The other matter connected with canine intelligence on which I desire to solicit information is as follows:—Until within the last few years it was the universal belief of biologists that the effects of training (i. e., of individual experience uniformly continued over a number of generations) admits of being in some degree transmitted by heredity to offspring. In this way evolutionists were accustomed in large measure to explain the phenomenon of instinct in general, viz., by regarding instinct as "inherited memory," or "organized experience." Great countenance was lent to this view by the facts of what have been called the "artificial instincts" of our domesticated animals—and especially those of the dog. Thus, for instance, there can be no doubt that our Setters and Pointers, when pure bred, inherit a marked aptitude for setting and pointing, which is prior to any individual teaching, and therefore makes the process of teaching more easy in dogs of this kind than in those of any other breed. Similarly, pure bred Retrievers inherit an artificially produced instinct of retrieving; Sheepdogs, an artificially produced instinct of running around, instead of at a flock of sheep; and so on. But now within the last few years Professor Weismann has raised the question whether individually acquired characters of any kind—bodily or mental—are ever transmitted to progeny in any degree at all. His view is that only congenital characters are so transmitted, or qualities which happen to arise as inate peculiarities in the first instance. For example, there is no doubt that by increased use of his arms a blacksmith acquires a greater muscularity of his arms; and therefore, if there were a thousand generations of blacksmiths, it seems reasonable to infer that the children of this race of blacksmiths would inherit stronger arms than the children, say of a similarly long line of watchmakers. Weissmann, however, has given very good reasons for doubting this inference; and the question whether or not it is any longer to be deemed a valid inference, is at present exercising a keener interest in the world of biological science than is any other question whatsoever:

If it be true that only congenital variations are inherited, all the adaptive machinery of organic nature, and all the special aptitudes of animal instinct must be set down to the unaided influence of natural selection. There cannot be in the species, as there obviously is in the individual, any such thing as "function producing structure," "practice making perfect," etc. What happens is that natural selection is always on the lookout, so to speak, for those congenital variations (whether of structure or of instinct) which happen to be in the direction of increased utility: the circumlative growth of adaptations in special lines thus secured through successive generations, being never in any degree assisted by functionally induced improvements in the case of individuals Now, the analogue of natural selection in the case of our domesticated animals, is artificial selection—or the careful mating together of their best animals by cattle breeders, dog fanciers, etc. Therefore, the question which I should like to put to men of experience is the breeding of dogs—and, if possible, to get the question debated in your pages—is as follows:

Is it, or is it not, the case, that in mating setters, retrievers, etc., professional dog-breeders are in the habit of paying attention to the special mental aptitudes as distinguished from the general corporeal excellencies of their pedigree animals? If they pay comparatively little or no attention to the special mental aptitudes (pointing, setting, retrieving, etc.), the fact of these having now become instinctive would point to the conclusion that they are the result of many generations of special training. On the other hand, if they do pay any special attention to these special aptitudes, so that they select for pairing together dogs and bitches which from puppyhood have proved the best pointers, setters and retrievers, it becomes quite possible that individual training has had nothing whatever to do with the genesis of "artificial instincts.,'

How to Overcome Gun-Shyness.

When puppies pass into the hands of really skilled trainers before owners have attempted to teach them at all there is little danger of development of gun-shyness, but in practice those who own young pointing dogs usually tinker with them from weaning time until they go to the training kennel, keep them feverish and susceptible to nervousness. Mr. Luke W. White, of New Jersey, who has done a deal of good training writes very instructingly to the Fancier's Journal about gun-shyness and its cure and what he says is well worth perusal by all doggy men. He writes:

"I do not believe that any young dog can be shot over the first time game is flushed before him without danger of frightening and making him game shy, gun-shy, or both. There is great disparity in young dogs with regard to the effects of their early experience under the gun and on game. Some that are bold in all other places begin quite cowardly on game, and absolutely break down at the report of the gun, while others that appeared naturally timid before going into the field go to work with surprising pluck, and stand the gun from the outset. While these facts appear to indicate that gun-shyness and game-shyness are inherited faults, yet I claim they are not, and furthermore I say that any dog may be made shy, and this fault can always be prevented if the handler knows how and can secure an opportunity to do it.

Now the question arises, Do competent handlers always avoid or ward off shyness in their dogs? I answer no, because no handler is so capable as to immediately understand at all times and under all circumstances the conditions which effect his pupil's work on game and under the gun. If a handler has had a puppy a sufficient time before he undertakes to work him on game, and has fortified him against nervous shock by making him familiar with noise and excitement, then it is more than probable he will have no trouble with him on account of the game or the gun, but if he has not had time and opportunity to so prepare his dog, I say he is then always in danger of bad effects from his first experience.

By using proper precaution the danger of shyness is greatly lessened, in fact, almost entirely avoided. I find it a very good plan to have my puppy lead on a chain a safe distance from the gun, and when I flush game over my trained dogs, then bring up the youngster and let him work on the old scent a little time. If I have a dead bird I always let him put his nose to it, but when he attempts to bite it I stop him by holding him, saying "Ho!" but I never under any circumstances strike him a blow when he first goes on game no matter how badly he acts. In this way I excite and make the youngster eager for his work. I then let him go and hunt, always encouraging him to go out instead of pottering on old scent, which he is generally apt to do. When he finds game the first time I allow him to handle it as he pleases. If he flushes and chases the game I stand still and await his return with my trained dog to a charge. When he returns I bring him in to me, put him to a charge or steady him to "ho" patting and encouraging him gently at the same time. After a short time I let him go again and repeat this performance every time he comes on game.

I never shoot over a puppy until he has seen game in this way several times, and when I do shoot I content myself with one shot each lesson for several successive trials. When I see he is entirely fearless of this one shot I soon give him two, then three and so on till all danger of shyness has passed. Do not imagine that because a young dog will stand one shot without showing fear that he will surely stand three or more. Many times I have seen a puppy show no fear at all of the first or even the second shot and yet become terribly gun-shy from "blazing away" over him.

When your dog once becomes confirmed in gun-shyness or game shyness there is but one course to pursue that I am aware of if you wish to cure him of his fault. Never shoot over him at all until he becomes deeply interested in hunting. Let him find birds several times before you shoot, and when you do shoot let it be but one shot, of wood powder, at a safe distance from and not over your puppy. Do not shoot again under any circumstances until the effects of this shot have passed off and your puppy has several times found or stumbled on game. When you shoot if your dog runs away from you do not call him or make any fuss about him. Just work about in that neighborhood till he comes to you again, and then appear and act quite natural and indifferent, neither scolding nor applauding him for his conduct.

With a shy dog you will often learn the location of game by seeing him drop his tail and skulk away from the place. I always let him alone, flush the game if possible, and pass along as if nothing had happened. After several repetitions of this the dog usually steals up and takes a scent. Soon he will potter a bit on it; finally he will stand away from the birds instead of running, and eventually he will point them. During all these stages of advancement, nothing by way of encouragement or otherwise should be said until he stands on the birds. Then you can applaud him as much as you feel inclined to, which is likely to be a great deal; as you will be so pleased with the progress made.

Let it be remembered that profuse patting and encouragement out of place are just as likely to create distrust and doubt in a young dog as harsh treatment is to confirm his timidity, and it is certain ruin to arouse a dog's suspicion by uncommon praising where it is not deserved, and then change this puerile treatment to harshness and abuse when consequent anger comes on account of the doubting, nervous animal's failure to be inspired by the very cause of his distrust.

Be consistent with your dog. Do not applaud him when he does not deserve applause; do not correct him unless you understand his error; do not punish him unless you are sure he is aware of the cause of his punishment, and never under any circumstances abuse him. Be firm and unswerving in your command and let your dog become habituated to obedience. Be appreciative of his good conduct. Never let his bad actions pass unnoticed, but always be merciful when he appeals to you and he will love and obey you naturally."

Mr. Howard Vernon's very fine pointer bitch Belle V. was run over by a reckless driver on Montgomery street on Saturday last, and in the opinion of the veterinary will lose the litter of puppies by Tom Pinch with which she was heavy. Mr. Vernon will attempt to enforce the law against the man whose carelessness caused so great damage.

The club room of the Student and Sportsman's Club of Bakersfield was destroyed by fire on Wednesday last, together with the Ingleside Hotel and several other wooden structures. A year ago the club was burned out, and lost many hundreds of dollars worth of furniture, pictures, guns, etc. With commendable energy, its leading members at once set about its regeneration, and the result was that in January last it moved into the commodious and elegant quarters just destroyed. It is probable that the plucky men who stood by before, will again set the club on its feet. We trust to receive advices from Mr. W. E. Houghton ahout his plans for the club.

Mr. H. T. Payne of Los Angeles has recently purchased for Mr. W. G. Kerkhoff of that city an English setter of the rarest excellence. The dog was bought in Tennessee and is by Gladstone's Boy out of Ruby D.

Gladstone's Boy is by Gladstone—Sue and is a full brother to Dan Gladstone now at stud at 844 Harrison St., San Francisco.

Ruby D. is by Sportsman out of Gem, Sportsman by Gladstone—Sue and Gem by Gladstone out of Gazelle by Druid—Jolly May. The dog is one-half Gladstone and in other strains is most excellently bred. Fortunately there are many very fine English setter brood bitches in Southern California, and when the recent purchase reaches two or three years of age he can be properly utilized. The dog will run in the Pacific Coast Field Trials Derby of 1892.

Mr. George W. Bassford writes from Vallejo:

I have the finest pack of beagles in the State, some 15 in number, all are bitches but two. This is a breed of dogs that are not appreciated in this State. Let me say here, for Rabbits or Grouse they are simply immense, the only fault is they don't know when to quit, and for deer, well Joe Bassford, Dr. Dobbins, Mr. Corn, Beech Bassford and a few more went deer hunting last week. They took 8 of the beagles and four deer hounds they ran a number and killed two. The beagles stayed with the big dogs and ran them off their feet, and one of the beagles led the pack. She is out of Daisy 11, and by Duffer he by Bannerman Jr. and she weighs 11½ lbs., and is 11 in. high. This may seem like blowing but the facts can be proven. Beech says he could have shot another deer but wanted to see the devils run.

Since losing my pointer Blossom I have lost some of the interest I once had in doggy matters but will pull myself together some day. My Derby winners pointed and backed for the first time last week, first time out too.

Between four and five months ago Mr. P. D. Linville of this city lost an English setter bitch, Florine by name, by Carl R—Beasie. The bitch won first in the open class for English setter bitches at the San Francisco Dog Show of '89, and was generally admitted to be quite a model in the breed. The loss was noted at the time, and general regret expressed. A general watch was kept for the bitch by sportsmen, but after three months she was given up. Mr. S. G. Wilder, a prominent business man of Honolulu, chanced to see Florine while on a visit to San Francisco, and upon his return to Honolulu in July he found an animal there in possession of Mr. W. M. Cunningham, which he thought was Florine. He did not know the bitch had been lost, but upon learning that she had been, he interviewed Mr. Cunningham, and that gentleman explained fully how he came to have her. He had bought her from a sailor for a small sum. When told about Mr. Linville's loss, he expressed the utmost willingness to return the animal, and in fact did ship her to Mr. Linville by the steamship "Australia," which arrived from Honolulu on Friday of last week. Florine was in fine condition, and none the worse for the trip. The acts of Mr. Wilder and Mr. Cunningham are in the highest degree commendable and stamp them both sportsmen in the truest sense. English setter fanciers will join in congratulating Mr. Linville upon the recovery of so grand a specimen as Florine. Her wanderings would make an interesting story, but unfortunately

CONDITIONS.

1. In races Nos. 1, 4 and 10, the word "District" means the counties of Butte, Colusa, Tehama, Yolo, Yuba, Sutter, Nevada, Placer, Sierra, Lassen, Plumas, Shasta, Modoc, Trinity, Del Norte, Siskiyou, Humboldt and Mendocino. ALL OTHER RACES OPEN TO THE STATE.

2. All trotting and pacing races are 3 in 5, except No. 1, which is 2 in 3.

3. National Trotting Associaiton rules to govern all trotting and pacing races, and the State Agricultural Society rules to govern all running races.

4. Entrance fee 10 per cent. of purse, which must accompany the nomination.

5. In trotting and pacing, the purse will be divided in three moneys: 60 30 and 10 per cent.

6. Five or more paid-up entries required to fill, and three or more to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold the entries received and start the race with a less number, and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse or stake.

7. The Boards reserve the right to trot or run heats of any two races alternately, or to call a special race between heats; also to change the day or hour of any race if they deem it necessary.

8. For a walk-over, a horse is only entitled to its own entrance and one-half of the entrance money received in such race, and to no added money. A horse winning a race is entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then to first and third moneys.

9. Non-starters must be declared out on the day previous to the race they are engaged in, not later than eight P. M.

10. Horses for the first race on each day will be called up at one P. M. sharp.

Entries Closed with the Secretaries August 1, 1890, at 10 o'lock P. M.

FREE HAY AND STRAW TO ALL COMPETITORS.

the only thing she cannot do is to talk, and it is quite unlikely that the thievish sailor who stole her will make himself known. If he will, we can assure him a reception, warm after its kind.

A curious complication recently arose about a dog at Galt. Mr. Horace Lawrence of this city recently purchased a dog bred at Los Angeles the sire being an English setter and the dam an Irish setter. The dog was sent to Mr. M. D. Walter at Galt to be broken. In some way a description of the dog reached Doctor H. P. Philips of Stockton who had lost a reddish dog some months ago. The express agent at Galt refused to deliver the dog to Mr. Walter and held it until Doctor Philips arrived from Stockton. The Doctor was sure he recognized the dog and the animal seemed to know him. That there is a mistake somewhere there can be no doubt. Mr. Lawrence is not the sort of man to buy or own a dog irregularly, nor is Doctor Philips at all capable of making a claim which he did not believe right. The matter will be inquired into by both gentlemen and an amicable adjustment reached. It does seem queer that the express agent should have felt at liberty to set himself up as a magistrate and detain property in transit; but he was probably working within the rules of his employers.

ROD.

It is worth nothing that mackerel of fine quality are being taken about Monterey. They take the hook freely.

We are credibly informed that people living along the Los Gatos Creek, in Santa Clara County, have repeatedly blasted that stream with Giant powder. If this be true, there is slight encouragement to the Fish Commission to place fish in that creek.

Fred Holland, Ed. Cahill and several other well known amateur sports hired a yacht on last Saturday evening and set sail for California City where they spent the night. Sunday morning the party started in to empty the bay of its unoffensive little rock-cod but in the course of a couple of hours gave up the task as hopeless. The catch amounted to two hundred and fifty pounds, which included two heavy anchors.

During the week, Chief of the Fish Commission Patroi, Fred P. Callundan, and Inspector Ennis have overhauled Russian River and broken up the fish dams which are yearly constructed by the Indians. They found a great many of the dams, which are made of willow twigs stuck in the bed of the river, with openings at intervals through which fish pass into wicker baskets from which they cannot escape. The Indians also take great quantities of fish by using amole, a plant which, when crushed and infused in the stream, intoxicates all fish which it reaches, bringing them to the surface, where they are scooped in by the Indians. The amole also kills all insect life where it is used, and by thus removing the food of the fish, drives them to the lower reaches of the river or to the sea. Russian River is one of the grandest trout streams, naturally, that ever man wet a line in, being large in volume, running over rock and gravel, and in early years was full of fine trout, where now comparatively few are to be found. Unless the Indian curse is done away with, it is not worth while to stock the river. It is probable, however, that the vigorous efforts of Chief Callundan and Mr. Ennis will revive the ancient glories of old Russian River.

Despite the cycles devoted to study of fish by scientifically accurate men there yet remain some mooted questions, such for instance as whether fish can distinguish colors and whether they hear. The most recent contribution is made by Dr. J. Brunton, whose researches are commented upon in the English Fishing Gazette. Dr. Brunton argues strongly for the importance of color in flies, instancing an occasion upon which he was fishing without success until a friend, whose basket was fast filling, gave him a fly, pale green in color when wet, the body being tied of raw China silk; with that fly the doctor had great sport. On another occasion he happened to have on a Red Tag and a Yellow Tag at the same time and found the yellow preferred. He thinks that English trout have a predilection for certain colors, and that those are green and red. Dr. Brunton is of the opinion that fish posesses a very delicate sense of smell, citing the strong attraction that the strong flavored prawn has for salmon and strong cheese for chub. As to the sense of hearing he demonstrates the fallacy of the idea that fish are either attracted by some sounds, such as music, or alarmed by others. He believes that noises do not affect fish as noises, but solely because the vibrations which they cause are communicated by land and water as media to the fish. They do not hear the angler's tread but do feel it. We have very often used flies precisely alike as to form, and on hooks of the same size, the only difference being in color, and have found one color to take well while another afforded no sport whatever. As between the Black Ant, for instance, and the Red Ant on the River of Sonoma, using them together, the black as a stretcher and the other as a hand fly, the hand fly took ten fish, to one which rose to the black fly. Changing them about the red fly was still quite the thing; when two Red Ants were put on, the basket soon contained ten or twelve pounds of small trout.

The most exquisite thing in the way of a reel that has ever come to our notice was shown at Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co.'s by Mr. Charles H. Ohm on Tuesday last. Mr. Ohm is a manufacturing jeweller, and possesses inventive genius of the highest order. At one time he constructed a machine to braid fishing line that was a marvel of skill, and was said by several authorities to be the best appliance of the sort they had ever seen. The reel mentioned is made of aluminum bronze, German silver and hard rubber. It is about five inches in diameter, being intended for sea bass and salmon fishing, and is a multiplier. It can be used either as a click or plain reel, and has the best drag we have ever seen. Mr. Ohm has promised us a technical description of his most ingenious work which embodies several new principles.

California is not alone in suffering from the carelessness of citizens about protecting and preserving fish and game, as witness these remarks from the Great Falls Leader, Oregon.

Speaking of the rapidly decreasing number of trout streams, that journal says that the people will wake up some morning and wish they had given a little attention to this matter before it was too late. There has been much said about the destruction by giant powder and other explosives, and it has done a vast deal of good in arousing popular sentiment to apply the law.

However, there is no law to stop the same result by irrigating ditches. The owners ought to have sense enough to provide against this difficulty, but it seems that they will not. In front of each ditch at the entrance to the stream a boom is set against the current. This practically diverts the course of the water, which runs in a half current into the ditch. The trout naturally follow this flow of the stream and run over on the land where they die. A gentleman who recently visited the Kleinschmidt ditch at Cascade, says he saw thousands of trout lying dead over on the land. This destruction can be stopped in a very simple and inexpensive way. All that is necessary is a wire screen in front of the ditch at the entrance to the stream. This will not stop the flow of the water, but it will keep the fish in their natural channel. It is difficult to understand how owners of ditches will allow this to go on when they have no use for the fish destroyed. In some cases this may be the result of carelessness on their part. At any rate, owners should remedy the matter at once, and the next Legislature should pass a law making the placing of screens compulsory.

—OF—

Standard-bred Stock of the Highest Order; also, Trotters, Pacers and Gentlemen's Roadsters, Saddle Horses and Carriage Teams, at

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

F. J. BERRY & CO., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

Standard and High-Bred TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high-bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:31, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

JUANITO JR.,

WANTED TO TRADE

THE STANDARD TROTTING MARE

EVENING STAR

Black, eight years old and about 15¾ hands high; weight about 1100 pounds; record 2:29; by Commodore Belmont 1340, he by Belmont 51.

First dam by DICTATOR 113.

Second dam by IRON DUKE, he by C. M. Clay.

Third dam by SIR WALLACE.

Fourth dam by COPPER BOTTOM.

EVENING STAR is a handsome, level-headed and game mare, and should be valuable as a brood mare. Her sire has several in the 30 list, and is the sire of dams who have produced a number of trotters.

I want to trade this fine mare for a standard bred STALLION COLT, two or three years old, of good size, good trotting action and a good looker. Address,

LEE MANTLE,
Butte City, Montana.

Persons desiring to inquire about the mare are referred to B. C. HOLLY ESQ., Vallejo, Cala.

Rules of the Track.

Entrance to all trotting and running races to close with the Secretary at 9 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, Aug. 20 1890.

All entries to be made in writing, to give sex, color and marks of horses. Also name and residence of owner, and in running races colors to be worn by rider, and any other particulars that will enable the audience to distinguish the horse in the race.

Write "Entries to Races" on outside of envelope and seal.

Entrance fee, ten per cent. of purse—to accompany entries.

In all races, 5 or more to enter and 3 or more to start.

National Association Rules to govern trotting, but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between the heats, or change the order of races advertised for any day.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Board, no horse is qualified to be entered in any District race that has not been owned and kept in the District six (6) months prior to the day of the race, and any entry by any person of any disqualified horse shall be held liable for any entrance fee contracted, without any right to compete for a purse, and shall be held liable to penalties prescribed by the National Association and Rules of the State Agricultural Society and expulsion from the Association.

If, in the opinion of the Judges, any race cannot be completed on the closing day of the Fair, it may be continued or declared off at the option of the Judges.

In all races noted above, five or more paid up entries required to fill and three or more horses to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold entries and start a race with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse.

When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

Rules of the State Agricultural Society to govern running races except where conditions named are otherwise.

Any person not intending to start his horse must notify the Secretary in writing on or before 6 o'clock the evening previous to the day of the race.

Horses entered in races can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

For a walk-over in any race a horse shall only be entitled to his own entrance fee and one-half of the entrance received from the other entries for said purse; and a horse winning a race entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then entitled to first and third moneys only. A horse wins but one money under any other circumstances.

The attention of all parties interested is particularly called to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under the provisions of which, except as otherwise specified, all matters appertaining to the trotting races will be conducted.

Races to begin each day at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

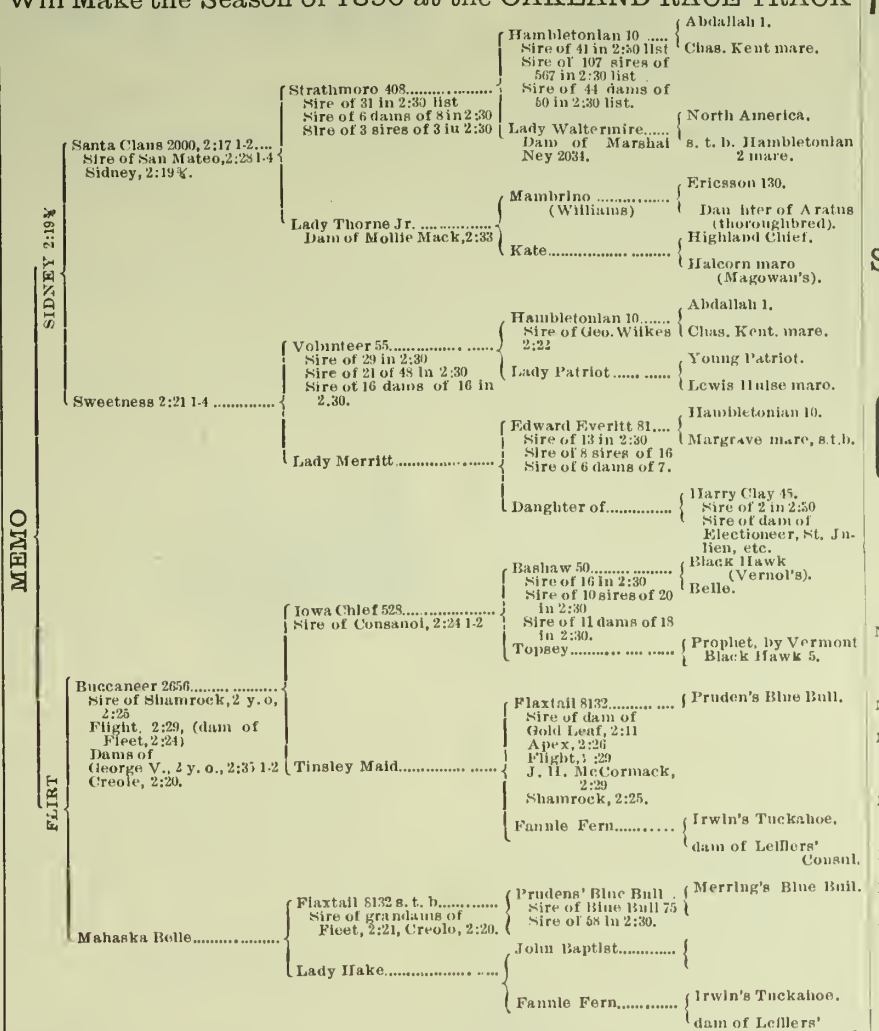
Memo.

The Best Son of SIDNEY

Will Make the Season of 1890 at the OAKLAND RACE TRACK



MEMO is, as can be seen at a glance, one of the best bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and one of Harry Clay, the sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), while Long Island Black Hawk and Flaxtail also contribute to his blood. Sidney (Memo's sire) is universally known as the best young sire in the world, a producer of extreme speed at an early age.

PERFORMANCES.

MEMO trotted in public in his two year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31 1-2, the first in 2 3-4. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, and had it not been for a slight strain of his fore ankle, there is little question that he would have shown in public very close to the best record. On the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20 1-2, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 1-2 to 34 seconds.

As a four-year-old Memo only started once—at Sacramento—when, although out of condition, he showed great speed, and improving as he went on, great hopes were entertained of his going well down in the 'teens at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting, but after showing several very fast miles his leg filled and he was laid up for the season. He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both fore-feet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

TERMS, $100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes. Pasturage $5 per month. Have leased the cricket ground adjoining the track for pasturage, where there is fine feed. Reasonable charges if fed hay and grain. Best of care taken of mares in any manner owners may desire, but positively no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars address or, JOHN ROWEN, Race Track, Oakland, Cal.

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations to stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890.

Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start, the day before the race at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close September 1st with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all races for purses.

National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Entrance fee 10 per cent. on purse to accompany nomination.

National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first, and 33⅓ to the second.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

In all races, entries not declared out by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at 1 P. M. All entries must be directed to the Secretary.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes and purses must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting races will close August 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,
C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

THURSDAY.

The attendance at the Park was much better all day. In the morning awards were made in the horse and several of the cattle classes, and quite a large gathering was on the grounds to witness the decisions. After luncheon a goodly number of spectators packed the various stands almost to overflowing, while on the gronnd was a representative gathering of the sporting element. The programme was a rather lengthy one two special races being included the evening previous, and greatly to the disappointment of many of the spectators they were placed in front of the regular races which were crowded up at the end of the day when most of the spectators wished to go home. The judges were T. S. Montgomery, S. C. Crittenden and P. J. Murphy. Timers, G. Van Gordon, W. Babcock and D. Hanks.

The first of the special races was for a purse offered by the association, the object being to give a record to Baywood, a bay stallion by Nutwood out of a George M Patchen, Jr. mare. He is owned by Mr. E. Smith and was driven by T. Griffin; evidently he had been overestimated, for in the first heat he won by three lengths from E. S. Gould's Wilmington by Nephew, driven by Havey while the other contestant, Fred Stockton's Myron, was distanced, but Baywood was not in it thereafter. Time, 2:37. The second heat was won by Wilmington who kept about three lengths behind until the homestretch when Havey crawled vigorously and forcibly after him and after a severe punishing won the heat by half a length. Time, 2:33.

The third heat resulted the same way, Havey led to the half, when Griffin closed up and both kept together into the homestretch and with both leaving their feet at the distance Havey's superior generalship landed the heat and race for Wilmington in 2:33¼.

The match race, $100 a side, between C. H. Corey's San Jose and Billy C. resulted in a walk over for the former, Billy C. paying forfeit. The regular programme was then started with the 3:00 class, which had three starters, the hitherto invincible San Mateo Stock Farm entering the four year old mare Una Wilkes, Percy Williams entering Beaury Mc (Beauregard McMullen) a four-year old Nephew gelding, and J. Moran being represented by Ed. Fay, an aged gelding. Betting on the previous evening had been fast and furious, Percy Williams and his friends backing Beaury as though the race was over, while the general public backed Goldsmith and San Mateo.

First heat. Pools settled down gradually but surely to $25—always on offer for Beaury Mc, to $7, after a lot of rustling, for the field and just prior to the start $5 was the best offer for the field. After scoring up about half a dozen times the bell was tapped and Fay broke badly, Beaury Mc quickly went to the front and moving with a remarkably pure straightforward way of going had a three lengths lead of Una at the first quarter and rating nicely along never left the race in doubt. Fay broke just after passing the half and dropped further in the rear, while Una was driven hard by Goldsmith round the turn and up the straight only to be beaten by Beaury Mc by three lengths in a common jog, Fay six lengths back. Time 2:28. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Second heat. Every one was now of Williams' opinion and no pools could be sold. All three came up level and the bell was rung. Fay again broke and fell back but Una left her feet on the turn and was passed by him while Buster cut out the work in good style leading three lengths past the quarter, Fay three lengths in front of Una, the order was unchanged to the three-quarters when Una closed up on Fay but broke badly half way up the stretch and lost the place by three lengths, Beaury Mc winning the heat in a jog by two lengths. Time, 2:27½. Mutuals paid $6.10

Third heat. No pools, no mutuals, no nothing. A long time was devoted to scoring up, but the favorite was as steady as a rock and when the word was given went away in front and had a regular cake walk. Una Wilkes broke on the turn and lost six lengths which advantage Fay retained until well past the half when he left his feet and Una got to within three lengths of him at the end of three-quarters with Beaury Mc six lengths in front and going easy he won in a jog. The others made a pretty race for the place, Fay broke half way up the stretch and Una was level with him when he caught and both hung together to the drawgate when they broke together and Fay catching just before the wire got the place by a neck. Time, 2:27½.

The second race, pacing, 2:30 class, had four starters. Princess Alice the Stockton mare was eventually made favorite at $30 to $20 for Rupee, a three year old son of Guy Wilkes, and $3 for the field, which included the ultimate winner Hummer by Sidney. After scoring up a few times Kneier—better known as Rio Vista George, pulled up short after going past the wire and Garrity ran into him and broke his sulky axle. The mare stood perfectly still and was soon unhitched and new sulky brought. After a tedious scoring a good start was effected. The Stockton mare going very fast showed the way with her drivers face wreathed in smiles. At the quarter the Princess was going very smoothly two lengths in front of Rupee same ahead of Hummer who broke before the turn was neared, and T. B. who had broken all to pieces dead out of the race. Hummer and Rupee both broke before the next furlong was paced and were seven lengths behind the Princess when Hummer settled down and went in pursuit but before the half was reached George had driven the mare off her feet in a Jimtown break and she had to be pulled almost to a walk and when started in pursuit Hummer was ten lengths in the lead with Rupee three in front of the mare. The Princess closed up on Rupee and was at his wheel at the three quarters and passed him in the homestretch but breaking badly again, allowed Hummer to win as he pleased by seven lengths from Rupee with Princess pulled up six further back and T B distanced. Time 2:23½. Mutuals paid $59.60.

Second heat.—Pools sold rapidly with Hummer a hot favorite at $50 to $27 Rupee and $15 Princess Alice. Gradually however weight of money brought the odds down and Hummer sold in the last few pools at $25 to $20 Rupee and $12 Princess Alice. At the request of the owner Buster McConnell drove Princess Alice.

A start was soon effected. Hummer left his feet before the turn, but caught handily, and passing Rupee, was a length and a half in the lead at the quarter, with the Princess last, two lengths in the rear. Buster straightened the mare out in the backstretch, and displaying a grand burst of speed, shot past Rupee who broke and Hummer took the pole at the half, but broke before the turn, and was again passed by Hummer, who led her by two lengths at the head of the stretch, with Rupee seven lengths further back. The Princess closed up rapidly in the straight, and a hundred yards from home was in front, but breaking badly forty yards from the wire, was passed by Hummer, who left his feet but caught quickest, and won the heat, with the mare pulled to a walk; Rupee barely saved his distance. Time, 2:20½.

Mutuals paid $19.

Third heat—Hummer was now made a pronounced favorite, selling at $30 to $10 for Princess Alice and $3 for Rupee. A start was effected at the second time of asking. Hummer again proved himself a handy breaker by leaving his feet before the turn, and catching in time to pass the quarter three lengths in front of the mare, with Rupee eight lengths back. Princess broke at the three furlong pole, and Hummer paced clean away, having a ten lengths lead on the turn, and winning the heat, pulling up by four lengths from Princess, who beat Rupee half a dozen lengths for the place. Time, 2:25¾. Mutuals paid $11.70.

The Santa Clara trotting stakes did not provoke much interest; no pools were sold, and it was sandwiched with the pacing race. Johnnie B proved the steadiest and most reliable of the youngsters, and trotting squarely led all the way, winning with ease by three lengths from Queen, with Riley who was up and down all the way round just saving his distance. Time, 3:11½.

The second heat was an exact counterpart of the first except in time, 3:08¼.

The afternoon programme started out with a two and a quarter mile race which was won by Elmwood Stables black horse Index. The stable ran two hoases against Appleby's Wild Oats and made the running with Nabean while Index lay back until the last time up the stretch when he came away running easily. The sensation of the day was when Captain Al beat Raindrop a mile and a quarter. The filly fairly romped away from Captain Al on Tuesday at a mile and an eighth, but to-day seemed out of all form and after the colt had carried her half a mile he had her beat. It was a simple case of the mare being out of form, for irrespective of every thing else there was no money in losing as only a few pools were sold. The balloon ascent attracted a large crowd who seemed so satisfied that an extra ascent was made at four o'clock.

First race.—When the horses were called up for the first race a long delay occured while the track was harrowed up on the inside. Meantime pool selling was fairly brisk at $20 for Wild Oats and $15 for the stable. When the two were eventually started Nabeau was sent out to make the running and passed the stand fighting for his head half a length in front of Wild Oats with Index two lengths back. The leader increased his advantage to three lengths on the back stretch, with Index three further back. Nabeau passed the quarter post four open lengths in front in 1:47¼ and going easy passed the stand three lengths to the good with Index going strong five lengths further in the rear. Wild Oats closed up and going down the back stretch took the lead while Courtney moved upon Index and collaring Wild Oats on the turn went past him and won in a gallop by two lengths, Wild Oats six in front of Nabean. Time 4:02¼. Mutuals 267 tickets sold paid $10.50 on the Stable.

San Jose, August 15, 1890.—Running Stakes; a handicap sweepstakes for all ages, $50 entrance, $25 forfeit, $250 added; $75 to second horse, $50 to third. Weights announced Thursday, August 14th, at 10 A. M. Declarations due at 6 P. M, same day. Two and a quarter miles.

The special race had three starters: Elmwood Stable's Vinco; O. Appleby's three-year-old filly Junietta—a sister to Alfaretta—by Wildidle, dam by Monday, from Mary Givens, and W. Maston's ch g Reginald by Joe Hooker, out of Dolly Varden. The Hooker gelding was made a hot favorite on the strength of having made an unsuccessful Eastern trip with W. M. Murry; he sold for $50 to $30 for Vinco, and $11 for Junietta. The flag fell at the first attempt, with Vinco a good length the best of it. Vinco soon increased his advantage to three lengths, with Reginald second, three in front of Junietta. The order was unchanged to the stretch, when Junietta, under persuasion, joined Reginald, and after a sharp tussle, beat him an open length for the place, Vinco winning the race in a canter by two lengths. Time, 1:04. 213 tickets sold in the mutuals paid on winner, $13.85.

The three-year-old race had only two starters, and as Captain Al had been so easily beaten by Raindrop on Wednesday, it was hard work for the pool sellers to find the five dollar end against $25 for Raindrop. Mr. Owen told Hennessy to carry Raindrop as fast and as far as he could, and right well did he do it, for when the flag fell they started away well, and ran head and head past the stand and round the turn into the backstretch, when Captain Al went away from the filly, and was three lengths in front before the turn was reached. The race was all over now, as the non-favorite romped home an easy winner by three lengths. Time, 2:12½. Mutuals paid $21.30.

SUMMARY.

Running Stake—A sweepstake for three-year-olds; $50 entrance, $25 forfeit, $200 added; $75 to second horse, $50 to third. Winner of No. 6 to carry three pounds extra. One and a quarter miles.

The six furlong repeat, with four starters, was the best betting race of the day. Ida Glenn sold choice, while Installation brought more money every time, until at last Installation sold choice for $100, Ida Glenn for $50, and the field $30. After a few breakaways the flag fell, with Glenn a good length in front of the next two, and Installation two lengths further back. Installation went past the other two before the first quarter, but could never catch Glenn, who won cleverly by a length, with Albatross just saving his distance and Serpolette outside. Time, 1:15. 206 tickets sold in mutuals paid $11.90 on the winner.

Second heat. Pools now sold $20 for Glenn, $12 for Installation and $5 for Albatross but gradually settled down to $20 each for Installation and Glenn and $7.50 for Albatross. The flag was soon dropped, Installation and Albatross going out ran head and head to the head of the stretch with Glenn three lengths behind, Installation came away winning easily by three lengths. Glenn ridden hard the last fifty yards got the place by a head. Time, 1:16½. Mutuals paid $7.90.

The judges put Murphy on Glenn instead of McIntosh as the starter stated that McIntosh did not try to get away. The owner said he instructed the boy to lay the heat up which was legitimate under the circumstances. Despite the change of riders, pools sold freely at $30 Installation to $12 Glenn When the flag fell Glenn had a length the best of it, and increasing it to two lengths at the half was never headed, winning cleverly by a length and a half. Time, 1:16½. Mutuals paid $12 40.

SATURDAY.

The closing day of the fair brought a goodly crowd of spectators to the track, and although when racing should have started at 1 o'clock very few were present, by the time the first race was called the variona atands were filled almost to repletion. The judges were President W. Buckley, E. C. Singletary and C. M. Chase. Timers, W. A. Parkhurst, E. Topham and Martin Carter.

The first race. 2.24 class, was called up at fifteen minutes past one, and after scoring up once Shamrock lost a boot and caused a further delay of 15 minutes. Meanwhile, pools were selling rapidly at $25 Sister to $8 the field. When the quintette appeared again a good deal of time was used in scoring up and it was almost 2 o'clock before the five were sent off, Sister on the inside set the pace with Argent lapped on her to the turn when she drew away passing the quarter three lengths in front, Argent second three in front of Mary Lou with Pink two lengths further back and Shamrock who broke badly on the turn, a bad last. The order was unchanged down the back stretch, and though Argent skipped once or twice he kept his place three lengths behind Sister V to the three quarters. Sister went in front, winning easily by three lengths. A hard race was fought out for second position, but Mary Lou collared Argent and he broke at the drawgate was passed by Lou and Pink who finished a length apart, same third and fourth, Shamrock just inside. Time, 2:24. 163 tickets sold in the mutuals paid $6.90.

Second heat. A few pools were sold at $50 Sister V to $12 the field. After a long and tedious scoring the bell was tapped with Shamrock trotting well, and he challenged Sister for the lead to the turn when he broke but caught fairly well while Sister went on passing the quarter in front of Pink a length ahead of Shamrock with Mary Lou on his wheel and Argent three lengths back. Shamrock broke badly and dropped out of the race while the order down the backstretch and round the turn was Sister, Pink, Lou and Argent at intervals of three lengths. Holly brought Pink up with a rush the last fifty yards and finished a scant length behind Sister pulling up. with Lou three lengths back third and Argent fourth. Shamrock just saved his distance. Time, 2:25½. 163 tickets sold in the mutuals paid $7.10.

Third heat no pools were sold.

After very little scoring the word was given, Sister and Shamrock again going out together to the turn where Shamrock broke and Sister led by three lengths into the backstretch, Pink second a length in front of Argent four in advance of Lou and Shamrock both breaking, Pink gained a little on Sister down the back stretch and was only two lengths behind when the homestretch was reached and closing the gap well was almost on even terms at the drawgate when she left her feet and though she caught cleverly was beaten three-quarters of a length, Argent was third six lengths back with Mary Lou a length further back and Shamrock just inside the flag. Time, 2:23½. 157 tickets sold in the mutuals paid $6.90.

The second race was called, the record stakes, three horses starting under the new rule, $10 each being paid as entrance money. The first heat was very hollow Cyrus R going too fast for the other pair went the full mile in 2:27 winning by 200 yards but as he had broken several times and done a good deal of running the Judges called it no heat and after the usual interval called them up again. Cyrus R and Lou G turned out and the former trotting without a skip or break passed the quarter in 0:38 the half in 1:15 and finished the last half in 1:14 winning by 150 yards. Time 2:29.

PACING FREE FOR ALL.

The Free for all which had been expected to produce a great contest proved a hollow victory for Almont Patchen. St. Patrick could not be kept steady at all and in his work drive by Goldsmith had acted so badly that pools sold $20 Patchen to $8 for the field. A report that Patchen was lame caused the field to sell even up for a while but eventually a reaction set in and Patchen left off favorite at $20 to $12 for the field. St. Patrick broke the first couple of times scoring up and when a start was made again broke all to pieces and was fifty yards behind Winslow at the quarter who was three behind Patchen in thirty five seconds. Patchen passed the half in 1.11 three lengths in front of Winslow with Patrick way back. Patchen stayed in front the rest of the way winning the heat in a jog by two lengths Winslow second and Patrick who was up and down all the way just inside the flag. Time 2:26. 189 tickets sold in the mutuals paid $7.40

Second heat—No pools sold. The first time up Winslow broke then St. Patrick spoilt two starts by breaking badly. The fourth time they were sent out St. Patrick again broke badly and was never in the heat while Patchen had an easy thing, leading Winslow two lengths he passed the quarter in .35 the half in 1:11, the three quarters in 1:46½ and won easily by three lengths, St. Patrick just inside. Time 2:22. 116 tickets sold in mutuals paid $6.00

Third heat—No pools sold. St. Patrick broke before the wire was reached in the first three attempts, and came up behind in the fourth. Patchen broke in the sixth, and at the ninth time the bell was tapped, with St. Patrick in a bad break—all tangled up. Patchen went away a length in front of Winslow and increased it to three at the first quarter in 34½. The half was passed in 1:08½ with Winslow two and a half lengths behind, and Patrick 100 yards back. Patchen paced very smoothly in front of Winslow round the turn, and despite McCords effort, won cleverly by a length and a half, St. Patrick 150 yards back, but not distanced on account of the bad send off he got. Time, 2:19.

The last event of the meeting was a district trot for named horses, with five starters. After a good deal of backing and filling pools sold Chancellor $25, Emerson $15, Field $10. At about 5:15 a start was made; every one of the big five broke before the turn was reached, but Rockwood caught handily and had three lengths the best of Chancellor at the quarter, with Tommy T third and Emerson last. Chancellor slowly but surely closed the gap, being lapped on Rockwood's wheel at the head of the homestretch, and wearing Corey's horse down, got his head in front a furlong from home, when he broke, and Rockwood looked all over a winner, hut leaving his feet at the half distance, was beaten a length by Chancellor, Tommy T three lengths back third, a length in front of Emerson. Time, 2:36. Mutuals paid $8 60.

Second heat—No pools sold. Tommy T drawn. A start was effected the second time of asking. Rockwood going right out led Emerson three lengths into the backstretch with Chancellor three lengths further back. Emerson left his feet almost immediately. and was passed hy Chancellor, who went round the turn three lengths hehind Rockwood and three in front of the other pair. Chancellor gradually overhauled Rockwood, getting his nose in front at the drawgate, when the pace told, and he left his feet, Rockwood winning the heat by a longish length, Chancellor second three lengths in front of Emerson, same in advance of Bessie. Time, 2:35. Mutuals paid $16.60.

Third heat.—In what few pools were sold Chancellor sold for $20 to $15 for the field. After a couple of attempts the quartette left on their way to the winning post. Chancellor showed more speed than usual at the beginning, and took the pole before the quarter was reached. Down the back stretch he led Rockwood a scant length with Emerson three lengths further in the rear, and Bessie last. Rounding the turn Chancellor increased his lead to a good length and turned into the stretch, a length and a half in front of Rockwood, who broke half-way up the stretch, but caught handily, and was level again inside the drawgate when he again broke, losing the heat by a neck with Bessie, who had come in a clatter on the outside the last fifty yards, heaten a head for second place, a claim of foul was made by Coffin, who said he ought to have had room to come through on the inside, as when he turned into the stretch there was a clear course, was not allowed. Time, 2:36. Mutuals paid $8 60.

Fourth heat.—The poolsellers had all left and no business was done, though many would have backed Bessie R. had they had a chance. When the word was given the quartette kept together to the turn, when Bessie broke and dropped back. Rockwood led two lengths down the backstretch, Chancellor second, four lengths in front of Emerson. Up the stretch it was nip and tuck all the way between Rockwood and Chancellor The former, admirably handled by Corey, got to the wire a short head in front of Chancellor, who broke just before the wire, Bessie three lengths back third. A foul was claimed by Gordon, who stated that Corez cut him off on the first turn. The judges disallowed it and and postponed the race to 10 o'clock Monday. Time, 2:35.

On Monday at 10 o'clock sharp the District unfinished trot was called up. The horses were sent off in good shape, maintaining equal places and striving hard to gain the lead. On the homestretch the great effort was made, the horses trotting nose and nose. Just before the wire was reached Chancellor forged ahead slightly and passed under the wire with the advantage in his favor. though Rockwood's nose was at his throat latch. The time made was 2:30, being the most speedy heat of the race.

Willows Races.

THIRD DAY, AUG. 15, 1890.

Track good and attendance fair, the Robinson Circus being in town kept many away.

The first race on the programme was a special, the following horses were entered: Annie E., Laura L, E. C. Peart, Queen of the West and Belle Doty. For the first heat pools sold Annie E. $10, Peart $10, Queen $10; field $5.

Laura L. got the best of the send off and led to the three quarters where Queen came up, and hy hard driving Green won the heat with the Queen by half a length. Time, 2:36½.

Second heat. Pools sold Annie E. $20, field $10.

Queen was away in front, but Annie soon assumed command. On the upper turn Annie left her feet but soon caught and caught very fast and won hy half a length, Queen second, Peart third, Laura fourth, Doty fifth. Time, 2:37. The third and fourth heats were about the same as the second, Annie E. won easily. Time, 2:37, 2.40.

SECOND RACE—2:35 CLASS.

The starters were Mattie Solomon who sold favorite for $20 against $14 for the field, Dinah and Alex Button Jr. being in it.

First heat—Dinah took the lead from the tap of the bell and won handily, Mattie second, Button third. Time, 2:32½.

Second heat—Dinah still sold lower than Mattie, hut she again took the lead and won, Mattie second. Time, 2:31½.

Third heat—This was the only exciting one of the race. Dinah led by a length until well into the stretch, when McManns made a hard drive with Mattie, and made a dead heat with Dinah, Button third. Time, 2:30.

Fourth heat—When the word was given Dinah at once took the lead and was never headed. Mattie broke badly on the backstretch, and they finished Dinah 1st, Button 2nd, Mattie 3rd. Time, 2:32.

The third and last race of the day was a running race, three quarter mile and repeat. Those to face the starter were Rosebug, Mohawk, Miss Johnson and Juanita. Pools sold for the first heat, Rosebug $10, field $7.

At the drop of the flag Juanita set the pace, and at the half was half a length in the lead, the others bunched. Coming into the stretch Daly on Rosebug made his drive and landed Rosebug winner by a length, Miss Johnson second, Mohawk third, Juanita just inside the flag. Time, 1:16½.

Second heat pools—Rosebug $20, field $3, and very little business.

Mohawk delayed the start for some time hy acting badly at the post. Miss Johnson was first away, but only held the lead to the half mile pole, when Mohawk went up, but when the head of the stretch was reached Rosebug came through next to the rail with Mohawk outside and beat Mohawk a length, thus winning the race in straight heats, Miss Johnson third. Time, 1:17.

FOURTH DAY.

First race—1 mile and repeat. The entries were; Dave Douglas, Lucky Dan and Leatherwood. Douglas sold favorite at $20 to $15 for the field.

After several attempts they got a good start. Leatherwood at once went to the front and led all the way to the half mile pole, where Lucky Dan moved up and was on even terms with the leader at the three-quarter pole. Douglas laying away, hut in the stretch Douglas came very fast and by the good riding of Dennison won by one half a length, Dan 2nd. Time 1:43¾.

Second heat.—The judges thonght best to change jockeys on Leatherwood, so Daly rode in place of Lee. Lucky Dan set the pace and won by one half a neck from Leatherwood. Douglas laying up. Time, 1:46½.

Third heat.—Douglas went off in the lead and won hy two lengths. Time. 1:47¾.

The second race was the 2:25 pace. There were six starters. Castella for $20, John L. $12, Acrobat $6, field $8, with Haverly, Lewis and Gerster in it.

First heat—Castella was first at the one-half mile pole, with Lewis lapped; the rest strung out in the stretch. Lewis out-paced Castella and won hy a length from Castella, Gerster third, Haverly fourth, Acrobat fifth, John L distanced. Time, 2:30.

Second heat—Pools sold on Lewis for $20, Castella $15, field $10. Sullivan in place of Downer behind Haverly. They all got a good send off, and as Sweeny drove wide on the turn, Sullivan shot in next to the pole with his new mount, and kept the lead to the head of the stretch, Castella close up, but Lewis made a spurt and won by a length. Time, 2:29¾.

Third heat—This heat was a hot contest between Castella and Haverly all the journey, Castella winning by half a length, Gerster third, Lewis just inside the flag, Acrobat distanced. Time, 2:29.

Fourth heat—Lewis was the only steady one, the rest breaking repeatedly, and he won by two lengths.

An unavoidable acoident occurred in the last heat of the race. Tryon's Castella swerved and caught his wheel on Haverly's, driven hy Sullivan. The wheel was turned inside out, all of the spokes being torn from the hub. Tryon struck on his feet and stayed with Castella. Neither was injured by the accident.

The last race, the 2:27 class, was well contested. Pools sold for the first heat: Frank M. $20, Idaho Patchen $10, Johnny Hayward $5. They got away well, Patchen going at once to the front, followed by Frank M. Patchen led well into the stretch, where Frank M. made a rush, and at the draw-gate was on even terms with him, and after a hard drive hy both drivers, they finished head and head, making a dead heat, Hayward third. Time, 2:33¾.

Second heat—Pools: Patchen $20, field $12. Patchen again went off in the lead and was never headed, winning by two lengths, Hayward beating Frank M. for second place. Time, 2:28.

Third heat—Pools: Patchen $20, field $8. This heat was a repetition of the previous one, Patchen winning, Hayward second, Frank M. third. Time, 2;32.

Fourth heat—Pools: Patchen $20, field $4. In the heat there was a grand surprise. Patchen, as usual, got away first, hut Frank M. was right after him, and at the half they were neck and neck, but Frank soon drew away from him, and won the heat hy eight lengths, Hayward second, Patchen third. Time, 2:25¾.

Fifth heat—Frank M. $20, field $10. Patchen came out lame. Frank M. took the lead and won in a jog in 2:34. Frank M. also won the sixth heat in the same manner. Time, 2:29.

On leaving the Willows for Red Bluff, it may not he out of place for your correspondent to express the views of all the horsemen who were at this point, and that is, that they will all return next year. The Directors have done everything in their power to make the visitors feel at home, and a better satistied lot of horsemen never left any point on the circuit. To Mr. Freeman, the Secretary, I am much indebted for favors shown, and wish to publicly thank him for the same.

TURF AND TRACK.

Over $30,000 went into the pool box over the Palo Alto—Jack race.

The racers Ballston and Drumstick have been sold by the Islip Stables to William Daly for $4,500.

Cricket, the celebrated Steinway pacer, adorns the front page of the Chicago Horseman of the 14th.

At Cleveland the scoring did not quite average three scores to each heat. Only once during the meeting were the horses sponged out on the track.

George Smith, better known as "Pittsburg Phil" has bought the unlucky rogue Kern from J. B. Haggin, through the latter's trainer, Matt Byrnes.

A noticeable feature of the San Jose races was the enormous quantity of money invested in the Paris mutual box, over a $1,000 going in on a single heat.

Dennis Gannon is training among others in Oakland, the mare Stemwinder, the property of J. Green, of Livermore Valley. The mare is expected to go well inside thirty.

The Prince of Wales is going to Hungary towards the end of September to visit Count Festetics and Count Karelyi, and there will be a series of hunting parties on their respective estates.

B. C. Holly took St. Patrick back to Vallejo last Monday, and will slip over once or twice next week and work him, hoping that he will get him settled down before the Oakland meeting.

Lady M., 2:24, was killed by a railway accident recently. The engine struck the car in which she was quartered, and tore completely through it, cutting off all four of her legs and breaking her back.

Paisley, Lake county, will have three day's racing, beginning on the first day of October. Three races are already assured for purses of $150, $50 and $150 respectively, with entrance fees added.

Tennessee must look well to her laurels, or California will walk away with the belt. Sidney with Adonis and Gold Leaf, and Steinway with Cricket make a pretty hot pair of pacing sires says Duntons Spirit.

Charles Marvin has sold the gelding Voucher, and will not bring him back to the State. After his hard race at Buffalo a resident of that city took a fancy to the son of Nephew and purchased him at a long price.

Sutherland & Benjamin, Saginaw, Mich., have bought of the Westminster Stud Farm of Kentucky, the bay stallion Elected, five years, by Electioneer—Cora, by Don Victor, paying $10,000 for the horse.

Hal Pointer, the fast pacing horse, has been bought for $7,500 by a syndicate of Buffalo horsemen, John N. Scatcherd, Harry Hamlin, and George Porter. He will be campaigned through the Grand Circuit.

Hough Brothers, the owners of Burlington, Drizzle, Granite, and other racers, have bought of Edward Frazer of Lexington, Ky., a brown yearling colt by Alarm-Florry Jones, (imp.,) by Pat Jones, paying $2,000 for him.

The Hon. August Belmont has sent ten of his horses from the Babylon farm to J. H. McCormick, who will race them at Brighton Beach. Dan Honig is on his way East with his stable of thirty, which will also race at Brighton.

Lieut. T. J. Clay, United States Army, at present in Los Angeles, has bought of his brother, George H. Clay of the Balgowan Stud, two yearlings—a filly by imp. Zorilla—Trinkitat, and a colt by Zorilla—Hypatia (dam of Hypocrite), paying $5,000 for the pair.

John Goldsmith says that the three-year-old filly by Guy Wilkes, out of Blonde by Elmo, which is entered as Serena, should be Serene, and was entered as such. It has often been asked: "What is in a name?" John thinks that under the new name Serene may not boh up serenely.

C. A Hogeboom left for Portland last Saturday, having in charge E. H. Mix's stable of trotters, consisting of J. S. C., Electrity and Challenger Chief. J. S. C. is entered in the 2:26 class at Portland and also in the same class at the State Fair. Electrify is entered in the 2-year-old race at Portland.

Lewis Martin's colt Extravagance, who fell and was injured in a race at Brighton Beach, received injuries that proved fatal. The colt was by Spendthrift, out of Miss Easton. The jockey Flynn, who was injured in the race, was more seriously hurt than was supposed at first, and it will be some time before he can ride again.

The summary of the last race, a selling race, at San Jose last Wednesday was owing to faulty race cards and no correction on the official blackboard, given as Tycoon $1250 112 lbs., Nabeau $1150, 110 lbs., Wild Oats $1250, 110 lbs.; it should have read, Tycoon $1500, 112 lbs., Nabeau $800, 100lbs., Wild Oats $1000, 100 lbs.

The proposed sale of Hal Pointer was consummated at the Buffalo Driving Park, Thursday. The campaigner was sold to a syndicate composed of John N Scatcherd, Harry Hamlin and George Porter, and turned over to the syndicate Saturday. The price was $7,500 He is a son of Tom Hal, and last year his record was an enviable one.

Percy Williams owns a two and a three year old colt, full brothers to Beauty Mc who is capable of going much faster than he did at San Jose last week, in fact his was the easiest win I have seen for some time. Mr. Williams also owns the dam of Beauty Mc, a mare by Alexander 490. She is in foal to Nephew and was purchased from Beauregard McMullen.

Lord March, one of the stewards of the English Jockey Club, would, says a gossip, like to see a rule passed making it compulsory to name horses before entering them, and prohibiting the silly repetition of famous names. Why doesn't he bring forward the proposition, then? It would be a very good rule to pass and would reflect credit on the originator.

John Osborne, who rode Aparse to victory at Newton last month, won the Manor Cup at Newton forty-one years ago on his fathers horse, Pity the Blind. Mr. Osborne then presented the Cup to his son, which he still keeps as a family heirloom. In the same year "Master John" also won the Liverpool Cup on Bon Mot. "The pusher" is evidently still in the first flight.

Having disposed of Longshot, Mr. W. H. E. Smith has decided not to go East with Al Farrow, and as a result that fast horse will race at West Side Park, Chicago, until the opening of the fall campaign at Louisville Several parties desiring to take the horse East have made flattering offers for him, but as yet no one has reached Mr. Smith's figure, which is said to be $10,000, and cheap enough he is at the price.

May Day, 2:30, the dam of Mr. Salisbury's Margaret S., who won the Horseman Stakes this year, and the Spirit of the Times Stakes last year, was purchased by Mr. Saliebury from the late Alden Goldsmith, and John Goldsmith, who was at that time driving the iron horse Director for Mr. Salisbury, entered the mare with Director into both the above stakes, with the result that the now celebrated Margaret S. captured both events.

Westminster Stock Farm, Fayette County, has sold to Sutherland Benjamin, Saginaw, Mich., the bay stallion Elected, five years old, by Electioneer; first dam Cora by Don Victor; second dam Clara Bells by Abdallah Star; third dam Fairy (own sister to Sweepstakes) by Rysdyk's Hambletonian; fourth dam Emma Mills by Seeley's American Star. Price, $10,000. This is a promising son of Electioneer, and should make a great reputation in the stud.

The important news has been flashed from one end of the country to the other that Tanny is named after his owner, David Tenny Pulsifer, and that Salvator got his name "in honor of a favorite butler of Mrs. J.B. Haggin's father", says the Breeders Gazette. Just how many butlers the father of Mrs. Haggin had is not known, but from the fact that it is distinctly stated that the colt was named after the favorite one it is assumed that the old gentleman kept a stock of butlers constantly on hand.

The starting at San Jose was fairly well attended to by George Van Gordon, the Superintendent of Senator Hearst's ranch in San Luis Obispo. Mr. Van Gordon will find, however, that if he takes a large field in a sprint race a hundred yards behind the post, and goes back with them himself, he will not be able to get as good a start as he would if he stood half way and let his assistant take them back. Some horses, too, don't relish running half a furlong further than they are supposed to.

The race track at San Jose will require a great deal of attention before another meeting will be successfully held. It is just as hard as bed rock and in consequence several runners were badly used up while Raindrop could hardly raise a gallop last Friday. What the track needs is to be dug up to a good depth and rectayed, which, although rather expensive work has to be done, or the San Jose Association will find very few runners at their spring meeting.

The report published in the Courier-Journal, stating that Mr. Hart Boswell had sold his celebrated trotting mare Nancy Hanks is untrue. Mr. Boswell says that he has not sold his pet, and has no idea of parting with her. The Lexington Gazette says: Nancy Hanks is probably the best trotter of her age in Kentucky, and it is expected that before this season closes, she will have a record of 2:15. Good judges of horse flesh say she is the easiest going trotter they ever looked at.

Five horses, the property of Chinn & Morgan, that were injured in the Wabash wreck on June 8, were sold at auction on the Fair Grounds, St. Louis, August 14th. They were bid in by attorney James O. Broadhead, who represented the above firm. The lot comprised the following: Mary McCowan, by Longfellow, dam imp. Encore; Josie M., by Iroquois, dam Mary Mashon; St. Bridget, by Leonatus, dam Betty Magruder; Leo, by Leonardo, dam by Tenbroeck; Oklahoma, by Leonatus, dam Martina.

John Goldsmith worked Stamboul an easy mile at San Jose last Saturday, going to the half in 1:16½, and coming home in 1:09 Everyone agreed that they had never seen the handsome stallion work so easily and quietly, and although this time was not fast for a horse like Stamboul, yet the resolute, straightforward manner in which he negotiated the last half, showed him and his driver to be on such good terms with each other, that prognostications were uttered that would astonish some of our readers.

Goodwood Races were established by the third Duke of Richmond towards the end of the eighteenth century. The founder of this now fashionable meeting died in 1806 without issue, and the title devolved upon his nephew, General Lennox, who did much to carry out his uncle's intentions, and he succeeded in turning the Goodwood week, which at first had only a local interest, into an important racing fixture, from which the present Duke probably derives a very handsome revenue.

Mr Hamlin, the Buffalo millionaire, and owner of Belle Hamlin and a host of crack trotters, has parted company with his well known trainer, W. J. Andrews, who has handled many of the Village Farm cracks. Mr. Hamlin accused Andrews of not driving to instructions when he won the second heat in the 2:17 pace in 2:16¼, and claimed that if he had laid up the heat he could have won. The result of the argument was that Andrews left and Count Valensin at once engaged him to come to Pleasanton.

French Park, King Ban—Lou Pike the thoroughbred stallion recently purchased from Mr. Gideon by Charles Reed & Sons of the Fairview Stock Farm in Tennessee died ten days ago. Mr. Reed paid $10,000 for him at the same time that he bought Exile for $15,000. Both horses reached their home a month ago, French Park being taken sick shortly after his arrival at the farm. Mr. Reed seems to be in hard luck as his imported horse, Mr. Pickwick, died but a month or so ago, just as his reputation as a sire began to be established.

According to the Sportsman, the trotting horse driver who has won the most races this year is J. H. Goldsmith, who has 26 wins, eight second moneys, six third moneys and three fourth moneys out of fifty-two starts. B. C. Stinson was second, with nine first, five second and two third moneys out of sixteen starts. Horace Brown has had five first, one second, two third and one fourth out of nine starts. Jack Trout has had eight first, six second, four third and six fourth moneys out of twenty-four starts. Performances against time are not considered in the above list of winnings.

A Nashville dispatch of August 10th says: "French Park, the stallion recently purchased by Charles Reed from David Gideon for $10,000, died this morning at Fairview from lung fever. He had been sick ever since his arrival at Gallatin about ten days ago. Mr. Reed has had a run of bad luck recently. Imported Mr. Pickwick died about two weeks ago, and he lost two of his best yearlings in shipment to New York. Veterinarian Haggard held an autopsy, and said that French Park had been sick for three months, as all of his lungs were wasted and nearly gone"

Matt Storn, who took a trip up to Jas. B. Chase's ranch in Sonoma, last week, says that among the youngsters there is a grand yearling, chestnut colt by imported Mariner (Oatcake), from Priscilla by Thad Stevens, from Eliza by Norfolk, from Mary Wade by Woodburn, and she out of Viola by imp Knight of St. George. With a pedigree like that he should race, and Matt says he never saw a better looker Mr. Chase also has on the ranch two racy looking foals, a colt and a filly by imported Friar Tuck, the former out of Mistake (Wildidle—Katy Pease), and the latter out of Arsthusa (Joe Hooker—Priscilla.)

"I hear," says "Atlas," "that Lord Ailesbury wrote quite a breezy letter to the Stewards of the Jockey Club just before the last Newmarket Meeting, to say that he should very much like to attend the pleasant gathering behind the Ditch, and that he should, therefore, be obliged if they would remove the interdict against his presence on the H. Strange to say his request was not complied with." Lord Ailesbury, better known as Lord Savernoke was ruled off a short time ago for having one of his horses steadied in a race at York, and irrespective of that, his reputation is of the worst kind.

Two of our prominent citizens, says the Woodland Democrat made a wager, which is rather different from any we have ever heard before The subject to be decided is which one of them is the best horse man, or rather the best driver. They will decide the matter within a few days, notice of which will appear in the Democrat, by driving a horse over the Woodland Race course at Brown's Corner. The same horse will be driven a mile by each man, one driving one day and the other the following day, the man who makes the best time wins the wager.

"At Kalamazoo, Mich., on the 2nd inst., the stallion Anteo 2:16¼, half brother to Palo Alto, and at the head of S. A. Brown & Co.'s stud, got into the stall of Empire, another famous stallion. The result was a terrible battle in which both animals were much injured"

The above telegram has been extensively copied throughout the United States, but we are glad so say that the latter part of it is greatly exaggerated, for the stallions were parted almost at once, and the injury to either is but slight.

It is now known beyond question that the Saratoga race track has changed hands. Mr. Albert Spencer, owner of the principal part of the stock of the association, has agreed to the transfer. W. J. Arkell, proprietor of Frank Leslies and Judge, has conducted the negotiations for the purchasers. It is believed that Pierre Lorillard and August Belmont are associated with Mr. Arkell in the deal. Thousands of dollars will be spent on improvements on the track and property; new building and stand will be built, and a jockey club will be organized, and an expensive club house built. The transfer will take place on October 1st.

The Rochester Association would have done a charitable act and also have pleased its patrons had it provided the compiler of their programme with a dictionary and a stud book. It rattles the average student of pedigrees to learn that Frank Dortch's dam is by John Dillon, Cris Smith by Young Wilkes, Simmocolon's dam by Shackmore, Voucher by Napoleon, Navidad by Wips, Palo Alto out of Winnie and Cricket's dam by Dalton. It is to be regretted that the high class list of entries received by the Association could not have their names and breeding placed before the public correctly, as many a race goer takes his programme book home for future reference.

Those that fly high and make the most noise in the horse business tumble the quickest. A week ago McDermott was flinging out challenges at an alarming rate, offering to match Elphin against any steeplechaser on earth. His proposal was promptly accepted and Monday at Brighton Beach Elphin started against Delaware and Repeater over the full steeplechase course, about two miles and a half. Elphin was clearly not fit for a race, took the jumps in a bungling fashion and was beaten out of sight, Delaware winning with ease, while Repeater took second even more easily. Elphin is the horse that a year or so ago it was proposed to send over to England to win the Grand National.

Further changes are likely to be made this autumn in the rules of racing, and it is probable that the stewards of the Jockey Club will suggest that the date for two-year-olds, and for declaring forfeits in two-year-old races which have already closed shall be altered from the first week in January to March. This is a much more important alteration than it would appear on the surface to be; for now that so many two-year old engagements are made in January, trainers find in necessary to practically put their yearlings into training at the end of November, so as to be able to form a rough estimate of their merits before the time comes for nominating them.

Secretary Stoddard informs the Gazette that the outlook for the coming Nevada State Fair is very bright, and that the exhibits in the several departments promise to be larger than ever before, so all we want to make the Fair a success in every particular is the people. President Gould is doing everything in his power and working night and day, and, with the co-operation of the citizens of Reno will be able to give us a week's rare sport and a big crowd of people to enjoy it with us. It is of more benefit to Reno than any other place in the State, and the people should take interest enough to render President Gould and Secretary Stoddard all the assistance possible.

It begins to look as if a Fixing Trust controlled the Grand Circuit of 1890, says the American Sportsman. W. R. Armstrong the pool seller, W. H. Crawford and Orrin Hickok are its pillars and nearly every driver of note on the Grand Circuit is on its staff for the purpose of manipulating the public "goose." The trust was at work in Detroit, didn't miss Cleveland, although it was lightly touched, was very busy at Buffalo last week and is caring for Rochester this week. There is no game too big for it to tackle and its "rake off" on weekly plays of $500,000 or so is quite large. It behooves clean men like Doble to stand far away from the trust, which, sooner or later, must run against a vigilant stand of judges and be brought up with a round turn.

The first clause in those often quoted rules usually known as Boise Basin, is—as I understand it, "You must win by two open lengths or it don't go if the judges are not in with it." At one of our district meetings held north of San Francisco not long ago, which was advertised to be run under State Fair rules, one of our most popular thoroughbred owners so far forgot himself as to protest against the decision of the judges when he only won by a head. The rider of the winner (?) said to me that he thought he lost by a neck and qualified it by saying every one said he did, but the judges thought otherwise. It is not the first time in the history of the district fair that their judges have thought differently to the public, but it will not pay in the long run.

I heard a very peculiar case at San Jose last week of a mare going fourteen months before foaling. The mare, Miss Purdy, is the property of G. H. Bragg, the Secretary of the San Mateo and Santa Clara Agricultural Association. Miss Purdy is by Sam Purdy, dam a thoroughbred called Dolly Varden. She was last bred to P. J. Murphy's Soudan on the first of June, 1889 and was kept up in the owner's stable there until after April 1st of this year, when thinking she was not in foal, she was tried several times, but to the astonishment of her owner, she foaled a filly on August 6th, 1890. Mr. Murphy says the foal is a characteristic Soudan and is unmistakably by him, and Mr. Bragg says the mare was scarcely ever out of his sight and that there was no other stallion near her.

Messrs. Hunter & Chandler, San Diego, has sold during the past few weeks a large quantity of Cleveland Bays and Clydesdale stallions imported by Jesse Harris of Fort Collins, Col. Among the horses sold are: To John Judson and others Cleveland Bay, named Gold Finder, $2,000; W. H. Pringle, Cleveland Bay, named Duke of Buckingham, $2 200; Uri Hill, El Cajon, Prince Augustus, Cleveland Bay, $2 500; F. C. Thomas and Tom Cambrow of Poway, Prince George, English shire, $1,500; Selwyn & Gilbert, Rose Canyon, Keiser Jr., grade Cleveland Bay, $500; T. P. Simpson, San Diego. April King, Clydesdale, $2,000; Ben S. Sargent, Lakeside, Selkirk, $2,000; Chester Gunn and Sayday Santley, English shire, $1,500; W. C. Poole, Nuevro, Lord Retta, Clydesdale, $1,800; J. S. Olds, Del Mar, Beaconsfield, Cleveland Bay, $1,800; J. S. Olds, Black Shaw, Clydesdale, $1,600; H. H. Clark, Poway, Clydesdale, Bold Monarch, $2,000.

B. Gillespie moved up to the Bay District Track last Monday with three trotters, the property of Senator George Hearst. They will be worked at the Bay until the Oakland meeting, where they are entered, and also at the State Fair at Sacramento. The oldest and best known of the trio is Old Nick 2:23, a brown gelding by Electioneer; Claremont or Clearmont—it is spelt both ways—is a four-year-old stallion by McGinnis from Maggie S by Scamperdown, grandam by Lodi McGinnis is a pacer by Algona, dam Creole by The Moor; Claremont is a very handsome horse and has a rapid way of going; he is said to have worked a mile in 2:24 at San Luis prior to going to San Jose, where he started in the 2:27 class, but in such a large field, 10 starters, he did not act well and never showed prominently, except in the rear. Lena H is a black mare by Alaska and is expected to trot in 2:26 or better before the fall races are over.

A few of the Buffalo papers continue to pour hot shot on C. J. Hamlin's one man Grand Circuit meeting. The following items are culled from one issue of the Evening news: "The newspaper men were actually supplied with chairs to sit on. This is a circumstance to be recorded in the archives of the Driving Park." "Cigarettes were at a premium in the 'Sitting Room.' 'Ladies' were the smokers." "It was a rake off," said a reporter as the newspaper man looked at C. J. Hamlin teaching his hired Polanders to rake the track." "Harry Hamlin was conspicuous on the track. His blue 'sash' was admired by the stable boys." "C. J. Hamlin paced the track, and by his very air impressed the crowd with the fact suggested in the line—'I am monarch of all I survey.' That well-fitting light suit sets the local horse king off to advantage." "The pool tents suggested a smash-up on the railroad or a 'snake fence' laundry after a cyclone. The top of the 'establishments' was strewn over with strips of lumber to hold the 'rags' down. A Mulberry street dago would be ashamed to peel bananas in such cribs."

Last Thursday witnessed two as pretty contests at the Grand circuit races as the Rochester driving park has ever known. There were the 2:17 and 2:23 classes and J. H. Goldsmith managed to land his flyers winners in both events. During the afternoon Belle Hamlin went against Pacer Hal Pointer for a special purse of $1,000. Pointer won in 2:13½. Harry Wilkes failed in his effort to beat his record of 2:13½.

The following speaks for itself:

To the President and Directors of the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society, GENTLEMEN:—Your committee to whom was referred the subject matter of drafting appropriate resolutions, to be reported to your directory for perusal and adoption, on the retirement of Mr. H. Meecham who has tendered his resignation and the same having been accepted, beg leave to report the following:

WHEREAS: The said Mr. H. Meecham has been associated with the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society during the many years of its existence, having been an active member, Director and President and being always foremost in all measures appertaining to the welfare of said society, and as he has now retired from the active duties in connection with its management, therefore let be it,

Resolved, That the Directors of the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society feel that in the retirement of Mr. H. Meecham the society has lost one of its best workers and advisers, and that the society will miss his valuable advice, which he has always been ready to give to his co-workers in the interests of the society and the appreciative public. Therefore, be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the daily newspaper of this city, a copy addressed to Mr. H. Meecham, and that said resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the society.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

T. C. PUTMAN,
THOS. MACLAY, Sec'y. } Committee.

It is claimed that there is a "trust" in the matter of star attractions for trotting meetings. Marvin and Doble, with Sunol and Axtell as trump cards, have the bulge this season in that particular line of business, and it is the story that unless their demands are met as presented, the managers of tracks cannot get the features they are after, says the Breeder's Gazette. If Budd Doble, for instance, wants to show Reina and Lady Bullion as a pole team and the track management objects to the price asked, it is found that Doble will not permit Axtell to appear, and that Marvin is equally reluctant to have Sunol go a fast quarter or half. Orrin Hickok really controls the Palo Alto horses, so far as exhibitions are concerned, and as Orrin is about as suave and wily as they make them, he has the ability to carry out the scheme, which is a perfectly legitimate one. If Doble and Marvin did not work in harmony, one of the pair would be sure to get left, there would be a general cutting of prices in the matter of showing the stars, and a demoralization of business all around. One of the cards of the Doble stable this season is Jack, and the races between him and Marvin's stallion Palo Alto are great cards. Of course these races are for blood, as the best horse undoubtedly wins. It no doubt worried Marvin when the gray gelding beat Palo Alto at Detroit, but there was no help for it, no matter how much the reputation of the California stallion suffered, because when Doble gets behind a horse he does so for the purpose of making the animal win if it is in the horse to do so. The pacer Johnston, that was one of Doble's cards last season, is not up to form this year, and it is likely that in a short time he will be sent to St. Paul, where Mr. E. C. Long, his owner, resides. It is said to be Mr. Long's intention to drive Johnston on the road, but if he does so he will have about as pleasant a time as Mr. Bonner did with Dexter and Rarus, as the great pacer is inclined to be "hawky."

At The recent meeting of the Washington Park Club the Hyde Park satkes for two-year-olds, the second richest stake of the meeting, was won by Balgowan, Kingman coming in second The winner carried 118 pounds, or regular weight, without penalties or allowances. One of the conditions of the stake was that a winner of two stakes of any value should carry three pounds penalty. Balgowan won a regular stake at St Louis, and on July 5, at Washington Park, he won a "Free Handicap Sweepstakes," one of those overnight handicaps that are run on every track in America. There were eight or nine of them disposed of at the Washington Park meeting. Shortly afterward, through an attorney, the owner of Kingman made a formal protest against Balgowan's owner receiving first money, on the ground that the race won by Balgowan on July 5 was a stake, which should have penalized the colt three pounds in the Hyde Park stakes. That penalty he did not carry, and in consequence, according to the claim made, Balgowan was disqualified from receiving any portion of the stakes.

The whole matter hinged on the point as to what is a stake. The race won by Balgowan on the 5th of July was not one of the regularly advertised stakes of the meeting, those that are opened some time in advance of the racing, but as stated, was an over-night "free handicap sweepstakes," one provision of which stated that the second horse was to "receive $100 out of the stakes" The American racing rules thus defines a stake or sweepstakes:

"A sweepstake is a race, publicly declared open to all complying with its conditions, for which the prize is the sum of the stakes which the subscribers agree to pay for each horse nominated; and if an additional sum of money, cup, plate or other reward is offered to the winner, the race is still a sweepstakes whatever may be the name given to such an addition. Three subscribers, unless otherwise stipulated in its conditions, make a sweepstakes, and the race is not void, so long as there is a horse qualified to start."

The racing stewards of the Washington Park Club met last week and decided the matter as far as they were concerned. They came to the conclusion that Balgowan had carried his proper weight and was, in consequence, entitled to the stakes. This ends the matter as far as the Washington Park Club and Mr. Clay, the owner of Balgowan, are concerned, but it is said that the attorney for Mr. Stone, the owner of Kingman, intends sueing the club for the amount of the stakes, and that he thinks he has a strong case.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

George V. Hankins, founder of the Chicago Stable, has decided to dispose of his entire stable and quit the turf, and with this object in view the horses belonging to the Hankins, Eugene Leigh and Tom Kiley combination have been shipped from Chicago and other points to the track at Elizabeth N. J, where they will be sold at auction after being rested awhile. It has been common gossip for some time that Hankins was far from being pleased at the way things were going in the stable. A combination of bad luck and bad management seemed to come all at once, and the stable has been barely able to pay expenses, which for such an expensive one was far from satisfactory. Some encouragement to keep on was given in the spring by the success of Huntress and Robespierre, but the death of the great mare took the chief bread-winner out of the stable, and nearly all of the best horses went wrong. Terra Cotta has not been in condition to train, Jacobin, Orderly, Wheeler T, Girondes, Little Minch, and in fact nearly all except Santalene, Huntress and Robespierre were unable to race up to the opening of Washington Park. There were upward of forty horses in the combination known as the Chicago Stable, controlled by Hankins, Eugene Leigh and Tom Kiley. No matter how hard Leigh and Kiley worked they failed to get the horses into condition, and they began to get discouraged. During the Washington Park meeting success seemed to be returning, and with the aid of Robespierre, Joe Blackburn, Santalene, and a few others, the stable made money, but the drain for the support of the others was constant. It was expected that the stable would reap a rich reward at the Twin City meeting, but the horses taken there went wrong and could not win a decent purse race. This was the last straw for Hankins, and he decided to sell out. It is generally understood that Hankins is largely interested in the projected new race track to be located south of Washington Park track, which it is proposed to have ready for next season. However, if the Illinois Legislature should at its next session enact laws inimical to continuous pool selling, it is probable the new track will be built a little further south, in Indiana, where pool selling and other games of chance could be carried on within the inclosure.

The following story of Carbine, contributed to a paper in New Zealand, where the horse was foaled, I have no doubt will greatly interest our readers: "If my readers are not yet tired of hearing about Carbine, I will tell them something about his sale. After he lost the Derby to Ensign, and thus put New Zealanders to a man on their beam ends, the colt was understood to be seeking a purchaser. Mr. S. G. Smith, our clerk of the scales, was then in Melbourne, and, as a friend of Mr. Gannon, suggested to that gentleman that he should become a purchaser, giving it as his opinion that it would be a payable spec at almost any price. Mr. Gannon did not take very kindly to the notion, but eventually consented so far to authorize Mr. Smith to go and price Carbine. "How much will you take for the colt if Mr. Gannon wants him?" was the query put to Mr. O'Brien. This was on the Friday after the Derby was run. "Well," replied Dan," "he can have him for two thousand." and it was agreed that the offer should remain open till the Saturday night. "If I don't get an answer before Monday," added Mr. O'Brien, "I'll not take less than three thousand from any other man on the face of this earth, and if none will give me that for him I'll keep him myself and take down all their cracks with him." Mr. Gannon was not dismayed at the price asked—he owns a dollar or two, and doesn't mind spending them if he sees his way clear—but somehow or other he did not catch on very readily to this offer, though there is no saying but what Mr. Smith's pleading might have ultimately persuaded him had not a third party put in his oar. This was Mr. Lowe one of Mr. Gannon's friends, who happened to call at the hotel where they were all stopping. Over the dinner table the subject of Carbine was introduced by Mr. Gannon asking Mr. Lowe's opinion.

"Mr. Smith," he said, "can talk of nothing but Carbine. He tells me Carbine is the best colt ever produced in New Zealand, and is almost going down on his knees to get me to buy. What do you think?" 'Don't touch him," replied Mr. Lowe. "I have gone into this thing, as you know, and he comes under the red." Mr Lowe forthwith proceeded to expound his meaning, producing Carbine's pedigree lines underscored in red and blue, the red indicating non-stayers and the blue those that had proved able to get over the distance. A preponderance of red was shown, sure enough, and if the premises were reliable, Carbine was bred as a non-stayer. "The thing is as plain as a pikestaff," contined Mr. Lowe, "and here you have proof of it. Carbine won all before him in his own country, but the first time he is asked to race over a distance he is put down, and so he always will be." The argument caused Mr. Gannon to hesitate, and in hesitating he lost the horse. Mr. Wallace, blissfully ignorant of the red and blue theory, has pocketed £10,000 over the transaction. to say nothing of bets, and still has his horse apparently as good as ever. The story is given as related to me.

The entries for the English Derby of 1892, which appear in the "Sheet Calendar" show a large increase on any previous year, the number being 265. The Prince of Wales subscribes for four, including the sister to Sainfoin, who was purchased at the sale of her Majesty's yearlings for 1,000 guineas, as was then erroneously thought on behalf of Baron Hirsch. The latter nominates La Fleche, by St. Simon out of Quiver, and consequently sister to the Oaks winner, Memoir. Colonel North has four, Mr. Henry Milner seven, and Mr. Leopold de Rothschild six. The Oaks has also secured a list of entries far in excess of the average, and the crowded sheets of the Calendar form a fine answer to those who think there is the slightest decadence observable in anything that concerns the national sport. The conditions for the classic races in England having been altered; we give the revised version. The Derby of 6,000 sovs; the winner to receive 5,000 sovs, the nominator of the winner 500 sovs, the owner of the second 300 sovs, and the owner of the third 200 sovs. out of the race; for three year old colts 9st., and fillies 8st. 9lb. entrance 5 sovs, the only liability if declared to Messrs. Weatherby by the first Tuesday in January, 1891; 20 sovs in addition if not so declared, and if left in after the first Tuesday in January, 1892, a further sum of 25 sovs; with at least 1,000 sovs given from the Race Fund. About one mile and a half. (Now yearlings) The Epsom Grand Prize of 2,000 for three-years-old; colts 8st. 12 lb. and fillies 8st. 7lb; the winner of a race (not being a handicap or selling race) value 1,000 sovs to carry 5lb. of the Two Thousand Guineas Stakes or the Derby 10lb. extra; maidens allowed 7lb; the nominator of the winner to receive 200 sovs and the owner of the second 100 sovs out of the race; entrance 3 sovs, the only liability if declared to Messrs. (Now yearlings). The Oaks of 4,500 sovs; the winner to receive 3,800 sovs, the nominator of the winner 400 sovs, the owner of the second 200 sovs, and the owner of the third 100 sovs out of the race; for three year old fillies 9st. each; entrance 5 sovs, the only liability if declared to Messrs. (Now yearlings.) The following table shows the relative strength of the entries for the Derby, Oaks and Grand Prize for several years past, from which it will be seen that the entries of 1892 show an increase all round:—

The Anaconda Races Draw Big Crowds to the Track.

Barred From the Track.

ANACONDA, Aug. 6th.—A large crowd witnessed an unusually attractive programme at the driving park to-day. Both the running and trotting races were intensely interesting and the favorites were backed heavily in every case. Not less than $8,000 or $10,000 passed through the pool box on the Montana Suburban alone. Considerable bluffing was indulged in by the owners of Sunday and Tim Murphy. Several large bets were made by Cy Mulkey on Tim Murphy against Sunday, and Jack Dowd challenged Mr. Mulkey to a five-eighths race for $1,000 a side, horses to carry weight for age. But Mulkey did not accept, claiming that Mr. Dowd has already refused the same kind of a proposition made at Missoula.

