however, and fell, his injuries being so bad that he will prohably not race again.

George Taylor, whose leg waa so hadly injured a fortnight ago, when Reckon kicked both him and his mount, Lima, had more hard lnck in his first monnt on the 15th. He rode Diablo, and, in making a rnn around the turn, was crowded against the fence and had his leg hurt again, though tne injnry is not deemed serious.

The nine year old son of James McLaughlin, the trainer for Pierre Lorillard, promises to follow in his father's footsteps. He seems to he a born jockey, and takes to the saddle as natnrally as a duck to water. He occasionally rides some of the Rancocas horses in their exercise, and already shows considerahle skill.

Edith R who lowered her record at Ponghkeepsie, from 2:22½ to 2:18¼ is by Monaco sire of four in the 2:30 list and a brother to Wedgewood 2:19, sire of six in 2:30; her dam ia Augusta Schuyler 2:26 hy Aberdeen 27, sire of 27 trotters and one pacer in the 2:30 list. grandam Emeline, the dam of six and granddam of one in the thirty list.

Daniel Sapp, a well-known atock breeder of Pekin, Ill., on July 14th sold Miss Bemis, by Mambrino Patchen, with a Billy Wilkes colt by her aide, to W. R. Brasfield of Lexington. Ky, for $8,000. Miss Bemis ia the dam of Judge Rider, 2:28¼. and of Lizzie E. R., who can trot inside of 2:30, and will he given a record this present season.

"There is a hurdle race on at Brighton to-day." shouted a colored youth who stood on the ateps of a Coney Island train aa it moved past the course. "Why so?" asked a companion. "Because, don't you see a blue and gold flag waving in the field. Well, dat flag means hurdles." "What about steeples?" "Den you will see a yellow and crimson flag."

Tbe reports that have been published and very generally circulated to the effect that Fides and Raceland have been thrown ont of training and sent to Mr. Belmont'a Kentucky farm are altogether wrong. Both are atill at Monmouth Park. Fide's last race nndoubtedly injured her considerably, hut she now gives promise of rounding to and coming into racing form again. Raceland has an attack of rheumatism, which has necessitated a rest.

A report from Saratoga is to the effect that W. J. Arkell President of the Mount McGregor Railroad, and several other capitalists, propose to hnild a new race course at Saratoga Springs that will eqnal both the Morria Park and Monmouth Park race tracks in aizs and magnificence. The plans for the new course have been almoat completed, and negotiations for the purchase of the necessary land are well under way, Mart Jordan has sold out his horses in training, and which were qnartered at the Gravesend track, to W. C. Daly. Tbe lot consisted of six two-year-olds, aome of them particularly well bred. Father Bill, if he goes on at his present rate, will soon have the largest string in traiuing of any owner. At preaent the horses which sport the green above the red number thirty-aeven, and nearly all of them have earned hrackets.

A valuable contemporary calls npon the members of the National Trotting Asaociation to strictly enforce the new rnle: "Any contest for pnr e, preminm, stake, wager, or involving admiasion fees in the presence of judges appointed in accordance with rnle 25 shall conatitute a public race." Rnle 25 stipulates that in every exhibition or race three competent jndges who understand the rnles shall occupy the stand and enforce them.

One feature of the last Ascot meeting was the heavy hetting indulged in by several well known racing men. For instance, saya "Truth" Captain Machell had the large stake of £2,000 on The Deemster for the Coventry Stakes at an average of 2 to 1, and Mr. Cox, one of Ryan's patrona, hacked Orvieto for £3,000 in the New Stakes. Mr. H. Fenwick, owner of Day Dawn, and Lord Cholmondeley won £17,000 between them over that colt's success in tbe Wokingham Stakea.

Among the Palo Alto string on the California Circnit will bc Express 2:21, Snsette, a seven year old sister to Suisun; Ariana, a four year old by Ansel 2:20, ont of Rehecca (dam of Rexford 2:24 at 3 y. o.) hy General Benton 1755; Ella, six years old, with a record of 2:29 as a four year old, hy Electioneer ont of Lady Ellen by Carr's Mambrino 1789, and a two year old sister to Ella called Elleneer, who waa last year as fast as a hullet, and was said to be in readiness if Norlaine's yearling record were lowered.

Morris Park could he tucked away in the corner of the new Monmouth Park and no one would notice its presence. Morria Park has a straight-away track three quarters of a mile in length. Monmouth has one twice that distance. At Morris Park a race of a mile and a quarter can only be with one long turn. At the new Monmouth the race will he decided straightaway, with not a curve intervening between the flag and the finish. Morria Park'a grand stand could he stowed away in the Monmouth's betting ring. Monmouth's new grand stand will shelter 20,000 people.

W. H. Babh's three year old colt Gnido won the mile and a half at Missoula on the 15th in 2:43½; J. Dowd's Snnday won the three furlongs in 35 seconds and the half mile and repeat on the following day. The half mile and repeat for local horsea was won by Diavolo in 0:51½ and 0:51¾. Diavolo, who alao won the mile dash the next day, is a half brother to the crack trotters Palo Alto 2:12¼, Big Jim 2:23¼, and Gertrude Russell 2:23½; he is by Sbannon. H. Kirkendall's Homestake won the trot, best heat in 2:34¼. The heat waa very oppressive—98 degrees in the shade.

Several of the hig stables are having a decidedly hard run of lnck jnst at present. Up to now the winnings of the Dwyer Brothers will not total up 25 per cent. of the money won last year hy the stable. Then, again, their prospects for the fntnre do not appear as hright just now as they did laat spring. Eon and Longatreet are about the only hreadwinnera among their lot of 40 or more in training. Last week the hrothers looked the stable over carefnlly and weeded out 15 racers, and aent them to Brighton to earn tbeir oata. The Hearst, Belmont and Withers stables are also in had luck, and Belmont will probably retire.

Now that the season is in full swing, jndges of trotting races should bear in mind tbat the rnlea have been changed for aeveral years, so that horses which were formerly diatanced, for fonls or other matters chargeahle to the driver and not to the horse, are now ruled out instead. A horse can now be diatanced only for his own lack of apeed or faulty gait. The idea is that the reputation of the horae is unwarrantably injured when the permanent record of races ahows that he was diatanced, when tbe driver and not the horse was to blame, aa the record does not show the entire facts, and the presumption would he that the horae was hehind the flag.

The Hurdle Stake was, of conrse, the race of the day, says the Sporting World, and you should have seen the venerable, the Sage of Hartford, after hia horae's number had been hoisted. It seemed as if every drop of Irish hlood that coursed through Father William's veins asserted itself, and he clapped his hands, shouted and chuckled until he was hoarse.

"They thonght they'd beat him with that there Canada horse," he ejaculated as soon as he regained his hreath. "Why, tbey're running yet. I tell you boys, I know a jumper when I see him, and they laughed at me when I gave $1,000 for this fellow, hut I gueas I can laugh, now."

At East Saginaw, Mich, on July 18th, Mr. Salisbnry's Margaret S. and Cricket both won racea in good style, as the following snmmary ahows:

2:20 pace. Purse $600.

Cricket	1	1	1
Finley	2	2	2
Ivorene	4	3	3
Chimee C	3	4	4
Nettie C	dis

Time, 2:18, 2:17½, 2:21½.

2:18 trot. Purse $800.

Margaret S	1	1	1
J. B. Richardson	2	2	2
Gold Ring	3	dis

Time, 2:20½, 2:19½, 2:17½.

Bonita, seven years old, by Grinstead from Maggie Emerson, has broken down at last. She is owned by P. M. West and Company and will be relegated to the paddock. She was one of E J. Baldwin's cast offs, being let go after winning a selling race and since won probably more races than most of those he kept in his stable at the time.

F. N. Brackett, manager of the Fair View Stock Farm of Methuen, Mass., informs us that the mare Genie, by Sultan, 2:24, dam by Nutwood, 2:18¾, has dropped a brown colt by Simmons, 2:28, and that Lady Rose, by Sultan, dam Atlanta, has dropped a black filly by Simmons, and that both youngsters have been sold to W. H. Wilson of Cynthiana, Ky., for $2,000 each. These mare are among the choice ones owned at Fair View Farm and are the property of C. H. Tenney, 612 Broadway, N. Y.

The free for all pace round the circuit looks as though it would barely fill: Almont Patchen 2:15, Homestake 2:16½, Ned Winslow 2:17¼, St. Patrick 2:19½, Belle Button 2:20, Creole 2:20, Frank 2:20 and Thomas Ryder 2:20½, are mentioned as probable candidates if they stand up, while David's Gold Medal, the Dexter Prince mare Princess, Garrity's Sidney pacer Hummer, Griffin's McCarty horse, and one or two others are mentioned as possible candidates, as is the San Mateo green pacer by Guy Wilkes. Cricket, Adonis and Chris. Smith may be back for the State Fair.

Henry Walsh says that Flambeau is standing his work well but has had no really fast work so far, and therefore he can not say whether he will stand up or not. By the way, Mr. Walsh says that the statement published in the evening papers that he did not send Flambeau east was because he did not think Allen a competent man, or words to that effect, has no foundation at all. Had the horse stood up he would have gone East and joined the Hearst Stable. Henry Walsh's statement is quite unnecessary, for any one who knows him would never believe him capable of reflecting on another trainer.

An exchange says that there will be many people go broke should Alfred S, in Orrin Hickok's string, fail to win his first race, and not least among them will be "Sandy," his caretaker, who rivals "Lucy Jimmy" in originality. His latest is that when Alfred S was kicked by Finley, Mr. Hickok discharged him; nevertheless, he kept right on at his work, and when asked by the boys what he was going to do, answered, "Take care of this horse; what do you suppose?" "Why, we understood Mr. Hickok had discharged you." "What if he did? Do you suppose I am going to lose a good job just for his darn foolishness?" With the horse he is yet, and it will take something stronger than dynamite to make him leave.

Injudicious feeding of a horse often produces far more baneful results than does overwork. When a horse is constantly kept upon food as concentrated as he can bear, there is necessarily a tendency to inflammation and consequent lameness, but lameness is more certainly produced with sudden changes from bulky to concentrated food, and that on the day when his feet are to be most severely tried by concussion on a hard road. It would be safer to abuse his digestive organs one day and his feet another, than to abuse them both at the same time. Grass fed horses can be lamed at any time without any extra work by simply giving them more corn and less chaff.

The 26th District Annual Fair to be held at Ione on Aug. 5th and following days promises to be a grand success. All the races have filled well. Among the prominent racing men who have made entries are Percy Williams, Wm. Boots, P. Siebenthaler, Dan Dennison and W. L. Appleby. The management, which has been making strenuous efforts in all directions for the success of the fair, succeeded in securing from the Railroad Company a special rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip from Sacramento, Tracy and all intermediate points and branch lines to Ione and return during Fair week. Arrangements are also under way for having special excursion trains run from Sacramento and Stockton.

Matters and things in and about the Belmont sale of yearlings on Saturday did not go just as smoothly as they might have under other circumstances, the Sporting World says Mr. Lorillard was present as a spectator and as such made some unfavorable comment on a filly that was led into the ring, which Mr. Belmont promptly resented. "You have no right to criticise my colts," hotly, ejaculated the master of the Nursery Stud "I have the same rights as any other spectator at the sale and I intend to use them," returned the owner of Rancocas, "and what is more I don't intend to be insulted here. I will leave the sale." And saying so he arose and journeyed down to the paddock.

Mr. Chas. Reed made a rattling selection in Exile as a successor to the defunct Mr. Pickwick, for besides being a clinking race horse he is royally bred, being by imported Mortemer out of imported Second Hand by Stockwell from Gaiety by Touchstone from Cast Steel by Whisker. At $15,000 Exile should be cheap. French Park, who was unbeaten as a two year old, and has been on the shelf ever since, was purchased for $10,000. He is by imported King Ban out of Lou Pike by imported Bonnie Scotland from Madestone by imported Stone Plover from Madeline (the dam of Maggie B. B.) by Boston from Magnolia by imported Glencoe.

The claim Mr. Withers and Mr. Morris both make concerning their straightaway tracks is that they are the only ones that should be used in deciding great races, for on them the best horses must win. Very often on the old tracks races were stolen by inferior horses by some of the well known tricks of the jockeys. On the Monmouth course it is purely a question of weight and judgment with the riders. Given a good start, there is nothing to do but run straight ahead to the finish, and as the track is as level as the surface of a billiard table and there are no hills and hollows to be considered in the riding, the whole struggle is narrowed down to the running qualities of the horse.

Three splendidly bred mares have recently been sent to Janesville, Wis., to be bred to Forrest Bassett, full brother Johnson, 2:06¾. Major Campbell sent a Tom Rolf mare, out of a full sister to Brown Hal, 2:12½; M. C. Campbell, a Brown Hal, dam by Planeroid, and E. H. Douglas, a mare by Brown Hal, out of a mare by Bay Tom, grandsire of Duplex, 2:17¼. Greater pacing speed lines were never bred than will be found in the produce from the above mating. M. C. Campbell now owns a Sidney colt out of a Buccaneer mare (the Gold Leaf cross, 2:11¾ at four years old), and this youngster mated with the produce of Forrest Bassett will give these gentlemen the most fashionable pacing strains.

The once great racer Hanover is now being given salt water treatment in hopes that he may yet be brought around and prepared for a race or two this fall. Every morning he is taken down to the beach and given a long swim out in the deep water. The horse seems to enjoy it greatly, and can outswim any of the lot of racers as easily as he can outrun them on a track when he is himself. The action in swimming is about as good for purposes of training as is galloping, and the tender hoofs are not battered or injured in any way. Exile has been regularly trained in the same way, and for the same reason—tender feet. Seadrift who has been ailing for some time took his first hard gallop last week, and will soon be in racing form.

The recent yearling sales at Newmarket, England, were very successful, the new buyers Lord Dudley and Baron Hirsch both made some big purchases. Lord Dudley bought two yearling fillies by Hermit, out of a daughter of Controversy and Dee respectively for $15,000 and $5,500; the high priced filly was a full sister to Heresy, but was not a particularly good looking filly and could probably have been bought for $10,000, but the youthful plunger raised from $9,250 to $15,000 at a crack; he also paid $15,000 for the colt by Barcaldine from Trinket. Mr. Douglas Baird gave $10,000 for a brother to Geologist (Sterling–Siluria) and Mr. Hamar Bass paid $15,000 for an own sister to Energy, Enthusiast and Cherry (Sterling–Cherry Duchess).

It is stated that the investigation into the Santalene matter by the authorities at Washington Park, Chicago has exploded that gushing sensation. The Sporting World says, It transpired that Bookmaker Wheelock, who is a prodigious plunger, lost heavily on Santalene, having bet $10,000 to win $6,000. The club dropped the matter after Wheelock testified that Hankins and his confreres in the Chicago Stable bet $2,500 on Santalene in his book and he backed the horse on such a tip. This is a case of giving a dog a bad name, etc.

"Suspicion ever haunts the guilty mind;
Thus bad begins and worse remains behind."

It looks as though the 2:30 class would bring out some Cracker Jacks this season. Tom Smith's George Washington 2:30¼ is said to be rapid, Jim Dustin's chestnut gelding Lee is reported to be dangerous. Percy William's horse Brenary Mc is as fast as a ghost. A. T. Hatch's Lenmar steps off his miles in 2:22 and repeats in the same time. Griffin says his candidate will be there. Balkan 2:29½ is reeling off miles in grand style. Flora G. 2:29¼ is going a little better than her record. Fresno has a cracker jack in Frank Wickersham's green horse, while the Southern district have several that are said to be threatened with speed. Every day one hears of some fresh candidate who is working his mile in 2:21 or 2:22. And after all methinks 2:27 will be fast enough when a few of the cracks have cracked or gone up.

The French Government appointed a commission to test the effects of feeding salt to domestic animals, and it is not noted for doing foolish work in such cases. The commission arrived at the following conclusions: That salt ought to be added to all cooked foods, to supply the loss of salt by boiling, steaming, etc.; that salt counteracts the effects of wet food and meadows on sheep and prevents food rot; that it increases the flow of saliva, and therefore increases fattening; that in preparing mixtures of chaff, potatoes, beets, bran, oil cake, etc., salt ought always to be added to it, and it be left stand for a couple of days to ferment slightly; that animals should receive per day—the working ox or milch cow, 2 ounces; the stall fed ox, 2½ to 4½ of an ounce; the lean sheep, ½ to ¾ of an ounce, and the horse, donkey or mule, 1 ounce.

Longevity appears to be an hereditary trait. The descendants of Messenger, as a rule, were long-lived horses. Messenger himself lived to be twenty-eight years old. Topgallant, in some respects one of the most remarkable trotters that ever appeared upon the turf, was inbred to Messenger. He was trotting four-mile heat races in his twenty-second year, and though he had two spavins was not lame. Topgallant lived to be twenty-eight years old. Administrator, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, also a Messenger, is still vigorous at twenty-seven years of age. He is owned in Prince Edward Island. Many of the descendants of Diomed lived to an advanced age. Diomed himself lived to be thirty-one years old, and got his best son, Sir Archy, the season he was 27 years old.

An Irishman who was working on the Westchester track a fortnight ago, digging post holes in the sun, observed to a reporter:

"Begorra, but it's hot work. I'm thinkin' I'll be takin' it fair an' aisey, like them fellers workin' beyant on the club house. They knocks off airley ivery day, an' sorra the wan ov me knows whin they'll git through wid it. Shure they have two hundred min an' boys at work upon it."

"This is a pretty fine track?" ventured the scribe.

A look of disgust, mingled with a suspicion of drollery, flitted softly o'er the Celt's countenance. "Indade, faix its little ye know about thracks or race coorses. Wor ye ever at the Curragh ov Kildare? Shure the divil a lep they have here at all at all. Sorra a wan ov me knows what Miether Morris was thinking about, but they say he hav more goold than the Czar of Rooshia. If he saw the Curragh or the Limerick race cooree, he'd be kilt wid envy," and then he expectorated on his hands and commenced pounding away as mechanically as ever.

The Red Bluff track in Berenpos, Antelope Valley is now completed, and is said by qualified men to be in good order. Forty new box stalls have been built, and the grand stand is nearly completed, while an elegant Judges' stand is being erected. A correspondent writes me that already quite a number of horses are being worked on the track. J. Endicott is training seven head, including Antee Up, who is a four-year-old stallion by Anteeo, Albert V, a five year-old gelding by May Boy out of a Norfolk mare, Nelly Bly, a four-year-old mare by Overland, dam by Pillbox. Lew Rowley is educating Cyclone, a six-year-old stallion, by Brigadier from Annie B by Wintbrop; Fern, a nine-year-old stallion by Nephew out of Fanny Fern, and Johnny G, a three-year-old gelding by Fern, dam by Jim Brown. Arthur Mount is speeding four, May Boy Jr, bay horse five years old by May Boy, dam by Vandal; Guesie Willard by May Boy, Colonel Benton, a two year old by Alfred; and a chestnut racer. E. C. Fortier has among his select string the bay stallion Alexander Selkirk by Alexander Button out of Duchess Aurora and a speedy pacer by May Boy. W. Million has two pacers in training that are more than threatened with speed; they are both mares by May Boy six and five years old.

Ed. McClees who lives near the Hollywood Farm at Vallejo has on his farm three exceptional youngsters, a two year old by Woodnut, dam by Admiral, granddam by Ashland. He is as pretty as a picture having a great resemblance to his sire Woodnut, while he shows a good deal of the thoroughbred characteristics of his progenitor Ashland who was by Glencoe; a bay yearling filly Lady Thornhill by Billy Thornhill, dam Lady Nutwood by Nutwood, both are entered in the colt stakes at most of the fairs; and last but by no means least—judging from a symmetrical point of view, a bay brown filly foal by Mountain Boy 4841, dam by Admiral grand dam by Ashland; the youngster is as near a model foal as could be made, only three months old, yet strong and sturdy looking with good clean legs and feet, a neat, trim appearance all over and a trotter sure.

The gentlemen drivers held a very successful meeting at the Oakland Trotting Park last Saturday. A good programme was hung out and a large gathering of members and their friends turned out to witness the sport. Four races were contested during the afternoon, The first for the 2:50 class had three entries: J. McGovern's b h Ben, W. T. Veitch's b h Jerry and V. S Northey's r m Fly. In the first heat Jerry after trailing behind to the draw gate passed the others and won cleverly by a length; time, 3:08. Northey was withdrawn on account of broken harness, and Jerry again won; time, 3:04. The pacing 2:25 class had two entries: W. Coleman's ch h Haverly and H. Meek's b g Snicklefritz. Haverly took the first heat in 2:30, the second in 2:32, Snicklefritz won the third in 2:29¼, Haverly took the fourth in 2:30. Haverly has a record of 2:25 made in 1887, while Snicklefritz paced in 2:29¼ at Marysville last year. The 2:40 class trotters had two entries: J. C. Kimball's b s Jim Blaine and Shelby Martin's b g Stanhope. Jim Blaine won easily in 2:47 and 2:50. The 2:50 pace had three entries: George Anderson's Gypsey, Dr. Walker's Woodchuck and S. D. Ingram's Weasel. Weasel in a heavy cart won easily in 2:49.

Once upon a time trainers of racers made it a practice to saddle horses themselves before they were sent to the starting post to compete in a race. In those days they would not allow even their first assistant or head lad to handle equipments which were to be used. In fact, the trainers felt it was as much a part of their duty to saddle their horses as to fit them to compete. As a result of these precautions, few mishaps were ever heard of, so far as breaking or misplacing of gear was concerned. In fact, trainers could not then afford to have any mishaps of the kind occur, as they would be laughed at for their carelessness by their brother professionals. At present, however, many horses are saddled for important races by stable boys and jockey's valets. The trainers do make some pretense of examining things and seeing that they are all right, but the inspecting is done in a "go as you please" sort of way, as though straps and buckles were unbreakable. On account of the carelessness of inexperienced trainers of the present day dozens of races are lost every season. It is almost even betting that the head stall will slip off at least one horse on the average out of every six engaged in a race. Such carelessness as is witnessed nowadays is simply abominable, and owners if they expect to win races should look after such matters themselves as they will find it will repay them to do so.

There has been quite a little excitement in Eastern racing circles for the last few weeks concerning the arrests of the bookmakers at Westchester and Monmouth. An Eastern exchange tells the following amusing story about one of the principal actors in the case:

DeLacy, Murray and their henchmen, who have been trying to break up the racing at Monmouth Park will probably be heard of no more. The Monmouth County authorities have got tired of being used as tools by the city gamblers, particularly as the taxpayers have got to foot the bills. De Lacy don't want to pay these, much as he wishes to carry on his war of revenge. He pays his counsel, one Meyer, his $100 a day regularly, and thinks that is sufficient. A good story is told about Meyer in connection with his work for De Lacy. It runs in this way:

Last week Meyer got up in one of the prayer meetings held in Eatontown and announced that "by Saturday we hope to be able to announce to you that we shall have stopped the wicked racing at Monmouth."

An elderly sister interrupted the speaker at this point by remarking in a piping voice, "Yes, brother, and you can also announce that you will then have taken the bread from the mouths of a lot of people in this church and in Monmouth County. "And it is said," she continued, "that some people get mighty well paid for doing their missionary work."

Mr. Meyer was squelched.

The betting ring at Monmouth was crowded with a surging, excited mass of humanity, says the Sporting World, eager to place their money on the horse they fancied. It was a big game they were playing at, and thousands were handled about from hand to hand just like so much worthless paper.

But outside the fence there was another game going on just as important to those who played at it as the big game inside, and a group of of dusky Italian laborers, some of those who had helped to build the big track, were the principals. A little iron stake with a flat top was driven into the ground, and on this were piled with considerable ingenuity coppers, quarters, nickles, dimes, and several curious looking foreign coins.

In regular order each man who played would step back about ten paces and cast a coin at the stake, his object being to strike it and knock off all he could, but it was a difficult task, as anyone who tries it will discover. Time and again each player tried unsuccessfully, and one young man steps over the line as he makes his throw. In an instant a regular Babel is brought about his ears. Everybody jabbers at once—they threaten, shake their fists in his face and scowl darkly.

A stout, broad shouldered fellow stands with arms folded regarding the turmoil. Then he steps forward, plants one broad foot down before the stakes and motions the bowling crowd away. He speaks mildly, and it would seem sarcastically, but one by one the dark, scowling faces light up and a few even smile pleasantly. The big foot is removed and the young man goes back to make a second throw.

The coin spins lightly in the air and lights on the pile of money scattering it all about the stake. A howl of rage goes up from the assemblage, but the young fellow gathers up the coins, shoves them deep in the pockets of his blue jeans, and, smiling sardonically on the vanquished, saunters carelessly away down the dusty road.

Then more money is produced, and the game goes on while the next race is being run.

ROD.

Not a Fish.

Most of your correspondents give yon accounts of fishing adventnres only when successful. I am going to present the anomely of writing of an expedition during which I canght nothing.

At tho end of last March I crossed the Sierras, taking the Walker Pass in order to avoid the snow, that fell in snch nnprecedented quautities lest winter as probahly to block the more northern passes until the heginning of August. Traveliug through the foothills, yonr correspondeut arrived on the plaine of Sonthern California seys Wykehamist writing to a contemporery from Gertrude, Cal. Way worn and weery, he passed through the lively town of Bakersfield, which is rapidly risiug from its ashee, accompenied by Dot, the tough little hlack Comanche pack pony, a native of Coloredo, the only companion of his trevels of the past and present years. Dusty but nndismayed, the old miner fisherman tramped through the principal street of the large and haudsome city of Freeno, in both places encountering the jabbering contempt of the Chinese who rode hy him in their carriages, and the eilent hut unmistakable disdain of the swarms of storekeepers and their assietants, trnly e motley crowd; treated, however, with courteey by settlers from Eastern States and British Isles.

I may here mention that, after leaviug the first named town, I made a long detour around Kern Lake. The kindly settler at the southern end of the leke, who entertained me a night, informed me, and, I helieve, trnthfnlly, that one year when the weter was unusually low, he saw nnmbers of pike therein up to twenty pounds in weight. It not being pike season, and having neither pike tackle nor canvass boat, all of which would be necessary to test his information, I must leave your readers to helieve him or not, at their discretion. There is one thing to which I can testify, viz., the enormoue quantity of wild fowl there, flocke of which, oontaining myriads, arose over two hun lred or three hnndred yards ae I skirted the eastern shore of the lake.

Arriving at Madera I followed the wonderful V flnme, 65 miles long, as far as Fresno Flats, but now the fishing eeemed as far off ss ever, for a rainy spell of about e month set in. Indeed, the only line that got wetted was Dot's picket line; and his owners blankets twice shared an eqnel drenching as he lay out in the rain when unahle to obtain shelter. Think of this, some of you metropolitan feether-hed anglers, who have kind landladies of the Hyslop type to tnck you into cosy oouches at night, and gently rouse yon therefrom in the morning to fragrant breaktast!

At length, in the heginning of Jnne, I fonud my way to Fish Camp, on Big Creek, in Meriposa County, a tribntary of the South Fork of the Merced, which was in a swollen conoition. The locals, who seemed to be having some success with worms, informed me thet I could ca'ch nothing with flies until Augnst. I tried nearly all oue afternoon, flinging what the late Francis Francis would have called "en aseortment of flies" at the tront, hut without succees. A few moruings afterwards I tried with the spiuuing tackle; resnlt, a enegged Celedonian minnow.

My next venture was to move on to the Yosemite Valley, forty miles to the north; scenery to he the primary, fishing a secondary object of my visit Traveling through the grand mountain fastnesses of the prettiest conuty of California, along the right side of the canyon of the South Fork of the Merced, the deafening roar of the torrente greeted my eare. If Virgil had visited the Yosemite by this route, he must certainLy have pronounced it a no contemptible part of the domains of Jutarna, thet goddess who, we read in one of the latter books of the Æneid, obtained from Jupiter the sover eignty of the hoarse-resonuding rivers in a somewhat dierepntable manner. More modern religioue ideas, introduced by the mission fathers, heve dedicated to our Lady of Mercy that mejeetic river which ie formed hy the union of these romentio streame. All theee tributaries were hooming in a menner that augured ill for fly fish ng, and the snow eupply of last winter being nnusnally large, nono of the oldeet settlers can ventnre an opinion as to when they will subside.

At length I reached and cemped at the foot of the Bridel Veil Falle, which come thundering down from a precipice 900 feet high, amid their halo of rainbow glories! Othere of the many streams, now swollen into rivers, that come tumhling over lofty precipices in the most reckless end abandoned manner conceivable, may excel these falls in volume, bnt not in their chastity of silvery design, eo divinely elaborated by Natnre, the superwondrons artificer! That same evening I fished, hut had not a solitary rise, as was my luck in other parts of the valley, the Merced River rolling down in billows like those of a troubled sea.

But there was one spot where I did not fish. Early on the morning of Monday, the 16th of June, I visited Mirror Lake to see therein the electric lamp like reflection of the sun as it rose over the great southern dome. For an hour I was alone. Opposite to me were the very trees under which Jack caught hie trout when on his memorable visit to the Yosemite with Madge, the Jndge end Hie Reverence! At the end of that time three carriages rolled up, laden with tourists bleseed with purees more plethoric than than that of the writer, whose snn-hurnt face and hands snd travel-worn attire muet have contrasted oddly with the neat apparel of the gentlemen, who honored the occasion hv wearing kid gloves. Then two Indiane sauntered up, perhaps the identicel ones from whom the Judge purchased his catch, not unperceived by the wily Chinaman, who, hired nominally as servant to the select little party, really "ruled them with a rod of iron." These memories heiug uppermost in my mind on that lovely June morning, aud not wiehiug to be numbered among the many fools who rush in where angels might well fear to tread, I refrsined from disturhing the plaoid wsters of thie, the daintieet of American lakelets, by even the attempt to capture one of its inhabitants.

After epending four days in this heautiful valley, I retraced my eteps. The great volume of waters having enhanced the beauty of ite scenery inversely to the consequent diminution of fishing poseihilities, the question forced iteelf into my mind, as I weuded my way ont hy Inepiration Point, who will dare eay that I am anything but a gainer hy my inability to oatch fish in the Yosemite Valley?

In 1884 the total collection of fish eggs by the United States Fieh Commission amounted to 189,190,485. In 1889 the collection of egge amounted to 593,362,610 eggs, of which 234,925,200 were obtained from the salmonidæ, including 216 700,000 from the white fish: 147,438,000 from the shad; 62,714,036 from the cod; 31,879 744 trom the pollock, and 93,000,090 from the wall-eyed pike or pike-perch. To these may he added millions of lohster egge hatched aud distrihuted, 23,400,000 eggs of the sheepshead, etc.

John Adams:—Whst is the moet polite thing you know of, Ramon?

Ramon:—I shonld ssy the brook trout. It rises to a fly.

A Deputy fish Commissioner went up to Donuer leke last week to investigate the complaints coucerning the went of a fish ladder at the dam. It was reported that he notified the owners of the property to put in a servicable fish ladder as eoon as practicable snd furnished them with plans of ladders. It is probable that one will he put in this sesson.

The Upper Yuba and Americen Rivers are just now at fishable height, most of the snow having melted. The Eastern tront put into the South Fork of the Yuha near Cisco have about hybridized ont of sight, the cross almost without exception being between the Eastern fish aud the cutthroat variety; the Truckee River trout in the Ynha not seeming to have been effected. The Ynba and Americen Rivers might he etocked with New Hampshire trout from Marlett Lake iu Nevada at very slight expense, and we have often wondered why the stocking hes not been done.

The Williamson River ie sustaining its repntation as the grandeet of trout streams. A perty which returned from that river week before last got many Rainbow tront weighing eight pounds or more, aud one fish was taken which weighed thirteen ponnds. Messrs. Jno. M. Adams, Eells and Leroy Nickle ere up there now, camped about six miles from the Indien agency juet where the Williamson and Sprague join, one of the best spots for fishing along the river. An advantege incident to fishing the Williemeou is that no tront need go to waete, no metter how great the catch, aay excese can be given to the Indians from whom it is quite often possible to get a hennch of fat venison in return. The trip can he made at an expense, including ell outlay and a stay say of two weeks, for $75.

A Nevada journel remerke: "Considerehle quantities of fresh sawdust float past every day on the waters of the Truckee, indieputable evidence that the law ie beiug violeted at some of the sawmills up the river. The freshete of thie seeson hed pretty thoroughly cleaned the river bed from all of the old sunken dust and the stream was in excellent condition for the heelth and propagation of ite native and transplanted inhabitants. The journal some weeks sgo, called attention to the fact, which it had learned on undonhted authority, that one or two of the mills on the Californie side were dumping their debris into the river, and it ie quite evident that the outrage is still being continued. It will he useless to endeavor to preserve our native fish or to cultivate other species from abroad unlese the sawduet husiness ie etopped, and stepe should be taken without delay to eee that the California law, which is identical with ours, is enforced on the other side of the line."

Fieh Commissioner Mille, of the State of Nevada, has devoted considerable valuable time to the propegation end cultivation of fish in his State, and it seems to us that the Legislature ought to appropriate more money to carry ont the enterprise. The present amount ie $1,000 a year for two years, when it ought to be double that for the protection of this heneficial featnre connected with the State.

The hatchery is at present situated in a very inconvenient place, and dnring the heated term the water is frequently shut off thus making it necessary to connect with the railroad water to keep the spawn alive. Should at any time a mistake occur and the hatchery not be snpplied, the destruction would amount to some 5,000,000 fiish in the epawn.

What the Commissioner needs is an ample appropriation, snfficient to meet all demsnds and place the hatchery in a locality where no fear of dronth wonld hinder the hatching process, and at the same time bring it nearer the principel bodies of water that are at present only partially stocked.

And what ie true of Nevada may also he said of California. Twenty thousand dollars per year could be well expended in stocking streams and in enforcing protection of fish and game.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—The regnlar monthly match of the San Francisco Gnn Club took place at the Oakland Trotting Park on Satnrday last, 19th inst.

The attendance was excellent, considering that so many of the members were away deer shooting and fishing.

The birds, as a whole, were a poor lot, now and again a real good one, hut many were "duffers" and refnsed to fly. This is the first time this eeason that the club has had to complain of the quality of Murphy's birds, hut they had good cause to.

Some admirable shooting was done by several members, notably, Messrs. Hamil on and R. B. Woodward, who made full ecores. Mr. Hamilton's shooting was particularly clean, using hie second barrel bnt twice in the match. He shot a 12, 7½ ponnd Smith hammerless, and a very hard hitting gun, it appeared to be. Messrs. Jellett, Donohoe, Gillette, Stone, etc., etc., also shot excellently well.

The last shoot of thie oluh for eeason 1890, will take place August 16th on the same grounds, and the team to contend ageinst a like number of the Alameda Clnb, will afterwards be eelected.

It is hoped that the Inter-Clnh match will take place on the last Saturday in Augnst, but much will depend upon whether the members of the two clnhs selected are in town. The prohabilities are, however, that the majority will have returned from their various ontings. Appended please find club score and that of a side match which followed.

At 12 birds, A. S. A. Rules, for club trophies.

Domestication of Antipodean Birds.

On his recent voyage from Australia to this port, Thos. B. Merry brought to Rosemeade some ornithological epecimens that have since attracted considerahle attention. There are three paire of the creeted doves of Queenslend, two pairs of bronzed-winged pigeone from New South Wales, and a pair of Australian wood-ducks from Victoria. The latter heve heeutifully mottled bodies and rich hrown necks, and are wholly different from the wood-duck of America, exoept in their hehit of nesting in the trees. These birds will be a valnable acquisition efter they are once turned out, hnt we are qnite confident they will not breed in captivity.

To-day at Monterey the Country Clnb hold its first tonrnament, open only to members.

The California Wing Shooting Club will meet at Oakland Trotting Park to-morrow at 9.45 A. M.

Will Rogers and Verne Down were out hunting at Cazadero last week and succeeded in killing five deer—a pretty good showing for boys.

To-morrow a metch for the Selby Standard Medal for artificiel target shooting will be brought off at the Lincoln Club grounde at Alamede Point, on the South Pacific Coaet railway. Shooting will begin at 10 A. M.

Mr. Joe Bassford, Jr., has been deer shooting in Steel Canyon for a week, not, however, with much snccess. The deer there are nnusually lsrge, bnt quite scarce. Why Mr. Bsssford has forsaken hie favorite gronnd on Putah Creek we do not know. Pntah has rendered up many fine bucks for the Baseford family. Some tripe as many as a half dozen.

It ie probable thet the Country Club will complete its negotiations for the Shefter ranch very soon and immediately begin improvements there. We are told that severel members will erect cottages in Bear Valley, from which point all of the quail and deer grounde are easily accessible. The place will he a most cherming snmmer home, hnt the rainfall in Marin County is so great as to make it donbtful whether winter residence there will be desirable.

Dr. W. H. Cook of Bakersfield was in San Francisco on Monday last and in common with the other Bakersfield men had much to ssy of the well known sportsmen of that City, that was pleasant. He reports that on July 18th, Henry Borgwardt, W. E. Houghton and a few others left Bakersfield for Tejon Canyon in eearch of deer to be goue some ten days. Mr. Houghton is a hnnter of the lucky sort, always getting good meat and plenty of it, and as a fly fisherman is facile princeps in Kern Connty.

Dr. I. W. Hays, dropped in from Grass Valley a few days ago to say that deer ahont that region are about exterminated, thanks to hide hnnters and other like vermin. We regretted to learn from the Doctor that Mr. Geo. Fletcher's health was anything but setisfactory, and we hope soon to learn of his return to corpore sonnduess.

Mr. Jim Shoemaker, according to the doctor, is the seme jolly, hungry, thirsty sportsman that he has been this thirty year.

Deer are quite numerous in northern Humboldt, and the adjoining counties of Harney and Malheur, Oregon. L. W. Nepton writes the Malheur Gazette that about forty Piutes are now hunting in that county and killing deer by the hnndred. They make no distinction between does and bucks. When a doe ie killed at this season her fawns starve to death as a matter of course, as they are not old enough to live without a mother. Mr. Nepton says deer are becoming fewer every year, and if the Indians are allowed to slaughter them indiecriminately at all seasone of the yesr, it will only he a short time until they become extinct.

While on their recent hunting trip, Col. Sam Beaver and Mr. Wm. Dormer hed a little experience which should teach them not to monkey with horuets. They had knocked down a hnck and hnng him to drain while they reeted and waited for the rest of the party. It chanced that the deer was hung near a hornet's nest, and when Col. Beaver, after much ado, succeeded in seating himself on the quarter deck of the nsually reliable old nag that hsd carried his 240 lbs. of avoirdupois in safety for eo msny days, two hornets alighted on the abdomen of that old horse, and did something or other that seemed to arouse the spirit of nurest in the animsl; he blew hie nose a few times, switched his tail with emphasis, kicked spasmodically, and finally begsn a good square buck. Col. Beaver's remarks duriug the tantrnms of the horee if pnblished, would loee him his situation in the Snnday-echool of which he has so long been an examplar. After a while, Dormer managed to free the horse from the jaws of the hornets, and the Colonel, without even so much as saying thank you, rode off to camp alone.

Mr. Thomas B. Merry speaks in the highest terms of the Japanese or copper pheasant, both for sport and on the table.

One party of five, headed by Mr. John O'Farrell, is credited with fifteen bucks, killed at Los Guilicos in Sonoma County last week. Another of six, with a dozen deer, near Ukiah.

Capt. J. A. McBeth, the Denver notable who has pervaded San Francisco for a few weeks, left for his home on Monday last delighted with his visit to California. We can assure him that the pleasnre was mutnal.

Why is it that during this season, when news is scanty and hard to get, our readers do not send along accounts of their adventures by flood and field either recent or in earlier years? They will find plenty of readers, and appreciative ones; such stories are ever entertaining.

Mr. R. T. Vandevort came np from Pasadena on Snnday last for a week's stay. He is on the qui vive for the coming field trials, in which he is, by reason of his experience and perfect candor, so prominent a factor as a judge. We hope to see him in a judge's saddle in January.

Mr. A. V. LaMotte will receive on August 2nd by the China steamer a crate of pheasants to be placed upon his preserve near Ukiah. It is his intention to confine the birds, remove their eggs, and hatch them under chickens and continue the practice until a good head of game can be turned down on the preserve, which can be done in a short time.

Lillian F. Smith, the California Girl Champion Rifle Shot of the World, made a great hit in Ashland, Or. At her shooting room hundreds of ladies and gentlemen witnessed her wonderful exhibition with the rifle. She also gave an out door exhibition on July 4th, on the balcony of the Oregon Hotel in the presence of 3,000 spectators. The audience gave three cheers for the "California Girl."

Mr. Joe G. Mansfield, literateur, athlete, angler and champion all round good fellow, rode into town from Sacramento last week breezy and bright as ever, and with a great batch of charming little stories about Nick White, the Bruners, Clint White, Howard Kimbrough, Charlie McClatchy, and the other leading young men of Sacramento. Mr. Mansfield's connection with the Record-Union of that city we are pleased to learn is satisfactory to both parties concerned.

In the hope of answering many inquiries in a few words, we may say that the organization styled the Sportsmen's Protective Association of California is in no way connected with the California State Sportsman's Association. The purposes of the two institutions are dissimilar; there is nothing in common between them in so far as we can learn. The State Sportsmen's Association has existed for some nine years, and is to be credited with all that has been accomplished in the way of game and fish conservation during that period. The other is of recent formation, and seems to be rather political in character.

Mr. Adam Damm, one of the finest shots in the State, and a leading sportsman of Sacramento, has passed some days in San Francisco recently, and has made many friends. He reports the Pacific Sportsmen's Club alive and energetic, and full of enthusiasm about the October meeting of the State Sportsman's Association. Two Sacramento teams will enter for the Selby trophy. It may be said, by the way, that all of the clubs holding membership in the association should begin the selection of their teams for the great team match, in order that a little practice may be had. At least ten teams should compete this year.

Mr. A. Decourtieux returned on Wednesday from a week's stay at the Gebhardt and Langtry Ranchos with Dr. C. W. Aby. The time was passed in riding about the magnificent property, looking at the stock, and sampling the yellow-legged chickens and sour mash dispensed with lavish hospitality by Dr. Aby. At the end of his visit, Mr. Decourtienx was taken back to Harbin Springs by the doctor in a narrow cart with a pair of horses hitched tandem. The distance is four miles over a mountainous road, and was made in twelve minutes by the aid of a whip and certain discordant screeches emitted at intervals by the mad doctor. Mr. Decourtieux reports the Gebhardt property in fine shape; quail abundant; deer to be had for the killing; fine catfish in myriads, everything, in fact, to drive dull care away.

Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co., at 630–632 Montgomery Street, city, announce in another column the receipt of several hundred hammerless guns. The announcement is suggestive of the progress of the firm toward a commanding position in the trade on the Pacific slope. The guns vary in price, from a very moderate sum to three hundred dollars for the exquisite premier arms made by that master workman, John P. Clabrough. The Clabrough gun has for many years been the most popular in local circles, partly by reason of its reasonable price, but mainly because of its unvarying excellence in materials and the good workmanship always to be noted. No more elegant lines, better balance, nor more "lively" feeling in the hand can be found than in the guns now being built by the firm for Western sportsmen. Messrs. Golcher invite inspection of their stock, and also send catalogues upon request.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Mr. W. S. Moore's foxterrier Nita to Mr. C. A. Sumner's Blemton Vesuvian, 14,290, at Los Angeles, July 17th, 1890

From August Belmont, Jr.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Not to embarrass the question to be below referred to with any mention of the other features of the attack of Messrs. Peshall, Malcolm and a few others upon the management of the A. K. C., Mr. Vredenburgh and myself in particular (I refer only to official duties), I beg to state that I have not at any time or in any manner paid into the treasury of the A. K. C. any money whatsoever to fill a deficit directly or indirectly, nor has anyone else.

The accounts of the club have been kept strictly on business principles, and the earnings and expenditures as stated from time to time by the treasurer are the honest and legitimate work rendered, and privileges granted by the A. K. C. organization, disbursed for only that which was honestly and legitimately regnired. There has been no juggling with the accounts. The amount of $1228.28 rendered as a balance in one of the treasurer's reports, which it has been claimed was not properly obtained has been explained and proved to the satisfaction of the Auditing Committee and any delegates who have desired to see the books.

Very respectfully yours, AUGUST BELMONT, JR.
President American Kennel Club.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 5. 1890.

An English Setter Club.

As seemed probable, the two organizations in the interest of the English setter have coalesced, and the following item is sent by the club.

"We, the undersigned, as members representing Conference Committe of the English Setter Club of America and the English Setter Club, agree to unite as one club to be known as the English Setter Club with the following officers for the year 1890:

President—Pierre Lorillard, Jr.
First Vice-President—J. Tredwell Richards.
Second Vice-President—F. W. Whitlock.
Secretary—Percy C. Obl.
Treasurer—Dr. H. Clay Glover.

Executive Committee—In addition to the above named officers, Major J. M. Taylor, T. H. Terry, J. C. Long, J. A. Graham, P. H. Bryson, J. E. Dagar, Wilson Fish, W. A. Power.

It is hereby agreed that after the payments of all debts incurred by each club the net balance shall be paid to the treasurer of the united club, and all members now in good standing in either club shall be received as such in the united club

(Signed) F. W. WHITLOCK.

Animal Renegades.

FELIX L. OSWALD IN "ZOOLOGICAL SKETCHES."

A singular character-trait of all animal renegades is their hostility towards their servile relatives. Travelers on the Rio Grande have to be very careful in picketing their saddle horses, for if they stray into the prairie they are sure to be "mobbed" and cruelly kicked by the wild mustangs. A Bokhara courier, it appears, would rather meet a panther than a troop of wild camels; the mere sight of the gaunt monsters will frighten a dromedary out of its wits, and unless the rider has much gunpowder to waste, the renegades, in spite of their timidity, come nearer and nearer, the cows stretching their long necks inquisitively, while the old males prance around with snorts that leave no doubt of their evil intentions.

This rancor seems to be aggravated by a sort of esprit de corps, for in private life wild and tame beasts of the same species agree well enough and even pair, voluntarily alliances between a dog and a female dingo, wild and tame hogs, mares and mustangs, etc., are by no means rare, but en masse their caste antagonism promptly asserts itself; just as a man may be the bosom friend of a partisan whose greeting in a public assembly he would hesitate to acknowledge; during the fever heat of our sectional feud more than one dweller in Dixie thought it his duty to ku-klux his own brother. The only animal I ever saw literally torn into shreds was a Mexican butcher dog that had followed us across the Bolson de Mapimi, the rocky plateau between the plain of Durango and the Valley of the Rio Grande. The dog's owner, a poor Chinsco, had tried hard to sell him, but finally decamped with my partner's saddle blanket, leaving his mastiff in lieu of payment; and, in accordance with a queer, but well known law of human nature, the poor quadruped then became the target of retributive attacks both verbal and practical; but, apparently mistaking our tent wagon for the lurking place of his missing master, he followed us with the resignation of a martyr.

The Bolson is a ravinous country, and on the day after the Chinaco's departure we passed a precipitous gully at a place where a broken wheel and a lot of scattered boards marked the scene of a recent accident. It looked like a slippery place, and, sure enough, down in the gully some forty feet below the road lay the carcass of a big mule, half buried in debris and surrounded by a swarm of tramp dogs. They had just begun their feast, and most of them were evidently in need of it, there were about twenty of them, two of the youngsters with a faint resemblance to half-grown shepherd dogs, but all the rest of a more than wolfish leanness.

Famine never reduces the body of a wolf beyond a certain point; his chest bones make him look stout in spite of his starved belly; but the skeleton of a dog seems to shrink together with his bowels; some of the tramps in the gully looked upon their backbones—"all legs and spine," like spider monkeys. The shrinking of the lips had barred their teeth and gave them an unspeakably savage appearance whenever they leered at us with their deep-set eyes. Something or other seemed to excite them, and, looking around, I saw our friend the mastiff standing at the very edge of the ravine and looking down with a sort of pensive interest. "That's what folks come to who lose their masters," he might think to himself as he gazed upon the hungry tramps. But, while he gazed, one of the muleteers approached him from behind, lifted his foot, and in the next moment the mastiff's reflections were cut short by a kick that sent him head over heels through the air into the abyss below.

What we call presence of mind is often nothing but an instinctive impulse—one of those instincts which a mortal danger awakens even in the human soul. Dogs are half human, guided partly by principles and prejudices, but in critical moments they act rightly from intuition.

When the mastiff landed in the gully he picked himself up and stood still, rigidly still, facing the tramps, who had scattered in every direction, but now gathered around him with ominous looks. They approached within ten or twelve yards and then came to a halt, watching the intruder with a steadfast gaze, silently, and with a gradual contraction of their haunches, like panthers crouching for a spring. Where the first movement is sure to be a signal of attack, even great strategists somehow prefer to let the enemy strike the first blow and thus betray his tactics—"forewarned, forearmed"—but circumstances are apt to disconcert such plans. A thing not larger than a hazelnut, a pebble thrown from the top of the rock, made the mastiff start just for a moment, but in that moment the pack leaped upon him with a simultaneous rush, and two seconds after the sounds of cracking bones announced the end of the unequal struggle.

They had borne him down at the first onset, and when they finally dragged him into the open gully I do not believe that there was an unbroken joint in his body. Three of the big tramps had done most of the killing, but now the whole pack laid hold, and in less time than it takes me to write the words they had torn him in pieces, not in the conventional but in the literal sense of the word—limb from limb and rib from rib—with a fury and a rage of destructiveness which plainly showed that hunger had nothing to do with their motives. It was evidently an act of revenge, provoked proximately by his unceremonious intrusion, but chiefly, without doubt, by the odium invidae, the pariah's deep-seated and long-cherished hatred of the privileged caste whose representative had dared to beard them in their den. What right had he to wax fat while they starved—to fatten in the service of the arch-usurper of all the good things of this earth and then mock the leanness of virtuous liberals? "La mort sans phrase!"

The London Shooting Times reproduces the picture of the pointer Old Black Joe, which recently appeared in this paper.

Mr. M. D. Walter told us last week that Miss Lansing's English Setter Sirocco by Sportsman—Sweetheart, had come to be one of the best hunting dogs he knew, having good nose, good judgment, all necessary pace and great staying power.

Red Setters are entered in several of the Field Trial Stakes to be run during the fall and winter, and not a few men are hoping for the success of the breed. In the Pacific Coast Field Trials Mr. Schmiedell of this city will start a red dog in the Derby which is likely to go near the money if reports of his Field qualities are accurate.

Mr. H. Boyd on Wednesday last remarked that he felt quite encouraged about the Merced Meeting in November; he apprehended in no difficulty in securing all needed funds whenever the committee should start systematically to collecting. The confidence of local owners in their dogs is quite unshaken by Mr. Lowe's promise to bring White Lips and other grand animals in his string. With Mr. Huntington, Dr. Van Hummel, Dr. Royce, and others of that ilk in the field with such veterans as Dominick Shannon, John F. Carroll, T. J. Cronin and fifty more who might be named, keen competition is sure to result.

"Brittle" contributes to the Fanciers Journal the following paragraphs, always of course with reference to our contemporaries.

To the Editor of the———

DEAR SIR: It may interest your readers to know that my champion Irish setter bitch, who is the most perfect on point—at a bone—in the world, was seen to scratch herself. The kennel man declared it was a little skin trouble, but I am positive it was a stray flea that must have come from Mr. ——'s in the next state. She has now eight splendid puppies five minutes old, the finest and largest I ever saw, by my champion dog, who, in spite of Mr. ——'s allusions to his being spikey-faced, undersized and soft-looking (the outcome of envy and jealousy) is the greatest wonder of the age, as his record of 300 H. C's at big shows, and 2000 firsts where there was no competition will show. As a true lover of this breed, and having spared no expense in procuring the purest blood, both imported and otherwise, to give breeders a chance I will book orders for this young stock at a price which such goods have never before been offered, and if not found to be the most genuine article yet put on the market, I will forward all claims to be considered a connoisseur of the breed, for having devoted a few hours of my life in reading Vero Shaw, Dalziel and Stonehenge, I think I can justly lay claim to knowing something about dogs. Yours truly,

——— ———,
Proprietor of the Long-winded Kennels.

To the Editor:

DEAR SIR: I must again apologize for trespassing on your valuable space (how valuable none knows better than myself, for it does away with the expense of advertising) but cannot allow the assertions of Mr. —— to pass unchallenged. He speaks about his dog being the stanchest and best that was ever seen in the field, when I know for a fact he is like all his breed, his father before him, and his grandfather as well, the most gun-shy brute that ever stepped. It is all very well for Mr. —— to offer to back his dog for $2,000,000 against my Champion ———, as he knows full well it cannot be accepted, as my dog is already 20 years old, and never having yet been seen working except by my sisters, my cousins and my aunts, it is not likely I shall run him in public now. Yes, much as I regret it, it is impossible for me to give the public even one chance of ever seeing the most perfect field dog as ever was, wipe up the earth with such potterers as Roderigo, Rowdy Rod, Roger, Toledo Blade, etc., but I will bet $100 000 (forfeit of one cent enclosed) that his great, great grandson, if he is out of my champion bitch's great, great, great granddaughter, will beat, within eighteen months after he is born, anything that such a notoriety seeker as Mr. —— can name. Kindly acknowledge receipt of one cent stamp. Yours truly, ——— ———,
Proprietor of Blow-Their-Own-Trumpet Kennel.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

FRIDAY, JULY 18TH AT OAKLAND.

"Kid" Carsey pitched magnificent ball in this game, the Stocktonians being able to secure but one trifling hit of his wonderful delivery, while on the other hand Mike Kilroy's curves and drops were bombarded all over the lot. The Colonels can play ball on their own grounds and did give a fine exhibition on this occasion. The Gas City boys were not in good playing trim, making several costly errors at the start and permitting the Oaklands to gain such a lead that all interest was lost in the contest. Armstrong had the second joint of the index finger of his right hand broken in the third inning trying to stop a wild pitch and retired in favor of Duane. The hitting of Stickney, Dungan and Lohman and the fielding of McDonald, C. O'Neill, Carsey, Selna, Hapeman and Wilson were tho features. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY JULY 18TH., AT SACRAMENTO

The Goblins had this game well in hand up to the eighth inning, when the Senators did some furious hitting and aided by an overthrow on the part of Ebright they scored four runs. This was sufficient to give them the game, but they added two more to their string in the ninth, the score closing nine to six. Hoffman pitched fine ball after the first inning, but three hits being secured off him from the second to the ninth. Bowman and Roberts both secured home runs in the eighth inning. Bowman's drive to the left field fence was the longest ever made on the grounds. The hitting of Godar, Bowman and Roberts, the finished fielding of Reilly, Shea, Stapleton and Reitz, and the backstop work of Stevens and Bowman, were the prominent features. Captain Ebright's work at third base was exceedingly poor. The umpiring of Donohue was very satisfactory. The score.

STOCKTON vs. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY, JULY 19TH, AT HAIGHT ST.

The Oaklands had an elegant lead in this game, and it looked like another defeat for Cahill's men. But the scene was changed in the fifth inning. It was then that the Stocktonians brought forward their reserve stock of base hits, and maybe Colonel Cobb didn't get a cannonading! Four base hits, one a triple, a sacrifice and a couple of woolly errors by Dungan and N. O'Neill, gave them four runs and tied the score. In the sixth they made six hits, getting five more runs thereby. This gave them the game. The terrific hitting of Selna, Holliday, Dungan, Lohman and Armstrong, and the excellent fielding of Fogarty, Fudger, Selna, Lohman and McDonald were the important features. Meegan was substituted for Cobb in the seventh inning, and did well. The umpiring of Gagus was as usual satisfactory. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, JULY 19TH, AT SACRAMENTO.

In the first three innings the Senators secured eleven runs, which gave them a complete walk-over. Chase was a mark for the heavy hitting Sacramentans, but the errors of the Friscos also helped them to victory. Lookabaugh went in the box in the third inning and pitched out a creditable game. Coughlin pitched his first game for Sacramento, and showed great speed and fine curves, but did not have perfect control of the ball. Five singles were all that were secured of him, which would have been exceptionally good work had it not been marred by his giving eight bases on balls. His support by Bowman and the in and out-field was almost faultless. The fielding of the Friscos was not good, Reilly, Hanley and Ebright doing the only clever work. Roberts, Bowman, Godar and McHale carried off the batting honors. Umpire Donohue called the game at the end of the eighth inning to enable the Sacramentos to catch the Stockton train. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, JULY 20TH AT OAKLAND.

The Goblins hit Carsey good and hard but ran the bases stupidly and so lost. Oakland took every advantage of their six hits and with the help of two bases on balls in the eight inning, Perrier's error and N. O'Neill's single they got two men across the plate winning handily. It was a very pretty game to look upon and greatly plessed the Oakland cranks. Ex-Colonel Hill made his appearance with the Friscos and played a brilliant game at center. Twenty chances were offered in left and center fields for both teams of which nineteen were accepted. Aside from the outfield work, the hitting of Perrier and Hanley, the base stealing of Reilly and the infield work of Ebright, McDonald and N. O'Neill were noteworthy features. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, JULY 20TH AT HAIGHT STREET.

When the Oaklands and Friscos are scheduled to play two games on the same day, in betting circles the odds are laid on Oakland winning both. Last Sunday was no exception to the general rule. The Friscos succumbed to the inevitable, or rather to Colonel Cobb and his eight colleagues. Chase was again hit hard and was also wild while his support was at times poor. Cobb was punched out hard, but the hits were well scattered except in the fifth inning when four hits, netting three runs, were bunched off him. After that he steadied down in great shape, not another single being secured. The game was not interesting, although there were some good plays made. In this respect Reilly, Ebright, McDonald and Carsey excelled, and Dungan, Lohman and Stevens were strong at the bat. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, JULY 20TH, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators forged ahead from the third inning and were never overtaken in this game. Coughlin and Perrott both pitched cleverly but the hits off Coughlin were scattered while those off the San Josquin boy were bunched at times and his support was poor. The game was devoid of any special features excepting the home run of Daly, the brilliant fielding of Roberts, Godar's third base play and the catching of Armstrong. The winning of this game made the eleventh straight victory for the Sacramentos. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, JULY 20TH, AT STOCKTON.

The Senators got but two hits of Kilroy in this game, while the Stocktons secured eight of Hoffman, and still the Gas City Beauties lost. Their defeat was, however, attributable to errors on the part of Fudger and Holliday. The Sacramentos got two men across the plate in the third inning on Fudger's error, of Reitz's fly, McHale's sacrifice and Hoffman's home run drive. In the sixth Goodenough hit one over second which Holliday failed to block and Goodenough made the entire circuit before the ball reached home. Aside from these errors the game was a very brilliant one. Reitz, Daly, Stapleton and Godar for Sacramento, and Fogarty, Selna and Wilson for Stockton played a marvellous fielding game. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, JULY 24TH, AT HAIGHT ST.

This was a most uncertain game, full of clean, hard hitting, and considerable sharp and phenomenal playing, which unfortunately was interspersed with several healthy, live-sized errors. But it was close all through, and toward the end looked like a Tenny and Salvator finish. Sacramento, however, lost on the stretch, the Goblins engineering two men across the plate on a couple of hits and some disastrous throwing. There was a big Thursday crowd present, and the grand stand was graced by many beautiful and handsomely costumed young ladies whose sympathies evidently were with the dashing Senators. Young made his reappearance with Frisco, and while touched up lively, was far steadier than Harper. There was some stupid base running and coaching on both sides, and had Stapleton's men taken better advantage of several chances, they would have been victorious. McHale carried off the batting honors, being closely followed by Ebright, while Shea, Levy, Hanley, Godar and Bowman also did some hard and opportune hitting.

The most brilliant feature of the game was Stapleton's marvelous catch of a foul fly alongside the grand stand, and for which he jumped three feet in the air. It was certainly the most remarkable catch of its kind ever made at the Haight St grounds. The double play of Godar, Bowman and Stapleton was also another very pretty and clever piece of work, while Shea, Hanley, Godar and Daly's general fielding was of a very superior order. Another pleasing feature was the superb base running of Bowman and Shea. For the first time Gagus' decisions did not meet with universal favor, and to all appearances the Senators got the worst of the deal. The score:

The Standing of the Clubs.

The Friscos have advanced uncomfortably close on Oakland's heels while Sacramento is so far ahead in the race that it is comparitively safe for a long time yet, and wont be overtaken without a severe struggle. Stockton still clings tenaciously to fourth place.

Professional Pick-Ups.

The new men are slow in arriving.

Milt Whitehead is to pitch for Denver.

Stapleton's motto—upward and onward.

Young and Shea have now fully recovered.

Fred Carroll's batting average is 368 up to date.

Ben Young is giving great satisfaction up North.

Billy Cooney is now playing with the Salem, Or., team.

It is possible that Latham will be transferred to Cleveland.

Charley Sweeney's plans for the future are not yet defined.

Keep your eye on Tom Agnew the new pitcher of the Alleus.

Holliday is a wonderful fly catcher, but he's often weak on ground balls.

Buffalo would like to secure the services of first baseman Jay Faatz.

Peek-a-boo Veach, recently released by Cleveland has signed with the Atlantic City team.

Josh Reilly who has been released by Manager Finn will hereafter play short for the Santa Rosas.

Farrell of the Sacramentos and Reilly of the Friscos have both been relegated to the amateur ranks.

Carsey says that Jack McGuckeu whom Robinson is negotiating for is a great outfielder and fine hitter.

Old reliable Pete Meegan is often brought to the front now, especially when the teams are in a tight place.

Ex-Colonel Hill played two games for Finn Sunday. Hill is quite a fielder and should be given another opportunity.

Our Tom Brown is doing some powerful stick work for Boston. His hitting average for the month of July is 350.

Van Haltran when not pitching is played in left field for the Brooklyn players' team on account of his heavy hitting abilities.

Hub Collins who was here with the Louisvilles in '86, is putting up a wonderful game for the Brooklyn League Club at second base.

Robinson is disposed to be generous. Should he get a third baseman whom he is after, he is going to present Stickney to Finn.

Gittinger, the heavy hitting left fielder of the St. Louis Browns, has been released. Here would be a prize for any of our local teams.

The Stockton Mail calls Kilroy the "king pitcher of the California League." Wonder where Coughlin, Carsey, Harper and Perrott get off at.

Gaffney and Sheridan are a good pair of umpires to draw to. They are undoubtedly the king-pins of the Players' staff.—Sporting Life.

Billy Cate, who, while with the old Knickerbockers, was considered a star outfielder, is now umpiring the Amateur games at Haight street.

Stockwell has caught on in great shape with the Des Moines people. With him and Traffley the team has a brace of very capable backstops.

"Comiskey's Chicago Cookoos" is what they call the World's Fair team now. If our home team was playing good ball, we could dub them Finn's Frisco Loo-loos.

The work of the Friaco catchers lack spirit and earnestness. Infuse a little ginger into your playing, boys, for we've always been used to seeing good backstop work in previous seasons.

Buck Ebright's work has not been anything very brilliant of late either at the bat or in his position. Still many think he's the best player in the Friaco team, but that wouldn't be saying very much.

Nick Smith is at home, but it is doubtful if he will play ball in the California League. There were some overtures made him but the consideration was not sufficient to induce him to don a uniform.

Willie Walter Veach is again on the ragged edge, having been released from Cleveland. Little Willie had been playing peek-a-boo with the beer keg again and covering its contents in splendid style.

W. B., Santa Rosa.

In our opinion B wins. The Santa Rosa team was defeated in the game. The protest cuts no figure in the case.

On the 19th inst, the Portlands with Whittaker in the box shut out the Spokanes; score 5 to 0. Harry O'Day, the California boy wonder, played with the Portlands, putting up an excellent game at second base.

Hartford of the Atlantic Association has had nine pitchers this season. The latest acquisition is Kidd, a player who combines religion and base ball. Twirler Kidd is said to be able to preach a fine sermon.

Gagus' umpiring has been a brilliant and unqualified success. Thoroughly capable, "without fear or favor," and immensely popular, Gagus can certainly be ranked foremost among the autocrats of the diamond.

Mike Tiernan still leads the League in long hits, with twelve doubles, ten triples and eight home runs to his credit. Reilly is right at his heels, with an even dozen doubles, the same number of triples and three homers.

It will take a long time for the Wilmington people to get over the effects of the Fourth of July, as their representative club won two games on that day, and it created such excitement that everybody in the place took a hand in the painting act.—Critic.

The Denver Club has a big burly outfielder by the name of Treadway, who manages to make himself very disagreeable and exceedingly unpopular by the manner in which he constantly quarrels with the bleachers. He is something of a pugiliat, and he is constantly talking scrap.

In the score of the Oakland—Stockton game of Friday July 18th, at Oakland there was an error in the base hit column. Lohman should have hit three instead of two hits, and Stickney four instead of three. The hits were credited to these players in the score book however, the mistake occurring in the call off.

Anson is a very much overrated man so far as team handling and work is concerned. Tom Burns is his pointer and source of information when technical kicks are on. Only Anson's hitting has kept him in the game. Comiskey's magnificent fielding at first base has captured Chicago and largely reduced Anson's admirers.—Exchange.

Dungan is hitting the ball terrifically of late. He generally gets in three or four hits a game now, and is rapidly approaching the top. With a few more men of Dungan's hitting abilities, the Colonels would be quickly lauded on top.

In a game of July 6th, between Jersey City and Wilmington, McGuckeu, the left fielder of Jersey, and the player with whom Robinson is negotiating, secured five hits off Wehrle—one triple, a double and three singles. Robinson evidently has his eye on good hitters.

Bad boy—"Lick me, an' ye'll be sorry." Teacher (holding the rattan aloft)—"Why?" "Cause if you do it'll make my hands sore, an' if they're sore I cant ketch in to-morrow's game, an' if I don't ketch the game'll be lost an' the name of the school dragged in the dust. See?"

Col. Robinson has engaged Charley Sweeney to play a few games with the Oaklands, pending the arrival of his Eastern people. Robinson would do well to sign Sweeney permaneutly, as it is very doubtful if any of his new men will be an improvement on the heavy hitting baseman.

A female aggregation of ball players came to grief on July 7th, at Akron, O., where a constable had attached the trunks containing their wearing apparel. The young ladies were obliged to wear their ball suits around the hotel they were stopping at until matters were settled up.—Clipper.

McCarthy will not in himself be strong enough to win all the games the Friscos need, and the assistance he will receive from Lockabaugh and Young won't amount to much. Besides McCarthy, Finn needs two more first class pitchers and several strong hitters in his team to have any chance for pennant honors.

The "battery" scene between DeWolf Hopper and Della Fox in "Castles in the Air" is the best baseball act done on the stage. Miss Fox's pitching is a great take off, and that part where Hopper gets the wrong sign is about as funny a scene as one often sees behind the footlight. It will pay you just to see that one scene if you are a baseball crank.—Ex.

Charley King of Chicago, holds the honor of being the first pitcher in the Players' League to dispose of an opposing team without a hit in a full game. This feat eclipses anything ever done by a pitcher, because of the increased pitching distance and lively ball of the new League, and also because of the superior batting ability of the team opposed to him.

Josh Reilly played twelve games for the Friscos, having seventy chances offered and accepting fifty-four, giving a percentage of .771. Of the sixteen errors made, nine occurred in two games, when Reilly was afflicted with a severe case of the rattles. Barring these two games, he would have accepted fifty of fifty-seven chances, which would have given him the very creditable percentage of .877.

The work of catcher Lohman of the Oaklands has been more than a surprise this season. Last year, when with Sacramento Pete was considered a very ordinary catcher, while now he has no peer in the backstop department in the California League except possibly Bowman. Lohman's strong forte is in throwing, and this combined with his remarkable agility makes him greatly feared by all base runners.

The following is said to have been dedicated to Mike Finn and his team of "wind beaters" last Saturday by Eddie Moran on receipt of the information that the home team had lost again in Sacramento:

Oh, Frisco's, dear Frisco's come home to us now,
Your record abroad is a "frost;"
You said you were going to win now and then—
But you've lost, and you've lost and you've lost.

White Stocking Park, Chicago, is by all odds the finest structure of its kind in the west. It is now finished and the playing field is as good as though in use for five years. Four months ago it was a cabbage garden. A bicycle and pedestrian track one quarter of a mile long is being put down. It will form a frame for the bright green field and increase the beauty of the place. It will seat 8,000 people, and four thousand chairs can be placed upon the track on days when the crowds run over the stands.—American Sportsman.

Last Sunday Perrier wore a bright new pair of stockings. This announcement, ordinarily would not be of much importance but we deem it as worthy of space and highly creditable to Mr. Perrier from the fact that his uniform was the only clean and tidy one of the entire Frisco team. It would seem that if the San Francisco team couldn't afford a change of uniform (evidently they can't) they could at least occasionally have a change of hosiery. Their excuse for appearing game after game in dirty faded brick colored stockings must necessarily be a very lame one as these articles are to be procured from all dealers at the nominal price of a few bits a pair.

In the Sacramento-Stockton game (score 3 to 2) at Stockton last Sunday morning, the Senators went to bat but twenty-seven times, and but three of their men reached first base during the game. Two got the bag on hits and one on an error, but all three scored. In the third inning Reitz reached first on the shortstops error and scored on Hoffman's home run drive. This tied the score, and in the seventh Stapleton's men won the game on Goodenough's hit, which Holliday failed to block, and then threw wild, the runner scoring. At one stage of the game the Stocktons had three men on bases with none out, and at another two on bases with one out, but in neither instance could they score. Three errors were made by each side, while the Stocktons had eight hits and Sacramento two. The battery for Stockton was Kilroy and Armstrong, and for Sacramento Hoffman and Bowman.

"Misfortunes never come singly" quoted Manager Finn last Sunday afternoon. We will readily concede the Hon. Michael Angelo's license to make use of that time honored expression but we will say right here that we think he himself is almost entirely responsible for the lamentable state of affairs now existing in his team. To release Sweeney his best hitter at the present stage of the game when all the other teams were being strengthened and playing winning ball thereby, seems little short of lunacy. Of course every man knows his own business best but if Sweeney was transgressing the rules of the team wouldn't a good stiff fine have had the effect of bringing him to his senses? To many it looks like a case of Finn "cutting off his nose to spite his face."

The Amateurs.

Games Played by the California Amateur League.

The race for the pennant preeents a different aspect this week, although the poeitions of the teams are etill the same. The Reports are advancing eteadily and snrely, while Santa Roea is retrograding. The Fincks show a hig improvement in their percentage of gaines won column, and the Vallejos are aleo making rapid strides onward. The Burlingtons and Vallejoe still ornament the "bottom of the heap." There has been an error in our averages of the Santa Rosa and Will & Finck teams eince the issue of July 12th. We were of the opinion that the game played between the above named teame on July 4th was a postponed game, and so gave the Santa Rosae, who won, credit for it in the table It now tranepires that such was not the case, it being merely an exhibition and ae snch doee not connt. We have rectified the error in this issne, which makee coneiderable change in the percentages. The appended table ie now correct being a full and complete list of games won and lost. The Report—Santa Roea game of the 13th inst., and won by the Reporte heyond all queetion of doubt in our mind, ie credited to that team. The record (to date).

REPORTS vs. BURLINGTONS.

Sunday, July 20th, at Haight St.

One of the moet exciting gamee ever played on the Haight Street grounds took place last Sunday morning. It was between the Reports and Burlingtone, and was full of hard hitting on the part of the Newslee, and remarkably smart and brilliant fielding on the part of the Railroadere. Ashman's boys banged out hit after hit in inning after inning, only to see them amount to nothing by the marvellous pickupe and catches of Sheridan's boye in blue. The pitchere were both in great form. Monet pitched his usual steady game, keeping the hite well ecattered. Young Walcott was aleo very effective, and ehowed great improvement. He hae yet one fanlt to master—wildness, and then he will be entitled to rank with his older colleagnes. The Burlingtone took the lead in the third inning, scoring one run on McKenzie'e double to left, Forster's eacrifice and Thompson's error of Bradley's sharp drive. In the fifth they secured two more on Bradley's hit, which forced Forster ont at second, Bradley taking the hag vacated by Foster on Thompson's error of Kennedy's hit, and ecoring on Mnlford's single Mulford went to third on tne hit, and came home on Conghlin's sacrifice. The Reporte scored and won the game in the sixth. Monet first np, banged out a single and went to third on McIntryes duplicate hit. Thompson's sacrifice, a long fly out to McKenzie, scored Monet. Dunphy then popped np a high fly to Kennedy, who erred, and McIntyre, hy fast eprinting, came home. Dunphy etole eecond, Creamer was awarded hie base on balls, and Sharp's "beant" to left, which Foreter let paes, allowed Dunphy and Creamer to tally. Thie ended the rnn getting, although the Burlingtons could have tied the score in the ninth bnt for their stupid base running. Deane got in a three bagger, and attempted to score on Foreter'e long fly to Sharp. Sharp, however, made a beautifnl field of the ball to Dnnphy, who threw to Green, catching the runner at the plate and competing a most wonderfnl double play. McIntyre and Monet led the hitting, and the tielding of Bradley, Kennedy, Deane, Sharp and Creamer were the features. Cate'e umpiring was not as satisfactory as usual, the Reports often complaining on some of his baee decieione. The ecore:

WILL & FINCKS vs SANTA ROSAS.

Sunday July 20th., at Santa Rosa.

Judging from the score, for which we are indehted to the Santa Rosa Repnblican, this game must have heen a wild and woolly one. Howell wae in the box for the Young Giants and wae hit but for four "eafeties", three of which were credited to Cook. Fitzgerald, formerly of Trihnnee, officiated for Santa Roea, and was hit hard. Hie support like that of Howell'e, wae of a most wretched character. The Sonoma boys' team on this occasion was not ae etrong as the one heretofore shown, Pace, Stnlz and Callen being absent. Despite the remarkably poor playing there were some few good featnree in hitting and fielding. At the bat, Frank Delmas, Deeney and Cook were wonderfnlly etrong, while Tillson, Gimmel, Delmas, Kelly and Arlett performed some clever work in the field. The score.

VALLEJOS ve. E. T. ALLENS.

Sunday, July 20th, at Vallejo.

The "Marinee" won thie game juet by an "eyebrow," and it ie claimed that umpire Dick Morphy figured very conepicuously in the victory of the Vallejos. The contest wae won and lost eeveral times by both teams, and when Hnghes came in with the winning, run in the ninth inning, the excitement was intense. The "Sports" hronght up a strong team, and for the firet inning had McGlade in the box. He wae pitching fine ball when hie arm suddenly fell to his side almost helpless, and requiring the attention of a physician. Phillpot then went in and pitched out a good game. Parker's support was firet class. Baltz waenot ae steady as nenal, giving six basee on balls, and having two wild pitches ecored againet him; he was touched up for ten hits. Gene Broderick played third for the visitors, and wae given a rousing reception. The fielding of both teame wae etreaked, neither side having any particular advantage in this respect. Buckley, McGuire and Hughes, distingnished themselvee at the bat. The fielding work of Lewis, Buckley, McCarthy, and the catching of Parker and Farrell, were aleo featuree. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

The Reports have a good lead.

Pace ie Santa Roea's heaviest hitter.

'Scieeore" Dunn wae laid off last Sunday.

Where is John Dow, the old Cleveland pitcher?

Deeney, of the "Yonng Giante" ie quite a hitter.

Vic Monet ie pitching the finest quality of ball now.

Firet baseman Kelly is a great favorite in Santa Roea.

Billy Noble ie now catching for the Kaste of Oakland.

McIntyre still continues to get in hie two and three hits a game.

The Young Giante have commenced to climb the hill again.

Jack Ryan did not play with the Vallejos in the Allen—Vallejo game.

Tom Maguire hae given great eatisfaction in captaining the "Marinee."

The "Railroaders" as a team are the smallest men in the amateur league.

Leland, formerly of the Los Angelee team, ie now playing right field for the Allens.

The batting honors are pretty evenly divided between Pace, McIntyre and Sharp.

It is conceded by almost every one that Tillson ie the beet short etop in the amateur leagne.

It is said the Allene were robbed out of their game at Vallejo Sunday by Umpire Murphy.

Billy Farrell, recently released by Sacramento, will hereafter play second for the Yonng Giants.

Gene Broderick has been eigned by the Allene and ie playing a great game for them at the third corner.

Fitzgerald of Oakland has been signed to play with Santa Roea. He will alternate with Callen in the box.

Scotty Evatt eeeme well placed at ehort field. On hard hit grond balls he ie particularly strong and his throwing lately hae been very speedy and precise.

John Thompeon was way off in his fielding last Sonday, which ie an exceptional thing with him as he is generally considered one of the surest men on ground hite on the coast.

Dan Philpot is rapidly coming to the front as a twirler. Philpot has fine curvee, coneiderable epeed and a good head, and only lacks experience. With a few monthe practice in the amateur league, he will be connted along with the best of his claee.

For a live clever player, one who ie "up to date" on all points of the game, that boy Sharp is a "cracker jack" of them all. As a tielder and thrower he etande at the head, and when he comee to the bat he can generally be counted on for a eure shot.

According to an enthneiast, one who claims to have no favorites, and who has particularly watched the work of the pitchers, Monet ranks foremost, Baltz eecond, Howell third, Callen fourth and Leveqne, Philpot, Williame, Walcott and Fitzgerald following.

Bradley has developed into a rattling fine eecond baeeman. He now plays that bag "out of sight" covering a large territory and being remarkably qnick in touching a rnnner. The part he played in two donbles laet Sunday was excellent evidence of hie surprieing ability.

Manager Warren has greatly strengthened the Young Giants and they are expected to make thinge warm for the leaders heneeforth. Their winning the game with Santa Rosa Sunday places them safely above the 500 mark and has given the team great enconragement.

It ie quite probahle that after next Sonday the Santa Roeae will not visit thie city again. They mnch prefer playing on their own grounde, before their own people and where the gate receipts are almost ten timee the remuneration they receive here. We don't blame them.

A player who would be a good one to eign is Shorty Mahony. Shorty can cover eecond or ehort field positione as cleverly as any of them, and is an exceptionally active and eure right fielder. He can aleo hold his end up well at the bat, and ie a daring and snccessful base runner. Besides, he is aleo considered a mascot, every team he hae ever played with being particnlarly lucky.

The past week has been one of accidente for the amateurs. Joe Leveqne ie unable to play, owing to a badly eprained ankle, and Ruse Pace, of the Santa Rosas, had the thumb of his right hand mashed last Sonday morning hy the press of the Santa Rosa Democrat. Pete McGlade, who had just signed with the Allens, also wrenched the corde of hie arm while pitching for that team at Vallejo Snnday. His injury is snch as will probably cause his permanent retirement from the diamond.

Manager Aehman is the happy daddy of a bouncing ten pound baby. Last Sunday while speaking over the event the writer asked, "Well, how is it?" meaning the baby. The genial manager, his face radiant with smiles, triumphantly shouted, "Safe at home." Ashman says that in a few years he won't be tighting proteste becanee he ie short of a player, as he expecte to then have one of hie own. As yet Aehman Jr. can't do any back etopping, but he's already learnt the art of twirling hie fingers in daddy'e hair and muetache, and when he wante to, can pitch hie voice so that he delivers a mighty hard hawl.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS,

SUMMARY.

With the exception of the Olympic Club's 11th cross country run which wae held at Sausalito on Snnday last there is nothing of importance to chronicle this week. The out door amateure are keeping up practice with the avowed intention of making good records at Sacramento, on September 17th. The wheelmen are praying for a little rain as the roads at the present time are covered with dust. The grand old game of cricket appears to he gaining in the favor of the sport lovers and several good games are on the list to be decided in the near future.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

P. J. Sheedy, of the Alpine Club, has gone on a two years trip to Ireland. At the present time he is visiting his birth place, Rothkeele, Co. Limerick. During his sojourn in the Emerald Isle he will compete at some of the Irish athletic meetings under the colors of his club.

During his recent visit to Willows, Young Cooley succeeded in winning an unlooked for prize, viz., the heart of the belle of that town. A speedy marriage is talked of.

Many ugly rumors have lately been circulated in connection with Little and Kendal, the professional runners. Some weeks ago both men were involved in a "fake" race which took place at San Jose, Cal. It is claimed that even the most intimate friends of the contestants were "thrown" on the occasion. Principals, backers and "suckers" have been engaged in a windy war ever since and during the past week several hand to hand fights are reported as having taken place. It is hinted that more trouble may be anticipated between the principals and their backers.

W. H. Phelps of the Olympic Club is reported as having made some very fine time in sprint trials lately. Some of his club mates think that he is a second edition of champion Schifferstein.

On September 9th there will be a race for old time runners at the Olympic Club games.

Once more it is reported that Purcell and Schifferstein have retired from the athletic world. It is safe to say, however, that as long as there are any laurels to be won neither man will put aside his running shoes. Good athletes as a general rule never retire as long as they hold the upper hand.

Several members of the Olympic Club took part in a cross country run from Jackson's cottage at Sausalito on Sunday last. The run was over the old course to Lime Point fog whistle and return. Skillman, Scott, Cooley and Espinosa allowed their club mates a handicap of five minutes. The scratchmen started at 11 o'clock after the other runners were out of sight over the hills. Before the turning point was reached most of the slow men were overtaken. Kortick and Foster were the first to reach Lime Point. Cooley and Christie got home first in forty-two minutes. Ten minutes later the main division headed by P. D. Skillman, Kortick and Espinosa ran in in the order named. Some of the novices made a gallant showing against the veterans. The run was under the direction of Captain George W. Jordan. The next run will probably be from a different place as the Sausalito course is becoming stale. The following athletes took part in the run; Captain George W Jordan, P D Skillman, N Y A C, W A Scott, F L Cooley, J L Christie, G F Green, E M Frances, J B Cox, P M Wand, J C. Kortick, W M Phelps, Martin Espinosa, Douglas B. Crane, H H Egbert, Charley Jellenek, F F Foster, W H Wood and W P Henry, W F Bouton acted as starter.

The Alameda Olympic Club will shortly hold another cross country run when members of the Olympic, Alpine and Lurline Clubs will be invited to participate.

The cricket clubs are looking for new grounds. There are now half a dozen clubs in existence and as the game is bound to become popular on the Pacific Coast the cricketers are trying to secure good practicing grounds across the bay. If proper arrangements can be made the Fair Baseball Grounds at Alameda will probably be secured.

At the beginning of the present year athletics were booming and it seemed an assured fact that out door sports were about to become popular once more on the Pacific Coast. Never since the time when Belcher, Hawks, Haley, McIntyre and other old timers were in their prime did the prospect of a grand revival look more bright, but alas! the boom was of short duration. It was expected when the Alpine Club was started that the promise of such startling rivalry would excite public interest which would continue throughout the year but the issue of the championship meeting brought matters to a crisis. It is true that the quality of the sports at the championship meeting was first class but then the public always likes to witness club competitions. The late championship meeting was of a too one sided nature to enlist real attention from the spectators and many who attended expecting to see a close fight for the pennant went away sadly disappointed. Had the Alpine Club not been in existence it is probable that the attendance would have been painfully small for it was to witness the battle between this club and the Olympic that many hundreds of persons paid their half dollar at the gate. Now that the question is finally settled and victory once more sits high in Olympian Hall to stay there may be for ever, the public mind is at rest and the Olympic Club will have to rely solely on its own friends for future support. As an instance, when the O A C announced a meeting for July 4th the public did not expect any great competitions and so it remained away. The University Athletic Club is not a staying institution. It enters its men only at championship meetings or when it holds its own field days. It hardly encourages athletics as well as it should. The Olympic and Alpine Clubs are different; they always plan to advance out-door sports and the athletic meetings which these two clubs hold every once in a while should be well patronized by the public in whose interest the amateur athletes are constantly working and for whose amusement they undergo a strict course of training month after month.

AT THE OARS.

The ball given at the Park Opera House, Alameda, on Saturday evening last by the Alameda Swimming and Boating Club was well attended. The net receipts will amount to over $200. There are now seventy-five members in the club and as the population of Alameda is daily increasing this young club before long is bound to become one of the leading boating organizations on the Pacific Coast.

Several crews were noticed on the bay on Sunday. The boys seem determined to keep up training and the contests which will be held under the auspices of the N. S. G. W. promise to be well patronized.

The next meeting of the Pacific Rowing Association will be held at Irish American Hall on Monday evening, August 4th, at 8 o'clock. It is thought that the Alameda, South End and Union Club (of Stockton) will join the association at the next meeting.

The South End Club recently initiated thirty new members and the prospects for a still larger increase in membership are bright.

The Ariel's amateur crew are anxious to become professionals. They have twice won the club's cup and should they be fortunate enough to win it again it will remain in their possession for good. Then they will probably desert the amateur ranks.

The Lurline Club will have a chowder party at Angel Island to-morrow.

Charles Artigues and Samuel Solomon will row a shell race for the championship of the Triton Club some Sunday in September.

Henry Tank, of Alameda, is thinking about joining the Alameda Boat Club. He is a fine oarsman and would prove a very valuable acquisition to the new organization.

The Alameda oarsmen in conjunction with some of the local men will make an effort next year to have a boat house built by the C. P. Co. in the vicinity of the mole.

The Ariel Club will hold a high jinks at the club house, Long Bridge, on the first Sunday in August.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

There is but little activity in club circles across the bay. The Reliance, Acme and Alameda Olympic clubs have no intention of giving any entertainments for the present. The late boxing rumpus has had much to do with this quietude and the members are confident that after the storm blows over an increased activity will be shown by all the amateur clubs.

A match game of cricket between the first elevens of Alameda and Burnaby clubs will be played on the grounds of the Alameda Cricket Club to-morrow. The game will begin at noon.

THE WHEEL.

The Bay City Wheelmen have not as yet been able to secure a suitable lot upon which to build their new club house.

The number of wheelmen are increasing in Alameda and Oakland and it is probable that there will be a boom in cycling across the bay before long.

The road race is still engaging all the attention of the wheelmen and speculation is rife as to who will win first place. It is not actually necessary to train very fine for a long road race and it is expected that many of the retired wheelmen will make their re-appearance on this occasion.

IN THE SURF.

Another accident occurred at the Terrace Baths, Alameda, on Sunday. A young man was standing on the top of the high diving ladder preparatory to jumping into the water below when he suddenly lost his balance and fell headlong on to the platform beneath, a distance of about thirty-five feet. He was badly shaken up and it was a miracle that he did not break his neck.

The warm weather continues and the bathers still enjoy themselves in the briny deep. Sunday was unusually warm across the bay and the Terrace bath house was fairly thronged all day. Business was quiet, however, the following days. There was only a moderate attendance at the Shelter Cove Baths.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I met A. Cooke, of the Alpine Club, a few days ago and that gentleman informed me that he was getting up a team of cricketers that would stand a show against any team on the coast. He also said that his club would shortly place a fine football team in the field.

The amateurs appear to be highly pleased at the idea of an athletic meeting being held at Sacramento. Some of the old timers who are tired appearing before San Francisco audiences will shake the rust off their shoulders and take a trip up to the Capitol in order to afford the country folks a chance to see them run or jump as the case may be.

I heard a good many of the athletes growl because all the running events on the State Fair programme are not handicap. Half a dozen men to my knowledge would enter the half mile run if it was a handicap race, but as it is probably two or three will have that event to themselves. If Skillman is here at the time he will have an easy win with Scott and Sutro to battle for second prizes.

I hope there will be three or four good judges of walking as the track is as large as the Bay District. The last time there was a walking race at the latter place there was a big kick and I hope this time there will be no room for kicking as some of the coast records are liable to go under again.

I understand that the members of the Sacramento Athletic Club will tender a reception to the visiting athletes on the 17th of September. I am inclined to believe that twenty or thirty of the boys from this city will take the trip up. All the best runners, jumpers and walkers of the Olympic and Alpine clubs are in training and some excellent competitions will be witnessed.

Last Sunday morning I took a walk out to the Olympic grounds and the track was entirely deserted. Peter McIntyre informed me that the boys were all across the bay enjoying a cross country run.

I had quite a talk with Little, the runner, lately and that worthy gave me some information which certainly opened my eyes. Speaking of Skillman he said "why, I'm no more of a professional than he is, and if he thinks he can beat me at any distance I will give him a chance to make a couple of hundred. Its all bosh about a man wanting to remain an amateur when he can make a cool five hundred or so in a single day, whereas all the medals a man could win in a life time when melted down would not net half that amount."

Now that the picnic season is about over I suppose that P C A A A (that is if it ever meets again) will be kept busy investigating the numerous applications for reinstatement that are bound to flock in. A good many of the picnic runners will get left this time for the association is bound to enforce its laws in future. RAMBLER.

JOTTINGS FROM ALL OVER.

The four-mile race for the amateur championship of Ireland took place at the Balls Bridge Grounds, Dublin, on June 28. J. J. Mullen of Armagh won in 21 min 9 2 5 sec. J. B. McCabe, Cavan, was second, by two hundred yards. These were the only starters out of a large field that finished.

The American sculler C. G. Psotta, started against G. E B. Kennedy in a trial heat of the race for the Diamond Sculls at the Henley-on-Thames Regatta, Eng., July 8. After rowing a few strokes Kennedy caught a crab, and overturned his boat, but Psotta, instead of rowing over alone and taking the heat, returned to the starting point and informed the officials that he would give Kennedy another chance. Upon starting again, the American pulled to the front at once, but after going half a mile his antagonist overtook him, assumed the lead, and won the heat by eight lengths. The winner was heartily cheered, but the sportsmanlike action of Psotta in refusing to take advantage of Kennedy's mishap gained him a lot of friends and he was heartily cheered also. The final heat was won by Guy Nicholls.

The following amateurs have been disqualified by the Executive Committee of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsman until they disprove certain charges against them: Delaney and Robertson, Don Amateur Club, Toronto; Gray, of the Bayside Club, Toronto; J. Lovell, Dennis Donahue and Jerry Donahue, of the Nautilus Club, Hamilton. The committee passed a resolution declaring that oarsmen who associate with men who attend regattas only for the purpose of betting are liable to be disqualified

The Warren Athletic Club of Wilmington, Delaware held their annual Summer games on Saturday afternoon, July 12. The entries included many prominent athletes, members of clubs in other cities, the weather was fine, and the attendance numbered above a thousand. Summary:

One hundred yards run—Samuel Jones, W A C, first; E E Ramsdell, A C S N, second. Time, 10 1-5s.

One mile bicycle race—W C Seeds, W A C, first; F M Dampman, W A C, second. Time, 3m 6 2-5s.

Putting 16lb shot—H M Dickinson, C A C, 32ft. 1in; M Mackinzie, Y M C A of Philadelphia, 32ft. 11½in.

Running high jump—F F Sliney, N J A C, 5ft. 4½in; Z H Lofland, W A C, 5ft. 2½in.

The Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union held a meeting at Washington, D. C., on Saturday night, July 12, at which the following athletes were reinstated: Hugh Farren, Boston; Thomas D. Phillips, N. Y. City; F. Scholflin, Newark, N. Y. and W. Gaffney, Gloucester, Mass. The following clubs were admitted to membership: Louisville Athletic Club, Lonisville, Ky.; Wanchusetts Boat Club, Boston, and the St. Andrews Society, Detroit, Mich. It was proposed to alter the date of the national championship field meeting to October 11th, and if the Manhattan Athletic Club will give up the date, which is that fixed for their Fall games, it will be done. The case of Pat Cahill was not settled, it being decided to request the New York Athletic Club to use its influence to induce Benny Williams to tell all he knows that may have a bearing on the case. In the interest of the purity of amateur athletics Mr. Williams should do this without being importuned by any one. The committee appointed to investigate the charges against M. W. Ford reported progress. During the evening the Columbia Athletic Club entertained the members of the Board right royally, and they all returned home deeply impressed with the hospitality of the Washingtonians.

Phil. Carsey, the champion handball player of the world; Barney McQuade, who has been second only to Cassey as an expert at the game for many years in this country; James Dunn of Brooklyn; Phil. Smith, from St. Louis; Edward Moran, also a prominent exponent of the pasttime; Richard Cronlin, the Brooklyn contracter, and William Gillen sailed for Europe on Saturday, July 12. The players will give exhibitions of the sport in different parts of Great Britain, especially at Dublin, Cork and other cities in the Emerald Isle. There was a big and enthusiastic crowd of old friends and admirers at the steamer's dock to see them off and wish them good luck and a glorious time abroad.

W. C. Downes, of Harvard College and the New York Athletic Club, on Wednesday afternoon, July 9th, made a successful attempt to lower Wendell Baker's record for running a quarter mile, 47¾s. The attempt was made on the straight of the Beacon Park, Boston, Mass., where Baker had made his unequalled time of 1886, and the trial was supervised by competent officials and witnessed by a number of person, notice of the attempt having been previously given. Downes was fortunate in having very favorable weather, and ran on a specially prepared track. He ran 400 yds in 45s,, and 440 yds in 47 2-5s., thus lowering the record at each distance. The timers stationed at the 400yde mark were Eugene Buckley and F. N. Woods, of the Boston Athletic Association and John Graham, the Harvard College trainer. Those at the finish—Eugene Merrill, Boston Athletic Association; S D See, Pastime Athletic Club and Robert Stoll, New York Athletic Club.