The first event of the day was the Montana Suburban, a mile and a half run. There were four starters. Guido was barred in the pools, no one wishing to place money against him. Gold Bar was the favorite with the talent, selling at $20 to $15 on Carrie Lee, Birdie H $4. Gold Bar led when the horses passed the grand stand, but bound by bound Guido closed up the gap and at the three-quarter pole overtook the chestnut colt. The race through the stretch was a beautiful one, neither of the leaders seeming able to draw away from the other. Within twenty yards of the wire Guido's jockey plied the whip and fairly lifted him to the front, a winner from Gold Bar by a head, Carrie Lee three lengths behind, and Birdie H a bad fourth. Mutuals paid $8 65.

The talent were badly dumped in the five-eighths mile handicap. Susie Glenn was the favorite in a field of six, selling at $20 to $18 on Xenophon. A few knowing ones bought Billy Duncan at $7 and consequently their pockets are overflowing with money to-night. Kickapoo got the best of the start by nearly a length and held it to the three-quarter pole when Billy Duncan passed him and won easily in 1:04¼. The mutuals paid $47.15.

The third race, half mile heats, was the event of the day, and a field of horses that would be a credit to any track came to the post. Once again the crowd selected Sunday for a winner, and backed him heavily at $60 and $70 to $30 on Red Elm, Tim Murphy selling for $20. The Jew found a few backers at $10. When the horses went to the post Sunday acted badly, as usual, throwing two of his shoes and delaying the race for an hour and a half. Cy Mulkey protested the race on account of the delay in starting, and the judges called the 2:24 trot, to give the runners more time.

When the start was made, however, Tim Murphy took the lead, and Sunday collared him at the three-quarter post and the two came down the stretch together. Sunday appeared to lose his speed when nearing the wire, and Murphy passed under the wire a winner by a length, The Jew third, Red Elm last. Red Elm lost on the start and was unable to recover. The mutuals paid $21.25. There were $500 mutuals sold on the heat. Sunday was very lame and an effort was made to withdraw him, but it was decided that he must start.

In the second heat Murphy repeated his performance, winning handily by a length. Sunday is a badly worn out horse and should not be run again for some time. The little bay has many admirers since his remarkable feat on Tuesday in tieing the world's record of 3¼ for three-eighths of a mile in the second heat of a race.

Anaconda, Aug. 7.—Today was ladies day at the driving park. The fair sex was out in force. The stores closed to give the clerks and proprietors an opportunity to see the races. The great race of the day, the two mile running race, was not filled, and a three-fourths mile special trot was substituted. In this race occurred the only dissatisfaction during the meeting.

After scoring a number of times the jockeys of Red Elm and Kismet thought the order to go had been given, and darted around the track to the finish, unaccompanied by the other horses, Kismet coming in a half a length ahead of Red Elm. The backers of Kismet declared the starter had dropped the flag, and claimed the race. Mr. Thornton, the starter, said he did not order the horses, and they were sent back to the post for a fresh start.

The first event of the day was a trotting race for three-year-olds, born and bred in Montana. Kennelwood divided the honors for favoritism with Deacon in the pools, Florida being considered an outsider. In the first heat the horses started off at the second score, Kennelwood breaking badly, but he passed Florida and Deacon at the quarter, maintaining the best to the finish. At the three-quarters Florida recovered, and with a splendid burst of speed gave Kennelwood a hard run at the finish coming under the wire half a length behind, Deacon only escaping being distanced. Time 2:44. Mutuals paid $10.25.

In the second heat Kennelwood took the lead, but Florida headed him at the first quarter and passed on the backstretch, winning easily in 2:40. Kennelwood was set back to third place for running. The mutuals paid $60. Florida won the next heat and the race easily in 2:39. Florida is owned by Hervey Barbour and Dr. Long of Helena. She had been sick, and won unexpectedly. Mutuals paid $7.20.

The event of the day for sporting men was the three-quarter mile special. In the pools Kismet and Roly Boly sold as favorites at $50 each, with Red Elm at $24. Olympia was looked upon as a rank outsider and never brought more than $7 in a pool of $150. He sadly disappointed the talent, however.

The horses got a fair start and the race down the backstretch and the turn was a splendid one. Dwarf Regent showed the way to the half with daylight between him and Olympia, Roly Boly away in the rear. Down the homestretch the race was between Roly Boly and Olympia, the latter horse winning easily by a length. The time, 1:16, was fast, and it is doubtful if Kismet or Red Elm would have been in the race at the finish had they not previously worn themselves out. The mutuals paid $40.50.

The third race was the 2:27 class for a purse of $1,000 I. Jay S. sold for big money in the pools, Lewis S second choice and the others even. The first heat was won handily by Lewis S. from I. Jay S. in 2:30. The mutuals paid $10.20 The next three heats were won by I. Jay S. as the summary will show:

The fourth and last race of the day was the special trotting race, with four entries. Alice was the choice in the pool box, Starline selling second. In the first heat Truella took the lead to the half, and was passed by Alice, who won from Minute Man by half a length, Truella third, Starline distanced. The mutuals paid $17.20.

In the next heat Minute Man made a great effort to beat Alice until he lost his feet, allowing Alice to win by half a length, Truella being given second place on account of Minute Man's running. The mutuals paid $9 10.

In the third and last heat Alice assumed the lead from the start and was three lengths ahead of Truella at the quarter, winning the heat at an easy jog by a half a dozen lengths, Truella winning second money over Minute Man by a pretty finish.

ANACONDA, Aug. 8th.—To-day was a splendid day for racing. Hundreds of Anaconda citizens witnessed the sport at the driving park. The first race of the day was the 3 year-old trot for the Upper Works stakes. In the pool box Silver Bow sold at $20 to $2 against Murtha. There were but two starters, and there was but little betting, as it was considered that Silver Bow would win the race.

In the first heat Silver Bow had the pole and led to the quarter pole, where Murtha headed him. In the homestretch Silver Bow led by two lengths and won the heat easily in 2:33. Mutuals paid $6.50.

In the second and concluding heat Silver Bow started out and won in a jog by four lengths.

There were four starters in the three-eighths mile handicap. Cyclone was first choice in the pools, the betting being nearly even on the others. The Jew had many backers and seemed to hug Cyclone closer than the others for second place. The Jew had the pole, Cyclone second, Bay Tom third and Kickapoo last. Just before the start a hint got out that Bay Tom would win if he got off well, and accordingly he was bought freely. After scoring a few times they were sent away well together with Kickapoo trailing The other three were well bunched to the stretch with Bay Tom a neck in front of Cyclone. Down the stretch it was between The Jew and Cyclone. The Jew was unable to hold out and Cyclone pulled out and won by a length and a half, The Jew second, Bay Tom third, and Kickapoo last. Mutuals paid $9.95. Summary:

The third race of the day was the heat race, five-eighths of a mile. Roly Boly was drawn from this event and there were but three starters. Before the first heat Tom Daly was backed strongly as first choice, with Red Elm favorite second. Susie Glenn, with 90 pounds, was thought to have a good show, and caught lots of short money. Tom Daly acted bad at the start, but they were finally sent away in a bunch. Susie Glenn and Red Elm made the run to the stretch, with Tom Daly nearly two lengths behind, evidently waiting for the finish. As they turned the stretch Tom Daly closed up and made a pretty race with Red Elm to the finish, winning by a length. Susie Glenn was not in it after the stretch was reached. Time, 1:04¼. Mutuals paid $6.35.

There were but three starters in the fourth race, a seven-eighths of a mile handicap. They were all fine horses, however, and as equally matched as they could possibly be. Lew Carlisle was a hot favorite at first choice and found innumerable backers at long odds against Roly Boly, the second choice. Sympathetics Last was thought to be out of it and brought small money.

The start was effected without any delay, and a most exciting race began. Lew Carlisle got left two lengths at the start, but overtook the others, and took the lead at the quarter. It was the same to the turn, where Sympathetic's Last closed up with the others. Lew Carlisle gave it up when half way down the stretch, and Roly Boly and Sympathetic's Last made a pretty fight to the wire, Sympathetic's Last winning by half a length. The result was a genuine surprise, but caused the sports to congratulate themselves. Mutuals paid $20.95.

The great event of the day was the special free-for-all pacing, for a purse of $500, three in five. In the pools Don Angus was favorite, and brought $100 against $50 of Bawley money. It was the fastest and prettiest race of the meeting and exceptionally interesting, and the finishes were exhibitions.

In the first heat Don Angus had the pole. In making the first turn after the start, the driver of Don Angus neglected to turn, and ran Bawley off his stride by taking him almost to the fence. Angus won by half a length, but was set back for fouling at the start, and Bawley given the heat. The decision of the judges in regard to the foul was unanimous, and met with the most pronounced approval from the spectators who witnessed the affair at the first turn. Time, 2:19½. Mutuals paid $8.80.

Don Angus was still the choice in the pool before the second heat at $40 to $20, with lots of gambling. In the second heat Bawley assumed the lead, and at the quarter was three lengths ahead. It was the same at the half, with Don Angus closing up. At the three-quarter Bawley was a length ahead, and into the stretch they were side by side, struggling for place. It was a grand sight to the finish. As they passed under the wire a cheer of approval rang from the excited audience. Don Angus won by a nose in 2:22¾. Mutuals paid $6 55.

After the second heat Don Angus sold a still greater favorite at large odds in the pool. In the third heat Bawley went to the front at the start by three lengths. At the quarter, to the half and three-quarter Don Angus steadily gained, and as they entered the stretch he was but a length behind. Down the course to the finish Don Angus was unable to reach Bawley who won by a length. Mutuals paid $11.70.

Bawley sold for $50 to $25 for Don Angus after the third heat, and both found plenty of backers. The finish was another pretty one, Don Angus winning by a length. Time, 2.24¼. Mutuals paid $7 10.

The next heat was another race to the finish, Bawley being unable to beat Don Angus, who won by a length. Down the stretch to the wire it appeared as if Don Angus was trying to give Bawley the worst of it by running him out. A kick was made on the heat, and the claim made that Bawley was fouled on the turn. After thorough investigation the judges decided that Don Angus had fouled Bawley, and awarded the heat and race to Bawley. The decision seemed to meet the approval of the majority. Time, 2:24.

ANACONDA, Aug. 9—The programme for the last day of the Anaconda meeting was a grand one. The running races were well filled and were most interesting, as was the special free-for all trot. A large crowd came over from Butte. Matt Cullin printed a challenge in the Standard this morning for a race between Don Angus and A. D. Helms' Brawley, who defeated Don in the pacing race yesterday. In his defense Mr. Cullin used language reflecting upon the honesty of the judges. Before calling up the horses for the first race the official caller, Mr. Grattan, announced from the stand that the judges had decided to debar Mr. Cullin from the association under a rule giving them that power.

For the first race of the day, one-fourth mile dash, there were three entries. Bay Charlie was the favorite in the pool box and sold at $20 to $10 over the others. The horses got away at the second score and the race was a pretty one to the one-eighth when Montana Doctor went to the front and remained to the finish, winning by half a length from Bay Charlie, Brown Fly three lengths behind. Mutuals paid $15.75.

THE FARM.

Cattle at San Jose.

The exhibition of cattle at the late San Jose Fair, would have graced any show in the State. Although the entries were principally from three or four herds, they were so superexcellent as to provoke favorable enconiums from all the spectators, and one of the features of the parades was the grand show of royally bred cattle, prominent among the exhibitors being F. H. Burke, the Holstein fancier, who had several hard tusslea with G. B. Polhemus. Among Shorthorns, the only entriss were made by Messrs. Younger & Sons, whoae exhibits were in such grand trim and so typical of the thoroughbred cattle, that they more than counterhalanced the lack of competition. The picturesque Jerseya were grandly exhibited by Messrs. Conner and Polhemus. The swine classes were exceptionally good, Andrew Smith exhibiting some of his best, and J. S. Conner had some grand looking representative hogs. Ths awards were made known on Friday of last week.

Beets, as Food for Milch Cows.

A bulletin of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, now in press, gives the result of an experiment in feeding sugar beets to milch cows, made during the past winter, togsther with a summary of two similar experiments, one made hy the station in 1889, and one hy the farm department of the Ohio State Universsity in 1879.

In the last named experiment eight cows were kept under test for eleven weeks; in 1889, twelve cows for eight weeks, and in 1890, twelve cows for nine weeks, the cows in each case hsing weighed daily, as well as their feed and milk.

In each of the three experiments the cows eat more hay and more total dry matter when feeding on beets than on other fooda (hay, msal and hran in 1879, oorn silage in 1889 and 1890) and in each case more milk was given from the beets than from any other foods, hut it is not yet demonstrated that the increase of milk was produced economically.

For twelve years records have been kept on the farm now occupied by the station which shows that the average yield of beets over this period has been nearly sixteen tons per acre, against an annual yield of about fifty five bushels of shelled corn per acre.

But a crop of fifty-five bushels of shelled corn, with its fodder, will contain nearly twice as much dry matter as sixteen tons of beets, and these experiments indicate that, whether fed dry, as corn meal and dry fodder, or as corn ensilage, the dry matter of the corn crop will be found about as effective, ponud for pound, as the dry matter of the beet crop.

It is possible to raise much more than sixteen tons of beets to the acre. One crop of two acres is reported at 37½ tons per acre, and smaller areas have given still larger yields, but such crops require very rich land and thorough culture. Whether it is possible to produce a pound of dry matter in beets as economically as it can be done in corn is not yet definitely settled, hut the probabilities are against it.

COMMERCIAL AND GREEN MANURES FOR WHEAT.

In an experiment made hy the North Carolina experiment station, a series of plots was laid out in such manner that one end of each plot should be on land on which cow peas had been previously plowed under, and the other end on land without peas. The whole was sown to wheat, and kainit, acid phosphate and cotton seed meal were applied to the several plots, singly and in combination, two plots being left without any fertilizer.

The result was that on the land which had had no fertilizer the highest increase of any of the fertilized over the unfertilized plots was four bushels per acre (for 300 pounds cotton seed meal), while on the green manured land the increase from the pea vines was from six bushels at the least to fifteen bushels per acre, averaging ten bushels.—Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station Newspaper Bulletin.

Russian Wool Production.

An English exchange says, on the authority of the Russie Commerciale, that Russia owns nearly 50,000,000 ordinary sheep and 15,000,000 merinos. European Russia has 40,000,000, of which 38,000,000 are ordinary sheep and 2 000,000 merinos. The Caucasus has 12,000,000, of which 10,000,000 are ordinary sheep and 2,000,000 are merinos. Sheep are met with in nearly every province of Russia, with this difference, that they are far more numerous in the southern provinces than in those of the north. Owing to the immense stretches of pasture land, and to the temperate climate of the center of Russia—which allows of flocks being kept in the fields nearly the whole year—the rearing of fine-wooled sheep predominates, particularly in the kingdom of Poland. In Taurida there are as many as 2,900,000 merinos; in the government of Ekaterinoslay, 1,909,000; in Kherson, 1,600,000; in Kuban, 1,300,000; in the government of Poltava, 5,000,000; in Saratow, 500,000; in Kiev, Kharkoo and Stavropol, nearly 500,000 each. There was a time—about 1860—when the rearing of fine wooled sheep was in a high state of development, owing to the protectionist measures adopted by the government, but since that period it has fallen off considerably. The construction of new railways has given fresh impetus to land cultivation in the center of Russia, the rents of land increased, while the prices of wool fell simultaneously under the influence of the competition of Australia, America and the Cape of Good Hope. During the last few years the rearing of fine wooled sheep has shown a tendency to increase in the southern part of Caucasus, which is rich in pasturage. It may be asserted that it is Central Asia which in the future will become the center of the Russian wool industry, owing to the enormous extent of land adapted to the rearing of sheep. The annual production of wool in Russia amounts to about 10,000,000 poods (160,700 tons), which gives approximately six pounds of wool for each sheep. The export of Russian wool is subject to considerable fluctuation each year. For example in 1885, 21.000 tons were exported; in 1886, 24,550, and in 1888, 20 400 tons. The exporting ports are Rostov on the Don, Odessa, Riga. and Liband. The largest quantity is taken by England, but some is purchased by France, Germany and Austria If Russia exports wool she also imports it. During the year 1885, 10,060 tons were taken in; in 1886, 8 830 tons; in 1887. 8,030 tons, and in 1888, 12,045 tons. Although the imports of wool only amount to half the quantity of the exports, in value they excsed them. For example, in 1887 the exports were valued at 16 000,000 roubles, and the imports at 17,000,009 roubles; in 1888 the exports did not reach 13,000,000 roubles, while the value of the imports exceedsd 24,000,000 roubles. This is accounted for by the fact that Russia exports raw wools of inferior quality, while foreign countries send her wool of superior quality washed, spun and dyed.

Butter Produce of Jersey Cattle.

The Country Gentleman publishes an abstract of the English Jersey Cattle Society's butter tests from 1886 to 1890, which appeared in the recent report of the Kempton Park Show.

Since this society made its first experiment in butter testing at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, in October, 1886, ten tests have been made, at which 133 Jersey cows, varying in age from under two to over twelve years, have been put to proof.

The results of these tests have been published from time to time, but it seems desirable to collect them together, and to present them in a concise form. For this purpose a table is annexed, in which all the cows are classified according to their age at the date of trial; and in opposite columns are recorded the total number tested in each class, the average number of days since calving, the average yield of milk and of butter, and the average quantity of milk required to produce one pound of butter or butter ratio.

It appears from this table that the development of the butter capacity is very gradual, and it seems probable that even at the end of her fifth year the average Jersey cow has not attained her maximum point of butter production.

The milk yield, which, between the age of two and three years reaches an average of 2½ gallons, or say 25lbs. per day, continues to increase till the fifth or sixth year, when it stands at rather over 3 gallons, or 30 lbs. per day. At the same time, the butter shows a corresponding increase from 1 lb. 3 oz. to 1 lb 8 oz. per day. During the whole of these four years it appears that the average richness of the milk varies but little from a standard of 2 gallons to the pound of butter. The exact figures are as follows;

Between 2 and 3 years, average butter ratio 20.10 pounds, about 8 quarts.

Between 3 and 4 years, average butter ratio 20 24 pounds, about 8 quarts.

Between 4 and 5 years, average butter ratio 19.41 pounds, about 8 quarts.

Between 5 and 6 years, average butter ratio 20.75 pounds, about 8 quarts.

At or about the age of six years the Jersey appears to attain her prime. Her milk increases materially in richness, and her yield of butter shows a proportionate advance. It seems probable that she maintains this maximum value for some two or three years afterward:

Between 6 and 7 years, average butter ratio 17.81 pounds, about 7 quarts.

Between 7 and 8 years, average butter ratio 18.01 pounds, about 7 quarts.

Between 8 and 9 years, average butter ratio 18.62 pounds, about 7 quarts.

This view of the prime age of the butter cow derives further confirmation from a comparison of the ages of those cows which succeeded best throughout the series of ten tests. These are as follows:

	Yrs.	Mths.	Dys.
Ave. age of 10 prize cows	7	3	10
Ave. age of 10 second prize cows	6	2	0
Ave. age of 10 third prize cows	5	8	2
Ave. age of 10 reserve number cows	5	5	8

The total number of cows of nine years and upward is too small to afford a basis for judgment, but it is sufficient to warrant the statement that some Jerseys maintain a high dairy value in their tenth year, or even beyond. It should be noted that two of the society's gold medals were won by cows in their eleventh year.

Elk and Buffalo.

A correspondent of the Texas Live Stock Journal writes from Goodnight Station, in Texas, near the Staked Plains, as follows:

Through the kindness of Mr. Goodnight, we were shown over the premises. Visiting the park or pasture containing the wild animals domesticated my attention was first attracted to the four large male elks with their massive antlers projecting several feet above their heads. A short distance from these were the same number of female elks and several young ones. Some of the smaller ones appeared to be yearlings, while the others had the appearance of only being a few months old.

These animals were bought in the Rocky mountains and shipped at a heavy expense by Mr. Goodnight to their present quarters. They are perfectly gentle, so much so that they seem to have no fears whatever, but will allow you to handle and pet them and are in every respect as docile as a kitten.

It is Mr. Goodnight's intention to breed these elks for the purpose of making trotters or light harness animals of them. It is a well known fact that they are very fleet and that their fastest gait is a trot. When well trained no other animal ever trained to harness can keep pace with an elk.

My attention was next called to the massive buffaloes found grazing in the same pasture with the elks. While there are among them all sorts, kinds and sizes, yet there are a few of the older males that are the largest I ever saw, and to say that I have seen hundreds of thousands at one sight would not in my opinion be an exaggeration.

The elks were in fine condition and seemed to do well, but the buffalo are rolling fat. The grass in the pasture is short, proving that the buffaloes are better rustlers than cattle, or in other words, that the buffaloes will take on flesh and become very fat while cattle on the same pasture will barely hold their own. The knowledge of this fact has induced Mr. Goodnight at a heavy expense to try the experiment of crossing buffalo bulls with black muley cows. The result has been very satisfactory so far, as may be seen by the half-breed calves and yearlings now in Mr. Goodnight's pasture. These animals (the crosses) will it is claimed by their owner, possess the hardness and rustling qualities of the buffalo and the beef producing qualities of the Polled-Angus (the black muley) I am satisfied the experiment will prove a success, and that the live stock producing world will be indebted to Mr. Goodnight for having brought into existence the best rustling and for the range the most popular breed of cattle in the world.

Dark Brahma Fowls.

The dark Brahmas are ranked by one authority as next in merit, among the Asiatic breeds, to the light Brahmas, and many breeders claim that they are the best of the Brahma variety. It is stated that this breed was perfected by English breeders out of a brood of chickens that were bred by mating a black red Shanghai cock with a gray Shanghai hen. The first importations known as dark Brahmas were made about 1865, and many of them were of the single comb kind. The breeding of pea comb Brahmas to Partridge Cochins produced new blood, and later they were bred with less of the Cochin shape. The first dark Brahmas showed more or less bronze in the wing coloring of the cocks, and the ground coloring of the female was a bronze gray, the steel gray, which is now the standard American color, being secured by an occasional cross with the Light Brahma cocks.

The pea comb, which should surmount the head of the dark Brahma cock resemblea three small combs running parallel the length of the head, the center one the highest; beak strong, well curved, wattles full, ear lobes red, well rounded, and falling below wattles; the breast should be full and broad and wings small and well tucked up under the saddle feathers and thick fluff. The markings of the hen, except the neck and tail, are the same all over, each feather having a dingy white ground closely penciled with dark steel gray.

Fruit Fertilization.

Chief among the fertilizers in my estimation should be potash. I believe it is capable of largely solving many a problem of imperfect fruit development. Poverty and disease to plant growth may be traced largely to the food supply. We have it on good authority that the ashes of fruits contain from 20 to 75 per cent of potash, a significant fact. This fertilizer may be largely obtained from common unleached ashes, as well as in some commercial fertilizers, the Mapes fruit and vine manure being recommended as containing 11 to 13 per cent of potash. If there is any place where we should make a speciality of applying wood ashes it is about the fruit trees and vines.

A thorough trial of this idea will show the benefits of potash which is a very prominent ingredient of ashes. Potash for fruits. Try it.

Strawberries.

Those who wish to plant a small bed of strawberries for a family supply, or who wish to experiment in fruiting any of the new varieties without waiting for next spring to plant them, may gain time by buying potted runners now and setting them out 12 or 15 inches apart, three rows in each bed, and by stopping all runners as fast as they appear, if the ground has been made very rich and can be watered in case of drouth, one can obtain a very moderate crop of very large berries next June, thus gaining a year's time in the fruiting.

Such a bed would probably pay to keep over for a second year, clipping the runners and weeding thoroughly.

In general, however, it is our belief that too many old strawberry beds are kept over for a second or third crop. It would pay better in general to plow them under after taking one good crop. For not only is it less expensive in general to plant a new bed, than to weed and take care of an old one, but the market for strawberries is glutted by the abundance of poor, small berries; now these small berries, which break the market, are almost always the growth of old beds, which have been more or less neglected and exhausted. If you keep an old bed over, weed it thoroughly, enrich it with ground bone and wood ashes and water it if necessary, so as to grow good plants and not spoil the market with mean berries.

STOCKTON ve. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, AUG. 14TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

This contest was en eaey victory for the Senatore. Kilroy was a trifle wild, the hite made off him were hnuched, and the errore of the Stocktone, while few, were very costly. Hoffman pitched a grand game, keeping the hits well eeparated and not awarding a eingle hese on halls. Bowman again caught him in his usual finiehed etyle. Hia support from the remainder of the team wae also encouraging, hut two errors heing made. Both teams made a hrace of runs in the first inning, the Sacramentos two being earned. In the eixth they won the geme on two bases on balle, eingles by Bowman, Roherte and Reitz, and Armstrongs error of McHales fly, which altogether netted five rune. Vogt caught Kilroy nicely, his arm having regained its tbrowing power. Cahill and Roberte in left field, Reitz and Fogarty at second, Wilson at third and Stapleton and Selna at the initial cerried off the fielding honors. At the hat Bowman, McHale, Holliday and Fogarty dio the heaviest work. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 15TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

A greet many excellent and hotly contested games have been played on the Emery grounds and thia one was no exception. Of course the Oaklaud cranks were out in full force and they had ample opportunity to exercise their vocal powers were they so dieposed, but as Finn's delapitated Goblins had a "mortal cinch" on the game till the eight, Oakland enthueiasm wae noticeably lacking. The Colonele saved themaelvee a shut out in the eighth inning, however, when Stockwell made a hit, etole second and came home on wild throwe of Speer and Hill. Then a yell, euch as can only emanate from a haeeball crowd went forth. In the niuth, it looked as though there wae yet a chance for the Atheniane to win for Dooley wae eafe on Hill'e muff end Dungan hit safely. On Lohman'e drive to center Dooley attempted to ecore but found the hell waiting for him Hill having made a beautiful field of the ball to the plate. Dungan went to thir l on the throw in and scored, Speer throwing high to Ebright to head him off. Rube Levy crushed the Oakland's hopes, however, hy affectionately squeezing McDonald's hard fly making the third out. The outfielding was exceptionally clever, twenty chancee heing distrihuted between the six outfielders of which seventeen were neatly accepted. Dooley, Stockwell, Hill and Levy were very strong in the hitting and this together with the exceptional work of Carsey and Lookabaugh in the box, the outfielding already alluded to and the base playing of McDonald and Ebright made the game very enjoyable. The ecore:

STOCKTON vs. SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY, AUG. 15TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

Both Harper and Perrott pitched the heet kind of hall in this game, hits being scarce, hases ou balls few, while each had almoet an equal number of strike oute to hie credit The game wae cloee and exciting till the eixth inning, the Senators then getting three men over the rubber, giving them a lead of three runs which they maintained till the close. Holliday had au off day, making two diaastrous errors. The remeinder of the Stockton team played well and et times brilliently. The same may be eaid of the Sacramento teem with the exception of Hoffman at third who being substituted for Godar wae not thoroughly acquainted with the position. Perrott, Cahill Roherte end Reitz did the beat work with the willow, while the infielding of Reitz, Fogarty, Wilson and Daly was of a phenomenal order. The outfield work of Roberta, McHale, Goodenough and Cahill wae also neat and clever. Donohue's deciaions did not find favor with the critical Stockton cranks. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO ve. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY, AUG. 16TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game between the ahove nemed teams wae a truly magnificent one. A large crowd, attracted by the announcement that the new Colonels wonld appear, were in attendence, and were treated to an elegant exhibition, full of ginger, excitement, sharp fielding and daring hase running. The pitchere did wonderful work, both being equally effectlve in keeping the few hite made off them well scattered. The support accorded them was excellent. The Colonels scored their only run in the first inning. C. O'Neill made a safe hit to center, and went to second on Dooley being hit hy a pitched ball. Dungan then hit to Everett, who touched Dooley out, and completing a double play hy throwing Dungan out to Veach. A triple wae quite possible, for Peek-a-boo immediately lined the ball to Ebright to catch C O'Neill, hut the Frisco Captain let the ball pass, and O'Neill tallied. In the fourth the Friacoe tied the score on Ebright's eafety, Lohman's wild throw, which allowed him to take second and third and Stevens' single, which scored him. In the sixth they won the game. Stevens' hit to Cobb forced Ebright at second, but then the big Colorado hack-stop stole second, took third on a passed hall, and cleverly stole home. A succeseion of emert pleys and fine head work of the pitchers prevented any more rune. The battery work of both teams, and the infielding of Everett, McDonald and Stickney was of the most brilliant character. Stickney, C. O'Neill and Ebright did the best hitting, which, owing to the eensational fielding, was rendered light. Cantillion and Sweeney, the new players from Terre Haute, mede but a fair impression, many thinking that hetter telent could te procured here. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 16TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

This was a dreary geme, the intereet being knocked completely out of it in the second inning. Hapeman, the cyclone, ie the responsible perty for the Stockton's overwhelming defeat, for in the second inniog he gave six of the Senatore their base ou bells, and this, with eome hitting, eent nine men acrose the plate. Captain Cahill then went in and although much eteadier then hie predecessor, wae easily found for homers, triples and eafetiee. Hoffman pitched good ball hut there was no necessity for him to exert himself. He kept the hite, however, well distrihuted, and did not give a aingle hase on balls. The Sacramentoe played their ueual fine fielding game, but one error merring a clean record. Reitz at eecond put up a magnificent geme, accepting eleven chauces, while Daly, Stapleton and Roberts aleo diatinguished themselvee. Wileon and Fudger for the Stocktons played a very eccceptable game, the former being credited with two errors, which should have gone as hits. A special featnre of the game was the terrific long hitting of Bowman and Roberts. Reitz, Stapleton. Fogarty, Wilson, Fudger and Cahill aleo batted strongly. The ecore:

SAN FRANCISCO vs SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 19TH 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Seventeen rnne superinduced hy seventeen good solid baee hite and ten very woolly errors on the part of the home teem are represented in the Senators second column in the score of this game while the Frisco's have but a puny three to represent their work at the bet. The cause of this vast difference mey be attributed to pitcher Young of the home team. Young has received some awful drubbings at the hends of the Senatore hnt this wae an exceedingly humiliating one, happening in presence of fully eight thousend spectatora, the mejor portion of which wanted to see Finns aggregation win. Youngs support wes also poor, Ebright and Everett doing the only creditable work. On the other hand Harper wae almoet invincible, pitching a maaterly game end keeping the hits so well ecattered, that were the Friscos elone depending on their "safeties" they would have had nothing more than a etring of goose egge to their credit. The support rendered Herper was clever and finished. At the bet Bowmen led with four hits. He was followed hy Goodenough, Stapleton, Roherte, Reitz, McHale and Hill, each securing two. The fielding honore were divided hetween Everett, Ebright and Reitz, who pleyed wonderful ball. The catchere alao did effective work. The score.

SAN FRANCISCO vs SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, AUG. 21ST, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Senators were more than unfortunate in this game, Captain Stapleton being unable to play on account of the severe bruise his arm received last Sunday, while Daly was sick and had to retire early in the game, and Godar had not fully recovered from his late attack of malaria. The Friscos on the other hand were strengthened by the accession of Conghlan who pitched a strong game, keeping the hits well divided and receiving grand support. Harper was touched up livelier, while the team back of him frequently blundered at opportune times for their opponents. The Friscos settled down to business from the start, batting in two runs in the first inning with two men out. In the second they bunched again, and aided by McHales error of a very difficult chance, three men crossed the rubber. This was a big lead which they augmented in the fifth and sixth by three more runs, making the score eight to nothing. The Senators were not totally discouraged, however, for in the seventh Isaacson, who played in Stapleton's place, took first on balls, Roberts beautiful triple to deep center scoring him, and the "star" fielder coming home on Reitz's sacrifice. In the eighth they added another, Goodenough made a hit, stole second, took third on Speer's poor throw, and tallied on Godar's double. A neat double in the ninth prevented their scoring again after securing two safe shots. Goodenough had three singles to his credit, all placed just out of a fielders reach. Ebright, Stevens, Roberts, Isaacson, Godar and Levy also hit heavily and timely. To Shea, Everett and Veach belong the infielding honors, thirty seven of thirty nine chances being accepted by this trio. Roberts and Levy also made some difficult catches in the outfield. Harper struck out thirteen men, Hill fanning four times, Shea, Veach, Everett and Coughlin twice each and Enright once. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The Friscos took a game from the Sacramentos Thursday which impaired the Senators' lead slightly, but Stapleton's men are yet so far in advance that the loss of one game has but little effect on them. It, however, brought the home team mighty close to the Oaklands, who are in second position by a small margin. The Stocktons remain stationary, and are of course, last. With the increased strength of both the Friscos and the Colonels in the pitching department, matters may present a different aspect before long, and it will certainly be a magnificent struggle between the Sacramentos, Friscos and Oaklands from now on to the close of the season.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Jack Ryan is no longer playing ball.

A. G. Spalding Esq. is sojourning in Europe.

Duane was Harper's catcher in Oskosh in 1886.

Stevens is the hardest loser in the Frisco team.

Hanley will not be able to play for some time.

George VanHaltran is laid up with a sprained leg.

The "Little Four"—Sweeney, Speer, Reitz and Carsey.

The Colonels have discarded their black Nadjy uniforms.

Chief Borchers continues his good pitching for Spokane.

Very little credence is now put in Robinson's erratic statements.

Shea and Veach are a brace of capable and humorous coachers.

Finns team is the strongest in the League in the pitching department.

Zimmer has caught over one hundred consecutive games this season.

Hill is a poor substitute for Hanley in the outfield, but is a fair hitter.

Shaw led the Inter State League pitchers in fielding, with an average of 974.

Harry Hulen (Howard) is considered the star outfielder of the Portland team.

Sheridan is gaining golden opinions in the East for his efficient umpiring.

Otto Young will probably seek an engagement with one of the Northern teams.

Willie Walter Veach says Smalley is playing a magnificent game for Cleveland.

It is reported that Leveque is dissatisfied with Salem and is soon coming home.

Crosby and Morgan, the old Pioneer battery have gone to Salem to play with that team.

Nick Smith is reducing in weight and is now in condition to play ball, were he so inclined.

Jo Jo Cantillian is misplaced at short field. He is an outfielder and said to be a good one.

Norman Baker has a sore arm which causes his temporary retirement from the Pittsburg team.

The Sacramentos have been hitting terrificly lately. Even Harper got in a home run last Saturday.

Roscoe Conghlin took sweet revenge out of the Sacramentos Thursday, by pitching a masterly game.

Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Spokane are flooded with released players from the Pacific North-West League.

The Oaklands played an errorless game at Stockton last Sunday. Reason: Norris O'Neill was not in the game.

Andy Smith, who has been frequently seen this season in a Stockton uniform, is now playing right field for Vallejo.

The Sacramentos are experiencing a little hard luck in having Godar sick last week, and Stapleton disabled for this trip.

Hughey Smith (brother Hughey) has returned home after a long but uneventful sojourn in Eastern minor league cities.

Vincent Daily has been signed by the Bradford Club, of the New York and Pennsylvania League. He will play in the outfield.

Ed Crane of the New Yorks was fined $10 in the Harlem Police Court for interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty.

Joe Werrick the third baseman who was here in '86 with Jim Harts Louisvilles, has recently been released from the Baltimores.

Duane is no longer a member of the Stocktons, having been released last week. He is now working at his trade at harness making.

Bill Smalley ranks third in the batting list of the Cleveland team, having a percentage of 245. McKean and Virtue rank ahead of him.

Carsey has been doing excellent work of late in the box for the Oaklands. In Cobb, Carsey and Shaw the Colonel has a great trio of twirlers.

Ed Stapleton's arm was so badly hurt from being hit by a pitched ball that he was incapacitated from taking part in the past series of games.

Tom Powers is playing a wonderful game at second base for the Baltimores. His hitting and base running has also been exceptionally fine lately.

In batting, Sweeney ranked fifteenth in the Inter State League, with an average of 288. Cantillian was thirty-fourth with 250, and Shaw fifty-second, with a percentage of 212 to his credit.

With the immense lead of the Sacramentos, the Friscos will find it a hard task to overtake them, notwithstanding their increased strength in their pitching department by the accession of McCarthy and Conghlin.

The Sacramentos and Stocktons will undoubtedly play at Central Park on Sept. 8th. This will afford the San Francisco patrons an opportunity of seeing the two interior teams play together and will doubtless draw a big crowd.

All the printed stuff about Buck Ewing jumping the Players' League amounts to nothing. Buck is staunch and has signed a three years' contract. The National League's hopes and claims were based on some kidding remarks of the great catcher.

New York, Evansville and Tacoma all claim Reddy McMillan of the defunct Cantons. If there is a contest New York is sure to get him. The man is a Clevelander, and a better base runner, outfielder and hitter than Gilks.—Am Exchange.

Sammy Shaw, the Colonels new twirler, won thirteen of the last fifteen games he pitched for Terre Haute. The last game he pitched was against the Syracuse Stars, who were defeated 19 to 2, and who secured but four hits off his very deceptive delivery.

While this season has, as a whole, been a disastrous one, it has confined itself principally to the East, and has not extended very far West. Two leagues—the North Pacific and California—are still on earth, and are just coining money.—Sporting News.

Everett's second week at the bat was a vast improvement over his first one. While not a remarkably heavy hitter, he is as good as the average, seldom striking out, and meeting the ball with great force. He is a valuable man as an infielder, playing the position as well as any seen here this season.

In one game at Louisville last week, Center Fielder Weaver, of the local club, made the batting record of the year off pitcher Lincoln, of Syracuse. He went six times to bat and hit safely each time, making a single, two doubles, two triples and a home run, or a total of fourteen bases. This has not been beaten in 1890.

The following are the fielding percentages gained by Sweeney and Cantillian while with Terre Haute, of the Inter State League. Sweeney, center field, rank 11, percent 787; left field, rank 8, percent 909; right field, rank 14, percent 750. Cantillian, center field, rank 12, percent 777; right field, rank 4, percent 900.

Mullane and Latham, who have been bitter enemies for three years, and haven't exchanged a word in that time, have kissed and made up. The feud was due to a spiking Latham gave Mullane in California in 1887, which Mullane always thought was intentional, despite Latham's reiterated assertions to the contrary.—Sporting Life.

Of the fourteen minor leagues that started out in the spring but eight remain—the Western Association, North Pacific League, Western Interstate League, Atlantic Association, California League, New York and Pa. League, Illinois-Iowa League and New York State League. The Texas League was the first to go under, and then followed the International, Indiana, Michigan, Tri State and Eastern Interstate.

Bakely pitched like a man throwing a hair brush out of the back window at a nocturnal cat To pile Ossa on Pelion, as Pete Browning would say, the Cleveland men played in the field like a picked nine from Kankakee. Their throwing could not have been worse if the ball had been made of butter. Teheau couldn't have hit the ground from the top of an eight-story building. As for catching they couldn't have caught the small-pox if they were locked up in a pest-house.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

How useful Charley Sweeney would have been to the Friscos about the fifth inning last Sunday when Young was being batted all over the lot by the Senators. If he couldn't win the game for them after the big lead the Sacramentos secured he would at least have prevented Stapleton's men from fattening their averages to the extent they did. Sweeney's value was never so apparent as when his team was in a tight hole for a hit or needed him to help them out of an uncomfortable dilemma by going in the box. In either instance he could always be depended on to fulfill his managers and the patrons most sanguine hopes.

It does not look as though the Colonel has improved his team to any great extent by securing Cantillian and Sweeney. Neither seem in any department superior or even the equal of many of the California League players of '87, '88 and '89 who are now retired, playing amateur, or distributed among the major and minor leagues throughout the country. The managers have made a big mistake in importing third class players to take the place of home favorites simply because their services were to be procured at a lower figure. Heretofore people were interested in particular players as well as the teams, and the coffers of the league treasury were swelled thereby, but now the favorites are few, the imported players being comparitively unknown, and but little interest felt in their work individually.

The baseball situation is still in as uncertain and unsatisfactory state as it has been for two months. The war between the two rival organizations continues in the same persistent manner. Neither side has given any indications of weakening. Conflicting reports concerning the standing of both sides continue to fly thick and fast, and the only conclusion that the lover of the game can come to is that the baseball business this year consists mainly of misrepresentations and falsehoods.

The National League people admit they are losing money and expect to lose all the way from $5,000 to $20,000 per club this season. They are just as emphatic in their assersions that they will finish the season and be in the arena for many seasons to come.

The Players' League officials, on the other hand, claim they are making money, getting stronger every day and will go through the season with all colors flying to begin next season with renewed vigor. Neither side fails at every opportunity to predict the utter collapse of the other. The National League has done more extensive business in this line than its younger rival. At different periods, before and during the season, dates have been set on which the death of the Players' League would occur. All this has served to make the old body very ridiculous and done very little to elevate the game.

The Players' League has never recognized any organization of worth outside of itself. It has heaped and still heaps abuse on the "old masters," accusing them of bribery and corruption, and expects to see them wiped off the earth at the close of the season.

The bitter feeling between the two leading baseball organizations is something awful, and has worked to the detriment of the game. There is not an honest patron of the game who does not from his heart wish peace restored—the sooner the better. There are very few who believe that either party is happy or "making money." Those who sit down and figure will show you that not club in either league is troubled with a surplus. If there is a scarcity of funds in the Players' League, the first reliable indication of the fact is wanting.

The players seem contented, and not one will admit that he is dissatisfied with the financial arrangement. They speak in the warmest terms, bordering on enthusiasm, of their grand organization. The rank and file are following their leaders with a devotion that is truly admirable.—New York Sporting World.

The Amateurs.

The Reports, by winning Sunday, kept the same lead over the Santa Rosas (who elso won) as the week previous. The Vallejos won from the Fincks, and eo tied them for third place, each heving won one-half the games played. The Allens and Burlingtons eech dropped a game to the leaders, and consequently occnpy the same position as last week. The Santa Roea-E. T. Allen game of last Sunday was protested by Manager Keller, but as has always been the rule of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, snch games are given to the team tallying the most runs, nntil the Board of Directors award it otherwise. DAILY REPORT vs. BURLINGTON ROUTE.

SUNDAY, AUG. 17TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Leeders had no easy task in defeating the Railroaders in this game for Sheridan's boys hit well, and if their fielding was in accordance with their hitting there would have been no occasion for an extra inning as they could have won hendily. In the Burlington's half of the ninth Sullivan reech first and Stanley's hit—a two-bagger, which was good for a home run had not the fence stopped it, sent Sullivan home and tied the score The excitement at this stage of the game was at fever heat, hnt Stanley was left at second. In the tenth the Reports did some terrifio slugging, hitting Sullivan unmercifully and aided by a conple of errors bronght five men across the plate. The Burlingtons failed to tally in their half of the tenth so the game ended nine to four. Ontside of the sixth end tenth innings Sullivan pitched great hall. Monet was hit freely but managed to divide the hits nretty evenly hetween the ten innings. There wes some fine fielding in the game and in this department Bradley, Creemer, Thompson and Dunphy excelled. The catching of hoth Green and Slanley were also noteworthy features. At the bat Green, Dunn, Stanley, Deene, Thompson, Sullivan and Sharp did hard and effective service. Mc Laughlin umpired his first amateur game. The seore:

VALLEJO vs. WILL & FINCKS.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 17TH, AT VALLEJO.

The Marines and Young Giants played a burlesque game at the Vallejo grounds last Sunday. As is usually the case when on en intorior trip Warrens Giants were in a crippled condition and the Merines had no difficnlty in winning. Howell was in no condition to pitch, his catcher Billings being absent and during the gamc several of the players changed their positions with disastrous effect. Beltz did not pitch the game he is capable of, depending too much on his strike ont abilities, and es a result, filled the hases eeveral times on balls, an advantage the Giants were not alow in making use of, as, after the sixth inning they scored ten runs. Both teams played very poorly and if the Vallejos did not have auch a tremendous lead the result might have been different. Thirty-one stolen hases were made in the game which in itself ia sufficient to show how loosely the batteries and base men played their positions. Maguire, Farrell and Tillson were the only players whose work gave evidence of earnest nesa. At the hat Andy Smith, late of the Stocktons and Farrell, recently released from the Sacramentos, did the heaviest work. The umpiring of Russell was not as satisfactory as on former occasions, the Finoka finding fanlt with many decisions. The soore:

SANTA ROSA vs. E. T. ALLENS.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 17TH, 1890 AT SANTA ROSA.

The Sente Rosas and E. T. Allens played a highly interesting game last Sunday and which was won by the former by the close score of six to four. The Sonoma's had a fine lead till the seventh when Geishakers timely double sent Leland and Mulvey across the plate and tallying himself on Evatts single, tied the score and mede matters intensely exciting. The Santa Roses, however, pulled ont of the tight place in the ninth by scoring two men and winning the game thereby. The work of both pitchers was excellent, Callen twirling his nsual steedy and effective game and Philpot excelling all previous efforts, having terrific speed and a sharp drop which he nsed to advantege. Both teams put up a good fielding game, and although each eide made seven errors, in many instances the misplays were pardonable. There was a dash about the fielding which showed the earnestness of the players and which consequently received the hearty approbetion of the spectators. Reilly, Gimmel, Hnlen, Arlett, Evatt, Buckley and Kennedy covered themeelves with glory by their clean and clever fielding and Pace and Geishaker did the best work with the stick. The Allens protested the game claiming that Umpire Brown, who is Secretery and Treesnrer of the Senta Rosa team, showed favoritism to his club. The matter will come up for settlement before the next meeting of the Directors of the Amateur League. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Still ahead—the Reports.

The race is becoming exciting.

Geishaker is the Sports' luckiest hitter.

Green, of the Reports, is a greet back-stop.

McCarthy made a great circus catch Sunday.

The Vallejos end Will & Fincks ere tied for third place.

Broderick has had very few chances offered et third lately.

The Vallejo-Senle Rose game to-morrow ought lo he a "corker."

Solly Russell is said to favor the Vallejo team in close decisions.

John Thompson is now captain of the Reports. A wise selection.

Billy Shannon, the clever sparrer, wes et one time an excellent catcher.

Joeh Reilly is putting up a wonderful article of hall for the Santa Roees.

Ex-manegera Parker, Farraday and Ellis often witness the morning games.

The Vallejoe got a prize in big Andy Smith. Smith is a hitter from "wey hack."

In the Vallejo—Will & Finck game of last Sunday, base steals were almost as nnmerons as runs.

Of the Santa Rosas, Gimmel, Arlett and Stulz, belong in Oakland, and Reilly and McCarthy are Frisco boys.

Philpot pitches for the Allens against the Reports tomorrow. He has already won one game from that team.

Joe Murdock, the veteran, played a poor game last Sunday at Vallejo—bnt every player has an "off day" once in a while.

Strand is diesatisfied with the general playing of the Young Giants. If he had his release he would probably play with the Reports.

Hen Stulz missed the boat hy two minutes last Sunday, and coneequently the Santa Rosas were deprived of his valuable services.

Billy Hulen was the recipient of a great ovation when he stepped to the hat last Sunday. Hulen is deservedly a big favorite everywhere.

Gene Forster was unable to stop ground balls coming into his territory last Sunday, which aided the Reports materially in their run getting.

Big Andy Smith is now a Marine. Smith is a great acquisition to the Vallejos, being a good out fielder, fine first baseman and remarkably heavy hitter.

Buckley, Reilly, Chase, Evatt, Murdock, Monet, Lewis, Stanley, Sharp, Creamer, Tillson, Williams, Kelly, Lohman, Farrell, Beltz and Smith have all played professional ball

Manager Keller did well to eign catcher Frank Mulvey, recently released by the Burlingtons. Mulvey, though not an expert fielder, is of great value to a team on account of his strong hitting abilities, and is a most promising catcher.

It is a low trick to hoot and yell at a player after a ball for the purpose of spoiling his play. The boys should not allow Santa Rosa customs to invade their sense of decency. Visiting clubs should be treated as visitors to our households.—Vallejo Chronicle.

Billy Kennedy, the cracker jack youngster, has already played second and third base, short stop, left, center and right field and pitched this season. The beauty of his work is he pleys each position equally well, and at the bat he has but few superiors in the emateur league.

Managers Werren, Ashman and Keller are merried men as are also players Buckley, Evatt, Utt, Murdock and Deane. There are any number of amateurs, seriously contemplating solving the question, "Is marriage a failnre?" and if "coming events cast their shadows before" we'll have quite a list of young Benedicts to add to those above mentioned very shortly. How about that Creamer?

The Allens are a teem of pitchers end catchers. Philnot, McDonald and Lohman are their regnler twirlers, while Kennedy and Evatt can also do good work in the box. Leland, Mulvey and Lewis can go behind the bat at any time and catch a strong game, so the Sports should never lose a game on account of poor battery work, for if either a pitcher or catcher weakens, they have plenty others to draw from.

The managers and pleyers of the local clubs speak in the highest terms of the courteous treatment they receive at the hands of Mejor Elmquist, the manager of the Vallejo team, his players and the Vallejo people generelly. Just the opposite is their treatment in Santa Rosa where the manager and residents of the town are so engrossed in their own affairs and team that they do not even extend the common civilities nsually bestowed on strangers, much less to those who are their guests.

The Young Giants have not been playing good hell lately which is undoubtedly attributable to lack of discipline in the team. Players who miss the train Sunday after Sunday, should either be fined or released, as constantly substituting greatly weakens team work and without this all important factor, games cannot be won. The Young Giants are as strong a team as any in the league with their regular players, but if Maneger Warren, who has always hed a winning club, wents the pennent this year he'll have to infuse more life into the players. It would also be well to secure a change pitcher if Ferrell won't go in the box as Howell has been worked to the limit since the seeson opened. With two good pitchers, Billings and Strand for catchers, F. Delmes on first, Farrell second, Tillson third, Conway, Deeney and one of the alternating catchers in the field and the team playing the game they are capable of, Warren's men ought to make a hard fight for honors. Brace the boys up, Frank!

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

There appears to be a great scarcity of athletic news just at the present time, and were it not for the coming Admission Day regatta, Bay City Wheelman's road race and athletic meeting at Sacramento, sporting writers would indeed be in a sorry plight. Since the wane of pugilism, considerable attention has been paid to the amateur athletes, but amateur athletics on the Pacific Coast are like stocks; one day they are dead, the next booming. However, we must look forward to a bright future, for there are two many prominent athletes in the city at the present time to allow matters to lag. Thanksgiving Day has heretofore been a great athletic day, and we may anticipate in advance a big meeting on next Thanksgiving Day.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The boys all say that they are going to Sacramento. Are they?

Only a few of the crack athletes are training at the present time, and unless some of the others are training on the quiet, we don't see how they can make a good showing on Sept. 17.

Scott, Cooley, Espinosa, Coffin, Jarvis, Casady and Skillman are sure to make a showing should they compete.

Garrison, Luttringer, King, Holland, Armbuster, Casidy, McKinnon and Cooke, of the Alpine Club, are practicing some, and possibly they will all compete.

Charley Little says he would dearly like to be at scratch in the two-mile run. If his whiskers are long enough by that time, he may run in disguise.

There was quite a gathering of runners at the Olympic grounds last Sunday, and several impromptu races were run. Martin Espinosa and C. E. Schlinghyde ran a "hundred." The former was leading when his foot turned under him causing him to fall. He was badly bruised, and received a very severe shock, which may interfere with his training for a few weeks to come. The race was awarded to Schlinghyde, who ran it in 11½ seconds. Steve Casady gave young Kortick 6 yards start in a 220 yard run, and beat him easily in 23 4-5 seconds. P. D. Skillman in company with Scott, McIntyre and Winslow ran one mile, finishing first in 4 min. 42½ secs., which heats the coast record of 4 min. 43 3 5 secs. made by Peter McIntyre. Judging from the easy manner in which the New Yorker ran, it is easily to be seen that he will get down to 4:30 when called upon. Habberly, 10 yds., won a handicap 100-yards run in 10 4-5 secs. Kortick, scratch; Schlinghyde, 3 yds., and Winslow, scratch, also started.

An athletic club has been started at Healdsburg. One of the members, a bona fide amateur, is said to have recently run three trial heats of 100 yards each, in 10¾, 11 and 10 2-5 seconds respectively, without any previous training. The club will apply before long for admission into the P. C. A. A. A.

Frank C. Philips, the Amateur walker of the Alpine Club, was recently married, and is now residing at Healdsburg.

McLeod is training hard for his match with Lewis which comes off in a few days at the Orpheum. We would like to see the Olympian win, but the chances are too many against him. Experts think that Lewis will win the purse inside of forty minutes.

The medals won at the championship meeting have been distributed. They are very neat specimens of the jewelers' art. Now for the Alpine medals

THE WHEELMEN.

The Bay City wheelmen have elected the following Board of Directors to serve for the term of one year: R. M. Thompson, President; Thomas L. Hill, Vice President; George P. Wetmore, Secretary; Thomas H. Doane, Treasurer; C. W. Hammer, W. D. Sheldon, W. M. Meeker, C. C. Moore, Jas. G. Cox, C. V. Langton, Fred Ruas Cook.

A few members of the Oakland Bicycle Club are determined to enter the road race and are in strict training with the intention of making a good showing.

Club run No. 11 of the Oakland Bicycle Club will be held to-morrow to San Leandro. The Bay City wheelmen and Alameda Bicycle Clubs have been invited to join in the run. Members are requested to assemble at the corner of 8th and Broadway Streets at 9.30 A. M. Refreshments will be served by the Committee of Arrangements.

Several of the Bay City wheelmen will accompany W. S Doane of Boston and possibly Mr. Weaver, the young bicyclist recently arrived from the East, to San Mateo this afternoon where they will be the guests of Steve Knapp. Tomorrow morning the party will leave for San Jose and neighboring towns and will get back to the city early on Monday morning.

R. M. Thompson, George P. Wetmore, Sanford Plummer, Steve Knapp, W. M. Meeker, C. W. Hammer, T. H. Deane, H. W. Spaulding, and A. C. Landis enjoyed a very pleasant trip on their safeties on Sunday last. The run was to Mount Tamalpais. Knapp and Hammer carried their machines to the very highest point of the rocky summit, a feat never before accomplished. The party left on the 8 o'clock boat and did not return to the city until late in the evening.

The East Hartford Wheel Club held races at the track in Hartford, Ct., on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 2. The weather being fine there was a good attendance, and the track was in first rate condition, some very good racing was witnessed, although there was no record smashing indulged in. Summary:

Half mile, novice—F C Graves, Springfield, Mass., first in 1m 36 2-5secs.; F E Wyman, Springfield, second, by fifteen yards; J A Hagberg, Norwich, Ct., third.

One mile, bicycle—Final heat: F C Graves, Springfield, Mass., 50yds start, first, in 1m 24s; C M Murphy, New York Athletic Club, 25yds, second; L L Clark, New York Athletic Club, 25yds, 0; H C Wakefield, Springfield, Massachusetts, 40yds, 0.

Half mile, safety bicycle, novice—Frank Fuller, Hartford, first, in 1:43 2-5s; G B Clarke, Hartford, 0; A. Phelon, Mittenesgue, Mass., 0.

One mile bicycle—Final heat: C M Murphy, New York Athletic Club, 25yds, first, in 3m 9 4-5s; Charles Sage, 40 yds, second, after a good race; L L Clarke, New York Athletic Club, 25yds, 0; George Whitehead, Hartford, 60 yards, 0.

One mile bicycle, safety—W F Murphy, New York Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 3m 8 2-5s; A A Francis, Hartford, second, in 3 minutes 11secs; Frank Fuller, Hartford, third.

One mile bicycle, open—C M Murphy, New York Athletic Club, first, in 3m 15 1 5s; L L Clarke, New York Athletic Club, second, by half a length; William James, East Hartford, third.

One mile, 3m 20s class—F C Graves, Springgeld, first, in 3 min. 15 2-5secs; A A Francis, Hartford, second; M Wainwright, Hartford, third.

One and a half mile lap race—C M Murphy, New York New York Athletic Club, finished first in every lap, his total time being 4m 58 4 5s; William James, East Hartford, and L, L Clarke, New York Athletic Club, tied for the second place.

One mile, consolation—Fred Herman, Hartford, and C M Culver, Springfield, rode a dead heat in 3m 43 4-5s, and the run off, one lap, was won by the former.

Team race, one mile—Sage, Lyman and Francis, of Hartford, first, in 3m 23 3-5s; Wilkinson, Grimes and Wyman, Springfield, second. Lyman finished ahead.

R. J. Mecredy, the speedy Celtic rider, had another successful shy at existing records at the Paddington Gronuda, London, Eng., on July 26th, and made fresh times from three miles up, inclusive, the figures being: Three miles, 7 min 57 3 5s; four miles, 10m 39 1-5s; five miles, 13m 6 2-5s. On the 29th, at the same place, mounted again on a pneumatic-tyred safety bicycle, Mecredy broke all records from six miles to twenty-one, the total distance being accomplished in 58m 40 1 5s. The previous best time was 59m 48 4-5secs. On the 29th J F Walsh, of the Catford Bicycle Club beat both the fifty and one hundred miles road record for ordinary bicycles on the Great North Road, Eng., his time for the shorter distance being 2h 51m 10s, and for the full distance 6h 47m 15s. On the following day, S D Beghi and P E Driver, members of the North Road Club, mounted on a Hanley tandem tricycle, rode one hundred miles over the usual course from Hitchin to Peterborough, across to Lynn and back to five miles from Wisbech, accomplishing the distance in 6h 50m 16s, thus lowering the long standing record of Edge and Morris by seven minutes. F. T. Bedlake was timekeeper.

The record for twenty-five miles road riding made by W. F. Murphy in the annual race over the Irvington-Milburn course on Memorial Day of this year was wiped out on Saturday, August 2nd, by C. E. Kluge, the winner of the race arranged by the Hudson County Wheelmen and which was run over the New Rochelle course. The starters were half a dozen in number, and the weather and road were both good, while the spectators were not too numerous to mention. Result: C E Kluge, Hudson County Wheelmen, first, 1h 26m 40s; C W Bayes, Kings County Wheelmen, second, in 1h 34 min. 42s; A A Zimmerman, New Jersey Athletic Club, third, 1h 34m 48s; E T McLaughlin, Hudson County Wheelmen, fourth, 1h 41m 35 ; E M Smith, Hudson County Wheelmen, fifth, 1h 47m. The course was six miles and a quarter, from Larchmont to Rye, which was gone over four times.

We have received a copy of the Official Home Book of the League of American Wheelmen issued by the New York L A W. The publication is very neat in appearance and contains the following information and portraits: Register of Bicycle Clubs, By-laws of the L A W, Colorado, Official list of Consuls, etc., in Connecticut, List of Consuls, etc., Constitution of L A W Official list of Consuls, Hotel and Repair Shops in the United States, Members of National Committee, Official List of Consuls, etc. in Delaware, Official List of Consuls, etc., in District of Columbia, Address of Division Officers, Portrait of J. In the second inning the Alameda Club made 98 runs, and when the game was called at 5 o'clock the Burnabys had made but 24, thus being badly defeated.

The married and single men of the Burnaby Club will play a match game to-morrow afternoon.

Never before was such an interest taken in cricket on the Pacific Coast as at the present time. By next season it is more than probable that some of the interest now taken in base-ball will be transferred over to the Cricketers side.

Surrey scored 517 runs for the loss of eight wickets in a match against Derbyshire, July 24th and 25th, at the Oval, London, Eng. The 517 runs were obtained in five hours and a half of actual play, which gives an average of over ninety runs an hour. Hall made no fewer than 20 runs from one over, in the second inning of Derbyshire. The runs were got from Lockwood, and each of the five balls were sent to the boundary. The next ball Hall had, which was from Bowley, he put through the slips for four, so that from six consecutive balls he scored as many as 24 runs.

Chatterton, of the Derbyshire County team was dismissed in a curious manner in a match against Notts, July 28th, at Derby, Eng. He played a ball of Shacklock's against his body and hugged it. The wicket keeper, Sherwin, jumped forward and put his arms around Chatterton, trying to catch the ball, when Chatterton seized it in his hand and threw it down. The umpire, when appealed to, had no alternative but to give him out for handling the ball.

An invitation was cabled the Australian team now in England to play in this country at the end of September or the beginning of October, on their homeward journey. It is not likely, however, that the Australian manager will accept the invitation, the team having determined when they leave England to go direct home, instead of by the way of steamer from San Francisco.

An eleven, composed of employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, defeated the Belmont Club, August 9th, at Philadelphia by 251 to 122, the totals of the first inning. Pacey and A. E. Smith of the winning team, each made 112 runs, the former being not out.

The Manhattan and Staten Island Clubs played August 7th, at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, the former then winning by 79 to 65, the totals of the first inning.

No fewer than 30,279 people paid for admittance to the England vs. Australian's cricket match at Lord's, London, Eng., July 21, 22 and 23. The gate receipts amounted to $7,500, while the proceeds from the grand stand amounted to $500 more.

N. Wood of the Kings County team, took seven of the New York Club's wickets, for only fifteen runs in a game played August 9th. One inning was played, the New Yorks winning by 51 to 36.

Alameda appears to be the home of the cricketers.

IN THE SURF.

The Harbor View baths were crowded on Sunday.

The Sheltered Cove baths are not doing a very big business just now.

Captain Jack Williams, the well known swimmer, was arrested a couple of days ago for robbery.

The Palace and Crystal baths are crowded nightly.

The report that Charley Rochette, the boxer, had been drowned while bathing at Santa Cruz was without foundation.

Swimming is still booming at Monterey, Capitola and Santa Cruz. It is possible that the season will close later than usual.

The Terrace baths at Alameda did a rushing business on Saturday and Sunday. A very sad accident happened on Saturday afternoon when the gallery was crowded with spectators. Eddie Troy, the fifteen year old son of G. H. Troy of Oakland fell from the swing as he came over the platform, and as he fell his head struck the extended plank. He fell into the water and sank unconscious to the bottom of the tank. The bathers who saw the lad fall jumped after him and with much difficulty found him far under the platform. He was soon resuscitated and carried home. He is likely not to get over his injuries.

The New York Swimming Club will hold their first open handicap amateur swimming races on September 13th. The distance will be 220 yards, 440 yards and 880 yards, and six valuable prizes will be given in each race. Entrance fee, 50 cents to each race; entries close September 13th, with John Hatton, corresponding secretary, foot of East Sixty-fifth St., New York City. It is the purpose of the club to make race swimming as popular as the many other branches of sport. Among the members of the club are H I Braun, holder of the 100 yards swimming record; Chas. Renner, Geo. Renner, G Bishop Marks, of the Atlanta Boat Club; J J McDermott, of the Union Boat Club; Chas. Ams and John Hatton, of the defunct Spartan Harriers; Wm. Bull, the speedy swimmer; Chas. T Duffy, of the Ravenswood Boat Club; Chas. I. Perkins, of the Ramapo Valley Outing Club. The officers of the club are: H T Braun, president; Chas. Renner, first vice-president; A Braun, second vice-president; Chas. Ams, treasurer; Geo. Renner, recording secretary; John Hatton, corresponding secretary; J E Shellbarger, captain; William Bull, first lieutenant; E Ams, second lieutenant.

The swimming competitions for the championship of the Amateur Athletic Union will take place under the auspices of the Manhattan Athletic Club this year. They will come off at Bay Ridge, L. I., on Aug. 28th.

W C Johnson, a member of the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York on Sunday afternoon, August 10th, made a successful attack on the American amateur swimming record for one hundred yards. The essay was made at Bensonhurst, L. I., on a measured course, and under the supervision of W B Curtis, H E Buermeyer and other well known and competent amateur athletes, who are much interested in swimming. Johnson accomplished the distance in 1 m. 15 1-5 s., thus eclipsing the record made by Dr. Hermann Braun, of the New York Athletic Club.

Joseph Nuttall and James Finnsy, the celebrated English professionals, have been matched to swim for the mile championship, the cup offered by The Sporting Life and $250 a side, in the sea at Brighton, England, on August 30th. This will be a sporting event upon which a lot of money is pretty sure to be wagered.

AT THE OARS.

At the last meeting of the Pacific Rowing Association a motion to classify the weights of the oarsmen was lost.

The Picnic Committee of the Pacific Rowing Association is still out and does not seem to be very fortunate in securing a suitable place for the holding of the annual picnic. An effort was made to secure Harbor View Park but another society got there first.

The P R A is in good standing just now which speaks well for rowing. Every club of any importance on the coast is a member and the next regatta will certainly be a grand affair.

The oarsmen are getting into great shape for the N. S. G. W. regatta. On Sunday the bay was fairly covered with shells and barges.

Tennison and Oser, ex-members of the Stockton crew have joined the Ariel Club.

The single scull race for professionals will be worth seeing. It is expected that Van Guelpen, Growney, Long, Cochrane, Sullivan, Peterson Bros., Hencemann and others will compete.

Some time ago the membership of the Lurline Club was thinned down considerably on account of the Board of Directors expelling several delinquent members. The club is building up again and in a short while the membership roll will be larger than ever.

The Alameda Club members are working hard getting into trim for coming events. A clam chowder feast was given at the boat house last Sunday afternoon when the Alameda brass band was present and discoursed sweet music. A half mile race was rowed between Boltimer and Burns and Pfeiffer and Schumaker, the latter pair winning.

Size of Horses.

In a recent article under the above caption, the Rural Spirit of Portland, Ore., very correctly says: "The question now among breeders is how to produce an animal that will give the best returns for the money paid for its rearing. But as the value is rated by quality, size cuts no figure, unless the breeder should determine that greater size could be added to animals that now appear to be the most popular."

The declaration that "size cuts no figure," so long as quality is kept uppermost in sight, is amply borne out by the performances of some of the greatest turf horses, both trotters and gallopers, that have so far appeared upon the American tracks. Among the former we had Jay-Eye-See, barely 15 hands high, with a record of 2:10; Phallas, 2:13¾, so small that notwithstanding he had the best stallion record of any living horse, Mr. Corbitt purchased the untried Guy Wilkes in preference to him; and Alcazar, 2:20, barely over 15 hands and an inch high, but so beautifully formed that no man could guess within an inch of his true height. Moreover, the once famous May Howard, 2:24, was by Paddy McGee, a little gray pony 14½ hands high, with a record of 2:33¼.

Among the gallopers we recall the famous three-miler of olden times, Little Flea, by Grey Eagle out of an imported mare by Acteon. He was but 14¾ hands high, and not only did three miles in 5:33½, but subsequently drove Red Eye out in a second heat of four miles in 7:39¼. Sherrod, who won a second heat of three miles in 5:34, and lapped Molly Jackson out in a third heat in 5:28¾, the record to this very day, although the race was run twenty-nine years ago, was even a smaller horse than the Flea. Underhand, one of the cracks of the English turf, won the Northumberland Plate three years consecutively, carrying 122 pounds in his victory of 1859. He won the great Ebor handicap at York, with 127 lbs. up, and a Queen's Plate, with 129 lbs., at five years old. Underhand was not fifteen hands high till he was five years old.

Imported Albion, who headed the winning sires of 1859, and was second to Revenue in the list of 1860 by only $14 of winnings, was a black horse just 15 hands high. Glencoe, the greatest of all our imported sires, was barely 15 hands two inches. Bonnie Scotland was under that height, and Luke Blackburn, his greatest son, never reached that figure till he was past six years old. King Alfonso, who beat both Ten Broeck and Chesapeake, was barely 15½ hands, and his world-famous son Foxhall was even smaller. Bramble, the crack two miler of 1879, was barely 15 hands high, and was known as the "Tennessee Runt" all through his long turf career, and it is doubtful if a more consistent performer (always barring Hanover and Miss Woodford) ever carried the famous Dwyer colors to victory.

Hence we say the first question in the purchase of a sire is accuracy of form; next, fashionable blood; and next to those comes the consideration of size. So long as you confine yourself to horses of 15½ hands, it is not hard to find a true-made animal, but when you get among the sixteen-handers, then you are in danger of getting a horse that is in some point defective. One of the best formed horses in America is Terra Cotta, who is about 15 hands three inches high. He was a capital performer, and we believe him destined to become noted as a sire.

Antelope 2:23 1-2.

The trotting horse world is forced to believe that John H. Wallace has been of incalculable benefit in bringing the American Trotting Register to its present condition, and although there may be some who do not believe in the old gentleman's methods, still, beyond peradventure, he has brought order out of chaos. Every now and again he fancies that a "mare's nest" has been discovered and straightway flies himself away to his pen, and the next number of the "Monthly" contains some article fairly bristling with long drawn out points, and usually ending with an assumption that "things are not as they should be." The Breeder and Sportsman has used every endeavor to send on information in regard to pedigrees that have been advertised for, recognizing that every one should do all in his power to straighten out the oft times tangled web, but it would seem that Bro. Wallace will only accept such as suit his own fancy. The year book contains the intelligence that John Nelson died in 1871, and yet almost three months ago we published the facts in the case and proved by the owner of the old horse that John Nelson did not die until the fall of 1878, but as yet Mr. Wallace has failed to notify those interested (through the Monthly) that a mistake had occurred in his office in regard to the time of death. In the current number of Wallace's Monthly there appears the following screed:

"After a long search we have at last come into possession of the fact that a horse called Antelope, and represented to be by Nutwood, did trot in a race at Spokane Falls, Wash., July 5, 1889, and won a race in the first, second and fourth heats, time, 2:23½, 2:29, 2:28½, 2:26, Edward C. winning the third heat. No summary of this race has been published, but a full description of all the events of the different heats was published in the Morning Review, of Spokane Falls, dated July 6, 1889. The competing horses were Edwin C., Harry Velox, Bishop Hero and Leona. The purse was free for all, and the betting was in favor of Antelope from the start.

The main difficulty in this search has been to determine whether any such race ever took place, and now with that out of the way, we are ready to look after the history, identity and pedigree of this horse, so far as our means of information will carry us. Mr. A. L. Smith, who was then Secretary of the Spokane Falls course, writes that he was then entered as by Nutwood, dam by Jerseyman. He was entered by J. C. Markley, of Palouse Ferry, Wash., and he thinks he was owned by Elijah Duncan of Walla Walla. He thinks also that Mr. William Glassford of Walla Walla, could give some information as to his breeding and origin. It is intimated that Mr. Elijah Duncan, now dead, was the man who brought the horse to Washington, so this is probably the place to begin the tracing back to his breeder.

There are some things that are mysterious as well as unknown about this horse. In 1886 he made his first appearance in Oregon in a single race, and then he started three times at Walla Walla, winning one heat in 2:38½. In these contests he was entered as by Nutwood. Then we hear no more of him till he made his single appearance at Spokane Falls and scored his record of 2:23½. Was he trotting at other places during this long interval and under other names? Let us have a full history of this horse from his birth. The presumption is he is by Nutwood and out of a mare by Jerseyman, but this is only a presumption so far as our knowledge goes. Will not some of our friends give us all the particulars, for somebody knows all about this horse.

As in the past, so in the present, we gladly give a full history of Antelope 2:23½, as almost every one on the Pacific Coast knows it. However, so that there might be no mistake made letters were sent, so as to make sure that we were right, and the following answers are what we have received. The first is from Mr. Duncan, the former owner of the horse. * * * *

As to the history of "Antelope" it is very easily traced from foaling, etc. "Antelope" foaled Apr. 20, 1880; sorrel, with white strip from nose to eyes, a little to one side; two white hind feet, some black spots in different places over the body. "Antelope" by "Nutwood," first dam "Fanny" by "Jerseyman," second dam "Clara" by "Yorkshire Boy," third dam a large bay mare brought from Kentucky and owned by the late John Rucker of Santa Clara Co. Cal. in the year 1856. "Antelope" was bred and raised by Charles Duerr of Alameda Co., living near Pleasanton, an old citizen known and respected by all in that section of the country. I purchased said colt from Mr. Duerr in Nov. 1883. I was living at San Jose at that time. I brought the horse home and kept him there until Jan. 6th, 1884, when I moved him to Santa Rosa, and made a season with him at that place, when he sired "Ned Lock" Mar. 17, 1885. I started across the country to Walla Walla. I located there and made a season with him at that place in 1886. Went from there in August to Montana with "Antelope," "Mamie Comet" and "Mignonette." Trotted "Antelope" at Butte City, Mon., in his first race. Starters—"Wells Fargo," "May Winter," "Antelope" and "Easel."

"Antelope" was sick and not fit to trot while in Montana. I returned him home to Walla Walla, and left him there until I went to Salem, Oregon, with "Mamie Comet" and "Mignonette" and trotted them there, "Mamie Comet" making a record of 2:23½ under the supervision of Hite Hogoboom. I sold "Mamie Comet" while there to Mr. Ellis of Olympia, W. T. I returned to Pendleton with "Mignonette," left her there and went to Walla Walla and drove "Antelope" across the country a distance of forty-five miles through the deep sand and dust and trotted him the next day, winning in straight heats; thence to La Grande, trotted there; thence to Walla Walla where he got a record of 2:38¼. In 1887 he threw out a stifle in his stall while getting up one week before I started to Montana with "Mignonette" and "Gold Elsie." I returned to Walla Walla and started with "Antelope" across the country to California. I arrived at Danville late in October. In Jan. 1888 Mr. J. C. Markley of Palouse Ferry on Snake river, Columbia Co. Wash. Ty. made me an offer for one half interest in the horse which I accepted and gave the other half interest to my two sons Elijah and James Duncan. They returned to Walla Walla with Antelope in Jan. 1888, by way of steamer to Portland, thence to Walla Walla, made a season there in 1888, but did not trot him. Made another season there in 1889 and was trained and trotted in Walla Walla about the 23rd of June, winning third, fourth and fifth heats—thence to Spokane Falls and trotted July 5th, making his record 2:23½.

Elijah Duncan is not dead. Himself and James have had possession of the horse since I disposed of him. "Antelope" has had a big run in the stud this season of 1890. The intention was not to work him this year, and work him next year for a record to beat 2:12. I understand now he is being prepared on short notice to take part in the races at Portland, etc. This is the full history of "Antelope" since Nov. 1883. I have never doubted the horse being bred as Mr. Duerr represented him to me. Mr. Duerr bred and raised first and second dams of "Antelope" and was very proud of them. He showed me a letter from Mr. Knox notifying him that his mare was done with the horse (Nutwood) and the pasture was short and he had better take her home. He also gave me a receipt from Mr. Knox for full payment for services of "Nutwood" in 1879. Mr. Knox owned Nutwood at that time. Hoping this may be satisfactory and clear to all parties, I am as ever, etc, Yours respectfully.

F. L. Duncan.

Mr. Charles Duerr of Sunol who bred Antelope, also contributes the following:

Sunol, Aug. 16, 1890.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Yours of yesterday is at hand. The pedigree of Antelope as given you by Mr. F. L. Duncan, is correct, with the exception of the color of Clara's dam; she was a roan, and not bay. Her sire's name (whom you call Yorkshire Boy) I never have been able to learn. This much I know: he was a thoroughbred, imported from Australia early in the fifties, together with three more of his class; he was taken sick on the voyage and lost all the hair out of his tail and mane. The late Daniel Murphy became the owner of the horse; his Spanish vaqueros gave him the Spanish name "Poche" (Bobtail) in accordance with his looks. Some four years ago I made an attempt to get the true name of the horse under which he was registered in Australia. Unfortunately, while I addressed my letter to Mr. Murphy to San Jose, his home, he was absent in Nevada on a business trip, where he died quite suddenly. This, of course, stopped all further efforts in that direction. [The horse referred to is evidently Chloroform.—Ed.] This horse was the sire of Clara. Her dam, the above mentioned roan mare was owned by the late John Rucker of Santa Clara County; in 1863 I bought Clara of Mr. Rucker; in 1869 Fanny was foaled (by Jerseyman); in 1879 Fanny was bred to Nutwood at San Jose; in 1880 foaled Antelope, now owned by F. L. Duncan. You may rest assured that the above is a correct statement of facts, and will be proved beyond a doubt if necessary. On what information this man Wallace bases his assertion is unknown to me, as I don't keep his paper. Whatever he may have to say on the matter must necessarily be based on negative evidence, and is utterly false in so far as it may conflict with the facts as above stated.

Truly yours, Chas. Duerr.

Now, Mr. Wallace, there is the history of Antelope 2:23½, as straight as a string, and with such evidence as that it must be believed.

The Occident Stake, annually trotted at Sacramento, is usually a race of great interest, but it is feared that this year will prove an exception to the rule. The last payment came due only a few days ago, and but two entries were paid up on, the first being Coral by Electioneer, dam Columbine (dam of Antevo 2:16¼ and Antevelo 2:19¼) by A. W. Richmond; the second is Mosa Rose, by Antevo dam Luella by Nutwood, 2d dam by Bell Alta, 3rd dam by Gen Taylor. Palo Alto Stock Farm owns Coral and Mosa Rose is owned by Lot D. Slocum.

The Trotter in Australia.

The great South Continent, which has bred some of the greatest gallopers the world ever saw, has not yet attempted to rival America at the diagonal gait. Several very game and well-gaited horses have been bred there, and 2:32, by a Colonial-bred horse, was reached several years ago; still, there seems to have been no one there capable of improving the gait and increasing the manifest staying powers of the animal referred to. Hence what little spirit was evinced in this direction, reached its maximum some six years ago, and then relapsed into a total atrophy.

Much of this was largely due to the character of trotting trainers, several of whom went from here, and it might be said, without exaggeration, to have left California for California's good. There was nothing in the way of jobbery and conspiracy at which they hesitated. Therefore it was no wonder that the Australian promoters of the new sport found out they were "getting it in the neck," and abandoned trotting altogether. And as one of the miscreants referred to now lies rotting in his grave, and another goes prowling about these streets with every vestige of intelligence blotted out of his rum-soddeu features, the less said about it the better.

One of their victims was a gentleman who was in his youth the rival of the lamented Adam Lindsay Gordon as a cross country rider. In his riper years we scarcely know in which capacity to admire him most—the up right merchant, the intelligent farmer, the genial host, or the sincere and unselfish friend; and a second visit to Gladys Park, within the short space of two years, only intensified the doubt. This gentleman owned a trotting horse and had been working him along up to a great race on the festina lente principle. One day came the signal for the great coup and the horse was fit to trot for an empire. The owner said, "Now, lads, twenty pounds for each of you I've taken at 8 to 1, and for you (to his trainer) a cool century." Almost anywhere else this would have been a temptation to honesty, but the ring knew their power too well. The race was a dash of three miles and the horse literally "walked in." At the scales his driver was found to be three pounds short of weight.

The gentleman immediately paid off all his help and sold out his horses. He goes to Elsternwick Park to see every race, yet it is not from any love of trotting, but merely to keep his friends from being robbed as he was robbed, for he is President of the Club, and a very severe judge in the stand. This case is one within our personal knowledge, but it is only one of many in which liberal and progressive gentlemen have had their confidence abused while seeking to build up a healthy and exciting sport.

Despite all this, there is really in the colonies a good market for a certain class of trotters—mares and stallions that are well able to pull weight. A big, strong roadster that can pull a wagon in 3:00 and can trot in 2:35 to harness, is always saleable; and moreover, such a horse will bring as much money as a track trotter that can go in 2:30 to sulky and cannot acquit himself creditably on the road. Such a stallion, if anywise well bred, would readily sell for $1,500, and a mare for nearly as large a sum. Captain Merry goes out there again in October, and is liable to take along several head of the grade we have just described. He says he will have no difficulty in finding purchasers.

Will Be a Big Sale.

F. J. Berry & Co's mammoth breeders sale in November, at the Union Stock Yard Stables at Chicago, promises to eclipse all previous efforts of this enterprising firm. In addition to large number of applications for entry blanks many well known breeders from Illinois, California, Kentucky and in fact all parts of the country have signified their intention of attending and purpose to buy stallions, mares and young stock for breeding purposes.

The best accommodations in every way are offered for the care of stock.

Being the greatest railroad centre in the world it is easy of access from all parts of the country and the rates of transportation are low.

Fine tracks have been laid out and every chance is given to test the horses.

Berry & Co. themselves are practical men in this line of business in which they have been engaged for the past thirty five years and are acquainted with almost all the breeders and dealers in the Union.

Those having stock for sale will find it to their advantage to send for entry blanks to F. J. Berry & Co., Union Stock Yard Stables, Chicago.

Foals of 1890.

Mr. C. Halverson sends us from Routiers Station a list of the foals which his brood mares have had this year.

On March 29th, bay horse colt, with black points, star in forehead and small white strip below, left hind pastern white, and the left fore coronet white; by Hidalgo, dam Maggie S by Bayonet. The mare has been bred to imp. Cheviot.

On April 7th 1890 Irene Harding by Jack Malone, foaled sorrel horse colt, two hind legs white half way to hock; white strip in face; sire Prince of Norfolk. The mare has been bred to Pay Car, a son of Ross S.

Mr. Halverson's mare, Isabelle by Norfolk, dam Maggie S. has also been bred to imp. Cheviot.

The Alta-Kitty Ham Race.

The long contest between Alta and Kitty Ham has been brought to a close by a decisive victory for the big mare, and so far as it can be considered a test of the breeds, a victory as well for the Altamonts, says the Oregonian.

The history of the match is briefly this: Alta and Kitty had come together several times this season, with other horses in the races, Kitty always winning. Mr. Frank Enos, the driver of Alta, although always bowing gracefully to his defeats, had a conviction that his mare could beat Kitty in a race where the Ham mare did not have helpers. He accordingly came back to Portland determined, if possible, to get backers for a match with Kitty. He had his pocket full of pool tickets on his mare, and, as he expressed it, "where I ought to have $1,400, I have nothing." From one to another he went, beginning with the Matlocks, who owned Alta, trying to get support for a match. The Matlocks knew better than anyone else the danger of depending on a lame horse, and could not see their way clear to give Enos the financial encouragement he needed. Others also declined to interest themselves in the matter, until Mr. L P. W. Quimby, who at first hesitated, naturally enough, having a stable of trotters of his own, agreed to back Enos for the requisite $500, and the challenge was issued. It was accepted in due course of time by Charles Smith, Mr. Tongue's driver, and so far as appears, the owners had no further interest in the match, so far as money goes than the gate receipts, which are understood to have been agreed to go to the owner of the winner.

The day for the great race dawned clear and bright. It was an ideal race day, a clear sky and just enough breeze to make the temperature comfortable. As was expected, lovers of horse flesh rallied to the occasion. Among visiting horsemen noticed on the track were: T. H. Tongue, W. H. Matlock, T. J. Matlock, Byron Barlow, of Tacoma, Jerome Porter, Charles Woods, C. J. Mosier, Jay Beach, W. L. Whitmore, Wm. Glassford of Walla Walla, Neil Hogoboom, of Baker City, and J. W. Privett. A large crowd was in attendance—probably between 800 and 900.

SUMMARY.

Match race—Trotting; three in five. Stake $1 000 and gate receipts.

Matlock Bros.' Alta, 6 m, by Altamont, dam by Mike, son of Vermont	Sawyer	1	1 1
T. H. Tongue's Kitty Ham, 6m, 9, by Hambletonian Mambrino dam by Iron Duke	Smith	2	2 2

Time, 2:28, 2:29, 2:27½.

The betting—Kitty Ham $25, Alta $20; Kitty Ham $20, Alta $20; Alta $20, Kitty Ham $18. Mutuals paid on Alta $9 60.

The Heat.—Sometime previous to the race the mares were jogged about the track, and they never looked finer. Each showed the result of weeks of the most careful handling known to the trainer's and rubber's art. Each was in her turn the delight of her many admirers. In the judges' stand were P. J. Mann, E J. Jeffrey and Joe Buchtel. Buchtel did the starting and the talking to the drivers. Doc Littlefield and Jack Robertson timed. Before starting, Mr. Mr. Buchtel called the drivers' attention to the new rules, which made it impossible for a horse to be given a beat after making four breaks in the mile.