Parties who witnessed the trial having called in question the correctness of the track, claiming that it was twenty feet short. Messrs. See and Stoll, two of the measures and timers, on July 11th, went before a notary public and made affidavit that every thing was regular. The documents appear below:

State of New York, City and County of New York, s s: Robert Stoll of the City of New York, being duly sworn, deposes as follows:

That he was present at Beacon Park, Boston, Mass., on Wednesday, July 9th; that he assisted at the measuring off of a course four hundred and forty yards; that William C. Downes of the New York Athletic Club, ran the full course of four hundred and forty yards; that deponent acted as A New Departure at Detroit.

The Detroit management are progressing, and among the events of their great race meeting that began on Tuesday were several races of mile heats, two in three, a welcome change from the stereotyped three in five contests that have won out so many audiences of would be pleasure seekers, and killed so many good horses. Those who wish to see many two in three races established claim that the present system is a relic of barbarism, that it is peculiarly adapted to the requirements of jobbery, inflicts cruelty on horses that deserve better treatment, wears out all non-professional spectators, and above all other objections is the fact that the best horse, and the owner who makes a square fight for honorable victory can be combined against and beaten.

One horse uses the first few heats for a preliminary warming up, merely dropping inside the flag, while the rest are doing their level best to win the race; then when those who have done all the fighting are tired, the horse who has had an easy time in the background wins the last heats of the long drawn out contest, and is straight way called a game race horse.

True gameness can be much more satisfactorily proved by contests that require every animal to fight from the word go. Too much warming up is done at the expense of public time and temper. Horses should be sent to the post ready for a genuine scrimmage, and in a two in three race they would have to get to the front immediately or not at all. More races could be trotted in a day, and horses would last longer, giving us much more material with which to furnish popular sport.

Trotting has not the hold on popular favor that it ought to have. Our meetings must have more interesting features—and kill fewer horses.

The First of August.

The first day of the coming month has always been a very eventful one in the trotting history of this State ever since a circuit was first formed, for on that day the larger portion of all purses closes for the coming meetings. This year there are more than ever, as several of the Associations have advanced their times of meeting and consequently will close the entry list at the same time this year that the majority of the other organizations do.

While it is usually claimed by the Eastern Sporting journals that racing in California extends from the first of January to the 31st of December, as a matter of fact there is hardly a State in the Union east of the Rocky Mountains but what has more continuous racing than is held here in this State. From present indications, and from the number of horses that we know of that are in training at present, there is every reason to confidently expect that a larger number of entries will be made this year for our local circuits than ever before.

First and foremost comes the meeting at Los Angeles for which quite a number of horses are entered from the central portion of the State, notwithstanding the long distance which will be required to be traveled to arrive at their destination. The meeting at the Angel City extends from August 4th to 9th inclusive, and is followed in the next week by San Jose, which has claimed from August 11th to 16th. Following the Garden City in regular order, comes Napa, Petaluma and Oakland, all of which present to the public, programmes superior to any ever offered before, and as over $50,000 will be divided at the last four places mentioned, those who attend to see good sport will undoubtedly be satisfied.

At Glenbrook Park the 17th Agricultural District Fair will be held commencing August 19th and continuing for five days. This will be the sixth annual repetition of the event, and as in the past the meetings have always been highly successful, it is only fair to assume that this year will be no exception to the rule. We learn from the Secretary that the track is now in first class condition, and the association, relying on the promises made by prominent horsemen, are convinced that they will have a very large list of entries for their various events.

The four northern towns of Willows, Red Bluff, Chico and Marysville have associated together and formed the Northern California Circuit, and in the four weeks of the racing season there, $18,000 will be hung up in purses. As there are so many first class horses in training this year, we cannot but consider that those northern points will receive the support of the horsemen who feel that they cannot take advantage of the large purses offered by the more wealthy associations, and will try to pick the plums so generously offered by the northern societies. We have reason to know that the tracks at all the four points are in excellent condition, and that the racing will be of the best goes without saying, and as there are gentlemen connected with each of the associations who have had many years' experience in racing matters, everything will be done that is possible to conduce to the comfort of those who patronize these four meetings.

As is only natural to suppose, a great many of the trotters, runners and pacers that will be scattered over the State while these many meetings are going on, will all center at Sacramento for the Annual State Fair, which commences on September 8th and extends to the 20th. During the two weeks, nine days' racing will be given, and the programme is of such a character that it must commend itself to all who have horses to enter. Lack of space prevents the enumeration of all the events which are advertised to be trotted at the various places we have mentioned, but now that attention has been called to the matter, horsemen will undoubtedly go carefully over our advertising columns to see where it is to their best interests to enter at.

Following closely after the Fresno Fair, the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will hold their second annual meeting at a point to be hereafter designated, and in addition to the many stakes which have already been closed, they ask this week for entries to a Free-for-all Trotting Purse of $1,500. Another purse of like amount is also offered for the 2:20 trotting class, while $1,000 is hung up for the 2:40 performers. In addition to these three purses there is also $1,200 offered for the Free-for-all Pacers, and $800 is offered for the 2:30 pacing class. Entries to all of these will close on the first of August.

The Portland (Oregon) Speed Association have also entered the lists and advertise for entries to their fall meeting, which will commence on September 9th and continue to the 13th. A "bill of fare" is put before the public that has never been equalled in our sister State, and over $12,000 is offered to those that will take part in the sport. The only difference between the Associations in California and that of Oregon is that the trotting and pacing races close in Oregon on August first, while the running events do not close until September 1st.

Remember that entries close for many purses and stakes at the following places on August 1st: San Jose, Willows, Napa, Red Bluff, Glenbrook Park, Petaluma, Chico, Oakland, Marysville, Sacramento, Stockton, and Portland, Or.

What Makes the Sportsman?

Several well meaning and respected readers of this paper, who live at a distance from centers of population do not seem to understand the attitude of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN with reference to what is styled the "Sportsmen's Protective Association of California." Those who have read the paper since its initial number or for any length of time must know that it has throughout its career been unhesitating and unreserved in its advocacy of all schemes and measures, making for the elevation of sport, its generalization or the refinement of any of the appliances used in it. It will also be recalled that the California State Sportsman's Association has invariably presented its annual statements and reports through these columns and has received the active support of this journal. Why we withhold countenance from the "Sportsmen's Protective Association of California" can only be explained at greater length than our space at present permits, but a few intimations may be offered. We are not of those who deem it necessary that a man to be a sportsman should possess a gun of high value or of any value; a dog of unexceptionable breeding or of any breeding; a rod worth ten cents, thirty dollars or any rod at all. We have never held it essential to entrance among sportsmen that the applicant should have an income at any fixed figure or that he should be affiliated in ordinary business pursuits with men of any trade or profession especially. We hold it to be non essential what one shall wear, whether dear and far-fetched or home spun and homely, or whether he goes afield, equipped conveniently or in most awkward plight. None of these things move us. We do deem it essential, however, that the sportsman shall practice his art only at certain and proper seasons, such as are prescribed by nature and by the law of the land.

That he shall exercise his privileges in manly fashion, not, for instance, for the sake of the bag, shooting into the thick of a bunch of quails on the ground, sending off more maimed birds to die lingering deaths than he retrieves, but taking them fairly as they fly, singles or pairs. We insist that in his excursions, he shall scrupulously regard the rights of his fellowmen, in respect to their physical well being, the possession of their fish and game, and the sacredness of their premises. It would be absurd to demand that all sportsmen should be alike courteous and polished, nor is it necessary so long as they are true men, self-respecting, and holding others in respect. When we find men who slaughter indiscriminately in and out of season when beyond fear of detection; whose only restraint is the fine likely to be imposed by the law; whose abstinence from trespass is due only to fear of land owners; whose general conduct is such as to stamp them as willing to override law, ethics, and propriety, then we refuse to accord to them the title of sportsman, let them claim it never so loudly or try to enforce recognition by means never so demagogic.

As we understand the matter the Sportsmen's Protective Association of California, undoubtedly containing some sportsmen under the most rigid definition, is yet as a whole banded for the purpose of overturning, limiting or abolishing rights and privileges which citizens and property owners have enjoyed since time immemorial. We believe the Protective Association so called as a body, in practice, does anything but protect game or fish. We believe that if the wishes of the majority of its members could be followed, they would be permitted to go when they pleased, where they pleased and for such purposes as they pleased with an eye single to their own gratification and without regard for rights inhering in any other men. If we are wrong in our belief and the fact can be made to appear, none who know the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will doubt its willingness to be set right and we offer space for any temperate and considerate discussion of the matter.

The National Trotting Association Rules.

We have lately received from the Secretary of the National Trotting Association a quantity of their new rules revised up to date, including the last meeting of the members which was held in February last. As many of the Associations in this State belong to the National body, the Secretaries should send to us for them immediately. As there are a large number of changes made from the old rules, it is absolutely necessary for all the officials of the different Associations who are guided by the National rules to secure the new ones which have just been issued. We will mail them to any one on receipt of 30 cents.

The Stockton Fair.

As will be seen by reference to the advertising columns, the Directors of the Stockton Fair this week present their programme to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Five day's racing will be given, commencing on Tuesday, September 23d. Running, trotting and pacing all stand an equal chance, as there is about an equal division made in the programme.

As will be seen by referring to the advertisement, there are a number of the races which close on the first of August, while there are two others for the thoroughbreds that do not close until September 1st.

The 2:22 and 2:27 Classes.

Some time ago the P. C. T. H. B. A. advertised for entries for the 2:22 and 2:27 classes of trotters, both of which purses filled. In these, payments are made on the installment plan, and it would be well for all those who have entries in either of these purses to remember that the third payments are due on August 1st. The conditions of both of these purses are such that if a party having a nomination fails to make the payment when due, he forfeits all money previously paid in.

The Breeder and Sportsman Futurity Stake.

For the last time we call the attention of all parties who made entries in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake, that a second payment of $10 on each nomination is due on the first day of August. From the large number of entries that were received, there can be no doubt but what this stake will be far ahead, from a financial point of view, of any that has ever taken place in California. Remember second payments are due in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake on next Friday, August 1st.

Our Los Angeles Letter.

Everything is running smoothly for the opening meeting of the grand circuit, and judging by the interest evinced the attendance promises to eclipse the most sanguine expectations of the Directors. The Secretary is booming the opening day, an especially strong card having been arranged for that day. Usually the crowds in Los Angeles do not turn out until the latter part of the week, but it is intended to stir up the people of Southern California early in the contest this year. The track now presents a lively appearance every morning, and hundreds watch the horses work out. The following weights were announced on Tuesday for the two big handicaps.

Nadeau Hotel Handicap, one and one-fourth miles—Daisy D 119, Brutus 118, Abi 117, Moses B 116, Odette 111, Naicho B 110, Index 109, Four Aces 105, Gladiator 104, Marigold 102, Captain Al 101, and Lerghetta 101.

Southern California Handicap, three-fourths of a mile—Daisy D 121, Abi 118, Brutus 116, Kildare 111, Applause 111, Odette 110, Apache 110, Ona 107, Dan Murphy 105, Marigold 107, King David 105, Carmen 107, Gladiator 102, Comet 100, Johnny F 100, Installation 100, Cordova 95 and Sir Ladd 95.

Word reaches here that the grand old Shiloh died last week at the ranch of Jim Madison at Julian. Shiloh sired such well known performers as John Treat, Mikado and Odette, and with the proper opportunities would have made a name for himself second to none in the State of California. At the death of Mr. Treat Mr. Madison purchased Shiloh for a mere song. He was born on the day the battle of Shiloh was fought.

QUARTER STRETCH GOSSIP,

At a meeting of the Directors of the Sixth District Agricultural Association on Monday evening, it was decided to hold the annual Fair between the 14th to 19th inclusive. Quite a number of the local horse owners purpose taking in the Northern Circuit. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has made many friends in Southern California by giving such good notices about the coming meeting.

Spotts, a colored driver from Kentucky, will be seen behind the sulky in several races at the coming meeting. He is training Dick Richmond for the 2:30 trot.

McLelland, who formerly trained for the Santa Anita stable, is living quietly in the San Gabriel Valley.

The Hon. H. M. LaRue has been invited to be the presiding judge at the opening meeting of the grand circuit.

Jim Leach has arrived at the track from Coronado. The son of Inca is reported to have improved wonderfully under the handling of Traynor. Leach is now owned by Wyatt Earp.

The candidates for 2:30 honors are all doing splendidly. Dick Richmond cut one of his legs, but he is all right again.

Interest is already running high on the chances of the Derby candidates. Raindrop, Captain Al, Larghetta, Marigold and Gold Dust are entered, and the race promises to be a hot one from the fall of the flag.

Clara T, the Kingfisher filly, is ailing, and will in all probability not face the starter at Los Angeles.

The starters in the 2:30 trot on the opening day are: Lucy R, Glendine, Dick Richmond, Barbora and Jim Leach.

Owing to the inexcusable blunder of a Post Office employe, the letter containing the entry of Applause for the Southern California handicap did not reach the Secretary until a week after it had been received at the Post Office. There are just eighteen entered in that Toboggan Slide event, and it promises to be the sensational betting race of the meeting.

Brown names Rayanetta by Anteeo; Perry Sear names El Verano Maid by Dawn; I. M. Proctor names Vesper Bells by Dawn.

The Undine Stable.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean has the following to say about the runners in the Undine Stable:

The Undine stable, consisting of the mighty miler Racine, Rinfax and Homer, the first and second in the Friendly stakes, and Glenlivet go to Monmouth Park to-night, and Narvice, the jockey, goes with it. Unfortunately Racine is in only one stake race in the East, and that is the "Protectory" stakes at the fall meeting of the New York Jockey Club. Burlington, Torso, Tournament and other good ones are in it, but as they will have to carry penalties as stake winners and Racine will have none, and as in addition the distance is one mile, he should, if he keeps well, win it. The stable has had fair success at Washington Park, considering that it only has four horses. Three of them are what is termed "out of sight," and Glenlivet will probably be heard from later.

Homer, the colt, who ran second to Rinfax in the Friendly stakes, does not strictly belong to the Undine stables, the proprietors of which are Messrs. Thomas Williams and Ira L. Ramsdell, but to the last named gentleman alone. Mr. Ramsdell bought Homer when he was three days old, for $1,000, and wanted Williams to stand in with him, but that gentleman declined, consequently Mr. Ramsdell bought him for himself. Homer is a full brother to Garland, who broke down at Washington Park in the Oakwood handicap in 1885, when it was won by Spalding, the mile and an eighth being run in 1:53¾, and the then record broken. Garland was fired by Dr. Shephard, but died. He ran a remarkable race in the handicap, and Mr. Ramsdell told Mr. Welch that if he bred another Garland he would buy him. Homer's dam died shortly after his birth, and he was suckled by another mare. There is no doubt that when the Undine stable reached Washington Park they intended to win the Friendly stakes with Homer. The colt, in coming here, however, ran a nail in to his foot and became lame. It was then that Mr. Ramsdell made up his mind to buy Rinfax, and he telegraphed to Mr. Williams, who was in California, to do so. At first that gentleman did not want to stand in with the deal, but he afterward concluded to do so, and is consequently well pleased to-day. The fact of Homer not belonging to both partners in the stable, and Rinfax being a thorough stable colt accounts for Narvice riding the latter. After Rinfax had won his race on Thursday Mr. Williams said: "Which colt is Narvice going to ride in the Friendly stakes? I suppose as he is the stable jockey, he will ride the stable colt." Mr. Ramsdell had not thought of this, but seeing the propriety of the reasoning did not object, and secured the services of Winchell, who, by the way, has severed his connection with the Winter's stable. Ten days ago Homer could hardly put his foot to the ground, and it was feared he would not be able to start, but he improved rapidly, and is now none the worse for his mishap, and neither Rinfax or he are feeling any ill-effects from their gallop in the mud. The doings of Racine, Rinfax and Homer in the East will be watched with interest.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S, 1117 Golden Gate Avenus, San Francisco.

W. M.

My horse has had a bad cough for the last week and for the last two or three days is off his feed. He appears very weak and staggers when walking. What shall I do for him?

Answer.—Your horse has most probably got an attack of pneumonia, and you should call in a competent veterinary surgeon immediately to examine him. In the meantime put him in a comfortable box stall, if it is convenient to do so. Put a thick woolen blanket on him and woolen bandages on his legs. Give him nothing to eat but a small soft bran mash or a little flaxseed tea, and a carrot or two; and take the chill off his drinking water. You may have to blister his chest, but it is impossible to give you the full line of treatment without seeing him and examining his lungs, temperature, pulse etc.

J. C.

My business mare picked up a nail this morning and is very lame from it. What is best to do for it?

Answer —Get the hole pared out so as to give exit to the matter which may accumulate there, and poultice it daily with bran or flaxseed. When the matter has ceased to appear on the poultice get a shoe on the foot, with a leather sole, and tar and oskum.

L. C. W.

I would like some advice through the "Veterinary Column" of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, regarding my mare's leg. She is four years old, standard bred, and very promising; consequently, I am anxious about her. Some two weeks ago, on returning from a drive on the road, I noticed she had a swelling on the inside of her fore leg, just below the knee, on the edge and a little back of the "cannon bone." There was also a slight swelling on the outside of the leg along the main sinew. I bathed the leg in cold water and afterwards applied Kendal's Spavin cure, have continued this treatment ever since. The swelling has all disappeared except on the inside of the leg below the knee, although this has been reduced. One man who examined it said it looked something like a splint. Another declared it was not because the leg was too clean. My mare is not lame at all, nor has she been at any time, and this swelling seems to give under the pressure of the fingers. The mare stands firmly and well balanced on her legs, and a day or so ago she got out of the stable and raced around like "wild" for some time before I could catch her. It did not seem to effect her leg any. Please give me some advice as to what is best to do and oblige.

Answer.—Your mare has probably hit the inside of her leg with her other fore foot. This is a thing that frequently occurs in fast driving. I should advise you to apply cold water from the hose to the part for ten or fifteen minutes, morning and evening, and after each application rub it dry with a coarse cloth and afterwards with your hand for several minutes. The reaction caused by friction after the cold application is very beneficial and often removes such swellings without the aid of a blister. If this treatment is not effectual at the end of a week, blister her with beniodide of mercury blister, one part beniodide of mercury to eight parts lard. Do not drive her until the swelling has disappeared.

A constant reader.

Please give pedigree of Lancaster and Membrino Rattler. Are both of them standard bred?

Answer.—Lancaster by Owen Dale, dam untraced. Membrino Rattler by Biggart's old Rattler, he by Sir Henry, he by Henry, he by Leonidus, he by imp. Leonidus. Dam of Henry by Bishops Hambletonian, g d by imp Messenger. The dam of Rattler by the Hyde Horse, he by Magnum Bonum out of a Nimrod mare. Nimrod by old Messenger, grand dam of old Rattler by Magnum Bonum. Magnum Bonum was bred by David Long of Cambridge out of a Messenger mare; 3rd dam by Old Messenger. The dam of Membrino Rattler was by old Membrino, he by old Messenger. Neither are standard bred.

Can you give the pedigree of a horse called Abdallah or an Abdallah horse, said to have been brought from Kentucky? The horse stood at or near Chico during the year 1878.

Answer.—We do not know of such a horse standing at Chico. Perhaps some of our readers can give the information sought.

Argent vs. Cyrus R.

On March 1st a match was arranged between the owners of Cyrus R and Argent, and the following conditions were signed and forwarded to this office:

SAN JOSE, March 1, 1890.

We the undersigned agree to trot our respective horses, viz., Cyrus R and Argent, a match race for the sum of five hundred dollars ($500) a side, said race to take place over the track of the Santa Clara Valley Agricultural Society, at San Jose, Cal., on the 31st day of July, 1890, the race to be mile heats three in five to harness, and under the rules of the American or National Trotting Association, that the said Society may adopt. A deposit of five hundred dollars ($500) each must be made with the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of San Francisco, Cal., on or before March 5, 1890.

Mr. T. W Barstow reserves the right to make the said stake five hundred dollars ($500) or one thousand dollars ($1,000) more, on or before the 30th day of July, 1890.

If the said day (July 31st) is unfavorable, the race may be postponed to the first day thereafter.

[Signed] T. W. BARSTOW, owner of Cyrus R;
R. H. WALTON, owner of Argent.

[Witness] G. H. BRAGG.

According to the above, Mr. Barstow will have to let us know by Wednesday next whether he desires to increase the stakes so that we may notify Mr. Walton as soon as possible. Without knowing definitely, it is fair to assume that the match race will take place on next Thursday.

Grim's Gossip.

O. A. Hickok started Alfred S. for the first time this year in the 2:18 class at Detroit, and won in the clever time of 2:18¼ and 2:19¼.

Can any of our readers send in to this office a history of Vick's Ethan Allen from the time he came to this State until his death?

Some of the Eastern Sporting journals make mention that John Mackey has gone to Europe for the purpose of purchasing a Hermit stallion.

It would be well for all who are interested in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake to remember that on August 1st the second payment of $10 each is due on the nominations.

Wyatt Earp of San Diego has three horses in training under the mentorship of Frank Treanor, who are all promising fairly well. I learn that these horses will all be entered throughout the circuit.

"Lil" Boggs of Lake County paid Pleasanton a visit on Saturday last to see his horse Keepsake worked out. The trial was eminently satisfactory, and the race goers may expect another sensation in store for them.

Letters for the following gentlemen are in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Postoffice box: Wm. Hogoboom, Geo. W. Stout, M. D., M. W. Hodskins and Martin Murphy. If the owners will send for them they will be forwarded.

A six year old Electioneer Stallion is offered for sale by Mr. Thornquest of Oakland in this issue. The horse is warranted sound in every particular, and should be eagerly sought after by those that are now looking for that celebrated blood.

Prince Warwick, the Alcona representative that Hickok has in his stable, was third to Suisun in the fourth heat of the 2:24 trotting class at Detroit. This young horse is a rare good one, and I fully expect to hear of him beating 2:20 before the season closes.

The Fresno programme will not close this year until after the Oakland meeting, as Mr. Baldwin, the efficient manager, has decided that it will be far preferable to re-class the horses than have them go through the entire circuit in the same classes in which they start.

On Wednesday next a carload of running horses will leave Sacramento to take part in the meeting at Los Angeles which begins August 4th. The carload will represent the stables of Col. Harry I. Thornton, Chas. Kerr of Bakersfield, and Matt. Storn of Sacramento.

Col. Irvin Ayers informs me that Fanny Fern has had a handsome filly by Mambrino Wilkes, and that the mare is giving milk in abundance. This is extremely fortunate, for her last two fillies had to be brought up by hand owing to her not being able to suckle her foals.

Matt. Dwyer, formerly of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, but now training a public stable at Fresno, has taken charge of Junio 2:22 and will try to lower his record this season. In the same stable and acting very cleverly is Fresno, a bay gelding owned by F. P. Wickersham.

The respective owners of the converted pacer Silky and the trotting mare Minnie R. are devoting considerable time in talking up the merits of their respective animals. According to the Petaluma Argus, a match race may be expected between the pair for $1,000 a side.

The Directors of the San Joaquin Association have declared off the 2:25 trotting guaranteed purse, which was to have closed on July 15th, there not being entries enough to warrant them in going on with it. They will probably give a purse of like amount for some other class of horses.

If there are any of our readers who care about leasing 325 acres of good farming land, an opportunity to do so will be found in our advertising columns this week. The ranch is situated one and one-half miles from Napa City, and for farming, alfalfa and fruit land cannot be beaten anywhere.

Mr. Chas. Reed lost by death lately the Hermit stallion, Mr. Pickwick, and to replace him in the stud has bought from Wm. Lakeland the well known horse Exile, paying for him $15,000. He has also purchased from David Gideon the unbeaten French Park by King Ban, for which he paid $10,000.

E. B. Gifford has Atto Rex in training at the Los Angeles track. For a time it was supposed that he would hardly be able to stand to his work on account of a leg; however, he is moving nicely and gives every indication of having speed enough to hold his own against the horses that he will meet in his own class.

In a conversation with Henry Welsh a few days ago, he informed me that he has eight horses in training for the coming campaign; among the number being Peel and Flambeau. The latter will undoubtedly be started as a Palo Alto representative in many of the stakes and purses which will be run off this fall.

Mr. Wallace announces that volume 9 of the Register will close September 1. Persons having pedigrees that they wish to have registered in this volume should forward them without delay. There will be a rush about the time the volume closes, and pedigrees arriving late will, in all probability have to go over to volume X.

C. C. Thornquest, who is located with his racing stable at the Oakland race track, calls the attention of our readers to the fact that he has the five-year-old pacing mare Alameda Lilly, record 2:39, for sale and that he will take a reasonable price for her. She is by Washington 2:21, dam by General Taylor, and can easily show a 2:20 gait at present.

Wesley P. Balch offers $10,000 for a free for-all stallion race, with four moneys, entries to close August 16, with entrance fee ten per cent. due on the day of the race, which is set for September 17. This will undoubtedly bring together a great field of trotting stallions, for he has promises of Axtell and Palo Alto, while at least a dozen others will be on hand.

Capt. Brush of Stockton recently purchased from S. Cady a Nephew colt, which by many is supposed to be one of the speediest youngsters ever bred in San Joaquin County. With no preliminary handling he was turned loose for a quarter of a mile one day last week and completed the distance in 39 seconds. With the assistance of a good handler this colt should very readily pass into the 30 list.

Jno. A. Goldsmith of the San Mateo Stock Farm has purchased from W. Z. Price of San Mateo, a two-year-old bay filly by Guy Wilkes, dam San Mateo Belle by Speculation. The price given for the filly was $2000. She is an extremely good individual and bred as she is, should make a fast trotter under the careful handling of Mr. Goldsmith.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is under obligations to Capt. T. B. Merry for several handsome pictures of Australian race horses. Among the number are counterfeit presentments of the great runner Melos, and the equally well known Arsenal. As elegant additions to our picture gallery they are highly appreciated, and no doubt will be much admired by the many visitors to this office.

For some time Mr. A. T. Hatch has been looking about for the purpose of securing a farm suitable for starting a breeding establishment on a large scale. I am pleased to announce that he has lately secured 4,400 acres in Tehama County, over 1,000 acres of which is good rich valley land, and extremely suitable for the purpose required. Mr. Hatch will make many improvements and alterations before sending his stock up there.

A week ago last Sunday the race loving people of Turlock had the pleasure of seeing two running races, one of 600 yards and the other a half mile. For the first event there were three entries, Harry Stean's Ginger Ale, E. Ducker's Minnie and Mr. Clifford's Diamond. Ginger Ale proved the victor in 42½ seconds. The half mile running race was also won by the same horse, Modesto Fox being second.

The Greeks were the first to establish trotting races. Pausanius, in his "Description of Greece" (Volume I., page 317), shows that the Greeks did this at their celebrated Olympian games as early as the seventy-first Olympiad, continuing them to the eighty-fourth—440 to 492—a period of fifty two years. Pausanius flourished 174 years after Christ, traveled throughout Greece and wrote a minute account of all he saw.

It would seem as though the California horses this year are going to do more for the reputation of the State than has ever been done before. On Friday last a telegram was received from Saginaw Mich., stating that Cricket had won the 2:20 race in three straight heats, the best time being 2:17½, Margaret S. started in the 2:18 class and won; her best time being 2:17½, reducing her record a second and three-quarters.

The meeting at Detroit this week has been closely watched by Californians, as a number of representative horses have been named on the cards as starters. It is a pity that we go to press so early on Friday morning, as a synopsis of the Margaret S. race would be interesting to our readers, but we can only hope that she will win it and bring additional credit to our State. The latest accounts are that the Salisbusy mare won the first heat in 2:18, and Allerton won the second in 2:16¼.

On Tuesday afternoon the good news was telegraphed from Detroit that Cricket had won another pacing race; this time reducing her record to 2:14¼, winning not only first money but also $500 in addition, which was offered by the Association for any pacer in that class that would beat 2:15. Cricket has stamped herself a good mare since her arrival in the East, and Mr. Salisbury has every right to feel proud of her racing abilities, notwithstanding the fact that he does not own her.

The Oakland Driving Association has evidently come to stay, if the crowds that assemble at the Oakland Park each week is any criterion to go by. They have now a membership of over 150, and the secretary informs me that there is hardly a week but what from ten to twenty new members are proposed. These associations tends greatly to enhance the interest in the trotting and pacing division, and there are many other cities and towns in this State that might imitate the example so well set by these Oakland gentlemen.

The Merchant and Manufacturer's Stake of $10 000 was trotted for at Detroit on Wednesday and Thursday last, the winner turning up in Walter E., who won the second, fifth and seventh heats in 2:18½, 2:20 and 2:23¼. Walter E. is a bay gelding by Patchen Mambrino, dam old Morgan by Wagoner. The owner is Robert Stewart of Kansas City. Sunsun, a mare by Electioneer won the third and fourth heats in 2:18¼ and 2:22, the former time being a new record for her, and adding still another to the 2:20 list of Palo Alto's great sire.

The Directors of the Tehama County Agricultural Association held a business meeting on Saturday last for the purpose of letting the privileges for the coming race meeting. The pool selling went to L. H. D. Lange, who tendered the Association $250 for the privilege. The track is now nearing completion, and many horses are being worked there daily. From the character of the ground on which the track has been built, is is confidently expected that it will be one of the fastest track in the northern counties.

The free-for-all pacing race at Detroit did not fill as well as was expected many of the "cracks" being at the Pittsburg meeting. On Thursday the day set for the race, only three horses appeared for the word, they being Adonis, Williard M. and Gray Harry. Owing to the length of time consumed in finishing the other races, the pacing race had to remain uncompleted until the following day. As it stood when postponed only one heat was paced, Adonia winning that with perfect ease in 2.16¼.

A correspondent in San Bernardino writes that Mr. Kelly has Valentine moving along with much of his old-time speed, and he also has Happy Prince, who is fully expected to get a record of 2:25 or better this fall; and Tropic by Vick's Ethan Allen has also shown considerable speed. The same correspondent also writes to say that a foot race had taken place at the race track between Tom Morris and an unknown. A claim is made that the hundred yards were negotiated in nine and three quarter seconds, but for the sake of the records we would like to have the starter and timers send us a certificate to that effect.

Senator Hearst has finally done what it would have been wise for him to have done long ago, says the N. Y. Times. He has got rid of the kid-glove trainer of his stable, Matt Allen, and has put his stable in charge of Albert Cooper, one of the best trainers in the country. Now that the change has been made, there is little doubt that Senator Hearst's horses will before long be seen in front instead of in the rear at the finish. Mr. Allen turns over to Mr. Cooper as finely-bred a lot of horses as any man ever owned, and after he can get them into racing condition, which Mr. Allen never could do, they will certainly prove to be money earners. One thing is certain, the Senator's horses will not now be sent to the post unless they are fit to run.

Mr. La Grave, the Secretary of the Amador and Sacramento Association, whose meeting will be held at Ione, commencing August 5th, sends in this week a list of the entries received for the various events which closed on the 15th of this month. He also asks me to announce that extra races will be arranged during the meeting, so that if any horses are brought there who have no engagements that there will be a chance for them to run for liberal purses. As has been stated before, special reductions will be made in passenger fares over the various railroads. An excursion train will also run from Sacramento and Stockton.

The Chicago stable of racers, who have been running in and out as it has suited the gambling of their gambler-owner George V. Hankins to have them run, is in bad odor at Washington Park, Chicago. The recent defeat of Santaleno by Atticus was the straw which broke the camel's back, and the club has decided to accept no more entries from the stable. Some of the Southern owners of racing stables say that unless Hankins, who is proprietor of gambling houses in Chicago, is expelled from the track, they will never again be represented at Washington Park. The officers of the Association are now making an investigation.

Since she was purchased by Mr. Shultz and taken to his farm near New York City, says the Breeders' Gazette, it has been discovered that the pacer Gold Leaf, whose record of 2:11¼ was made last year when she was four years old, is quite a trotter, it being possible to drive her a mile on a trot better than 2:30 any day. It is understood that before the present season closes Gold Leaf will be fitted for as fast a mile as she can show at the trot, the idea being that two records, both better than 2:30 and at different ways of going, will enhance her value for selling purposes as well as make her colts worth more than they otherwise would be.

Some months ago I had the privilege of driving out behind Ashland Almont 3481, owned by Mr. Wm. H. Ashby, of Oakland, and was very favorably impressed with his speed. On Saturday last the horse was started for an exhibition half mile to let these present see what he was good for, and although only taken from stud service the day before, he easily negotiated a half mile in 1:15¼, the last quarter in 36¼ seconds while the last eighth was made in the really creditable time of 16¼ seconds. Those who saw the performance speak of the horse very highly and there is no doubt but what before the season finishes this noble pacer will get a good low record for himself.

During the week ending July 12th the Californians at Washington Park, Chicago, fared very well in regard to money won, the following being the names of those who won $500 and over:

G. V. Hankins	$4,005	Holloway Bros.	$607
Santa Anita Stable	3,850	T. H. Stevens	600
Undine Stable	3,250	T. O'Hara	600
George Hearst	2,835	Megibben & Co.	600
T. Licalzi	2,000	S. Bryant	500
W. H. E. Smith	1 750	A. McGuigan	500
J. W. Guest	1,500	Buckland Stable	500
W. O Scully	1,425	Avondale Stable	500
Whitten Bros.	700	M. Daly	500
Kelly & Samuels	700	C. P. Fink	500
F. Kelly	650

Two of the three guaranteed purses offered by the Stockton Directors filled very nicely as the following list will show.

Tuesday, September 23, 1890.—Trotting, 3:00 class: guaranteed purse $1,000. S. H. Crane, Turlock; F. P. Wickersham, Fresno; San Mateo Stock Farm, San Mateo; Pleasanton Stock Farm, Pleasanton; Percy Williams, Undine; Palo Alto Stock Farm, Menlo Park; D. M. Reavis, Chico; L. U. Shippee, Stockton.

Friday, September 26, 1890.—Trotting, 2:30 class: guaranteed purse $1000. Owens Bros., Fresno: San Mateo Stock Farm, San Mateo; Geo. W. Theuerkauf, Gonzales; Palo Alto Stock Farm, Menlo Park; D. M. Reavis, Chico; Thos. Smith, Vallejo; L. U. Shippee, Stockton.

As I predicted last week, the owner of Belle Hamlin seeks to evade the question and returns Mr. Hickok's compliment by proposing another sort of a race. He says 60 per cent of the gate shall go the winner and 40 per cent to the loser, and in a sort of a way confesses that Sunol is the superior of his mare. When the great filly from the Pacific Coast completed a half mile at Detroit on Thursday last in 1:02½, it may have surprised the Eastern people who saw her for the first time, but to the Californians who have watched her closely, there was nothing remarkable in the feat, as that is about the notch at which she can be sent the first half, and it is almost a positive certainty that she can go the other half in 1:04½. That would make the mile 2:07, and there are hundreds on the coast to-day who think that Sunol can complete the mile in that time.

The race going people of Hollister have about completed a race track which will be the equal of any in the State. It was started for the purpose of having it ready in time for the coming fair which begins on September 2nd, and which will far surpass anything of the kind ever seen in that section. Speaking of the race track the Advance says: The race track at the new fair grounds when completed, will be one of the fastest in the State. The turns are 385 yards in length, with 500-yard stretches. The track is modeled after that of the Agricultural Society at Sacramento. The turns are thrown up on the outside over twelve inches, which will enable a trotting horse to turn without diminishing speed. Some great exhibitions of speed may therefore be looked for in the future. A horse power and pump have been purchased and will be placed in position to pump water into a five thousand gallon tank. The track will be ready for driving upon next week.

Lee Shaner has his hands full at the Petaluma track and is working many hours each day to prepare his charges for the coming circuit. Mr. Whitney's Anna Belle, the promising two year old, from whom so much is expected, is moving along nicely, and Mr. Shaner seems to be of the opinion that barring accidents he will get a record for the filly of 2:30 or better. Emma Temple has but little trouble in negotiating quarters in 35 seconds, and on several occasions she has been asked to beat 2.25 for a full mile and finished the work easy. Mr. Shaner also has Oaknut moving very rapidly, and his owner thinks that before the rainy season sets in that the stallion will make a mark considerably below 2:25. It is reported that Mr. Burrell will shortly go to Honolulu with a consignment of trotters, among them being Lot Slocum we do not know how true this is, but if several first-class trotting horses are taken over to the Hawaiian Islands, the Kanakas may expect some good sport.

B. C. Holly's Trotters at Vallejo.

Last Sunday I took a trip to Vallejo partly for information and partly to get away from the obnoxious fogs of San Francisco. After an hour and a half's ride in train and boat, I got off the cars at Flosden—a side track for the old Vallejo race track—and in ten minutes was discussing the prospects for the circuit with the veteran horseman, B. C. Holly. Runner or trotter, it seems all the same to "By;" he has proved on many a track that he could hold his own at either game, though of late years he has conceded that his time and health are too valuable to waste on runners and trust to a boy's handling, while in the other business his master-hand can gnide a Woodnut or some lesser light to victory.

On being asked what he would have on the circuit, a gloom overshadowed Mr. Holly's face as he said: I can't tell; luck seems dead against me. Distemper—for the first time since I have been here—stopped several more than useful youngsters, one in particular, being thought a world-beater and with good reason; he is Hollywood by Woodnut, 2:16¼, dam Aurelia (twin filly) by Albert W., 2:20, grandam Pacific Maid by Elmo 891; next dam by David Hill out of a General Taylor mare, and her dam by Williamson's Belmont. Hollywood (a yearling) was entered round the circuit, but distemper stopped him, and he had to be turned out. Woodside then had a spell of sickness which has left him very much pulled down and stiffened up, but he should pick up rapidly now; he is a well bred and shapely two-year-old, is by Woodnut, 2:16½, dam Veronica by Alcona 730, grandam Fontana by Almont 33; great grandam by Alexander's Abdallah 15.

We then took a glance at the horses in active training. St. Patrick, 2:19½, who only arrived from Montana a couple of weeks ago, looked exceptionally well, though he will not be ready for a race just yet, as he has had a long season in the stud, and has had no fast work; he will be entered in the free for all pace.

Pink, of whom Mr. Holly has great hopes this year, had her feet in a tub, and seemed as though she was tonndered. She was driven a few days previous a mile in 2:25, last half in 1:10½, and seemed all right after it, but stiffened up all over, and if nothing worse supervenes, will be retarded in her work a good bit. She proved herself a fast, game mare last year at Butte, when, after Senator, Tramp S., Conde and Col. Bradshaw had taken the first four heats in 2:21½, 2:21¼, 2:22½ and 2:24, Pink, who was second in the fourth heat, took the fifth in 2:26, the sixth in 2:23½, and the seventh in 2:25, with all the others badly pumped out.

Flora G. is a neat, trim brown mare, nine years old, by Altoona 8850, from Susie by Conway's Patchen; her record of 2:29¼ was made at Marysville in 1887. She is entered in the 2:30 class, and should get a portion of the money, though her owner says if the 2:30 class trot as fast as some of them say, they he will not he in it.

Kafir, a three-year-old bay colt bred at Rosemeade, hy Alcazar, 2:20, dam Flower Girl by Arthurton, grandam Flora by Gen. McClellan 144, great grandam by Langford.

The Cook Farm's Chas. Derby 4907, and a two-year old which are being handled by Mr. Holly, will also be taken through the circuit. Derby is by Steinway 1808, from Katy G. by Electioneer 125, grandam Fanny Malone by Niagara, great grandam by Trustee. So far he has not shown speed enough to warrant his being entered in any of the advertised races, but he will be put in some of the made-up races for 2:40 horses or thereabouts; it is hoped to put him in the 2:30 list before next season. The two-year-old filly is by Steinway, dam by Administrator, grandam by Seely's American Star. She is a big, lengthy, handsome bay filly, with lots of power behind and pnre action.

Among the other horses in the stables is the racy looking Electioneer stallion Election, who is out of Lizzie H. by Whipple's Hambletonian, grandam by Comus, great grandam by Arnold Harris. He belongs to the proprietor, but has had little or no work so far.

A glance was then taken at one of Mr. Holly's purchases at the Hill Sale. It was a useful looking bay yearling filly by Wm. Corbitt, from Queen's filly by A. W. Richmond, from Queen by Ben Wade. She is a natural trotter, and, as a lot trotter, one of the fastest ever seen; she has been driven double a few times.

Extravagant, by Woodnut, 2:16¼, dam Economy, 2:30, by Echo 462, is a yearling filly that is being worked a little, and shows exceptional promise, being deservedly the pet of the farm.

Mr. Holly then proposed a drive to look at the mares and foals, and Mountain Boy was brought out and hitched up to a T cart. The premier stallion of the ranch looked in grand trim after his stnd duties, and although unable to stand fast work, owing to bad usage as a youngster, he can any time show a quarter in 34 seconds to a light cart. Mountain Boy 4841 was bred by Charles Backman, Orange County, New York, foaled 1882, sire Kentucky Prince, dam Elise by Messenger Duroc, grandam Green Mountain Maid by Harry Clay 45; 3d dam Shanghai Mary. It is almost unnecessary to state that Kentucky Prince is the sire of Guy, 2:10¾, and fourteen trotters, and grand sire of ten in 2:30 list, while Elise is sister to the renowned Elaine, 2:20, Prospero, 2:20, and half sister to Electioneer. The handsome brown stallion is as gentle and as tractable as any one could wish, and behaved with perfect decorum under exceptional surroundings.

Lisette, by Abdallah Wilkes 7562 from Musette, by Startle 290 from Becky Sharpe, by Billy Denton 65, from Kent mare, by Long Island Black Hawk from a daughter of Abdallah 1, has a grand looking filly foal by Mountain Boy, and in the same paddock is the thoronghbred Ninena, with a racy looking colt alongside by Sid. Lou Medium, the dam of Redwood, 2:24½, has a slashing looking foal by Monntain Boy, and has been bred back. Jenny H., sister to El Monte, 2:29, has another good looking Mountain Boy youngster. Irish Lass, who was a good, consistent performer on the turf, has a pure-gaited trotter by Woodnnt at her side called Marcus Daly.

Carrie Whippleton had an exceptionally good looking bay colt by her side which reminded me a good deal of Albert W. 2:20. The colt is by Happy Prince 10546, out of Aurelia—the twin filly—by Albert W., out of Pacific Maid by Elmo, 2:27, etc. The youngster is entered in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake, and was put with Carrie, whose foal died, as Aurelia was to be trained, but after showing a 2:20 gait, she broke down, and is turned out.

Violette by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, out of Viola by Echo, 462, out of Woodbine, sister to Monarch, 2:28½, had a useful looking black filly by Happy Prince at her side.

Many other youngsters were seen, and without fear or favor, it can be said that Mountain Boy's get are just what one would expect from such a grandly bred and purely formed horse. Every one who bred to him is more than satisfied, and over eighty per cent. of his mares foaled. After interviewing the much advertised mule John Mackey, by Geo. Washington, dam by Echo, we adjourned for lunch, the rest of the afternoon passing away in what seemed to be only a few minutes while listening to reminiscences of old time races, running and trotting, in north, east, south and west in which our host had taken an active part with varying success, but generally winding up with a balance.

A Great Race for Banquet.

He Breaks all Records for a Mile and a Quarter

After yesterday's races at Monmouth Park, says the New York Times, there is probably not a man living who is at all conversant with his history who will not agree that William L. Scott of Erie, Penn., is the luckiest man who ever owned a stable of race horses. Mr. Scott began life as a page in the House of Representatives and was a poor boy. He drifted to Erie, was a shipping clerk there until he became a merchant, and was so fortunate that everything he touched seemed to turn into gold. He accumulated coal and iron lands, became a politician, was a member of Congress, a manipulator of political conventions and campaigns, and finally he arose to become the owner of a stable of racers. In the latter capacity luck has been as steadily with him as in everything else. His blood still remained at about the temperature of an iceberg, and his bump of benevolence is yet as a mere pimple beside that of the hump which represents acquisitiveness in his phrenological outlines. Mr. Scott has simply been overwhelmed with good luck since he has been racing, as witness Chaos's victory in the Futurity, Torso's present of the Double event, (the second half of which Anaconda won) and the winning of the rich Lorillard Stakes ten days ago by Torso.

Mr. Scott's luck remained with him yesterday when the Stockton Stakes, for three-year-olds, was run. His gelding Banquet, who wasn't generally considered ot much account, not only walked away with that prize, worth a little over $8,000 net to the winner, but he knocked endwise the records of all the great racers at the distance, a mile and a quarter, and so, if time amounts to anything, proved himself to be by several pounds a better horse than either Salvator or Tenny. His record of 2:03¾, made over the straight Monmouth course, is 1½ seconds better than that made by either of the pair of great racers. It isn't probably, however, that either Mr. Haggin or Mr. Pulsifer would want to trade their horses for Banquet, even with a good round sum thrown in "to hoot."

There is no deubt whatever that Banqnet ran the race in the time recorded. In fact, a dozen or more watches held by competent timers made the run in 2:03½, a quarter of a second faster than the official time. The first mile was run by Tournament, who was in front at that point in 1:38, which is the fastest mile ever run in public, and it has probably never been equalled in a private trial. The trainers who were to start their horses in this race had requested that it be run over the straight course. So Superintendant Van Beuren put a force of men to work on the course, and they had it in absolutely perfect condition by the time the race was to be rnn. It was dry, soft, and, as trainers would put it "lightening fast."

There were hnt three starters beside Banquet, these being Tournament, Sir John and Devotee. Down in the betting ring Tournament was a hot favorite, and Dinklespiel, the Dwyers, and other plungers shoveled in their money on the winner of the Realization as a sure thing. And the bookies kept it all. Banquet was the second choice, and Mr. Scott himself sent a moderate commission into the ring at odds of 2½ to 1. The other two were outsiders. So far as could be seen from the grand stand, the horses got away on very even terms. When the line was broken Tournament and Devotee were the first to show in front, but the whole lot were well bunched. At the end of about three-quarters of a mile Banquet had taken Devotee's place as second to Tournament, the pace proving too hot for both him and Sir John. Thereafter it was a driving run to the end of the route with Tournament having a hit the best of it up to the last eighth-mile post, where the pair was on even terms. Slowly but surely Taylor sent Banquet up in front of Tournament, and then in the last few strides, by a supreme effort, the Scott gelding got safely in front and won the stakes by three parts of a length from Tournament, Sir John being eight lengths away and Devotee bringing up the rear. It was unquestionably a great race for Banquet, bnt it was an equally great one for Tournament, who had ten pounds the worst of the weights, and who certainly was not given a two-pound beating. If Banquet can run over that course in 2:03¾, in what time can Salvator, Kingston or Tenny run it? The Monmouth Park Association should give the public a chance to see.

Tennessee Pacers.

The Tennessee pacers have attracted the attention of horsemen all over the conntry, and yet little is known or can be substantiated as to their breeding. Our fore fathers were a careless crowd, and they never depended upon registration for anything. Our best and fleetest pacers are always sired by some horse that we can't trace. It is only within the past year or so that any attempt has been made for registering the pacers. It is a well known fact that the pacing blood has done much for the trotter, yet all efforts have failed to trace to the fountain head the sires and dams of the fleetest horses the world has ever known. Blue Bull, a pacing stallion, is second only to George Wilkes as a sire of trotters, yet he is an unknown quantity as far as his breeding is concerned.

Kittrell's Tom Hal was bought in Kentucky in 1850, by Maj. M. B. Kittrell. The horse was brought to Tennessee as a four year old. He was by a large bay horse, named Tom Hal, and said to have been brought from Canada. Kestley stated that his dam was by a Dare Devil horse, out of a Loughborough mare, and "nearly thoroughbred." This is all known of this one.

It has been established, I believe, that Moore's or Gibson's Tom Hal was by Kittrell's Tom Hal, out of Julia Johnson, a roan mare by Adams' Stump, son of the thoroughbred horse Stump-the-Dealer.

Adkins' Stump, another one of merit, is claimed to have been out of a daughter of imp. Bagdad. She was certainly not a thoroughbred, as he was a roan and a fast pacer. He sired the dams of Tom Hal and of Bonesetter, 2:19.

The blood of Kittrell's Tom Hal and Stump-the-Dealer is found in almost all fast pacers.

McMars' Traveler, usually known as "Old Traveler," was a dark chestnut stallion, 16 hands, sired by Stump the Dealer, and foaled about 1844 His dam, like the rest, or rather nearly all, was of unknown pedigree. She produced, also by the Copperbottom horse, the black pacer, Pat Malone, sire of Sleepy Lize (dam of Frank Buford, 2:20) a horse now coming into prominence through his sons and daughters. Traveler founded one of the best families of saddle horses. His sons have sired Joe Browers, 2:18, Sam Jones, 2:18¾, Billy White (trotter), 2:29¼ and others.

Bay Tom, 2:23, was by a horse called Bledsoe's Tom Hal (sire of the dam of Hardee, 2:29¼); not yet fully traced, but probably a grandson of Kittrell's Tom Hal. The dam of Bay Tom was by Knight's Snow Hal, sire of the dam of Hal Pointer, 2:13. Bay Tom sired Fred Neil (trotter), 2:26½; Major P., 2:29¼; and Bay Tom, Jr., 2:30. Bay Tom, Jr., sired Duplex, 2:16¾, Billy A. and others.

Another pacing sire of prominence is Hardee, sire of Thunder 2:22½; George Gordon, 2:27½ and Gen. Hardee (trotter), 2:29¼. He was by George Washington.

Brooks (alias Tom Brooks), by Stone and Edmonstan's Pilot, and his dam were of untraced blood. Brooks is prominent as the sire of Bonesetter (trotter) 2:19.

Following the long list up, we have Prince Pulaski, sire of Mattie Hunter 2:12¾, and of the dam by Prince Hal, 2:16½. He was bought out of a government corral at Nashville at the close of the war, by the late Geo. T. Allman, of Connersville, Tenn. All efforts to trace his pedigree have failed.

The list could be carried on and on, but with this blood we have produced some of the fastest horses in the world. No trotter or pacer has yet been able to equal three consecutive heats of Little Brown Jug in 2:11¾, 2:12½—nor to go three heats so near the top of his speed and in so near the same time. Bonesetter still heads all trotting stallions in numbers of heats (88) made below 2:30. Brown Hal, the unbeaten racer, won a third heat at Cleveland in 2:12½, which is the fastest race record for a stallion, and was made in one of the most desperate six-heat races on record. In the deciding heat Brown Hal, although very lame, raced the last half of the sixth mile, timed by a dozen watches, in 1:03½.

Hal Pointer, five-year-old, entered the campaign last year with a record of 2:29¼, and closed it with a record of 2:13, having won eight out of nine races, all of them broken heats, including the fastest six-heat race on record, and having reduced his record more than any 2:30 performer has ever done in one season. Mattie Hunter took a record of 2:12¾; Susie P. has a trial of 2:18. Prince Hal, 2:16½, is a son of Brown Hal, 2:12½ —Courier Journal.

Making the Trotting Races Shorter.

Light harness racing as an American-born sport should naturally have its share of patronage in this locality, says the New York Times where there is such a constituency of pleasure-seekers, but a comparison between the numbers that flocked to Sheepshead Bay last week and those that were at Fleetwood Park to see the trotters, show that the gallopers have a walk-over in the race for popularity about the metropolis. This has come about within a brief period, for the older horsemen can recall a day when the saddle was secondary to the sulky, unless it was on the back of a Dexter or an Ethan Allen, and the crowds that crossed the ferries to Long Island on race days went to see the trotters, while the older British aport went begging for patronage. Now there is a complete turnover. The runners hold sway in public favor hereabout, and the light harness performers play to empty benches. Ask those who bow down to the bang-tail gods why the trotters fail to attract, and they tell you that the trotters feet make dull music compared with the quick step of the runner, and that the true sportsman wants none of the protracted battles waged between the former. They will assert, moreover, that there has not been a "square" race on the trotting turf for a score of years, and wind up with the assurance that they would as soon play poker with a "cold deck" as invest money on the outcome of a contest in harness.

On the other hand, your trotting turfite who has seen both branches of the sport as they have been conducted, maintains his loyalty to the harness horse, but admits that the runner is far ahead in the race for popularity. This, he contends, is because the managers of our driving parks have not progressed with the times, being content to go along in the old grooves, while the jockey clubs have been ever on the alert to devise new methods whereby the pleasure-seeking part of the populace might be more completely won over to their support.

In the earlier days running events were arranged in heats as well as the contests in harness, but the result was so often kept in suspense for several innings that the dash system was adopted instead. The best evidence of the wisdom of this change is the increasing patronage that followed it, and the running track that attempted to return to the old plan would commit financial suicide. With the trotters, however, the ancient and once popular contest of heats is still rigidly followed, the harness racer of to-day having the same herculean task to perform of winning three times before victory is secured as was set before his ancestors. If this meant that a horse must trot or pace three miles in each race it would not be so bad, but there is no such limit to the task, for with only two competitors a contest may require five heats to decide. In larger fields it is not uncommon to see the struggle prolonged for six or more, while the records of every season contain long drawn affairs of eight, nine, and even ten heats. The conservative, old fogy horsemen contend that this test of endurance is necessary, and that the triumph is greater as the heats are numerous, but those who are more alive to the interest of the trotting turf do not hesitate to admit that these long races are a clog to the wheels of progress and the main cause for the triumph of running as a paying spectacle in our large cities. Take up a card for an afternoon at the Coney Island track and compare it with one of those arranged for the Grand Trotting Circuit, and the uninitiated would think the former promised just twice as much sport, for it contains six races, while there are only three at the Driving Park. Note the result at the two places, however, and the reports show that while the racers went six times, the trotters and pacers had to make at least nine trips about the course to complete their engagements. Then if the three events were not united in straight heats there are several additional heats, each of them a race in itself. The harness horses, therefore, frequently furnish twice as many contests as the runners. This, instead of being an attraction wearies the crowd, or as one of the spectators at the recent Dundee Park meeting put it, when the second day's programme comprised thirteen heats: "There is too much pork for a shilling."

It is seldom that the interest can be kept up for the time that it requires to get a dozen or more heats off, and if an American audience were not the most patient in the world the track would be deserted when the issue is kept in doubt as long as it frequently is at a trotting meeting.

Under the rules now in force on tracks of the National and American Associations a horse that does not win a heat in five goes to the stable unless there are ten starters, when all remain in as long as they do not transgress some other law requiring disqualification. Doubtless this rule was conceived in the interest of fair play to the owner who paid entrance money, and was therefore entitled to every chance to get his horse to the front, but the people in the grand stand were entirely ignored by a provision which serves to make a trotting race as tiresome as an old fashioned sermon. A striking instance of this occurred during the meeting at Detroit last July, when the three classes set down for the first day had ten or more starters in each, so that it was possible for them to have continued all the week. As it was, only one race was ended on time, and it took fifteen heats to decide the other two.

It has been proposed to change this fossilized plan, by which the spectator is liable to be bored beyond endurance and the horses are taxed to the verge of positive cruelty, but those who control the legislation on the subject have not yet condescended to take the desired step. At the last biennial congress of the National Trotting Association it was proposed to amend the rules so that a horse must win a heat in three or four or retire from the race, but that body refused to ratify the treaty to lessen the hardships of the horse and his patrons, so that the sun will go down on many an unfinished race this season, as of yore. As for such a thing as dashes or even two in three heats, the stiff-backed managers of the trotting tracks will have none of them, so it is not to be wondered at that those who would see light harness sport resume the place now usurped by the gallopers are wont to contract the methods employed by those who aim to promote the respective pastimes, and find the one enterprising, go ahead and successful, while the other is deep down in the rut of an undefined prejudice against anything that savors of change or experiment. The plain truth is that if the trotter had not such a firm hold on the people his individual magnetism would be counteracted by the wall of conservatism that surrounds his public career. Like the man who drank to success all his life and yet lasted for eighty odd years, the trotting turf survives in spite of the mistaken policy pursued in its conduct, and not by the help of those who control its affairs. It is only just, however, to state that there are rare instances of efforts to get out of the beaten path, which would be more successful if other associations would follow suit. For instance, the Detroit Driving Club, in its splendid programme for the coming meeting of twelve races and $50,000 in premiums, provides that the 2:22, 2:20 and 2:18 trotting classes shall be decided by two heats in three, instead of three in five. This sensible innovation is but a forerunner of what must be generally adopted if the trotters and pacers are not to be snowed under, for the runners are encroaching on their right of eminent domain, even in the Western country where they formerly held undisputed away. The Driving Club of New York made a trial of dash races in harness during the fall of 1888, but the experiment was not a fair test of their merits, and it is possible that another will be had this season.

Another thing which illustrates the obtuseness of those who are responsible for the retrogression of trotting in its Eastern home is the persistency with which the judges are placed in a stand on the side of the course opposite to the spectators, where they have the worst possible view of the horses as they swing into the homestretch and are compelled to decide a close finish with the prospects of its receiving a storm of disapproval from the grand stand. To begin with, the three men who are responsible for fair play all round are placed so high in the air that it is difficult to judge accurately between two or more horses that come under the wire together, and, being close to the inner rail, the pole horse is sure to get the worst of it. Then, again, the crowd sees the finish differently across the way, and there is general dissatisfaction. The running turf people had this same trouble formerly, but they were wise enough to move the judges across in front of the grand stand, so that the close decisions are now, with rare exceptions, accepted without criticism. Up to the present not a prominent trotting track has the judges' stand where it should be, but most of them preserve the tall pagoda which handicaps the judges and obstructs the view from the grand stand, and is in fact everything that it ought not to be. More than one of the younger turfmen, and an occasional professional starter, have suggested such a change as has just been discussed, but it will probably take an avalanche of agitation to move the stand where experience shows it should be placed.

If the movement to bring the trotting turf out of the slough of neglected opportunity could be conducted as political reforms are, the party of progress should have three planks in its platform to begin with, namely, quicker disposition of a race than three heats in five, smaller entrance fees to purses and stakes with fewer divieions of the money, instead of the four now in vogue, and the locating of the judges where they can see the finish equally well with the spectators.

In spite of the mistakes made by those who control the trotting turf, the sulkies continue to attract the crowd in many of the Western and Eastern cities. It remains for a few more live associations like that at Detroit to leave the old path and give the race-going public what they want. As to what that means, the methods employed on the running tracks furnish the model, and prove that your turfman finds the same attraction in dash races that Horace depicted in the life of the soldier—"quick death or joyful victory." The American trotter has been developed to a point where he rivals the runner in his flights; in point of money value he outstrips him, and it requires only good, sensible management to restore him to the place in public esteem that he once held in and about the metropolis.—

To make a slow horse fast tie him to a post, or give him S. L. R. (Simmons Liver Regulator.)

J. G. Morgan, an old time trotting-horse man has accepted a position under Mr. B. C. Holly of Vallejo, and in the future will handle the colts at Hollywood Farm. Mr. Morgan is thoroughly competent, having had many years experience at the Woodlawn Stock Farm, with W. H. Wilson of Cynthisna Ky., and the Caton Stock Farm at Joliet. Mr. Holly has many very good youngsters at present, and with the careful handling that they will receive from Mr. Morgan, he should have a good crop of trotters for next year's races.

H. E. Laurie, of the Catford and Ripley Road Bicycle Clubs, and E. Willis, of the Polytechnic Bicycle Club, arrived in New York from England on Sunday morning, July 13th. It is their intention to compete in some of the leading tournaments to be held there during the remainder of the season, and it is probable that Laurie will endeavor to add to his long list of best on records by attempting to lower some of the safety records in America.

The Hudson County (N. J.) wheelmen of Jersey will hold a grand 25-mile road race at New Rochelle this afternoon. Six prizes of value will be presented, and a large number of wheelmen are expected to start. No wheel weighing less than thirty-five pounds will be allowed in the race.

Several road races are announced to come off in the East during the present season.

It is said that P. D. Skillman, the famous Eastern runner, intends making San Francisco his future home. One or two other crack amateurs have an idea of following suit, and it is probable that the city of the Golden Gate will be the scene of the American championship meeting before long.

Foot Racing.

Our Inyo County correspondent writing from Independence says; There was a 100-yard foot race at Independence, on July 9th, for a purse of $300 between Walter Ober, of Independence, and Ben Rosenthall of Hawthorn Nev.; won by Walter Ober in 10¼ seconds. There was also a foot-race in Bishop, Inyo Co., for a purse of $200; 150 yards. Entries—Charles Olds of Round Valley, M. Diaz of Lone Pine and Ed Morton of Independence. Won by Charles Olds; M. Diaz 2nd; Ed Morton 3rd; time 16½ seconds. Diaz ran the 100 yards in the lead in 10¾ the last 50 yards was very heavy track, and Olds being the strongest runner overhauled Diaz. It was very close between Olds and Diaz. Some thought it was a tie, but the judges gave it to Olds.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, and Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running, except as herein stated.

The Board reserves the right to trot or run heats of any two races alternately, or to call a special race between heats; also to change the day and hour of any race if deemed necessary.

For a walk over in any race a horse is only entitled to its own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other paid up entries of said race, and to no added money.

A horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then to first and third moneys.

No horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for the entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Trotting Association and Running Rules of the State Agricultural Society.

All colts properly entered in District stakes, if sold subsequently, are entitled to start in such races.

If it is the opinion of the Judges, before starting a race, that it cannot be finished on the closing day of the Fair, it may be declared off or continued at the option of the Judges.

The Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse; provided, however, that the Board hereby reserves the right to declare any race off when there are less than three (3) to start.

The Stockton track is one of the fastest in the world.

Trotting and racing colors to be named with all entries and used in all heats.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,
C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

Standard and High-Bred TROTTING HORSES
—AND—
THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90
At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high-bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no whits, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure. This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

Entries for trotting races close August 1st and entries for running races close September 1, 1890.

CONDITIONS.

Entry blanks can be obtained from the Secretary.

Each entry must plainly state name, age, color and sex of horse, name of sire and dam, and name of owner, the colors of rider or driver must also be given with the entry. Owners should not overlook this last item, it is a very useful piece of information for the public.

Under no circumstances will any conditional entries be received. No added money will be given for a walk over.

All purses and stakes will be divided into three moneys, 70, 20 and 10 per cent.

The rules of the National Trotting Association, and the rules of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association will govern these races.

The Association reserves the right to alter, amend or postpone any or all of these races should the Board of Directors in their judgment and for cause deem it expedient to do so.

Parties intending to be present at any of these meetings, and desiring stalls for their horses, are requested to write the Secretary in advance, stating what horses they have and what stalls they are likely to require.

In the event of any race not filling, if the Association deems proper to start the race, they reserve the right to withhold from the purse the entry of the missing horse or horses.

In all races five or more are required to enter and three to start.

In all races where not otherwise specified the entrance is ten per cent.

The Secretary will take pleasure in replying to any and all communications with reference to transportation, track facilities and any other desired information.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

TROTTING AND PACING.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, except the two-year old, unless otherwise specified; five to enter, and three to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the deduction of the entrance money from the purse for each horse less than five. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination. Trotting and pacing purses divided at the rate of 50 per cent. to first horse, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent. to third, and 10 per cent. to fourth.

In this two, three and four-year-old sweepstakes, unless otherwise provided, moneys are divided as follows: To winning colt, all the stakes and 50 per cent. of the added money; second colt, 33⅓ per cent.; third colt, 16⅔ per cent. of added money. In all stakes payments not made as they become due forfeits all money paid in, and declares entry out.

The National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk-over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In trotting and pacing races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. day before must start.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps and jackets of distinct colors, WHICH MUST BE NAMED IN THEIR ENTRIES.

RUNNING.

The State Agricultural Society's rules of 1889 to govern running races, except when conditions named are otherwise.

Please observe that in the foregoing stakes declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void, unless accompanied by the money.

Starters in stake races must be named on or before 6 P. M. of day before race. All entries in purse races not declared out by 6 P. M. day before must start.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

Final settlement of all purses and stakes won will be made on Saturday morning, September 20th, at the office of the Secretary.

Entry blanks and racing rules will be furnished upon application to the Secretary. Entries in all races, except otherwise stated, to close with the Secretary on Friday, August 1, 1890.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, Aug. 20 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

In all races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

If, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse, and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted,

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

      - Lady Hake
        - John Baptist
        - Fannie Fern — Irwin's Tuckahoe. / dam of Lefflers' Consul.

MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31 1-2, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore fetlock, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, great hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address or, JOHN ROWEN, Race Track, Oakland, Cal.

J. P. KERR, 313 Bush Street, San Francisco,

GRAND MOOR, 2374.

Grand Moor 2374
- Moor 870 — Clay Pilot 93 / Sire of 2 in 2:30 list.
  - Sire of Beautiful Bells.....2:29½
  - Sire of Sable (dam of Sable Wilkes), 2:18 — Belle of Wabash.
  - Sire of Sultan.....2:24
  - Sire of Tommy Gates.....2:24
  - Sire of Del Sur.....2:24½
  - Sire of Sir Guy.....2:28½
  - Beautiful Bells is the dam of Hinda Rose, 2:19½ as a 3-year-old, Palo Alto Belle, 2:22½, Chimes, St. Bell, 2:24½, Bell Boy (3 years) 2:19¾.
  - Sultan, 2:24 (sire of Stamboul 2:12¾) has 19 in 2:30 list. — Mambrino Patchen 58 / Sire of 14 in 2:30 list / Sire of the dam of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; also sire of 20 stallions and 18 mares with get in 2:30 list.
- Vashti — Dam of Don Tomas, who got a record of 2:20 in 1889. — Kate Taber / By Mambrino Messenger, he by Mambrino Paymaster.

Foaled 1876. Black. Sixteen hands high. Bred by L. J. Rose

A horse of highest form and quality; of great excellence in every point; a type of his celebrated family; of marked individuality, spirit and endurance; never properly trained or raced, but shows the possession of great speed; perfectly manageable in the stable and on the road and track.

As he is sired by The Moor 870, a son of CLAY PILOT, out of Vashti by MAMBRINO PATCHEN, he is a most valuable cross for mares of other families. THE MOOR sired Beautiful Bells and the dams of Sable Wilkes and Margaret 2:28 (dam of Regal Wilkes, 2-year-old record 2:20¾).

MAMBRINO PATCHEN is regarded as the unsurpassed sire of broodmares, having, among many others, sired the dam of Guy Wilkes and of Wm. L (the sire of Axtell), and a son of his sired the dam of Axtell. The public sales this year have demonstrated with renewed emphasis the value of The Moor and Mambrino Patchen strains of blood. For combining particularly with the Hambletonians it may be called "the ready money cross."

GRAND MOOR will make the season of 1890 for a time at the Oakland Race Track and afterwards at my Ranch, fifteen miles from Oakland. Mares can be delivered at the race track to the groom in charge. Pasture at $5 per month. For other food, if requested, an additional charge will be made.

TERMS, $150 for the season, with privileges of return if the horse does not change hands.

Every care exercised, but no liability for escapes or accidents.

H. I. THORNTON, 504 Kearny Street.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations to stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890.

Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start, the day before the race at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close September 1st with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all races for purses.

National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Entrance fee 10 per cent. on purse to accompany nomination.

National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

In all races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at 1 P. M. All entries must be directed to the Secretary.

A Dry, Warm Place to Sleep,

No matter how stormy the weather. All Stock under cover when it rains.

VISITORS WELCOME ANY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come. On horses that stay three months or over there is no charge for getting or delivering. Where a horse stays a short time the actual time and expense only is charged to him.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable.

BOYCE TABLETS.

BOYCE Leg and Body Wash. BOYCE

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

The BOYCE WASH can be applied ALL OVER THE BODY WITHOUT FEAR OF BLISTERING NOR DOES IT AFFECT THE KIDNEYS.

The BOYCE WASH will cure CRACKED HEELS, PUFFS, STOCKINGS, SCRATCHES, INFLAMED TENDONS and FEVERED LEGS.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States. Six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on application. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

The Montana Circuit.

Racing is now in great vogue in Montana, and several horses well known to California patrons of the turf are over there drawing in sheckles for their owners. The reports of the circuit given below are taken from the Montana Journal.

Missoula Races.

The first day's meeting of the Montana racing circuit, commencing July 14th at Missoula, was a great success and very fast time was made in some of the races. Promptly at 2 o'clock the horses in the half mile dash were called, and after considerable scoring the horses got away well together, Sunday winning the race in 0:48½, Tim Murphy a close second. Purse $250.

The next race was a running race for two-year-olds, six furlongs. For the first half the four entries could have been covered with a blanket, but at the quarter Sinfax forged to the front and took the race in 1:17½, Butte second.

The next was a trotting race, mile heats, best three in five, for Missoula horses. In this race the sports dropped their wad, most of them imagining that Lans W, a new horse here, was brought in to scoop the crowd. Skalkaho, however, owned by Bob Coombs, pounded out three straight heats in 2:36½, 2:47½ and 2:49.

At the end of the second heat in this race, while Ashury Plummer was tuning his horse, Toronto Patchen, to report at the judge's stand, he fell from the sulky, his feet catching in the lines. Plummer grabbed the wheel of the sulky with one hand and held on while the horse was trotting swiftly back. The crowd stopped the horse after dragging Plummer fully fifty yards. Fortunately the man was not seriously hurt, but it was an exciting accident.

The last race of the day was the 2:30 class. The starters were Ben Davis, Belle and Minnie Almont, the latter winning three heats in the five trotted. The fastest time in this race was footed up in the second heat by Belle in 2:32½. The little mare trotted the mile without a skip.

The second day was well attended, and everything passed off pleasantly.

The first race, mile and a half dash, was won by Guido Time, 2:53½.

The second race, three furlongs, was won by Sunday. Time, 0:35.

Third race, for Missoula horses half mile, best two in three, was won by Diavolo. Time, 0:51¼, 0:52¾.

The trotting race was won by Homestake, the fastest heat being 2:34½.

The day was intensely warm, the thermometer reaching 98 degrees.

The third day proved very enjoyable. The attendance was much larger than on the previous day and interest is growing.

There were three races. The first was a running race, one-half mile heats, best two in three, for a purse of $250 Jack Dowd's famous Sunday took two straight heats in 48 and 48½.

The running mile dash was won by Heyfron's Diavalo. Time, 1:45.

Interest centered in the event for side wheelers. Bowley took the race in the first, third and fourth heats, pacing the third heat in 2:18½.

The third day the attendance was much better than any of the preceding days.

The first race in the programme, one-half mile dash, did not fill and was declared off. A seven-eighth mile dash was substituted with a purse of $300, but also failed to fill.

The first race called was a three-quarter mile dash, purse $250. The horses started well together and kept so to the home stretch, when Tim Murphy forged to the front and passed the wire a strong winner.

Summary—Cy Mulkey's Tim Murphy won, Ed Gaylord's Sympathetic second, P. Sullivan's Circle J. third, Carlisle & Shield's Lew Carlisle fourth, Brown & Blevin's Olympia fifth. Time, 1:15.

The second race was for the Bitter Root stakes, $50 each, $250 added, for three-year-olds, best two in three. There were three entries in this—Seven H. L., Elite and Dolly S. Seven H. L. took two straight heats. He is a horse of good style and action, and horsemen say he has a bright future.

SUMMARY.

Seven H. L.	1	1
Elite	2	2
Dolly S	3	3

Time, 3:0¼, 3:0⅞.

The third race, under the conditions in which it was made, was immense. It was in the 2:35 class, purse $400. No side-wheelers appeared, but the flyers, Ed. Lafferty's Homestake, Jones' Gray Ned, Percy Johnson's Minnie Almont and the Denver stable Uncle Toby answered to the call of the judges' bell. As the animals passed in review before the stand they were greeted with rounds of applause. In the first heat but two scores were made before they passed under the wire in perfect line, and the word go was given. Gray Ned had the pole, and the square footing was kept up to the first quarter. The great horse Homestake forced the pace, and won the heat handsomely in 2:35¼. About 4 o'clock a violent wind and rain storm came up, but in a lull the horses were again called, and as the word go was given the storm came on again and blew a perfect hurricane during the entire heat. At the start Homestake took the pole and held it to the finish. Time, 2:35¾. The heat was trotted in 2:34. Uncle Toby was withdrawn.

SUMMARY.

Homestake	1	1	1
Minnie Almont	2	2	2
Gray Ned	3	3	3
Uncle Toby	4	4	0

Time, 2:33¼, 2:35¾, 2:34.

A large crowd assembled at the race course the fourth day. This being ladies' day, the fair ones were out in full force to see the display of speed horses. Nearly all business houses were closed so that all might enjoy the races.

The first race was a quarter-mile dash, in which there were five entries: J. A. Alfred's Roanoke, P. Sullivan's Kitten, Brown & Blevins' Bay Tom, A. H. Sutton's Bob Wade, and J. P. Sutton's Nettie S. The horses started away well together, and were almost neck and neck until within about twenty yards of the wire. Bob Wade's jockey shot ahead and won the race in 0:22¾, with Nettie S. a close second. Summary—Bob Wade first, Nettie S. second, Roanoke third, Bay Tom fourth, Kitten fifth. Time, 0:22¾

The next race was three-fourths of a mile, best two in three, for a purse of $300. In this there were four starters, Heyfron's Diavolo, Phelps' Roly Boly, Kismet of the Denver racing stables, and Lew Carlisle, belonging to Carlisle & Shields. Diavolo was the favorite, and sold three to one over the field. In the first heat Kismet set a hot pace and took the lead, maintaining it to the end, finishing in 1:16½ The next heat was a repetition of the first.

SUMMARY.

Kismet	1	1
Roly Boly	2	3
Lew Carlisle	3	2
Diavolo	4	3

The third was a running, two mile dash, with three starters: Beaconsfield of the Denver stables, Carlisle Shields' Justice, and Tully's Joe Hoge. Before the end of the first half, Beaconsfield took the lead and held it to the finish. Summary—Beaconsfield first, Justice second, Joe Hoge third. Time, 3:41½.

The fourth and last race was in the 2:24 class, best three in five, purse $500.

SUMMARY.

Marquis	3	1	1	1
Car	1	3	3	2
Georgie Mosbler	2	2	2	3
Gloster	4	4	4	4

Time, 2:30, 2:29½, 2:29, 2:27½.

With this day (Saturday) closed the summer races of the Montana circuit at Missoula. Most agreeable weather has prevailed throughout the week. The attendance has been large and appreciative, and the races satisfactory and speedy.

Judge Gratton, the official starter, has given his rulings in a firm and impartial manner, and everything has passed off splendidly.

The first race was the merchants' handicap, one and one-eighth mile for a $300 purse. The starters were Guido, Ollie Benjamin, Governor Adams and Tom Daly. Ollie Benjamin and Governor Adams sold first and second favorites, but Tom Daly was the fleetest of foot, and won the race in 1:56¼. Summary: Tom Daly first, Ollie Benjamin second, Governor Adams third, Guido fourth. Time, 1:56¼.

The second race was a consolation handicap, one and one-sixteenth miles, with a purse of $200. The starters in this were Sympathetic's Last, Circle J., Joe Hoge, Roly Boly Skucum and Carrie Lee. Summary: Sympathetic Last won, Roly Boly second, Circle J. third, Carrie Lee fourth, Joe Hoge fifth, Skucum sixth. Time, 1:51½.

The third was a free for all, best three in five, for a purse of $150. In these there were three entries. Contractor, Manning and Conde. Manning was the favorite in the pools and took the first heat in 2:28¾. In the second heat he lost a shoe which caused him to break and he fell back to third place. The next two heats he came easily to the front in 2:25 and 2:26,

SUMMARY.

Manning	1	3	1	1
Conde	2	1	2	2
Contractor	3	2	3	3

Time, 2:28¾, 2:26¾, 2:25, 2:26.

The fourth and last race, best three in five, was a local race between Lans W., owned by W. H. Bennett, and Skalkaho, whose owner is Bob Coombs. This was for $500. Skalkaho is a horse that was bought from a herd of wild horses and his pedigree is unknown. Lans W's dam was Brookmont, and his sire was Mont Patchen. This time blood did not tell, for the scrub won the first heat and shut out Lans W. in the second.

SUMMARY.

Skalkaho	1	1
Lans W	2	dis.

Time, 2:40¾, 2:41½.

Nearly all of the horses left Sunday morning for the Deer Lodge meeting.

Saturday's Races.

The summary of the racee at the Helena fair grounds on Saturday is as follows:

FIRST RACE.

Dell Dick's Johnson	1	1
Dan Mahoney's Herod	2	2
Coombs' Roadster	3	3

Time, 2:38, 2:24½.

SECOND RACE.

Alice	3	1	1	1
P. B. C	2	2	2	2
Black Tom	1	3	3	dr

Time, 2:37, 2.36, 2:37¾, 2:37.

Alice came under the wire first in the first heat, but was set back to third place for running.

These were all match races, the outcome of the July meeting No admission to the fair grounds was charged. About 200 people were present.

Deer Lodge Races.

DEER LODGE, July 22nd.—Deer Lodge had a splendid day of racing. With the exception of a small wind storm about the middle of the afternoon the day was as good as could be wished. The judges were M. P. Grattan, of Minnesota, the official starter for the circuit; John Bielenberg and W. H. Raymond, proprietors of the Belmont stock farm in Madison County. The races were hotly contested. They were all on the square and no grumbling.

The first race was a trotting race, in which were the following contestants: Homestake (Ed Lafferty), Desota (Henry DeWitt), Almott (J. H. Butler), who went in the order named. The race was won by Homestake in three straight heats.

SUMMARY.

Homestake	1	1	1
Desota	2	3	3
Almott	3	2	2

Time, 2:37, 2:37½, 2.36¾.

The second race was a running race, six furlongs, in which the following starters went in the order named: Sinfax, (Cy Murphy), Naomi, (Denver Racing Association), Xenophen, (Smith & Thornton), Zora, (J. A. Murray). A strong wind was prevailing at the time, against which the horses had to pull coming down the homestretch. The horses came in in the order in which they were assigned positions, Sinfax first in 1:18½ and Zora far behind.

The third race was the last race of the day and created much interest. It was the 2:20 trot. The horses contesting were: Dollie, h m, (Hugh Kirkendall), Ben Davis, ch g, (Denver Trotting Stable), Gray Ned, g g, (M. T. Jones), Vera, b m. (Huntley & Clark), Maud Singleton, (Ike Morehouse), Belle, gr m, (J. P. Stoneroad). They had positions as above named. On the first heat Grey Ned took the lead and kept it up the backstretch when Belle came to the front. Entering the backstretch Vera, who went in hobbles, broke and lost over a hundred yards. She made this up by a grand struggle and coming down the homestretch passed to the front and under the wire in 2:42, Belle second, Ben Davie third, Gray Ned fourth, Dollie fifth and Singleton sixth. The struggle which Vera made in this heat it is thought injured her speed in the other heats. In the second heat Vera broke again, Belle took the lead and kept it throughout, coming under the wire in 2:30½, Vera second, Davis third, Singleton fourth, Dollie fifth and Gray Ned sixth. The other two heats were a repetition of the second, a summary of the race being:

Belle	2	1	1	1
Dollie	5	5	6	6
Ben Davis	3	8	3	3
Gray Ned	4	6	4	6
Vera	1	2	2	2
Maud T	6	4	5	4

Time, 2:31, 2:30½, 2:27¾, 2:31½.

The quarter mile dash was exciting when it came, but the horses were fully an hour in getting a start. The starters were Roanoke (C. K. Dixon), Bay Tom, (Brown & Blevins), Kitten (D. Daniels), Nettie S (J. P. Sutton). When the horses did get away, Bay Tom got a poor start, Nettie S. led from the start and came in winner in 22½ seconds, Roanoke second, Kitten third, Bay Tom fourth.

THE DETROIT MEETING.

California Horses Win Many Victories.

Notwithstanding the fact that Pittsburg had taken the same dates claimed by the Detroit management for their annual meeting, the number of horsemen present on the opening day was one of the largest that has ever attended at this place. The weather was all that could be desired, and the excitement was at fever heat from the time the first race was called until the judges gave their decision on the last heat of the day. The crowd has been variously estimated at from 10 000 to 18 000 but a conservative person would probably figure it about 12 000. During the intermission between heats Signor Liberati furnished splendid music, which was highly appreciated by those present. In a conversation with the musical director, he informed the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S correspondent that the services of the band had been secured for the California State Fair Meeting, and I can assure the readers of your paper that a treat is in store for them. Nearly every number which the band rendered was heartily encored, and the solos by the leader were applauded again and again.

I was in hopes that California might be able to win the first race of the day, as Mr. Salisbury had entered Katie S. in the 2:30 class but at the last moment three of the seven starters, including the Pleasanton mare, were scratched. Cricket, after the first heat had no trouble in winning the 2:24 pace, although in the first heat she was pushed by Grant's Abdallah. The contest is a remarkable one and is best told by giving each heat by itself, which will be done further on. The judges of the day were Messrs. Campeau, Ijams and Benjamin.

At exactly 2 o'clock the 2:30 race was called, the starters being Leopard Rose, a spotted mare owned by Wm. Brannigan of Mount Vernon, Ohio. Pixley, b m, which was entered in the name of Budd Doble; Hylas Boy, b g, the property of the Elm City Stock Farm, New Haven, Conn., and Ryland T, b g, owned by W. H. McKinney of Kansas City, Mo. In the pool selling Pixley sold for $100 to the field $100. In the first heat Doble got away well in front and pushed Pixley all he could, Leopard Rose acting very badly; when near the quarter she struck a fast gait and was soon on even terms with Pixley, but left her feet and was shortly far in the rear. She settled down after a time, but was unable to regain her position, and in the homestretch Ryland T moved up, but his efforts to head Pixley were unavailing, the latter moving very steadily, only making a skip once. Pixley was first into the stretch and won quite handily in 2:21¼, with Ryland T a good second. For the second heat Pixley was made favorite at $25 against $20 for the field, the second heat being a repetition of the first, Leopard Rose acting as though she required more work. Pixley was not troubled at all, and won as he pleased in 2:19¾. For the third heat Pixley sold at $25 to $15 against the field; from the manner in which the first two heats had been won, it looked as though money was being thrown away in backing the field. In the third heat Pixley adopted the antics formerly carried on by Leopard Rose, as did also Ryland T; when the word was given Rose seemed to have gotten over her nervousness, and trotted the full mile without skip or break. Time, 2:20¼. The auction pools now changed, Leopard Rose being $25 to $11 for the field, and that she was much the best horse in the race was evident from the fact that as she had settled steadily to work, the winning of the fourth and fifth heats was a very easy thing for her, the time being 2:19¾ and 2:20¼.

THE 2:24 PACING RACE.

There was considerable applause from the California contingent present as Andy McDowell drove out Cricket for the first heat in the pacing race. Evidently reputation had preceded her, as when the auctioneer asked: How much am I offered for first choice? $6 was all he could get in the field against $25 for Cricket; Grant's Abdallah had a strong following, as he had shown up very well prior to his arrival in Detroit: in addition to the two mentioned, the other starters were Nettie C. and Chimes C. Cricket had the outside position, with Grant's Abdallah next the pole, but before the first turn was reached, Cricket had gained the inside position, with Abdallah second, Chimes C. third, and Nettie C. fourth; this procession continued around the backstretch and upper turn, and when Cricket entered the straight, she was fully four open lengths to the good. At this point Abdallah came like a streak of lightning, closing up three open lengths, and gave Cricket a hard race to the wire; the mare, however, showed her nose first to the judges, Abdallah being less than a half length behind as they passed the stand. Time, 2:18½.

The wonderful burst of speed shown by Abdallah caused the talent to believe that Cricket had no easy victory, and a rush was made to get tickets on the stallion, the pool selling showing Abdallah $25 and Cricket $15. At these odds considerable money was wagered by a few of the speculative Californians who reaped good return from their investments. When the word was given, McDowell drove Cricket to the front at once, and on reaching the turn was two lengths ahead of Abdallah; this distance he kept until around into the upper turn, where the mare was given her head, and four or five lengths of daylight was soon opened between the two contestants, the other two being seemingly outclassed in such fast company. Down the homestretch Cricket came with such speed that the mile was negotiated in 2:15¼. The association, in offering the purse of $2,000 for these pacers, also tacked on a rider that if 2:15 was beaten in the race, that the sum of $500 would be given to the horse making it, and between the second and third heats, McDowell confidently exclaimed: "I'll win that $500 or I'll kill the mare," and true to his word, when the word was given for the third heat. Andy let her have her head from the start, and she paced like a perfect fiend. As she passed under the wire a winner, there were demonstrations of delight from the audience, but when the time, 2:14¼, was announced from the stand, a conservative person could almost have imagined that pandemonium had broken loose. By her performance, Mr. Salisbury was enabled to take down $1,500, in addition to which, she has secured the reputation of being one of the best pacing mares in the United States. The following is the

THE 2:22 TROTTING PURSE.

It was fully 5 o'clock when the first heat in the 2:22 trot was called, seven starters responding to the bell. California was represented in this race by the b g Voucher, Chas. Marvin being up behind him as driver. The company, however, was a bit too fast for him; still he secured fourth money. As the race had been announced as best two in three, McDoel was selected by the talent as the favorite, he selling for $25 to $11 for Voucher and the field for $12. The scoring was very tedious and the patience of the audience sorely exhausted, for fully a half an hour of valuable time had been used up when the word was finally given. Maud, b m, owned by Elm City Stock Farm, proved the winner in the first heat by a half length, Tariff being second, Beverly third, and McDoel, the favorite, fourth, Marvin being satisfied with sixth position, while Dick Smith was distanced. Time, 2:18¾. Notwithstanding the result of the first heat, McDoel still retained the esteem of the talent, for he sold at $20 while the field brought $25. Maud started away to cut out the work once more, but McDouel was brought up with a rush and was unable to head the mare at the three-quarter pole Maud was still leading, with Tariff and the favorite left for second place; from there into the homestretch the race seemed almost any one's; coming down the straight Maud, Tariff and McDoel had a neck to neck contest, McDoel winning by a nose only, Tariff being second and Maud third. Time, 2:19.

The third heat was almost a repetition of the second with the exception that Voucher had a fight with McDoel instead of Maud, she having left her feet on the first turn. Time, 2:20½.

The next race was for a special purse of $500 for the 2:26 class, there being seven starters. After two heats had been trotted, both of which was won by G. B. in 2:20¾ and 2:20¼, the race was postponed until Tuesday morning.

Between the heats, the two great four-year-olds, Sunol and Axtell, were walked up and down in front of the grand stand so that the audience might see what these wonderful youngsters looked like.

Word was sent here this afternoon that Mr. Hamlin refused to make a match with Belle Hamlin against Sunol, but as has been anticipated in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN he came back with a counter challenge, which Marvin tells me will not be listened to.

SECOND DAY.

If it were possible, the second day of the meeting was a greater success than that which preceded it. There were hardly as many people present, but there was a great deal more room to spare, which meant increased comforts to those who were present. The delightful musical entertainment given by Liberti proved very enjoyable, and was heartily appreciated.

The first race of the day was for the unfinished 2:26 trotting purse, two heats of which had been won on the previous day by Bob Stewart's G. B. As was only natural to suppose when the third heat was called, G. B. was an immense favorite at $25 to $15 against the field. Making a bad break, the favorite was soon out of it, and Buck Morgan had no trouble in coming under the wire first. Time, 2:20¾.

The fourth heat, however, was easily negotiated by the Kansas City horse, he winning as he pleased in 2:21½. The following is the

The great event of the day was the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $10,000 stake race. In the betting Prince Warwick was sold as first choice for $20, Siglight $18, while the field sold for $40. Almost a half hour was lost in scoring, and finally word was given to a very good start considering the number engaged. Playboy was sent out for position and soon took the pole from Walter E. although fully a half dozen of the field chased him hard to gain the lead from him. At the half mile pole Playboy was in the van by a length with Gillett second and the California-bred mare, Suisun third; from here out the fight was between Playboy and Gillett, the two making a very pretty race down the home stretch, Playboy winning the heat by half a length, Time, 2:18¼.

For the second heat the field sold for $25, while Playboy was sold for $18. Again considerable scoring was indulged in, and the judges fined the drivers of Nutmeg, Walter E. and Suisun. At last word was given, Nutmeg having a little the advantage of the start; at the turn Playboy again took the lead and stuck to it, closely pursued by Nutmeg and Suisun. At the half-mile pole there was a bunch of four, all in line, consisting of Playboy, Nutmeg, Suisun and Gillett, while Walter E. led the second division. Just as the home stretch was reached Playboy unfortunately threw a shoe and broke, falling back; Walter E. came out from the second division and joined Gillett and Suisun in the race for first place. Walter E proved the fortunate one, poking his nose under the wire first in 2:18¼, Suisun being second, Gillett third and Hickok who had brought Warwick up very fast finished fourth. As there were so many starters and already two heats had been taken by different horses, the talent who are always looking for a little sure money, very prudently declined to bet at the beginning of the third heat. On the send off Turner who had driven well in the preceding heat, pushed Suisun rapidly to the front and before reaching the quarter, had taken the pole from Walter E, Prince Warwick now coming along very fast, while Playboy still had the leaders well within reaching distance. In short this way they came into the home stretch when Walter E. was sent along at rapid strides, his driver trying to do the same trick that he had performed in the previous heat; Turner let out Suisun for all there was in her while Hickok was pushing Prince Warwick to his full speed; up to the wire they came and one blanket would have covered them all, Suisun proved her ability as to what she could do by coming under the wire first in 2:18¼.

Still the talent seemed to keep off from the chase as there were few of the heavy betters who had much faith in Suisun, the field selling for $25 while Suisun brought $10. For the fourth heat there was but little delay and Hickok pushed Prince Warwick for all there was in him and almost immediately took the pole. At the quarter Warwick was in the lead with Walter E. second, Playboy third and Suisun fourth. At the half Warwick was still leading but Playboy was now in second position with Walter E. third. At the three-quarters Suisun had crowded up and as Warwick broke the mare rushed to the front closely followed by Playboy, Walter E. falling back. In the stretch it looked as though the chg might win but at the distance he broke and was out of it, Suisun shot ahead and won in comparatively slow time although challenged by Almont Wilkes and Gillett. Time, 2:22. As darkness now came on the remainder of the race was postponed until the following day.

For the 2:17 pacing race only four starters came to the wire, and there being no California entries I simply send you the Grim's Gossip.

Matt Storn'a horses left for Los Angeles on Wednesday's trsin from Sacrsmento.

Nothing like it for dyspepsia and indigestion. Simmons Liver Regulator is a ssfe, sure cure.

Mr. J. V. Caldwell of Glenville has recently lost his fine trotting horse Solano Chief, from blood poisoning.

James Surgst, of the Fatherland Stnd Farm, near Natchez, lost three valnable brood mares dnring the week before last.

James A. Dustin has more horses in training than any other driver in the State. Jim shonld have a few winners in his string.

Harry J. Agnew is fast pntting the Agnew Stock Farm into shape. When completed it will he one of the most perfect in the State.

At Bnffalo, next week, a large nnmber of California horaes will start for fresh honors, snd I fully expect to see aeveral records broken.

I am sorry to annonnce tbat Adonis ahowed signs of lamenesa after hia fast heat at Clsveland, and it may he that he will not be seen ona track again.

The mare tbat was stolen from Mr. Corbitt's San Mateo Stock Farm, abont two weeks sgo waa Laura Drew, the dam of a vsry fast yearling which will be seen on the oircuit this year.

James Goldsmith, brother to "Our John" has pnt four into the 2:20 list this year. When the roll is msde np at the end of the season it will be fonnd that "Jimmy" is well up in the list of winning drivers.

Capt. Ned Hacket of Oakland drove his Anteeo colt a fsw daya ago on the Osklaud track a full mile in 2:31. This iaa great performance, and the captain has a fine colt which will aurely be heard from later on.

California has the honor of having bred and raised tbe only horse living or dead that has two trotters or pacers inside of 2:12. Sidney 2:19¾ is the sire of Gold Leaf 2:11¼ and Adonis 2:11½. All hail to the Golden State.

F. A. Sprsgne was in town on Monday and Tnesdsy inducing horse owners to make entries on the Northern Circuit. As he waa well pleased with hia visit, there is no douht hnt what he was successful in his endeavors.

The once premier jockey of California, Patsy Duffy, has heen taken hy his friends to an asylum where he will be taken care of until he can recover from the effects of a protracted spree upon which he has been.

Tbere has heen received at this office the ssveuth nnmber of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide for the piesent year. As usual it is replete with valuable information and everyone interested iu the thoroughbreds should have a copy.

Rhono, ths Hearst colt that won at Saratoga tbe other day, is very well brsd. He is hy Flood, out of the imported mare Rosetta by Struan, Son of Blair Athol. After the 4th dam his psdigree runs into that of Bay Midd'eton.

Mr. G. Valenain started East on special bnaineas last Wednesday and will he gone for about six weeks. When there he will visit several of the prominent trotting centers and probably aee hia horae Simmocolon start once or twice.

The day is not far distant when tbe Cocmhs Bros. of Napa will have the reputation of being successful trotting horse breeders. Stamboul, Sable Wilkes and Director hlood lines are prominent in their at present small atable of horses.

The purchase of Exile for the Fairview Stud in Tennessee, is a step in the right direction. With such marea as Thora, Wissahicken and Henlopen, the great Brooklyn winner ia apt to be heard from in the upper ranks of the running sires.

There is now a strong prohability that the Pleasanton horses will not retnrn in time for the Oakland meeting, but will most aurely be aeen at the State Fair. It ia the present intention of Mr. Saliabury to take hia stable as far as Rochester.

L. M. Morse has st the Lodi Track, a atallion colt hy Director, dam hy Santa Claus, that is showing a high rate of speed; and how can it be otherwise with two records, 2:17 and 2:17½ in the first and aecond generations of the pedigree.

After aumming np all the reports which are current about fast green horses, it can confidently he stated that there are five "unknowns" which may possibly trot cloae to the "twenty" mark. Thia of itself ia enough to assnre grand sport in the slow clasaes.

John McConnell is at San Jose, and rnmor ssys that he has three good young trotters in training which are showing np very well. "Buster" haa a knack of bringing his chargea to the wire in winning condition, ao whenever he starts it is prohable that first money will drop his way.

There is now no reasonable donbt bnt what the sire of the dam of Allen Roy can be proved so that tbe most sceptical will not hesitste to believe. Within the course of a few days we hope to be able to have all the necessary documents to hand, so that it may be given to the public.

Capt. Ben E. Harris bas had the misfortune to have Freena Froman, by Adventure, dam Blne Grass hy Hambletonian 10, drop an embryo foal, by Dawn, 2:18¾. Thia ia too bad, as in addition to being a fine individual, the mare, mated as she waa, should have prodnced a speedy yonngster.

Aa is well known, Sunol is likely to become aulky when on a circnit, and she is ahowing her disposition back East, for on Thursday laat the heat half mile she would go for Marvin waa 1:06, although the first quarter waa negotiated in 31 aeconda. The msre does not seem to relish a change of quartera.

Racine has had hia colors lowered this week by Raveloe, another California bred horse. At Monmouth Park, on the straight track last Thuraday a aon of Joe Hooker—Illusion, anceeeded in rnnning a mile in 1:39¼. Although thia now forms the record for a mile, Racine's performance is the better the two.

The old horse Betrayer, by Tradncer ont of Idalia, which died in New Zsaland some weeks ago, never got a first-class performer, and yet he waa own brother to Sir Modred and Cheviot, both of whom are represented hy winners of more than average large racea.

The mare Msid of Kentucky, aister to Foxhall, purchased by the Messra. Finlay, of Anstralia, snd aubseqnently sold to Mr. Samuel Gardiner, has never had a foal since her arrival in the colonies. She is very small and not at all of the shape or size to become famons as a matron.

Sam Gamble informa me that Stamboul has been tnrned over to John Goldamith, who will handle the atallion and try to reduce his prssent record of 2:12¼. The great aon of Sultan has made a big season in the stud, and it will take some time for even snch a mechanic as Goldsmith ia, to get the stallion near a race.

Dr. Wm. F. Egan has taken the position of Veterinary Editor on the Breeder and Sportsman and will be pleased to give advice througb onr colnmna to any reader who may desire the asme. Dr. Egan is a close atndent, has a large practice, and is in every way competent to fill the responaible task which he has so kindly nndertaken.

Orrin A. Hickok must have made a "killing" at Cleveland on Thursday, as he lost the first heat of the 2:17 race to Pamlico in 2:17½, bnt managed to land Alfred S the winner of the second, third and fourth heats in 2:18½, 2:17 and 2:19¾. Pamlico ia a wonderful five-year-old, and hia supporters thought he could heat tbe aon of Elmo.

We are in receipt of a telegram which states that the Directors of the Buffalo Association have made arrangements with Chas. Marvin, and that Sunol will start there on Thnraday, Augnst 7th, to try and beat her record of 2:10½. On the same day Belle Hamlin will make an attempt to beat 2:10½, which will in a measnre settle the statna of superiority between the two mares.

When at Saginaw, Mr. Salisbury was obliged to atart Margaret S. in the 2:18 race, as Direct waa completely off. In a letter received from the owner of Director, the information is given that ths "Little Fellow" and Katie S. have been nnder the weather, and that it may be sometime before they round to. Cricket and Margaret S. are, however, enough to keep up the repntation of the atable.

The match race for $500 a side hetween tbe trotters Argent and Cyrus R took place Thnrsday afternoon at the San Jose race track. Argent won in three strsigbt heats the time being 2:27¾, 2:28 and 2:30¼. A repreaentative of the Breeder and Sportsman was present and paid over the stakes, to Mr. Walton owner of Argent, this paper having been stakeholder, since the match was arranged in March last.

The great New Zealand Stnd Company is in tbe throes of bankruptcy, and all the horses and cattle will probably he sold some time in October. Breeders desiring great hargains will he obliged to take the steamer of September 21st from this city. Thers are seven or eight daughters of Musket, stinted to St. Leger which wonld he a valnable scquisition to sny American breeding farm. St Leger is hy Doncaster (sire of Bend' Or) out of Atlantia (dam of King Ban) by Thormanby.

The Manhattan Food Co. have removed trom tbeir former quartera to 623 Howard St. This preparation ia now extensively used all over the country as horse owners find that it improves digestion, fattens atock, asaists the appetite, strengthens the kidneys, regnlates the bowels and destroys worms. Those who have not as yet tried it on their horses aboald send for a sample.

At Santa Barbara on July 26th two racea took place, one being for the trottera and the other for runnera. For the first one the entries were Geo. W., Gazelle, Nellie and Bollet, the purse being $100. Bullet won the first, fourth and fifth hesta in 3:03, 2:55 and 2:52, while Geo. W. took the aecond and third in 2:57 and 3:00. The rnnning race, five-eighths of a mile had two entriea, Consnelo winning essily, Jeunie Ferguson aecond, time, 1:06¼.

Aa was predicted in "Goasip" two weeks ago, the Directors of the Kentncky Trotting Horae Breedera Asaociation have offered the largest gnsranteed purse for trotting foals that has ever been put before the pnblic. It is a Futnrity Stake for foals of 1891, to he trotted in 1893 or 94 and the sum guaranteed is $25,000. They have alao decided to give a atallion repreaentative stake for foals of this year to he trotted in 1893 the sum guaranteed being $10,000.

Don. D. Donnan Editor of The Iowa Farmer and Breeder haa purchased from Charlea A. Msrsh, Jeanp, Ia, tbe two year old bay colt, Don Donnan, hy Dictator Wilkea, 5231, dsm hy Totaway, 2168, hy Aberdeen, 27; 2nd dam hy Mambrino Pilot, 49, hy Mambrino Chief, 11. The sire of thia colt ia by Red Wilkea, dam Nancy Lee, the dam of Nancy Hanks, 2:24½ as a two year old; she by Dictator, 113. Mr. Donnan has sent the colt to Rnah Park, Independeuce, where he will be handled by C. W. Williams late owner of Axtell.

The Valenain "luck" atill continnes. At Pittshnrg on Friday last, Simmocolon won in the 2:23 class, on a heavy track in 2:24¾, 2:26 and 2:25½. At Cleveland, on Tuesday, he waa again atarted, this time in the 2:21 claaa and won in 2:21½, 2:19 and 2:22. Aa Mr. Goldamith has put the horae in the "teens", according to promiae, Mr. W. H. Wilson of Cynthiana, Ky., will have to forward the noted driver a first class sulky, he agreeing to do so whenever Simmocolon heat 2:20

Next week tbe first regnlar racing of the year commences at Los Angelea snd Ione. Visitors who may have occasion to go to any of the meetings should remember that Pernvian Bitters are a good preventative from the had resnlts arising from a change of water, and aa Peruvian Bark ia one of the main ingrediants, a healthy tone ia given to the stomach by the use thereof. Wilmerding & Co., 216 Front St are the sgents for tbe Pacifio Coast, bnt Peruvian Bitters sre sold at all first clasa hotels and cafes.

When the Directors of the Detroit Meeting formnlated their programme, in addition to the regnlar puraes, $500 was to be added if certain times in each race was heaten, for instance, in the 2:30 class of trottera, $500 waa given extra if 2:18 was heaten. In the 2:24 pacing clasa, 2:15 waa the mark aet by the Association, and dnring the entire week, Cricket was the only entry to carry off the extra money, she winning that race in 2:14¼. Mr. Meek of Haywards ia her owner, and that be is gratified by her great work in the East bnt feebly expresses the sitnation.

When L. A. Davies the owner of Roy Wilkes, brought his horse to California to winter, laat fall he performed a very wise action. He took advantage of the chance to pick up information in regsrd to California horses, snd among the nnmber he "got a line" on was Margaret S. When the race for the fonr-year-olds atartsd at Detroit, Mr. Davies might have been seen bnying the short end with an unceasing regularity that was simply charming to Californians, they admiring his pluck for the strong allegiance he wss showing to the Pleasanton entry. When the race was over tbe poolsellers declared that Daviea was the largest winner on the race, notwithstanding that Mr. Salisbury won $12,000 in the pools.

The Anatralian newspapers to arrive by the steamer Zelandia, dne to arrive to-day, will contain the weights for the Canlfield snd Melbonrne Cnps. The first is a mile and a half, and the sscond is two miles. Mr. Donald Wallace haa entered Csrbine and Tantallon, the latter being an own brother to L. J. Rose's mare Catherine Wheel. He is one of the choicest bred horsea Sonth of the Equator, being by Wellington, ont of the imported mare Fizgig hy Voltigsur. Wellington, himself a great racehorse, was by Panic (the sire of Commotion) out of the imported mare Frou Fron by Macaroni, her dam Glengowrie by Touchstone out of Glencairne hy Sultan, own sister to Glencoe. If Tantallon geta in with less than 115 pounds, he will he a dangerous horse in either of the fsmona races.

R. M. Johnson, sheriff of Koekuk County, Ind., has invented and patented a horse timer which he helisvsa will become very popnlar on race courses, saya the Jeweller's Weekly. The dial is abont three feet in diameter, and ita divisions and anhdivisions are marked with sufficient distinctness to be seen from any part of the ordinary grand stand.

The markings divide the circnmference of the disl into minutes, seconds, half seconds, quarter secouda, eighth seconds and sixteenth seconds. The hands may be stopped or started instantaneonsly by touching a hutton at the hack of the case. Tbe minute hand makes one revolution in twelve minntes, and the aecond hand makes a revolntion in one minnte. Both may be turned to the atarting point instantly and easily. The esoapsment is a half second beat.

Tbere never was a public holiday at Pleasanton on which there was anch general rejoicing aa last Friday and Saturday when the newa came that Margsret S, had won the rich stake, which was institnted by the Horseman Publishing Company of Chicago. Bonfirea were in order while crackera and hombs tended to make the nervous even more so. To say that the little town was painted red bnt feebly expresses it, all classes of persona tnrning out to do honor to the great filly, Mr. Salisbnry her owner, and Andy McDowell the popular driver. But while "Snccess to the Pleasanton Stock Farm" was the favorite toast, still one could hear on all sides, "Hnrrah for PaloAlto" "Three cheers for Simmocolon" "Hickok'a a brick" "Cricket can down them all". Well the folks had something to rejoice over as five Californisn owned horees had stsrted in two days and all of them received first money. Palo Alto owned by Senator Stanford, Margaret S., bred and owned by the Pleasanton Stock Farm Co., while Cricket is controlled by them at present. From the Valensin Farm comes Adonis, and Simmocolon is owued there now. Truly Pleasanton may be pardoned for the demonstration, as these victories have doue more to advertise the horse indnstry in that section than anything else conld poasibly do.

Mr. James Howard, who was conaidered good authority on the physiology of breeding, deemed the following cardinal points fully eatablished in breeding: 1. That from the male parent is mainly derived the external atructure, configuration and outward characteriatics, also the locomotive aystem of development. 2. From the female parent ia derived the internal structure, the vital organs, and in a much greater proportion than from the male, the constitution, temper and habit in which endurance and "bottom" are included. 3. That the purer the race of the parent, the more certainty there ia of transmitting ita qualitiea to the offspring; say two animals are mated, if one is of purer descent than the other, he or she will exercise the most influence in stamping the character of progeny, particularly if the greater purity is on the side of the male. 4. That apart from diaturbing influencea or cauaes the male if of pure race, and descended from a stock of uniform color, stamps the color of the offspring. 5. That the influence of the first male is not unfrequently protracted beyond the birth of the offspring of which he is parent, and hia mark is left upon subsequent progeny. 6. That the tranamission of disease of the vital organs ia more certain if on the side of the female, and disease of the joints, if on the aide of the male parent.

On Sunday last there appeared at Morsehead stable the trotting horse Ira, 2:24½, which had just been brought down from Humboldt county to take part in the Fall racea. If thia horse ia handled properly there is no question of doubt but what he can made a very low mark for himself, it only needing a competent driver and plenty of work to place him well within the "teens."

In giving place to tbe above from the San Francisco Breeder and Sportsman yesterday, we did not for the moment remember that "Ira" went below in charge of E. L. Hnnt, who has handled him ever aince his purchaae by Mr. Cooper. We also overlooked the fact that the language of the paper qnoted from carried with it an intimation of incompetency, which is entirely uncalled for and gratuitous. When Mr. Cooper bought "Ira" from the Stanford stablea hia best recorded time was 2:50. Under Mr. Hunt's handling this was brought down to 2:24½. No one else haa ever been permitted hy Mr. Cooper to drive or handle him. The owner is entirely aatiafied to leave the horse in Hnnt'a hands, in spite of the uttered misgivinga of the Breeder and Sportsman. He recognizes in Mr. Hunt a man of nnswerving honesty and integrity, theae qualifications having been satisfactorily demonstrated on more than one occasion. Humboldt people are well enongh aatiafied that the horse will be "handled properly," and believe that nnder Hnnt'a management he will yet "make a very low mark for himself."

The above remarks taken from the Eureka Standard, on an item which appeared in "Grim'a Goasip" some two weeks ago, is "entirely nncalled for and gratnitous." Mr. Hunt was not even known to be in charge of the horse and hia competency is an unknown quantity so far as the horaemen of this section are concerned, but we sincerely trnst that Ira's trainer and driver may prove himself able to cope with the older and more experienced heads which he will meet on the circnit. The langnage nsed was meant in all sincerity and with the best wishea for both Mr. Cooper and his horse.

TURF AND TRACK.

J. I. Case paid $3,500 for Clara Wilkes, 2:28¼.

The fast pacer Gem, 2:13¾, has a foal by Nutwood, 2:18¾.

The Hazlitt stable arrived at Monmouth Park last Saturday.

Suisun has lowered her mark gradually from 2:31½ to 2:18¼.

W. H. E. Smith last Tuesday sold Longshot to J. O'Brien for $4,000.

Theodore Winters only won $2,000 with his stable at Washington Park.

The Western contingent of the Hearst stable won $3,335 at Washington Park.

The Duke of Portland has since March, 1888, won over $600,000 in stakes alone.

Princess Alice, the Stockton pacer, is said to have worked a mile last week in 2:16¼.

Charles Boots will go to Ione instead of splitting up the stable as he originally intended.

Al Farrow and Almont ran one, two in a six furlong and repeat at St. Paul last Wednesday.

The once mighty Proctor Knott will probably remain on the shelf for the rest of the season.

A. J. Cassatt, President of the Monmouth Park Association, has gone to Europe for a short trip.

Mr. G. Valensin left last Wednesday evening for Buffalo and will probably stay out East for some time.

John Reavey was up from San Jose last Tuesday. He says he will be in the ring with a two-year-old in the fall.

Gus Carey is working Redwood at Santa Rosa. Last week he was given three separate miles in 2:27½, 2:25 and 2:24.

Old Besconsfield, once Jim Garland's pet, won a race at Missoula, Montana, last week, running the two miles in 3:41½.

Mrs. Rody Paterson is said to have refused $10,000 for Tronsseau, 2:28¼, by Nutwood, 2:18¾, and her foal by Ready Boy, 2:29¼.

Lillian 2:14¼ by Adrian Wilkes 8560 from Abdallah Light foot by Mambrino Abdallah 2251 was bred last year to Nutwood 2:18¾.

The Sire Bros. well known trotter Harry Wilkes 2:13¼ was foaled in 1876 and gelded in 1880. He is the sire of Billy Wilkes 2:29½.

Direct trotted a quarter at Grand Rapids, Michigan, in 31¾ seconds on July 10th. Alcryon last year, trotted the same quarter in 32 seconds.

W. L. Appleby split his stable up last week, taking part of them to Los Angeles; the other portion of the stable will go to Ione under Orville Appleby's charge.

Vagabond, the sire of Judge Morrow, has been purchased by Dr. Corrigan who will give him a chance in the stud at the Quindaro Stock Farm, Louisville, Ky.

M. F. Tarpey's Anteeo mare, who was in Hickok's stable this spring, has been bred to Gnide, 2:29, by Director, out of Imogene. She will not be worked again.

The Fairview yearlings which were sold in New York last Wednesday night with the salesrooms brilliantly illuminated by incandescent lights averaged nearly $1,000.

A week ago yesterday W. Vioget worked Maggie E a mile in 2:22, and the same morning drove Wanda a mile in 2:23½. Both mares were trotting well within themselves.

Spokane has ended his career on the turf, being completely broken down. He will be relegated to the stud and probably Montana will be his home in the future.

Morton who went East last spring with the Western Contingent of the Hearst Stable has returned to California and will probably be seen in the saddle at Los Angeles.

Good judges at Monmouth Park say El Rio Rey will race again, and his wind is not nearly as bad as was reported. I presume they have not seen him fully extended yet.

A. L. Hinds drove Balkan two heats in 2:25¼ last Wednesday; the horse still shows signs of lameness at times and evidently has never fairly recovered from his sickness.

Mr. Valensin's Simmocolon won the 2:23 class at Pittsburg last week in easy style. After laying up the first two heats he trotted the next three in 2:24¾ 2:26 and 2.25¼.

Simmocolon reduced his record to 2:19 last Tuesday at Cleveland; he won the first, third and fourth heats in 2:21½, 2:19 and 2:22, and only just missed taking the second heat in 2:17.

Amulet, who was said to be one of W. L. Scott's best two-year-olds, has been retired for good with a badly cracked hoof. She is by imported Rayon D'Or out of imported Presto.

The society for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Stockton, has announced its intention of arresting all persons who allow their teams to stand over four hours without water.

Horse thieves are on the move again. Among those who have suffered from their depredations is Jesse D. Carr, who has had 150 horses stolen from his ranch in Klamath Co., Oregon.

Very appropriately Los Angeles won the California Stakes at Saratoga last Saturday, and on Tuesday she defeated the mighty Kingston, one mile and a quarter, in 2:11¼, with the track deep in mud.

All persons making entries to the fixed events for the Blood Horse meetings of 1891 and 1892, should recollect that under the revised rules of Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, all horses must be named.

The Willows Agricultural Association are making strenuous efforts for a successful meeting. Among other attractions will be the Ladies Riding Tournament which will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 13th.

Florentin, a four-year-old brother to Firenzi, died at Rancho del Paso a few weeks ago. As a race-horse he was a disappointment, and being broken-winded, would probably not have made a great stallion.

Albert Cooper started out in winning form with the Hearst stable. Rhono who was a maiden four year old fairly romped away from the two good performers Eon and Diablo, doing the mile in 1:40 on a sticky track.

The Darebin—Tulare colt purchased by Hamilton Smith at the last Rancho Del Paso sale, arrived all safe in England, and his name will be found frequently in the principal two and three year old races of '91 and '92.

El Rio Rey was worked a fair mile at Washington Park, Chicago, before the close of the meeting. Rey Del Rey and Joe Courtney who worked out with him are said to have finished more distressed than the River King.

Harvey W. Peck, who was in town from Healdsburg this week, speaks in glowing terms of his colt, which is by Ferndale, a son of Anteeo, out of Kitty by A. W. Richmond, from a Dan Voorhees mare; the colt has therefore a double Richmond cross.

Dan McCarty is said to have purchased a half interest in the Altonwood Farm near Westchester. The farm contains 716 acres and is well equipped for the horse business having upwards of 100 stalls, while the land is neatly divided into small enclosures.

Shamrock, who made his record of 2:25 as a two-year-old in 1886, and was last year sold by Mr. Valensin to Dr. Stimpson, has been worked for some time on the Oakland track. Last week Shamrock was sent down to Los Angeles to take part in the races there.

F. Sprague who lives near Chico has been in town several days, he speaks in glowing terms of the prospects of the Northern circuit and says that he understands that the 17th District Fair at Glenbrook Park, Nevada City will surpass all previous fairs in that popular mining district.

E. J. Baldwin left for the East yesterday. The proprietor of the Santa Anita Stable will stop over one day in Chicago, and then go to Saratoga, where his horses are at present. The Emperor of Norfolk who is in work, has so far stood up, and it is confidently expected will race in a few weeks.

Col. Warfield, the ex-President of the Healdsburg Jockey Club, has gone East for a short trip. The Colonel who is one of the most popular men in Sonoma County, is a nephew of Dr. Warfield, the breeder of Alice Carneal and her world renowned son Lexington and many other crack horses.

On August 7th Sunol will start at Buffalo to beat her record and on the same day it is said Belle Hamlin will attempt to beat 2:10½. It is a pity Mr. Hamlin did not see his way clear to accept the offer made him and have a race between the two mares which would have been worth going from here to see.

The crack Sidney pacer Adonis has now the fastest heat in a race to his credit. On Wednesday at Cleveland after winning the first heat in 2:15¾ he took the second heat in 2:11¼. Hal Pointer then took the next three heats in 2:18¼, 2:14½ and 2:17. Adonis finished second the last two heats although lame.

The breeders of trotters in Kentucky say that this season has been the most disastrous they have ever had. A disease resembling la grippe, with which the horses were affected last winter, has been the cause of hundreds of foals being slipped or lost after foaling, and it is now very difficult to get mares with foal.

W. S. Hobart returned from the East on Friday night of last week in time to join the Palace Hotel coterie in their felicitations over the victories of Adonis, Palo Alto and Margaret S. Mr. Hobart was looking in remarkably good trim, although he was only on a race track once while away, and that one afternoon at Fleetwood.

Tom Murphy, who came up from Petaluma the other evening, says that the heat is rather pronounced around Petaluma. He incidentally remarked that he thought there were a whole lot of horses trotting faster on paper than any other way. Wait till he strikes them. He says Emma Temple is going great guns in Shaner's hands.

Two of the longhest turf battles of the year have been won by grandsons of George Wilkes, viz: the 2:24 race of eight heats at Philadelphia, won by Simmocolon, son of Simmons, and the 2:22 race of seven heats at Poughkeepsie, won by Golden Rod, son of Alcyone. The fields of starters in these races were among the hottest of the season.

The Jones mare by Winthrop Morrill 373, died at Rancho Del Paso a few weeks ago presumably of old age. She was brought out as one of a team for Senator Jones of Nevada and nothing was known further than that she was by Winthrop Morrill. She showed plenty quality and evidently was highly bred. Senator 2:21½ was out of her.

The estate of the late T. J. Megibben have lost by death four valuable broodmares, viz., Mayflower by Bob Wooley, out of Flower Girl by imp. Australian; Molly Cad by Lexington, out of imported Weatherwitch by Weatherbit; Emerald by imported Saxon, out of imported Second Hand by Stockwell, and Genera by Planet, out of Geneva by Lexington.

Hankins & Co. were the largest winners at the Washington Park meeting. They won, all told, in stakes and purses, $24,742. T. J. Clay comes next, with $11,790. The Santa Anita stables are next, with $11,120. Hankins heads the list because of Uncle Bob's Derby victory. Clay's notch was reached through Balgowan's fine run in the Hyde Park stakes.

Mr. A. C. Bruce, Rosemont, Minn., has sold to C. G. Goodrich, Minneapolis, Minn., Aunt Joe, bay filly one year old by Nutwood 2:18¾; dam Mary F by Mambrino Boy; 2d dam Adieu by Administrator; 3d dam by Kentucky Clay; 4th dam by Mambrino Chief; also Brown Filly foal by William L, dam Mabel, full sister to Lou dam of Axtel 2:12; price for the two, $4,000.

Vol. 7 of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, contains the usual amount of turf information. Among other statistics in the volume are the winning jockeys to date. M. Bergen leads with 123 wins, Hamilton has been successful on 79 occasions, Taylor 64, Magee 53 Overton 51, Barnes 48, R. Williams 47. Among the heavy weights, Garrison has 32 brackets, Murphy 10, and W. Hayward 1.

Jack Maloney has placed that once brilliant and fearless rider, Patsy Duffy in St. Vincent's Asylum, St. Louis. After a few weeks sojourn there it is expected that Patsy will be in better health and condition. He will be given a chance again and it is to be hoped will repair his shattered reputation. There was always one redeeming feature about Patsy, he rode straight and with rare judgment.

The Ione fair which commences next Tuesday, should be attended by all the local celebrities, while Sacramento, Stockton and the surrounding districts will probably be largely represented. The Sacramento Military Band has been engaged, and on Tuesday a special excursion will be run from Sacramento. The programme is a very good one, and is sure to be productive of many a hard race.

"Jimmy Temple, pacing record 2:23½," says the Turf, Field and Farm, "is but one of the numerous living examples of the fact that action depends more upon conformation than inherited characteristics. Trotting blood will not give you a trotter unless it gives you trotting shape. The objection to mixing pacing blood with trotting blood is that you increase the tendency to pacing conformation."

The judges of a recent race in Michigan gave a remarkable exhibition of their knowledge of their rules when they called the driver of a horse that had just won a heat in slow time into the stand and told him that the public had come to see a horse race and wanted him to drive faster. They must have a new code of rules in Michigan if judges can force a driver to do more than win in straight heats, no matter what may be the time.

The Lassen County Supervisors have come nobly to the assistance of the county fair. At the last meeting it was voted that "on petition of tax payers of Lassen County, it is ordered that the sum of $500 be appropriated from the General Fund, to be paid to the Treasurer of the Lassen County Fair Association, to be used in defraying the expenses of said County Fair, if held in Susanville during the month of October, 1890."

Since Conductor made his record of 2:26½ a few weeks ago, F. H. Burke has had several inquiries from Eastern horsemen as to what is the price of Eros, who is a full brother to Conductor and half brother to Sallie Benton 2:17¾ and Sport 2:22¾. Eros is confidently expected to lower his record several notches this year and go into the stud again with a record befitting his illustrious lineage and at an increased price, for Mr. Burke says he is not for sale.

The scheme to form a company with a capital of $50,000, to take the Memorial park and turn the place into a fair and pleasure ground, is making good headway. The Tacoma Sunday Ledger says: About $150 has already been promised, and it is believed that even though the plans now contemplated are not realized this summer, the fall races at least can be held under the management of the new organization. The estimated cost of grading the plat inclosed by the tracks for baseball and other sports is $2,000.

The late Major Doswell was the owner and breeder of many crack race horses. From Revenue and Nina he bred Planet; he also bred Fannie Washington by Revenue, and sending her to Leamington resulted in Æolus. In the seventies he owned Lizzie Lucas, who is now at Rancho Del Paso; Algerine, Outcast, Bushwacker and other well known race horses. Major Doswell's death leaves the Saratoga Association with only two stewards, as Gov. Oden Bowie and Judge Perkins resigned some time since.

Dan Dennison, who is back in Sacramento, is said to be as lively and chipper as ever. Since his Oregon trip his tales of sights he's seen, in lands he's been, are even more varied and amusing than in days of yore. It is rumored that a well known journalist in conjunction with Dan is shortly going to publish a short volume of racy stories which scintillate with Dan's witty Irish sayings. The Dennison stable will be on hand at Ione next week and once more threatens to show speed.

Senator Hearst is in better luck all round. Cooper started out with a win with Rhono, and on Tuesday followed up his hand by winning a mile and a furlong race at Monmouth with Miss Belle, a three year old daughter of Prince Charlie, beating Eon, Sluggard and Inspector B. On the same day the Western contingent at St. Paul scored a victory, if it could be so called, for Almont carrying 122 lbs. ran a dead heat with the Montana horse X, by Regent out of Sadie Williams. The pair ran the mile in 1:42. Stakes were divided.

The writer of the "Home of Salvator" in the New York Sportsman of the 19th, is rather mistaken when he credits the Golden West with John Happy as one of the native sons; he was bred by Capt. Jas. Franklin, Kennesaw Stud, Tennessee. The writer seems to have forgotten that Kildeer, who won a sweepstake at Westchester on June 16th, is by Darebin, from Lou Lanier, when he says that the first of the Darebins will race next season. The first of the Darebins were racing in Australia two or three years ago.

McFarran & Clancy, of Louisville, Ky., write: On July 4th, we had a bay colt foaled by Bell Boy, record 2:19¼; 1st dam Prefix by Pancoast; 2nd dam, Galatea by Mess Duroc, 3rd dam, Hyacinth by Volunteer; 4th dam, Clara by Seely's American Star; 5th dam, McKinstry Mare, dam of Shark 2:27¾. for which we claim the name of "Liberty Bell." On July 8th, a bay filly foaled by Bell Boy, record 2:19¼; 1st dam Typhoon trial 2:43, by Lord Russell: 2nd dam, Storm record 2:26¾, by Middleton; 3rd dam. Green Mountain Maid, for which we claim the name of "Belle Russell."

Many owners and drivers of horses will confess that their animals work better and do better when allowed to carry the head in a natural position, but they check them for looks. What a mistaken idea? All men admire high style if it is natural, but when a horse's head is pulled higher than his formation justifies he shows it in every movement; and instead of adding to his beauty, it greatly detracts from it in the eyes of every man who is a judge of form.

I heard a few days ago that the train with the Undine stable's horses on board was wrecked at Pittsburg on the way from Washington Park, Chicago, to Monmouth Park. The car containing the horses was badly smashed up, and it was sometime before the horses were released. Racine was the only one much hurt, and it is hoped that no permanent injury will result from it, but the crack miler suffered a good deal from the excessive heat, and his cramped up position before being released. He will not be in a condition to race for some time.

Following the close of the Washington Park races, four poolrooms tried to open their establishments on July 21st, and it is said orders have been given for similar daily raids, if necessary, to keep pools from being sold. Pool selling is allowed by the Illinois laws at race tracks only, and it is reported that the managers of the West side track, will, if necessary, prevent the selling of pools down town, and inaugurate systematic raids. If the poolsellers are confined to the race course, the bookmakers of the track will realize a heavily increased income.

The round table in the Palace Hotel has been surrounded by horsemen for a couple of weeks, all anxiously discussing the performances of the Salisbury, Palo Alto and Hickok horses at Detroit and the various centers of interest. On Friday of last week the coterie included Ariel Lathrop, G. Valensin, Wm. Corbitt, W. S. Hobart, W. Lyle, L. E. Clawson and James A. Dustin. One and all were highly delighted at the great victory of Margaret S, while Palo Alto, Cricket, Adonis and Alfred S all came in for their share of flattering remarks. It seemed to be the general opinion that Sunol would trot in 2:08 sure.

Sooner or later the bookmakers on the Eastern race courses will be divided into classes so that a man wishing to bet a thousand or more will not have to push his way through a host of five dollar men to get to the front. The English plan is better in one respect than the American for there are several rings there. Tattersall's enclosure being principally conducted on a credit basis with the usual Monday settling, while the ready money men in the outer ring will take no less then £1 ($5.00); the other books outside the ring take any sum down to about half a crown—possibly less.

The other night at the Palace hotel I found Wm. Hendrickson and P. A. Finigan sitting together in animated conversation, both were of one mind that for brood mares a George M. Patchen Jr. cross was the best to have. Mr. Hendrickson, as will be recollected by most horsemen brought Patchen to California in 1861 and took him back in the spring of 1866, afterwards selling him to Messrs. Halstead who sold him to Wm. Matthews of San Jose who brought him back in 1869. Mr. Finigan purchased him in 1877 and afterwards presented him to J. B. Haggin who sent him to his Kern county ranch, where he died in 1887.

Representatives of a proposed race horse association embracing the States of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, are negotiating with Mr. C. E. Hill, proprietor of Saylor Springs, for a location for winter quarters, and the privilege of using the waters of one of the springs for the horses, claiming that the waters of this spring have the necessary medical properties that are required by race horses after a campaign, and it is proposed to have the opening and closing races at this place. Saylor Springs is a beautiful health and pleasure resort within 100 miles of St. Louis, 240 miles of Cincinnati, and 225 miles of Chicago, and should these gentlemen accomplish their object, it will be a Western Saratoga.

"The best riders in the world," said an old cavalryman who was giving a greenhorn some points on equestrianism, "are the Mexicans. Buffalo Bill's cowboys are splendid riders, but the Mexicans are better still; and their superiority is in part due to the kind of saddle they use. The low English saddle you've got there," he continued, "I couldn't ride in. It isn't fit for a man to ride in. Now, the great beauty of a Mexican saddle is that a man sitting in it has his legs almost straight down beside the horse like a clothespin. A Mexican on horseback keeps his heels and shoulders nearly in a line, his feet planted firmly in his stirrups underneath him and pointed straight ahead parallel with the horse." The editor of the Mirror and Farmer, who spent months in the saddle in company with Mexicans in California, endorses the views of the old cavalryman as being strictly true.

An alteration is being effected at the Brooklyn Jockey Club track which will be duly appreciated. It has been found that the width of the track around the start for the five furlong and half mile races is too circumscribed. To obviate this, therefore, the outside rails all the way down the backstretch have been taken up, and the track will be widened there so as to admit of a larger number of horses starting without danger or inconvenience. It is impossible, owing to the lay of the ground, to make such a thing as a straight T Y C at Gravesend. But the authorities by widening the back stretch, are doing the next best thing in their power so as to give horses in the sprint races a fair show. The turn of course will always be an insuperable difficulty, but to all intents and purposes, a dash race is practically confined to the half dozen leaders, after the first quarter at any rate has been traversed.

Very few horses perfectly recover from the effect of serious attacks of inflammation of the lungs. Cold must therefore be regarded with the greatest apprehension. Habitual or chronic coughs, so prevalent among horses, may generally be attributed and often traced to colds caught when young, but which, being slight, have not been attended to at the time. Nor is it the lungs only that will in all cases be injured by colds; trachea or windpipe is often the seat where their baneful consquences will be established; by exciting the membrane to a state of inflammation a deposit is formed, ossification follows, and roaring is occasioned more or less violently. It is not perhaps the slight cold that may do this mischief, but the slight cold repeated establishes an inflammatory condition of the trachea, which in course of time becomes chronic. The strangles or a severe cold supervenes (sometimes the epidemic called influenza, a similar disorder) either of which being attended with considerable inflammation, roaring ensues in its worst form, and the animal is of little value.

The following remarks from Col. B. F. Cockerill, the well known breeder, of Nashville, Tenn., may prove interesting as a comparison between our modern racing and that of some years back: "I remember much about those old times. A race horse was a race horse in those days. There were no railroads, and the horses footed it from place to place—from Nashville to Hartsville, from Hartsville to Clarksville, from Clarksville to Columbia, Murfreesboro, Fayetteville, and on down South to Charleston, S. C. The trainer and the boys each rode a horse, one was used to carry the camping outfit, another the tents, and so on. Just think of a race horse being used as a pack horse, travelling fifty to 100 and 500 miles and then going out and running heat races. We knew how to breed race horses in those days. Now we are breeding something as if we intended to place it in a lady's parlor."

Boussingault expsrimented with cattle, and found that the addition of salt to their fodder did not increase the flesh or milk, but improved the outer appearance of the animals. They looked more vigorous and healthy and had a smoother skin than those fed on the same fodder without salt. The latter were dull, inactive and sickly, their hair ragged, and in spots entirely missing. Liebig considered these experiments "highly instructive." Those with salt, he said, contrasted strikingly with those which did not have it. Of the latter, "there was insufficiency of salt for the purposes of secretion." Said he: "The outer skin is the mirror of the condition of the system"; and of those fed salt he said: "Their blood remained pure and proper for all the objects of sustenance. They received a powerful, and under the conditions an indispensable, means of resistance against outside disturbances of their health. The bodies of the others could be compared, in regard to sickness, only to light combustible material to which only a spark was wanting to cause it to burst out into consuming flames."

It won't do to "sour" a colt until he detests a track and won't try to trot. just give him plenty of jogging every day, one after another, on the track, and you will soon have him "fixed." A sensible colt, like a sensible boy, likes to see that he accomplishes something when he works, and if he can't do this he loses all interest in the job, and everyone knows what that means. A colt needs not only a change of speed rate, but a change of scenery, to insure the best results. Give him variety; give him the track one day, and a nice country drive the next; or, better still, two or three country drives to one track drive, and when you do strike the track, don't jog him four to six miles about as fast as he can go and then turn him around and speed him; this will make a duffer out of any colt. The better plan is to jog but little on the track, but always, or nearly always, open up your colt for a quick, short brush—always keeping him within his speed, and he will always have an appetite for his work, and will improve.

W. H. Raymond, Belmont Park Montana, has sold to J. B. Hunter, of Ill., a bay colt, two years old, by Commodore Belmont, sire of Carrie Bell, record, 2:23½; first dam Mona West, by Dictator, sire of J. I. C., record, 2:10; second dam by Alexander's Norman.

To Dr. C. S. Elridge of Chicago and W. C. France of Kentucky, the black colt Kingsbury, three year old, by Commodore Belmont; dam, Irene, by Dictator, second dam by Alexander's Norman.

To A. D. Helm, of Kansas, the chestnut colt Belfast, two-year-old, by Commodore Belmont, dam Lady Rothchild (dam of King Phillip, 2:26¼) by Mambrino Patchen, second dam Miss Chitds, by Edwin Forrest, third dam by Downing's Black Highlander, fourth dam by Lance.

To Mr. Franks, of South Boulder, Montana, the black horse Iago five-year old, by Commodore Belmont, dam Calliope, by Fancy Golddust.

To Ira Phillips, of Pony, Mont., bay colt Loftus, two-year-old, by Commodore Belmont, dam Mobile, by Maxim.

To Ike Morehouse, of Butte, Mont., bay filly Libretto, two-year-old, by Commodore Belmont, dam Barora, by Woodford Mambrino, second dam by Alexander's Norman, third dam by Whip.

A sensation was caused in Plainfield New Jersey, by the action of the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross and President of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in laying hands on one of the most fashionable turnouts in town and seeking to relieve the horses of Mr. O. T. Waring, the Standard Oil magnate, which it is alleged have for a long time been cruelly treated. The especial offense of Mr. Waring, in the eyes of the society, is the extreme high checking which his horses have had to suffer.

Mr. Waring was notified by letter from an officer of the society six weeks ago that the practice of telescoping his horses' heads and necks back to their shoulders must be abolished. Mr. Murphy said that the horses drawing the Waring coupe were in as painful a posture as ever and promptly stopped them on the street, loosened the taut check reins, and warned the coachman that if ever again he appeared on the streets driving horses so cruelly checked the society would have him arrested and severely disciplined.

The society is determined to abolish high checking and the docking of horses' tails. Both offenses are common among Plainfield fashionable people.

It requires better judgment than that possessed by the average hired man to arrange for and carry on the feeding of horses that are expected to turn off much work, either on the farm or on the road. Horses, like men, says an Exchange, get dull and listless when the digestion is wrong. The muscular system is under the control of the nervous system, including the brain, and the muscles have no tension and rebound when digestion is disturbed. Under such a state the horse cannot be otherwise than a sluggard having no vim or courage.

When the feeding is carried on indiscreetly the coat stares, and the outer surface feels too cool under the touch of the hand, in all weathers. This is the natural and invariable result of the blood leaving the surface and hugging too closely about the digestive organs when the latter are laboring with wrong in kind or too large in amount. Under such influences the ears and limbs will be found to be cold; the pulse will be quickened, raised from the normal heat of 40 to 50 or over per minute. In this state the appetite is dulled and irregular.

When the body is overworked what is the remedy? Rest! When the digestive organs are at fault from too much or improper food having been given, then first of all we must give rest to the organs implicated. No remedy will avail anything without rest. He is a wise man who, in dealing with the ills of either man or beast, knows how to estimate the ability of a living organism to repair itself, and to so shape the conditions, including the feeding, so that it will have the best of opportunities for doing this.

A good deal of discussion has taken place lately as to how fast a horse could go to the first quarter. Before leaving here Orrin Hickok told me that Alfred S. could go there faster and oftener than any horse he ever drove, and furthermore said one morning he scored up to the quarter pole on the Bay District track against Adonis until the pacer had enough and then he gave Stamboul as much as he wanted.

Gamblers down in the littleden-ridden town of Gloucester, which is frequented by Philadelphia's sporting fraternity, have good reason to question the expense of that esprit de corps which is popularly supposed to be between men who make their living by their wits. The Times Democrat says:

Among the numerous gambling resorts which have of late years sprung up there are two elaborately fitted up poolrooms, run by Bookmakers Madden and Bob Smith. They had the privileges of the Western Union wires, receiving the betting from the race tracks and the results of the several tracks. Their ventures were so highly successful that they excited the cupidity of three other men of the same denomination. One of them gloried in the name of Duffy, while the two others. Mackin and Marks, combined under the name of "The New York Book," and they started rival concerns. They either could not or would not secure wires from the Western Union, and used to conduct their business by means of messengers, who brought to them the news as called out in the rooms of Madden and Smith. The two latter, naturally indignant, resolved by a bold stroke to drive the interlopers out of business. The methods they employed were as daring as malignant. On Saturday last they determined to deal the blow, and they selected the second race at Monmouth—the Tyro stakes—as the one on which to execute the coup. Through their friends they played Sally McClelland very quistly, but very heavily in the rooms of Mackin and Marks and in Duffy's smaller establishment, standing to win $1000 in the larger establishment, and $400 in the smaller. Then with their money up they lay in wait for their victims. When the returns began to come in the man who calls out from the telegrapher's interpretation said: "Sally McClelland wins, Bolero second." Then a few minutes afterward came the ticking and he added: "All right, Ambulance third. Time—1:15."

Quickly the messengers of Mackin and Marks and Duffy carried the doleful tidings to their rooms. Following them came the holders of the Sallie McClelland tickets, and they cashed in and disappeared via the Gloucester and Camden ferries. Neither Madden or Smith, however, paid off any bets on Byron McClelland's filly. They had received the correct news and simply falsified it. Some time afterward the announcement was made that Strathmeath had won, and that Sallie McClelland had finished last. It was too late for the victims to help themselves. The money had been paid to people they had never seen before, and probably would not again. They have but to lie in wait for the sharpers. The law gives them no redress. They were not bound to accept the news as detailed at the rival rooms, and they have no evidence, only a sickening conviction that they were played to the tune of $1400.

In response to my request that "the Senator" take a professional look at those who in Congress find time to "watch" the races, says Druid Hill in the New York Sportsman, I have the following from Washington:

It was during the races held at Bennings last spring that the following amusing incident occured, which will also well illustrate the interest taken in racing by our Senators and Congressmen.

A well known lobbyist desired to see several Senators. He sent in his card time and time again, and invariably received the same reply, "Gone to the races." At last, becoming disgusted, turning to the doorkeeper, he remarked, "Why in the something don't they move the capital to Bennings?" and during the rest of the week he did his lobbying at the races.

Senator Hearst is the most ardent admirer of racing in the Senate, and he has spent thousands of dollars on his stable. He is tall, inclined to be stout; with iron gray hair and beard. He dresses very plainly, and if seen on Broadway would be taken for a well-to-do Westchester farmer, who had come to town to see the sights. He is generosity itself, and his bluff but hearty manner has won him many friends in both houses of Congress, and his pluck and liberality as a turfman are admired by all racing men, who are always glad to see his colors to the front. Senator Stanford, the owner of Palo Alto, is more wedded to trotters, but still breeds a few runners. He is a quiet, pleasant, unassuming man, and no one who knows him, or has seen him, would think that he possessed fifty million dollars. Everybody who was ever on a race track knows, or should know, Joe Blackburn, as he is called by every man, woman and child in Kentucky. He has everything except plenty of money, and enjoys life thoroughly. He is a handsome fellow of medium height, splendid head and eyes, dark brown hair, just tinged with grey, and dark brown moustache. His manners have the Southern softness and Western frankness, which, combined, make the most charming in the world. He dresses well, and his graceful carriage would attract attention anywhere. He counts his friends by the thousands, and can tell more good stories than any man in Congress. The following anecdote one of his associates tells on him: He was asked, if he could have any three things he desired in this world, what three would he choose. He replied: First, a pretty woman; second, a good race-horse; and third, but not least, a drink of pure, common whiskey, and then laughingly remarked that everything worth having came from Kentucky. Wade Hampton is also fond of racing. In appearance he looks like a Russian brigadier. He has gray Burnsides and a stern countenance. He was one of Lee's bravest and most famous cavalry officers, and he commanded the "Hampton Legion," which was named after him. Butler, his colleague, is also a devotee of racing, has but one leg, the other he left at the Battle of Bundy Station, while in a charge which was headed by Hampton. He was called the Murat of the Southern cavalry. He is a typical Southerner, spirited, high tempered, with charming manner, and is considered the handsomest man in the Senate. Rawson of North Carolina attends the races regularly. He is called the Chestertield of the Senate. He is a courtly, polished gentleman of the old school, tall, straight as an arrow, and every movement is grace itself. He owns two racers, presented to him, I believe, by the owner of Belle Meade, which he uses as riding horses. Vest, of Missouri, who was a member of the Confederate Senate, is also fond of a good race. He is one of the leaders on the Democratic side, and one of the best speakers in Congress. Senator Walcott, who is as bright as the silver from the mines of the State he hails from, California, is one of the most attractive men in Washington. He is the youngest man in the Senate. He dresses in perfect taste, has a boyish countenance and a smile and voice that have won the hearts of both men and women. As a speaker he has few equals in either body. Harris, Morgan, Vance, Voorhees, are all lovers of racing.

Professional Pick-Ups.

The Sacramentos' are great finishers.

Jevne is no longer playing with Spokane.

Pittsburg has already had thirty players on its pay roll.

"Zalinskly" Brown is what they call "our big Bill" in Gotham.

Both O'Day and Hulin are doing good work for Harris' team.

From this on some great playing may be expected from all the teams.

Pitcher Fanning, lately of Denver and the player Finn was after has signed with Tacoma.

McLaughlin and Donahue umpired together at the Sacramento-San Francisco game last Tuesday.

Coughlin has started out well. He has won every game so far that he pitched in for the Senators.

Selna's first playing improves with every game. On high foul flys he has but few equals in the business.

Daley is sending out some corking long shots for the Senatorial team. He is well named home run Daley.

"Get them out of the cellar" is the latest cry of the batter when the umpire calls a strike on a low pitched ball.

Billy Cooney won a silk hat last Sunday for making a home run for the Salems. It was the longest hit ever made on the grounds.

Left fielder McGucken, of the disbanded Jersey City team and the player whom Robinson had his eye on, is now playing with Baltimore.

Billy Ward second baseman of the Spokane team is said to be a great player. Anson was anxious to secure the services of Ward but his offer came too late.

Dick Belcher, the College twirler who played some good games in the field for Tacoma, is now pitching for the E. & O. E. team Saturdays, and the M. J. Flavins on Sundays.

Sweeneys batting record in the three games he played with Oakland was an excellent one. Of nine turns at bat he made four runs and four hits, one a triple, gaining a percentage of 445.

"All things come to him who waits" and the patient, long suffering baseball scribes who for months begged for a padded front to the press box at last have had their wish gratified. Its a great improvement Colonel and for which we are heartily thankful.

Colonel Robinson when talking about his team is a curious combination of contradictions. Every hour in the day he gets stuck on some new idea, and there is scarcely a player in any of the minor leagues but what Robinson is going to have, in his mind.

If Zimmer of, of the Cleveland Club, has not earned his salary this season, then no baseball player on earth was ever entitled to the money he received. His record behind the bat for pluck and endurance outstrips any feat ever before accomplished in the baseball arena.

The Oakland players all evince a fondness for jewelry, and several of them are the possessors of some fine gems. Dungan is particularly fond of diamonds, not the kind cut out of cards, but the genuine article, and his expansive shirt front is decorated with one rivaling in size, if not in valne, the famous Koohinoor.

Joe Leveque, a promising young fielder and pitcher, who played with the Knickerbockers at Central Park last winter and who has since been with the Young Giants of the Amateur League has been tendered an engagement by the Salem, Or. team. Billy Farrell lately released by Sacramento has also had an offer from the same club.

"How about Lyons?" asked Pete Browning the other night. "Is he still smashin' 'em out? Say, he's a lulu wid de stick; There's no man in de Brotherhood who can beat him. Dave Orr is another jee' like him. Dave can hit 'em off his ear, on de groun', 'ginst his shirt, or over his nut. Oh, I'm hittin' 'em right along too, old man. My lamps are great and dey can't fool Peter."—Philadelphia Press.

Stockwell has returned, the Des Moines team having disbanded, and Colonel Robinson has secured his signature to an Oakland contract. To make room for the new members C. O'Neill has been released and this will alter the appearance of the outfield very perceptibly. Dooley will play left, Stockwell right and Dungan will be retained in center. The infield will remain the same for the present.

Daddy Hayes writes that he is playing a great game with Port Townsends, which team has been very successful in the games played with Victoria and other adjacent cities. The team is made up of the following players, some of whom are well known to local patrons: Lange, catcher; Pardee and Huber, pitcher; Pendegast, first base; Hulin, second base; Riderback, third base; Hayes, short shop; Onar; left field; Sisely, center field; Nolan, right field.

Young McHale's fielding is creating considerable favorable comment in baseball circles. This young mans work in the right garden has been most meritorious and his stick work is on a par with his almost phenomenal fielding. Mac lacks a little judgment in running bases but under the mentorship of the efficient Stapleton he will soon brighten in this important department. As it is he is conceded to be the greatest right fielder in the league and bids fair to be one of the most successful of California's many star players.

The nobby and dashing Senators in their bright attractive tight fitting jerseys present a striking contrast against the dismal seedy looking "sloppy weather" uniforms worn by the home team. Surely the team that represents the metropolis of the Pacific should be thoroughly and tastefully equipped and nothing gives the players a prettier, more graceful or more athletic appearance than the stylish close fitting jerseys The loose, slouchy, "ham fat soug and dance" style of uniform is now out of date and Finn should fall in line by procuring for his men a couple of sets of new attire. The old ones might be utilized for practice or buried and the jonah with them.

It is said that there is a scheme on foot to put a players' League Club in Cincinnati and to transfer Ward's team to Baltimore or some other Eastern city. Ewing and Ward are eager to place a club in Cincinnati. Stern won't figure in the new deal. The present Buffalo Club, strengthened by men from the other teams, will constitute the new Cincinnati Club. If the deal goes through, this will be the probable make up of the Cincinnati team: Faatz or Carney, first base; Wise, second base; Rowe, short stop; White, third base; Beecher, left field; Hoy center field; Brown, of Boston, right field; Kilroy, Haddock, Cunningham and Ferson, pitchers; Mack, Clark and Darling, catchere, with Gil Hatfield as an extra man. Ward's idea ie to get Barnie to join forces with him, and then have a clear field in Baltimore. He would utilize Ray and Power of the present Baltimore Club of the Atlantic Association if Barnie consented. The hitch in the deal is Barnie, who has a promiee from the National League to see him out next season.—Exchange.

The Amateurs.

Games Played by the California Amateur League.

The poeitione remain unchanged, but the result of the games of last Sunday has had the effect of bunobing the teams of the firet division more closely, while in the second section the Vallejos and Burlingtoue are almoet tie. The Reports still lead followed by Santa Rosa and Will & Fink, then comes a big gap with Vallejo and Burlingtous in the 400 liue, and the Allens stationed at the bottom of the list.

E. T. ALLENS vs. SANTA ROSA.

SUNDAY, JULY 27TH 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Although outfielded and outbatted, the Santa Rosas won this game principally through Dempsey's nnintentional kindness in awarding them twelve bases on halls. A big crowd, composed of noisy constituente of both teams, witnessed the game which was almost devoid of any special features. At the close of the fourth inning the score stood in favor of the Sports, six to four, but in the fifth the Sonoma boye tied them, and in the sixth won hy getting seven men across the plate on three singles, three basee on balle, a wild pitch, and a couple of errors. At critical times it seemed almost impossible for Dempsey to get the ball over the plate, while on the other hand Callen was very steady. However, the Sporte eecured some good stiff punches off him, Van Haltren, Evatt, Buckley and Broderick banging out some awful long shote. Stulz, of the Santa Rosas, also hit hard and safely. The fielding was very ordinary, errors in throwing helping the run column conaiderahly. On account of the game commencing so late hut six innings were played, which was very nnsatisfactory all aronnd. The score:

WILL AND FINCKS vs DAILY REPORTS.

SUNDAY, JULY 27TH, 1890, AT HAIGHT ST.

At 10 A. M. Umpire Evatt called "play hall" at the Haight St. grounds, the game being between the Reports and Will Fincks and originally scheduled for Santa Rosa, the directors of the league however permitting the change of grounds. The game, although only seven innings was a very pretty one, the hitting of the Giants being very strong and the fielding of both teams exceptionally clever. Eddie Howell pitched a wonderful game, the heavy hitting Reports getting hut four safeties of him, one of which was a three base shot hy Sharp. Monet wss sized up freely, F. Delmas and Billings eaoh getting three hits the former including a home run and the latter a triple. The base playing of Deeney, L. Delmas, Sharp and Creamer, the backstop work of both catchers, Howell's pitching and the heavy hitting already noted were the bright and interesting features of the contest. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. BURLINGTONS.

SUNDAY, JULY 27, 1890, AT VALLEJO.

Tufts, the Marines new twirler, was batted heavily for eix innings, and this, coupled by eeveral glaring errors, gave the Railroaders an easy victory. Baltz, who has been pitching winning hall right along this season, pitched the game out, hut the Burlingtons had secured too great a headway to be overtaken. Walcott twirled a very eatisfactory game, and with occasional exceptions, his support was excellent. There were many fine features in this game, prominent among which was the clean and hard hitting of Maguire, Conghlin and Flemming, the clever base running of Hughes and Bradley, Mnlford's fine work behind the bat, the wonderful fielding of Dick Wise in left, and the smart and at times brilliant infield work of Bradley, Coughlin, Dunn, Fleming and Murdock. Cates' umpiring was satisfactory. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Tom Agnewe pitching last Sunday was a disapointin nt. The poor showing he made however wae not on account of inability but was entirely due to lack of control superinduced by nervousness. When Agnew overcomee thie most demoralizing defeot and gets a few weeks practice he'll surprise the knowing ones.

At a meeting held by the League on Tuesday evening, the 22nd inst., at the Burlington Route office, it was decided that pitcher John Rohan and catcher Horace Wilds were eligable to play with any team they signed with, as the charges of their conspiring to throw the Vallejo—Santa Rosa game of May 4th were not substantiated. Managers Gage and Sheridan of the Burlingtons are now negotiating for their services and undoubtedly will secure them. In their positions they are the strongest unsigned players within a radius of a hundred miles, and the Burlingtone will he very materially strengthened by their acquisition.

There is a movement on foot to revive the interest in strictly amateur base ball, and to further this end a number of society gentlemen are now actively engaged in organizing the teams that last spring constituted the Pacific Amateur League. Mr. Boyd, who for past eeasons has successfully managed the E. and O. E's., hae secured many of his former players, and with the new accessions will have a formidable team in the field. The Reliance Club of Oakland, under the management of Mr. J H. Ames, the University at Berkeley, and quite possibly a team from San Rafael, with Mr. W. B. Bourn as a leading spirit, will complete the League. The E. and O. E's. and Reliance teams, between which the strongest but goodnatured rivalry has always existed, will play a preliminary game at the Emery grounds this afternoon. The makeups of the teams are as follows:

E. and O. E's.	Positions.	Reliance.
Belcher	Pitcher	McGowan
Stanley	Catcher	Murphy
Boyd	First bass	Drum
Creeley	Second base	Clement
Lewis	Third base	Downey
Campbell	Short stop	Pope
Woolrich	Left field	Ewing
Goucher	Center field	Deering
Bosqui	Right field	Fosborough

There is trouble in the Amateur League. The closeness of the race between the three leaders—Reports, Santa Rosas and Will & Finks—has caused the managers to be alive to their interests, and already there are two or three games to be fought over again by the managers before President Gage at the meeting of the Directors Saturday night.

The Will and Finck—Santa Rosa game played July 4th at Santa Rosa will be a matter of important consideration as it involves the questions—Whether or not two managers can themselves arrange to play off a postponed game without the sanction of the Directors of the League; and secondly, Whether the manager of an interior team can break away from his agreement viz: To pay the visiting team fifty per cent of the net proceeds of the gste of all championship games. According to the most authentic statements in this instance, Managers Grace and Warren agreed to play off a postponed game on the above named date, Grace guaranteing Thirty Dollars to Warren as his share of the gate receipts, claiming that he could afford no more there being many public attractions at Santa Rosa which would cause the patronage of the game to be very light. However just the opposite was the case, the ball game being the principal event of the day, and the gate receipts being some where in the neighborhood of Two hundred and forty dollars. According to the agreement of the League, of this amount Twenty dollars should be first deducted for management expenses (?) Thirteen dollars of the remainder to be allowed the visiting team for transportation, and of the remainder twenty per cent he again deducted for ground expenses, the balance to be equally divided between the two contesting teams. Accordingly for this game Warren under the league agreement was entitled to about Ninety five dollars (including his railroad fares) but received only Seventeen as his net share. This was unquestionably a rather reprehensible bit of mercenary manœuvering on the part of the Santa Rosa management and when questioned about it Warren declares that Grace vowed it was but an exhibition game and consequently he was not bound to his agreement made to the League. This was "cold comfort" for Warren and although he felt that he had not been honorably treated nevertheless said hut little about it. However Grace now claims that it was a championship game and wants credit for it. How he can claim it to be a championship game and also claim the entire gate receipts, less thirty dollars, is a matter that should not take the Directors long to decide upon.

Another matter to be decided will be the protested Report—Santa Rosa game of July 7th which was won by the score of 5 to 4, and which Manager Grace protested on account of Mulvey, a catcher of the Burlington team, playing with the Report team in the field. It has been clearly shown through these columns, backed by the official score, that Mulvey's work on this occasion was, if anything, detrimental to the success of the Reports although he secured two hits neither one of which, however, had any effect in the run getting. In truth, Ashman's team was incomplete this day, several of his men being away, and preferring to give a player in the league (whose team had an off day) a chance instead of an outsider, asked if Mulvey would fill in. This has been a very common practice among the amateur teams of this League when any of their players were absent, and several cases of the same kind can be introduced as evidence that Ashman was merely following a rule which we might say has been established by precedence. Grace, however, has the name of being a hard loser, and although his team was out-played and outfielded in every point of the game (the official score showing thirteen errors for the Santa Rosas) brings forward this feeble pretext for a protest. The matter was prematurely laid before Mr Mone, who evidently thinking that there was no Board of Directors in the Amateur League, and possibly without ascertaining whether or not the protest could rightfully be claimed, decided it in favor of Santa Rosa. The Managers of the teams who are the Directors of the League, justly claim that this was a rather unwarranted proceeding inasmuch as they themselves have the power to arbitrate their own affairs. Mone's decision was therefore declared unconstitutional, and must be considered as void. The Directors themselves will pass on the matter this evening.

It is quite probable that the schedule will be revised as the arrangement of games under the existing one seems destined to disrupt the league. Already there has been much grumbling occasioned by a considerable loss of money and time to the local teams, whereas the proposed change will be most beneficial to all concerned.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ASPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

Cricket, foot hall, lawn tennis and swimming appear to be the leading pastimes at the present time. There is a very noticeable dullness in the athletic world just now which will probably disappear as soon as the amateurs settle down to regular training for the Sacramento athletic meeting. The wheelmen have been more active for the past couple of weeks than at any other time during the present season. It is evident that the coming road race will bring out a big field of competitors.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

H. C. Casidy takes regular exercise on the horse track at San Leandro and this promising young runner continues to improve daily. He will render a good account of himself during the month of September.

Walter A. Scott has been appointed a member of the Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union and will be the Union representative on the Pacific Coast.

The Sheffield Handicaps having proved an entire failure will be discontinued. The sport-loving public of San Francisco has had a surfeit of professional crookedness in the past and it can hardly be blamed for refusing to patronize foot races which are given not for the purpose of upholding legitimate sports but to cheat the unwary at the pool boxes.

We are rapidly getting rid of the professional athletes that have been living in our midst for the past six months or so. Pugilism has been knocked on the head and foot racing is not a paying game and the invading sports in order to escape starvation are hastening from San Francisco as if it was a plague stricken city.

Captain Jordan has tendered his resignation as captain of the Olympic Club and official handicapper of the P C A A A. Mr. Jordan is we understand going to travel for the firm which he works for and of course his time in the future will not allow him to take an active part in athletics. There is no reason, however, why he should not continue to hold the office of handicapper, for no matter what part of the State he might happen to be in he can always attend to the handicapping through the mail.

Steve Cassidy would make an excellent field captain and should Captain Jordan refuse to re-consider his resignation the chances are that the above named champion will be appointed to the vacancy.

M. C. Giry having in tow Danny Mahoney, "Spider" Gallagher and T. J. McLaughlin recently arrived in Seattle where his "star" combination will give boxing exhibitions. All four men will soon find out that there is less money in slogging, i. e. for novices, than in their ordinary occupations.

When a newspaper writer espouses any cause, he should be careful that he is fully conversant with the facts appertaining to his theme. Last Saturday a local weekly sheet published an article which had reference to the amateur events given at the Scottish Thistle Club games held at Shell Mound Park on the Fourth of July. The writer was evidently not well up in amateur athletics, otherwise he never would have penned the remarks contained in the said article. To make matters worse, the sporting editors of two daily papers took up the same cause and expressed the same ideas that the original writer did. Before copying, it is always best to be sure of what you copy, and then go ahead. In the present case the sporting reporters who copied the article must indeed have been exceedingly dull not to have discovered how stupid and inconsistent it was. The whole business was an uncalled for attack upon the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association, whose officers are well able to attend to their own business without being unjustly reprimanded by an officious and unreliable newspaper scribe. The two amateur races which were held at Shell Mound on the Fourth of July, were held under the auspices of the P. C. A. A. A., and no person who was not a member of one of its associate clubs was permitted to take part in these events. The assertion that the races were open to all is as ridiculous as it is false, for the rules under which the amateur races were to be decided were published in all the newspapers and on all the posters of the Thistle Club for weeks previous to the Fourth. The games which will be given at Sacramento on the 17th of September will be held under the same rules, and only athletes who are members of clubs belonging to the P. C. A. A. A. will be allowed to compete. If the members of the Sacramento Athletic Club, or of any other club not belonging to the P. C. A. A. A, desire to enter these games, they still have ample time to identify themselves with the association, whose aim is to protect its amateur athletes, and to discourage crooked sport The initiation fee is $10, and the person to whom applications for membership should be made, is: Secretary P. C. A. A. A., care of the Olympic Club, San Francisco.

THE WHEELMEN.

The approaching road race is the chief topic in wheeling circles. Judging from the large number of riders who are in training across the bay, it is evident that the San Francisco representatives will need to work hard if they anticipate "being in it"

The Bay City boys are certainly not losing any time, and if they failed to take much interest in the San Jose meet, they certainly will show to better advantage on the 8th of September.

The American, the San Francisco, the Oakland and the Alameda Bicycle Clubs, will all be represented, and the race is bound to be a hot one from start to finish.

IN THE SURF.

At the Terrace Baths, Alameda, on Sunday afternoon Ed. Hartley of the Acme Athletic Club of Oakland succeeded in lowering the American record for swimming 880 yards. He covered the distance in 15 min. 29½ seconds. The course was carefully measured by T. F. Scanlan Vice President of the P. C. A. A. A. and a member of the Acme Club. Several of his club mates were present and cheered Mr. Hartley loudly when he had completed his task. Besides being a fine swimmer Hartley is an all round athlete of no mean ability. He was born in England, stands 5ft. 8in. in height, and weighs in condition 147 lb. His club will present him with a medal for breaking the record.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

This popular old pastime is booming once more and promises to supersede base-ball on the Pacific Coast before long. Last season the game was very much neglected and many of the first class players in consequence were totally out of practice when the present season opened.

C. B. Hill and John J. Theobald are in harness again and with a couple of weeks practice will open the eyes of the Alameda players. Hill is an excellent bowler while Theobald is a great hand at the bat. Their poor showing at the game on Sunday was caused through want of practice.

The Alameda and Burnaby Clubs have rented the Alameda base ball grounds for one month and if more suitable grounds are not found by the end of that time they will continue to play there.

The Alpine Cricket team will practice at Central Park.

On Sunday last the Alameda Cricket Club again defeated the Burnaby Club in a match game at the West End grounds, Alameda, in one inning against two for their opponents. There was but a very small audience present, and the day was excessively warm. For the Alameda team Hood did some excellent batting scoring 55 runs. The following is the score:

The Alameda teams have had more practice than the Burnaby club, and in a month from now it is hard to say which club will come out ahead.

The St. George's Club will send a team into the field soon, and then competition will indeed be keen.

FOOTBALL.

This game is more exclusively practiced across the bay than on this side, in fact but very few games have been played at all this year so far. It is not at all likely that any matches will be played in San Francisco this summer unless the Alpine or Olympic boys take to the pastime.

There are a good many clubs in Oakland, and the A. and B. teams of the Y. M. C. A. of that city are playing some excellent games at the present time. Later on it is possible that the University Club will be heard from.

Last Saturday the A. and B. teams of the Oakland Y. M. C. A. played a good match in Oakland. The game was won by the B. team with a score of 1 goal, 1 try and 8 minors to nil. The following composed the teams: Team A.—Read, back; C. P. Morse and E. Hough, three-quarters; Arieth and A. Hunter, halves; E Pomeroy, (captain) F. Potts, W. Heaver, R. W. Edgrew, A. E. McMatto, Ransom and Parsons, forwards. Team B.—James Brougher, (captain) back; Gowin and Henderson, three quarters; J. H. Barber and C. Pomeroy, halves; W. Preacott, M. Watson, W. A. Hunter, Woods, Myrick and Nedynm, forwards.

Referee, B. Applegrath.

AT THE OARS.

To-morrow afternoon the Ariel Rowing Club will hold its high jinks. The programme will include boat races in singles, doubles and fours, swimming races and a white hall race. The committees in charge of the affair have worked hard, and a good afternoon spent may be expected.

The Alameda Boating and Swimming Club will soon have their new boat house paid for. The members will take an active part in all future aquatic sports.

The Oakland Canoe Club was to have held a regatta on the 9th of August, but it has decided to put it off until September 8th, when the N. S. G. W. regatta will be held.

The regatta committee of the N S G W celebration consisting of J F Finn, (President) Fred W Lees (Secretary) and J R Howells held a long interview with the representatives of the clubs belonging to the Pacific Rowing Association on Sunday last. The clubs were represented as follows: Lurline Boating, Swimming and Athletic, L Hereughi; South End Rowing, J J McCarthy; Dolphin Swimming and Boating Club, J O'Dwyer; Pioneer, J F Sullivan; Triton, Joseph Kehillem; Alameda Boating and Swimming, Louis Schween; Alpine Athletic, Henry O Farrell; Oakland Canoe, W G Hackett; Ariel, Eugene Flanders.

It was decided to give the following programme of races: professional barge, 1 professional scull, 1 amateur barge, 1 amateur scull, 1 ship's boat race. The programme may be made larger. It was not decided what prizes would be given.

The rowing regatta will come off in the forenoon and the sailing in the afternoon. A meeting was held last evening at which it was decided where the regatta was to be held.

Particulars will be given in our next issue. Great interest is being manifested in the rowing regatta and it is almost certain that several of the interior oarsmen will compete. The secretary of the entertainment committee has received several letters from all parts of the country asking for particulars.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Garden City Athletic Club of San Jose expects to make a good showing in future. By next year it expects to be able to place a fine championship team in the field.

The students at Berkeley will soon begin to practice on the Cinder path.

Since the Lurline Club decided to move to Central Park several new members have been proposed.

The indoor athletes of the Olympic Club are still preparing themselves for the coming exhibition which will be held at the Grand Opera House in September.

It would certainly speak badly for Sacramento if its athletic club was not represented on Sept. 17. There is no reason why it should not join the P C A A A.

LAWN TENNIS.

This fashionable and refined sport has been practiced considerably this season, and many new clubs have been formed on the Pacific Coast. It is a much milder game than that of cricket, foot-ball, etc, and many ladies take a great interest in the game At Monterey, San Rafael and other fashionable resorts, fine tennis courts may be found. Several important matches have already been decided, and many more are announced for the future.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I visited the Terrace Baths at Alameda on Saturday last and I was surprised at the number of school children that were enjoying themselves in the water. Extra horse cars were in use between Alameda and Oakland and every train that passed either up or down brought its load of perspiring juveniles all eager for a plunge in the briny deep. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there must have been at least 400 boys and girls in the tank and the scene was as ludicrous as it was lively.

The following day I also took in the baths and such a crowd I never saw at a watering resort before. The water was crowded, the gallery was crowded, in fact the whole neighbourhood was crowded. The Terrace appears to be regaining its old time popularity and the chances are that many needed improvements will be made before long.

Little and Kendal are visiting in Templeton, San Luis Obispo Co, and the people of that town have been treated to an exhibition of their running. By the way, I notice in some of the papers that Little and Kendal are to visit Sacramento in order "to take part in the games during the State Fair." I was not aware that there were going to be any professional races on the programme. At all events Captain Jordan will be on hand and the amateurs can rest assured that they will get fair play.

An interesting handicap race was decided at the Olympic Club grounds on last Sunday morning. The distance was one hundred yards, and the prize a medal which was given by Captain George W. Jordan. All the crack sprinters and long distance runners of the club were in it, and the heats were unusually exciting. The following runners competed: Plowden, Schifferstein, Espinosa, Cooley, Henderson, Kortick, Scott, Casady, Phelps, Winslow, McArthur, O'Kane, and others. The final heat was won by Henderson (4½ yds.) in 9⅞ second. After the race Schifferstein ran 50 yards with a flying start in 4⅞ seconds, which is a remarkably good performance.

If the weather is not too hot, I am inclined to think that Steve Casady will run the quarter under fifty seconds at Sacramento. "RAMBLER."

JOTTINGS FROM ALL OVER.

The Boston Athletic Association proposes to hold a monster cross-country run at the Hub in October next, and the National Cross Country Association has promised to give it all the aid and comfort that may be in its power.

The Manhattan Athletic Club of New York will hold a series of games, open to all amateurs, at their grounds at Eighth Avenue and Fifty sixth Street, on Sept. 20. The programme is made up of the following events: 100 yds. run, handicap, limit 5 yds; 220 yds. run, handicap, limit 8 yds; 100 yds hurdle race, 3 ft. 6 in., handicap, limit 5 yds; 220 yds. hurdle race, 2 ft. 6 in., handicap, limit 10 yds; 440 yds; run, scratch; 600 yds. run for novices, scratch; one mile run, handicap, limit, 70 yds; one mile walk, handicap, limit, 50s; running broad jump, handicap, limit 2ft; running broad jump handicap, limit, 2ft; running high jump, limit 4 in; putting the 16lb shot, handicap, limit 1 ft; tug of war, limit 600lb.

Five members of the New York Bicycle Club made a bold attempt to lower the record for the five mile run over the Kingsbridge road to Yonkers—17m. 3s.—July 12, but the road was in very bad condition, and the record was untouched. H. S. Van Buren, 2m. 30s. start, won, in 20m. 30s., with J. H. Harrison, scratch, second.

At the meeting of the Catford Bicycle Club at the Paddington Grounds, London, Eng, on the afternoon of July 15th, several records went by the board. In the half mile handicap, A. Ducros won the final heat, open handicap, R. J. Mecredy, from scratch, lowered, by 45 1-5s. the mile record made by him at the Royal meeting. He covered the distance in 2m. 30 4-5s. He further lowered this in the final heat to 2m. 29 4 5s, but this record stood only a few minutes as F. J. Osmond mounted an ordinary machine for a "go" at the mile record, and lowered it to 2m. 28 4 5s, also beating the record for three-quarters of a mile, covering that distance in 1m. 51 4-5s. P. C. Wilson and E Dangerfield, in a trial against time, beat the tandem records from two to five miles inclusive. One mile, 2m. 45 3 5s.; two miles, 5m. 33 2-5s; three miles, 8m. 23s; four miles, 11m. 11 1-5s; five miles, 13 m. 54 1-5s.

Oarsmen in the East are now preparing for the inaugural regatta of the Middle States Regatta Association, to take place on the Passaic River on August 6th and 7th. The prizes are very valuable, and well worth training and rowing for. Each member of a winning crew in all races will receive a solid gold die medal, and every club represented by a winning crew will receive an elegant hand embroidered silk banner. The club whose crew wins the senior four oared shell race will receive the Newark Sunday Call challenge cup, which must be won three times before becoming the personal property of a club, and the club represented by a crew winning the senior eight oared shell race will receive the New York Herald Cup, which will become the absolute property of the winners. The prize for a quarter mile straightaway single scull race is a beautiful diamond medal. The entrance fees for the different events are: Single sculls $5; double sculls $10; pair oared gigs $10; four oared gigs $15; four oared shells $15; eight oared shells $20. The total number of prizes is fifty-three—thirty-nine gold medals, eleven silk banners, two silver cups and one diamond medal. The entrance fee must in every case accompany the entry, and no entry will be accepted unless it is signed by an officer of the club. The trial heats will be rowed in the morning and afternoon of the 6th, and the final heats on the afternoon of the 7th. Contestants will be met by a committee, if notice of their arrival be given to the secretary twenty-four hours previously.

Longevity of Thoroughbreds.

Does Good Care Contribute to Long Life and Protracted Virility?

San Francisco, July 28, 1890.

To the Editor:—I start out upon this errand of inquiry without the slightest ill-feeling toward any living being. In the tables of longevity which form a part of this article, I have included nothing but thoroughbred sires, for the simple reason that I am not sufficiently familiar with trottere to enable me to write authenticslly.

As most of your readers are aware, I have just returned from my second visit to the Australian colonies, where I have seen some of the grandest etallions and mares in the world—horses which, while they are generally inferior to ours in the aristocratic appearance which the populsr mind is wont to associate with the thoroughbred horse, are vastly superior to curs in bone and substance. Yet what impressed me most, in reading over the turf and stud history of the great South Continent, was the short-lived career of most of their famous stallions. Of their mares, in this respect, I took less note, but I am satisfied that it is true in a still greater degree. I saw mares of unparalleled purity of lineage, granddaughters of Stockwell, Newminster, Rataplan, Kingston, West Australian and Beadsman, running in mucky pastures amid pouring showers of rain, and never fed a mouthful of grain from one year's end to another. It is a rare thing for a mare to live to twenty years of age, or hear a foal after fifteen. Of course this is the result of neglect. Perhaps I ought not to have too much to say in this vein, because I have some personal friends in this State whose horses have been, in days gone by, most pitifully neglected.

The stallions I saw there were taken care of in just about the same style as those at Del Paso—or as I would have cared for them had they belonged to me. Fed on eight quarts per day during the greater portion of the year, and all the lucerne hay they could eat—and twelve quarts of oats during the months of September, October, November and December, they certainly are not starved at any time of year. For exercise they are turned into small corrals and let out to play about for four or five hours. Certainly this way of caring for horses could not well be improved upon. Yet, while there have been twice as many thoroughbred horses imported into the colonies as into the United States in the last century, the showing is greatly in favor of America. The appended table gives the names, pedigrees and ages at death of some of the prominent Australian stallions which have lived beyond 20 years. The native sires are marked with a star.

Of course I do not claim that either of these two lists are complete. I am not well enough versed in Australian turf matters to claim anything like infallibility in a matter of this sort; and I have been so much out of American racing affairs for the past twelve years that I could not compile a perfect list of obituaries. But I give it so that people can add the ages together and obtain the average by dividing the amount by the number of horses mentioned. Of the forty-one horses in the American table, 18 died in Kentucky, 5 in California, and the rest in other States. Between old American Eclipse and Yorkshire is an interval of four years that some person better informed than myself ought to be able to fill. Perhaps my old friend, Mr. W. M. Williamson, of San Jose, might be able to supply the deficiency.

There must be nearly as large a list of those which I have omitted. Unless I am very badly mistaken, Revenue lived to be over twenty years old, as did Vandal, Red Eye, Kingfisher, Jack Malone and that almost forgotten hero, Trustee. Of those living that are over the meridian of 20. I can enumerate Joe Daniels, Pat Malloy, The Ill Used, Longfellow, Enquirer, Great Tom, Hyder Ali and many others, not forgetting Glenelg.

The fact that so many of our native stallions are valuable sires after 20 years of age, while horses of the same age in Australia are either dead or become impotent, is a matter worth something beyond casual scrutiny. Glencoe was 26 years old when he got Panic, who beat Planet at heats of three miles; also Bertha McGavock, a good nag at mile heats. Lexington was 24 when he got Uncas, and Leamington got Girofle and Lelaps at 24. American Eclipse must have been past the latter age when he got Zenith; and the Bonnie Scotland family may afford something more interesting than what I have already recited and on which I should like to hear from Gen. Jackson.

From Santa Rosa.

Santa Rosans love good horses quite as well as any people in California, and while they may not make so much noise about their horses as some of their neighbors, yet they have a very "fair sprinklin" of them, and they are not adverse to having them noticed in the Breeder and Sportsman.

Santa Rosa has one of the best appointed driving parks in the State, and while it is owned by the Pierce Bros, yet it is so generally used by Santa Rosans, that it has become recognized as a Santa Rosa institution There are about seventy-five horses in training there now, and among them are some distined to shine in the annals of horse history.

Pierce Bros. have the largest string. They are under the care and training of Thomas Bonner, one of the most capable men on the coast. All of his horses are in excellent condition. He is giving them plenty of work, and they are showing the results of his fine handling. Bay Rose has the post of honor, being kept in the handsome pavillion. He looks every inch a king, and is steadily recovering from the injury received in San Francisco some time ago. He moves as well as ever, but he will not seek to lower his record until he is entirely well again. He has had a successful season thus far, and Sonoma County's trotting name is sure to be strengthened by his blood. Pierce Bros. also have: Wilkie, b s, two years, by Guy Wilkes, dam Blanche, handsome and a good mover; Gracie S, b m, three years, by Stamboul, has shown a good 2:40 clip; Allen Wilkes, by Mambrino Wilkes, lately brought from the stud at Santa Barbara, and at two turned his quarter in 43 seconds; Volo, b m, two years, by Antevolo, dam Blanche, a level headed filly and very promising; Dangerous, blk s, by Director, lately broke but speedy; Stinola, r s, by Steinway, dam Phaeola out of Minnehaha; Mambrino Trix, two years, by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Sallie Trix, the only side-wheeler in the string, and a smooth and speedy pacer; Dollie Trix, b m, six years, by Anteeo, in foal to Bay Rose; Albena, seven years, by Alaska, and bred to Mountain Boy; Kittie Wilkes by Young Wilkes; McGinty Wilkes, b m, three years, by Guy Wilkes, in foal to Bay Rose.

J. H. Lawrence has a large list of good ones in his string. He has Ella K, two years, by Anteeo, dam a Nutwood mare, very speedy; Gray Nimrod, g g, 4 years, by Anteeo, owned by Rufus Murphy. He has Cantelope, by Anteeo, dam Minnie Princess by Nutwood; owned by Rufus Murphy and himself. He also has Ned Locke, s s (2:28¼), 5 years, by Antelope, the property of Sanborn & Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence has also S. H. Sheplar's beautiful "S. H. S.," b s, 2 years, by St. Just, by Electioneer, dam by Ericcson, an Electioneer all over, and for which $5,000 has been lately refused; Mr. Pomfrey's Ulster Prince (2:20), by starlight, he by Kentucky Prince, dam Meg Merrilles by Ethan Allen; Capt. Guy E. Grosse's Sunset, b s, 5 years, by Anteeo, dam Bessie G by King Philip, he by Whipple's Hambletonian; Sunset lately made three heats that averaged 2:31, and worked one of these out in 2:29. Capt. Grosse also has in Mr. Lawrence's handling Anteeof by Anteeo; Anteeup by Anteeo, dam Bessie G by King Philip, he by Whipple's Hambletonian. George Guerne's G & M.; a four-year-old, and full brother of Alfred G, and a very fast colt; a chestnut pacer, 2 years, by Alcona Jr., he by Alcona, dam by Washington, and Dr. Button's "Dr. Button" by Alexander, and who is going under 2:38 in three week's work, are also under the direction of Mr. Lawrence.

Gus Caesy, who has few equals in developing speed has an excellent repertoire. He has McFayden and Murphy's Redwood, h s 5 yr., by Anteeo, dam Lou Medium, by Milton Medium, by Happy Medium, and who has lately landed easily in 2:24; 2:25, 2.27½; J. H. McLaughlin's May Day by Anteeo, dam McClellan mare, good for 2:37 easily; Nellie b m full sister to Redwood, has shown a quarter in 40 seconds and has been entered in the Michigan 3 year old stake of 1892, can trot in 2:40 and, hardly broke. Wyman Murphy's Perry S yearling by Anteeo, dam Addie M by Antelope, he by Nutwood, is a very promising baby and Maud M, a handsome Anteeo mare five year old, dam Jute, granddam Biddy McCracken, she by Signal, owned by Mr. Murphy, is making swift strides to the fore, having recently reeled off a quarter in 38 seconds.

Lew Marsh has a noble string that he is lavishing all of his care and attention upon. Among them and from the Rosedale Stock Farm, Dr. Finlaw, owner, are Daly b s 7 yr., by Gen Benton out of Dolly by Electioneer. 2nd dam Lady Dooley; has worked out a mile easily in 2:26 this year; Nettie P, b m 2 yr, by Daly; Azore b m 2 yr by Daly, dam Burlew, second dam by St. Clair; Laurel Dale b s by Anteeo, dam Don Juan mare; sorrel stallion by Daly out of Lady Button.

William McGraw is working Isaac De Turk's Myrtle, [illegible] 2 years, by Anteeo, dam a Nutwood mare, a promising filly and entered in the Petaluma Stakes: De Turk's Dan Brown by Anteeo, dam Miss Brown; Anti-Coolie by Anteeo, dam by Werner's Rattler; De Turk & McGraw's Silas Skinner, blk s, 5 yrs., by Alcona Jr., he by Alcona, dam Fontana by Almont; Frank Coomb's Stamboul colt and an Anteeo colt, dam an Echo mare.

Mart Rollins, the veteran horseman, has a "lay out" in his training that he is justly proud of. He has Stone & Murphy's Antelulu, b m, 4 yr., by Anteeo; Illustrious by Happy Medium owned by George Stone; Judge Dougherty's Rower by Dawn; Captain Bulger's two-year-old by Saladin, he by Nutwood; Mountain Maid, b m, 4 yrs., by Anteeo and who four weeks ago could not beat 2:50 but now goes in 30, and Maud E., both the property of Rufus Murphy.

The horses are generally worked in the forenoon and it is an inspiring sight to see half a dozen or more of them on the track at once. The drivers have intelligent subordinates, all are well up in horse history and they are all glad when the Breeder and Sportsman comes.

Todhunter's Mambrino.

Many times we have been asked to give a history of Todhunter's Mambrino, as his blood is to be found in quite a number of pedigrees in this State. In answer to a letter sent by Mr. Wallace, George W. Greever has written as follows:

Mr. Editor:—Yours of the ninth inst. has just been received, and I wish I could convey to you just how I feel after reading a letter from one who has the ability to carry my mind back over the very best part of my life in so few words, and recall so forcibly the very circumstances in which I took so much pride. It comes so forcibly that I stop and say here a link is gone, and there is just the link in the chain that Mr. Wallace desires to have complete.

I bought Mambrino Chief of old Mr. Parker E. Todhunter in January, 1862, and he was then in his seventh year, as the old gentleman told me. He also told me that my horse was the first foal sired by Mambrino Chief after he landed at Ashland, the home of Mr. James B. Clay, near Lexington, Ky. Idol was the next, as he bred the first two mares to old Chief after he reached Kentucky, and my horse was two days older than Idol. Now a link is gone. Old Mr. Todhunter is dead but I give you his exact statement. I know of my own knowledge that the horse was then called "Todhunter's Mambrino. Now whether the Todhunter family had a younger horse than the one I bought that they also called Todhunter's Mambrino, I am not prepared to say. You ought to be the very best authority on that, as you commenced your work in the sixties, and all these years I have been laboring to get the people of the West to breed a better class of stock, and have not given so much attention to the East. The first season I owned Mambrino Chief I called him Mambrino Chief Jr., then I called him Greever's Mambrino until he died. Now my recollection is that Mr. Todhunter told me that he had been used in the stud lightly from a three-year-old.

Beneficial Exercise.

I remember of reading somewhere of an English gentleman who was an enthusiastic lover of the thoroughbred, and to gratify his taste bought a farm in this country and stocked it with splendidly-bred horses of the most noted running strains of blood. This gentleman was not of a sporting turn of mind. He bred horses for the pleasure of breeding them, and never ran them in races. Many years after the breeding farm started some gentlemen from New York learned of the choice stock on the farm and purchased some of the horses. They were all that could be desired in point of breeding, but they lacked, when the test came, the ability to run a race, and why? They had grown up for several generations without calling into use the very quality for which they had been bred, that is, swiftness at the run, and by that great law of nature, the law of disuse, they had lost the fleetness for which the original stock had been noted. Strap a man's arm by his side long enough and he will cease to have control and use of it.

I think a lesson may be drawn from this for the breeder of trotting horses, and that great as is the success in breeding trotters on the many breeding farms, it might be greater if brood mares and stallions in service were kept through their lives at work at the gait they are bred to produce. If it were not for the practice of trotting stallions in order to give them fast records we might find ourselves in the same fix the Englishman experienced. It is, of course, impracticable to drive the large number of brood-mares in use on a breeding farm, but the same end might be attained by the use of an exercising lot in which they could be turned each day and given sharp practice at the trotting gait. Such exercise could not be without its effect on the progeny of the animal so handled, and besides that a colt foaled by a mare so developed would be more likely in turn to produce fast trotters than would a colt equally well bred from parents living a life of inactivity. Fast trotting is an acquired habit, and such habit is intensified when the parents for generations are exercised at that way of going. This is the reason trotting horses of speed are bred with more certainty now than in former days. It is worthy of note that the dams of the founders of the Hambletonian and Mambrino Chief families of trotting horses were famous road mares, and I believe not a little of the great success of Hambletonian 10 and Mambrino Chief is to be attributed to the road qualities of the Kent mare and of the dam of Mambrino Chief, intensified as it was by their use on the road. If I were breeding to a stallion I would give the preference to one out of a dam that had been worked to light harness over one out of a mare that had roamed at will in the pasture, without being taught to go fast at the trotting gait.—Horse Review.

Every Owner of Harness Should Use It.—The harness dressing prepared by Frank Miller & Sons has become a general favorite with harness dealers and manufacturers. With the dealer because he well knows that in recommending this dressing he is doing a kindness to his customer as well as a straightforward business transaction. With the manufacturer because he knows that there is not another article now manufactured that compares with Frank Miller's dressing. It gives a beautiful finish to the leather, and is guaranteed not to peel, crack or smut, nor will it harden the leather. It may be used for harness, buggy tops, saddles, traveling bags, trunks, etc, and is equally valuable in the factory, stable or home. As a dressing for leather it has no rival. Ask your druggist or harness dealer for it.

Do not weaken the stomach with strong chemicals. Simmons Liver Regulator is mild but effective.

Blood Horse Association Fixed Events.

One of the annual events to which all breeders of thoroughbreds on the Pacific Coast look forward to is the annual closing of the fixed events for future meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association. In the appropriate column will be found an announcement from the Directors thereof, stating that they have opened up eight stakes for the years 1891 and '92. These stakes close on August 15, 1890, so there is but little time to lose by those who propose to make nominations thereiu. For the spring meeting of 1891 we find the California Stakes for two-year-olds and the Racine Stakes for foals of a like age. For the fall meeting of 1891 there are the Ladies' Stakes for two-year old fillies and the Autumn Stakes for two-year-old foals of 1889. For the spriug meeting of 1892 there are the Tidal and the Pacific Derby, each for three-year-olds, and for the fall meetiug of 1892 we find the Vestal Stakes for three-year-old fillies aud the Fame Stakes for three-year-old foals. As will be seen, these stakes are all for foals of 1889, colts and fillies rating now as yearlings, and another rule which those who would enter must be sure and carry out is that all horses must be named.

Bone in Thoroughbreds.

The Australian colony of the New South Wales has more Rataplan blood than can be found in all America, through three sons and five grandsons in the male line, while he was represeuted by five daughters, seven granddaughters in the male line and nine in the female line. Stockwell was, as the reader is aware, an own brother to Rataplan. He is represented much more widely in Victoria than in the elder colony, but Australia is full of Stockwell blood as the following table will show:

Sire.	Sons.	Daughters.
Stockwell	6	8
Blair Athol	5	13
St. Albans	3	5
Loiterer	4	1
Caterer	2	1
Doncaster	3	11
Lord Lyon	2	4
Ace of Clubs	2	7
Knowsley	1	3
The Marquis	9	26
Stockowner	1	4
Thunderboldt	0	1

Now, while Stockwell was never deficient in bone, and was one of the foremost horses of the world in the way of muscular substance, yet he was vastly inferior in bone to most of his Australian descendants—notably, Malna, Bowmont, Grand Flaneur, Cardigan, Matador, Chester, Abercorn and Roodee. The first and last on this list have bone heavy enough for anything short of cart sires. The natural inference is, therefore, that the limestone soil upon which these horses were bred, has had everything to do with this manifest increase of "timber" under the animal. Musket was a horse of only average bone, yet some of his descendants (especially Trenton, Nordenfelt and Cuirassier) are among the heaviest boned sires alive.

When old Preakness, the hero of the ever memorable dead heat for the Saratoga Cup, was taken over to England for turf sport, a cry went up from the breeders that we were going to lose the best boned thoroughbred stallion in America. Now, if Preakness were to be led out upon an Australian race-course, he would attract no special attention in this respect. The Australian thoroughbred is so heavy and substantial in build, that he looks more like a hunter than a turf horse. A good contrast may be had at the Haggin ranch, between Darebin and the black horse Hidalgo, by Joe Daniels. The latter shows the most quality, undeniably. But we contend that Darebin is a lasting benefit to this country, even if he never gets a first class turf performer from now till the day of his death. He will leave an impress upon the stock of America that half a century will not efface.

That there has been a decadence of bone in the American thoroughbred in the past sixty years, is evident from a perusal of the measures of American Eclipse. Then he was a well-boned horse though hardly exceptional. Now we do not find one horse in forty that will show such a set of measures. The answer to all inquiries on this subject can only be had by a close perusal of the tabulated pedigrees of most of our fashionably-bred native racehorses. They will be found to contain two, and often three, crosses of Lexington and from six to ten crosses of Diomed. Not but that is very desirable blood to have in a horse but the line of in-breeding has been altogether too close in the past twenty years.

New and vigorous outcrosses are needed to remedy this plain and patent defect; and as the Australasian colonies have heavier boned horses than ours, bred up from the very best and most enduring strains of English blood, it is natural that we should look to the colonies, rather than the mother country, for a reinforcement of bone. In importing his brood mares from the colonies, Senator Rose has merely discounted the future of the thoroughbred horse in the United States.

The Overland Park Club.

One of the most successful racing organizations in the West is the Overland Park Club of Denver, Col., whose bi-yearly meetings are largely attended, and the entries to stakes and purses usually very numerous. During the early summer meeting of this year, quite a number of California horses were represented, and considerable money won for the stables which participated there. As there are a goodly number of California horses in the East now, both thoroughbreds and trotters, it is more than likely that a large number of entries will be made by those who will return to winter in this State. In our advertising columns will be found an announcement of a meeting to take place from October 4th to 11th inclusive, entries to which will close on August 16th. In a private letter from Secretary Hall, he states that in addition to the purses offered in the present issue, there will be liberal purses given for all classes of trotters and pacers; at least $12,000 will be given in stakes and purses, consequently we may readily suppose that the entry list will be a large one. Horsemen should bear in mind that entries close on Saturday, August 16th.

Major T. W. Doswell.

The death of this well-known stock-breeder and typical Southern gentleman, removed the last of the Old Guard of American turf men who raced only for reputation and to whom the pecuniary value of a purse or stake was a secondary consideration. He was born in Hanover county, Virginia, and had reached the ripe age of 68 years at the time of his demise. Thirty years ago when Planet, Exchequer and Fanny Washington were in their bloom, he was at the head of the American turf beyond all dispute. From 1858 to 1862 his stable won more races above two miles than any other three stables in America. From the Connecticut to the Mississippi, his victorious colors flashed in the van at every track.

There came the great civil war and racing ceased to be a feature of Southern life. The galloping squadrons of Morgan, Early and Mosby were mounted upon the descendants of Glencoe and Sir Archy; and when the smoke of battle had cleared away, the old Major struggled vainly to restore the old colors of the Bullfield stud to their pristine supremacy. A new order of things had sprung up during the "great unpleasantness." The old time races, at heats of three and four miles, had been supplanted by short dashes and the veteran owner of Planet was a fading and obscured star.

Of late years the Major has been seen but little at the great racing contests at Long Branch and Saratoga. Comparatively poor in worldly goods, he died rich in the esteem of those whose motto is "first, if with honor," and who prize sterling manhood. His gallant old rivals had all preceded him across the shadowy river, and it was fit that he should join them. The scholarly Bingaman, the true-hearted and modest Alexander, the erratic Clay, the polished and graceful Kenner and the intensely practical Minor, had all answered the summons of the Great Judge and started for the goal whence none return. The old man was the last link in a famous chain of superb manhood, and as his life was gentle, so the end came to him as the guerdon of eternal peace.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

L. A. R.

Please let me know if there was a horse formerly in California called Willman's Bellfounder.