Alta drew the pole. The mares scored well, getting off quickly, with Kitty slightly in the lead. Alta made a jump on the turn, one of her peculiar moves which threw her off her feet, and Kitty took the pole. Alta was right at work again and kept closely after. She kept herself well after until about the middle of the backstretch, when Sawyer appeared to be saving her, for from the half to the three-quarters she was two to three lengths behind. But once around the last turn it was a killing pace that Alta set. Up and up she crawled, first at the wheel, then inch by inch Sawyer sent her along. "Can Ham stand the raise?" "No, she is up!" And while Smith is endeavoring to bring her down, but in vain, Sawyer drives the Altamont under the wire half a length ahead, amid cheers from hundreds of throats.

SECOND HEAT.

The Betting.—Auction pools: Alta $20, Kitty Ham $15. Mutuals paid on Alta $10.

The Heat.—After a very nice start, Kitty took the pole by a clever bit of running at the first turn. But for all that it was a very pretty race, just as all the heats were. Alta made a small break on the second turn, so did Kitty at the half post, though she kept ahead. It was nip and tuck on the home stretch, and it looked as though Alta would again force Smith to crowd Ham off her feet. Smith did put the whip on pretty lively, but finished, in splendid style, a close second. After the heat the judges announced that had Kitty finished fifty feet ahead she would have been put back that much on account of the twenty-five feet she gained on her running.

THIRD HEAT.

The Betting.—Auction pools, Alta $20, Kitty Ham $10. Mutuals paid on Alta $8 75.

The Heat.—It was neck and neck almost all the way around. In response to a request from Sawyer, the judges put a patrolman out to watch that portion of the track between the half and three-quarters which cannot well be seen from the stand. Kitty had the lead until after the half post, when Alta passed her. At the head of the home stretch they were even; 100 yards from the wire Kitty was ahead and was coming down at a 23 gait, finishing first by a good length. The heat was given to Alta on Sawyer's claim of two fouls supported by the testimony of the patrolman.

What ails Alta's leg? That is a question which many have asked and which a reporter put to the Matlocks last evening. They say it was caused by her foot slipping down between a car and platform when she was being loaded after the Salem meeting two years ago. The swelling, which appears to be in the inside chord of her right hind ankle can be plainly seen. Alta has shown herself in all her work a horse that can be depended on, and one that is wonderfully game. She has trotted heats in fast time when her foot was so bad that she limped with apparent pain when walking out of her stall to be hitched up. Last year she was leased by Mr. Matlock to John Penman for the Butte meeting for $450 It was here that her time on a heat was announced as 2:26, but afterwards corrected to 2:26¼. Then J. P. Woolman gave $1,250 for the use of her during the rest of the Montana circuit. At Anaconda, Woolman, whose backing is well known to be free, bought the first five auction pools sold, for $61. They called for $1,365, and though Alta was the cheapest horse in the race, she won it in three straight heats. At Deer Lodge she was first in two and second in five out of seven heats, all trotted in between 2:26½ and 2:30.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public that he will be prepared to meet his old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S, 1117 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

A. C. C.

Please let me know through your columns cure for capped elbow or more commonly called shoe boil. I have here a very fine draft stallion that has a large shoe boil, of about a year's standing, on his left foreleg.

Answer.—It is best to cut it out with a knife. See our issue of August 9th, this year.

J. L.

My colt has a small splint just below the knee. It lames him when I trot him. What is best to do for it.

Answer.—Apply a beniodide of mercury blister, one part to eight of lard.

N. I. B.

What shall I do to remove lump between hoof and pastern joint? Sometimes the horse goes lame.

Answer.—Is the lump hard? If so it is most probably a ringbone, and will require to be fired and blistered. Even this may not remove the lameness if it is of long standing or on an old horse.

P. T.

My mare fills a little along the back tendons when I drive her hard; what should I do for it?

Answer.—Do not drive her hard. Apply bandages, wet with some leg wash, or vinegar.

E E. C.

I would like you to tell me through your paper the name of the disease described in the following and if possible a remedy, as there is a great deal of stock, both horses and cattle dying with it in this valley.

In some cases the first symptoms are first, difficulty in using some one or more of the legs, then a loss of appetite, and then a swelling appears in different places on different ones. On one animal it came on the neck just above the point of the shoulder, on another it first appeared about half way up the neck between head and shoulders. The first animal that had it here was one that was where no other stock held any communication with him, and the next was running in a field at least a mile away. It does not seem to attack stock that run together and so does not appear to be contagious but must be carried by flies and propagated by inoculation. I have lost two horses by it so please tell what it is if you can, also a remedy, or still better a preventive.

Answer.—Your description of the disease is not definite enough. In the two horses that you have had affected, which of the legs (hind or fore) did you first notice the stiffness in? How long were the horses lame before getting off their feed, and what period elapsed from then till their death? What size were the swellings and did they appear soft or hard, and did you open them (the swellings) after death and find out what they consisted of? Had the horses free access to running water? Is the ground marshy or low? About what age were the horses? Were the glands between the jaws enlarged, and had they a discharge from the nostrils? Did the horses appear dull, or excited, or did they show signs of abdominal pain? Was there distress in breathing, or the respiration accompanied by any noise? Was the urine bloody or the manure dark in color? Did you notice any muscular twitchings over the body? Did you find on post mortem examination the blood dark or a bright red, the spleen enlarged, the contents of the intestines and bladder mixed with blood, or dark in color? Did you notice any ulcers in any parts of the body? You have not given any symptoms of the disease in the cattle. Please answer as many of the above questions as you can and describe the symptoms and duration of the disease in the cattle and we will reply in our next issue.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

S. & de G.

Will you kindly inform us through your columns whether there will be any races at Grass Valley this fall, and if there is any programme out or not. Have not seen any, and yet it seems rather late.

Answer.—The races at Glenbrook Park have been postponed. The Directors will give ample notice, so that all who desire to attend may do so.

J. W. H.

Is there a stallion in California named Sandy Wilkes? What is his pedigree? Who and where owned at present, and where was he bred? Is he standard?

Answer.—We do not know of a horse by that name.

L C. W.

Will you kindly give me the pedigree of the pacer Little Mac, who got a low record on the grand circuit in the East last year?

Answer.—Little Mac made his record in 1886; it is 2:13¾. He is by Kentucky Dan, dam not traced.

L. M.

What is Steve Whipple's record? What year was Oakland Maid foaled?

Answer.—Steve Whipple, 2:23. Oakland Maid was foaled in 1868.

A Jockey Suspended.

We have received a notification from Edwin F. Smith, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, that Chas. Hitchcock (jockey) has been suspended for breach of contract made with Mr. L. U. Shippee, of Stockton.

The Stockholders of the Tacoma Speeding and Exhibition Association have held a meeting and elected a Board of Directors for the ensuing six months. The gentlemen so honored, are Wm. Freeman, Byron Young, Dr. Wintermute, J. M. Fuller, Stuart Rice, Jno S. Baker and J. R Patton. At a meeting of the Board of Directors, Mr. Rice was elected President, Mr. Baker Vice-President, J. W. Van Fossen Secretary and Mr. Patton Treasurer. It was also decided to hold a race meeting of four days, commencing August 25th, at which $6,000 will be offered in prizes.

Grim's Gossip.

The betting talent all drink Peruvian Bitters and as a consequence are winning money.

Jno. A. Goldsmith has been putting Stamboul through his work at Napa during the week, and on last Wednesday morning drove him an easy mile, but completed the last quarter in 34 seconds.

At the West Side Race Course, Chicago, last week, A. Mill's chestnut gelding Bob Thomas, sired by Enquirer, out of Pevtonia Barry, broke the record at one mile over hurdles, with 148 pounds up, he covering the distance in 1:49.

Silas Skinner 2:21 has proved himself speedy enough to go with the best of his class, but many of the horsemen doubt whether his gait should really be called a trot. When going at a high rate of speed he does the galloping act with his hind legs.

Mr. E. S. Culver, the Secretary of the Blood Horse Association, has been under the weather lately and was not able to prepare the list of entries received by the association for the stake races in time for this issue, but will have them ready for publication in the next.

Wm. Hendrickson, who was at one time owner of George M. Patchen Jr., is highly delighted with the showing now being made by many trottera which are ont of Patchen mares. He says that the people of California are now beginning to realize that the Patchen blood is as valuable as any that was ever brought to this State.

H. W. Hoagland, formerly of Denver, has located in Oakland, where he will follow his profession of veterinary dentist. Dr. Hoagland comes recommended by some of the best horsemen in the Western States and undoubtedly will give satisfaction to those who may employ his services here. The address is 1017 Castro St., Oakland.

Gatling, by Nordenfelt, is thought to be one of the coming kings of the Australian turf. He is owned by William Gannon, whose colors have been so often carried to victory by Melos, Arsenal, and the Australian Peer. His trainer is the vetersan, Harry Raynor. Nordenfelt's progeny all indicate a high order of speed and endurance.

On Wednesday next the Monmouth Park Association will give a special day's racing, one of the features of which will be an attempt by Salvator to beat the grand record of Raveloe 1:39½, at a mile. If any horse in the country can beat the time, it is Mr. Haggins' representative, and I fully expect if day and track be good to see a new record established.

I am sorry to have to announce to the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman that on the morning of Monday last, Mr. S. N. Straube, proprietor of the Poplar Grove Breeding Farm, lost his residence by fire. A defective flue is supposed to have been the cause of the conflagration. It is with great pleasure we learn that the building was insured for almost its full value.

Mr. Charles Kerr of Bakersfield was in town the early portion of the week and paid me a call to inform me that at last his exceedingly fine track, situated on his breeding farm has been finished, and that he is more than satisfied with it. Mr. Kerr is fast assuming the proportions of a leading breeder, as his stock of brood mares is of the very best, comprising both thoroughbreds and trotters.

The San Mateo Stock Farm, in addition to owning Regal Wilkes, who is expected to show a phenomenal mile this year, has also a yearling by Sable Wilkes, whom many think can beat Norlaine's record. A few days ago at Napa the colt was worked a half mile in 1:17, the last quarter being negotiated in the exceedingly good time of 36½ seconds. With a few week's more work Norlaine's 2.31½ is liable to be in danger.

After the mishap that happened to Geo. Bayliss and the stallion, Bob Mason on Tuesday last at Napa, it was really a wonder that he had the nerve to finish the hard fought out race; however, on Wednesday morning he found that his arm and right shoulder were so stiff that it would be impossible for him to drive during the remainder of the week, and John McConnell, probably better known as "Buster", has been seated behind the Gifford horses at Napa.

Sometimes one can see very funny paragraphs owing to a slip made by a writer or typographical errors. Under which heading the following comes would be hard to tell.

"I have sold for my patrons as follows: To Capt. T. Herndon, Clarkville Tenn, the chestnut mare Annapolis Girl, trial 2:27, foaled 1879, by Young Sentinel, 1280 (record 2:26); dam by Felter's Hambletonian, 867; second dam by American Star, 14. She has been bred to Sunol, three year record, 2:10½."

For the past few weeks Jno. Williams has had charge of Alaska, an Electioneer stallion owned by J. B. Haggin. Although the work has necessarily been of very short duration, owing to a large service done in the stud this year, on last Friday Williams drove Alaska a full mile in 2:20 without a skip or break. It is the intention to put Alaska in the 2:30 list as soon as possible, and that will enhance the value of his colts considerably when sold at Mr. Haggin's annual sale in the East.

Last Monday morning McConnell drove Beaury Mc a quarter of a mile on the Napa track in 32 seconds, and the gentlemen who had entries in the three-minute class at Napa having been informed of the easy manner in which the horse won at San Jose, offered Mr. Williams, his owner, first money in Thursday's races if he would keep his horse in the stable and allow the others to light for the balance of the money. Mr. Williams consented so Beaury did not take part in the three-minute contest.

Almost every week in the year one can hear of gentlemen, who, for the first time, have commenced to break trotting horses for track use. The large price now paid by Eastern purchasers for California bred horses encourages this great attention to the trotters, and every little while inquiries come to this office asking where good breaking carts may be purchased. From experience, we would recommend among others, that our readers who require a first-class breaking cart, should call and see those now offered for sale by the Deere Implement Co., 305 and 307 Market Street, San Francisco. In addition to these A 1 carts, the firm also has for sale road carts, spring wagons, buggies, phætons, and, in fact, everything in that line of goods.

The Stewart-Hickok confederation took in a barrel of money on the 2:20 class trot at Buffalo, in which Walter E. won after nine desperate heats. The race was a large and juicy one to the pool sellers. Charley Stiles alone sold $73,000 worth of tickets on the race This amount was the second largest ever sold at one stand on a harness race. In round figures $66,000 went into one box July 17th, 1883 at Chicago, when Richhall beat Buffalo Girl, Lucy and Flora Belle in five heats. About $69,500 went into one box on the Cleveland track August 2, 1883, when Fanny Winterspoon beat St. Julien, Edward Thorne and Trinket. $493,000 passed into the pool box at the recent Buffalo meeting, divided up as follows: Mutuals, $122,000, the Auction $350,000 and the books $21,000.

I wonder if it can be possible that California is going to produce the sensational horse of the year. Months ago it was intimated that Axtel's record was in danger, and now there are many who believe that even Sunol's wonderful 2:10½ may possibly be smashed, and that by a stallion. Jno. Goldsmith has been exercising Regal Wilkes on the circuit and on last Tuesday morning drove that great young stallion a full mile with the most consummate ease in 2:21, the last quarter being finished in an absolute jog Those who saw this wonderful performance claim that with a good day and a good track Regal Wilkes will most positively secure the three-year-old record of the world.

D. M. Reavis, of Chico, is probably as large a breeder of horses as almost any other man in the State. Sometime during the coming fall it is his intention to send three or four carloads of trotting bred stock, principally two-year-olds, to New York, where they will be sold if not previously disposed of. Vic H., who trotted three heats last Tuesday at Napa in 2:23¾, 2:24 and 2:26½ together with Mattie Solomon, will also be sent on as a part of the consignment. Rumor has it that Mr. Corbitt, of the San Mateo Stock Farm, is trying to get Mr. Reavis to name a price on the two last mentioned animals, as he would like to have them for his breeding establishment.

Among the trainers who are rapidly coming to the front, probably the best in the lot is Brock, who has charge of the Undine stables on the California circuit. During the early spring Tycoon was hardly worth a cent for racing purposes, yet when the meeting opened at Ione, the ex-trotting attendant had him in good shape, so much so, in fact, that he is probably a better horse at present than he ever was in his life. It may not be out of place to mention here that Tycoon is one of the best single-footers in the State, and when he made his appearance at Napa on Wednesday, he came up to the wire with the regular Tennessee saddle-horse gait. Baron Von Schroder, who was present, was so impressed with this ability of Tycoon that he at once made a liberal offer to Percy Williams for the horse, but the representative of the Undine Stable refused to sell until after the racing at Napa was over.

Those who have been at Napa during the week complained bitterly of the manner in which those who had rooms to rent charged for sleeping accommodations. One of the hotels did not raise the usual prices but all the others seemed determined to make hay while the sun shone and charged frightfully for everything that was consumed; even the barbers entered into a trust and would not shave anyone short of twenty-five cents. At the track things were just about as bad, the two drivers, McConnell and George Bayliss paid $1.50 for what was called a chicken lunch, but both of them are willing to take affidavits that the birds eaten were nothing but canaries. The Directors of the Napa Association should look after this matter in future and see that exorbitant prices are not charged, for it will eventually result in strangers refusing to visit that city.

A fatal accident occurred at San Jose on Thursday of last week which resulted in the death of J. R. Buffington, an old and well known horseman in that locality. It seems that Mr. Buffington had a colt which he was training that had only been driven some five or six times. As he was going to harness him preparatory to giving him a little exercise, Buffington took a brush and curry-comb to rub him down. Mr. Buffington's son was about to put the harness on the colt when he saw his father jump back, the colt having tried to kick him. Mr. Buffington stepped forward again when the colt kicked at him with both hind heels, one of them striking him just below the right eye. An examination made by a surgeon shortly after the deplorable accident showed that Mr. Buffington's neck had been broken. The deceased was well known and respected greatly by those who had the honor of his acquaintance.

All that is necessary to convince one of the extreme popularity of trotting in the Northwestern country is to read the following account of a stake race that has been arranged to take place on August 30th at Portland, Oregon.

About a week ago a match race was trotted between Alta and Kitty Ham, which has evidently awakened the owners of several other trotting horses, and now by telegrsph we learn that $500 each have been deposited by the owners of the following horses, the race to be trotted on the date mentioned above: E. H. Mix's J. S. C., by Echo; Julius Sorrenson's Susie S. by Hambletonian Mambrino; Matlock Bros.' Alta by Altamont; Glassford & Duncan's Antelope by Nutwood and T. H. Tongue's Kitty Ham by Hambletonian Mambrino.

According to the conditions of the race, the winner takes the entire stake, and also all the gate receipts after expenses have been paid.

In the last issue of the Breeder and Sportsman we could only give the result of the fifth and deciding heat at Buffalo in the free-for-all race, as we received it by telegram, and our correspondent had not time to send us the result of the concluding heat. It would seem that on Monday morning when the bell was rung for the contestants to appear Rosalind Wilkes was quite a strong favorite, the odds being 5 to 4 on her while the bookmakers were willing to bet 5 against 3 that Palo Alto would not win. Jack was evidently "away off" as he cut no figure in the race whatever, the representative of the Wilkes family and Electioneer's great son having the fight out between them. Palo Alto completing the first quarter in 32¾ seconds, the half-mile in 1:06½, the three-quarters in 1:40¾, and the mile 2:15. The following is the summary in full.

First Race—Purse $2,000; free for all trotters (continued from Saturday)

Palo Alto Stock Farm's Palo Alto, by Electioneer	Marvin	3	2	1	1
J. Turner's Rosalind Wilkes	Turner	1	1	2	2
B. Doble's Jack	Doble	2	3	3	3
E. F. Geer's Susie S.	Geers and Andrews	4	4	4	4

Time, 2:18, 2:16¼, 2:16½, 2:16, 2:15.

From the number of accidents that have happened on the various tracks in California so far this year, it is to be presumed that trainers will have to purchase new sulkies every little while, and if we are correct in our surmises, would suggest to them that they call at the office of Truman, Hooker & Co., 421 and 427 Market street, San Francisco, and take a look at the new Maud S. Truss Axle Sulky, which has been thoroughly indorsed by all the leading horsemen of the United States to be the stiffest and best track sulky now made. One of the beauties of this sulky is that it will fit any horse, no matter how high his action which of itself is a great recommendation. In addition to the one just spoken of, the firm carries a full line of all the different makes of sulkies, so that no matter what horsemen may need in that direction, they can be easily accommodated by this firm.

On last Saturday afternoon the Oakland Driving Club was out in full force, and, as usual, a large number of carriages were seen inside the enclosure. The sport for the afternoon began with the three minute class of trotters, the entries being W. H. Veitche's Jerry; P. W. Bellingall's Electro, and J. Roger's Skate. Jerry was the fortunate one, winning the first and third heats in 3:02 and 2:58; Skate taking the second heat in three minutes.

The next event on the programme was for the 2:40 pacers, there being four entries: Dr Withers' Woodchuck; T. Landregan's Berkley Maid; S. D. Ingram's Weasel, and Geo. Anderson's Gypsey. Weasel took the first heat in 2:49, and Gypsey took the second and third in 2:48 and 2:45.

The programme next presented a trot for the 2:35 class; the entries being T. Rutherford's Sunset; D C. Brown's Sunrise, and R. B. Chisholm's Blue Bull. Owing to the actions of Rutherford, the judges were allowed to refuse his horse the privilege of starting, and the other two had it out between them; Sunrise winning handily in two straight heats. Time 2:37 and 2:42.

A mile was then trotted between J. Maher's Gus; and D. Hayes' Brown Dick. Gus won as he pleased in 3:05.

The last foal that was dropped in this State to the cover of Nutwood prior to his leaving for the Eastern States, was out of Ruth Ann by Bell Alta; second dam by General Taylor. As this foal grew up in years he was named Harry Slocum, and two years ago developed considerable speed. His owner, the well known livery stable keeper. Mr. Lot D. Slocum, sold a half interest in the horse in 1888 to R Mandelbaum, Esq. Last year he was not worked for track use, but in April of this year he was sent to Petaluma where he has been receiving exercise at the hands of Lee Shaner. Some two months ago Mr. Slocum sold his other half interest to Mr. Mandelbaum, who was exceedingly well pleased at the speed shown by the son of Nutwood, as he has frequently compassed a mile better than 2:23, and his 1:10 to the half was simply an exercising jog for him. On last Friday morning Mr. Shaner harnessed up Harry Slocum for the purpose of driving him to Napa, but when only a few miles on his journey the horse began to act in rather a strange manner, which caused Mr. Shaner to pull up, immediately upon which the horse fell dead, evidently having bursted a blood vessel. The horse was valued at $7,500.

From letters received from a friend it would seem as though John Mackey, the genial superintendent of Rancho del Paso, has been having a great time in the land of Johnny Bull. His quaint, odd ways have made him a general favorite, and as Mr. Haggin has introduced him quite generally in English society, it may fully be expected that John will return with all the mannerisms of an English cockney. Fitted out in a dress suit, patent leather shoes and a high hat, he is a familiar figure around the corridors of the principal hotels, and can be seen almost any night jumping out of a "two wheeler" as he goes to attend the theatre. In their travels, Ireland has not been forgotten, and the dear old county of Meath has been visited, that being the county of John's birth. Visits have been made to nearly all the principal breeding farms of the country, including those of the Duchess of Montrose, Baron Rothschild and the Duke of Westminster. Only one purchase so far has been effected, that being the bay stallion, Tacitus by Hermit out of a mare by Young Melbourne; 2d dam by Stockwell, etc Such royally good breeding will indeed be a valuable adjunct to the stud of Rancho del Paso, and John fancies that he has secured one of Hermit's very best sons. He is only eight years old, with black points, possessed of immense bone, with great thighs and arms, a fine head and neck and excellent shoulders; he is well ribbed and let down. With this combination of Hermit, Young Melbourne and Stockwell blood, Tacitus should be hard to beat in any country. Before the party returns to America John will pay a flying visit to Paris, as Mr. Haggin is desirous of having John learn how to swear in the [French language.

Names Claimed.

Sallie Corbitt for my chestnut mare, both hind ankles white, star in forehead and stripe, foaled July 7th 1885, sired by Legrand, first dam Sallie Durbrow by Arthorton, second dam Nellie by Smuggler, third dam by Eastons David Hill.

I also claim the name Fifine for my aeal brown filly, star in forehead, foaled April 12th, 1890, sired by Noonday, first dam Lady Prompter by Prompter, second dam Flash by Egmont, third dam Lightfoot by Flaxtail.

Mrs. Helen Murdock.

Yours truly, San Mateo Stock Farm per J. A. Goldsmith.

NAPA.

The first day of the Solano and Napa District Fair was held in excellent weather, and with the track in good order, and with an efficient management at the head of affairs, a great day's trotting was expected, for Napa is, outside of Sacramento, the most popular trotting locality in the State, so many records having been broken on the track in previous years. Last year, for instance, the flying Sidney filly, Gold Leaf, paced a mile in 2:11¼, while in the fall Stamboul and Palo Alto trotted in 2:12¼, and many other cracks lowered their records at the meeting held last year.

Four trotting races were on the programme for the day, and as a start was not made until two o'clock, heats were sandwiched after the first two heats of the 2:20 class.

The judges for the day were H. M. La Rue, Stockton; John McCord, Napa, and J. N. Bailhache, Healdsburg. Mr. La Rue, who is probably by long odds the most accomplished starter in the State, attended to the send off in his usually masterly style, and very soon had things going in smooth order. At ten minutes to two the first race was called up, five well known trotters facing the music for the 2:20 trot. They were Hazel Wilkes, 2:20, the winner of the San Jose 2:20 class; Emma Temple, 2:21, who was in good form, and showed up well after her race at San Jose, when she was behind Hazel; Express, 2:21, was the Palo Alto entry; Maggie E., 2:19¾, the more than useful Nutwood mare, was entered by her new owners, and the eccentric Doherty had his speedy horse Victor (Hayseed) 2:22.

The race proved a good thing for Hazel Wilkes, who repeated her San Jose victory, winning in straight heats.

The 2:30 trotters brought out a field of eight, Silas Skinner being installed favorite, and winning in straight heats. The winner has a very rapid way of going, and will be very hard to beat in his class. He is a pure gaited trotter—in front, while he apparently runs behind, and with really precise judges, might have been set back under the new rule, as he leaves his feet too often and never loses by it. Bob Mason, the San Diego entry, made a game effort to win, and after falling (a regular cropper), just after going under the wire in the first heat, tearing a shoe and boot off, he made a splendid exhibition of true game racing by fighting out the next two heats to the finish.

Mr. Reavis' Vic H. romped home in the 2:40 class, going the three heats in the remarkably good time of 2:23½, 2:24 and 2:26¼, winning each heat in a jog. She is a daughter of Blackbird, and last week obtained a record of 2:25½ at Willows. The yearling trot was a gift for Nonpariel, though Capt. Harris' entry would probably have altered the complexion of things had she been allowed to start.

2:30 trot.—First heat. When the horses were called out, pools sold: Hazel Wilkes $30, Emma Temple $5, and the field $10. The first four or five times Temple was rather unsteady, then Victor came up in front of the pole horse, but after being threatened with a fine, they scored up better by Maggie E Express spoiled the next two attempts by breaking before the wire. At the ninth time the word was given by Mr. La Rue, with Express two lengths behind, the others well together. Maggie cut out the work to the turn, when she broke and fell back, and Victor went on, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Temple, with Hazel Wilkes two lengths further back, and Maggie E four behind her and two in front of Express. Victor mixed his gait a couple of times before the half, where he was a length and a half in front of Temple, with Hazel, who was coming fast on her wheel, and Maggie six lengths further back, with a two lengths lead of Express. Hazel and Temple closed up on Victor round the turn, the Wilkes mare coming up on the inside and Temple on the outside. When well in the stretch Hazel got her head in front and Victor broke, dropping back. Temple closed in a little, and trotted a hard race to the wire, Hazel winning by a neck after a tight finish, with Victor three lengths back and Maggie E. and Express, who both showed their running ability down the stretch, just inside the distance. Time, 2:22½. Mutuals on the heat paid $8.

Second heat—Pools sold slowly at $25 Hazel Wilkes to $8 for the whole field. After scoring up seven times, the word was received, with Express two lengths behind. Emma Temple and Victor went round the turn together two lengths in front of Hazel Wilkes, but before the quarter Victor skipped and lost the lead, Temple going past the quarter post two lengths in front of him, with Hazel third, three lengths back, and Maggie E. three further in the rear. Victor broke badly at the three furlong pole, and was passed by Hazel, who was three lengths behind Temple at the half in 1:10, Victor three further back. Hazel went up to Temple round the turn, being at her head at the three-quarters, and with the bay mare tiring badly in the stretch, beat her three lengths to the wire, Victor four lengths further back, and Express, who passed Maggie, who broke in the stretch, fourth, fifty yards back. Time, 2:20¾. Mutuals on the heat paid $7.50.

Third heat—No pools sold. After several futile attempts to get the quintette to come up together, Shaner and Doherty were fined $5 each for coming up before the pole horse, and the five soon came up together. Hazel broke almost immediately, and lost her place, Temple and Victor going on in the lead. Victor broke on the turn, and Temple swung into the backstretch three lengths in front, Victor second three lengths in front of Express, who was just clear of Hazel; the latter passed Express before reaching the three furlongs, and with Victor breaking shortly after, passsed him, and went on in hot pursuit of Temple, who had four lengths the best of it at the half, with Express, three lengths back, third, and Victor close up, fourth, twenty lengths in front of Maggie E., who was all to pieces. Hazel decreased the lead two lengths at the head of the stretch, and driven hard all the way, won a desperate heat by half a length, Temple five lengths in front of Express, who was well in advance of Victor, with Maggie E barely saving her distance. Time, 2:21¾. Mutuals paid $6.40.

2:30 TROT.

Eight horses scored up for the word, and betting was very lively on the race. Silas Skinner was made favorite at $30 to $10 for George Washington, $10 for Bob Mason and $30 for the rest as a field. A long time was devoted to starting the big field well together and all trotting At last, however, the word was given, with Lee two lengths behind, all the rest well together. Una Wilkes on the inside, went out in front to the turn, when Bob Mason went past her in a clatter closely followed by Silas Skinner, who came from the extreme outside and took third position. When the quarter was reached Mason was three lengths in front of Una Wilk with Skinner at her wheel six lengths in front of Clara Flora S. and Keepsake all together in front of Lee. Mason led the van to the end of the back stretch when Skinner closed up, and getting even in the turn, the pair swung into the stretch head and head, with Una Wilkes four lengths back, and Clara Z. four lengths further back. A very hard race took place down the stretch. Skinner, who had skipped several times, having a shade the best of it at the draw-gate, where Mason swerved under the whip, but was instantly straightened out and finished gamely, losing by a head, and stumbling, fell a length past the wire. Bayliss fell clear and was not injured. Una Wilkes was five lengths back, third, and the rest all strung out. Clara Z. fourth, Washington fifth, Flora S. sixth, Lee seventh and Keepsake last. Time, 2:21.

Mutuals on the heat paid $13.25.

SECOND HEAT.

Pools sold briskly, $25 Skinner, Washington $3, and the rest of the field $10. When the horses came out Bayliss and Mason received an ovation, both looking no worse for their tumble. A start was soon obtained with Lee seemingly overlooked ten lengths back. Skinner and Mason set the pace to the turn, when Mason broke all to pieces and fell back last, while Spinner opened up a gap of six lengths at the quarter with Flora G. a neck in front of Una, who was three in advance of the rest bunched. Skinner went clean away from the field leading 10 lengths passing the half, where Flora G. had two lengths, the best of Clara Z. who had passed Una Wilkes who was a length in front of Washington. Skinner slowed up round the turn and won in a jog by seven lengths, Flora G getting the place, although beaten a head by Clara Z. who made a game rally from the distance, but was set back to third for running. The rest were strung out, most of them running in. Time, 2:25½. Paris mutuals in the heat paid $7.00.

THIRD HEAT.

No pools sold. A start was soon arrived at with Lee again behind Spinner and Mason. Both went out for the lead and went round the turn a length apart with Flora G. next and Una Wilkes close up. Flora broke before the quarter and lost her place to Una. At the quarter the order was Skinner, Mason, Una, Flora, with two lengths between each, and Washington four lengths back clear of Clara G, Lee a bad last. Mason went up to Skinner half up the back stretch, but would not stay there, and Skinner drew out two lengths passing round the turn. Bayliss made a hard fight for the heat until the drawgate, where he gave up and finished three lengths behind Skinner, Flora G. who passed Una Wilkes in a break in the stretch getting third place, four lengths further back and a length and a half in front of Una with Clara Z fifth, the rest running most of the way. Time, 2:21¾.

First heat.—Pools sold very slowly, the Blackbird mare Vic H being served up a hot favorite at $25 to $15 for the field. After ten minutes scoring for the word with Carbon too slow every time, the word was given, Carbon being two lengths behind; Vic H and Oaknut stayed together to the turn, when Vic quickened up, and trotting clean away, led down the backstretch five lengths, passing the half in 1:11, with Oaknut second six lengths in front of Mountain Maid, and Carbon fifty yards back. Oaknut closed up a little at the head of the homestretch, but only on sufferance as Vic again drew out and won handily by three lengths, Mountain Maid a bad third, and Carbon a had last. Time, 2:23½. Paris mutuals paid $7.40.

Second heat—Despite the efforts of the silvery tongued auctioners, no offer could be obtained for the field against Vic H. After about half a dozen trials the word was given and Oaknut trotting steadily, led to the turn, and increasing the pace, turned into the backstretch three lengths in front of Vic H, with Mountain Maid six lengths behind her and six in front of Carbon. Vic closed up on Oaknut and carried him off his feet before the half, which she passed four lengths in front in 1:11, and going well within herself went round the turn five lengths in the lead, Oaknut seven in front of the Maid, same in front of Carbon, running. Oaknut broke again on the homestretch, and Vic H won as she pleased by three lengths, Oaknut second five lengths in front of Mountain Maid, who was double that distance in front of Carbon. Time, 2:24. Paris mutuals paid $6 00

Third heat. No pools were sold, everyone having decided that the mare could not lose and nearly every one had gone to town. The quartette were soon en route, Vic H. and Oaknut going well trotted round the turn together, Vic. showed half a length in front when they turned into the backstretch and increased her lead to two open lengths before going round the upper turn with Oaknut second, eight lengths in front of Mountain Maid and Carbon a hundred yards back. Vic H. retained her advantage and won easily by two lengths from Oaknut who left his feet at the drawgate, Mountain Maid finished third forty yards behind him with Carbon. Time, 2:26.

The yearling district trot had five would be starters but Sidena entered by B. E. Harris was protested, and the judges refused to allow her to start as she was entered by Capt. Harris from San Francisco and irrespective of that, had not left Shaner's stable ten days previously, Shaner having another colt in the race driven by himself. A few pools were sold at $20 Nonpariel to $25 the field. Lady Thorn had the pole and was so slow that the others could not be kept back to her, and thus used a good deal of valuable time. When the word was given Nonpariel went right away from the rest, and though all broke before the turn Whitney's entry catching handily showed the way into the back stretch and settling down to work went down the back stretch six lengths in front and trotting steadily turned into the straight for home twelve lengths in front of Rustic King with Columbus who broke badly in the back stretch a bad third, and Lady Thorn out of it. The race was all over, Nonpariel winning easily by six lengths from Rustic who beat Columbus forty yards for the place, for although the latter caught him in the stretch he broke all to pieces, Lady was just in the stretch. WEDNESDAY.

A rather slim crowd witnessed the stock parade which started out at ten o'clock, headed by B. C. Holly leading his old favorite Ninena, the winner in many a hard race. She looked in grand shape, and has developed into a very handsome broodmare. Following her was Sidney, her colt, foaled by Sid, a son of imported Siddartha. The entries in the horse department were numerous, reaching from the stand to the half-mile post, and included many well known trotters, among whom the matronly Lily Stanley attracted general attention as she was led past, followed by her Director foal.

The cattle department had only a small number of entries, and did not make the circuit of the track, being turned away after passing the stand. The afternoon was devoted to the thoroughbred brigade, three races being on the programme, with three starters in each event. The scarcity of starters was accounted for by the hard tracks at Ione, San Jose and Los Angeles, which had laid up several horses on the shelf for a while. The directors decided to add the full amount in each race, provided three starters turned out for each event instead of four as advertised.

First race—Punctually at two o'clock, before a large assemblage, the horses were called out by Mr. La Rue for the first, a six furlong repeat, which had as starters W. Appleby's four-year-old mare Alfaretta, Orville Appleby's three-year old filly Juniata (a sister to Alfaretta), and Owen Bros.' Serpolette. After a few vain attempts, Sam Whitehead gave up attempting to sell pools on the individual races, but sold a large number of pools combination fashion, $25 being given for Alfaretta. Tycoon and Daisy against $15 for the field, the condition being that if any of three named horses failed to win, the field won the pool.

At half past two William Coombs sent the trio in workmanlike style, and for a hundred yards they ran locked together, when Alfaretta left the other pair and went round the turn three open lengths in front, with Serpolette two lengths in front of Juniata. The race was all over from there, as Alfaretta galloped home an easy winner by five lengths, Juniata second and Serpolette distanced. Time, 1:18¾. Mutuals paid $6 15.

Second heat. Juniata broke away twice and was very unruly, but at the third break away a good start was made, the three year old ridden from the start hung on to Alfaretta to the end of the stretch when the latter came away winning in a canter by three lengths from Juniata who was unnecessarily and unmercifully punished by Dennison. Time, 1:19¾. Mutuals paid $5.45.

MILE AND REPEAT.

First heat—A few pools were sold at $25 for Daisy D. to $5 for the field, and with Daisy barred Hotspur sold for $20 to $6 for Wild Oats on the race, not the heat. The flag was dropped the first time with all three running well together. Hotspur fell back on the turn while Wild Oats hung on to Daisy down the back stretch with Hotspur three lengths back. The latter closed up on the turn and all three were level at the head of the stretch with Daisy winning easy, and the others under persuasion. Dennison rode Hotspur vigorously to the wire, being beaten a short length by Daisy, hard held with Wild Oats on whom Murphy eased up at the furlong pole two lengths further back. Time, 1:43¼. Mutuals on the heat paid $5.70.

Second heat—After a couple of breakaways, the trio were turned loose in good style. Hotspur, whipped from the start, hung on to Daisy D all the way round to the head of the stretch, with Wild Oats two lengths behind Wild Oats closed up half way down the stretch, and Hotspur, swerving under the whip, lost his place, but came again on the inside and finished a length and a half behind Wild Oats, who was second one length behind Daisy, who won the race handily. Time, 1:43¼. Mutuals on the heat paid $6.00

Tycoon went up to Captain Al round the turn the pair turning into the back stretch a length behind, Menlo whose leg gave way at the five furlong pole and he dropped out of the race. The other pair ran neck and neck all the way round the upper turn passing the quarter pole in 1:42. For a while it looked as though youth would be served but Tycoon outstayed the three year old and eventually won cleverly by half a length. Time, 2:08. Mutuals paid $5.70.

Red Bluff.

FIRST DAY, August 19th, 1880.

Red Bluff is particularly fortunate in having had a new track built, and to-day the first race of the Tehama County Agricultural Society were started over it. It is well laid out, has exceedingly good soil, and I am inclined to the belief that when worked over a little will be a very fast one. At present it is a trifle soft, but that is a good thing for the horses, as there will be much less danger of any of them breaking down. The grand staud is extremely well built and a very commodious structure, while there are an ample number of stalls for all of the horses gathered together here. The officers of the association have spared no time nor money in getting everything in proper shape for their meeting, and the horsemen congregated here are particularly well satisfied with the attentions and hospitality that they have received. It was a matter of some surprise that the attendance was not larger, as the country is in a flourishing condition, and it is many years since racee has been held at this point. The judges selected for the day were Messrs. Hawkins, Shelton and Billups; while the timers were Messrs. McIntosh and Champlain. In the trotting race Col. Hawkins acted as starter, while in the running races W. M. Billups gave them the word.

The first race of the day was for the district two-year-olds, and although there had been three entries but two came to the wire, they being Lucy B. entered by G. W. Woodard of Yolo, and Wayland W. entered by S. B. Simpson of Chico. The pool selling was of rather a light character, Mr. Simpson's gelding being the choice at $10, while Lucy B. brought $5. Wayland W. was the much better of the two and had no difficulty in winning both heats very readily, the time being 2:55½ and 2:54½. In the last heat Lucy made several disastrous breaks, which put her entirely out of the contest.

The programme next showed a purse of $250 for the three-minute class, the entries being Billy Doty, E. C. Peart, Vidette and Frank M. Mr. Billups did not start Peart so there were only three in the contest for the money. In the pools Frank M. was a great favorite, bringing $10 while the other two combined sold for $5. On the appearance of the horses on the track, Frank M., who is owned by T. E. Keating, the former owner of Sensation, showed up very lame and purchasers of the short end began congratulating themselves that they had far and away the best of it; however, appearances are sometimes deceitful, for the lame gelding took the lead immediately upon the word being given and was never headed, the time consumed in making the mile, 2:33½, being simply an exercising jog for him. After the first heat there was no betting whatever, the spectators keeping aloof from a horse that could show up so badly and win so handily with only three legs to go on. The second and third heats were simply repetitions of the first, Frank M. leading from start to finish in all of them. Time, 2:33 and 2:38¾. Frank is evidently a good money making horse and the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN need not be surprised if he makes a record low in the twenties when he strikes in the big circuit at Sacramento.

Of the five horses entered for the half mile and repeat running race, only three of them came to the post, they being Joker, Rosebug and R. H. In the betting Rosebug was a decided favorite at $10, the field alternating between $5 and $6. When the flag fell for the first heat, Joker cut out the pace and led to the head of the stretch, where Rosebug was given his head and rapidly passed the leader, winning in the commonest kind of a canter by a length in 50 seconds. SECOND DAY AUG. 20, 1890.

The attendance was better than yesterday, the field was well filled with carriages, and the grand stand had many of the fair sex who watched the races and listened to the music rendered by the band. Among the familiar faces seen on the grounds were G. W. Woodard of Yolo, L. H. McIntosh of Chico, Lige Downer of Oakland, Dan Dennison Jr. Sacramento, E. C. Tryon of Sacramento, S. T. Trefrey of Sacramento, John Sweeney from Carson, J. C. Todd of Sacramento, A. Phillips owner of Lucky Dan, J. Sullivan former driver of Daisy S and Almont Patchen, F. A. Sprague the pool seller from Chico, J. Green of San Francisco, Wm. Billups of Colusa, Mr. R. H. Newton and many others.

The first race was a district trot for named horses, the starters being John G, Albert V and Del Monte. Albert V had the pole. The driver of Del Monte was gaudily attired in a suit of red, white and blue. Mr. Woodard says if he could only have had that suit he might have won with Belle Button at Willows and negotiations are now in progress for its purchase.

First heat.—John G led around the turn but down the back stretch it was a head and head race between John G and Albert V. John G won by a half a length Albert V 2nd, Del Monte 3rd. Time 3:04.

Second heat—Albert V led to the quarter by eight lengths, but in the stretch Albert broke and John G won by a length. Time, 2:55.

Third heat—Albert V led to the five-eighths pole, where John G collared him. In the stretch Albert V broke, John G winning the heat and race, Albert V second, Del Monte third. Time, 2:56.

Second race—2:40 class—The starters were Annie E., Laura Z., Decision, Queen of the West and Alpha. Frank B., another of the entries, was given first money and allowed to stay in the stable.

First heat—Pools sold Annie E. $10, field $5. Queen was first at the quarter, closely followed by Alpha, the rest strung out, the positions remaining unchanged at the half. On the upper turn Laura Z. out-trotted Queen, and at the head of the stretch was on even terms, but Queen out trotted her through the stretch and won the heat, Laura Z. second, Decision third, Annie E. fourth, Alpha fifth. Time, 2:40.

Before the second heat pools sold: Annie E $10, Queen of the West $3, while the field brought $2. Decision took the lead at the tap of the bell, and was never headed. On the backstretch Queen was lapped on him, but could not head him, and in the stretch Decision drew away and won in a jog, Queen second, Alpha third. Time, 2:36½.

Third heat—Queen led from the wire into the homestretch with Annie E next, but in the stretch Annie E trotted fast and won the heat by a length from the Queen, Laura Z third, Decision fourth, Alpha distanced for running. Time, 2.37½.

Fourth heat—The Queen went off in the lead, but broke on the turn, and Decision at the quarter led, with Laura Z second. Down the backstretch Annie E passed Laura and in the stretch made bid for the heat, but she could not close the gap, Decision winning by two lengths, Annie E second, Laura Z third, Queen of the West distanced. Time, 2:36.

After the fourth heat of the trot the special mile dash was run. They were some time at the post, delayed by the bad acting of Achilles. Joker made the running and led well into the stretch but Dennison on Mohawk made his run and by hard riding landed Mohawk a winner by half a length, Joker second, Katisha third, Lucky Dan fourth, Achilles fifth. Time, 1:46.

Fifth heat—2:40 class. This heat was another surprise. Annie E and Decision went around the turn and down the back stretch head and head, Laura Z. in close attendance. Turning into the stretch Laura Z. got on even terms with the leaders, and it was a fine finish, Laura Z' winning by a neck, Annie second. Time, 2:45. Darkness coming on, the race was postponed until the next day.

The Pedigree of Bessie G.

Considerable time has elapsed since Guy E. Grosse, Esq., of Santa Rosa first tried to establish the pedigree of Bessie G, the dam of Sunset and Anteeop, but patience and perseverance have helped to surmount the difficulties usually arising in investigations of this sort. Mr. Grosse purchased the mare from J. B. Hinkle of Petaluma, that gentleman having got her from Daniel Cutter. Mr Cutter has signed the following document, which clears up the breeding as far as it can possibly ever be known:

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 13, 1890.

I hereby certify that the mare which I sold to J. B. Hinkle of Petaluma was raised by me; when in my possession I called her "Nellie," but I understand they have changed her name to "Bessie G." If she is still alive, she will be eleven years old this spring; she was sired by "King Philip," a son of Whipple's "Hambletonian" 725. The dam of "Nellie" was by "George M. Patchen, Jr" but I cannot trace the pedigree of the second dam.

DANIEL CUTTER,
845 Harrison street, S. F.

Some months ago Mr R. M. Dunlap of Galesburg, Illinois, purchased Bessie G from Mr. Grosse, and also a filly out of her by Anteeo, it being his intention to take them back East. Bessie G will surely become standard as one of her sons can now trot much better than 2:30.

There are quite a number of cases of glanders among the horses in Sacramento and vicinity, says the Bee, and every one who owns a horse should see to it that it is well protected and cared for. Glanders is a terrible and a contagious disease, and the only relief is death. Six horses belonging to the Central Street Railway Co. have already been shot, and others belonging to private individuals have had to be treated in the same manner. The discharged Superintendent, John Beck, sold some horses affected with this disease to a man down the Riverside road, and they had to be killed. Such conduct deserves the severest punishment, and that may have been one reason for his discharge.

Athletics—Continued.

The Staten Island Athletic Club have made great preparations for their annual Labor Day celebration, which they evidently intend shall surpass those which afforded pleasure to hundreds of lovers of outdoor sports and festivities in former years. The chief aquatic event of the celebration will be the annual senior eight oared shell race for the Staten Island Athletic Club $1,000 Challenge Cup, which always produces a grand contest between some of the leading amateur crews of the East, for all are desirous of possessing the elegant and costly trophy which depends on the result of the struggle. The race is open to all invited clubs, the distance is one mile, and it will be governed by the rules of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen and the S. I. A. C. Cup. There will also be a race for junior eight oared shell crews, which is also expected to result in a grand struggle, for there are more good junior eights in the East the present season than at any previous time. An entrance of $20 each crew is asked. The club house, boat house and grounds will be illuminated with calcium and electric lights during the evening, and Cappa's Seventh Regiment Band will serve to enhance the pleasure of those who attend.

George W. Lee easily defeated John Largan, the English oarsman, who has been in this country for a considerable period, in a scullers' race for a purse, at Oyster Bay, L. I., on Saturday afternoon, August 9th. The distance rowed was about a mile and three-quarters, and Lee won by two lengths.

Neil Matterson was the victor in a scullers' race with Brown on the Parramatta River, N. S. W., Aug 8. The course was the usual championship one, and the stake $1,000. The winner's time was 20m 38s.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Alpine Club now has its headquarters at Central Park with an entrance on Eighth Street. A general meeting will be held to-morrow afternoon when new officers will be elected. Several changes will be made in the constitution and by-laws, and other important matters will be discussed.

The preparations that are being made for the coming exhibition of the Olympic Club are something grand. The boxing, wrestling, fencing, tumbling, pyramide, weight lifting, groupings, etc., will be very fine and it is safe to predict that even standing room will be at a premium.

One of Prof. Tronchet's lady pupils will give an exhibition with her teacher which promises to be highly exciting.

The Alameda Olympic Club held a "Ladies Night" exhibition on Friday evening August 15. The audience was large and fashionable, many ladies being present. A parallel bar exhibition by the Oakland Turn Verein was very good. Paul Uth was the leader. Prof. George C. Rouse gave a very clever exhibition of club swinging. M. Espinosa and E. Stack both of the Olympic Club of this city did some pretty work in the boxing line. C. J. Lutger and C. C. Beck of the same club wrestled, each gaining a fall. Pyramids were formed by the following members of the Alameda Club: John Byler (leader), O. C. Haslett, Perham Nahl, Ed Shaw, Fred Hallgren, Ambrose C. Snow, Tony Sparrow, A. C. Nahl and Walter Osborne. J. F. Stack, Robert Leando and Prof. Rause gave a fine exhibition on the horizontal bars. There were wrestling bouts between Ed. Kolb and R. Y. Cole, and Eugene Van Court and F. A. Grim. Some excellent tumbling was done by Stack, Espinosa, and Leando. Green and Bonlo of the Olympic Club and Houston and Turnbull of the Alameda Club gave some clever feet-tos. The exhibition closed with pyramide by the Oakland Turn Verein. The hall was then cleared and dancing began and lasted until early morning. On the whole the affair was very agreeable and reflected much credit on the Young Alameda Olympic Club, which at some future period may develope into a large and powerful athletic club.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I am glad to see that the Alpine boys have moved to Central Park. By remaining on the hill so long they lost several good members. Now that their rooms are in the very heart of the city there is no reason why the club should not boom again, for athletics are bound to become popular before long.

Some of the boys tell me that they cannot leave their work to journey to Sacramento on the 16th of Sept. I think if the games were held on a Saturday the attendance of athletes would be much larger. But very few of the amateurs can afford to lose a day and a half or two days in the middle of the week.

Peter McIntyre has a splendid chance to train. Living as he does at the Olympic grounds he should be able to make fast time.

I had a little chat with John Purcell the other day relative to his retiring from the sporting world. "Bedad it's a chestnut," said John. "I've been hearing that since I've been in Frisco." Well, will you ever compete again? I queried. "Faith and I dunno; I don't like to say for sure that I will not, for faith it is as hard to swear off training as it is for a drunkard to swear off drinking."

I would like to see the P C A A A give a grand handicap cross country run. There are dozens of good men who would be only too willing to take part. Let each man pay a small entrance fee of say half a dollar and the total could be turned into prizes. The Olympic and Alpine clubs would send large teams into the field and there are lots of other clubs in the association that would also make a good showing.

I was up at the Golden Gate Athletic Club the other day, and judging from the number of members present I think the gymnasium apparatus will soon be got rid of at a low figure.

THE GUN.

Tulare Tournament.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The Tulare Gun Club has arranged for a Grand Shooting Tournament to be held at this city on Sept. 17, 18 and 19, in honor of the first anniversary of the club.

Among other matches, we have decided to offer a purse of $100 00 for a match of 50 live birds, to be shot at by Messrs. Haas, Chick, Robinson and any others who will enter.

This purse to be donated by the club. There will be many other valuable prizes offered, and everything done to make the Tournament a grand success.

We intend to secure plenty of live birds, and artificial birds, and bar out "birds that won't break".

Not knowing the addresses of the above named gentlemen, we take this method of asking them to participate with us in our Tournament.

M. C. HUNT, Secretary.

Fine Score.

Captain R. A. Eddy returned last week from Honolulu, and as might have been expected, his first visit was to a trap shooting ground. Oakland Trotting Park, when he made the following superb score on live birds, A. S. A. rules, killing 69 out of 72.

The Gun Club.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: The final match of the San Francisco Gun Club for the season of 1890 took place at the Oakland track on Saturday last. The attendance was quite a large one, eighteen members facing the traps; but it has been so for the whole season, no less than seventeen putting in an appearance at any match.

Much interest was felt in regard to the scores made on this occasion, considering the prospective match with the Alamedas on the 30th inst., and some of the best men "fell down" by making scores much below their usual average—notably, Messrs. Jellett, R. B. Woodward and Eddy, all of whom are generally to be found in double figures. Messrs. Chapin and Donohoe came well to the front with the respective scores of 12 and 11. The birds were an average lot, some most excellent, some "lingerers," but on the whole fairly good and quite a number were as good birds as any we have had supplied this season. Mr. Orr came forward again this year. Notwithstanding the fact that when the match commenced on Saturday he was four birds behind Mr. Jellett for first prize and three behind Mr. R B. Woodward for second, by good steady work he pulled up to an equality with Mr Jellett by killing his twelve straight birds, and Mr. Jellett missing four of same number made Orr and Jellett even with the tie to be shot off, Mr. Woodward missing also four birds tell back to third place. The tie between Jellett and Orr was then shot off at five birds each, Mr. Jellett missing his first bird but stopped the balance, four, and Orr killing his five straight, took the first prize with the narrow margin of one bird to spare. It was a sharply contested tie all the way through, taking the best ten scores in this last G. C. Match, and comparing them with a like number of the Alameda men in their match of the previous week, the Gun Club came out ahead just two birds. This fact, however, may have but little bearing on the match of the 30th inst.

The winner of Saturday's match shot with a 12 L. C. Smith gun, 7.10 in weight using No. S in right bbl., 6 in left and Schultze's powder.

The score on Saturday last was at 12 live birds, A. S. A rules.

GUN CLUB.

Pacific Sportsmen's Club.

A meeting of the club was held at the Gerber ranch near Sacramento on Sunday last. The day was cooler than is usual at this time of the year and the birds a fine lot. The result was that some of the reliables of the club did not score up to their usual form. Secretary Maddux after tieing Messrs. Flohr and Dwyer on ten, beat them in the shoot off and won the medal. The programme and preparations for the State tournament in October were discussed. It appeared that the dealers and merchants of Sacramento were showing the utmost generosity in offering special prizes and it was certain that a long and valuable list would be hung up. It was decided to hold the tournament on the Gerber grounds which will be especially arranged for the occasion; shooting stand erected, refreshment booth etc.

Sunday's score was:

At 12 live birds, A. S. A. rules.

As Mr. Glen Hardeman, of Porterville. was dove shooting on Monday last, an unusually heavy charge blew the firing pin or plunger into his right eye, making a severe cut in the sclerotic coat and also burning both eyes with powder. It will be several days before he recovers from the accident.

Ira Dodge, of Montana, who is known as a great bear killer, has gone into other business. During the spring and summer he has been capturing young elk, until he has now procured nearly twenty. These he has put with another band belonging to friend, together nearly forty head. Ira has been offered a lot of money for his herd by a New York man, but he has about concluded to start a breeding establishment and raise elk, which are rapidly becoming extinct.

It is the expectation of the Country Club to have its club house at Olema ready by Oct. 1st. so that members can enjoy the quail shooting in comfort. Four keepers are to patrol the property which will be thoroughly posted. The notices are to contain a warning against trespass; the law in relation to that misdemeanor and an offer to pay $50 for information leading to the conviction of any one who breaks the game or fish laws.

Several members visited the preserve the other day, among them Mr. Austin C. Tubbs and Mr. Ed. Bosqui. A site for the club house was selected in Bear Valley about three miles from Olema.

These very interesting notes come from Mr. A. W. Bruner of Riverside, present holder of the Fay Diamond Medal representing the wing shooting championship of the state in the State Sportsman's Association. We can assure him that prospects are bright for a good meeting of the association at Sacramento. The members of the Pacific Sportsmen's Club are energetic, hospitable men who will leave nothing undone to insure a good entertainment for the Association. Mr. Bruner writes:

What are the prospects for a good meeting this year at Sacramento? Our folks have moved me over to Riverside as Gen'l Agent and its going to be very hard for me to get away in October. I did want to make a trip East from Sacramento and take our friend Chick along, but if I get away to Sacramento guess I will do well. and will not make my eastern trip until our slack season next year. My friend Elliott, of Kansas City, writes me he will come to California to make me a visit next January and wants to arrange a match with our friend Chick, Robinson, Fay and any others of the Coast Cracks that want to meet him. I have not been able to do any trap shooting since the State meeting and it will be no use for me try to hold the boys down this fall. Mr. W. W. Greener has just finished to my order his 'Royal" Ejector-Gun 12ga 7¾ lbs. and it will be along the last of this month. When the programmes for the State meeting are out please mail to me and oblige. Southern California will be on hand with a team for the Selby Trophy, and I am in hopes they will give a better account of themselves this year.

Major M. Denicke of Fresno was sadly victimized by a friend the other day. Together with a party, he was inspecting some mines in the Sierras, not far from Fresno. One day it was hot and the Major concluded to bathe in the adjacent river. His experience is told by one of his friends in this way:

The Major was bathing, and P. B. Donahoo was sitting on the bank trying to give him a cramp by talking railroad to him. Suddenly they heard something crashing through the brush about twenty yards to Mr. Donahoo's left.

The Major stood waist deep in the river and looked in the direction whence the noise proceeded, and presently they saw a big black bear at the edge of the clearing.

Mr. Donahoo yelled. "Look out, Denicke, it's a hungry bear," and made a wild rush up the grade in the direction of the camp. The Major grabbed his clothes that lay on the bank, and followed Donahoo.

The crashing through the underbrush behind them convinced them that hungry bruin was in pursuit, and determined to take a sirloin steak off the Major's anatomy.

But they reached camp safely, and after the Major had put his clothes on, he and John Hanson took a Winchester and started for the place where they had last seen the infuriated animal.

"There he is!" cried the Major, putting the rifle to his shoulder to draw a bead, but the weapon was snatched away by his companion as the bear walked out into the clearing on his hind legs looking at them.

Then a strange thing happened. The bear seemed to fall to pieces and in his place stood Peter Hanson, and at his feet a black buggy robe that had served him as the bear's hide.

Major Denicke will live upon nothing but bear meat for the next thirty days.

Charles Lancaster's gun manufactory, cartridge loading and store rooms, situated at 2 Little Bruton street, is the largest in London, having an area of 4,000 square feet.

The California Wing Shooting Club will meet at Oakland Trotting Park to-morrow for the last time this season. Take the 9 o'clock boat for Berkeley. Mr. Will De Vaull, the Secretary, particularly requests a full attendance of members, and also invites all others who may be interested in trap shooting.

Montana affords as fine big game shooting as any section on earth. Bear, lynx and mountain lions abound, to say nothing of timber wolves and coyotes. One day recently William C. Kates brought in from the north fork of Sun River the skins of ten bears, ten lynx, three coyotes, one wolf, one mountain lion. C. C. Crawford brought in from the same place nine coyote skins. The State pays a bounty of $2 each for every bear, lynx, coyote and wolf, and fifty cents for each mountain lion.

G. H. Monroe, Henry Steinmiller, W. S. Ellis and Gus Miller, of Fresno, took a trip to the mountains three weeks ago on a hunting expedition. Their objective point was Big Cachita, going by way of Shot Eye.

While in the Shot Eye mountains they encountered snow to the depth of forty or fifty feet, and it was very pleasant to draw close to the fire of evenings. While in those mountains they captured three deer, Henry Steinmiller, G. H. Monroe and W S Ellis killing one each. Small game was plentiful, and the slaughter among the coyotes was immense.

Mr. Ellis has been spending a few weeks in Fresno visiting friends, and will soon return to his home in Vallisca, Iowa. He is wonderfully impressed with the progressive spirit of the people of that county and the fertility of the soil, and may return and locate permanently in the near future.

The bullet furnished for use with the new rifle now being issued to the German army is a new improved projectile. It consists of a steel-cased nickel-plated, leaden bullet shaped like the section of a round lead-pencil, tapering to a fine point. With an elevation of thirty-two degrees the extreme range, 3000 yards, is reached, a range which is equal to a considerable field artillery range.

From the musketry instructions that have been issued with the rifle the following is laid down as the table of penetration, and is certainly extraordinary: It penetrates dry deal 32 inches at a distance of 110 yards, at 440 yards, similar wood 18 inches thick; at 880 yards, 10 inches; at 2000 yards. 2 inches, and at 330 yards, iron plates 7-25 of an inch thick. The depth the shot penetrates into newly thrown up sand amounts, at 110 yards, to about 36 inches; at 440 yards, 20 inches; at 880 yards, 14 inches, and at 2000 yards to 4 inches.

This new table of penetration is bound to bring about a change in the present breast and earthwork regulations for the protection of infantry in action or field fortification. The first sight of this rifle is good up to 330 yards, and has point-blank range, that is, the range at which the point sighted and struck coincide at about 280 yards.

In the hands of thoroughly drilled and steady men, every bullet ought to hit within a range of 220 yards; up to 330 yards every shot ought to hit a kneeling opponent; up to 550 yards a kneeling file—that is one man behind the other; up to 660 yards a standing file or any one mounted man.

The French thought they would be first in the field with the Lebel rifle, but they now will be some months behind the Germans, who also have a great advantage over their former enemies in the fact of the barrel not becoming nearly so rapidly heated; a great defect in the Lebel rifle.

The extraordinary qualities of this new rifle make it apparent that even quite stout trees will be no shelter in the future, as the bullet passes right through them, and furthermore, that one bullet can pass through several men, the only consolation left to the soldier being that the hole made is a small one.

Smokeless powder and such terrible weapons as this rifle and those of a kindred kind, must revolutionize the infantry tactics of the next war.

Mr. G. O. Shield's recently issued "The Big Game of North America" is a volume combining the labors and experiences of a number of men entitled to write authoritatively. Most of the articles meet unqualified approval, but one chapter by our occasional contributor "Silalicum" is rather severely criticized by the Editor of Forest and Stream, himself a famous elk and bear hunter who writes:

Mr. W. A. Perry, in his chapter on elk hunting in the Olympic Mountains, makes the statement that the elk, when about to shed their horns, seek some secluded thicket and there rub the antlers against a tree or bush until they have pushed them off. This statement is, of course, the reverse of true. The experience of all observers shows that when the deer and elk lose their horns, this operation is wholly an involuntary one. The absorption which takes place at the base of the antler weakens its attachment to the pedicle, and the horn at length drops off by its own weight. This dropping off of the horn has been frequently witnessed, and the fact that bare mesas and hillsides in the Rocky Mountains, where elk have their winter feeding grounds, are often thickly strewn with shed antlers. is additional evidence, if this were needed, that they do not rub their horns against trees and bushes to get rid of them. Still speaking about the horns, Mr Perry says that when the horns have completed their growth and are getting hard, and the elk commences rubbing off the velvet, "there is evidently some microbe or insect in the velvet that irritates the animal." We know of no evidence to support this statement, and it seems much more simple and reasonable to suppose, as has been done by previous writers, that as the flow of blood becomes less, the skin which surrounds the horn itches, like a healing wound, and that it is to relieve himself from this irritation that the elk rubs off the velvet. In speaking of the rutting season, the statement is made that the band of elk always acknowledges one leader, the largest and strongest bull in the herd. This of course is true in a certain sense, but it is not true that the leader leads. Instead of being a leader he is a driver, and in the rutting season always brings up the rear of the bunch, prodding the lagging cows or calves with his sharp horns, and driving them before him as a cowboy drives a bunch of cattle. At other seasons of the year the bulls are the first to run away, but in the rutting season they are the last, always going about to gather up all the bunch before they start to run. On page 50 it is stated that the elk do not often feed at night, but are stirring at the earliest dawn. This is not the case in most parts of the country. Elk are usually most active during the night, and especially in the rutting season may be heard, especially on moonlight nights, from shortly after dark until dawn, fighting, playing in the water and feeding.

To these remarks it may be objected that the habits of a species of wild range may differ in different parts of the country. This is true within certain limits. Habits affected by climate, such as the times of rut and of birth of young, or habits of migration and conditions of the animal's life, but these conditions would not influence such a matter as the growth and shedding of the horns.

Exception may also be taken to Mr. Perry's apparent blood thirstiness. In the accounts which he gives of hunting, he speaks as if it were a common thing for him to kill three or four elk out of a bunch, and again on page 67 he tells where he killed seven or eight at one time. Such slaughter as this makes us think of the turning loose among a band of elk of young city sportsmen who had never before seen big game. It is certainly inexcusable in an old hunter. The tendency to kill is naturally strong enough in every civilized heart, and the efforts of those who write as teachers—for the instruction of those who have had less experience than themselves—should be devoted to checking rather than to encourage this tendency. All of us who are sportsmen profess to desire to preserve game rather than to slaughter it, and it is unfortunate that this lesson has so far been forgotten in this present work. As already implied, similar comment might be made on a number of other chapters in this book.

The Helena Rod and Gun Club's Fifth Annual Tournament was held at Helena, Montana, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, and was very successful both as to number of entries and excellence of the shooting. Blue Rock targets were used exclusively. In the match for the State Team Championship Cup, Helena Team No 2 won, its members being H. Barbour, C. Tooker and A. K. Barbour. The team broke 132 out of 150 Blue Rock targets.

There were nine entries for the Individual Championship Cup, the contestants being Fisk, Manuel, Tooler, Palliet, A. K. Barbour, Harrity, Wheeler and Hinkley of Helena, J. Conley and F Conley of Deer Lodge, and Cowan and Howard of Butte. The first prize is the silver cup presented by C. B. Jacquemin & Co., and is only contested for at the annual State tournaments. The former holder of the cup, A. J. Fisk, receives 60 per cent. of the entrance money, amounting to $72. Second was taken by Mr. Manuel, of Helena.

The cup was won by Mr. Cowan, of Butte City, with a score of 92 breaks out of 100 shots. The other scores were: Fisk 89, Manuel 91, Tooker 90, Palliet 80, J. Conley 75, A. K. Barbour 90, Cowan 92, Hinkley 71, Howard 82, Harrity 86, Wheeler 91, F. Conley 91.

The high average prizes are given to those who make the highest averages in certain events of each day of the tournament, the several events aggregating 100 birds. Jack Fisk, one of the original members of the Helena Club, who has always been an ardent advocate of shotgun shooting, won the high average on the remarkable score of 95 in 100, a score that is seldom equalled. At the great Cleveland tournament last year, participated in by over 150 of the crack shots of the United States, 95 won the diamond medal. At the Butte tournament in 1889, Mr. Fisk won high average on a score of 87; he won the Helena Club's average medal for 1889 on a score of 90 in 100, and at the annual State tournament one year ago he won the high average on a score of 91 in 100. The following persons were awarded prizes for the high averages during the tournament:

AT A POSSIBLE 100 BIRDS.

A. J. Fisk	95
Frank Conley	93
S. A. Palliett	93
Clyde Tooker	91
T. J. Cronin	88

THE KENNEL.

Sales.

Mr. A. B. Truman (Elcho Kennel, San Francisco) has sold an Irish Red Setter bitch, whelped June 1st, 1890, by ch Mike T—ch Lady Elcho T, to Mr. C. B. Wingate, La Porte, Cal.

Names Claimed.

Mr. E. J. Roy, San Francisco, claims the kennel name "Glencho Kennels."

Visits.

Mr. E. J. Roy's Irish setter Rosebell (Pat O'More—Bell C) to owner's Red John (Nat Glencho—Red Fanny), August 9th, 1890.

Change of Name.

Mr. E. J. Roy, San Francisco, changes the name of his Irish setter Shaun Rue to Red John.

The stud book numbers of Mr. Roy's red setters are, Red John, 17661, and Rosebelle, 17546.

The man who drove over Mr. Howard Vernon's pointer last week was fined $25, the evidence proving that he did so purposely. The latest advice from Dr. Carpenter, who has the bitch in charge, is that her litter will be preserved.

Mr. Dodge of Auburn, who owns the pointer Stella, a litter sister to Mr. Will Berry's Blackbird, has recently bred a litter sired by Mr. Berry's Banquo. The litter is said by Mr. Ed. Bosqui to be unusually good. Mr. Bosqui has received one, Mr. D. B. Gillette, Jr. one and Mr. Charles Griffiths of San Rafael one.

Mr. Henry Wormington last week received a letter from Captain J. A. McBeth, of Denver, whose recent visit to San Francisco was the occasion of so much pleasure to those who met him. After a round to New York, he returned to Denver, full of gratefulness for the courtesies shown him by Mr. Wormington and other friends.

Mr. A. B. Pearson writes that he has bred his pointer Countess (Titterington's Trinket's Bang—Hayward's Lottie) to Hidalgo (Vandevort,s Don—Beautiful Queen). Five puppies as pretty and bright as possible resulted. Mr. Pearson adds that quail were never so plenty about San Diego as now.

Mr. B. C. Towne, of Portland, Oregon, sends two photographs, one showing California Belle and litter; the other the litter without the dam. Belle, it may be remembered, was the red setter which, while in our hands, won a place in the Gilroy Field Trials and also at the Pacific Coast Field Trtals.

The pictures are exquisite, particularly that one showing the head of the dam. It seems fairly alive, so clear and well focussed is it. Mr. Towne made the original negatives, and still possesses them, although competing photographers have copied his pictures. A large crayon of the bitch and litter, made after the photo took first prize at the recent Melbourne Exposition, and since that time Signor Catani, of Melbonrne, has copied the subject in oil, in size eight feet by six. The photo is the prettiest dog pictnre we have ever seen.

Mr. Reuben H. Lloyd, whose name is familiar to all San Franciscans, has long been known as a lover of fine horses, but not until we saw the following extract from the excellent Denver Sports Afield did we know that he was also in the fancy as respects dogs. Sports Afield says:—A strikingly handsome, bright-eyed specimen of the pure Japahese spaniel—Knight by name—visited Sports Afield one day last week. In color, Knight is black and white, and handsomely marked—resembling a Blenheim at first glance, except that the tail curls over the back. From his genial owner, W. D. Todd of this city, we learn that this youngster is in very truth, "A gentleman of Japan"—having been whelped and raised in Yokohama. And now for a little subsequent history. Not so many moons ago, a large party of Californian Knights Templar visited Denver, and among the good-looking turnouts placed at their disposal was Mr. Todd's. It seems that the latter gentleman had driven several parties of ladies and their escorts around to view the city—winding up with a stag party whose good-natured wit and repartee were irrepressible. Among the latter was R. H Lloyd, the well-known San Francisco attorney, who was not long in finding out that "Teamster" Todd was anything but an enemy to our dumb animals. After a lapse of several months, what was Mr. Todd's surprise to hear from the lawyer Sir Knight that he had already obtained and shipped to him a Japanese spaniel. And here ends the story of Knight except that he is probably the only dog of his race in all this part of the West.

ROD.

Hypnotized Trout.

A party of campers from Plumas County came into town yesterday morning. Their appearance was so disreputable that they narrowly escaped being "vagged" by our vigilant police force. But they made a satisfactory explanation, and there were no arrests says the Marysville Appeal. Subsequently the party were identified at the Appeal office as compositors of the Sacramento Bee, accompanied by foreman McKenna of that establishment. They were on their way home after a stay of about a month near Prattville. The fishing they said, was good, and they had a "fine time" generally.

When asked what was the weight of the largest trout caught by any of the party, one of them said: "About two pounds, excepting McKenna's tame trout that weighed seven pounds."

"But that was no fair catch," said another of the party.

After some urging, Mr. McKenna consented to explain what was meant by "tame trout."

"I feel reluctant to talk about it," said he gravely, "as I know that suspicion attaches to all unusual statements concerning fish. But the circumstance was certainly very curious and remarkable, and will furnish an interesting paper for the Academy of Sciences at San Francisco, with which I am in communication.

"I had with me," continued Mr. McKenna, "a translation of Charcot's remarkable work on hypnotism, and had been studying it with much interest, for, as all my friends well know, I am something of a mesmerist myself. One passage of his book particularly excited my attention. It ventures to hint that fishes might be found peculiarly susceptible to hypnotism, under favorable conditions.

"One day I was lying on the edge of a bank at the Meadows, with my face within a foot of the surface of the water, which is there very clear. The bottom was of white sand, and, as there was scarcely any current at that spot, I could plainly see the smallest objects in the water. As I lay there motionless, a large trout swam slowly forward, and when within a foot of my face it came to a stop and gazed fixedly into my eyes. Remembering Charcot's remark, I exerted all my powers of magnetism, and returned the stare with interest. Soon I saw that a mental impression had been produced on the fish, and I ventured by a slight movement of the hand to test the extent of the control which I believed I had gained. To my great delight the trout slowly swam in the direction indicated, and paused for further guidance. At my beck it returned, and I kept it moving about, in obedience to my gestures, for a quarter of an hour or more. It seemed a little shy at times, and fearing that it might be alarmed by the coming of some other person to the spot, I at length conveyed a suggestion to the fish that it swim into my hands and permit itself to be lifted out of the water. This the trout seemed rather reluctant to do, but in obedience to the irresistible influence it at length came within the grasp of my submerged hands, and was instantly thrown upon the bank. I weighed it at the house, and it turned the scales at exactly seven pounds. What do you think of that for a peculiar experience?"

"It is certainly very striking," said the reporter, "but I must confess that the story puts a strain on my credulity."

"Well, chipped in one of the party, "the strain on your credulity is nothing to that on M'Kenna's imagination."

The fish ladder at the dam at Donner Lake was completed last Saturday and is a complete success. The fish can easily ascend through it from the river to the lake, thousands of them having made the trip on the first day the ladder was put in.

On Chief of Patrol, Callundan's recent trip down the Russian River, destroying Indian fish traps, he was materially assisted by Messrs. Wm. T. Brush and Town Marshal Connor, of Cloverdale.

W. H. Shebley of the California State Fish Commission spent the early part of the week at San Andreas Lake catching black bass for the lake at Hotel Del Monte. He will return in a few days and make another catch to stock several lakes in the northern part of the State.

J. R. Hebbron of Salinas, received last week from the Fish Commissioners a consignment of Rainbow trout, which he planted in Gabilan creek. C. T. Romie, of Soledad, received a similar consignment, which he planted in the Arroyo Seco. The fish Commissioners have promised to send in a short time a consignment of black bass, which are to be planted in the lakes of the valley.

On Saturday last a telegram came from Denver signed by E. E. Pray and J. A. McBeth. It read: "Trout fishing excellent. Can you spend the season with us?"

We have camped out in snow. Have seen sand storms. Do not object to duck shooting in a rain storm. On occasion can wade the Sacramento at its head where the water is icy, from morning until night for trout.

But we fear such a combination as the Duke of Denver, E. Pray and that insouciant cosmopolitan McBeth. The season would doubtless continue after those conspirators had finished us, but we are not taking such chances and must decline with thanks.

Mr. J. B. Sheridan, for many years a prominent official of the San Francisco News Company, where his faithfulness has won him general esteem, departed from his traditions a few days ago and went fishing to the Middle Fork of the Mokelumne River in Calaveras County. With him were Messrs. J. B. Luddy, Assessor of Calaveras, J. B. Sparks, Superintendent of the Calaveras Water Company, F. A. White, a prominent dentist of San Francisco, and Mr. Geo. Kelton, of Mokelumne Hill.

The party went into camp about ten miles beyond West Point, where they found good feed for their horses and a beautiful spot upon which to settle down for ten days. Trout of eight inches to a foot in length were very plenty, taking the red hackle, coch-y-bonddhu and flies of a reddish or brown shade freely. A week of trout, bacon, creamless coffee and hard-tack put an edge upon all, which will not wear away for mouths to come.

Mr. Sheridan wore a pair of the Canadian hunting boots sold by Mr. E. T. Allen, and was very pleased with them in every respect.

W. T. Baldwin, of Gridley, was fishing in Feather river, a half mile below the bridge, with what fishermen call a "hand line," and had been catching some very nice cat fish, says the Herald. Some of the fish were so large that he concluded there were larger ones in the stream, and he baited his hook with a good-sized young pike. In a short time he felt a tug at his line and prepared to land his catch. Instead of that the catch yanked him bodily down a steep bank into water over ten feet deep. Baldwin held to the line, however, until two companions went to his aid. The twain succeeded in dragging a 67-pound sturgeon out on dry land, besides saving Baldwin's life, he being so entangled in the line as to be unable to make any headway pulling against the monster or swimming to shore.

The gate at the fish pond above town was opened yesterday and the nearly 200,000 red speckled Eastern trout enclosed therein will be permitted to make their way at their leisure into the river, except a few hundred which will be retained as a matter of experiment, and for the purpose of watching their habits as they mature, says the Reno Journal. The only danger the new accession to the river's population will experience will be from sawdust, with which the waters continue to be strongly impregnated. The Journal is reliably informed that at least on the California end, only pretenses are made of disposing of the sawdust in accordance with the law, and that it is notorious that more of it is dumped into the river than is otherwise disposed of. The California fish authorities promised Commissioner Mills sometime ago to attend to this matter, but as the poisonous truck still continues to float past here in the usual quantities, it is quite evident that nothing has yet been done. A movement is on foot here to have the California law enforced by prosecutions by persons from this State, if the authorities over the line continue derelict in their official duties.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

BUTTE, Aug 12.—The August meeting of the West Side Racing Association opened to-day with a fair attendance for opening day. The track and weather were all that could be desired, and the racing, especially the running, was spirited. With the exception of the second event, when Cyclone won, every favorite won. And this one defeat of the talent was probably due to the fact that Nettie S. wore a wire shoe to protect a split hoof, which announcement was made from the judge's stand, just before the race, too late for the talent to hedge. Idleman was scratched in the three minute trot, which, after the first heat threw a wet blanket over the pool box, as this heat showed conclusively that Homestake was a dead sure winner. The following are the

I have long used Simmons Liver Regulator for my horses, cows, sheep and chickens. To my horses I give a teaspoonful of the powder in a mash three times a week. I find it invaluable for Cough, Hide-bound or Pneumonia. Giving it to my game chickens for Cholera I have not lost one in the last five years. I make this statement that mankind may know Simmons Liver Regulator as a valuable remedy for the ills of man and beast.—T. G. BACON, Edgefield, S. C.

CONDITIONS.

1. In races Nos. 1, 4 and 10, the word "District" means the counties of Butte, Colusa, Tehama, Yolo, Yuba, Sutter, Nevada, Placer, Sierra, Lassen, Plumas, Shasta, Modoc, Trinity, Del Norte, Siskiyou, Humboldt and Mendocino. ALL OTHER RACES OPEN TO THE STATE.

2. All trotting and pacing races are 3 in 5, except No. 1, which is 2 in 3.

3. National Trotting Association rules to govern all trotting and pacing races, and the State Agricultural Society rules to govern all running races.

4. Entrance fee 10 per cent. of purse, which must accompany the nomination.

5. In trotting and pacing, the purse will be divided in three moneys: 60 30 and 10 per cent.

6. Five or more paid-up entries required to fill, and three or more to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold the entries received and start the race with a less number, and deduct a proportionate amount of the purse or stake.

7. The Boards reserve the right to trot or run heats of any two races alternately, or to call a special race between heats; also to change the day or hour of any race if they deem it necessary.

8. For a walk-over, a horse is only entitled to its own entrance and one-half of the entrance money received in such race, and to no added money. A horse winning a race is entitled to first money only, except when distancing the field, then to first and third moneys.

9. Non starters must be declared out on the day previous to the race they are engaged in, not later than eight P. M.

10. Horses for the first race on each day will be called up at one P. M. sharp.

Entries Closed with the Secretaries August 1, 1890, at 10 o'clock P. M.

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

The BOYCE WASH can be applied ALL OVER THE BODY WITHOUT FEAR OF BLISTERING NOR DOES IT AFFECT THE KIDNEYS.

The BOYCE WASH will cure CRACKED HEELS, PUFFS, STOCKINGS, SCRATCHES, INFLAMED TENDONS and FEVERED LEGS.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States; Six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on application. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

2nd Breeders' Great Combination Sale

—OF—

Standard-bred Stock of the Highest Order; also, Trotters, Pacers and Gentlemen's Roadsters, Saddle Horses and Carriage Teams, at

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory. New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

Entries close October 4th.

TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalognes are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure. This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

JUANITO JR.,
Santa Clara P. O., Cal.

For Sale or Trade.

PACING GELDING,

Record 2:15¼.

CAN GO RACES BETTER THAN HIS RECORD.

To any one paying his value, the present owner will guarantee him to beat any pacer in California, or will forfeit the horse. Also,

Three-Year-Old STALLION,

Standard and Registered,

By Artillery 2:21½, by Hambletonian 10; dam by Jubilee Lambert, 2:25; second dam (dam Lotta, 2:24½) by Daniel Lambert. This colt showed a mile in 2:40 at eighteen months old, and is the best built colt I ever saw.

Several Head Mares & Fillies,

And a COACH STALLION, 16 Hands,

Five Years Old, beautiful Chestnut, by a son of Sultan. Will sell all or part cheap for cash, or trade for city or country (unincumbered) real estate.

WANTED TO TRADE.

THE STANDARD TROTTING MARE

EVENING STAR

Black, eight years old, and about 15¾ hands high; weight about 1100 pounds; record 2:29; by Commodore Belmont 4340, he by Belmont 64.

First dam by DICTATOR 113.

Second dam by IRON DUKE, he by C. M. Clay.

Third dam by SIR WALLACE.

Fourth dam by COPPER BOTTOM.

EVENING STAR is a handsome, level headed and game mare, and should be valuable as a brood mare. Her sire has several in the 30 list, and is the sire of dams who have produced a number of trotters.

I want to trade this fine mare for a standard bred STALLION COLT, two or three years old, of good size, good trotting action and a good looker. Address,

LEE MANTLE,
Butte City, Montana.

Persons desiring to inquire about the mare are referred to B. C. HOLLY ESQ., Vallejo, Cala.

N. B.—LIBERAL PURSES have been reserved for SPECIAL RACES, both TROTTING and RUNNING.

No. 2, 7 and 14 filled.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the purses must be made two days preceding the race, at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in purses can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting and pacing races will close September 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o'clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,

C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

Judges—H. M. La Rue, J. N. Bailhache and F. W. Loeber. Timers—E. B. Gifford, F. L. Coombs and H. J. Agnew.

On account of the lengthy programmo the races were started at a quarter to two. Four races were on the programme and attracted a large crowd. The races were a three-minute class for trotters, a 2:30 pace and two district trots. When the six horses in the 3:00 trot came ont Buster was behind Larco as Bayliss was too stiff from his fall on Tuesday to handle the gray gelding who proved a bad breaker and was a distance and a half out when Kilrain went nnder the wire in the first heat.

Chantilly driven by Goldsmith had evidently not yet recovered from her runaway at San Jose and was slightly lame. After seven hard heats had been trotted Peter Brandow won the race, Larco. Chas. Derby and Kilrain being distanced earlier in the game while Chantilly who went to the stable at the end of the fourth heat took fourth money, first money having been paid to Mr. Williams without starting Beauty Mc, who is an exceptional four-year-old. Charles Derby won the second heat in 2:25½ and the fifth in 2:30 and had the race at his mercy, bnt probably owing to not being keyed up for a hard race, Derby having only been under Mr. Holly's care for about six weeks, he could not raise a trot and was distanced. The veterinary in attendance pronounced it congestion of the heart.

Three horses entered the 2:30 list in the race, Free Coinage obtaining a mark of 2:27¼, Chas. Derby 2:25½, Fay 2:28¾. The pace showed what a grand youngster Goldsmith has in Rupee who, although ouly three-years-old, beat his two older opponents in clever style, taking the second, third and fourth heats in 2:21½, 2:19¾ and 2:20.

The district trot for two-year-olds was an easy thing for the Dawn filly Anna Belle. The three minnte trotters had used up so much of the afternoon that despite sandwiching heats almost from the start the district three-year-old trot had to be postponed until next day.

First heat. Pools sold freely; after fluctuating for a while, they settled down to Chantilly, favorite at $13, Kilrain $10, Chas. Derby $9 and the field $25. Fully twenty-five minutes elapsed before the field conld he got away, but at last Mr. La Rue gave them the word in good order. Larco broke immediately and never fairly struck his gait being a hundred yards behind all the way. Chas. Derby left his feet on the turn and fell behind the rest of whom Kilrain on the inside set the pace three lengths in front of Chantilly, when fairly straightened out in the back stretch Kilrain was four lengths in front of Chantilly with Free Coinage seven lengths further back, two lengths in front of Fay, five ahead of Chas. Derby, half way up the back stretch Free Coinage broke and was quickly passed by Fay who went on in hot pursuit of the leaders. Chantilly broke all to pieces on the turn and was passed by Fay who came into the home stretch four lengths behind Kilrain with Chantilly five further back and the same distance behind her came Free Coinage in front of Derby. Kilrain stopped a good deal in the stretch but vigoronsly driven ont won by three lengths from Fay, at intervals of three lengths came Free Coinage, Chantilly and Derby, while Larco was 150 yards out. Time, 2:31½. Mutnals on the heat paid $14.