Answer.—We do not know any such horse, but there was one called Milliman's Bellfounder, which after standing in California for some time was taken to Walla Walla. We do not answer questions by mail.

B. B.

The Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association reorganizes such races, and would make the allowance asked for.

The pedigree of Prince Mambrino is by Carr's Mambrino, dam Young Miami by Pauls Abdallah, 2nd dam Miami by Belmont, 3d dam Maria Downing by American Eclipse, 4th dam Brownlock by Tiger, 5th dam by imp. Speculator, 6th dam by imp Dare Devil, etc. We do not know the pedigree of Dutch, a trotting horse.

H. D. A.

Will you please answer me a question through the columns of your paper? Suppose my wife and myself each of us own a trotting horse, can she get a driver and enter and start her horse in the same race that I enter and start; can they both start in the same race according to rule.

Answer.—There is no rule to prevent your wife entering and starting a horse, but the Association would probably make you prove that there was not the least community of interest.

D. R. H.

If you will write to W. Page, Esq., Penn's Grove, Sonoma county, he can probably give you whatever information is known about Sportsman. The pedigree as given by Mr. Hunt is undoubtedly wrong, as Old Potomac was foaled in 1805, while Grey Eagle was not foaled until 1835. In reference to your inquiry about Lancet, we can only give you the information stated in the advertisements when he stood in the northern portion of the State; "Lancet was sired by Morgan Black Hawk (better known in this State as McCracken's Black Hawk. Ed.) dam by imp Emigrant, he by Defence, he by Unfortunate."

Please send the poster containing the pedigree of Robert Bonner.

Jas. P. Stanley.

Your horse was called Election when he was sold at the McCarthy sale. He is by Electioneer dam by Norfolk, 2nd dam Tilda Quill by Billy Cheatham, 3rd dam by Dorsey's Golddust; at least that is the pedigree that was given by W. W. Traylor. The colt you speak about is now owned by Capt. Brush of Stockton and is 2 years old. He can show quarters in 40 seconds.

Berton Sec.

A fine champagne is really bottled sunshine, and some wines, like the Berton Sec offered by Messrs. Em. Meyer & Co., agents, at 415-417 Pine street, San Francisco, seem to carry not only the balminess of the sunny clime in which they grew, but also to have become tinctured by the fragrance and delicate aroma of the flowers on every hillside near. Cleanest of wines upon the palate, most grateful to all users in its gentle, exhilarating effect, without a headache in a case, it is little wonder Berton Sec has compelled the admiration of all who have come to know it, and that under the popular local management of Messrs Meyer & Co., it has become the popular thing at the clubs and wherever connoisseurs and generous livers congregate.

THIRD DAY.

The third day of the Detroit races was by all odds the best of the meeting. The grand stand was full before the hour set for the races, and hundreds of ladies were forced to stand on the quarter-stretch and in the track inclosure. The weather conditions were simply perfect until late, when rain fell in sheets. The track was a little heavy. The first event of the programme was the finish of the Merchants and Manufacturers' $10,000 stake, with nine in the field. The talent was a little puzzled because Turner was not behind Suisun, the favorite, he having gone to Pittsburg to trot a race there, so Marvin took his place behind the Electioneer mare; however, the change was not of any benefit as Walter E. had no difficulty in winning the 5th and 7th heats, Playboy taking the 6th. In the last three heats Suisun was 3rd in each.

For the 2:18 trotting class Alfred S. and Direct were the two Californian representatives, the former winning in 2:18¼ and 2:19¼. Lady Bullion being the only one able to give him any exercise.

Second race—2:18 class, trotting, purse $2,000; best two in three:

Time—2:18¼, 2:19¼.

The remarkable event of the day was Sunol's performance for the half mile. Charles Marvin was behind the wonder, and sent her away on the first trial. Like a machine, the beautiful filly worked to the three-quarters without the whip. At the three-quarter pole a running horse was waiting for her. Shortly before the distance stand was reached Marvin began to drive for all he was worth. A mighty cheer broke from the stand as it became apparent that the filly was doing the fastest half that had ever been done by a trotting horse. As she neared the wire, with never a break or skip, all could see that the record was doomed. The crowd stood up and yelled like one man when it became known that she had made the half mile in 1:02½.

The Horseman's Great Expectation Stake for four-year-olds, purse $9,500 was the occasion of five starters coming to the wire, Margaret S. representing the Pleasanton entry while Navidad had been entered from Palo Alto. It was the concensus of opinion that the contest would lie between Margaret S. and Allerton, and that the public was not wrong was shown in the fact that in the first heat Sir Walter Scott, Baroness and Navidad were distanced, and by many it was even thought that Allerton should have shared the same fate, as it was. Margaret S. won in 2;18¼.

Notwithstanding this fact Allerton was still a strong favorite in the pools before the second heat, and that he had lots of speed could not be gainsaid, as he won after a hard contest in 2;16¼. This race was now postponed until the following day, but one heat of the free for-all pacing race was had, Adonis winning more than easy in 2;16¼.

THE FOURTH DAY.

There were present to-day between 5000 and 6000 persons, and the sport was of such a sensational nature that all the spectators were satisfied. Truly it was a great day for California horses, and those who were there from the Coast retired in the very best of spirits.

The opening event of the day was for a purse of $2000 for the Free-For-All pacers which had been left undecided from the day beford. When the word was given Hickok went to the front and was soon two lengths ahead of his competitors; on entering the stretch Hickok took the outside of the track instead of the pole, as the going was just a little better there, this gave Grey Harry probably a little advantage and he was soon on even terms with Adonis, but Adonis passed under the wire first winning the third heat and race by half a length. Time 2:20¾.

Hickok sent Adonis out for the third heat and took no chance. He was on even terms with Harry until the one-half was reached, when Adonis went away and won as he pleased by a length and a half. Hickok kept the pole this trip. Time, 2:18¾.

TIME BY QUARTERS.

	Quarter.	Half.	Three-quarters.	Mile.

Second heat	35½	1:11	1:45	2:20¾
Third heat	35	1:03¼	1:42½	2:18¾

After these heats had been paced a heavy shower of rain descended which put the track in rather a bad condition. The third heat of the Horseman's Expectation Stake for four-year-olds, was the second event on the programme, and Allerton was a strong favorite at $25 to $8 for Margaret S. Allerton's appearance was all that could be desired, and the fact that he was the only one not shut out the day before, seemed to have made him a big favorite with the crowd present, and on his first appearance was loudly applauded, and Williams had to doff his cap repeatedly in answer to the applause.

When the word was given, McDowell pushed Margaret S. to the front, and at the quarter pole she was four lengths in the lead, which advantage she maintained to the half. As they entered the stretch, the gap between them seemed about the same, but Williams began pushing the stallion, and coming down the stretch he gave a wonderful exhibition of his ability. At the distance stand he was on McDowell's wheel, and by an electrical burst of speed, fairly flew under the wire, beating the filly by a head. Time, 2:18¼.

Allerton was now a very strong favorite, and everybody expected that the next heat would finish the race. McDowell sent the mare ahead from the start, and at the quarter pole was almost five open lengths in the lead. At this point Williams pushed up the big colt, and he began to decrease the daylight between them. At the half McDowell was still leading by three lengths. These positions were maintained until they both struck into the home stretch; McDowell took the outside of the track and Allerton took the pole, coming down the straight. The race was a terrific one, and it seemed anybody's race to the distance, but the filly, by a seemingly superhuman effort, poked her head under the wire first and won in 2:23¼. She was loudly applauded for her very game efforts. This was slow time for two such horses, but it must be remembered that the track was in a very bad condition owing to the rain, and many good horsemen present considered a course fully eight seconds slow.

For the last heat Allerton was still the favorite, the odds being $50 to $25.

When Andy McDowell and Williams brought out the horses for the concluding heat, both having now two each to their credit, liberal applause greeted each of them. McDowell immediately on getting the word, sent the filly up ahead and Williams drove Allerton a little faster so as not to allow the filly to open such a gap; just as a tight race seemed probable, Allerton broke badly and McDowell went away head, Williams seemed unable to steady the colt but at last succeeded in doing so, but for a few seconds only, as before the quarter was reached Allerton again broke. At the half McDowell was nearly a quarter of a mile ahead, and a shut out for the Independence horse was now certain; before reaching the three-quarters he again broke McDowell who was going very steadily went under the wire and just as Allerton showed his head at the top of the homestretch. Time, 2:20¾. By this feat she captured the entire stake amounting to $9,500.

The Free-For-All trotting race for a purse of $3000 had only three starters, Palo Alto, Susie S. and Houri. The Palo Alto representative was the favorite selling at $50, the two mares selling at $25 each. When the word was given they got away in splendid shape, Susie creeping rapidly to the front and at the quarter she was a length ahead of Palo Alto; Houri broke badly at the half-mile pole and was soon out of it as far as the first heat was concerned; at the three-quarters post Palo Alto was at the mare's wheel, in the stretch Electioneer's great son came up steady and strong, winning by three lengths. Time 2:15½, which was remarkably good time, considering the extremely bad condition of the track.

There was but very little betting done for the second heat; all got away in particularly good shape. At the quarter pole the California horse was in the lead, Susie on his wheel and Houri three lengths in the rear; at the half-mile pole Palo Alto and Susie were on even terms but at this point Marvin's horse broke badly and before he settled, Snsie was four lengths ahead. On the upper turn Palo Alto settled down and proceeded to close the gap, still the mare made a gallant effort to hold her advantage but the California horse was too fleet of foot and beat her to the wire by a length in 2:17.

Pala Alto made short work of the third and last heat; at the quarter he was a half length to the good, and by about the same distance at the half, as they turned to go into the upper turn, the three were neck and neck but here Susie dropped back and Houri gave Palo Alto a good race in the stretch. However, the brown mare finished very soon and Marvin had no trouble in coming in a half dozen lengths ahead. Time, 2;16¼.

The last race of the day was for the 2:30 pacers for a purse of $2,000, the only starters being Cricket, entered by the Pleasanton Stock Farm and Gladdus entered by Budd Doble. There was no betting, as the result of the race was considered a foregone conclusion. In the first heat at the quarter pole Cricket had six lengths, the best of it, and kept about that same advantage until the outcome, she winning in 2:17¼. When the horses came out for the second heat it was announced that Cricket would waive the entrance and go for a fast mile. She started off like a whirlwind, and the outlook was very good for exceedingly low time, but just after leaving the turn the mare broke and lost a great deal of her advantage. After getting down to business again she finished a mile in 2:14¾, the last half being made in 1:06. Cricket had no trouble in winning the 3d heat. Time 2:17.

I have a four year old colt that promises to be fast and last Saturday after a pretty fast drive he suddenly went lame. The next day he appeared worse.

A friend of mine said he was lame in the foot. I got the shoe removed, but the horse shoer could not find anything in it and pointed out a swelling at the back of the hock to be the cause. What treatment do you advise?

Answer.—Your colt has sprung a curb. Get it fired and give the colt a couple of months rest.

S. J.

My horse picked up a nail about eight days ago. I poulticed it and it got all right, but now he appears stiff all over and his eyes appear to turn in his head. I called in a veterinary surgeon and he said it is lockjaw, but I don't think it is, as the horse can eat hay pretty well yet. What is best to do for it?

Answer.—Your veterinary surgeon was right. It is tetanus (lockjaw). Do as he directs.

J. L.

I have a bay colt six years old that has never been a day sick, but over a week ago his sheath got swollen and appears to be getting worse. What should I do for it?

Answer.—Give him a bran mash for two or three days, then give him an eight dram ball of aloes and continue the soft food, giving him a dram of Iodide of Potash morning and evening for about three weeks. Let him have moderate exercise daily after the purging has ceased.

W. H.

My horse got a swelling in his right knee about a week ago and it does not grow less, although it does not appear to cause lameness. What is best to do for it?

Answer.—Bathe it with warm water, with a little salt or sugar of lead in it three times a day and keep him on soft food. If this does not remove it after two weeks apply tincture of Iodine to it daily until a scruff forms, then leave it off for a few days and repeat as before until the swelling disappears.

New Importations.

Among the gentlemen who have lately entered the ranks of the breeders, none are more enthusiastic than F. D. Myers of Oakland. Imbued with good horse sense and exceedingly good judgment, this gentleman has lately returned from the East, bringing with him a full sister to the justly celebrated mare Minnehaha (dam of Beautiful Bells 2:29½, Sweetheart 2:22½, Eva 2:23½, Alcazar 2:20½, etc), by Stevens Bald Chief, dam Nettie Clay by Cassius M. Clay Jr., 22. This mare, now seventeen years old, is called Lady Stevens, and was bred by the late George C. Stevens of Milwaukee. As it is now so late in the season, she will not be bred this year.

A second one brought over in the car by Mr. Myers is Francisca (full sister to Maximus 5175) by Almont 33, dam Frances Breckinridge by Sentinel 2:29¾ (sire of Von Arnim 2:18¼, Vivandiere 2:21½ and seven others; grandsire of Cypress 2:22, and twenty-two others; full brother to Volunteer, sire of St. Julien 2:11¼, Gloster 2.17, Driver 2:19½, etc.), by Hambletonian 10; second dam by Bayard (sire of Bliss 2:21¼, Emma B 2:22, and six other 2:30 performers; sire of the dams of Faust, three year old record 2:18½, and six others), by Pilot Jr. 12, thence on to the 23rd dam, all of which are strictly thoroughbred.

The third one in the car was Belle Medium by Happy Medium, dam by Almont, 2nd dam by Mambrino Patchen, 3rd dam by Mambrino Chief.

All of these will be bred to California stallions next season.

In addition to the above Mr. Myers also purchased five others which have been bred to well known sires in the East and will not be brought out until next year.

The first is Nutilla by Nutwood, dam by Harold (sire of Maud S.), 2nd dam by Idol, (son of Mambrino Chief), 3rd dam by Glasgow Pilot (son of Pilot Jr), 4th dam by Vermont Black Hawk. This mare has been bred to Red Wilkes.

Still another is Alma Medium by Happy Medium, dam by Almont, 2nd dam by Alexander's Abdallah. Alma Medium has been bred to Ellerslie Wilkes.

Nettie H, record 2;26½ is by Richmond 5790, dam by Enbanks Grey Eagle, etc Nettie H. has a colt at her side by Nutwood and has been bred to Red Wilkes.

Miss Simmons is a bay filly by Simmons 2744 (sire of Simmocolon, 2:19, and many others), dam by Broken Leg, son of Hambletonian 10; 2d dam by Juhilee Lambert, son of Ethan Allen, etc. Miss Simmons has been bred to Nutwood

The last of the five left behind is Homestead by Ellerslie Wilkes 3804, dam by Homer 1235, son of Mambrino Patchen; 2d dam by Critteuden 433, son of Cassius M. Clay Jr. Homestead has been bred to Mambrino Boy, sire of the dam of Axtell.

A Hint About Driving.

Dr. Leahy, a horse trainer, says: "When a horse stops and proposes to turn around, don't resist the turn, but give him a quiet horizontal pull in the direction he wants to turn, so as to carry him farther around than he intended to go, and, if possible, keep him going around half-a-dozen times. In most cases this will upset all his calculations, and he will go quietly on without much ado. If six turns will not do give him twenty. In fact, if he will keep on turning to your rein you are sure to conquer, as enough turning will confuse him and leave him at your command. If he will not turn, and will back to the rein, keep him going backwards in the direction you want to go He will soon get tired of that and prefer to go with the right end forward; but before you let him go give him decidedly more backing than he likes."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

THE GUN.

An Exhaustive Test.

A Clabrough hammerless gnn; cost $45; No. of gun 4303, weight 7 lbs. 7 oz.; length of harrels 30 inchee: gange 12; both barrels full choked, was recently purchased of Messrs. Clahrough, Golcher & Co. of this city by Major S. I. Kellogg, whose tests of the weapon indicated snch excellence that he sent it to be csrefully patterned and ehot at penetration sheets on the Forest and Stream range at Clsremont, N. Y., by Snperintendent Moss. Wood, Sehnltze and two makes of black powder were tried, snd fonr sizes of shot. The gnn was shot from a rest, thoee at each range heing all fired withont cleaning. The shooting of the srm was very satiefactory throughont, the average work with black powder being a little better than with Wood or Schultze. Shot mannfactured by the Selby Company was nsed throughout and the shelle were loaded at Port Coeta hy means of the Chamberlin loader. The followtng data indicate the thoronghness of the teet and its general character, with ehot of different eizes, all of the teste heing equally thorough.

The Country Club.

Hotel Del Monte end Monterey generally were enlivened on Friday and Saturday last by the presence of the country Club in full shooting array, the occasion of the visit heing a tournament at pigeons open only to membere of the clnb. A very fine pigeon ehooting gronnd had heen laid off a short distance from the hotel, snd early on Saturday the members of the clnb wandered over to the gronnd and were marshalled into teams by Meeers. A. C. Tubbs and F. R. Webster acting as captains, Captsin Tubbs selecting Meesre. D. B. Gillette, Chas. Josselyn, R. B. Woodward, D. T. Murphy, W. B. Tubbs, C. B. Worden snd J. D. Redding, while Capt. Webster chose E. T. Preeton, W. H. Woodward. F. L. Wooster, Geo. Crocker, F. W. Tallant, J. A. Robinson and Alex. Hamilton. Capt. Tnbbs' team did the better ehooting and won out of hsnd. The prizes for individual scores were distributed as follows: First to Mr. R. B. Woodward, eecond to Mr. F. R. Webeter, third to Mr. J. D. Redding, fonrth to Mr. F. W. Tallant, snd fifth to Mr. W. B. Tnbbs. Mr. J. K. Orr acted as referee, Mr. C E. Worden as field csptain and Secretary J. M. Quay as scorer. The day wse tine, birds good and the shooting fully up to the high mark set heretofore by the Club. The tonrnsment wae the first that we recall where the shooting was done to a brilliant musical accompaniment by a full bend.

"Bird Cradles."

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Scribners Magszine for Jnly contains sn article entitled "Bird Cradles", by W. Hamilton Gibson. The author writes in a popular way of the situatione selected and material employed in the construction of the nests of several Eastern and one Western hird. The latter, Allen's Hummingbird (Trochilus alleni) ie said to have been described by Dr. Brewer, whereas it was described by Mr. Henehaw, and the types are now in the British Museum. The author however, may have intended to credit Dr. Brewer with the description of the nest which follows. The peper adds popnlar interest by the use of twelve illustrations; the one intending to represent a hnmmingbird sitting upon a nest, heing perhaps the most liable to adverse criticism from a technical point of view. Ornithologists—the ecientific ones—will scarcely coincide with the author in hie implied opinion that the volition of a hird has any part in the selection of scraps of printed paper, in regard to the sentiment of the printed matter. Experiment will show as neste hsve already done, that the most obscene and sscrilegione literstnre will just as readily be employed in the structure ae onee with eeemingly appropriate topics snch as "Home Protection", "Free Rsw Material" etc. That eome speciee of birde exhibit a preference for certain materisls is well known, end many will travel considerable distance to obtain thoee fragments hy which the neete of eome epeciee may always be recognized, hut the rule is that the nest is composed of such meterial as is nearest and easieet to secure. A qnantity of cow hair when found in a nest probably came from the nearest fence, and if the fur of a rahhit or squirrel wae found in abundance, it would indicate to a ecientific mind the presence in the neighborhood of a dead animal. It ie more practical to imagine a vireo patiently gleaning amongst ferns the stray haire "in the track of a coon", than to believe there had heen a scrimmsge in the dark, leaving several tufts, or that e deed coon close by supplied the warm nest-lining. On the whole, the snbject is so pleasing and ite importance in ornithology not nnderrated, that it is hoped other similer ones may follow by the same author.

WALTER E. BRYANT,
California Academy of Sciences.

San Francisco, July 29, 1890.

When wes a little story better told than this by our friend of the Sen Leandro Reporter, about a well known San Franciscan. He says:

"Harry Weiss, of San Francisco, was enjoying one of his occasional hunting trips in the wooded hille back of Sen Leandro last Saturday, when he suddenly found himself confronted by a large, gentlemanly looking cow, which gazed at him with ill-concealed vexation and unveiled contempt. Mr. Weiss hastily apologized for his intrueion, and was about to retrace his eteps, when the boorish enimal rushed toward him ae if to aseanlt and batter him. At thie jnncture Mr. Weies wae struck violently by a heppy thought, which he immediately put into execution. When the animal reached him he eet down firmly on its horns, and as it raised ite head he suffered himeelf, like Elijah, to ascend upward, until he reeched one of the highest limbs of a venerable tree that was standing idly by, where he remeined until his new found acquaintance stole away to snpper, which occurred eome hours later. Had it not been for his rare presence of mind Mr. Weiss might have had trouble with the beastly beast."

A New Explosive.

Saint Etienne, near Lyons, France, is the French Springfield. There are tried and experimented npon all inventions relating to the armament of French troops, and designed to work for French defence what the first inetalments of Springfield guns did for the preservation of the Union. There is a Government mannfactory of smell arms there ss well as many private manufactories of sporting gnns. The Chamber of Commerce recently granted to M. Paul Giffard, the inventor ot a new gun, a prize of $2,000 snd a gold medal, and trials of tbe new weapon are about to he made in Paris under the direction of the military inspectors. The Giffard gun uses neither fulminate nor gnnpowder, not even the eocalled "smokeless powder," so much talked about. These are replaced hy a sing'e drop of a volatile liquid, which, falling into a closed chamoer hehind the projectile, develops by vaporizing a great pressnre and thne gives impetns to the projectile. The fiuid is a liquefied gas, inclosed in a eteel cartridge provided with sn escape valve regulated by a movable screw. By pressing on the hammer the valve is opened and the shot discharged.

The cartridge contains 100 grammes of the liqnid. Onethird of a gramme is a sufficient charge for one ehot in an ordinery hunting gnn like the one presented by M. Giffard to the Chamber of Commerce of St. Etienne. The eame cartridge is good, therefore, for 300 shots. After every shot a new bullet is introdnced, but it is certain that a repeating mechaniem will soon be added hy which the supply of bullete will be contionoue. There is no fear of overheating the gun, for the ehooting rather cools it, the expansion of the gas abeorbing the caloric, like the ammonia in the ice-making machine. Moreover, the liquefied gas does not vaporize instantaneouely, bnt expands gradually, so that the projectile acqnires its greatest velocity only at the moment of leaving the muzzle of the weapon. Conseqnently there is nothing to fear from violent and sudden preesure npon the eides of the bore and thus the projectile torce can be ntilized to the maximum.

The detonation is eomething like that of the uncorking of a champsgne bottle, a sharp, ehort pop, and nothing more. Of couree there is no smoke and no fouling of the gun. The liquid by its volatilization gives ont no disagreeable odor like that of the emokeless powder of the Austrian army, which asphyxiated some of the soldiers during the trials in rapid firing.

Snch is a rough sketch of the new gun. Its real value will soon be determined by the trials ordered by the French Government.

Shooting and Fishing presents a good likeness of Mr. Martinez chick of San Diego, a man fit to shoot in any company, however ekillful.

An Indian killed an 800-pound cinnamon bear the other day near Nevsda City. The beast wessfter mutton when the herder shot him down.

The California Wing Shooting Clnb will meet to-morrow at Oakland Trotting Park at 9:45 A. M. Birds could not be procnred on Sunday last.

The regulsr monthly ehoot of the Blue Rock Club will take place to-day, Saturday, Aug. 2nd, at Oakland Trsck. Take 1 P. M. Berkeley train. CHARLES F. STONE,

Mr. Will S. Kittle was again successful in knocking down a splendid buck on Saturday last. The deer was killed on the Shafter Ranch where Mr. Kittle does most of his ehooting, snd weighed 124 lbs. It was out of velvet.

Many deer have been killed dnring the season in the Livermore range. Three young gentlemen of Livermore retnrned on Wednesday of last week with a load of meat from that vicinity. They were E. S. Smalley, John Haines and Chas. Allen.

Mr. Will Chiles of St. Helens has fairly earned a premier poeition smong the deer hunters in the State. Every eummer he takes a four-horse outfit into Mendocino and Humboldt connties and loade it with jerked venieon, bear meat and pelts of variene eorts, and all for the sake of sport.

Mr. C. W. Budd writes from Dee Moinee, Iows, to Major S. I. Kellogg, of the Selby Smelting and Lead Company, as follows: "With the shelle you sent me, I won the Smith trophy at Davenport, Iowa, during our State shoot, getting 19 ont of 20 targets; and Mr. Hughee snd myself won the State Team Trophy, I nsing your ehells and killing my 11 birds straight."

Mr. Ramon E. Wilson returned from Webber lake on Monday last looking the picture of health and happiness. He reports his two weeks spent there in company with Mr. S. B. Whitehead and other keen englere as having been most delightful. The fishing wae only fair, the seaeon being so late. A deer was killed, however, and such fish as were taken were of good size.

We learn thet the Country Clnb hee completed its arrangements with the owners of the Shafter Ranchn, in Marin Co., and will at once enter upon the premisee and begin to improve them. This meane the expenditnre of many thoneands of dollars, the material enhancement of the valne of the estate, en increase in the value of snrrounding property, greater population in the villagee adjacent, and the general benefit of that portion of Marin County.

Hon. J. Downey Harvey, Fish Commiesioner, returned during the week from Shovel Creek in Siskiyon and the Klamath, where he inspected the State hatcheries, and had a little excellent eport with the rainbow trout which are commonly to be found there, weighing three pounds and npwards. He anticipatee great succeee during next eeaeon in the hatching of trout. The hatcheries are at last in fairly good working order, and operations will begin with the first run in the spring.

It is said that Capt. A. B. Anderson, who is establishing a general breeding kennel at San Gabriel near Los Angeles contemplatee sending drafte from his kennel to San Francisco for sale at anction each year just as young horses are sent from great horse breeding establishments. Capt. Anderson already has in his kennel St. Bernards, Pointers, Irish Setters, Fox Terriers, Collies and Fox-hounds, all of them fine specimens of the breede. Whether his plan of breeding for market will be successful, time only can tell, hut at all events he will breed carefully and on most fashionable lines. We hope he will succeed.

Mr. Charles Macalester, of Philadelphia, is to shoot a match in San Francisco during the present month with some one as yet nnnamed. There are several local experts who can give any man a good race. We shall present full particulars as soon as they can be obtained. Mr. Macalaster is to nse American Wood Powder in the match.

An excellent portrait of Mr. Henry A. Bassford, of Vacaville, Cal., appeared in the National Police Gazette for Augnst 2nd. That journal is in error, however, in believing that Mr. Bassford is a champion rifleshot. His work has been done with the shotgun almost exclusively, and he now holds the championship of Central California at artificial targets.

The Crown Gnn Club of Stockton, a new organization, shot its first match Sunday last, and made the following scores at Blne Rock targets, at 10 singles, A. S. A. rules: W. Ditz 5, W. Burnett 10, F. Jones 7, Dr Phillips 7, J. Edwarde 9, F. Mersfelder 6 and G. Ditz 2.

The second match was ten singles and five doubles and with the following result: W. Ditz 7, W. Burnett 13, G. Ellis 15, Dr. Phillips 7, J Edwards 19, J. Jones 6, F. Bngbee 15, and M. Mersfelder 12.

The third and last match was for fifteen single. The score was: G. Ellis 10, J. Edwards 10, Dr. Phillips 9, W. Burnett 9, F. Bughee 10, W. Ditz 9, J. Jones 11, J. Budd 10 and F. Mersfelder 10.

Great profit in pleasure and in information always results when sportsmen meet for an hour's chat as they did the other night in a corner of Wm. Schreiber's. Chas. Wilson, just from Australia, was there full of stories of kangaroo hunting, boomerang throwing, pheasant shooting, trout fishing in New Zealand, and other like matters. P. D. Linville recited several chapters of an early life spent in Sonoma County when deer were thicker than oak trees, and only fat bucks were killed. Mr. Schreiber recounted at length several experiences with rifles of different calibres in justification of his preference for a 45-90 Winchester, and it must be admitted, was both ingenious and convincing in what he had to say. Jas. Sanderson discussed the varieties of deer to be found on the Pacifice Slope, holding that there were at least five instead of two, the black tail and forked horn as commonly believed. One recital brought out another, and if the various stories could have been canght stenographically, the resnlt wonld have been worth having.

Our English exchanges find pleasure in reproducing all little tales of adventure near Western settlement, in which bears and other beasts of the sort figure, and will find interesting matter in the following recital of an event which occurred near Soqualmie, a beautiful town about twenty miles from Seattle, in Washington:

Miss Carrie Page, a Mr. Shipley and John Home, made a start for their respective claims in the forest, distant five, six and a half and seven miles from Snoqualmie. At the camp of Mr. Fuller, a well known settler, the pack trail ceases and the "trail" proper commences, so that the pack horse that had been engaged for the convenience of the lady had to be diepeneed with, together with the services of an Indian helper, hired to carry a load of supplies. The two helpers returned to the city with their horses, and the party for the woods made the best of their way on the "trail." They were juet getting well into the forest again and were about to cross a small marshy spot when up started a fine black bear, right at their very feet. He was either very busy eating or elee asleep, probably the latter, or surely he would never have allowed them to approach so close. He scarcely gave so much as a look around, but made a break for liberty, crossing the party's track at right angles, and giving them a good full view. Trne to the natural instincts of her sex, the lady could not help noticing his long coat, and the fine, glossy black appearance of it The first exclammation from the party was a general one. "Well, well; to think of a great big fellow like that running away from ns" For a moment, jnst a passing moment, the lady was dubious about proceeding, the sight of the animal, his mad rush having, as she said, excited her, bnt she determined to go ahead if the men would give her one of the axes they were carrying. This was willingly furnished, and the journey was completed without fnrther incident. A few evenings later, while coming throngh on the trail, the writer ran across the old fellow again, but this time he stood, stared right at me without any compromise about it.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Sales.

Mr. A. B. Truman has sold to Jeremiah Newman the Irish Red Setter Pat T (ch Mike T—ch Lady Elcho T) whelped January 5, 1888.

Mr. A. B. Truman (Elcho Kennel, San Francisco) has sold pointers whelped March 17, 1890, by Point (Don—Drab)—Queen Croxteth (Rush T—Champion Patti Croxteth T).

To Wm. Schreiber, San Francisco, a lemon and white dog.

To Rhody Ringrose, San Francisco, a lemon and white dog.

To Charles Studarus, Routiers, a liver and white dog.

To Capt. A. B. Anderson, San Gabriel, a liver and white dog and a bitch same color.

To Mr. Larkin, San Jose, a liver and white bitch.

To Baron J. H. F. von Schroeder, San Francisco, a liver and white bitch.

Turf, Field and Farm says: "Out in San Francisco they have a regular organized Coursing Club called the Occidental, which holds coursing meetings nearly every Sunday in the season. At the last monthly meeting the club was shown to be in good financial condition with the list of 38 members in good condition."

Our exchange is in error. True, there is an Occidental Coursing Club, the club of the coast, but it never meets on Sunday; holds but two coursing meetings per year, one in the Spring and one in the Fall. The Sunday coursing is conducted by the proprietors of the resorts.

What Dog Shows Have Done.

No one, we think, who can look back twenty years will deny that dog shows have been of the greatest service in establishing types of the different breeds and setting up standards of excellence for breeders. In former days, when sixteen or twenty dogs came into the ring it was an easy matter to pick out the prize winners and to dismiss the rest. Now, of course, it is not an nncommon thing to find as many dogs before the judge, and not a bad one in the class. This improvement has come abont throngh dog shows in various ways: first, judges questioned by anxions and disappointed exhibitors have generally been ready to explain what judging meant, and what was required, says the English Kennel Gazette editorially. Many a kindly and useful answer have we had from judges, and many most useful hints have we picked np from them. Exhibitors and visitors, too, have been thrown together, and have learnt that breeding and judging are not pure matters of luck and fancy, and that much matter of scientific interest may be learnt in the amusement of breeding dogs. Last, but not least, the Press has contributed in no small degree by reports of shows, and much more than these by the correspondence elicited from time to time.

At the same time there are certain disadvantages in this constant intercourse between lovers of dogs. We are all apt to play at "follow my leader," and many an exhibitor has a prize dog for his kennels simply because he is a prize dog, and without considering at all whether such a sire will suit his strain. So exhibitors meet together to discuss points, and if one strong man has a craze for a particular point he will find many to breed for that point alone, and forget the general in the particnlar. For instance some one is very keen upon length of head, and insists that "the dogs of the present day" are too short and too broad in that point. Many will be inclined to at once rnsh off to some stud dog recommended by him or by some friend or known to them, and breed for a long head. But they too often don't stop to reflect that they may be sacrificing shoulders, loin and feet by having a dog miserably shaped, bnt with a fine head.

It wonld be far better to go slower, and to take a dog not so good in this way, but well shaped otherwise.

Judges who have a fancy for a particular part of the breed are of course especially responsible, as they are apt to look for one point and not the other.

Thus it has nndonbtedly, we think, happened in some breeds at any rate too much attention has been paid to some one or two characteristics to the injury of the dog as a whole.

Then very often the head if it be good has redeemed a nnmber of defects in body and has secured a bad dog a prize.

Nor is this unnatnral, for the head is, after all, in most breeds the essential point: e g, we met a dog the other day, abont eighteen ponnds weight, good coat, good shonlders, capital stifle, color white with a black patch, first rate legs and feet; altogether in body a good fox terrier. Bnt her head! As short as they are made, staring eyes, thick in head, with too rabbit ears which the worst "faker" couid hardly have got down, and wonld not have made much of them when down. Now here the head rnined a fair dog, and stamped her as a "come by chance" instead of a well-bred one.

Yet admitting the value of head properties to the full, it surely is, in the general excellence of dogs, possible to give more weight to some points in the body which are commonly wanting.

If we take snch an essential matter as shonlders, and ask an old bulldog breeder, he will say that while heads have improved the dogs of the present have in many cases lost the good shonlders of the old dogs as well as the roll and the roach back. Or turn to sheep doge; how many collies of the present day which have won prizes conld clear a high hurdle or scamper over the backs of a flock of sheep to turn it? If it is anewered—not an nnfair answer—that the sheep dog now is a companion and not trained for work, many, we are afraid, would hardly be good for a long gallop, or could do more than run a mile or so behiud a slow carriage,

In sporting dogs many of our best looking spaniels are far too straight in shoulder, and conld never stand a hard day in thick cover. It wonld seem, looking along the bench, as if this point had not entered the mind of some breeders and judges.

It is jnst the same in dachshnnds. We have complaints everywhere of legs and feet going wrong. It cannot be otherwise; with the immense strength of a dachshund's hind-quarters, if the shoulder does not give freedom the legs mnst go, and the dog is rnined for exhibition and not mnch good for work.

This is merely one point in two or three breeds taken at random; there are, of conrse, others which in other breeds are eqnally overlooked.

The aim of the breeder should be to get the best dog all round, good for his work as for the show bench. The object of the judge is surely to choose the best dog without regard to his private predilections; and this, as every honest judge knows, is a hard matter. We have often heard a judge say: "That is the better dog, but I wonld rather have this becanse such and such a point in him takes my fancy;" and if the judge casts his prejndices aside, he has need of all his eyes and mind to take in each dog as a whole; nor can he possibly come to a right decision unless he makes the dogs move in the ring and watches them while moving. Believing then, as we do, that dog shows have been and are of very great use in the advancement of scientific breeding, we have deemed it worth while to point out one danger which especially confronts ns in these days of "specialist" clubs and "specialist" jndges. We are apt to get into grooves until the resnlt shows us onr mistake, and it is more difficnlt sometimes to retrieve our loeses than is generally imagined. Some years ago we bred from two very good parents a bitch with straight shoulders: she was good everywhere else, and as her litter-brother was exceptionally made there, and her parents showed no weakness in this point, we bred from her, choosing of course a snitable sire. Yet even in her grand-children the fault came out in one or two cases, and will want watching for dnring a long time to come. On the other hand, the progeny of her brother have been very good in this respect, and have plenty of freedom. Thus difficult is it to avoid mistakes in breeding.

In another colnmn Mr. A. B. Truman offers pointers and Irish Setters for sale. The dogs are all from his own stock which is most fashionable, both in field qualities and in bench form.

Two nominators in the Pacific Coast Field Trial Derby have written to ask when judges will be selected and a third correspondent who has two fair aged dogs desires to know who will judge the all-aged stake so that he can decide whether or not to pnt his dogs in preparation. The executive committee might as well name the jndges now as at a later date.

It has been proved that both horses and dogs have good ears for music, particularly dogs, which have been known to whine piteously at certain passages, while at others they evince their delight and enjoyment by licking the performer's hand and begging him to repeat them. According to Aristotle, the flute is the favorite instrument of the horse. The Sybarites tanght their horees to dance to the music of flutes. This accomplishment proved a serions drawback, for upon one occaeion, when at war, and the inhabitants of the luxnrions city were about to charge their enemy, their opponents remained stationary, each man producing a flute and commencing to play npon it. The horses of the Sybarites, at the accustomed sound, immediately began to caper and prance in such a vigorous fashion that their owners lost all control over them and were obliged to show the flag of trnce. Another story is told of a gentleman who was a finished musician, and who resided some years ago at Darmstadt. He kept a dog which was the terror of all the singers and instrnmentaliets of the place, for it had the fatal habit of raising its face to heaven and howling whenever a false note was emitted. It never made a mistake, and well known singers were said to tremble when they saw their unwelcome judge, seated by his master's side, at concerts or at the opera, for "Max" was a regnlar first nighter and a great friend of the theatre director. He was never known to miss a new opera. "Max" was no respecter of persons, and when the singing was but a shade out he would attract the attention of the whole audience to it with a terrific howl. One tenor went so far as to refuse to sing unless the dog was removed, but "Max" was so great a favorite with the Darmstadt pnblic, and such a well known frequenter, that the singer might as well have requested to have the director himself removed from the stalls, and he was obliged to give in with as good a grace as possible. The dog's master stated that he had trained him, when he was a puppy, by striking him hard when any one sang or played a wrong note; later on he tapped him gently, then he had only to look at him, and by the time he was three years old the dog was as good a judge as his master of a false note.

The regular day for the meeting of the State Board of Fish Commissioners is Tuesday next. The office of the Commission is 220 Snttter St., room 13, city, and the nsual hour for meeting is 2 P. M. It is to be hoped that a large number of sportsmen and anglers may find it possible to attend.

The following came late last week: "Are you wid us? You are respectfully invited to attend the Annual Jollification and High Jinks, given by the Ariel Rowing Clnb, of San Francisco, to be held at the South End Boat House foot of Third St. on Snnday Angnst 3d, 1890. The festivities will commence at 12 o'clock sharp, and after that we'll have another ronnd. Compliments of the Ariel Rowing Club."

In relation to the claim that illegal fishing is being done by Italians in the American river near Alder Creek, Senator Rontier who lives in that vicinity, states that the claim is not well founded in so far as he can learn. He will, however, make a searching investigation, and if he finds any illegal fishing will stop it.

G. S. Baker, who for the past nine years has held forth at the bridge crossing the Feather river between Marysville and Yuba City, was a few days since interviewed regarding fish and fishing in that vicinity. When questioned he stated that the fishing business in the Feather river has been gradually falling off the past five years, and was very poor at present, although many of the anglers were successful and having great sport. The general varieties of fish now caught in that stream are suckers, split-tails, pike, cat, carp and shad.

The last mentioned fish, he said, had been coming to the Feather river for the past three seasons, and this year had been quite nnmerons. They are salt water fish, and only come up the rivers to spawn. They nsnally arrive abont the first of May, bnt this season were late, and did not come up until the latter part of Jnne. The shad have abont gone now, as their stay in fresh water rarely exceeds a month, but dnring their here Mr. Baker managed to gather in a few six pounders, and fonnd a ready market for them. They are a very excellent table fish, and were introduced into the waters of this coast, from the East, by the Fish Commissioners a few years ago. They will take no bait, however enticing, and it is only with a net or spear that they can be secnred. It is said that it is an interesting sight to see a school of them as they plow through the water, rising, as they do, to the snrface and exposing at least one-third of their glistening white bodies.

It is probable that the fish that furnishes the most sport for the largest nnmber of anglers is the catfish, which has been quite plentiful this season, and furnished fun for the small boy and the big one.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences held in this city, Professor Carl Eigenmann gave an interesting talk on salmon and the salmon tront, illustrated by many specimens of each, especially the latter, secured during a recent stay at Lake Tahoe. The subject is of special interest as bearing upon troubles that have arisen between the Fish Commission and alleged violators of the law as to what really is a salmon and what a salmon trout. Both fishes belong to the genns Salmonidæ, which also includes the white fish and graylings.

This genus is noted for the great variability of the species, the age, season, water, food, kiud of bottom, etc, producing such variations that in some cases where a large tront and a small salmon are compared it is almost impossible for any one bnt a scientist to distinguish between them. He had been sold a salmon trout for a salmon in the city markets, and the fisherman grew wroth at being told it was the former.

At Lake Tahoe the fishermen divide the trout caught there into seven species, bnt the scientist wonld class them all as of one species, differing somewhat in peculiarities at different ages and from local causes.

The professor stated that the trout were spawning in the lake this year, whereas they had formerly ascended the streams for that purpose, and that this might be owing to the extreme height of the water, or to their low temperatnre bnt the fishermen attribute it to the intelligence of the fish. The Fish Commission has established box traps at the mouths of the streams, in which the fish are caught as they start to the spawning ground, are stripped of their spawn to supply the hatcheries and then returned to the lake. To avoid this unnatural process, the fishermen contend, is the cause of the fish spawning in the lake.

THE FARM.

Breeding Cattle.

At a recent meeting of the Shorthorn Breeders' Association Richard Gibson, of Deleware, Ont., read a valuable paper on "Fancies and Fallacies vs. Experience in Cattle," which is worthy the attention of every one who is interested in improved Shorthorn breeding. He said:

"We all have our fancies as to color in cattle. Some admire a roan, others a red. With Hereford breeders, red with white face is orthodox; and with Angue men, "black and all black," is their creed. Color may be called a fancy, and so it is Experience says you follow your fancy so long as it is not prejudicial to the animal. That in the Angus or Devon breed, true to color, is certainly not an objection. That the Herefords are better, except for the sake of uniformity, by being so queerly marked, we donbt, as in our boyhood's daye, as in the early '40's, we well remember the Downtown Greys, shown by Knight, and Heath, and Lord Hatherton. That the Shorthorn hes suffered much from the red craze cannot be denied. Experience says nothing hes done the breeders more herm in these latter days than thie foolish deire for all red. Fortunately, we have escaped this mania in velue to the breeder in making selections for stock purposes. A heavy coarse horn may not be desirable, but it is much to he preferred to a light, delicate one. which, especially in bulls, shonld elwaye be avoided. Meny a good animal hse been discarded at fairs, thrown out for heving a heavy horn, perhaps placed behind a light fleshed one, with a delicate steer's horn, the former carrying meny hundred pounds more beef, and in the most valuable parts. Such is surely fallacy. The head is worth but a few cents on the block, but on the living animal what an index to valne for breeding purposes! It is ssid thet Mr. Bates fell in love with the Belvedere on seeing his head thrust through an open window, and determined to buy him at any cost. What are the fancies? In females the most common is the objection to a thick or meaty pouch neer the jawe, or what in horses would be called the throat latch. Fancy asks that they shell be well "cnt up," or, in other words, the setting of the heed must be slight snd slim. Yet experience eaye this meaty ponch is an indicetion of a good feeder rather than a defect, and will never he found on e thinned fleshed, ill thriving beaet. The common fallecy regarding the heads of bulls is that generally advocated hy young end inexperienced jndges. They must be fine and delicate—pretty, as it were. Experience says the head of the mele must be mesculine, approaching coarseness rather than the opposite. It is even so in the human race Where are the pretty men? When you find them they are generally too indolent to know how to amuse themselves. Whereas, look at the leading men of the day. The Disraelis or the Gladstones, the Macdonelds or the Mowats, Cerlyle or John Stewart Mill, none of them wou'd ever take a prize in a beauty show.

Again, on viewing, an abnormally large brisket, how often do we hear the remsrk, "What a grand brisket!" forgetting that it ie out of proportion to the loin and ribs, it is a detriment rather than a point of excellence. All parts shonld be evenly belanced, and where one nnduly predominates it is not an advantage, end when it occure in those parts of the animal where the beef is of the least valne, as in the brisket; it is still more objectionable. Experience correctly says, a long prominent brisket adds to the weight of low priced beef, wherees a broad, deep chest indicatee a strongly-constituted, vigorous animal.

The shoulder, althongh one of the most important parts of the animel, is not often troubled with the fancy pecnliarities, though no doubt many of us have heard of the remark, "What a greet front, as wide as a barn!" If we examine this wonder closely, we shall see a wide, prominent, rough shonlder, looking as if it had been stuck on afterwards, and by a very poor workmsn. Experience points out that, on standing in front of an animal, the shonlder pointe should be completely covered by the neck vein, gradually swelling out like the bows of a ship, withont any protuberance of hollows, until they are sunk or gradually absorbed by the chest, chin and ribs, so that the eye cannot detect where the one ends and the other begins. The shoulder itself should be smooth, equelly covered with flesh, not put on in rolle, as so often seen. It ie true that from the neck and shoulder do not come the choicest cuts, and every butcher knows that there is a lot difference between the quality of the meat in the rough, plain shonlder the letter yields little except boiling pieces, whereas most can be cut into roaste from a smooth evenly fleshed one. Fancy correctly demande a good round rib and strong, well covered loin. Experience says ditto, with hipe not too prominent, especially in a bull, but the hips to be well covered. Experts rely on the hips upon which to base their judgment of the depth of flesh, as they do upon the purse to show the internal fat.

Another point: Fancy says, "Give me a soft handler, picking up the hide between finger and thumb and giving it a pull, being well pleased with a thin, papery hide." Experience, 'Give me one with a firm touch, placing hand flat on the rib, gradually bringing the fingers and thumb together, feeling the texture of the flesh under the hide as well as the thickness" Fancy rnne orazy on pedigree and says, "How is he bred? I want to see his pedigree. How does it read? Does it look well on peper?" Experience teeches that pedigree alone ie of but little value, except for dreaming over and for a certain school of "etriotly puriete." Pedigree, to be of value, must not only carry us back to the early Shorthorn families, but must be something more than a mere jumble of names. It should indicate that it descends through e list of well known and good individuele, celebrated not alone on account of their breeding, but also for what they themselves have done, either in the show yard, or at the pail, or as sires or dams of show yard notorieties. Experience says, "I went to see both pedigree and true shape, neither are of velue alone, but must be combined." We honor a man in the present day for what he ie himself, not for what his grandmother's grandfather might have done. And it is right that it should be so. In this age of competition, when by the aids of railroads India is as near the markets of the world as Canada, Australia, and the Islands of the Sea are all in keen compstition, to say nothing of the late desolate places in our own country, which are now, by the aid of our intelligent young Ontario farmers, blossoming like the rose. It ie a race for the survival of the fittest whether in cattle or the human race. Then let us gird up our loins and prepare for the fray. Neither fancies nor fallecies will be of use, but strong individual merit Pedigree must be made subservient to utility, and when the crisis comes, as it has done, the weak must go to the wall. I have much confidence in the sound common sense of the Ontario breeder, but knowing them to he free from the common fencies and fallacies of so many they will tide over the storm successfully, and by the aid of their good stock, ride safe into the haven at last. For it is only by the aid of good stock, intelligently bred, and well fed, that we can hope to farm successfully.

What is Standard Milk?

Fixing Prices in Proportion to Value.

I have been asked whether I consider a law just that fixes a standard for milk at say 12, 12½ or 13 per cent of total solids, and any milk falling below these figures as being adulterated.

What is standard milk? That which the law says shall pass above some arbitrary figure—let us say 12½ per cent total solids—and any milk offered for sale that falls below these figures shall be condemned as having been adulterated.

Now, I believe and advocate the securing as high a percentage of solids as possible, but a law that declares any milk falling below any arbitrary standard as having been adulterated, is unwise. As a matter of fact, we should have a great deal to do if we attempted to prove every milk that falls below 12½ per cent total solids to be adulterated. In fact, if this be true, then very many of our best known herds would be found supplying adulterated milk. Milk, to be adulterated, must have some foreign matter added to or mixed with it. Such milk as I have indicated is not adulterated; it is normal milk, just as produced by many cows. Note the following analyses of milk;

Total Solids.	Fat.
10.79	3.28
10.36	2 98
11 11	2 85
11 30	2 70
10 56	2 56
11.34	3.33
10 73	3.11
11.50	3.13
10 94	2 62
11 08	2.50
11.94	3.33
9.57	1.73
Av. 10 93	Av. 2.84

I could not question the purity of every sample of milk included in the above list, as I made the analyses myself, and the milks were furnished under such conditions that there could have been no question; yet not one of the twelve samples comes up to even 12 per cent total solids. To the above I could add a much more extended list. Had a dairyman been selling these milks, he would under such a law have been liable to arrest and fine for selling an honest article, but one which by an unwise law is considered as having been adulterated. Nothing short of starvation to the cows would have brought the solids in these milks up to the standard. The law that requires a certain per cent of solids has served a useful purpose, but is antiquated, and needs to be relegated to the past along with the dash churn and the mythical membrane surrounding the fat globule. What shall we put in its place? A law that compels every milkman to sell his milk according to what it contains, or the per cent of fat contained in it. Let every milk wagon have conspicuously advertised upon it that milk sold is guaranteed to contain 3 to 4 or 4 to 5 per cent of fat, or 2 to 3 per cent, as the case may be, and when the owner is found selling milk below the guarantee, let him be punished by fine or otherwise. and let his plan of business be published to his patrons.

Such a law would put the milk business on a proper commercial footing. Let any person who is proved to have added water or other adulterants to milk be fined, as at present, but let the man who will furnish a milk with five per cent. of fat be paid according to the value of his products. In the milk unions or elsewhere there may be adopted a scale of prices, if best. As the law is now, we offer a premium on dishonesty because the man with milk having five cent. of fat may add water until his milk comes down to the standard, and he will pass as a good fellow—in fact he is almost forced to do this by sharp competition. The milk from cows that by nature's own process falls below the standard must be condemned as adulterated, and the seller fined under our laws; while the milk that was really adulterated passes all right. Is this a wise law? To me it seems to have served its day of usefulness, and should now give way to one more in keeping with the progressive tendency of our age—a law that shall stimulate every dairyman to find out just what his herd of cows are doing. He may test the milk at intervals himself, by some of the simple methods for determining fat, or he may deliver samples of milk to the inspector for his district who will determine for him the fat contents. Having learned this much concerning milk, let him adopt a figure, above which his cows may safely be expected to produce milk, and in this way he can furnish a guarantee just the same as our manufacturers of commercial fertilizers are wont to do, and upon which the selling prices for their goods are based.

Now, if the dairyman's milk is found to be deficient in fat, then he must suffer the same as should the the manufacturer of commercial fertilizers who claims three per cent. of nitrogen for his wares when there is but two per cent. Just the same as the merchant should be obliged to do who sells to an unsuspecting public a piece of goods represented to be all wool when it is nothing but shoddy. Let shoddy be sold, but let it be sold for what it is and not as all wool; so let milk with one, two, or five cent of fat, or skim-milk, be sold, but let them be sold for what they are and what they contain, and not under false colors for what they should be.

It may be said there are many difficulties in the way to be overcome, but I believe there are none but what can easily be removed, and that the method is more simple that what is now practiced. Certainly such a law would be more just than any based on an arbitrary standard.—E. F. Ladd in Country Gentleman.

American Camels.

As proof that the camels brought to Arizona a number of years ago are not extinct and are breeding rapidly, the following from the Yuma Sentinel is reproduced: "A large band of camels, numbering 35, were seen within a few miles of Harrisburg last week. Jim Doten caught one with a lariat, and after bringing it into the camp was forced to shoot it, as all the horses around became badly frightened at the sight of the ungainly beast."

Sheep Raising.

The Merino.

The history of this very useful animal antedates that of all other domestic animals, and is coeval with that of man, simply because there is no domestic animal combining in itself mankind's necessities, food and raiment.

The Spanish Merino, originally imported into this country, was quite different from the Merino of to-day. Unquestionably, there is no variety of this sheep in the world which surpasses it. First imported into this country from the sunny slopes of Spain more than ninety years ago, it has, under the watchful eye and constant care of the American husbandman, been gradually developed until it would seem as though the ideal of this popular breed has now been reached. That the rapid strides which have been accomplished in the direction of improvement may be more obvious, let us briefly review the Merino's early history in America and its original condition.

In examining the archives which record the first importation of Merino sheep into the United States, the first authentic date we have is 1798. It was in that year that Hon. Wm. Porter of Boston presented to Mr. Andrew Cragie of Cambridge, Mass., two ewes and a ram brought over on the ship Bald Eagle. Thon in 1801, a French banker, Delessert by name, imported four rams from France, three of which died on the voysge. It was in this year thet Mr. Adams of Zanesville, Ohio, imported from France a pair of Merinos. Next came the importation of Chancellor Livingston, American minister to France, in 1802, who sent four purchased from the government flock at Chalons.

The weight of the rams imported at about this time ranged from about 100 to 130 pounds, and their fleeces from 5 to 10 pounds of unwashed wool. The ewes averaged from 50 to 55 pounds each, and yielded unwashed fleeces averaging 4 to 6 pounds.

The Massachusetts Agricultural Society offered, in 1802, a premium of $50 for the importation of a pair of sheep of superior breed. Col. David Humphreys, minister to the court of Spain, contracted with a party to deliver to him, at Lisbon, 25 rams and 75 ewes, from one to two years old, which were driven across the country of Portugal by three Spanish shepherds escorted by a small guard of Portugese soldiers. After a fifty days' voyage, they were landed at Derby Connecticut, being transferred at New York to a small sloop. The severity of the voysge hed by this time reduced the number to 21 rams and 70 ewes. For this importation Col. Humphreys received a gold medal from the Massachusetts Society.

In 1819 came the importation of Consul Jarvis, at that time consul at Lisbon, Portugal, who secured 200 of the Escurial breed through Mr. Ewing, the United States minister at Madrid. In 1810 and 1811, it is said over 15,000 of the Infantado, Cabanas and other Spanish strains of blood were brought to our shores. At the port of New York alone, the records show 52 vessels arrived from Spain with over 2,000 Merinos on board. Among the accounts of sales made by Consul Jarvis' agents, six sheep were sold from his shipments for $1,250 each. Consul Jarvis sent 250 to Baltimore which brought $22,159.69 net. He also sent consignments to Norfolk and Richmond, Va.

From the New York importation of Consul Jarvis, Mr. Richard Crowninghield, it is believed, secured a portion. Some sheep were driven into Addison county, Vermont, and it is held they were Jarvis sheep, but some were introduced into that State previous to the Jarvis importation in 1810.

As originally imported from Spain, these sheep were rather ungainly in shape; the legs and faces were bare of wool, horns scraggy, fleeces open—i. e., lacking in density, and shearing light fleeces. In 1850, the average weight of fleece of the sheep of Vermont was 3 pounds, 5½ ounces of the United States 2 pounds, 6¾ ounces. The largest increase of the average weight of fleeces in Vermont appears to be between 1850 and 1870, and is regarded as a strong argument in favor of the cultivation of the heavy shearing, greasy Merinos which are the animals which have raised the American shearing standard to its present position. In 1860 the fleecee of the sheep of Vermont had increased to 4 pounds, 2¼ oz. as is chronicled in the records of the Vermont Merino Sheep Breeders' Association, and the average fleece of the United States to 2 pounds, 10¼ ounces.

With the opening of the rebellion came an active request for all the products of the farm and factory, and a consequent stimulation of sheep breeding throughout the country at once occurred. Many were the carloads of thoroughbred Merinos, from the best of Vermont flocks, that were pulled westward into the State of Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and other wool-growing sections and dispersed for the improvement of grade flocks.

During the year following 1877, more sheep found their way into States farther west, and the ranges of Montana, Wyoming, Texas, Colorado, New Mexico and other range sections absorbed not only Vermont's small surplus, but that of Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, and less important States.

The Merino is a noble sheep. Out numbering, many times, all other breeds, it certainly deserves the primary consideration we have accorded it. It is interesting to note that in 1850 the heaviest shearing stock rams cut a fleece of only 18 pounds, while at the present day rams shearing 30, 35, 40 and even 45 pounds are not infrequent, while there are many ewes that will shear 16, 18, 20 and occasionally 25 pounds. Great evenness and density of fleece had also been attained. Quite a number of rams fleeces have yielded over nine pounds of scoured wool each, and ewes over seven.—American Wool Reporter.

Racing and Trotting Stakes.

The Overland Park Club

DENVER, COLO.,

Announce the following Stakes for their

FALL RACING AND TROTTING MEETING OF 1890,

OCTOBER 4th to 11th.

To close on Saturday, Aug. 16.

RACING STAKES.

No. 1—THE SILVER STAKES, for two-year-olds, $10 entrance, $15 additional to start, with $450 added by the Club, of which $100 to second, $50 to third. Three-quarters of a mile.

No. 2—THE PHIL. ZANG BREWING CO'S STAKES, for two-year olds, $10 entrance, $15 additional to start; with $400 added by the Phil. Zang Brewing Co. of Denver, of which $75 to second, $25 to third. A selling Sweepstakes. Five and a half furlongs.

No. 3—THE COLORADO ST. LEGER, for three-year olds, $10 entrance, $15 additional to start, with $500 added by the Club, of which $100 to second, $50 to third. One mile and a furlong.

No. 4—THE SOUTH PARK STAKES, for three-year olds, $10 entrance, $15 additional to start, with $450 added by the Club, of which $100 to second, $50 to third. One mile.

No. 5—THE DENVER CUP, for all ages, $10 entrance, $15 additional to start, with $400 added by the Club, of which $100 to second, $50 to third. One mile and a quarter.

No. 6—THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN HANDICAP, for all ages, with $10 entrance, $20 additional to start, with $500 added by the Club, of which $100 to second, $50 to third. One mile.

All the above stakes with penalties and allowances. To be governed by the rules and weights of the American Racing Association. In addition to these stakes at least $500 will be offered for racing purses each day of the meeting. Nominations close on Saturday, Aug. 16th, 1890.

Guaranteed Trotting Purses.

To be Trotted During the Fall Meeting of the Overland Park Club of Denver, Colo., October 4th to 11th, 1890.

No. 1.—GUARANTEED PURSE $800, for horses eligible to the 2:24 class on August 1st, 1890.

No. 2.—GUARANTEED PURSE $700, for horses eligible to the 2:33 class on August 1st, 1890.

Both these races mile heats 3 in 5, trotting, in harness, and to the rules and regulations of the American Trotting Association. Entrance 10 per cent of purse, payable 2½ per cent August 16th, when each subscriber shall give his name and post office address; 2½ per cent on September 15th, 2½ per cent on September 30th, when the horses are to be named, and 2½ per cent on the night before the race. Subscriptions to close on Monday August 16th.

In addition to the above, liberal purses will be offered for all classes of trotting and pacing. At least $12,000 will be given in stakes and purses during the meeting.

Important Auction Sale

—OF—

Standard and High-Bred TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high-bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California, and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure. This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juantio (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

The 6 y o. Electioneer Stallion

ELECTRO.

Handsome black horse, 15 hands 3 inches high; near hind foot and ankle white, off hind foot white; weighs 1125 pounds; foaled May 3, 1881; bred by LELAND STANFORD, PALO ALTO, CAL.

Sired by ELECTIONEER.

First dam (standard) Fatima by Berlin.

Second dam (standard) Lady Lowell (dam of Lorita, 2 22¾) by Capt. Shultz's St. Clair, son of St. Clair, sire of dams of Manzanita (4-year-old) 2:16, Bonita (4-year-old) 2:18¾, Wildflower (2-year-old) 2:22, Fred Crocker (2 year-old) 2:25¾.

Third dam Lanra, dam of Doc, sire of Occident, 2:16¾.

BERLIN, 2:32¼ (sire of Kate Ewing, 2:21¼; Thapsin, 2:22¾ and Pansy, 4-year-old record 2:24½; Jack Gamble, 2:34¼), by Reavis' Blackbird, 2.22, sire of Ned Forrest, 2:25¾.

First dam Addie Les, 2:36¼ (dam of Adair, record 2:30 at four years old, and 2.17¾ at six years old), by Culver's Black Hawk.

Second dam Old Nancy by Old Morrill, he by the Jennison horse, son of Young Bulrush by Bulrush. First dam by Farrington horse, he by Vance horse, he by Imp. Messenger.

ELECTRO is perfectly sound, intelligent, of kind disposition. Was only bred in his four-year-old form, and his get as yearlings show the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. Electro never had any systematic work, but has shown trial miles in 2:28¼.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o'clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,

C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

No. 4. A horse making a walk over is entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided as follows: two-thirds to first, one-third to second.

No. 5. The State Agricultural Society rules of 1890 to govern all running races, except when conditions named are otherwise.

No. 6. Non-starters in running races will be held for entrance.

No. 7. In all of the above races the entrance will be 10 per cent. of purse, and to accompany nomination. Purses will be divided into 60 40 and 10 per cent.

No. 8. In all races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race will be required to start.

No. 9. When there is more than one entry by one person or in one interest the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race.

No. 10. In races designated as District all horses are eligible that were owned in the counties of Nevada, Placer, Yuba, Sutter, Colusa Butte, Sierra, Shasta, Plumas, Tehama and Lassen, and Washoe and Ormsby counties of the State of Nevada, prior to July 1st; also horses training on the Society's track from July 1st.

No. 11. Horses are eligible in county races if owned in the county prior to July 1st, or trained on the Society's track from July 1st.

No. 12. Hay, straw and Feed will not be furnished by the Society, but will be for sale on the grounds at reasonable rates.

Entries close with the Secretary on August 1st.

All purses are free to all unless otherwise designated.

The track at Glenbrook Park is now in first class condition, and will be kept so and is free to all who wish to train on the course.

Training

The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, Aug. 20 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

Trotting races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

If, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse; and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted.

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

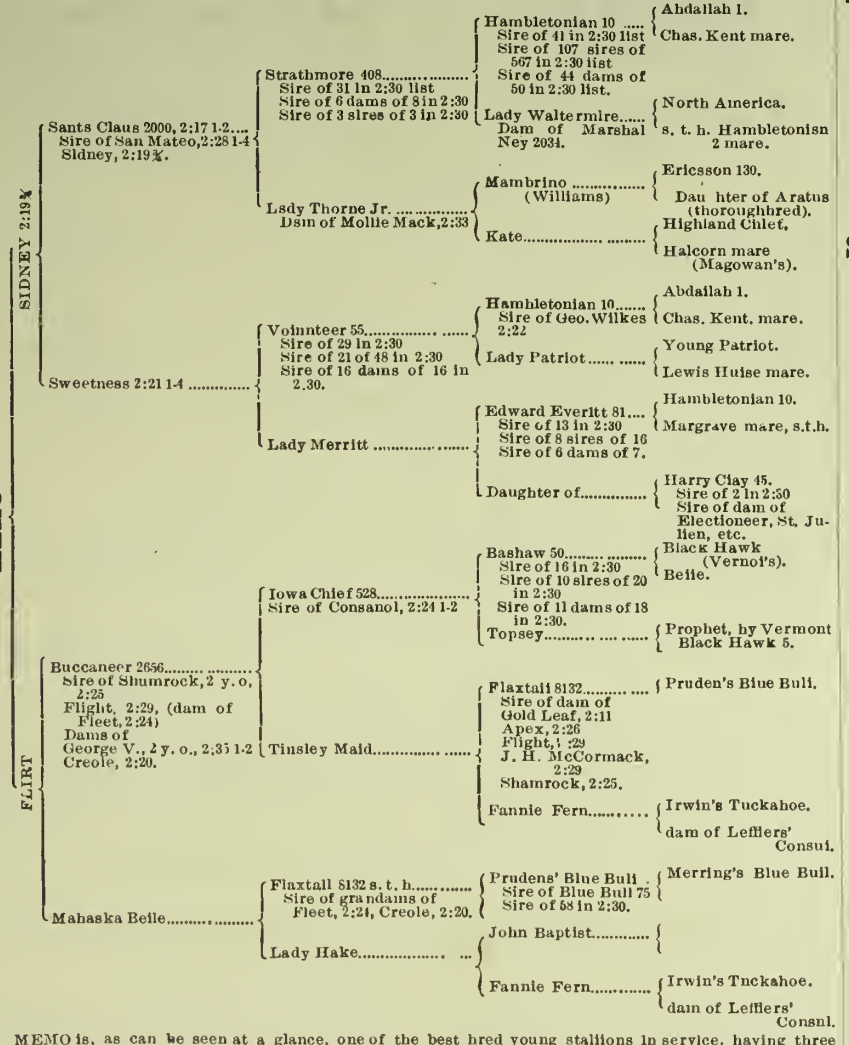
Memo.

The Best Son of SIDNEY

Will Make the Season of 1890 at the OAKLAND RACE TRACK



MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Humbletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31. 1-2, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore fetlock, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, great hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations to stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890.

Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start, the day before the race at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close September 1st with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all races for purses.

National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Entrance fee 10 per cent. on purse to accompany nomination.

National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

In all races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at 1 P. M. All entries must be directed to the Secretary.

A Dry, Warm Place to Sleep,

No matter how stormy the weather. All Stock under cover when it rains.

VISITORS WELCOME ANY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come. On horses that stay three months or over there is no charge for getting or delivering. Where a horse stays a short time the actual time and expense only is charged to him.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable.

The Cleveland Races.

What the Californians are Doing.

From Detroit to Cleveland was but a short journey, and the Californian contingent all arrived here, right side up with care. As the Cleveland track has the reputation of being one of the fastest in the United States, we all of us look forward to seeing some wonderful records made, especially in view of the fact that many of the sensational horses of the day are quartered here, and before the week ends, will have shown us what they can do.

The day was exactly suited for fast work, and there was a very large attendance, considering that the facilities for getting to the track were rather meagre. However, we have been promised that to-morrow there will be extra conveyances, so that the crowd which is expected to see the great free-for-all pacers, will have a better opportunity for getting to the course than we had to-day.

The opening race of the day was for the 2:30 trotting purse, and brought out nine starters, among the number being M. Hickok's entry, Prince Warwick. Notwithstanding the fact that the Californian had shown a wonderful performance prior to his starting in the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Stake at Detroit, he was not thought much of by the betting talent, they choosing to pin their faith to Leopard Rose, the wonderful spotted mare, who has been a source of many a downfall to those who have backed other entries. Budd Doble's mare, Pixley, had little or no trouble in winning the first heat, as it was evident to all that Leopard Rose was simply having warmed up for the next heats. Time, 2:20½.

In the second heat, however, Rose cut out the trotting from the time the word was given, going to the half in 1:07¾, and from there home in like time, the mile being completed in 2:15¼.

After this sensational mile, it can readily be believed that Leopard Rose was a very long odds favorite, and notwithstanding she made two losing breaks in each of the next two heats, she won both easily in 2:20½ and 2:18¾. The following is the

SUMMARY.

2:30 Class—Trotting; purse $2,000, divided.

Time, 2:20½, 2:15¼, 2:20½, 2:18¾.

The 2:25 pacing race was the next on the programme, and Grant's Abdallah, who had made such a hard fight with Cricket in Detroit, was touted as a sure thing winner. He won first money in three straight heats, the balance of the field being completely out-classed by the Kansas City stallion.

The 2:21 class was really the most interesting and closest contest of the day, for although Suisun had been picked as a winner, she did not get a heat hut made it very uncomfortable for Simmocolon in the last heat. In the first heat Veritas was driven by an amateur and a very poor one at that, who was in such a hurry to secure the lead that he fouled Pocahontas Prince at the first turn, and the latter becoming very excited threw his driver and ran almost two miles before he was caught. The judges, notwithstanding the fact that Veritas won the first heat hy fully four lengths sent him to the stable giving the heat to Simmocolon who was second.

In the second heat Pocahontas Prince although scratched up a little was started again hut was drawn in the third heat. Dick Smith surprised everybody hy his terrific speed in the second heat when he rushed away in the lead and was never headed, completing the mile in 2:17. Dick Smith after this wonderful showing was considered good enough to win and lots of money went up into the pool box on his presumed chances. Simmocolon proved too much for him, winning the third and fourth heats in 2:19 and 2:22.

SECOND DAY.

"Great Scott," I have seen some hot weather in the Sacramento Valley when the old circuit used to commence at Chico, but this, the second day of the Cleveland meeting surpassed anything that your correspondent has yet seen in the East. However, to overcome the extreme heat the racing thermometer was at a boiling point also, and it is with extreme pleasure that I have the gratification of writing to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN the grand news that the fastest mile ever made in a race, was accomplished by Orrin Hickok's great pacer, Adonis. That the Cleveland folks are terribly tickled, goes without saying, as they can with all truth now claim that their handsome track is the fastest in the world. That the track must he very speedy is demonstrated in the fact that all of the heats to-day with two exceptions were trotted and paced better than 2;20. The attendance was all that could be desired, the grand stands were well filled, and all along the quarter stretch there was a perfect jam of humanity.

There was one little disappointment for those in attendance as it had been announced that Brown Hal, the great stallion pacer would endeavor to lower his present record of 2:12½, hut owing to lameness, it was deemed expedient to reserve the trial for another opportunity.

The first race on the card was for the 2:27 trotting class, there being five starters but as the entries are all from the Eastern stables, a description of the heats would be of little interest to your readers, therefore it will suffice to give the

The next event might really be termed the great race of the day, it being a free for-all pacing purse of $1,500, the starters being Hal Pointer, Adonis, Jewett, Fred Arthur and Gray Harry. Hal Pointer was the favorite in the race, selling in the auction pools for $200. Adonis being second choice at $130, while the field brought $75.

The first heat was really a contest between Fred Arthur and Adonis for first place. Geers, the driver of Hal Pointer, being satisfied to lie back and see the two leaders fight for supremacy. Notwithstanding the bitter contest that occurred between the two, occasionally Pettit would bring up the black gelding, Jewett, only to he shaken off again as Adonis and Fred Arthur were too much for him. After a red hot driving finish, Adonis won, Fred Arthur second, Jewett third, and Hal Pointer fourth, Grey Harry, the other entry being distanced hy the judges for his running qualifications.

When the word was given for the second heat Hal Pointer was away behind, Jewett being in the lead, which position he maintained until the quarter was reached, where Hickok sent Adonis along and Hal Pointer was also given his head. The contest soon narrowed down to a red hot tussle between Hal Pointer and Adonis, the pace being something terrific; as they turned into the homestretch Adonis and Hal Pointer were neck and neck, the Californian representative never made a skip, although every muscle was exerted to pass first under the wire. When within a hundred feet of the judges, Pointer left his feet and failed to catch in time, although Adonis only beat him by a half length in the marvelous time of 2:11¼. Babel could not possibly have presented a noisier scene than was now witnessed hy the spectators. The crowd simply went wild, shouts and cheers rending the air as the on-lookers realized the fact that they had witnessed the fastest heat ever made in a pacing or trotting race.

Although Adonis now had two heats to his credit, he was not such a great favorite in the pool box as one would have thought, the friends of Hal Pointer still sticking to him with a dogged determination, for which they were well recouped when the race was finally ended. When the word was given Hickok made no effort for the heat, so the judges declared all bets and pools on the heat off. The slow time of 2:18¼ is ample evidence that all the drivers were willing to give their horses a breathing spell.

When the third heat was called Adonis seemed tired and weak, but that he has plenty of nerve, no one can gainsay. Hickok wanted this heat and wanted it badly, but his horse just simply could not win it. Jewett took one of his usual spurts and cut out the pace for the balance until after the first quarter was reached, and then the battle royal began in good earnest. Hickok with an eye to business sent Adonis sweeping down the back stretch with Hal Pointer hanging close to him as they swept into the stretch. Pointer had slightly the lead which Hickok tried to overcome, and manfully did he battle with his fast gelding, but to no account, as when within a few feet of the wire he eased up on Adonis, Hal Pointer winning in 2:14½.

The last heat was as nearly as possible a repetition of the preceding one; both drivers were anxious to win, and Adonis was set out to make the pace. At the half mile pole the Tennessee horse came along with a great burst of speed, both he and Adonis pacing very evenly around the last turn, coming into the home stretch on even turns, but from this time on Hal Pointer seemed to draw ahead. Just before the wire was reached Hickok fairly lifted Adonis off of his feet, and the game son of Sidney responded with a noble effort, but it was of no use, Geers passed under the wire first, and as he did so turned around and smiled on Hickok. By long odds, Adonis to-day had the worst race of his life, although his owner has the proud satisfaction of being able to say that he has made a record which up to this time stands unequaled.

It was a fortunate job that so few Californians witnessed the last race of the day, which was for the 2:19 trotting class, the purse being $2,000; why I say fortunate is because Direct started in this race, and from the wonderful half mile that he trotted at Saginaw, it was thought hy many that the little son of Director would have a "show in"; however, Mr. Salisbury tells me that he has been ailing for some time, and it is extremely doubtful whether we will see him start in the Eastern circuit again unless he improves materially from his present condition. I may say here also that another of the Salisbury stable is under the weather. I allude to Katie S who when she first started showed every indication of being a good campaigner, but the extreme heat coupled with the long journey has thrown her back very much in her work. The first heat was the only one in which Direct made any showing, he leading all the way until well into the homestretch, where he was quickly passed hy Lady Bullion, Almont and Black Diamond; after the first heat he was never "in it," and as the race has hut little interest for you, I simply append the THIRD DAY.

As I stated in my letter yesterday to you, the accommodations for those who wished to go to the race track were much superior to-day to those of the two former days. It seemed as though every horse in Cleveland had been brought out to carry the spectators to the race track. The weather was again frightfully hot, but that seemed a very slight objection, as the largest attendance of the meeting so far congregated at Glenville Park to-day. Several times during the early afternoon, St. Clair Street was positively blocked with the enormous quantity of vehicles which were all travelling toward the one common center. The racing was all that could be wished for, although there was considerable "kicking" on the part of many of the audience because Leopard Rose did not win the 2:25 trot; she was a strong favorite, hut was never in the swim from the start. The winner turned up in the game and reliable gelding Walter E., owned by Bob Stewart of Kansas City. As it took several heats to finish this race, those who attended had plenty of sport for their money. There being no Californian horses in the 2:25 purse, I simply send you the

The 2:17 trotting purae brought out a decided sensation, as the talent fancied that there were but two horses in the race; Pamlico driven by Jimmy Goldsmith, and Houri driven by Doble. However, the old California favorite, Orrin A. Hickok had the speed of the party with Alfred S., much to the astonishment and disgust of the heavy backers, who cannot understand why it is that California representatives hob up at the most unaccountable moments. The game little filly, Margaret S., was alao entered in this race, but she stood no show against the speedy ones who were entered against her. "Old man" Kyger had his favorite bay mare, Kit Curry, the other entry in addition to those mentioned being the bay gelding J. B. Richardson who had Langs as a driver. When the pool selling first opened in the morning, and in fact right up to the time of the first heat, Houri was the favorite, although Pamlico was a strong second choice, the pools brought about as follows: Houri $50, Pamlico $35 and the field $30. When the word was given for the first heat Margaret S. startsd off in the lead and continued as the pilot of the party until they were fairly well into the last turn, when Pamlico, Kit Curry and Alfred S. were all sent up to join her. As they turned into the stretch the sight could only be likened to a four-in-hand chariot race, as the quartette were nose and nose together. Pamlico trird to take the pole, and when it was found he could not do it, was out across to the outside, out trotting all three and finishing first with Alfred S. a close second, Margaret S. third and Kit Curry fourth. Time 2:17¼. From the manner in which Pamlico had won the initial heat, it seemed dollars against buttons that he would have an easy victory, so much so in fact that before the second heat, pools sold for $35 for the Goldsmith entry, while the field bunched only brought $25.

In the second heat the fight was between Alfred S. and Pamlico, the Californian representative winning the best by a neck only, the close finish causing much excitement in the crowd. Houri also trotted well in this heat and came down the homestretch at a terrific clip but was unable to head off the two leaders.

The third and fourth heats were but repetitions of the second with this exception, that J. B. Richardson cut out the pace with Alfred S., but the Elmo gelding was too much for him. The following is the Brown Hal was to have given a performsnce this afternoon but again it was announced that the stallion was too lame to give an exhibition, and in oonsequence thereof Harry Wilkes was given a mile in an endeavor to beat 2:14. Harry was driven hy a son of Gen. Turner, a running mate accompanying tho repreaentative of the Wilkes family around the course. The quarters were made as follows: 34½, 1:07¾, 1:41 and 2:14¾.

Marvin also gave an exhibition with the great filly, Snnol, the distance being a half mile. The first quarter was trotted in the remarkable time of 31 seconds, but as she broke badly in the stretch, it took 1:07 to complete the distance. in a short time afterwards, Marvin again brought ont the peerless filly and drove her a mile, the time heing as follows: 32¾, 1:05, 1:39 and 2:15.

The 2;17 pacing race produced eight starters, among the number heing the now celebrated California mare, Cricket, who has won so handily in all the events in which she has hitherto started this season I had the pleasure of writing to you two days ago that Adonis had performed the fastest mile ever made in a pacing race, and to day I have to chronicle the fact that Dallas equaled the record made by the Californian, he pacing the second heat in 2:11½. It looked to me as though McDowell was willing to lay up the first heat for he did not drive the mare to the limit of her speed, as there were three in the field who passed under the wire before she did, the winner of the heat turning up in Maggie R. who accomplished the mile in 2,15½.

The 2nd heat was the sensational one of the day. Maggie R. went for the lead again but at the quarter Cricket struck her gait and before the half was reached, had the lead, it was at this point that Dallas came alonglike a cyclone and fought with Cricket, taking the lead away from her at the three-quarters, the maro tried hard to regain her lost place but it waa of no nae, Dallas had too much speed for her, winning in 2:11½; Cricket being 2nd. Some idea of the speed of the field may be arrived at when I state that not one of them was distanced.

Before the 3rd heat Dallas was made favorite over the field, but Cricket had evidently picked out this heat for herself, and kept the lead from the start to finish, in fact she had no difficulty in winning the last three heats. Time being given in the Finish of the Deer Lodge Meeting.

SECOND DAY, JULY 23.

There was another fine day of sport at the rsces to-day. The crowd was much larger than yesterday. There wss not quite so much betting as the day before, as the horses seemed to he well known.

The first race was a trotting 2:20 class, in which the following horses came up on the track: Tramp S., ch s, Chas. Deitt; Morning, b g, J. H. Butler, Conde, ch g, W. R. Davis; Contractor, br g, H. Kirkendall. They had positions in the order named. In the first heat Manning took the lead and kept it throughout, coming under the wire in 2:30½, Conde second, Contrsctor third and Tramp S. fourth. The secoud heat was a close one between all the horses except Tramp S., but Manning came under the wire first, Conde second, Contractor third, Tramp S. distanced. Time. 2:24½. The third heat stood: Manning first, Conde second and Contractor third. Time 2:26¾.

SUMMARY.

Manning	1	1	1

In the running race. one and a half mile running dash, the starters were Carry Lee, ch f, Hugh Kirkendall; Susie Glenn, ch f, J. P. Entton; Gold Bar, ch c, Sam Hanley. Carry Lee led for the first three quarters of a mile, while Gold Bar came up and lapped her. It then becsme a close race. Coming down the home stretch Gold Bar made a heroic struggle for first plsce, hut was unable to ohtain it, Carrie Lee coming under the wire a nose in advance, Susie Glenn third. Time, 2:44¾. Gold Bar claimed a foul on Carrie Lee, but it was not allowed.

In the trotting rsce, three-year-olds, there were the following starters: Lesp-year, h f, W. H. Raymond; Locust, ch c, Winthrop Raymond; Volcaro, h c, Huntley & Clark. The race was two hest in three and resnlted as follows:

Time, 3:07¼, 3:06.

It was thought that Locust would have taken the last heat had she not broken whem nearing the wire.

The last race was a very pretty one. It was a one mile dash between Guido, ch c, W. H. Babh; Gov. Adams, h c, Teasley; Sympathetic Last, br s, W. Weaver. Guido, after the lower turn, led, followed closely by Gov. Adams, but all of them kept pretty close together coming to the homestretch. Sympathetic Last took second place ooming in and the positions were not changed, Guido first, Sympathetic Last second, Gov. Adams third.

THIRD DAY, JULY 24TH.

The races were very fine to-day; "a grand day," said every one. There is the greatest satisfaction with the conduct of the races. There was much excitement and a great deal of betting.

The first race called was a trotting race for three-year-olds, best two in three. The starters were Ashby, h c, Thomas Smith; Murtha, b f, Denver Stables. In the first heat Murtha came under the wire an easy winner in 3:01¼. In the second heat Murtha passed under the wire a nose in advance in 2:48. Murtha was given the race.

Second race, running, one and one quarter mile dash—The horses that came up on the track in this race were: Montana, h s, Robert Mulligan; Beaconsfield, b s, Clifton Bell; Tom Daly, ch g, Cy Mulky. The horses were sent away on the first score. Coming down the homeatretch it was a fine race between Daly and Beaconsfield, but Daly won by half a lengtb, Montana five or six lengths behind. This is the first race Montana ever started in. Time, 2:13¾.

The third race was trotting, 2:40 class. In this race there were five horses to trot, named as follows. Don L, br s, Evans & Tate; Procrastination, h s, Ed Lafferty; Juliette, gr m, S. E Larabie; Ben Williams, b g, Ben Johnson; Butte, br g, J. H. Butler. In the first heat Ben Williams soon took the lead and was closely followed by Don L., he hy Juliette, the others scattering. In this way they came aronnd the track, Ben Williams winning, closely followed hy Don L and Juliette, Procrastination fourth and Butte fifth. Time. 2:29¼. The second heat was called at 4:30 P. M. Ben Williams soon passed to the front, followed closely hy Don L and Juliette, the others far behind. In this way they went until they entered the homestretch, when Williams went to the air and Don L took the lead and won the heat, Williams second, Juliette third, and the others distanced. Time, 2:30. In the third heat Juliette, who had the outside of the track, had the best of the start, and took advantage of it by pressing in front and fouling Don L. This gave her the lead which she kept, coming in in 2:37, Williams second, Don L third. The heat was given to Williams, and Juliette set back for the foul. In the fourth heat Don L proved too much for Williams, taking it in 2:37½, Williams second, Juliette third. Time, 2:37¼. The fifth heat was an exciting one. Don L broke immediately after passing the wire and lost fully fifty yards. Williams led aronnd the lower turn, but Juliette passed him on the hackstretch coming home. Don L took second place. Juliette passed under the wire in 2:31½, her best record, Don L second, Williams third. The sixth trial wss a magnificent contest between Juliette and Don L, the latter getting in first, Juliette second and Williams third.

The last race was a running race, half mile heats. In this contest the starters were Kickapoo, blk g Daniels; Wieder, ch g, J. Q. Sutton; Roly Boly, b m, Phelps & Hancock; The Jew, ch g, Mike Jully. The horses were assigned positions as above. In the first heat Kickapoo led to the homestretch when the Jew took the lead and won in 48¾. Kickapoo second, Roly Boly third, and Wilder fourth. The second heat wss another grand race. Coming down home the race was between Roly Boly and the Jew, but the latter came in first by half a length, Roly Boly second, Wilder third. Kickapoo fourth. Time, 48½. The Jew was given the race.

FOURTH DAY.

The races were good but several little accidental delays were unpleasant to the spectators. The remarkable fast time of Nettie S. was the event of the dsy. There were more betting than usual and more money passed through the pools than on any previous day.

The first race of the dsy was a trotting race, two-yesr-olds, best two in three, and the starters were. Erect g c, Hugh Kirkendall; Locust, ch g, Winthrop Baymond. In the first heat Locust kept in the lead throughout, winning in 3:05¾. It was thought that Erect was not doing his best, hut when he came out it was found he had lost his toe weight which explained his couduct. In the second heat Locust acted badly and Erect took the heat in 3:07 without much effort. The third heat was a pretty one. The horses went together all the way aronnd, both broke on the homestretch but gathered quickly and Erect came in a winner in 3.00. Erect took the race.

The next race was a running race, 600 yards dash, in which the following flyers came up on the track: Eddie R, b s, C. M. Tate; Nettie S., gr m, J. P. Sutton; Bay Tom, h g Brown and Blevins; Green Pruitt, h g, M. F. Jones; Roanoke, ch g, J. A. Alford. Over half an hour was consumed in scoring. Green Pruitt was vicious and could not be controlled. Finally they were sent away with Green Pruitt three lengths behind. Nettie S. at once jumped to the front and, raising her head, said "Come on boys, "I'll break the record," and she did coming under the wire in 30¼. Bay Tom second, Roanoke third, Eddie R. fourth and Green Pruitt a bad fifth. Several men timed the race at 30 seconds.

In the trotting race, 2:27 class, the following horses went in the order named: Homestake, h g, Ed Lafferty; Louis S., ch g, J. B. Cassidy; Cottonwood Chief, ch s, Geo. W. Krattier; Belle, gr m, J. P. Stoneroad. In the first heat Louis S. lead. Belle broke after passing the wire, and Cottonwood was very lame. Coming down the homestretch, Homestake crowded Louis S., but the latter came in first, Homestake second, Belle third and Cottonwood Chief fourth. Time, 2:29. Homestake took the lead in the second heat, and kept it to the outcome, Belle second, Louis S. third, Cottonwood Chief distanced. Time, 2:35¾. The third heat wss the same ss the second. Time, 2:30¼. FIFTH DAY.

The races to-day were as follows: In the trotting race for three-year-olds, the starters were Kendlewood, Deacon and Seven H. L. Kendlewood led all the way round, Deacon second, Seven H. L. distanced. In the second heat the colts kept on pretty even terms throughout, Deacon coming under the wire half a length ahead. Time, 2:41½. The third heat was taken by Deacon in 2:42½.

In the special trot and pace the following went: Black Tom, blk g, George Burris; DeSota, ch s, Henry Dewitt; Minnie Man. br g, Huntley & Clark; Procrastination, hr s, H. Kirkendall. The horses got a start on the tenth score, and Black Tom took the lead and kept it until nearing the wire, when Procrastination stepped up and took the heat, Tom second, Minute Man third, DeSoto fourth. DeSoto was then drawn. In the second heat Procrastination at once went forward, and it looked for some time as if he would shut the others out, but he came in slowly and took the heat in 2:38, Black Tom second and Minute man distanced. The third heat resulted in favor of the pacer. Black Tom, in 2:38¼ The fourth heat was taken hy Procastination. Time, 2:37. There was a claim of foul against Procrastination, but it was not allowed. He took the heat and the race.

In the 2:24 trot the following horses came upon the track: Gloster, b s, Dr. Weyerhorst; Spartan, b g, G. B. Goodell; Carl, ch g, Perry Johnson; Marquis, h g, J. P. Stoneroad; Contractor, b g, Ed. Lafferty; George Mosbier, ch g, Charles Dutt. The first heat was a close one between Marquis, Spartan and Carl, they coming in in that order, Contractor fourth, Moshier fifth, Gloster distanced. The second heat was a magnificient trot. It was the finest race that has been held on the track. Many old racing men said it was the grandest race they ever saw. Four of the horses came down the track almost dead even and it took close judging to determine the positions in which they went under the wire; Marquis first, Sparatan second, Mosheir third, Carl fourth. Time, 2:27. The third and last heat was taken by Marquis in 2:26, Carl second, Spartan third, Contractor fourth, Moshier fifth.

SUMMARY.

Marquis	1	1	1
Spartan	2	2	3
Carl	3	4	2
George Moshier	5	3	5
Contractor	4	5	4
Gloster	dts

The mile heats did not fill, and there was submitted a five-eights mile dash, in which were entered Dwarf Regent, Joe Bowers, Circle J. and Olympia. Dwarf Regent won in 1:04½, Olpmpia second, Circle J. third, Joe Bowers fourth.

The concluding race was a quarter mile dash for the "get away stakes," in which Kitten, Roanoke and Bay Tom were the contestants. A good start was had on the first score, and it was a good race. Kitten first, Roanoke second, Bay Tom third. Time, 22 seconds.

Los Angeles Meeting.

FIRST DAY.

The grand circuit of the State of California opened up in brilliant style. The attendance was gratifyingly large and the racing was first class. The Directors of the Sixth District Agricultural Association offered big money this year and the Blue Ribbon Meeting promises to be successful in every particular. Visitors poured in from all over Southern California and over two thousand people passed through the gates. The grand stand was filled to repletion with a fashionable audience and carriages and equipages lined both sides of the quarter stretch. Never in the history of the Association has so much interest been taken in the races. The receipts exceeded the opening day in 1889 by $500. The track was in fair condition. It was especially good for the bangtails and the running horsemen were in high feather.

The opening event was the Los Angeles Derby. This race excited considerable interest and four ont of the five entered came to the post. The absentee was Gold Dust who pulled up a trifle lame a couple of days before the race. Raindrop has made a red hot favorite with Captain Al second choice. Marigold and Larghetto sold in the field. After one or two breakaways the flag was lowered to a capital start. Larghetto went to the head of affairs and led his competitors a merry pace. The other three ran bunched for a couple of furlongs. Largbetto led past the stand by two lengths. Murpby improved his position on Raindrop and a slashing race began. Turning into the straight Marigold came full of running and won in gallant style in the good time of 2:38¾. This is the second Derby that Matt Storn has captured in the Southern Citrus belt and he was congratulated on all sides.

SUMMARY.

James B. Chase's ch f Marigold, 106 ..... Morton	1
W. L. Appleby's b f Raindrop, 112 ..... Murphy	2
Owen Bros.' br s Captain Al, 118 ..... Hennessly	3

Time, 2:38¾.

In the pools Raindrop sold favorite at $20, Marigold $11, Captain Al $6, the field $11. Paris mutuals paid $6 45 straight and $1 50 for place.

Four sported silk in the Edwards and McKnight Stakes. They were Abi, Daisy D, Dan Murphy and Carmen. This proved to be a great betting race. Abi was made the favorite and considerable money rolled in the pool box on the Sacramento mare.

Daisy D also had a host of admirers. She met Abi on better terms than ever before, and the Fresno delegation backed her heavily. The talent got hit hard, however, and Carmen surprised the betting public by defeating both these celebrated mares. It was a red hot race however. The starter experienced considerable difficulty in sending the quartette on their journey. After about a score of breakaways, the flag was lowered to a fairly good start, Dan Murphy getting the ragged end of the rope. Little Roach began to ride him from the start, and was soon at the head of affairs. Carmen was also given her head. At the half they led Daisy D two lengths, with Abi a length behind the Fresno mare. A great race ensued after turning in the straight. Dan Murphy soon had enough. Daisy D challenged Carmen and gradually overhauled the leader. "Here comes Abi," shouted the multitude as Casey called upon the mare. Whips were brought into requisition, but Carmen was equal to the occasion and won by a length, Daisy D just beating Abi for second money. The time, 1:41½, was the fastest mile ever made over the track, and the crowd cheered when the sign was hung out. Los Angeles climate appears to agree with Carmen as she has never done anything to speak of since her appearance in Los Angeles two years ago.

SUMMARY.

W. L. Appleby's ch m Carmen, 108 ..... Murphy	1
H. I. Thornton's b m Abi, 108 ..... Casey	2
Owen Bros.' b m Daisy D, 115 ..... Hennessey	3

Time, 1:41½.

Auction pools: Abi $25, Daisy D $15, Field $8.

The 2:30 trot now claimed the attention of the spectators. There were few starters, and as they all hailed from different points, each one had his admirers. Glendine, a handsome chestnut by Saulsbury, was first choice, notwithstanding that the horse was not himself. Jim Leach had a host of supporters who came up from the Bay 'n climate. Lucy R was thought to be dangerous, although it was known that she was not herself. Dick Richmond was considered to have more than a fighting chance as he looked in perfect condition, and his work since his arrival at the track had been good. Fresno sent down Barbaro, and Charley Owens made his initial appearance as a "knight of the sulky." The event does not need an extended notice. Glendine captured the race in three straight heats under the capable pilotage of Walter Maben. Jim Leach was second in the three heats Lucy R acted strangely in the first heat and got the distance flag.

SUMMARY.

Dr D. K. Wise's s st Glendine	1	1	1

Time, 2:27¼, 2:26¾, 2:27¾.

Auction pools: Glendine $60, Jim Leach $31, Field $18.

The last event was the three minute class. This was thought to be a gift for Bob Mason, but the people who backed him at long odds had their hearts in their mouths in the second heat as Riceta, the Santa Ana mare, came within an ace of shutting him out. Riceta won the first heat in the easiest style imaginable. In the second Bob Mason acted especially bad, but he came down the stretch at a Palo Alto gait and just managed to beat the flag. In the third heat Bob Mason began to show his calibre and beat the tired Riceta rather handily. The fourth and fifth heats were repetitions of the third.

The Touchstone Blood in Australia.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: In the last issue of the BREEDER appeared an article on the Stockwell blood in the Australasian colonies, presumably from the pen of the editor. And, while it shows what is to the average American breeder a revelation, yet I think he has understated, rather than exaggerated, the proportions of the Stockwell blood in Australia and New Zealand. However, the showing is insignificant as compared with the Touchstone blood in the very same localities, which antedates the Stockwell importations about twenty years. Both these families contain the cream of English racing blood.