Second heat. Pools sold, Fay $30, Chantilly, Kilrain and the field $9 each, and finally settled down to $25 for Fay, $9 for Chantilly, $6 for the field and $4 for Kilrain. At the third score the quintette received the word and kept well together to the turn when Fay left his feet in a bnck jumping break and fell back, while Kilrain took the lead and all settling to work the quarter post was passed in the following order: Kilrain, Free Coinage, Chas. Derby, Fay and Chantilly, two lengths separating each of them, Derby went up to the leader at the three furlong pole and drew right away, going round the turn three lengths in front of Kilrain who was two lengths in advance of Free Coinage with Fay three lengths further back, the heat was all over as Derby trotting steadily won easily by three lengths, Brandow getting second place four lengths in front of Fay, three lengths in advance of Kilrain who finished very distressed, Chantilly was a bad last. Time, 2:25½. Mutnals in the heat paid $31.

Third heat. Derby was now made a red hot favorite at $50 to $15 for the whole field. The big five were got away at the second attempt. Derby broke all to pieces before the turn and again on the turn while Fay trotted away from the the field passing the quarter five lengths in front of Kilrain with Free Coinage at his wheel and Derby seven lengths behind just ahead of Chantilly, Free Coinage went past Kilrain and increasing his pace cut down Fay's lead to three lengths at the head of the stretch and catching him half way down the stretch carried him to a break and won the heat slowing up by three lengths, Fay second, Chantilly was third a length in front of Derby just clear of Kilrain the trio barely saving their distance. Peter Brandow returned to the stand his face wreathed in smiles amidst a storm of applause. Time, 2:27¼. Mutnals on the heat, the whole field against Derby paid $13 60.

Fourth heat.—No pools were sold. the pace engaging the attention of the betting public. After scoring up several times, Goldsmith and Griffin were fined $5 each for coming in front of the pole horse, and after scoring a few more times they were sent off altogether. Chantilly broke before the first turn and dropped back, while Fay took the lead and went into the backstretch a length in front of Silver Coinage, seven in front of Derby who was clear of Kilrain and Chantilly. Coinage was level with Fay at the three-eighths pole, but breaking, Fay drew well away, passing the half six lengths in front of Coinage with a gap of five lengths between each of the others. Coinage decreased the lead round the turn, but breaking before the stretch was reached, was six lengths behind. Fay, however, broke, and let him get even at the drawgate, when the Abbotsford gelding broke again and Fay won handily by three lengths, followed by Free Coinage, Chantilly, Charles Derby and Kilrain three lengths apart. Time, 2:28¾. Mutnals paid $12.35.

Fifth heat—Pools sold $25 Fay, $5 Silver Coinage and $15 for the field. A start was obtained very quickly, all five staying together to the turn, when Chantilly broke. Fay led into the backstretch a length and a half in front of Charles Derby, who was two lengths in front of Free Coinage. Chas Derby got to Fay's neck at the half, and carrying him too fast, the gelding broke and Holly gained a three lengths lead and trotting squarely and steadily the brown stallion won the heat with ease by three lengths, Fay second a length in front of Free Coinage, Chantilly fourth forty yards further back, and Kilrain distanced, 160 yards ont. Time, 2:30. Mutnals paid $9.50.

Sixth heat—Chantilly went to the stable after the last heat for not getting a heat in five. No pools were sold, the race being thought all over from the easy way in which Derby won, however the brown stallion was not in the hunt. After scoring up for quarter of an hour the two were started. Derby broke before the turn, and was out of the race; Coinage followed suit going round the turn, and Fay led seven lengths past the quarter and increased it to the three-eighths, when he broke, and Coinage got to within three lengths at the half, and pressing him hard, was two lengths behind at the head of the stretch. Half way down the stretch Coinage collared Fay, who broke, and the veteran Brandow went past, winning the heat easily by a length, despite a good finish by Fay. Derby, who was 200 yards back, was distanced. Time, 2:38¾. Mutnals on the heat paid $16.25.

Seventh heat—Pools sold: Silver Coinage $30 to $20 Fay. They were sent away the first time, Fay going out a length in front to the half when Fay broke, and Coinage went round the turn five lengths in front, and going very steadily, won by about that distance. Time, 2:38. Mutuals paid $11.85.

Time, 2:31½, 2:25½, 2:27¼, 2:28¾, 2:30, 2:38¾, 2:38.

First heat—Pools sold: Hummer, on the strength of his San Jose victory, $40, Princess Alice $26, Rupee $6. The trio were sent off the first time, Hummer and Princess Alice going out at a merry clip, lead Rupee two lengths round the turn. Hummer had half a length the best of it to the half in 1:08½, and round the upper turn with Rupee seven lengths behind. Hummer broke badly on getting into the homestretch, and lost the lead, the Stockton mare, Princess Alice, winning easily by three lengths, Hummer five in front of Rupee. Time, 2:22. Mutnals on the heat paid $13.90.

Second heat—The Princess' victory in the first heat altered the complexion of the betting. Pools sold: Princess $30, Hummer $20, Rupee $10. The word was given at the second attempt, with all three pacing well. Hummer broke and lost his position before the turn. Princess Alice led past the quarter by two lengths, Rupee three in front of Hummer, who was coming fast, and at the three-eighth post all three were level; Hummer, who was on the inside, had half a length advantage of Princess on the turn, while Goldsmith had pulled in behind them. Hummer carried Princess Alice very wide round the turn into the homestretch, and Goldsmith came in a hurry on the rails, and with Hummer breaking twice before the wire, the three-year-old Wilkes won cleverly by two lengths from Princess Alice, the same distance in advance of Hummer. Time, 2:21½. Mutuals on the heat paid $23 35.

Third heat—A heavy lot of pools were sold at $30, Rupee to $15 for the field, while just before the start $12 was the best offer for the field. The trio were sent away in short order, Rupee and Princess Alice taking the lead round the turn; at the quarter the mare was a length in front of Rupee with Hummer three lengths behind. The latter broke but caught cleverly at the three furlong pole, and was only three lengths behind Princess Alice and Rupee, who were head and head at the half in 1:09¾. The Princess hung on to Rupee until thirty yards past the half, when she broke all to pieces and was passed by Hummer, who came fast round the turn, being only two lengths behind Rupee at the head of the stretch. Rupee, however, held him safe all the way, winning by three lengths with Princess Alice fifty yards back. Time, 2:19¾. Mutuals paid $9.

Fourth heat—The judges substituted Shaner for Garrity behind Hummer. No betting was indulged in by the public before or after the change, it being conceded a gift for Rupee by the talent who were not mistaken, for when a stretch was made Hummer again broke just before leaving the stretch, while Princess Alice and Rupee went head and head to the quarter. Rupee surely but slowly paced away from the Princess, while Hummer closed up to her and passed her at the half, five lengths behind Rupee, who was driven right along by Goldsmith, winning the heat by seven lengths from Hummer with Princess Alice a bad third. Time, 2:20.

The district two-year-old trot provoked little or no interest. The three colts scored up for a long with Walnut being too slow and they were finally sent off three lengths in front of him. Myrtle trotted away from Anna Belle when the latter broke on the turn and lost seven lengths which she gradually regained being two lengths behind at the head of the homestretch when she went right up to Myrtle and beat her easily three lengths to the wire. Walnut was a big distance out and was evidently only started to fill the race as he was not in trim to show his true form and from his breeding and appearance should do much better later on. Time, 2:38¾. Mutuals paid $8 90.

Second heat—No pools, no nothing, everyone tired out. Anna Belle led five lengths round the turn and breaking at the quarter let Myrtle up but soon drew away again and won all the way by seven lengths. Time, 2:38.

FRIDAY.

A large crowd turned out to witness the Ladies' tournament and the racing. At a quarter to two o'clock the fair equestriennes appeared on the track, and after the usual exercises the Judges, H. M. LaRue, Geo. C. McMullen, A. P. Culver, L. Hoyt, and C. S. Crittenden awarded the following prizes: First premium, $40, Mrs. C. R. Royce; second, $30, Miss Mary Carroll of Vallejo; third, $20, Mrs. J. F. Swift; fourth, $10, Miss Eva Ward; fifth, $5, Miss C. Caldwell. Mr. LaRue, in a brief but pleasant manner, announced the awards and thanked the lady competitors for their presence, and then the track was cleared for the thoroughbred brigade. Three races were given; the first a half mile and repeat was very close all the way, Lida Ferguson winning both heats in good time, while the mile and a half, which was run between the heats, was run in the exceptionally good time of 2:35½; the last race, a mile dash, was one of the prettiest races ever witnessed, Murphy and Alfarata running locked together all the way round, and it was only in the last few strides that the mare got in front. The postponed district trot proved a good thing for R. Murphy's Mandee who won in straight heats. The special turned out to be a gift for the pacer Cora C, contrary to all expectation, as it was thought Alcona Jr. would go much faster than he did. The mare Cora C who got a record of 2:28½ in the last heat, is by Whippleton 1883, dam by Nauhuc 504, granddam by Vick's Ethan Allen.

First heat—Pools sold rapidly at $25 Ferguson to $10 Ida Glenn, and $5 for the field, and finally wound up at $30 Ferguson to $10 for the whole field. A delay of nearly an hour took place at the post, caused by the fractiousness of Juniata. Eventually they were sent off well together. Ferguson and Glenn went to the front on the turn and swung into the stretch together, while Juniata closed up on the inside. Ferguson won handily by a length from Glenn, Juniata two lengths back third, Kitty Lamb fourth, and Serpolette last. Time, 0:49. Mutuals paid $7 60.

Second heat—No pools sold. After a long delay at the post the flag was dropped to a fair start. Ferguson and Glenn went right away from the field, running neck and neck all the way. Ferguson on the inside won cleverly by a neck from Glenn with Juniata third three lengths back, Serpolette fourth and Kitty Lamb last. Time, 0:48½. Mutuals paid $6.40.

A few pools were sold at $50 Tycoon to $20 for the field and the three horses were sent to the post after the first heat of the half mile. The trio were turned loose at the first time up, Wild Oats went out in front leading three lengths round the turn and past the stand with Tycoon running easy second and Hotspur ridden hard three lengths back third. Tycoon went up to Wild Oats on the turn and passing him as they turned into the backstretch took the lead at the three-quarters and gradually increased his lead to three lengths at the head of the stretch and galloped home an easy winner by two lengths, Wild Oats second, three in front of Hotspur. Alfarata and Murphy outfooted Silver Bow from the start and ran head and head all the way round to the head of the stretch where she showed a shade in front. Alfarata crowded Murphy on to the fence 100 yds. from home but pulling out again won cleverly by a length; despite the claim of foul the race was given to Alfarata. District three years old. First heat. Maudee sold a hot favorite at $25 to $13 for the field. When word was given Kafir broke and dropped back while Maudee set the pace passing the quarter three lengths in front of Leoline, two in front of Kafir and Antevano out of the hunt; the order was unchanged all the way round, Mandee winning easily by three lengths, Kafir getting second place from Leoline who broke at the distance. Time, 2:38½. Mutuals paid $9.40.

Second heat. Mandee sold readily at $25 to $11 for the field. After scoring up several times the four were sent away in good style, Mandee went out in front leading a length past the quarter with Leoline second and Kafir third. Antevano went past all three in a clatter before the half and increasing his advantage had five lengths lead of Leoline at the head of the stretch when he looked all over a winner, Maudee well handled came with a rush the last hundred yards winning by half a length. Time, 2:38½. Mutuals paid $7.40.

Third heat—No pools sold. Bayliss drove Antevano instead of Mr. Shafter, at the latter's request. After scoring up four times a start was effected, Mandee and Leoline setting the pace, Antevano breaking twice on the turn, fell back last. Mandee trotted away from the others, and leading three lengths past the half was never headed, winning easily by three lengths from Leoline, fifty yards in front of Kafir, just clear of Antevano. SPECIAL RACE.

It was late in the afternoon when the four horses turned out. They were soon sent off, the pacer Cora C. leading all the way, won by a length from Sunset, with Mattie P. a bad third and Alcona Jr. last. Time, 2:34½.

Second heat—When the word was given Alcona Jr. and Cora C. drew away from the others, and passed the quarter almost even, but Alcona broke badly, and was passed by Sunset, who went in hot pursuit until the turn was reached, when Alcona again closed up, and after a pretty race down the stretch, the pacer won by a head, Alcona second, Mattie P. third. Time, 2:32.

Third heat—When a start was made Cora C. went right away, leading three lengths round the turn, and with Alcona breaking at the quarter, she increased her advantage to five lengths, and driven right out, won the heat and race by six lengths, Alcona Jr. just heating Mattie P. for the place. SATURDAY.

The closing day of the fair brought large crowds to the track to see the stock awards and witness the trotting There were three races on the programme: The 2:24 class, a district 2:25 and a special race. The 2:24 class was won in straight heats by Sister V. who reduced her record to 2:18½ in the first heat and came back in 2:21¾ and 2:21¼. The District trot was supposed to be a gift for Vic H., but breaking badly in the first heat she was laid up and Guide won the heat easily in 2:24½ which knocks 4½ seconds off his previous record. Vic took the next two heats handily and wound up the race in the fourth heat; when seemingly out of the hunt she displayed a tremendous burst of speed down the stretch and won cleverly at the finish. The special race was thought to be a certainty for the Palo Alto entry—Ladywell, a four year-old mare by Electioneer out of Lady Lowell (dam of Lorita 2:22¾ by Schultz's St. Clair, grandam Laura, dam of Doc sire of Occident 2:16¾. The talent were correct, for after winning the first heat Barbero, who had a record of 2:29½, and has since been gelded took the second heat, then Peter Brandow made a desperate drive down the stretch and captured the third heat; Havey turned Ladywell loose and took the next two heats in 2:26 and 2:38.

First race.—Pools sold, Sister V. $50, Pink $11, Redwood $6 and the field $5. After scoring for twenty minutes Goldsmith's harness broke and an interval of ten minutes took place while it was repaired. They again scored up several times and Vioget was fined $5 for coming up in front. The next attempt resulted in a start. Sister V. took the pole on the turn and led past the quarter two lengths in front of Wanda and Pink. Wanda went past Sister before the half (in 1:08½) and displaying an astonishing burst of speed had three lengths the best of Sister at the end of the back stretch with Pink five lengths back and Redwood fourth, seven lengths further back. Sister closed up a little round the turn and going well out on the turn came down the stretch on the hard going winning handily by two lengths from Wanda with Pink five lengths further back third, Redwood a bad fourth and Mary Lou, who pulled up lame, last. Time, 2:18¼. Mutuals paid $7.40.

Second heat. Pools sold readily at $25 Sister to $8 for the whole field. The first time up the flag fell, Sister and Wanda again led round the turn passing the quarter in 34½ seconds, Wanda two lengths behind and four in front of Pink. Sister made a standstill break at the three furlong pole and was passed by both Wanda and Pink. Wanda passed the half in 1:09 4.5, five lengths in front of Pink with Sister V. three lengths further back. Wanda stopped to nothing on the turn and Pink took the lead, being two lengths in front of Sister at the head of the stretch, the latter finished very gamely and eventually beat Pink by a length, Redwood a bad third, Lon fourth, Wanda fifth. Time, 2:21¾. Mutuals paid $6.40.

Third heat. Very few pools were sold at $30 Sister to $5 the field. A start was soon made, Sister going right out led Pink three lengths at the quarter with Redwood three lengths further back, a length in front of Wanda; Sister increased her advantage to five lengths at the half, Pink two lengths in front of Redwood with Wanda five further back. Sister went round the round turn five lengths to the good and won the heat and race easily, slowing up the last few strides, Pink three lengths back second, Redwood third two lengths further back, and Mary Lou fourth. Time, 2:21¼. Mutuals paid $6.

First heat—A few pools were sold, Vic H $25 to $5 the field, and then Vic H was barred and Oaknut sold for $25 to $15 for the rest. At about the fifth attempt a start was effected. Vic H broke badly and lost seventy yards before the first furlong. Oaknut trotting steadily had three lengths the best of Guide at the quarter with Keepsake four lengths further back. Oaknut broke all to pieces in the next furlong and Guide went on, reaching the half mile ten lengths in front of Oaknut, with Vic H fifteen lengths further back. The heat was all over, as Guide, going very steadily, finished, pulling up six lengths in front of Oaknut, ten in front of Vic H, six ahead of Keepsake. Time, 2:24½. Mutuals paid $22.20.

Second heat—Auction pools, of which there were very few sold, were at the rate of $20 Vic H to $12 the field. At the second attempt the word was given. Guide going out in front led three lengths round the turn and increased it to five at the quarter, with Oaknut second two lengths in front of Vic H. The mare trotted very steadily up the backstretch, and was only two lengths behind at the half in 1:12, and going past on the turn led by half a length into the stretch. Guide was pounded all the way to the drawgate, when he broke and ran fifty yards, finishing a length behind Vic H, Oaknut a hard third. Time, 2:23½. Mutuals paid $9.60.

Third heat—Pools sold Vic H $25, field $5. After a few false starts the word was given, and Vic H at once went out, leading Oaknut and Guide a length round the turn and increasing her lead all the way turned into the stretch two lengths in front of Guide with Oaknut three lengths further back. Vic won the heat cleverly by a length and a half, Guide second, Oaknut third. Time, 2:23¾. Mutuals paid $5.80.

Fourth heat—No pools sold. A start was effected at the third attempt. Keepsake left his feet before the turn and dropped out of the race. Vic H. led two lengths past the quarter with Guide second, four lengths in front of Oaknut. Vic made a standstill break and was passed by Guide and Oaknut before the half, which Guide passed five lengths in front of Oaknut, who was seven in front of Vic. Guide went easily round the turn four lengths in front of Oaknut, with Vic six lengths back. The latter came down the stretch like a whirlwind in 32½ seconds, winning handily at the finish by three lengths, Guide second, Oaknut third, Keepsake last. Time, 2:26¼.

SPECIAL.

First heat—A start was soon effected. Barbero going out rapidly, had a six lengths lead of Ladywell at the first quarter, and though the mare closed the gap on the backstretch, she was three lengths back when the three quarters was reached, and a pretty race ensued down the stretch, Barbero breaking forty yards from the wire, ran the rest of the distance, finishing a neck in front of Ladywell, but was set back to second place, Foxie V. finished third ten lengths back, and one in front of Wally. Time, 2:35¼.

Second heat—Lady Wells went right away from Barbero at the start, and had three lengths the best of it all the way to the head of the stretch when Barbero made his effort, and trotting steadily, won the heat, after a hard finish, by a neck, Ladywell six lengths in front of Foxie V., three in advance of Wally. Time, 2:34.

Third heat—A start was soon effected. Ladywell broke before the turn was reached, and Barbero took the lead, being two lengths in front of Ladywell, five in front of Foxie at the quarter. Ladywell passed Barbero at the half, and led by a length at the head of the stretch, with Barbero second, five lengths in front of Foxie V. The irrepressible Peter made a splendid drive down the stretch, and landed Foxie V. a winner by a length, Barbero second, three lengths in front of Ladywell. Time, 2:31¾. Mutuals paid $26.90.

Fourth heat—A start was soon made, and Ladywell going right away, led round the turn by half a dozen lengths, and going very steadily, increased her lead, winning the heat easily by eight lengths from Foxie V., who just snatched the place from Barbero. Time, 2:26.

Fifth heat—Ladywell again set the pace, and won all the way without being urged, the irrepressible Brandow getting second place. Time, 2:38.

The fair, tsken sll in all, was an unqualified success, and, as usual at Napa, there were several new comers in the 2:30 list, while others lowered their records, among them being Sister V., present record 2:18½, Silss Skinner, 2:21, Vic H., 2:23½ on two occasions, Guide, 2:24½, Charles Derhy, 2:25½, Ladywell, 2:26, Free Coinage, 2:27¼, and Fay, 2:28¾; while among sidewheelers, the three-year-old Rupee obtained a mark of 2:19¾, and Princess Allce 2:22. The running races, althongh fields were smsll, were of snch high class tbst they more than counterbalsnced the scarcity of horses, the spectators taking more interest in the thoroughbreds than in the trotters. The stock exhibited were of an unusually high order, and very lsrge entries were made in all the horse classes; cattle did not show np in snch large numbers as had been expected, hut quality is hetter than qnsntity.

One of the hest displays of thoroughbred and trotting horses was that of B. C. Holly, of Vallejo, who was unbeaten in every class in which he had an entry; the veteran horseman evidently took more pride in bis exhibits than the general class of owners, for he was to he seen at the head of every parade lesding his favorite thoroughhred msre Ninens, hy Jim Brown, out of Nannie Hubhard by Hubbard. In her dsy the little chestnut wss as good a piece of horseflesh as ever csrried silk, and won many a good race on different tracks; as a two and three-year-old, she wss first psst the post on fourteen dfferent occasions. Her foal, by Sid, is a racy looking youngster, and will have more bone and muscle than the old mare; he should prove himself a race-horse in any company. Mr. Holly also took two premiums with his royally hred five-year-old blsck msre Lisette by Ahdallah Wilkes, from Musette by Startle 290, grandsm Becky Sharpe by Billy Denton 65, etc.

The Napa trotting horse owners were well represented, particulsr notice being taken of the Coombs Bros.' well known mare Lilly Stsnley, 2:17½, and ber foal by Director.

Dollie Beats Vera,

Butte, Ang. 13th.—The second day's races were well attended. The weather was magnificent aud the racing wss interesting throughout, and at times exciting. Up to the last event all the favorites had a walk over, which caused the short horse plsyers to wear elongated faces but tbe lsst race gsve them a big pull on the pool hox. This was tbe special one mile dash, The Jew selling at $100 to $13 on Eddie R., the winner. It proved to he the event of the day. Considersble time was spent on getting the horses off. Wben once away, however, they rsn bunched the entire distance, Eddie R. winning hy a short nose. Mutuals psid $40.25. The following is the summsry of the day's rscing:

Butte, Aug. 14.—A crowd of people visited the driving park to-day to witness the races. The westher was threatening, hut the first two events on the progrsmme passed off all right, and the entries for the 2:30 tiot csme to the post and began scoring for a start, when a furious dust storm set in, fairly hiding the horses from the view of spectators in the paddock and grand stsnd. The racers were sent to their grooms to wait till the dust clouds rolled by. In ahout an honr the storm passed over and the racing was finished under most favorahle circumstances.

In the 2:30 trot Dollie and Vera, both Helena horses, proved to he evenly matched, and gave a fine exhibition of speed. Vera sold big favorite in the pools. Kirkendall's Dollie seemed to be regsrded as a trailer by the talent prior to the first heat. The knowing ones proceeded to switch immediately after the little mare flew under the wire a length ahead of their favorite. The mutuals paid $98.65. Everybody snddenly wanted Dollie, and she sold first choice with increasing confidence to her hackers as heat snceeded heat.

The special seven eights mile dash fnrnished the plnngers a picnic. Gold Bar was prime favorite, selling at $100 to $7 in the auction pools, but the chestnnt gelding proved a misplaced confidence, probahly owing to being "cut down" on the hind leg. The accident happened near the send off. The jockeys were called to the judges' stand to tell what they knew about it. They professed ignorance. The judges annonnced they wonld be glad to pnnish the guilty jockey, if they could saddle the hlsme upon the right one. This they conld not do, so Gold Bar lost the race and may go lsme and be nnfitted to carry another monnt this season. Following is the Butte, Aug. 15th.—To-day was the ladies' day at the races and the fair sex were out in large numbers. Another one of those dust storms made life a burden for a time at the track yesterday. Fortunately it did not last to exceed an bour, and the racing was only deferred that length of time, but no douht the unpleasant weather esrly in the afternoon kept many visitors away from the track.

The day wss full of surprises to the plnngers, and the first surprise struck the pool box votaries with the first race. A snspicion lurked around the judges' stsnd before the colts started in their quarter rnn thst crooked work wss going on, and when the judges saw the horses under way they were convinced of it. Accordingly all bets were declared off and Enos, Ollie Benjamin's jockey, was expelled from further mount on the association track for "pulling his horse."

The second surprise came with the second race. Roly Boly, a horse that went begging as a fielder in the pools, cut out the way at the stsrt and led her trio of contestants hy a length to the finish. The mutnals paid $16 75.

The first heat in the 2:40 trot furnished tbe third surprise, when Ben Williams, almost overlooked in the pools took the heat.

What's the matter with the bay gelding's winning the second heat?" shouted an enthusiastic spectator as the horses came tearing down the homestretch with Ben Williams half a length in the lead; hut Julietta soon forged ahead and passed under rhe wire first hy a neck. It was left for Procrsstinstion to complete the full measure of surprises and this the black stallion did by winning the third and fourth heats. Tbe race pools sold like hot waffles on the quarter of a mile race. This race saved the talent from the sonp in every event of the day. Following is the Butte, Aug. 16.—The fifth day's racing of the West Side Association attracted the largest attendance of the meeting. A high northwest wind blew during the racing which, freighted with dust from the hack streets and smoke from the Parrot smelter, did not tend to pnt the big crowd in good humor, especially those who failed to place tbeir money on the winning horse, hnt the racing was first class and exciting, the free for all trot in particular. The talent made a p'ethoric dump on this race. Manning sold favorite.

The loss of the first hest which was taken hy Condee without a hreak in 2:20, did not seem to cool the ardor of the bay gelding's hackers, and when Msnning, in the second heat, passed under the wire a length ahead ot Condee his admirers were frantic with joy, and rushed pell mell to the pool hox to place more money on their favorite. Condee and Manning now had one heat each. The latter sold favorite $100 to $10.

The next heat was a grest race between the leaders from stsrt to finish. Condee made the circle one length in advance. The chestnut gelding wss greeted with cheers. Manning's hackers now weskened and tried to hedge, hnt it was too late. The fielder had captured their boodle. A whole lot of money went into the pools. Following is the snmmary of the day's racing.

Butte, Ang. 18th.—A comparstively small crowd gathered at the driving park to witness to-day's rscing. The weather was chilly, and last night's and this morning's rainfall left the track very heavy. Whether or not the heavy track opened the way for Toby to win the 2:35 trot in three straight heats and Wilder to perform wonders in the 600 yards dash is not quite clear, bnt the tail enders won just the same, and in the former race a $5 investment on Uncle Toby returned to the purchaser a round $100. Butte, Ang. 19th.—To-day was the most plessant day of the race meeting; no wind nor dnst, track fast and a large stendance to see the sport. The association pnt up a large programme, one, in fact, with so many events that darkness shut ont the two-mile running rsce.

It was favorites' day with the exception of the special trot, which was a poor race at best snd savored of a job. The "official tips" so-called, named the winners. In the runniug race, half mile heats, Snndsy was disqualified after the first heat for not heing at his weight. This gave Tim Murphy a walk over. The 2:27 trot proved the event of the day. Butte, Ang. 20.—The antnmn meeting of the West Side Racing Association closed with to-day's races. Fully 2,000 people witnessed the sport, and ronsing sport it was throughont. The plungers were in their element and kept the pool sellers busy placing big money on their favorites. Abont $30,000 fonnd its way into the pool hox. The short end players were generally unsnccessful, thongh they realized a good clean-up on Olympia in the five-eighths run and sgsin on the first heat of the free-for-all trot, when the mutuals paid $23 75.

The one-quarter dash was the time event of the day, and it was a performance that goes on record as a world heater. Snttou's hsy gelding Bob Wade made the dash in 21¼, beating the world's record by one qnarter of a second. Several timers in the grand stand stopped their watches on 21 seconds even. Nettie S. followed the winner neck and neck and only lost by a nose.

At the conclusion of the first heat in the free for-all, Stoneroad, Condee's driver, made a vigorons kick that Hilton's driver cnt him off at the three quarter post. Suspicious of some crooked work the judges changed Hilton's driver after the second heat hut this did not change the result of the race Manning's great rival Condee, was not at his best and tbe bay gelding's victory was comparatively essy. Abont $160,000 passed through the pools dnring tbe meeting. Jockey Enos was reinstated. Following is the summary of the day's racing:

Said a prominent thoroughhred breeder to a Tennessee writer: "The demand just now is for two-year-old stake winners, and my idea is that the way to prodnce them is by crossing the imported blood on onr native mares. Look at imp. Mr. Pickwick. He showed what he could do in this line. But that is not all. Look at Salvator, Tenny, Prince Royal, Badge, Firenzi, Raceland, Fides, Reclare, French Park, Exile, Racine, Sir John and other good ones. All are hy imported sires ont of imported dams. Look at the Bonnie Scotlands. They raced early and raced on. Look at the get of Rayon d'Or, Billet, St. Blaise, Glengarry, The Ill-Used, Prince Charlie, King Ban, Glenelg and other prominent sires. Do yon suppose, if Mr. Pickwick had lived, the public wonld have ever heen able to reach him? Not mnch. Mr. Reed knew his worth and outside mares would not have been allowed to him at any price."

TURF AND TRACK.

Devotee, the bread-winner of the Madison Stable, is said to be hopelessly broken down.

R. A. Campbell has purchased from Byron McClelland, for $1,000; a two-year-old filly by Billet.

Salvator has won for his owner $113,280 in stakes and purses, while Firenzi has $102,026 to her credit.

Inspector B., one of the best living sons of Enquirer, has broken down at last, after being a cripple for two years.

F Gebhard disposed of the two-year-old colt Colderwood, by Hindoo out of imp. Inca by Vedette, to T. Newton at Brighton.

The gross value of the Junior Champion Stakes, won by Strathmeath, was $28 045, while the Champion Stakes, won by Salvator, were worth only $4,750.

The Omnibus was worth $19,950 to the winner. By capturing this stake Tournament has enriched his owner $45, 600, as his other win—the Realization—was worth $25,650.

Chaos' owner must be kicking himself for not consenting to divide the $21,950, which he could have shared with Senator Hearst in the Omnibus. Now he has to be content with $3,000 for winning second and third.

Mr. W. H. E. Smith has decided not to go East with Al Farrow, and as a result that fast horse will race at West Side Park, Chicago, until the opening of the fall campaign at Louisville. Several parties desiring to take the horse East have made flattering offers for him, but as yet no one has reached Mr Smith's figure, which is said to be $10,000, quite high for a five-year-old horse.

Ill luck is still following the Dwyer Bros.' horses. Eon threw out a splint and has been let up in work. Longstreet is not doing at all well, and McCabe thinks his wind is affected. Kingston, Sir John, Blacklock and Baychester are all doing well. Kingston was to have started in the Beaverwyck Stakes, but was withdrawn when it was found that he would have to carry 131 pounds.

It is proposed to tax French bookmakers by imposing a tax of £400 a year on the pencillers who carry on their calling within the reserved enclosure at Longchamps, Auteuil and Vincennes, leased by the City of Paris to the different race societies; £160 on those working in the side stands and outside on the course, and £80 on those who depend solely on the small fish who pay a franc to go on the course.

Rupee, the three year old Guy Wilkes pacer was worked with an eight ounce shoe behind until Wednesday of last week when Goldsmith had his hind shoes removed and three ounce shoes put on instead. The colt showed great improvement and the following day won the 2:30 pace, after laying up the first heat won by Princess Alice in 2;22; the 3 year old took the next three heats in 2:21½; and 2:19¾ and 2:20.

The Chicago Stable has definitely decided to sell out its entire stable of race horses in training, and yearlings in the autumn. Mr. William Easton has been commissioned to hold this important sale, which in all probability will take place at the Westchester race track during the progress of that meeting. This sale will offer an unusually good opportunity for purchasers to buy some of the best race horses in the country.

John Williams came down to Napa last Thursday. He says that with ordinary luck 2:20 will be no mark for Alaska, Rancho Del Paso's Electioneer stallion. The horse has had bad feet for four or five years and been given a heavy stud season, yet with about two month's work he easily went a mile in 2.20, at the same time John says the inside of the track was cut up deep for runners and he had to keep out all the going, in reality at least fifty yards over a mile.

The three-year-old race at Nicholasville on Saturday, Aug. 15, 1890, was one of the greatest races trotted this year—five heats, and all better than 2:30. It was won by Nellie Mason, a daughter of Onward, out of a Woodford Mambrino mare. The second dam is said to be a thoroughbred. Blameless, by Black's Hambletonian, dam by Governor Sprague; second dam Lucille, 2.21, by Exchequer, was second. Certainly in this race the thoroughbred blood was close up.

Peter Brandow is about as shrewd as most men. He sold his nomination in the 2:30 class at Napa and entered instead in the 3:00 class and agreed with everyone else to give Beauty Mc first money to stay out. The race was not over until seven heats had been trotted, Peter being always in the first three and when he wound up the race in the seventh heat Fay was the only contesting horse, three having been distanced and Goldsmith sent to the stable under the rule not having a heat in five.

With only about six weeks work the veteran B. C. Holly got the Steinway stallion Charles Derby into such improved form that on Thursday last at Napa he won the second and fifth heats in 2:25½ and 2:30, and looked as though he had the race at his mercy, but in the sixth heat he broke before the turn, and could not raise a trot or even a gallop, finishing badly distressed, 500 yards behind. Mr. Holly at once called in a veterinary, and after two hours hard work on him the horse was in better trim. The doctor says he was suffering from congestion of the heart.

The judges last in authority at City View, E. J. Jeffrey, P J. Mann and Joe Buchtel, says the Oregonian, have ruled Barney McCough and Billy Waterford off the track for abusive language to the judges. The directors will sustain them in the ruling. People may get the idea into their heads after awhile that Portland is getting to be a horse town, and that the rules and regulations of first-class tracks will be enforced here. The time has come when a man can be a breeder and racing horseman, and still be a gentleman.

If Sir John had won the historical Travers Stakes at Saratoga on Tuesday, it would have gone far towards placing Sir Modred at the head of the winning sires of the year. The race fell to English Lady Miser, out of Bonny Lass, owned by the brothers Scoggan. This is the English Lady's fifth victory out of ten starts for this season. Miser is a little blind horse by Australian—Aerolitean is therefore own brother to Baldwin's Rutherford. Bonny Lass was by imported Buckden (by Lord Clifden—Consequence by Bay Middleton) her dam the once favorite Alabama mare, Bonaventure, by Harry of the West—Maggie G by Brown Dick.

The stud of the late T. J. Megibben, one of Kentucky's most noted turfmen, has been offered at private sale. It consists of forty-six brood mares and the three stallions, Springbok, imp. Moccasin, and Andrain.

The English breeder, Mr. Broderick Cloete, has sustained a great loss in the death of his stallion Paradox. This son of Sterling was a very notable performer in 1884 and 1883, and was sold to the Duke of Westminster for a big figure prior to the Middle Park Plate. He was resold to Broderick Cloete, and under that gentleman's colors won the Dewhurst Plate. As a three-year-old he won the Two Thousand, after a desperate finish with Crafton, and for the Derby another great struggle was witnessed between Melton and Paradox, the latter, under F. Webb, having apparently the best of it to within the last few strides, when Fred Archer got Melton's head in front, and he just won.

Mr. William Glassford, now here, says the Portland Oregonian, has the distinction of having owned the first trotter to do better than 2:30 in Oregon. It was Bellflower, by Millman's Bellfounder, dam by Colonel Bidwell's Morgan. She was bred and raised at Walla Walla, and according to Mr. Glassford's recollection, did a mile in 2:29 odd at Portland in the winter of 1875. Jimmy Welch, an old trainer, now dead, took her to California and sold her to Col. Ayres for $5 000, from there she went to New York and got into the hands of Ed. Stokes, who gave her a record in a double team of 2:22. This must be the same Bellflower Wallace gives as having done 2:28¼ at Portland in 1879.

Among the horses that will be offered for sale at the breaking up of the New Zealand stud in October is St. Leger, by Doncaster out of Atlantis by Thormanby. She was the dam of King Ban, sire of Ban Fox, King Fox and other notable good ones. St. Leger is described by Capt. Merry as a very handsome golden chestnut, about sixteen hands high and of great length of body. He is nine years old and his get will make their debut on the New Zealand turf during the coming season. All the progeny are of good size and great bone, being especially strong in the forelegs, and it will be a great pity if some American breeder does not secure this valuable young horse. He will not bring over $8,000 at auction.

On the petition of the gambling house proprietors in Chicago, whose establishments have been closed up by Ed Corrigan of the West Side, in his efforts to maintain the monopoly of pool selling privileges, alleged to be conferred upon him by the Illinois law, the race reporters at Saratoga, Monmouth and other Eastern tracks, have declined to furnish Corrigan's partner, Ulman, with further reports of races, except at the fancy price of $100 per day.

The Telegraph Company has also told Ulman he could no longer do business over the wire except at full rates. Ulman is considering the advisability of taking the matter into the the courts.

"Old Redbrick, the pride of San Luis Valley died at Saguache, Colorado last winter." I mentioned the circumstance to that well known trainer and owner B. C. Holly the other day. He was a good honest old horse said By but he had no show with Little Casino, and then the veteran turf man grew reminiscent. For those I travelled many a mile to get a match on and nearly always found that they would not put up when I got there but the Redbrick Little Casino match was a genuine old time plunge. El Corrigan, Dan Lamasney and myself won $27,000 on the race and the Mexicans who backed Little Casino won all the horses and cattle in the country. The match was as near as I recollect and I should know for it was made in my barn, 650 yards Little Casino to carry catch weights, Redbrick 140 lbs. After the first fifty yards the race was over Casino, winning in a walk.

The recent decision of John W. Rogers, trainer for Capt. S. S Brown, to give up his position and to hereafter devote his time to the care of his property in Denver, has induced Capt. Brown to retire from the turf. He lately gave orders to Col. S. D. Bruce to make the necessary arrangements for the sale of the entire racing stable at auction. The sale will be held at the paddock during either the Sheepshead Bay or Morris Park meeting this fall. The horses to be sold include Senorita, Buddhist, Cortez, Reporter, Demuth, Long Run and the other horses that have carried the cherry and blue of the Pittsburg Stable. Several two and three year olds that have not yet run will also be sold, as will the yearlings that have been broken.

Capt. Brown will not give up his breeding establishment, but will continue to raise thoroughbreds for the market. He has a fine lot of brood mares, and has Troubadour, imported Richmond and Stuyvesant as the stallions to which the mares will be bred.

Mr. A. G. Campbell's mare Bonita died at Saratoga on the 16th of August after an illness of several days. Foaled in 1883 she was by Grinstead out of Maggie Emerson, dam by Lucy B., Goliah, Sinaloa II and Cleopatra by Baywood, and consequently full sister to Sinaloa II.

Her first appearance was in the Ladies' Stakes at Louisville, which was won in a canter. She then went to Latonia and captured the Clipsetta Stakes from a good field.

This early promise was not fulfilled in her later two year old career, and as a three year old she only won two purses at Chicago. But the following year the Great Western Handicap was placed to her credit, and many Western turfgoers will remember the way in which she ran away from a field of twenty-four at the same meeting.

In 1888 she took part in no less than thirty-three races, only four of which were successes, and last year she won five events out of twenty-five attempts. As a brood mare mare she would have proved valuable.

Henry Chaplin, the proprietor of the Blankney Stud Farm, Lincolnshire, England, and owner of the defunct Hermit, has replaced his phenomenal sire (Hermit), by Friar's Balsam, a five-year-old son of Hermit and Flower of Dorset. The Friar was as a two year-old the best in England, winning among other races in 1887 the Middle Park Plate, which is the crack two-year-old race. His month troubled him since, and he was never in his best form. He was owned by Sir Frederick Johnstone and Lord Alington until Mr. Chaplin purchased the latter's interest for $10 000, and as the property of Sir Frederick and Mr. Chaplin he will stand at the latter gentleman's renowned Blaokney Stud. His book is already full for 1891 at $500 a mare. On the same stud farm is the celebrated Galopin (Vedette—Flying Duchess, by Flying Dutchman), sire of, among many other cracks, St. Simon, Galliard, Corrie Roy, Modwena and others. Galopin last season took twenty-six public mares at $900 each, besides five of Mr. Chaplin's; his book is full for 1891, at $1000 each, and there are only half a dozen vacancies in the 1892 book.

Col. C. A. Broadwater, of Helena Montana, has purchased the chestnut filly Katisha, of Huntly & Clarke, to match his chestnut driving horse, Russel B., who has a record of 2:52. They make a magnificent buggy team—medium sized, trim as possible, and quite speedy. They are easily worth $1000.

Rumors regarding the sale of the Saratoga track are as freely circulated among the people here now as in previous years. Some time ago the statement was made says the Sporting Times that Mr. Arkell's party would not purchase the old course, as they intended making a new one. Next a report was circulated that property just north of Horse Haven had been secured, and that the new track would be located there. Now it is said that Mr. Spencer has agreed to sell his interest in the old track and that the intending purchasers have agreed to his terms. It is certain that negotiations have not been completed for the sale, although parties interested in the deal claim that the business has been settled.

The very latest report about the matter to-night is that the track has positively been sold. It is said that the deal was made on Saturday night. The names given of the parties who have formed the syndicate are Mr. Arkell, ex-Judge William A. Bockis, Congressman John Sanford, John A. Manning, Mr. Seligman, Hon. August Belmont and Mr. Pierre Lorrillard. Over $100,000 will be spent at once on improvements to widen the track, but not change it, build new grand stand on the site of the present one. club house on the site of the present betting ring, new betting ring on grounds of field stand. Big stakes will be given, and it is expected the track will regain the position it held prior to the time Mr. Withers purchased Monmouth Park and secured the support of the prominent owners of that time, who by their withholding of their entries made the Long Branch course. After a while an entirely new track will be built.

A disagreement between an owner and a driver is ordinarily a personal affair between the parties concerned and something that is none of the business of the public says the Horseman. But the circumstances surrounding the now celebrated and unfortunate rupture between C. J. Hamlin and his driver, W. J. Andrews, at the late Buffalo meeting, were such that the case has became one of public concern, if indeed it may not be said to have assumed the status of a grave turf scandal. The Horseman has neither the right nor the inclination to prejudge a matter that rests so largely upon rumor, but as the generally printed version has not been contradicted by either Mr. Hamlin or Mr. Andrews, it is in order to remind all concerned that it cannot be allowed to rest as it is without bringing discredit upon not only the Buffalo track and Mr. Hamlin, but the National Trotting Association as well. The current story is that Mr. Hamlin reprimanded and practically discharged his trainer for winning a heat, or in other words for not obeying Mr. Hamlin's instructions to pull the horse. This is a very serious charge, and the fact that Mr. Hamlin is a rich man, a leading breeder and the dictator of the Buffalo track is no palliation, but rather an aggravation of the offense charged in the current reports, which we are very unwilling to believe. There is nothing plainer in all the rules of the National Trotting Association than the clause relating to "pulling" a horse, or so driving him as to "prevent his winning a heat which he was evidently able to win;" and that rule provides that if the owner be a party to the fraud he must be punished, as well as the driver, by fine or expulsion. Mr. Hamlin is charged with instructing his driver to pull Wardwell in a heat which he in the most conclusive manner showed that "he was evidently able to win," and the charge further goes that the driver was dismissed from Mr. Hamlin's service simply for driving honestly. As already remarked, we are loathe to accept these reports at par, and Mr. Hamlin's duty not only to himself but to the breeding and trotting interest urgently demands such an explanation as will dispel this scandal, which cannot now be "hushed up" or buried by silence. We trust that when the whole truth is known the harsh criticisms that have abounded in the press may be rendered pointless, and that no stain may remain upon the reputation of the trotting turf.

The racing writer of the New York Tribune, perhaps the most fearless and able turf critic of the day, handles the new Monmouth Park without gloves. He says: "Never has a race course in any country been so constant and rich a source of profit to the bookmakers as the new Monmouth Park, with its wonderful straight tracks. It was predicted with the most conspicuous emphasis and assurance that when we had the faultless and altogether admirable English courses in this country there would be no more strange variations of public form, that horses would no longer be pocketed or interfered with, that the best horses would carry off the prizes, and that the public with united voice would join in the heartiest acclaim and approval of the plan of starting horses at Eatontown and running them to Little Silver, with the contesting animals out of sight of the spectators for nine-tenths of the way, unless these spectators were provided with the most powerful and expensive field glasses in the world. But for some inexplicable reason the expected results have not been attained. There are more singular and eccentric variations of form at Monmouth than ever occurred before on any race track in the world. The great mass of race-goers are more profoundly bewildered daily in the impossibility of getting the least indication how horses will run in any particular race from the manner in which they have run in previous races. It may be that the somewhat unsettled and uncertain condition of the surface of the new tracks at Monmouth may account for some of these wild vagaries, but although there may be soft spots here and there, undulations of consistency and diversities of compactness in the make-up of these tracks, still these ins and outs of the area could not possibly explain all the ins and outs of the running of any large percentage of them. There is no evidence to confirm any cynical and pessimistic dishonest theory that owners, trainers and jockeys are any more dishonest at Monmouth than they are at other tracks, but the stoutest of the Anglomaniacs, after the thorough test which has been given to the Monmouth course during July and the first part of August, cannot venture to claim that accidents and mishaps are any less frequent, that peculiarities of running are less marked and amazing, that consistency is any better preserved, that running is any truer, or that racing is any higher or better in any way on the straight tracks at Monmouth than on the oval course at Brooklyn or at Sheepshead Bay. So much is settled. In truth, all the unfortunate and regretable elements of racing are even more prevalent and more injurious at Monmouth than on the oval course mentioned. Mr. Withers may yet have to revise his ideas. Britannia is a wonderful country, and in some turf matters she is still far ahead of the United States, but that the English system of running horses on straight courses will ever become more popular in this republic than the good old American fashion of oval tracks is anything but plain at present."

FINE RACES AT CHICAGO.

California Carries Off a Large Share of the Money.

The meeting of the Northwestern Association of Trotting and Pacing Horse Breeders commenced Monday of last week at Washington Park, Chicago, under the most favorable circumstances.

The weather was delightful, the track in good condition, though a trifle slow after the rain, and the attendance larger than has been seen at the opening day at a trotting meeting for years, fully three thousand being present and the sport excellent.

The first race of the day was for the 2:40 class, the favorite being Kenwood, who sold for $30, Sir Arthur $16, Idolf $12 and the field brought $50. The talent received a severe dump as the winner turned up in Sir Arthur.

SECOND DAY.

Owing to the rain, racing was not resumed on Tuesday, but Wednesday was a red letter day in the annals of the trotting turf in Chicago, for not even in the palmiest days of the West Side Driving Park, when the giants of the track met to do battle, was there a better or more representative assemblage of horsemen gathered together to witness an afternoon of splendid sport.

There were between 9,000 and 10,000 people at Washington Park on the second day of the Breeders' meeting, and everything tended to make them have a first class time. The weather was perfect, the track in good condition, the programme large and excellent—there being no less than five events set down for decision—and everything went off without a hitch.

The management is to be congratulated on the promptness and punctuality with which the different heats were called up and trotted or paced, and though no sensational time was made or records broken, there was good racing and close finishes. Starter Hancock again distinguished himself, and the starts in all the heats were uniformly good.

Speculators had all the play they wanted, and there was more money in the pool box than there has been at a trotting meeting for a long time, the pool sellers handling over $50,000, while the two bookmakers did a rushing business.

The first race of the day was for three-year-olds and under, the pacing wonder, Manager, proving the winner.

THE 2:18 CLASS.

First heat.—There were six starters for this event, Almont being the absentee. McDoel had the pole, Alfred S. next, Roseberry in third place, Margaret S. fourth, Colvina Sprague fifth and Nobby on the outside. Pools sold: Alfred S. $100; McDoel, $45; Margaret S. $35; field $25. At the fourth attempt the word was given to a capital start, but Roseberry broke before the turn. At the quarter Alfred S. and Margaret S. were head and head, with McDoel third, two lengths behind, and a length in front of Nobby fourth, Roseberry fifth, and Colvina Sprague last. The leaders trotted wheel to wheel along the back stretch, and at the half Alfred S. was half a length in front of Margaret S. the positions of the others being unchanged. Around the turn Alfred S. and the mare raced together, and at the three-quarters Alfred S. was a short half length in the lead with Margaret S. second, a length in front of McDoel third, and Nobby fourth. As they swung into the stretch Doble brought up McDoel and there was a fine race home, Alfred S. winning by a length in 2:17¼, McDoel second the same distance in front of Margaret S. third; Nobby was fourth and Roseberry fifth and Colvina Sprague last.

Second heat.—Pools sold Alfred S. $100, Field, $40. After two attempts the word was given to an excellent start, Margaret S. slightly in the lead, with McDoel second and Alfred S. third. They all trotted well around the turn, and at the quarter Margaret S. led by a head with Alfred S. second, three lengths in front of McDoel third, Nobby fourth, Roseberry fifth, and Colvina Sprague last. Along the backstretch Margaret S and Alfred S raced together, while McDoel drew up rapidly, and at the half Alfred S led by half a length, with Margaret S the same distance in front of McDoel. Around the stable turn the three swept together, and at the three-quarters Alfred S was still half a length in front of Margaret S., while McDoel was third, a length behind. As they swung into the straight Doble brought up McDoel and Margaret S. dropped back. McDoel reached Alfred S.'s wheel, and there was a great race till half way down the stand, when Alfred S. drew away a little and won a good race in 2:16¼ by a length, with McDoel second, four lengths in front of Margaret S. third, who was a length before Nobby, fourth, Colvina Sprague fifth, and Roseberry last.

Third heat—Pools sold; Alfred S., $100; field, $14. The start was a good one, with Alfred S., McDoel and Margaret S. slightly in the lead. At the quarter Alfred S. led by three-quarters of a length, with Margaret second one length in front of McDoel third, Nobby fourth, Roseberry fifth, and Colvina Sprague sixth. There was no change in the position along the backstretch except that Alfred S. increased his lead and Roseberry broke and dropped back. At the half Alfred S. led by a length with Margaret S. second, and McDoel third. There was no change from this point to the wire, Alfred S. winning the heat by a length in 2:19, with Margaret S. second two lengths in front of McDoel, Nobby fourth, Roseberry fifth and Colvin Sprague sixth. Alfred S. won the race, McDoel took second money, Margaret S. third money and Nobby fourth. The following is the THIRD DAY.

The heavy rain of Wednesday night had made the track at Washington Park very heavy for the Breeders' Meeting Thursday, and it was not without considerable disoussion that the racing stewards determined to carry out the day's programme. The fine weather overhead had brought out fully 2,500 people, and in order not to disappoint them it was thought better to go on with the racing.

The Standard Stakes were postponed, as it would not have been of any use to attempt to give a horse a record, and the match race between Palo Alto and Jack was postponed till Friday, one of the conditions of it being that it should be trotted on a fine day and a good track. In order that those who had come to the Park for the purpose of seeing this race might not be disappointed, it was announced that all who had tickets should hold them, and that they would be good for the next day. This was very liberal on the part of the management, and brought forth the applause it deserved.

It was nearly 3 o'clock before the racing commenced, as with a light card it was deemed best to give the track all possible time to dry. There was a great deal of scratching in all the races, and the fields were small. The times in the different events were necessarily slow, and nothing of any note occurred. The first race on the programme was for the two-year-olds, Belle Cassett selling for $30 and the field for $50. The favorite won easily as will be seen by the following

As the two Californian horses were in the next race, a full report is given. It was for the 2:50 class of trotters.

2:50 STAKE; TROTTING.

First Heat—There were only five starters out of the twelve on the card. Red Flame had the Pole, Fay was second, Ryland T. third, Kate B, fourth, and Prince Warwick on the outside. Pools sold—Prince Warwick, $50; field, $12. At the fourth attempt they got the word, Katie B., Red Flame and Fay being in front. At the club house Prince Warwick broke, and at the quarter Fay led, with Red Flame second and Katie B. third, but she broke just before the pole and pulled up before she was settled, Ryland T. fourth and Prince Warwick last. Along the back stretch Ryland T. broke, and at the half Fay led by six lengths, Red Flame second, ten lengths in front of Warwick. There was no change in the positions for the rest of the journey, Fay jogging home an easy winner by five lengths in 2:31, with Red Flame second the same distance in front of Prince Warwick, Ryland T. and Katie B. were distanced.

Second heat—Pools sold, Prince Warwick $25, field, $40. At the start Prince Warwick led, with Fay second and Red Flame third. They all trotted to the quarter, where Fay led by two lengths, with Red Flame second, three lengths in front of Prince Warwick. Along the back stretch Red Flame broke and at the half Fay led by ten lengths, with Prince Warwick second, three lengths in front of Red Flame. Around the stable turn Prince Warwick broke, and at the three-quarters Red Flame was again in second place. Fay trotted easily down the stretch and won by ten lengths in 2:27¾, Prince Warwick beating Red Flame for second place by a length. Third heat—There were no pools sold. At the fifth attempt the word was given to a perfect start, but almost immediately Red Flame broke. Fay shot to the front, trotting beautifully, and Hickok made for the extreme outside of the track. At the quarter Fay led by six lengths with Red Flame second and Prince Warwick third. Fay increased his lead at will all round the track, and won in a jog in 2:30¼. Red Flame was second till half way down the stretch, when Prince Warwick passed him and got second place. Fay won the heat, Prince Warwick got second money and Red Flame third. The following is the

2:21 CLASS—TROTTING.

First Heat—There were only five starters in this race, out of the eight on the card, Cleo, Harry Medium and Viritus being drawn. Voucher had the pole, Elista second, Linda Sprague third, Dick Smith fourth and G. B. on the outside. Pools sold: Dick Smith, $12; field, $25. The word was given at the first attempt, G. B., Linda Sprague and Elista in the lead. At the turn Voucher broke, and at the quarter G. B. led, but broke, Elista second, Linda Sprague third, Dick Smith fourth and Voucher last. At the half, Elista led by a length, with Linda Sprague second, Dick Smith fourth and Voucher last. Around the turn Linda Sprague headed Elista, and G. B. broke. At the three-quarters Elista was in front again, with Linda Sprague second and Dick Smith third. As they came into the stretch Elista broke badly and fell back, while Linda Sprague, driven wisely, went for the hard ground on the outside, and beat Dick Smith who was in the middle of the track, to the wire by three lengths, in 2:32½. Voucher was third, G, B. fourth and Elista last.

Second Heat—Pools sold: Linda Sprague, $40; Voucher $30; field $45. At the third attempt they got the word, Linda Sprague and G. B. being in front. Voucher broke at the paddock, and at the quarter Linda Sprague led by half a length, with Dick Smith second, Elista third, G. B. fourth and Voucher last. Along the back stretch they closed up, but Dick Smith broke, and at the half Elista led by a length with Linda Sprague second, half a length in front of Dick Smith, G. B. fourth and Voucher last. Around the turn they were well bunched, and at the three-quarters Elista led with G. B, second, the other three all pulling out to dry ground. Coming down the stretch Marvin sent Voucher along, and aided by the good going he outfooted Elista, winning the heat handily in 2:25¾, with Elista second, G. B. third, Linda Sprague fourth and Dick Smith last.

Third Heat—Pools sold: Voucher $25; field $12. The word "Go" was given at the fourth attempt, Voucher, Elista and G. B. in front, but the last named immediately broke. Voucher took the lead and was first at the quarter, with G. B. second, Linda Sprague third Dick Smith fourth and Elista, who had broken, last. There was no change along the back stretch, but passing the half G. B. who was second, broke. He quickly caught again, and at the three-quarters Voucher still led, with G. B. second, Dick Smith third, Linda Sprague fourth and Elista last. Down the stretch Voucher trotted easily, and came under the wirs a winner by six lengths in 2.26, with Dick Smith second, G. B. third, Linda Sprague fourth and Elista last,

Fourth heat—There were no pools sold. At the start Linda Sprague, G. B. and Elista led out, hut Elista broke before the paddock. Voucher immediately ahot to the front and led at the quarter by a leugth, with Dick Smith second, Linda Sprague third, G. B. fourth and Elista last. Along the backstretch Elista trotted fast, and at the half she was in second place, with Voucher still leading, Dick Smith third, and G. B. fourth, acting badly. There was no change in the positiona from here to the wire, Voucher winning easily in 2.23¼, with Elista second, Dick Smith third, G. B. fourth, and Linda Sprague last. Voucher won the race, Linda Sprague took second money, Dick Smith third, and Elista fourth. The following is the FOURTH DAY.

There were fully 9,000 people at Washington Park yesterday, the chief event being the great match between Palo Alto and Jack. Jack had beaten the Californian at Detroit in a match, but had had to succumb to him in the free for all at Buffalo, and great interest centered in their third meeting. It was of interest to breeders, as Palo Alto represents the trotter with the thoroughbred, while Jack is trotter all through.

Both horses have plenty of admirers, for while Palo Alto was a warm favorite, abundant money went up on Jack. Harry Romaine, who was acting as commissioner for the Middleton party, took every pool he could get at $100 to $65 and $100 to $60. Had Jack won thoir winnings would have been considerable, and the party behind him must have loat pretty heavily.

The racing commenced with the three standard stakes, whioh were won respectively by River Bend in 2:29½, Strathao in 2:24, and Atlanta Wilkes in 2:29½. In the Futurity atakes for three year olds, H. D. McKinney's Theresa Phallmamont, by Phallamont, walked over in 2:40¼ and took the stakes. At 1:30 the first race was oalled.

After the Standard Stakes came the Hopeful Stakes for three-year-olds, in which there were nine starters and the summary was as follows:

The match race between Jack and Palo Alto came next. Palo Alto brought $100 against Jack'a $70.

First heat.—They were on even terms when the word was given. Jack left his feet on entering the first turn, and Palo Alto opened np a gap of two lengths at the quarter, where Jack was still in the air. When Doble finally succeeded in aettling the gray gelding he was eight lengths to the bad. Palo Alto, with never a skip or a break, came on and won by five lengtha, Marvin easing him up in the last few yards.

Second heat.—Palo Alto $50, Jack $18, was the way the pools sold now. They were aent away again on even terms. Palo Alto had the foot of the gray geldiug, however, and was first by two lengtha at the quarter, and this advantage he had increased to three lengths at the half. Jack gained on the Californian at every atride as they swnng around the upper turn, and entering the atretch he was only a length behind the leader and coming fast. A distance out Jack'a nose waa at Palo Alto's wheel. but here he left his feet and before Doble could steady him Palo Alto had reached the wire, he winning by a length.

Third heat—There was hardly any betting, but a few poola sold Palo Alto $25, Jack $15. After scoring twice they got the word, with Palo Alto half a length in front. Around the turn the Californian increaaed his lead, and at the quarter he waa two lengths in front, the pace being fast and the time 33 seconds. Along the backstretch the clip was kept up. Palo Alto gaining, and at the half, which was made in 1:06¾, he was leading hy three lengths. There was a little alackening of speed going around the turn, and Jack gained slightly, but at the three-quartera Palo Alto was still two lengths in front, and the distance had been trotted in 1:40¼. Swinging into the atraight the pace increased, and Doble atrained every nerve with Jack to catch the speedy Californian. It was of no avail, for though the gray horse answered gamely to the whip, and never attempted to break, he could not catch his rival, who came under the wire a somewhat easy winner by two lengtha in 2:13, the fastest time ever made in a race. The last quarter was trotted in 32¼ seconds, and the last half made in 1:06¼. Marvin was loudly cheered on his return to the judges' stand, and Jack cast a wistful eye at the time that was hung out, as much as to say: "That's a little too fast for me." The following is the

2:32 CLASS TROTTING.

First heat—There were eight atarters, St. Joe and William V. being drawn. Navidad had the pole, Kremlin was aecond, Maud R. third, General Buford fourth, Prize fifth, Cottonette aixth, Chief Medinm seventh and Duke eighth. Pools sold: Navidad $25, field $30. After several scores they were sent off to a fair start with Kremlin and General Buford in the lead. Navidad and Kremlin both broke badly at the turn, and at the quarter Chief Medium led, with Prize second, and Maud R. third. Chief Medium kept in front all the way round, and won easily in 2:30¾; Prize was aecond, Kremlin third, Cottonnette fourth, Geueral Buford fifth, Duke sixth, Maud R. seventh and Navidad last.

Second heat—Pools sold: Chief Medium $20, field $50. Chief Medium and Prize led out at the start, and at the quarter they were in the same positions, with Navidad third. Along the backstretch Navidad went to the front, and at the half he led, with Chief Medium second, Duke third and Prize fourth. Navidad kept the lead to the finish, winning easily in 2:23½, with Duke second, Chief Medium third, Prize fourth, Cottonnette fifth, Kremlin sixth, General Buford seventh and Maud R. eighth.

It waa getting dark when the third heat was called up. Navidad was the favorite, selling for $50 and the field $16. Duke led out, followed by Navidad. The latter broke at the turn and acted badly. Duke led past the three-quarter pole and into the straight when he broke, and Navidad, who had settled down, came up fast, and passing all the others, won the heat in 2:24¾, with Kremlin second, Prize third, Chief Medium fourth, Duke fifth, Cottonnette sixth, General Buford seventh and Maude R. diatanced.

Fourth heat—The moon had now risen and it was hard to see the horses across the track. Pools sold: Nandad, $50: field, $8. Cottonnette and General Buford were drawn. Navidad acted badly directly after the start, and Duke going to the front led all the way and won easily in 2·25. Kremlin was second. Prize third. Navidad fourth and Chief Medium last.

LAST DAY.

The meeting of the Northwestern Breeders' Assooiation at Washington Park came to an end to-day. It was the most succeasful ever held by the association. The attendance waa good on all the days, and there were fully 6,000 people on hand yesterday to see the great California marc Sunol lower her 4-year-old record and attempt to beat Maud S.'a 2:08¾. Though she did not deprive Maud S. of her proud position of queen, she trotted a great mile, and lowered her 4-year-old record of 2:11¼ by trotting 2:10½, equalling her 3-year old mark made at the Bay District track laat year.

UNFINISHED 2.32 CLASS.

Fifth heat.—Pools sold; Navidad, $25; field, $15. The word was given at the third attempt, Duke, Chief Medium, and Prize in the lead. Duke went to the front, and at the turn Navidad broke. At the quarter Duke led by a length, with Chief Medium second, Prize third, Kremtin fourth and Navidad last. On the backstretch Kremlin broke, but soon caught, and at the half Duke led, with Chief Medium second, Kremlin third, Prize fourth, and Navidad last. Around the turn Kremlin took second place, and Navidad commenced to close up, but he broke, and at the three-quarters Duke was in front, with Kremlin second, Chief Medium third, Prize fourth and Navidad last. Down the stretch Kremlin drew up to Duke, and a good race took place to the sixteenth pole, when Duke hroke, and Kremlin came under the wire an easy winner by two lengtha in 2:22½, with Duke on a break second Prize third, Chief Medium fourth, and Navidad last.

Sixth Heat—Prize, not having wou a heat in five, retired to the barn, and poola sold Navidad $115; field, $25. They got away at the third attempt, Duke, Kremlin, and Chief Medium in the lead. Around the turn Duke hroke and this carried off Navidad as well. At the quarter Kremlin led by two lengths, with Chief Medium second. Duke third and Navidad last. On the back stretch Navidad broke again, and at the half Kremlin led by five lengths, with Chief Medium second, ten lengths in front of Duke third, and Navidad last. Around the turn Navidad trotted fast and passed Duke. At the three-quarters Kremlin was still half a dozen lengtha in front, with Chief Medium second and Navidad third. There was no change in the stretch, Kremlin coming under the wire an eaay winner by four lengths in 2:23½, Chief Medium second, Navidad third and Duke, whe had broken at the eignth pole, diatanced. Duke cut himself badly when he broke in the first quarter.

Seventh Heat—Pools sold: Kremlin, $25; field, $11. At the first attempt they went off on even terms. At the paddock gate Kremlin broke, and at the qnaifer Duke led, with Navidad second and Kremlin last. Along the back atretch Navidad trotted fast and overhauled Duke whtle Kremtin broke again. At the half Navidad led by four lengtha, with Duke second. There was no change to the wire, Navidad winning by aix lengths in 2:22½, with Duke second, and Kremlin, who had broken again hefore the three-quarters, third, barely saving his distance hy a length. Navidad won the race, Kremlin got second money and Duke third. Following is the SUNOL'S RACE.

It was shortly after 4 o'clock when it was announced from the judgea' stand that the renowned Sunol would attempt to lower her four-year old record of 2:11¼, and at the same time to heat Maud S's record of 2:08¾. The crowd was requested to keep silence both at the start and finiah, on account of the high strung and nervous temperament of ths mare. Snnol looked the picture of condition as she came on the track with Marvin in his gray suit sitting grim looking and confident behind her. There waa a murmured hum of applause aa she daintily stepped down toward the furlong pole and turned. Meanwhile Orrin Hickok, who was driving the thoronghhred Father John as a running mate, had made hia way to the half mile to await Snuol's coming. All eyes were turned down the track, and, moving like a machine, with her ears pricked, Sunol came down the stretch. She seemed to be going well, but it did not suit Marvin, and the word was not given. Turning again, she once more went down the track, and this time as she came up there was a perfect silence, for it was felt that it was a atart. Marvin nodded for the word, and Starter Hancock sent the mare off on her task. She sped along the track like a swallow, flying around the turn at such an even gait that she hardly appeared to be moving. Swiftly she approached the quarter, and a smothered expression of "Up" announced the fact that she had paased the pole. The watchea made her time 32 aeconds, and this suited every one as that was a 2:08 gait, and if she could keep it up Maud S was doomed Along the backstretch she flew, and no one could discern that she was going any slower or that Father Time was getting any the better of her, but he was, and although the gain was slow it waa sure, for as she passed the half the watches marked 1:05¼, the second quarter having occupied 35¾ seconds. This was a 2:10½ gait, and if ahe dropped off any more she would have hard work to heat her record.

At the half Hickok was waiting with the runner, and as soon as she struck it he atarted after her. At first the mare kept away, but rouud the turn he was a length hehind her, and she flew along, keeping up her stride in great style. The three quarters was made in 1:39, the third quarter having bceu covered in 34¾ aeconda. Swinging into the straight she settled down to business. Marvin leant over and talked to her, while Hickok gradually brought up Father John till he was at her wheel. The mare seemed to know what was wanted of her, for down the stretch she flew, without skip or break, and aa she pasaed the eight pole, it waa evident to thoae holding watches that she would beat old Father Time after all. On she came, amid perfect silence, even the women being afraid to speak for fear the mare wonld break. There was no break in her, however, and as she flashed nnder the wire in 2:10½ a mighty shout went up, and the gallant mare had won the day, though ahe had not deprived Maud S. of her crown and scepter. The last quarter was made in 31½, a great performance. There was hearty applause, both for Marvin and the great mare, as they returned to tho judges' atand, The following is the

THE FARM.

Useful and Ornamental Breeds—II.

Laying or Non-Sitting Varieties.

Of these there is qnite a large variety, all of which without excsption hsve hesn developed in Westeru snd Southern Europe. The most numerous are known as the Mediterrsnesn family, and include Anconss, Andslusisns, Leghorns, Minorcas and Spanish, and these hsve spread very widely, as they are wonderful lsyers of large, white-shelled eggs. They are very sprightly in csrriage, of medium size in body, moderately long in the neck, with a rather prominent hreast and a flowing tail. The legs are medium in length, and the head is surmounted hy a large single comh, standing upright in the cock, and falling gracefnlly over in the hen. In all the earlobe is white, hut in the Spanish this has hesn psrmitted to spread so much that it not only covers the face, hut hangs down several inches helow it. The Hamhurgh is another large family, hut is more of a fancy hreed, as their eggs are too small for marketing purposes.

Anconas.—A variety which as yet has not heen much bred, but is an excellent oue. The plumage is speckled or mot-tled.

Andalusians.—Sometimes called the Blue Spanish, for with the exception of the white face it is the ssme in all other respects. The color of the plnmage is deep hlue on the breast, the rest of the hody a deep slate blue, with lscing of darker color, save in the cock, where the hackle and sickle are of a rich glossy black or a deep purple. Is fairly hardy, hut does not stand unfavorable conditions so well as do some other hreeds, and should not he kept in confinement.

Hamburgus.—Of these there are five colors, namely, the blacks, the gold-penciled, tbe gold-spangled, the silver-penciled and the silver spangled. The blacks and tbe two varieties of spangles have been hred in Britain for generations, chiefly in the counties of Lancashire and Yorkshire, and they are at once exceptionslly good layers—in fact, the best layers we have, and beantifnl hirds. The penciled varieties come to ns from Holland, where they or the progenitors of our much improved Penciled Hamhurghs are called Campines. For the reason already stated they are not to be recommended for farmers.

Houdans.—Best known of the Frsnch varieties, almost all of which are non-sitters, even where they are bred for the tahlc. The Houdsn has been very widely spread, and at one time appeared to he about the most popular of all the later introductions, hut has heen eclipsed hy the Mediterranean and American hreeds. It is a large fowl, with a squat-like hody, and clesn legs, the feet hearing the fifth toe, thus showing its relationship to the Dorking, which it resembles in shape. The comb is thst known as lesf, and the head is surmounted hy a modsrate-sized crest. Tbe plumage is speckled black and white, the former color prsdominsting. It is an excellent layer, a good tahle fowl and hardy, well suited to farmers.

Leghorns.—The most important of the Mediterranean races a splendid layer, moderate for the table, and very hardy. At first there were only two colors, hut these hsve bsen greatly added to since the time of their introduction, ahout 18 years ago. The colors now known are—hlack, hrown, buff, chsmois, cuckoo, duckwing, pile, rose-combed and white. The hrowns and the whites are the most popular, the others being variations, which are of great interest to those who keep poultry for the sake of pleasure, and one or two may become more popular. The white is self-colored, the hrown has msrkings like Black-Red Game fowls. All hsve yellow legs.

Minorcas.—Sometimes known as Red-Faced Spanish, hut while the latter were developed in Holland with an excessive white face, the Minorcs has heen hred in Devon and Cornwall more on the original lines. It is a pure black fowl in one variety, snd pure white in the other, but the latter is seldom seen. The hody is medium in size, with square appearance, set on moderately long legs, which is characteristio of the Mediterranean races. The comh is exceptionally large, and the legs are black or white respectively. It is the hest layer of all, if we except the Hamburghs, and where eggs are the first consideration cannot he heaten, heing hardy and an excellent forager.

Polish.—Come more into the category of fancy varieties, for though they are undonbtedly excellent layers under favorahle conditions, they are too delicate for such work as that under consideration. There are six colors, the chamois, the ermine, the gold-spangled, the silver-spangled, the white, and the white-crested hlsck. The most notable characteristic in this hreed is the large crest surmounting the head.

Redcaps.—A hreed which has recently come into notice ss a wonderful layer. It would appear to he an unimproved Gold-Spangled Hamburgh, and prohahly the progenitor of the latter variety, as it hss the same color and shape, though the markings have not been perfected as in that hreed. The name is derived from the enormous comh surmounting the head, not unlike a cap in shape, a loosely fitting Tam o'Shanter cap. It is equally prolific with the Hamburgh, hut the eggs are much larger in size, and consequently it is of more value for practical purposes.

Spanish.—Reference has already been made to the white face of the Spsnish, which has heen bred to such an extent that the natural stamina of the hreed has heen lost, and though an excellent layer of lsrge white shelled eggs. it is too delicate for practical purposes. There are three colors, the hlack, hlue and white, the first named heing the most common.

Scotch Greys —A very valuahle breed, which as its name would imply has heen chiefly hred in Scotland. It has somewhat of the Mediterranean carrisge, though perhaps more like tbe Dorking. It is large in body, has a single comb, white or mottled legs, and the hody is white in ground color with markings of neat hlack moons on every feather. They are well suited to the purpose under review, as the quality of the flesh is higher than most of the non sitting varieties.

In selecting I should recommend as the best layers. Minorcas, Legborns, Redcaps and Scotch Greys, in the order named; best layers and on tbe table, Scotch Greys and Houdans; hardiest, Minorcss, Leghorns, Redcaps, Scotch Greys. —Stephen Beale in Am. Cultivator.

I use Simmons Liver Regulator for my stock, horses and mules; it is the hest medicine I know of. In cases of colic in stock it will save them if given in time. Recommend it. —R. V. Cox, Haddock's Stahle, M. & A. R. R.

Sheep in America.

Henry Stewsrt in New York Weekly times: It is most unfortunate that such an important sgricultursl industry as the rearing of sheep and the growing of wool should stand isolsted as an interest depending upon the unsubstsntial snd ever-chsnging quick-sands of politics for its supposed prosperity' and thus bscome the sport of every vsrying phase snd current of public opinion, as a ship at sea wifhout rudder or hallast, which is blown hither and thither, and at times is lsid on her heam ends in sn utterly helpless condi tion. Indeed, this simile precisely represents the history of the shepherds' industry in the United States, for it has passed through numerons changes within the memory of any man living—nps and downs, panics and booms, and self-inflicted disasters and losses incnrred hy senseless excitements which at times have rendered the flocks valueless, and at other times have made sheep sell for a thousand each, and for more in special instances.

No other sgricultural indnstry is thus controlled hy political changes, and while it is not the present purpose to discuss this psrt of the subjdct, yet it may he pointed out to all interested that this variahle and uncsrtain entanglement is unquestionably an enormous detriment to those who are occupied in the rearing of sheep, from whatever point of visw it may be considered.

The profitable rearing of sheep depends upon some conditions of climste, soil, locality and mannea of cnlture of the soil, to each of which it is indispensable that the sheep selected should be fitted. No other domestic animal is so molded and changed by its environments as sheep are, hence it is the very first condition required for success that the right sheep should he chosen for the right place. Experience has shown that much loss and disappointment have occurred through neglect or ignorance of this fundsmental nscessity, and flocks imported from other countries and from under different conditions native to them have quickly withered and perished, as plants taken from hotheds and moved directly to uncongenial soil and a frigid temperature have faded and withered away.

Sheep, too, are kept for various pnrposes, all incident to the varying conditions mentioned. Mutton, wool and the rearing of lambs for market are all specisl purposes for which shsep are desirahle, and these depend not only upon the choice of the right sheep, but the selection of suitsble localities, soils, climates and crops for feeding. It should go without saying that the mntton sheep should be kept within practicable reach of a market for the meat; that wool, varying as it does to a very large extent with heat, cold, moisture or dryness of the air and manner of feeding, will be grown to the best profit by the keeping of sheep for the prodnction of the most valuable gradss of fleece, and that locality is of secondsry consideration, for the reason thst wool is more easily and chesply transported than mest or live sheep are; and that young lsmhs, heing especially tender and suhjsct to injury and damsge hy long transportation, should be reared within easy distance of the special markets, where they can be sold to the best advantage, and these are in large cities. Considering all these points, it is easily realixed that, as the vslue of land varys very much as to locality, the most profitable product only can be resred with advantage on the highest priced lands, which are found in the most thickly populated districts. A shepherd who rears lsmbs for sale early in the sesson, must necessarily expend several times as much money in the purchsse of land as the one who rears sheep for mntton, and the wool-grower may safely place himself where land can he procured for still less money. As the cost of land is the largest item of expenditure, it is necessary to rednce this to the lowest limit prscticable, and where land is most costly the hest sheep only can he kept, and these are to he msnsged in such a way as to involve the most lahor that can he economically spent on the flock, and the contrsry applies to different circumstances.

Experience also proves that sheep are suhject to so many adversities, naturally and artificislly, that only experienced shepherds csn snccessfnlly evade or prevent disorders. An old French proverb, "Qui a terre qui a guerre," (who has land has war,) applies to a flock still more pertinently. The shepherd must fight for his flock, not only sgainst many diseases, changes of weather, numerons parasites, and most unexpected accidents on every hand, hut against his neighhors who keep dogs that are permitted to roam at large on others' fields, hy day and by night, and frequently destroy a whole flock in a single night. If there is one other influence which damsges the sheep industry more than this, there is but one—that above pointed out; hut it is nnquestionsble that the general permission given to dogs to roam at large, reduces the flocks to one-half what they would otherwise be, and thus inflicts a most serious damage to American agriculture. Considering all these points, inexperienced persons should hegin cautiously in establishing a flock, starting with a few sheep only, and after matnre preparations for their safe care as regards feeding and safety from injury. More particnlar consideration will he given to this part of the subject in future articles.

America and England.

Nothing can be more disingenuons than the contention that in attempting to keep ont disease there is any wish to keep out food says the Mark Lane Express. In point of fact, the present regulations do not in the least check the supply of American meat. On the contrary, it has under them continued to grow steadily and persistently. The imports of cattle from the United States have increased during the psst three years from 94,000 head in 1887 to 204,000 head in 1889. while for the first six months of the present year they were 185,000 head. These figures suffice to show how illusory is any complaint against the present slaughter-at-port regulation from the consumer's point of view. This, too, is without reckoning the vast increase in the importation of meat. For instance, the quantity of fresh heef imported from the United States in 1889 was 1,275,000 cwt, being almost precisely double what it was in 1887, while for the period January to June of the present year the quantity was 856,000 cwt.

These figures are conclusive as proving that American cattle and American beef are in nowise excluded hy the present regulations, hnt that the importation of both is constantly increasing. Surely under these circumstances it is reasonable to ask that the safeguards against the risk of the introduction of disease (with all its disastrous consequences hoth to farmers and to the public generally) shall not be recklessly set aside.

A Lesson on Dairying.

Dsirying is an industry that requires perpetual sttention, snd therefore is distssteful to many farmers. A field of growing grsin or dry stock in the pasture developes into wesith under gensrl human oversight, wnile cows must he milked at least twice a day. One of the greatest stock tsnciers in the dairy region in which the writer resides keeps harely enough milk animsls to supply his tsble with dsiry necessaries. He has a dread of milking sud its contining exsctions. He can see hesuty in a prize cow, but does not care to become her attendsnt.

We have understood thst in the grain growing countries of the West, where dairying has lately heen introduced, that there exists, on the part of hired help, an antipathy to regular milking. We have seen this tendency verified hoth East and West, and know of no remedy except the oultivation of a more hroad view of dairying as a pleasant and lucrative art. No man con he truly snccessful unless he is in love with his profession, and if you embrace dairying, do justice hy it. Even if milking does come twice a oay, Sundays included, the chore can he shorn of its disagreeahle features hy the possession of golden cows and convenient stable facilitiss. Aim to get a certain amount of milk from a few cows instead of from a great many, or in other words, sim high and strive to resch the mark. When you feel that your husiness is paying you hetter than anything else you conld follow, you will cease to consider its exactions and glory in its virtues.

One of the most disheartening things to dampen the ardor of a good dairyman it to have the price of milk, hutter or cheese to creep down toward zero, while his main financial dependence is wrspped np in a herd of cows. When placed in such straits, our advice is, "dont give up the ship." The barge is as relisble a vssscl as you conld take business passage in—one not liable to extreme market fluctuations. The character of your management of course will accordingly govern the chsracter of your esponsed vocation. Thus butter and cbeese are not gensrlly reduced in price simultaneously, hut when one goes up the other is down. This is not always the case, thongh 'tis often so.

A shrewd dairyman who is his own manufacturer—and there are many of them—should he amply prepsred to take advantage of such possible contingencies by a change of hase. Now, if yon are making cheese, and hutter happens to go up, with a possihility of staying there, don't go to skimming your milk and keep both prodncts along, for by so doing you deal a staggering hlow to good cheese msking. You yourself may not feel the immediate effects of the chsat, for as skimmed cbeese is sold it is nothing hut a fraud and a cheat to the consumer, hut hy adding your mite to cheese deterioration you lend assistsnce to a general debasement.

Make full stock cheese and full stock butter; or make none at all. Inferior dairy goods must go. The time is approaching when they will not he tolerated, and it is far hetter for producers and manufscturers to act as volnnteers in the matter than to he forced into liue hy the unflinching tide of improvement. Brethren, whst think you?—George E. Newhall in Prairie Farmer.

Milking.

Milking is a tedious joh, and few mortals are to be found who like the occupation. Good wsges is the only incentive to keep the man at snch work. What a heuefaction to the human race it would he to invent a good practical milking machine, How immortal the man would become who puts such a machine on the market. In the absence of such an invention let us all do what we can to ameliorate the suffering of mankind. With a view to this end we publish the following from the American Cultivator:

"It is most essential to the profit of the dairy that the milker's attention and muscnlsr energy he focused on the lsbor under his hands. If he sits in a cramped position with knees gripping a heavy pailful of milk, the stripping of the teats becomes of secondary importsnce to his physical comfort. If on the other hand, he employs a stool with a low projection to support the pail, or hetter yet, has a pail with stout ears on the rim to lap on to his knees, the milking csn he performed with ease and facility, and full justice can thus he done to the task.

In summer time we all know that a cow full of milk is the hottest thing in all creation and draws more flies than a fish market. The hot weather makes her restive snd the milker nervous. The flies irritate hoth parties to the contract, and the result often is that there is a collision rninous to all concerned. Let those of us who work in more pleasant places he charitahle in our criticism and blot out the record of "cuss words" that come from the milker and kicks of the long suffering cow. There are greater sins in this world than those shown by the hasts and mortals who lose their tempers under trying circumstances.—American Dairyman.

Atavism.

Wm. Houseman, in London Live Stock Journal says: A first-class cow, between Shorthorn and Scotch West Highlsnd psrents, bred a heifer to a Shorthorn bull. The heifer, three-fourths Shorthorn and one-fourth West Highland, (having two Shortborn crosses upon the West Highland) hred a heifer to a Shorthorn hnll; and in course of time that third-cross heifer, seven-eighths Shorthorn and one-eighth West Highland, hecame a remarkahly fine cow, wholly of the Shorthorn type. She wss mated with a pure Polled-Angus hull; the result was, or rather is—for it is living within ten mintes' walk from the house in which I write—a heifer of the West Highland type, with large Highland horns.

Chloroforming a Bull.

The Buenos Ayres Standard states that a difficult veterinary operation was recently performed hy Mr. Rohert S. Mitchell, M. R. C. V. S., England, on an imported bull, the property of the trustees of the late Signor Corti, which was purchased last yesr for the sum of 5,000 dollsrs gold. For some time past a large growth had been forming on the throat of this animal, and Mr. Mitchell decided to remove the obstruction which endangered the hull's life, and most successfnlly removed a tumor twenty-four ounces weight. Ten ounces of chloroform and six onnces of ether were reqnired before the bull succumhed to the influence of the anæsthetic.