When the brown colt with the white face cantered home in front of a dozen other cracks, with the mighty Plenipo beaten away off, the eccentric Lord Glasgow was heard to exclaim "That rascal John Scott has won the race on a butcher's hack!" It is a great pity that the blood of the butcher's hack" is not more extensively diffused throughout America, as but two of his sons were imported hither—Lapidist and King of Cymry, the latter of which might as well have been been left at home. As for Lapidist, he died before racing had taken its present foothold in the North and his real worth will always be an unknown quantity.

I append a table (for the completeness of which I do not vouch) showing the importations of Touchstone blood into Australasia. I have got all I could find and that's all I can say. When you consider that thoroughbred mares containing this blood can be landed here at the cost of really good native mares, it is only a surprise that more Australasian mares have not been already imported. It only goes to show that in spite of our fast time records we are still behind our antipodean consins.

Name of Sire.	Sons.	Daughters
Touchstone	9	7
Cotherstone	4	3

In addition to the above, there have been several sons each, of Adventurer, Lord Clifden, Teddington and Croagh Patrick, who sons have run well and whose daughters have produced winners to more sires than one. Of course many of Stockwell's best sons are from Touchstone mares—notably the Marqnis and several lesser lights of the turf, while Gang Forward is out of a daughter of Orlando. In the colonies these lines of breeding have been followed up pretty closely, and these crosses have nicked splendidly with the two greatest native sires, Yattendon and Goldsbrough. The old mare Juliet, by Touchstone out of Lancashire Witch by Tomboy, together with Chrysolite, her daughter by Stockwell, made the reputations of Fisherman, so far as turf performances are concerned, although it must be conceded that Fisherman's daughters have proven great matrons with all sorts of sires.

It is impossible, therefore, to resist the belief that Australia contains four times as much Stockwell blood and twelve times as much Touchstone blood as can be found in the United States. It is plainly, therefore to be seen that Senator Rose has shown his good sense in sending across the trackless South Pacific for his broodmares. There will be others to follow the lead of the clear-beaded old vigneron of Sunny Slope, whose horses are destined to become as famous under the silk as they once were in the harness. The only error in the matter is that our good cousins in the great South Continent have not resorted to the well tried Lexington blood of America as a wholesome outcross for the Fisherman, Yattendon and Goldsbrough families of their own harems. There should be a reciprocity. T. B. M.

TURF AND TRACK.

Alf Lakeland has sold all his horses in training.

Dohle has in his string Pilot S., a full brother to Jack.

B. J. Johnson, who paid $10,000 for Ruperta, got a bargain.

McLeod 2:21¼ by Mambrino Blitzen dam by John Dillard is dead.

Wiley Brasfield will handle Bonnie McGregor 2:13½ again this season.

J. H. Goldsmith and E. Odell have purchased Elva Medium, 2:17¼, for $3,000.

Hollis has left the Scoggan stables, Goodsll being now the only jockey engaged.

C. Davids says Nona Y. has gone lame again and had to be turned out of training.

Riley will probably not carry Silk again until fall as he is taking a well earned rest.

Jimmy Goldsmith still in the lead, John E. Turner second, in the list of winning drivers.

The Hearst horses are now all at the Branch except the string under Donathan's charge.

Margaret S , 2:17¼ is now the fastest trotter out of a mare with a record of 2:30 or better.

Secretary Brewster, of Washington Park, Chicago, is among the spectators at Monmouth Park.

The rumor that Electric Bell (Electioneer—Beautiful Bells) had been sold for $50,000 is not based on fact.

Palo Alto is entered in the free-for-all at the Breeder's Meeting, and by then should lower his record again.

Matt Storn's Larghetta and Marigold both earned their first winning brackets at Los Angeles during the past week.

Oro is now running at the West Side Track. Last Tuesday he won a good race, beating several fair performers.

Sam Handley, the Montana trainer, is said to have won $1,500 in the box at Deer Lodge when Don L. got his record.

Alexander Fraser, of Kansas City, purchased of Brook Chavis, the trotting mare, Eva Wilkes, record 2:26½ for $2,500.

Los Angeles won in 1887, 1888 and 1889, $80,000 in stakes and purses. She bids fair to rival Miss Woodford and Firenze.

The report is once more resuscitated that John E. Turner will follow Khan McCarthy's example and join the thoroughbred brigade.

Aleck B 2:29¾, the Electioneer gelding who entered the 2:30 list this year has been sold by Henry Cody to A. E. Atwood Syracuse, N. Y.

E. S. Gardner, the Western track correspondent paid $4000 for the half brother (by Mr. Pickwick) to The Bard at the Fairview sale.

Jim Dustin's last work at the Bay with Lee is said to have been very satisfactory. Dame rumor says: "fourth heat 2:25½; fifth 2:25.

Sam Bryant was pretty cute when the Bryant and Scoggan combination sold out, the latter bought Proctor Knott, Sam bought Come To Taw.

R. S. Veech, Indian Hill, has lost (dead) the ten-year-old broodmare Malaga, by Woodford Mambrino, 2:22½, dam Maud by Alexander's Abdallah.

Col. Bradshaw 2:20¾ has had his name changed to Manning, and under his new name won first money in the 2:20 class at Deer Lodge on the 23rd of July last.

Melton, the English Derby winner in 1836, was sold to the Italian government. It is said he will stand at the government station at Ferrara at $50 a mare.

The dam of Fred Arthur, 2:14¼, has a colt by General Hancock (George Wilkes—Waterwitch). They are both the property of Mr. Duhme's Maryland Stock Farm.

Dowd Williams is doing much better with the Santa Anita stable than his predecessor, Bob Camphell, did. The colored ring will soon have to take him in with them.

The Wabash railroad is said to have paid George Hankins $40,000 damages for the injuries done to his horses in the Warrentown railroad wreck in which Huntress was killed.

Jas. A. Dustin started out this year with a one horse stable. Last Wednesday he sent Lee, who is entered in the 2:27 class to San Jose and on Thursday went down himself.

Dan Honig has added another good performer to his already large string of flyers. He purchased from H. T. Batcheler for $2,200 the b g Mike Watson, 4, by Jack Hardy—Bessie Davis.

Wisdom was sold for £50 ($250) after his racing days were o'er. As the sire of Florence, Veracity, Rightaway and Snrefoot he should pay pretty good interest on the small investment.

Electrician by Electioneer out of Rebecca, dam of Rexford 2:24 by General Benton is in training at Cuba, N. Y. Sam Caton expects to give the six year old a mark close to 2:20 this year.

The water at Monmouth Park is said to be the cause of the sickness of several of the horses there. It is now boiled by most of the trainers previous to use, some also mixing it with oatmeal.

The blk g Black Cloud, 3, by Vanderbilt—Jeanette, the property of the Cedar Grove stables, died Tuesday morning of enteritis. He was valued at $1,000. Black Cloud was a stinee winner.

W. H. Kerr and W. T. Sydner, of North Middletown, have taken the following horses to Cynthiana to be trained: Ethan Wilkes, 2:36¾; Vinnette, 2:29½; Emery, Ethan Wilkes filly and Luby, 2:28.

A. A. Kitzmiller, the well known breeder, is in bad luck. Out of sixty mares bred and in foal, he will have only six fosls, four by Ellerslie Wilkes and one each by Pilot Medium and Robert McGregor.

W. C. France, Highland Stock Farm, has taken his son Albert and Dr. Smith into partnership with him; the latter gentleman has for many years attended to the veterinary department of the farm.

A. M. Singer, a son of the original Singer of the Sewing Machine, is the owner of the well known English racehorse Tyrant for whom he paid $20,000 previous to his winning the gold vase at Ascot.

Governor Hopetown is becoming more popular in Australia since he has shown the Colonials that he is a bold and fearless rider, with a seat and hands as good, if not better, than their best hunting men.

Inez 2:22½ by Sweepstakes 298 dam Dolly Bull by Bertrand grand dam Nancy by American Star 14 died while at exercise on the track at Paris. She was 18 years old and was the property of George Alexander.

Margaret S continued her victorious career, winning the 2:20 class at Buffalo last Wednesday, best time 2:18¾ Cricket, the crack pacer under Andy's care, was beat in the 2:21 pace by Dallas, best time made, 2:13¾.

The Santa Anita Stable upheld the California banner on Tuesday at Saratoga in a royal manner, Sinaloa winning a good race while Los Angeles showed her mettle by defeating Cassius in the mile and a half.

Ed. Corrigan the well known racing owner and proprietor of the West Side Racing Park has been attempting to stop pool selling in Chicago asserting that the magistrates are in the pay of the pool room proprietors.

Raveloe, who last week beat the mile record of Racine, was bought by Mr. Haggin with his dam Illusion, when a few weeks old, at the Winters sale. He was sold as a yearling at the Rancho Del Paso sale in New York.

R. E. Byhee's thoroughbred stallion St. Paul by Alarm, dam Lady Sawyers by Longfellow died last week. Oregon, a five year old horse by Monday from Planetia by Planet is also seriously ill and is hardly expected to recover.

Edward Appel, Rochester, N. Y., was a few days ago the possessor of a grand colt by Bell Boy, 2:19¼, out of Banjo by Onward, 2:25¼, and refused $10,000 for the youngster; it died shortly afterwards of inflammation of the bowels.

J. S. Stoll, Lexington, Ky., has sold to J. H. Davidson, Lexington, the two year old chestnut filly Lady Invercauld who is a full sister to Burlington by Powhattan from imp. Invercauld by St. Alhans from Eleanor by Voltigeur.

Judging from the start made at Ione on Los Angeles, the Appleby string of race horses will have things a good deal their own way until they strike the Palo Alto stable. Odette, Alfarata, Applause and Carmen having all won races this week.

A very good suggestion has been made which should prevent in a great measure the in and out running of several well known horses on the straight tracks. It is that patrol judges be placed at each quarter pole to watch the horses and boys.

B. C. Holly came up on Monday evening from Vallejo and left on Tuesday morning for San Jose. Mr. Holly had with him St. Patrick 2:19½, Pink 2:23½, Flora G 2:29½, the three year old Kafir, Charles Derby and a two year old Steinway filly.

John Green left on Thursday for the Willows with Queen of the West and the pacer Little Hope 2:21¼. The Queen is entered in the 2:30, 2:40 and 3:00 classes through the Northern Circuit, while Little Hope is in the pacing 2:20 class.

The well known broodmare, sister of Mercy, by War Dance, out of Sister of Charity by imp. Knight of St. George, died last week. She was the dam of Tessa K., Pardee, Devotee and others, and died the property of G. W. Long, Louisville.

W. Vioget goes down to San Jose to-day with Luck, a yearling filly by Eros, dam by Nutwood, 2:18¾, grandam Collay (dam of Vanderlynn, 2:21) by Joseph. The high bred youngster is entered in the colt stake, and should give a good account of himself.

It is stated that at Kankakee, after Dickerson drove Fanstino a half in 1:15, $75,000, was offered and refused. Fanstino is the fast Sidney yearling that Mr. Valensin sold to the Waters's Stock Farm last year and who holds the yearling stallion record.

The weights for the Hawkshury Grand Handicap to be run September 6th near Sydney, have been announced. On top is Sir William who is allotted 126 lbs., while Autmns is third on the list with 118 lbs. Both are sons of Rancho Del Paso's Sir Modred.

Duquesne 2:17¾ died at Paris, Kentucky, last week. He was the property of Philip Hacke, New York. Duquesne was a chestnut stallion foaled 1875, by Tippoo Bashaw dam Wild Rose (dam of Nutgall 2:29) by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. He was valued at $10,000.

The Montana millionaire, Marcus Daly, seems to be much more successful on the Western Circuit than with his cracks in the East. Of the four colts he sent to Washington Park, Chicago, Palfiena (Hyder Ali—Pandora) has won several races there and at St. Paul.

Several good horses have died in Montana, some of them owned by the well known turfman H. R. Baker. The Veterinarian calls the disease Purpura hacmorrhagica. The doctor says it is a disease which follows influenza, and in its ripe stage is highly contagious.

Col. Thornton says that Austrian, the Darebin—Bavaria colt which he purchased at last year's Rancho Del Paso sale for $2,550, will never be able to race. Since his accident some time ago he has been unable to stand up straight, and is unable to use his hind leg.

Tom Smith's horse Washington who had been showing great speed and was said to be very dangerous in the 2:30 class has had to be taken out of work owing to an injury. Great sympathy is expressed for Mr. Smith and it is hoped the injury will not be permanent.

The State Board of Agriculture met on Wednesday last and appointed W. H. Coombs official starter during the State Fair. The pool privileges were leased to J. N. Killip & Co., who agreed to pay 65 per cent. of the profits to the society. With two exceptions the races were declared filled.

By Holly says that Pink has almost recovered from her sickness and is jogging along nicely but of course had a set back and is hardly in trim for a hard race. The pacer St. Patrick is in good shape but hardly fit to go a hruising race yet; later on in the season he should obtain a fast record.

Jackson I. Case placed Mary A's name in the table of famous brood mares when he gave Kenneth a record of 2.29¼ at Kankakee, as she is also the dam of Problem, 2:24½, who is, like Kenneth, a son of Kentucky Prince. Mary A. was got by Messenger Duroc, out of a daughter of Hambletonian.

At Deer Lodge, Montana, on July 30th, H. Kirkendall's Erect won the two-year-old race. After losing the first heat in 3:05¾ he took the second and third in 3:07 and 3:00 winning in a jog. Erect is a two-year-old brother to Direct 2:18¼ and cost $5,000 at Mr. Salisbury's last New York sale in March.

Barney Reilly was last week appointed judge at the starting point at Monmouth Park. Reilly is a well known and reliable man, an old trainer, and knows his business. The authorities should, if possible, get some reliable men to act as patrol judges, presuming the accounts received here are correct.

A sensation was created at the Detroit Driving Park, says an exchange, on July 26th, when it was discovered that the Pleasanton Farm's four-year-old filly Cricket, 2:14¾, was not in her stall. She was not found until late in the afternoon, when she was discovered about five miles from the city, and twelve from the track.

Baron Hirsch, the new millionaire racing man in England and France, has purchased in France the three-year-old Fitz Hampton who ran second in the Grand Prix de Paris, price $60,000. The Baron last year bought Vasitss who the Grand Prix and has been a large purchaser at the yearling sales in England this spring.

The Portland City view fall meeting which commences September 9th and the Oregon State Fair commencing September 15th have prospects of highly successful meetings; as most of the Montana, Idaho, Washington, Utah and British Columbia horses will be there with probably some California representatives.

J. B. Haggin purchased four yearlings at the Fairview sale paying $1700 for a half brother (Forester—Bonnie Wood by Bonnie Scotland) to Phœnix; $1200 for a half sister (Miser—Thora by Longfellow) to Viking; $200 for a filly by Forester out of Miss Lizzie and $625 for a filly by Mr. Pickwick out of Countess by Theobald.

Senator Hearst made three purchases at the Fairview yearling sale last week, paying $725 for a colt by Forester, out of Alice Bruce by Fellowcraft; $400 for a filly by Forester, from Etiquette by Enquirer, from Silver Maid by Bonnie Scotland, and $525 for a filly by Muscovy or Mr. Pickwick, out of May Rose by Duke of Montrose.

L. J. Rose's Fairy ran a good second to A. Belmont's Potomac on Tuesday at Monmouth Park. It was no disgrace to the California filly to be beaten by the Belmont colt, who is a royally bred brother to Chesapeake, being by imported St. Blaise out of Susquehanna, who is an own sister to Sensation, Stratford and Onondaga.

Orion, the two year old who won the Prince of Wales Stakes at Goodwood on July 31st., is the first meritorious winner of a race by a Derby winner and out of a Derby winner. Orion is by Bend Or out of Shotover. Eleanor and Blink Bonny never produced anything to a Derby winner. The odds were 5 to 2 against Orion.

Charley Thornquest left on Thursday for the Willows with Cupid a four year old brother to Adonis, 2:11½, and Gerster, a black pacing mare by Washington, dam by Hooper's Hambletonian. Lije Downer went up on the same car with Haverly 2:25. The trio will take in the Northern Circuit, Willows, Red Bluff, Chico and Marysville.

The winners of all three races at Petaluma last week were driven by Lee Shaner. The two year old stakes was hardly a race, so easily did A. Whitney's Anna Belle by Dawn win in straight heats, Time. 2:59, 2:56. The yearling stake was won by Nonpariel by Dawn with Payne Shafter's Rustic King by Rustic second. Time, 1:26½, 1:26.

Matt Byrnes, who trains the horses belonging to J. B. Haggin and Marcus Daly, has sold a yearling brother to Rancocas to George Walbaum for $1,200. Mr. Walbaum bought the colt, which recently arrived from the Kentucky farm, without seeing him, solely because his brother is such a good one. The colt is by Iroquois out of Ontario.

An effort is being made to make a match between the King of pacers Johnston 2:06¼ and Brown Hal 2:12½. If they would make it four handed and let in Adonis 2:11½ and Hal Pointer 2:13, or possibly five cornered, and take in Roy Wilkes 2:12¾, what a grand race it would be with all five sound and in trim. It would result in the survival of the fittest and gamest.

A stallion representative stake for foals of 1890, to be trotted at Lexington, Ky., in 1893, guaranteed to be worth $10,000 to the winner, was decided upon Monday by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeding Association. They also decided to open a stake for foals of 1891, to be trotted either in 1893 or 1894, and to be worth $25,000. This is the largest stake ever offered for trotters in this country.

W. J. Rogers is said to be so annoyed at the comments of the press on the running of the horses trained by him, Reporter in particnlar, that he will give up the stable at the end of the season and retire into private life at his home, Denver, Colorado.

The concensus of opinion in Australia seems to he that the veteran Wilson again holds the key to the Melbourne Cnp. With five entries it is hard to tell which is the best, bnt Lonsdale, 123 pounds, seems to be the choice; the other four are Magic Circle, 101 lbs , Chintz, 116 lbs , Swing, 106 lbs., and The Serf, 104 lbs. Carbine is top weight with 145 ponnds, while ninth on the list is Sir Modred's successful son Sir William.

Egbert, by Hambletonian 10, was sold October 11, 1887, for $3,425 to H. J. Hendrix, of Decatnr, Mich, and Dauntless, by Hambletonian 10 for $350. Since this sale Egbert has become one of Hambletonian's greatest sons, he having 17 trotters and 6 pacers in the charmed circle, while Dauntless has 10 trotters and 2 pacers. Egbert is only 15 years old, and the way stallions sell he would probably bring $30,000 to $40,000 at auction.

Lloyd's Evening Post, January 29, 1773, contains the following interesting item about O'Kelly and Eclipse. "The owner of the famous rnnning horse Eclipse having a few days since a proposal made to him for purchasing it, mentioned the following terms £20,000 ($100,000) down, an annuity of £500 during his life and three brood mares." Yet people say horses are increasing in value.

L. J. Rose left New York last Tuesday evening for California, and his horses in training were put on the cars on Wednesday night. The stable will probably be seen at the State Fair meeting at Sacramento. Mr. Rose will make another effort next year, when he should have more success, as he will have some three-year-olds in his string, and a lot of well bred two-year-olds.

Before the races began at Monmouth Park one day there was a little excitement under the stand. Mr. Caldwell accused Mr. Morton, who writes for the Evening Post, with criticising him too harshly, and that if he did not stop he (Caldwell) would make him, even if he had to use physical force. After calling Mr. Morton some harsh names the starter walked away, while Mr. Morton went before the committee and preferred charges against Mr. Caldwell.

G. A. Doherty is putting Victor in trim for the circuit. The brown son of Echo is said by a recent visitor to the Indian Valley Stock Farm to be in great trim and as tough and hard as when he first appeared among the Cracks in the California Circuit. Mr. Doherty is training among others the speedy mare Sparkle whose foal by Victor is already weaned. Mountain King will probably not be trotted this year although the two year old is showing great speed.

In the Queen's Bench on July 15th, the trustees of Ernest Benzon, the "Jubilee Plunger," applied for an order to restrain an officer in the 11th Hussars from leaving the country pending certain law proceedings. The trustees said the officer, who had been ordered to Natal, had an Irish judgment against him obtained by Mr. Benzon for £13,716, and £10 costs. Their lordship refused to make the order on the ground that they had no power.

Ariel Lathrop, Esq., received four telegrams from Marvin while the Jack-Palo Alto race was in progress. Marvin has among his many good traits one of not being too verbose. His expressive telegrams were:

No. 1—First heat, Jack time, 2:15½.
No. 2—Second heat, Palo Alto time, 2:13½.
No. 3—Third heat, Jack time 2:15.
No. 4—Fourth heat, Jack time, 2:16.

Compsring the times on the straight and elliptical course the Sporting World of Augnst 1st says: Cbaos won at a mile over the circular course yesterday in 1:42¾, Taviston second. Raveloe also won a rsce at a mile, but over the straightaway, in 1:39¾, Druidess second. Now there is a difference of three seconds and a half, but does any man suppose that Raveloe and Druidess are the better horses? Put the four of them in a race and how would the betting be?

The Hungarians have purchssed Charibert for $40,000. Charibert was foaled in 1876 and won 19 races, including the Chsmpagne Stakes at Doncaster in 1878, and the Two Thonsand Gnineas in 1879. He was bred by Lord Falmonth, sire Thormanby, dam Gertrude by Saunterer from Queen Bertha (dam of Spinaway and Wheel of Fortnne), by Kingston. Charibert was purchased for $10,000 by Chas. Winteringham in 1881, and has since been in the stud at Croft Stud Farm, Darlington, from where he was sold to the Hungarians.

The slipping bridle nuisance roused the ire of the Monmouth Park officisls, and to check it, a rule was promulgated making a jockey lisble to expnlsion if he changed his horse's bridle between the time of dismounting and weighing in. No sooner had tbe announcement been made than Newmeyer, who rode Vocaletta in the Colleen Stakes, violated the rule and was promptly ruled off. He was reinstated, however, later in the afternoon, when Mr. Bruce showed to Mr. Withers that the boy's fanlt arose from his total ignorance of the new rule.

Mr. Brodrick Cloete's nine yearlings made a remarkable average at Newmarket, nine of them selling for 10340 guineas, which is an average of $5745. Tbere were three by Paradox, Wheatsheaf's yearling bringing $10,500, and the filly out of Cherry selling for $8,250; two by Galopin; one each by Pell Mell and Bend Or the latter out of Lady Emily fetched $1,550; and two by Springfield, Bloodstone's yearling by him fetching $15,500. Baron Hirsch bought the latter. Mr. Cloete made his debut on the turf with Paradox—the Casuistry colt, in 1884. He has a large cattle ranch in Old Mexico where he spends a good deal of his time.

An Independance, Iowa, special says: "C. W. Williams has returned from Detroit, where he made arrangements for Axtell to attend the August meeting. Axtell will be here dnring the entire week, and will give one or more exhibitions. Negotations are in progress to get Sunol for the same meeting. Johnston, the pacer, will be here and contest in a rsce with his rival, Brown Hal. Charles Thompson, who has been training several horses at Rush park for past week, sent Manager two years, by Nutwood, dam by George Wilkes, in 2:23. Regon and Nox three-year-olds, both by Nutwood, were each sent in 2:29½. Mary Marshall made her best time to-day, 2:19½."

The Sacramento Record Union says: "The California horse Alfred S., by Haggin's Echo, rather surprised the Easterners last Thnrsday by winning the race for tbe 2:17 class at Cleveland. He sold for a song in the pools, and Hickok probably made a 'killing'". The Record is slightly incorrect, for, as any horseman knows Alfred S. is by Elmo 891, instead of Echo. And when Hickok makes a killing, his horse usually does not sell for a song.

A member of John Corletts erndite staff has the following: "To all whom it may concern. With regard to the pronnnciation of Mr. Milner's Antibes. Such is human perversity that folks insist on going out of their way and wasting breath to make three syllables of this name and call it An ti-hees. Antibes (pronounced Anteeb), is a village near Cannes, very much of tbe same type as St. Marguerite, both within easy distance of the Duchess of Montrose's villa."

Antibes is a four year old sister to that grand mare Sea Breeze by Isonomy out of St. Marguerite by Hermit ont of Devotion by Stockwell.

"Is it altogether fair that Mr. Caldwell's every word should be committed to pnblicity throngh the press? says the Sportsman. Not because he is Mr. Caldwell, hut because any man filling so arduons a position as that of starter cannot always and forever be expected to observe drawing-room etiquette in dealing with refractory jockeys. There has of late appeared a tendency to belittle Mr. Caldwell, which is as ungenerous as it is undeserved." Several of onr world-be starters on the coast have used language which would scarcely be suitable at an afternoon tea, hut there has been no visible improvement in their work, despite their landable (?) efforts to bring tbemselves down to the level of a stable boy.

Tallevera 2:30 by Happy Medium, owned by Brandon, of Nebraska, and Joe Eastman 2:29½ by Robert McGregor 2:17½, owned in Illinois, both stallions, were killed on Thursday, July 31st, by lightning in the stable near the race track. The horses were in Gee Grimes' string and were valuable young horses, each being valued at from $6,000 to $8,000. The lightning entered through the openings in the barn wall near the stalls occupied by these two horses and killed them instantly but did not injure the other horses, although the man who attended the stable was considerably shocked. An oak tree standing near the stable was badly shorn of limbs and bark.

Ed Tipton last week obtained an option from Smith McCann on his half interest in Red Wilkes. The price for the said interest to he $30,000 and a half of this year's earnings. A few days afterwards Mr. Tipton acting for Mr. France paid Mr. McCann $30,000 for the stallion and Red Wilkes now is the sole property of W. C. France. This year's earnings are expected to be abont $20,000 which makes Red Wilkes' value $80,000. The sensational stallion Red Wilkes 17496 by George Wilkes 519, dam Queen Dido by Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Red Jacket, etc. He is already the sire of 27 in the thirty list, including Prince Wilkes 2:14¾.

In the issue of July 19th, mention was made in Turf and Track of several races at the Bay District track the Saturday previous. Among the competitors in one of the events, Sam Gamble entered Wamba by Electioneer, out of Winona by Almont 33, from Dolly, the dam of Director, 2:17, Thorndale, 2:22¼ Onward 2:25¼, and Czarina 2:27½. The mare's name shond have been Winoa, who is an eight-year-old sister to Wamba, and is owned as stated by Mr Outhwaite at Los Angeles. The mistake was not ours, however, as the mare was announced from tbe stand as Wamba, and on the pool board was written Wamba. Gamble gave me the pedigree on the track that afternoon, but probably had not then noticed the difference of name, and when he did he neglected to have it changed.

Stephen A. Douglass, one of the greatest horses ever owned in Western New York, died at Forestville, Chautauqua Co., the other day, aged 29 years. He was bred by W. E. Arnott. Orange County, N. Y., sired by Hambletonian 10, dam said to he by Abdallah 1. H. Swift and sons, of Forestville, purchased the horse many years ago, and he made the whole family rich. Stephen A. Douglass, with very limited opportnnities—five out of his seven 2:30 performers being out of untraced dams—sired Dave Young, 2:23, Frank K , 2:28, Handicap, 2:22, Idol, 2:23, Nelly R., 2:22¼, Versailles Girl, 2:25½, Western, 2:30, and the dams of Adele Clark, 2:25¼, Frank B , 2:25½, Harry Hoyer, 2:28, Heresy, 2:27, and others to be heard from.

On the 24th at Deer Lodge Montana, in the 2:40 class, the bay stallion Don L. by Fieldmont out of Nutmeg Maid (dam of Ida D. 2:27½) by Thomas Jefferson 304, obtained a record of 2:30. He is the first Fieldmont to enter the list, though Juliette by Fieldmont, out of Crop Ear by Pilot Duroc is knocking hard at the door with a record of 2:31½ made in the fifth heat. Fieldmont 5050, is a full brother to Almont Jr. 2:26, sire of Belle Hamlin and is by Almont, 33, dam Maggie Gaines by Blood's Black Hawk. He was sold some time since to the Jewett Stock Farm, Buffalo N. Y., by S. E. Larabie, of Deer Lodge, and the late owner presented Sam Handley, who trained and drove Don L , with a hundred dollar bill for putting the first of his get in the 2:30 list.

The directors of the Shasta County fair association held a meeting in Secretary Hodson's office on the 29th of July. C. J. Becker, J. E Reynolds, A. C. Brigman, A. F. Ross, L. F. Basset and C. K. McElwee being present. A. C. Brigman was elected President; T. W. H. Shanahan, Vice-President; H. R. Hodson, Secretary; Fred Grotefend, Treasnrer. McElwee and Secretary Hodson were appointed a committee to solicit funds for special prizes. The premium list of last year was adopted after several changes and additions were made. Many of the prizes were raised to double what they were last year. One thousand copies of the premium list were ordered printed. The President and Secretary were instructed to make a list of honorsble members. Brigman, Basset and McElwee were appointed a committee on finance.

Tbe Queen's yearlings at Hampton Court were sold the other day for upwards of £15,000. It would be interesting, says London Truth, to learn where the money goes to, because there is a vote every year on acconnt of repairs or additions to the stud-house and buildings, and if tbe profits of the concern are so large, it seems to me to be quite monstrous that the country should he made to pay anything towards the maintainance of the establishment. Mr. Labonchere, (Editor of Truth) also pleasantly suggests that tbe Ascot accounts will be worthy of investigation. The profits of the meeting are prodigious, and they increase every year. People may, therefore, well ask where on earth all tbe money goes to? It has recently been stated that in reality the whole cost of the Buckhounds is paid out of the Ascot revenne.

It seems that the American Express Company have peculiar restrictions in shipping horses, for the Spirit of the Hub says: The reason why George Leavitt did not ship Early Bird and Fanny Swope to Pittsburg was this: He went to the American Express Company and they very courteously, with all of their co-operative coolness, told him they would take his horses for so much, but would not allow a man to accompany them in the car. "I will pay the men's fare," said Leavitt. "We cannot take them. They can blanket the horses and put them in the car, and then must get out; our rules do not permit us to allow men to travel in the same car with horses." "Well, sir, I have got a good code of rules in my stable, and one is my men accompany my horses. We won't ship over your line; good day, sir." Leavitt came back to Mystic, started the mare Fanny Swope, and won. Another of his rules is win when you can.

Mr. Dick Charteris, says the "Hawk," who happened to meet the somewhat astute Mr. "Bunny" Leigh at a ball, commenced disparaging the latter's horses in training, which was naturally rather a sore subject. After some preliminary pleasantries, Mr. Charteris elected to lay £8,000 to £100 against The Deemster, Mr. Leigh's crack two-year-old, for next year's Derby, which was readily accepted. This circumstance happened, of course, before the youngster's appearance at Ascot, after which the facetious layer, perceiving that the laugh was decidedly on the other side, approached Mr. Leigh, saying, "Of course, the whole thing was a joke, and that it was no bet." Unfortunately for him, Mr. Leigh did not see it in the same light, and on the matter being referred to the Committee of the Newmarket Rooms, they also decided the bet must stand, and Mr. Charteris hardly thinks the joke as good as it might have been.

Henry Chaplin, Esq , the proprietor of the Blankney Stud Farm, Lincolnshire, England, and owner of the defunct Hermit, has replaced his phenomenal sire (Hermit) by Friar's Balsam, a five year old son of Hermit and Flower of Dorset. The Friar was, as a two year old, the best in England, winning, among other races, in 1887 the Middle Park Plate, which is the crack two year old race. His mouth troubled him since, and he was never in his best form. He was owned by Sir Frederick Johnstone and Lord Alington until Mr. Chaplin purchased the latter's interest for $10.000, and as the property of Sir Frederick and Mr. Chaplin he will stand at the latter gentleman's renowned Blankney Stud. His book is already full for 1891 at $500 a mare. On the same Stud Farm is the celebrated Galopin (Vedette—Flying Duchess by Flying Dutchman), sire of, among many other cracks, St. Simon, Galliard, Corrie Roy, Modwena and others. Galopin, last season, took 26 public mares at $900 each, besides five of Mr. Chaplin's; his book is full for 1891 at $1,000 each, and there are only half a dozen vacancies in the 1892 book.

Quite an interesting gathering of horsemen were at the Oakland Trotting Park last Saturday to witness the races of the Gentleman's Driving Association. One of the features of the afternoon was the bulletin board which gave each heat of the Palo Alto—Jack race. After the last heat the veteran turfman and editor, Joseph Cairn Simpson, Dr. Lathom, Irving Ayres, John Rowan and A. L. Hinds were found discussing the race. All were agreed that it was a grand race for both horses, and that an average of 2:15 for four heats reflected unequalled honor on both victor and vanqnished, especially when the latter had the fastest heat, 2:13½, to his credit. Mr. Simpson thought that the stallion must be a little off color or would have gone a shade faster. Mr. Ayres did not think he could have been beaten even by Jack. Mr. Hinds said the average time of the heats was too good for Palo Alto while Dr. Lathom said the pace was too good for Palo Alto and he had never expected such a fast race.

George H. Clay, Balgowan Stud, Lexington, Ky., has sold to T. C. McDowell, "Ashland Stud," same place, the following valuable brood mares:

Peg Woffington, bay, foaled 1885, by Longfellow, dam Ballet (dam of Balancer, Blue Grass Belle, Modesty and Busteed) by Planet, out of Balloon (dam of Revolver, The Banshee, True Blue, etc.), by imp Yorkshire. She has been stinted to Macduff.

Goldie Cad, bay, foaled 1885, by Longfellow, dam Cicily Bowling by Tom Bowling out of imported Cicily Jopson (dam of Waverly, Katrine, Phœbe Mayflower, Emma Manley, etc), by Weatherbit. She has been stinted to imported King Galop.

Imported Gardenia, chestnut, foaled 1879, imported in 1886, by Distin, dam Division by Dalesman, out of a mare by Lord of the Isles. She has also been stinted to King Galop.

W. Lakeland raced Peg as a two, three and four-year-old. As a two she won three races ont of four; at three she won four races and as a four year-old one.

If there is any man in the trotting horse business that can say more in less words than John Turner we want to know him, says the American Sportsman. The wily general's Irish wit bubbles over when he feels good and has a queer significance when fortune fails to smile on the green cap. Three years ago a party was coming from Springfield after Bessie had defeated Spofford in the champion stopping race of the year. They were counting up their loses and tried to get in a word with Turner, who was not in a very communicative mood. At last he looked across the aisle and summing the whole situation into one sentence, said: "This has been a very severe week." Another day at Hartford he was asked if Judge Davis, who he always drove with a kicking strap, was troubled with a little lightness behind or showed a desire to shove him off the sulky seat. "Well, I do not propose to let him," was the non-committal reply.

Columns could be written on how he has tried not to compromise the judge when he has horses in races, hnt the tiger was round at Washington last spring when he was asked to drive Suisun out. Few can remember, however, when Turner was ever taken out in a race, as he never puts a nickel on a horse when making such drives, still a few plunge on him. He will also on such occasions make an honest effort to win when the judges insist on him coming up at the finish. There is only one Turner and his methods would puzzle a philosopher, bnt there are no kinks in any of his statements when anyone that has a liking for asks for information respecting anything except a horse's work or his line of battle in a race. Tuesday afternoon Dick Smith almost banished the smile from his face, but he was soon as chipper as ever and said, when commenting on the surroundings: "If Sunol ever beats the time of Maud S. it will be on just such a day as this and on this track " While Marvin may he the best judge of the accuracy of this statement, it has weight, coming from a man who has rubbed hubs with the best on every important track in the country in the last thirty years.

Our Australian Letter.

SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES, July 9, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Drought is looked upon as the curse of Australia, but for the past six months the New South Wales people have had no cause for complaint in this respect, as may be judged from the fact that the Sydney Observatory Officials have registered no less than five feet of rain, the greatest quantity which has fallen during a like period in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant." As may be supposed, such a phenomenal fall of rain has had no small effect upon racing in and about Sydney, as a meeting is put down for pretty well every Saturday, and very often a couple of days' sport are run off during the week, so that when a meeting has to be postponed on account of a wet day, it is found very hard to find a future date which has not been apportioned to another club.

On June 14th the Australian Jockey Club had their winter meeting at Randwick, and it was in the Steeplechase that the biggest bit of excitement of the day was found. Englishmen and Americans invariably show surprise at the stiff fences at which Australians rush their horses, and even "Pendragon" of the London Referee, ever ready to laugh down anything Australian, had to confess that he never saw desperate steeplechasing until he visited the Antipodes. However, the race under notice brought forth perhaps the most desperate piece of riding yet seen in the land of desperate riders. Rossiter, with 9 st. 7 lb., and Native, with 12st., 3lb. in the saddle, made a race of it from the jump. At seven furlongs the pair were neck and neck, their riders rushing them at the jumps as if they were brush hurdles instead of stiff post and rail fences, the onlookers every moment expecting to see one or the other come down, but they both cleared their obstacles like birds until the weight told on Native at a couple of miles and he fell back beaten, leaving Rossiter to finish an easy winner.

Bushman started favorite for the event, and for the third time put his backers "in the soup," as the noble army of sportsmen now love to term it. On the first occasion the public supported him he was winning in a canter, when his jockey ran onto the wrong course and gave his chance away, to the horror of the "punters" and the Children of Israel who ran the "books." On his next trial the same jockey deliberately fell off him at a jump, and at the third time of asking Bushman fell himself. However, the public will no doubt get tired of backing Bushman in time, and then we may expect to see him win a race. The principal event on the flat, the Winter Stakes, was won by a filly named Muriel by Kingsborough from Washed Ashore, who was never thought of in the betting, notwithstanding the fact that she won the same race at last years' meeting, and strange to say May Queen followed her home on both occasions. The issue of the weight for the Melbourne Cup, the event of the Australian Sporting World, has of course raised a flutter of excitement in racing circles. The Moari Giant Carbine heads the list with 10 stone 5 pounds, just 14 pounds more than weight for age. Melos comes next with 9 stone 7 pounds, and is perhaps the hardest used horse in the race. Last year Carbine ran second to Bravo and defeated Melos by a neck, Carbine carrying 16 pounds more than Melos, and as Carbine has since defeated Melos every time they have met, it is hard to say why the handicapper should this year have allotted Melos only 12 pounds less than the Champion.

Of the eight horses at the head of the list who are weighted at nine stone and over, no less than five hail from New Zealand, which will show you Americans how highly the New Zealanders are rated in Australia. The five are Carbine, Lochiel, Tirailleur, Manton and Cuirassier. The Sir Modred colt Sir William is weighted at 8st 11lb, 3lb less than weight for age, but I think the import quite sufficient to shut him out of the race. The world has seen some strange strikes of late years, but Australia is responsible for the most extraordinary strike of them all, a Bookmakers strike. The Canterbury Park Race Course is owned by a proprietory Club who levied a charge of £6 6s 0d per annum on all registered bookmakers betting in the Saddling Paddocks. This the Bookmakers refused to do, and gave notice to the Club that unless the charge was reduced they would not bet on the Company's Course. However, the Club were equal to the occasion, and at their race meeting yesterday allowed several well known small bookmakers, who had previously done business with the small fry outside the paddock, to ply their vocation inside the inclosure. The Secretary of the Canterbury Club published all the correspondence on the subject in the local press, and when too late found out that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread," as one of the principal morning papers this morning has a leader on the farce of the law, which in its vindication now and then pounces upon and fines heavily some tobacconist running a small totalisator, whilst it ignores a club which abrogates to itself the right to sell a man, a horse to gamble on their premises. During the Winter months there is not much doing in the racing line, so I will take the opportunity of letting you have a fair and impartial account of the doings of your man O'Connor in connection with his late race, or rather races, with Stansbury.

The races proper require no description, as from the dip of the sculls O'Connor never had a show, and I cannot believe that the man who defeated Teemer, Gandaur, and others, ever showed us his true form out here. For one thing his work was much raised as soon as he commenced to row on the Parramatta River, and the fact of a man who had rowed all his life on certain work, starting just before a big race to row on work raised some inches, must in my mind have made some difference.

In the first race, before the men had gone a few hundred yards, Stansbury bored O'Connor into the shore, but it could not be seen whether the boats actually touched. O'Connor claimed the foul, and it was a moot point as to whether O'Connor tried to win after the foul. The umpire decided in favor of Stansbury, as he did not consider, even allowing a touch took place, that it in any way affected the result of the race. O'Connor notified the stakeholder not to pay over the stakes to Stansbury, and as Stansbury could not obtain the stakes any other way, he agreed to row the race over again. This was done, on a day with the water like a mill-pond, and Stansbury won fairly and squarely, O'Connor acknowledging he had met a better man than himself.

The notice of O'Connor not to pay over the stakes, has raised a very ugly question, as it shows that the signed "articles" of a race are not worth the paper they are written on, as the law does not recognize a wager however bound up in writing, so that all umpires and agreements to the contrary notwithstanding, all a dissatisfied beaten man has to do is to tell the stakeholder not to pay, and pay he does at a peril which the stakeholder does not care to undertake. However, O'Connor has since taken his grief like a man, and as in the case of Haulan when out here, he receives a deal more attention than our own victorious scullers.

Dehorning in Great Britain.

There has been a lively controversy for some time between those who are in favor of removing the horns of cattle and those who are opposed to it, the latter assert that it is unnecessary cruelty to animals and have several times brought the matter before the law courts. Referring to several cases brought before British courts of law The North British Agriculturist publishes the following editorial on the subject:

The controversial blizzard in regard to the legality and expediency of dehorning is again upon us. The appeal from the Sheriff's decision in the Scotch test case tried at Haddington will be heard in the Court of Sessions on Monday first, and the first stage of the test case raised in Ireland was fought out at Kells last week. In this Irish case all the evidence on which the Crown sought to establish the case against the practice was limited to that of "expert witnesses." In other words, all the witnesses examined for the prosecution were either professors or practitioners of veterinary science, not one of whom had ever fed a courtful of horned Irish cattle all his days. Not a single stock owner was examined by way of attempting to prove that these sentimental theories of the "expert" theorists would hold good in the feeding of horned Irish cattle in courts, which is admittedly the best plan of wintering cattle that are to be put to the pastures. Most of the "expert witnesses" who can always be relied on to give evidence in such a prosecution, were forward at Kells, as they also were at Haddington. Some of the experts examined at Haddington were not asked to give evidence at Kells, however. Professor McCall, the President of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, proved rather a candid witness for the prosecution in the Scotch case. While disapproving of close-borning, he frankly admitted that dehorning was much less painful than castration, which was an operation that was warranted on the ground of expediency; and he also indicated a decided objection to having farmers harassed by prosecution when they were only taking such steps as they honestly believed to be necessary to prevent their cattle from being tortured and destroyed by goring. It was no wonder, therefore, that the President of the veterinary profession was omitted from the list of witnesses cited for the prosecution. The other expert who testified at Haddington that the docking of horses' tails was frequently necessary, but that the pain of that operation could not be great as the tail was so far from the head, was also wisely left in his laboratory at Grassmarket.

As is almost invariably the case in such prosecution, Prof. Wallay was put forward as the leading witness. The Professor restated his old contention as to "knobbing" being sufficient to prevent goring. That is true enough, of course, but knobbing does not cow the bullying spirit of the bully, and he can do terrible mischief by bruising though his horns be knobbed, just as the brutal boxer, even though his hands be encased in gloves, can give a terrible mauling to a weaker opponent. The Professor also insisted that dehorning was frequently done to conceal the animal's coarseness of breeding, as a coarse, strong horn was one indication of coarse breeding. How the Professor should identify himself with such an absurd contention cannot well be explained. The coarse horn is undoubtedly one indication of coarseness of breeding, as everybody knows; but coarseness of breeding reveals itself in every line of the animal's body, and no one who knows his business would be deceived by the mere removal of one indication of coarse breeding when so many others are invariably present. The Professor also insisted that breeders should use polled bulls as 85 per cent. of their progeny were without horns, though he admitted, in the same breath, that polled Angus cattle were not so good for dairy purposes. The other witnesses for the prosecution followed in the same strain. Prof. Woodruffe Hill held that it was unnecessary to dock a horse, as he condemned all sorts of mutilation. If the Professor had to work a long-tailed horse in a coup-cart he would very soon change his opinion, or else he would lose a mighty lot of horses from injuries to their tails. As to docking and dehorning being a mutilation the same might be said of castration, which is on strictly the same level. Not any of these measures can be held to be absolutely necessary, but they are all warranted on the ground of expediency. The other witnesses for the prosecution were also agreed in holding that breeders should use polled bulls. It is hardly to be expected, however, that breeders will submit to be dictated to by erudite theorists as to what class of cattle they shall keep or breed.

The defense in this case was effective and well conducted. Expert witnesses of the highest standing were present to testify that the pain of dehorning was only momentary, that knobbing was wholly ineffective, and that the momentary pain caused by dehorning was infinitesimal compared with the suffering caused by goring when a lot of Irish cattle were being fed in courts together. A number of extensive dealers and stock-feeders were also present to prove from their own practical experience that it was the quintessence of cruelty to attempt to feed a lot of Irish cattle in courts without their being dehorned, as the stronger animals gored and bruised the weaker and sometimes killed them altogether. A strong point was scored, too, by Mr. Greaves, an ex-President of the Royal College of Surgeons and Consulting Physician to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, declaring that he had been forced to the conclusion that dehorning was a necessary, and even a humane operation if rightly performed. As in the Haddington case, too, Prof. McFadyean of the Royal (Dick's) College was present to confute the views put forward by his father-in-law, Principal Walley, and to testify in the strongest terms that the advantages of dehorning far more than counterbalance the pain.

After the case had been fully heard the Bench decided that the prosecution had failed to establish their case. An appeal was at once intimated, so that the threshed straw will again be threshed out in the Queen's Bench. There are, however, one or two facts brought out by this case which deserve to be prominently noted. In the first place, if the legal advisers of the Crown are so anxious to get the law as regards dehorning made the same in the three kingdoms, they might do well to try the effects of another prosecution in England, as the defense in the Norfolk case was badly handled, and a different trial would almost certainly lead to different results. In the second place, if the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have any faith in their own veterinary advisers, who have been recommending so strongly that Irish breeders should use polled bulls for dehorning purposes, they might give some evidence of that faith by sending a lot of polled bulls across to Ireland for the use of the struggling breeders there. And in the third place, those good souls who object so strongly to any wanton cruelty being caused to the brute creation might do a great work for good if they took up the case of the cross-channel traffic in Irish cattle, the horrors of which cause the pain of deborning to sink into utter insignificance. When the horrors of this traffic are mitigated as far as they may be, and when the wanton cruelty practiced in fox-hunting and hare-coursing are put a stop to, they might have some excuse for meddling with dehorning, but not till then.

The Seven Day Record Broken.

Editor Register:—I enclose seven day milk and butter record recently made by Parthenea, 9592 HHB, a member of Maplewood herd, which is I believe the largest ever made for that period.

Commencing June 11, her production was as follows:

June 1890.	Lbs. milk.		Lbs. butter.
11,	80 lbs.	8 oz.	5 lbs.	12½ ozs.
12,	77	6	4	15½
13,	75	7	5	11½
14,	79	3	5	13
15,	81		5
16,	79	2	5	8
17,	75	9	5	12
Total,	548 lbs.	3 ozs.	38 lbs.	8½ ozs.

Average number pounds of milk per day 78 and 5 ozs.

Average number pounds butter per day, 5 and 8 1-14 ozs.

Average number pounds milk required for one pound of butter, 14 23.

The butter was of very good grain and quality.

Parthenea is six years old and dropped her last calf April 21, 1890, and on May 15 we began increasing her feed.

During the test she received on an average 27 lbs. of ground feed, consisting of oats, bran, linseed oil, meal and corn. She was allowed to run in pasture during the days with other members of the herd and kept in stall nights.

This is not Parthenea's first appearance before the public. She was imported by Mr. Stevens in 1884 as a calf, and has been a member of his show herds nearly every season since that date. She was a member of the First Prize herd at the Madison Square Garden Cattle Show in 1887 and gave over 70 lbs. of milk daily during the 10 days of the great exhibition, in public, and was but three years old at that time.

Parthenea was entered in the public Butter tests of 1889 and won First Premium at Detroit Exposition last September for largest yield of butter in 24 hours—and the fact that she did so more than six months after calving speaks well for her great staying qualities.

Her last record is, we think, without exception, the largest ever made and again calls attention to the superior qualities of Holstein-Friesian cattle and to members of Maplewood herd which contains many animals closely related to this noted cow.

It will be remembered that the Holstein Friesian Association's National Prize of Gold Medals and cash for largest milk record made at any Fair or Exposition during 1889 was won by Lutscke, a member of Maplewood herd, also both first and second prizes offered for largest butter record went to Alberta Abbekerk also members of Maplewood herd—Alberta Abbekerk is a half sister to Parthenea and the quantities made by these cows are the largest ever made in a public test. All of the best and leading breeds were well represented in the competition and the number of contestants numbered hundreds in the different States.

E. T. Gay, Manager.
Maplewood Stock Farm, Attica, N. Y.

Making editorial mention of the phenomenal record reported above the Holstein-Friesian Register says:

The butter test of Parthenea, 38 lbs. 8½ ozs. in seven days, an imported six-year-old cow, is for the first time made public through our columns. This is a large advance over preceding records. Previous tests have reached their highest point in the record of Lady Baker of 34 lbs. 6½ ozs., which is now exceeded by 4 lbs. 2½ ozs. The richness of Parthenea's milk is remarkable for any breed, but 14.23 lbs. being required for a pound of butter, and the average daily yield of milk, 78 lbs. 5 ozs., was large. This animal also unites a fine individuality with her producing qualities and has been a successful show cow.

American-Bred Cattle.

During the period of dullness now prevailing in the cattle interests, no one need fear any retrograde movement in the quality of the improved breeds. The time has long since passed when better cattle could be found upon the other side of the sea than upon this. There were periods prior to 1820, "during the thirties and during the fifties," when it was unquestionably necessary to import foreign-bred cattle; and enterprise was abroad in the land during those periods.

The improvement of this branch of our farm stock was a thing of very slow growth, and it seemed to have been necessary that a few men, possessing superlative taste and great genius, should rise up and work to certain much-needed standards. There were places to be filled in the interests of the Longhorns, the Herefords, the Devons and the Shorthorns, and the men who filled these places and gave these breeds character, can very nearly be counted upon the fingers of one hand.

They had the material on the other side of the water in the lifetime of those men out of which to establish comeliness and thick flesh, where before these qualities were unknown. We did not have the material on this side of the water out of which this could be done, hence the only hope of securing that we now have was to import. This was done shyly and without proper knowledge at the outset—notably in 1817. More confidence and improved knowledge existed in the thirties, and still greator knowledge in the fifties. So the new era that opened up after the war found plenty of men competent to breed the highest style of show cattle from American bred herds. They were equally competent to import, if by so doing they saw a way to better their home-bred stock.

But the points we wish to make at this time are: (1) that there has never been a time when a select herd, whether large or small, could be put upon the farm so cheaply as now. And (2) no one need cast a longing eye toward any foreign country, thinking to procure anything abroad having better characteristics than are found in plenty of herds in this country.

If any are ambitious to secure the eclat that follows an imported beast, wherever it may go, by spending the money and taking the risk, this ambition may be gratified. Yet, it should be remembered that there is not in late years, near the prestige attending imported cattle as formerly. In fact, an imported cow must be fully the equal of a home-bred of like breeding and characteristics, else the home-bred cow will command the better price.

There is no sound reason why cattle, American bred and reared, may not, in every respect, be fully the equal of those bred and reared in a foreign clime. No English breeder has, so far as we call to mind, raised a question as to the quality and health of our cattle being the equal of any. It is generally believed that the damp climate of England gives to English cattle, or to many of them, the heavy mossy coat so commonly seen in that country. But this heavy coat brings no money in the sale ring, hence has only nominal value.

Regarding the portions of the United States that are credited with growing the best cattle, it is well known the Kentuckians long claimed that their state was better adapted to growing cattle than any other. It has, however, long since been shown that the western states will maintain as fine cattle as grow in the blue-grass regions, or anywhere. The improved breeds, fortunately are not indigenous to any particular locality.

Fortunately it is not with improved cattle as with some varieties of improved vegetation, rendered so sensitive by cultivation that slight changes in locality may take away all thrift, and in a brief time change all the better characteristics. Cattle of any breed can be made good by good feed and fair protection in inclement weather. Deny these, and the best show cattle of any state will dwindle and lose value.—Prairie Farmer.

Montana Stock Laws.

Drovers must not drive any stock off the range or elsewhere, nor permit them to be driven off. To do so is a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment.

It is a misdemeanor for the owner to permit any unaltered horse, mule or jack to run on the range. Any one may take up such animals, and if unclaimed in five days, may castrate them.

No one shall skin an animal found dead on the range without the consent of the owner, except when cattle are killed by railroads their employes may skin them.

All cattle and sheep must be branded before driving them through the State.

Any one who shall mark, brand, sell or kill another man's stock, shall pay the owner three times the value thereof, and may be fined and imprisoned.

It is a misdemeanor for any one to drive stock from its customary range without the owner's permission.

Any person, not a licensed butcher, killing cattle and selling beef, shall expose to the purchaser the hides of animals killed, and which shall be kept ten days.

It is a misdemeanor for any one to brand stock between December 1st and May 1st of the year following, except the owner may brand stock on his own premises at any time in the presence of two responsible citizens.

It is a felony to unlawfully poison domestic animals, or to wilfully expose poison so animals may get it, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to three years, or by fine of $500, or both.

It is felony for any person to carry or drive, or cause the same to be done, one or more sheep affected with scab or any other infectious or contagious disease into a herd of sheep belonging to another person, or to carry or cause to be carried the parasite which causes such scab or disease, and place it where another person is corraling or herding sheep, so that such sheep may become affected thereby, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary from five to ten years, and fined in any sum not less than one thousand dollars.

Owners of stock must report to the veterinary surgeon or his deputy when their stock is suffering from any contagious or infectious disease, or they are subject to a fine of $50 or $500, and may be imprisoned in the county jail from one to six months.

If stock are affected with any contagious or infectious disease, their owner must remove all so affected from all others, enclosing them so they cannot run with any animal not so affected, or herded six miles away from any farm or any stock running at large.

It is a misdemeanor for any owner of an animal to give such animal a false pedigree, punishable by fine of from $50 to $500 and confinement in county jail from one to six months.

Any owner making false statements as to the pedigree of an animal, and selling the same upon them, is subject to like penalties.—Ex.

Wandering Sheep of Spain.

It is well known that what is now known as the American Merino is the result of judicious crossing from the best flocks of Spain, celebrated as far back as the time of the Cæsars for the fineness of their fleeces and jealously kept within the hands of certain grandees until the early part of this century, when our consul to Spain, upon the breaking up of some of the most celebrated flocks there, was sagacious enough to see the importance of securing plenty of representatives of the best blood for this country.

The early importations were supplemented from time to time until we had all the superior strains of the best sheep of Spain. The energy and practical breeding talent of the United States improved the weight of the fleeces while retaining exceeding fineness; and among other points, intensified the homogeneity of the fleece on the inferior as well as the superior parts of the body.

It was supposed for a long time that the travelling of the flocks of Spain from the lowland winter quarters to the summer quarters, had much to do with the quality of the wool. Such however is not the fact, for the American Merinos as bred here for the last forty years, are nowhere excelled as to quality and weight of wool combined. So pronounced has this been that for years Australia has been importing American Merino sires for use there especially to give stamina of fleece.

There should be still plenty of scope for the introduction of American rams not only in Australia but in South America, in fact wherever fine wool is raised, and where sheep are to be flocked by thousands. The fine wool are found better flockers than any other breed.

In relation to the moving of sheep from lower grounds to higher altitudes as the season progresses, as has been the practice in Spain—and is yet so to a degree. The Farming World, London, Eng., has the following:

In Spain the sheep spent the summer in the pastures of the Pyrenees, and, as winter drew near, migrated in October to the plains in the south, a journey of 400 miles. They travelled in vast flocks of 10,000 each, under the care of fifty shepherds, and as many dogs, with a shepherd-in-chief at their head. Hence arose their name, the word Merino meaning "an overseer of the pasture land." These enormous bands travelled without much trouble, for a few of the sheep were taught to obey certain signals, and being placed at the head of each flock the rest of the sheep (as their manner is) simply copied whatever they did. These flocks marched at the rate of about twenty miles a day, except when they took it more leisurely, when the country was open and the pasturage good and plentiful.

A right of free feeding prevailed throughout the kingdom, with the result that the commons over which they passed were completely stripped, and the sheep of the district were half-starved for a while.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

FRIDAY; AUG. 1ST, 1890 AT OAKLAND.

A mere handful of spectators, the presence of many of whom could not be accounted for in the box office by reason of their surreptitiously scaling the fences, witnessed this exceedingly tame and rocky exhibition. The Gas City people found no difficulty in solving Lookabaugh's curves and rapped him out merrily to the tune of thirteen good solid hits together with half that number of sacrifices. Kilroy was also touched up for a goodly number but he possessed the excellent faculty of keeping them well divided, while the team back of him put up a strong fielding game. Just the opposite was the case with the Friscos. Every man in the nine offered a chance, with the single exception of Levy, seemed to vie with his neighbor as to who could make the most errors. In this respect Ebright, Shea and Hanley ran a dead heat although it must be said that the last named captured a number of hard flies and was ptaying out of his regular position. Ex-Captain Fogarty was a power at the bat getting four safe shots, while Cahill, Holliday, Wilson, Kilroy and Ebright also wielded the willow with telling effect. Noteworthy of special mention was also the outfielding of Levy, Armstrong, Holliday and Cahill and the infield work of Selna, Fogarty and Wilson. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs OAKLAND.

FRIDAY AUG. 1st, 1890 AT SACRAMENTO.

The game was well played throughout, both pitchers being hit safely the same number of times, while Hoffman broke the strike out record of the season—thirteen of the Colonels taking the bench being victims to his delusive delivery. The Oaklanders had a mighty lead all through while it looked as though Sacramento after such a number of brilliant and well earned victories would be ignominiously shut out. In the eighth, however Roberts saved them that disgrace by banging out a home run. Then in the ninth McHale hit safely and Hoffman did likewise; Mac was caught napping at second making the first out, but Goodenough's triple brought home Hoffman and the centerfielder also crossed the plate on Daley's safety. Then Bowman hit to center and through Stockwells misjudgment both Daly and Bowman scored. Stapleton and Roberts also got on bases after this but were left on Reitz being caught at second. However four runs came in which almost tied the score. The special features were the heavy stickwork of Stapleton, Daly, Roberts, C. O'Neill, Stickney and Cobb, Bowman catching and McDonalds second base playing. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 2ND AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game was marked by some heavy stick work on both sides, but the miserable fielding of the Stocktons together with the strong hitting of Finn's men, gave the home contingent so great an advantage in the fore part of the game, that after the fourth inning it was tiresome to watch the play out. Hapeman and Young were the pitchers, and both were hit hard, the Stocktonian however, being punished more severely in the way of long shots than the Franciscan. Young received excellent support, while the Stocktons' fielding was of a miserable character. Duane, the Texas backstop was way off in receiving and throwing the ball, and Wilson and Fudger also made serious blunders. Everett made his debut on a California diamond and scored a success. His fielding, together with that of Shea, Fogarty and Selna, were the features. Stevens was powerful at the bat, securing a single, double and triple, while Shea, Selna and Wilson also did efficient stick service. The score.

SACRAMENTO vs. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY AUGUST 2ND, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators played gilt edged ball, while the Colonels' work was generally poor. Kid Carsey pitched the first four innings for his side, during which time eight "sure shots" were secured off him, netting six runs. Charley Sweeney was then substituted, and after the fifth, in which one run was made, he prevented the Senators from scoring. Five hits widely scattered through five innings were all that were made off his delivery. Harper was almost invincible, allowing but three hits throughout the entire game. In the first inning Charley O'Neill rapped out a homer which was the only run the Oaklands had on their string till the eighth, when Stickney, who reached first on Daley's error, scored on Lohman's triple. The hitting of Goodenough, Godar, Bowman and Stapleton, and the clean and clever fielding of Reitz, Godar, McDonald, Sweeney and Stickney were prominent features. The score:

OAKLAND vs SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 3RD 1890, AT OAKLAND.

A big crowd of Oakland and Frisco's enthusiasts saw this game which was the greatest ever played at Oakland, and one of the best ever played in California. Each side secured eight hits, but the most brilliant kind of fielding kept them both down to two runs. Four double plays and any number of circus stops, throws and catches brought forth vociferous applause from the delighted spectators. The Colonels earned one run in the third inning on C. O'Neill's double and Dungan's single, and scored another in the eighth on Carsey's single, Hanley's error, C. O'Neill's second hit and Stickney's safety. The Friscos scored two men in the sixth. Hanley hit safely and Levy ditto. Stevens hit to McDonald forcing Levy at second while Hanley took third on the play and scoring on Tip O'Neill's overthrow, Stevens also making the circuit on the same error. Hill, Stevens, Levy, C, O'Neill and Dungan did the heaviest hitting, while to particularize the playing of any of the fielders would be an injustice to all the participants. The following score will be found exceedingly interesting.

SAN FRANCISCO vs OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, AUG. 3RD, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Another wonderful game was played by the same teams in the afternoon and although the restless spectators had to wait till three o'clock before the game was started they were amply repaid for their patience. McCarthy was in the box for the home team and rapidly warmed himself into the good graces of the Frisco cranks. He is nothing short of a phenomenal pitcher as many of the Oaklands can attest. The support given him was all that the most exacting could desire. Speer handled his peculiar but deceptive delivery to perfection while all the other Frisco boys played like demons. Cobb, though pitching winning ball did not receive such excellent support, N. O'Neill being conspicuous by making two good sized errors. At the beginning of the eighth inning with the score two to nothing in favor of Oakland it looked as though the Friscos might be shut out. But such was not destined to be the case for four men crossed the plate in this inning through some good hitting, daring running and a big blunder of the Oakland infield. Sweeney and Dungan each made two hits off McCarthy and Enright and McCarthy both secured two off Cobb. The attendance was the largest of the season, and were unanimous in declaring it to be a great exhibition. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, AUG. 3RD, 1890 AT STOCKTON.

The Senators won this exciting game from the Stocktons in the last inning by batting out two runs. Hoffman was in fine form allowing but four safe hits, while Perrott was hunched on and the seven hits secured off him netted three earned runs. The Stocktons played an almost faultless game, Fudger's overthrow being their only mis-play. The Sacramentos played great ball also, Godars and Stapletons overthrows alone marring their fielding record. The fielding of Reitz, Wilson, Fogarty, Daley and Hoffman were brilliant features, and the first base play of Stapleton who accepted seventeen of eighteen chances and Selna who took care of all of sixteen is also worthy of special mention. SACRAMENTO vs STOCKTON,

SUNDAY, AUGUST 3RD 1890, AT HAIGHT STREET.

The Senators' second victory from the Gas City aggregation was principally due to Coughlin's masterly work in the box. The Stocktons could only secure three hits off him, and seven of their batsmen were retired on strikes. His support was almost faultless. Bowman's back-stop work being exceedingly fine. Kilroy's pitching was also clever, but in the ninth, Bowman and Roberts both hit him for home runs, winning the game thereby. Selna was unable to play, and Andy Smith proved himself an excellent substitute. McHale and Armstrong's outfielding, and the clever infield exhibition of Godar, Reitz, Stapleton, Wilson, Fogarty and Smith, together with Roberts' strong batting, were the features of the game. The score.

The Stocktons are to hsve new uniforms.

Joe Shea is withont doubt the hardest worker in the Frisco team.

Smalley has taken part in every gsme thus far played by Cleveland.

Ex-Senator "Trick" McSorley has heen appointed nmpire of the Inter-State League.

Van Haltran is credited with having made the longest hit secured this season on the Cleveland Brotherhood grounds.

In the Stockton--San Francisco game of Aug. 1st, Fudger, who had been five times at bat, was the third man out for his side each time.

Somebody asked Dowse, of Cleveland, the other day how soon he expected to catch a game and he replied: "When Zimmer drops dead."

Pitcher William Wittrock, recently released from the St. Louis Browns, hss been signed for tbe Portlsnd, Oregon team hy Joe Pritchard.

Ben Hill's work while witb the Friscos has been excellent both in tbe field and at the bst. Finn would do weil to retain this player in his team.

Billy Cooney is now manager of the Salem, Or. team. Joe Leveque, well known here as a very promising young player is pitching for the same team.

Tip O'Neill seldom plays a game in which he does not make two or more oostly fumblers and still the Colouel thinks he is the greatest shortstop on the Coast.

Charlie Reed and Jim Corbett viewed last Sunday's game together from the grand stand. The plain comedian pronounced it to be one of the finest games he ever witnessed.

Willie Collier, the clever comedian with the City Directory Company is said to be quite a ball player. He has already pitcbed some excellent games for the Five A's team in New York.

Sanders is the Philadelphia Players' Clnb's winning twirler; Radbourne, Boston's; Baldwin, Chicago's; Galvin, Pittsburg's; Gruber, Cleveland's; Ferson, Buffalo's; Van Haltran, Brooklyn's, and Keefe New York's.

"Pounding wind," fanning "wind," "cooked a wind pudding," "sawed cold air," and "hammered the atmosphere," are a few of the intricstely delicate phrases used to cover the simple torm "struck out."--Sporting News.

Jerry Denny is a back number. He struck out eight times in three games, wbich is almoet the record. Jerry has the record one way or tbe other all the time, eitber the best or the worst. The latter seems to be his position at present. —Chicago Sportsman.

In the Seattle—Portland game of laet Saturday which was won by the former in the eleventh inning by a score of 4 to 3, Mansger Harris rose from the players bench and denounced Umpire Ben Young as a robber. The umpire promptly tined Harris ten dollars for the impeachment on his character.

The crowd last Sunday was a regular "old timer" chuck full of enthusiasm and good nature. When a good article of ball is given by capable players the San Francisco public is not slow in appreciating that fact and generously respond. But "skate" exhibitions by "counterfeit" players only draw what they deserve—empty benches.

Boy—"Pleas, sir, may I hsve the afternooon off? My grandmother is to be buried." Employer—"That is the eighth grandmother you have bnried since the baseball season opened." Boy—"I know it sure; I came of a very old family, and my ancestors can't stand tbe excitement of two leagues. They're dyin' off fast."—Sporting Life.

The Friscos' new short stop—Everett is a good one. He has the right method of handling gronnd balls, is sure on high flies, and is a wonderfully speedy and accurate thrower. He appears to be weak at the bat, but a correct estimate of a player's merits in this department cannot be made hy the first week's work.

Sheridan, the new Players' League nmpire, is a good one. He has a strong, but indistinct voice, as for instance, when he says "two balls" it sounds like "towel biles," but he is quick in rendering decisions, nees excellent judgment and, like Gaffney, is firm, and by a wave of the hand silences a player like magio, hefore the latter has a chance to "kiok". —Life.

In Chicago on July 28th, during a game hetween the Brotherhood cluh of that city and the Brooklyns, Van Haltren, of the latter club, was hit in the back by a pitched ball and threw his hat at pitcher King. The young Pacifio Coast b all tosser was roundly hissed for his exhibition of temper, and soon made a wild throw that cost his club the game.—Exchange.

It is reported that arrangements are heing made to have Stockwell tranoferred to Stockton where he is to oatch and take charge of the team. The Gas City Club has long been in need of a capahle headwork backstop and it is to be hoped that the ex-Clevelander will fill the bill. The team is in all other respects as strong as any in tbe league and with the right man hehind the bat will certainly do considerable winning.

McLaughlin cannot be counted a wonderful success as an umpire. While he is apparently honest, active and energetic he is by no means the equal of Sheridan, Gagns or Donahne. His decisions thus far on bases has been generally good and his judgment on balls and strikes which he accentuates by a series of gestures, is but fair though impartial. Where he seems most at fault, however, is in detecting foul tips. Already we have noticed four players called out on strikes whereas in each case they had made a foul tip and should have had another chance at the ball.

Lester Osborne, a prominent journslist of Los Angeles, and enthnsiast on the National Game, is at present in this city and stopping at the Pslace. Mr. Osborn is here in the intereets of the City of the Angels team, his business being to secure the signatures of several of the Csliforuia Lesgues best players who will coustitute the Southern team for the winter schedule. He is also perfecting arrangements with Mr. Keller, mansger of the E. T. Allens, which team will, in all probability, play a series of three games with Los Angeles early in September.

"A movement is on foot to give Jsck Hayes a benefit. The sprain in his ankle will prevent his playing with the Colts for several weeks, and as his accident was obtained in the line of duty, it is but fair that something be done for him. All lovers of haeeball recognize Hayes' value as to the Colts. He is one of the generals on the Coast, and as a shortstop, there is not a player in the Northwest Leagne his equal. As a "slide," his work has more than once piled up runs for the cluh. Now that he is, for the time being, incapacitated for service, something should be done for him. His only income since his arrival has been from the games played. This being temporarily cut off, and acknowledgement of his services in the shape of a benefit, would be timely and sppropriate.—Port Townsend Lesder.

With all due spologies to Sir Walter Scott:

Breathes tbere a man witb soul so dead
Wbo never to himself hath said:
"Now, I'll go out and see the game!"
Whose heart bath ne'r witbin him burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From walking on the umpire's frame?
If sucb there breathe, be's out of date
And never slid across the plate.
Fat though bis purse and higb his rank,
If be he not a base ball crank,
Living be'll forfeit fair renown,
Fail to see "King Kel" go down
To the vile dust and writhe about
Untoucbed, uncaught and unputout.

Just why Charley Sweeney was released and a player whose erratic sctions has caused him to he known all over the country, is signed to replace him is a matter diffionlt to fathom. Sweeney is certainly one of the greatest and most gentlemanly players in the business, having few superiors as a first haseman, and being a heavy and most reliable bats man. His abilities as a pitcher, general versatility as a player, and thorough knowledge of all the intricacies of the game should make his value inestimable, and the fact of his deviating from the rules in not reporting for practice when a reasonable excuse could he given should have met with nothing further than a reprimand or fine. Veach is a good first baseman, but as a player is not "in it" with Sweeney, and being a man almost impossible to discipline, causes many to think that with Finn its a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire." Sweeney, however, is just as well satisfied, as he has aspirations for political honors, being a candidate in the coming election for Assemblyman from the 37th district.

E, T. ALLENS vs. WILL & FINCKS.

SUNDAY, AUG. 3, 1890, AT HAIGHT ST.

This was one of the prettiest morning games ever played at the Haight St. grounds in which the team doing the heaviest stick work got left. The "Sports" were on their mettle and tired of being defeated by the Giants put up an excellent exhibition in the field, and although their pitcher, Philpot, was banged out for thirteen hard hits, the sharpest kind of out-fielding reduoed them all to singles and aided by equally as clever work in the infield prevented their opponents from tallying except in three innings. The Sports played a decidedly up hill game but in the eight, Geishaker, who was the hrilliant star of the game as far as fielding went, availed himself of a golden opportunity to show his value as a batter and his timely hit is largely reponsihle for the Sports' victory. With two men on bases and one out, the little sorrel topped fielder, who had two strikes and three balls called on him, met one of Howell's cries-cross curves firmly and squarely and planted it safely in short right for as clean a hit as was ever made on the grounds. Two runs came in on the hit and this so enconraged Keller's men that before the last hand was out every man in the team had a turn at bat in the inniug, and when retired were one run ahead of the Giants. In the ninth they increased their lead three more runs while their opponente failed to tally. The elegant work in the field, particularly that of Geishaker, Stanley, Evatt, Buckley and Parker of the Allens, and of Tillson, Deeney and Lonny Delmas of the Finks and the terrifio stioking of Evstt, Stanley, Buckley, Frank Delmas, Billings, Tillson and Strand were the remarkable features of the game. SANTA ROSA vs. BURLINGTONS,

SUNDAY, AUG. 3RD 1890 AT SANTA ROSA.

The Santa Rosa's lsnded themselves again in first place by defesting the Burlingtons in a very loosely played contest. The Railroaders hit harder, but their fielding was poor, and this caused their defeat. The Sonoma boys were strengthened by Josh Reilly, late of the E. T. Allens and San Franoiscos, and he immediately became immensely popular through his earnest and clever playing. Callen was in the box for the home team and Rohan for the visitors, and both were awfully wild. Rohan sent six men to hase on balls but Callen, although only awarding three bases, evened up matters by hitting four men. While the game was, generally speaking, a poor one, there were some very interesting features, prominent among which was the left field playing of Billy Gimmel. The "little demons" six chances were all difficult ones, bnt he accepted them in his uenal finished style. Stultz and Dnnn at third, Reilly at second and Kelly at first also distinguished themselves by making some beantiful stops and catches. Coughlin, Dunn, Mulvey and Reilly led at the bat. Harry Brown's umpiring gave general satisfaction. The score:

VALLEJO vs. REPORTS.

SUNDAY, AUG. 3RD, 1890, AT VALLEJO.

The Marines hit harder, fielded better and ran bases more cleverly than their opponents and so won one of tbe finest and most exciting games ever played on any amateur diamond in the State. Both teams had out their best available material, and judging by the way the Navy Yard boys played they will certainly make things decidedly uncomfortable for the present leaders. Baltz was very effective, sustaining his reputation as a strike ont terror, and was far steadier than nsual, sending but one man to his base on balls. But four hits, divided between the four best hitters in the Report team, were all tnat were made off him. His support was faultless. Williams was not hit heavily, but sufficiently hard to give the Marines an advantage. His team's support was not of the best character, although every man played hard to win. Sharp did some phenomenal fielding in left, catching two difficult flies and doubling up runners at second eaoh time. Other festures were Maguire's strong hitting, Farrell's catching and the infielding of Murdock, Hughes, Stanford, Maguire, Creamer, Thompson and Monet. Solly Zemansky (Russell) umpired the game and created a favorable impression. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Santa Rosa is again in the lead.

Ashman's Reports are now second.

Vallejo looks like the dark horse in the race.

Jack Lewis of the Sports is on the sick list.

Burt Parker's throwing is not as good as in former years.

In the last three games Delmas and Billings have both made nine hits.

Monet is one of the best first basemen in the Amateur Leagne.

Leland and Parker will hereafter alternate behind the bat for the Sports.

Philpot and Parker will be the Allen battery Sunday against the Giants.

The Santa Rosas have a great outfield in Gimmel, McCarthy and Cook.

Josh Reilly greatly strengthens the Santa Roese in their weakest spot—second base.

It is reported that John Dow is playing first base for a minor league team in New York.

Hearty has returned from Seattle and is to be seen in his old position—right field with the Reports.

Last Sunday Geishaker accepted seven chances in left field and Gimmel six. This is ball playing.

Joe Corbett, a coming short stop and brother of the great and only Jim, is again playing with the St. Mary's College team.

Tom Buckley is playing the best kind of ball both as regards hitting and covering his first base position for the "Sports."

Joe Levesque has accepted the terms of the Salem management—one hundred dollars per month, and is now playing with that team.

Jack Ryan is no longer a Marine. Too bad the Vallejo management couldn't make use of him, as he is one of the best first baesmen on the Coast.

Joe Murdock, at one time short stop for the Knickerbockers and lately with the E. T. Allens, is at present playing a fine game at third base for Vallejo.

Center fielder Lohman of the Allens is a brother of Pete Lohman of the Oaklands. The Lohman brothers were the battery for the Los Angeles team last year.

Russ Pace's thumb is now healed sufficiently to permit of his playing. Pace is never satisfied unless in harness, and undoubtedly he will catch to-morrow's game.

As pretty a bit of playing as was ever seen at the Haight street grounds was Tillson's wonderful catch of a high fly last Sunday for which he had a difficult run to left field.

The Vallejos have a most valuable man in Tom Maguire. The athletic shortstop, hitting, fielding and base running is "out of eight" and Tom can have any part of Vallejo he wants.

Charley Van Haltran, a brother of the redoubtable George, and who has played several excellent games for the "Sports," has accepted an engagement from the the Port Townsend management.

Jimmy Geishaker's brilliant work in left field last Sunday morning was in itself well worth the price of admission. Jimmy is an excellent substitute for McCarthy, and should he regularly played in the left garden.

McIntyre, Pace and Sharp wont have the batting honors all to themselves. Frank Delmas, Strand and Billings have lately been doing some tremendous work with their wagon tongues, and just who'll lead the batting list, is, at present very doubtful.

Manager Keller is ever hopeful, and he says he is still in the race. Keller certainly deserved better luck than that which seemed to constantly pursue his team, but the spell was broken Sunday, and as the season is but half over, the chances are the Sports may yet finish well near the top.

The Allens have had more players on their list this season than any other team in the League. Here are the names of the players signed thus far: McDonald, Agnew, Johnson, McGlade, Van Haltran, Philpot, Stanley, Leland, Parker, Buckley, Evatt, Murdock, Reilly, Lewis, Broderick, Geishaker, Lohman, Kelly, Tribou and Beckett.

The Allens are likely to lose the services of Matt Stanley. Managers Gage and Sheridan of the Burlington Rontes have made him an offer which is considerably more than what the Allens care to pay and Stanley, who is the peer of any catcher in the amateur league and the equal of many in the professional, feels justified in accepting the terms offered by the Burlington team.

Willie Lange, formerly of Vallejo, is making a big success as catcher for the Port Townsends. In a game recently played against one of Tacomas strongest teams, in which the latter were defeated by a score of 9 to 1, Lange had the following record: Four times at bat, three runs, three base hits, four bases stolen, eight put outs, five assists and no errors. Harry Nolan, formerly of the Clevelands of Oakland, pitched for the victors, and Billy Hulen, who opened the season as second baseman for the Santa Rosas, played an excellent fielding game in the same position.

The umpire of Sunday's game bids fair to become more popular than Cate. His name is Solly Zemansky, and he is just as fly as his name. He is quick, accurate and positive, and is not too stubborn to acknowledge a mistake when he makes it. He recognized the grandstand as a great factor in the game, and talked to it as he would to an individual. He is in the good graces of Vallejo and all will be glad to have him come again.—Vallejo Chronicle.

Having a personal acquaintance of many years standing with the gentleman who is the recipient of the above good-natured but honest compliment, we are pleased to take advantage of this opportunity of endorsing the same sentiment. Zemansky is one of the oldest amateur players on the coast, and before his arm was wrenched was considered a prize short stop. He is every way well fitted for his new position in which we wish him all success.—Ed.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS,

SUMMARY.

Two cross country runs are announced for to-morrow. The athletes appear to be making up again and athletics are bound to receive more attention for the next couple of months than at any period since the championship meeting. The wheelmen and oarsmen are happy as a couple of important events in their line of sport are announced for the future.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS ETC.

J. J. Flynn the well known amateur sprinter has been rusticating at Anderson's Springs for the past three weeks. Mr. Flynn has been having a good time in general and has already proved that he is a hunter of no mean ability.

Fred C. Clift of the University Athletic Club left last week for Europe where in company with his father he will travel for several months.

Champion Schifferstein says that it is always best to train in sand. A spin over a sandy beach or road is sure to strengthen the legs and improve the wind.

There appears to be a general falling off in the attendance at the new grounds of the Olympic Club. Many of the boys say that the grounds are too far out and that the strong winds which come in from the ocean at times render training out there very unpleasant. Of course it is too late now to make any change in the location of the grounds but the wind could be shut out with the aid of a higher fence.

The Alpine Club members and some of the Club boys from across the bay are indignant at the remarks which appeared in the Sporting column of a daily paper last Sunday referring to all the clubs outside of the Olympic as being "Small fry." They say that the Olympic Club is of course the leading club on the Pacific Coast but for many years after its organization it was unable to place a good athletic team in the field.

Dan Cohen of the Alameda Olympic Club will travel to Sacramento on Sept. 17, and will be a starter in the 2-mile handicap run.

P. D. Skillman will probably make San Francisco his future home. Either Purcell or Schifferstein can now retire without fear of crippling their club.

The pic-nic season is about over and the pic-nic runners will be compelled to lie on the shelf until next year. Many of them are now sorry that they did not remain in the amateur ranks. It is an assured fact that some good amateur athletic meetings will be held during the next six months at which only amateurs will be permitted to compete and the poor misguided picnic runners will be obliged to sit on the fence and look on.

The Alpine Club in conjunction with two other clubs may hold an athletic meeting at the West End grounds, Alameda, before long. The medals won at the last field day of the Alpine Club will be given out as soon as the Club is settled in its new quarters at Central Park.

In Olympic circles it is reported that Bob McArthur will be the new Field Captain.

Walter A. Scott is spoken of as the most suitable man for the position of Official Handicapper, now that George Jordan has made up his mind to resign his office.

At the present time the nightly attendance at the Olympic Club gymnasium is very large and many promising novices are lately being developed. The boys all seem to take an interest in their task and it is very pleasing to the instructors to note the rapid improvement in their pupils.

Several athletes have written to us for information about the Sacramento Athletic meeting. We are unable to state definitely what arrangements will be made about the free passage up and return but President Scott of the P. C. A. A. A. will shortly publish the full particulars. Unless their fares are paid both ways but few of the amateurs will attend.

The annual championship meeting of the American Athletic Union will be held at Washington, D. C., on August 11.

Ed. Dillon, the well known sport promoter of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., is to give a thirty hours go as you please race, open to the world, commencing at 2 P. M. on Monday, Sept. 1st, and ending on the following Saturday. The contestants will travel ten hours on the first day, and four hours daily thereafter. The entrance fee is five dollars, which can be sent to Ed. Dillon, manager, or Peter Golden, at the Dillon Athletic Grounds, not later than Aug. 25.

The members of the Acme Athletic Club of Oakland take a great interest in hand ball. There is always a big attendance in the gymnasium on Tuesday evenings when Prof. DeWitt Van Court gives boxing lessons. The club rooms are situated on 14th street near Harrison.

CROSS COUNTY RUNS.

To-morrow the members of the Olympic Athletic Club will hold a cross country run from San Mateo. Scott, Cooley, Skillman and Espinosa will be the scratch men. The run will be in the shape of a contest, time handicaps being allowed. Some of the members who do not favor competition will not attend, but the regular competing athletes will make up a very large field of starters and fast time may be expected.

The Alameda Olympic and Alpine Amateur Athletic clubs will hold a combined cross country run to-morrow afternoon. The start will take place from the room of the Alameda Club on Lincoln Avenue near Park street, and will begin at 2 o'clock. The run will be to Bay Farm Island and return, a distance of about four miles. The road is in fine condition, and the pace will be very moderate. All amateurs are invited to attend. Athletes from this side should leave on the 1 o'clock Oakland boat and take the Alameda train (broad gauge) to Park St.

THE WHEELMEN.

Last Sunday the Alameda Bicycle Club divided, some went to Haywards and some to Milpitas. They all enjoyed the moonlight run home.

Bicycling is booming across the bay, especially in Alameda, where almost every other resident owns a wheel. Many ladies may be seen daily on their wheels, and in the afternoon and evening dozens of young men practice on Central Avenue. The Alameda Club will make an excellent showing on the occasion of the road race.

The Bay City Wheelmen have incorporated, and a lot for the new club house will be purchased at once.

George P. Wetmore and Sanford Plummer of the B C W are taking a couple of weeks vacation in the country.

A number of wheelmen were in the Park on Sunday last.

As no entrance fee will be charged for the coming road race, it will be out of the question for the Bay City Wheelmen to give extra prizes. Suitable and valuable prizes, however, will be awarded.

We are in receipt of a programme of the 11th annual meeting of L A W which will be held at Niagara Falls on August 25, 26 and 27. The programme is very neatly gotten up and contains several interesting views of the Falls besides several pages of valuable information to visiting wheelmen. The following list of races will be decided: one, two and five miles ordinary; one, two and five miles safety; one, two and three miles tandem, all championship.

1 mile ordinary and 1 mile safety for novices.

1 mile safety, 1 mile ordinary, for 3 minute class.

1 mile ordinary and 1 mile safety, handicap (100 yards limit). ¼ mile ordinary, ¼ mile safety, 1 mile safety, 1 mile ordinary, open.

One-half mile safety, 1 mile team race. ½ mile ordinary, 1 mile tandem, open. $1 entrance fee will be charged for each event.

The annual race meeting of the Montreal (Can.) Bicycle Club is to take place at the grounds of the Montreal A A A on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 30, commencing at three o'clock rain or shine. The programme is as follows: One mile, green roadsters, (35lb or over): half mile, open; 880 yds. foot, open; two miles, roadster, (35lb or over); five miles, open; one mile, three minute class; two miles, safety, handicap; one mile, open; 220yds. foot, open; half mile, without hands; three miles handicap, and obstacle race. A special prize will be awarded to the competitor scoring the greatest number of points. A valuable prize will be awarded for any Canadian record broken. Entries close Aug 27, with Arthur Harries, honorary secretary, P O Box 958, Montreal. The races will take place on a one-third mile cinder track. Electric timing.

The country roads are in a very bad condition and the sooner a little rain falls the better for the wheelmen.

IN THE SURF.

An elegant bath house is about to be erected at Santa Cruz close to the Railroad.

There was a good attendance at the Sheller Cove baths last Sunday morning.

The Palace and Crystal bathe are filled with bathers almost every night. Every ladies' night the fair sex may be seen in the tanks in large numbers.

The Terrace Baths at Alameda are doing a splendid business just now, owing to the hot weather across the bay.

Mrs. McLane Martin and Miss Isabelle Hewit are attracting considerable attention at Santa Cruz by their graceful and daring swimming feats.

Business is rushing at Santa Cruz this season. The number of visitors there at the present time is unusually large and the beach presents a charming sight every morning and afternoon when the ladies appear in their bright and artistic bathing costumes.

At Monterey last Sunday morning a party composed of Miss Leila Carrall, Miss Hope Ellis, Mrs. T. Hopkins, Miss Lottie Clark, Walter Deane, A H Small and Dan Murphy swam out away beyond the raft and returned just before the advent of the shoal of porpoises that created so much excitement.

The annual swimming race between ladies for the ocean amateur championship of America, will come off at Coney Island on Aug. 23. The distance is half a mile, and the race is open to all lady swimmers, the course being from Brighton Beach Hotel to Doyle's Pavilion. The prizes consist of gold, silver and bronze medals, and the entries close with William Johnson, at Doyle's Pavilion, West Brighton, Coney Island, on Aug. 20.

W. Evans was the winner of the annual race for the half mile amateur swimming championship of England, decided at Hollingworth Lake, near Rochdale, O, July 5. They were fifteen contestants, and the order of the finish was: Evans, A Smith, B A Hart and A M Langdon. Time, 14m, 38s.

Among the original members of the newly organized New York Swimming Club are H T Braun, Charles Renner, Geo. Renner, John Hattou, S B marks and Charles Ams. They have quarters at the foot of East Sixty-fifth St., E R, and they intend to hold an open amateur tournament on Sept. 13, the events to be decided consisting of races at 220, 440 and 880 yards. The entries will close Sept. 6, with John Hatton, as above.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

About a dozen cricketers met in the barber shop of George Wolf; Webster St., Alameda, on Monday evening. Several very important qusstions were discnssed and arrangements were made for several matches to be played in the future.

The probabilities are that the West End grounds at Alameda will be permanently secnred by the Cricket Clubs.

The Alpine team will give a free exhibition game at Central Park some Saturday afternoon this month.

It is reported that some of the local clubs will arrange to practice at Central Park.

The Alameda gronnds are too far away for the local clubs and only the clubs across the bay will use them after a while.

A game of cricket waa played at the Alameda gronnds on Sunday, the compsting clnbs being the Pacific and the Zingaris. The playing was not up to the usnal atandard aa most of the players were out of practice. The reault waa a draw each clnb having played one inning. The lateness of the honr prevented the match from being finished.

Hereafter matches can be played weekly at the Alameda gronnds, which are to be renovated.

A cricket association will soon be formed if the clubs continue to spring up as they have been doing for the past month or so.

AT THE OARS.

The Ariel Club'a High Jinks was well attend last Sunday. The programme consisted of boxing, singing etc. The members furnished the visitors with a fine collation.

The Oakland Canoe Club held its seventh monthly race for the Canoe Club trophy in the Brooklyn Basin last Sunday afternoon. The rnn was made from the boat house of the club to Brooklyn Basin and return. The run out was before a wind which was very favorable, but on the return the canoes had to beat dead against the wind. The race was made when the tide was about to tnrn. The following are the resnlts with the names of those who manned canoes:

First class—Gnat,—G. A. Warder, 43 min. 35 secs.; Dart—J. Olsen, 52 miu. 15 secs; Mystic—W. W. Blow, 55 min. 10 secs.

Second class—Gypsy—A. H. Blow, 56 min. 30 aecs.; Whisper—W. G. Morr, 57 min. 35 secs.; Bonita—A. L. Gump, 64 min. 10 aecs.

The Alameda Boat Club sent their amateur crew over to contest in the raoss held at the Ariel Club's High Jinks last Sunday. It is safe to predict that they will win the Fourth of July trophy next year.

The Pioneer Club is showing much life and spirit at present. Every available boat and sailing craft belonging to the club is called into use on Sundays. The older members of the clnb make up excnrsion parties, and with their friends spend the day picnicing and feasting.

The South End Club has fonnd its mascot, as the membership increases at the rate of about twenty a month. The club meetings are held in Judge Stafford's court room, New City Hall, on the 2nd and 3rd Tuesday in each month.

The Ariel Clnb can turn out more crews and single scullers at the N. S G. W. Reggtta to be held Sept. 8th, than auy other of the clubs. The club intends sending forth a professional crew that will easily lower the colors of the South Ends.

The Pacific Rowing Association met last Monday night at Irish American Hall and appointed a committee of one from each club to arrange a benefit to take place at one of the principal theatres during the month of October and November. The Alameda Boat Club was elected a member of the association.

The classifying of the rowing men was deferred to aome future period. As the asaociation is yet in its infancy, it was resolved to diacharge the committee subject to the fntnre growth of the organization.

In discussing the places of holding the coming regatta of the N S G W a majority of the 582 members, composing the clubs in San Franciaco and vicinity, favor the regnlar Alameda mole conrse where all the oarsmen would be on an eqnal footing. It would be impossible except at Richardsons Bay to find a more suitable place. The committee wonld do well to aelect the Alameda course for many reasons. An effort should be made to have the races atart promptty at 10 A. M., so that the programme wonld be finished to allowed the visitors to retnrn to dinner in good time.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Alameda Olympic Club will give a "ladies night" exhibition on Friday euening, August 15th. Dancing will follow the exhibition. The programme will include boxing, clnb swinging, horizontal bar exercise, tumbling, vaulting, fencing, weight-lifting, wrestling, jumping, pyramid, etc. Several leading amateurs will appear and the exhibition is bound to be worth witnessing.

The Alpine Clnb will move from 706 Powell Street to its new rooms at Central Park abont the end of next week. The new rooms, besides being centrally located will be nicely furnished, and the members will be allowed the use of the Park to train in. Fxhibitiona of cricket, football, etc., will be given on Saturday afternoona and Snndays When the clnb moves to Central Park it is expected that the membership will be largely increased. The clnb will elect new officers shortly.

The Lurline Club has expelled about fifty members for non-payment of dnes. There are still over one hundred good paying membera in the club, and the Directors did well in weeding ont the bad members.

A good many athletes who belong to asaociate clubs of the P C A A A think that the Olympic Club would act wisely in allowing them to use its gronnds in conaideration of the small monthly fee. The grounds are not qnite as popular now as when they were first opened, and by allowing all the reputable amateura a chance to train out there it might help to boom the place again.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

A yonng rnnner asked me the other day why the P C A A A did not give a picnic. "Why," said he, "if the association was to hold a picnic after the atyle of the Thistle or Caledonian Clubs, it would be a howling success." I quite agree with my young friend, bnt it is rather too late in the season now to think of such a thing. The idea will keep until next year.

I spent a very enjoyable evening in the club rooms of the Alameda Olympic Club on Tnesday evening last. The boys were practicing tooth and nail for their coming exhibition. A more good-natured, hard working set of young athletes I never saw before. Leader John E. Byler was very busy instructing his men, and from the showing they made, I think the affair will be a grand success. President Charles E. Elliot smiled as he told me how good the boys were. "Our membership is not so very large," said he, "but they are all rustlers."

I noticed the following athletes exercising: P Nahl, A Nahl, W Osborn, Paul Turnbull, John E Byler (leader), Leon Hewston, Fred Holgren, Dan Cohen, George Morse, Ambrose Snow. The regular class nights are Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The following is a list of the officers: President, Chas E Elliott: vice-President, S P Mesick; Secretary, J H Holton; Treasurer, R A Lavenstein; Leader, J E Byler; Executive Committee, P W Barton, Perham W Nahl, Giles Bradley and W F Chipman.

I took a ride out to the Bay District track on Snnday, and was anrprised to see some of the Olympic boys running on the track. Henderson and Garrison sprinted a little. Charley Little was also out there, and he appears to be in good condition. What for?

If the Olympic Club intends holding a meeting next month, t is high time the programme was issued.

A member of the Olympic Clnb told me confidently that "Strangler" Lewis could easily have thrown McLeod if he so desired. Lewis had a motive in acting as he did, and if he and McLeod ever come together again, the result will be different.

"RAMBLER."

AMATEUR WRESTLERS.

Cole wins the match from Haberly at the Olympic Club.

About 400 members of the Olympic Club assembled in their gymnasium on Wednesday evening to witness the long-talked of wrestling match between the middle weights, W T Haberly and E E Cole. Leader Hammersmith was chosen master of ceremonies. Haberly scaled 154 pounds while Cole weighed 9 pounds lighter. Both men were in fine condition. F F Scanlan of the Acme Club acted as referee while Eugene Van Court and Jeff Martin were chosen as judges.

In thirteen and one half minutes Cole managed by means of a half Nelson and crotch combination to put Haberly's shoulders squarely on the mat amid great applause. The first bout was exciting in the extreme and both men showed considerable strength and science.

Eugene Van Court and Jeff Martin then gave a good exhibition of wrestling in the catch-as-catch-can style for about five minutes. When they had finished their bout the first couple came on the floor again to continue their match Cole again downed his man in ten minutes and so won the match. This fall was won only after a hard and exciting struggle. Haberly got severely punished having been crossbuttocked several times by his rival. It was thought that his short ribs were broken but on examination it was found that such was not the case, but still he was pretty well shaken up.

Professor G. Miehling and Dan McLeod wound up the nights sport with a clever exhibition of catch-as-catch-can wrestling. in which McLeod proved himself to be a very clever and strong wrestler.

The prizes won at the last wrestling tournament, which took place on May 13th last were distributed by Treasurer Henry B. Russ. The principal match of the evening was wrestled in the catch-as-catch-can style. On the whole the entertainment was highly interesting and the members present went away fully satisfied.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V, M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S, 1117 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

X.

My buggy mare haa a shoe boil that has been a great cause of annoyance for abont a year or more. I got it cut open on three different occasions but it always filled again. Now it feels quite hard and solid while at first it was only a sack full of finid. I don't see the use of opening it any more as there is nothing soft or fluid to be let ont of it, and it has got larger after each cntting. Would you recommend to blister it, or tell me if there is any way of getting rid of it.

Answer.—The only way to get rid of it permanently is to get it cut clean out. It ia a simple operation but I would not recommend you to try it yourself. Better get a veterinary surgeon.

H. R.

I have a four year old colt that has not yet oast the temporary middle teeth, and the new teeth have come out in front of them. Will they fall out themselves or should I get them extracted. They do not interfere with his eating.

Answer.—By all means get them extracted.

T. M.

My horse got a bunch on the withers about three months ago and althongh I fermented it with hot water, and applied Kendal'a apavin cure to it, it does not come down any. About a month ago it broke and is since discharging matter. I probed the hole and found it to be about three inches deep. What is it? and what treatment do you recommend?

Answer.—Your horse has got Fistulous Withers.

Open the fiatula with a knife ao as to give free vent to the matter. Foment the part with warm water, syringe it out daily with a solution of one part of carbolic acid to 40 of water, and keep the horse on soft food. You had better get a veterinary snrgeon to attend to it or communicate with us again about it. If the parts are callous, it will require more aevere treatment, and if the bones are diseased, the diseased part must be removed.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

C. N.

Did you ever hear of a horse called Paria Boy Jr., and if so, will yon anawer through your paper and give the pedigree of him?

Anawer.—We do not know the horse.

G. C. V.

I should be much obliged if you would inform me through yonr paper whether "Owen Dale" ia registered or not, and whether any of his get have ahown speed.

Anawer.—Owen Dale was a thoroughbred horse, not a trotter, and is not registered.

A Subscriber.

I would like for you to inform me, through your paper, how old Palo Alto is, and how old Jack is, and also how many races Jack has trotted, and how many races Palo Alto haa trotted?

Answer.—Palto Alto is eight years old, and haa trotted in twenty races. Jack ia aeven years old, and has trotted in forty two races.

Two California horses won in the East last Thursday, At Saratoga the mile and five-eighths was won by Santa Anita Stable's Los Angeles, who won in a canter by three lengths, with Senator Hearst's Rhono, second. At Monmouth Park, Firenze ran one of the best races she has over run, carrying 115 lbs. ahe compassed the mile and a half in 2:33¼, on a dead slow track. Tenny, her sole opponent lay too far back, but after being three lengths behind at the half distance, gradually cloaed the gap just failing to get up by a neck.

False Pedigrees.

Sometime ago our attention was called to the fact that on the departure of almost every Australian steamer that one or more horses were being shipped to the antipodes, and a suggestion made that it would be a good idea for the Australian readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to know exactly what animals were being sent over there. On one or two occasions a representative of this paper has been on hand at the departure of the steamers, but whenever horses were found it seemed that those having them in charge would always plead ignorance of pedigree, and no information could be obtained. By the last mail we have received from a friend a catalogue of American trotting horses in which it is claimed that they were imported by Messrs. Trestrail & Burns, and were for sale by Wm. Inglis & Son, Horse Bazaar, Pitt St., Sydney. In an advertisement it is claimed "that the horses to be offered for sale are of high classed quality and have been especially selected in America for this market by Messrs. Trestrail & Burns, who are first class judges." The belief is forced upon us that Messrs. Trestrail & Burns either know nothing whatever about a trotting horse, or are trying to deceive the Australian public. Prior to the shipment of this last lot of horses, a person was sent to this office by those claiming to own them, and pedigrees were asked for each of them. We positively refused to make out any pedigrees for the horses unless breeders' certificates could be shown us, as we did not choose to take the simple word of those who were about to ship them.

As an illustration of how their catalogue is made up, we herewith give the pedigree of one of them:

ALFRED D.

BAY GELDING—FOALED 1884.

By Dan Poor Lees [887], out of Norwood by Hambletonian [10]; from Lady Fallis, the dam of Socrates, Kisbar, etc., by American Star [14], out of a daugbter of L. J. Black Hawk.

The sire of Alfred D. was by General M'Lellan [144] out of Mutraced; General M'Lellan, by North Star, out of a mare by Red Iron.

The ignorance displayed in the above pedigree is simply ridiculous to those who know anything at all about the American trotting horse. Ignorance is probably a charitable word to use, for in the first place Dan Poor Lees is not No. 887 in the American Trotting Register, nor is a horse of that name in by any other number. Lady Fallis never had a filly foal called Norwood but did have a stallion colt which is registered as No. 522. We have every occasion to know that General McClellan was never mated to a mare called Mutraced, and while General McClellan had for a sire North Star, it will be information to many who knew the old horse here, to know that he was out of a mare by Red Iron.

The balance of the catalogue is equally at fault, and it seems a shame that our Australian cousins who may see fit to buy trotting horses should be imposed upon in such a bare-faced manner. It would be a good idea in future for those who wish to purchase trotting horses from importers to demand a breeders' certificate, certified to by the English Consul in this city. If that were done such men as Trestrail & Burns would soon find their present business a losing speculation.

Who Has Made the Mistake?

Mistakes will at times happen in the best regulated familes, and it would seem that a mistake has been made in the pedigree of a bay mare called Wamba, who started in a race at the Bay District Track on Saturday, July 12th last. From the high standing of all the parties concerned, there can be no doubt for an instant but that an unintentional error has been made, or that Mr. Outhwaite has been imposed on. Sam Gamble, the Superintendent of the Hobart Stock Farm, had a mare called Wamba, whose pedigree was given as being by Electioneer, dam Winona by Almont, second dam Dolly by Mambrino Chief, sent to him for the purpose of mating to Stamboul; the instructions from Mr. Outhwaite were that after she was bred, he would like very much to get a record for her, and it was in furtherance of that plan that Mr. Gamble started her in the race alluded to. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN made mention of the race at the time it occurred, and the item in reference thereto was read by Mr. J. E. Green, President of the Second National Bank of Louisville, Ky., and that gentleman has sent to us the following letter:

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 29, 1890.

TO THE EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—DEAR SIR:—In one of your recent papers I notice an account of a race in which a mare purporting to be "Wamba" by "Electioneer," out of "Winona" by "Almont," next dam "Dolly" by "Mambrino Chief," etc., etc., and owned by a gentleman by the name of Outhwaite, took part. Now this mare was sold at one of the "Palo Alto" sales in New York, and bought by Mr. Frank Work. She was driven by John Murphy, as your account states, and I have several letters from him about her. I bought the mare from Mr. Work for the "Glenview Stock Farm" and have her now on the farm.

As there seems to be a great big mistake somewhere I would suggest you call public attention to it, and you may use this letter for that purpose.

Very truly, JOHN E. GREEN.

We have no doubt but what the mistake can be easily rectified, and trust that Mr. Gamble or Mr. Outhwaite will send us a letter showing how it occurred.

A Day at Resaca.

It was a jolly party that accompanied Col. Harry I. Thornton last Sunday to his home in the picturesque Contra Costa hills. R. V. McDonald, of Fort Wayne, Indiana; William Thomas, of Virginia City; Julius C Reis, of this city; Capt. T. B. Merry, of Oregon and the editor of this paper. Leaving the city on the 9 o'clock trip to Oakland, they reached the Colonels house by 11 o'clock and sat down to a "soft toddy" under the branching gums. Thence to the paddocks, where the get of Madison, (a good son of Anteeo) were galloping beside the scions of the mighty Mariner, in whose veins flow the blood of Wild Dayrell and Bay Middleton. The youngsters all showed the effect of strong pasture, coupled with no end of lung power.

On going to the course, Mr. Reiz took a spin around the track behind his favorite old mare Alpha Medium, after which the hospitable host invited his guests into the house for a dinner at which he fully sustained his old reputation as an entertainer. There was fried chicken that would have tempted Lucullus, some claret that was a poem and a salad that was a overture to "Semiramide." At 4.20 the guests heard the ominous sound of the approaching train, and shook hands with their hospitable host. Two hours on the "rawhide railroad," as the emaciated youth from Oregon are wont to style it, and we were all back in the city. Such days are full of sunshine. They bring back dreams of youth and recall them not in vain.

Reno and Carson.

The Nevada State Agricultural Society will hold its Fair and Racing Meeeing from September 22nd to 27th inclusive; while the Ormsby County Agricultural Association will hold its annual meeting from September 29th to October 4th inclusive. The first mentioned Fair is held at Reno, and in past years many representative horses have gone over from this State to the neighboring one and in nearly every instance have made much money by doing so. Carson has likewise been well patronized in the past and as both of these Associations are advertising first class programmes, it is more than probable that this year will be no exception to the rule and that many of the fast runners, trotters and pacers will cross the mountains to participate in the sport in Nevada. The entries for both of the Associations close on August 15th and as this is the last chance for us to mention these two Meetings, it would be as well for those who contemplate entering, to look carefully over the advertised lists and make their entries at once. The purses are good; the Directors of both of these Societies have done everything in the past that was possible for the comfort of horses and horsemen who attended their meetings; the people are hospitable; the weather cool and bracing, and the change from the hot California weather at that season of the year, will be a relief to many who no doubt will take advantage of these two meetings.

A Postponement.

We have received notice from the Secretary of the 17th Agricultural Association stating that the Directors have decided to postpone the Fair, which was originally set for August 19th until the week after the State Fair. The fruit is in a somewhat backward condition, and as that exhibition is one of the great drawing cards for Glenbrook Park, the Directors have no doubt decided on a wise step in making the postponement mentioned.

Racing at Ione

The Fair at Ione opened under very favorable anspices. The track was in first-class condition, and the attendance for the first day exceedingly fair. It must be confessed that the heat played sad havoc with those who were accustomed to San Francisco climate, the thermometer registering 110 in the shade.

The judges for the day were E. C. Voorhees and U. S. Gregory. The first race, a mile and a half had for starters Tycoon, who sold for $10 in the pools, Sheridan $4, while the field consisting of Hotspur, Fanny F., Nerva and Alferetta brought $6. Fanny F broke away in the lead when the the flag fell and led to the half-mile pole where she was headed by Sheridan, who was leading at the three-quarter mark, on entering the home stretch Alferetta was given her head and she won by a short head from Tycoon. Time, 1:57.

The second race on the programme was for two year olds, a dash of five-eighths of a mile; the field sold for $10, Quena for $4, while the Duke of Milpitas sold for $6. On the second attempt the flag fell, the Duke of Milpitas quickly showing in the front which position he maintained until the outcome, winning in a common canter by four lengths. Time, 1:03½.

The third race was a quarter of a mile and repeat, Hawthorne winning the first heat in 23½. While the horses were scoring for the second heat, Comet, one of the horses jumped the fence injuring himself and his rider, so the judges allowed him to be withdrawn. Hawthorne had no difficulty in winning the second heat. Time, 23½. The pools sold, Hawthorne $10, Sleepy Dan $5, the field $4; after the first heat, Hawthorne was the choice at $10 while the field sold for $5.

The Terre Haute Express says that Goldsmith has great hopes of bringing the two-year old trotting record to San Mateo farm this season with Vida Wilkes, a chestnut filly by Guy Wilkes, dam by Nutwood. She is said to be the fastest thing ever bred on the farm and good judges say that she will come near touching Sunol's great two year old mark of 2:18. Mr. Corbitt is reported to have signified his willingness to wager even money that she will beat 2:20 in her two-year-old form. San Mateo has several other young things in training gifted with enough speed to make one's eyes pop.

It is all the wealth of California against a pint of peanuts that Mr. Corbitt never offered to make any such wager, he is too conservative to make such a break.

Grim's Gossip.

Peter Brandow has named his Abbotsford—Agnes horse, Free Coinage.

The Hickok, Salisbury and Palo Alto Stables will all be seen at the Breeders Meeting in October.

While you are looking around for probable winners at San Jose, keep a sharp lookout for Keepsake and Bresury Mc.

Billy Appleby seems almost invincible at Los Angeles and Ione having won four races at Los Angeles and two at Ione.

Kildeer the Rancocas two year old by Darebin from Lou Lanier won a clever race last Thursday at Monmouth Park.

This afternoon a match race will take place at Portland, Oregon, between the two well known trotters, Alta and Kitty Ham.

Al Farrow won $1750 at St. Paul, while the Montanans won $2745 with Nevada, Brown Fox $2240, Rainier $2025 and War Peak $1230.

Many of Eastern Associations have tried to secure the noted Axtell for exhibition, but the new owners name a price that is simple prohibitive.

Read the advertisment of the Portland Speed Association and make your entries for the running races which will take place from September 9th to 13th.

Longshot made a successful debut over sticks last Thursday at West Side Park, Chicago, besting the favorite Winslow cleverly in a mile and an eighth, hurdle race.

It is now claimed that Andrews, the driver for Mr. Hamlin at the Village Stock Farm, has sent Chimes a quarter in 31½ seconds. He will be sent to beat his record this fall.

Alicia, by Georgie Wilkes, dam Alma Mater by Mambrino Patchen and full sister to Alcyone, 2:17, and Alcantara, 2:23, secured a record of 2:30 at St. Paul. Thus another performer is added to Alma Mater's already full list.

Manager, a two year old by Nutwood, paced a mile at Independence, Iowa in 2:19¼ which is 1¾ seconds faster than the previous record. On the same day and track Barnhardt a brother to Axtell reduced his record to 2:22¾.

The 300-yard running race, held on the Turlock Running Association's track last week, between Harry Stearn's mare "Ginger Ale", and Ed Ducker's mare "Minnie", was won by the latter by three lengths. The purse was for $100.

The question is frequently asked: "When is Palo Alto going to start to try and beat the Stallion record?" The only engagement that I have heard for him to undertake the feat is at the Queen Driving Park, Cincinnati, next month.

The Red Wilkes case has been settled by W. C. France buying Smith McCann's half interest in the horse for $30,000, the highest price ever paid for a half interest in a horse. Red Wilkes is 16 years of age and by the records is the best son of George Wilkes.

Last Saturday a race took place at Brown's Corners, Yolo County, between R. Buckley's stallion Bay Diamond and E. Woodward's Band Box. The match was for $50 a side best two in three. Diamond won the two heats necessary in 3:35¾ and 3:15. In the betting Dismond was largely the favorite.

I was much pleased a few days ago, with a visit paid to the wonderful panorama entitled the Battle of Gettysburg. The lecturer gave a short history of that great fight, and it was really worth listening to, as one could almost imagine himself on the field of action the surroundings were so perfect. An hour or so can very profitably be spent viewing this magnificent panorama and museum.

Mr. L. B. Hicks is now handling a lot of yearling trotters for L. U. Shippee Esq. of Stockton, and in a note he informs me that several of them are moving nicely. Mr. Hicks has had lots of experience with youngsters and his methods are of the best, so that it will not surprise me if a first class yearling should make an appearance from the home of Hawthorne.

The Pacific Coast Live Stock Owners Mutual Protective Association is fast becoming a very popular body, and the amount of insurance issued by them is rapidly assuming mammoth proportions. Those who have not as yet taken advantage of the opportunity to insure their horses and cattle should send for a prospectus to Volney Howard, general manager, room 73 Flood Building S. F.

The St. Louis Jockey Club sends out word that a grand trotting meeting will commence on September 2nd and continue to the 5th inclusive. There will be among other events purses of $100 for the 2:20, 2:25 and 2:30 classes. The pacers are not overlooked as $2,000 will be given for the 2:16 class and $1,500 for the 2:30 class. Entries to these events will close on August 22nd.

It is said that the Washington Park people are being strongly urged to report as to investigations under way in regard to the running of certain horses during the recent meeting. It is understood that some people are after G. V. Hankins of the Chicago Stable, and they are anxious that he should be hauled over the coals, especially because of the defeat of Santalene by Atticus.

One of the most refreshing drinkables now in the market is Jackson's Napa Soda. During the hot weather it is a relief to be able to get sparkling mineral water, especially when it is known to be pure and contain qualities that will aid the digestive organs in their great work. That Jackson's Napa Soda is pure, is attested to by the Analytical Chemists, and is highly recommended by all physicians.

Chas. Hoppin of Yolo County dropped in on Monday to shake hands and also to leave the news that the colts by Cubit are all that can be desired. To "a man up a tree" it looks as though the owners of Monroe Chief fillies are losing a favorable opportunity to get extreme speed, as Cubit is full brother to Cyclone 1956, sire of Cecile 2:28¾, Dr. Sparks (2-year-old) 2:25½ and Gillsette (3-year-old) 2:25, and all of these are out of Monroe Chief mares.

Alfred S. continues his victorious career. At Buffalo on Thursday last he won the 2:18 class in straight heats, beating Lady Bullion, Hendryx and Mocking Bird. Best time, 2:17¼.

Mr. W. H. Taylor of San Luis Obispo, has a magnificent three year old colt by Antevolo dam Lady Tiffany. He is 16 hands 1½ inches in height, and for general appearance is hard to beat in any country. Mr. Taylor also has a four year old called Munroe 12967, by Munroe Chief 875 dam Lady Tiffany, which gives great promise of speed and his owner has every confidence that Munroe will go into the list this year.

Alfred Guerne, writing from Lexington, Ky, says that Anteeo had 73 mares this year at $300 each, making a total of $21,900 for the season's work. Alfred G. had 36 mares and all concerned are well pleased with the result. In addition to that the young Californian has been taken to the Lexington track and all indications go to show that his record of 2:19¾ will be lowered this year. I wish Alfred all the luck imaginable with his young stallion and sincerely trust that his record may be dropped several seconds.

I had a pleasant call a few mornings ago from Charles E. Needham of Belotta, owner of Steve Whipple 2:23. Last year Steve showed a mile in 2:17¼ and those who know the horse best claim that even this low mark is not the measure of his speed. Mr. Needham reports that the yearlings and foals are all in the best of condition and show promise enough to warrant the belief that speed will surely follow. Mr. Needham was on his way to Plessanton to get Twist (dam of Steve Whipple) who has been on a visit there to receive the embraces of Director.

The Terre Haute Association is the first to offer a "record stake" under the new rule. As the conditions are as yet unknown here, the following is copied from their advertisement so that the California Associations may know how it is worded.

"Breeders stake race for records. Entrance, $10. Not less than three horses to start. Three heats to be trotted. Horse winning a heat in 2:30 or better not to start again. Stakes divided 60 per cent to winner of fastest heat; 25 per cent to next and 15 per cent to third fastest. Field failing to best 2:30 in three trials, entrance money to go to association.

Last Saturday afternoon a small number of spectators assembled at the Bay District track to witness a match race between William Voiget's bay gelding Benefactor and T. J. Power's Queen of the West. Benefactor proved the winner in three straight heats time 2:29¾, 2:33¾ and 2:36¼. Benefactor is by Gen Benton dam Frolic by Harry Clay 45, 2nd dam Maori by imp Australian. He is a peculiar gaited horse trotting with his front feet while galloping behind, although Mr. Voiget tells me that the gelding goes much faster when trotting squarely than when he mixes.

There is but one opinion in reference to Del Monte by all who have visited that handsome place, and that is always expressed in the words, "it can't be beat." Coronado has been running it a hard game in the race for popularity, and lately the San Diego folks have added a magnificent race track as one of the accessories to their elegantly equipped place. Now the Directors of the Pacific Improvement Company, owners of Del Monte, contemplate fitting up a race course that will be unequaled in California. The matter is as yet in embryo, but it carried out will add greatly to the pleasures derived in visiting that paradise of the Pacific.

McFerran and Clancy of Louisville, Kentucky have issued a catalogue of their trotting stock which is a useful volume for reference, as it contains much historical information that is valuable. The very appropriate name of Foundation Stud is claimed for the Farm, and as there are all the best blood lines of the trotting world represented it is apt to be a foundation in more senses than one. In the introduction the proprietors say: "We have sought fillies of approved form running back by crosses of the best bred, most speedy, and greatest speed-producing stallions to these foundation mares, such as Green Mountain Maid, Emeline, Miss Russell, Waterwitch, Dolly, Ned, Sally Chorister, Madam Dudley, Clara, Black Rose, etc. In all of the pedigrees the blood of several of these great mares are united, and it is the purpose to still further combine them with those of like character though their best representatives."

In 1887, the Directors of the State Fair announced that they would give a gold medal to the owner of the stallion that would show the speediest progeny in the years 1887, 1888 and 1889 Director 2;17, by his son and daughter, Direct 2:18¼, and Margaret S. 2:19¼, was adjudged the winner of the trophy, and the order was given W. K. Vanderslice & Co. of this city to prepare a suitable emblem. A few days ago the firm sent me word that the medal was ready and invited inspection. On raised bars around the sides and top are the words "Awarded by the State Agricultural Society of California to Director, 1889." In the centre is a picture of the great sire and also one each of Direct and Margaret S. with each of their records underneath: Under the pictures it says "For the best average performance of progeny in races for trotting foals, two three and four year olds at the State fairs of 1887-88-89." The medal is of exquisite workmanship, and is a fitting testimonial to the owner of Director.

A story, more or less sensational, is going the rounds of the California press anent the reported lameness of the great colt Flambeau. It was given out at the time of the spring meeting of the Blood Horse Association that Senator Hearst had secured the racing qualities of Flambeau from Palo Alto, just as he got the running qualities of Gorgo. A couple of days after the report Flambeau started in a race and cut himself; at least it was so stated by Henry Welsh. The story goes now that Flambeau did not injure himself at all, but the report of the injury was given out by Henry Welsh to prevent the colt going into the Hearst stable. Welsh saw what Matt Allen did with Gorgo, and knowing that Flambeau was the best colt that Palo Alto had ever raised, he did not want him put into Allen's hands to be ruined, so he bandaged the colt up and allowed it to quietly look out that he was lame, and so took him back to Palo Alto after the meeting at Sacramento. Flambeau is galloping now at Palo Alto. There are a good many people who believe that the story is true.—Chicago Horseman.

The story is not going the rounds of the California press, but was published in one sheet that is notorious for its foolish vaporings in all matters that appertain to the horse. The writer has seen the "leg" and carefully examined the horse twice since the accident, and the large scar was plainly discernible less than six weeks ago. There is no one that knows Henry Welsh believes the story to be true, for they know he is incapable of such an action.

THE GUN.

An Odd Experience.

CHAPTER I.

A little over a year ago, a party of pleasant people gathered at a bospitable home in Bakersfield, with the intent of going on a couple of week's picnic under the grand oaks and in the pleasant places of historic Fort Tejon, forty miles away. There was a complete assortment; husbands, wives, men, maidens, little children and a jewel of a cook. Fort Tejon was invested by gradual approaches in the nature of an evening drive to the Jamea Ranch—10 milee from town; then a rest of people and teams until early dawn; next a trip across the plains before yet the sun had time to cause discomfort; an early breakfast in the "Little canyon of the Grapes," beside a babbling mountain brook, and ere noon a safe arrival at the Fort—a place, in early days, resounding to the tramp of armed men, now a sylvan solitude, beautifully shaded, delightfully watered, and abounding in vegetation and varied delights for the lovers of nature.

Before the start, a captain was appointed. Experienced picknickers always recognize the fact that there should be one responsible head, and that his will must be law. Within the crowd was one admirably fitted for the position. The honor and responsibility was forced upon him, and in the course of events confirmed unto him forever and forever more.

The site for this fort, commanding the only available approach from the coast to the upper end of the San Joaquin Valley, was selected in 1852 by General (then Lieutenant) E. F. Beale. Uncle Sam laid out a magnificent parade ground, and surrounded it with massive buildings ample for the accommocation of a regiment a thousand strong. Alack! it is a pity that from sheer thoughtlessness, closely akin to vandalism, these magnificent cenotaphs of a former day and generation should have been let decay, until now the place of safety and defence, erected with such care, skill and thoroughness, is nothing but a mass of ruins. The buildings are roofless and untenanted; the parade ground, once so trim and neat, is unkempt and desolate; even the soldier dead lie in their little acre unmarked and unknown. The one marble slab, having as inscription:

IN MEMORY OF 1ST LIEUT.
THOMAS F. CASTOR,
COMPANY A, 1ST REGT.
U. S. DRAGOONS.
DIED AT FORT TEJON,
SEPT 8, 1855.
AGED 35 YRS.

is not only rent from its base, but is broken in twain, and, even where he lay, in whose memory it was erected, cannot now be told. And yet, a martial genius pervades the place. It even may be that at dead of night, the forgotten return again, and in rank and file with the light step of that which has no substance, to the music of long ago, deploy and manœuvre even as if of the living present. Certes, the place is haunted with martial memories, and the spirit of those who now are not, still lingers lovingly around the deserted ruins.

In such an aroma, organization a la militaire became a necessity, and, after rule and pattern—in which orderly things human nature does so truly delight—a company was formed, christened The Foxtail Rangers, with the foreordained captain at the head, and other officers in ample supply, according to wonted needs in piping times of peace. That all were officers goes without saying, but that all alike were willing to obey and to help, bespoke a happy degree of comfort not always present in a picnic party, and so the happy days flew by, each vieing for entertainment of the others, and all enjoying the delights of the land.

One day there occurred a genuine sensation. Years before the recorded occupation of this country by white men, someone who will be forever unknown, had carefully chiseled in the hard wood of one of the giant oaks which here abound, the following inscription:

I. H. S.
†
PETER LEBECK KILLED BY A x BEAR
OCT'R 17
1837

In repairing ravages the tree had gradually put forth new growth, until this inscription of 52 years ago was almost covered from sight. Disputing about a letter, part of which could be seen, one of the party cut into the new growth with an axe. It was found that the old wood had rotted away from the embrace of the new, leaving quite a cavity. Into this hole, one of the ladies of the party put her hand and felt letters in relief. The result was, that the new growth, with bark and wood together nearly three inches thick, was cut away from the old scar and there in relief was Nature's stereotype of man's inscription to Peter Lebeck. More remarkable still, the new bark on its face shows some of the letters of inscription in relief, while the obverse of the new growth has the reverse imprint or sterotype. It is perhaps easy to understand how the new growth started gradually from the sides of the cut and in time filled every wound made upon the tree, its parent. It sought to repair what it considered the ruthless damage of the past and with the tight embrace of youth filled every cavity; but how and why this new mantle should bear upon its face in bold relief, the scar that for so many patient years it grew to conceal, is beyond the ken of wistful man.

The new growth inscription was carefully packed and safely taken to Bakersfield by the returning rangers. At the time of the great fire, it was one of the first things to be taken to a place of safety. Since then it has been carefully examined by many and numerous speculations as to its how and why have resulted. Photographs of it have been taken and for a long time its permanent place seemed to vibrate between Gen. Beals Washington home and the Smithsonian Institute. The General finally sensibly settled its status and it now lies safely in a bank vault at Bakersfield, subject to the control of the Captain of the Foxtail Rangers.

CHAPTER II.

And so the Rangers journeyed home again bearing happy memories and mementoe of a pleasant trip. But there was also something to think about. The inscription to Peter Lebeck carved so deeply in the oak tree and so astonishingly reproduced by nature could not help but cause reflection and in due time there crystallized in the minds of all the Rangers this one thought: "What more can we learn and what else can we find about this man whose only memento is a carefully carved inscription antedating all other known records of the advent of white men into this territory?" The desire to discover more became unanimous while what might be done came to be spoken of with bated breath. Such feeling in due time passes from speculation to deed, and in the natural course of things it occurred that one evening each of the Rangers received the following:

BAKERSFIELD, July 12, 1890.

General order No. 23, Series B, General Attention Company!

"The time for the annual sojourn of the rangers approacheth. Hence therefore, you and all of you, collectively and severally, are ordered upon pain of expulsion to prepare yourselves and on Thursday, July 17, 1890 at 8 o'clock P. M. fall into line at Encampment H. ready for the yearly pilgrimage to the hills, the oaks and the pleasant places of Fort Tajon. Per order, ————

Captain.

"Countersigned,
————Post Chaplain."

Ready for much more than the order expresses, that is to say, with the wish dear to all explorers, to discover and to conquer, the little company of twenty two met promptly on time, and were soon on the road driving to the James Ranch, there to rest and afterward with early morning start to pleasantly course over the valley and reach the mountains ere the heat of the day. So it was done and once again beside the babbling brook a hearty breakfast was enjoyed, and after a delightful drive through the mountain canon, winding with the brooks' devious ways and always climbing up and up until Fort Tejon was reached. A lovely resting place and in no wise unsubstantial, for had not the cook with his load of bedding, tents, delicacies and comestibles reached the place at early dawn and was there not a smoking meal ready for the hungry—when all were hungry? Aye! so there was.

It is a place fit for the gods and closely accommodates itself to lesser wants. Some one gets ambitious for a deer. Make ready, climb the mountain sides, stalk a little after the manner of a careful hunter, and soon straight away into camp comes the victor with his vanquished. A bear is desired. It takes skill, endurance and acumen, but somehow, bear meat soon comes to be less than a camp luxury. The ladies with pea rifles, rarely venturing to the lawless extreme of a shot gun, are continually bringing into camp some little thing or other, sometimes welcome for a stew, again better fitted to adorn a hat or perhaps illumine some dream in calico. The little tots even venture out of their own accords and come back laden with wild roses, clematis and tales of thrilling adventures. On every side there awaits a new experience.

And all were comfortable, lazily enjoying the delights of the land day by day and night after night, yet each haunted with a put off and unspoken wish. The deed had to be done and so one pleasant morning the captain gave the order to "fall in by twos." Led by two tiny girls hand in hand, the Rangers marched from camp to the Peter Lebeck tree, where arriving, the little leaders divided, marching one upon the one side, one upon the other, the elders following, so that upon the command "halt," the Rangers stood in horse-shoe form around a place which was supposed to be the grave of Peter Lebeck.

The captain then said: "Comrades; as we well know the attempt before us in one which has had serious consideration and is dear to our hearts. When Gen. Beale suggested that an effort should be made to discover, if possible, any relics of the first recorded pioneer of Kern County, and promised in the event thereof to have a fac simile of the original inscription done in marble and placed upon this tree at the head of Peter Lebeck's grave, he voiced the unanimous wish of us all. We are here to-day for that purpose, and not as vandals hut with tender hearts, do we now intend to make an attempt to uncover the remains of Peter Lebeck. The adjutant will now read that extract from Gen. Beale's speech at the banquet tendered to him two years ago, which refers to Peter Lebeck."

The adjutant advanced and read as follows;

"As the name implied, he must have been one of that remarkable class of men, once better known than now, the Canadian voyageurs. That he was a great man among them is almost certain from the care with which the inscription had been made. The lettering was well executed and had been deeply cut. It was formed to remain while the tree lasted, but the incisions have long since closed, and now the inscription stands out in bold relief, as if Nature herself were inclined to aid in preserving the memory of our first pioneer. In connection with this simple record of death, a tale might be imagined more pathetic than Evangeline. Who knows by whom he may have been loved and mourned in the same Arcadia on the far shores of the Atlantic? Fancy the sentiment, the love, the hopes and the holy ambitions that may have prompted an expedition, the toils, dangers and tediousness of which the young man of the present day cannot even imagine. From what direction he may have come there is no sign. He may have reached this coast through the wilds of Canada and Oregon and been this far, by way of the interior valleye of California, on his route to the hamlet of Los Angeles, of which he may have heard, intending to return by a route that would have taken him through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, and thence through the uninhabited Western wilderness to the St. Lawrence and to his home. But of his long wanderings, whether he was travelling Northward or Southward, we can only conjecture. This simple, pathetic record alone remains to tell that he was the first pioneer of Kern County, and as such he should be honored."

Then at a sign from the Caplain, the Post Chaplain took up the theme, saying: "Peter Lebeck! Peter Lebeck! Peter Lebeck! No answer? Is there no key which will unlock a door tightly closed and sealed for three and fifty years? Is there no way by which we can look through the mold and gloom of this grave, back to the time when he was sentient and a living man among his fellows? What manner of man was he? Did he leave a home in some far off Arcadia with deliberate purpose and launch forth upon the stream of life, self centered, well equipped in mental powers, determined to conquer and in due time return to his own and his dear ones with a golden argosy—yet, by unforseen disaster lie stranded here? Or, did he float out like a waif upon the ocean of life, drifted to and fro, buffeted hither and thither by adverse tides and detaining storms until at last, here lies of his life only its flotsam and jetsam? May there have been an Evangeline who patiently, hopefully, perpetually followed, always behind, ever apart, and who now lies in some faraway, never reunited with her own?

What may have been is only conjecture, but it is certain that by kindly hands he was tenderly laid to rest. And in what a place! Greater than mausoleum of king or potentate! Shaded from midday sun by these giant oaks, amid whose shimmering leaves the twittering birds sing daily requiem. By night, the twinkling stars look down upon this quiet grave guarded by stately sentinels. In pleasant days here is a sylvan solitude, disturbed only by bird songs and the busy hum of countless insects, which have nature's right to live. And in time of storm, when these mighty branches creak and writhe in the embrace of the tempest, the tender grasses over his head gently bow before the blast, when the storm is over to rise again. Arise again! The hope of immortality is the one and only alleviation of the bitterness of death. And, it is wide as all humanity. When, one by one each of this little party with unwilling feet steps slowly down into the embrace of death, our friends and dear ones left behind, in full hope and faith will say of us: "Ye shall rise again."

We of another day and generation are here gathered around the grave of one who was not of our time, was of another nationality, speaking perhaps a different tongue, differing from us in thought, habit and custom, and yet with one accord we hopefully and reverently say: 'Thou too shalt arise again Peter Lebeck.' "

Then a hymn was sung.

CHAPTER III.

The preliminaries had been done, each in its turn. The Rangers had become impressed and stood, little ones and all in their proper order, serious and expectant.

With a mingled sense of relief and gruesomeness the captain's voice was heard, saying "to pick and shovel, each man working five minutes in his turn" It is no slight affair to disentomb the dead. There is a graveyard creepiness about it and back of that, the instinctive sense of all humanity, to "let the dead rest." Yet, the Rangers had visited that spot for a purpose and were determined, reverently, yet persistently to make a careful search for the remains of Kern's earliest known pioneer. A place upon the east side of the oak and inscription had been chosen, carefully laid out by compass, and here the work commenced. At nearly four feet from the surface human remains were encountered, and with intense interest and in almost deathly stillness the bones of Peter Lebeck after a burial of three years were exposed to the light of day.

The body had been carefully laid in the tomb, due east and west by magnetic meridian. The left arm was folded upon a fleshless breast. The right forearm was missing, as also both feet and the left hand. Two ribs upon the left side were broken. It was considered strange that feet and left hand should all be gone, apparently unjointed, when that little bone the os hyoides was intact, unless upon the presumption that the bear which killed him had gnawed the extremities. The skeleton was nearly six feet long and broad in proportion. The skull is noble, with lofty brow, wide between the eyes and jaws and deep

But one tooth was missing, a right lower molar. The bones were copper colored and in a remarkable state of preservation. Upon finding the skeleton, shovels were discarded and with every possible attempt not to displace the remains from their bed of earth, the dirt surrounding was carefully removed with case-knives and fingers until the frame work of the so long dead was exposed to the light of day, when several photographs were taken. The surrounding earth was carefully worked over by hand, in the hope that something of metallic nature, even a button, could be found to be religiously preserved as a relic of this almost prehistoric pioneer. Nothing in the way of sign or symbol or message from a day long since gone by could be discovered. The inference was that he was probably clad in buckskin, and upon being lowered into the grave his remains were carefully laid out and then covered to await the coming of the resurrection.

The sealed past had been broken in upon. The quiet rest of over half a century had been invaded, and nothing remained but to re-cover the ancient tomb; and after a brief exposure to the sunlight of the present day, the historic remains of Peter Lebeck were again gently put from human sight. The re-made grave was carefully mounded over, a temporary paling erected, around it, and the ladies covered the mound with flowers.

Thus ends a strange, eventful history, but its recollections with patient tendrils will weave in and around and forever remain in the hearts of the Foxtail Rangers.

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., July 31, 1890.

The Country Club.

Through the kindliness of President F. R. Webster, we are enabled to present the scores made by the Country Club at its first general tournament held at Monterey on July 26th. The club prefers that the scores of its ordinary monthly meetings should not be published, but departs from its rule in respect to an event of such importance as that now chronicled, in which all members participated. In sending the scores Mr. Webster adds:

"Enclosed please find the scores of the Country Club shoot held at Monterey on July 26th and 27th near the Hotel del Monte. The occasion was an outing and picnic of the club. The guests of the hotel, numbering about 400, including ladies and officers of the army stationed at Monterey, were present. The Presidio 4th Artillery Band discoursed music during the shoot. The birds were all good and strong, having been turned out for a week previous to the shoot, and the total percentage of the club 72.63 is good, considering that two or three participants were novices at pigeon shooting. In the evening a ball was given at the hotel to the club. The day was lovely and everybody pronounced the first outing of the Country Club a success."

In each of the matchee sides were chosen, the losing side to pay for the birds, and five handsome souvenirs were offered for the five better individual scores by President F. R. Webster in the first match, which were won, 1st by Mr. R. B. Woodward, after shooting off a tie with Mr. Webster; 2nd by Mr. F. R. Webster; 3rd by Mr. J. D. Redding; 4th by Mr. F. W. Tallant, after shooting off a tie with Mr. W. B. Tubbs, who then took 5th.

July 26th—First match—At 24 birds, A. S. A. rules. For Webster medals and the birds. Team Match.

"Wanted, a Naturalist."

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Under the above title an editorisl of nearly a columu in length recently appeared in one of our dsily pspers of "lsrgest circulation" and was discussed by a coterie of scientists who unanimously agreed that it merited and called for a reply. A reply which should oorrect the errors of misinformation contsined therein and notice some of the desiderata which that editor in iguorance assumes to he lacking. The present writer, who was absent from that assemblage of locsl scientists, wss by mutnal consent delegated to review the article in justice to those men and women who hsve dedicated their lives to the study of natnrsl history.

The present aspect of the want seems rsther for an apprecistive public and a press which shall ntilize popular articles (which at the same time are sccurate) in preference to sensational nstural history papers prepsred by itinersnt pseudo-naturalists or founded upon mariner's tales of living oreatures whose biographies are well known to the technical scientists.

The writer of the editorial under criticism is plainly ignorant of the populsr and semi-populsr works concerning the natural history of this state when he ssys, "California's birds have heen entirely ignored as a subject of populsr study."

That the road runner should resemble the cuckoo need excite no astonishment when it is known thst the rosd-rnnner is a true cnckoo with feet sdspted to a terrestrial life. That the Californian woodpeckers hosrd acorns for the kernel of the acorns which they est, and not for a minute gruh that may sometimes be found in it, is well known to ornithologists, and has heen amply proved hy dissection.

G. W. Dunn who informed the reporter "that he had discovered ten new species of birds" on Gnadsloupe Island, is known as a collecting naturalist. The facts pertaining to that discovery are these. In 1885 he visited the island and secnred some fine specimens (not species) which were not new to science. It was Dr. Edward Palmer who was the first naturalist to visit that "lone isle of the sea" in 1875, and he collected eight new species, and the writer in 1886 noted twenty-seven additional species, one of which was new.

The ignorance of the public regarding the hirds of this State is well shown hy the bestowal of the name "California canary" npon nearly a dozen different speoies helonging to several different genera and families. The systematic work of specialists is necessary to disentangle this confusion of names, and while eaoh bird has a scientific appellstion by which a scientist recognizes it, so too has each bird one, and usually more, vernacnlar names of which the people msy take their choice, but they had far hetter learn to know a bird by the name in most common use than to call nearly all small yellowish hirds "csnaries" and small obscurely marked ones "chippies"—names which cover a multitude of species.

The majority of people know of two "lady bugs," a rounded red one (family Coccinelidæ) and a more elongsted, green, hlack spotted kind (family Chrysomelidae)· both are fonnd upon vegetation in gardens and impartisily treated to sprays of tobacco juice, whale oil, lime water, etc. The former is a trne "lady bng" and feeds exclusively upon animal food, being thereby of decided benefit to horticulturalists, the latter is a vegetable feeder and does considerable damage to roses and table vegetahles.

So oalled popular science is too often welcomed hecanse of its marvelous nature and accepted without question as to its authenticity. The very absurdity of some statements should he suffioient to stamp them as unreliable and having no plaoe in popular or technical science. A few quotations from a work used as a text book in schools will serve to illustrate, without comment, the qnslity of the popular literatnre which seemed to he wanting and may have called forth the editorial in question.

The voice of the Bear Howler (Mycetes ursinus) is "londer than the roar of the lion, hsving heen heard two miles off."

"Since the lion's larynx is relatively lsrger than thst of any other mammsl, there may he no exaggeration in the ststement that its roar sometimes shakes the ground like an esrthqnske."

"The pupil of his (the lion's) eye is ronnd snd his strength is such that he can carry off a cow with ease, even leaping broad dikes and keeping ahead of pursuing horsemen for miles without dropping it."

"Its (the tiger's) strength enables it to osrry off a buffalo thrown over its shonlder."

The jaguar is more powerfnl than the leopsrd being able to carry off a horse with ease."

"The dog never perspires, even in the hottest weather."

"The expression 'catch a wessel asleep' is hssed upon the esse with which the animal may he canght when sleeping, on account of the sonndness of its slumber."

When such decayed statements psss current for populsr science and are taught to the youth and "listened to with eagerness snd remembered even longer thsn the smile on his first sweethesrt's face," the systematic nsturalist of best intentions, who would fain popularize his heloved ology hetakes himself in despair to his more enlightened fraternity, his specimens snd his books. The Massena Quail.

There is one species of quail in the far Southwest that is a rarity to naturslists snd museums. Hunters snd sportsmen scarcely ever encounter it, for this peculiar hird ranges high, from 4,000 to 9,000 feet, and nests in the most unfrequented rocky places. Its Latin name is "Cyrtonyx Montezums," so called from its partiality to the land of the Aztecs, where it is to be found at certsin sessons of the year in considerable numbers. Its oommon, every-dsy name is the "Massena partridge," or black quail, says an exchange. Just across the Rio Grsnde, in old Mexico, the lsnd is mountsinons, rocky and elevated. Here, as well ss in Northwestern Texas and Southwestern New Mexico, is the trne home of the Massens qnail. There are two other species of the family indigenous to this latitude, the "Bob White" and the hlne top-knot quail.

At present this country for scores of miles in every direction is one vast nesting snd hreeding ground for quails. "Bob Whites" are very common. In the lowlands along the Rio Pecos, in the chaparral of the Nueces, San Antonio and Guadaloupe rivers, around Fort Clark snd Del Rio, the number of "Bob Whites" to he seen is almost beyond belief Scarcely a hundred yards of soil can he passed over without encountering a psir that are nesting and husily attentive to domestic affairs. Although none but pot hunters would think of interfering with the birds at this sesson, nevertheless thousands are trapped and snared hy nnscrupulous people, and in consequence innumerahle motherless chicks are left to perish in the nests. During the open season a hunter with a good dog oan hsve all the sport he wsnts.

The hlue qnail in this portion of the Lone Stsr Stste is fonnd in great nnmbers. It frequents rocky places and snarls of chaparra', snd to hunt it a dog is of very little service. As a sprinter he csn outrnn snything on two legs in this or any other country. The wild turkey gohhler, who is fsmed for his speed snd endurance, is no match for the hlue quail. Why he trusts to his legs instead of his pinions no one seems to know, hut from study of his hsbits and exsmination of his anatomy it is the opinion that his plump weight and small wings have a great deal to do with the matter.

The Msssena or hlack qnail, whose hsbits and ways are so little known, is a totally different species from its cousin of the cerulean plnmage. Instesd of starting awsy st a 2:40 gait and endeavoring to ontstrip his pursuer, the Massena lies snugly concealed, and will not move nnless actually forced to do so. It makes fine hunting for dogs, but his range is so high and he nests in snch unfrequented spots that no civilized dog wonld csre to make the trip. Capt. Charles E. Bendire, of the National Musenm at Washington, who is familiar with this hird and hss spent a large part of his life on the American frontier in search of ornithological knowledge, knows perhaps more about the Massena or hlack qnail than any other hiped on the North American ontinent. "Their favorite resort," he says, "is a rocky ravine that hegins well up in the mountains, thongh they qnickly fall in with changed conditions of life. In Mexico they are sometimes seen living contentedly in csges. Their nest is a hollow in the ground or against a satol plant. The note of the Massens is a low, murmuring whine, more like thst of the rock squirrel than a bird, and oan be heard quite a distance. They are very fond of laurel-arhutus, cedar berries and tree berries, and go to water regularly every day.

The country surrounding Fort Davis has an elevalion of 5200 feet, more or less, and is one of the very best for Massena quail. Mr. T. A, Merrill, a mountain ranchman, has met and snared these birds on many occssions, and he calls them "monntain guineas" or "rock quail." He says they fly only twice, the last time only a short distance, and if pushed closely will seek escape by hiding. "A man on foot meeting a covey of the proper size can bag all he wants to," says Mr. Merrill, "hut to catch a blue qnail get a good mustang who can dodge chaparral and jump prairie dog holes. Once, while still hunting deer in the Diahlo Mountains, I came near shooting myself through the mischievons actions of a lot of haby Massenas. I saw a large black-tail deer quietly browsing in the timber, and with my rifle cooked I crept softly forward in order to get a clear shot. Suddenly from the tall and matted grass at my feet, as I plsced my left foot carefnlly forward, there was a rush and a loud flutter, which so startled me that I sprang hack in alarm, at the same time nnconsciously pressing the trigger. There was a bang, a report, the deer hounded away like a shot, my nerves were unstrung, and I stood there shivering from head to foot. It was only a Massena nest, from whioh the parents and yonng at my intrusion had dashed bodily forth."

Mr. Merrill lost his qusrry, and no douht he thought it very hard to miss getting a deer within such easy range, hnt what would a naturalist have given for this grand opportnnity of securing the nest and young of the Massena partridge? Even our National Museum at Washington, an institution possessing almost a complete collection of North American birds, is without a specimen or nest of this rare quail, and it seems a pity that such an opportunity as fell to the lot of Mr. Merrill should have been missed when it was so easy of accomplishment.

Messrs. James Sanderson, W. C. Brown, Sanford Bennett and Mr. Reed hunted Mine Ridge on Tamalpais Mountain Saturday last and started two deer, but the fog was too dense to permit shooting.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Sound Doctrine.

Mr. C. M. Munhall, a prominent member of the Kennel Clnb of Cleveland, Ohio, and generally knowu throughout America as a well posted and enthusiastic fancier of pointers and other good dogs has begun a war upon the kennel ordinances of Cleveland and nltimately upon sll similar local measures which cannot but result in s advantage to dog owners everywhere. He addresses the oity officers of his town in this vigorous fashion.

The attempt of city officials to scsre owners of dogs into paying the new tsx by threats of shooting sll canines that do not wesr the city tsg, is not much to their credit. The State law may he legal, bnt it is questionable, and under the city ordinaoce as passed by the Council, it would be difficult to tell how the city would proceed against owners of dogs if they refnsed to pay. Ooe thing is certain, dogs sre property, snd have heen so recognized hy the courts of the State, and the Council or police have no right to order thst they be shot. This city collected some $30,000 the past five yesrs illegally from owners of dogs, and would have continued it if the writer had not gone into court and procnred the injnnction which was granted. They made the same threats then, and I solicited often to he srrested for not paying, hnt could not he accommodsted, and had to go into court alone. It's not protection to our citizens that they care about, it's the dollars that they are sfter. No one will question the right of the city to regnlate the running at large of dogs, but I hardly think they can sell owners the right for $1 to allow their dogs the privilege of doing so.

Does the city claim that it can srrest a man for debt? Upon failure to pay legal taxes, property can be seized and sold, hut the owner cannot be srrested or fined I question the right of any policeman to come on my premises and demand the nnmber of dogs that I own. Where does he get such "authority?" Certainly not from the State law, ss thst delegates that power to assessors only. No owner of a valnable dog will object to paying taxes on the dogs that he may hsve, if the law is good snd he receives protection, but they do object to heing coerced into paying into the city money which it has no right to, and cannot collect through process of law. Let the owners of dogs pay their dollars into the treasnry of the Cleveland Kennel Clnb, and the law will he tested in the conrts without delay.

The courts of Ohio have held, over and over, that dogs are property. Being property, they cannot he taken from their owners without due process of law. That means that the owner mnst have a suit hronght against him in a proper court and have a chance to show why his property should not he destroyed before it can lawfnlly be destroyed. The jndges who have thns held knew what they were doing. They were familiar with the well-known fact that dogs do more to protect life and property from criminals, than paid policemen do. They also recognized the fact that a household pet may hsve a sentimental vslne to the people of that house, jnst as a picture, or other ornament, may have value to the same people or to any household. Dogs, being property, are snhject to all laws that apply to other property. A soap factory is property; hnt when a soap factory becomes a nuisance, it can he abated. In both cases there must be "a day in court." To declare sll dogs nuisances by ordinance and doom them to death unless they are licensed, it is absurd as it would be to attempt to destroy all soap factories in a wholesale way.

As dogs are property, they are snbjects of taxation; just as soap factories are. If the owners do not pay the tax, they can he distrained as in other cases. That is to say, the property itself, the dog, can be taken for the tax. If the dog will not sell for enough to pay his tax, it is probahle the city could sell him to the glue factory. In no case has the city a right to send around a policeman to shoot the dog on the owner's premises, or anywhere else. Threats of killing the people's dogs if they did not do this or that have heretofore frightened many dollars into the public treasury; but that does not make new threats of a like sort any more reasonable or lawful. There is a dog ordinance in process of heing enforced. If it is like those whioh have heen enacted in former years, it is worthless. If it is a sound ordinance, there will be no wholesale butchery of dogs as intimated hy the city clerk, unless the officers who assume to enforce it transcend their authority. There are bad dogs in every city. If the ratio of them to the total equaled that of bad men to good ones, it is not certain that the conrts would hold dogs to have value. Bad dogs, like bad men, should be dealt with. How? Why, just as bad men are, on complaint of those who are aggrieved. In other words, it is time enough to proceed against a dog, when some one finds fault with the dog. Every sane man knows that in 99 out of every 100 cases, notice of complaint to an owner would be all that would be needed, and in the other case, if it were reasonable, the court would order proper relief. There has never been need of the stupid ordinances that have been wrongly imposed on this people during several years last past, and there are good reasons for believing that this year's effort is no better than its illegitimate predecessors.

Sales.

Mr. A. B. Truman has sold to Mr. F. B. Dexter (Fresno) an Irish red setter dog, whelped June 1, 1890 by ch Mike T —ch Lady Elcho T.

Origin of the Dog.

The origin of the dog is wrapped up in so much obscurity that it has completely baffled the researches of the most famous naturalists from the earliest period. Many suggestions have been made as to the source whence it has been derived. Upon this point Darwin says: "Some authors believe that all the breeds of dogs have descended from the wolf, or from the jackal, or from an unknown or extinct species." Others again believe, and this of late has been the favorite tenet, that they have descended from several species, extinct or recent, more or less commingled together, says a kennel writer. We shall probably never be able to ascertain their origin with certainty. Remains have been found in the later tertiary deposits more like those of a large dog than a wolf, which favors the belief of De Blainville that our dogs are the descendants of a single extinct species.

On the other hand, some authors go so far as to assert that every chief domestic breed must have had its wild prototype. This latter view is extremely improbable. It allows nothing for variation; it passes over the almost monstrous character of some of the breeds, and it almost necessarily assumes that a large number of species have become extinct since man domesticated the dog, whereas we see that wild members of the dog family are exterminated by human agency with much difficulty. Even so recently as in 1710 the wolf existed in so small an island as Ireland. The great naturalist inclined to the belief that the various breeds of the domestic dog are descended from several wild species. The dog is a member of the family Canidae, which includes not only the dog, but also their near allies, the foxes, wolves, and jackals. Cuvier's classification, which is founded on natural laws, is divided into three sections, as follows:

First, matins, which are characterized by the head, being more or less elongated, with the parietal bones insensibly approaching each other. In this section are included half reclaimed dogs, such as the dingo, the dhole, which hunt in packs, and domesticated dogs hunting singly or in packs, using the eye in preference to the nose, such as deerhounds, greyhounds, etc.

Second, spaniels, the characteristics of which are that the head is moderately elongated, with the parietal bones not approaching each other, but diverging so as to enlarge the forehead and cavity of the brain. In this section are included pastoral dogs, water dogs, fowlers and hounds.

Third, house dogs, the muzzles in which are more or less shortened, the skull high, the frontal sinuses considerable, and the cranium smaller than in the two former groups. This section includes such dogs as are solely employed in the defense of man or his property, such as the mastiff, bull dog, etc.

Fred Dexter, chief clerk of Fulton S. Berry's Grand Central Hotel, Fresno, is one of the pains-taking fanciers of fine dogs in the southern counties, and an ardent lover of the sports of the fields. He has a splendid Gordon setter, and has now become owner of one of Mr. Truman's high bred Irish Red setters'.

On Wednesday last Dr. N. Rowe, editor and manager of the American Field, sailed in the steamship Majestic for Europe with the object as he says in a note "of obtaining a very much needed rest and with the hope of recuperating a condition of health which has been alarming since a serious illness last winter." We wish the brilliant editor, royal companion, perfect sportsman and esteemed friend the utmost pleasure and profit in his excursion. Sportsmanship in America without Rowe is like Hamlet without Booth.

As an indication of the interest taken in the inter-state coursing project for November next at Merced, we publish by permission a few extracts from a letter received last week by Mr. F. G. Stewart of this city, from Dr. Q. Van Hummel, of Kansas City, Mo., a very noted greyhound fancier and breeder. Dr. Van Hummel writes: "Now you are in a country where you will have use for a brace of greyhounds. The greyhound men out there are getting up a $3,000 stake, and wrote me, asking if I would come if they did raise that money. I wrote them that barring accidents I would. I now have two grand litters by Babazoun, one out of Verdure Clad, she by Greentick, out of Cotillion by Misterton, winner of the Waterloo Cup in 1879. Greentick is sire of Fullerton, the winner of the cup this year. The runner up was Downpour by Brittain Still. Brittain Still is the sire of Babazoun, so you see my puppies are by a half brother to the runner up, and out of a half sister to the winner of the Waterloo this year. This I regard as the best blood in the world. Misterton, the sire of Brittain Still and Cotillion, won in 1879. Babazoun's dam is Facination by Peter, brother to Princess Dagmar, winner of the cup in 1886. So you see our blood is all from high bred winning strains. Mortimer, the sire of Mr. H. C. Lowe's Partera is by Peter. I fancy my breeding because it has several infusions of Misterton, who has sired more winners than any other dog that ever lived. I have another litter by Babazoun, out of Carmine by Venture, out of Fox Glove by Mas-McGrath. Venture by Misterton. Get acquainted with the officers of the Occidental Coursing Club."

The Fish Commission.

The meeting of the Fish Commission for August was held on Tuesday last at 220 Sutter street. A full Board was present. After the reading of the minutes and their approval, the report of the Chief of Patrol was presented as follows:

THE HONORABLE, THE BOARD OF FISH COMMISSIONERS, GENTLEMEN:—The report of the Chief of Patrol for the month of July is respectfully submitted herewith.

The month has not been productive of results as great as were anticipated probably because of the endeavors put forth heretofore by your Honorable Board.

On July 1st, in company with Inspector Ennis a thorough inspection of the markets of this city was made and several places examined where deer had been placed under such circumstances as to suggest their being does, without in any instance finding anything but bucks.

The 6th and 7th of the month were passed at Port Costa and along the adjacent fishing territory also in company with Inspector Ennis. In accordance with the wish of the Board, a steam launch was engaged but at the last moment and after our departure for Port Costa, the owner of the launch refused to allow it to be used, giving as a reason that he preferred not to have his boat employed against his fellow countrymen. Such work as could be accomplished under the disadvantage was performed. Several nets were examined without finding any with illegally sized meshes.

On the 14th, information reached me that a large number of deer hides were stored at 18 and 20 Battery St. Visiting the place, the proprietor, Mr. Blumenthal, kindly gave access to all parts of his premises and permitted inspection of his shipping receipt book. Several boxes of skins, fox, wild cat, coyote and other sorts were found but not a single deer skin.

July 27th, went to Belmont and Redwood City to ascertain whether quail trapping was being done but found none at either place.

On the 29th, the warehouse of Messrs. C. S. Moses & Co. on Bluxome St. in this city was inspected, complaint having been made that deer hides had been sent within a few days, which the firm refused to receive until after inspection by a deputy. It was ascertained that some five or six hides, all of them buck skins, had been sent with a consignment of fifteen bundles of pelts and sheep skins. Messrs. Moses & Co. stated that they should handle no deer hides except after inspection by your Honorable Board or Deputies.

Thos. Denigan, Esq., gave a similar assurance.

On the 29th, a number of hides were examined at the warehouse of W. B. Sumner & Co., from none of which had evidence of sex been removed.

The market inspection is kept up persistently as well as that along the wharves and city front and it is believed that very few, if any deer skins are being received from which evidence of sex has been removed.

Inspector Ennis during the latter part of the month visited Lake County where he destroyed a number of quail traps and distributed numerous copies of the game law.

Respectfully submitted, F. P CALLUNDAN,
SAN FRANCISCO, August 5, 1890. Chief of Patrol.

In connection with and supplementary to the report of Mr. Callundan, Commissioner Harvey remarked that a recent inspection of the hatcheries in Northern California had convinced him that they were operating as effectively as possible; he also stated that the great severity of the winter had about exterminated the deer in the Northern part of the State and he thought but little traffic in hides could be done. License Collector Curley, stated that he had made some collections during June and July but not having his book at hand, he could not state the precise amount. The report of the Superintendant of Hatcheries, Mr. J. G. Woodbury, was read as follows:

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF HATCHERIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3rd, 1890.

To the State Board of Fish Commissioners, San Francisco.

GENTLEMEN: Since I last reported to you we have continued our efforts at Lake Tahoe to seine and trap trout for spawning, but on account of the heavy snows the past winter, the streams which empty into Lake Tahoe still continue to be flooded with snow water, making it very difficult to build and maintain traps in the streams. After seining at the mouth of Taylor Creek in April and May, and getting only about 700,000 to 800,000 eggs, the run of fish dwindled down very fast. We expected to get many more eggs here, but comparatively few fish could be caught. After this we seined at the mouth of Meeks and Blackwood Creeks and at the Incline, in Nevada, and also built traps in Meeks, Phipps and Blackwood Creeks, but with very poor success,

There have been no fish to speak of which have made their appearances at the mouths of any of these streams. At the above named places, trout in great numbers, even as high as 500 per night have been caught. But this year for some unaccountable reason they have not made their appearance unless it may be the streams were booming with cold roily snow water. The fishermen say that the fish have spawned in the lake.

I have had the traps all taken up and laid away for next spring, and we have begun to distribute the fish. One of the men from there will the coming week be put to distributing black bass and trout from Sisson. We have taken about 1,600,000 eggs of the rainbow trout at the Shovel Creek hatchery, about 1,000,000 of which were shipped to the Sisson hatchery, hatched out and are now ready for shipment. 100,000 were shipped to the North Pacific Game and Fish Club and hatched out by Mr. Lamotte at Glen Ellen and distributed in Sonoma and Robinson Creeks in Sonoma and Mendocino Co's. free of cost to the Commission. 150,000 eggs were shipped to Alex. Badlam and hatched out at his hatchery near Mt. St. Helena. These are hatched out and will be distributed in streams in Napa and Lake Co's.

Fifty thousand eggs were shipped to Mr. Knowles, who has a hatchery near Alma. These were hatched out all right but by some mishap they did not do well. I shipped a second 50,000 to him, which are hatched out and are now doing well and will be distributed in Los Gatos Creek.

Fifty thousand eggs were shipped to the hatchery at the Hotel Del Monte. This lot did not do well through want of experience and the high temperature of the water caused by low water in their reservoir from the main pipe having washed out last winter.

I shipped a second 50,000 eggs there. These have hatched out and with more experience have done well. These will be distributed in the Carmelo River and in their reservoirs. The hatching out of these eggs, their expressage from Shovel Creek, and the distribution of the young trout has been done free of expense to the Commission.

I visited the Del Monte hatchery several times, Mr. Knowles twice and Mr. Alex. Badlam's hatchery once to give instructions.

Fifty thousands of these eggs were shipped to the State hatchery at Tahoe on application of Com. Todman, to be planted in the Truckee River.

Sixty thousand have been hatched out at Shovel Creek; 50,000 more are now hatched out there and will be planted in Shovel Creek as soon as they are old enough. This is to give back the seed for the future from the harvest we reaped there in eggs.

The hatchery at Shovel Creek has been in operation six weeks longer than it was expected it would be. This was caused by the cold backward season.

This hatchery will be closed for the season in a few days. These rain-bow trout are now being shipped from the Sisson hatchery. 20,000 have been shipped and planted in Lagunitas Lake, 10,000 in the Lagunitas Creek, below the lake, 40,000 in the Crystal Springs Reservoir, 30,000 in the Alminitos Creek near New Almaden and the Guadalonpe Creeks, 30,000 in Saratoga Creek and Smith Creek near Mount Hamilton, a branch of the Calaveras Creek, 30,000 in the Arroyo Mocho, twelve miles south of Livermore and in the Calaveras and Alameda Creeks near Sunol.

We shall continue shipping these trout from Sisson all the summer and fall, till the salmon season opens at Sisson. We have made arrangements to ship these trout to the San Lorenzo Creek, the Pescadero, San Gregorio, Purissimo, Stevens and Permenents Creeks; also to the Salinas and its branches, the San Pablo, streams in San Luis Obispo Co. and into branches of the Napa Creek.

Yours respectfully, J. G: WOODBURY.

The usual batch of bills for operating the hatcheries and salaries amounting to about $1500 was then presented and approved, after which the commission adjourned to meet on the first Tuesday in September.

Doctor A. C. Heffenger of the Navy sends this prescription, which he assures us will obviate the fly nuisance when fishing. The preparation should be applied freely to the face, neck, hands and wrists, taking care not to allow it to enter the eyes. The formula is: Oil of spearmint and oil of pennyroyal, each two drams, olive oil and glycerine, each two ounces. Mix well, and shake before using.

On Hot and Cold Shoeing.

BY HENRY TWEEDLY, M. R. C. V. S.

By hot shoeing is meant the application of the shoe to the plantar surface of the hoof whilst in a more or less hot condition. From this it will be seen that if any injury occurs by the procedure it is due to the action of the heat on the tissues under the horn. Considerable differences of opinion exist regarding the propriety of hot and cold shoeing, many claiming great advantages to the latter.

Now is it a fact that hot shoeing is really injurious? Do we find many accidents occur from this method? Are they accidents when they do occur? Are they very formidable? The reply to these questions is surely given by the facts of daily practice in every country, and this reply is on all points negative. Certainly hot shoeing does not produce great injury, for thousands of hot shoes are daily applied, and it is very rare to observe any consecutive accidents. The reasons of this are very easily given. In the first place the horn composing the hoof is a very bad conductor of heat. In the second it is not when the hoof is deeply pared that the iron is brought into contact with it, and lastly, the time of contact is extremely short, this the more according to the thinness of the horn. It is owing to those precautions which are always carefully observed that no harm results from the application of the hot iron to the foot.

In comparing these two methods, the first fact is that the hot method is more easily executed and more rapid than the other. The horn when it is dry, is so hard that it is difficult to cut with the instruments, and consequently more time and exertion is required on the part of the workman than when it is previously softened by the application of heat, and quite as much injury is frequently done to the hoof by insufficient paring or when too much has been cut away.

Another advantage of hot shoeing is that the shoe thus applied is in much more intimate and solid relation with the hoof than when applied cold. Experiments on this head show that more than double the number of shoes were lost by cold than by hot application. Although at the present time almost every one concedes the superiority of hot shoeing, still exceptional cases exist when the cold method is preferable, for example, when the hoof is naturally very thin, or rendered so by excessive paring; or this may also occur when the animal has been forced to go bare-foot. In such cases the surface no longer offers a sufficient protection to the tensils, and these may be easily injured by the heat. In these cases the clever workman can turn and adjust the shoe so that very little trial is necessary in order to insure a proper fit, and when he finds it necessary to apply the shoe this is done with a very small amount of heat, and only for an instant's time.—Horse World.

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness Undeveloped will be sold. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission five per cent. Standard and High-Bred TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. Thts comprises over forty head of high-bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The Gentlemen's Driving Association.

OAKLAND TROTTING PARK.

The gentlemen of Oakland who lately formed an association and have since held matinees every Saturday afternoon are certainly to be congratulated all round on the grand success which has attended their efforts. Gradually increasing in numbers the association has branched out and now gives valuable prizes in each of the races and has an attendance of members and non-members at its gatherings such as would certainly be a credit to any association in point of numbers, while in behavior they would tend to leaven many a gathering of racing men. Last Saturday upwards of a thousand ladies and gentlemen were in the grounds in a variety of equipages from the neatly appointed landeau, elegant phaeton and stylish wagonnette to the racy looking road cart and light road wagon.

The judges of racing were Dr. E. H. Pardee, R. F. Simpson and L. J. Smith, while Sheriff W. E. Hale made an excellent clerk of the course. The prizes of which there were three prizes for each pacing and trotting race, viz: 1st prize, Fine Gold and Rubber-trimmed Harness; 2nd prize—Elegant all wool Horse Blanket; 3rd prize—Fine solid Whalebone Whip, were presented at the close of the meeting,

SUMMARY.

Pacing—2:30 class; mile heats three in five.

W. A. Birmingham's ch g Oregon Boy	1	1	2	1
Dr. C. H. Walker's b g Wash	2	2	1	2

Time, 2:42, 2:39, 2:39, 2:38.

There were origiually five entries, hut three failed to come up to time, and Mr. Birmingham's buckskin pacer, who was much the steadier of the pair who scored up for the word, won cleverly after losing the third heat to Dr. Walker.

SUMMARY.

Trotting—2:40 class; mile heats two in three.

J. C. Kimball's c g Blaine	2	1	1
R. B. Chisholm's b s Blue Bull	1	3	2
D. C. Brown's b m Sunrise	3	2	3
Charles Babb's g m Pet	4	5	5
W. J. Wilson's blk m Marble	5	5	5

Time, 2:38, 2:40, 2:37¼.

Blue Bull was the only one who did not break before the turn in the first heat, and oousequently had a good lead in the backstretch, where Blaine closed up rapidly, but losing ground round the upper turn, was never beaten down the stretch by Blue Bull. who was in front from start to finish. Blaine won the next two heats, and ran cleverly.

SUMMARY.

Pacing—2:25 class; mile heats 3 in 5.

H. Meek's b g Snicklefritz, a, Gladiator—by Whipple's Hambletonian	1	1	1
W. Coleman's ch g Haverly, a, Kansas Central—Puss	2	2	*

*Drawn. Time, 2:30, 2:29¼, 2:40.

This was the most interesting race of the day, hoth horses being well known performers, Haverly having made a record of 2:25 in 1887, while Snicklefritz last year at Marysville paced in 2:29½ with ease. The race was hotly contested by the hay gelding, and although Haverly showed the most pace, he was too erratic, and could not be kept to work, and the first heat resulted in a win for Suicklefritz; after they had paced like a double team for seven-eights, Haverly broke, losing the heat.

The second heat was an easy win for the bay gelding, as with Haverly breaking on the first turn, he paced along in front, winning easily by four lengths in 2:29¼. Mr. Coleman now wished to put Lije Downer up behind Haverly, and as the judges refused, his horse was drawn. as Mr. Webber, who had driven up to, now refused to drive again. Snicklefritz walked over for first prize in 2:40.

SUMMARY.

Pacing—2:30 class; mile heats two in three.

George Anderson's c g Gipsey	3	2	1	1
Dr. C. H. Walker's b g Woodchuck	4	1	3	3
D. Landregan's b m Berkeley Girl	2	3	4	4
S. D. Ingram's b g Weasel	1	4	2	2

Time, 2:50, 2:47, 2:48, 2:51.

Mr. Ingram who is hy no means young displayed an astonishing amount of vim and dash in scoring up and when the word was given went like creased lightning taking the pole on the first turn and staying there won headily including a very handy break or two. Gipsey scooted out in front for the second heat, and won pretty easily but was set back to second by Catch for not maintaining his position in the stretch. Gipsey proved the gamest of the quartette and readily won the next two heats and race.

A half mile dash between W. H. Hinchman's Get There, W. Coleman's Dick, and W. W. Whibs' Paloma was finished in that order, Get There romping home in fifty four seconds.

Taken altogether the afternoons sport was very enjoyable and judging from the interest taken by the members and lady friends in the contests, it will be in future the fashionable Saturday afternoon resort for the elite of Oakland and the suburbs while the fashionables of San Francisco will be found there in goodly numbers.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o'clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

Training

The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of Sl. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, Aug. 20 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

In all races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

It, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse; and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted.

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

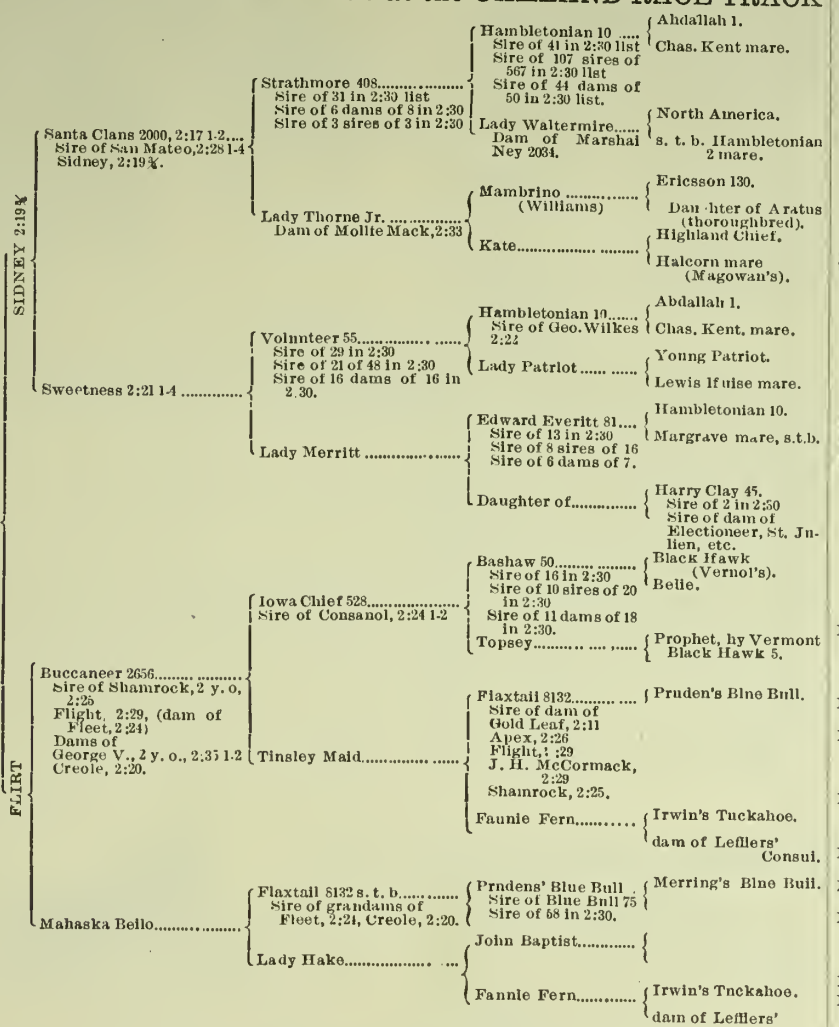
Memo.

The Best Son of SIDNEY

Will Make the Season of 1890 at the OAKLAND RACE TRACK



MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second best of which was made in 2:31 1-2, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore fetlock, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, great hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsiolility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations to stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890.

Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start, the day before the race at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close September 1st with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all races for purses.

National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Entrance fee 10 per cent. on purse to accompany nomination.

National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

In all races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at 1 P. M. All entries must be directed to the Secretary.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:31, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Boots and Shoes from JAMES MEANS & CO.'S celebrated factory have had for many years the highest reputation for general excellence.

Ask your shoe retailer or country storekeeper for

JAMES MEANS' FARMER SHOE

Made of best English Grain Leather, pattern, Extra Heavy soles, standard fastened, stitched aloft. Positively none genuine unless plainly on the soles as follows: "James Means' Farmer." Beware of inferior imitations. These goods are sold over the United States at $2.50 and upwards, according to locality.

No matter in what State or Territory you live these goods are easily within your reach if you will work in the right way to get them. What is the right way? Simply this: go to your local shoe-retailer or country storekeeper, and tell him that you want a pair of shoes with this stamp on the soles, "James Means' Farmer." If he is an enterprising dealer he has them in stock, or will say to you, "I have'n't got any of those, but have something better for the same price." Then he will sell you some inferior goods upon which three or four profits have been paid.

All you have to do is to tell him that he must supply you with the "James Means' Farmer Shoe," or else you will give your order to another dealer. Tell him that he can buy the goods at wholesale of James Means & Co., Boston, Mass., and that he can make a fair business profit on them after all the freight bills have been paid, even if he is on the borders of the Pacific Ocean. Some of our largest customers are on the Pacific Coast. Tell your retailer that you are tired of buying shoes made of inferior leather. Tell him also that an investment of less than eleven dollars will enable him to carry an assortment of sizes of these goods in his stock. Then if the man has any enterprise he will write to us, and in a week or two he will be able to furnish you with the shoes. If not, please write to us, and we will see that you are supplied with the shoes you need. We originate, while others copy. We lead, while others follow.

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR

THE LOS ANGELES RACES.

SECOND DAY.

The attendance at the track on the second day of the Los Angeles races was hardly as large as the day before, yet still the Directors of the Association are very well satisfied and assured your correspondent this evening that the numbers that passed the turnstile are larger than any second day of any previous meeting. There can be no question but what the indefatigable efforts put forward by the officers of this society are appreciated by the race-loving public of the Angel city, and it is now an assured fact that a second meeting will be given later on in the season, at which fully as much money will be offered in purses as has been advertised for the present one.

The first race of the day was for the two-year-old-bangtail division. The distance being a half mile, with the condition introduced that only horses owned in the southern counties were eligible; notwithstanding this restriction, five first class young thoroughbreds faced the starter, they consisting of Midnight, Lone Star, San Rafael, Peri and Mero. The weights allotted to them were 110 lbs. for the colts while 3 lbs. allowance was made for the fillies. Mero was the first who could be distinguished when the flag fell, although the entire lot were closely bunched, with hardly any difference perceptible between them. On the upper turn the black colt Midnight, owned by Mr. Sherman made a decided spurt for the leadership and as they entered the stretch, two open lengths of daylight were visible between him and the rnck. Morton, the jockey, who formerly rode for Palo Alto, seeing that there was danger in the air, set down to ride Peri in earnest and when at the distant post, caught up to and passed the leader, Midnight being unable to finish with Peri; Mero was fully five lengths behind the winner. Time 49¾ seconds. The winner is a very likely black filly by Flood, dam Trophy and is one of the late purchases of Mr. Rose from Palo Alto; however, in the trials against the watch which were given Peri in the early portion of the year, Mr. Rose did not consider the filly good enough to take back East with him, and left him at the ranch.

The next event on the programme was the Nadeau Handicap, an all aged event; distance one mile and a quarter, in which eight well known horses came to the post. The weights allotted to each were as follows: Odette 111 lbs., Gladiator 104 lbs., Daisy D. 119 lbs., Abi 117 lbs., Marigold 107 lbs., Naicho B. 110 lbs., Four Aces 112 lbs., and Moses B. 116. I am sorry to have to chronicle to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN a rather serious accident which happened in this race. Owing to a large field some little delay was occasioned before the starter managed to get them all in line but at last the flag fell, just at an instant when Moses B. let fly his heels at Abi but instead of hitting the mare, he struck Casey, the jockey on Abi, in the leg. The balance of the horses were well off and fully ten or fifteen yards in the lead before the boy understood that the flag had fallen. However, knowing that a great deal of money had been bet on his mount, the fearless little fellow with only one leg to use, set sail after his field, the other leg hanging listlessly by the side of Abi, yet notwithstanding his most strenuous efforts he could only make fourth place. When the race was over a collection was taken up for the gallant little jockey and over $100 were contributed for him. Here I had better tell you how the race was run and won. Gladiator jumped away in the lead and was a length in front and under a pull when the horses passed the judges' stand, Four Aces being second while Daisy D. was third. Around the turn Marigold and Odette commenced their running and were soon nose and nose for the second place, Gladiator still retaining the leadership. These positions remained unchanged until the horses rounded into the homestretch when all hands began plying the whip and spur. When within a distance from home Odette managed to get her nose in front of Gladiator and beat him under the wire by half a length, he being second and Daisy D. well up for third place. Time 2:10.

The third race of the day was for the trotting brigade of two-year-olds, the Bob Mason filly winning handily in two straight heats. Time, 2:41½ and 2:38, Elenia being second in each.

The fourth and last race of the day was for the 2:30 class district pacing purse, in which there were three starters, the winner of the race, Rory O'More, was so much superior in speed to his two contestants that there was no interest manifested in the race after the first heat. The following is the

SUMMARY.

Rory O'More	1	1	1

Time, 2:38¼, 2:37¼, 2:35.

THIRD DAY.

A very fair attendance was present at the race track to-day, notwithstanding the card was not of the best; indeed, after looking over the programmes for the succeeding days, it can truthfully be said that Wednesday's programme was the poorest of the entire week.

The initial event of the day was a seven-eighths of a mile dash, in which there were three starters, Ida Glen 105 lbs, Applause 106 lbs., and Jackson 109 lbs. After the good showing made by Applause last spring, it is only natural to assume that he was a very strong favorite, selling for more than the other two put together. When the flag fell Jackson began a hard driving race and led all down the backstretch; it was only a moment or two until Jackson quit, the pace being too hot for him; Ida Glenn showed her nose in front, but only momentarily, for when Applause was given his head he won as he pleased in the fairly good time of 1:28½.

A special race of a mile and a sixteenth was the second event on the programme, the entries being Larghetta 107 lbs., Naicho B 115 lbs., and Moses B 115 lbs. Moses B. was considered a sure winner, and the talent backed him heavily, but "Oh! what a fall was there, my countrymen!" When the flag fell the favorite took a commanding position, and to the first turn was in front of Larghetta, Naicho B being a length behind the second horse. On the backstretch Naicho B improved his position, moving up to the leader, with Larghetta lapping on them. These relative positions were maintained until the homestretch was reached, where Cook, the jockey on Larghetta, moved him up, and the three ran nose and nose together down the stretch. At the drawgate Cook applied the bat and shot his nose out in front, coming under the wire the winner by a neck from Moses B in 1:51. Mr. Storn, the owner of the winner, can truly be sympathized with, for I understand that feeling that his horse had no show; he backed Moses B quite heavily, and as a consequence lost considerable on the race.

The third race of the day was for the district trotting stakes for three-year-olds, there being only two starters, McKenny and Alco. This was another of the uninteresting contests, for McKenny was so much faster than his competitor that the race was robbed of all its interest. McKenny won easily in three straight heats. Time, 2:37¾, 2:44½ and 2:40¾.

The 2:25 class for trotters brought out Leonore, Shamrock, Geronimo, Lucy R and Duchess. The last two mentioned were distanced in the first heat, Lenore winning three straight heats and the race in 2:26, 2:25 and 2:29, Shamrock being second in each heat.

FOURTH DAY.

The exceedingly good card issued by the Association for the fourth day's racing was enough to draw the largest crowd of the week out. The Southern California Handicap was the principal event, and had been extensively advertised as a sort of Toboggan Slide Handicap, in imitation of the great event instituted by the New York Jockey Club.

The first race of the day was a dash of five-eighths of a mile in which the starters were Peri 107 lbs., Santa Ana 107, Midnight 102, Bessie Barnes 107, Mystery 107 and Mero 105. When the flag fell Midnight went immediately to the front with Mero a good second and the balance of the field bunched behind them. When the home stretch was reached the positions were about the same, Midnight being first and Mero second, but the rnck were strung out more in the form of a procession. At the draw-gate Peri was given her head and won easily by half a length, Midnight being second, while Santa Ana just beat Mero for third place by a head. Time, 1:03¼.

There were six starters who had accepted the weights laid down by the handicapper for the entries in the Southern California Handicap—Gladiator 102 lbs., Dan Murphy 105, Carmen 112, Kildare 111, Daisy D. 121 and Comet 107. The pool selling was very brisk on this event, Carmen being considered an almost sure winner, she selling at $25, while the old time favorite Daisy D. had quite a number of supporters at $14, the field bringing $20. They received a splendid send off, Dan Murphy showing first in front, he leading by an open length at the quarter, followed by Carmen, the other four being close behind. On rounding into the turn Carmen moved up a little almost lapping Dan Murphy, and as they moved into the stretch they were head and head; coming down the straight Kildare joined the two leaders, the three making a very pretty race. At the draw-gate Dan Murphy had a slight advantage, but Carmen aided and urged by the whip managed to come under the wire winner by half a length, Dan Murphy being second with Kildare a good third. Time 1:14¼.

The trotting event of the day was for the 2:27 class, the purse being $1,000, the entries being Glendine, Bob Mason, Jim Leach, Danger and Belle B. Glendine was the strong favorite in the pools and justified the support of his backers by winning the first, second and fourth heats in 2:25¼, 2:26½ and 2:27½, the third heat going to Bob Mason in 2:27¼.

FIFTH DAY.

An enthusiastic and appreciative audience was present on this fifth day of the meeting. There were three events on the programme, all of which were interesting and exciting.

The first race on the programme was the Sierra Madre for all ages, half mile heats, the starters being Comet 113 lbs., Jackson 103 lbs., Gambo 103 lbs., Ida Glenn 108 lbs., Lady G. 108 lbs., Seattle 116 lbs. and Serpolette 106 lbs. The first class ability of Ida Glenn which she has displayed frequently in short dashes and short repeat races immediately stamped her in the minds of the talent as a sure winner, and in the pool selling for this race she sold at $20 while the field brought $12. However, dead things sometimes crawl, and so it was in this case for the winner turned up in Comet, a horse bred and owned by J. B. Aranelles, of Santa Barbara, who succeeded in winning in straight heats in the surprisingly good time of 48½ and 48¾. The favorite made no showing to speak of and was easily beaten off.

The second event on the card was the Santa Catalina Cup for all ages, one mile and one-eighth, the entries to which were Carmen 125 lbs., Marigold 112 lbs., Captain Al 112 lbs. and Naicho B. 120 lbs. When the flag fell Marigold cut out the pace at once and was soon in the lead, Carmen being a fairly good second while the others brought up the rear. These relative positions were maintained until the upper turn was reached when Carmen was allowed to move up on even terms with Marigold. The two ran head and head together until the distance pole was reached, at which point Carmen came away and won easily by a neck. Time, 1:55.

The trotting division had for their amusement five entries for the 2:50 class, Duchess winning the first heat seemingly in a jog. For the three successive heats McKinney was never headed, he making still another to enter the 2;30 list. The fotlowing is the SIXTH DAY.

The Directors of the Sixth Agricultnral District Association are morc than plcased with the snccess of their annual meeting, as the attendance has been large and the sport spirited, and everyone seemed satisfied. The weather toward the latter end of the week has been rather warm, but not uncomfortably so, and not sufficient to deter those who delight in the pastime of racing, from sttending the track. One splendid featnre of the week's sport is the fact that not a rumor has been started, nor even a shadow given for one, in reference to crooked racing. From the first to the last, all the horses have been out for the money, and the contests have been of the very best.

To bring the successful meeting to a close, four events were annonnced on the programme for to-day; two being for the runners, one for the trotters, and one for the pacing division. The first event was a mile and a sixteenth, for three-year-olds; the entries being Raindrop, 114 lbs., Marigold, 113 lbs., and Captain Al., 110 lbs. In the pools Raindrop sold for $20, Marigold for $11, while Captain Al went almost begging at $3. The start could not have been better, and there was no time for seven-eighths of a mile but what the proverbial blanket could have touched all three of the contestants. When well into the homestretch, Raindrop drew away and won, hands down, by two lengths, Marigold second, Captain Al third. Time, 1:50¼.

The Junior Handicap, for two-year-olds, brought out Peri, 116 lbs., Santa Anna, 109 lbs, Mero, 103 lbs., Lathrop Belle, 97 lbs., Wild Rose, 110 lbs., Bessie Barnes, 97 lbs., and Mystery, 97 lbs. In the pools, owing to her previous victories, Peri sold as favorite for $25, Wild Rose for $10, and the field for $13. The starting in this race was not as good as it might have been, the favoritc and Santa Anna receiving much the best of the start. The two leaders ran a rattling good race, Peri passing Santa Anna at the head of the stretch, from whence out she was never headed, winning by half a length, Santa Anna second and Mero third. Time, 1:15.

The 2:35 trotting race brought out five starters, but Leonore was too fast for the balance of the fietd, winning in three straight heats, the following being the GLORY FOR NUTWOOD.

Four Enter the 2:30 Class.

At a matinee held August 7th, at C. W. Williams' driving park at Independence, the two-year-old Nutwood colt, Manager, broke the world's two-year-old pacing record and four of Nutwood's get, all three-year-olds or nnder, entered the 2:30 class, says the Dnbuque Timec.

It is an unheard of thing in the annals of turf history for four colts by one sire to enter the 2:30 class in one afternoon What makes it the more remarkable is that Nutwood, the sire, snd the dams of the four colts are all owned at Highland stock farm in this city.

FIRST RACE.

The first race was a special pace for a purse of $300. The entries were Manager, a two-year-old dark gray colt, standing 15 hands, 2½ inches by Nutwood, dam Carrie by George Wilkes and Acmon by Nutwood, dam Iona, 2:17½. C. A. Thompson wss in Manager's sulky and the renowned C. W. Williams held the ribbons over Acmon.

Acmon won the first heat handily in 2:29¼. He was thns the first of the Nutwood colts to enter the 2:30 class during the afternoon.

It was in the second heat that Mansger broke the world's two-year-old pacing record heretofore held by Ed Rosewater, 2:20¾. Manager got off to a poor start.

He paced to the qnarter in 37½ seconds, passed the half in 1:11, shot by the three-quarter pole in 1:44½, and came nnder the wire, the fastest two-year-old pacer in the world, in 2:19½. Manager won the third heat in 2:24.

Manager is entered in the three-year-old or nnder pacing and trotting race at the meeting of the Northwestern Breeders Association in Chicago, August 18th.

SECOND RACE.

In the second race, a 2:30 pace for a purse of $300, Knox, a Nutwood tilly, got a good ways under the 2:30 mark. Knox is a bay three-year-old filty, standing 16¼ hands. She is by Nntwood, dam Four Times by Blackwood 74.

In the second heat, driven by C. A. Thompson, she won in the grest time of 2:25¼. Knox has a two-year-old record of 2:41..

THIRD RACE.

The third rsce was a three-year-old trot for a purse of $300. It was won by Aegon, a gray three-year-old colt, owned by Judge N. M. Hubbard, of Cedar Rapids, Aegon is by Nntwood, dam Alpha, 2:23¼, and stands 16 hands. He was never started in a race bofore. He won the first heat in 2:28 and the third in 2:26½.

Anaconda Races.

FIRST DAY.

After the heat of the past few days cool weather brought comfort and consolation to the race-goers who witnessed the splendid day's sport at the Driving park, and it was observed by all the racing men that the track was in excellent condition. There was a larger crowd than has ever been present at any previous first meeting.

The first race was the six hundred yard running race, purse $200. The starters were Cyclone, A. D. Hitchcock; Bay Tom, Brown & Blevins; Bob Wade, A. H. Sutton. Bay Tom had a bad start and was out of the race before the 200 yard post was reached. Bob Wade took first place at the start and kept it to the finish, winning by a length in 32¼.

The second race was a running race, seven-eighths of a mile, purse $300. The starters were; Dainty, Kennedy & Ledncк; Tim Murphy, Cy Mulkey; Carrie M ; R. Sears; Guido, Wm Babb. The fast running in the race was in the first half mile. Guido forged to the front at the three-quarter pole and gained a lead which he held to the first, coming in at a canter a half length ahead of Tim Murphy, with Carrie M three lengths in the rear, Dainty following at an essy pace. Time, 1:31½. Carrie M made a splendid finish, and if she had been pushed earlier in the race might have secured a better place.

The third race was the fast race of the day snd created much interest. It was the five furlongs running race, Bankers stake, $50 each, $400 added. The starters were: Needmore, Smith & Thompson; Sinfax, Cy Mulkey, and Naomi, of the Denver racing stables. Sinfax was the favorite, although the other two horses found plenty of backers. Sinfax took the lead at the start, but was overtaken by Naomi on the back stretch. At the stretch Sinfax passed Naomi coming nnder the wire a length ahead in 1:04, with Needmore a length behind Naomi.

The fourth and last race of the day was the 2:40 trot, purse $500, best three in five. The following horses were entered:

Procrastination. H. Kirkendalt; Lady Spokane, R. A. Freese: Julietta, Willow Run Stock Farm; Ben Williams, W. B. Williams. Lady Spokane was withdrawn by permission of the judges. In the first heat Julietta set a hot pace and passed under the wire in 2:28¼, two lengths ahead of Ben Williams with Procrastination away behind. In the second heat Ben Williams kept the lead until the half mile post was reached when he was overhanled by Julietta, who in turn was collared by Procrastination 200 yards from the finish, the latter winning in 2:34½. Ben Williams again led to the half mile post in the next heat but was nnable to maintain his hold and was passed by Julietta who won the heat in 2:36. In the fourth heat it looked as though Ben would win but the maid from Deer Lodge passed him at the three-quarter pole with Procrastination close behind. Julietta won the heat in 2:34½.

SECOND DAY.

Another dsy of excellent racing was witnessed by a large crowd at the driving park to-day. The wind blew at times, raising clouds of dust and preventing any very fast time being made. The betting was lively, however, ahout $15,000 passing through the pool boxes on the result of the four events. The finishes in the running races were close and exciting.

The first race, trotting race for 2-year-olds, was a walk over and was decided in the first heat. Volcano had the pole, Leap Year second and Locnst third. Volcano and Locust broke at the first jump. Leap yesr gained two laps which she increased to five at the half mile post and came nnder the wire in 2.48¾, distancing the two others and winning both moneys.

The second race was a mile for runners. This race developed additional proof that a race horse is as capricious as a pretty woman. The talent selected Tom Daly to win but Tom could not deliver the goods. Daly sold at about $50 to $20 with plenty of takers. There were four starters and when they were sent away the order was: Kismet, Lew Carlisle Tom Daly, Keevena. It was a magnificent race. The horses ran in a bunch down the back stretch and all the way down the last quarter a blanket wonld have covered the leaders, Lew Carlisle and Tom Daly. Lew Carlisle passed nnder the wire in the lead of Tom Daly by half a head. Kismet and Keevena a length behind in the order named. Time 1:45. The mutuals paid $108.

The event of the day was the 2:20 trotting race, for a purse of $1,000. Six horses were entered. In the pools Manning sold at $50, Condee $15, Spartan $8, Homestake $5, Little Joe $3, Georgie Moshier $3. The first heat was won easily by Manning from Condee by a length, in 2:22¼. Moshier was ruled out for running, and Little Joe distanced. In the second heat Condee met with an accident. The sulky tipped over by colliding with the sulky drawn by Homestake. J. P. Stonerood, the driver, was thrown to the ground, but with the exception of a badly bruised face and arm, escaped serious injury. Condee ran arouud the track nearly three times before he was captnred. Manning again won easily, Homestake coming in second and Spartan third, in 2:29½. The judges decided that the accident to Condee and his driver was unavoidable and allowed them to remain in the race. Manning won the third and last heat, closely pushed by Condee and Homestake, with Spartan two lengths behind. Time 2:22½. The mutuals paid $7.95

In the quarter mile dash, Nettie S. was a heavy favorite, selling at $15 to $4 on Cyclone, and $1 against Kitten and Country Girl. It was rumored that Nettie S. was lame from gravel in the hoof, and consequently large snms of money were placed on Cyclone and the other horse. At the start Kitten jumped to the front, but was collared by Nettie S., who led the way down the stretch and won from Kitten by a length. Cyclone was two lengths behind Kitten, and a length in front of Country Girl. The time, 0:23, was considered slow, and unfavorable remarks were made of Cyclone, who, it is claimed, can essily make the run in 0:22. The mutnals paid $19.