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY, AUG. 22D, 1890, AT OAKLAND

The newly fledged Colonel Sammy Shaw, late of Terre Hante, did not score a startling success in hie initial game at the Emery grounds last Fridsy. In fact Mr. Sbaw's debut on a Californis diamond may be set down se a "froet." The diminntive twirler shot all styles of curve and drop balls at the batsmen, but as their course deviated considerably from the square foot of rubber commonly termed the home plate, the result was that Umpire Donohue informed seven of the Senators that they were entitled to their bsee on balls. Mr. Shaw quite frequently did direct the ball so thst if permitted it would have crosesd the plate st the prescribed height, but the athletic Senators took exceptlon to that feat being accompliehed and banged the sphere back into the lot safely and sharply fourteen times. The terrifio cannonsding their newly acquired colleagne wss subjected to, quite nnuerved the remainder of the team, and after the third inning they gave the spectators a well executed exhibition of the art of juggling baseball, interspersed with many feats of recklese and long distance throwing. These inuovations of what the Colonele were heretofore deemed incapable of enacting most ably assisted the Senatorial sggrcgaliou in their overwhelming victory snd gsve the Capital city a tighter cinch on the championship rag. Beside lhe vigorous hitling of the Senators, the eide play of lhe Colonels already mentioned and which did not find universal favor with the Oakland cranks, the eplendid work of the outfieldors were the prominent festuree. STOCKTON ve. OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, AUG. 22ND, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Friscos outhatted the Stocktons in this game hitting Perrott for ten safe shots, including two doubles and a triple, altogether netting eix runs. Lookahaugh pitched splendidly for the Friscos allowing but four singles. His support was only fair, the infield dividing seven errors between them. Everett wss the bright particular star of the game as regards hitting, getting four safe shols—a single, two doubles and a triple, out of an equal number of timee and hat. Peek ahoo Veach also hit sharply and hie fielding, together with that of Ebright, Wilson and Fudger in left field were noteworthy fcatnres. The soore:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23RD, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Gae City boys hit harder and fielded better than the Friscoa, hut lost the game on a close decieion by Umpire McLaughlin in the sixth inning. Lookabaugh and Kilroy both pitched effectively and steadily, keeping the hits well distributed, and each sending but one man to his base on balls. The support from their respeclive catchera was also good. In the sixth inning with two out and men on first and aecond, Ebright hit to Wilaon, who was playing short. Wilson ran with the ball to second, arriving ahead of the runner, and the umpire called all safe which filled the bases and hits by Everett and Hill following scored three runs. The infield of both teams played great ball, making a number of sharp and difficult plays, Everett, Shea and Fogarty especially dietingnishing themselves. At the bat Fogarty, Wilson, Vogt, Everett and Shea did splendid work. The score:

OAKLAND vs SACRAMENTO.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23RD 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Twenty two safe hits and thirteen bases on balls were generously allowed the Colonels in this game hy the demorslized Senators, and ss s grand reeult for eight inninge' work, the Oaklands piled up twenty-four runs. The Senators never played such a zigzag game before, and it is to be esrnesily hoped that on all futnre occasione they will refrain from a repetition of a eimilar exhibition. An immense crowd were in attendance, and lo say that they were heartily disgusted is putting it very mildly. Harper pitched, or rather made a tremendous bluff at it, for the first tive innings, but was nnmercifully slaughtered, the Oaklands getling fourteen hits off him. Then Reitz took a hand, but instead of helping matlers, made them decidedly worse, allowing eight hils in two iunings and giving five bases on halls. As a last resort, Goodenough was pressed into service, and although no hits were made off him, three men tallied just the ssme. The burlesque was happily terminated by umpire Donohne in the eighth inning, who called "game" in order to permit the Sacramentos to catch the Stockton train. The game was totally devoid of any interesling features, excepting the double play of Cantillian and McDonald. The score.

OAKLAND vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, AUG. 24TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

Thie game, through the ekillful manipulation of Colonel Thomas P. Robinson, ably assisted by his Lieutenants—Sweeney, C. O Neill, Cantillian, Carsey and Lohman—went for nanght, the resnlt for eight inninge being five to five, and the umpire called it at 12:20 ae per a previons arrangement made by both captsin's in order to make railway connections so that their teams might appear in the afternoon game at the Haight St. grounds at the advertised time. For the eight innings played the game was interesting and pretty. Both pitchers—Lookabaugh snd Carsey—did excellent work, and the fielding, with the exception of Everett at short, was generally clever. Dooley. Sweeney, Stevens, Speer and Veach did some timely hitting, while the base playing of Mc Donald, Shea and Ebright, and the fielding of Levy, Stevens and C. O'Neill were dietinguishing featuree. SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, AUG. 24TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

An immense crowd sssembled to see this game and gave both teams a royal welcome. Coughlin and Shaw were the opposing twirlers and the diminutive "Hantentot" Shaw had decidedly the best of the pitching honors. If the third inning could have been eliminated from the score Frisco would have won for this inning was Coughliu's Waterloo. Five hits—singles by Shaw, Dooley, C. O'Neill, a double by Cantillion and Lobman's triple—together with errors of Conghlin and Ebright gave the Colonels five runs and an immense lead which they augmented in the eixth and seventh making a total of eight runs. The Friscos earued one ruu in the sixth on Ebright's double and singles by Sievens and Everett. They made a rather fast linish in the niuth scoring three men on two bsses on halle and doubles by Levy and Veach, bnt Ebrighl and Everett wafted and Lookahangh was sssisted ont by McDonald leaving two men on bsses and ending the game. Hill was hadly hurt by being hit with a bounding ball in lhe sixth inning which necessitated his retirement from the gsme and Everett was slmost knocked senseless by being hit by a pitched ball iu the head. Features of the game was the elegant fielding of Levy, Hill and Slevens, Lobman's heautiful catch of a foul fly close to the press box and McDonald and Dooley's clever work on their respective hases. At the hat, Veach, Stevens, C. O'Neill and Shaw were particu'arly strong The scoie:

STOCKTON vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, AUG. 24TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

Garsnza Young demonetrated the fact that he is yet a great pilcher, for in this game for Stockton he allowed hnt one hit for seven innings and three for the nine. He was rather wild in the fore-part of the game, which accounts for one of the Seustors runs, but soon steadied down and pitched out a masterly game. His new colleagues snpported him admirably. Senator Hoffman was touched upfreely for twelve hits, among which were three long shots, and with the additiou of his teams errors, is the easy victory of the Gas City hoys secnnnled for The Sacramentos earned two runs in lhe eight on Roberls safety, Reilzs triple and McHales single. Fudger, Fogarty, Cahill, Selna and Wilson were especially strong at the bat, while lhe infielding of Wileon, Fogarly, Daly and Reitz, snd the back stop work of Armstrong and McHale was of very high order. SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, AUG. 24TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Stocktons had on their battiug clothes last Sunday eurely, for after hilling Hoffman for twelve sure shots in the morning they batted Harper for fifteen on the Sacramento grounds in the afteruoon before the smallest Sunday audience of the seaeon. They had King Perrott in the box who pitched in fine form, and they supporled him in true pennant winning style. It was not the Senators heavy hitting day for in lhe two games they made but aeven hits—three off Young and four off Perrott. Their fielding was not up to lheir nsual high standard eilher. The Slocktons took a lead early in the game which could not be overcome, although the Senalors struggled manfully to even up matters without avail. Selna's one hand stop of a terrific grounder was lhe most conspicuous feature of lhe game, although Fogarly, Reitz, Daly and Stapleton also made aome excellent plays. The Sacramento outfield was not offered a chance.

Selna, Fudger, Stockwell, Holliday and Wilson each secured two hits and Fogarty three. McLaughlin's umpiring was faulty regarding balls and strikes.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 28TH, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game up to the seventh inning was a decidedly pretty one, the Friscos having secured three runs in the first inning and one in the third, while the Gas City boys got three men over the plate in the sixth. Up to this time Young had been pitching a fairly good game, while Coughlin was doing excellent work. The seventh was perhaps the liveliest inning ever played on the home grounds, singles, doubles, bases on balls and errors being distributed "regardless of cost." The Friscos started in by banging their old comrade round the lot at a rapid rate, and before the third hand was retired fourteen men were at bat and nine of whom scored. Then the Stocktons went in, and although not equaling the efforts of their predecessors made things exceedingly interesting, having eleven men at bat during the inning and chasing six of them home. This was a wholesale slaughter, but the Friscos were not at all tired (although Mr. Young was) for in the eighth they tallied two and in the ninth four runs, a grand total of nineteen, of which but six were earned. In the eighth the Stocktons failed to score, and in the ninth added one, making an aggregate of ten for the game. The hitting was positively tremendous, Ebright, Hanley, Veach, Everett and Stockwell doing mighty work. The fielding was miserable on both sides, and the only redeeming feature in this department was a double from Stevens to Speer and a magnificent triple play in the first inning in which Coughlin, Veach and Ebright participated. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

Despite the fact that the Sacramentos have recently met with serious reverses they still retain an immense lead. The Friscos and Oaklands are tied for second place, each having won and lost an equal number of games. The Stocktons persistantly cling to last place, although they are expected to advance from now on.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Hanley's arm is mending.

The 'Frisco stock is advancing.

Ebright did great stick work Thursdsy.

Everett's home run in Thursday's game was a beauty.

Armstrong and Stockwell are now Stockton's catchers.

Fred Jevne has been appointed an umpire in the Western Association.

Dungan, in the past few games, has not been hitting as heavily as heretofore.

Monk Cline is now playing right field for the Lincolns, of the Western Association.

Matt Stanley, Poky Chase and old Jack Cullen are now playing with the Fresnos.

Danny Sweeney, the midget, has become quite a favorite by his speedy base running.

The irrepressible Manager and Captain Mike Kelly, is now referred to as "Cottage" Kelly.

Pete Sweeney and Monk Cline were recently released from the St. Pauls to reduce expenses.

Since Harris is no longer manager, Dave Levy will probably be released from the Portlands.

Will the Senators take their long predicted toboggan slide? is a question now agitating the cranks.

The Sacramentos won thirteen games straight from the Stocktons from July 4th to August 24th.

Old man Perrier now has charge of the billiard rooms connected with Tregallis' White Wings Cafe.

At the close of the season Manager Stapleton intends taking his team on an extended tour of the State.

Bowman's injury to his hand last Saturday prevented his taking part in the two Stockton-Sacramento games.

The Sporting Life credits our big Bill Brown with being one of the wittiest men in the base ball professional.

The Oaklands have three of the four heaviest hitting pitchers in the League. They are Cobb, Carsey and Shaw.

Interest in base ball in England is on the increase. An umpire narrowly escaped being mobbed at Birmingham the other day.

Twenty-five men at bat in one game is about the record for the season. It happened in last Thursday's game in the seventh inning.

Tom Buckley is too clever a player to be in the amateur ranks. There should certainly be a place for him in one of the professional teams.

The Portlands celebrated the reinstatement of pitcher Tom Perrott and the resignation of Manager Harris by shutting out the Seattles 11 to 0.

The Friscos greatly missed Hanley's batting in the last few games. "Blockers" is the most dangerous man in the team when runners are on bases.

Hen Moore is hitting, fielding and running bases in his old time Pioneer form for the Salt Lakes. He writes that he will return to Frisco in about a month.

Pitcher France, whom the Sacramento management was negotiating for, immediately after the disbandment of the Burlington team, signed with Seattle.

Jerry Denny's let-down in batting has been simply awful. Hitherto, although not a slugger, his stick work has been fair; this season it has been infantile.—Ex.

Johnny Buchan, the gentlemanly little player who covered third base in the fore part of the season for the 'Friscos, is now assistant post-master of Las Vegas, New Mexico.

Paul McCarthy, Billy Cooney and Joe Leveque are 'Frisco boys playing with Salem, Or. Crosby and Morgan, at one time battery for the Pioneers, are also with the same team.

Pursuant to his physicians instructions Pitcher McCarthy is going to Sacramento in the hope of recuperating from his severe illness. We earnestly hope for his speedy convalescence.

Harry O'Day, "the boy wonder," is sick at Portland, and Hulin, known here as Harry Howard, is filling his position at second very creditably. O'Day would like to be back again in 'Frisco.

Stovey has stolen 75 bases; Tom Brown, 54; Ward, 53; Duffy, 54; Hanlon, 43; Seery, 38; Kelly, 35: Hardie Richardson, 34; Joyce, 34; Shindle and Latham, 29; Van Haltren, 25; Nash, Hoy, Corcoran and Browning, 24; Dan Richardson, 21 and Gore, 20.

Had Ebright kept up with the procession in last Sunday's game in the ninth inning, and followed Levy and Veach—who each secured doubles—by hitting the ball, instead of letting two excellent strikes be called on him and then fanning out, the result of the game might have been vastly different.

The Fresno team is now a strong organization, having been reinforced by the accession of Matt Stanley and Pokey Chase. They are open to dates after the California League season closes and would be pleased to arrange games with any of the big league teams. Address, Ed. Austin, Manager, Fresno, Cal.

Hughey Smith, who but recently returned from the East, states that the California boys—Powers, Swett, Long and Smalley—are playing "out of sight." He says baseball has suffered immeasurably from the conflict of the two leagues, but that the Player's games are much better patronized than those of the National League.

The Directors of the Boston National League Club have considered their determination to release Hardie, and he will not leave the service of the club. Ganzel and Bennett are by no means in first-class condition. Both men are nursing injuries, and were unable to play to-day. To release Hardie would leave the team without a sound back stop. Hardie is all right physically, and showed yesterday that he is capable of doing good work. It is claimed for him that he has not had an opportunity to show what he is really capable of doing.—New York Sun.

The base ball writers in the West are having a controversy over the pitching records, several claiming that Elmer Smith's feat the other day of retiring the Milwaukees without a hit, and only facing twenty-eight men, being the best. Clark, of the Omahas, it is claimed by others, only faced twenty-six men in a full nine inning game last season. Both sides, however, are wrong. Weyhing last year, while with the Athletics, in one game only had twenty-five men up against him, the other two reaching first on balls and being doubled up at second. This is the record.—Philadelphia Ledger.

On the evening of the 21st Professor "Jim" Corbett, the "coming champion of the world" delightfully entertained a few of his base ball friends at his elegant and spacious apartments at the Florence House. The evening was an exceedingly enjoyable one, the jovial professor, who possesses an abundant overflow of wit and good nature, being a most beneficent host, and assisted by his charming and accomplished young wife made the little occasion one to be long remembered. Mr. Edward Stapleton, the genial manager of the Sacramentos, rendered some very pretty vocal selections in excellent voice while others of the company also contributed many pleasing instrumental numbers. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James J. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. Curtin, Mr. James McDonald, Mr. Edward Stapleton, Mr. William Stickney and Mr. Edw. Moran. It was to be regretted that inexorable "club restrictions" caused the guests to depart at an early hour.

The Globe-Democrat says: "Billy Wittrock, recently released by the St. Louis Browns, and who joined the Portland, (Oregon.) Club, of the Northern Pacific League, is not feeling very well satisfied. In a recent letter to a St. Louis friend he states that he arrived in Portland one morning after almost a weeks' constant riding, night and day, on a second-class ticket sent him by the Portland Club, which prevented him from securing a berth in the sleeper. When he arrived in Portland he was stiff and sore, but the manager compelled him to pitch the game that afternoon. The result was that he was batted for seventeen safe hits, and the Portlands, of course, lost the game. He says, naturally the people did not have a very high opinion of him as a pitcher, but that he will soon show them the difference between a good rest and sleeping five or six days and nights on car seats."

A new point in baseball was introduced, but not satisfactorily decided, on the Olean grounds a few days ago by a small dog. While a member of the Bradford nine was chasing a ball batted by an Olean man into the left field, the dog in question ran for it and caught it, and closing his jaws, refused to give it up. The fielder than caught the dog, and being unable to get the ball, the owner came up and helped, and finally the jaws were opened and the ball recovered. Meanwhile the Olean man had scored. The Bradford captain appealed against the run being counted, on the ground that it was technically a blocked ball in which case the runner would have to be set back; but the umpire, with still more rigid views on technicality decided that, inasmuch as the ball had not been handled by a "person," and there was no provision regarding dogs, the run went to Olean and with it the game.—Exchange.

The accident which befell centerfield Hill in last Sunday's game reflects very discreditably on the management of the Haight St. grounds. It is doubtful if there is a poorer kept or more dangerous ground than this in the country. The infield is as hard as flint and being full of fragments of rocks and pebbles, which causes the ball to take ugly and unexpected bounds, actually places the lives of the players in jeopardy. The outfield is still worse than the diamond, if such a thing were possible, for in addition to its being lumpy and rocky, it is undermined with numerous squirrel holes, so that a fielder is not only in peril of receiving a ball in the face instead of the hands as was Hill's case last Sunday, but he is in constant danger of breaking a limb by stepping in one of these holes. The matter of the condition of the grounds has been brought to the attention of the managers so frequently that it is positively irksome to further comment on it. But by all means gentlemen, once for all, exterminate the rodents, fill the holes, sow a healthy grass plot and put in a turf, clover or grass diamond. Then you'll require additional gate keepers and ticket sellers and your dividends will be increased fully twenty-five per cent.

The Stocktons' chances are now very "rosy" for doing a lot of winning, and if they can't get the pennant themselves, they are surely destined to be "champion killers". With the accession of Len Stockwell to take the team in charge, and Otto Young to aid them in the pitching department, they are as strong as any team in the league. Perrott, Kilroy and Young are all strong, effective and steady box-men, and Stockwell made a great reputation as an efficient and brainy catcher with the same team in '88. Armstrong is also a reliable man behind the bat, and a heavy sticker as well. When not catching he will play at third, Wilson at short, and Fudger in the out-field. The in-fielders, Selna, Fogarty, Wilson, Armstrong and Fudger, are all capable players in their positions, while the out-field is equally as clever as the best of them. Taking the team as a whole, they are heavy hitters, good fielders, smart base runners, and have only lacked the great essential element that wins games and that is—team work. With a man of Stockwell's recognized ability and energy to handle them, the chances are that they will soon show the beneficial effects of his coaching and mentorship.

The Amateurs.

The Reports still hold on to first place with grim determination. The decisions rendered by President Mone at the meeting of the California Amateur League last Saturday evening gave the Santa Rosas a big boost and consequently the Reports and Will & Fincks suffered considerably. The Will & Finck—Santa Rosa game of July 4th was decided a regular championship game and was given to the Santa Rosas and is credited in this issue to that team. The protested Report—Santa Rosa game of July 7th and which was heretofore credited to the Reports was declared off and will have to be competed for again. The E. T. Allen—Santa Rosa protested game of Aug. 17th was not allowed. By winning last Sunday's game the Reports still maintain their first position with the Santa Rosas a close second. The Vallejos have passed the Will & Fincks and are now the firm third. The Finck's chances are yet excellent, however, as a few victories can place them close to the top. The Burlingtons and Allens remain almost stationary. The following table has been carefully revised and is now absolutely correct. The record to date:

DAILY REPORTS vs. E. T. ALLENS.

Sunday, Aug. 24th, 1890, at San Francisco.

The Newsies and Sports, who occupy the first and last positions, respectively in the League race, came together last Sunday morning and gave the few hundred assembled cranks, who think the amateur games are often superior to those in the afternoon, a genuine treat. It was a great contest, and although the Reports took a big lead of ten runs in the first two innings, the Sports proved themselves to the "dead game," and pluckily started in chasing a goodly number of their men across the rubber later on, to the intense delight of the spectators. Philpot, the "Native Son," who had already won one game from the Reports, was in the box for the Sports, but Ashman's men in this game displayed an astonishing familiarity with his delivery, dallying with it to the extent of seven hits—three of which were "out of sight" till two or three cushions were covered—in the first two innings, and besides giving thanks for five bases on balls gratuituously bestowed, which altogether netted the neat sum of ten runs. At this stage of the game Manager Keller and Captain Evatt held a conference, resulting in the banishment of Mr. Philpot to a position where his duties would be more in accordance with his abilities, and Young Jack Lohman, who enjoys the distinction of being a brother of Oaklands prize back stop, was given a chance to distinguish himself. To make room for Philpot, Billy Kennedy vacated his place at second and went to centerfield, where he made a number of excellent fly catches. Young Lohman proved himself quite a pitcher, showing some good curves and being remarkably steady. The Reports failed to do much with his delivery till the sixth inning, when Green and Thompson each drove out a safety and scampered home on Dunphy's long triple. This ended their run getting, they having an even dozen to their credit. The Sports then modestly placed one on their string in the fourth on Kennedy's single, a wild pitch and Mulvey's "safe shot." Then in the fifth they became somewhat bolder, for with two men retired the Reports displaced a tendency toward decorating their error column. Philpot reached first on an error, and Green's "Eiffel Tower" throw permitted his jogging in the same direction uninterrupted, and then Broderick waited for his base and got it. Evatt smashed out a "daisy cutter," and Buckley's hit of the same quality sent Broderick home. Kennedy located another of William's curves and sent it out beyond the fielders for a double, on which tallied Evatt and Buckley; Kennedy himself scoring on Hearty's error. This was six runs already, and three in the seventh with another added in the eighth, due to some hard and scientific hitting and daring base running, gave them ten runs which, though not winning the game, evened up matters very satisfactorily for the audience. The greatest work of the day was done by John Thompson, who was five times at bat and secured four hits—two singles, a double and triple. His short stop work was also clever, all his chances being neatly accepted. Joe Dunphy also did some terrific stick work, smashing the ball every time up and twice safely for a double and triple. One of his catchers was almost as marvellous as the one made by Mulvey in right—that player running toward the scoreboard and pulling down with one hand a hit of Dunphy's which looked good for another three bagger. Besides Thompson and Dunphy, Buckley, Evatt, Kennedy and Mulvey did strong work with their wagon-tongues. The catching of Leland, the wonderful catches of Mulvey and Dunphy before mentioned, the outfielding of Geishaker and Kennedy, with the infield work of Thompson, Creamer, Buckley, Broderick and Philpot were prominent and enjoyable features of the game. VALLEJO vs. SANTA ROSA.

Sunday, Aug. 24th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Marines took their fourth game from the Sonoma boys last Sunday by the tantalizingly close score of six to five. It was a "blooded" game, as the most intense rivalry exists between these teams, and before the game each club received liberal backing from their constituents. Had the Santa Rosas won, they would have been boosted into first place, but the Vallejo's victory kept their opponents in second position and placed themselves a very snug third in the championship race. Each team presented its strongest array of players, the pitchers being in exceedingly fine fettle, and the fielders, generally speaking, putting up an excellent game. The Marines bunched their four hits, gained by Maguire, Hughes and Farrell in the third and fourth innings, and these, with the Santa Rosa's errors, gave them the six runs they secured in the game. Grace's men secured but three singles off Baltz in the game which came at long intervals, the first base and batte y errors of the Marines being responsible for their runs. In the fielding Maguire, Gimmel, McCarthy, Stultz and Hughes distinguished themselves by making phenomenal catches, and Stanford made a great stop and put out. Zemansky's umpiring, though not satisfactory to the Santa Rosas, was strictly in accordance with the rules. As is their usual custom, the Santa Rosas protested the game. The score:

FRESNO vs. BAKERSFIELD.

Sunday, August 24th, 1890, At Fresno.

At Belmont Park last Sunday, the Fresnos almost annihilated the Bakersfield team. They experienced no difficulty in hitting Hysinger and English, and their free hitting, coupled with the numerous errors of the Bakersfield infield, gave the home team an easy victory. The Fresnos presented their strongest team of the season, being strengthened by the accession of Chase, late of the Friscos, and Stanley of the Allens and Stocktons. Chase pitched great ball, allowing but three hits and disposing of thirteen men on strikes. His support at the receiving end from the veteren Jack Cullen was excellent. Stanley also played an admirable first base. Peir, Waggoner, Stanley, Thurman and Cullen batted heavily, while the entire team put up a strong fielding game. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Jack Lohman is quite a pitcher.

The Reports are now undisputably first.

The Amateurs have been putting up the great ball lately.

When the Santa Rosas lose they almost invariably protest the game.

Strand and Billings have both asked for their releases from the Will & Fincks.

Al Redmon, the catcher of the old Cleveland team of Oakland, is now playing with the Bakersfields.

We picked the Vallejos as the "dark horse in the race" and think we come pretty near "calling the turn.

It is rumored that the Stars of Oakland composed of such players as Kelly, Rohan, Wilds, Mulvey, Crowley, Batchelor and Ryan, will take the place of the Burlingtons in the Amateur League. This, however, has not been authenticated at the League headquarters.

John Thompson's playing last Sunday was as clever as any ever seen on a local diamond. Four safe hits out of five times at bat—two being singles, one a double and another a triple—a total of seven bases is tremendous batting, and this in conjunction with accepting six chances at short field without an error, is a grand record for one day's work.

At the meeting of the California Amateur League held at the Burlington Route office last Saturday evening, the following were the team representatives present: Reports, Manager Ashman and Player Thompson; Santa Rosa, Manager Grace; Vallejo, Player Gehmann; Will & Fincks, Mr. Fredericks; E. T. Allens, Manager Keller; Burlingtons, Managers Gage and Sheridan.

It has been said, and on most reliable authority, that were Managers Finn and Robinson to have their own way, the California Amateur League would be abolished. When the amateur managers received this chilly and startling information of the feeling of disapproval expressed by the "big guns" of the league, they felt not a little chagrined that their earnest endeavors had not earned for them more generous consideration. It cannot be denied that the amateurs have played some remarkably fine games, and many patrons of the Haight street grounds say they would as soon see the morning game as the one in the afternoon, for often is the amateur game far superior to the professional one following it. Certainly no such scores as 36 to 1, 20 to 5 and 24 to 4 have marred their record for this or any other season. Just why the magnates would wish to "kill the goose that laid the golden eggs" for them, has not been made sufficiently clear for our untutored mind to comprehend. One reason that has been advanced, but which is so utterly feeble that it is scarcely worth any consideration, is, that the amateurs have many petty troubles, and as a consequence, are a source of annoyance to the officials. But the big league officers make a serious mistake in participating in these little squabbles. The amateurs have an intellectual president and board of directors, and are therefore eminently capable of arbitrating their own affairs. If their disputed questions, from which no organization is ever exempt, constitutes them a nuisance, we will say right here that they have been individually and collectively a most profitable nuisance to the very parties who would wish to destroy their existance.

To abolish the California Amateur League would be to destroy the nucleus—the foundation of the major organization. Was not the Greenhood & Moran team an amateur one, and did it not make a most remarkable and creditable showing against the professional teams in the California League in the season of '86? We would respectfully ask the league magnates, whose past five years' lucky connection with base ball has placed them in affluence, where did they find such players as George Van Haltran, Fred Lange, Nick Smith, Tom Powers, Danny Long, Pop Swett, Joe Purcell, Phil Knell, Ed Lorrigan, Jack Wilson, Fred Roberts, Bill Smalley, Harry O'Day, Pete Lohman, Frank Loughran, Bob McHale and Billy Cooney—many of whom are now the stars of the profession—but in the amateur ranks, and these are the players who brought "grist to the mill" of the California League. We would further ask, how often when the professional teams were crippled and short of players, who did they have to call upon to fill the gaping vacancies but the amateurs, and who, it must be said, rendered yeoman service. Among the latter might be mentioned Billy Farrell, Dave Creamer, John Thompson, Pete McGlade, Matt Stanley, Josh Reilly, Charlie Tillson, Vick Monet, Pokey Chase, Dave Levy, George Stulz, Frank Delmas, George Sharp and many others. Where is the team in the California League to-day that would have the presumption to compete with a nine made up as followe, every one of which has graduated from the amateur ranks within the past half decade: Knell, Purcell and Van Haltran, pitchers; Swett and Lohman, catchers; Powers first base; O'Day second base; Smalley third base; Nick Smith short stop; and Roberts, Long, McHale, Wilson, Dungan, Van Haltran and Purcell to draw from for an out field. Verily, the popular phrase "not in it" would never be more comprehensively exemplified than should one of the California League's boasted professional teams run against this formidable array of recently graduated amateur talent. With the indisputable fact in view that the California League is very largely indebted to the amateurs for the remarkable and unprecedented success it has attained, the statement accredited Messrs. Finn and Robinson is ill-timed, unjust and unwarranted. Instead of seeking to crush the life of the rising young blood, their hopes and aspirations, these managers should cheerfully render the amateur league, which certainly reflects much credit on the older organization, every encouragement it so warmly merits.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS,

SUMMARY.

The McLeod-Lewis wrestling match ended in a victory for the latter. The entriee for the Saoramento Athletic meeting will close with Walter Scott at the Olympic Club roome thie evening. The oarsmen and wheelmen are etill practising, and the cricketere are getting into great ehape for their coming matchee.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The athletee ehould not forget that the entries for the Sacramento meeting will close at 8 o'clock to-nigbt with Walter A. Scott, at the club rooms of tbe Olympic Club, on O'Farrell etreet. The entry liet should he unuenally large as nearly all the leading amateur athletes are in training. The track at Sacramento will hardly he in condition for record breaking, hut still fast time in neerly all the events will he made.

Frank L. Cooley has resigned hie position as Ineurance Clerk, and ie getting ready to go on the stage. He will oompete in the two mile run on September 17th.

John D. Garrieon ie not feeling in the best of condition, but he keepe up easy practice. He will poeitively run in the "quarter."

A. Cooke will go in the walk and two mile run. He is anxious to have another go from scratch in a three mile walk with Horace Coffin. For a week previous to the championehip games he was sick, and to thie fact he attributes his defeat hy Coffin in the three mile walk.

It is prohable that the U C will not be represented on September 17th. None of its men are in training, and the Olympians will have the half mile run all to themeelves.

Jarvie hae not been exercieing for some time, and may not go in the mile walk.

The boys are holding back their names, and it is hard to tell who will enter. The meeting, however, will be a succeeeful one, and will equal in every way the late championehip meeting.

There wae a lively crowd of athletes at the Olympic grounde on Sunday. Several impromptu racee were decided, aud those who took part were seemingly in the pink of condition.

The Alpine Club boys are thinking of engaging the professional runner, C. A. Eldridge, as a trainer. Mr. Eldridge wae at Central Park on Tueeday evening last and gave the eprinters some good tips about running.

George W. Jordan ie eadly miseed by the young Olympian novices, in whose interest he never ceased to work while he was Field Captain.

The celebrated wrestling match between the Olympic Club champion D. S. McLeod and the world renowned Evan Lewie, (the strangler) was decided at the Orpheum Theatre on Tuesday evening last. The house was crowded, aud the audience went awey fully satiefied with the evening's eport. Hiram Cook was chosen ee referee. Prof. Jim Corbett acted ae time keeper for the Olympian, while W. R. Vice acted in the same capacity for Lewis. The agreement read that Lewis was to throw McLeod three timee in one honr. The exhibition was a good one, and some pretty work was done by both men. Lewis, who scaled 195 lbs. in his wrestling coetume was exactly thirty pounds heavier than hie opponent. It took him twenty-five minutes to win the first fall. The secoud fall, however was won in lese time, Lewie downing his man in three minutes. When the conteetants went to work the third time, the excitement wae intense. The majority of the audience were foolish enough to think that McLeod could stand off Lewis, hnt their ideas were soon changed, for the Olympian was downed for the third and last time in eleven minutes, making the total time consumed forty-nine minutes, which gave Lewis eleven minutes to spare. He wae awarded the match and the stakee. In our issue of laet Saturday we predicted tbat Lewie would win the match in lees than forty minutes, which on the whole was not a very bad guess, considering that many of the sporting editors thought that McLeod would have an eaey task in keeping hie shoulders off the mat for sixty minutes. Having witneseed the match, we think thet Lewis. had he eo desired, could have won his money in half the time. McLeod deserves praise for hie good ehowing, and onteide of Lewis, he ie certainly the best wrestler on the Pacific Coaet to-day.

The Directore of the California Clnb are trying to get up a match between V. P. White and either McLeod or Tom McInerney. White is certainly a strongly built man, hnt with either of the two men mentioned, he would not "be in it".

Young Foster has been doing some good work at the hurdlee lately and the hurdle race at Sacramento should fall to him providing he ie not too heavily handicapped.

Charley Jellinek should win the 100-yard run with three yards. He practicee hard every day on Leidesdorff Street, between Pine and California streets and is the envy of the pool room runnere, many of whom claim to he ahle to do better tnan "even time."

J. M. Whelan, the well known amateur atblete, hae gone to Seattle to live. In hie day he wae a fine boxer, runner, wrestler and jumper. He was a member of the Golden Gate, Alpine, California and Olympic Clube.

Espinoea is rather reluctant about entering the two-mile run on Sept. 17th. He hae not fully recovered from the effects of the last crose country run yet.

Dan Cohen, of the Alameda Olympic Club has been doing some good work on the shell road in front of his home. He thinke with five yarde stert he would win one of the medals in the "hundred."

Young A. C. Snow will make a good showing in the long race ehould he make up his mind to enter. He and Vollmer, of the Alpine Club, would make a very intereeting race.

The croes country run of the Alpine and Alameda Clube that was to have taken plaee to-morrow hae been postponed until after the meet at Sacramento.

The P. C. A. A. A. should appoint an official handicapper instead of leaving the handicapping in the hande of a committee. Walter A, Scott hes always been a close observer of all performances done in the city and he would make a very reliable handicapper.

The boxing act between Ben Bogner and Prof. Van Court at the coming in-door exhibition of the Olympio Clnb will he worth seeing. These two gentlemen will, in a mild manner, show the ladies how "knock out" matches are conducted at the fighting clubs.

Ed. Steinway, the Financial Secretary of the Alpine Club, will ehortly purchase a bicycle. He intende photographing all the surrounding country eo that the hoye may be able to seleot a good course for their croee country rune.

Cook and Gafney, of the Alpine Club, will take a walk out to San Leandro from Alameda to-morrow to see Harry Caesidy at Sonther Farm. All three will jog a couple of miles on the Farm race track.

A young colored athlete recently arrived in town is eaid to have a record of 6:55 for a mile walk. He is a etrict amateur and will try to gain admieeion into one of the clubs.

DEATH OF H. M. JOHNSON.

H. M. Johneon the champion eprinter of the world died on Sunday laet at 109 Fifth Street, where he wae rooming. During his year's stay on the Pacific Coast, he was sick most of the time, and at the time of his death was thinking of moving back to St. Louie, where he was born. He was a writer of no mean ability and up to the time of his death edited tbe athletio department of a local weekly publication. There is no need to comment on hie running as his records are too well known. Poor Johnson was far above the level of the average profeesional rnnner and he never etooped to do a dirty trick. He was a whole eouled fellow and those with whom he aseociated while in San Francisco deeply regret hie loss. He wae 27 yeare old and leavee a wife and two children who are now residing at St. Louis. His body was shipped to hie native home on Tueeday afternoon at the expense of several of the Olympic Club athletes.

THE WHEELMEN.

The great road race.

Who will win firet place?

There will be ten prizes, all of which will be valuable and useful.

It has been decided that all wheelmen who intend entering must "pony" up a dollar.

Poage and Turner eay they will enter. They have been practicing hard for tbe past six weeke and will make a hig showing.

The San Jose people are not afraid of the Smythe Brothers. The Garden City eport lovers will hack them with their last cent.

Only three entries from the premier club hut they are good onee—Lincoln Hoagkins, Allan Marshall and George P. Wetmore.

John Brown, unattached, who rode at Napa on last Thanksgiving Day has been showing some good epeed of late and he will have a still better chance to prove hie endurance on the triangle, Sept. 8.

The oombined run of the Bay City Wheelmen, Alameda Bicycle Clnb and Oakland Bicycle Clnb took place laet Sunday. The two former clubs were the gueets of the latter. The boys turned out in great ehape over forty wheele heing in the proceeeion. The run was to San Leandro and thence to Lake Chabot. Severat of the "hurricane" boys rode over the triangle couree and the three connoiseeure, Ives of the Alameda Club, Hodgkins of the B C W and Morgan unattached, pronounced the road in excellent condition. They say that everything will be favorable for record breaking.

They had lunoh at Lake Chabot and returned home in good epirite having spent a very enjoyable day.

Several of the softer eex have taken to the wheel in Alameda. It ie eaid that one young lady over there can beat any of the hoye in a mile.

The Alameda riders are doing good work and should bring credit on their club.

Meeers. W. S. Doane and Weaver failed to materialize on Sunday and the run which the Captain of the B. C. W. had called in their honor was declared off.

The Bay City Wheelmen will ehortly be able to commence work on their new club houee. The building will he a handeome one when completed.

H. A. Matthews states that he ie done with long dietance riding. A couple of miles at the present time is snfficient to exerciee hie limhe.

The Oakland Bicycle Clnb now has fifteen members.

What's the matter with the American Bicycle Clnb? Is the membership limited? Why don't the boys make a showing?

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

A match was played on Satnrday noon between the Burnaby and Pacific Clubs. The former clnb won with a ecore of 78 against 52 made by the Pacifice. The new concrete pitchers were fully appreciated. Captain W. W. Rogers was nmpire for the Burnaby team and J. M. Day acted for the Pacific.

On Sunday the game was between the single and married membere of the Burnaby Clnb. The result was a walk-over for the benedicte. The married men won the toes and went on first. Newton did eome good batting, earning 38 runs. Hood made 27 and Robertson 25. The total score was 147.

For the single men Holt made 13. The married men won in one inning against two for the eingle men. Appended are the scoree:

In their second inning the single men made 90, which ran their ecore up to 124 againet 147 made by their rivals.

Up to the time of going to prees no games were arranged for to-day and to-morrow.

Winters of the Alamedae is a worker for his club and has lately hronght in some good members.

The Alameda Club is doing well. There are now eo many membere on the roll that another club may be formed in order to make the competition more keen.

D. C. Curtis of the Caledonian Houee, Alameda, has joined the Alemedas. He wae an excellent player in the old country and intende etarting in again.

Captain Rodgers of tbe S. P. eteamer Encinel has aleo joined the Alamedas. He has retired from active play but ie always willing to umpire for his clnb.

It ie said that the Alpine Club ie unable to get up a full team, and in coneequence Casidy, Cook and Gafney are thinking of joining the Alamedas. They will still remain membere of the Alpine Club.

The pitohere at the West End grounde, Alemeda, are now in good order. The grounds have lately been put in good order, and the players have no longer cauee to growl about losing their balls in the weeds.

IN THE SURF.

Dan Cohen, of Alameda, is almoet a daily visitor at the Terrace Bathe. He is a very fast swimmer and can come near the record for a hundred yards.

The Terrace Bathe were crowded on Sunday and all through the week. Many pereons vieited the baths at night during the week and enjoyed a moonlight dip. Mr. Fisher, the proprietor, says he will make extensive improvemente next year.

Harbor View Bathe are still doing a big business. Mr. Herman ie going to float eome more rafts.

The vieitors are just beginning to foreake Santa Cruz.

The Native Sone race at Alameda will be an exciting affair. There is bound to be a large number of entries.

AT THE OARS.

The Lurline Club will not be repreeented in the four-oared Shell race on Admiseion Day. The crew has not heen able to practice together.

Two of the Alpine crew are sick, and that club will not be represented at the regatta.

Great interest is still being manifeeted in the coming regatta of the N. S. G. W. Almoet every oarsman of any fame ie thinking about entering, and a jolly day's sport will surely he enjoyed.

The Ariel crew is bound to get away with the barge race. The South End crew will give them a hard rub though.

The following are the handicaps framed for the professional single scull race: Henry Peterson, scratch; Henry Hencemann, ecratch; Dennis Griffin, 35 seconds; W. H. Growney, 45 eeconds; Van Guelpen, 1 minute. There are othere who may yet enter, and they will he handicapped according to their recorde.

The Amateur eingle scull will probably bring out John Ellis of the Pioneer, Flynn of the Union Boating Club of Stockton, Tunell and Morehead of the Ariels and M. Stokee.

Tbe course will be from Channel Sbeet to the Union Iron Works, and is a very good one.

Henry Tank, of the Ariel Club, ie ill and was not able to row with the Amateur crew.

The Alemeda Club will make a firet clase showing, ae moet of the members have lately been practicing hard on San Antonia Creek.

Charley Long hae been unable to train owing to press of bneinese. It is likely that he will never appear in a race again, but occasionally he will take a pleasnre trip.

The eighteenth annual regatta of the National Aeeociation of Amateur Oarsmen of America was held at Lake Quineigamond, Worceeter, Mass., Augnst 13th, 14th. The attendance on both daye was very small despite the fact that the competitione were excelleut.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

Athletic clubs are heing formed all over the State. Next year it is safe to predict that every town of any importance will have ite club, and P. C A. A. A. will then be indeed a great organization. Say for inetance that there were twenty clube in the Association, then once a year a grand tournament conld he held at which all the neighboring towns would be represented. Then athletice would surely hoom and the local amateure would find it to their interest to train properly before competing,

The Alpine Amateur Athletic Club held its firet meeting at its new club rooms, Central Park, corner 8th and Market etreete, last Sunday afternoon. In the absence of Preeident H. O. Farrell who wae unavoidably kept away, A. M. King occupied the chair. There wae a large attendance. Several important matters were discuseed, and the Treasurer reported that the club was in a very prosperous condition. Several new membors were proposed for membership. The rooms are open both day and night, and the members are allowed the free use of the park to train in. The field captain, John D. Garrieon, reported tbat several of the members were going to Sacramento on September, 6th to take part in the games which will be given by the State Fair Directors on the following day.

It was proven at the exhibition of the California Clnb, which was held on Monday evening laet, that unless the "regulation" prize fights are allowed to take place again, the oluh membere will desert the club.

The Olympic Club membere are etill buey making preparatione for their coming exhibition, which will be held in the Grand Opera House. The box office will he opened for the eale of seate on Monday.

The following circular has just been issued by the Secretary of the Olympic Club:

Please take notice tbat tickets are now ready at tbe office of tbe club for tbe Annual Exbibitton, at the Grand Opera House, on September 3d, 1890.

Every effort bas been taken to make tbis entertatnment excel all exbibitions of tbe past. Special features will be introduced in connectton with a pleasing and entertatning programme, tn wbtch tbe best talent of tbe Club and Juvenile Class will partictpate.

To make this a financial success, you are requested, as a member of tbis organtzation, to interest yourself in disposing of tickets.

Tickets may be exchanged after 9 A. M., September 1st, at Sherman & Clay's, for reserved seats without extra charge.

Respectfully, W. E. Holloway, Secretary.

Each member of the O. A. C. has received a liet of the names nominated by the nominating committee, and which are as follows:

The Olympic Club annual election, regular ticket, for Board of Directore: Wm. Greer Harrison. E. A. Rix, W. E. Holloway, Henry B. Rnee, E. A. Kolb, W. A. Scott, A. C. Foreyth, M. H. Weed, J. H. Gilhuly, John Elliott, A. J. Treat.

The following accompanied each liet:

Enclosed please find regular ticket for the election of Board of Directors for the ensuing year. The election will take place September 1st. 1890. The polls will he open from 2 P. M. to 9 P. M.

Ae a full vote ie desired, yon are requested to attend on that day and oast yonr hallot.

Richard T. Carroll.

A kind husband and an indulgent father, a faithful friend, an intense business man, a public spirited citizen, passed from human ken on Thursday afternoon last when Richard T. Carroll was assassinated at his office in this city. Just in his prime, already master of his future, spurred by consciousness of power to reach toward supermacy, the world must have seemed a pleasant place to him.

The White Sale.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Killip & Co., live stock auctioneers, who announce that they will sell all of the high bred trotting horses and thoroughbred Holstein Friesian cattle owned by J. H. White, Esq., of Lakeville Stock Farm, Sonoma County. Mr. White's business necessitates frequent absences from the farm, so much so in fact that he has finally determined to dispose of all his first class stock irrespective of what prices they may bring, so he may enabled to give more time to his outside business. Those who know Mr. White will regret exceedingly that he is going to sell off his stock, as for many years he has been a warm and consistent supporter of the local fairs, and is at present the President of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. It is to be hoped that he will still have time to devote to the Association, for which he has done so much.

The catalogues issued by the auctioneers show that there are very many valuable brood mares and fillies which are fit to grace any of the large breeding establishments of the State. In addition to the forty-eight trotters offered for sale, there are also one-hundred and five Holstein cattle to be sold. There are many of these that are prize winners and a great many of them were imported from Holland by Mr. White.

All of this stock will be sold at public auction on Thursday and Friday, September 4th and 5th at the Railroad Stables, corner of Steiner and Turk streets, San Francisco, and those who attend will beyond a doubt be able to pick up many bargains.

The Three Year Olds.

An Eastern contemporary published a table of three-year-olds that have beaten 2:30 and suggests to the breeders of the United States that a study of the table will be of great interest. The table is given below with alterations and additions, as in its original form there were several mistakes. There can be no doubt but what this table is of immense interest to all who are engaged at present in developing young trotters and pacers, for it proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that California is the greatest horse breeding State in the Union. While we may have overlooked one or more of the three year olds in the hurry of compilation, still, we would much rather that the blame, if any, rest with the "Horse and Stable" published in Boston, from which was clipped the table as originally printed, and simply desire to call the attention of all those interested in the trotting horse who reside east of the Rocky Mountains to the startling fact which is presented, that of the sixteen names given, ten of them or almost two-thirds, were bred and raised in the Golden State. There can be no question of doubt but what the successes attained by the California stables which are at present in the East have drawn world-wide attention to California, and that there will be during the winter within the borders of our State, more foreign buyers than have ever appeared in any former year. Sunol, Palo Alto. Margaret S, Cricket, Adonis, Prince Warwick, Navidad and the remainder of the California representatives have each and all been a walking advertisement as to what this State can produce in the way of speed.

It is little more than two weeks ago that the papers of the East were teeming with the information that the thoroughbred blood was a dire and dismal failure because Jack had beaten Palo Alto so very easily. Those who wrote in that strain probably did not consider that the stallion had made quite a heavy season in the stud and had not recuperated from the effects thereof when he was asked to meet the mighty Jack in battle royal. There were many California horsemen who seriously chided both Hickok and Marvin for allowing the first match to come off as early as it did, surmising what the result would be, but now that more time has elapsed and Palo Alto is rapidly coming to himself again, we do not hear the same line of argument in the Eastern papers of the current week, now that Palo Alto has snatched victory twice from the redoubtable Chicago champion; it makes no difference whether the thoroughbred in the trotter is a good thing or not, for as long as the world stands, there will be many men of many minds; yet still the prospective purchasers which we confidently predict will be here during the coming winter will also be of many minds, and there will be those who want the thoroughbred close up; and those who want it far removed.

It will only be a few weeks now until all of the California stables racing in the East will be back once more, so that the residents of this State may be able to see for themselves whether there has been improvement or otherwise in their representatives during the thousands of miles traveled since they left here only a few months ago. That they should be received with popular favor and will be, goes without saying, for indeed we all feel proud of those who have heralded the fame of this great breeding State to those in the far East who are interested in the same business.

Referring once more to the table which is given below, it may be said that it was a few years since, that 2:30 for a three-year-old was considered a most marvelous feat, the first who achieved that result being Lady Stout, who in 1874 trotted in 2:29. Sixteen years only has elapsed since then, and now we have sixteen three-year-olds, pacers and trotters, which have accomplished a mile inside of 2:20, and it does not seem very much of a prediction to prophesy that several will be added to the list before the close of the present season. By the following, our readers will see how many of the precocious youngsters can claim California for their nativity.

A Comparative Time Test

The Turf, Field and Farm, a late issue institutes a comparison between American and Australian horses (gallopers, of course), in which the American time gets the best of it at all distances and the weights are carefully suppressed. In the last Melbourne Cup Carbine (by Musket—imp Mersey by Knowsley) carried 140 pounds and ran Bravo to a head in 3:32½. Bravo was a six-year-old and carried 119 lbs., while Carbine was two years his junior. We append the Turf's comparisons and comments:

Distance.	America.	Australia.
¼ mile	Geraldine, :45	Sexlant, :47¾
5 furlongs	Britannic, :59	Forester, 1:01
6 furlongs	Fides, 1:10½	Volcano, 1:14
7 furlongs	Belle B, 1:23½	Carbine, 1:27¾
1 mile	Raveloe, 1:39¼	Boolka, 1:40
1¼ miles	Teuton, 1:52½	Cerise and Blue, 1:55½
1½ miles	Banquet, 2.04½	Abercorn, 2:07½
1½ miles	Firenzi, 2:33	Prince Imperial, 2:35½
1¾ miles	Glideha, 3:01	Ensign, 3:04
2 miles	Ten Broeck, 3:27½	Dunlop, 3:28½
3 miles	Drake Carter, 5:24	Trident, 5:25½

Dunlop's two mile time was made for the Melbourne Cup in 1887, which Mentor won in 1888 in 3:30¾ and Bravo last year in 3:32½, the latter carrying 119 pounds. The Victoria Derby, for three-year-olds at a mile and a half, has been established since 1860, and the best time in which it has been run was in 1883 when Martini Henry won in 2:39, which was equalled in 1886 by Trident, who won the A. J. C. Derby the same year in 2:38, the best recorded for that event.

Raveloe is a three-year-old and carried 107 pounds with (presumably) a flying start. Boolka, of the same age, did his mile from a slow walking start and carried 115 pounds to a victory in 1:40. He is bred in the male line of Newminster and is inbred to Touchstone. Kingfish won the Hawkesbury Guineas of 1886, carrying 118 lbs., so his performance is possibly the better of the two, although the Windsor track is always regarded as faster than either Flemington or Randwick.

Now as to two-mile performances. Ten Broeck, five-years-old, carried 110 pounds and had no competitor to take the track from him. Hence it is supposable that he ran two miles, no more and no less. On the other hand Dunlop was five years old and carried 115 pounds in a field of 28 starters. For the first half mile he was absolutely last. At the end of the mile the Australian Peer and Meteor had made the pace so hot that Saunders had actually to whip Dunlop, who was a slow beginner, to make him keep up with the procession. At the end of a mile and a half the Peer and Meteor fell back beaten, and Mr. Gardiner's great mare Silvermine got in front. Dunlop was now in the sixth place, but he could stay like a mother-in-law; and Tom Saunders, dashing in the spurs mercilessly and flogging Dunlop like a runaway negro, won by a good length in 3:28½. Considering the size of the field, it seems to us that Dunlop not only carried five pounds more weight than Ten Broeck, at the same age, but was compelled to run at least thirty yards further to win a race at the same nominal distance. In America one of the best two-mile performances is that of Miss Woodford in her race with Drake Carter and Modesty at Sheepshead Bay in 1884. She barried 107½ pounds and did the two heats in 3:33—3:31¼. McWhirter, a three-year-old, with 115 pounds up, did two miles in 3:30, after getting off next to last in a field of nine. We append a table of the performances in 3:32 or better, for the Melbourne Cup, together with the size of winner and the weights carried in the race.

In addition to the above, Carbine, 4 years, 126lbs., beat Melos and Abercorn for the Sydney Gold Cup of 1889 in 3:31. We are disposed to regard this performance as better than Malua's victory over Commotion (6yrs, 139lbs) at Melbourne, as 3:30 has never been made at either of the Sydney courses with any weight whatever. In this connection Darebin's Sydney Cup should not be overlooked. He carried 134 pounds and won in 3:33½ conceding lumps of weight to every horse in the race. His son, Australian Peer carried 118lbs. at 3 years old, and won the Sydney Cup of 1888 in 3:32½. All these are red letter performances, in addition to which Goldsbrough, 4 years, 128lbs., beat Kingsborough and Kingfisher for the Metropolitan in 3:32¾; and Sir Modred won the same race on a sloppy track in 3:34½ with 122lbs., while Abercorn, 5 years, 133 lbs., romped home in front of Arsenal and Wycombe in 3:35¼, and could have won by seventy-five yards if Tom Hales had so desired.

This is not written in any captious or ill-natured spirit toward that always courteous and dignified paper, the Turf, Field and Farm, which has just crossed the 25th meridian of its newspaporial longitude and entered upon its second quarter century under the most flattering auspices. Its veteran editor, Col. Sanders D. Bruce, has left an enduring monument in the shape of his "Stud Book" in the hearts of American turfmen, and the thick, snowy locks above his pleasant face are no thicker than the honors which surround his manhood's thrice-told years.

CHICO RACES.

FIRST DAY, AUG. 26, 1890.

First day of the races. The track was in fine shape and looked like a skating rink and fast time is expected. The attendance although not large was a good betting one. The judges were Messrs. Green, Hendricks and Shippee. Timers, Messrs. Merrill, Hutchins and Cochran.

The first race of the day was the district two year old race. The starters were Wayland W. who sold favorite at $20. Lucy B. and Mamie Griffin who sold as a field for $10.

Mamie at once took the lead, Wayland breaking badly on the first turn as did Lucy, and when the head of the stretch was reached by Mamie both were a distance out, but they improved their positions coming home, Mamie Griffin winning the heat, Wayland W. and Lucy B. just inside the flag. Time, 2:39.

Second heat. Pools sold, field $20, Wayland $10.. They got away at the third score. Wayland W. at once took the lead and opened a gap of twenty lengths and was a distance in the lead, at the head of the stretch Wayland W. came on and distanced his two competitors winning the first and third monies. Time, 2:34¾.

The second race of the day was the 3 minute trot, the entries being Vic H, Frank M, Queen of the West, Billy Doty, and E. C. Peart: Vic H and E. C. Peart were drawn before the first heat. Pools sold Frank M $20, Field $5. In the mutuals Frank M was barred and the Queen sold favorite. At the second score they got the word. Frank M took a good lead and was never headed winning by 5 lengths, Doty 2d. Time 2:44½, which was only a jog for Frank M. Mutuals paid $9 50.

Second heat.—Pools sold with Frank M barred, Queen of the West $10, Billy Doty $5. Three scores and the bell tapped; Frank M at once took the lead closely attended down the back stretch by the Queen, Doty 3d. Near the half mile pole Frank M broke and both Doty and Queen passed him; on the upper turn Doty out trotted the Queen and took command, Frank M who had torn his quarter still on a break. He was never able to get near the leader and just saved his distance. Doty winning by 5 lengths from the Queen. Time, 2:39½. Mutuals paid $14.25.

Third heat.—Pools. Frank M although lame, still barred; Doty sold for $10, the Queen $5

Frank M was first around the turn and at the one quarter in 35¾ seconds, was in the lead by 8 lengths, Doty 2d. He kept increasing his lead and in the stretch was 12 lengths to the good. Doty came fast and near the wire Frank M broke, running past the judges stand half a length ahead of Doty. Doty was awarded the heat, Frank M second, Queen 3d. Time, 2:39¼. Mutuals with Frank M barred, paid $9 25.

Fourth heat.—No betting. They got the word on the 2d score, Frank M at once took the lead with Doty 2nd, the Queen a distance out at the half. Frank M won the heat in a jog, Doty eight lengths back, Queen of the West distanced. Time, 2:35.

Fifth heat—No betting. At the second attempt they got the word, around the turn Frank opened a long gap and at the head of the stretch Doty was a distance out but in the stretch Frank M. held up and Doty got inside the flag, Frank M. winning heat and race. Time, 2:39.

The third race brought out a field of six gallopers for the three-quarter mile and repeat contest. Those to face the starter were Mohawk, Lucky Dan, Wild Robin, Rosebng, Oakdale and Leatherwood. Oakdale sold favorite at 20 to 10 for Rosebng and 5 for the field. Leatherwood broke away in the lead followed by Oakdale, Rosebug third. They ran down the backstretch with Leatherwood leading. Near the one-half mile post Rosebug moved up to the leader and around the turn was at his saddle skirts, but in the stretch Leatherwood drew away and won by two lengths, Rosebug second, Oakdale third; the rest bunched three lengths away. Time, 1:17.

Second heat—Pools: Field $10, Rosebng $11, Oakdale $5. After fourteen breakaways, Leatherwood got off in front, Oakdale left standing at the post. Dennison on Mohawk, and Leonard on Lucky Dan, thinking it was not a start pulled up, but soon "set away" again. Leatherwood and Rosebug were so far in the lead that the rest were not in it, Leatherwood winning by a length, Rosebug second, Lucky Dan third, Wild Robin fourth, and Mohawk fifth. Time, 1:17. Madden, the rider of Oakdale, was fined $25 for conduct unbecoming a well behaved jockey, and Mr. Green announced that if he again hit a jockey across the face with his bat he would be suspended for a year.

SECOND DAY.

The attendance was larger than yesterday, and the track in splendid condition. The first race on the card was the district three-year-old class, trotting. Three were entered, but only two started, Electro Jr. being drawn.

First heat—Pools sold: Actor $10, Silver King $5, and distance was waived. They got the word at the second score. Actor at once shot in front, but on the turn broke badly, and King led to the quarter by half a length. Near the half-mile pole Actor broke again, and Silver King opened a gap of six lengths. Actor broke again in the stretch, and Silver King won in a jog. Time, 2:48.

Second heat—Pools: Actor, although he had been beaten the first heat, still sold favorite at $10 to $6 and $7 for Silver King. As in the previous heat, Actor took the pole soon after getting away, but on the turn broke; Silver King held his lead, but down the stretch broke, and Actor was on even terms, with him twenty yards from the wire, still Silver King won the head by a neck. Time, 2:43¼.

Third heat—Pools: Actor $5, Silver King $10. The judges thought it best to change the driver of Actor, and McManus was substituted for Ober. Silver King led around the turn, and at the quarter was half a length to the good; at the half he led by two lengths; on the upper turn King broke, but soon caught, and in the stretch broke again, whereupon Actor took the lead, but near the stand he broke badly, and McManus was unable to settle him, Silver King winning by a length. Time, 2:43.

The second event on the card was a pacing race for horses without records. The starters were C. W. G., Minnie K., Lota, Lady Tolman and Tom Norton. Pools sold: C. W. G. $20, Tom Norton $14, Field $18.

First heat—Lota went away with the lead after four scores, and led by four lengths when well into the homestretch where she broke and C. W. G. who was second passed her, the rest being strung out. C. W. G. won the heat by two lengths from Lota, Minnie K., Lady Tolman and Tom Norton behind the flag. Time, 2:26½.

Second heat—Pools sold C. W. G. $10, Lota $5. C. W. G. led to the quarter but down the backstretch a blanket would have covered them both. On the upper turn C. W. G. drew away but in the stretch Lota got on even terms again making a gallant fight for the heat. However, she broke and C. W. G. won the heat by a length. Time, 2:27.

Third heat—No pools were sold. At the first score the word was given Lota leading around the turn and was first at the half by fourth lengths. C. W. G. closed up some of the gap on the turn but Lota had speed left and won the heat by two lengths. Time, 2:29.

Fourth heat—Pools, C. W. G. $10, Lota $5. This was a very pretty heat They paced head and head well into the stretch where C. W. G. forged ahead and won heat and race. Time, 2:31.

Between the 3d and 4th heats of the pacing race the 2:30 class was called. Billy C. was drawn so only Maud H. and Frank B started. Pools sold Maud H $10, Frank B $5. Maud led well into the stretch where Frank B came up but soon broke, Maud H winning by 2 lengths. Time 2:31.

Second heat.—Maud went off slow, and Frank B led at the quarter. On the back stretch Frank B broke and at the half Maud led by four lengths. Frank was not able to overtake Maud H who won the heat in 2:31¼ by six lengths.

Third heat—No pools were sold. Frank B. broke just after the bell tapped, and Maud H. opened a gap of a dozen lengths, and was never headed, winning easily in 2:37. Frank B. ran more than half the distance, acting very badly.

Names Claimed.

I herewith claim the following names:

RIGOLETTO, for bay colt, small star, foaled May 6, 1890, sired by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; 1st dam Amy Fay by Anteeo, 2:16¼; 2d dam by Alexander, 2:31½; 3d dam Alborack by Naubuc (full brother to Thomas Jefferson, 2:23); 4th dam Sacramento Maid, 2:38.

RELONDA, for bay colt, star and one hind foot white, foaled June 19, 1890, sired by Sidney, 2:19¾; 1st dam Alborack by Naubuc; 2d dam Sacramento Maid, 2:38.

LEE, for black colt, star and hind ankles white, sired by Con Brio (son of Antevolo, 2:19½); 1st dam Almira by Admiral, sire of Sister, 2:19¾; 2d dam by Gen. Taylor.

OSCAR MANSFELDT, Oakland.

Grim's Gossip.

Tenny attempted to beat the record time at a mile but failed.

What a great trot it would make between Sister V, Beauty Mc, Silas Skinner and Vic H. Lucky indeed the man who could guess the winner.

The Kentucky Advocate says: Sons of Electioneer are the kind that are needed in Kentucky, and are earning large sums in the stud.

Harry Stackpole, the well known dining room proprietor of Lathrop, was in Chicago all of last week witnessing the flights of speed made by the California representatives at that point. Harry will not return for some time.

Within a very few weeks Mr. Ayers of the San Miguel Stock Farm will ship back to Lexington, Kentucky, a carload of his well known trotting stock to be disposed of at public auction at the forthcoming sale by Woodward & Co.

Mr. Gilbert Tompkins, of the Souther Farm, has been rusticating at Lake Tahoe for several weeks but has returned to see that all his entries are in readiness for hard contests, when the time for the Breeders meeting comes around.

Simmocolon has again struck a winning streak. At Hartford on Tuesday last, the game young stallion proved fast enough to defeat the sensational performer Leopard Rose. The track was exceedingly heavy, the best time made being 2:21½.

I would call the attention of our readers this week to the card of Dr. H. W. Hoagland, located in Oakland, who will pursue his profession of veterinary dentist. The doctor comes highly recommended as a first class artist in his business.

Mr. Jas. Kitson of Chestnut Hill, Pa has sold to Thos. Swan of Baltimore, the chestnut mare, Santa Barbara, three years old by Milner, dam Santa Rosa by Wheatley. Santa Barbara has been stinted to Dry Monopole and is believed to be with foal.

A prominent breeder has proposed to take Axtell's complete book for 1891 at $1,000 per mare. The proposition will not be accepted from the fact that the book is now over half full and to accept would necessitate the violation of contract with those already booked.

Sometime ago Mr. Ross, who took Oro from this State, sold him to Ed. Corrigan at Chicago, after winning for Mr. Corrigan several races he has again disposed of the bay horse selling him to J. J McCafferty, the owner of Burch. Oro is by Norfolk, dam Golden Gate by Leamington.

Guy Wilkes had the honor last week of having two performers enter the list. At Chicago, Atlanta Wilkes, whose dam is Atlanta, full sister to Beautiful Bells, made a record of 2:29¼, while at Napa, Ruper, a pacer, won the 2nd, 3rd and 4th heats in a race. Best time being 2:19½.

Jim Corcoran, the well known trainer and driver, has left Lakeport and taken charge of Mr. Crabb's breeding farm near St. Helena. There has lately been finished on the place a first class half mile track, so that Corcoran will have ample opportunity to develope the speed of many of Mr. Crabb's horses.

An Eastern contemporary says that the Californians who are at present on the Eastern circuits, have not very much love for each other, and do not hesitate to call attention to the weak spots in their neighbor's stable, and furthermore says that when it comes to a race, they fight each other from the word go.

R Havey, who is handling the Palo Alto horses on the California circuit, took his entire string from Napa to Oakland direct as the two which he had entered at Petaluma were taken sick, one of them rather seriously so. I am glad to see that a decided improvement is reported in both of the ailing horses.

Again we are under obligations to Messrs. Goodwin Bros. of 241 Broadway, New York, for No. 9 of their Official Turf Guide. It is much increased in size and is replete with useful and valuable information necessary to all who frequent the race track or who occasionally put in "a bit" on their favorite horse.

P. M. West and Co's. well-known race mare Bonita is dead. Bonita was bred by "Lucky" Baldwin, and was by Grinstead —Maggie Emerson. Ridden by Stoval she was a frequent winner at Washington Park. Of uncertain temperament she was very fast, and when in a winning mood was hard to beat by any but a high class racer.

The driving of Belle Hamlin and Justina to wagon in 2:16¼ by Mr. J. C. Hamlin at Poughkeepsie last week, was an event without equal in breeding experience. Mr. Hamlin bred and raised the mares, also their dams and sires. He had not driven them together before in three years with the exception of once this summer at Buffalo. To make the feat more remarkable, Mr. Hamlin is 72 years of age.

It is very rarely that a prettier sight can be seen than that which was noticeable on several days last week at the Napa meeting. The grand stand on more occasions than one was literally filled, fully ninety per cent of the spectators being ladies. The many variegated colors presented a scene of almost kaleidoscopic beauty, and the ladies were just as enthusiastic and fully as liberal with their applause as those of the sterner sex.

Col. Irvin Ayres has been exceedingly unfortunate with Balkan, the fast son of Mambrino Wilkes. Last year it was no secret that he could easily go a mile in 2:22 but as in all of his races he had to strike such exceedingly fast ones as Hazel Wilkes and Direct, there was but little chance for him to lower his record. Six weeks ago he could easily show 2:20 but owing to a bruise received while in transit to San Jose, erysipelas has set in in the horse's knee and it may be sometime before he is able to make a public appearance again.

The Mohawk family of trotters is coming to the front this year in a manner that should thoroughly well please those who are interested in that blood Alfred S. with his record of 2.16¼ is a grandson of old Mohawk while Kano F. is by Little Moak, a son of Mohawk Jr As both of these horses have been large winners in the Eastern circuit this year, our old friend, Geo. S. Hall, who has owned both Mohawk and Mohawk Jr., will undoubtedly be exceedingly well pleased.

On Thursday afternoon the race going public of America was electrified by the news which was telegraphed from one end of the country to the other that the mighty Salvator had run a full mile in the magnificent time of 1:35½, making a record which will undoubtedly stand for many years to come. On the same afternoon Baldwin's Sinaloa II also made a remarkable performance, running a mile and a quarter with 117 lbs. up in 2:04. The record now stands to the credit of Banquet 2:03¾, but he only carried 108 lbs, making Sinaloa's feat much the better of the two.

It is very remarkable how very little the Eastern sporting papers have to say about Palo Alto and Sunol now that they are showing up so very fast. When Jack beat Palo Alto no one wanted thoroughbred in the trotter, but since he has defeated the same horse twice the flag of Electioneer is flying very high again. On next Thursday of Philadelphia, Sunol will be started for the purpose of trying to lower the record of Maud S., and on the same afternoon a handsome bonus has been offered if the son of Electioneer can reduce Axtell's stallion record of 2:12. Here's hoping that both may be able to accomplish their tasks.

The American Sportsman says that Patsy Duffy, the once famous jockey, has gone East to redeem himself by riding for Senator Hearst in the Futurity Stakes at Sheepshead Bay in September. Duffy went to pieces in St. Louis this Summer by going on a prolonged spree. He was ruled off the St. Louis track by President Green, and Mr. Haggin threatened to withdraw his horses if the order was executed. Duffy's marvelous success proved too much for him, but he will now endeavor to reform. In connection with the above it will not be out of place to say that the Chicago papers say that Patsey is in that city on a spree.

Last Wednesday afternoon Frank A. Ehret of New York City purchased from Mr. Theo. Winters his entire stable of horses in training there, with the exception of El Rio Rey, which the veteran California turfman will keep for stud service. Mr. Ehret is a very wealthy brewer of New York City who has lately become interested in thoroughbreds, and he has also secured as his trainer Matt Allen, lately in the employ of Senator Hearst. Among the horses sold were Rey del Rey, Joe Courtney, San Juan, Judge Post and Noretta. The price paid for the entire stable was $85,000.

Messrs. Killip & Co. advertise this week that they are authorized to offer at private sale the trotting stallion Brocken, five years old, by A. W. Richmond, dam Maid of the Mist by Norfolk; 2d dam Eva Coombe by Billy Cheatham; 3d dam Ruby by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe. This fine young horse is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed, although he can show a 40 gait even now with comparative ease. To those of our readers who may want good, stout blood, this pedigree cannot be excelled. For further information, apply at 22 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

The 2:24 race at Napa proved somewhat of a sensation in regard to the time made. On the night before the race the betting in the pool rooms had been very heavy, for while it was generally conceded that on public form Sister V. should win, still it was an open secret that Wanda was known to be very fast. The latter mare had hardly work enough to enable her to go three hard bruising heats, but in the first heat of the race referred to she drove out the winner in 2:18½. Wanda being timed separately in 2:19½. With a few weeks more work the daughter of Eros should prove a dangerous competitor in her class.

During the week the Breeder and Sportsman office was paid a pleasant visit by J. M. Bassford, Sr., who is always full of information in reference to the old time horses of California. He it was who first brought California Abdallah to this State, paying for him as a three year old what was then considered an enormous amount, and at various times during the last thirty-five years Mr. Bassford has owned many good ones. Although approaching the allotted time of man on earth, he is still as eager to witness a good race as he ever was, and it is very few of the young turfmen who can pick out a good horse any better than can old Mr. Bassford.

Mr. Holly of Vallejo has in Pink 2:23½ a trotter that he fancies has just a trifle more endurance and stamina than any other trotter in the state. While not having seen and conversed with him myself, still the rumor was current at Napa on Saturday last that he would back her for a race of ten miles against any trotter in the State for $2 500 to $5,000. The day has been, and that not so very long ago, when a proposition of this kind would have been snapped up in a minute, but the old long-distance horses have now become things of the past, and it is doubtful, even if the rumor is true, whether Mr. Holly will be able to make such a match.

For many years Wesley P Balch of Boston, Mass. has been in the habit of annually getting up a stallion race for large purses It is no secret that Mr. Balch has made these annual contests extremely profitable to himself and it was at the great stallion race of 1889 where the disgraceful scandal was started in reference to the horses Nelson and Alcryon. This year a $10,000 purse was offered and but five entries were made, so Mr. Balch has ordered the race off, probably considering that the $10,000 or $12 000 that would have been taken in at the gate was not enough to warrant him in carrying on the scheme. I wonder if the fiasco of last year had anything to do with the small number of entries.

With Navidad winning at Chicago, and Ladywell at Napa last week, Electioneer once more heads the list of winning sires for the present season, he having seven who have entered the 2:30 list this year, while Nutwood follows as a close second with six of his sons and daughters. Speaking of Electioneer it may not be out of place to mention the fact that a rumor was circulated last week that the premier stallion of Palo Alto was dying; such however, I am pleased to state was not a fact, and Mr. Lathrop informs me that he is in better condition than he has been for a long time. He is very playful and gives every reason to believe that his days are not yet numbered at Senator Stanford's great breeding establishment.

The bears which form a prominent feature in one of the new advertisements in this issue is not intended for the Native Sons only, but for all readers of the Breeder and Sportsman who may desire to secure a new suit of clothes cut in the very latest style and made up in a manner which cannot be excelled by any firm in the country. Chas. Lyons, the London tailor, has made a reputation for himself simply on the merits of the goods he sells, and as his prices are extremely reasonable, we can readily imagine that he gets an ample share of trade. Especially to our interior friends would we call attention to Mr. Lyons' advertisement as we know he can and will give satisfaction to those who will correspond with him.

John McKerron has been known for many years to be the largest manufacturer of trotting horse boots in the world. Commencing a few years ago it was but a short time until the excellence of his work caused him so much custom that he had to increase the size of his manufactory and put on additional hands, several times has he had to increase owing to the enormous business, until finally he has had to move from the quarters where he has been located for so long. During the past few days everything at the old place has been topsy-turvy owing to the removal, Mr. McKerron having taken the commodious buildings at 203 and 205 Mason St. Those who may have business relations with Mr. McKerron should bear the new address in mind. Lack of space prevents us this week from giving a full description of the new premises.

For the next two weeks there will be thousands upon thousands of strangers visit San Francisco to witness the attractions that will be offered by the Native Sons during the time that will be given over to these young Californians. Those having an hour or two to spare should not forget to visit the panorama of the Battle of Gettysburg which has been so highly successful during the past few months. As a work of art, nothing approaching it has ever been presented to the public, while for realism, one could almost imagine themselves amid the terrors of war and actually facing an enemy. In addition to the panorama itself there is a museum attached thereto in conjunction with a first-class stereoptican, the pictures from which are highly instructive and edifying. The panorama building is situated on the corner of 10th and Market streets and will amply repay a visit.

While at Napa last week I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Baker of the firm of Baker & Ross of Santa Rosa, who are the patentees of the very best harrow that has ever been made. It has sloping, chisel shaped teeth held to a frame by a strip of iron, with a bolt at each tooth, so that if it became necessary the teeth could be easily adjusted. It runs on three wheels, and has a lever with which to raise and lower it while in motion, and I am satisfied that a track can be made as uniform as though it had been gone over with a garden rake. Jno. A. Goldsmith, Samuel Gamble, I. De Turk, and the Directors of the Napa, Petaluma and Oakland tracks all join in recommending it to those who may need a harrow of this sort. If there be any of our readers who are directly interested in tracks it will amply repay them to correspond with the patentees, as we feel assured that it will give perfect satisfaction and is made better than any other harrow now in use,

During the meeting at Napa a gentleman of this city had an entry in one of the trotting races there. Before the race began the judges were requested to allow Carbon to be withdrawn, but they refused as the horse did not show any signs of lameness. The driver of the horse was ordered to go on for one heat, and if at the expiration of that time he showed any lameness the judges agree to allow his withdrawal. In the first heat Carbon was distanced, but the owner came up into the stand and requested the judges not to announce that his horse was distanced as he wished to start him again. The request was granted, and Carbon started for the second heat, but in the third was again distanced, and the horse was sent to the stable. On Saturday while the racing was going on, a written communication was sent by the owner of Carbon to the Secretary of the Napa Association stating that as his horse had been seriously injured by starting in the race, that he would hold the judges personally responsible for the value of the animal. What the outcome will be is not yet known.

The Horse and Stable says: "A smart man who wrote an account of the Jack—Palo Alto race at Detroit saw with his eagle eye clean through it. The aforesaid eagle eye is probably as powerful as the microscopes of 'hetero power' with which Sammy Weller imagined he might 'see through two flights of stairs and a deal door.' As seen by this remarkable eye, Marvin dropped the first heat to make betting, and then that after winning the second heat, the pool-box wanted another twist, and consequently Marvin 'yanked' Palo Alto in the third heat, and tried to win the fourth, but couldn't. To all of which may it be said in the vulgar vernacular, 'Rats'. There never was a sqnarer, more desperately fought out race on the American turf than the Jack—Palo Alto match, and if Marvin made an error it was in being over anxious and rushing Palo Alto around the turns. Palo Alto's unsteadiness beat him." It is a great pity that there is a certain class of reporters that see a job in every race. There is no person possessed of even common, ordinary sense that could for an instant believe that Mr. Marvin would be guilty of any wrong doing in connection with Senator Stanford's horses. He is far above anything of the sort and is one of the very few drivers now in the business against whom no one can point his finger and claim fraud. I have found that those who are continuously trying to defame the names of jockeys and drivers are those who have lost a dollar or two and seek to quiet their feelings by injuring the reputation of those, who in honesty, are far above the dishonorable scribes.

The fight is now waging hot down through the Grand Circuit, and is now a battle of California against the world says J. K. Stringfield in the Kentucky Stock Farm. Thus far the former seems to have a shade the best of it, Adonis, Cricket, Margaret S., Alfred S., Sunol and Palo Alto at least being hard nuts to crack. New forms, however, are continually showing up, and those who are kings to-day may lose their respect before another fortnight rolls around. Viewing it from a non-partisan standpoint the writer fails to see, even if they would make a clean sweep, what would entitle California to the trotting horse supremacy. The stars representing her in the East are the pick of a brilliant constellation, trained by skilled hands, made more proficient by the money with which they are liberally backed. There is no reason why they should not make a remarkable showing. In days gone by when the East sent its best to the West, its Goldsmith Maid, its Gloster, its Lucy and its St. Julien, none were to be found on the shores of the raging Pacific worthy to do them battle. The heats were rarely broken; they simply swept all before them. It is the same this year, and California is making a great record, but the East as yet has not shown its best hand. When the cards are finally shuffled as the autumn leaves begin to fall, this penman forgets at least believes that in the great game of chance, played now in parlor, club and garret, it will be ascertained that, as has ever been, the veteran player has the advantage of his younger rival. In other words when Sunol beats Maud S.'s record and Palo Alto breaks Axtell's crown, then it will be time enough to claim California is superior to Kentucky as a breeding place for the trotting horse.

RED BLUFF.

Conclusion of the Races.

RED BLUFF, Aug. 21st, 1890.

The third day was fine, a gentle breeze making it very pleasant. The track was in much better shape to-day than yesterday, as it was well watered last evening. The betting was more lively than yesterday. The judges were Messrs. Hawkins, Shelton and Cone. Timers, Messrs. McIntosh and Champlain.

First on the programme was the unfinished 2:40 trot, fifth heat. Pools: Annie sold favorite at 20 to 12 for the field. After scoring four times they got the word to an even start. On the turn Decision broke, and before reaching the quarter Annie broke and Laura Z. opened a gap of about ten lengths, and her other contestants were unable to get near her, she winning by six lengths, Annie 2d, Decision 3rd. Time, 2:37.

Between the 6th and 7th heats of the 2:40 class, the 2:25 pacers were called, the starters being Haverly, Gerster, Costello, Sam Lewis, John L. and Acrobat.

First heat: pools sold, Lewis 25, Castello 12, Haverly 5, field 5. They scored five times with Haverly in front. Around the turn Lewis took second place from Gerster. At the one-half Lewis led by a length, Haverly 2nd, the rest strung out into the stretch; Lewis and Haverly were neck and neck. Lewis out-played Haverly to the wire, winning by two lengths, Haverly 2nd, Gerster 3rd, Castelle 4th, Acrobat 5th, John L. distanced. Time, 2:30.

Decision having two heats, Laura D. two heats and Anna E. one. The pools sold for the seventh heat Annie E. $10, Field $8. Mr. Merrill took Sullivan's place behind Anna E. The betting now changed, Laura Z. brought 10 to 5 for the field.

They got a good send off. On the turn Annie E. and Decision both broke and Laura Z. opened a long gap and was never headed winning the heat and race by eight lengths. Time, 2:39.

Second heat—2:25 pace. Pools: Lewis $25, Haverly $10, Field $15. Soon after passing the wire Lewis and Haverly both broke, but Lewis soon recovered and was first at the quarter by a length with Gerster second and the rest strung out. In the stretch it was a fine race Castella came very fast on the outside of Gerster, collared her, and was only beaten half a length by Sam Lewis, Gerster third, Acrobat fourth, Haverly distanced. Time, 2:35¼.

Third heat—Pools sold Lewis $10, Field $5. In the preliminary warm up for this heat Acrobat and Costello collided, both drivers, Craig and Tryon, were thrown out but the horses did not get away; the only damage was to the sulkeys, both being badly smashed up, Craig receiving a good shaking up. After procuring another sulkey they scored four times before the word was given. Sam Lewis at once taking the lead followed by Costello, a length in front of Gerster who was a length ahead of Acrobat. These positions remained unchanged until they entered the stretch, where Acrobat paced fast and passed Gerster and Costello, and finished second to Lewis who won the heat, Acrobat second, Costello third, Gerster distanced. Time, 2.23½,

The next event on the programme was for the 2:35 class, the starters being Keating's Frank M., Trefry Bros.' Dinah and Marshall's Stranger. When the word was given Frank M. was sent at once to the front closely followed by Dinah, who gave him all he could attend to until they reached the half mile pole, when he showed in the van and was never headed from there out, although he only won by half a length from the mare, Stranger barely saving his distance. Time, 2:32.

Second heat—Pools: Frank M. 20, field 8. As on Tuesday, Frank M. came out very lame, but the Talent still stuck to him, although Stranger never made a move for the last heat. Stranger came out blindfolded. After three scores they were sent off. Frank M. leading by one half a length. On the turn Frank M. broke but soon recovered. At the one-half Frank led by three lengths, Dinah 2d. On the upper turn Stranger, who was a bad third, broke and fell back, but by a bad break of Dinah in the stretch, Stranger got second place, Frank M. winning by three lengths. Time, 2:32.

Third heat—Pools: Frank M. barred, Dinah sold for $10, Stranger $7, and betting very brisk. They scored three times before they got the word. Frank at once took the lead followed by Stranger. As the quarter Frank M. led by six lengths, Stranger 2d. Down the backstretch Dinah passed Stranger at the three-quarters, Frank was still in front, Dinah second. Frank M. won the heat and race by two lengths, Dinah second, Stranger just inside the flag. Time, 2:36.

The third race on the regular pregramme was a running race of three-fourths mile heats. The entries were Achilles, Wild Robin, Katisha, Lucy Dan, Juanita and Rosebng. Achilles, Wild Robin, Katisha and Juanita were scratched only leaving two starters. For the first heat pools sold, Rosebng $10, Lucky Dan $4. As there were only two in the race they got away at the first attempt, Dan went out and set the pace and led, all the distance, winning with Dennison looking back by a length. Time, 1:19.

Second heat. Pools sold, Rosebng $10, field $4. As in the first heat they got away at the first attempt, they raced head and head well into the stretch where Rosebug drew drew away and won by half a length. Dennison on Dan made a desperate drive but could not take the trick. Time, 1:16½.

Third heat. No betting. Rosebng got off in the lead and Dan was not in it. Rosebug won in a good gallop. Time, 1:19.

FOURTH DAY.

Another fine day, with a fair attendance. The track was in good shape. The judges of the day were Messrs Hawkins, Shelton and Cone. Timers, Messrs. Merrill, McIntosh and Champlin. The first race was a district trot for named horses, the starters being Cyclone, who sold for $10, and Fern and Antee-up, who sold as a field for $5. Cyclone took the lead, and led at the quarter by ten lengths, Antee up second. At the head of the stretch Cyclone had both a distance out, but as distance was waived, both were allowed to start again. Time, 3:12. Cyclone won by ten lengths, Antee-up second, Fern third.

Second heat—Fern was lame, and was allowed to be withdrawn. Cyclone at once took the lead, and was never headed, winning the heat by eight lengths. Time, 3:06.

Third heat—No betting, as Cyclone won the two previous heats so easily. Cyclone took the heat in a walk, ending the race. Time, 3:06.

Between the second and third heats of the first special race, another special was started. The starters were Almont Signal, Lady Turner, Laura Z. and Billy Doty. Pools sold: Laura Z. $10, field $6. After four scores they got the word, with Lady Turner in the lead; on the turn she broke, and Doty took the lead, but Turner soon caught and passed Doty, and was first at the half. In the stretch Laura Z. got on even terms with Turner, but at the seven-eighth pole broke, and Turner won the heat by two lengths. Laura Z. second, Doty third, Almont Signal distanced. Time, 2:42½.

Second heat—Pools: Laura Z. $10, field $4. After five scores they got the word, Turner in the lead. At the quarter she still led, with Laura Z. second. Down the backstretch Laura was lapped on the Lady, but could not pass her. In the stretch they were head and head; near the wire Turner broke, and Laura won the heat by half a length from Turner, Doty just inside the flag. Time, 2:39.

Third heat—No betting. Three scores and the bell tapped. Lady Turner took the lead and led at the quarter by two lengths. At the three quarter pole they were on even terms; in the stretch Turner broke and Laura won the heat by a length, Turner second, Doty third. Time, 2:38½.

Fourth heat—Lady Turner took the lead, followed by Doty, and at the quarter led by four lengths; coming into the stretch Turner only led Laura by a length, but Laura outtrotted Turner and won the heat and race by a neck from Turner, Doty third. Time, 2:41½.

Laura L, the winner, is a handsome brown filly by Alexander Button, dam Black Dolly, and is owned by Mr. G. W. Woodard of Yolo, former owner of Yolo Maid. She won a seven heat race yesterday, and the one to-day, showing her to be a game mare, and it will not enrprise us to see her make a low mark before the season is over.

THIRD RACE.

Another special for named horses, two pacers and one trotter, all the get of May Boy, Bessie H. and Gilmore being the pacers and May Girl the trotter. Bessie H. sold favorite at $10, to $5 for the field.

First heat—Beseie H. led to the quarter by four lengths and at the half was ten lengths in the lead, May Girl second: Gilmore a distance back. Bessie H. won the heat by eight lengths, Gilmore second, May Girl distanced. Time, 2:43¾.

Second heat—No pools sold. Gilmore broke at the tap of the bell, Bessie H. took the lead, and at the quarter was five lengths in front, same at the half. Beseie H. was never headed and won the heat in a jog. Time, 2:44.

Third heat—Bessie H. took the lead from the start and won the heat easily thus ending the race. Time, 2:59½.

LAST DAY.