THIRD DAY.

The attendance at the races improved as the meeting progressed. Judge Grattan read a challenge from the owners of Lew Carlisle to the owners of Kismet for a mile running race for $1,000 a side, horses to carry weight for sge. The chsllenge was not accepted.

The day's races began with an event for two-year-olds, with a field of four, of which Smith & Thornton's fine looking colt Bollard was the favorite, selling in the pools at $15 to $7 on Zora, the field selling at $3. Zora had the worst of the start, being nearly a length behind, but closed up on Bollard on the turn with a splendid burst of speed, and passed Viceroy on the homestretch, coming to the wire first in 0:37½. The mutuals paid $15.25.

The interest in the day's sport was concentrated in the second race, a half mile dash. John Dowd's Snnday was given the place of honor in the betting and was backed heavily by sporting men at $30 to $11 on Tim Murphy, Bob Wade, the winner, finding a few backers at $5. At the start Bob Wade had the pole, with Tim Murphy second and The Jew next, Sunday taking the outside. There was considerable trouble in getting the horses off owing to the bad behavior of Sunday and The Jew. When the flag fell Bob Wade took first place, which he maintained until the close, Snnday and Tim Murphy coming in a half length in the rear, with The Jew away behind. The mutuals paid $19 45.

The three-fourths mile handicap was decidedly the best race of the day and brought out a field of five good horses.. Of the lot Sympathetic's Last was the favorite in the betting at $50, with Roly Boly selling at $16, Olympia at $4 and the field at $5. The backers of Sympathetic had money in plenty and betted their favorite to a stand still. But this was not a day for favorites and Sympathetic had to follow the lead of the favorites of the two previous races. It was a pretty sight as the horses went down the back stretch and into the turn in a bunch, and the crowd yelled themselves hoarse as the splendid field came tearing down the home stretch neck and neck. The finish was so fine indeed that the throng awaited the judges' decision with breathless interest. The jockeys that rode Sympathetic's Last and Olympia claimed that they were fouled by the rider of Eddie R. Their claim was not allowed, and Starter Grattan in sonorous tones annonnced Eddie R. the winner. Mutnals paid $26.50.

For the last race, a 2:25 trot, there were four entries. Ilton was the favorite at long odds, with Grey Ned second in the pools. It proved a most interesting race, and the favorite had to trot for all he was worth. Ilton acted badly and was set back in two heats for running. In the first heat Uncle Toby won from Gray Ned by half a head. Time, 2.38¾. Mutnals paid $40. In the second heat Ilton took the lead from the start. At the three-qnarter pole Gray Ned closed up and was a close second at the finish. Almont was third and Toby a bad fourth. Time, 2:32½. Gray Ned was given the third heat, Ilton being set back for running. Time, 2:32¼. Almont won easily from Gray Ned in the fourth by nearly two lengths, Ilton third and Toby last again. Time, 2:43. After this heat Mr. Grattan announced that the race would be postponed nntil to-morrow:

FOURTH DAY.

The attendance at the races was larger than usual. Considerable talk was indulged in yesterday concerning the 2:25 trot, it being claimed by a number that the driver of Gray Ned was not out for the money. After the second heat the judges changed the drivers, P. J. Williams reluctantly consenting to sit in the sulky behind Gray Ned. After the change was made the little gray went in and won the race to the delight of an enthnsiastic crowd, who were backing the short horses. Before announcing the result Mr. Grattan publicly thanked Mr. Williams in the name of the judges and the audience for the honest manner in which he had handled the horse in his charge.

The first event of the day was the unfinished 2:35 trot. At the start Gray Ned was a little in front. Ilton broke badly all around the track. Almont caught up with the leader at the three-quarter post, passed him and went under the wire a head in the lead, but was set back to second place for running, and the heat given to Gray Ned, Uncle Toby and Ilton a bad third and fourth. The mutuals on this heat paid $9.10.

In the next heat Almont went to the front at the start, and was not headed, although Gray Ned made a noble effort on the backstretch. Almont tinished five lengths ahead of Gray Ned, with Uncle Toby and Ilton away in the rear, The judges decided Ilton the favorite of yesterday, out of the race for the running. The mutuals paid $7 75.

Almont's winning the sixth heat made no change in the betting, Gray Ned remaining the favorite at odds of $40 to $10 on the field. In the seventh Almont made an attempt to wrest victory from the little gray, but Ned was too fast for Mr. Johnson's horse and came under the wire half a length ahead in 2:35½. The Mutuals paid $6.30.

The second race, three-eighths mile, running heats was the race of the day, and there was a race for the betting stand to back choices. Sunday was as great a favorite as usual and was heavily backed, although it was noticed that he was quite lame after his hard run of yesterday. Nettie S. found plenty of buyers. In the first heat Tom Bowling Jr., got the worst of the start and was badly distanced. There was a desperate brush between the other two horses for a furlong of the stretch, but Nettie S. did not have speed enough to make the result of the race long doubtful, Sunday winning by half a length. In the second heat Sunday made another winning and made it easily. The mutuals paid $13 65.

The one and one-eighth mile running race was interesting from start to finish. The horses started off well, with Librarian slightly in the lead when they passed the grand stand, but Governor Adams collared him as they dashed down the back stretch in a bunch, and in turn was headed by Justice at the three-quarter post, who came in winner by a half length in 1:59½. But little betting was done on this race, Librarian finding no backers.

The fourth race was a 2:30 trotting race with four entries. Vera was a favorite in the betting, bringing the largest amount placed on a horse during the meeting, $75. Ben Davis brought $40, Dollie $10 and Maud Singleton $7. Ben Davis won the first heat by three lengths from Dolly, Maud Singleton a close third and Vera fourth, acting badly. The mutuals paid $23.80.

In the second heat Vera again broke at the start and lost ground, but caught up with and passed them in the back stretch, winning easily from Ben Davis.

Vera won the third heat easily, Maud Singleton being distanced for three foals. The fourth heat was a repetition of the previous two. Vera took first money, Ben Davis second and Dolly third

Jack Takes the Money.

Detroit Mich., Aug. 2.—The match race between Palo Alto and Jack, with records of 2:12¼ and 2:15 respectively, has been eagerly awaited by all lovers of sport, both here and abroad, and with $2,500 up on each side it was generally expected a race for blood would be seen. Between 3,000 and 4,000 people had gathered this afternoon at the Detroit Driving Club track by the time the first gong had sounded. Palo Alto was favorite at 1 to 2 in the books, 6 to 5 Jack, while in the pools the selling was heavy at 100 to 60 on Palo Alto. When they came on the track there was a slight increase in the betting on Jack. He is a beautiful gray, with erect head, springy step, and quivering nostrils, and looked in the pink of condition. Doble was behind Jack, Marvin holding the ribbons over Palo Alto.

They got off at the third attempt, Palo Alto a half length in the lead, increased it to a length but broke nearing the quarter and fell back. Jack shot ahead and led a length at the quarter and half, and Palo Alto going into the air again at the three-quarters, put him five lengths to the bad entering the stretch. Jack put out for the wire very fast, holding his own and finishing five lengths in the lead under a strong pull. The time by quarters was 34¼; 1:07¾; 1:40¾; 2:15½.

The betting changed but little, Palo Alto remaining a favorite at 100 to 44 in the pools. The second heat was a beautiful neck-and nack race to the three-eighths, when Jack flew into the air. Palo Alto won by a length in 2:13¼. Quarters, 34; 1:06¾; 140; 2:13½.

The third heat looked hopelessly lost to Palo Alto at the eighth, where he left his feet, catching quickly and going into the air again. At the quarter he was four lengths to the bad, but at once settled down and was three away at the half, two at three-quarters, and a length half way down the stretch. Then came one of the prettiest finishes ever seen on this track. Jack came in magnificent shape, but only won by a neck. Time, 34½; 1;08; 1:41½; 2:15.

Despite the third heat going to Jack, Palo Alto was still a favorite at 3 to 5 in the books and 100 to 72 in the pools. Betting was again very heavy. They were sent off with Jack a half length in the lead. Palo Alto closed up the gap, but broke at the quarter and lost two lengths, cut it down to one, and went into the air again at the five-eighths, but nearly closed up when Jack left his feet a moment at three-quarters. A beautiful race to the wire resulted in Jack winning by a half-length. Time, 34½; 1:07½; 1:42; 2:16 Summary.

The result was a terrible roast for the talent, who placed big money on the California horse at every stage of the betting. The "home-spuns" are consequently heavy winners. The day was beautiful and the track fast. A more beautiful moving or steadier horse than Jack was never seen on the track here. Orrin A Hickok was Palo Alto's backer, while Doble put up the money for Jack. Palo Alto, in his winning beat, breaks the stallion record and equals Maud S.'s fastest race mile.

The Eureka Pregnator, manufactured by the Eureka Co. of 359 Pearl street, Brooklyn, N. Y., is said to be an infallible cure for barren or irregular mares. Many of the largest breeders in the East have used them with great success, and should they be all that is claimed, no breeder should be without them.

The Ione Races.

The first race of the day for Thursday, August 7th, was a three-quarters of a mile dash, the entries being Duke of Milpitas, Minnie B. and Altus; the former named being favorite, selling for $20 in the pools while the other two contestants brought $6 as the field. This was a very tedious affair as fully three-quarters of an hour was consumed before the flag fell, the Duke getting a good send off and immediately taking the lead. He had no difficulty in retaining his position all the way through the race and won as he pleased by four lengths, Altus being second. Time, 1:18.

SUMMARY.

Ione, August 7, 1890—Three-quarters of a mile.

Duke of Milpitas by Duke of Norfolk, dam Gypsy, 118 ....Hitchcock	1
Altus by Billy Bollinger, dam Della Walker, 118 .....Cooper	2
Minnie B. by Prince of Norfolk, dam Lizzie Idle, 115 .....Dennison	3

Time, 1:18.

Only two horses faced the starter for the 2nd race, it being a mile and repeat; those that appeared were Tycoon and Dave Douglas. Notwithstanding the well known ability of Dan Dennison's entry to repeat, the betting fraternity cast their hopes on Tycoon, making him favorite at $20 while Douglas only brought $6. When the horses were sent away Tycoon immediately took the lead and was never headed, winning by a length in the ridiculously slow time of 1:48½. Pool selling was now at an end as no one seemed interested enough to buy the short end. Again Tycoon took the lead and won as he pleased. Time, 1:46½.

SUMMARY.

Ione, Aug. 7, 1890.—One mile and repeat.

Tycoon, Reveille—Margery, 119 .....McIntosh	1	1
Dave Douglas, Leinster—Lilly Simpson, 119 ..... D. Dennison	2	2

Time, 1:48½, 1:46½

The third and concluding race of the day was three-eighths of a mile and repeat; the entries being Inkerman, Hawthorne, Strawbuck and Lucky Dan. Hawthorne was the favorite in the betting, his backers being willing to invest $10 on his chances while those who patronized the short end paid $7 for the field. Hawthorne had little or no difficulty in winning two heats in succession. Time, 0:36½ and 0:36½.

SUMMARY.

Time, 0:36½, 0:36½.

FOURTH DAY.

Four starters appeared for the flag at the opening of the fourth day's racing, the event being a five-eighths of a mile and repeat. Those who were supposed to have a strict line on the merits of the animals engaged were inclined to back Revolver as first choice in the pools at $10, the field bringing $8. Again we had a repetition of the miserable delay which occurred yesterday, for once more it took almost one hour to get the horses away. When the flag fell, Lida Ferguson was moving strongly, and at once cut out the pace, and before the quarter was reached had a commanding lead; she won easily by a length, Revolver being second. Time, 1:02½.

As the mare was known to be very fleet of foot, there was a slight change in the betting, the field bringing $10, while Revolver's backers were still willing to invest $8 on his chances. In the second heat Altus got away in the lead, but was speedily overtaken by Revolver and Ferguson, whom the judges claimed ran a dead heat, the time announced being 1:02½. Much dissatisfaction was expressed over the result of this heat, as all the spectators were satisfied that the mare had won by a short head, but of course the judges had the matter in their own hands, and the public had to bow to their decision. When the two contestants appeared for the third heat, no pools were sold, as Mr. Percy Williams told everybody that his mare, Lida Ferguson, could not by any possibility win, as three heats were too much for her. Revolver won the third heat in 1:04¾, and the fourth heat in the remarkably slow time of 1:18¾.

SUMMARY.

Five-eighths and repeat.

Time, 1:02¾, 1:01½, 1:04¾, 1:18¾.

The second event was a race of one mile and three-eighths, the starters being Tycoon, Wild Oats, Nabeau and Dave Douglas. Tycoon was strongly supported in the pool box, he bringing $20 to $5 for the field. When the word was given, Dave Douglas jumped off in the lead, and retained that position until well past the judges' stand, where he was quickly overhauled by the favorite, who was leading at the half, and from there out was never headed, winning by half a length from Wild Oats in the fairly good time of 2:24.

SUMMARY.

One and three-eighths miles.

Tycoon, Reveille—Margery, 112, ...McIntosh	1
Wild Oats, Wildidle—Mary Givens, 105 .....J. Appleby	2
Nabeau, Nathan Coombs—Beauty, 103 .....Cooper	3
Dave Douglas, Leinster—Lilly Simpson, 95 .....Dennison	4

Time, 2:24.

The last race of the day was a downfall for the talent; the event being seven-eighths of a mile dash with five starters, Rettie B. was selected as the favorite, she bringing $10, Installation $4, while the field sold for $6. However, Fanny F. furnished a surprise as she was quickly away and made a strong effort to maintain her leading position which she did comfortably, coming under the wire first in 1:29½.

FIFTH DAY.

Whether the weather was too hot or that the good people of Ione had become satiated with racing, it was impossible to tell, but the lamentable fact was apparent that the people would not turn out, for by actual count less than fifty of the towns folks were present on the final day of the meeting. It seems a shame that the efforts put forward by the Directors of the Amador and Sacramento Agricultural District Association are not more heartily appreciated by those living in that section, and from whom it is expected that support may be received.

The first race was a half mile dash, in which there were three starters, Sir Reginald proving an easy winner in 49 seconds. The following are the summaries of the day's racing:

SUMMARIES.

Half mile dash. Purse $50.

There is one thing that deserves especial mention and that is the really good starting of Messrs. Winters and Kritser, for the work could not have been more acceptably done by any person in the country. At times the horses were hard to get away but on all occasions the gentlemen maintained an evenness of temper that was really charming under the circumstances. And their efforts in the main were so particularly good that we have no hesitancy in recommending their services to any other Association who may need the services of two first class men for the position of starters.

Australian Turf Gossip.

Keith, b h, by Goldsbrough—Aphrodite by Kingston, died at Sydney, June 19th, from an attack of diabetes. He won the Hawkesbury handicap and many other severely contested races, and was a really good one.

Bravo, winner of the Melbourne Cup of 1889, was shipped to Calcutta by the steamer which left Melbourne June 18th, in charge of the well known middle-weight jockey, Traham.

The Grand National hurdle race at Melbourne is an open question. Corythus and General Gordon are the best jumpers, but if Lochiel and Tradition can jump at all, we look for the winner in one of those two. Old Charley Wilson thinks Tradition's chances the best, and doubts if Lochiel's legs will stand preparation, and we are inclined to respect the opinions of Gardenia s veteran trainer.

The Waikato district is about to receive a valuable addition to its list of thoroughbred stallions, in the shape of Natator, who has been purchased by Mr C. Lake, of Hamilton. Natator is a chestnut horse, got by Tradncer from Waterwitch, the latter being got by Camden from Mermaid, by King Tom from Waterwitch by Flying Dutchman. During the time Natator was racing, he proved himself a capital performer, and, amongst other races, he won the Wellington Cup in 1881. As Natator was foaled in 1875, he is thus rising twelve years.

It is stated that the sum paid by Mr. C, Lake for Natator was 250 guineas. Mr. Lake was anxious to secure the Goldsbrough horse Son'wester, but Mr. Walker's price (500 guineas) was considered too high.

Waiwera is the name that has been selected for the chestnut filly by St. Leger, from Raupo, purchased at the last Sylvia Park sale by Mr. S. R. Wilson, of Victoria. Waiwera recently got cast in her box, and it is feared that she is seriously hurt.

The erst Aucklanders Recruit and Seaweed were submitted to auction at Sydney recently, but the bidding for neither reaching the reserve they were passed in. It is stated that 300 guineas were required for Recruit and 60 guineas for Seaweed.

It may not be generally known that there is a probability of seeing a member of the famous St. Simon family perform in the colonies this season, Mr. W. R. Wilson, of St. Albans, having when in England purchased Elsie, a filly by St. Simon —Larissa, and he has entered her for the Caulfield Cup.

At the sale of Mr. Frank Reynolds' yearlings in April last, Mr. E G. Brodribb, the great "plunger" of Broken Hills, gave 500 guineas for a colt by The Drummer out of May Queen by Goldsbrough, being an own brother to Mr. Rose's filly Rose of Arizona. This colt was sent out to Lloyd's Station and broke his neck while playing in his paddock on the 6th of July.

The Grand National Hurdle Race (by telegraph) at Melbourne, on the 11th of July, was won by Ellerslie, with Donald second and Priscilla third. Tradition and General Gordon both were unplaced and Lochiel did not start at all. The betting was 5 to 2 Pingara, 5 to 1 Tradition and General Gordon and 25 to 1 Ellerslie.

From England comes the news that Mr. S. Stephen, who represents the Hon. James White in England, has declared that Kirkham and Narellan are 21 lbs. below the form of Abercorn, Carlyon, Dreadnought, and others of Mr. White's when they were three years old.

The good mare Fishwife has run her last race, and is next season to be mated with the Melbourne Cup winner, Mentor.

Advices from Melbourne state that Manton, who has been treated to a lengthy spell, has been put into work again at Flemington, and the son of Musket and Tres Deuce appears to have been benefitted by his temporary retirement.

The great Trident, the hero of so many well fought battles on the Australian turf, and who so often carried the "blue and white" for Mr. James White to victory, is in the sales list. The price put upon the son of Robinson Crusoe is said to be 1,000 guineas.

The great New Zealand steeplechaser, Rossiter, died recently at Randwick, near Sydney. He was a capital performer and had been heavily backed for the Grand National Steeplechase at Melbourne.

Nelly Moore by Voltigenr, owned by the New Zealand Stud Co., is reported to be in foal to Nordenfelt. As she is the dam of Lochiel, who carries the third heaviest impost in the next Melbourne Cup, her produce will sell for a large sum.

William F. Day, the well known Sydney veterinary surgeon, has purchased the handsome New Zealand horse, St. Swithin, which he expects to stand one season in Australia, and then ship him to England. He is by Cadogan, from Malice by Traducer, out of imp Mermaid by King Tom. Malice is an own sister to Lurline, the dam of Mr. Haggins' great horse Darebin. Cadogan is by Cremorne, out of Chance by Adventurer.

Tantallon, own brother to Mr. Rose's mare Catherine Wheel, is first favorite for the Caulfield Cup to be run October 3rd, at Melbourne. He is by Wellington (winner of the Champion Race of 1879, three miles), out of the imported mare Phizgig (dam of Sir Joseph and Suwarrow) by Voltigenr.

Henry Chaplin paid £1,000 for Hermit as a yearling.

France & Sons have decided to charge $1,000 service fee for Red Wilkes next season.

Erect, the $5,000 2-year-old brother to Direct won the last race at Anaconda meeting in August 5th.

B. C. Holly has several entries, including St. Patrick, at the Nevada State Fair, which is held in Reno.

Henry Walsh will be on the scenes at Oakland and Sacramento with a string of Palo Alto thoroughbreds.

Yolo Maid, Favonia, Gertie Arnold and Brown Silk are turned out in paddocks on Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Ranch.

Prof. Shepard has had Racine under his care for a couple of weeks, and hopes to turn him out in good shape in a few days.

So eminent an authority as John Turner has publicly declared that pacers are about the most uncertain things in the world.

Vincent Cromwell purchased Nancy Hanks after she won her stake race at Harrodsburg last week. The reported price is $10,000.

The only Splan made a great killing in the 2:25 pace at Pittsburg with Forest Wilkes. He beat a field of twelve, all against him.

At Anaconda on August 1st the Banker Stake, $50 each with $400 added, for 2-year-olds, was won by Cy Mulkey's Sinfax (Wildidle—Fortress) in 1:04.

Manning, late (Col. Bradshaw) won the 2:20 trot at Anaconda on the 2nd of August in 2:22½, 2:29½ and 2:22½, Conde getting second money and Homestake third.

The Indians in Kittitas Valley, Washington, have an annual spring horse race meeting. The oldest Indians say these meetings have been regularly held ever since they can recollect.

On August 2nd in the mile dash at Anaconda, Cy Mulkey's Tom Daly was made a hot favorite, selling at $50 to $20 for the field; Lew Carlisle, however, carrying 107lb beat Tom Daly 120lb by half a length.

Kanavah Bros., Gonzales, are training Kitty C and Pirate for the fall running races at Salinas and San Luis Obispo; the horses have been at the Salinas race track a couple of weeks, and are showing up well.

The Antar mare Jane Carlisle promises to become a very prominent broodmare. Last year her son D. C., by Dictator, trotted to a record of 2.29½, and Diligent, 2:29½, and Wick C., 2:29¼, two more of her sons, made their records over the Philadelphia tracks this year.

At the Denver meeting of the Colorado Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, July 26 the following officers were elected: Major J. J. B. Du Bois, president; R. G. Webster, vice-president; F. C. Graves, second vice-president; O. W. Marshall, treasurer; S. B. Rohrer, secretary.

Jim Goater, the veteran English jockey, completed his 52nd birthday last June. Thirty-eight years ago he won the Chester Cup on Joe Miller, riding at 4st 10lb. (66lbs) in a field of 43, the largest on record. Two of Goater's daughters are married to Fred Barrett and James Woodburn, the jockeys.

There are 200 horses in training at Fleetwood, and another trial is to be given the dash system at that track early in September. Saddle races will also be a feature, and one of the new departures from the old time three in five trotting contests. Some interest is excited by the proposed change.

"Rattler" hears that "flying the pigeon" was practised in more than one race at the recent Queensland meeting. The dodge is simply this: "After weighing out, one jockey takes from another part of his weight, both back the short-weight horse, and the weight is restored while pulling up on the far side of the course.

Quite an advance in price has taken place in the mare Lady Byron, dam of the famous Susie S., 2:15½. Lady Byron was first sold for $90, then exchanged for a blind horse and $30, then sold for $150. Since that time Susie S. has been developed, taking a very low record, and recently Lady Byron was sold for $2,025.

W. C. Daly has purchased from the Belmont Stable St. Charles by St. Blaise, out of Carita, and St. Omer by St. Blaise, out of Olitipa. These two-year-olds should have been secured by the Lloyd Stable who own nearly all the Saints, but now that Daly has a pair of saints among his lot, he may have better luck in the future.

Flambeau is being worked at Palo Alto, and despite all the rubbish about his not being injured, etc, he still has an unmistakable leg, the tendon being much enlarged, but it is hoped he will stand up long enough to win a few of the valuable stakes he is entered in, and which are really a gift even if he has to go on three legs.

During the racing season of 1889 90, the Auckland Racing Club held nine days racing at Ellerslie at which $272,970 were passed through the totalisator which is an increase of $57,000 over last year's record. A portion of the increase is accounted for by the extra day at the jubilee meeting which accounts for over half of the increase.

Duncan Robertson, a once famous Australian "Juggins," who, with his brother, owned Coronet Lodge, and whilst the money lasted was a racehorse owner in Victoria, was recently fined £4 at the Melbourne Police Court for travelling without a ticket, being intoxicated, and using insulting language to a railway official. He was unable to pay and was sent to jail.

George Middleton, owner of the trotting gelding Jack is said to have expressed a willingness after the race with Palo Alto on Saturday, to back his horse against any trotter in the world for any amount of money. The Sporting World says: Another go with Palo Alto might dampen his exuberance a little, as the latter has undoubtedly the more speed of the two.

Mr. McDermott, the owner of Elphin, offers to match him against any steeplechaser in the country for from $250 to $500 a corner—Elphin to carry 170 lbs,, the other 150. In case of two horses in different interests competing the Brighton Beach Association will add $750.

Labouchere says: The audacity with which certain large defaulters flaunted about Tattersalls enclosure and the saddling paddock at the late Newmarket meeting created a good deal of scandal. Evidently the English bookmakers are like the Jews, a long suffering, patient race—when there is money in it.

Referring to the bill which will, it is said, be shortly brought before the Victorian Assembly to legalize the totalisator in Victoria, that brilliant antipodean writer "Augur" hopes that provision will be made for a certain percentage of the money to be devoted to charities, should it become law. He says £40,000 was paid in one year to charitable institutions in France.

France & Son of the Highland Farm, Lexington Ky., have sold for $5,000 to Christ Schaute, Dusseldorf, Germany, a full sister to Prince Wilkes, (2:14¾) called Highland Princess. She is a yearling by Red Wilkes, dam Rose Chief, by Brown Chief. The same firm has sold for a private price to Willett & Son of Roslyn Ky., the two year old brown colt by Red Wilkes, dam by Mambrino Patch.

Lightsome by imp. Glencoe from Levity by imp. Trustee from Vandal's dam by imp. Trauby, etc, This is one of the most celebrated American families. Among many other good brood mares, Lightsome was the dam of Salina (dam of Salvator), Nevada (dam of Lake Blackburn), both by Lexington and Fadette (dam of Favonia 2:15 and Glenview 1170 sire of Enclid 2:28) by Abdallah 15.

Emperor William's riding horse is shod with a new and singularly constructed shoe. It is in two parts, and has on its lower surface a rubber-like composition, the object of which is to prevent the horse from slipping, thereby preserving the animal. The Kaiser, on being shown the new invention, at once ordered his favorite horse and sixteen others of his stud to be shod with it.

Colonel North (says an English sporting paper) promises to become a most remunerative customer to the bookmakers, and it is really amusing to watch the small fry in their eager attempt to snap him out of the jaws of the big fry. Where ever Colonel North goes racing, half a score of silver ring men weigh out the Tattersall's tariff, on the off chance of getting a bit out of "the Nitrate King."

J. T. Caldwell, the veteran starter, is officiating at the Guttenberg track of the Hudson County Jockey Club, and will continue to act on all regular racing days at that track. Judge J. J. Burke, who has been presiding judge at the race tracks at Kansas City, at Washington Park, Chicago, and the Twin City Club of St. Paul, has returned, and occupies his usual position in the stand at Guttenberg.

It is proposed to tax French bookmakers by imposing a tax of £400 a year on the pencillers who carry on their calling within the reserved enclosure at Longchamps, Autenil and Vincennes, leased by the city of Paris to the different race societies; £160 on those working in the side stands and outside on the course, and £80 on those who depend solely on the small fish who pay a franc to go on the course.

In the fore part of this season, nothing but Burlington could be heard of in the three-year-old galloping races. Now we scarcely hear of him and it begins to look as if the Omnibus Stakes would either fall to Tournament or Sir John. If such a thing should come to pass, it would place Sir Modred very near the top of the winning sires of the year. However, the thing will not be known till after the Futurity is over.

Geoffrey, the four-year-old brother to Guenn, has been turned out of training at Palo Alto. His racing career is probably over. As a three-year-old he won three races in fairly good company, and should make a good stallion, as he is by Flood, from Glendew by imp. Glengarry, from Glenrose by Lexington, out of Sallie Lewis by imp. Glencoe; 4th dam Motto by imp. Barefoot; 5th dam Lady Thompkins by American Eclipse, etc.

The Victorian turfite, Mr. A. F. Bradshaw, who is himself an old pressman, has taken a rather novel line in naming the various events to be run at the Richfield meeting after Australian sporting writers, past and present, as follows: The Levy Stakes, The Symonds Stakes, The Yuille Stakes, The Bond Handicap, The Chapman Handicap, The Hammersley Handicap, The Pickering Handicap, The Wilkinson Handicap, The McCulloch Handicap, The Hedley Handicap, The Hyndman Handicap, and the Mostyn Handicap.

Now then, by way of demonstrating which has the superior thoroughbred—England, America, or Australia, what club or association will get up a race of two miles with weight for age, $5000 subscription, $1000 forfeit, and $20,000 added? The race not to be regarded as filled except there be at least one English and one Australian entry. As it would require at least three months to acclimatize the English and Australian entries, there should be at least three months between the opening and closing of the articles of the race.

For many years the good old Duchess of Montrose had almost a monopoly of the situation as a female owner of race horses, Miss Isabella Yardley Graham being the only other of the sex running contemporary with the late Mr. Crawford's relict. "Mr. Manton" having become Mrs. Milner, there is one lady owner the less on the turf, but plenty of successors are cropping up. In addition to Miss I. Graham, we now have Mrs. Chaloner, Mrs. Ayre and Mrs. Hall, while a Miss Temple recently ran a horse named Henry Benedict at Wolverhampton.

Frederick Collier, at one time a prosperous livery stablekeeper in this city, died at the hospital last Sunday, of general debility. Mr. Collier was a capital starter of racehorses till about five years ago, when he received a severe shock at Stockton by being knocked down by a horse called Elwood. Since then he has never been the same man. Mr. Collier was born in Ohio and came to California with his father, Hon. John A. Collier, then collector of the port of San Francisco. Up to 1875 he was quite well off but the great bonanza crash swept away his fortune. He was 69 years old at the time of his death.

The Saratoga Racing Association held its annual meeting on Monday last and elected as directors for the ensuing year James M. Marvin, Albert Spencer, William Lester, Eugene D. Wood and Charles Wheatley. Of the 500 shares of stock 470 were represented. After the meeting adjourned the Board of Directors met and organized and Mr. Marvin was re-elected President, Mr. Spencer. Treasurer, and Mr. Wheatley, Secretary. The Board appointed as Executive Committee Messrs. Marvin, Spencer and Lester.

The State Fair Directors have decided to permit the Fair grounds to be used for camping purposes by visitors from a distance. This, says the Nevada Journal will prove a great accomodation to people from the country and also those from distant towns who desire to visit the Fair but who object to the expense, inconvenience and discomfort of crowded hotels and lodging houses. They can bring tents and camping outfits with them and live as cheaply and comfortably as though they were taking an outing in the mountains.

Goodwin's Official Guide, which arrived this week, contains the results of all races run up to Saturday, the 2nd. Bergen still leads the list of winning jockeys with 135 wins out of 533 mounts during the year to his credit. Hamilton follows with 90 wins out of 265 mounts. The other principal winners are Taylor. 65; Barnes, 56; Lamley, 49; Littlefield, 35; Garrison, 34; Tarral. 27; and George Covington, 19. The Guide, which is invaluable to all racing men, contains a variety of valuable statistics as well as the usual information.

The series of dash trotting races that Gabe Case is to have at Fleetwood Park will begin one week earlier than was at first announced. The first and second afternoons will be those of Wednesday and Friday, Aug. 27th and 29th instead of Sept. 3rd and 5th. It was not supposed last week that the changes in the third and last quarters of the track could be finished before September, but the work has been pushed so steadily since then that the track will be in perfect shape by the middle of this month. A change has also been made in the two opening programmes by which a half-mile dash to harness, free for all, will be trotted each afternoon.

The American Horseman says that a shrewd horseman who had handled more stars than one said Saturday: "Marvin made the biggest mistake of his life Saturday in not trotting Sunol the full mile at Detroit. The big filly is cranky and goes fast when it suits her and won't go at all when she is in that mood. She had all her speed when at Detroit, liked the track and could have trotted a mile in 2:08. Marvin after that could have gotten anything he liked for exhibition purposes After her exhibition at Cleveland she won't be worth much for that purpose. He made another big mistake here in allowing her to go the mile after seeing the way she was acting."

A large and fashionable gathering were interested spectators at the Oakland Driving Park last Saturday. Owing to several of the horses entered not being in a condition to race the programmes dwindled down to a very slim affair but great interest was taken in the proceedings particularly by the fair sex who turn out in large numbers every Saturday. The 2:30 pacing race had only two starters, Dr. C. H. Walkers' Washington and W. R. Birminghams' Oregon Boy. Oregon Boy showed most speed but left his feet several times and was beaten by his more reliable opponent, admirably handled by Dr. Walker, in straight heats, time 2:42, 2:37, 2:36. The trotting race for 2.50 horses had two entries. W. W. White's Beauty and C. Iverson's Leandro Girl. Beauty won cleverly in straight heats time 2:53 2:57.

"Whoever is responsible," says the turf writer of a great daily," for the introduction of Narvice into this section of the country owes it to the public to carefully chloroform him and carry him back to Mexico, where he is said to belong. He is worse than Anderson at his sleepiest and McCarthy at his stupidest. Littlefield is an Archer beside him. He lacks everything—judgment, nerve, dash, energy, skill. He threw away Tipstaff's chances and rode Fairy like a plough-boy. He is said to be thoroughly honest and reliable, and this is given as the reason for his getting so many good mounts."

Gracious! How Littlefield, Anderson and McCarthy must have enthused over the foregoing beautiful tribute to themselves! But the item is shameful in effect. The boy Narvice is a thoroughly good jockey, but he cannot win every time with a mount just a trifle too slow.—New York Sportsman.

In his excellent work: De Verborum Significatione, of which but little is unfortunately known in its original form, Ferrerius Flaccus, who died in the year 14 A. D., embraces under the common denomination of Bestia Veterina all animals that work under the yoke, and makes this work a derivative of veho (I pull). According to this, the veterinarius was the man who attended to animals of draught of all kinds. Caton is of the same opinion. Opilius thinks that the word comes from the fact that the animal designated by veterina animalis carries its head secured to the belly (ad ventrem onus religatum) and that it ought to be called venterina and not veterina. Varron (116 A. D.) is of the same opinion, including with cetera veterinæ all other animals of burden. The opinion of Columelle is yet the most plausible; he derives veterinarius from vetus (aged) because the oldest instructed the youngest men in the treatment of farm animals. He says: Quarre veterinariæ medicinæ prudens esse debet pecoris magister. Hensinger finds the derivation of the word in the Sanscrit, an origin which is rather overdrawn.—Monatssch. f. Ver. d. Thier.

The Breeders Gazette seems to take the ground that the races between Palo Alto and Jack are simply exhibition affairs and uses the following language. "In referring to these races as exhibitions The Gazette does not wish to be understood as intimating that the races between the California stallion and the Chicago gelding are not in every way bona fide contests, but it does not take any stock in the talk about a match for $5,000 a side having been made. Such a statement was ill-advised. It is a certainty that the presence in a race of two such horses as Jack and Palo Alto will suffice to draw a crowd to any track in the country, and with Doble and Marvin in the sulkies the public is well assured that the contest will be genuine from start to finish. When it was given out that a match had been made between the two horses there was an understanding that it would be trotted in Chicago, but the Washington Park management when approached about the matter, would not give over $2,000 to have the race take place over its track, and as Palo Alto and Jack were to be in Detroit during the meeting there it was resolved to have the race take place over that track a week later.

As a "bracer" for the stomach or a tonic to ward off malaria, Peruvian Bitters has no equal.

The German National Stud is reported to have purchased St. Gatien who ran a dead heat for the Derby with Harvester in 1884, price $70,000. St. Gatien was an exceptional racehorse, a good weight carrier and had a fair turn of speed which he proved when in the autumn of 1880, as a three-year-old he carried 122 lbs. to victory in the Cesarewitch beating 19 horses, a feat which has never been equalled. St. Gatien is by Rotherhill or The Rover out of Saint Editha by Kingley Vale from Lady Alice by Chanticleer from Agnes by Clarion from Annette by Priam. There was every reason to suppose the Saint was by the Rover who was by Blair Athol from Crinon by Newminster. The Rover was afterwards hamstrung by the Irish gentlemen who were boycotting the owner.

"Allah il Allah! "Great is Haggin and Salvator is his profit The grand white legged chestnut went out on Wednesday and won the Champion Stakes at Long Branch by six lengths and held hard at that, but for nine furlongs Tenny was at his girths and clung to him like a leech to a man with the toothache. There can be no longer any doubt of the superiority of Salvator at any distance above nine furlongs. This makes two victories of Mr. Haggin for this famous stake, once with the wonderful little mare Firenzi and once with Salvator. The famous mortgage of O'Grady seems insignificant beside Mr. Haggin's traditional claim upon this race. In addition to this, Mr Baldwin won it with Los Angeles in 1889; and in 1887 Firenzi ran second for it to the then marvelous Hanover, whose musical appellation is now but the shadow of a great name.

Worth, ch c by Luke Blackburn, out of Peytona Barry, is one of the most reliable horses from six furlongs up to a mile that can be found in the second class of gallopers. He is but three years old and has three or four very creditable performances recorded. He carries weight like a Fisherman and has lots of pace. It is not every three year old that can give a year's weight and a beating to such four-year-olds as Pagan, Dol Mar and Lady Pulsifer. His mile in 1:41 with 122 pounds up, is overshadowed only by the performances of Tenny and Racine. Luke Blackburn is, in the stud as well as on the turf, fairly entitled to be considered the best son of noble old Bonnie Scotland. We should like to see how the great short-legged bay horse would cross upon Australian mares, especially such as contain the blood of Yattenden, Goldsbrough, Fisherman and Neckersgat.

The New York racing reporters know more than the horse owners of late. One of them feels called upon to refer to S. Brown in the following terms: "If Captain Sam Brown has any consideration for the public's feelings he will immediately and unhesitatingly retire that thoroughbred scoundrel, Reporter, from the turf. Such an erratic, evil-minded, surly, sulking, despicable piece of horseflesh should find a resting place either at Barren Island or at some of the sausage factories on Newton Creek. As a race horse, he's so unreliable that a man would need to have access to the Treasury vaults to secure funds enough to back him day after day. Retire him, Captain, and receive a well merited popular benediction." This is the horse that, according to the man that wrote the above, was pulled in a race a week or ten days ago.

The Junior Champion Stake at Long Branch, the second most valuable race of the year, was won by that well bred colt Strathmeath, with Sallie McClelland a good second. Nineteen candidates faced the starter and the race was a capital contest. It somewhat detracts from the interest in fixed events of this sort, to have them won three times in succession by geldings. The great white faced Proctor Knott won it in 1888; in 1889 it fell to the colored man's horse, Protection; and this year it has been captured by another gelding, Strathmeath. If this sort of business goes on much longer, it will be impossible for the owner of a stallion, about to retire from the turf, to advertise him as the winner of any important fixed event. Stallions untried as sires have chiefly to rely upon their performances in bidding for public patronage; and with the richest prizes carried off by horses of the neuter gender, the outlook for good entire colts is not flattering.

The following is a list of the pacing and trotting races that have been filled for the Nevada State Fair:

"I returned to London on my way home" says "The" Walton in a recent interview, "just about the time of the Derby. I went out without intending to bet a dollar, got interested, and made there what the world would call a fortune. I first put £100 on one of my friend's horses at £5 to £1, and made £500. I put another £100 on the horse of a friend at £6 to £1, and he won this and gave me £600 more. I now had £1,100. I took £1,000 of it and put it on Iroquois at £6 to 1, and Iroquois brought me in $30,000. Shortly after this I put $10,000 on Peter at the Royal Hunt Cup against $55,000 and Peter won. At the St. Ledger I put £4,000 on Iroquois against £9,000, and I again won. After other winnings I backed Foxhall for the Czarowitz, and put up $40,000 against $400,000 and Foxhall walked in. I then backed him to win the Cambridgeshire for $350,000, and he stuck out his tongue and won it. It was so with other ventures, and my winnings all told amounted to $1,000,000. I had gone into the betting as an amusement, and I was thunderstruck when I found upon my return to America that I was looked upon as a horse racer and had become famous as "The Plunger." I don't like that title nor the reputation. I am a man of family and expect to earn my money from now on by the sweat of my brow and my brain. My advice to young men and to old men who are investing in races is to let the bookmakers go West and till the soil and make racing unprofitable by not patronizing it."

[Mr. Walton has magnified the amount considerably that he won, for it was scant $500,000, and in the interview he does not state what the result was, the following time he travelled over to England. The bookmakers still have an unbalanced sheet against the plunger.—Ed. T and T.]

Harvey A. Smith, of Castle, Me., recently had a desperate encounter with a large and vicious stallion. He was harnessed with another horse, when he suddenly attacked his mate with his teeth and hoofs. Mr. Smith quickly unhooked the traces and succeeded in uncoupling the horses, when the stallion attacked him. Mr. Smith managed to subdue the horse, and led him to the barn, where he hitched him on the floor. He removed the harness, and was proceeding to take him to his stall, when the vicious brute suddenly attacked him again. The wind blew the barn door shut, and Mr. Smith was imprisoned on the floor with the frantic animal. For nearly half an hour he fought him with no weapon but his fists, leaping aside to avoid the assaults as much as possible, but being often knocked down and fearfully bruised. Finally the horse in some way disengaged a sled stake from the side of the mow, and Smith saw it rolling toward him on the floor. Seizing the stake, he swung it with all the strength of desperation, and striking the stallion just behind the ear, with one blow laid him dead at his feet. Smith was badly injured.

The pool room firm of Madden & Smith of New York city played a mean but successful trick on their rivals Mackin & Marks. The latter firm is not in possession of a Western Union wire, and used to receive the results of the races as called out by Madden & Smith, and a messenger conveyed the information to their rooms. A short while ago in the race for the Tyro Stakes at Monmouth, Messrs. Madden & Smith, through their friends, played Sallie McClelland very quietly and heavily in the rooms of Mackin & Marks. When the returns came from the races, they announced that Sallie McClelland had won, although she was really last. The messengers of the other firm carried the news to their rooms. Neither Madden nor Smith, however, paid off any debts on Sallie McClelland. They had received the correct news and simply falsified it. Some time afterward the announcement was made that Strathmeath had really won and Sallie McClelland had finished last. It was too late, then, for the victimized rooms to save themselves; the money had been paid to a horde of people and Mackin & Marks lost heavily.

John H. Phillips, of Parkville, Brooklyn L. I, says: "I recently had an inquiry from Europe for a speedy trotter which was being campaigned this year, and one which is showing recent winning form." This foreign inquirer evidently knows what he is about. He is right when he offers to put his money up for a horse which can and is going down the line, in preference to one which is resting on past laurels. The present season has evidenced, among other features, that very many trotters with past records do not or cannot come up to their past form. Some of Phillips' reminiscences are quite apropos. He says: "When I was living up in Maine some of the smart horsemen would bar a certain horse from the ice races. The fact is, he would not stand training, but of course that was known only to a few and kept in the background. Pretty soon some strangers would come along, and noticing a certain horse barred out of the races would think: 'This must be a pretty good sort of horse; he's barred; they won't trot against him. Wonder what would buy him?'" Jack says these tactics often resulted in a good, stiff price being paid for the excluded one.

A telegram from Chicago says that Corporation Counsel Hutchinson, in an interview, admitted that Mayor Cregier and himself have under consideration the advisability of forfeiting the license under which Ed. Corrigan runs the West Side Race Track. This would mean a complete stop to the equine contests, such as they are, at that resort. Incidental to the war between two rival factions of gamblers, Corrigan has been harrassing the Mayor to such an extent that the latter has lost patience, and is now ready to go almost any length to "get even."

Corrigan has charged in a bill made public by its presentation in court that the Mayor has been "standing in with" certain gamblers, and he subsequently so managed things that Mr. Cregier had been left no opportunity of disproving these charges in court.

"We have not come to a definite decision in regard to the matter yet," said the corporation counsel. "I think, however, under the circumstances it would be just what Corrigan is deserving of, and the Mayor would be entirely warranted in doing so."

How does Strathmeath suit you for the Futurity, you folks that go down to the pool-rooms to back the gallopers? He has been a very consistent performer and is owned by Green Morris, one of the shrewdest of all American turf operators. Analyze his pedigree and you find but few better bred horses in America. He is by Strathmore, out of Flower of Meath, by imp. Buckden, her dam Grace Darling by Hiawatha, out of Emma Desha by Highlander, her dam Corsica by Leviathan out of Susan Yandell, the mare that beat everything of her day. On the sires side he runs slap-bang into the pedigrees of Luke Blackburn, George Kinney and Salvator. His sire, Strathmore, was by Waverly, out of Brenua (grand dam of The Bard) her dam Levity by imp Trustee out of the dam of Alaric and Vandal. Waverly was by imp Australian, out of imp Cicely Jonson by Weatherbit, (sire of Beadsman) her dam Cestrea by Faugh-a Ballagh. Here he has the blood of Melbourne, Newminister, Bay Middleton, Albion, Lottery, Glencoe and Muley, coupled with two crosses of Sir Hercules and one each of Catton and Blacklock. It is a great pity that so richly bred a colt should have been emasculated. He has started seven times this season, winning four times, twice second, and only once unplaced. It is difficult to find a more consistent performer of his age since the days when Sensation carried the colors of George Lorillard in his long and unbroken series of victories.

The sensational performers of the trotting turf have commenced gathering at Washington Park preparatory to the meeting of the Northwestern Association of Trotting and Pacing-Horse Breeders, says the Horseman, which commences on August 18th and continues for six days. Among those already at the track is a contingent from Budd Doble's stable, in charge of George Starr, including the famous Axtell, Johnston, 2:06¼, Ed Annan and seven other good ones. A. L. Thomas has the Caton Stock Farm string of Don Cossacks and others. Frank Brown has Roseberry and eleven others. Tobe Broderick has the pacer Tom McCarthy and several green ones. Billy McDonald has A. J. Leet's string from Maryville, Mo., among which are a number of fast ones. Pete Johnson has eight from the Kalamazoo Stock Farm of S. A. Browne & Co., and it is safe to predict that they will earn their oats. There are also a number of other strings, and horses are arriving daily. It promises to be the grandest trotting meeting ever held in Chicago.

Many persons are of opinion (says "Olympus" in Melbourne Punch) that a handicapper has no business to place such an impost as 10st. 5lb. (145 lbs.) on a horse for a handicap flat race of two miles; but in this, as in everything else, the Victorian racing world isn't like it used to was. Lord love you, I remember the time when there were three gentlemen used to apportion the weights for the Melbourne Cup; and after that black demon, The Barb, had won the Sydney Cup with 10st. 8lb. (148 lbs) what do you think they clapped on him for the Melbourne Cup? Only eleven stone seven pounds 161 lb.)—that was all. And because there was some doubt as to whether his stable companion, Glencoe, wasn't just as good as the son of Sir Hercules and Young Gulnare, they gave him 3lb. less—11st. 4lb. That was when there was a 5st. 7lb. (77 lb.) minimum, too, the lowest weight being none other than the celebrated sire of so many winners, Bonny Carlisle.

The steamer Argus, which left Sydney last month for Calcutta, had as passengers the well-known racehorses Bravo and The Wild Oat. Should Messrs. Apcar and Gascar carry out their present intentions (says the Melbourne Sportsman) we may yet have the satisfaction of hearing of Australian bred horses, prepared by a native born—not an aboriginal—and ridden by an Australian jockey, taking part in some of the events to be run in England next summer. W. Southall, the well known trainer for these gentlemen, informed the writer that all going well with Bravo and The Wild Oat, he would take them, along with Moorhouse, to England, where they would join Paladin, who is at the present time being trained at Newmarket by Ryan, who has charge of Mr. Cooper's filly Lady Betty. Southall will accompany the horses named to the Old Country, and J. Robinson will also go to ride them. W. Southall and M. Trahan, his brother-in-law, also went in the same boat.

The Greenville Bulletin says: The prospects for a highly successful fair at Quincy are very encouraging at the present time. The racetrack has been put in excellent condition for training, it having been thoroughly worked and ample irrigation facilities provided. A number of improvements will be made at the park. Ten more box stalls will be erected and it is thought these will not be sufficient to accomodate all race horses that will be at the fair. There should be more improvements made, in order that the District may keep pace with other Districts. The Judges' and timers' stand might be improved in several respects, also the method of announcing the races, the position of the horses in the races, the time of race, etc. Several small improvements could be made at little expense, and for the credit of the District and the county, the Directors should not hesitate to make them.

There are now about twenty-five racehorses at the park, mostly trotters, the principal stables being those of Bransford & McClellan and Dr. J. S. Carter. Horses in both stables are making rapid improvement. Aside from their own, Bransford & McClellan are driving eight horses belonging to other parties, and they could have more.

Mr. Alfred Joseph, the well known Australian penciller, who is at present in the old country, is not enamoured of the English racecourses. He says they are in no way to be compared with Flemington, Randwick or Caulfield, although he admired Sandown Park very much. Newmarket he styles a "huge robbery," and it is rough to have to pay 19s 11d railroad fare from London, 10s cab fare, the same admission for ditto, 30s paddock ticket, and 20s saddling paddock ticket. Newmarket, with its many racecourses, and winning posts all over the shop, our friend did not like, while the crush and difficulty to see a race make matters worse. "No wonder" he remarks, "that so many Australians I met did not like racing in England." Mr. Joseph naturally had an eye on the betting at Newmarket. He says he was amazed at the gigantic operations, and the limited number of bookmakers in Tattersall's ring. No wonder they lay long prices. The horses are well owned, the Jockey Club stand no nonsense, and the horses try, so that the horses and the ring have an "equaller." As to the jockeys at Newmarket, Mr. Joseph observes that the riding is wonderful, and some of the finishers fairly amaze him, with such artists as Tom Cannon, the Barretts, Watts and Tommy Loates. Over the sticks, excepting W. Nightingall, the English cross country riders are not in it with Scobie, Corrigan and Ferguson.

The following interesting particulars regarding Surefoot, who won the Two Thousand Guineas, and rich Prince of Wales Stake at Leicester this year were published in a London sporting paper:—"Surefoot is by Wisdom, out of a mare by Galopin, from Miss Foote; and here I am reminded of a bit of bad luck which befel Wadlow. Wisdom, who cost something between 800 guineas, and 900 guineas as a yearling, proved practically worthless as a racehorse, and passed into the hands of his trainer, above mentioned, for the modest consideration of 50 guineas, at which figure he was allowed in time to become the property of Mr. A. Hoole, with the contingency that the vendor should be permitted to send two mares free of fee to him annually. This agreement stood good for about ten years, when there came a refusal on the technical ground that the horse had been made over to Mrs. Hoole by deed of gift. Naturally, there was a row in the camp, and the matter was only saved going into Court at the last minute by a compromise. It will be admitted that in all this Wadlow was not lucky, and to make the mis-deal quite complete, after lending Enigma to a neighboring farmer for a hack and trapper, he eventually gave her away. She, in turn, passed into the possession of Mr. Hoole for something like a 'score,' and mated with Wisdom, produced Mr. Hammond's celebrated mare Florence. Subsequent to this an offer of £3000 was, if I am rightly informed, refused for Enigma, with a foal at foot. Who shall say after this that there is nothing in luck?"

Pacing and Trotting Fast Miles.

Cricket Lowers Her Record at the Buffalo Meeting.

BUFFALO, Aug. 6th.—There were the usual three races for the commencement of the Grand Circuit meeting here to-day. Eleven heats disposed of them with little delay. The fields were moderately large, and only in one heat, the second of the 2:30 class, was there any tedious scoring. It was not a fast track that greeted the fliers, for the surface was rough after the wetting it got yesterday, and there was a further handicap in a wind which blew up the homestretch and stopped the horses considerably. For all that, most of the miles were below 2:20, and the pacers reeled off five heats at a fast average, the best of them going to Cricket in 2:13¼. This reduces her record of 2:14½, but the mare was not able to win the race, and sustained her first defeat since she came from California. Dallas was the successful candidate to-day, and his backers got even for their losses last week at Cleveland. Betting was 2 to 1 on Cricket before the first heat, which she won in 2:15¼. Dallas making a vain attempt to overtake her. Then the pools were 3 to 1 on the mare from California, and the second heat was a rattling struggle between her and Dallas. The latter made his usual rush from the half and fought every inch of the way to the wire, finishing so close to Cricket that it looked like an even thing till the judges hung out the mare's number. The odds were 4 to 1 on Cricket after that, but Dallas outstaid her, and captured the next three heats despite her efforts. He was much the fresher horse in the latter part of the contest, while Cricket fell back to third place, when Jocko, a young pacer bred here, made a bid for the money. Dallas was too rapid for him, however, and made the five heats without a mistake, while Cricket and Jocko both lost their stride.

There were two events for trotters, the first for the 2:30 class and the second for the 2:20 class, but neither furnished such sport as the pacers did, and both went to favorites. Leopard Rose had the easiest kind of a victory in the slow, and Margaret S. tripped away in the faster one with little trouble.

BUFFALO, N. Y., August 7th.—The races at the Driving Park attracted about 8,000 people. It was a typical racing day, hard track, warm sun and little wind, yet the time averaged slow. This was largely due to the fact that in each class one of the horses was so superior to the field that he walked away with the prize as he pleased. Dawson, Hal Pointer and Alfred S. were the winners.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Fifteen thousand people went out to the driving park to-day, attracted by the announcement that Sunol and Bell Hamlin would attempt to lower the records of 2:10½ and 2:12¼ made by them respectively. The weather was intensely hot in the early part of the afternoon, but toward evening a cool breeze tempered the rays of the sun. The track was dry and in seemingly good condition, but it lacked elasticity. It was dragged this afternoon just before the special event.

It was nearly five o'clock when the flyers were rang up. Both the mares received a warm reception from the thousands that filled the grandstand and lined the track. After some preliminary warming up, the judge announced that the horses would not go to the limit of their speed, but would be sent to beat 2:15. This was for the purpose of giving Sunol a record as a four-year-old, the best record up to to-day being 2:16.

Belle Hamlin was sent first. Andrews gave her her head, and she flew to the quarter in 0:33½, and to the half in 1:06. The running mate joined her on the next quarter, and she reached the three-quarters in 1:40. Coming into the stretch the wind blew straight in her face, and she did not make the finish that was expected. She came steady, but at the distance pole she was perceptibly tiring. Andrews did not punish her, but let her take her own pace, and she passed under the wire in 2:14¼.

The California wonder, Sunol, was then called up. As she passed up the stretch for the start, she received a salvo of applause. Turning just above the distance pole, she got under headway and passed under the wire in full motion. She reached the quarter in 0:33¾, slow time for her, but she made up for it in the distance to the half, which was reached in 1:05½, or 0:31¼ for the quarter. To three-quarters, where the track was poorest, she lost again, reaching the third pole in 1:38½. At the head of the stretch the running mate was waiting for her, but before she got turned around Sunol had passed him, and was away ahead. The runner did not catch her until well down the stretch, and when she heard her on her wheel, the gallant little mare flew onward and passed under the wire in 2:11½, just three-quarter of a second slower than her California record.

As the time was hung out the crowd burst into applause, ong continued. Considering the track and the fact that the wind on the stretch made a difference of a full second, Sunol's performance to-day more than equals that which ranks her next to the queen of the turf, Maud S.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The last day of the circuit race was run in a heavy wind, which makes the time in the free-for all remarkable. The favorites in each class were beaten. Jack got no heat in the free-for all, but the race was cut short by darkness, and will be finished Monday morning. Wardwell, by Hamlin's Almont to-day reduced his record from 2:27 to 2:16¼.

April 9th, MENEPTA, blk f, hind pasterns white by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Fanmother of Cricket and Patchwork by Signal, second dam by McCracken's Blackhawk.

May 7th, HERMINE, b f, white on corner right hind foot by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Mollie Fern by Capt. Kohl, second dam Fannie Fern by Jack Hawkins.

May 18th, SAPPHO, b f, two white pasterns, by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Cora by Corsican, dam of Clara P. 2:29¼.

May 31st, TEHERAN b h, by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Narka by Nephew, second dam Babe by Chieftain, third dam Fanny Hayes by Jack Hayes, dam of Gold Note 2:25.

The Portland Entries.

When the Directors of the Portland Speed Association announced that they would give $12,000 in purses for their fall meeting, many of the horsemen of California and Oregon thought they were going in too deep, but a look over the following list of entries will convince the skeptical that Portland will witness the most successful meeting in September that has ever been held in the Northwest.

THE FARM.

Dairying in Plumas, Lassen and Sierra.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN BY S. S. BOYNTON, OROVILLE, CAL.

The area of these three counties is about 8,200 square miles, or a trifle greater than Massachusetts. The section is shut off from the rest of the State by high and rugged mountains. The products cannot be placed in our leading markets without being hauled over these mountains on wagons, or else shipped by rail to Reno, Nevada, and thence back over the Sierras on the Central Pacific, a long and expensive route.

The counties named include the only extensive dairy region of California, where the same conditions of climate exist that are found in many of the noted butter producing States east of the Rocky Mountains.

In the great dairy counties along the coast of California, the winter climate is favorable, and there is no fall of snow. In the three counties named, the snow falls from two to six feet in depth, and cows must be stabled fully five months each season. The altitude of this region is high, there being no localities under 3,000 feet. Owing to the topography of the country, there are many small valleys, but no large ones. No uniform methods are pursued by the different butter makers. One man uses the old fashioned eight quart pans, set with six quarts of milk, and placed on straight racks along the walls. A second uses the same pans placed on circular racks. A third has large shallow pans placed in running water, while a fourth uses deep cans almost submerged in water.

Dairymen report but little difference in the quantity of cream from these various methods. A few are using cream separators, but the number is very limited, though excellent results are reported.

There is no organization, no Dairymen's Association, and no unity of action among the producers. No record is kept of each cow's milk, nor is that from any particular cow set by itself to test the quantity of butter made. At the various local fairs, no premiums are offered for the cow that gives the most milk or yields the largest number of pounds of butter. All fair premiums are given upon the general appearance of the cow. Dairymen buy their cows judging from their looks, and often pay as much for a poor milker as a good one.

Owing to the distance from market, most of the butter must be packed in kegs. Three sizes are used, called firkins holding 100 pounds, half firkins holding fifty pounds, and kits containing twenty-five pounds. These kegs are made of white fir, only a limited number of dairymen using the better made and preferable oak kegs.

The natural pastures are excellent, the grasses being largely clover in the lower valleys, and bunch grass in those of higher altitude. Among the cultivated grasses, timothy ranks first, though alfalfa and red top are attracting considerable attention.

Water and horse-power churns are used in the larger dairies, while the smaller ones are content with hand power ones. Most of the men employed are Swiss dairymen of skill and experience although a few young Americans accustomed from boyhood to this work are occasionally found.

It is estimated that each milker ought to take care of from twenty-three to twenty-five cows. The most reliable estimates place the yield of milk at from forty to forty-five pounds for each cow per day. The butter yield is estimated at from 120 pounds per year for each cow to 246 pounds. The former is from dairies at Big Meadows, Plumas County, where the season of milking was short, and the latter from a dairy of 28 cows owned by A. B. Huntley, in Sierra Valley.

The estimate of Richard Thompson, of Indian Valley, Plumas County, is 170 pounds per cow; that of Wm. Arms, of Sierra Valley, 200 pounds: that of R. Stover, Big Meadows, Plumas County, is 180 pounds. These are dairymen of long experience.

Reliable estimates of Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo countries run from 150 to 200 pounds per cow each year. In Marin the estimate is a trifle higher. Prices for the past few years have ranged from 22 to 25 per pound. Owing to a limited local market the winter price has not varied from that of the summer.

In summer many cows are driven to small, high, mountain valleys having an altitude from five to six thousand feet. The advantages are rich and nutritious grasses, pure cold water and a splendid climate for butter production. In these high valleys frost occurs almost every night and ice forms frequently in July and August. Fires must be kept evenings and mornings in the dairy houses, and warm water is used to heat the churn when about to be used. The barns are large and strong, and built with high steep roofs to hold up the great weight of snow.

One of these barns owned by John L. Crow of Clover Valley, Plumas County, holds 320 tons of hay, and has stable rooms for 120 cows. The altitude of Clover Valley is 5,250 feet, and snow has been known to fall 12 feet in depth.

The cows are turned out to graze at night and then driven in by 4 o'clock the following morning, they are milked and turned out again by seven, driven up at five in the afternoon and are turned out for night by half past six. The milk is carried into the dairy house in buckets, although in a few instances a large tank on the outside receives the milk and then is carried into the house by means of a pipe.

The milk stands from 24 to 36 hours when the cream is skimmed off. The cream then stands for twenty-four hours and butter is made every day or every other day according to the number of cows in the dairy. In most instances the calves are allowed to take milk from the mother for the first four days, then fed upon new milk till a month old, and then fed upon skim milk till they are weaned when about four months old.

The price of good cows varies from $33 to $50. It is estimated that three gallons of milk in the spring or two and a half gallons in summer will make a pound of butter. A cow that will produce three quarters of a pound of butter per day is considered an extra one. They will fall behind fine dairy cows in the Atlantic States and in Europe in this respect, though the estimates given us refer to the average cow and not to those especially selected.

In packing the butter one pound of salt is used for each twelve pounds of butter, while in putting up rolls one pound of salt is taken for each fifteen pounds of butter. The markets for the counties named are Oroville, and Chico in Butte county, Red Bluff in Tehama, and Reno in the State of Nevada. Occasionally butter is shipped to Marysville and to Sacramento.

Graded Durhams are the favorite stock in these mountain dairies, though both Holsteins and Jerseys have been introduced.

Among those who have paid close attention to their stock are E. D. Hoselkns of Genesee Valley, and Wm. Arms of Sierra valley. G. S. Church in Sierra valley, Sierra county, and J. W. Thompson of American valley, Plumas county; each have Holsteins, while W. P. Hall of Susanville, Lassen county, is using the Jerseys for dairy cows.

The dairies in the three counties named average from 30 to 80 cows each, although a few are found having more cows. The butter produced is rich flavored, well colored, and has good keeping qualities. The principal valleys in Lassen noted for butter making are Honey Lake, Long, Secret, Horse Lake, Big, Dry and Willow Creek.

About 40,000 pounds of cheese is made each year and 150,000 pounds of butter. In Plumas the principal valleys are Big Meadows, Indian, Genesee, Clover, Mohawk, Humbug, and a part of Sierra valley. The amount of cheese is estimated at 10 000 pounds, while the butter is estimated at 200,000 pounds. The output of Sierra is less than that of Lassen. In the ordinary methods of working, the milk stands from 24 to 26 hours, is then skimmed and the cream stands twenty-four hours. The cream is churned every day or every other day, according to the number of cows kept in the dairy. After being churned the butter is washed in cold water, stands twenty-four hours and is then worked a second time and salted. It is then either packed down in kegs or put up in rolls. Ice, though abundant, is not used in any of these dairies, and as a rule there is no cold cellar or ice room where the butter is kept. In some instances strong brine is poured over the butter in the kegs but in others this is not done.

The principal dairies in Plumas are those of E D. Hoselkus, 85 cows in Genesee Valley; John L. Crow, 100 cows in Clover Valley: Bacher Bros., 80 cows in Indian Valley; R. Stover, 60 cows in Big Meadows; Dotta Bros. and L. W. Bunnell with 60 cows each in Big Meadows.

In Sierra Valley the half dozen largest dairies are those of A. S. Nichols, 58; D. C. Berry, 55; T. Rosencrans, 60; M. Ramelli, 45, O. S. Church, 30; and Ed Hamlin, 34 cows.

In Sierra Valley there are three small creameries in operation and the results have been very satisfactory. One of these is owned by A. S. Nichols near Sierraville; the second by O. S. Church at Santey, and the third by Street & Wiltse on the road between Summit and Loyalton.

Sixty cents a hundred pounds is paid for the milk, each owner buying from his nearest neighbors. The De Loval cream separators are used, and it is estimated that from fifteen to twenty per cent. more cream is obtained than will rise naturally.

The creamery butter commands a higher price and sells more readily. The skim milk is returned to the dairymen and fed to calves or hogs so that nothing is lost. From three to three and a half pounds of butter is obtained from each 100 pounds of milk.

It is thought that these creameries will rapidly increase in all three counties, and that greater profits can be made in the future in butter making. The greatest drawback is the poor facilities for sending their products to market. When either of the counties named is crossed by a railroad coming to San Francisco dairying will receive a great impetus and each one engaged will make more money out of his occupation.

Shorthorn Breeders' Association.

At the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Shorthorn Breeders' Association it was determined to hold two annual sales a year, under the auspices of the Association, at which sales only pure bred Shorthorns should be sold. The first of these sales was held last April, and when we consider the effect the severe winter had on all stock raisers, the sale may be fairly considered an unqualified success. The second sale of the year will take place on Friday morning, September 19th (during the State Fair) at Sacramento. All cattle raisers, whether for the market or the dairy, should first of all join the Association and then endeavor to improve their breed of cattle. Shorthorns hold the same position among cattle that thoroughbreds do among horses; in fact they are the thoroughbred cattle, and cattle owners should recollect that a cross of pure blood will improve both horses and cattle; this has long been acknowledged by all historians and writers. Like begets like is one of the most powerful laws of nature, and so long ago as the reign of Julius Cæsar this was written of as an established fact, one of the first Latin lyric poets saying—as is splendidly and expressively translated by that brilliant historian and scholar Frank Forester (Henry William Herbert):

> "The brave are by the brave and good.
> There is in steers, there is in horses' blood,
> The virtue of their sires. No timid dove
> SPrings from the coupled eagle's love."

In the present era it is universally conceded that good stock can only be raised from good parents. Breeders should never forget that if they wish to make a success it behooves them to purchase pure bred cattle and keep improving their herds year by year by introducing new blood.

Speaking of improving the breed of cattle in Texas, and it applies just as well here to a certain class of people, the Fort Worth Gazette says:

It has been said, written and sung time and again that the sooner cattlemen realize the fact that the best way to improve the price of cattle is to improve the cattle themselves, the better it will be for them; yet there are still in Texas cattlemen who are hanging on to their scrub bulls and raising a class of cattle that are always at the bottom of the market. Day after day it is practically demonstrated to those who can see anything that there is no money in scrub cattle. Still, strange to say, some people go on raising scrub cattle and chasing the markets because they cannot get shorthorn prices for longhorn steers. One good thoroughbred bull in a herd of cattle is worth more than a hundred of the class referred to herein, and it is strange indeed that so many people are willing to continue ignoring blood simply because they do not wish to go down in their pockets and pull out the price of a good blooded bull.

If every scrub bull in Texas should be shot down on the prairies to-day and left there, it would be the greatest benefit to to the cattle industry in Texas that could be conferred on it. There are many large ranchmen who long ago discarded the ordinary Texas bull, and it is these men who wear good clothes to-day and put up at the best hotels when they come to town. To keep a scrub bull in the herd and raise scrub calves simply because the bull is cheap and will beget as many calves as a thoroughbred is poor economy. His get may be just as numerous as that of the blooded but when the two are put on the market the difference is soon seen. The scrub is neglected even at low prices, while the graded animal is sought after and commands the top of the market.

Those cattlemen who during the past five or six years have been engaged in grading up their herds with Short-horns, Herefords and other popular breeds do not have so much cause to kick against the market as those who have failed to do so; they are getting good prices for their beef from buyers of choice cattle, while the others are relegated to the tender mercies of the canner, who generally buys at his own figures. There are two things that will do more to improve beef cattle prices than all things else, and they are, better cattle and a shorter supply. Let cattlemen stop glutting the market with a mixture of poor and good cattle, and raise only the latter, and prices will improve beyond a doubt.—

So-Called Lard.

Forty years ago, or less, "refined lard" was an honest article, made by depriving lard of a portion of its oil. This made the lard stiffer and capable of standing up better in hot weather. It won for the manufacturer a good reputation and a good business. It was discovered that a combination of beef stearine and cotton-seed oil could hardly be distinguished by smell or taste from "refined lard." This was thrown on the market in competition, under various names, "refined lard," "pure refined lard," "choice family lard," and "compound lard." It was made of material cheaper than lard and under-sold it; and it has now so far outrun the honest article that a good authority says 320,000,000 pounds of it are sold where only 280,000,000 pounds of the genuine are. Formerly 500,000,000 pounds of the genuine were sold annually. On the testimony of Prof. H W. Wiley twelve samples of lard prepared by Fairbanks & Co, of Chicago, contained cotton-seed oil; and twelve prepared by Armour & Co., which Prof. Wiley examined, ten contained cotton-seed oil and two were pure. Of the twelve, seven were branded "pure refined family lard," one "kettle refined lard," three "choice refined family lard," one "prime refined family lard," and one "compound lard" Of Fairbanks & Co's twelve samples, eight were branded "prime refined family lard," one "choice refined family lard," one "pure refined family lard," one "prime refined family lard," and one "compound lard." Surely all lard-eaters may exclaim, What's in a name?—Mirror and Farmer.

Wool and Mutton.

C. G. Burbank, Menard Co., Texas, writes the American Wool reporter: "The sheep business in Texas is again in a flourishing condition. Wool is selling at a price above the cost of production, muttons have been generally sold at good figures, and there are indications of a strong demand for stock sheep in the near future. The increase of lambs was large and they are now doing well, but so great has been the sale and shipment of wethers and dry ewes, that the net increase of sheep will be small. Never has there been such a demand for fat sheep. Shorn wethers have sold as high as $4, and two-year wethers and dry ewes mixed at $2.50. The price has been so tempting that nearly all the wethers above and including two-year-olds have been disposed of, and ewes materially reduced in numbers. But there will be no scarcity of sheep, nor lack of wool. All the ewes retained will be used this fall, and it will not take Texas long, if present conditions retain, to recover the sheep lost since 1884, and even largely increase that number.

That this prosperity is largely due to anticipated favorable tariff legislation, I think cannot be disputed, and if this effect is produced already, to what heights may we not attain when the realization comes. But you may be consoled by the fact that "what goes up must come down." The American Reporter and the other trade papers, even those that do not share your views as to the tariff on wool, are pleasant reading to wool growers just now. Your wails and lamentations; because the growers are, for the first time in some years, getting a small profit, are as music in their ears. But they are more liberal than you or a large class of wool manufacturers, for we are not only willing, but anxious, that the manufacturer may prosper also, recognizing that in their prosperity, ours lies, only asking that they do not prosper at our expense."

Corn in Texas.

The continued dry weather in Texas has undoubtedly cut short what at one time bid fair to be the finest corn crop ever raised in the State, and the corn crop falling so far below what it was expected to reach will have its effect on the cattle industry. Had the corn yield this year been an abundant one—that is, furnishing a heavy surplus—there would have been more cattle fed in Texas next winter than there ever has been in the past; but as the yield will be so much shorter than was anticipated, the prospects now are that there will be a shortage of fed cattle. Thus steer cattle, which have been kept over during the winter to feed for next spring's market, will probably be taken from the grass and put on the fall market, and this means more cattle on the market than there otherwise would have been unless the breeding States north take them from Texas. Kansas has had fine rains recently, and reports say a fine corn crop is assured there. In fact there are reports from all the northwestern States of good crop prospects, and it may be that those States will relieve the market by taking Texas feeders when they can be shipped to those sections. If this is not done, Texas certainly can furnish more cattle to the markets than she would have done had the corn crop been better.—Fort Worth Gazette.

Favorable to American Pork.

Recent dispatches from Berlin state that the Westphalian Pork Packers' Association, whose interests Bismarck thought to protect by prohibiting the importation of American pork, has sent a deputation to the general director of inland taxes, praying him to inform the government that the protection scheme does not work in their interest. They will refrain from protesting if the law be cancelled. The director replied that it was not improbable that the law would be repealed.

The chambers of Halle and Waldenback, the most important pork markets in Germany, indorse the request of the Westphalian.—Cincinnati Price Current.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7TH, 1890.

The Friscos made a remarkably strong appearance, having Peek a-boo Veoch on first and Yonng and Speer in the points. They played with a dash that has been conspicuously absent in their work for many weeks, and as both sides did an eqnal amount of heavy hitting in addition to some very sharp and brilliant fielding, the game may be put down as one of the good ones of the season. The Senators, though hitting hard, failed to bunch on Yonng, while Hoffman was hit luckily with men on bases. This accounts for the victory of the home team. A remarkable thing about the game was the number of pretty double plays made. Frisco had four, Veach participating in all and Shea in three; the Sacramentos had two. Levy and Stapleton were wonderfully effective at the bat, each securing three hits, and the former came within an "eye brow" of getting one over the right field fence. Reitz, Hoffman, Shea, Yonng and Hanley also did good service in the same department. The ontfielding of Roberts, Goodenough and Hanloy, and the exceptionally clever infield work of both teams were pleasing features. The score:

OAKLAND vs SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 8TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

This turned out to be a lively and interesting game, despite the fact that there were many misplays, especially on the Colonels side, and as usual, General Tip O'Neill captured the prize in this department. The crowd was one of the largest ever assembled inside the Emery grounds and although they were rather subdued as the Senators rolled up four runs in the fifth and thereby gained a big lead, their enthusiasm knew no bounds when the Colonels by great luck got the same number over the plate in the ninth and tied the score. Then the Senators came in and did telling work with the stick. Stapleton hit safely and was advanced to second on Reitz's sacrifice. McHales scorching single right over short—his first in the game scored Stapleton which won the game. Charley Dooley, late of the New York Giants made his reappearance in a Colonels uniform and received a hearty ovation. As both Harper and Carsey were hit freely the fielders had plenty to do and in this respect McDonald, Stickney, O'Neill Daly, Reilz and Roberts carried off the honors. Godar led the hitting hut was closely followed by Stickney, Stapleton, Goodenough, Dooley, McDonald and Dungan. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 8TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

With a lead of four runs at the beginning of the eighth inning, it looked as thongh the 'Friscos would be victorious, but they fell to pieces in this inning, and let the Stocktons get five of their players across the plate, thereby winning the game. Eight hits were made off both Lookabaugh and Kilroy, but the gentleman with the swagger from Philadephia, got by far the better support. The left side of the Frisco's field was very rocky, Captain Buck Ebright himself leading by making three glaring errors. Everett also had a costly one, and Levy two. Voght made his reappearance, and caught a splendid game, being strong in throwing and keeping runners close to their bases. Fogarty's work at the bat and in his position, set Stocktonians wild with delight Shea, Cahill and Wilson were also timely hitters in the game, and the clever fielding of Fudger, Fogarty, Selna, Shea, Veach and Everett received the heartiest applause. McLaughlin's umpiring created a most favorable impression:

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

SATURDAY, AUG. 9TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

A largo Saturday crowd saw this very excellent game at the Haight St. grounds. Both teams went in for business from the go, and although the hitting was sharp, brisk and finished fielding kept down the figures in the run column. Cobb was in the box in the Colonels, and the hits made off him were well scattered. Hoffman pitched good steady ball, errors in the second and third innings, together with a couple of long drives accounting for the Oaklands four runs. The Senators had but two runs on their string at the beginning of the ninth, and there seemed to be but little hope for them crawling ont of the hole. But they are great finishers and made a desperate attempt to tie the score. Hoffman popped up a fly to Stickney and Goodenough got his base on balls. Daley's hit to Cobb forced Goodenough at second, but Godar's safety to right field sent the short stop to second, and Bowman's single to left scored him. Stapleton ended the game by going ont on N. O'Neill's assist. The prettiest feature of the game was McDonalds superb second base playing, he accepting twelve of thirteen chances, the error being a pardonable one owing to a collision between himself and Dungan. Roberts, Bowman, O'Neill and McDonald did good batting, and Reitz, Daley, Stapleton, Dooley and Roberts put up a great fielding game. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, AUG. 9TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

Fourteen innings—constituting the longest gamo of the season, were played at Stockton last Saturday. It was a wonderful game, for with the Stocktons six runs ahead in the seventh inning, the Friscos tied the score and after that not a man crossed the plate on either side till the fourteenth when the Gas Cityites did some gilt edged stick work and won. Perrott was the first man up and he rapped ont a safe one; Duane followed with another of the same character, but Cahill's hit to Everett forced Perrott out at third. Armstrong's triple, however, told the tale, sending both men over the rubber. The Friscos couldn't tally in their half and so lost a long and stubbornly contested battle. Hapeman pitched till the eighth inning, being batted heavily in the seventh. Perrott then relieved him and his work was of the finest possible character. Young's pitching on the whole was good, but he allowed his delivery to be bunched on in the four, fifth and fourteenth. Armstreng, Fudger, Duane, Wilson and Everett did tremendons work at the bat. The following table presents heavy colnms of figures, and considering the length of the game the error column makes a very respectable contrast against the one hundred and twenty-nine chances offered. The score:

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 10, 1890.

The Stockton management displayed very poor judgment in putting Perrott—who pitched a masterly game the day previous—in the box for this game. The strain was too great and so after four innings of excellent work he weakened and was touched up lively in the fifth and seventh—the only innings in which the Colonels scored. The Stocktons couldn't bunch on little Carsey at all and their five hits were divided equally between the first five innings. Cahill banged out the first ball pitched him for a triple which seemed a very auspicious opening. He scored the only run of his side, however, on Selna's sacrifice to McDonald. The Oaklands commenced their bombardment in the fifth. N. O'Neill struck ont bnt Stockwell got in a double and Carsey's duplicate scored him. Dooley's single to left sent Carsey's across the plate making two earned runs that inning. This was sufficient to win the game but they augmented their score three runs in the seventh on singles by C. O'Neill and Lohman, Dungans double and errors of Fudger and Fogarty. The fielding was excellent throughout. Dooley and Selna played first base in a most clever manner and all the other sections of the field were capably guarded with the exception of the short stop position—N. O'Neill and Fudger each making two misplays there. Cahill and Dungan led the hitting, the latter going one better than a hundred safe shots for the season. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, AUG. 10, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators had a walk-over in this game, the Friscos being never "in it" after the first inning. The tronble was the wagon tongues wielded by Finns tately augmented aggregation of terrific hitters, almost nttterly failed to affilliate with Harper's criss-cross curves. The score feebly points ont three little hits as the extent of the stick work of the Goblins, while the Senatorial parties averages were fattened by twelve solid smashes off Lookabaugh. Daley and Speer were both injured in the game, and retired in favor of Hoffman and Stevens respectively, Young going to right field for the Friscos. The fielding of Stapleton's men was in accordance with their batting, while the Frisco boys made some startling errors in which respect Willie Walter Veaob led with three glaring misplays. Roberts, who of late has been batting hard and frequently, had three safe hits to his credit in this game, and Stapleton, Goodenough and Godar two each, the latter including a home run. There were many bits of nice fielding, Levy, Shea, Reitz, Goodenough, Roberts and Stapleton excelling. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs OAKLANDS.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 14TH 1890 AT SAN FRANCISCO.

A little woman, whose face was full of features of the strong Tipperary type, gathered her green plaid shawl tightly around her and giving a wicked twist to her spring bonnet which nearly upset the equilibrium of the yellow and crimson dandelions which surmounted it, flounced out of her seat in the bleaching boards at the end of the seventh inning, and in a high treble shouted "Youre not in it." The old lady has been "rooting" for the home team all through the season and that she was thoroughly disgusted with their work was plainly evident by the expression on her face and the charming little invective she made use of to express her disapprobation. Finn's team have often made more errors than they did on this occasion, but in this game they were of an unpardonable variety, happening at disastrous moments and materially permitting the Oaklands to win. Otto Young was in the box for the home team and Young was hit fiercely. The hits made off him were all solid cracks with the exception of a couple that went sailing unmolested by the third corner.

Colonel Cobb was also touched up lively but he judiciously kept them distributed throughout the nine innings (except in the eighth) while on the other hand Young's were nicely bunched with his team's errors. The Oaklands tied the score in the third and then kept right on getting two men across the plate in each the fourth, fifth and seventh. The Friscos waited till the lucky eighth and then scored two men on doubles by Hanley and Stevens and Everetts single. But this was all they could get and so the Colonels "did them up" eight to four. Everett, Stevens, McDonald and Stockwell hit well and Levy had a pretty three cushion shot to his credit. He also captured a difficult fly for which he ran to center garden but dropped another easy one. McDonald, Shea, Stickney and C. O'Neill did some beautiful work in their respective positions. THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The Friscos have taken a beautiful slide, and are now very comfortably ensconced in third place. The Colonels are equally as well fixed in second, while Stapleton's Senators are vigorously pushing their way "upward and onward" to victory. The Stocktons occasionally win a game and then drop two, so until they can reverse this order of things, they are destined to keep in last position unless the home team cares to dispute their right to it.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Hill is again out in the cold.

The Senators have a mighty lead.

Vogt, Kilroy's side partner, is again in harness.

McCarthy's accident was very unfortunate for the home team.

Big Chief Borchers is now pitching winning ball for Spokane.

The Sacramentos have got sacrifice hitting reduced to a science.

Everett has yet failed to develop any extraordinary batting tendencies.

Roger Connor leads the batting list of the Players League with a record of 381.

Hassamer, the captain and short stop of the Portlands, is said to be a great kicker.

Umpire McLaughlin has made a success in Stockton and Sacramento. Critical audiences in these places, too.

The Omaha management has reinstated Dad Clark, the pitcher, who was recently suspended for dereliction of duty.

The Stockton crowds at the games are small, but, oh! they're mighty when it comes to yelling for the home team.

Monk Cline is now an Apostle. Shortly after his release from Sioux City, Manager Watkins of the St. Pauls signed him.

The Colonel has negotiated with so many players in the East, that were they all here, they could easily be formed into a four club league.

Danny Long enjoys the distinction of being rated the best run getter in the Atlantic Association. And how easily the Colonel let him slip away from here.

Little Hugh Nicol, for many years the pride of the St. Louis Browns, and who opened this season with Cincinnati is now with the Pittsburg (N. L) team.

Arlie Latham, the clown of the "profesh" is now captaining and playing third base for the Cincinnati team. Manager Loftus purchased his release from Von der Ahe for $2500.

"Why are some of the players' caps cut open behind?" asked the occasional patron of the game.

"Because they have swelled heads," replied the crank.—Ex.

Pete Sweeney ranked seventy-ninth in the batting list of the American Association, with a percentage of 161. As a third baseman he was thirtieth in the list, with 806 per cent.

Since Cahill has been made captain of the Stockton team, he seems much impressed with the dignity of the position. His instructions to his players are as amusing as they are unique.

Hen Moore, who has seen the rise and fall of many teams this season, having been a member of no less than three disbanded clubs himself is now playing great ball in left field for the Salt Lakes.

Spokane was the first team Whittrock, Harris' new pitcher from St. Louis went in against, and they only sized him up for nineteen hits. What a great lot of stickers there must be up in that country.

The inimitable Monk Cline, whose humorous expressions on the coaching lines when here with Jim Hart's Louisvilles set the audiences in roars of laughter, has recently been released from the Sioux City team.

Manager Harris, of the Portland team, has succeeded in disgusting every true lover of base ball.—Seattle Journal.

Well! well! what a tremendous charge must have come over the genial Henry. Wonder if we'll ever know him after such a transformation.

The Colonel's new men are said to be excellent players. Sammy Shaw, the pitcher, possesses a number of excellent curves, some of which are said to be tantalizingly slow. Joe Cantillian and Danny Sweeney, the midget, are "bang up" fielders and strong hitters.

There have been almost as many players by the name of Sweeney seen on local diamonds as Smiths. In the seventies we had Rooney Sweeney, then came Charley Sweeney, Pete Sweeney and Tom Sweeney (of the Nationals), and now one of the Colonel's new men rejoices in the name of Danny Sweeney.

There is no doubt but that Catcher Vaughn, of the New Yorks, threw a base ball 134 yards, 2½ inches at Buffalo, June 23, but the performance was not protected and does not go on record. Ed Crane's 139 yard throw at Boston in 1881 was similarly treated. The record is John Hatfield's 133 yards, 1 foot, 7½ inches made at Brooklyn, October 15, 1872. Hatfield is now a book maker at Washington Park, Chicago.

From the far off everglades of Florida comes the following admonition through the columns of the Sporting Life: "Managers, keep your eyes on Billy Stickney, third baseman of the Oakland (Cal) Club". This line, plain and concise, and coming a distance of five thousand miles, must be very gratifying to the jovial third baseman. Stickney's work this season at the difficult corner has been clever, finished and conscientious to a degree. His batting has also been strong and often timely.

Manager Finn drew a prize when he got McCarthy. From what we have seen of his work, we feel justified in saying he is an elegant pitcher. The little blonde twirlers' style and methods are so different from those employed by most pitchers, that it is an agreeable change to watch him perform his duties. He has already established himself as a big favorite, and is a drawing card for the 'Friscos. It is to be hoped that he will continue to do as well as he started out.

Pete Sweeney evidently has not made a wonderful success with the St. Pauls. The scores of late show that he has fallen off perceptibly in fielding and hitting. This is the way the Sporting Life sizes him up:

"Pete Sweeney, who is captaining the team, and playing third, in the estimation of a good many people, is no improvement over Phillips. He may be a little better hitter, but he certainly is not the fielder that Phillips is. It is doubtful if his acquisition has added any great strength to the team."

The friends of M. J. Kelly, of the Boston Club, of the Players' League, have purchased the estate of William J. Neff, on Main Street, South Hingham, Mass., with the intention of presenting it to him. The papers were passed on Aug. 2, and two hours afterwards there were carpenters, painters, paper hangers and electric light workmen at work making repairs. The estate contains five or six acres of land under cultivation, and on it there are a two and a half story house, stable, outbuildings, etc., in a good state of repair. The formal presentation will be made this week. The estate is valued at $10,000.—Clipper.

The work of Captain Ebright of late has been little better than ordinary. Occasionally he plays a great game, and again he errs on as many chances as he accepts. This would not cause as much unfavorable comment as it does, were it not for the fact that the big German appears too painfully conscious of his own abilities(?) on the diamond. He is a great "flash" player, but behind this is a very perceptible lack of merit. The disgusted glances he throws at his players when they fail to make a play of a difficult chance, and his apparently overbearing manner is rapidly giving people the impression that he has the "swelled head" and is making him very unpopular.

Dungan now leads the batting list. There is no denying the fact that this player is a great batsman but it must also be admitted that he is a remarkably lucky hitter and were the scratch hits credited to him deducted his average would be reduced fully twenty per cent. He has a good eye, however, and strikes at the ball most viciously. Seldom are his hits placed scientifically but being propelled by brute strength they are often within reach of the infielders but too hot to be successfully met and handled. Among others who rank high in the batting department and who will have a good chance to capture the honors, are Cahill, Roberts, Godar, Fogarty, Stapleton, Ebright, Daley, Shea, Stevens and Hanley.

There isn't as much head-first sliding into second base as there used to be. The reason is well known to members of the profession. A head-first slide is meat for a good second baseman. He asks nothing better. They are easy to block off. A second baseman will stand right in the path on a head first slide in such a way that he will prevent him reaching the base. He has nothing to fear, for if the runner comes in contract with him it will not be his legs that will suffer, but the runner's neck or head. With feet-first sliders it is different. The plates hurt like sixty, and no second baseman is looking for the worst of it. There is no attempt at a block when a running comes down to the base with the iron plates of his shoes pointed for the bag.—Exchange.

The following interesting correspondence from Cincinnati to the Sporting News headed "Sold for Five Dollars," appeared in a recent issue of that paper: The smiling priest-like face of funny Peek-a-Boo Veach does not show radiantly from the first base corner of the Pittsburg team this trip. Peek has just finished in one of the most remarkable deals and trades system. Peek bought his release from the Pittsburg Club. He paid five dollars for it. President O'Neill owed Peek a fiver, and the latter said if he would let him go to the Sacramento Club he would call it square. President O'Neill said well and good. The last seen of Peek he was on an emigrant train headed for the Occidental State. He had with him nine loaves of bread, ten pounds of ham sausage and a bottle of hard cider.

From all reports, the Sacramento management seem to be making a number of bluffs at the players, which certainly are prolific of no good. The proposed deal whereby some of their best players were to be sacrificed at the altar of Mammon, and which was prevented by several lovers of the game and the Sacramento team, as now composed, by expressing their willingness to lend any necessary financial aid, has been superseded by another equally deleterious proceeding in attempting the reduction of the salary of a certain player. The members of the team stood together as one man and refused to see the salaries of any of their fellow players cut down, justly claiming that they were earning all the remuneration they received. If the Sacramento management has injudiciously and unwarrantably signed a high priced team, they are certainly themselves to blame. But with the increasing interest manifested in the game, and the prospective good old crowds, the chances are that Messrs. Ginsberg and Enright will break more than even at the close of the season.

A good story, which possesses the additional merit of being absolutely true, is told about Aaron Jacobs, the Apollo of the ball grounds. Aaron, or "big Jake," as he is familiarly called by his numerous friends, is, as his name indicates, one of the "chosen people" but happily possesses few of the characteristics of that race. He is a tall, handsome and genial fellow, dresses with excellent taste, is liberal in his ideas and with his cash and consequently it is not a matter of wonderment that he is extremely popular with the fair sex. Jake is also something of a wrestler, and being an "all round sport" was asked some years ago by Manager Jim Hart if he would umpire the Louisville—Stockton game which was to be played at the Stockton race track. He graciously accepted the invitation and started off well. In the fifth inning, however, the Louisvilles were considerably ahead and Hen Moore, then with Stockton, was at the bat. Reccins pitched Hen a ball just where he wanted it and away it went skimming down toward short. The sphere bounded past White to left field like a shot, but the short stop went through the pantomimic motions of picking up and throwing the ball, and Dave Fontz at first made believe catching the throw. Jake believing that the play had really been effected shouted "Your out," "Come in." Cook, who was catching, saw the mistake and said "For God's sake, Jake, call the man safe or you'll be mobbed." Acting on the catcher's instructions Jake timidly informed the jeering crowd that his decision was wrong, and the runner was safe. But it is needless to say he never umpired another game. He now contents himself "rooting" for the home team.

The following are excerpts on the Great American Game of Baseball from "The Umpire," a humorous and critical London journal: "It is an interesting and thoroughly attractive game. It is more than that, it is fascinating. * * * It will make the foot-ball players smarter. Almost every ball means a smart piece of fielding and often more. It is sure to have the effect of brightening the men up. Swiftness and accuracy ought to be improved wonderfully after a season of baseball. * * * * * * * * * * It is a very hard game for a man who is not an adept at it—harder, than football, because there is more running about in it than is called for from a goalkeeper. The game requires a good deal of skill, especially in throwing; and as for the batting, a man is lucky to hit the ball at all."

And therein lies the secret of the baseball difficulties, which the American propagators always modestly refrained from dilating upon. The great hindrance in the transplantation process is that the game cannot be picked up in an afternoon.

The urchins in the street cannot take a bat and a ball and begin straight away, as with cricket, or—to the intense disgust of obstructed foot passengers—with football. The youthful public know they can't tackle it. It must be made easier. Is there any reason why the whole volume of cast iron American rules should be taken up and thrown bodily at us, for us to take it or leave it? Let the innings be lengthened—let the striker be allowed six misses instead of three, or twelve if need be—the probability being that he will miss nine times out of a dozen; and let the pitcher have more latitude, since at first a full half of his balls will be foul balls. Then when the game is rendered easier—a game for learners and amateurs, not for professionals of the highest degree of expertness—there will be a chance that it may be taken up by our schools and colleges; yea, even our national schools and boarding schools; by our ragged athletes in impromptu costumes in the back streets, as well as on the lawn, in addition to, not in substitution for, our already established games, and proficiency and popularity will follow by natural steps.

The Amateurs.

Games Played by the California Amateur League.

The Reports played themselves into first place last Sunday, still their margin over the Santa Rosas is but a slight one. The Will and Fincks have had another bad tumble but are comfortably ahead of the Vallejo boys, who, by the way, are creeping perceptibly toward the first section. The Burlingtons remain fifth, and although the Allens are yet last they closely follow the Railroaders and are pushing their way forward slowly but surely. The record to date:

E. T. ALLENS vs. WILL & FINCKS.

Sunday, Aug. 10th, 1890, at San Francisco.

Eighteen young aspirants for honors on the diamond gave an exhibition of their temper as well as their ability to play ball, and we believe were fully justified in the former. Col. Thomas P. Robinson again essayed to umpire the game, and again made a most complete "frost." The Giants suffered more than the Sports however, from his erroneous decisions, and this in a measure goes to explain their defeat. Howell was not hit hard but the Sports hits were luckily placed, and this, aided by the few errors of the Giants and the "two-year-olds" wildness gave them their runs. McDonald, who emerged from a long retirement, seemed benefited by his vacation, being steadier than ever before, and having tremendous speed. Billy Farrell played a good second for the Finks and also did some great base running. Frank Delmas and Strand bit well as usual, and the fielding of L Delmas, Tillson, Geishaker, Philpot and Buckley, together with the backstop work of Billings and Leland were commendable and pleasant features of the contest. The game was played in 1 hour 30 minutes. The score:

REPORTS vs. SANTA ROSAS.

Sunday, Aug. 10th, 1830 at Santa Rosa.

In this game the Reports are credited with two hits while the Santa Rosas have twelve, and as the score resulted nine to eight in favor of the News Circulators it goes without saying that the Sonoma boys must have played a woefully wretched game. The Reports figure conspicuously in the error column also, but not to the alarming extent of Grace's men. Monet was hit freely but the home team were as stupid running bases as in fielding, and hard hitting unless supplemented by judicious coaching wont win games. Callen was in great form himself but his work, excellent as it was, could not offset the miserable exhibition of the infield. Arlett and Kelly had a very off day making nine errors between them. When the Santa Rosas went to bat in their last half of the ninth the visitors were six runs ahead. With two men out, through some lucky hitting and aided by poor throwing on the part of the Reports, they got five men over the plate, almost tying the score. Pace made his re-appearance with the team and caught a good game besides being exceptionally strong at the bat. Cook, Gimmel and Arlett also did hard work in the same department. In the fielding Sharp, Thompson, McIntyre, Green, Reilly, Gimmel, McCarthy and Stulz did the best service. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. BURLINGTONS.