The judges were Messrs. Hawkins, Shelton and Cone. Timers, Messrs. Woodard, McLane.

The first race of the day was for the 2:20 pacing class. The starters were Tom Ryder who sold for $10, Belle Button and Little Hope who sold as a field for $5.

First heat—They scored eight times. Ryder to the lead followed by Button, Hope last. At the quarter Ryder led by four lengths, Button second, Hope way back, same at the half. Around the upper turn Button closed up most of the gap and at the head of the stretch was on even terms with Ryder. Through the stretch Belle out paced Ryder and won by a length from Ryder, Hope third. Time, 2:19¾.

Second heat—Pools sold Ryder $20, Field $20, betting very lively. They got away at the first score: as in the last heat Ryder took the lead and was first at the quarter by two lengths, Belle second. Ryder increased his lead and at the half was four lengths in front. Around the turn Belle moved up on Ryder and beat him home by half a length, Hope third. Time, 2:23½.

Third heat. Pools sold, field $20, Ryder $20.

After scoring five times the bell tapped and Ryder as usual took the lead leading into the stretch where Belle got on even terms him, but near the wire Ryder let out a link and won by a length, Belle second, Hope just inside the flag. Time, 2:22½.

Fourth heat. Pools sold, Ryder $10, Belle Button $5, Little Hope $3. They scored for some time, Ryder in the lead and Hope second down the stretch. Hope broke and Ryder opened a gap of twenty lengths. Belle did not seem to be able to go any. Ryder won the heat by twelve lengths, Hope second, Button third.

Fifth heat. Pools sold, Ryder $10, field $5. Ryder took the lead at the one-fourth in 38 sec., led by two lengths the positions were the same at the half, round the upper turn the driver of Belle Button used the same tactics he did in the first heat, and half way down the stretch Belle collared Ryder and beat him to the wire by half a length. Time, 2:26.

Belle Button is by Alexander Button and made her debut last year, getting a record of 2:20, which time she beat to-day over a new track a quarter of a second. She is a handsome bay mare and a game one, her dam was Flora by Deetz St. Clair. She was well driven by C. B. Biglow who drove Laura S. in her races.

SECOND RACE—2:27 CLASS.

The starters were Frank M, Johnny Hayward, Idaho Patchen and Frank B. Pools sold Frank M $20, Idaho Patchen $10, Hayward and Frank B in the field for $10.

First heat—Frank M took the pole and led round the turn; the rest strung out into the stretch. Frank M led by three lengths, Patchen second a length ahead of Hayward. Frank M. increased his lead and won by four lengths, Patchen second, Hayward third. Time, 2:24½, Frank B behind the flag.

Second heat—Pools sold Frank M $20, Field $8, and very little betting, as almost every one thought Frank could not lose it. Frank M had the best of the send off, but on the first turn Frank broke and Hayward was first at the quarter. Frank beat Hayward down the backstretch; at the head of the stretch Frank still led and won the heat by five lengths, Hayward second, two lengths before Patchen. Time, 2:26.

Third heat—Frank went to the front, Patchen second, and they maintained the position to the turn, where Patchen moved up to Frank; still Frank won the heat by a length, Patchen second, Hayward third. Time, 2:25½.

SATURDAY MORNING.

THE LADIES TOURNAMENT.

The grand stand was well filled with ladies, and they were very enthusiastic, applauding loudly.

The contestants were Miss Marshall, attired in a neat habit of black, riding a spirited bay.

Miss Hickman, on a black horse, also dressed in black.

Miss Martin, on a brown horse, in light blue costume.

Miss Moffit on an Iron Grey, with a suit of black with white cap.

The first exhibition was a gallop of once around the track preceeded by Mr. Kimball, who acted as escort.

The next was a gallop in pairs.

The next a gallop singly.

The ladies then rode a mile so as to display their ability, the judges announcing that it was to be a "go as you please."

After riding singly several times by the stand Miss Marshall was awarded first premium.

Miss Moffit 2d.

Miss Martin 3d.

Miss Hickman 4th.

PETALUMA.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 26TH.

The Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society had a nice cool day for their opening day, and a representative gathering of horsemen were to be found in Petaluma to witness the contests, while the local sportsmen turned out fairly well, though the attendance was hardly as good as might have been expected. The gaily decorated pavilion which is at the entrance to the park, was filled with fruit, cereals, wines and other products of the neighborhood, and was visited by crowds of people during the day, while others wandered among the live stock exhibits, which are both numerous and of a high quality. In the afternoon three races were trotted, the first for district two year olds proved an easy victory for Anna Belle, who has now won two district races, the other being at Napa last week. She is a very neat, racey looking filly with a pure gait and very level head. The other two races were practically walk overs for the two San Mateo Stock Farm's mares, Hazel Wilkes and Sister V who have so far been unbeaten on the circuit, and they both won easily.

The judges were: H. M. Lane, R. Crane and P. J. Shafter. Timers—H. J. Agnew, W. Corbitt and James A. Dustin.

DISTRICT TWO YEAR OLDS.

First heat. A few pools were sold at $25 Anna Belle to $5 for the field. Starlight didn't have speed enough to score up with the other two and delayed the start for a while but at the fourth attempt they were sent away well together. Anna Belle went to the front at once and trotting squarely and steadily soon had three lengths the best of Myrtle with Starlight losing ground every stride. Anna Belle had a three lengths lead down the back stretch and increased her lead round the turn, and was five lengths in front at the head of the stretch and won pulling up by six lengths, Myrtle second, and Starlight, despite a hard run in the stretch, distanced. Time 2:40¼. Mutuals paid $6.15.

Second heat.—The two fillies were sent off the third time up Anna Belle going in the same straightforward resolute style as she did in the previous heat, had a length the best of it and at the eighth pole and increasing her lead all the way won easily by six lengths neither of the youngsters making a break in the heat. Time, 2:39¼.

Time, 2:40½, 2:39¼.

First heat, 2:20 trot—Pools sold very slowly at $50 for Hazel Wilkes to $7 for the field. At the second attempt the quartette were tapped off by Mr. La Rue. Hazel Wilkes, who had third position, went round the turn head and head with Victor, while Temple followed two lengths behind. Maggie broke at the eighth pole and lost three lengths. Victor and Hazel passed the quarter in thirty-six seconds, and keeping well together passed the half in 1:12¾, Victor still hanging on to the mare. Round the upper turn he broke up and the Wilkes mare drew away, and despite a game finish by Victor, won easily by an open length, Victor five lengths in front of Maggie and Emma six further back. Time, 2:24: Mutuals paid $8 50.

Second heat—As it was useless to attempt selling pools with Hazel Wilkes in, the industrious pool sellers rustled hard to get a few pools sold with Hazel barred. Temple brought $25 to $11 for Victor and Maggie E. coupled. The four horses received the word the second time up, Victor and Hazel again setting the pace round the turn. At the quarter Hazel had a neck the best of it with Victor two lengths in front of Temple, three in advance of Maggie E. Victor and Hazel were head and head at the three eighths pole when Victor broke but caught cleverly, and did not lose an inch but hung on to the mare, passing the half level two lengths in front of Temple. Victor and Maggie E. both broke on the turn, and Hazel drew out three lengths in front of Victor, a length and a half in advance of Temple, four lengths ahead of Maggie. Temple closed up to Victor and looked as though she had the place secure, but stumbling let the hay horse past again, and he followed Hazel under the wire, being four lengths back, while Temple was two further in the rear and Maggie E. six furlongs back. Time, 2:21¼. Mutuals, Hazel Wilkes barred, paid $16.20.

Third heat—There was no way left to sell pools on the place or race. When the four scored up Hazel was unsteady, breaking the first time up and again the third, while Temple broke tho second time a start was made. The fourth time up Hazel and Victor going away very fast, went out of the stretch together. Victor broke on the turn, but lost very little by it, and breaking again Hazel had five lengths advantage at the quarter, Victor second six lengths in front of Maggie, with Temple four lengths behind, having broken on the turn. Hazel trotting squarely and fast, was never headed, while despite a few of Victor's characteristic breaks, he gained second place four lengths behind, while Emma Temple finished third three lengths back, having passed Maggie just before the six furlong post. Time, 2:22. Mutuals paid $10.30 on Victor.

SUMMARY.

Trotting 2:20 class; purse $1,200.

First heat—Finding that Sister V. spoilt the appearance of the pools only $5 being offered against $50, after a long hunt for the five end, the pool sellers barred Sister V. and sold horses $20 to $7 for the field. After scoring up half a dozen times the word was given with Prince B. two lengths behind. Flora G. who had the pole set the pace until half way round the turn when she broke and Moses led her half a length to the quarter with Sister V. a length further back and Prince four lengths to the rear. Moses broke directly after passing the quarter and Sister V. went to the front, passed the half in 1:13, four lengths in front of Flora. Sister V. and Moses drew further away from the other pair going round the turn and Sister finished slowing down three lengths in front of Moses, fifty yards ahead of Flora, twenty yards in front of Prince B. Time, 2:26½. Mutuals, Sister V., field paid $5 90.

Second heat—A few pools were sold. Sister barred $20 to $5 for the field. The word was given the first time up, Sister went round the turn two lengths in front of Moses S. with Flora second and Flora S. third. Sister increased her lead to four lengths and trotting well within herself all the way retained her lead to the wire winning by three lengths with Moses S. second and Flora S. twelve lengths back third, four lengths in front of Prince B. Time, 2:25¾. Mutuals (Sister V. barred) paid $8 90.

Third heat—No pools sold, the state of affairs being exactly like it was in the preceding heat.

After a long and tedious scoring, with nearly all the crowd gone home, the horses were sent off at six o'clock. Sister, as usual, got a three lengths lead of Moses before the back stretch was reached, and retained it to the finish, winning easily with Moses second. The other pair had a close race, Flora G breaking twice in the stretch lost by a short head. Time, 2:27¾.

WEDNESDAY.

Judges—H. M. La Rue, Dr. Latham and R. Crane.
Timers—H. J. Agnew, E. B. Gifford and F. H. Burke.

The second day showed much greater promise which was certainly fulfilled as far as the attendance was concerned, for the farmers and country people turned in goodly numbers in the early morning to witness the stock parade. Petaluma and the outlying district has always been celebrated for the exceptionally fine quality of horses and cattle raised there and nobly did the breeders of good stock come to time exhibiting their best horses, trotters, cart horses and cattle being shown in grand order and great pleasure was evinced by all the spectators at the grand display. The afternoon's programme was a slight alteration of the original programme as Silas Skinner frightened all but one of the would be competitors in his class and under the conditions—three to start, the race had to be declared off and a fresh race substituted. The programme for the day had three races, the first a district yearling trot was expected to be a gift for Nonpariel, the Napa winner, but though he won it was not in wonderful form for had Columbus taken the pole at the half and been kept steady he should have won; as it was he went to pieces. The special race was conceded to be a cinch for Pink but after being cut off on the first turn by Maggie E., Holly laid up the heat and over did it, being distanced. Mr. Holly says that the mare was dead off and when he wished to close up round the upper turn she broke all to pieces and could not be got down in time to save her distance. The mare was evidently dead off for break or no break she should have been able to trot the last half in 1:12.

Judging from her previous performances this year, Mr. Holly was the heaviest loser on the race and was particularly cut up over the race for the bonny chestnut mare is his pet horse. The last race was a good thing for Mattie P after the first two heats as she trotted squarely and steadily, while Alcona Jr. who won the two first heats stopped badly, while Pete Brandow's Foxy mare could not pass the first quarter without a break. The Vaquero Tournament had to be postponed until Thursday after a preliminary canter between heats.

District yearlings. Pools sold very slowly at $30 Nonpareil to $9 for the field. After scoring up seven or eight times Mr. Shafter broke his bridle and an interval of several minutes elapsed before it could be replaced. About the second time afterwards the trio were sent off Nonpareil trotting steadily took the lead in the turn and rounded into the back stretch two lengths in front of Columbus who was four in front of Rustic King, who broke at the three furlongs and Columbus went past leading a length past the half. Columbus and Nonpareil both broke in the upper turn, the former never catching until the last of the quartette was thirty yards in front of him; meanwhile Rustic had collared Nonpareil and a pretty race took place down the stretch, it being anyone's race until fifty yards from the wire when Rustic King ran into the fence and Nonpareil won by three lengths, Rustic second. Columbus, who had trotted well down the stretch just beat Sidena for the place fifty yards behind the leaders. Time, 3:05. Mutuals paid $6.60.

Third heat—Pools sold rapidly at $50 for Pink to $7 for Redwood and $11 for the field. After the select four had scored up several times the word was given. Maggie trotting fast took the pole before the turn, and Pink dropped back by degrees until when the quarter was reached she was twelve lengths behind Maggie E. who was eight lengths in front of Oaknut, just clear of Redwood. The leading three kept the same distance apart up the back stretch, while Pink got further and further behind, and breaking badly on the turn was a distance and a quarter out when she struck the stretch. Maggie won the heat closely by five lengths, Oaknut twelve lengths in front of Redwood and Pink, who ran hard for forty yards declared distanced. Time, 2:24½. Mutuals paid $12.95.

Second heat—Maggie sold a hot favorite at $30 to $24 for the field. When the word was given Vioget went out in front, closely attended by Oaknut, who broke at the eighth pole, and was three lengths behind Maggie at the quarter, with Redwood three further back. Passing the three eighth pole Oaknut broke badly, and was passed by Redwood, who was five lengths behind Maggie. At the half the race was all over, for though Redwood got to within two lengths of Maggie at the head of the stretch, it was only an affectance, and Maggie drew away half way down the stretch, and Redwood breaking at the half distance, lost the heat by four lengths, Oaknut sixty yards back. Time, 2:23¾. Mutuals paid $9.15.

Third heat—A few pools were sold at $30 Maggie E. to $10 the field. A start was effected the second attempt; Maggie led by one length round the turn, when she left her feet, and Redwood passed her, leading three lengths at the quarter, with Maggie E, second. Maggie broke again before the half, and Redwood increased his lead to six lengths, and when she left her feet on the turn, he increased to eight lengths, and won the heat, pulling up by six lengths, Maggie second and Oaknut, who was up and down all the way, a bad last. Time, 2:26½. Mutuals paid $10 75.

Fourth heat.—A few pools were sold at $25 the field to $10 Maggie E. When the word was given Maggie started very fast and stayed with Redwood to the turn when she broke while Redwood went on passing the quarter three lengths in front of Oaknut who broke, and Maggie E also breaking Redwood drew further out being fifty yards in front of Oaknut at the half with Maggie thirty yards further back. Redwood jogged along in front winning easily by six lengths, while Maggie out footed Oaknut down the stretch and got second place. Time 2:27¾. Mutuals paid $6 65

Fifth heat.—No pools were sold. The word was given the second time up, Redwood opened up a three length gap at the quarter with Maggie second four lengths in front of Oaknut. No change was made until the bend of the stretch when Maggie broke badly and fell back last, Redwood winning in a jog by three lengths, Oaknut second and Maggie a bad third. Time 2:26½. Mutuals paid $5.70.

Time, 2:24½, 2:23¾, 2:26½, 2:27¾, 2:26½.

First heat—No pools sold. After a long time scoring up, the word was given and Wally immediately broke and fell back last. Alcona Jr. and Mambrino Chief took the lead despite a break before the quarter. Mambrino was only half a length behind with Mattie P. and Rockwood six lengths further back, three in front of Foxie, four ahead of Wally. Mambrino held Alcona for the next furlong, but went up again and Alcona led four lengths past the half with Mambrino ten lengths in front of Mattie P. and Rockwood. Alcona kept his lead round the turn while Rockwood broke and Foxiy came fast, caught up to Mattie P. At the head of the stretch Alcona had all the rest safe all the way, winning easily by three lengths from Mambrino Chief with Foxie N. fifty yards back third a neck in front of Mattie P., Rockwood and Wally fifth and sixth, barely saving their distance. Time, 2:30½. Mutuals paid $12.

Second heat. Pools sold, Alcona $30, field $15, Foxy V. $10. After a long interval, during which Mambrino had a shoe replaced the horses scored up with Alcona in front. After several attempts a start was effected and as before Alcona and Mambrino went out in front. Mambrino broke in the turn and Alcona passed the quarter four lengths in front of Mambrino Chief with Mattie P. two lengths further back and Rockwood next, with Foxy fifth. The order was unchanged until the upper turn when Rockwood passed Foxy who broke. Alcona trotting very steadily won the heat cleverly by four lengths with Mattie P. second, five lengths in front of Rockwood, Mambrino, who broke badly in the stretch, fourth and Foxy V. a bad fifth. Wally distanced. Time, 2:31½. Mutuals paid $13 30.

Third heat. Alcona Jr. sold readily for $20 to $15 for the field. Goldsmith drove Mambrino Chief Jr. After scoring up several times the five went away well together. Alcona took the lead round the turn but made a standstill break at the quarter and dropped back last, while Mattie P went on in front leading Rockwood two lengths at the half with Mambrino Chief third, a length in front of Foxy V. and Alcona Jr. seventy yards back, the leading four a length apart at the head of the stretch and a hard race all the way to the wire, Mattie P. winning by a short head from Rockwood with Foxy V. third, a neck behind and Mambrino fourth, Alcona Jr. well inside the distance. Time, 2:33½. Mutuals paid $8.30 on the field.

Fourth heat.—No pools, every one in town. A start was soon effected Goldsmith nodding for the word two lengths back, Mattie P and Rockwood showed the way round the turn with Foxy third and Peter closing up in a hurry was level with the leaders, at the quarter when the mare broke and lost her place. Mattie got a length the best of Rockwood when the half was reached with Foxy two lengths back. A pretty race ensued between the leading pair all the way to the wire Mattie winning by a length, Rockwood second, Foxy three lengths back third, and Mambrino Chief seven lengths further back fourth, with Alcona Jr., a bad last. Time, 2:23½. Mutuals paid $12.35.

Fifth heat—No one left except newspaper reporters and hangers on. A start was soon obtained, Brandow making a last effort to stay in the race, went round the turn with his mare at Rockwood's head, but just before the quarter post was reached she broke and dropped out of the race, while Mattie P. followed Rockwood past the quarter. At the half Rockwood was three lengths in front of Mattie P, with Alcona Jr. close up five lengths in front of the other pair. The positions were retained to the head of the stretch, when Mesner brought Mattie P up to him, who going very steadily won by a length, Rockwood second, Alcona three lengths back third. Time, 2:23½.

THE GUN.

The Country Club.

The Country Club closed its regular trap shooting season on Saturday last at the Oakland Trotting Park, and by the courtesy of President F. R. Webster and Secretary J. M. Quay, we are enabled to present the score of that meeting, together with a summary of the work done by the members during the season. The Country Club has in one season reached a position usually attained only after a lapse of considerable time. An explanation of the fact may be fonnd in the popularity and energy of its officers, which, coupled with the mntnal consideration shown by its members, are quite enongh to make its meetings both tests of skill and most enjoyable outings. We do not recall a club which shoots more strictly to rnle, yet there is never a particle of acerbity nor any harsh exception to rnlings. The result is a degree of clnb spirit which makes it a matter of pride on the part of members to be present, and makes the club an institution likely to engage general esteem. The shooting on Saturday last was particularly good. Ramon E. Wilson, after a long absence from trap grounds, showed np with his trusty ten bore, and killed a clean dozen in one match, and ten of another match.

Singularly enough his score was duplicated by President Webster. Mr. Ed. L. Bosqui scored nineteen out of twenty-four rattling good birds in rattling good style. Mr. J. M. Adams scored ten very hard ones in a dozen. Mr. R. B. Woodward and Mr. J. D. Redding, both of whom have been shooting in high form throughout the season, failed to reach their averages, and as much might be said of Messrs. A. C. Tubbs and J. A. Robinson.

The day was good, being cool and breezy, and the birds were fresh and strong. The first score was made in a side shoot at 12 live birds, A. S. A. rules; losing side to pay for birds.

The Art of Shooting.

By Charles Lancaster, gunmaker. Second edition now ready. An illustrated treatise on the art of shooting, with extracts from the best authorities, containing full-page explanatory illustrations, sketched from instantaneous and other photographs. Price, 7s, 6d; postage, 6d extra. Published by CHARLES LANCASTER, 151 New Bond Street, London, W.

W. H. Walker, of the well known firm of Staver & Walker, of Portland, was accidentally shot for a deer last week, by a young man named Powell, while hunting in the mountains near Eugene.

The bare statement is enough to put every hunter on guard but we venture to say that several like disasters will be reported before the season closes.

Tulare Gun Club Tournament.

Mr. M. C. Hunt, Secretary of the Tulare Gun Club sends the programme of the tournament under the auspices of the Tulare Gun Club which will be held on September 17th, 18th and 19th next.

We need not remark that Tulare is noted for hospitality, and its sportsmen for real quality.

A grand ball to be given under the auspices of Tulare Gun Club at Liberty Hall, September 19th. Grand march at 9 P. M.

While hunting near Boonville, Chardon S. Ball, of that place, killed a male deer, which weighed, when dressed, 140 pounds. Some old nimrods declare it is the largest they ever saw. The horns and the hide suggest an elk size.

Mr. C. H. Rodriguez, Secretary of the Monterey Rod and Gun Club sends the following warm invitation to sportsmen to attend the meeting of the club to-morrow.

"Our second official shoot will take place to-morrow August 31st in place of the Sunday following, the reason being that most of the members wish to be in the city on that day to arrange in participating in the celebration of the N. S. G. W."

The Santa Rosa Republican says: "Henry Hopper, Charles Cook, James Cogwell and Thomas Cogwell have returned from a month's hunting trip in Mendocino and Humboldt Counties. A large portion of the time was spent in traveling, and about a week was given to clean cut hunting. During that time twenty-four deer and two black bear were killed. The boys came back with an abundance of dried venison."

Mr. Frank H. Day, formerly of Los Angeles, but who now makes his home at Monterey, has organized a fine strong Rod and Gun Club with the following members, all of them business men: F. H. Day, President; S. H. Smith, vice-President; C. H. Rodriguez, Secretary; C. R. Few Treasurer; F. M. Hilby, Edward Ingram and Manuel Duarte, Directors; Jas. T. Stockdale, A. W. Faulkner, A. Gunzendorfer, A. Schaufele, C. H. Hanson, A. A. Osio and F. E. Dangerfield. The club has prepared a good shooting ground just in the edge of the city on a little plateau which over looks the Del Monte and the ocean, and will hold semi-monthly meetings. Mr. Day is a host in himself and may be relied upon to keep the club moving. It will send representatives to the State Association meeting at Sacramento, on October 8th. On a recent visit to Monterey Mr. Day kindly invited the representative of this paper to ride behind his spanking team of trotters. The whole of beautiful Del Monte was seen, together with the town of Monterey, and as a characteristic finale a feast of tamales was held. Not the tamale of song and commerce, but home-made and delightful. Very many quails were seen, all about the brushy land surrounding Monterey. Mr. Day devotes much time to sport and is so generous in entertainment of visiting sportsmen as to merit general appreciation. The Monterey Rod and Gun Club meets to-morrow, when a bulls-head breakfast will be one of the attractions. A general invitation is extended by the officers of the club, to all who enjoy such treats to visit Monterey and take part in the shooting and other pleasures.

As a "line" to campers the experience of Captain Roberts of Fresno may be related. He came to this State in 1848, slept on the ground for twenty years, and knows what it is to rough it. He says:

"Lew Patchen and myself mined for many years, come now. During that time I saw many wild animals, but none of them ever offered to hurt me; no sir. I have seen mountain lions, wolves, bears, rattlesnakes, tarantulas, centipedes, but none of them, as I have said, ever attempted to molest me until a little over two years ago when I was bitten by a black spider."

"The evening of August 11th, 1888, was very hot. I took my blankets and went out on the porch to sleep. About 10 o'clock I was aroused by a sharp stinging sensation on my forehead. It was repeated three times, when I brushed off a small object from my forehead, and supposing it to be some bug or other insect thought no more about it at the time."

"In about half an hour I experienced sensations similar to those of George Newton, which were so graphically described recently. I became very dizzy, and it seemed as if my head was whirling around. I then became deathly sick."

"You see that spot on my forehead there?" said the Captain, removing his hat. "Yes, well, there is where the black spider—for such it proved to be—stung me."

"I was deathly sick for several weeks. Every year, about the date when I was bitten, my eyes become very weak and I feel bad. O, those black spiders are dreadful things, come now."

Some Marysville men who have returned from a camping trip to Gold Lake in Sierra county, tell the Appeal a stunning bear story. While one of the party was out trying to catch—by hand—a pair of young grouse, it was determined by his friends in camp to have a little bear excitement at the expense of the grouse hunter. Messrs. Stone and Atchison were engaged to act as bear, and the return of the victim was impatiently awaited by the crowd. He came at last and the early evening hours were spent telling exciting bear stories. At an early hour the party went to the tent and retired. Just as sleep was about to close the eyes of the campers, the brush on the side hill was heard to crack, accompanied by the audible growl of a bear, and with it was given the alarm cry by one of the sleepers that a bear was coming into camp. It had the desired effect. Five of the party with one hound reached the entrance of the tent, as they went throwing their blankets over the grouse hunter, who was vainly hunting for his gun which he kept by his side. At last, weapon in hand, he emerged from the tent and hesitated which way to go, but his hesitancy was of short duration. The bear gave one more grunt, and the grouse hunter dropped his gun in the middle of the road, and with the fleetness of a deer ran to the boat, which was about sixty yards away, thinking to get out on the water and thereby elude pursuit from old bruin—for he had been told that a bear would not take to water. Untieing the boat he shoved off from the shore, leaving his five companions to their fate. He remained out on the lake about two hours in "light attire", and only returned to camp after his friends had built a big fire and assured him that the bear had been scared away and the coast was clear. When shivering with cold and fright he returned, and was shown the bear tracks, and also where he had turned over a pot of beans, the grouse hunter was heard to wish he was back in Marysville away from the wild beasts of the forest. He could not sleep that night, but with his gun, which was loaded with bird shot, watched for the bear, trembling at every noise.

The grouse hunter could not be persuaded to sleep in the tent during the remainder of the stay. He sought shelter every night in a neighboring house. He is still firm in the belief that a genuine bear visited the camp, and while on the journey home told of the narrow escape of the party from being devoured. He asserts that he saw the old bear and cub leisurely passing down the road dragging a side of bacon with them as he entered the boat.

Camping and Camping Outfits.

A mannal of instruction for yonng and old sportsmen by Mr. G. O. Shields of Chicago, who as "Coquina" is known to all American readers of Sportsmen's journals as an instructive and entertaining writer and author of "Rustlings in the Rockies", "Hunting in the Great West" and other delightful volumes appears upon our table. Mr. Shields is assisted by Dr. C. G. Davis, Col. J. Fry Lawrence and Mr. Frank F. Frisbie. The little book, published by Rand, McNally & Co. of Chicago and New York, is crowded full of practical hints on how to dress for hunting and fishing excursions, what to provide in the way of bedding, shelter, eatables, camp utensils and other equipage, how to select camping grounds, camp cookery, camp Hygiene and how to load a pack horse. An exhaustive, practical, pleasantly written volume, it should have place in the library of every sportsman, angler and sojourner in the woods.

611 Hints and Points For Sportsmen.

What more attractive title could have been chosen for a charming little compendium like that by Seneca, published by the Forest and Stream Publishing Co. of New York, at $1.50 and kindly sent for notice? It is worth the money just for the fun to be had in trying to think of something in the way of suggestions to hunters and anglers that cannot be found in it. The whole matter of weapons, the science of hunting and trapping, the art of fishing, of camping, the care of dogs, boats and boating, health hints, flies and fly making, and pretty much everything else that ought to be in such a book is adequately covered in the volume under consideration. The author knows how to condense, and we unhesitatingly commend his work to all who ever go afield.

The Art of Shooting.

As above entitled Mr. Chas. Lancaster, gun, rifle and pistol manufacturer at 151 New Bond St., London, W. England, sends a little illustrated treatise on the Art of Shooting, of which he is the author. The book is elementary, profusely illustrated and written in such clear and simple style that with the text and the pictures no tyro need have difficulty in learning how to handle his gun and to hold in order to make successfully the various incoming and outgoing quartering and overhead shots. Advice is also given as to fit of guns, cleaning them, powders, loads, etc. Mr. Lancaster has for many years been recognized as an expert both in making and shooting guns. He has taught a great many men to shoot, using the principles laid down in the book and we have pleasure in recommending the volume both to those who are beginning the sport and to those who find that after practice. they are not well up in the art.

This afternoon at the Oakland Trotting Park beginning at two o'clock, a team match between the Gun Club of San Francisco and the Alameda County Sportsmen's Club will be shot. The teams will be of ten men each, Alameda having Norton, Knowles, Cadman, Osborn, Smith Maynard, Haskell, Mayhew and Kellogg; the Gun Club being represented by Eddy, Jellett, Butler, F. W. Tallant, Sanborn, R. B. Woodward, Wooster, Orr, Gillette Jr. and Webster. The match is at live birds, American Shooting Association rules, for a handsome trophy, and naturally excites great interest. the team consisting almost without exception, of crack trap shots. There seems little choice between them. Sportsmen generally are invited to be present. The trotting park is reached by the Berkeley train.

Several letters have been received from sportsmen calling attention to the confusion in the minds of many shooters about the Game Laws. One from Mr. E. A. Roberts, a prominent attorney of Grass Valley says: "My attention has been called to a trade catalogue sent out by a San Francisco dealer, in which appear what purport to be the present Game Laws of California, which I think are put in such shape as to be misleading to those who are not well up in such matters, which by the way I find to be the way in the majority of cases. We have an annual confusion of dates up here as to when quail may be lawfully taken, partly through design of unruly so called sportsmen, partly through honest ignorance and our efforts to keep the 10th of September a permanent monument should not be neutralized or rendered totally inoperative by the distribution of printed matter, giving incorrect dates possibly by some typographical error or the unauthorized use of names high in authority by careless dealers. You might suggest that all dealers sending statements relative to the game laws should use the utmost care to procure correct versions. As it now stands no one could be blamed for claiming October 1st and under such high authority as to make it almost a perfect defense as against the statute."

It will be learned with the utmost pleasure by every real sportsman in our constituency that Mr. Austin B. Sperry of Stockton reached home last week after five months of travel in France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. Mr. Sperry was accompanied throughout by his wife, and in Italy met his mother and sister, who had been abroad for a year or more. Such an opportunity for observation when improved by so keen and dispassionate an observer as Mr. Sperry, cannot but have resulted in the accumulation of facts which will make alike for the broadening and strengthening not only of his own mind but also for the benefit of the community in which he lives. The primary object of the trip was to pass some months at Carlsbad, Germany, for his health, but a short stay there sufficed to convince him that his health was as likely to be confirmed in California as anywhere else, and also to determine that his trouble was not constitutional but was merely the result of over exertion and too assiduous devotion to the great business interests of which he is the executive head. At last advices from Europe Austin was monkeying around Pall Mall in an excessively high hat and collar, very baggy plaid nether coverings and a Poole coat that looked as though it was made for a number six man instead of a number fourteen. We have not learned whether he retains his knowledge of American or talks only English now, but since he is a Native Son of the Golden West and high in the councils of that order, we suspect he is just the same plain, alert, clear-headed, natural leader that he was before he impinged upon the crowned heads of Europe. We are glad he is home, and hope to hear from him directly with some account of what he saw and did while away.

A sportsman of San Mateo writes that for several weeks hunters have been killing rail on the San Mateo marshes, and from other sources like complaints come.

In response to the complaints, and in order to place all shooters on an equal footing as regards knowledge of the law, we have been at pains to write to every county clerk of California and append the game and fish laws as at present in force. It will be remembered that the supervisors of each county have the power to change the game and fish laws at pleasure.

The acts relative to game and fish, as amended by the last Legislature, and changed in some counties by the Supervisors, prescribe the following as the seasons within which the game and fish specified may be lawfully taken:

Quail, Marin County, October 1st to March 1st. Kern County, September 10th to February 1st. Lake County, August 20th to March 1st. Other counties, September 10th to March 1st.

Partridge, grouse, rail, September 10th to March 1st.

Doves, Marin County, August 1st to January 1st. San Joaquin County, July 1st to January 1st. Other counties, June 1st to January 1st.

Male antelope, deer or bucks, Marin County, July 1st to October 15th. Other counties, July 1st to December 15th.

Female antelope, elk, mountain sheep, female deer or doe, killing at any time unlawful.

Spotted fawn, killing prohibited.

Taking quail, partridge, grouse or rail, by net or pound, prohibited.

Trout, April 1st to November 1st.

Salmon, October 1st to August 31st.

Fishing for salmon, shad, etc., between six o'clock Saturday evening and sundown of succeeding Sunday, prohibited.

Fishing by explosives, any poisonous substance, or by pound, weir, cage, trap, or by set net, prohibited.

Pollution of waters with lime, gas, tar, cocculus indicus, sawdust or other substance deleterious to fish, prohibited.

Killing of wild turkeys, prairie chickens, bob-white quail, pheasants, grouse and skylarks, prohibited until January 1, 1895.

Killing of blue and white cranes, at any time, prohibited.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Whelps.

Mr. Jas. E. Watson's Irish red setter fawn (Glencho—Flame) whelped August 18th and 19th, twelve four dogs, to Pat O'More (Rory O'More—Norah O'More).

Mr. F. A. Ames' Irish Red setter Nida (ch Mike T. -ch Lady Elcho T.) to Mr. L. L. Campbell's Barrymore (Elcho Jr.—Maid), August 21, 1890.

Name Claimed.

Mr. L. L. Campbell, San Francisco, claims the name Mischief for an Irish red setter bitch, whelped April 27, 1890, by Barrymore—Bell C.

Mr. G. McNab, the genial assistant manager of the Occidental Hotel in this city, a very enthusiastic mastiff man has recently received from Mr. E. H. Moore of Melrose, Mass., a mastiff dog pup, whelped April 10th, 90 by Ilford Chancellor—Dame Minting.

The pup is said by Mr. Moore to be the best he ever bred, and is thought by Mr. McNab to be a superior specimen of a breed which is comparatively uncultivated in California.

At a meeting of the board of Supervisors, held August 4, 1890, it was ordered that any and all dogs or owners of dogs of any kind or description, be prohibited from running at large in the yard of the Courthouse of Humboldt county.—Silver State.

It seems that the Commissioners of Humboldt county are drawing the line pretty close when they attempt to prohibit a man from running at large in the yard of the Courthouse simply because he happens to be the owner of a dog'—Elko Independent.

Mr. Joe Orear of Downieville has always been an admirer of the black and tan setter and has recently brought one from the Malcolm Kennel in Baltimore, of which the Nevada Transcript says:

"A rather common looking, medium sized female dog, covered with dark, wavy, silken hair, and appearing to have a good deal of setter blood in its veins, was in the express office here Wednesday night en route from Baltimore, Maryland, to J. W. Orear of Downieville. That dog cost $500 and the expense of getting it here is $60, which included 'board and lodging,' as the express and baggage men all along the route saw that the kind-eyed and friendly canine lived on the fat of the land. The cage in which it rode was a wooden crate about five feet long, three feet wide and three feet high, so there was plenty of room for it to turn around. Mr. Orear is a famous fancier of dogs."

ROD.

Says the Santa Cruz Surf of the Fish Commission Chief of Patrol:—"Chief of Patrol Callnndan of the Board of Fish Commissioners is here in our city looking after the interests of fish and game, and his presence here has done much to stop illegal fishing and hunting. He is here to investigate a report as to the killing of young quail at Scott's creek and other localities, and it would be well for some of the poachers to look out a little, as there are spies on the lookout, and if they should be caught it will go hard with them. The emptying of tar into the river at the gas works has been stopped, and from the appearance of the waters of the San Lorenzo the saw-dust is being run into it, and it should be stopped immediately.

The visit of Mr. Callnndan is most timely, and it will encourage our young and energetic Rod and Gun Club and have much effect in checking illict taking of fish and game."

The habits of fish are little understood, though such as herring, mackerel and pilchards are known to be migratory, appearing and disappearing in large numbers, it is not so generally known that this is true also of the flat fish. They will travel hundreds of miles, and sometimes entirely disappear. They move together and have their own favorite places of resort. Then they have different habits according to size. Fish of the same year as we may suppose, travel together and move from place to place. The experienced fisherman can follow them, and knows just where he is likely to find those of a particular size. But sometimes they disappear almost entirely and remain away for a long time. It is not to be concluded that they are exterminated, for on a sudden they will reappear in great numbers. They arrive in a night, like the woodcocks. Quite recently, in the present year, the large turbot appeared in this way. None had been taken in a long time when suddenly they were met with in every direction.

What is said by an exchange finds its confirmation in the appearance of mackerel in countless shoals this year.

A whole company of BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN readers seem to have enjoyed the company of our friend of the Lake County Examiner in Oregon recently, if the following interesting notes are evidence. There are few more skillful anglers than that same Editor. He writes:—"Last Friday, in company with Geo. Lovegrove and Frank Light, we started on a fishing trip to little Chewaucan. Our first halt was at the ranch of Walker & Fuller, where we were invited to lunch. Of course we accepted the invitation and, although not hungry, did ample justice to the occasion. We then passed up through the mountains, viewing some beautiful little valleys and fine timber, and took our quarters for the night at the ranch of Geo. Lovegrove, in the beautiful valley at the head of Thomas creek. Messrs. Lovegrove, Birkmaier, Drum and Renfro all have beautiful ranches in this valley. Saturday we passed down to the ranch of Stephen Gaylord, on little Chewaucan. Mr. Gaylord has a most excellent ranch, with a section of hay land fenced in an excellent stock country. There are also a number of other beautiful ranches in that locality. The weather was not very favorable for fishing, notwithstanding, we secured an abundance for eating purposes while there, and brought quite a nice supply home with us. On Monday morning we parted with Mr. Gaylord, whose hospitality we had enjoyed while there, and arrived home that evening very much inervated by the trip. The trip was altogether a pleasant one, and our only regret was that we could not stay longer.

Trotting Stallion for Sale

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

The BOYCE WASH can be applied ALL OVER THE BODY WITHOUT FEAR OF BLISTERING NOR DOES IT AFFECT THE KIDNEYS.

The BOYCE WASH will cure CRACKED HEELS, PUFFS, STOCKINGS, SCRATCHES, INFLAMED TENDONS and FEVERED LEGS.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States; six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on application. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

THE BAKER & ROSS TRACK HARROW

Is pronounced by all horsemen who have used it and seen it work to be the

BEST HARROW EVER INVENTED.

It has sloping chisel, shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Crabb, Sam'l Gamble, I. DeTurk, and the directors of the Napa and Petaluma Tracks, etc.

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

2nd Breeders' Great Combination Sale

—OF—

Standard-bred Stock of the Highest Order; also, Trotters, Pacers and Gentlemen's Roadsters, Saddle Horses and Carriage Teams, at

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

Entries close October 4th. F. J. BERRY & CO., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

Important Auction Sale

—OF—

Standard and High-Bred

TROTTING HORSES

—AND—

THOROUGHBRED HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Property of J. H. WHITE, Esq., Lakeville, Sonoma County, Cal.

On Thursday and Friday, September 4th & 5th, '90

At Railroad Stable, Cor. Turk and Steiner Streets, S. F.

On account of a contemplated change in business, we are authorized by Mr. White to dispose of all the high-bred stock upon his noted breeding farm at Lakeville, Sonoma County. This comprises over forty head of high-bred Trotting Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts and Fillies, most of them standard and all exceptionally fine individuals. They consist of the get of stallions by Electioneer, Director, Antevolo and other noted horses. Most of the broodmares are with foal by Hernani, one of Electioneer's most prominent sons. Several have been bred to Director. Taken collectively, they are, in size and form, the finest looking lot of trotters yet offered in California and their breeding is upon the most approved speed lines.

The cattle comprise over one hundred head of thoroughbred registered Holstein cattle. The progenitors of this herd were selected of the choicest strains upon the famous breeding establishments East, and have been judiciously crossed with a view to develop to the fullest extent the milking strains. Mr. White has expended a large sum of money and great care in perfecting this band of cattle, and can justly claim it as one of the superior herds of the United States.

Catalogues are being prepared and will be sent on application only. Horses and cattle may be seen at ranch, six miles from Petaluma.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beals streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

WANTED TO TRADE

THE STANDARD TROTTING MARE

EVENING STAR

Black, eight years old, and about 15¾ hands high; weight about 1100 pounds; record 2:29; by Commodore Belmont 4340, he by Belmont 6t.

First dam by DICTATOR 113.

Second dam by IRON DUKE, he by C. M. Clay.

Third dam by SIR WALLACE.

Fourth dam by CLIPPER BOTTOM.

EVENING STAR is a handsome, level headed and game mare, and should be valuable as a brood mare. Her sire has several in the 30 list, and is the sire of dams who have produced a number of trotters.

I want to trade this fine mare for a standard bred STALLION COLT, two or three years old, of good size, good trotting action and a good looker. Address,

LEE MANTLE,
Butte City, Montana.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50,

THURSDAY.

The weather continued to be grand and the country people turned out in great force, thronging the park all day while in the afternoon the varied attractions drew a large crowd. Shortly before racing commenced in the afternoon Goldsmith worked the yearling colt by Sable Wilkes out of Laura Drew down the stretch, the youngster trotting with a rare pure action, and with astonishing speed negotiated the quarter in 0:35½ seconds, pulling a light cart and finishing with a dash and vim that indicated willingness to continue at the same phenomenal rate of speed. The judges for the day were H. M. LaRue, Dr. Latham and R. Crane. Timers —H. J. Agnew, W. Vioget and E. B. Gifford.

The afternoon programme included three races, a walkover and an exhibition of broncho riding and roping. The first race on the programme proved a surprise to the talent for Una Wilkes and Bob Mason were thought to have the race between them, but the latter was dead off, and though the former made a game attempt she was never steady enough and fast enough for Charles Derby, who although entered by B. C. Holly, is the property of the Cook Stock Farm, the proprietors of which were generally congratulated after the race. The three year old free for all was walked over for Regal Wilkes driven by Goldsmith, who only jogged round the track at a three minute gait with the big son of Guy Wilkes.

Immediately afterwards general excitement was caused and cheers arose from all parts of the grounds when Presiding Judge La Rue announced that he had received a dispatch from the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN stating that Salvator had run the mile at Monmouth in 1:35½, beating all previous miles 3¾ seconds. The three year old district race was fought out to the bitter end by Maudee and Antevano. Goldsmith drove the latter and won the first two heats, then Maudee took the next three after a close race each time. The pace was considered to be a sure thing for Rupee, but though the three year old won, it was no easy task for him as Hummer won the first heat and then Sunrise displayed an astonishing amount of gameness and speed, finishing the last half of each mile in a very resolute way, and should prove a thorn in the side of some of the pacers before the season is over. She is by the Montana thoroughbred sire Regent—a son of Bonnie Scotland and Lady Lancaster, out of a mare by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. A heavy wind blowing down the backstretch caused the times to be not quite as fast as they otherwise would have been. When the horses were called up for the first race pools which had sold the night previous with Bob Mason a prononnced favorite, veered round and slowly but surely Una Wilkes, the San Mateo entry, went to the front and just before the start Una Wilkes sold like hot cakes for $40 to $15 for Bob Mason and $10 for the rest as a field. A long delay occurred and after scoring up several times as the owners of Ed. Fay were called into the stand to pay up back entries.

When they were again started out Bob Mason came up six lengths behind, Bayliss nodded for the word—and the bell was tapped. Una Wilkes had the pole, and Fay cut out the work to half way round the bend when Fay broke and Una passed the quarter three lengths in front of Derby with Fay half a length behind, three lengths in front of Free Coinage who was ten lengths ahead of Kilrain with Bob Mason four lengths further in the rear. Derby reduced Una's lead to a length and a half at the half in 1:12 the other positions remaining unchanged except that Kilrain and Bob Mason dropped further back. Derby gradually closed up to Una round the upper turn and all the way down the stretch Goldsmith was doing all that that accomplished artist could do to stand off his challenge, but Derby and Holly would not be denied and thirty yards from the wire Una left her feet Derby winning by half a length with Free Coinage who had passed Fay in the stretch third, fifty yards back, Fay three lengths further back and Bob Mason fifth a little over a distance out, Kilrain a bad last, Bob Mason not distanced on account of the start. Time, 2:24½. Mutuals paid $22.90.

Second heat—Despite her defeat in the first heat the Wilkes mare continued a hot favorite gradually growing better and better in favor until the last few pools sold at Una Wilkes $25, the Field $13 and Bob Mason $10. The word was given the second time up with Mason six lengths back, Derby and Una stayed together to the quarter with Fay five lengths behind, an open length in front of Coinage, and Mason a bad last. The pace was a little too hot for Una who left her feet just after the quarter and Derby got a three lengths lead which was increased to five before the half in 1:12 1-5. Una closed up the gap round the turn being only three lengths behind at the head of the stretch Goldsmith again made a hard drive for the heat but Holly and Derby were too fast winning the heat cleverly by two lengths, Free Coinage ten lengths back third, Fay fourth and Mason well inside last. Time, 2:25¼. Mutuals paid, $15.90.

Third heat.—Pools sold rapidly at $25 Derby, $10 Una Wilkes and $6 for the field. The start was delayed for a while by Free Coinage, who refused to turn round after scoring. The word was given with all well together, Mason going very well round the turn cut into the inside and was lapped on Derby at the quarter with Una three lengths back and Coinage two lengths further in the rear just clear of Fay. Derby had a length the best of Mason at the half in 1:11½, with Una seven lengths behind. Round the turn Mason broke all to pieces and Una went in pursuit of Derby who had ten lengths lead at the head of the stretch with Una second forty yards in front of Mason, Coinage and Fay a length apart. Derby won easily by three lengths, Una second, Mason a bad third, Free Coinage fourth and Fay last. Time, 2:24¼. Mutuals paid $15 90.

Time, 3:14.

First heat. Pools sold slowly until Goldsmith was seen behind Antevano when some lively selling took place at $30 Maudee, $20 Antevano and $7 for the field. When a start was made Mandee cut out the work round the closely followed by Leoline and Antevano, turning into the backstretch Maudee had three lengths lead of Leoline who broke and was passed by Antevano who caught Maudee at the three-eighth pole and passing her before the half had the pole and three lengths lead round the upper turn. Maudee closed up half way down the stretch and a pretty race took place, Antevano broke forty yards from the wire and Maudee immediately followed suit. Goldsmith got the colt down before the wire winning by half a length with the filly on a run. Leoline was a bad third just clear of Kafir. Time, 2:34. Mutuals paid $13.90.

Second heat. With Bayliss driving Maudee she sold choice at $25 to $30 for the field. When the word was given Goldsmith was going a shade in front, Mandee crowded him hard round the turn and he left his feet but caught handily and trotting fast was two lengths in front of Maudee at the quarter with Leoline four lengths back, two lengths in front of Kafir. Antevano increased the pace up the back stretch and passed the half two lengths in front of Maudee while Leoline was fifty yards behind and an open length in front of Kafir. Maudee left her feet round the turn in her effort to keep up with Antevano who led her seven lengths into the stretch, and though Bayliss persevered with her the heat was never in danger and Goldsmith slowed down to let the tail end of the procession in, winning in a jog by three lengths, Maudee second, Leoline third and Kafir fourth, the two latter barely inside. Time, 2:33. Mutuals paid $9.60.

Third heat. The pace occupied the attention of bettors and little attention was paid to the trot. Goldsmith was in the lead round the turn but breaking lost his place to Maudee who led four lengths past the quarter with Antevano six in front of Leoline. Antevano broke all to pieces on the backstretch and Maudee went past the half twenty lengths in front of him and going steadily won the heat, pulling up by six lengths, Antevano second and Kafir a bad third, Leoline who broke badly distanced. Time, 2:37.

Fourth heat. Pools sold readily at the field to $15 Maudee. When the word was given Maudee and Antevano trotted well together to the turn when Antevano broke all to pieces and Maudee passed the quarter seventy yards in front of the pair who were level. Maudee, never headed, won in a jog, Antevano a bad second. Time, 2:39. Mutuals paid $9.60.

Fifth heat—Maudee bent away quickest, and trotting well, led four lengths at the quarter and increased it to six at the half. Goldsmith reduced the gap to two lengths at the head of the stretch, and driving vigorously, was on even terms fifty yards from the wire when his colt broke, and Bayliss won the heat and race, Antevano second, Kafir a bad third. First heat—Pools sold rapidly at $30 Rupee to $10 for Hummer and $7 for the field. A start was effected the second time up. Princess Alice, on the inside, cut out the work round the turn, with Hummer and Rupee in close attendance. Hummer closed up at the quarter, which was passed head and head by Princess and Hummer, with Rupee three lengths back, and six lengths in front of Sunrise. Hummer slowly but surely paced away from Princess, having two lengths the best of it at the half in 1:09, with Rupee four lengths back. Round the turn Princess and Rupee closed the gap a little, but Princess broke just before the stretch, and swerving in front of Rupee, broke him up, and Hummer won the heat in a jog by five lengths. Rupee second and Sunrise a bad third, just in front of Princess. Time, 2:21¼. Mutuals paid $21.

Second heat—Rupee still sold favorite at $25 to $10 for Hummer and $2 for the field. The word was given the third time up. Hummer and Rupee went right out, the Sidney pacer having a length the best of it to the quarter and almost two lengths at the half. Rupee closed up round the turn, and after a tight finish, won the heat by a neck, Hummer second, Princess Alice, who broke when seven lengths behind the leaders in the stretch, finished fourth, three lengths behind Sunrise, who was fifty yards behind Rupee. Time, 2:20. Mutuals paid $7.90.

Third heat—Pools sold slowly $25 Rupee to $8 for the whole field. A start was effected at the second attempt. Rupee, Hummer and Princess was the order round the turn. At the three-eighths pole all three were level with Sunrise three lengths back. Rupee, however, drew away again, and staying in front all the rest of the way, won easily by two lengths, Sunrise getting second place and Hummer third. Time, 2:23½. Mutuals paid $7.00.

Fourth heat—It was a quarter to seven when the horses came out for what proved to be the final heat of the race. No pools were sold as the race was deemed to be all over and the pool sellers had gone to town. When the word was given Princess went away very fast and took the pole on the turn, leading Rupee two lengths past the quarter with Hummer third. At the end of the next furlong Rupee and Princess Alice were level two lengths in front of the other pair also level. The pace told on the Princess who tired perceptibly, and Rupee went on in front, turning into the stretch two lengths in front of Sunrise, just clear of Hummer and Princess. Sunrise made a gallant effort to get the heat, and splendidly handled by Buster, was only beaten a neck by Rupee—all out, Hummer six lengths back third and Princess a bad fourth. Time, 2:26.

FRIDAY.

The morning opened out in great shape, the cattle parade and horse judging occupying the morning. Among the cattle department, particular notice was taken of the grand exhibits of Holsteins by F. H. Burke and President J. H. White, while the Shorthorn exhibits and the Jerseys came in for many favorable encomiums, as did the Devons and the Polled cattle, there being an excellent display of all classes and breeds of horned and hornless cattle.

The afternoon programme included three running races: a special trot, a vaquero exhibition, and a ladies' riding tournament. The first race, a mile and a half dash, had three starters. The backers made Wild Oats a red hot favorite on the strength of his good run behind Tycoon at Napa, while a few pinned their hopes on Captain Al, who ran a slashing race when he was only just beaten by Tycoon at Napa in the mile and a quarter in 2:08; Hotspur was almost friendless. Captain Al, who carried 6½ pounds over-weight, ran under a strong pull behind Wild Oats all the way, and it looked as though he could have won had Hennessy ridden him a little more vigorously in the stretch.

The second race was a walkover for Alfarata, while the third proved a gift for Boot's Duke of Milpitas, who acted much better than he did at San Jose, and fairly romped home under a strong pull.

Three ladies turned out for the tournament, and after the usual exercises, the fair equestriennes were pulled up before the judges, Messrs. Lot D. Slocum, J. H. White and W. H. Coombs. The premiums were announced by Mr. La Rue in a neat speech, Mrs. C. B. Ware taking first prize, Miss Murphy second prize and Mrs. D. McGovern third.

The local trot was supposed to lie between the three-year-old Moss Rose, who is one of the two paid up nominations in the Occident Stake to be trotted at Sacramento, and Poco Tiempo, but Mr. Hinkle put that artistic driver Dan Dennison behind his well bred stallion Whalebone by Inca, dam by John Nelson; grandam by Henry Belmont; great grandam by Skylark, out of a Sir Archy mare, and the old Salmon fisher—as an enlightened spectator called Dan—roused the horse up in such good shape that he won in straight heats amidst a furore of applause, principally for Dennison, who is a past master in the art of handling horses of the class that require a little delicate playing with their mouth. The happiest man in town that night was J. B. Hinkle, the owner, who says if they had only trotted another hour or so, Whalebone would have gone in the 2:30 list.

Between heats of the trotting races the vaquero exhibition was given, the first act was very fair, the untamed steed being an old spoiled horse who bucked very easily for forty yards or so, and then settled down. The second act resulted in a miserable fiasco, as the wild Texas steer proved to be a gentle milch cow which refused to get up after being thrown and tied while the fierce bareback rider got on to her broad back.

Judges—H. M. La Rue, H. Meecham and R. Crane.

One mile and a half—Three horses faced the starter for the race, Captain Al, the three-year-old, carrying 111½ pounds, 6½ pounds overweight, while Wild Oats carried 115 and Hotspur 118. Pools sold very lively the night before at $25 Wild Oats to $10 Captain Al and $2 Hotspur, but when betting began on the track, Wild Oats men backed him so heavily that he sold for $50 to $7 for Captain Al and $2 for Hotspur. The flag was dropped by starter Coombs the first time the trio came up, Wild Oats set the pace, with Captain Al under a strong pull, second. The order was unchanged all the way, Wild Oats leading two lengths past the half mile, having then gone a mile in 1:44¾, with Hotspur six lengths behind. Captain Al closed up in the stretch, and Murphy had to rouse Wild Oats to win by a neck from Captain Al, who was not ridden out as hard as he might have been. Hotspur finished four lengths back. Time, 2:39¾. Mutuals paid $6 55.

SECOND RACE, SIX FURLONGS.

Three horses again faced the starter, W. Appleby entering Alfarata while Orville Appleby entered her three-year-old sister Juniata and Dennison had the two-year-old Minnie B., who carried thirteen pounds overweight. Pools sold slowly, Alfarata readily bringing $25 to $5 for the field when it could be found. The flag was dropped at the second attempt with all three well under way. Alfarata being a shade quickest on her legs jumped away in front but was caught by Minnie B. ere fifty yards had been run and the pair ran locked together to the turn, when the two-year-old tired and fell back, Alfarata leading into the stretch and galloping on, romped home four lengths in front. Juniata came up on the outside and beat Minnie cleverly by a short length for the place. Time, 1:17¼. Mutuals paid $5.75.

THIRD RACE, SIX FURLONGS, FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

Three two-year olds faced the starter and pools which had been selling at $25 for the Duke of Milpitas to $10 for the field, closed at $25 to $6. The flag fell at the first attempt with the Duke a little in front and running with his head pulled into his chest led by a length all the way to the stretch, Acclaim being a neck in front of Mero. Wilson let the colt stride on down the stretch and he won in a common canter by three lengths, Mero beating Acclaim by four lengths for the place. Time, 1:17¼. Mutuals paid $7.

FOURTH RACE, SPECIAL TROT.

First heat—The local talent now had their innings, before the first heat all the horses were sold out, Poco Tiempo selling choice $20, while Moss Rose brought $16 and the others $6 each. A start was readily effected the third time up; Moss Rose led round the turn but breaking was passed by Poco Tiempo and Whalebone driven by the inimitable Dan Dennison, Poco Tiempo turned into the backstretch three lengths in front of Whalebone, two in front of Moss Rose, four ahead of Kafir. Dan touched up his well bred son of Inca and was only a length behind at the half and got level on the turn when Whalebone wobbled but kept his place and Poco Tiempo breaking badly Dan went on with Whalebone winning the heat cleverly by five lengths, Poco Tiempo second, forty yards in front of Moss Rose, with Kafir and May Day just inside. Time, 2:40. Mutuals paid $42.75 on Poco Tiempo; no ticket sold on Whalebone.

Second heat.—Pools now settled down $20 for the field to $10 each for Poco Tiempo and Whalebone. After scoring up several times the word was given with all going well. Moss Rose was well in front to the turn when she broke and Whalebone went to the front passing the quarter two lengths in front of Moss Rose with Kafir six lengths behind and Poco Tiempo, who had broken, a length further back. Despite a break Dan had increased his lead to five lengths at the half, with Moss Ross second, seven lengths in front of Kafir and May Day 30 yards in front of Poco Tiempo. Dennison kept Whalebone going all the way round the turn and though Moss Rose came fast in the stretch she could never get in front and breaking fifty yards from the wire lost heat by two lengths, Kafir three lengths back third and Poco Tiempo who had come fast in the stretch a good fourth. Time, 2:37¾. Mutuals paid, $17.95.

Third heat—Pools sold readily now with Whalebone choice at $25 to $5 for Poco Tiempo and $10 for the field. After scoring up for nine or ten times the word was given with Moss Rose half a length in front, and going well she took the pole before the eighth, when she was five lengths in front of Whalebone. The latter closed up a little and was only three lengths behind at the quarter, with Kafir six lengths further back, a length in front of May Day and Poco Tiempo five lengths back last. Dennison closed up to Shaner before the half, and though Whalebone broke just after the three-eights was passed, they were head and head going round the turn, when Moss Rose broke all to pieces and the stallion won in a jog by thirty yards amidst a storm of applause for Dennison. Kafir finished second a length in front of May Day with Poco Tiempo a bad fourth and Moss Rose barely inside. Time, 2:34¼. Mutuals paid $9 30.

SATURDAY.

The closing day of the fair was one of the most successful days in the history of the Petaluma fair. Enormous crowds turned out all morning long in the park to look over with a critical eye the successful exhibits among horses and cattle which were paraded on the track, and may safely be said to be of an unprecedentedly high order. The afternoon programme was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen on the Petalnma race track. The judges were President J. H. White, R. S. Brown and H. Mecham. Timers, H. J. Agnew, E. B. Gifford and W. Corbitt.

The first race for the 2:24 class resulted in a downfall for the talent, as Mary Lon, the rankest outsider of the five won first money after five heats had been trotted. Goldsmith made a complaint that Mary Lon had broken too often, and certainly had a strong case, all the drivers in the race agreeing that she had, but the judges decided against Goldsmith who would probably have won the race, his mare having come out very fresh in the last heat and trotted in very good form all through the heat. The two year old stake was a walk over for Vida Wilkes who is a remarkably pure gaited, rapid, resolute trotter, and her last mile in 2:28½ is much more creditable than one would imagine, as there was a strong wind blowing against her all the way up the back stretch.

The last race of the day was an easy thing for George Washington who put all three heats in better than 2:30 and should lower his record several notches before the season is over.

Between the second and third heats of the 2:24 trot, Capt. B. E. Harris had a side show on the track in front of the grand stand. Captain Harris bet Rufus Murphy $100 that his bay colt foal by Redwood, dam Lena Bowles, was better than Jas. Wiscarver's brown colt foal by Redwood, dam by Bell Alta. The judges, Lee Shaner, James Longhlin, Dr. Finlaw and Mark West decided that Lena Bowles' colt won the money. He is a very handsome gentlemanly colt while the other is more of the big useful order.

Pools sold very lively at $30 for Flora Belle, $15 for Pink, $10 Wanda, and $8 for the other two as a field. President White gave the word the first time up and all five went away in good shape, Flora Belle going very fast took the pole on the turn and turned into the back stretch three lengths in front of Wanda with Pink and Mary Lon three lengths further back and Redwood ten lengths in the rear. Flora increased her lead and passed the half four lengths in front with the others in the same order except that Redwood had dropped still further back. Around the upper turn Wanda closed up a little nearer the leader and when fairly straightened out in the stretch, rapidly caught her, and Goldsmith's mare broke at the distance, leaving Wanda to win the heat easily by six lengths, Mary Lon getting second place from Pink who broke at the half distance, Flora Belle fourth and Redwood who trotted the last half very fast, fifth. Time, 2:22¾. Mutuals paid $12.35.

Second heat.—Pools sold in much the same way as before the first heat, despite Belle's defeat she sold choice at $20 to $15 Pink, $10 to Wanda and $8 the field. The word was again given the first time up Pink being a length behind. Flora Belle broke before the first turn was reached and Wanda cut out the work turning into the back stretch three lengths in front of Pink, four ahead of Mary Lon, two in front of Belle same in advance of Redwood. Pink closed up a little at the half while Flora Belle also crawled up to Mary Lon. Round the upper turn Flora Belle passed Mary Lou and joined Pink following Wanda into the stretch, but under a hard drive Pink broke at the furlong pole and Flora Belle finished second, three lengths behind Wanda who won easily; Redwood came with a rush getting third place by a head from Mary Lou with Pink close up. Time, 2:24. Mutuals paid $11.95.

Third heat—Pools now sold readily with Wanda choice at $25 to $7 for Flora Belle, $6 for Pink and $5 for the field. A start was made the fifth time up. Wanda going away fast led round the turn with Mary Lon on her wheel. Mary broke on the turn and Wanda drew out, passing the quarter two lengths in front of Pink and Mary Lon with Flora Belle half a length back and seven lengths in front of Redwood. The half was passed in about the same order; round the upper turn Flora Belle and Pink drew closer up to Wanda, and when fairly in the stretch Wanda quit badly and Flora Belle looked a winner all over, but Pink and Mary Lou came again in a rattle, Mary winning the heat by a head from Pink, who was going much faster, Flora Belle three lengths back third, Wanda a moderate fourth and Redwood last. Time, 2:22¼. Mutuals paid $26 65.

Fourth heat—Pools now sold Field $20, Pink $17, Wanda $7 and Flora Belle $4. After scoring up half a dozen times the word was given. Mary Lou led to the turn when she broke, and Pink took the lead, passing the quarter three lengths in front, Lou second three lengths in front of Flora with Wanda the same distance back and Redwood who broke before the quarter six lengths behind. Mary Lon trotted very steadily up the backstretch, being only half a length behind at the half, with Flora G ten lengths further back, four lengths in front of Wanda, ten in advance of Redwood. Pink went out of the backstretch three lengths in front of Lou, who closed up and was about level at the head of the stretch when she broke, and Pink looked a sure winner, but leaving her feet in a wild plunging break at the drawgate she was beaten four lengths by Mary Lon, Wanda a bad third, Flora Belle fourth and Redwood just outside. Time, 2:25. Mutuals paid $20.90.

Fifth heat—Pools sold slowly at $25 Mary Lon to $9 for the field, Pink, who went to the stable very lame, came out fairly sound. At the sixth time the word was given with Flora Belle a little behind; Mary Lou broke on the turn and Pink took the lead, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Mary Lon, and Flora a length in front of Wanda. Mary Lon broke just after passing the quarter, and Flora followed suit, the latter caught readily while Flora dropped back. Mary Lon broke again at the three furlong pole and Pink drew out, passing the half two lengths in front of Wanda with Lou at her collar and Flora tbree length back. Goldsmith sharpened Flora up, and going with astonishing rapidity she passed the others on tbe turn and led tbree lengths into the stretch, Mary Lou doing a little sprinting at the head of the stretcb, Pink second two lengths in front of Lou who broke on the turn, and Wanda last. Goldsmith drove one of the bardest races of bis life down tbe stretch, punishing the black mare severely and yet keeping her down, but Mary Lon gradually caught him and won tbe heat by a head, Pink third broken up and Wanda fourth pumped out. Goldsmitb made a big effort to have the rule enforced about a horse breaking but tbe heat was given to Lou. Time, 2:24. Mutuals paid $9.10.

TWO YEAR OLD TROTTING.

First beat. No pools were sold, in fact had not Goldsmith waived distance Capt. Harris would not have started his filly. The race was merely a procession, as Goldsmitb led by a hundred yards at tbe quarter and as his filly broke he pulled her up and went slowly past the half and round tbe turn coming down the stretcb at a rapid gait won by 200 yards. Time. 2:43½.

Second heat. Vida Wilkes trotted in grand shape without skip or break, passing the quarter in .36, half in 1.15, six furlongs in 1.52½ and tbe mile in 2 28¼. Starlight, who had no kind of a gait, 270 yards back. Time, 2.28½.

Time, 2:43½, 2:28½.

First beat. Pools sold very evenly, Flora G. being choice at $20 while Wasbington and Ned Locke brougbt $19 each, and Cora G. $10. After a few attempts tbe word was given, going round tbe turn the pacer Cora G. was the only steady one and she passed the quarter two lengths in front of Ned Locke, three in front of Flora, five in front of Washington, who had made a bad break. Flora broke badly and fell behind while Ned Locke joined Cora and Washington closed tbe gap. Passing the balf the order was, Cora C. and Locke head and head, Wasbington four lengths back. ten in front of Flora. Ned Locke wobbled a little on tbe turn but retained his place into the stretch when be broke badly and Cora looked an easy winner, but Washington collared ber a furlong from home and beat her cleverly by a length, Ned Locke a moderate third and Flora G. last. Time, 2:27¼.

Second heat—Pools sold at a big rate; Wasbington $100, Cora C. $25, and the other pair as a field $6. The third time up tbe word was given witb Flora G. off her feet and she did not get steadied until well round the turn. Washington was then leading but breaking badly dropped back last. At the quarter Ned Locke and Cora were head and head three lengtbs in front of Flora, the same distance in front of Wasbington. Flora made a disastrous break and was passed by Wasbington who went in pursuit of Locke and Cora, who passed the half a neck apart tbree lengths in front of him, with Flora seven lengtbs bebind. Cora broke all to pieces on the turn and Ned Locke turned into the stretch three lengths in front of Washington with Cora fifteen lengtbs behind, just clear of Flora G. Washington caught Locke a furlong from home and had him tip-toeing all the way while tbe bay horse trotting very steadily went on, winning easily by four lengths, Flora G. beating Cora a head for third place, fifteen lengths behind second horse. Time, 2:28½. Mutuals paid $6.90.

Tbird heat.—No pools sold. After scoring up several times the word was given with Wasbington in tbe lead but the bay stallion set the pace too hot and left his feet in a bad break on the turn, being passed by Flora and Cora who passed the quarter with Washington third and Ned Locke fourtb at intervals of three lengths. Wasbington struck a speedier gait on the backstretch and passed Cora, while just after the balf Flora left her feet and Wasbington went round the turn two lengths in front, and turned into tbe stretch going easy three lengtbs in tbe lead. The race was all over as Washington won in a jog by four lengths, Flora G. second and twenty yards back were Cora C. and Ned Locke, tbe latter getting third place after a tight finish. Time, 2:28.

Every person in Russia who has a horse is obliged to have a certificate of ownership. If a horse is sold, this certificate must be produced and transferred to the name of the purhaser. The one who sells a horse is to be responsible for its good condition, and be must return the purchase money and pay a fine if he deceives the buyer in his representations of its age or health. If a diseased animal is sold and infects the purchaser's cattle, the seller must psy all damages and be tried before a criminal court. How would tbat work in this country? There certsinly are advantages in the requirements, and it would be bad on horse-thieves and other dishonest persons.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The name of Flaxtail can hardly be mentioned among a small group of horsemen without exciting ridicule. A few facts of record give that mncb abused horse a bigh place among sires of broad mares, and show also that greatest and most valuable quality desired by men starting into tbe bnsiness of "trotting horse breeding" viz., "the power of breed on," as the following table will show:

Empress has been trained and kept ont of the stud some of her years but has now yonng produce that will place her on a par with her sisters. I think the above figures are all the comments necessary—bnt I will add—I think I am not wrong in saying—that "Electioneer" is the only sire in whose descendants can be found so many record breakers. H.

TURF AND TRACK.

The Fall trotting meeting at St. Louis has been declared off, as the horsemen would not go to that city.

George Taylor has been re-engaged for next season by Pierre Lorillard. his salary being, it is stated, $7,500.

B. C. Holly has given up working St. Patrick, and the speedy pacer will he sent back to Montana without reducing his record.

J. B. Hinkle will send Whalebone, who won a special race at Petalnma last week, into Dan Dennison's stable, and Dan will probably give him a record before fall.

The three-years-old Sacramento by Joe Hooker, from Ada C. has been added to the list. Fred Ross has the gelding, and other two of Senator Hearst's horses in training at Oakland.

James McLaughlin, who retires from the Rancocas Stable with the close of the present racing season, will train next year for Phil. J. Dwyer & Son. John Huggins, who trained for A. J. Cassatt, will succeed McLaughlin at Rancocas.

The stakes of the New York Jockey Club that closed Aug. 15 received numerous entries, as witness this; Juvenile, 185; Great Eclipse, 265; Nursery, 230; Withers, 196; Belmont, 171; Ladies' 173; Hunting, 97; Jerome, 228; Manhattan Handicap, 41; Champagne Stakes, 37.

The great stallions, Simmocolon and Pamlico, are driven with a pole running from the side of the sulky sest to the end of the thill, this contrivance being to keep a horse from twisting when he makes a break. Pamlico is even worse than Simmicolon, as he has a pair of them.

One of the features of the annual meeting of the New England Association of the Trotting Horse Breeders at Mystic Park was the exhibit of the Messrs. Briggs Maple Stock Farm, Auburn, Me., the principal attraction being Warrener, the tall brother to Sunol, whose stall was surrounded by crowds of interested spectators.

At Helena last week, the Derby was won by W. H. Babb's Guido, Double Cross—Aurora; Montana by Story out of Vega finished second. Guido was a hot favorite and won easily at the finish. The three-year-old also won the Last Chance Handicap, 1¼ miles, carrying 121 pounds, Olympia 105 lbs.. second. Time, 2:11.

Cy Mulkey continues to win races with Sinfax who last week won the Pioneer Stakes, value $1000, at Helena, Mont; the Wildidle colt carried 122 lbs. while his two opponents carried 110 lbs. each, yet he won in a canter in 1:18 which time has never been beaten since the race was originated in 1880, though Nevada in 1887 and Jubilee in 1888 ran in the same notch.

Blue Bull, though a fast pacer from the first, met with an accident that shattered one of his knees. His first experience in stud service was as a teaser for a jack. Occasionally a mare would be brought to a jack which was not thought fit to raise a good mule, and she was mated with Blue Bull, whose fee was then $5. Blue Bull now ranks second to the renowned George Wilkes as a sire of 2:30 performers.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club is building some new stables in the Gravesend corner of the track. Even with the addition, says an exchange, the stable accommodation will not come up to the demand, so popular is the Gravesend track with the fraternity of horse owners. The railing down the backstretch, which was taken up to widen the track, has been replaced, and a top dressing of sand has made a vast improvement to the going, especially in wet weather.

On Tuesday, of last week, at Helena, Mont., Pete Williams' well bred three-year-old won the 2:34 class in straight heats, Time, 2:29½, 2:27½: 2:26½.

Silver Bow 11708 is by Robert McGregor 647 dam Sadie by Ryadyk's Hambletonian from Lady Wynne by William Welch 341, etc., he made a very successful stud season at Oakland this spring, and judging from what we saw of him is sure to go very low down before next spring. Williams is said to have made a killing in the race as he sold third choice in the pools.

Horse stealing is getting to be rather common in some sections of Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. Several horses have been stolen within a few miles of Pittsburg, and from the way the work is done and the selections are made it looks as if there was a band of organized thieves plying their trade. Two or three good horses have been stolen from farmers near Canton, Ohio, within the past month. A vigilance committee would be a good organization under such circumstances.

Remember that fancy prices are only obtained for fancy horses, if you expect to get the top of the market you must have the best kind of horses to offer. The only way to get the best is to begin aright by breeding good mares to good stallions. One man can raise valuable horses as well as another. There is no patent or copy-right upon raising good stock of any kind. The trouble is that too many breeders are too economical in selecting stallions to breed. They let the penny before their eye hide the dollar in the distance.

In answer to the question: "Is it true you are going to sell your stable?" Mr. Haggin answered: "I shall sell some of my youngsters, most probably," was the answer, "but that I am going to sell my broodmares and my good ones you can most distinctly contradict. In so far as Salvator and Firenzi are concerned, I will never part with them. When their racing days are over they will have their home on the Rancho del Paso, and, if I live long enough, have a royal home and a great burial in the homestead. Naturally I am proud of owning the champion mare and stallion of America, and I think of the world."

The Canadian Live Stock Journal is authority for the following remarkable statement concerning the relative value of ground oats and cut hay, and whole oats and uncut hay: "The London Omnibus Company found that 3,000 horses fed on sixteen pounds of ground oats, seven and one half pounds of cut hay, and one-half pound of cut straw, did as much work as another 3 000 fed on nineteen pounds of whole oats and thirteen pounds of uncut hay; thus saving by grinding the grain and cutting the feed, six pounds of feed per day, or a saving in the feeding of 6,000 horses amounting to $300 per day.

Among the Australian horses brought to California by J. K. Newton was Fergus by imp Fergus, dam imp Alsace. The four year old who is now owned by Mr. Maxwell has run unsuccessfully in eight races on the Eastern tracks, has been added to the list and sent to the owner's farm in Virginia.

An old German farmer named Herman Ruhl, who has occupied a small farm near Bloomingdale, a suburb of Fort Wayne, Ind., died the 3d of August in horrible agony. Some time ago he was driving a horse when the animal coughed and blew the expectoration into the face of his driver. Last week Ruhl's face became literally encrusted with small pimples, and these spread all over his body until he eventually became a mass of corrupting sores. Medical science was of no avail. Dr. Jansen, a local physician, says that death was due to blood poisoning, caused by the obnoxious matter from the horse becoming absorbed in the man's system. It is supposed that the animal was suffering from glanders.

Reno Onward ch c by Onward, dam of King Rene, has been sold by Church Bros, Frankfort, Ky., to Clayton Bros., Virden, Ill., for $1,500. Billy Redd b c yearling, has been sold by France and Son, Fayette County, to G. F. Clark, London, O., for $3,500. He is by Red Wilkes, dam Columbus by Dixon. Strong Boy gr c, 3-year-old, by Alleudorf dam Bashaw Belle, by Green's Bashaw, has been sold by Dr. L. Herrick to J. J. Bright, Point Pleasant, W. Va. for $5,000. Nutford br h, 5-years-old by Nutwood, dam Moss Rose by Woodford Mambrino has been sold by Whipple and Huidekopper, Meadville, Pa., to Darnell Bros., Flemington, Ky., for $6,000.

A very stringent law is proposed in Russia to prevent horse stealing, which might be copied in this country. It proposes that every owner of a horse must take a certificate from the police or from the authorities of his rural district attesting his rightful ownership. If a horse is sold this certificate must be produced and transferred to the name of the purchaser. The one who sells a horse is to be held responsible for his good condition, and he must return the purchase money and pay a fine if he deceives the buyer in his representations of its age or health. If a diseased animal is sold and infects the purchaser's stock, the seller must pay all damages and be tried before a criminal court. The certificate part of this law has often been proposed as an effectual method for stopping ringing.

At the Mexico, Mo. fair the last three heats in the 2:22 pace were taken by a mare called Sunshine, and an exchange says in describing the race: At every heat won by Sunshine there was a terrible uproar in the colored quarters of the grand stand. The judges, timers, starter and reporters were not in the secret, but when the race was completed Willis Johnson, a colored man, past middle life, bounded into the track in front of the grand stand and with hat off addressed the judges as follows: "Gentlemen, I raised that old mar', and I want to say right here that she is the only animal raised around here that ever jumped out and won a race. I was too poor to keep her and sold her for $185. Have another at home that $10,000 won't buy. I is very proud of Sunshine." And he strolled away to take another look at her.

The Belgian Jockey Club has warned J. Barker off all Belgian race courses for life, and Colonel Charles Einstein for two years, and Rhodante has been disqualified for the latter period. Societe Des Steeplechase de France has extended these sentences to all the meetings under its control. July 29, at Spa, Rhodante was beaten in the Prix De Rallye Ardenne Steeplechase under such circumstances that the stewards declared all bets on the race void. Charley Einstein is a Philadelphian, who settled in New York, where he married a sister of Jacob Iless. His brother Edward was a Republican member of Congress from New York City under Garfield's administration. Charles Einstein had a Consular appointment at Stuttgart and Wurtemberg, Jockey Barker, who was mixed up with him in this scrape, is a bad egg, and was several times suspended on the English turf.

Ex-Gov. Bowie announced on the 25th of August that he will retire permanently from the turf. His physicians have told him that he could no longer stand the ex itement incident to racing and retain his health. Referring to the sale of his stable to Sire Bros. of New York City, which includes Belle d'Or, Vosburgh, Alarm Bell, Blackwood, Mirthwood, the Twilight colt, Catamaran, Tennessean, Lordlike, Fairy and Belle Meade, he said: "It was like drawing out my eye teeth to see them go, but it had to be done." There are still about twenty yearlings and two-year olds at the Governor's farm, Fairview, in Prince George's county, which will be sold in the fall. The Governor proposes to retain his stallions and mares for breeding purposes. For old acquaintance sake, too, he retains the famous old gelding Crickmore. The news of Gov. Bowie's retirement causes a widespread feeling of regret in the vicinity, even though the stable has been of no particular account of late years. Marylanders have always felt an interest in the red and white colors of the Fairview Stable, which has done more in the past to bring Maryland to the front as a thoroughbred-raising State than any other stable owned here. Gov. Bowie was President of the Maryland Jockey Club from the time of its organization until its dissolution about a year ago.

Unless a horse has brains you can't teach him, says the "Medical Classics." See that tall hay there, a fine looking animal, fifteen hands high. You can't teach that horse anything. Why? Well, I'll show a difference in heads, but have a care of his heels. Look at the brute's head, that rounding nose, that tapering forehead, that broad full place before the eyes. You can't trust him. That's an awful good mare as true as the sun. You can see breadth and fullness between the ears and eyes. You couldn't hire that mare to act mean or hurt anybody. The eye should be full; and hazel is a good color. I like a horse with a small, thin ear, and want him to throw his ears well forward. Look out for the brute that wants to listen to all conversation going on behind him. The horse that turns back his ears till they almost meet at the points, take my word for it, is sure to do something wrong. See that straight, elegant face. A horse with a dishing face is cowardly, and a cowardly brute is usually vicious. Then I like a square muzzle, with large nostrils, to let plenty of air to the lungs. For the underside of the head, a good horse should be well cut under the jowl, with jawbones broad and wide apart under the throttle. The next thing to consider is the build of the animal. Never buy a long-legged, stilted horse. Let him have a short straight back and a straight rump, and you've got a gentleman's horse. The withers should be high and the shoulders well set back and broad, but don't get them too deep in the chest. The foreleg should be short. Give me a pretty straight hind leg, with the hock low down, short pastern joints and a round mulish foot. There are all kinds of horses, but the animal that has these points is almost sure to be sightly, graceful, good-natured, serviceable.

In former years, says the Louisville Commercial, when racing was not so popular as it is at the present day, nearly every horse was inspected in the paddock by the race-goers before deciding upon which horse to back. Every admirer and backer of the animals was a horseman, and they were capable of judging of a horse's condition, to some extent, by his appearance. Natural love for the flyers caused people to attend races in those days, and they made a special study of an animal's peculiarities and good points. They bet on the result of the races, but they did not go to the track solely to speculate. Of the present crowd that throngs the betting ring, swear and perspire as they shove each other about in their efforts to place their money, few ever think of visiting the paddock. Their visit might be useless, however, for the average race-goer nowadays would not be benefited by an inspection of the animals, for he would only have a mediocre knowledge of their condition after a thorough inspection. The jockey, in the present generation of turlites, is entitled to their attention, and they put as much confidence in the wielder of the raw-hide as they do in the animal himself.

The members of the Oakland Driving Association had a very enjoyable reunion at the Oakland Trotting Park last Saturday. The members and lady friends turned out en masse and took great interest in the proceedings. The first race for pacers was won in straight heats by Washington, admirably handled by his owner Dr. Walker.

The closing event of the day was a nearest to five-minute race, for which ten or a dozen entered in rigs of all descriptions. L. Morley won first prize in a road cart, while John Crehhin, assisted by his better half, in a top buggy, won second in 4:57.

The Newmarket Sunday Call presents a curious case in its issue of last Sunday. "A. B and C have colts entered in the class for two-year-olds. C represents himself as being in a bad way financially, and very doubtful of winning anything with his colt, which he asserts is dead lame. He makes his woes known to A as follows: 'I am dead broke; have not a dollar in the world; I cannot pay for my feed, as my last dollar was paid out on the third payment and on the freight of my colt to this place; the colt is dead lame, and I am sure I shall be shut out if I start; I would like to have third money guaranteed me, so that if I am distanced I will he able to get my colt home; in fact, I will agree to be distanced the first heat if I am only assured third money; I am in hard luck.' A is kind hearted, and refers C to B, saying that if the latter agrees to give him third money he (A) will not object, and he (C) can be distanced or not, as he likes. B hears the story and is as kind hearted as A, and agrees that if C's colt is shut out (nolens volens) to give C third money. Both A and B assure C that they intend to win with their respective colts, if possible. It must be understood that without an arrangement of this kind the money of the distanced horse would revert to the horse which distanced him. C then said: 'My colt acts badly in company, and if she breaks she is likely to jump around the whole mile; you will do me a favor, if I am going level, not to come too close to me at first; let me have a little start.' This also was agreed to by A and B. The three score up for the word. C has the pole and is about two lengths ahead. Mindful of what C has said about getting too close to him on the start, A and B nod for the word. It is given, and away they go. As soon as C hears the word he settles himself low down in the sulky, takes careful hold of his colt, and urges it to its utmost endeavor. The colt responds gamely, and when the half-mile pole is reached the trick is as apparent as the sunlight. C is seventy five yards ahead of A and B, and driving with all the energy of which he is capable. A gentleman starts out from the crowd and, running down the stretch, calls out to A and B: 'Go on after that fellow; he's got it in for you.' It has already dawned on A and B what C's intentions were, and they are driving like mad. One hundred yards from the flag B broke his colt into a run in a vain effort to get past the distance-post before C reached the wire. Both A and B were behind the flag, and apparently the whole lamentation of C was a ruse, in order to get as much advantage in the start as possible. All the story of C, his poverty and-so-forth, except the condition of his colt, was known to be true by A and B. C's colt broke four times in the mile, and when told that the judges were not likely to distance A and B on account of the breaks, he went up in the stand and insisted that they should be distanced and urged that if another heat was trotted they might distance him. The judges, ignorant of the understanding which existed between the three, applied the rule and declared A and B distanced. These are the facts as told by two of the interested parties, and there is enough in it for an investigation. It may be said, on investigation, if the story is true, A and B were only the victims of their own folly. That may be; but if the details as narrated here are true in every particular, (and it is not affirmed here that they are), then A and B are to be condemned for their courtesy and fair-mindedness despite their folly, while C was guilty of a trick too mean and contemptible to be countenanced among an association of gentlemen who are supposed to do everything on the square,

The Helena Races.

About 700 people witnessed the opening races of the fair. It being pretty well understood that the exhibits in the various departments would not be anything like filled up until Monday, only those fond of racing attended, says the Journal. The weather was disagreeable, a chilly wind prevailing all afternoon.

The races were interesting and exciting. The talent won the running races, but the favorite in the trotting race was a follower instead of a racer. Yesterday was a poor day for record breaking. On account of the heavy wind the horses were compelled to face down the backstretch. The wind splitters took the lead in the gale, but coming home they were compelled to retire to the rear.

The two running races, while interesting events, resulted about as anticipated and created no surprise, but Homestake fooled the sports, and they all went broke. They put their money on Silver Bow even after it was plainly shown that Homestake was in to win. Lots of money was lost on Silver Bow.

The first event was the two furlongs for a purse of $200. The starters were: Bay Tom, owned by Brown & Blevins; Cyclone, owned by F. M. Starkey; Country Girl, owned by J. P. Sutton; Nettie S., owned by Baker & Parrott, and White Elm, owned by W. H. Black. Positions were drawn in the order named.

Nettie S. sold a hot favorite in the pools at $5. Cyclone sold readily at $3. The field sold for $1. It was quietly hinted that the field would win but it didn't. Full half an hour was lost at the post. While scoring Cyclone threw a shoe. It was quickly replaced. The horses finally got away with Nettie S. in the lead. Cyclone, Bay Tom, Country Girl and White Elm were strung out along the path in the above order. Bay Tom made a dash about half way down the stretch but availed nothing. The favorite was not headed and came under the wire a length ahead of Cyclone, with the others trailing in the same order as when they left the post. The time was 21¾, a half second short of the time made by Bab Wade at Butte when he beat the world's record. In this race the horses run with the wind. The Paris mutuals paid $9.

The second event on the card was the six furlong race. The starters were Eddie R., 110, owned by C. M. Tate; Tim Murphy, 120, owned by Cy Mulky; Olympia, 110, owned by Brown & Blevins and Roly Boly, 107, owned by Al Phelps. The talent won in this race as in the first, Tim Murphy sold for $30 in the pools, notwithstanding the weight he carried. Roly Boly sold for $10 and the field at $7. The field was eagerly sought as Olympia was regarded as a winner by not a few.

Olympia was ugly at the post and, as usual, delayed the start. He threw his jockey seven times before getting away. The bunch finally left the post with Eddie R in the lead, Roly Boly second, Tim Murphy third and Olympia fourth. Eddie R sst a fast pace as he shot down the backstretch in the face of a strong wind, but at the turn going out of the stretch Tim Murphy and Olympia pulled by the leaders. It looked like Olympia's race. The leaders made a pretty race coming home, but Tim Murphy won by half a neck. Time, 1:17. The mutuals paid $7:75.

The last race was the 2:28 trot, the half mile dash being postponed until Monday. The starters were Ben Williams, a Denver horse, owned by W. B. Williams; Homestake, owned by Ed Lafferty, and Silver Bow, owned by P. J. Williams, of Anaconda. Silver Bow is a well bred colt, being a son of Robert McGregor. He has done good work for a colt. He was put down for a dead sure winner, and sold away up in the pools, but those buying found to their sorrow that Homestake was too speedy for him.

Before the first heat he sold choice for $30. Homestake sold for $17 and Ben Williams for $2.

Ben Williams drew the pole and Silver Bow the outside. After scoring a few times they were off. The pole horse maintained the lead until turning out of the backstretch, when Homestakh displayed his ability as a trotter and passed him, making a gap of four lengths. Silver Bow soon closed the gap, passing Ben Williams and lapping the sulky of the leader.

"I knew he would finish all right," "See him come," and similar exclamations were heard from those who banked so heavily upon the McGregor colt, but the pace set by Homestake forced the favorite off his feet, when he shot by the leader, sending him into the air. The heat was given to Homestake, however with Silver Bow second and Ben Williams third. Time, 2:26¾. The mutuals paid $10.75.

The backers of Silver Bow were apparently not disheartened by the result of the first heat. When the pool selling commenced Silver Bow again sold favorite at $20 against the field at $10 with Homestake and Ben William in the field. They were again disappointed. Homestake went away from the post ahead of the other two and finished in the same position. Coming into the homestretch the Anaconda colt made a splendid spurt and forced the leader down the path at a fast clip, but the pace was too swift and he went off his feet. Homestake won by a length. Time, 2:27½. The mutuals paid $14.25.

When the pool selling commenced for the third heat the Silver Bow crowd switched and those who had any money left placed it on Homestake, selling at $15 against $5 for the field. On the send off Homestake again went to the front and staid there to the finish. The only time Silver Bow was near the winner was at the quarter pole. Homestake finished easily in 2:29. Following is the SECOND DAY.

The attendance at the races was much larger Monday than on Saturday. The weather was fine and the race was interesting. The talent led in every event and captured everything, not without a struggle, however. Leap Year had a walk away in the Nursery stakes for Montana 2-year-olds, making the second heat in 2:51¼. Ollie Benjamin won the mile dash, but under different circumstances the result might be somewhat different. Slow time was made in the Derby. Guido did not disappoint his admirers. He captured this event in 2:50. The 2:25 trot was interesting and exciting. The favorites were compelled to set a swift pace to keep in the lead. The best time made was 2:24½, made by Marquis. The half mile dash, postponed from Saturday, has been declared off because it had not been filled. Three starters were in Saturday, but before the race was called one horse had withdrawn. This caused a great deal of disappointment because of the well matched horses entered.

The first event on the card yesterday was the Nursery stake race for 2-year-olds, bred and raised in Montana. Purse of $50 each, $500 added by the association. Two in three heats. The starters were Mountain Maid b f by Kentucky Volunteer, dam Dolores, owned by Huntley & Clarke; Leap Year b f by Tempest dam Eulogy, owned by Ike Moorehouse; Locust ch g by Com Belmont dam Grace H., owned by W. H. Raymond. This race was devoid of interest because of the superiority of Leap Year. The other colts were too highly overmatched to make a race. Locust was shut out the first mile. Leap Year sold as high as $50 in the pools, Montana Maid at $10 and Locust $2. The mutuals paid $7.45.

The mile dash for runners, three-year-olds and upwards attracted considerable attention, and lots of money went into the pool box. This race savored not a little of unfairness, and those acquainted with the merits of the horses say it was not run on the square. It was evident that but little effort was made by the jockeys on the followers to rush to the front. The starters were Circle J, b m, 89 pounds, pedigree not given, owned by W. H. Babb; Gold Bar, ch c, 107 lbs., by Onandago, dam by King Bar, owned by Sam Hanley, and Ollie Benjamin, b g, 114 lbs., by Springhok, dam Minnie, owned by Carlisle & Shields. Ollie Benjamin sold a hot favorite at $30 and $40. Gold Bar sold second choice on the start, but some one got a hunch on Circle J and bought her for second choice, when everybody switched and Gold Bar sold third at $3, Circle J selling at $9. Benjamin was finally barred from the pools and the other two sold about even up. Gold Bar was put down at 92 pounds, but carried 107 pounds. The horses got away from the post with Circle J in the lead. At the quarter Gold Bar forged ahead, and the two went around to the head of the stretch side by side, with the favorite trailing. Coming into the stretch Benjamin's rider commenced to apply the whip and crowded ahead. To the spectators it looked very much like a little exertion on the part of the other jockeys would have placed their mounts ahead at the outcome, but Benjamin won, a great murmur of dissatisfaction being heard in the grand stand. The mutuals paid $6. Time, 1:20½.

The Derby stakes, one mile and a half, were captured by Guido in 2:50. This was for colts foaled in 1887, for a guaranteed stake of $1,000. No one was surprised at the outcome of this event. Guido was in to win. The Derby closed Mar. 1st with sixteen nominations, but only the following horses started: Ladago, b c, owned by J. M. Harris; Carrie Lee, ch f, owned by H. R Baker; Montana, b c, owned by Robert Milligan, and Guido, ch g, owned by W. H. Babb. The horses started in the order named. Guido was regarded as such a sure winner that no other bets could be obtained except where large odds were offered. The favorits sold high in the field for $50 against the field at $15. After Guido was barred Carrie Lee and Montana sold about even. Leaving the post the horses went the first half mile pretty well bunched, the jockeys saving their mounts for the finish. Carrie Lee tried to set the pace. The first half was made in 52 seconds. The struggle then commenced, and Guido commenced to push the race, soon taking the lead, while Ladago kept dropping to the rear. Coming into the stretch Guido led the party and won an easy victory. The race between Carrie Lee and Montana for second place was a pretty one, each horse being urged and coming down the stretch under the lash Montana was landed second, Carrie Lee third and Ladago out of sight. Time, 2:50. Mutuals paid $11.75 on Montana and $5.75 on Guido.

The 2:25 trot for a purse of $1,000 was the most exciting event of the day and attracted the greatest interest. Big money was hung up and each one wanted the largest slice. The starters were: I. Jay S., ch h, by Tramp, dam De Laney, James W. Corrigan, Salt Lake; Marquis, b g, by the Marquis, J. P. Stoneroad, Denver; Lady Maxim, b m, by Maxim, dam Lady Greaves, H. Kirkendal, Helena; Bishop Hero, rn g, by Bishop, dam Lida Kendal, Ralph Clarke, Spokane Falls; Louis S, ch g, by Bashaw Pilot, dam Belle, J. B. Caddy, Denver; Bertie M., gr m, by Iowa Chief, dam Daisy Deane. M. F. Jones, Larame; Contractor, b g, by Sultan, dam Madame Harding, Ed. Lafferty, Helena.

A protest was entered against lady Maxim and Contractor, on the ground that they were both owned by Mr. Kirkendal, but the judges decided after making the parties interested take oath that Contractor was transferred on August 11. The pool selling was spirited. Marquis, Contractor and I. Jay S had about an equal number of admirers, and each was played for choice, while the others were placed in the field. Some little time was lost at the post by Contractor throwing two shoes while scoring. They finally got away. Lady Maxim made a hot race to three-quarter pole, the balance of the party changing positions. Marquis came into the stretch like a whirlwind and shot by the party, coming under the wire a winner, with Lady maxim close behind, Louis second, Bertie M. third, Bishop Hero fourth, I. Jay S. fifth and Contractor last. The mutuals paid $12.50. Time 2:24½.

In the second heat Marquis was played for choice, but Contractor gave the sports a surprise party, winning in 2:26¼; Marquis second, Louis S. third, Lady Maxim fourth, I. Jay S. fifth, Bishop Hero sixth and Bertie M. last. The mutuals paid $32 25.

The third heat again upset the sports, putting them all at sea. At the send-off Contractor took the lead and was not headed off, winning in 2:25. The party went up the back stretch in a bunch, but Marquis then forged ahead and succeeded in taking second place, making a hard race home for the winner. The mutuals paid $10.25.

Contractor paid high in the pools against the field in the fourth heat, but Marquis won the heat, emptying the pockets of those playing Contractor. Leaving the post Contractor went off his feet on the first turn, dropping back. Bertie M. took the lead on the backstretch, but Marquis closed the gap and Contractor moved up from fifth place, and the four leaders entered the homestretch in a bunch, all coming fast. Marquis broke under the wire, finishing half a head in front of Contractor. He was awarded the heat. His backers were jubilant, but Contractor's admirers were greatly dissatisfied. Mutuals paid $15. Time, 2:27½.

The fifth heat finished the race. A pretty finish was made. Contractor and Marquis pulled by the bunch at the head of the stretch, and were sent down the path at their best speed. Contractor set too fast a pace, driving Marquis off his feet, winning the heat and race. Mutuals paid $6 20. Time, 2:27.

The attendance at the races Thursday was nearly 2,000. The events were much more interesting and exciting than upon any day previous. A large number of ladies were out. The weather was fine, and the horses worked much better.

THE JUVENILE STAKES.

This was a contest for 2-year-olds bred and raised in Montana. The stakes were $50 each, with $500 added. The book was closed March 1st with sixteen nominations, but only two colts started. Long and Barbour had a winner in Florida, while Huntley & Clark captured second money with Deacon. The race was devoid of interest, Florida being too speedy for Deacon. She won both heats without the least trouble, winning $744. Deacon won $186. In the pools no buyers could be found to place money against the little filly at any odds. No mutuals were sold.

PIONEER STAKE.

Had Sinfax failed to meet the expectations of the crowd that banked so heavily on him, some long faces would have been seen yesterday, but the little bay colt was too fast for company, and won a snug little sum for her owner, Cy Mulkey. The other starters were Maloom, a chestnut colt owned by Brown & Blevins, and Needmore, a bay colt owned by D. D. Thornton. In the pools Sinfax sold for $10 to $25; Needmore was readily bought at $3 to $5, and Malcom $1 and $2. The fact that Sinfax was to carry 122 pounds while the other two were only to carry 110 pounds each, led many to place money on Needmore.

This race was six furlongs, for 2-year-olds, for a purse of $50 each, $500 added, a guaranteed value of $1,000. The book closed with sixteen nominations.

At the post Malcom was stubborn and delayed the start. When the flag fell Needmore and Sinfax went up the back stretch neck and neck. Coming home Sinfax without urging, started for the wire, winning by a length. Needmore's rider used the whip vigorously, but could not head the favorite. Time, 1:18¼. The mutuals paid $6.50.

THE 2:34 TROT.

This race puzzled the sports, and not a few of them sported empty purses after the first heat. The race was interesting. The starters were H. Kirkendal's br m Dolly; Huntley & Clarke's b m Veta; P. T. William's b h Silver Bow; M. F. Jones' gr g Grey Ned; and George W. Cook's b h Minnie's Almont.

In the pools Vera and Dollie were great favorites. The poor showing of Silver Bow Saturday made him third choice, and it was not until after the third heat that the favorites' backers could be convinced that the little McGregor colt was in the race.

At the post Vera acted badly. Her driver had great difficulty in bringing her down on a trot. After scoring nearly a dozen times Vera finally got up with a bunch, when the party got off. Vera, Silver Bow and Grey Ned broke on the first turn. Dolly took the lead, closely followed by Minnie's Almont. Vera dropped far behind and was never in the race. Silver Bow went off his feet again on the backstretch, but soon caught and commenced to close the gap, making a steady gain on the leader. Coming into the homestretch Dolly went into the air and dropped back to fourth position. Silver Bow won, with Grey Ned second, Minnie's Almont third and Dollie fourth. The flag fell upon Vera, shutting her out of the contest. Time, 2:29½. It was not the time that drove Vera out of the race, because she has a mark much lower. It was her performance. The mutuals paid $18.50.

Second heat.—Dollie's backers did not lose faith but went to the depths of their pockets and made her the favorite at $45. Vera's backers saw in Silver Bow a winner and raised the bids of the original buyers on this winning animal to $40. The field sold for $3. There was a slight suspicion that Grey Ned would create another surprise but it subsequently appeared that he was only in for second money. Lots of money went into the pool box and into the mutuals, with Dollie as choice at slight odds.

With Vera out the horses got away from the post after scoring but once. Silver Bow took her position at the head of the party and maintained the lead to the wire. Grey Ned and Minnie's Almont were ahead of Dollie until the head of the stretch was reached, when Lafferty commenced to drive Dollie to the front. The gap was too large. He landed two lengths behind Silver Bow. Time, 2:27¾. Mutuals paid $14.

Third heat.—Silver Bow sold at $20 against the field at $8, with Dollie in the field.

Upon leaving the post Silver Bow and Dollie both went into the air, Grey Ned taking the lead with Almont second. A gleam of joy commenced to appear on the face of those who had bought mutuals on the field, worth ever $50, but the Anaconda colt lost no time on the back stretch and when the upper turn was reached Grey Ned pulled out and gave him the pole. Dollie came up fast, but the company was too fast for her in her condition at that time. Silver Bow went under the wire winner of the heat and race. Almont followed on a run, but was set back to third place for running, giving Grey Ned second place. Time, 2:26½. The mutuals paid $10.

It is doubtful if a prettier race was ever seen than the last event on the programme. Four horses made the race and each one came under the wire under a heavy whipping. The conditions of the race were as follows:

Winner to be sold at auction, and any excess over entered price to be divided equally between the association and second horse; horses entered at $2,000 to carry entitled weight; allowances, one pound for each $100 down to $1,000; then two pounds for each $100 less. One mile.

The starters were: Carlisle & Shields' b c Adams, 107 pounds; Ed. Gaylord's ch g Tom Daly, 106 pounds; Blevins & Brown's h g Olympia, 108 pounds.

In the pools Tom Daly and Governor Adams were favorites, the latter being taken as choice by a few. Daly was choice in the mutuals.

At the post Olympia behaved unusually well, and the start was a quick one. Governor Adams and Sir Henry took the lead running side by side, with the other two in the same position at their heels. At the half mile post they commenced to bunch and turned into the stretch, four abreast. Then commenced the struggle for victory. Each jockey commenced to push to the front. The whipping sounded like the beating of a drum. A few hundred yards from the wire Tom Daly shot ahead of the bunch, with Olympia's nose close to his rider's saddle, and thus they finished. The crowd in the grand stand was in fervor of excitement as the steeds came tearing down the homeward path. The mile was made in 1:43¾. Mutuals paid $6 70.

The winner was put up at auction, starting at $800. No one bidding, the owner retains him.

THE WINNERS.

Attendance at the races Wednesday was nearly 3,000. The events were by far the most interesting of the meeting. Every race was hotly contested and good time was made. Bob Wade run three furlongs, beating Cyclone, the record breaker, and making the same time. The performance of Guido was remarkable, carrying 125 pounds and winning the mile and a quarter race. The sports that bet their money on Manning were the most gloomy looking set of men ever seen. They bet recklessly, giving almost any odds, counting on a sure and certain victory. Racing is uncertain, as they discovered to their sorrow after departing with their money. Little Joe, although he won but one heat, created great commotion among the pool buyers. He was a short horse. Yesterday would have been a poor day for bookmakers.

RUNNING—THREE FURLONGS.

The first event was the three furlong race for $200 with Bob Wade and Cyclone, two record breakers, and the Jew as starters. No little interest was manifested on the outcome of the race. Bob Wade holds the world's record for a quarter, while Cyclone holds the record for the distance run, In the pools Wade sold favorite at long odds—$50 to $15. A great many considered the distance too far for Wade and snapped up the pools but they might as well have thrown their money away. The start was made after scoring but a few times. Wade left the post nearly a length in advance of Cyclone and The Jew. At the turn Cyclone caught the leader and made a pretty race home, but Wade pressed under the wire a neck ahead of Cyclone. Some were dissatisfied with the start, claiming that the winner had a length the advantage. That cut no figure as Wade won easily and with a little urging would have lowered the record for three furlongs. As it was he made it in 34½, the same time made by Cyclone when he lowered the record on the St. Helena track Aug. 20, 1889. The mutuals paid $6.20.

THIRD DAY.

This morning the stock parade took place, there being an exceedingly good exhibition of standard bred trottera, thoroughbreds, mules and cattle of all description. There is no question but what the parade was the best that has been witnessed on the Northern Circuit so far, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large numbers who were in attendance. As usual the grand stand was crowded this afternoon; the betting was lively and the track very fast.

The first event on the programme was for the 2:35 class of trottera, the startera being Ed. Biggs, Mattie Solomon, Stranger and Dinah. Dinah sold as a favorite in the pools, bringing $10; Mattie Solomon $7 and the field $5. When the quartette was tapped off Dinah immediately broke, Stranger shooting off in the lead was first at the quarter in 38 seconds; Mattie Solomon at this point was in second place, but going down the back stretch. Dinah who had been third, went past the Reavis mare but Dinah's second place was of very short duration as Mattie trotted very fast and at the three-quarters pole was again second; proving rather unsteady, she broke at the head of the home stretch and was passed by Dinah and Ed. Biggs, neither of whom were speedy enough to head off the leader, Stranger passing under the wire an easy winner by three lengths, with Dinah second, Ed. Biggs third, Mattie Solomon bringing up in the rear. Time, 2:29½.

In the second heat Stranger was a more pronounced favorite than ever, selling for $20 while the field had few buyers at $10. As in the former heat, Stranger took the lead at once but had not such an easy thing of it as in the former heat, Dinah making play for him at the head of the home stretch and was soon on even terms with him; Dinah was going so fast that she soon left her feet, Stranger doing likewise when near the drawgate, the favorite did not catch as readily as the black mare and as a consequence was beaten out by a length, Ed, Biggs being third and Mattie Solomon last. Time, 2:27½.

Before the third heat was trotted Dinah sold as favorite for $20, the field bringing $16. Driver Campbell now came out behind Mattie Solomon instead of Miller who had driven the mare in the two previous heats. Fully ten times did they attempt to get off before Judge Green gave them the word. Notwithstanding the change in the betting, Stranger proved himself equal to the occasion and pulled the third heat off in very good style, completing the mile in 2:27¾. Although Stranger now had two heats to his credit, the betting talent still made Dinah a strong favorite. When the word was given, Stranger went off in front with Bigga in close attendance; before the quarter pole was reached, the leader fell back giving second place to Mattie Solomon, but before reaching the half, the positions were reversed and Solomon broke, enabling Dinah to make a fight with the leader; at the three-quarter pole Stranger was leading by half a length, on entering the home stretch, Stranger broke and Dinah took the lead, winning by two lengths with Stranger second, Bigga third and Solomon last. Time 2.26½.

When the horses appeared for the first heat Mattie Solomon was withdrawn by consent of the judges, leaving the fight to the other three. In the pools Dinah and Stranger sold for even money, bringing $20 each. When the bell was tapped to start them, Stranger had a trifle the best of the send off and showed in front around the turn; from the quarter mile pole to the seven-eighths this was one of the prettiest heats ever seen on a race track, Stranger and Dinah trotting together head and head, on approaching the wire Dinah broke, enabling Stranger to win by a length. Time, 2:26½.

SPECIAL RACE.

Between the third and fourth heats of the race described above, the bell was tapped calling up the startera for the Special Race which had been given by the Directors. The horses entered were Sam Lewis and Little Hope, pacers, while the trotting division was represented by Rabe and Johnny Hayward; Lewis sold a favorite, bringing $20 against $10 for the field; the favorite was soon in the lead after the word was given and had the contest all to himself until reaching the upper end of the home stretch, where Little Hope came up with a sudden burst of speed but was not fast enough to defeat Lewis, who won by a length in 2:33. Rabe showed qualifications during this mile that would enable him to compete in contest with Salvator, Tenny and Firenzi.

For the second heat Lewis was just as much of a favorite as before, although the field still had many purchasers. When the word was given Rabe was set off on a break, and at the quarter was two lengths in front of Lewis, Hayward being third. At the half-mile pole Hayward passed Lewis, and on the upper turn soon had his nose in front of Rabe, leading into the homestretch, looking a winner all over. On nearing the wire Hayward broke but settled in an instant, and won the heat by half a length, Rabe second, Little Hope third and Lewis fourth. Time, 2:29.

Prior to the third heat the pool selling changed, the field now selling as favorite. Rabe now acted very badly, and they had to score nine times before the bell tapped them off. Little Hope set the pace and reached the quarter in 35½ seconds, and at the half was still leading by two lengths; with the speed displayed by Little Hope, he won easily in 2:27½, Lewis being second, Hayward third, while Rabe was relegated to the stable, having received the flag in his face.

Prior to the fourth heat, the pools sold, Lewis $10, Little Hope $10, while the representative of the Hayward family sold for $5. This was a very pretty heat, for although Lewis led around the turn, down the backstretch the three of them were on very nearly even terms, but on rounding into the upper turn, Hayward came to the front and was given his head, coming under the wire an easy winner in 2:29, Little Hope second, while Lewis was just within the distance flag.

Hayward now sold for $10, the field bringing $8. Green, who had been driving Little Hope, now retired, and Linden occupied the seat in the sulky. When they were tapped off, Hayward took the lead immediately and was never headed in the heat, winning in 2:27½. The judges on the conclusion of the race declared all bets and pools off, owing to auspicious circumstances connected with it.

A race of half mile heats was the next event on the programme, the startera being Jack the Ripper, R H. Mohawk, Joker, Golddust and Minnie P. When the flag fell the Ripper had the best of the start, but on the turn Minnie P got on even terms with him, but she could not keep her place, Ripper winning a creditable heat with Joker second. Time, 50 seconds.

A second heat was but a repetition of the first, first and second horses being same as in preceding heat and time exactly the same, 50 seconds.

The concluding race of the day was a mile dash, the starters being Dave Douglas, Leland, Rosebug and Miss Johnson. Leland was a very strong favorite, selling for $10 while the field could be purchased for $7. Leland had no difficulty in winning, Rosebug being second and Dave Douglas third. Time, 1:44½.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY, AUG. 29, 1890.

The first race was the three-minute class, for a purse of $400. Vidette drew the pole. First heat, with Vidette barred, in the pools Lena S. brought $10, field $15, with Kathleen and Billy Doty in it. Lena S. broke at the tap of the bell, and Vidette led around the turn, and at the quarter in 40 seconds, was three lengths in the lead. Kathleen closed some of the gap in the stretch, but could not overtake Vidette, she winning by a length, Kathleen second, Doty third, Lena S. last. Time, 2:41.

Second heat—Poola: Billy Doty $10, field $10, Vidette still barred. Vidette took the lead and led all the way, Doty and Lena S. alternating breaks and positions, Kathleen bringing up the rear. Vidette won easily, Doty second, Lena third. Time, 2:47½.

Third heat—Vidette took the lead and won as she pleased, ending the race in three straight heats, Doty second. Time, 2:44¾.

Second race was for the four-year-old district class, the starters being Cupid, St. Lucas, Laura Z. and Annie E. Gen. Logan was drawn.

First heat—Pools sold with Annie E. barred, Laura Z. $10, field $6. St. Lucas took the lead, and maintained that position all the way till near the distance flag, when he broke, Annie E. passing him, winning by a length from St. Lucas. The latter was set back for running, and Laura Z. was given second place, Cupid third, St. Lucas fourth. Time, 2:32.

Second heat.—Annie E. 10, field 2. As in the first heat, St. Lucas took the lead and led well into the stretch, when Annie E. came with a rush, carried him to a break and won by a length. Laura was given second place, Cupid third, and St. Lucas again set back for running. Time 2:32.

Third heat.—No pools sold. Annie went off in the lead with Lucas a close second. Annie E. won the heat, Lucas second, Laura Z. third, Cupid fourth. Time, 2:36.

The last race of the day was a mile and repeat. Those to face the starter were Dave Douglas, Lucky Dan, Leland and Leatherwood.

Before the first heat Leatherwood sold favorite at 20 to 18 for Leland and 12 for the field. They broke away four times before the flag fell. Leatherwood taking the lead with Dan close up, It was an exciting race Leatherwood winning by half a length Dan 2nd, Leland 3d, Douglas 4th. Time 1:45¼.

Second heat —Pools now sold Leatherwood 20, Field 12. Douglas got the best of the start, but on the turn Short "sat down" on Leatherwood and led at the quarter. Down the back stretch it was a hot race. On the upper turn Douglas gained a little. In the stretch they were head and head and whips were freely used, Douglas stood the drive the longest and won the heat by a short neck from Leatherwood, Lucky Dan 3d, Leland last. Time 1:45.

Third heat. Douglas set the pace with Leatherwood second. The pair ran neck and neck, Douglas well within himself. Little Dan setting easy near the wire Douglas let out a link and won by half a length. Time 1:46.

LAST DAY.

Attendance large, track fast, two good races on the card, the 2:27 trot and the 2:25 pace. The trot was called first, the starter being Vic H., Frank M., Johnny Hayward, Sargent, Maud H. and Idaho Patchen. Last evening pools sold Vic H. $20, Field $10. Before the first heat to-day Vic H. brought $20, Frank M. $10, Field $5. Frank M. had the best of the send off, and at once shot in front closely followed by Vic H. who had outside position, Idaho Patchen third.

Down the backstretch Frank M. led Vic H. three lengths on the upper turn, Idaho Patchen made a bad break and fell back last. In the stretch Vic H. closed up and got to Frank M's wheel, but broke, Frank M winning by half a length, Vic H. 2nd, Sargent 3d, Johnny Hayward 4th, Idaho Patchen and Maud H. distanced Mile 2:19, the quarters being 35¼, 1:11, 1:46¼ and 2:19.

Second heat—Betting very lively, Frank M. bringing $12, Vic $10, Field $3. Later the pools changed, Vic H. selling for $20, the Field $16, the Vic H. party feeling very confident. Vic H. got the best of the start by a trifle and secured the pole before reaching the quarter. Vic led down the backstretch but on the turn Frank M. gradually closed the gap and in the stretch it was one of the best heats seen on this circuit. At the draw gates Frank M. got on even terms with Vic H. by hard driving. Tommy Keating landed Frank M. winner by a neck, Vic H. 2d. Sargent 3d, Johnny Hayward last. Time 35, 1:10½, 1:44. Mile, 2:18.

Third heat—Pools: Frank 20, field 7. The Frank M. party backing their opinion heavily. After five scores they got the word, Hayward on the break, Vic H. led to the quarter with Johnny Hayward second. Down the back stretch Frank M. passed Hayward and was within a length of Vic on turning into the stretch, but he could not catch her, Vic winning in a jog. Frank M's. driver, seeing he could not win the heat, pulled up inside the distance. Johnny Hayward finished second but was set fourth for running, and second place was given to Frank M., Sargent third. Time, 35½, 1:10, 1:45. Mile, 2:19½.

Fourth heat.—Pools: Vic 20, field 6. Vic H., although she had a little the worst of the send off, led around the turn, Frank M. and Johnny Hayward in close pursuit. Vic H. and Frank drew away from the two greys, and it was a hot race to the wire, Vic H. winning the heat by half a length, Hayward six length back and Sargent behind the flag. Time, 0:36, 1:10, 1:45. Mile, 2:18. This was a great heat for a young mare, four heats inside of 2:20, and two in 2:18, as she was only beaten a neck in the second heat. She is by Blackbird dam Ellen Swigert. She was bred by Mr. Reavis, of Chico. Vic H. won at Willows and also at Napa. She was well driven by Mike McManus, who deserves credit for his work.

Fifth heat—No betting, as Vic was considered the winner. Vic H and Frank trotted like a double team to the upper turn where Frank M. made a short break but soon caught. After he caught he gained quickly on Vic H, and near the three-quarter pole passed her. When in the stretch Frank M. drew further away and won the heat, the spectators applauding loudly. Vic second, Johnny Hayward third. Time, quarter, 0:35, half, 1:09½, three-quarters, 1:45½. Mile, 2:20½.

Between the second and third heats of the 2:27 class Belle Button was given an exhibition mile. She was scored twice when she was started on her journey. She went very smooth never lifting, her nose, going to the quarter in 35, to the half in 1:08½, three-quarter 1:42 and the mile in 2:17½.

The second event was the 2:25 pacing race, the starters being John L, C. W. G., Gerster, Haverly, Geo. Wapple, Lota, Costello and Acrobat. Poola sold, C. W. G. 20, Costello 6, field $10.

Lota took the lead on the tap of the bell and down the back stretch headed the rest, who were strung out in single file, On the upper turn C. W. G., who had been pacing easily moved up and passed Gerster and was second at the head of the stretch. At the ¾ pole Lota broke and C. W. G. Gerster and Geo. Wapple passed her, C. W. G. winning the heat by a length from Wapple, Gerster 3d, Lota 4th, Costello 5th, Acrobat 6th, John L 7th, Haverly 8th. Time 2:28.

Second heat —Pools C. W. G. $20, Field $16. They all got away together on the 3d score and at the quarter C. W. G. was 3 lengths ahead, but on the turn all closed up and in the stretch, Haverly, Costello and Lota broke, Acrobat kept his feet and won by a length, C. W. G. 2d, Gerster 3d, Lota 4th, Costello 5th, Wapple 6th, Haverly 7th, John L. distanced. Time 2:27.

Third heat.—C. W. G. sailed away in the lead and was never headed, the rest all strung out he winning by 2 lengths in a jog, Acrobat 2d, Lota 3d, Wapple 4th, Costello 5th, Gerster 6th, Haverly 7th. Time 2:24.

Fourth heat.—No betting, C. W. G. took the lead and won as he pleased, Haverly 2d, Costello 3d, Acrobat 4th, Lota 5th. Time 2:22½.

Australian Turf Items.

Ben Bolt, winner of the Caulfield Cup of 1886, was recently sold in Melbourne at auction for $1,100. He is ten years old, and is by Newhold (by Kelpie) out of Lady Baldwin by The Drummer, her dam the imported mare Brittania by Cathedral. He is a blood bay horse of medium size, but great strength. At the same time, Messrs. Yuille & Sons sold Oakleigh, by Roadee, out of Adela by Kelpie, for $1,650. Oakleigh is a very handsome horse, and almost first class as a performer. He won the Caulfield Cup of 1887, beating Remus, Dunlop and 18 others; and the V. R. C. Handicap of 1889, carrying 123 pounds, beating Wycombe and Chintz one and three-quarter miles in 3:04, the best race ever run in Australia with that weight. Eleven others ran unplaced, including Carlyon, Lamond and The Charmer.

The famous New Zealand cup horse Lochiel has evidently gone amiss in that suspicious off foreleg, as we notice he has been struck out of all his engagements at Caulfield and Flemington.

The late Hon. James White, the "Squire of Kirkham," was a terrific bettor. On the double victory of Martini Henry in 1883, he took $400,000 out of the ring, one-fifth of which he won from the "leviathan bookmaker," Joe Thompson. On the night before the Champion Stakes, in the March following, he walked into the Victoria Club room and offered £10,000 to £5,000 on the great son of Musket. The ring had been already hurt so badly that they actually refused to syndicate the big bet, and Mr. White had a lucky escape. The next day Mr. Donald Wallace's Le Grand, by Epigram, galloped home an easy winner, and pulling his rider up on his neck. This ended Martini Henry's turf career, and he is now famous as the sire of Rudolph, Litigant and Singapore. We expect the latter horse to become a second Abercorn next year.

The Assyrian, whose win of the Melbourne Cup of 1882 made a rich man of Jim Allison (who afterwards died a poor man in San Francisco), heads the list of winning sires in Tasmania for the year ending August 1st. It must be borne in mind, however, that St. Albans stood there till he was sold to Mr. Crozier of Geelong, and therefore The Assyrian has had such mares as are seldom enjoyed by any unproven sire. He now has another Melbourne Cup winner, Arsenal, for a rival, and the returns of 1893 may tell a very different story. Quien sabe? The two principal winners of The Assyrian's get are Macquarie with $3,200 and Jew Boy with $2,050.

A thousand pities that no American was on the ground to pick him up, old as he is. The brown stallion Albury, by Yattendon, out of Stockdove (dam of the Australian Peer) by Maccaroni, was sold at auction in Melbourne on the 8th of August, two days after the Alameda sailed. There is one of the truest made horses that every looked through a bridle, and all his colts can gallop. He is the sire of Albert, a capital steeplechaser and many good ones on the flat, and the probabilities are that, as he is fifteen year old and has but one eye, he did not bring much over $500. Such bargains are not to be had every day in Melbourne or anywhere else.

Points and Technical Terms Used Among Poultry Fanciers.

The Cultivator and Country Gentleman, in a recent issue, gives sn illustration of a fowl of no particular breed and using it ss an exsmple, gives the various points in poultry lsngusge with explsuations ss below:

1. Comb, of which there are five forms, single, pea or triple, rose, lesf and fork.
2. Face, the fleshy matter sronnd the eye, nsually red, bnt white in Spanish, and pnrple in Silkies.
3. Wattles, pendulous fleshy sppendsges just below the besk. Always red except in Silkies. Varies grestly in length, and does so in accordauce with the size of the comb.
4. Ear-lobe, or deaf-ear, pendant ornament on tbe face, just below the real ear. Red in some breeds, white in others, and also yellow and purple.
5. Whiskers, only found on a few breeds, and those almost entirely crested varieties.
6. Crest, top knot of feathers, in some varieties very mnch developed, notably Polish, Crevecœurs, Sultans, etc.
7. Beak, horny substance at mouth, varying in color from white to yellow, principally the latter.
8. Beard, (see No. 5.)
9. Neck-Hackle, the flowing feathers on the neck, very profuse in some varieties.
10. Breast, usually bold and prominent, less so in the Asiatic breeds than in others; varies greatly in color.
11. Keel or Breast Bone, must be straight, and the deeper the better is the fowl for table purposes.
12. Back, very long in some breeds and as short in others.
13. Saddle, the feathers hanging below are called the saddle races.
14. Thighs, or fleshy part of the leg.
15. Hocks, always covered with festhers, but in some breeds stiff feathers protrude therefrom, and these are called hock feathers.
16. Spur, specislly prominent in the cock, and more so in some breeds than others. Increases in size year by year.
17. Fifth toe, found on some birds, notably the Dorking and the Houdsn.
18. Back-Claw.
19. Muffs, or Led Feathers. In most of the heavier Asiatic breeds of poultry, feathers grow down the side of the leg, and on the outer part of the foot. In Cochins, Brahmas, Snltans, etc., these are highly developed.
20. Shoulders, very promiuent in a few breeds, notably Malsys and the Game varieties.
21. Tail-Fluffs, light soft feathers which grow near the root of the tail.
22. Centre Toes.
23. Shanks, the leg proper of the fowl.
24. Wing-Bar, the band or cross marking seen on many fowls.
25. Primary Coverts, the onter feathers of the wing.
26. Primary Flights, not seen when the wing is in repose.
27. Sickle Feathers, the long circular feathers which form the outer sweep of the tail, and are such a graceful addition to that important part of the fowl's plnmage.
28. Primary Tail, the shorter, strsighter feathers of the tail, and in some varieties the principal.
29. Secondary Sickle, like the outer sickle, but smaller.
30. Tail Coverts, the falling feathers, or haugers below the base of the tail.

Abortion in Cows.

For some time past a committee of the Highland society has been investigating the subject of epizootic abortion among cows, and the substance of its conclusions is given by Professor McFadyean, of the Edinburgh Royal veterinary college, in a paper in the society's transactions. The evidence, though not conclusive so far, all points to the belief that abortion is a contagious disorder, and that it may be trested as such. The usual opinions as to the vsrious canses that hsve been assigned to account for its prevalence have little proof in their favor when inquired into. Such things as mechanical injury, fright, over-exertion, general disesse, etc., are of conrse the undoubted causes of individual cases of abortion, but they are quite inadequate to explain the widespread and wholessle labor throughout large herds. The theory of "sympatby" is dismissed as untenable, and is in fact now looked npon as ridiculous, while errors in dieting are discounted as being the cause of comparatively few cases. There is no doubt that engorgement of the stomach with food, drinking ice-cold water, eating frozen roots, and so on, msy lead to individual csses, but they cannot be bronght forward as originators of the disease on a large scale. Even where unwholesome food, such as mouldy hay and nnsound turnips, hsve been fed for a long time, there have been comparitively few cases, and there are very few on record where clear proof was furnished thst errors in diet were really the active cause.

It has long been held, again, that ergot has the power of inducing abortion in cows; indeed, as a matter of experiment it hss been found to do so in some instances; but the present investigators found that there was no proof of this being the sctive agent in any of the cases coming nnder their notice. The arguments in favor of this view are weighty and worthy of being considered hy all who have hitherto been anathematising this drug. The great majority of outbreaks, for instance, occurred in winter, when the animals had not access to grsss at all. Again, an examination of the hay failed to show the presence of the fnngus, while some of the herds worst affected were being fed on oat straw as fodder. Further, Findley Dunn shows in his "Veterinary Medicines" that ergot in hay is not so injurious as that on grass, for the reason that the hay is made long before the fungus, can be matured enough to cause the trouble. It was, therefore, im possible to regard ergot as playing any considerable psrt in inducing this disease.

But now, looking at the subject from a different point of view, it is found that all evidence points to the contsgious natnre of abortion—in other words, there is a specific germ which enters the vagina and uterus of the cow and indnces a disease resnlting in the expnlsion of the fœtns before its full growth. Experiments supply evidence in support of this view. Mucus was taken from the genital passages of aborted cows and injected into those of pregnant cows and sheep, with the result that five ont of six animals aborted after a little time, whereas a like injection from cows calving at fnll time had no result. The abortive cases did not result immediately, but after a period of incuhation. Again, the antiseptic or germicidal method of treatment has been eminently successful. Professor Nocard, who has been working at this snbject for a long time, employs two methods of effecting this end. He makes a solution of one part by eight of bichloride of mercury, ten of glycerine, ten of slcohol, and 4,000 of pnre soft water. A quantity of this is injected by means of a syringe into the vagina of each suspected snimal, while the parts ahout the tsil root are washed dsily with the ssme liquid. If a csse of abortion should occur, the womb is washed out with it by means of a caoutchouc tube. The other method adopted is to wash down the passsges and gutters of the cow-sheds with a solntion of sulphate of copper at lesst once a week. so that the germs, which sre supposed to be plentiful in the excrements, msy be killed. It is acknowledged of conrse, thst the presence of a particnlar germ is so far only hypothetical, because thongh several micro-orgsnisms hsve been fonnd in the mucus from cows recently aborted, yet it is impossible to ssy which, if any, is the one producing evil results. Further, attempts to isolate and cultivste in a medium outside the cow—in a manner analagons to that done with other forms—has hitherto failed. Nevertheless, everything so far points to the conclusion that this is a contagions disorder, like pleuro-pnenmonia or foot-and-mouth disesse, and that it is possible to combat it from this point of view by adopting the use of antiseptics, isolation of the iufected animals, and so on. Professor McFaydeau does not consider the matter to be at all settled, and advises further experiments on a larger scale, while he points out the success that has followed the antiseptic form of treatment in Germany.—London Agricultural Gazette.

The Value of Pedigree.

A Paper Read by George Rice, Curries, Ont., Before the Holstein Breeders' Association, and published in the Ho stein Friesian.

That pedigree has a value in a commercial sense we are all aware, ensbling the breeder of pure-blooded stock to sell at enhanced prices just as that pedigree shows the good breeding of the snimal. But this is not the true value of pedigree, but rather the sequence which is necessarily attached to a system of breeding that established a class of animals to distinction as possessing certsin traits. Other and more noble features are called in requisition in making pedigrees valcable. Through the impulse that rivalry gives, the breeders are led to inquire into the very best methods of breeding snd feeding; and when by such scientific breeding the record is broken, that man, though crowning himself with honor, does, in no small measure, show the value of pedigree by showing the great results that are accomplished by systematic endeavor.

Man, ambition, skill and desire of gain are sll called in reqnisition, hence we have scientific breeding; and as a precaution against impositiou, pedigrees are kept.

And as "like produces like" so by mating those that possess superior merits. and keeping this np year after year and, as in the case of the Holsteins, century after century a fsculty has been created and developed whereby a breed is noted for its snperior dairy qualities, and from long breeding for one end has attained a prepotency which makes the pedigree of that animal very valuable. The pedigree of sn animal will then be, in a measure, as a valnable as that anima! is able to demonstrate its superiority to others.

What has been accomplished by breeding intelligently? We are informed that a cow in her natural state will not give over 2000 lbs. of milk a year, and a common bred, or bred for a so-called general pnrpose, cow, does not average but bnt about 3000 lbs. per year. With that contrast what has been accomplished by scientific breeding? and we find a cow has been bred and developed so as to give over 30,000 lbs. per year, many others over 20,000 lbs., and a very great number over 15,000, whilst the number of Holsteins capable of yielding over 10,000, are innnmerable. As such ends have been attained by breeding the very best sires, it follows an animal's pedigree is valuable in proportion to to the capscity of its ancestors. Pedigree is then valuable to the breeder to enable him to go to work intelligently to further develop the capacity of his animals: and as in science those of to-day are able to take advantage of the knowledge gained by research and ingenuity of those who have gone before, and thus by accumulating knowledge be in a better position for further advancement, so the breeders may obtsin value from pedigree, to further improve upon the breed, and by the experience avoid the mistakes and profit hy the success of others. Pedigreed animals are valuable in grading up common stock, for being pnrely bred they possess great potency in impressing their qualities npon natives, and by so breeding the traits possessed hy the pure-bred will be fixed in the grade.

That the dairy qualities are bred into and fixed in the Holstein so that they inherit and transmit these qualities none can successfully deny. By such scientific breeding Pietertje 2nd was bred snd developed to give over 30,000 lbs. in one year: that she can transmit these tendencies is well known from the performances of her daughters.

Again Clothilde 2nd hss inherited a great capacity as a butter cow from her dam Clothilde, with whose former doings Holstein breeders are familiar; Clothilde 2nd showed the value of pedigree by exceeding even her dam's great record for butter, as in a late test she produced 115 lbs , 14¾ ozs. in 30 days, 263 lhs., 5½ ozs. in 60 days, and 320 lbs. 1¾ ozs. in 90 days. It is not by accident that Jewel gave at Buffalo Exhibition in 1888, 83 lbs. in one day; not by accident that Tirannia gave 3 12 lbs, butter in one day on the show grounds, and many others over two pounds of butter per day at various shows. No greater proof is required that scientific breeding accomplishes great results when we bear in mind that about all the prizes for milk and butter have been won in public tests the past year by the Holsteins, and thst this is a characteristic of the Holsteins as a class is shown by the fact that different animals at the various shows were winners of the test, and that the marvelous success of the Holsteins does not depend on one animal or yet a dozen.

The valne of the so-called "Tops" of a breed can scarcely be overestimated. Not only do they show the possibility of a breed but are valuable for mating with other pure breeds of less note, so as we proceed the blood of the best will by mating show in the other, and bring the lowest to a higher capacity, and raise the average of the breed.

Pedigree when formed by actual merit is of great importanoo in order that our progress msy be snre. With our recorded pedigrees formed by breeding for a fixity of purpose, onr chances of superiority in the offspring would be very uncertain. If like does not produce like in every case in all probability there are other causes at work that detract from improvement. For instance a mistake may be made in the development of an animal, and thus mar the good effect of pedigree. Now in the case of our Holsteins, this advice is given hy that successful breeder, M. E. Moore, "Keep breeding animals in good condition. Avoid extreme of leauness or fleshiness, as both these conditions tend to produce degeneracy in the offspring." And this is sound advice.

If then in rearing a Holstein for milk development we should keep the animal very fat whilst young and then when mature, neglect snd hslf starve it, the milking capscity of that animal will not be developed and thus the good effects of the blood lines contracted snd pedigree lowered in value.

In order to insure success we must have our animals rightly bred for foundation and, as it has been tersely said, a good breed, a good feed, and a good feeder is the acme of success in diarying, so slso in breeding pure breds.

The Runt Pigeon.

The term Rnnt is often given to pigeons of all vsrieties hy those who are uot scquainted with the many names secorded to the varions breeds.

At one time it would appear as if it were a more common designation for the pigeon than it is to-day. We, says the National Stockman, now understand it to mean the large pigeons which are mnch more common on the Continent of Europe than here, and where they are designated by such nsmes ss "Romain," "Montauban," etc. I have seen enormous classes of these birds at the various continental shows, and at the Jardin 'd Acclimation, Paris, there is usually an excellent collection of them. Many are nsed chiefly for edible purposes, and in this manuer their great size gives them an enormous advantage over all other breeds. In the dead section of the snnual Mardi Gras show at Paris, a class is usnslly given for pigeons, in which birds of a very large size, nearly two pounds in weight, are wont to appear.

The variety has been long knowu, for Moore speaks of three kinds in his Columbian, namely, the Leghorn Runt, the Spanish Rnnt, and the Friesland Runt. Dixon says:

"The point respectiug Runts which most deserves the notice of speculative naturalists is their extreme antiquity. The notices of them in Pliny and other nearly contemporary writers are but modern records, for Dr. Buckland enmnerates the bones of the pigeon among the remsins in the cave at Kirkdale, and figures a bone which, he says, approaches closely to the Spanish Runt, which is one of the largest of the pigeon tribe. Ever since the clsssic period these birds have been celebrsted among the poultry [produce of the Mediterranean."

Italy from various records would appear to have been the original home of the Runt, and from theuce they were scattered over Europe. This fsct is strongly emphasized by the name given in France to the greater portion of these birds, Pigeon Romsin. Moore states that the Runt was originally bred either at Pisa in the Duke of Tuscany's dominions, or at Pisa in Peloponnesus, and from thence brought to Leghorn. He speaks of the Leghorn Runt as "a stately large pigeon, seven inches or better in legs, close feathered and fast-flesht, extremely broad-chested and very short in the back; he carries his tail, when he walks, somewhat turned up like a duck, but when he plays he tucks it down; his neck is longer than any other pigeon, which he carries bending like a goose or a swan. He is goose-headed, and his eye lies hollow in his head, with a thin skin round it much like a Dutch tumbler, hut broader; his beak is very short for so large a bird, with a small wattle on it, and the upper chsp a little bending over the under."

Witb regard to the Spanish Runt the same old writer says: "This pigeon, as may readily be preceived by its name, comes originally from Spain, and is the longest bodied of all pigeons. I have seen them three and twenty inches long, from the apex of the beak to the extremity of the tail, they are thick and short legged, loose-festhered and loose-flesht, and don't walk erect as the Leghorn Runt does." He further remarks having "seen a pigeon very much resembling the Spanish Rnnt, with longer legs, but I would rather take these Runts to come from Mexico, Pern, or some other parts of the Spanish West Indies." As to the Friesland Runt it is stated that "this pigeon came from Friesland, and is one of the larger sort of middle-sized Runts; its feathers stand all reverted, and I can't see for what it can be admired except for its ugliness. There are other sorts of Runts, as the Romau Runt which is so big and heavy it can hardly fly; snd the Smyrna Runt which is middle sized and feather footed. I have seen the feathers growing on the outside of each foot, that they look as if they carried wings on their feet."

The Runt now bred partakes largely of the Spanish type, and we do not find any of the hard-feathered or fleshed breed spoken off by Moore. Those most commonly seen among us are the blues and the silvers, snd of these some very good specimens may he met with. They grow to an enormous size, and it is a common thing to find birds weighing from 2 pounds to 2½ pounds each. There are also reds, yellows, blacks, whites, mottles, and all the many variations of color to be found between those alresdy named. Some of those to be met with on the continent are very pretty, but their large size always detracts from their appearance in the eyes of any one who is used to the small, neat look of our ordinary fancy pigeons. They have never in this conntry been bred to any extent, perhaps because pigeon breeding for the table has never heen entered upon. Were that to become common, then the Runt would naturally be selected. Moore speaks of the Leghorn Runt as being delicate, but this does not appear to be the csse now, though if they were kept in too confined avaries they would not probably stand it as would smaller varieties of pigeons.

The following is the standard of points for the Runt adopted by the National Peristeronic Society, but it will be seen that this does not provide for much variation, nor does it allow for the many kinds bred in France, merely tsking those most commonly bred here.

Size, not weight, is the principal point of a Runt, and indeed, the chief characteristic of the variety, far exceeding in importance all other properties; it is, therefore, absolutely necessary in a good specimen that the frame should be large throughout, the larger the better, showing a wide and deep chest with a long straight breast and broad back.

Head large and full, with a stout and slightly curved besk, the wattle regular and not too prominent. Eye-cere small and circular.

Neck thick, smooth, and in length proportionate to the size of the bird.

Wings carried up, the butts [covered and flights well up to or resting on the tail.

Tail a medium length, straight and level, showing no rise at the rump, and neither spread nor pinched at the point, which should be flat and well clear of the ground.

Legs clean and stout, standing wide, thighs onobtrusive, feet large and well spread, with no indication of feather.

Carriage rather of a perpendicular than of a horizontal character; i e, upstanding, with a bold and active appearance.

Condition is important, a dilapidated loose-feathered bird being most unattractive.

The color of a good Runt cannot be a bad one, but clearness and lustre of plumage, with well defined markings are always desirable.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

A small attendance witnessed this game which was replete with good, sharp hitting on one side and smart and brilliant fielding on the other. "Kid" Carsey was in the box for the Colonels and he never showed up in better form than on this occasion. But one hit—an in field scratch to Cantillion—was made off him, and he awarded but one base on balls. His support was excellent, excepting Tip O'Neill's work at third. Kilroy also pitched a strong game, but the Colonels luckily managed to get two hits in esch the first, third and fifth innings, one run coming in at each of these intervals. The support given Kilroy was almost perfect. Armstrong caught a fine game, but his several unnecessary and unbecoming remarks addressed to the umpire and players cost him a fine of ten dollars. Fogarty and Wilson of the Stocktons and McDonald, Dooley and Sweeney of the Oaklands played a magnificent fielding game. At the bat Danny Sweeney and Dungan were particularly strong. Umpire McLaughlin's decisions were in many instances incorrect. The score:

OAKLAND.	AB	R	BH	SB	PO	A	E
Dooley, 1 b	4	0	1	0	14	0	0
Sweeney, o f	4	1	3	1	4	0	0

SACRAMENTO vs SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Friscos batted heavier, fielded better and run bases more cleverly in this game than the Sacramentos and easily won. Lookabaugh always pitches good ball away from home and this game was no exception. But six hits, well distributed, were secured off his peculiar delivery. Hoffman was found for ten "safeties" while his support was very poor, the Senatora rolling up a dozen oostly errors. Of the twelve runs made by the Friscos not one was earned. Levys errors, which alone mars the fielding record of the Bay City team, were made on his failures to block ground balls. Speer put up an elegant article of ball, making the most runs, hits and steals in the game and also catching excellently. He, together with Veach, Ebright Lookabaugh and McHale did effective service at the bat and Shea, Everett and Ehrights infielding was a feature. The dull playing of the Senators was partially relieved by the clever work of Stapleton, Reitz and Daly. The score:

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, AUG. 30TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

It was an impossibility for the unlucky Stocktons to win this game, as the odds were too great against them. In the first place, Umpire McLaughlin's decisions were in every instance unfavorable to the Gas City boys, and when he called Wilson out at the plate in the second inning, he was roundly hissed for his unfairness. In the second place, the Stocktons were not in prime condition to play good ball, as to all appearances some of the players had been tempted to dally too frequently with the new syndicates malt productions. Then Shaw was permitted to pitch as he pleased, and so had the Stocktons at his mercy, while Perrott's legal delivery, was bunched on, the Colonel's batting in all their runs. The game was dull and slow, being relieved only by Armstrong's incessant and justifiable kicking, for which he was fined five dollars. Fogarty was hurt by Wilson's colliding with him at the plate in the second, and so retired from the game, Stockwell going to first, Kilroy to right, Selna to third and Wilson to the middle bag. Stockwell appeared to poor advantage at the initial, having three errors. Wilson and Selna both played their new positions perfectly. The game was devoid of any interesting plays. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, AUG. 30TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

Harper pitched superbly in this game allowing but three hits off him. Ex-Senator Coughlin was in the points for the Friscos and was hit freely and safely, eleven base hits being secured by his former associates, including two doubles, a triple and a home run. The support rendered Coughlin was of a very ordinary character, costly errors being made at critical times. Just the opposite was the case with the Senators who were full of dash and vim and who put up an admirable fielding game. Daly was especially strong at the bat having four safe shots to his credit, while McHale and Roberts each secured two, the latter getting a home run. Shea led the batting for the Frisoos making two of the three hits secured by his team. The infielding of Daly, Reitz and Shea was exceptionally good, each of these players making a number of brilliant plays. Bowman was unable to play so McHale very creditably filled the backstop position. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31ST, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game was a decidedly pretty, interesting, and toward the close very exciting one. The Senators were badly handicapped in Bowman and Reitz being disabled, which necessitated McHale going behind the bat, Harper in right and Dave Creamer of last year's Stocktons, at second. This considerably and rather disastrously altered the personnel of the Senatorial team, but did not affect the playing of those in their regular positions, who put up a Class A article of ball. Harper is a great pitcher but a poor excuse as a fielder, and Bob McHale, earnest and ambitious as he is, is only a fair substitute for Bowman. Dave Creamer, while not the equal of Reitz by any means, is a very capable player and played the second position very creditably in this game. His single error, though disastrous, was excusable from the fact that Tip O'Neill held him at second while in the act of throwing the ball to Stapleton in the ninth inning in order to complete a double play. Rank errors of Tip O'Neill, followed by a passed ball and hits by Hoffman and Daly, gave the Senators three runs (all they secured in the game) in the sixth inning. In the seventh and eighth the Colonels made two runs on some sharp hitting and a glaring error of Harper's. The ninth was a most critical inning for each side, and the Senators then spoiled their chances for scoring by some very stupid base running. It was two runs for the Colonels to win, and aided by some tricky playing by the great and only "Tip," which evidently escaped the notice of the umpire, they got in their deadly work. N. O'Neill first up took his base on balls and then Cobb was struck out. Cantillion hit a hard grounder to Daly, who threw to Creamer, forcing O'Neill at second. Creamer was in the act of throwing the ball to Stapleton so as to complete a double play, but O'Neill grasped the second baseman, causing the ball to go wild and Cantillion easily made second. Then Dooley smashed out a triple, tying the score and coming home himself and winning the game on Sweeney's fourth single of the day. Both Cobb and Hoffman did splendid work in the points and the fielding of both teams was generally good. Sweeney captured the batting honors, banging out four clean singles for as many times up. Stapleton and Dooley each played a highly finished game at the initial; McDonald and Cresmer divided the honors pretty evenly at second; and Godar and Daly made some brilliant plays at third and short and also displayed excellent judgment. Roberts' outfielding was also a particular feature. An immense crowd was in attendance who took special delight in noisily differing from the umpire's decisions. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

MONDAY, SEPT. 1ST, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Friscos commenced the month of September most auspiciously by administering a most beautiful coat of white wash to their bitterest opponents—the black jerseyed Colonels. Roscoe Coughlin pitched for the home team and pitched superb ball too. But three little hits—all singles—lonesomely cropping out in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings were made of this pitcher of many titles. True, he was hit out often, but the kindergartens pride, Rube Levy, the cranks favorite "Blockers" Hanley, and the reliable "Silent" Stevens were on hand on all occasions and very successfully lessened the base hit column of the Colonels great team. But Coughlin, Levy, Hanley and Stevens do not deserve all the credit for the unwelcome basket of goose eggs presented the Colonels, for Ebright, Everett, Shea and Vesch also materially assisted in promoting the Athenian's ill-disguised discomforture and humiliation. Little Carsey, who at times does such wonderful work for the Oaklands, received a merry cannonading in the game, every Friscoite getting a safe smash at him, but Coughlin. "Kid" Carsey was not entirely to blame for the immense contrast the run column presents, for that wonderful player, General O'Neill, was in the game and the mere announcement that Sir Norris is to play is a "sure tip" for two or three errors at least and this time he had a trio of misplays to grace (or disgrace) his score. Cantillion also came to the front with two errors while the remaining four were evenly distributed between Lohman, Sweeney, McDonald and C. O'Neill. No doubt Labor Day will always be pleasantly remembered by the Friscos as the first time for the season of 1890, they shut out the Oaklands. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31ST, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

Poor playing at critical times was the principal cause of the Stocktons' defeat in this game. Young occupied the points for the Gas City boys and pitched a strong game, being steadier than usual and permitting only six hits to be made off him. But Lookabaugh for the Friscos did still better, he allowing but three hits, while he succeeded in disposing of eight men on strikes. Cahill did not play, his place being filled by young Pache, an amateur, who acquitted himself admirably. Fogarty was also unable to play, and Armstrong covered second bag in excellent fashion. The Friscos forged ahead from the start, their runs accruing from their single base on balls, light hitting and the few stupid errors of their opponents. The Stocktons made a gallant effort at the close. With two out Fudger hit safely, and Holliday's "homer" gave them two earned runs. Vogt ended the game by flying out to Veach. Shea, Levy and Ebright each scored two hits, Shea and Ebright having a three bagger in theirs. Ebright tried to stretch his into a home run, but Pache threw him out at the plate The fielding of both teams, with the exception of that of the shortstops—Fudger and Everett—was generally good, and in some instances excellent. The The Stockton cranks, as usual, were dissatisfied with Donahue's umpiring. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 4TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

It seems almost impossible for the Senators to win unless they have Bowman behind the bat. Early in this game the "brainy" catcher sustained another accident to his already crippled right hand and had to quit playing. McHale took his place, but did not seem thoroughly acquainted with Harper's signs, while the team also sppeared to lose confidence. However, thongh the Senators were weakened considerably by the change of cstchers, and greatiy missed Bowman's hitting and coaching, the Oaklands had the game won in the first inniug, having hunched well on Hsrper and scoring three runs, which was one more than the Sacramentos secured in the entire game. Then they trotted one man over the plate in each the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, all of which runs were unearned, resulting through battery and infield errors. The Senators hit Cobb rsther freely, but not fortunately, and stupid base running again lost them a few runs. The fielding on both sides was generally good, but no specially brilliant plays ocourred. McDonald and Dungan, particularly the former, carried off the fielding honors, and Lohman caught magnificently, besides securing the longest hit in the game. The double umpire system worked admirably. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

In the pennant race the Senators have dropped perceptibly, but are yet way ahead of their competitors. The Oaklands enjoy a slight lead over the 'Friscos, hut it is so slender that a couple of games won and lost can alter the situation. The Stocktons continue to keep last.

How many pitchers who are on the diamond to-day will last as long and do as good work as did Bobby Matthews? Think of it. Bobby was a star when most of the present crop of pitchers were "mewling and puking in their nurses' arms" and was away in it until four years ago.—Life.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Patsy Cahill depsrted for Portland yesterday.

Ebright has been striking out very frequently of late.

The Senators have made forty home runs already this season.

The Wilmington team, of which Ex-Colonel Werhle was manager, has disbanded.

Ducky Hemp has been released four times within the past six weeks. Poor Ducky.

Many think the fight is now between the Friscos and Oaklands. Yes, for second place.

Joe Werrick, recently released by Baltimore has signed with his native city—St. Paul.

Long Bill Everett has greatly improved in his hitting, and when he meets them how they do go.

Joe Shea has heen hitting the ball with mighty effect lately. Two hits a game is just sbont Joe's speed.

On intricate points they're are few umpires better informed, and more judicious and decisive in their rulings, than is Jsck Donohue.

Lookabsugh is pitching better and better as the season advances. On interior trips he has been the most successful of any of Finn's twirlers.

Brittan, Ward, McCsbe, Hoffman and Levy, released players from the North West Leagne, and ex-Manager Harris of the Portlands, are in town.

McHale is a grest right fielder and good sticker, hut oh! what a base runner! What's the matter with using young eyes and ears, Mac, when on bases ss well as your legs?

Elmer Foster, the heavy hitting fielder of the Minneapolis team has been signed by Anson, and will be stationed in left field for the Chicagos. Cliff Carroll is center and Wilmot right.

The Salt Lake City correspondent of the Sporting News states that Hen Moore, who has lstely been playing magnificent bsll, has started for home, the Salt Lakes having dishanded.

Hen Moore arrived in this city last Thursday from Salt Lake. He came down from Sacramento with the Senatorial team and is reported by them as apparently in fine playing condition.

Brittan, who has lately heen released by Tacoma, has heen signed by the Stocktons. He is said to be a fine infielder and very fair hitter. He played with Fogarty and Holliday in Los Angeles last winter.

With a battery what a team the released players of the season would make up with Isaacson on first, Charlie Sweeney second, Stickney third, Reilly short ston, Hill right, Moore center and Cahill left field.

Armstrong is now Captain of the Slough City team. Armstrong will make this fact known wherever he goes, for though not as disagreeable a captain as O'Neill, he comes pretty near being as windy.

Bill Stickney suddenly depsrted last Tuesday for St. Louis. What the genial third baseman's immediate intentions are no one seems to know, but it is quite possible that in future he will he identified with his brother's racing interests.

The leading clubs in the different leagues are: Players,' Boston; National, Brooklyn; Association, Louisville; Western, Kansas City; Atlantic, New Haven; New York—Pennsylvania, Olean; North Pacific, Spokane; California, Sacramento.

The Sacramento's stockings which, when first worn, were a bright garnet, and a perfect matoh for their caps and belts, have faded, and are now an ugly terra cotta shade. The team is to be soon provided with new trimmings, however, which will consist of black caps, belts and hosiery.

The Stockton Directors have purchased new and tasteful uniforms for their team. Wouldn't it he well for some philantropically inclined crank to start a donatlon party in order to clothe the ragged, dirt bedaubed team now bearing the almost obliterated name of San Fransisco on their breasts.

Hughey Smith is going to change his uniform. He's going to be "one of the finest," or in other words a San Francisco policeman. Hughey says that every kid on his beat will have the "home run" act down to perfection when his star looms up with dazzling brilliancy ateight o'clock each night.

It is a game of see-saw between the Friscos and Oaklands now. One day the Friscos are up and the Oaklands down and the next its vice versa. The Sacramento team is the tall "candlestick" that complacently smiles at their fluctuations but is little affected itself by their "ups and downs" on the championship's plank.

Manager Leonard, of the Omahas, has organized the following team of the Western Association players to take to this coast the coming winter: Messett, first; Hanrahan second; White, third; Walsh, short; Kearns, right; Treadway, center; McGlone, left; and pitchers Fagin and McNabh, and catchers Newman and Moran.

Fred Roberts is suffering from an attack of malaria which, however, has not prevented him making his wonderful plays in left. Its at the bat where he feels it most, being sized with a sickening dizziness which greatly retards his heavy stick work. Fred wants a leave of absence for a week in order to relieve himself of this depressing illness.

No ball-player in America has more admirers than Billy Sunday, the fast-sprinting center-fielder of the Pittsburgs. They will be sorry to hear that the profession is about to lose this shining light. Sunday will retire from the diamond this fall and devote himself exclusively to evangelical work. He will have a position on the active force of the Young Men's Christian Association at Chicago.—Sporting News.

The Senator's temporary slide may he truthfully ascribed to their unfortunate spell of bsd luck which has, within the psst few weeks, assailed nearly every player in the team, either in the shape of accidents or the more dreaded malaria. Daly was the first to succumb to this latter most disagreeable ailment, snd then Godar was laid up, while Roberts is scarcely able to play, suffering greatly with the same complaint. Then Stapleton, Reitz and Bowman have had bad bruises or broken fingers which has compelled their absence from many gsmes, and altogether the players are to be congratulated on having a team in the field at all. With the men in condition, however, they "in it" with a rush for the peunant and just watch them continue to set the pace for the others.

Sunday will he a gala day for the Nstive Son hase ball enthusaists, for two gsmes between teams representing four different Parlors will be played that day at Central Park. In as much as no outsider will be allowed to participate, and the teams are made up of players who are for the most part novices in the art of chasing the sphere, a rare day's sport may be anticipsted. At 11 A. M. Sundsy, the National Parlor team, under the management of W. S. Grattan, will play the Golden Gates, under the csptaincy and management of Fred S. Griffing. On the ssme day at 2 P. M., the Rincons, of which L. K. Hangenkamp is manager, will compete with T. W. Doyle's Pacifics. The teams winning the Sunday games will contest on Monday, and the victors will be presented with a beautiful trophy. Mr. Eddie Moran will officiate as umpire at all the games.

Fred Jevne, who formerly played with the Pioneers snd Sacramentos, and who but recently has been appointed umpire in the Western Associstion, had a most unpleasant experience in the Kansas City-Denver game, played at Kansas, Augnst 23d. Two questionable decisions of his in the ninth inning, when Kansas City was about to tie the score, enrsged the crowd to such an extent that they swarmed into the field, hooting and jeering at him. Two young hoys got hold of a rope and, in fun, proposed to lynoh him. This added to the excitement, and it looked for a time ss if the umpire would be mobbed. Jimmy Manning climbed up to the top of the fence and addressed the mob. He said the umpire had decided rightly, and advised that no violence be attempted. This quieted the mob to a degree. In the mesntime the players of both clubs formed a hollow square around the umpire and escorted him to the club house, whence he escaped to a cab and was driven away.

John Patrick Parnell White Wings Cahill has been released from the Stocktons. Patsy has recently deposed as captsin of the Gas City team, and since relegated to the ranks sought to soothe his wounded feelings by imhibing copious draughts of "Buffalos" and "big steams". When the Directors of the team became aware thst their humorous fielder was working in the interests of rural hreweries, they levied two plasters of fifty dollars each on his salary. Patsy remonstrated that his "beer tax' was excessive, and was told that his services were no longer required. Patsy will go North, having already secure an engagement with Portland. Under favorable conditions, Cahill is a most valuable man having had great experience and being a fine "place" hitter, speedy and successful base runner, and one of the foremost right fielders in the country. He can also go in the hox and pitch winning ball for a few innings, and is an incessant and most humorous coacher.

What is the cost of a home run in basehall, and what attractive feature does it add to the game, compared with the chances for fielding skill which it deprives the fielder of? These are pertinent questions in these days of slugging for home runs, with a lively hall to bat with. A home run is made at the cost, to the batsman, of a run of 120 yards at his topmost speed, which involves an expenditure of muscular power needing a half hour rest to recuperate from such a violent effo t. A home run hit yields just one run when no runners are on the bases—and all the infielders have to do when it is made is to look on at the fun of the sprint running, while an outfielder trots after the ball. Now a single run made by a safe hit for one base, a good steal to second, and a couple of sacrifices costs no violent expenditure of strength; gives the infielders ample facilities for an attractive display of skill, besides affording the spectators an opportunity to see some sharp base running in stealing single hases. Just think of the monotony of a game marked hy a series of home runs in each inning. I saw one game in the days of the lively elastic ball years ago in which runs were made by the hundred, and home runs by the dozen, and a more tiresome exhibition I never witnessed.—Chadwick in Sporting Life.

The release of Honest Bill Stickney from the Oaklands has cost that team the loss of many friends and placed its management in a rather peculiar and unsavory light. Stickney was released for no other reason than to pander to the morbid and spiteful spirit of an alleged player, who himself, devoid of the instincts of a gentleman, actually feared to have a man of Stickney's sterling merits in the team. Because Stickney in righteous indignation had the temerity to assert his manhood to this "power hehind the throne" he must "bend the suppliants knee" to the would be god hy apologizing or suffer the alternative of heing released. Was there ever such a rank injustice perpetrated on a player of the California League before? And this to a gentleman whose connection with the national game has always been a synonym for efficient and clever services, faithfully performed. A player whose inestimable qualities on and off the diamond has won for him the admiration and respect of every one with whom he came in contact. Stickney's high sense of inbred honor revolted at the thought of fawning to this underling, and so he gladly accepted his release in preference. "Old Mobile's" words in the Sacramento-Oakland game of August 16th, which were ridiculously denounced and misconstrued hy his erstwhile manager alone, as "insubordination" were eminently well-timed, just and to the point, and his forbearance from dealing summary vengesnce to his tormentor when under such irritating circumstances merited and received the spontaneous commendation of press and public alike. But his release was only bridged over till the patrons indignation had somewhat subsided for the imperative commands of the Pooh Bar, who exercises such a mysterious influence over his manager, had to be obeyed at any cost, and accordingly Stickney had to go, a great orator, and generel and poet, and "what not" who has lately been sojourning at the Sulphur Springs is vainly endeavoring to fill the place left vacant by the regretted Stickney but as yet nothing but windy and sulphuric haseball has emanated from that corner with demoralizing results.

The Reporte continue tbeir winning career, bnt are closely pursned hy the Santa Rosae, who sre a good eecond. Vallejo hae won everything "in sight" for the past month, which has placed them well up in tbe race. The Fincks have heen ae unlucky as the Marines were fortunate, having loet five straight, making a wide gap hetween them and the Vallejos. The Burlingtone have aleo heen on the down grade for the montb, and are hut slightly in advance of the Allene, wbo have won two of their five August gamee. The record to date.

REPORTS vs. WILL & FINCKS.

Sunday, Aug. 30th, 1890, at San Francisco.

Tbie was a highly intereeting and exciting game, tbe ecore heing close till the finish. Both pitcbere were hit rather freely but witb the exception of the sixth inning neitber was hunched on. Monet wae eepecially steady and when neceesary, very effective. Green gave him fine support. Little Howell pitched a strong game hut his delivery, wbich showed a tendency to wildnese was not handled to the heet advantage hy Billings, who seemingly had an "off day." The Fincks were minue the services of Frank and Lonny Delmas wbose places were admirahly filled by ex-professionals Dave Levy and Billy Farrell. Pree Delmas appeared in right field hut cleerly showed want of practice, being slow in moving for a ball. Hie batting, however, was etrong and timely. The Giants also had a new player named Coleman who put up a great game at second, Deeney, the regular second baseman, retiring to left field in the first inning, having his finger badly hruised by a thrown ball. The Reports did not play their uniformly good fielding game, Thompson and Creamer elipping up on eeveral chances. With these exceptions the remainder of the team played winning hall. Hearty, Deeney, Delmas and Howell did the eafeet and most effective bitting. Farrell's third hase play wae the finest seen on an amateur diamond this season, some of his etops being moet phenemenal, while his throwing was precise and speedy. Tilleon at short, Coleman at eecond and Levy at firet put up a great game for the Fincks, while Dunphy at third for the Reporte and Sharp in left field aleo played hrilliantly, Sbarp making aome heautiful running catchee. The umpiring of McLaughlin was not satiefactory. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. E. T. ALNENS.

Sunday, Aug. 31st, 1890, at Vallejo.

The "Sports" bave loet more games hy one run than any of the other amateur teams in the league and were it not for McDonald'e moet unfortunate wild pitch in tbe eight inning allowing two men to score the Allene would have won tbie game. Fred Spragne made bie first appearance for the Marinee and pitched a maeterly game. He was hit eafely but six times, gave only one hase on balls and retired eleven of the "Sports" on strikes, tbis exhibition of hie ahility occurring mostly at critical timee. His eupport with the exception of that of Maguire was excellent. Stanford was hurt in the firet inning and Smitb took his place covering the initial in eplendid form. Farrell and Leland both caugbt in good style, while the general fielding of "Vet" Murdock, Hughes, Smith, Buckley and Kennedy was of a very bigh order. In the bitting Buckley, Evatt, Farrell and Smith excelled. Russell's umpiring was all that could he desired. The ecore:

SANTA ROSAS vs. BURLINGTONS.

Sunday, Aug. 31st, 1890, at Santa Rosa.

The Burlingtons, with several new playere went to Santa Rosa and were eaeily defeated hy the home team principally through tbeir luckily bunching their hits off pitcher Sullivan in the fourtb and seventh innings. With the exception of theee inninge Sullivan pitched great ball, but when the Sonoma boye commenced guaging him for long ebote he became nervous and rapidly went to piecee. The eupport rendered him was excellent, the infield giving a magnificent exhibition. Callen though not hit hard, was lese eteady than on previous occasione allowing five hases on halls, hitting a player and making two wild pitches. Excellent fielding kept down the hase bits off him. A peculiar featnre of the Santa Rosas was that of the seven hite oredited the team hut one wae a single. Reilly gained a home run by knocking the hall over tbe fence, Stultz and Gimmel made triplee, and Arlett, Pace and Cook each had a two hagger. Dunn, Bradley. Sullivan, Reilly and Hulen each fielded tbeir positione elegantly, while Gimmel, McCarthy and Dean made eplendid catchee in the ontfield. Pete Meegan'e umpiring wae most satisfactory. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Once more winnere—the Reporte.

Five errors for Maguire at ebort, Sunday. What's the matter, Cap?

Green and Billinge hoth did etiong work in throwing men ent at baeee laet Sunday.

Hulen ie putting up a wonderful game at second for the Santa Rosae. Watch hie scores.

Wben are the Allene going to emerge from their hole? They've been tail endere long enough.

Wbat a "cracker-jack" of an infield tbe Santa Rosae now have in Stultz, Hulen, Reilly and Bradley.

McGreevey, Batchelder, Pepper and Grote were the new playere seen in a Burlington uniform laet Sunday.

"Lolly" Dunn ie making a great record ae a baee runner. Hie "Sciseore" only needs to take a few strides to reach from firet to eecond.

Tbe Reports are to be photographed. Wonder if tbis will be a jonah on the "Newsies" ae it alwaye hae been on otber amateur teams.

Sharp'e fielding in laet Sunday'e game was positively grand. Between Gimmel and Sbarp ae left fieldere, honore will be about even.

Tbe San Joaquin Amateur League, which was composed of the Myetice, Mahooliane, Lodie and I X Ls, hae gone under. The managers intend reorganizing on a more solid basie for next year.

Coleman who played with the Will & Fincke laet Sunday, has the actione of a fine eecond baseman. He aleo seeme to he a good hitter, and if we can judge from his firet game, will prove a valnable man to the Young Giants.

Tbe San Franciscoe of the St. Mary's College League won the August series of games by taking four of the seven gamee played with the Oaklands of the same league. Joe Corbett and Young Joliffe formed the battery of tbe winning team.

Pitcher Sprague, formerly of the Dolphine of Santa Cruz, ie now with the Vallejos. In hie initial game against the Allens on Sunday he did excellent work, giving bnt one base on balls, allowing but six hits, and striking out eleven men. With he and Baltz to alternate, the Marinee have a brace of great pitchers.

Aleck Bradley, late eecond baeeman of the Burlingtone, bas heen signed to play with the Santa Roeas. He will probably he assigned to ahort field position, retiring Arlett. Manager Grace is to be congratulated on securing Aleck, for a hetter player and more gentlemanly and faithful man cannot he fonnd on any amateur ball field. This cbange will materially strengthen the already strong Santa Roea club.

Aehman ought to make room for Denny Strand in hie team. There ie one weak spot in the Reports that Denny could fill to the Queen's taste.

McLaughlin's erroneone decieions at second baee last Sunday, considerahly rattled Captain Tbompson of tbe Reports, and as a reeult he wae credited with four errore, two of which were fumblee and the othere a conple of low, thongh not poor throwe. Had tbe nmpire allowed two men Thompson clearly had out at second in the fore part of the conteet, the chances are Thompeon would have played hie nenally steady game.

Frank Loughran, one of the beet of Californias pitchers, has expreseed his willingnees to play again, and if eatiefactory arrangements can he made, will play with any of tbe amateur teams. Here is a player there should he a rueh after, for heeides being a great pitcher, he ie a moet clever in or out-fielder, and is a very fair eticker. He wonld juet about fit in the Will & Fincks, Burlingtons or Allens.

The Burlington Route people were evidently dissatiefied with the poor ebowing Sheridan's old Franklins, playing under the name of the Burlingtons, were making, for they have put in an entirely new team nnder the management of Mr. Wm. Smith. Tbie team was formerly known as the Stars of Oakland, and has eeveral well known players of the Trihnnes in their liet. The hatteriee are Roban and Wilde; Kennedy and Mulvey; firet base, Traynor or Strand; eecond, Farrell; third, Fitzgerald; ebort-stop, Geo. Kelly; left-field, W. Kelly; center, Crowley, and right-field, Flynn. This is an exceptionally strong team who, no doubt, witb tbe name Burlington on their breasts, will give the leadere a hard rub for honore.

SENATORIAL SAYINGS.

Sizing Up the Sacramento's Situation.

Devine on the Amateur Question.

Sacramento, Sept. 2nd.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Baseball matters have been very quiet here of late, and only a few of our nnmeroue cranke have tbongbt it advieable to talk "hall" on account of the rapid decline of the Senators in the League race. But we still think we're eure winners, deepite onr epell of poor luck, and have firm hopes that at tbe end of the eeaeon the eilken banner will proudly float over the homee of the Senatorial aggregation. Tbe downward conrse of the team may be easily accounted for hy the condition of the mainstays of the clnb. Bowman ie laid up with a very sore finger and tbe hulk of the catcbing has devolved on yonng McHale who, althongh a good emergency man, hae not bad sufficient experience to work as effeotively as Bowman.

Young Reitz the brilliant guardian of the second cusbion for the Senatore has also heen diesbled and bis excellent playing ie greatly missed. Ed. Stapleton, the genial manager of the local team still continues to play the initial corner in excellent style and labors hard and earnestly for the euccess of his team. Jack Daily, Sacramento's hard working ebort etop is still the eame old Jack and hie playing ie as brilliant ae is his conntenance.

I wae very much pleased with yonr sensible article in last weeks edition, in defense of amateur baseball; it wae the plain facts and as yon trnly intimate were it not for the younger leagues the older organizations would surely die out.

I had the pleasure and honor to preside for one year President of the Amateur League, and during that eeaeon this organization tnrned ont some players who have made brilliant enccesaee on the Eastern as well as the California diamonde. I epeak of snch playere as "Pop" Swett of the Boston Players League Clnh, Smalley of the Cleveland National League team, and Fred Roberte, the greatest left fielder playing to-day on the California diamond. I was very eorry to read tbat Mike Finn, was one of thoee who deeired to see amateur baeeball ebut out. He ehould look back to past yeare when be received from tbe ranks of the amateurs the player that did more to win him the championehip than any other in bie team. I refer to Tom Powere, now captain of tbe Baltimore American Association team. I hope Mike will think of thoee timee and give the younger organization all tbe cbancee in the world to develop their abilities.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

Judging from the list of entries the meeting at Sacramento on the 17th will be a big success. The great road race is causing quite a boom in 'cycling. The admission Day regatta is creating quite a stir, and lovers of aquatic sports will be made happy with some good exhibitions of rowing. Harry C. Casidy, of the Alpine Club, has issued a challenge for a one mile scratch race to Frank L. Cooley, of the Olympic Club. Both amateurs are very evenly matched, and the race will be looked forward to with much interest by all the athletes. The exhibition of the Olympic Club, which was held at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, was an athletic and financial success.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The entry list of the Sacramento meeting closed on Saturday evening last, and Mr. Walter A. Scott, who has charge of the games, feels highly flattered at the large number of entries. Some of the crack athletes failed to hand in their names, but on the whole the events will be closely contested, and perhaps the coast records may be lowered in the half and two-mile runs. P. D. Skillman does not seem to worry over his training, and will not run up to his best form. He has been "one of the boys" lately, and may find a very tough opponent in the person of H. C. Casidy, who is ready to run the race of his life. The half should fall to Casidy. The hurdle event is liable to prove a soft thing for Young Foster, with H. C. Casidy a close second. The two-mile run will be ably contested by Skillman, Casidy and Cook. The latter has been doing some hard work lately, and will make a hard fight. The walk should fall to Horace Coffin, with A. Cook second.

Henderson and Espinosa, of the Olympic Club, are matched to run one hundred yards for a $30 trophy at Sacramento on September 17th. Henderson will allow Espinosa a start of eight yards. Although Espinosa has never made his mark as a sprinter, still he has shown some good speed, and if he is defeated, Henderson will be immediately classed as the best sprinter, outside of Schifferstein, on the Pacific Coast.

Skillman and Winslow recently paid Harry Casidy a visit, and expressed themselves as highly pleased with the new half-mile track at Souther Farm. All three men ran several trial races, and astonished the farm hands with their wonderful running.

Several athletes are training at the Bay District track. Kendal, Skillman, Winslow, Garrison, Cook and Holland are among the number.

It has not yet been decided how the athletes will travel to Sacramento on the 16th, but in a few days Mr. Scott will announce to those who have entered, the way in which they are to receive their tickets The trains for Sacramento leave San Francisco as follows: 7.30 A. M., arriving at 11.30 A, M.; 3.30 P. M., arriving at 7.30 P. M ; 5 P. M. arriving at 9 P. M., and 8 P. M, arriving at 11.40 P. M. It is probable that all the athletes who can possibly do so, will leave early in the day in order to get as much rest as possible after the journey. The games will commence early on the morning of the 17th and will be finished by noon time. A representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will attend the games, and a full account will be given in these columns.

Kendall and Little must mean business, as both have recently had new running shoes sent out to them from Fraser's of New York. Little is away in the country at the present time, and it is probable that he will engage in a genuine match on his return. Apropos of Little it is said that a prominent officer of the Alpine Club now boasts of having once ran against him in a half-mile race some years ago in one of the large Eastern cities. The P. C. A. A. A. should shift this rumor to the bottom. and if found true the officer referred to should be tried for aiding in a fraud.