Sunday, Aug. 10th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Vallejos had little difficulty in winning this game. Billy Incell, at one time California's greatest twirler, went up with the Railroaders, but the heavy hiting Marines found it an easy task to solve his curves, and the ex-Haverly pitcher was touched up for ten safeties. Stanley caught him well, but eight errors were distributed among the other members of the team, and these greatly aided the Vallejos in their run getting. Baltz pitched another remarkable game, allowing but three hits and disposing of twelve men on strikes. Farrell at the receiving end played elegantly, but the in and out field support was not up to the standard. Maguire led in the hitting, base running and run making. Gene Foster had a sensational catch in left field which was a particular feature of the game. The work of the catchers, Baltz's pitching and the fielding of Murdock, Stanford, Maguire, Bradley, Dunn and Dean was also commendable. Umpire Russell renewed the good impression he made by his satisfactory work in his initial game. The score:

MERCED vs. FRESNO.

Amateur Short Hits.

Baltz leads all the pitchers.

The Giants need a bracing up.

Billy Cate has not umpired lately.

The Reports are once more the people.

Monet is the best hitting pitcher in the league.

Alec Bradley continues his good work at second.

Stanley caught Incell in fine shape last Sunday.

The Sports are just commencing to play their hand.

Stanford is guarding first base well for the Marines.

Jimmy English is doing good box work for Merced.

Pitcher Philpot is also a "bang up" second baseman.

Dick Nagle is catching a finished game for the Merceds.

Jim Coughlin is playing a fine short for the Burlingtons.

The Railroaders have a good first baseman in Mart Fleming.

The Marines have been playing pennant winning ball of late.

Frank Delmas has been hitting the sphere hard and safely lately.

Gene Broderick made a most sensational backward catch last Sunday.

Dan Armbuster has severed his connection with the Fresno team.

The Burlingtons lost a good man when catcher Frank Mulvey resigned.

The Reports, in McIntyre, Sharp and Hearty, have a great hitting outfield

The M. J. Flavins are in the swim for the season, and challenge all comers.

Billings, who had quite a lay off from catching, was a power behind the bat in last Sunday's game.

Jack Lewis is but slowly convalescing. The Allens greatly miss him as he is one of their heaviest stickers.

George Sharp didn't get in his customary number of hits at Santa Rosa, Sunday. What's the matter George?

The race for the pennant is becoming more and more interesting, but no team has a "lead pipe cinch" on the "rag" yet.

The Santa Rosa's are a great hitting team at home, but in fielding they are "way off," both on their own grounds and abroad.

A number of the Racquet Social Club of which Tom Powers and Dave Creamer are members, accompanied the Reports to Santa Rosa, Sunday.

Little Howell, the "two-year-old," was rather fractious last Sunday, for after giving a man base on balls he advanced him to second, third and home on three successive wild pitches.

Jack Lohman, Pete's brother, is a fine pitcher, and will soon be seen in the box for the Allens. With Philpot, McDonald and Lohman, Keller is well supplied with twirling talent.

George Kelly, who did good work the fore part of the season, at short and third base for the Stocktons, is now in Oakland, unsigned. Kelly would be a great pick-up for some of the amateur teams.

Billy Kennedy, a most promising youngster, who has demonstrated the fact that he is as clever in all departments of the game as many of his seniors, requested his release from the Burlingtons, and was immediately signed by the Allen management.

Leland, the Los Angeles player, is doing good service for Keller. He is quite a catcher, being a good receiver and accurate thrower, although a little slow. With the bat he has been fairly successful and altogether is a good find for the Sports.

Manager Grace thinks he ought to get credit in the record for the protested Report—Santa Rosa game of July 7th, but the Directors of the League, consisting of Messrs. Keller, Elmquist, Warren, Grace, Sheridan and Ashman, haven't passed on that game yet. It would be well that President Gage call a meeting and have the matter definitely settled.

The Will & Finck team, also known as the Young Giants, were formerly the Keane Bros., and previous to that, the old Nationals. Of the original team, Tillson, Leveque, Frank and Lonny Delmas, and Billy Farrell have played together almost continuously for five years, and have been four years under the management of Frank W. Warren. Warren was also at one time left fielder for the Keane Bros. team.

Billy Hulen has returned from Port Townsend and will again have a berth with his old team—the Santa Rosas. Hulen is a prime favorite, and being a great infielder as well as a fine sticker, will greatly strengthen that team. It is quite possible that he will be placed at short as he is in every respect a superior man to Arlett. The latter will probably be retained as utility man. With Kelly, Reilly, Hulen and Stulz on the infield, Gimmel, Cook and McCarthy outfield, Callen pitcher, Pace and Utt catchers, and Arlett all round man, the Santa Rosa's are stronger than ever.

The Santa Rosa management have a great man in Reilly. Josh is a "star" among amateurs, and if given a fair show, would have done much better with the professionals. Second base is really his position, and in which he has few superiors. He covers a big territory, is as agile as Reitz in touching a man, and with an active short stop can worry the life out of a base runner who has safely reached second. Reilly is also a strong, precise thrower, excellent hitter, daring and rapid base runner, and altogether a most capable and brainy player.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS,

SUMMARY.

The three leading clubs of the P. C. A. A. A. held cross country runs on Sunday last and the amateur athletes have been taking it easy ever since. The Oarsmen are practicing hard for the Admission Day regatta and the wheelmen are particularly training for their coming road race.

The cricketers and swimmers are not idle and it is evident that we are on the eve of a prosperous sporting season.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The amateurs are now thoroughly convinced that Skillman is a dandy.

If such good men continue to visit San Francisco all her old time athletes will speedily retire.

With the assistance of a good hammer man the Olympic Club would stand an excellent chance of winning the club championship of the United States.

A. C. Snow of the Alameda Olympic Club should keep up practice. for his grand showing on Sunday last at the cross country run proved that he is a long distance runner of no ordinary ability.

A middle distance race between Sutton of the U. C. and Scott of the O A. C. would prove highly interesting.

Douglas B. Crane has just returned from the country. Had he been able to take part in his clubs run on Sunday last he would certainly have stood a good show for one of the prizes.

Phil Moody of the Alpine Club recently met with an accident which necessitates his giving up training for the present. He expects to be all right, however, for the Sacramento meeting.

Jim Corbett's recent appearance in the role of an actor will not add any more lustre to his already well known name. The less popularity of this kind the better for a man of Mr. Corbetts standing. Ex nihilo nihil fit.

It is almost a certainty that William Greer Harrison will once more be elected to the presidency of the Olympic Club. When Mr. Harrison resigned some months ago we prophesied that the Olympic Club would sadly feel his loss and it is needless to say that our predictions have been fulfilled to the letter. The present incumbent while being a good man in his way, was never the equal of William Greer Harrison. It would be hard to find a more suitable person and the few bigoted members whose conduct caused Mr. Harrison to resign will we feel confident keep in the back ground in future for indifferent as they may seem their personal pride will prompt them to respect a gentleman who has at all times worked hard in the interest of the club of which they pride themselves as being members. Since Mr. Harrison resigned the office of President nothing to amount to anything has been done in behalf of the new building but just as soon as he takes office again he will find no difficulty in taking it up where he left off for the members at the present time are only too anxious to have him back that he may proceed with the good work.

It is amusing to watch some of the Olympic boys who took part in last Sunday's run from San Mateo, try to walk straight. Scott, Cooley and McArthur suffered terribly from blistered feet, and the chances are that the next run will not be quite so long. The novices had the best time, for they made a pace to suit themselves.

The young ladies of Alameda think that Johnny Garrison is a "darling" for his kindness and unselfishness in remaining behind the other runners on Sunday to explain the nature of the run to them.

The slow manner in which medals are distributed to winners by athletic clubs on the Pacific Coast, is certainly a disgrace. In May, the Alpine Club held games at the Bay District track. During the same month the P. C. A. A. A. held its championship meeting, and on July 4th, the Olympic Club held a field day. The prizes have never been distributed for any of these games, and the athletes who have worked hard to win the medals, must wait patiently and silently until the clubs see fit to present them. There is no reason why clubs on the Pacific Coast should not follow an example of the leading English and Irish athletic clubs, by presenting the prizes to the winners on the same day that they are won. At the Crewe Alexander (England) sports, which were held last month, a new departure was made, and the athletes received their prizes at the end of each event, thus allowing visiting athletes a chance to leave in time to catch their trains. Why should not something like this be done in San Francisco?

The Alameda correspondent of the Daily Examiner is not a very good hand at guessing. In reporting the cross country run of the Alpine and Alameda Olympic Clubs last Sunday he asserted that the run was enjoyed by only ten members, that it was to Mills Seminary, and that the distance, eight miles was made in forty minutes. Here is a fallacy. The run was not in the direction of Mills Seminary. The distance was four and not eight miles, and the number of starters was more than twice ten.

Evan Lewis and D. S. McLeod have signed articles for a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match. The nature of the match is that Lewis is to throw McLeod three times in one hour. Besides a bet of $400, the winner is to receive 75 per cent. of the gate receipts after necessary expenses have been paid. Two hundred and fifty dollars a side has already been deposited as a forfeit, and when a suitable hall is secured, the stake holder will name the date on which the match will take place. Lewis will begin training next week.

A petition which was signed by a large number of the Olympic Club members, reads as follows: "We, the undersigned, members of the Olympic Club, in view of the coming annual election in our club, feeling that William Greer Harrison, our former president, is the proper person to fill the office of president of the club, and recognizing that it would be for the best interest of the club to own and occupy its own home, and also recognizing Mr. Harrison's executive ability as evidenced by the growth of the club during his presidency from 300 to 1,500 members, hereby request Mr. Harrison to permit himself to be placed in nomination for the office of president of the club, and pledge to him our votes and cordial support."

We are in receipt of the following communication from Mr. W. A. Scott, President P. C. A. A. A.:

ATHLETIC GAMES AT THE FAIR OF THE STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE,

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Sept. 17, 1890, 10 A. M., under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association.

The programme will be as follows, open to members of the clubs of the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association:

100 yard run, handicap; 220 yard run, handicap; 440 yard run, scratch; 880 yard run, scratch; 2 mile run, handicap; 1 mile walk, handicap; 120 yard hurdle race (10 hurdles, 3ft 6in. high), handicap; 50 yard run, scratch; 220 yard run, handicap, open only to members of Sacramento Athletic Club.

Entries close Saturday, August 30th, at 8 P. M., with Walter A. Scott, President P. C. A. A. A., Olympic Athletic Club, 120 O'Farrell street, San Francisco.

Gold Medal to first, and Silver Medal to second, in each event.

Each entry must be accompanied by 50 cents, which will be returned to starters, and must state contestant's full name and club, events which he desires to enter for (with 50 cents for each). date, place and result of three last performances, with name of scratchman and result of each—whether 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th or unplaced. If contestant has never before competed, simply specify "Novice." Furnishing false or misleading information will subject entry to rejection. Any event which does not properly fill will be struck out.

Tickets to Sacramento and return will be furnished to competitors from San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Berkeley, Alameda and vicinity.

Competitors must leave San Francisco on the afternoon or evening of September 16th.

The games and all arrangements therefor will be under the management of WALTER A. SCOTT, Care O. A C., 120 O'Farrell street, S. F.

Walter G. Hegeman, who, for many years was a prominent member of the old Williamsburg Athletic Club, and who subsequently did good service as official handicapper successively of the now defunct National Association of Amateur Athletic Union, died at his home in Brooklyn, L I., on Monday night, July 28. His death was the result of an injury received accidentally while discharging his duties at the Harper Bros. publishing house in New York which produced a cancer at the base of the brain, from which he had been a patient sufferer for a year or more. His death had been expected for some time, but that fact did not tend to lighten the sorrow which the knowledge of his demise caused in the hearts of many athletes who had been his intimates during life. The funeral services were held on Wednesday evening, many of those who had been his warm friends being present. The funeral took place on the following day in private, the interment being in Cyprus Hills Cemetery.

A meeting of the Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union was held in New York City on Saturday night, Aug. 2, the following being present: W. H. McMillan, Harry Perry, W. B. Curtis, J. E. Sullivan, J. Harder, F. W. Jansen, G. B. Morrison and C. F. Matthewson. The most important business transacted was the disposal of the long agitated Pat Cahill matter by the adoption of the following:

In view of the facts submitted to this Board by its different committees in what is known as the "Cahill case"

Resolved, That this Board approves the action originally taken by its Championship Committee in refusing the entry of Patrick Cahill for the boxing and wrestling championship meeting of 1889; as being abundantly justified by the statements made to such committee and included in its report.

Resolved, That this Board expresses its regret that the efforts of its committee to determine the truth of the charges affecting the amateur standing of said Cahill have been defeated by the refusal of important witnesses to appear and testify, thus leaving the charges not proven; but in view of the report received this evening, and in the the absence of direct evidence tending to sustain the charges, the suspension of said Patrick Cahill is hereby removed.

The board received a communication from Malcolm W. Ford, containing an exhaustive answer to the specific charges made against him by the Games Committee of the Indoor Championship Committee. The athlete awaited the action of the committee in the reading room of the hotel and was there informed by Mr. Matthewson of the result of the board's deliberations, which was that the matter be referred to the Ford committee. It was decided to give prizes to the first, second and third teams in the tug of war competition at the championship games at Washington, and to hold a lacrosse championship, the schedule committee being empowered to draw up a schedule of games. The general rules governing pole vaulting were amended to prevent contestants from using the poles of other competitors, except with the owners' consent. The application of the Jersey City Amateur League for the Union to register their games, to be held on Sunday, Aug. 10, was denied, the board not deeming it a wise policy to endorse games held on the Sabbath where competition between members of different clubs are permitted, and sustaining the action taken by the Schedule Committee.

THE WHEELMEN.

At Charter Oak Park (Hartford, Conn.) on Aug. 7 H E Laurie, the English safety rider, and W S Cambell of the New York Athletic Club made a private trial of one mile, the time being 2m 28⅘s. The best American amateur record is 2m 35 2-5s for an ordinary and 2m 41⅘s for a safety. The Englishs record for both safety and ordinary have recently been reduced to a mile, so that the time credited to Laurie and Campbell is the fastest ever accomplished on any form of cycle.

The Bay City Wheelmen are going to elect their permanent directors on Monday evening.

The Bay City Wheelmen are incorporated. The articles of incorporation are after the plan of the Olmypic Club articles.

Two young English amateurs who are in this city at the present time may take part in the coming road race. Some of the local men who have seen them ride say that unless heavily handicapped they will have a walk over.

Lee, who recently broke the record to San Jose intends going in the road race, and he stands a very good chance of winning one of the prizes.

Several prizes will be given for the road race including, bicycle suits, medals, etc.

The San Jose people are ready to bet their last cent on Julius Smith.

Hickenbotham and Southworth of Stockton will ride. and as they are both in fine condition there is no telling what may be the result.

Ives of Oakland is another very promising candidate for first place.

It is expected that there will be from twenty-five to thirty entries from San Francisco. The total number of entries is likely to reach sixty or seventy.

Fred Russ Cook will allot the handicaps which will be by time.

The Oakland Bicycle Club will not have any representatives.

Alameda will be well up at the finish. It will send in a large number of entries, comprising most of the crack riders.

It is almost an assumed fact that the record of 1 hour 30 minutes will be broken by more than one man.

The entry lists are now open with Dr. T. L. Hill, Odd Fellows Building, Sanford Plummer, 17 Franklin St., or Thos. H. Doane, 401 Sausome Street. The entry fee, $1, must accompany entry blank.

George Wetmore will ride his Safety, and will probably be placed at scratch.

H. A. Matthews cannot spare time to train, and will not be able to compete.

IN THE SURF.

The warm weather continues in Alameda, and the Terrace baths is crowded daily. Mr. Fisher, the manager, will give a swimming race for Native Sons on the 8th of September in connection with the celebration of Admission Day. He is having two fine medals made for the winners of first and second places. Besides this race there will be other attractions.

It is probable that the race for Native Sons will be won by one of the members of the Pacific Swimming Club.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

Cricket is still holding sway in Alameda, and many new players have lately been developed.

The game of cricket which was played at the West-end Grounds last Saturday afternoon was the best one played so far this season. The match began at 2 o'clock and the stumps were drawn at 6 o'clock. The game was drawn in favor of the Pacifics with a score of 85 to 71 made by the All Comers. The following is the names of the players: Pacifics—Howard, G. Goeway, W. J. Hansen, E. Buckleton, H. J. Nelse, J. J. Theobald, H. Hatterworth, J. S. Purdy, D. Keith, C. B. Hill, G. Adam, H. Anstin and Sinclair. All Comers—Vernon, Warren, Hodd, Rodgers, Newton, Robertson, Bryan, Webster, Dreage, Sheppard, Coldwell, Neila, Trulong, Stopley.

A practice game was played on Sunday which attracted quite a large audience. The Bolsoni team made 36 runs while Robertson's made 50, thus winning the game.

The Alpine cricket team is trying to arrange a match game with some of the Alameda clubs to be played at Central Park some Saturday afternoon.

The talked of trip of an All American team to England next year seems to be taking definite shape. Ernest H. Crowhurst, cricket editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, is now on his way to England as America's representative, having sailed Saturday, August 2nd, on the Umbria, which is due at Liverpool, August 10th. Mr. Crowhurst will have ample time to reach London, where the secretaries of the leading county cricket clubs will meet the next day. Mr. Crowhurst carries with him letters of introduction from officers of the Philadelphia cricket clubs and committees, and also from the most prominent cricketers of Philadelphia and New York City. An outline of the proposed tour shows that the team will be away all of next season. Mr. Crowhurst has been instructed to arrange a full series of matches such as is now being played by the Australians. This includes three matches with All England, two with the Gentlemen of England, two with the Players of England, two each with the North and South of England and with the Marylebone Club, and one each with the counties of Yorkshire, Nottingham, Surry, Gloucester, Middlesex, Sussex, Kent and Lancashire and the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. Matches will also be played with the Gentlemen of Ireland and Scotland The initial match will probably be played with Lord Sheffield's eleven at his beautiful grounds, about forty miles from London, and then three or four games will be arranged with second class counties before England's strongest teams are met. The tour so far as arranged will occupy about twenty weeks. The All America team will probable sail from New York about April 10th, and will return home the last of September. The team which will represent All America has not yet been chosen, and probably will not be until the Fall matches have been played. Players to the number of twenty have, however, been consulted, and each and every one of them has not only heartily endorsed the scheme, but have said that they will go if they are selected. As Philadelphia is the cricket centre of this country a majority of the team will come from that city, and the best men in other cities will be obtained. The team will probably number sixteen or seventeen, and will include two or three crack professionals.

AT THE OARS.

Julius Hartman of the Alameda Boat Club will enter in the single scull race at the coming regatta.

The Alameda Brass Band will visit the boat house of the Alameda Boat Club to-morrow afternoon, where a clam chowder feast will be prepared for the visitors.

The very generous prizes offered by the Native Sons Committee are causing the oarsmen to train assiduously for the coming regatta, and it is very easy to see that the races will all be well filled.

The Regatta Committee, in conjunction with representatives from the rowing clubs, will hold a meeting at the Grand Hotel to morrow morning at 11 o'clock, when it will be finally decided where the regatta is to be held. Should the Harbor Commissioners have the lumber scows removed, there would be a clear straightway course for a mile and a half, but as the races will not be more than two miles, everybody will have an excellent chance to see some good sport. Fast time and close finishes may be expected in all the events.

The following prominent scullers of the Ariel Boat-Club began training on Monday, August 11th: Henry Peterson, Charles Peterson and Billy Growney for the professional singles; John Muirhead and young Creagh for the amateur singles the present champion amateur barge crew composed of Henry Withkopp, stroke; J. J. Larkey, 2; W. Dunphy, 3; George W. Phelan, bow, and Captain Andy Carroll, coxwain; Henry Tauk, substitute.

The professional crew will be made up with Leo Ozer, stroke; Henry Peterson, 2; T. Tennison, 3; Charles Peterson, bow; W. H. Growney, substitute.

There will be a contest to morrow between young Nieland of the Ariels and Leo Heringhi of the Lurline Club in whitehall boats, around Mission Rock, for a box of cigars. "We will all smoke."

The Secretary of the Pacific Rowing Association is in receipt of a communication from Secretary Smith of the Agricultural Society at Sacramento, informing him that as the society depended on gate receipts and could not guarantee any cash purse to be rowed for he could not include a regatta on the list of attractions.

A Combination Sale.

The American horse show held at Chicago last year was a phenomenal success, and attracted the attention of breeders from all over the United States. During the first week of the horse show which will be given this year, F. J. Berry & Co. will hold their second Breeders' Great Combination Sale at the Union Stock Yards, November 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th. The stock will consist of standard bred horses of the highest order, consisting of trotters, pacers and gentlemen's roadsters, saddle horses, carriage teams, etc. The combination sales held in Chicago last fall and early this spring have stamped the fact indelibly that the Lake City has a population in and around it, who are willing to pay good prices for good animals, and the Berry & Co.'s sale was one of the most successful held there in many years. It is only reasonable to suppose that their second annual sale will be equally successful. If there be any breeders in this State who desire to dispose of any of their horses, this will be a favorable opportunity for them to send on their surplus stock, entry blanks for which will be sent out by Berry & Co., on making application to them.

No well regulated ranch or farm is complete without Darbys Prophylactic Fluid.

Death of Hon. Jas. White.

The distinguished gentleman whose name heads this article, expired July 13th at his home near Camden in New South Wales. Mr. White was a type of what one might expect of the fine old English gentleman of the last century, improved and broadened by a life time pent in the Australian Colonies. The malady which removed him was heart disease, with which he had been so long threatened that he has not witnessed any of his horses perform in three years. Of course he had vast wealth at his disposal and his great means enabled him to purchase in England, mares of the highest quality, from which he bred such noted flyers as Carlyon, Cranbrook, Volley, Rudolph, and last but not least, Abercorn, who has been pronounced by most California turfmen who have seen him, the truest formed horse they ever beheld. Mr. White's fame is perennial, and while his career upon the turf was marked with certain eccentricities, he was a man who will be better known by the void he has left in death than by the exalted station he filled in life. As a husband and father, he was an exemplary citizen of any country; as a sportsman, a keen, plucky and adventurous speculator, his motto being always "first if with honor"; as a legislator, his vote was always cast in favor of the greatest good to the greatest number; and he will be remembered by his constituents as a conscientious public servant. The death of such a gentleman at such a time, when the Australasian turf bids fair to be overrun by unscrupulous bookmakers and avaricious speculators hesitating at nothing, can only be regarded as a public misfortune. He was a man who should have died hereafter.

Classification of Thoroughbreds.

It is something close upon twenty years since the United States began the classification of thoroughbred horses for races, with their best time record as a basis of computation. In Australia where thoroughbred sires are the rule and trotters the exception, a like procedure had long since become necessary to enable breeders of thoroughbreds to realize upon their undersized horses. They are now classed as follows:

Ponies—All under 14 hands. Purses are given for two classes, one under 13 hands and the other over 13 and under 14 hands.

Galloways—Anything over 14 hands and under 15 hands.

Horses—Anything above 15 hands.

Everywhere except at Randwick, Flemington and Caulefield, prizes are given for these classes, except at their great semi-annual meetings. Canterbury Park, Rose Mill, Warwick Farm and Kogarah, all have their "pony days" and the betting is very spirited. Capt. Merry, who has just returned from that side of the world, says that one of the most perfectly formed horses he ever saw is an entire galloway owned by Charles T. Roberts. The horse is six years old, 14 hands, 3 inches in height, and reminded the veteran steamboatman very much of True Blue. His barrel was very long and splendidly rounded, so that his girth was over 70 inches. His legs were flat, with extremely large hocks and knees, and his back was a miniature of such turf kings as Malua and Nordenfelt.

You often hear a man say, "Well, I sold that colt just because he is too small and can't carry his weight." Now, if there were a classification according to size, such as prevails in the South Continent, such complaints would seldom be heard. In programmes like those of Brighton Beach, Linden, Guttenberg and Clifton there should be a pony race and a galloway race at least two days in each week, if not more frequently; and a style of horses that have now no racing value whatever would soon creep up to good and profitable prices.

We commend a respectful consideration of this question to the clubs and associations governing the courses above named. It would make a market for a class of horses that can now hardly be given away; and after their racing careers were ended, the mares of this class would be available for breeding trotters. It is true that pony racing in the colonies has so far been attended with a great deal of jobbery, but that also has applied with no little force to the racing of horses over fifteen hands high, both in Australia and America. If purses could be had for undersized horses to contest for, there would be more profit in the maintenance of thoroughbred breeding farms.

One more to be Added.

Owing to an oversight of the proof reader, the entry of L. Villegia in the Breeder and Sportsman Futurity Stake was omitted from the list published last week and those who are interested and have saved the list for future reference, should add the following: L. Villegia, bay filly Sidka, by Sidney, dam May by John Nelson Jr. We are sorry the mistake occurred and hasten to correct it.

The Quincy Meeting.

At last the racing season has fairly opened in California, the entry lists having been large at all places, which have already closed; but there are many owners throughout the State who have been diffident about entering in both the lower circuit and the northern circuit, feeling that there were so many good horses out this year that whatever they might own would stand but little chance against the cracks; still this class of owners and breeders are just as anxious to get records for their horses as any other class, and feeling that this is true we would suggest that those who have as yet made no entries and are desirous of getting records, that they scan over the advertisement in this issue of the 11th District Agricultural Association which will be held at Quincy, Plumas County, commencing September 22nd and continuing six days. Trotting, pacing and running races are well assorted throughout the programme, there being thirty different events altogether, and as the District is a rich one in fruit, cereals and minerals, in addition to which the climate is of the very best, there should not only be entries enough to please the Directors but the attendance on the different days of the meeting should be larger than ever before. There is no more pleasant trip to be made in this State than from the Sacramento Valley to the capitol of Plumas County, the beautiful scenery amply repaying one for the trouble taken in the journey. As entries will close on next Wednesday, August 20th, it behooves all those who are desirous of sending in their nominations to make entries immediately.

The New Rules For Records.

The committee appointed by the National Trotting Horse Breeders' Association have adopted the following set of rules under which a horse may get a record, and it will save endless bother if breeders will live up to the new rules:

I. No performance shall be accepted as a record for registration purposes unless it be made under the control of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders at its regular meeting, or at a regular meeting of a reputable association in membership and good standing with the American Trotting Association or the National Trotting Association.

II. The phrase "regular meeting" is here used as defining a meeting where the executive officers of the association or track exercise direct, personal supervision and control, and where purses or stakes, or both purses and stakes, have been regularly opened and duly advertised for entries therein.

III. No performance made singly and against time shall be admitted, except as hereinafter provided. All performances made on short [or lapped] tracks will be rejected.

IV. Stakes may be opened at any regular meeting as above defined for all animals seeking to enter the 2:30 list, and shall be designated the "Standard Stakes," terms of entrance to which shall be determined by the association, but in no case shall a less entrance fee than ten dollars be charged. Entries to the "Standard Stakes" shall close at such time as the association may determine, not later than 11 o'clock P. M. the day before the race is to be trotted.

V. The officers of such association shall divide the entries into groups of three, as near as possible, never placing more than four nor less than two horses in a group, and never two unless the entries cannot be otherwise divided. These groups will be designated as "Division No. 1," "Division No. 2," etc. The entrance money will constitute the stake (unless money is added by the association), and shall be divided into as many parts as there are divisions; fifty per cent. to go to the horse making the fastest time in his "division," and the remaining fifty per cent. of the entrance money to the association. If 2:30 or better is not made, the entire "division" of the stake reverts to the association.

VI. Each "Division" shall be started separately and trotted strictly according to rule. The winning horse at the conclusion of the first heat shall be sent to the stable, provided his time is 2:30 or better, and so on until the "Division" is completed. If said time is not made in the first heat, all horses not distanced or ruled out may start for the second heat; but if 2:30 or better is not made in the second heat, then all horses competing in such heats must be sent to the stable. Time made in each heat shall constitute a record for registration.

In referring to the new rules, J. H. Wallace has the following to say:

At last the breeders have acted and we have the result in the foregoing regulations that will govern all performances where animals seek to enter or succeed in entering the 2:30 list for the first time. There are some points in these "regulations" that may be emphasized.

1. All performances must be made on tracks in membership and good standing with the American or National Trotting Associations. No more records accepted from little county fairs.

2. No more performances will be accepted from special meetings, called for the mere purpose of giving some horse or horses a record. They must be made at "regular meetings," and these meetings are well-defined in the second regulation.

3. It will be observed that these regulations apply to "matches," so called, as well as other performances. We will have no more nice little private parties all fixed up for the purpose of obtaining records under the guise of "matches."

4. In the third regnlation it will be observed that we have bracketed the words "or lapped." On these words there is not a complete agreement, and there is no time now to wait for the perfecting of this provision. The safe way will be for all to keep away from lapped tracks, whatever the final action may be.

5. The schedules dividing the contestants into groups and determining the methods of the performances are so plain and specific as not to reqnire further explanation. It will be observed that the only case in wbich an animal goes alone is when he is the last one in a group, and has already trottel two heats against other horses.

These regulations were made to be obsorved and enforced, and if all breeders will stndy their provisions and requirements carefully they will save themselves from mauy disappointments. The two leading facts are that the 2:30 list must be entered in an honest contest against other horses, and it must be done at a regular meeting where all the world can see it.

Sam Gamble's Answer.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I notice in your last issue, August 9th, an editorial headed "Wbo Has Made the Mistake?" The qnestion is easily answered. It was the late manager of the Bay District Track, whose name for the moment I cannot recollect; since the race alluded to, the gentleman has died, but no doubt you will know the gentleman referred to.

Quite a number of weeks ago he wrote me a letter in which the information was given that a purse wonld be trotted for on July 12th, for horses that had never beaten 2:28 and mentioned the fact that he understood that I wished to trot a mare for the purpose of giving her a record; he went on to say that if such were the case and I had an animal to enter, he hoped that I would send him at my earliest convenience the name and pedigree in full, all of which I did at once, naming bay mare Winoa by Electioneer, 1st dam Winona by Almont, 2nd dam Dolly by Mambrino Cbief. This mare I started in a race on July 12th, and won the first heat in 2:41, the time being so slow that I paid no particular attention to the announcement made from the stand, and was not aware until the next day wheu I noti ed the report of the races in the daily papers that the mare's name had been given as Wamba. As Winoa failed to secure a mark entitling her to a place in the 2:30 list, I said to myself, if the mare comes around all right I will rectify this error the next time I start her, but I now find that it will be impossible to do so, as she has given way in her left hind ankle, and is fast growing worse. I had to let up on her from all fast work and didn't suppose that the mistake in the name wonld be noticed. However, in your issue of July 19th, my attention was called to an item under the heading of "Turf and Track," which stated that I would make another attempt to give Wamba a record better tban 2:30. It now occurred to me that it was high time that this mistake in the name should be rectified, so I wrote you a letter explaining how I thought the change in names bad occurred, and a short bistory of tbe mare's work; upon second thought I deemed it best not to send you the letter at the time, but which, however, I now enclose. My reason for not sending it being that the public would think that I was making an apology for bad management, for it is well known that when some men are behind in a race the spectators are usually in the habit of thinking that bad management is solely the cause of losing the race.

Hoping that this letter will explain the mistake and how it occurred, I am sir, yonrs respectfully,

SAM GAMBLE.

[We can readily nnderstand that the mistake in the name of the mare occnrred at the hands of Mr. Hensill, who was not familiar with the pedigrees of the horses which started in the race that day. We have also received from Mr. Gamble the letter which he wrote dated July 23rd, giving a history of the mare and also the fact that her name was Winoa. As she is a full sister to Wamba, Mr. Green who now owns that mare will readily understand how the mistake has occurred. —ED.]

The Watch, on the Training Ground.

The systems of training and developing a race horse differ as widely in America from tbose in vogue in Australia and England, as do costumes and manners of the several peoples. In England a trial between horses is generally effected by giving the novice a few pounds less and the veteran trial horse a few pounds over his entitled weight for age. The use of the watch is almost entirely ignored. In America the watch means almost everythiug, while in Australia an intermediate course is songht between the American and English systems of trials. Capt. Merry, who has recently returned from the Australian Colonies was speaking on this snbject the other day, and said that he had never met a man whose training pleased him as much as Mr. Thos. Payten, who has had charge of the horses of the late Hon. Jas. White for tbe past seven years. "As tbe race meetings approacb, the columns of the Sydney and Melbourne papers are frequently filled with rumors of reports of phenomenal trials executed by horses in the hands of trainers, but I have never heard of any sensational trials being performed by Trident, Abercorn, Carlyon, Volley or Cranbrook. As nearly as I could find out, Payten never gives a horse tbat has once performed creditably in public, a second trial run in his shoes over the distance covered by the prospective race. He feeds his horses heartily, gives them plenty of slow work with an occasional "burst of heels" up to three qnarters of a mile, and he has won more races in proportion to the number of starts than any other trainer in the Colonies during the last five years".

"Do you attribnte this wholly to his system of training?" was asked.

"Not altogether," replied the Captain, "the trnth of the matter is that Tom Payten has won a great many races because he never runs except to win, while other men, having horses nearly or quite as good, have been pnlling them throngh a long season in the hope of getting light weights on them for the great fall handicaps; nevertheless I liked his system of working horses better than any man I ever saw. The only horse which he lamed during my past visit to the Colonies was Titan, and his body was so enormous in proportion to his legs that the only wonder is tbat he did not get lame before. Abercorn retired with four sound legs after four very severe campaigns in which he assumed the heaviest weights and defeated all the best horses of his day. His injury consists of a wrench in the back, and jnst when it was sustained nobody knows. On the other hand I saw a dozen good horses crippled by several trial tests to the watch during April and May, and I was thereby enabled to secnre several bargains for breeding pnrposes. I think these bargains will always be had as long as these same individuals follow the avocation of training horses."

Tbere may be more in this than appears on the surface. The gentleman jnst quoted is not a professional trainer, bnt he is a man who is always observant and remembers what he sees. The question is, whether the great many valnable horses now broken down, might not have been saved to the turf had there been less frequent resorting to the time test.

The Coming Petaluma Fair.

My horse bas been lame in the right hind leg for about three or four months and it appears to be getting worse all the time. Now when he starts off he goes very lame for a few blocks but soon gets all right, bnt if I stand him for fifteen or twenty minutes he will start off as lame as ever. He appears not to bend the hock joint when going very lame. Is it spavin and should I use Kendal's spavin cure?

Answer.—Your horse has got spavin. Kendal's spavin cure, like all stimulating applications is good for it, but I should recommend the actual cautery, (that is firing the part with a hot iron) and two or three months rest. The younger the horse is, tbe better are the chances for getting rid of the lameness.

X.

I have a two year old colt sick, with the following symptoms. He is off his feed. The neck is stiff and swollen, and the glands between the jaws have become enlarged and they burst in one place to-day and discharged a good deal of matter. There is also a great deal of stuff coming from the nostrils, and he makes a noise like snoring when breathing. His hair stands on end and he looks very sick. What is wrong with him and what do you recommend me to do for him?

Answer.—Your colt has got strangles. Put him in a comfortable box stall if convenient. Clothe him warmly, and keep up his strengtb with soft nonrishing food, such as linseed gruel, oat meal gruel, bran mashes, a little fresh grass, or carrots. Steam his head two or three times a day with bran wet with hot water, and apply a warm poultice to the throat. Give injections if necessary, and if he is very constipated give a small dose of linseed oil. Communicate with us again and say how he is getting on.

T. R.

My horse has got a thrush in each of his front feet. They are not bad ones but I would like to get rid of them.

Answer.—In a mild case of tbrush common salt, or some powered alnm put into the cleft and kept there by a piece of oakum and tar, generally affects a cure.

L. P.

My four year old colt has got the lampas very bad. What is best to do for it?

Give soft food. Scarify the part, and apply some powdered alnm, or burn the part with a hot iron. This is a disease generally caused by teething, and goes away in time without treatment.

Several questions remain over, which will be answered next week.

Will you please inform me through your paper if our association could reject an entry of a two-year old in their three-year-old stake, by their advertisement, programme and conditions?

Under the conditions, the association cannot accept the entry.

Please inform me what Corisande's record is.

Answer.—2.24½ made at Sacramento, September 16, 1878.

R. Havey will move to Napa to-morrow with the Palo Alto Stable of trotters. Eight head were taken to San Jose, and they all go to Napa. They are Express 2:21; Ariana, a four-year old mare by Ansel, 2:20, dam Rebecca, dam of Rexford 2:24; Lady Wells, a four-year-old mare by Electioneer, dam Lady Lowell; Laureola, a four-year-old mare by Benefit, dam Laura C; Millard, a three-year-old roan gelding by General Benton, dam Daisy Miller; Langton, a three-year-old stallion by Alfred, dam Laura C by Electioneer, out of Fanny Lewis —thoroughbred daughter of imp Buckden. Coral is a three-year-old sister to Anteeo 2:16¼ and Antevolo 2:19½; and Elleneer a two-year-old filly by Electioneer, dam Lady Ellen 2:29½.

Do not forget to try Peruvian Bitters when on the circuit.

Capt. Harris was upset at San Jose while exercising a yearling on the track His colt ran into the fence and threw the veteran out injuring his shoulder.

Percy Witliams sent Retta B and Quena from San Jose to the ranch at Union Island last Thursday. They will both be bred in the Spring and not trained again.

Now that W. C. France has purchased the other half of Red Wilkes, the service fee next year will be $1.000. This is quite a jump from the last season's price of $300.

If any person wishes to buy a Nomination in the 3:00 class at Oakland, or one in the 2:27 class at the Breeders' Meeting, they can be accommodated by applying at once at this office.

The four year old pacer Silkwood who won the 2:25 pace in easy style at Los Angeles last week is said to be capable of pacing in 2:15 any time. He is by Blackwood Mambrino dam Lucy Woodruff and is owned by J. Willits, Santa Ana.

The Rev. J. W. Arney who made a national reputation for himself by arranging a trotting meeting at Saranac, Mich., which afforded a mint of amusement to his parishioners, is threatened by the church authorities with impeachment for his action.

J. J. Miller, one of Australia's most noted sportsmen, has sent to this office his "Sporting Pamphlet," which is replete with news both of the thoroughbreds and the trotters as well. It shows careful compilation, and is a credit to the publisher.

A secretary of one of the associations in sending in a list of entries last week, made the pedigree of Silas Skinner read as by Alcona. Mr. Rodehaver finds fault with the same, and desires attention called to the fact that the speedy black stallion is by Alcona Jr.

What is the use of having selling races? It has got to be such a farce that the winner is hardly ever offered and never is bid for. Last Wednesday at San Jose, Tycoon was taken away without being put up but it was not the owners fault for the judges all left immediately.

There are 200 horses in training at Fleetwood, and another trial is to be given the dash system at that track early in September. Saddle races will also be a feature, and one of the new departures from the old-time three-in-five trotting contests. Some interest is excited by the proposed change.

A Salt Lake despatch announces that a one hundred mile trotting race has been arranged between I. J. Starbuck's brown mare Lady, weight 950 pounds, and L. D. Kinney's bay gelding Sea Foam, weight 960 pounds, to a buggy, road wagon, or cart, for a purse of $500 and a $500 buggy and harness.

New Brunswick, Canada, has been slightly behind the times in regard to the ownership of trotting horses, for it was only last week that for the first time a horse owned in that district made a record faster than 2:30. The new comer into the list is King Charles, owned by Mr. David Arthurton, who trotted a mile in 2:29.

Matt Storn returned to Sacramento with his stable of runners from Los Angeles, and yesterday took over a carload to Napa, where he will start some of them during the meeting at that point. Matt was fortunate enough to win the Derby at the Angel City with his crack three-year-old Marigold, and also several other good events.

Ariel Lathrop, Esq., received a telegram last Monday evening from Marvin, stating that Palo Alto won the fifth heat of the free for all race in 2:15 at Buffalo, and would ship on Tuesday morning to Chicago as he was unable to go to Rochester. Presumably the railroad strike prevented the horses being shipped to Rochester.

James Waterman of Fresno, the owner of Buccaneer Jr. has been in the city during the week visiting a few of his many friends. As usual, Jim was enthusiastic over his stallion Buccaneer Jr., and claims he can show half a dozen of the handsomest foals in the State. Mr. Waterman is a first-class horseman and knows what he is talking about.

Pilot Medium has gained much notoriety by the performance of his son Jack 2:15; but he also sired Lady Bullion 2:18½, Tyrolean 2:20½, Calhoun 2:24¾, Girflue 2:28¾, Pilot H. 2:29½ and Knight 2:29½. Pilot Medium is a 16 hand gray, foaled 1879. His sire was Happy Medium by Hambletonian 10, and his dam Tackey 2;26, by Pilot Jr. Tackey was the dam of Pilot Boy 2.20, Naiad Queen 2:20¼ and Class Leader 2:22¼.

And still the good work goes on. I had a visit from C. T. Hills of Tillamook, Oregon, a few days ago, and he gives the information that a few public spirited citizens have contributed $3,500 and purchased land sufficient to build a good half-mile track. Later on in the season, a preliminary meeting will be given, and the horsemen of that neighborhood expect lots of sport.

Many years ago a horse named Revenue Jr. was brought to this coast and took part in several races among others being one in which Wildidle, Grinstead and Sherman were starters. It was the Wise Plate Stake, the distance being four miles. Wildidle won although Revenue Jr. led for over two miles. After this race he was taken back East and late advices from the East tell of his death in New Mexico, aged twenty-two years.

Alfred Josephs, one of the best known of Australian bookmakers is now on his way to San Francisco where he will endeavor to secure land to build a permanent race track. "Alf" is one of the right kind and as he has plenty of means at his disposal, in addition to being a partner of Joseph Thompson, of Melbourne, who will be interested in the new venture, if any encouragement at all be given, the track can be voted "a go."

Mr. Davis, the owner and driver of Roy Wilkes, 2:12¾, lately met with an accident of so serious a nature that he will not be able to drive for some time, says the Western Sportsman. Mr. Davis has in the meantime entrusted that noble animal to the care of G. W. Bonnell, the well known driver of Vincennes. Mr. Davis could not have made a wiser choice in selecting a driver for his beautiful horse, for Mr. Bonnell's reputation as a careful, conscientious driver is above question, and his success on the track indisputable. Roy Wilkes is being worked on the Terre Haute track, and is having a sharp preparation.

Myron H. Akin of Fort Collins, Colorado notifies the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN in this week's issue that he has for sale two beautiful Algona mares, seven and eight years old, in foal to Sultan and Electioneer stallions. Mr. Akin will dispose of these animals at a very low figure and consequently it may pay any of our readers to write to him at the address given.

Well, Mr. Salisbury has determined to meet C. W. Williams of Axtell fame on his own track, and has entered Margaret S. at Independence Iowa, where she will have to contend against the justly celebrated stallion Allerton, and another hard race will undoubtedly be the result. The game and speedy daughter of Director is adding fresh laurels to the brow of her sire every week.

Last week I called attention to a magnificent Antevolo colt owned by Mr. W. H. Taylor of San Luis Obispo. The rumor is now current that the youngster will soon change hands, as an Eastern breeder is now in negotiation for him. After the present very successful season in the East of all the California horses, there can be no question of doubt but that there will be more prospective purchasers come to the coast during the coming fall and wintor than there have ever been before.

For two years the two-year-old pacing record has stood to the credit of Ed Rosewater, who made the record of 2:20½ in 1888. A week ago last Thursday at the now celebrated kite-shaped track at Independence Iowa, the two-year-old pacing colt Manager, by Nutwood, reduced this record completing a mile in 2:19½. From our exchanges it is learned that there is a strong probability that the new record smasher will reduce even that mark before the present season closes.

Frank Baldwin, Manager of the Fresno track, has returned from a visit to the Eastern States, and reports having had a glorious time. He witnessed the racing at Cleveland and Buffalo, and says that Adonis was severely cut on the hind legs in the heat that was paced in 2:11½, or he would have won the race. Hickok has given the son of Sidney a let up, and will not start him until his return to California. Frank says that all of the Californians are making money simply because they have the best horses.

Many times in the past few weeks I have heard sympathy expressed for Mr. Salisbury, inasmuch that he took Direct back East, after a glorious career on the California circuit, and could not win with him back there. Frank Baldwin brings the information that at Saginaw, after the very fast quarter which was shown by Direct, the great son of Director cast a shoe, cutting himself very bady in the inside of the stifle. Although started at Cleveland, it was with no idea that he could win, and now Mr. Salisbury has determined not to let him start again until he reaches the Pacific Coast.

Almont Boy, the sire of the great pacer Dallas, has a history. He was purchased by Dr. W. A. Paschall and an associate for $150, and afterward Paschall became his sole owner by purchasing the other half interest for $300. He is now worth every dollar of $10,000. Almont Boy is a chestnut horse, foaled 1875, by Almont Jr., dam McEwen mare by Torpedo (son of Childe Harold); grandam Mollie by Hamlet (son of Consul), etc.; bred by James McEwen, Franklin, Tenn. Three of his get have been trained, and they have proven themselves great horses. They are Aline, 2:20; Dr. Almont, 2:21¾, and Dallas, 2;11½

Veritas says that one of the main topics of conversation among the members at Fleetwood was the victory of Jack over Palo Alto. "It reminds me," said one of them, "of an occurrence last year, when the gallant gray, after winning a ding-dong race, was being led back to his stall, his driver, Doble, following. Mrs. Middleton, wife of Jack's owner, hurried after the party, anxious to express the pleasure she felt at the victory to Doble. 'I could kiss you, Mr. Doble', she said, 'indeed I could.' 'Why don't you do it, then?' said her husband. Doble, in his quiet, demure way, said: 'It was not I, Mrs. Middleton, who won the race; it was Jack; better kiss him.' "

J. C. Hemment has just about completed a new apparatus which will greatly facilitate the accurate registry by photography of the finishes of races. The principal of the thing is that the camera is divided into two portions by a longitudinal division, each portion being fitted with a lens and plate-holder. By means of a prism a view of the races is obtained without the operator removing his eyes from the apparatus, and the whole camera revolves on a pivot as he watches the race. As it reaches the point at which the horses are just at the finish line, it automatically "touches itself off" by electricity. The use of this second lens is for the operator to secure a negative of the positions of the horses next in succession, and in this case the picture is obtained at the will of the operator, not automatically.

There is sometimes a party who wishes to sell a horse and does not require money in exchange. An advertisement to that effect can be found in the appropriate column in which Lee Mantle of Butte City, Montana notifies our readers that he has a handsome black mare, standard bred, 15.3 in height weighing about 1100 lbs., and has a record of 2:29. This mare he is anxious to dispose of and is willing to trade for a standard bred stallion colt two or three years old. Those in this State, who might wish to purchase the mare, Mr. Mantle refers to B. C. Holly, Esq of Vallejo, who has ample knowledge of what the mare is. This should be a good opportunity for some of our prominent breeders to secure a well bred and handsome individual in a "swap."

I feel instilled with a prophetic instinct and am willing to go on record as a "guesser," for somehow I have taken the notion that the Axtell people will refuse to "have a go" at Sunol. The matter has been thoroughly canvassed by the Eastern Turf writers and one and all have come to the conclusion that a match race will take place between these celebrities during the month of September. Now mark the following: there will be no race arranged between the great four year olds for the following reasons: first, Axtell has a slight puff on one of his legs which has deterred Doble from giving him the work necessary to key him up to a sublime effort, and secondly, in addition to that, the five gentlemen who own Axtell know that they can get seventy mares for him next season at $1,000 each. It takes but little calculation to show that the return for the two seasons will recoup the Syndicate for their enormous outlay and then they will have the horse free of cost but too worn out to trot him next year. In his six year old form he will serve no mares and will then be driven for a world beating record. This is not positive informaton but simply a surmise as to now Messrs. Conly, Ijama, et al, will work their great young stallion.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette of last Wednesday, in speaking editorially of trotting and pacing horses, says: The trotting and pacing horses are coming to the front nobly this season. In the Cleveland races yesterday, twenty-two horses contested for three purses, and in the eleven heats there was none above 2;22. In the 2:30 trot, with nine entries, there were two heats in 2:20½, one heat in 2:18¾, and one in 2:15¼. The trotter or pacer that expects to make any show this year, must have speed, and he driven to its top notch. These races are gradually rising above the suspicion under which they have suffered so long, that they are 'jockeyed' for mere money-making purposes, and are establishing a reputation for fairness in which the best horse wins. This policy will make trotting and pacing races respectable, popular and profitable.

John A. Goldsmith the well known driver and trainer of the San Mateo Stock Farm cracks had a close shave last Saturday at San Jose. R. Havey and T. Smith had scored up to the bend and turning round were returning when Goldsmith who was driving Chantilly—a Nutwood mare—met them and seeing Havey pull out he did not notice Smith who seemed not to have seen him until both sulkys collided, Goldsmith being thrown out. Luckily he was not much worse beyond the shaking. The mare ran three miles with the remains of the sulky and was much bruised and will probably not be fit to race for a few weeks. Goldsmith was again in bad luck on Tuesday as a yearling colt shied with him and hitting the fence upset the sulky but luckily not injuring either Goldsmith or the colt.

A very handsome catalogue of the trotting stock at Abdallah Park, Cynthiana, Ky., has been received for which Mr. Wilson, the owner, has our thanks. The book contains a full list of the horses now owned, in whole or in part, by W. H. Wilson and it is perfectly needless to say that within its covers may be found the pedigrees of trotters that are as fashionably bred as any in the country. The stallions Simmona 2:28 and Sultan 2:24 are given the post of honor and right worthy are they of it, while the brood mares named would be hard to beat anywhere. The proprietor of Abdallah Park is one of the few progressive breeders in the business and he does not hide his light under a bushel but is willing to let the world know what he has in the way of fine stock and to that end gets up the finest catalognes that money can procure. Those who would like duplicates of the 1890 one will have them sent by applying to Mr. Wilson.

J. A. Goldsmith is at present at San Jose with a string of 12 horses viz, Stambout 2:12½, the property of W. S. Hobart and eleven of the San Mateo Stock Farms or mares that have been sent there to breed; they are Regal Wilkes 2:20¾ at two years old, Hazel Wilkes 2:20 at four years old, Flora Belle 2:25, Sister V 2:22½, Rupee a three year old pacer by Guy Wilkes dam by Poscora Hayward out of Sable, dam of Sable Wilkes: Vida Wilkes a two year old filly by Guy Wilkes out of Vixen by Nutwood out of Sister dam of Albert W; Millie Wilkes a three year old filly by Guy Wilkes out of Rosetta by The Moor; Serena a three year old by Sidney out of Blonde by Elmo; Freedom a yearling colt by Sable Wilkes out of Lanra Drew by Arthurton and Chantilly a brown mare by Nutwood dam Coupon. On Sunday morning Goldsmith will move to Napa with the above mentioned horses.

Last Saturday morning the two well known drivers, Jno. A. Goldsmith and Thos. Smith of Vallejo had a collision on the San Jose track that for a few moments seemed to the spectators as though a fatal accident had happened. Mr. Goldsmith was speeding a mare which is owned in Kentucky around the track while Mr. Smith was jogging Mambrino Chief in the opposite direction; there were two or three other drivers speeding their horses the reverse way of the track, and when in front of the grand stand, Smith pulled out to allow the other drivers to go past but in doing so he collided with the sulky in which Goldsmith was riding, causing both men to be thrown out. Goldsmith was dragged several feet before he could disengage himself, but ultimately secured a release, when it was found, much to the astonishment of all present, that he had not been injured to amount to anything; Mr. Smith was equally fortunate, although both of the horses were more or less injured.

The Buffalo correspondent of the New York Spirit of the Times, says: "Mr. O. A. Hickok, recognized as one of the leading knights of the sulky on the American trotting turf, sauntered into one of the leading hotel corridors last evening in company with George A Middleton, of Chicago; S. A. Browne, of Kalamazoo; J. L. Burnham, of Milwaukee; W. H. Wilson, of Cynthiana; E. F. Farman, of Jamestown; C. F. Emery, and other representative horsemen. The silvery locks of Time are beginning to predominate, but for all that O. A. Hickok, the pride of California, is still in the harness, fresh as a magnola blossom. He heeds no "sweets," no "warming up heats," no "cooling out," no "bandages," no "rubbing down" to prepare him for a fast mark at social chit chat, but he does wear "boots." When a colt he needed copper "toe weights," but with age he outgrew their usefulness, or, rather, necessity.

"You can say that Sunol will go against her time, 2:10½, at Buffalo next week, but it will be at Chicago when she will attempt to dethrone Maud S 2:08¾," said the old turfite. "Do I think she can beat Belle Hamlin? Most assuredly, any place in the mile. She can beat the world."

The stallion Patrician, a son of Thomas Jefferson that was pretty well along in years, met his death in rather a peculiar manner at the recent Philadelphia meeting, says the Breeders Gazette. The owners of the old horse were anxious to get him in the 2:30 list, and of course equally anxious to win the race in which he started. He succeeded in capturing the first and second heats, both being better than 2:30, but was so distressed by the effort that in the third heat his driver laid the stallion up. The judges noticed this and put behind Patrician a new driver. This brilliant individual, not seeing that the horse was in bad shape, although the fact that the animal could not go any ought to have convinced him of that, pounded Patrician around the track, and at the finish of the heat the horse was more dead than alive. He was taken from the track and died during the night. Here is a case in which the Humane Society, if there be such an institution in Philadelphia, should take prompt and decisive action. The man who was put behind Patrician by the judges is responsible for the death of that horse from cruelty. Had he known his business it would have been apparent to him that when a horse that had been winning the first heats of a race in about 2:27 could not beat 2:40 there was something wrong with him. Had a man with sense been behind Patrician, he would have pulled up when he saw that the animal was distressed, but the hopeful whom the judges selected to do the driving evidently thought that his reputation as a reinsman depended on the extent to which he could punish a helpless brute.

SAN JOSE.

By Our Special Commissioner.

FIRST DAY, MONDAY, AUG. 11TH.

The first day of the San Jose racing meeting held under the auspices of the Santa Clara Valley Agricultnral Society was a pronounced success notwithstanding the fact that the card was not a very strong one as far as the horses entered were concerned. The attendance was far above the average for the first day, and the weather was all that could be desired.

The opening event on the programme was a special rsce for a purse of $200 hetweeu Dr. Swift. Annie C., Billy C. and San Jose. Billy C. was a trotter while the other three belonged to the sidewheel division. Dr. Swift was the favorite at $20, Annie C. bringing $10 while the field found but few purchassrs at $8. The race was a very one-sided one, Dr. Swift having it sll his own way, winning in three heats, the following heing the

The second event was a specisl trot for $200, the starters beiug Flors, Myron, Monte, Musgrave and Maud C. Mand C. was such a pronounced favorite that she sold at $20 while the field brought $8. She won handily in three straight heats, the time being 2:41: 2:40¾ and 2:42, Mnsgrave being second and Flora third in tho distribntion of the moueys.

TUESDAY, AUG. 12TH, 1890.

The first regular day of the San Mateo and Santa Clara Co. Agricultural Association No. 5 Fair was held to day and was in every way a grsnd snccess, visitors from all over the State were present, the grand stand and club house being well filled, while both sides of the qnarter stretch were lined with well appointed carriages of every description. Prominent among the spectators were Ariel Lathrop, President Blood Horse Association, W. S. Hobart, the well known owner of Stamboul, W. Corbitt, the happy proprietor of San Mateo, P. A. Finnigan, once owner of Santa Claus, W. Van de Lashmntt, Mayor of Portland, Or., and owner of a host of good trotters, F. H. Burke, owner of Eros and Wanda, Henry Pierce, one of the owners of Bay Rose, R T. Carroll, director of the Blood Horse Association and Oakland Fair Association, Morgan Hill, late owner of Prince Warwick, Percy Williams, Union Island, F. P. Lowell, Sacramento, Lot D. Slocum, San Francisco, Wilber Field Smith, James McCord and James Garland, Sacramento, A. Gonzalez, San Francisco, J. A. McKerron, the well known horse outfitter, Peter Brandow without a horse, L. E. Clawson, G. Van Gordon, Snp't of Senator Hearst's San Simson ranch, Frank Baldwin, Fresno, who was fresh from an Eastern trip and vigorously obtaining entries for the fall meeting at Fresno, Col. Morshead now of Santa Clara and a host of local celebrities.

Ths programme was run thrnogh in admirable style, there being no unnecessary delay or hitch while the two races although fairly exciting were won by the San Mateo Stock Farm entries, driven by the irrepressible Johu Goldsmith. The Judges were President William Buckley, Jesse D. Carr, Salinas, and C. S. Crittenden, San Francisco. Timers, G. Van Gordon, R. T. Carroll and L. W. Warden.

Promptly on time the hell was rung for the first race, a trotting race for the 2:20 class which had four entries, Palo Alto's Express, who has a record of 2:21; Agnew Stock Farm's Emma Temple, 2:21; Ssn Mateo Stock Farm's Hazel Wilkes, 2:20; and J. Linscott's Jim L., 2:20¼.

FIRST HEAT.

Pools soon settled down to a steady rate, Hazel Wilkes being a hot favorite at $25 to Emma Temple $12 and Express and Jim L coupled as a field $3.

In the draw for positions, Jim L. obtained the pole, with Express next and Hazel Wilkes on the ontside. Abont twenty minutes was devoted to scoring up, Emma Temple being rather inclined to break jnst before the wire, while Jim L. was rather uncertain. When the bell was tapped, Jim L. and Express went away very fast, and hoth trotting evenly, led Hazel by two lengths rouud the turn and down the backstretch, with Temple two lengths fnrther back. After passing the three-furlong post, Goldsmith turned Hazel loose before passing the half-mile in 1:12, was half a length in front of Jim L., while Express was only a length behind, Temple still last. Hszsl increased her lead ronnd the turn, and rounded into the homestretch with a clear three-lengths lead, which she easily maintained to the wire; Jim L. found the pace too good, and broke when fairly in the stretch, beiug passed by both Express and Emma Temple, who made a pretty finish for second position, which Express just landed by a neck from Temple, who beat Jim L. by three lengths. Time, 2:24½. Paris mutuels in the heat (120 tickets sold) paid $9 20.

The balloon ascent and descent was snccessfnlly made by Professor Baldwin, and then the horses came out for the Second heat.—A few pools wero sold at $25 for Hazel Wilkes to $7 for the whole field. The quartette were despatched at the sscond attempt; Hszel Wilkes at once took the lead, while Express. who broke almost immediately, fell away back. Going ronnd the turn, Hazel opened up a big gap and passed the quarter four good lengths in front of Jim L., who was just clear of Temple, with Express three lengths further back; Jim L. broke half way down the backstretoh, and dropped back to Express, while Temple went on in pursuit of the chestnut mare, bnt Goldsmith kept hsr going, and won rsadily hy three lengths, Temple second, Express third, a length in front of Jim L., the two latter beiug nicely inside the distauce flag, Time, 2:23. Paris mutnels, none sold.

Third heat (after first heat of 2:27 trot)—No pools were sold, as the race was snpposed to be all over, barring accidents, and Goldsmith had had two in the last three days, and was therefore not taking any risks. A start was effected at the first attempt; the favorite broke right under the wire, and was four lengths behind Templo when she settled, and trotting rapidly was second on the turn, and at the quarter was only a length behind Temple, with Jim L. third, three lengths back, and two lengths in front of Express. Hszel went past Temple like a standing tree on the back-tretch, and went round the turn three lengths in front, with Jim L. six lengths behind and two in front of Express; running, Temple closed up the gap as she turned into the stretch, and got within a length of Hszel half way up the stretch, hut the effort was too much for her, and she broke hadly, Hazel Wilkes winning easily by three lengths, with Temple second, and Jim L. and Express bsrely inside the distance. The distance judge reported Express distanced, but it was decided hy the judges that he was inside. Time, 2:23. No Psris mutnels sold.

Time, 2:24½, 2:23, 2:23.

First heat—2:27 Clsss. Ten horses csme ont for this class. Five of the ten had records hetter than 2:30, viz: Sister V, 2:27; Moses S, 2:21½; Flors G., 2:29¼; Guide, 2:29 and Sargent, 2:28. Anction pools sold rapidly at $60 for Sister V., $20 for Moses S., and $22 for the field.

After a great deal of scoring for the word a straggling start was effected with Moses S. a shade the hest of the leaders, and being sent right on he drew clesr and led Sister by two lengths round the turn. Lee, who wss third, broke and lost his position to Clara Z, with Gnide a fair fifth and the rest all strung ont. Moses, Sister and Clara were all about two lengths apart at the quarter, but Goldsmith, behind Sister, closed the gap to a scant length at the half, while the others dropped hack, Gnide being third six lengths behind, and the two greys, Clara and Sargent were fourth and fifth, three lengths further back, with Lee leading the remainder. Sister went up to Moses on the tnrn, and stayed with him to the homestretch, when she slowly drew away, and the Stockton horse tiring, beat him out a length and a half with a little in hand. Guide was a moderate third, Clara Z. fourth, and the rest all strnng out. Time 2:22½.

Paris mutnels on the heat paid $9 60.

Second heat—Very few pools were sold, Sister V bringing $150, Moses $7 and the field $5. The big field was very soon started again, pretty well straggled out. Sister V went right out and was soon clear of the field, leading Moses by three lengths round the tnrn and down the backstretch, with Guide two lengths behind, followed by the two greys; the same order was maintained all throngh, and although Moses S crawled up a little round the lower turn, Sister came away again in the homestretch and won, with a little in reserve, hy three lengths. Sntherland made a big drive behind Guide up the straight, and the black son of Director stood it like a Trojan and closed up on Moses, heing only beaten half a length for second position· Clara Z and Sargent were sgain fourth and fifth. Time, 2:23. Paris mutnals on the heat paid $6.50.

Third heat—No pools were sold, Sister V having shown too mnoh pace for the balance. A start was soon effected Lee having much the worst of it. Sister at once set the pace, with Moses second snd Gnide third, to the qnarter, when Moses broke and lost his position. Sister kept pegging on and psssed the half five lengths in front of Gnide, three in advance of Sargsnt jnst clear of Flora G and Moses. Sister went right along and won easily by three lengths while Moses worked his way np to Guide and challenging him at the top of the homestretch soon had the better of him hnt Flora G came with a desperate rush in the last hundred yards and finished close up third. The Judges mistook Guide for her and placed him third hut afterwards reversed their decision when they gave Flora G fourth money. Time 2:25½.

The Infant Trotting for yearlings had five starters. Pools sold $20 for the field, $10 for Luck and $10 for Young Herold.

Aftsr scoring up severs! times in a coltish manner the youngsters were tapped off with Acorn well under way and sqnaring out like sn old timer the little black had a six lengths lead at the qnarter with Herold second two lengths in front of Luok. Herold broke half way down the backstretch and was passed hy Luck who was abont eight lengths behind Acorn at the half, and though she gained a lot of ground round the tnrn she was fonr lengths behind at the head of the stretch and being urged left her feet at the drawgate while Acorn never hesded, won by three lengths. WEDNESDAY.

The weather was brilliant, in fact could not have besn improved on and a large attendance was expected at the park as there were many attractions, but for some rsason or other the pnhlic did not turn out in anything like the number they did on the previons day. At 10 o'clook a parade of live stook was held, horses and cattle being all marshalled into the inside of the track and drawn up in a line almost half a mile long. Imported Brntus led the thoroughhred brigade; he is now owned by Wm. Boots, who purchased him from Palo Alto. Following him came a lot of thoroughbreds of all ages, principally the property of Mr. Boots. Amoug etandard trotters E. Tiphsm was most prominent having five or six entries.

The Roadster classes hsd numerous entries, particular notice being taken of Morgan Hill's stylish looking pair of carrisge horses. John Trumhle's executors hsd a good lot of entries among the heavy hrigade and then came a magnificent display of osttle, Messrs. Younger, Polhemus, Burke snd Cramer hsving exceptionally high class entries. The afternoon programme which was all for the thoroughbreds was not started on until 2:30. When the first rsce was called np a handicsp sweepstakes for all ages, six furlongs, having four left in, pools veered round and sold, Daisy $20, Revolver $13, Alfaretta $8 and Retta B. $3. Starter Van Gordon who took his horses fully a hundred yards back of the six furlong post got the quartette away to a good start after about fifteen minutes delay. Daisy D. at once showed in front with Retta B. and Alfaretta close up, and Hennessy sending Daisy right along was an open length in front of Alfaretta at the halfwith the other pair a scsnt length further hack. Daisy increased her advantage round the turn and won in a big gallop by three lengths from Revolver and Alfaretta who won a dead heat for second place after a pnnishing finish all the way up the stretch. Time, 1:15. Mutnals paid $10·75.

Three two year olds faced the starter, two of whom were Palo Alto bred youngsters, Mero having been purchased last year by Bruce Cockrill, and afterwards sold to Owen Bros., while only a fortnight ago G. Harrison honght Kylo for $1,000; tho other starter was Dnke of Milpitas who had won two races for the Elmwood Stable at Ione. Again a complete change was seen in the overnight pool selling, which had Dnke of Milpitas favorite at $40 to Kylo $15 and Mero $10; a few pools were sold and gradually a strong backing made Kylo favorite, and increasing in favor, he sold for $40 to the Duke $16 and Mero $14. A long delsy occurred at the start, caused by the Duke, who exhibited a frightful temper, bolting through the gate twice, and eventnally rushing at the fence, threw Courtney on to his neck, and thence gradually to the ground. He was soon remounted, and a start was almost immediately effected, Mero cntting out the work on the rails hslf a length in front of Kylo, with the Duke at his girths. Kylo drew np level with Mero at the three-quarter pole, and going on, was an opsn length to the good at the half, with Milpitas a length further behind. Milpitas made his run round the turn and got to Kylo's shoulder round the tnrn for home, but the favorite drew away in the stretch and won handsomely by three lengths from Milpitas same distance second and third. Time, 1.30½. Mutuals paid $9 10.

The third race had dwindled down to two starters, and Appleby's filly Raindrop was backed as a certainty, winding np at $20, while the $5 for Captain Al was hard to find. The pair were turned loose the first time of asking, Captain Al on the inside was a neck hehind passing the stand, and allowed the filly to take the rails before the turn was reached, after which the race was over, as Raindrop maintained a good two lengths lead all the way down the tack stretch and won easily by two lengths, despite a game but ineffectnal effort on Captain Al's part up the strsight. Time 1:57. Mntuals paid $5.50.

The mile and repeat was booked as a good thing for Tycoon who was pnrchased by the Undine stabie for $1000 previons to his appearance at Ione. Pools sold, Tycoon $20 and the field $7. The flag was dropped the first time to a pretty start, Tycoon at once went to the front and led Nabean half a length round the turn with Wild Oats two lengths back, the favorite increased his lead to two lengths down the back stretch and kept to the turn for home where the other pair were level and all thrse sat down and rode hard but at the drawgste Hitchcock, who was two lengths in front eased np on Tycoon who won cleverly by a length and a half from Wild Oats who beat Nabean three lengths for the place. Time, 1:42¾. Mntuals paid $6.30.

Sscond heat no pools were sold.

A long delay occurred, for after the horses came ont Nabeau twisted a plate and the judges allowed him to be replated. When all was again ready ths flag was dropped to a good start, Nabeau and Tycoon going right out opened a gap of five lengths on Wild Oats and the leading pair hnng together to the half where Nabean had a neck the best of it. Tycoon, however, drew gradually away and had an open length the best of it at the head of the stretch, while Wild Oats was ridden hard three lengths fnrther back. Tycoon now had the race well in hand and won by a length and a half cleverly, Nabeau jnst heating Wild Oats by a hesd, the latter having finished very strong under severe persuasion. Time, 1:42¾. Mutuals paid $6.56.

The Willow's Meeting.

FIRST DAY.

The attendance was fair; track fast. The judges were: J. Troxel, A. A. Jackson and W. W. Marshal. Timers, S. E. Tryon and J. Lynden.

First on the card was the two year-old district trot, Maud Merrill winning in straight heats. She is by Antevelo.

Before the horses were brought up the pools on 2 year-old race were sold. Merrill's Maud Merrill favorite at $10 with Lucy B and field for $4; finding ready buyers. Lucy B drew the pole, Wayland W 2nd, Namie Griffen 3d and Maud Merrill outside.

After several attempts the horses got away in very good shape, Maud Merrill taking the lead at the quarter and holding her own all the way aronnd with ease. Wayland 2nd, Lucy B third 3d Mamie Griffen distanced. Time 2:40.

Maud Merrill opened the pools at $10 again; the field selling for $6.

For the second heat the horses got away in good shape again; Maud Merrill leading to the half and coming in under the wire in an easy jog. Wayland 2nd and Lucy B 3rd. Maud winning the race and first money. Time, 2:42½.

The second race was for the three minute class. The entries were Vic H., Billy Doty, E. C. Peart and Frank M. Frank M. came out lame, and was allowed to be withdrawn.

There were no pools sold, the race to be conceded to Vic H., and she won as she pleased in straight heats in 2:39, 2:35 and 2:25½; distance was waived in the last heat, or her opponents would have struck the red flag.

The winner is a very handsome brown mare, and is by Blackbird, dam Ellen Swigert. She is entered at Oakland, and should win there.

The third race was the most interesting race of the day, half mile and repeat. The starters were Jack the Ripper, Joker, Wild Robin, Katisha, Mohawk and R. H. Pools before the first heat sold. Joker $10, Wild Robin and field $11. They were not long at the post, the starter, Mr. Billups of Colusa, getting them off well together, with Jack the Ripper in front. He opened a gap of three lengths, and won by that distance, R. H. second. Time, 0:49¾.

Joker still sold favorite, but he "wasn't in it," Jack the Ripper winning in a canter, Joker second, Wild Robin third. Time, 0:50½.

SECOND DAY, AUG. 13TH, 1890.

The day was fine, the track fast and the attendance large. The judges were the same as yesterday. The first race was a special pace for named horses. Little Hope, Gerster, Sam Lewis and Haverly.

First heat. Pools sold Little Hope $10, field $5.

Lewis got off a length in the lead and was never headed, at the quarter he lead by one-half a length, Gerster second, Hope third. Haverly broke on the turn way back. They maintained the same positions to the wire, Lewis wining by half a length. Time, 2:2 9.

Second heat. Poals sold, Little Hope, $10, field $4.

Little Hope went of in the lead and won as he pleased; Lewis second, Gerster third, Haverly fourth. Time, 2:30.

It was a foregone conclusion that the race belonged to Little Hope and he won the third and fourth heats easily. Time, 2:33½, 2:34½.

LADIES' TOURNAMENT.

Agricultural Park was crowded this morning to witness the Ladies' Tournament. The Grand Stand was a perfect bower. The many colors of the gaily attired ladies made a picture not soon to be forgotten.

The contestants were Miss Marshall, Phil Jarvis and Mrs. G. W. Bressler.

Miss Marshall was mounted on a splendid sorrel, Miss Jarvis had a spirited bay and Mrs. Bressler rode a high nettled sorrel.

The riders wore handsome costumes, and were greeted with deafening applauses as each passed the Grand Stand through the different gaits, walk, canter, trot, gallop and run.

The Ladies exhbited a wonderful amount of daring in the running.

The judges were Capt. Wm. Ash, of Berlin, Wm. Billups of Colusa and R. H. Newton of Woodland; three young men that we have no doubt will give satisfaction when they render their decision Saturday.

Athletics—Continued.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

Great preparations are being made for the grand exhibition of the Olympic Athletic Club which will be held in the Grand Opera House next month. Over 150 of the best athletes in the club will take part in the exercises which will be varied and many. Professors Corbett, Smythe, Miehling, Van Court, etc., will put foreward their best pupils and a capital programme will be the result.

We understand that the Alpine Amateur Athletic Club and the Argna Athletic Club are about to consolidate. The name of the combined club is to be the Alpine Argus Athletic Club. The Argus Club contains over fifty first class athletes and its addition to the Alpine Club would necessarily mean the formation of a very powerful athletic organization.

All the suspected members in the Alpine Club will be asked to resign after the club is settled at Central Park.

There was a meeting of the P. C. A. A. A. on Wednesday evening last when the Sacramento Athletic Club applied for admission into the association. All the leading clubs on the coast are now in the P. C. A. A. A. and fine sport may be looked forward to on the 17th of September, when the great tournament will be held at Sacramento.

As is usual just before the annual election in the Olympic Club, a general meeting was held on Monday evening last at the gymnasium to select a nominating committee, which suggests names to be placed upon the regular ticket. The following members were selected: E S Van Court, J P Jackson, Jr., S V Casady, C J Schuster, C H Stanyan, Jr.

The gentlemen named pledged themselves in favor of certain measures of club policy among which were:

The vigorous prosecution of the building scheme.

The selection of a ticket, every member of which shall be a steadfast supporter of the project.

The nomination of Wm. Greer Harrison for President.

The creation of the office of Captain in the Board of Directors.

The placing of indoor and outdoor athletics under separate directing heads, and to that end the election to the Directory of an accomplished indoor athlete for the office of leader, and of an accomplished outdoor athlete for the office of captain.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I went over to see the cross-country run at Alameda on Sunday last, and was pleased at the good showing made by Alpine Club boys. By the way, the Alpine members all wore the initial of their clubs, flanged with two wings, and many of the Alameda people mistook them for the Alameda Club boys, the initial letter of each club being the same. I overheard one young lady remark: "What a splendid lot of young athletes; Alameda should be proud of them." (?)

I have tried to find out something about the Olympic games which I believe will come off on Admission Day, but could not get any reliable information. It is time to issue the programme if the games really are to be held.

The two miles handicap run at Sacramento on September 17th will be worth seeing. I know four young men who have an eye on first place. P. D. Skillman is capable of running the distance under 9min 45 secs., and I think Cooley, Scott, Espinosa and Harry Casidy, should not be left out in the cold. None of the men named have had very much experience at long distance running, and Scott and Cooley should get at least 40 seconds start, while Espinosa and Casidy would need about 10 more seconds to stand any show.

SKILLMAN OF COURSE.

The 12-h cross country, or rather road, run of the Olympic Club was held at San Mateo last Sunday and the contest would have been more interesting had the distance been shorter. The contestants were obliged to jog from San Mateo to Milbrae a distance of about four miles and the race began when the turning point was reached. The men got on their marks at Milbrae and the following handicaps were allowed: P. D. Skillman, scratch, F. L. Cooley, 60secs., W. A. Scott and M. Espinosa 1min. 15secs. each, S. V. Casady, 2 min. 15secs., J. C. Kortich, 3 min. 15 secs., A. Christie 2 min. S. V. Winslow, 2 min. 15 secs. W. Phelps, 6 min., E. McDonald 4 min. 30 seca , M. Tromboni, 8 min. C. A. Jellineak, 4 min, Schlengheyde, 4 min R. McArthur, 1 min. 15 secs. The limit man was out of sight when Skillman started but in a very short space of time he caught up with his men and took the lead. He is a wonderful runner and many of the young runners who forgot that Skillman was the only one of his kind in America grew disheartened and vowed that they would quit the cinder path. They will soon forget Sunday and commence training again. The New Yorker won as he pleased in 22 min. 7 secs., very fast time over the course.

Frank Cooley, the present champion, arrived 33 seconds afterwards, and won second prize. Martin Espinosa ran well and got in third, while S. V. Winslow finished fourth. McArthur was obliged to give up on account of one of his spikes running into his foot. He had to ride back to the finishing point in a buggy. Scott also suffered with his feet as did most of the runners. The athletes, after enjoying a wash and a change of clothes, sat down to a very full lunch under some live oaks, and after the food was all eaten up, Mr. Scott, in a neat, little speech, gave the winners their prizes, which were as follows: 1st, gold and silver mounted cane; 2nd, a silver match box; 3rd, a gold breastpin; 4th, a pair of silver sleeve buttons. The last man home, Schlingheyde, was presented, amid great cheering, with the leather medal. The medal was quite an artistic affair and had the following inscription upon it: "He tarried by the wayside for reasons best known to himself." There was also a sketch of a very tired looking man's face bound up in a handkerchief. The weather was pleasant and cool, and if the run had been four miles instead of eight the boys would have enjoyed it better.

THE ALPINE AND ALAMEDA CLUB RUN.

A combined run of the Alpine Club of this city, and the Olympic of Alameda, took place on Sunday afternoon from the gymnasium of the latter club on Lincoln Avenue, Alameda, commencing at 2:12. The run was out to Bay Farm Island and return, a journey of four miles. It took the runners 19 minutes and 30 seconds to reach the finishing place on the Island, and after a good long rest, all the athletes started for home, except Casidy, Cooke, Vollmer and Garrison, who allowed the others two minutes handicap. Cooke and Casidy had no trouble in overhanling the other men, and made the first mile home in 5min. 20secs.

Both Vollmer and Garrison were out of condition, and did not try to spurt. The run was not intended as a contest, but merely a practice spin, hence the poor time made. The boys attracted great attention as they jogged along Central Avenue, and many a young lady who peeped from behind a blind, wondered "what they were."

Snow, of the Alameda Club and Casaidy, of the Alpines, ran together when near the finish and the latter allowed Snow to canter in front by sixty yards. Time 41min 10secs. Another run will probably be gotten up in a couple of weeks. The following started; Alpine Club, J D Garrison, H C Cassidy, W F Vollmer, A Cooke, G W Armbruster, C. Armbruster, A Choynski, R A Luttringer, E Steinway, H O Farrell, E Dieyfus, F J Ralph, Elias Levy, F E Holland, A M ing, E P Moody. Alameda Olympic Club—A C Snow, D A Cohen and T Sparrow. Time was kept by R J Luttringer, and P N Gafney acted as starter.

LATHROP, August 8, 1890.

Color in the Animal Kingdom.

Color in the animal kingdom is due to two causes—either to the presence of coloring matters, of pigment, or to the presence of fine sculpturing, which produces an optical effect of a certain color. What we term metallic colors in birds—hnmming-birds, for example—and in butterflies, are not caused by pigments of that tint, but by fine grooves upon the feathers or scales, and thin lamina of horny snbstance. Very often these two causes are combined; they are, for example, in the peacock. An albino peacock is by no means a rarity; and if the tail-feathers of one be closely examined, they will be seen to show a pattern like that of a damask tablecloth. This pattern is dne to the fine grooves ruled upon the feathers, which are differently disposed in the rings which form the "eye;" but the blackish-brown pigment is absent, and so the grooves produce no effect of color. Very often the color of an animal is due to two pigments combined; for instance, the beautiful green of the iguana lizard is due to a distinct yellow and a blne pigment. But these colors can not be washed ont by water, though they soon fade after death—at least the yellow does—leaviug the animal of a grayish-blue color, which is the prevailing hue of stuffed lizards. Among the hutterflies "mechanical colors" appear to be the rule; but the "brimstone" is an exception. for from its wings a yellow pigmeut can be extracted. The questions relating to the color of animals were once only the theme of poets, but are now the property of scientists, who have built up most interesting theories to account for the nature and distribution of color. Bnt these theories have, for the most part, dealt with the question in reference to snch intellegent groups of creatures as birds and insects, and have rather ignored worms and starfishes and crabs, and such like beings of a limited intellect, whose æsthetic sense, even to the most ardent followers of Darwin, must appear somewhat doubtful. A congregation of blue, purple and red invertebrates living four miles below the surface of the sea, can not reap much advantage from being impressed by their neighbor's gaudy attire, even if they could see it; but they can not see, for the very good reason that, for the most part, they have no eyes, and if they had, it is too dark to see. On the other hand, even among insects and birds, the greater number are plainly colored, and show no great difference of sex; and we must assume, therefore, that even between closely allied species belonging, in some cases, to the same family—or it may be genus—there is an enormous gap in intellectnal development if we are to accept a theory of "sexual selection." It is in reality probably necessary to disentangle, from their very intimate relationship, the two classes of colors mentioned above before we can arrive at any useful hypothesis as to their meaning. It is very noticeable that in numerous marine creatures whose mode of life renders concealment unnecessary, "warning colors" futile, and sexual coloration impossible, the frequently brilliant colors are entirely due to pigments deposited in the skin. On the other hand, in bntterflies and birds, where sexual selection and so forth is conceivable, the colors are largely produced by mechanical causes affecting the structure of the feathers or scales. In fact, it is not too much to say that nearly all, if not quite all, birds in which the two sexes show a marked disparity of coloration, owe their brilliant hues to structural peculiarities of the feathers, and not to pigments.—Frank E Beddard.

Alameda County Sportsmen's Club.

The final meeting of the season was held at Oakland Trotting Park on Saturday afternoon last, eleven members taking part. The day was fine, and a breeze blew hard enough to help the good birds materially. The prizes for the season were distributed at the close of the shoot. First, a very rich gold watch safe in the form of a loaded shell with a diamond for a primer, went to Mr. C. M. Osborn, who killed sixty-four ont of seventy-two birds shot at. Second prize, a gold medal went to Mr. W W. Haskell, and third, a gold dog whistle to Major S. I. Kellogg. The score was:

At 12 birds, A. S. A. rules, for club trophies.

The Valley Quail of California.

[Lines suggested by T. S. Van Dyke's article in Leffingwell's work on "Shooting on Upland, Marsh and Stream."]

Far over Californian realm,
Far down the sultry Mexic coast,
The valley quail o'er mount and valo
Assemble—a shy, countless host.
Though haunting the sea-level line,
It finds a home on upland spico,
Happy in torrid, shadeless glare;
Happy in cool, secluded place,
Whose arbors of wild ross and grape,
The sycamore with festoons drape.
Aliko to him the settler's glebe,
Or lofty hill-top far away,
Whether he feeds on strawberry feast,
Or dry grass-seed, in sterile clay;
Forever sleek and cheerful where
The scantiest herbage spreads its fare.
Forever busy is the quail,
Fore'er on wing, save in the night,
Ne'er sits with ruffled, drooping plumes,
But ever is alert in flight;
Its plumage rich, and sweet the note
That, various, bubbles from its throat.

Their bevies over acres spread,
O'er stubble-field, or sun dried grass;
Out of the cactus patch they spring,
From Sumach clump or rocky pass;
And in each canon deep we hear,
At morn, at eve, the clanging strife
Of fluttering wings and see the air
Filled with blue lines of feather'd life.
Step cautious, gunner—for their spring,
As forth they burst on whirring wing,
Will cheat thee—for in white sage brush,
Wreath'd with the garlands of the pea,
They bidden lie—and forth will whiz,
With whistling chirpings as they flee;
Or, happy where grow poppies red,
Or wild buckwheat with flowrets spread,
They lurk—then quick on buzzing wing
The baffling darlings upward spring!

'Tis a fair scene that charms the eye—
The earth ablaze with blooms unknown,
Skies purer than all foreign skies,
Bird-songs of unfamiliar tone,
Views of green slopes that roll sereno,
Long undulations, blue and green,
Until they end in far-off hills,
Whose peaks the mind with wonder fills.

SPRINGS, L. I. ISAAC MCLELLAN.

It is rumored that Moraga Valley and adjacent tracts are to be leased by a new preserve club, and heavily stocked.

A shipment of Mongolian pheasants has been on exhibition at Mr. E. T. Allen's for some days. The birds are to be placed on the North Pacific Game and Fish preserve near Ukiah. It is to be regretted that copper pheasants were not secured instead.

County Auditor Soule of San Barnardino is credited with having gathered 100 dozen wild duck eggs during a twelve day visit to the Bear Valley Reservoir. If it be true, he should do penance, and sternly forswear such very unsportsmanlike practice.

About as dainty things as have lately come to notice are some 44 calibre double breech loading shot guns at Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co.'s. The guns are well proportioned, nicely finished with recent improvements, top snap, rebounding locks, etc., and shoot well. They weigh four pounds each, and for bird collecting, swallow shooting, or like work, are very good. We understand that several have been purchased for the rising generation of sportsmen—young Joe Bassford, aged six; young Will Golcher, aged seven; young Harry Schreiber, aged six; and others of like ripeness in years.

In another month quail shooting begins, and the reports made by those who have been out after doves and deer are that they have seen plenty of young quails. It will be well for owners of fine setters and pointers to remember that their dogs cannot do good work in the heat of September unless especially prepared for it by judicious feeding and plenty of exercise.

Three young men who are not members of any gun club but who belong to San Jose, have issued a challenge to any three members of the Garden City Gun Club to engage in a pigeon shoot with them. The challengers are crack shots, and besides this are backed by men who know all about shooting and who are willing to place a large amount of money on the ability of the unknown team to win. Mr. Joe Delmas says he does not think the Garden City men will accept the challenge

We are confident a match can be arranged with members of the Blue Rock Club of this city, if Mr. C. B. Stone, the Secretary, is consulted.

Mr. Joe Bassford, Jr. of Vacaville has been writing to Mr. William Schriber of this city, and by permission of the latter an extract is made from his letter, which was dated August 9th. He writes:

Yours just to hand. I am very sorry that I cannot go after deer with you. I just returned from a two days and a half deer chase. We had good dogs, saw twelve deer and got two good ones and had a nice time. We ran seven dogs altogether one day and it was fun. The large bucks have shed their velvet in Berryessa Valley. This is where I was the last trip. There are no deer in Steel Canyon this season, only saw three in three days. I am very busy with fruit and will continue to be busy until quail get ripe. Then, yes then, I will have a time. Yes, let us secure Mr. Vaudwort for field trial judge by all means. Let us get in and work for a good square deal. This is all I ask for. Give us honest men for judges.

Lieutenant J. M. T. Partello, of the Regular Army, is quite as well posted upon the shooting to be had in America as any man, which fact lends additional interest to these remarks by him about Northwestern Texas. He writes:

"The prairies and plains of Northwestern Texas are now the very best hunting grounds on the North American continent. The "Llano Estacado," or Staked Plain, long considered a desert waste, and, therefore, avoided by human creatures, has turned out to be the very opposite of this opinion. It is at present a haven of refuge for nearly all wild game animals of the Southwest. Neither Indian, cowboy nor horse thief would cross the unexplored region unless forced to do so, and when they did the trails were marked in every direction by stakes or wooden pins, which has given it the name of "Llano Estacado," or Staked Plain. In consequence of the general abandonment of the spot by humans, the wild and semi wild animals of the Southwest, driven and hunted from place to place, at last sought this isolated country, where they were and have been safe from the bullets and arrows of white and red men.

The great plain is now a veritable park of natural history. The "last bison" not long since wandered homeless and friendless over the hills and valleys of the "Llano" until he was finally run down and slaughtered, and there are yet to be seen thousands of skeletons of this representative American game animal rotting and bleaching into dust under the sun's fierce glare.

Scouring the plains and bounding amid the timber are great numbers of deer, antelope, peccaries or musk hogs, wild cats, timber wolves, Mexican lions, bears, skunks, and among the rocky places a few elk; also jack rabbits, chapparal cocks, wild pigeons, ducks, quail, plover, grouse, prairie dogs, owls, wild turkeys, wolves, coyotes and rattlesnakes galore. Occasionally wild mustangs are encountered, but they are now few and far between.

Of course such creatures as tarantulas, scorpions, vinegaroons and centipedes are not to be considered, for there is scarcely a square mile in all Texas which has not its thousands of those creeping and crawling things. The "Llano" has been a paradise for stray cattle. The Texas steer, always noted for his wild ferociousness. escaping to this isolated spot, free from branding irons and round-ups, has become wilder and more ferocious than ever. His scarred and scorched hide tells the story that he was only a captive, but he kicks his heels into the air and vows he will be so no longer.

Some time before the late unpleasantness between the North and South, the National government imported a few camels for experimental mail carrying over certain parts of the dry and arid Southwest. By the fortunes of war these big, unwieldly brutes fell into the hands of the Confederate authorities. and after awhile, proving of too much trouble and not sufficient advantage, they were turned loose to rustle for themselves.

Whatever became of this band of strangers was not known until within a year or two a stray one was encountered near the ranch of Col. Lewis Wolfley, in the vicinity of Gila Bend. The others no doubt drifted hither and thither, finally reaching the great staked plain, and perhaps are there now, secure in their efforts to reach the farthest point from civilization in our country.

Bearing upon the question, what becomes of shed antlers, Lieutenant Partello drew this statement from an old hunter:

"Although I have traveled all over the West, in the mountains and among the river bottoms, yet seldom do I meet with discarded antlers. What becomes of them, Mr. Borger?"

The hunter's reply was a complete surprise to me, and I am sure it will be astonishing to scientists and old plainsmen who have never found the true answer to this mysterious problem. When we consider the thousands—nay, millions of antlers that are shed annually, and that but a very few are ever picked up or seen, this old man's reply, which I am certain is the correct solution, will be a revelation to all who are interested in the subject.

"Horns, you know, come off once a year," he said. "And it's very funny that a curious little insect tackles them horns almost as soon as they are dropped. Somehow, they won't touch the horns of a deer or elk which is killed. I suppose because they are too trash and tough; but the ones that fall off, these little customers cover in millions, and soon reduce them to powder and dust. You fellows from the North don't know this, but I've seen the little bugs at work hundreds of times; and that's why there is not more bones lying around loose in the valleys and mountains. If you want to see these insects at work, stranger, go up among the sand hills and creek bottoms of the Staked Plain. You'll find 'em there so thick that it'll be trouble to keep from stepping on them."

The Country Club has received the leases of its magnificent preserve in Marin county and is formally in possession of the shooting and fishing rights upon the sixty thousand acre domain. Such a movement must be of great value both to its promoters, to the citizens of Marin and to the general interest. New sorts of game will be introduced, and properly cared for and the preserve will operate as a center from which all surrounding sections will be replenished in the matter of game.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Visits.

Mr. M. Kerr's (San Francisco, Cal.) Flewy, fox-terrier bitch, to J. B. Martin's Blemton Shiner (Blemton Rubicon—Blemton Brilliant) at San Francisco, Cal., July 1, 1890.

Mr. J. B. Martin's (San Francisco, Cal.) Bess, mastiff bitch, to Mr. Hopkin's Jackson, August 2, 1890.

Sales.

Mr. Percy Edonart, Oakland, Cal, has sold Spider, white fox-terrier dog, by Regent Jock—Snip, to J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal., has sold Spider, as above, to H. M. Noel, Hanford, Cal.

Mr. W. Holloway, Eugene, Oregon, has sold Eugene Guess, white, black and tan fox-terrier bitch by Dick—Norwich Belle, to J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal., has sold Eugene Guess, as above, to Mr. W. Maitland, Santa Cruz Co., Cal.

Mr. A. B. Truman, Elcho Kennels, San Francisco, has sold Irish red setters whelped June 1, 1890, by Mike T out of ch Lady Elcho T. to Captain A. B. Anderson, San Gabriel, a dog and a bitch, to P. W. Bellingall a dog to J. C. Cline, Los Angeles, a dog and a bitch.

Intelligence of Dogs.

There cannot be any doubt at all that some dogs are able to find their way home over scores—and even hundreds—of miles, through a completely strange country, and in a time which indicates that they must have taken the "bee-line",, or, at any rate, the shortest available route, says Geo. J. Romanes in the Canine World. Moreover, there can be no doubt that this may be the case, however circuitous the route in the out-going journey may have been, and whether or not the animal has had the use of its eyes during the course of this journey. Therefore, on whatever faculties it may be that the homing instinct of a dog depends, it certainly does not depend upon the senses either of vision or of smell. When—as has frequently been the case—the outgoing journey is taken in a box, or in the hoot of a railway train, it is obvious that the sense of vision can he of to use to the animal in afterwards retracing the route, even if we were to suppose (against the evidence afforded by many of the cases), that he does re-trace the exact route instead of taking the "shortest cut." Again, that the sense of smell need have nothing to do with the matter is proved not only by the fact just mentioned, but also because even if the outgoing journey has been accomplished by sea the dog will return by land; and therefore cannot possibly return on any "recollection of smells in their inverse order," as has been suggested by Mr. A. R. Wallace.

The next thing to be noticed is, that although the faculty in question is ordinarily called the "homing instinct," it is certainly not an instinct in the psychological signification of this term. For it is so far from being a common or universal endowment of all individuals of the species, that it appears to be a comparatively rare endowment—probably not one dog in a hundred being able to effect his return over as large a number of miles. Lastly, it may be noted that although this homing faculty is exhibited by many other animals, these, so far as any trustworthy evidence at present goes—and if we accept the phenomena of migration, which are probably due to some other though equally mysterious faculty—are all comprised within the class Mammalia. Carrier pigeons do not present it in any degree at all, and therefore require to be taught their route between any two points (by flying them at intermediate points) before they can find their way back over distances which are beyond their range of vision. Bees, again, do not present the homing faculty; the "bee-line" which they take toward their hive, when liberated from the box of the wild honey-finder, being due to their special knowledge of the land marks in the district—as was proved simultaneously and independently by Sir John Lubbock and myself in 1887. Thus, the only evidence that we have of the homing faculty properly so called—or as not involving the sense of sight, knowledge of a special district, etc.—refers to sundry species among our domesticated Mammalia, particularly, dogs, cats, horses, cattle, sheepand pigs.

Now, What I desire is to find some dog (or cat) that has already proved himself an adept at way finding; and therefore I hope that any of your readers who may know of such an animal will be kind enough to communicate with me, either with a view to my effecting a purchase of the animal, or else to my suggesting a course of experiments which might be tried.