Sam Greenberry, Ed Cahill, F. E. Holland and Ed Everett, paid a visit to California City on Sunday, and when they got through angling, the bay contained 198 lbs. less of rock cod. The four named athletes are thinking about getting up a championship fishing match. Cahill says he will win if he has to dive to the bottom and hook the fish on his line.

William Day is to make an effort to break the American record for a mile and a half at the games of the New Jersey Athletic Club, Sept. 30. He will start from scratch in the handicap at that distance.

William Greer Harrison and the regular ticket were elected and the Olympic Club members showed good taste in their choice. It would have been more encouraging to the newly elected officers, however, if more of the members had cast their votes, for out of the whole membership only 200 votes were cast. The newly elected officers are as follows: W. Greer Harrison, E A Rix, W E Holloway. Henry B Russ, E A Kolb, Walter A Scott, A C Forsyth, M H Weed, J H Gilhuly, John Elliott and A J Treat. An opposition ticket with the three last named directors replaced with R McArthur, J P Kelly and A B Field was issued at the last moment but was defeated. The officers in the new Board will be elected as follows: President, W Greer Harrison; Vice-President, E A Rix; Secretary, W E Holloway; Treasurer, Henry B Russ; leader, E A Kolb; captain, Walter A Scott. The building scheme will now be taken in hand again, and with the aid of Mr. Harrison some good work will be done before another year.

Peter Cannon, running under the name of Charles Williams, won a mile race at the Caledonian games at Ottawa, Can., August 14th, finishing ahead of Ed. Case and others.

G. W. Rowdon, the English amateur jumper, is reported to have cleared a bar at 6ft. 5⅝ in. in a running high jump at the games at the Dawlish Athletic Club on August 21st. The feat was presumably accomplished with the aid of weights.

Frank Lowrey won a pedestrian contest with Daniel O'Leary at Dallas, Texas, closing August 17th. He is stated to have traveled one hundred miles in fifteen consecutive days, beating the ex-champion by eight miles.

The teams of the Salford Harriers, of Manchester, Eng., and the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York city, are the first to meet at Detroit, Mich., October 1st and 4th, when the following events will form the programme: 100yds., 220yds., 440yds., 880yds., mile and five mile runs and two mile steeplechase—all handicaps.

The members of the Alpine Club are trying to get up a road race at San Leandro. It is proposed to limit the distance to three miles, and the race will be handicap. An entrance fee of fifty cents will be charged, and about half a dozen prizes will be awarded. For full particulars, application should be made to Capt. John D. Garrison at Central Park, corner 8th and Market Streets.

The Gælic Society have secured a lease of the Hicks estate, Woodside, L. I, and intend to put it into good order for a training ground for their hurdlers and runners. A four lap track, made of cinders, is among the probabilities. The grounds include about five acres, and are within easy distance of the metropolis, being reached in fifteen minutes by rail from Long Island City.

It is possible that some kicking may be done over the result of the walk at Sacramento, if the judge of walking is not allowed an assistant.

COOLEY CHALLENGED BY CASIDY.

Harry C. Casidy, of the Alpine Club, has desired us to state that he is not quite satisfied with the result of the one-mile run at the last championship meeting which was held on Decoration Day, and he would like to have another go from scratch with F. L. Cooley, of the Olympic Club, for a trophy valued at $25. Mr. Casidy will run Mr. Cooley any time within a couple of weeks after the Sacramento meeting, and under any management he desires. Both men will be in tip-top condition on September 17th, and there is no reason why a match should not be made at once. Mr. Casidy will place a deposit in the hands of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as soon as Mr. Cooley accepts his challenge. Mr. Casidy's address is Souther Farm, San Leandro, Cal.

The West End grounds at Alameda are now in excellent order and the cricketers practice there every afternoon. The membership of the different clubs is increasing which is a good sign that the game will shortly attract much attention on the Pacific Coast.

Concerning cricket the New York World says: Now that the cricket season is drawing to a close, a comparison with last year's can be made. There is no doubt that this game gained considerably in popularity over any previous year, and the fact that many clubs doubled their membership of last year shows that an active interest was taken in the sport. The Manhattans are the champions of New York, having defeated every club with which they played. The formation of the League benefitted the game to a great extent, but the clubs which remained outside suffered from a dearth of dates. The Amateur League Club was a notable instance of this, as it had a large number of vacant Saturdays on the list, while their more fortunate rivals within the organization could hardly find vacant dates to play off their postponed matches. The improvement of the New York Club was one of the surprises of the year. It has now a team which compares favorably with any in the district, while two years ago it was an easy prey for all comers. The Kings County and Cosmopolitan Clubs also gained in numbers and active strength and both have been able to place two teams in the field on the same day. The record of the New Jersey A. C. was rather disappointing, as starting out well, it appeared to go all to pieces in their League games, while it kept up its prestige in outside matches. The New Jerseys have several good men in their eleven and they should have won more of their games. The Brooklyns appear to have a good team, but they haven't had a chance yet of testing their strength with a League Club. The Berkeleys promise to acquire the principal players of the Staten Island Club and next season will probably have the strongest team in New York.

IN THE SURF.

The weather favored surf bathing during the past week, and business at the bath houses was rather good.

Some improvements have lately been made at the Sheltered Cove baths. A greased pole has been erected and it causes much amusement amongst the bathers and on-lookers.

The tank at the Terrace Baths at Alameda was thoroughly cleaned out a few days ago, and the bottom is not quite as muddy as it was.

The swimming race for Native Sons which will take place at the Terrace Baths will have a large number of entries and good time will be made.

C. Benedict, of Montreal, Ont., at the annual races of the Montreal Swimming Club, August 18th, swam one thousand yards in 16m 17⅗s, thus lowering the previous best American amateur record for the distance, which was 17m 53s, made by himself at the same place, Aug. 24, 1889.

AT THE OARS.

The coming N. S. G. W. regatta is the sole absorbing topic in rowing circles at the present time. The oarsmen are having a genuine picnic and they seem to know it. The prizes offered are very liberal and the list of races unusually large, and the oarsmen could not help but go into training under the circumstances. Here is a lesson for the Pacific Rowing Association. Composed of so many good clubs as it is why should it not get up a regatta on the same terms. The poor prizes offered by the regatta committees during the last couple of years were the cause of such small entry lists and now that a lesson has been taught it is to be hoped that the right parties will profit by it.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

Next week we will review the exhibition of the Olympic Club which was held at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening.

The membership of the California Club is rapidly falling off and nothing short of a fight between Sullivan and Jackson or McAuliffe and some one else will stop the resignations from being handed in.

As the University Athletic Club will not be represented at Sacramento the fight will be between the Alpine and Olympic Clubs. The latter club should make a much better showing than it did at the championship meeting.

Unless the clubs begin to offer further inducements to the athletes, oarsmen and wheelmen, it is probable that after this month the amateurs will again fall into a comatose condition.

THE WHEELMEN.

Ives, Morgan or Lee?

Which will win the road race?

The list of entries is closed and we give the handicap as follows:

J Gordan, 5 min; W T Lee, 1min; O F Morgan, scratch; F Harris, scratch; J F Brown, 4 min; F D McCord, 6 min; O L Pickard, 6 min; A Marshall, 3 min; J F Ives, 1 min; W Hubbard, 8 min; F Brown, 8 min; H R Williams, 8 min; G P Wetmore, 3½ min; H Smith, 4 min; R E Dow, 3 min; F Larder, 4 min; Oscar Olsen, 4 min; R W Turner, 3 min; H A Pogue, 3 min; Al Revett, ——.

The race will be started at eight minutes to ten so that the scratch men will start at 10 o'clock sharp.

The rules regarding the starting are that if a man is not ready to leave when his name is called he will have to leave with the next batch. No one will be allowed to start alone.

J. F. Brown was looked upon as one of the probable winners but as he hurt himself badly while going over the course on Sunday he will not start. He received a very bad fall and cut his chin, besides sustaining other injuries.

Steve Knapp, W. M. Meeker, George P. Wetmore and C. W. Hammer all of the B. C. W. accompanied W. S. Doane of Boston to San Mateo on Sunday last. During the day the University at Palo Alta, Searsville, Hansonville, and other places of interest were visited. The riders came home by the Coast road. Mr. Doane is the fifty and one hundred mile amateur champion of America and not long ago he made a new record by riding from Denver to Boston. He intended competing in the coming road race but was suddenly called away on business on Tuesday.

F. E. Weaver the great Eastern man paid a visit to the club rooms of the Bay City wheelmen on Tuesday evening.

It is quite surprising what an interest is being taken in the road race. The Bay City boys may be thanked for helping to boom matters in the Cycling world at the present time.

The members of the Alameda Bicycle Club have rented a bus to take their sisters and their cousins and their aunts up to San Leandro on the day of the race. The bus will start from cor. Park and Central Avenue. Good boys!

It is said that Ives will not accept his handicap but will start from scratch. His club mates are ready to bet their last cent that he will win first place.

The course is that known as the San Leandro triangle and is as follows: Commencing on San Lorenzo Avenue, at the Estudillo House thence to San Lorenzo, through San Lorenzo to Haywards Avenue, thence returning to the starting point. The course is eight and one-third miles and it will take three laps to make the required distance.

Julius Smith, of San Jose, is keeping very quiet but he will be in it all the same at the finish.

O. F. Morgan, the English rider, is another probable winner and his past records prove him to be a rider of no mean ability.

J. Phil Percival, of the Los Angeles Wheelman, and vice-Consul of the Cal. Division L. A. W., has returned from Australia. In company with Mr. Little also of the L. A. W., he paid a visit to the club rooms of the B. C. W., on Monday evening.

The medals for first place and first time in the road race will be the same as the medals given at the championship meet which was held at San Jose.

It is claimed that only about four men are doing all the talking about the separation of the Southern Wheelmen from the California division L. A. W. The local men don't seem to care whether the separation takes place or not, but they object to so much talk and so little work.

The Bay City Wheelmen are discussing the next race meet. Such a club deserves encouragement, and the rapidly increasing membership denotes how popular it is growing.

Harry Potter, Charles M. Culver, Walter Fisk, —— Konk, —— Brown, all of the Alameda B. C., accepted an invitation from Mrs. Wate of San Leandro to be present at a party given by her on last Saturday night. They had an enjoyable time. Charley Culver ate so much ice cream that it took him from 2 o'clock Sunday morning until 7 o'clock Sunday night to ride home, a distance of eight miles.

A Correction.

In an editorial in last week's paper, headed "Comparative Time Test," we gave the English stallion Proto—Martyr as the sire of Hon. James White's horse, The Pontiff, sire of Sumatra and other good ones. We should have given The Drummer that place. He is by Rataplan—My Niece, by Cowl and is the sire of Harmony and Rose of Arizona, owned by Hon. L. J. Rose of Los Angeles; also of two unnamed mares of exceptionally fine pedigrees, owned by Hon. George Hearst, of San Simeon. The Drummer is now 24 years old, and, while he is still in perfect health, cannot be much longer relied upon for procreative purposes.

Another Large Guaranteed Purse.

Following in the wake of many other Associations and also the Chicago horsemen, the Vigo Agricultural Society of Terre Haute, Indiana, announces this week that they will give a guaranteed purse of $11,000 for trotting foals of 1890, the race to take place when the colts are four years old. The money will be divided, $5,000 to the first horse, $2,500 to second, $1,500 to third, $1,000 to fourth and $1,000 to the breeder irrespective of who may own the animal when the race takes place. McKeen & Co., the bankers of Terre Haute, have been appointed trustees of this large purse, and the amounts received in payments and forfeit will be held by them for the fulfillment of its purposes.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz: $11,000, then, and in that event, fifty per cent of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse he started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the money will, in all probability, exceed $10,000.

The entrance is payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for starters, payable August 1, 1894.

New Purses.

The State Agricultural Society advertises in the present issue that they have declared off the 2:22 Trotting Purse and also race No. 23, which was a Pacing Stake, and have substituted therefor a trotting purse of $1200 in which the following named horses will be eligible to entry, and all others whose records are not better than 2:23. Mary Lou, Wanda, Redwood, Pink, Guide, Oaknut, Argent, Larco, Nona Y. and Victor. A purse of $1500 is also offered for the free-for-all trotters, which should bring out a large field and make capital sport. A trotting purse of $1200 is also offered for the 2:18 class. This fills up the full complement of races advertised by the Association, and as undoubtedly there will be many entries made to the three races mentioned, it is safe to say that the State Fair of 1890 will far surpass any ever held before. Horsemen should remember that the entries to these three purses close on Monday, September 8th.

Quality and Substance.

Any shrewd breeder will agree with us that "blood is excellence, but form is superiority"; or, in other words, that it is better to have all horse and no pedigree than all pedigree and no horse. Some great performers, notably the English sire Prince Charlie (now dead), were very coarse, yet it would be impossible to find a more aristocratic horse than his son Salvator, the immortal hero of 1·35½. Vauxhall, brother to Foster, was ugly enough for a cart horse, yet Foster was one of the best looking sons of the sightless Lexington.

The Australian thoroughbreds are, for the most part, wanting in quality, and yet they are heavily boned and heavily muscled as well. Looking backward seventy years, we find in the portraits of American Eclipse, Duroc and Sir Archy such types of horses as the average Australian horse of to-day. The most natural inference, therefore, is that constant in-breeding has improved the quality of our thoroughbreds, and, at the same time, deteriorated their substance. Peel has three crosses of Lexington, two of Glencoe and about twelve of Sir Archy. Jennie Treacy had three crosses of Lexington and fifteen crosses of Diomed, the sire of Sir Archy, having two of American Eclipse who was by Duroc. At the sale of Mr. Haggin's yearlings, in 1889, was sold a chestnut filly by Warwick, out of Eliza by Norfolk, which had four crosses of Lexington, through Minnie Minor, Norfolk, Woodburn and Lucy Wade. Is it any wonder, then, that the shrewd and far-seeing Master of Del Paso should have foreseen the outcome and imported both Darebin and Sir Modred as vigorous and desirable outcrosses?

The recent visit of a well known turf writer to the Australasian colonies showed him some curious facts. He found Neckersgat a coarse horse, whose sons were very plain in appearance while his daughters were almost unequalled in quality. St. Alban's sons were very heavy and almost coarse, while his daughters were so finely spun that he had to examine and measure eleven of them below the knees before he could find one that suited him as a broodmare; and, much to his regret, this choicely bred and high formed filly (Heiress) died on the passage hither from Sydney. The only families that he found in which good bone was evenly transmitted by the sire into both sexes were those of Chester, Roodee, Hastings, Forest King, Wellington, Goldsbrough, Yattendon, Newminster, Epigram, and, last and best of all, Musket.

The Drummer reverses the conditions of Neckersgat and St. Albans, for his sons are fine to the verge of delicacy, while most of his daughters are heavily boned with coarse heads and lopped ears. The handsomest horse stripped for a race on any Australian course in the past six years was Chicago, now in England, and yet he was manifestly far below all such contemporary horses as Abercorn, Mentor, The Australian Peer, Lochiel, Matador, Malnu and Carlyon in the cardinal requisite of bone. On the other hand, Recall by the same sire, out of a very weedy sort of mare, had forelegs like iron pillars, and was one of the best steeplechasers in the colonies in 1888-89. But Recall was an exception to the male line of The Drummer.

Marihyrnong, while far from being the best of Fisherman's sons on the turf, was by long odds the best of his get as a sire. He got winners from all sorts and conditions of mares, while his handsomer and speedier brother, Ferryman, was a total failure in the stud. To his sons Marihyrnong transmitted such legs and feet as are seldom seen in any country, but his daughters were either very light below the knee or had unusually long forward cannon-bones. Yet they bred well to all sires, more especially to the sons of Yattendon. It would be difficult to find seven horses from any one sire with such legs as are under Martindale, Forest King, Bargo, Wycombe, Segenhoe, Richmond and Horatio, but Iolanthe, and The Orphan were exceptions to the rule of his daughters.

Limestone is the chief factor in the Australian thoroughbred's composition, as a belt of that mineral extends parallel to the south coast for nearly twelve hundred miles. True, we have limestone in Kentucky, but Australia's advantage over "the dark and bloody ground" lies in the fact that she has avoided close inbreeding; and she has milder winters. Before ten more years have passed, Kentucky will replenish her paddocks from the land of the Kangaroo.

Our Australian Letter.

Sydney, New South Wales, Aug. 6, 1890.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Jupiter Pluvius has treated Australian sportsmen very scurvily this season as may be judged from the fact that in Sydney it has rained for over thirty consecutive Saturdays, and the rain gauge shows a greater fall of rain for the present year than was ever before registered during a similar period. Walter Higinbotham, the Victorian trainer, who has in charge the mighty carbine and the 4,600 guinea three-year-old gelding Titan, thinks of bringing his charges to Randwick on account of the rain, but it strikes me in crossing the border he will be going from the proverbial "frying-pan into the fire." Death has this year been busy among the Australian breeders of thoroughbred stock, no less than three of the principal having gone the way of all flesh. First Andrew Town, then James White and on Sunday last W. J. Dangar passed away. Mr. Dangars' breeding establishment is situated at Neotsfield, near Singleton, N. S. Wales, and in addition to his success as a rearer of blood stock, he was very successful as a breeder of Suffolks and pedigree cattle. Mr. Dangar's name may be strange to people outside Australia as he was more of a breeder than racer of horses, and with the exception of his win of the Victoria Racing Club Oaks with Vanis in 1884, his name does not appear on the list of winners of the "classic races."

Any number of tip-top performers were foaled at Neotsfield, however, and should the stud be now broken up, you Yankees might pick up something good with such stallions to choose from as Goldsbrough, Hawthorden, Welcome Jack and Malta.

The fame of the Hon. James White as a breeder and racer has gone across the seas, as well it might, his horses having won 253 races of a monetary value of £125,000, big money out here although it may pale alongside the makings of your champions, the Dwyer Bros. In seven seasons the crack jockey, Tom Hales, rode 137 winners out of 302 mounts for Mr. White, Hales is a martyr to asthma, and had it not been for his complaint, it is not altogether off the cards that he might have gone home for the mount on Kirkham, in which connection I may state that a very knowing Australian horseman who was in England at the time the Derby was run informed me that he really believes had Kirkam been trained as we train in Australia he must have gone very close to winning, but the horse, who comes of rather a gross family was fully a hundred weight above himself, and in place of the long canters they give them in England, he wanted some of the clothing sweats we treat them to out here. Anyway, win or loss, I will never believe a horse of Kirkham's antecedents in condition, would finish last in any field, with his tongue hanging out, as the English press so loved to draw the picture of his defeat.

Since I last wrote a horse died, who, had he survived, might have added to the fame of your Darebin. His name was West Lynn, by Darebin from Pastille, and he was owned by a blind sportsman named West, who despite his affliction takes a keen interest in horse racing and very often has a good thing to trot out. Out of the 149 entries for the Melbourne Cup but 18 have erred a go upon declaration of first forfeit.

Such a satisfactory state of affairs may be attributed in a great measure to the big "sweeps" which are brought off in connection with the Cup, as lucky drawers of horses usually lay the owners so much to nothing, and a regular system of blackmail is carried on by unscrupulous owners who refuse to start their horses unless they are laid the majority of the plunder. Last year George Adams had on the Melbourne Cup a £50,000 a £10,000, and a couple of £2,000 sweeps, out of which he drew as commission the tidy sum of £9,000, and in addition to Adams there are other lesser sweeps on the event, so that the £10,000 stakes will not be the only money the lucky winner of our premier event may pocket. The great Metropolitan stakes, the principal handicap at the spring meeting of the Australian Jockey Club, is this year a miserable failure. In past years the Metropolitan took an equine giant to carry it off—Sir Modred won in 1884—but this year pride of place is held by Sir Modred's son Sir William, who stands tenth on the Melbourne Cup weights, 8st. 11lb., and even at that is considered to have been badly treated and altogether weighted out of the race. Then come Marvel, Prince Consort, The Racer, Leopold Lyndhurst and Antaeus, and of the thirty-nine remaining there is not a race horse in the crowd. It does not take long to explain the reason of this. The Melbourne Cup is for £10,000, whilst the Metropolitan, although run under the auspices of a very wealthy club, is for £1,000 only, and as the Australian Jockey Club are short sighted enough to run the Metropolitan before the Melbourne Cup, owners will not send their horses for the first race as the winner of the Metropolitan incurs a penalty of 14lbs. for the Cup. However, out of evil may come good, and after this year's failure the committee of the premier Jockey Club of New South Wales must see the necessity for an immediate and severe alteration in the conditions of what has hitherto been the big Handicap of New South Wales.

GOSSIP.

Frank S. Reynolds, owner of Goldsborough, The Drummer, Splendor and Sweet William, has left his home for a voyage to Japan. He is in failing health and his legion of friends hope for his speedy recovery and safe return. In the past twelve years Mr. Reynolds has bred such cracks as Maritana, Drumstick, Daughter of the Regiment, Melos, Chicago, Eclipse, Recall, Arsenal, Prince Imperial, Favo and other good ones. His malady is dyspepsia, which is largely due to his hospitality, and we hope to meet him, in renewed health, at the old ancestral mansion of Tocsl. Frank Reynolds is a Britisher in his love of country, coupled with the enterprise and progress of an American. His country has need of all such men.

Mr. Samuel Gardiner, of Bundoora Park, has at last come to a realization of what all his friends saw long ago—that the stallions at Bundoora were manifestly inferior to his mares. His paddocks included the choicest native and imported blood, and yet, in the past ten years, his only notable productions were Darebin and Loyalist. Darebin can be sold (if ever Mr. Haggin gets tired of him, which is not likely) for more money to go back to the colonies than he ever cost that gentleman. Mr. Gardiner has sent to be sold by auction the following stallions: The Hook, by Fishhook, brother to Angler; Fitz Tubal, by Tubal Cain; Snwarrow, by Snowden, dsm. Phizgig by Voltigeur: and Chesterfield, by the Marquis—Lamorna by Fireworks. It is a great pity they were not sold long ago and something else bred to such mares as Lurline and Calumny.

The Victoria Racing Club report nett profits for the year at £32, 243, or nearly $160,000, after paying over $70,000 in improvements to track, and $22,000 for maintainance of racing grounds. The nett profits on the Spring Meeting, (November 1889) were over $87,000. If San Francisco had such a track as that at Flemington, there would be some inducement for horse breeders of blooded stock to import valuable stallions and mares.

Mernee, own brother to Malua, is spoken of as the handsomest two-year-old in Victoria. His famous brother was one of the greatest racehorses that ever lived, and bids fair to rank next to Chester and Newminster as a famous Colonial bred stallion. It is in keeping with his powerful form and great ease of action that such should be the case. This union of Stockwell, Touchstone and Flying Dutchman blood cannot fail to produce great performers.

Carbin and Cuirassier are the leading favorites for the Melbourne Cup at 100 to 16, Tantallon (brother to Mr. Rose's Catherine Wheel) 100 to 12, Gresford 100 to 10, Cardigan, Churchill and Propounder 100 to 8, Swing and Chintz 100 to 6, and Melos and Prince Consort 100 to 4. If the latter horse should win and the Derby fall to Titan, the Broken Hill "plunger" will have his hands full of money for awhile. He stands to win £80,000 on the double event if it comes off as above given, and that is why he paid £4,750 for Titan, the highest price ever paid for a gelding in any country—for galloping purposes. Prince Consort was a very good two-year-old, and is very fairly weighted. The Carbine party have four strings to the race in Carbine, Prince Consort, Tantallon and Tormentor, the latter being by St. Albans out of Nightmare, own sister to Commotion. "THE JUNGLE."

The Great Chicago Sale.

The second combination Breeders' Sale of F. J. Berry & Co. at Stock Yards, Chicago, is looking up from all quarters as over 250 entries have already been received and every mail adds to the number from some of the very best breeding farms in America, such as M. Salisbury, Pleasanton, Cal., Count Valensin, Pleasanton, Cal., The Morse Stock Farm, Cal., H. D. McKinney, Janesville, Wis., L. M. Dixon, Allens Grove, Wis., J. W. Swansbrough, Waukeegan, Ill.. S. A. Browne, & Co., Kalamazoo, Mich, Walter Clark, Battle Creek, Mich., and a large number from Kentucky and all of the surrounding and Eastern States. Hurry in your entries so as to secure a good place in the catalogue as the space may all be taken before the date fixed for the entries to close, and we do not want to be obliged to leave out any of our patrons for the want of time to sell their stock, and want all to have the benefit of this great and valuable market that is second to none in the world, as at our regular Saturday auction we average from 120 to 150 horses, total sales of each week from 300 to 500 head. A stable capacity, including the new barns now being built, in all will accommodate 1,000 horses. A pavilion built especially for the auction sales holding 1,500 people, all heated by steam: track through the center for showing speed, and lunch counter and all the accommodations that skill and money could design as the buildings are constructed especially for the auction sales, and the only place for holding this kind of sale as there is no other place that compares with it. This sale bids fair to be the most successful and brilliant sale ever held of its kind. Address F. J. BERRY & Co.

Bob Ridley and Bull Pup.

In answer to a letter sent to Mr. Doyle of Carrollton, Ill., in reference to the two horses whose names form the caption of this item, we have received the following:

CARROLLTON, ILLINOIS, AUG. 15th 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Received your letter and will reply as far as I know in regard to the two horses. Bob Ridley was bred and raised by the late R. S. Evans, Carrolltin, Green Co., Illinois, and was by Tom Januarys' St. Lawrence. I mean by that—the horse that trotted against Lady Moscow—known as Old St. Lawrence. Bob Ridley's dam was Flora Brag by imported Consternation. He was taken to California in 1863 by R. S. Evans and sold to Frank Chapman of Sacramento.

Bull Pup was by the same horse January's St. Lawrence, was bred and raised by Tom January of St. Lonis County, and was out of a mare called Doll, a shaved tail mare that was by Abdallah and she was brought from Kentucky. Bull Pup was taken to California in 1863 by Bill Billings or Billings and Tiff and sold to a man by the name of Bob Beatty, who kept what was called "The White House" in San Francisco. That is about all that I know about them as they were not running the pedigrees up as closely as they are now.

I see many questions in your correspondence that I could answer and at any time that I can aid you in any way I will do it willingly for I know a great many horses and mares that went to California across the plains many years ago.

Yours, C. DOYLE.

best of it and passed the quarter with Prince B. at her sulky wheel, Rockwood two lengths behind and three in front of Lena. Mattie was just clear of Prince B. at the half while Rockwood had closed up to the latter, Lena made a tired break on the upper turn and dropped out of the race while Rockwood and Prince B. closed up to Mattie and turned into the stretch at her wheel. Rockwood broke a furlong from home and left the other two to fight it out, Prince B. admirably handled by Nolan getting the verdict by the shortest of heads, Rockwood three lengths back third and Mambrino Boy a bad fourth and Lena a worse last. Time, 2:32½. Mutuals paid on the field $14.40.

Fourth heat—Pools sold rapidly at $50 Mattie P., to $24 Prince B., and $11 for the field. Goldsmith drove Mattie P. The word was given the fifth time up at fifteen minutes after six, with Prince B breaking immediately afterwards he fell back last, while Mattie set the pace, passing the quarter a length and a half in front of Rockwood—tiptoeing two lengths in front of Mambrino Boy, a length in front of Lena H, four lengths ahead of Prince B. Rockwood broke at the end of three furlongs and ran for forty yards, passing the half two lengths behind Mattie, while Mambrino Boy was lapped on his wheel, three lengths in front of Lena, two lengths in advance of Prince B; round the turn every one closed up, the order at the head of the stretch being Mattie two lengths in front of Mambrino Rockwood, Lena and Prince B a length apart. The latter closed up in a hurry, finishing a head behind Mattie P, with the others three lengths back about even, Rockwood placed fifth for running, and Lena H. placed third, Mambrino Boy fourth. Time 2:31. Mutuals paid $7.60.

Fifth heat—Pools sold $30 Mattie P. to $13 to the field. When the word was given Goldsmith went away in at a great rate from the score, having a seven lengths lead round the turn with Lena a length in front of Mambrino Boy just clear of the Prince. The order was unchanged to the head of the stretch when Lena broke and Prince B., passing her, trotted like a wild horse down the stretch and just got up in time to beat Mattie in the last two strides by a neck after a hard finish. Time, 2:34. Mutuals paid $11.75. Race postponed until 1 o'clock the next day.

Special purse, $500 for named horses.

Close of a Great Meeting.

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa, Aug. 30.—Special Telegram.—This, the closing day of the Independence meeting, is a climax of a week of the most delectable weather and the most exciting sport. A week that probably records a larger number of broken records than any similar period for many years. Williams' brilliant success as a manager and the fame of his new track is to-day signalized by the greatest events which have been witnessed on the Western turf this season. The day is still warm, just right for the best results. The crowd is thinner than yesterday, but is still large, and the interest unabated. Many of the horses have departed for other fields, and to-morrow a special horse train will leave here for the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines, while another will depart for Dubuque. The events to-day have fitly supplemented the great racing feats that have preceded them.

A summary of the results of this meeting up to last night will show the two year old record, all ways of going for either filly or colt, lowered by Manager; the stallion record of either way of going broken by Roy Wilkes, the fastest three heats ever trotted by a four year old in a race, Margaret S, and to-day in the second heat of the four year old race, Alabaster, a son of Aberdeen, dam by Almont, owned by Myers and Wagner of Dayton, Ohio, lowered the world's four year old colt record by trotting a mile in 2:15 flat. At the conclusion of this performance Mr. Myers was offered $20,000 for his colt, which he refused. Another sensational performance that elicited prolonged cheering was the feat of the four year old California mare Margaret S, in trotting a mile against her record of 2:17. Margaret S was accompanied home from the half by a runner, and passed the wire in 2:12½, lowering her record four and one-half seconds. Thus on the great track at the Lexington of the North to-day Margaret S beat the record made by Nancy Hanks on the track of the old Lexington of the South day before yesterday by two seconds. Roy Wilkes was then brought out for a trial against the record made Thursday, 2:09; he was in good condition and bets were offered that he would beat it without takers. The invincible McHenry sat in the sulky. After scoring twice Roy was sent off with Dohle's runner, Father John. He passed the quarters in the following time: First, 32¼; second, 1:03½; third, 1:35; mile, 2:08¼; thus beating his late record by three-quarters of a second. The next special feature was Salisbury's pacing mare, Cricket, by Steinway, to best her record of 2:12. She was driven by Andy McDowell, and accompanied by a runner driven by C. W. Williams. Considering the fact that she yesterday won a five heat race, three heats of which were better than 2:14, her performance to day was phenomenal. She paced to the first quarter in 31½, to the half in 1:05½, and stopped the timers' watches at 2:10 flat. Alvin, by Orpheus, the winner of the 2:25 trot, Tuesday, making a record therein of 2:17, was then brought out to trot a mile against it, getting a new mark of 2:14½.

Subscriber:

Would you please give me the pedigree of Pretender? He was owned in Kentucky a short time ago.

Answer.—We do not know the horse.

F. G. F:

Can you give me or publish the breeding and performances of the small brown trotting stallion Fly-by-night, brought to this country about 1860 by James Whitcomb, of Sacramento County.

Answer.—Fly-by-Night trotted several times on this coast, both in California and Oregon. He was taken to the latter State by John P. Welch, where he stood two seasons. At Sacramento, on Sept. 9, 1867, he made a record of 2:38¾. We do not know his breeding.

G. E. H. C.

Can a horse be shut out if no judge or distance flag is out—that is to flag him out.

Answer.—Yes, part of rule 27 reads, "But in the absence of a distance judge, or on his failing to act, the judges of the race shall determine what horses are distanced."

Manager, the fast two year old pacer has again reduced his record, this time making a mark of 2:16½ at Independence. This is the fastest mile at either trotting or pacing ever accomplished by such a young horse.

Prince Warwick, from which much was expected by the Hickok Stable, is reported to be under the weather. Although, as is well known, that he can easily show a mile in 2:18, the horse has not won a heat this year.

In publishing the report of the San Jose meeting a typographical error caused us to give Baywood a record of 2:37 when it should have been 2:33. It is fully expected that this horse will enter the list before many weeks have passed.

The Poodle Dog Restaurant has a reputation second to none in the country for the manner in which meals are served at that popular place. During the coming holidays and while the City is full of strangers, it is probable that the well known caterer Mr. Einselen will have his hands full.

The old California favorite, Conde, by Abbottsford, bobs up serenely every little while, and surprises the betting talent on the Montana circuit. Last week while selling in the auctions for buttons against dollars, he managed to pull off three straight heats, defeating Manning who was a very pronounced favorite.

As will be seen by the advertising columns, the Sylvia Park Stud is to be sold out, and there will pass under the hammer one of the choicest collections of thoroughbred stallions and mares that ever graced any breeding establishment. Owing to a pressure on our column this week, attention is simply called to the advertisement, but next week we will review the book and let our readers know exactly what is to be offered for sale.

The leading house on the Pacific Coast for purchasing all kinds of sporting material is Will & Finck, at 818 and 820 Market street. This firm has been in the business for many years and has a reputation equal to any in the United States for the manner in which their business is conducted. Sporting goods of all kinds can be secured at Will & Finck's who tell our readers this week through an advertisement that they will send one of their mammoth catalogues free, to all who may make application for same.

During the week I had the pleasure of taking a good look at the old broodmare Lena Bowles, owned by Capt Ben E. Harris, of this city, and must confess that she looks as well as ever she did. Without being able to say how she may stand when the decisions are given this week at the Oakland Fair, still, if my mind serves me aright, she has been exhibited at many fairs for twenty years, and has never been defeated yet. In looks, she is a typical broodmare, and it is a great pity that there are not many more like her in this State.

The celebrated New Zealand Cup horse, Lochiel, is reported as having been sold to Tom Hales, famous as the former rider of Abercorn, Carlyon and Cranbrook. Those who know the history of the handsome brown stallion, say that he was lame months before his sale to Mr. Hales in February last. Mr Barney Allen was a nominal purchaser, but Mr. Hales check was the one on which Mr. Stead got the money. The horse has paid for himself on ante-post betting before he was scratched, probably half a dozen times over. Barney Allen knew just how to work that end of the string.

Mr. James Gillis of Pleasanton is an old gentleman well known to many of the turf frequenters, as his face has been familiar on many tracks. Two weeks ago to-day Mr. Gillis was exercising one of his horses on the Salisbury track, says the Pleasanton Times, when the horse took fright and threw the old gentleman over the front of the cart where he fell in such a manner as to get one of his legs tangled up in a wheel of the vehicle. He was dragged about an eighth a mile before the horse was caught receiving many bruises about the body and several severe cuts of the scalp. At last report he was doing well.

One of the peculiar traits of those who are connected with the Associated Press was brought before the public on Sunday and Monday last, when the telegram was published in all of the San Francisco dailies, stating that Roy Wilkes had paced a mile in 2.08¼, and that Alabaster had trotted a heat in 2:15; still not a word was mentioned about Margaret S., who on Saturday and at the same place, Independence, Iowa, trotted a mile in 2:12½, and Cricket, who paced a mile in 2:10. I wonder if it is possible that the Eastern correspondents are so affected with sectional jealousy that their minds have become biased, and they hate to mention the names of Californian horses.

From those who were present at the Chico Fair we learn that the stubbornly contested fight between Vic H. and Frank M. was worth traveling a long distance to see. Well, that is only natural, for when five heats are put in in 2:19, 2:18, 2:19½, 2:18 and 2:20½, and all of them in close finishes, it goes without saying that the spectators were treated to a horse race. Frank M. showed himself to be a dead game horse, and yet with it all Vic H. has proved that in the old Black Bird stock there is plenty of stamina and speed. Mr. Keating was so highly elated at his victory that last Saturday evening he invited a large party of friends to a wine supper at the Park Hotel, Chico, and a very pleasant time was passed.

Capt. Ben Harris is out a wine supper but is in a hundred dollars, consequently is a little winner. It came about in this way: the Captain fancies that he has one of the handsomest weanling colts in the State, and on bragging about it was quickly taken up by Mr. Murphy, part owner of Redwood, who thought he knew where there was one that could show up superior to the Harris colt. A wager was made and at Petaluma the colts were shown; three judges being appointed who did not know either of the colts. After a critical examination they decided unanimously in favor of Capt. Harris but then Mr. Murphy had the satisfaction of knowing that the winner was also sired by Redwood. It is a very handsome colt and it is no wonder that the Captain is so proud of him.

Thomas J. Clay, the owner of several Kentucky horses, commenced suit in the United States Court last week against the Washington Park Club to recover $11,155. Mr. Clay is the owner of Balgowan, the animal that won the Hyde Park Stakes July 17 last, and now Mr. Clay makes the charge that the club has refused to pay him the amount, although the racing stewards had approved the action of the judges in deciding the race in Balgowan's favor.

Hirsch, Kahn & Co. notify the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman this week that they have received another consignment of Bell Odometers. This is one of the handiest contrivances ever placed upon the San Francisco market, and there is no one who owns a horse but should have one of these machines attached to the wheels of their vehicle, so that the distance traveled can be accurately registered. As each mile is completed a tiny bell strikes, notifying the driver that another mile has been finished. The firm also has a large stock of Opera, Race and Field Glasses, the largest on the coast, and to any who may wish something in their line, the firm will send a beautiful illustrated catalogue free on application.

Last year a colored man in Fayette county, Ky., bought a blind stallion colt for $60. He used him this season as a teaser for a jack. A few weeks ago several gentlemen were at the farm on which this blind horse was quartered. He being quite a shspely fellow a discussion as to his probable going qualities was begun. Some contended that he was built for a trotter, while others claimed that he was nothing but a "dunghill." One of the gentlemen told the negro he would give him fifty cents to drive him around the training track. Accordingly the horse was hitched to a heavy road-cart and, with his owner behind him, went a mile in 2:50, finishing as easily as a well trained horse could have done. This of course astonished the spectators, and one of them bought the horse for $165. He is now in training, and his new owner thinks he will have a 2:25 performer before the snow flies.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

It was a very fortunate thing that some of the hostlers were around the stables last Saturday night at Palo Alto as it was only by their vigilance that a very disastrous fire was prevented. As it was the loss was quite an extensive one. It seems that flames were detected coming from one of the main barns, where a large quantity of straw had been packed away; the barn had been filled and then sealed up as the straw would not be required until next winter. By the light of the flames two men were seen running away, but the danger was so great that those who saw the men hastened to attempt to put the fire out and did not pursue them. When those who work in and around the stables got out the fire hose they found a big knot tied in the middle of it, which had probably been done by the incendiaries so as to make it useless. Owing to the efforts of the men, the fire was confined to the barns. The loss is about $7,000.

From far off Australia comes word that our erstwhile correspondent, C. Bruce Lowe, has gone out of the stock commission business, his well known place having been purchased by H. A. Thompson. Mr. Lowe has been in the business for many years and is esteemed very highly by all Americans who have had any dealings with him, and although Mr. Thompson is a stranger to us, there is no doubt but what the business will be conducted as honorably in the future as it has been in the past. Mr. Thompson sends an advertisement to the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman notifying them that he has for sale the black stallion Idalium by Tradncer, out of Idalia by Cambuscan. As will be seen, this horse is a full brother to the now celebrated Sir Modred, and should be a valuable acquisition to any of the great breeding farms of America.

One of the best two-year-olds that was seen on the Northern circuit had been entered at the willows by L. H. McIntosh of Chico. On making his appearance at Red Bluff, Mr. Helman of Humboldt County became satisfied that the youngster had any quantity of speed, and entered into negotiations at once with his owner, looking toward a purchase. After considerable dickering backwards and forwards, Mr. Helman purchased the colt from Mr. McIntosh for $2500, with the understanding that the late owner should have him start at Chico. He was fleet enough to distance his competitors in 2:34¾, which is far above the average time for a colt of his age. Wayland W. is by Arthur Wilkes, dam Letta by Wayland Forest; 2nd dam Mary, (dam of Apex 2:26) by Flaxtail. This exquisitely bred colt will be taken to Mendocino County, and will tend greatly to increase the interest now felt in trotting horses in that section. It may not be out of place to state here that Wayland W. is a half brother to Maud Singleton, now being campaigned in Montana.

There is a vast difference in the appearance of Washington Park and its surroundings at the present time and that which obtained when the runners and their trainers were in possession, says the Chicago Evening News. A running stable has for inseparable adjuncts a lot of small Africans not overly clean and a white man, generally gaunt of figure, slouchy of dress and redolent of corn-juice whisky. The outfit invariably does its own cooking, the menu ordinarily consisting of fried bacon and lake water, and in general their life has a distinctly gypsy tinge. The attendants of the trotters are a different class. The trainer and driver of each stable is a nattily-dressed man, the stalls of the horses are adorned with handsome blankets, the harness and sulkies are scoured, washed and rubbed to the highest point of cleanliness, and even the straw that forms the carpet of the stalls is frequently pleated in an artistic manner around the edge that faces the door of the stall. The very buckets out of which the animals drink are painted in bright colors, the name of the horse to which each one belongs being inscribed thereon, and the same is true of the other utensils used in caring for the trotters. The ground between the rows of stalls is kept scrupulously clean by frequent application of brooms, and on the sunny side of the stalls will be found awnings, under which the men sit and gossip after the work of the day is over. There is no smell of cooking food, for the humblest "swipe," as the grooms of trotters are called, would disdain to live in the catch-as catch-can style that characterizes the life of those who look after the runners. Cleanliness and good cheer is the motto of those who have to do with the trotters. One reason for this is that the drivers are almost without exception men of fair education, of thrifty habits, and it is no part of their idea of existence to live like Bedouins. Then, again, the trotters are for the most part owned by rich men, who are well aware when they invest in a 2:20 flyer that it is a lucky horse that pays expenses, whereas the runners are mostly gambling tools.

Is docking a horses' tail a very dangerous operation? I had one docked some time ago and he died from it. Now I want to get a nice double team docked, if there is not too much risk in it.

Answer.—There is a little danger connected with it, as tetanus (lockjaw) sometimes follow the operation. I have docked a great number, and in no case did it cause the death of the animal. Get a qualified veterinary surgeon to operate and attend to it, and the risk will be very small.

C. H.

My horse has been lame for over a year in his right forward leg. There is a hard lump round the pastern joint which I believe is a ringbone. I got this fired and blistered when I first noticed the lameness, but it appeared to do no good. About six months ago I again had it fired with the same result. I blistered it twice since, but nothing appears to do it any good. The joint does not appear stiff, but he always goes lame when worked.

Answer.—"Neurotomy" is about the thing that will give him relief. This removes the sensation from the foot, and consequently the lameness also, but not the disease. After the operation you must be more careful with his shoeing, as if he gets pricked he will not show lameness immediately and matter may work its way to the top of the hoof before you notice it. For the same reason you must examine his feet every evening after work for fear of picking up nails, etc.

C. L.

My horse got hurt in the back about three years ago, since then he is weak in it, and cannot well back with a load. He is now about twelve years old, and he is almost useless for work. Is there anything can be done for it.

Answer.—Firing and blistering may strengthen it a little, but he will never be much good again.

H. R.

My horse picked up a nail about a month ago near the point of the frog. I poulticed it for about three weeks but he is still lame. The horse shoer says that it is a bad place and that he will never be fit for work again. Could you advise me what is best to do?

Answer.—Such cases often get all right after a long rest. I should advise you to let him have a run to pasture for two or three months.

T. C.

When has a horse a full mouth? I have a colt that I know to be only four years old last June, and he has now a full month and the corner teeth are level with the others. How can you account for that?

Answer —A horse generally cast the corner teeth at about, four and a half years and has a full month at five years. Colts sometimes vary a little in the time of casting their teeth. Stallions and geldings that are fed well generally mature quicker, and cast the teeth earlier. The climate has also something to do with it.

Marysville Races.

The first day of the Marysville races was heralded in with exquisite weather, not nearly so warm as it usually is at this season of the year. The attendance was only fair; the track was in good condition.

The first race of the day was for the three-minute class, the entries being Frank M., Vidette, Balance All and Billy Doty. Frank M. after his marvelous race at Chico was given first money and allowed to stand in the stable, so those who endeavored to manipulate the pool box were content with backing Vidette heavily at $10, the other pair selling as a field for $3. When the word was given Balance All immediately went to the front and led around the first turn being two lengths in advance at the quarter pole. Up the back stretch she still maintained her lead, Vidette being second with Doty third. On the upper turn Balance All broke and Vidette took a commanding lead, winning the heat in a jog, Balance All second, Doty just inside the distance. Time, 2:42.

No pools were sold before the second heat as it was a foregone conclusion that Vidette could not lose On the word being given for this heat, Vidette was soon several lengths in advance of the others and was never headed, there being no contest whatever; as before Balance All was second with Doty third. Time, 2:46.

The third heat was simply a repetition of the second, Vidette winning in a jog, Balance All second; Doty third. Time 2:49½.

The second race was for the "bang tails" three-quarters of a mile and repeat, and proved to be the best race of the day. Leatherwood, the favorite won after a hard fight with Mohawk. The entries were in addition to the two mentioned, Lucky Dan and Oakdale. Leatherwood sold as choice at $10 the others bringing $5 as a field.

The start was a good one, Leatherwood and Lucky Dan at once went to the front and made the running, the other two apparently not in it. Dennison rode hard on Lucky Dan but Leatherwood proved the victor, winning the heat by half a length, Mohawk and Oakdale last. Time, 1:17½.

Pools now sold, Leatherwood $20, field $5. The starter let them off at the first attempt, where as before Lucky Dan and Leatherwood at once took the lead with Mohawk close up, when well into the stretch Mohawk came along with a rush on the outside and won the heat by the shortest of necks from Lucky Dan, he beating the favorite by about the same distance; Oakdale distanced. Time, 1:17¼.

Leatherwood was still the choice in the betting, bringing $10 to $8 for Mohawk. This heat was close and very exciting; after four attempts they got away on even terms. It was a fight from start to finish, there never being more than a half length's difference between the pair; Leatherwood ultimately won by a neck only. Time, 1:18.

The last race of the day was a special five-eighths of a mile, the starters being Power, Joker, Lucky Dan, Mohawk and R. H. Power was a hot favorite, bringing $20 to $6 and $7 for the field. On the fourth attempt the flag fell and they raced in pairs, Power and Joker in front, near the hundred yard pole, Joker, ridden by Leonard, drew away from Power and won by a length; Mohawk third, Lucky Dan Last. Time, 1:04¼.

OAKLAND.

FIRST DAY.

Next to the annual State Fair held at Sacramento, there is no other in California that nsually draws such a large attendauce, such a good class of horses, and at which so mnch money is wagered. When the Petaluma Directors closed their meeting on last Saturday, the various stables of horses then at that point were shipped to Oakland for the purpose of taking part in the meeting there. There were several counter attractions which stood in the way of the usually large crowds to be found tnere. The immense demonstration incidental to Labor Day, and the circus, which had pitched its tents in Oakland, both serving to draw many away from the race track; however, the sport was good and thoronghly enjoyed by those who were there, yet still there seemed to be a cloud overhanging almost every one, owing to the assassination of the late president of the society. His familiar face was sadly missed, yet still thero were but few who mentioned his name, as one and all seemed to feel that it was only dne to the dead to say as little as possible about his untimely end.

There was not one of the daily papers which had mentioned the remarkable race won by Margaret S, at Independence, Iowa, so Director Latham had a copy of the telegram which was received by the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN printed on the blackboard so that all might know of the wonderful time made by Margaret S. and Cricket.

The first race of the day was for the three year old, 2:40 class which had been named the Dawn purse. Only three contestants appeared to do honor for their respective sires, the trio being Lynette, owned by U. S. Gregory of Ione; Coral, a full sister to Antevolo and Anteeo, entered by the Palo Alto Stock Farm and Millie Wilkes, the property of Wm. Corbitt. The pool selling was of rather an animated nature and fluctuated very considerably; one pool being $25 for Coral; $31 for Millie Wilkes and $26 for Lynette, while still another sold Coral $50, Wilkes $26 and Lynette $21. When the bell tapped to call the horses out it was found that the judges were Wm. Kent, C. S. Crittenden and Dr. Latham, the timers' seats being occupied by Harry Agnew, P. A. Finnigan and Dan Misner. The word was given to a splendid start. Worth Ober, who was driving Lynette immediately made a brush for the leadership and at the middle of the turn was fully ten lengths in advance, as they entered the back stretch, Havey brought Coral up but the Amador mare seemed to have the foot of the party and could go just as fast as she wanted to; Goldsmith lay behind Millie Wilkes taking things easy and evidently did not try to win the first heat; coming down the home stretch Worth Ober handled the mare very judiciously and landed her an easy winner by several lengths, Coral being second with Goldsmith just inside the distance flag. Time, 2:30.

A rush was now made to the box by those who wanted to make what was now considered a little sure money, so while Lynette sold for $40 the field brought the exceedingly good price of $50. Again a splendid send off was given them, and again did Lynette go to the front. Goldsmith in this heat trying his best to overtake the danghter of Lynwood, but his filly was not equal to the task, and again Lynette won in a ridiculously easy manner, not having to go faster than 2:34 to gain the victory.

Pools now sold $50 for Lynette, $18 for the field, but this was simply a repetition of the two previous ones and Lynette won in the most hollow style. Time, 2:36.

The card now showed that the Stamboul purse was next in order for the 2:27 olass of trotters: the starters being Lee, Flora G., Balkan, Sister V., and Moses S. From the manner in which Sister V., the Sidney mare, has been trotting through the circuit, the betting talent felt assured that there was but one horse in the race and were willing to back their convictions by bidding $100 for Sister V. while the field wonld sell for, from $12 to $15. The five were all level and going well when the word was given but before the first turn was reached Sister V. made rather a disastrous break and was soon far in the rear, Moses S. taking the lead which he kept all the way down the back stretch, in the meantime Goldsmith brought his mare up very rapidly and on the upper turn was soon head and head with Moses S., when well into the stretch Sister V. let out another link and won with comparative ease. Jas. A. Dustin, who was driving Lee made a determined move, coming down the stretch and just snatched the second place away from Moses S., Balkan being 4th and Flora G. last. Time 2:25½.

The pool sellers finding but little chance to dispose of tickets altered the arraugements and left Sister V. out of the pools, Lee then selling for $25, Moses S. $15 and the field $19. Again they were sent off to a beautiful start but in a very few momeuts the favorite was in the lead with Moses S. second, Lee third, Balkan fourth and Flora G. bringing up the rear. Around the turn and into the back stretch these relative positions were maintained, the contest simply beiug of the processional order; when once well into the stretch, Lee was again given his head and after a hard fight, beat out Moses S. for second place by a short head; Balkan fourth and Flora G. last. Time 2:24¼.

The third heat was productive of but little excitement as the race was now conceded to Sister V. When the quintette was sent off Moses S. had almost a length the best of it but oonld not manage to take the pole notwithstanding Harry Whiting drove hard to accomplish that end. Goldsmith sent the favorite very fast and was soon in the lead with Moses S. second, Lee third and Flora G. as nsual, last. On the backstretch Lee was urged along and on the upper turn was only a length behind Sister V. When the five were well into the home stretch, Hinds gave Balkan a chance to show what he could do, and nobly the stallion responded, for gradually he took third place aud finally managed to pass under the wire only a length behind the winner, the time being 2:22¼, Lee third, Moses S. fourth and Flora G. last.

The Electioneer Purse was for those who were eligible for the 2:20 class, the association offering $1,200. Five contestants came to the wire, they being Express, entered by Palo Alto Stock Farm; Maggie E., entered by Emerson & Berry; the well known stallion Victor, owned by Geo. A. Doherty; Hazel Wilkes, entered by the San Mateo Stock Farm; while the Agnew Stock Farm was represented by Emma Temple.

Again those who are in the habit of patronizing the pool box felt assured that the race was all over but the shouting, and backed their opinions by putting up $100 against $10, that Hazel Wilkes would carry off the honors. This race was sandwiched in between the heats of the 2:27 class, the horses being called up for the initial heat between the first and second heats of the other. After several ineffectual attempts the word was given and the five made a tight drive to secure the leading position at the first turn. At this point Express broke as did Hazel Wilkes, and Victor went to the front, but he enjoyed the pleasure of leading but a very short time as Goldsmith came to the front with the representative of the Wilkes family and was never headed again. Emma Temple was sent desperately for second place and beat Victor for that honor by a head, Maggie E. being fourth and Express last. Time, 2:23¼.

The second heat was simply a repetition of the first, in every respect, with the difference that Victor broke immediately after receiving word but was easily caught and started away after his field. Emma Temple tried very hard to ont trot Hazel but was not able to accomplish the feat. The only excitement that could possibly be found in such a one-sided race, being the magnificent finishes made by Emma Temple and Victor for a secondary place. Again the mare beat the stallion out by a head only, Maggie E. being fourth and Express last.

It was a straggling start that they received when sent away for the third heat, but before the back stretch was reached Hazel Wilkes was a good four lengtns in advance, and at the half was fully a dozen lengths to the good, she making the half in the very creditable time of 1:08. At this point Mr. Goldsmith took the mare well in hand and allowed the others to creep up little by little, yet still when he came into the home stretch he was still six lengths in advance of the second horse, and then only coming in a jog. Express and Victor both showed their thoroughbred blood by breaking in the stretch while making a hard fight for second place, but owing to the decision of the judges, Express received the honor while Victor was third, Emma Temple fourth and Maggie E. declared distance.

TUESDAY.

Judges—P. Pumyea, R. McKillican and E. Hackett.

Timers—H. J. Agnew, G. Bement and E. B. Gifford.

The second day of the Golden Gate Fair opened ont well, but still only a fair gathering congregated at the Oakland Trotting Park to witness the two races, and although only eight heats were trotted, it was about seven o'clock before they were finished.

The first race, for 3:00 trotters, closed with 13 nominations, bnt only four faced the judges. Beaury Mc was made a big favorite overnight, but on the track the other three as a field sold for more than the Stockton horse, who won the first heat in 2:24½, exactly three seconds better than his previous record made at San Jose. Una Wilkes won the next heat in 2:25½, and the judges took McConnell out of the sulky and put R. Havey up behind the gelding, bnt the latter could do no better than McConnell, and after Una had won the fourth heat and race, the judges declared all pools off on the gronnd that the horse had been fixed. Goldsmith, who is one of the heaviest bettors on the coast, and had backed his mare heavily, was much annoyed at the decision which, as he said, was rather peculiar, for after the first heat he, and everyone who backed Una, stood to lose their money, while they could not possibly win, and if the judges did so on account of fraud, why not punish some one? The winner of the race, Una Wilkes, is a full sister to Hazel Wilkes, and she now has a record of 2:25½, which she should easily lower before the snow flies. The pace proved a good thing for the three-year-old Wilkes pacer Rupee, who paced an exceptional race, 2:19½, 2:21½ and 2:21, after being beaten a neck in 2:18½ in the first heat by the Sidney gelding Hummer.

First heat—Pools sold very rapidly at $50 for the field to $30 for Beaury Mc. The quartette came up half a dozen times before the word was given, with Mason a length in front, and trotting fast the stallion had two lengths advanvantage on the turn, with Beaury Mc second, half a length in front of Fay, four lengths in advance of Una. Fay dropped back on the turn, and Beaury went in pursuit of Mason, and catching him at the three furlongs, went past like a streak of lightning, leading three lengths at the half, with Mason five lengths in front of Fay, two lengths in advance of Una. Mason broke all to pieces on the turn and dropped back last, while McConnell kept Beaury Mc down to work, and had ten lengths advantage of Fay at the head of the stretch, with Una two lengths further back. Goldsmith came in a clatter with the mare when they straightened out in the stretch, but never quite got up to Beaury Mc, who won cleverly by a length and a half, Una Wilkes ten lengths in front of Fay, while Mason was a bad last. Time, 2:24½. Mutuals paid $7.75.

Second heat.—Pools now sold readilyat $20 Beaury Mc to $30 the field. After a lot of scoring up a start was made with Beaury Mc a length behind, bnt trotting fast he led round the turn with Una Wilkes lapped on to him. The mare gradually drew away leading the gelding by a length at the qnarter and increasing the pace up the back stretch Una had three lengths the best of it at the half with Beaury second two lengths in front of Fay and Bob Mason a bad last. Una retained her advantage round the turn while Fay dropped back and Mason did not improve his position. Una trotted very steadily down the stretch winning easily by five lengths with Beaury Mc three lengths in front of Fay and Bob Mason just outside the flag. Time 2:25½. Mutuals paid $8.35.

Third heat.—Havey was put up behiud Beaury Mc. Pools sold rapidly at $100 the field to $25 Beaury Mc. A start was soon effected with Una Wilkes a little behind and driven hard she left her feet before going ont of the stretch; Beaury Mc cut out the work round the turn with Fay lapped on him past the quarter, Una five lengths behind, Fay hung on to Beaury all the way up the back stretch but dropped behind on the turn while Una got a little nearer. At the head of the stretch Beaury Mc had a length the best of it with Fay second two lengths in front of Una who came very fast down the stretch winning easily by a lengthand a half from Beaury Mc who caught the whip all the way for the last furlong. Fay was four lengths back. Time. 2:26½. Mutuals paid $7 55.

Fourth heat—No pools were sold, the pace engaging the attention of the speculative spectators. The trio were soon despatched on their journey with Una in the lead to the turn, where Beaury Mo left his feet and Una led four lengths past the quarter with Fay three lengths in front of Beaury. Una increased her lead to ten lengths at the half with Fay still second, and the positions were unchanged round the turn and down the stretch to the furlong pole, when Fay broke and Beaury Mc passed him, finishing second half a dozen lengths behiud Una Wilkes and a length and a half in front of Fay. Time, 2:28. All pools and bets declared off.

First heat--Pools sold readily at $30 Rupee to $12 Hummer, and $8 for the field. The word was soon given, Hummer and Princess Alice going away very fast, went round the turn like a team. The mare was on his wheel at the quarter, with Rupee eight lengths behind just clear of Sunrise. Princess Alice weakened a little up the backstretch and Hummer passed the half two lengths in front of her with Rupee four lengths back, pacing fast; around the turn the order was unchanged, but Princess broke badly at the head of the stretch, and Rupee passed her and went in hot pursuit of Hummer, but though the three year old finished very gamely he never quite got up, being beaten out a neck, with Princess two lengths behind and Sunrise a bad last. Time, 2:18½, Mutuals paid $11.40.

Second heat--Pools now sold Rupee $50, Hummer $15 and Field $13. After scoring up about ten times the word was given, with Sunrise on a break. Princess Alice went away at a great rate, leading two lengths on the turn, but at the qnarter Hummer had caught her and the pair were three lengths in front of Rupee with Sunrise ten lengths back. Hummer outpaced the mare up the backstretch, having three lengths the best of it at the half, with Rupee second a length in front of Princess. Rupee closed up on the upper turn and rounded into the homestretch neck and neck with Hummer, and though the gelding struggled gamely, the three year old beat him handily by two lengths, Princess Alice three lengths back third, four lengths in front of Sunrise. Time, 2:19½. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Third heat. Rupee sold a big favorite at $25 to $5 for the whole field. The word was soon given, Princess Alice starting out well hung on to Rupee to the qnarter with Hummer two lengths behind. The Princess found the pace too hot and broke all to pieces at the three-eighth pole, while Rupee kept going, passing the half three lengths in front of Hummer with Princess Alice seven lengths back. The two leaders kept the same positions all the way from the half to the wire, Rupee winning easily by three lengths, Hummer second, fifteen lengths in front of Sunrise who had paced very fast down the stretch, while Princess Alice on a dead run barely saved her distance and was declared distanced for running. Time, 2:21½. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Fourth heat. No pools sold. Rupee went away in the lead with Sunrise second and Hummer on her wheel; round the turn Rupee drew out having a three lengths lead of Sunrise with Hummer four lengths behind Sunrise; Sunrise kept her place up the back stretch and got to within two lengths of Rupee on the upper turn but the pace proved too hot to last and she broke at a furlong from home, Rupee winning the heat easily by five lengths, Sunrise second, five lengths in front of Hummer. Time, 2:21.

WEDNESDAY.

Judges Col. H. J. Thornton, C. S. Crittenden and Dr. Lathom. Starter W. Coombs.

The live stock parade in the morning was very poorly attended but in the afternoon a fairly representative gathering of horsemen were to be found on the grounds. Four races were hung up for the gallopers, the first a five furlong scramble for two year olds was delayed for an hour by the fractiousness of the Boot's colt Duke of Milpitas, who refused to join the field, and when the flag was dropped he was about tired out and had as he deserved the worst of the start. The winner turned up in a racy looking bay colt by Flood from imported Queen Bess by Strathconan who had the race won all the way.

The second race was expected to be a good thing, for Applause who won easily in straight heats but the start in the first heat settled three of the horses. The third race was supposed by the talent to lie between the two mares Carmen and Daisy D but the Rose cast off Tycoon was turned out in the pink of condition by Brock Heffernan and though he had to be ridden vigorously all the way he fairly wore Carmen down in the stretch winning the best race in his life through sheer gameness by a length in 1:42. A gamer race was never seen for the mares both had too much pace for the gelding all the way. The last race a four and a half furlong scramble was thought to be a certainty for the old sprinter, Lida Ferguson but after a remarkably close finish, the Judges called it a dead heat though most of the spectators thought the mare won, in fact Henry Walsh, John Goldsmith, and others who were under the wire where the judges stand should be said Ferguson 1st, the other pair a dead heat for second. On the run off Kildare won cleverly by three-quarters of a length in exactly the same time as the first heat.

First race, five furlongs, for two year-olds, brought out seven youngsters, and on the strength of his victories at Petaluma and Ione, Duke of Milpitas, was made a hot favorite, selling for $25 to $10 for the Palo Alto entry Nero and $15 for the rest as a field. It was a quarter past two when the starter got the colts to the post, and a start was not arrived at until a quarter past three. The first breakaway Nero ran half way round the turn, while Milpitas refused to leave the post, then breaking away he refused to return, and Wilson got off and attempted to lead him, but the colt got loose and galloped round the turn before he was caught, and when remounted, put his head down and cantered round to the three-quarter pole, and refused to leave it, eventually he was persuaded to canter up to the field, and Coombe dropped his flag with him three lengths behind, the others fairly well together, the front rank consisting of Altus, Acclaim and Nero, and Mystery at the head of the rest. Nero went to the front at once, passing the half with Acclaim at his girths and Altus a length behind. Round the turn Nero increased his lead to two open lengths, and going on won easily by four lengths; Mystery, who came with a rush in the stretch, got third place, a length behind Acclaim, with Altus fourth, while Duke of Milpitas finished well up fifth. Time, 1:01½. Mutuals paid on Nero $14.25; straight for place, Nero $8.25; Mystery $65.55.

Minnie B., Altus, Mero, and Duke of Milpitas ran unplaced.
Time, 1:01½.

Second race. Six furlongs and repeat. First heat. Applause was made a red hot favorite at $80 to $25 for Nabeau and $21 for the others as a field. The flag was dropped almost immediately to a straggling start with Larghetta facing the wrong way. Applause, Nabeau and Albatross were the first three away at intervals of a length, and going right along there was never any doubt as to the result, for Applause romped home two lengths in front of Nabeau, with Albatrose a length behind, the others distanced. Time, 1:15¼. Mutuals paid $6.15 on Applause straight and $5.80 on Nabeau for the place.

Second heat. No pools could be sold and the flag was soon dropped. Applause cut out the work leading two lengths round the turn with Nabeau a length and a half in front of Albatross. The order was unchanged all the way, Applause winning in a big gallop three lengths in front of Nabeau, same distance in front of Albatross. Time, 1:17. Mutuals paid $6.70 on Applause.

Third race, one mile, was a big betting race; for fully an hour pools sold rapidly, with the Owen Bros. pair, Daisy D and Captain Al, first choice $100, Carmen $70, Tycoon $20 and the field $24. At about twenty minutes past five a start was effected, Daisy D, Carmen and Tycoon getting a shade the best of it; round the turn Carmen shot out a length in front of Tycoon, who was vigorously ridden a length in front of Daisy, with Muta a length further back; under the whip all the way Tycoon hung on to Carmen up the backstretch and round the upper turn, and catching it hot in the stretch the gelding gamely answered every call and best Carmen out after a punishing race, by a length and a half, with Daisy D two lengths further back, and Captain Al well up fourth, and Four Aces, who broke a blood vessel, a bad last. Time, 1:42. Mutuals paid $44.95 on Tycoon straight. Place Tycoon $13.15, Carmen $9.50.

Time, 1:42.

Fourth race, nine-sixteenths, had six starters. Undine stable's Lida Ferguson was made a scorching favorite at $50 to $11 for the Southern California horse Gambo and $17 for the rest as a field. The Marshall officiated as starter instead of Coombs, and dropped his flag to a fairly good start, Ida Glenn and Ferguson having a shade the best of it and breaking away like quarter horses, passed the half mile post with Glenn half a length in front of Ferguson, two lengths in front of Gambo, with Kildare at his girths. Ferguson showed a little in front on the turn, having about half a length the best of Glenn, with Vinco two lengths behind and Kildare lapped on to him. The mares ran locked together down the stretch and seemed to have the race to themselves, when Kildare came with a rush on the outside in the last hundred yards and just got up, making what looked almost a dead heat all round. The judges however placed Glenn third and Kildare and Ferguson a dead heat first. Time, 0:55¼.

As Mr. Storn refused to divide the race was run off and Kildare stayed half a length behind to the drawgate, and being ridden hard drew away winning cleverly by three-quarters of a length. Time, 0:55¼. Mutuals paid $10.80 straight $7.20 place.

THURSDAY.

Judges, C. S. Crittenden, H. J. Agnew and E. H. Dalton. Timers, Christopher Green and Dr. Lathom.

A fairly good crowd turned out to see the four races trotted on the fourth day of the Golden Gate Fair. However, it turned out that only three races were attempted and only two of those finished; the two-year-old Wilkes filly Vida Wilkes who last week readily obtained a record of 2:28½ at Petaluma frightened all her opponents away and the race had to be declared off. The first race of the day was for three-year-olds and Lynette justified the confidence placed in her by the talent by winning in straight heats in easy style. She is a racy looking filly and wears hopples to prevent her mixing her gait; she has now won 5 straight races, the first a yearling stake at Ione, the second at Sacramento as a two-year-old, in the spring of 1889, the third in the fall of 1889 at Sacramento, the fourth last Monday at Oakland, when she obtained a record of 2:30, and the fifth to-day when 2:32¼ was the best she had to do.

The second race proved an easy victory for Ladywell by Electioneer out of Lady Lowell; the mare who obtained a record of 2:26 at Napa a fortnight ago, did not have to go any better than 2:27¾. She is a rapid moving pretty little mare and will go much faster before the year is out.

The last race, which had to be postponed, introduced a new 2:30 performer in Lena H, who won the first heat in 2:29½. She is a seven year old daughter of Rancho Del Paso's Alaska (Electioneer—Lucy) and is the first 2:30 performer, in fact, is I believe his first daughter that has been trained. Her dam is Drew Girl by Winthrop 505, grand dam by McCracken's Black Hawk 767.

First heat. Pools sold readily at $50 for Lynette to $15 Langton and $8 for the field. The word was given the second time, up with Langton half a length behind, Maudee on the inside led to the turn when she broke and Lynette set the pace passing the quarter a length in front of Langton, Maudee two lengths back with Jolly Boy at her wheel. Lynette increased her advantage up the back stretch passing the half three lengths in front of Maudee and Langton with Jolly Boy a length and a half behind the filly at the head of the stretch with Jolly Boy and Maudee three lengths back. Langton and Maudee got almost up to Lynette an eighth from home when Maudee broke and fell back last, while Langton and Lynette trotted together to the distance when the colt broke up and Lynette won by a length and a half, Langton second, five lengths from Jolly Boy, seven lengths in front of Maudee. Time, 2:35. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Second heat. A few pools were sold at $30 Lynette to $6 for the whole field. The word was given the fourth time up with Jolly Boy a length behind, Lynette at once showed in front and trotting nicely went round the turn two lengths in front of Langton with the other pair level two lengths back. Jolly Boy broke and dropped back while the other two kept the same positions past the half; at the head of the stretch Langton broke and Maudee passed him while Lynette slowed down and going easy won pulling up by three lengths. Bayliss drove Maudee out getting the place three lengths in front of Langton who tiptoed at the seven furlong post. Jolly Boy finished nicely inside the flag. Time, 2:32¼. Mutuals, Lynette barred, paid $15.

Third heat—No pools sold. Lynette went off in front, round the turn leading half a dozen lengths, and never headed, won in a jog by seven lengths. Maudee broke on the first turn, and catching, contested the race to the end with Langton, who beat her out two lengths for the place. Time, 2:34¼. Mutuals paid on Langton $10.20.

First heat.—Pools sold very rapidly with Ladywell choice $40 to $12 for Clara Z $10 for Chantilly and $25 for the rest as a field. The word was given the fifth time up with Chantilly a length behind. Ladywell set the pace but left her feet and caught handily before the turn and went on in front, passing the quarter two lengths in front of Clara Z just clear of Kilrain with Chantilly last. Ladywell broke before the next furlong and was passed by Clara Z and Chantilly; the order passing the half being Clara, Chantilly, Ladywell two lengths apart, they all closed up round the turn and it looked any ones race until a furlong from home when Ladywell came up on the rails and won easily by a length from Chantilly, Kilrain and Bolivar heads apart the latter set back to fifth position for swerving in the stretch, Clara finished a moderate fifth. Time 2:27¾. Mutuals paid $10.20.

Second heat.—Pools sold steadily for half an hour with Ladywell bringing $50 to $14 for Chantilly and $7 for the field. The word was given the third time up Ladywell and Chantilly cut out the work to the turn when Ladywell who was a length in front broke and Chantilly followed suit but both caught in good shape and there was very little to choose at the quarter Ladywell having a little the best of it but Goldsmith drew out three lengths in the back stretch, with Ladywell four lengths in front of Clara Z; when fairly straightened out in the homestretch Ladywell came in a hurry and despite Goldsmith's hard drive Chantilly left her feet just before the wire losing by a head with Clara Z a length back, Kilrain a moderate fourth. Time 2:28½. Mutuals paid $8.20.

Third heat—Pools sold slowly at $40 Ladywell to $6 for the field. The five were started at the third attempt. Kilrain broke before the turn and was never in it after, while Ladywell led two lengths round the turn. Chantilly who was second broke and was passed by Clara Z who got to Ladywell's collar and stayed there all the way round the turn, Chantilly two lengths behind. Ladywell always had the race well in hand, winning by a length, Chantilly, driven out by Goldsmith, broke twenty yards from the wire, and Clara Z beat her out a length for the place, Bolivar fifteen lengths off fourth and Kilrain nicely inside the flag. Time, 2:28¼. Mutuals paid $7.

First heat—Pools sold: Prince B. $15., Mambrino Boy $10, field $25. The fourth time up a start was effected, Rockwood going best, led Mambrino Boy a length to the turn when both broke, but catching well Mambrino Boy set the pace, passing the quarter a length in front of Lena H., with Rockwood two lengths behind and Mattie P. five lengths back. Mambrino broke handily at the three-eighth pole, and led a length and a half past the half, with Rockwood half a length in front of Lena, ten lengths in front of Prince B. Lena closed up on the turn, being level with Mambrino Boy at the head of the stretch, and trotting very steadily, beat him out a length, with Rockwood a length further back third, Mattie P. a bad fourth, Prince B. fifth, and Foxy V. distanced. Time, 2:29½. Mutuals paid $9.10 on the field.

Second heat—Pools sold Lena H. $32, Prince B. $12 and the field $40. After scoring up half a dozen times the word was given, Mambrino Boy immediately left his feet, and dropped back out of the race, while Rockwood set the pace, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Lena H., with Mattie P. a length back third. The order was unchanged to the head of the stretch, when Lena closed up and looked like a winner, but tiring perceptibly, she was beaten two lengths by Mattie P., Rockwood third and Prince B. fourth Time, 2:31. Mutuals paid $10 on the field.

Third heat—Pools sold readily at $60 Mattie P., Lena $14, Field $10. At the fifth attempt the word was given with all going well, round the turn Mattie P. had a length the "Specialism" in Dog Shows.

We hear a good deal of this question of "specialism," and the criticisms passed on the so-called "specialist" are quite as often as not condemnatory. On the face of it one would be inclined to say at once that there can be nothing in such complaints says "J. A. D." in the English Kennel Gazette. Specialism, as it is called, is in truth nothing more than the division of labor. And any one would certainly suppose that a man would judge a particular breed better if he did not burden his mind with the study of breeds having nothing in common with that one. No man in his senses would deny that a man might be perfectly well fitted to judge a class of shorthorns and quite unfit to judge Channel Island cattle. We should get some rather odd results if a judge of Brahma fowls were turned on at Birmingham to award the prizes in the game classes; and so one might multiply instances ad infinitum. Yet on the other hand vague discontent at a system generally has some element of truth underlying it. To entrust our shows to so-called "all round" judges would be putting the clock back ten years. Still it is worth while to see whether "specialism" has not its dangers; if so, what they are and how they may be guarded against. Now to begin: there are breeds and breeds. There are breeds into which arbitrary points reckoned as merits by some accepted convention among breeders and exhibitors, but having no obvious effect either on the utility or beauty of the animal, enter. Now here the man who is not a specialist is obviously helpless. No amount of experience gained, say, among setters, will teach a man whether a pug's head, or tail, or color is of the correct pattern. It seems to me, however, that this in itself helps to illustrate the dangers which attend specialism, and which are present to the minds of those who denounce the specialist judge. There are many breeds where the most important points are those which plain common sense shows are needful to the working of the animal, and where convention has established certain minor points as desirable. Take, for example, an Irish setter. He must have certain essential points of make and shape needful for pace and endurance. He must also have a certain type of head and a certain shade of color as indications of purity of breed. Now these last are points where no knowledge derived from any other breed will help a judge. But in such points as shoulders, legs and feet, and the like, the wider the judge's experience the more equal will he be to the task of criticism. If a judge of hounds were to say "I really can't judge setters; there are several detailed points proper to that breed which I don't understand," I should say he showed his sense. But if he were to say "I know nothing about these dogs," I should be tempted to say then there is a good deal about your own business that you also don't know. And I should certainly admit this. If a man has by any misfortune to travel somewhat out of his own province to judge a breed with which he is not thoroughly conversant, the man who does know three or four breeds will do better, or perhaps one should say fail less, than the man, who only knows one.

On the other hand, there is, as it terms to me, this overwhelming argument in favor of the specialist judge. A man can hardly have acquired the minute knowledge necessary for a judge—the habit of patient and thoughtful comparison, except by breeding and keeping continuously the kind of dog that he professes to judge; and the man who has done this is, in nine cases out of ten, a specialist. The man of many breeds is almost sure to be a man who may love dogs, but who loves winning prizes better; and of such, it seems to me, judges are not made. The man who really loves dogs for their own sake, to whom the task of comparison is really a labor of love, is almost sure to settle down—if he does not begin—with a special interest in a very limited number of breeds. Still he need not be absolutely and wholly a specialist. It is an old description of education that it should be "something of everything and everything of something.' So I should say of the properly equipped critic of dogs. Only the "something of everything" will not be enough to enable him to judge with credit to himself or satisfaction to his neighbors.

The dangers of specialist clubs are, it seems to me, the same. There is no doubt a fear that they may teach exhibitors to overrate what I have before called the arbitrary and conventional points of the breed. And there is yet a further danger. It is the business of a specialist club to be for its own breed the responsible department in the dog showing world, to protect the interests of the whole body of exhibitors in that breed. And thus anything in the nature of exclusiveness is fatal. A club which professes to represent the whole body of exhibitors and really represents a section is worse than useless: it is mis-leading. And this, it appears to me, is a very strong argument against the policy of a club which refuses to accept any judge for his own breed who is not a member of the club. I know that I differ here from persons who speak with high authority. Certainly let a club draw up and revise a list of judges; let it encourage shows to adopt that list and exhibitors to insist on it. But good judges may stand aloof from the club, possibly not from any personal hostility to it, but from a score of reasons, which do not in the least affect their fitness for the post. A specialist club ought to aim at making every breeder and exhibitor, even if he remains outside the club, into an ally.

The question of restricting certain prizes to members of the club seems to me to be on a wholly different basis. That is really a question of finance. If a club by so doing can attract fresh members, and thereby increase its funds and consequently its utility, let it do so. If the promise of a prize limited to members brings subscriptions of an equal amount the prize is self supporting, and those who are not eligible for it are no worse off than they would be otherwise. It is not a question whether there shall be a close prize or an open one, but whether there shall be a close prize or no prize at all.

Whatever may be the dangers or drawbacks of the system, it cannot be doubted that specialist clubs have done, and may do, great good to the breeds for which they exist. It is a great thing to keep up personal communication and exchange of ideas between breeders, to set a number of men working on what one may roughly call a co-operative system for the same object, so substitute a corporate interest in the whole breed for a merely individual interest in one's own kennel.

Mr. Geo. Debenham's (San Francisco, Cal.) Yum Yum, fox-terrier bitch, whelped August 19, 1890, three dogs and one bitch, by J. B. Martin's Blemton Shiner (Champion Blemton Rubicon—Champion Blemton Brilliant).

Mr. Walter M. Congreve residing at the Brooklyn Hotel in this city lost an English setter four weeks ago and will thank fellow sportsmen to keep their eyes open for the dog. It was nine months old, well grown, a dog with black ears and spots, of good substance, quick, excitable, and answers to the name "Dash."

Mr. Eugene Cary, of Napa College, lost his valued setter "Gip" on Tuesday last by poison. The dog was a general favorite.

Thursday afternoon, after regular school hours at the College, the dog was buried in the campus. Mr. Geo. Katzenstein made an address and spoke of the good traits and merits of the dog. Miss Curtis read a poem, and altogether the ceremonies were very impressive. A tombstone will be erected over the dog's grave, with a suitable inscription, all of which borders upon sacrilege.

A letter from Mr. G. H. Grove of Sabrina House, Worcester, Worcestershire, Eng., to Mr. Henry Wormington of this city, mentions the horse which was ridden by Mr. Wormington during the fox hunting season on his recent visit to old England in such terms as to lead one to believe that our quiet fellow citizen was rather speedy while away from home. Mr. Grove intimates that the San Franciscan was generally in at the death, and we can easily believe it to be so. Mr. Grove adds that the coming hunting season promises to be a rarely good one, foxes being plenty and strong. The letter concludes with such a hearty sportsmanly invitation to Mr. Wormington to go over to England as stamps the writer a genuine good companion and host.

On Sunday last Mr. William Schrieber of this city received the appended note, the which if it had come to us after an experience with dogs like friend Schrieber's would make us ejaculate some synonym for the word dam, or words to that effect. Mr. Allender writes:

WATSONVILLE, AUG. 29, 1890.

"I am afraid that Neator is dead. I say afraid, for I do not know positively. Night before last, while I had him out in the hills, he had two fits. After he came out of the first one, he seemed dazed for awhile and acted as if he was crazy. I started home with him, and got within a mile of the house when he was taken with another. I waited until he came out of it, and called him to follow me. He looked at me a moment as if he did not know me, and when I tried to put a cord on him to lead him to the house, he ran in the bushes. I hunted for him until dark, and next morning I got two neighbor boys, my own and myself and hunted all day yesterday and to-day until noon, when I am writing this. The boys are out now. I will go to town and advertise in the papers and mail this letter. If he is alive I will find him, but I am afraid he has died in one of those fits, somewhere in the brush. I do not know what causes it, but I think his brain is effected. I have had him out with the pups for the last three weeks, and never saw him have a fit before."

Mr. A. B. Pearson writes of his litter of pointers by Hidalgo—Countess.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Friend Merritt (the possessor of two of them) and I took them out on the mesa yesterday for their first run, and by chance ran into a little bunch of quail. (We didn't have our guns along). You should have seen those puppies. We just sat down and watched them hunt and beat the undergrowth until they were totally exhausted and brought them home more than satisfied that we had the finest pups in California. The mother came from Croxteth one generation removed, so you can see she don't rank very far behind old Hidalgo. I have written to J. G. E. this mail concerning him. I wish you could run down this way this season and give us a call. Quail were never more plentiful than this season, and every valley is full of them. By the way, apropos of the Game Law, I saw quail yesterday that could hardly fly and a farmer friend reports that his little son brought home last week thirty-three quail eggs which he had found in nests. This would seem to indicate that October 1st in southern California, would be none too soon to open the season. In conversation with local sportsmen here, there seems to be a decided unanimity in the opinion that quail will raise three or more broods yearly. However, it seems to be an open question. We are on the eve of quite a pigeon shoot here of which more anon. Will give you result and look out for a letter about the 10th. Hope I can make you a visit this winter. Have lots of friends in Frisco I haven't seen for thirteen years.

The black and tan setter mentioned last week as having been bought in Baltimore by Mr. Joe Orear, of Downieville, was not for himself but for Mr. Sunderhans, of the Young America Mine, near Sierra City. We are glad Mr. Orear's long years of missionary work in a doggy way are bearing fruit.

THE GUN.

Alameda vs. San Francisco.

The Alameda County Sportsmen's Club is fairly elated over its victory against the San Francisco Gun Club on Saturday last at Oakland Trotting Park. The match was between teams of ten from each club, at 15 birds per man, A. S. A. rules, for the birds and a trophy worth one hundred dollars, the trophy to be won best of three matches.

The day was good, the birds during the early part of the match were particularly strong and quick, and the scores were correspondingly low. Later, they were only fair, and the shooting improved. The match was referred by Mr. H. C. Golcher, than whom no man could be more conscientious or desirous of being fair. He made one mistake, namely, that he tried to keep score, give the trap and referee, and sat at a table with gentlemen who were scoring. A referee should be in a position to be positive about all details of score shot, and in our opinion should take position by the shooter and be in command, so that no man can oppose or question his decisions with any probability of being right. Mr. Golcher felt compelled to alter a decision, a delay which would not have occurred if he had been closely observing the shooter, to the exclusion of all else. The match was remarkably close, being a tie in the main, and the Alameda Club winning the tie in a shoot off at one bird per man by agreement.

Messrs. Maynard and Norton, of the Alameda Club, killed 14 out of 15, and Mr. Wooster, of the Gun Club, made a like score. In the shoot-off all three killed their birds.

In the Gun Club team, Mr. Jellett, Mr. Butler and Captain Eddy fell far below their averages, partly by luck and partly by uncertainty and lingering. Of the other team, Major Kellogg, one of the best of shots, scored but ten, while Mr. Osborn, another champion in usual form, got eleven. Mr. F. R. Webster and Mr. F. W. Tallant, shooting little twelves, did very beautiful first barrel work, centering their birds well. Mr. R. B. Woodward might as well have had 14 as 13 in the main, but for a little carelessness in leaving the score without using his second barrel on a bird which was on its feet. Mr. Orr lost a bird, a strong blue rising tailer because he was a little petulant about the refusal of the referee to allow him a kill for the previous bird, because the referee thought it was on the ground. Mr. C. B. Smith stood behind his L. C. Smith like a mountain, and lost both birds dead out of bounds.

The Alameda Club, led by John Cadman, kept up a yelling when a nice shot was made by one of its men, that obviated the necessity for a fog-horn along the coast between Point Reyes and San Pedro. The Gun Club had the match well in hand twice, but lost birds enough to even things. We do not recall a match of ten men a side, where a tie resulted.

The match was pleasantly conducted, and perhaps two hundred spectators enjoyed it with the shooters. Mr. Jellett was captain of the Gun Club team, Mr. A. F. Adams of the Alameda's. The score was:

Team match at $5 birds per man, ten men a side, for birds and a hundred dollar trophy, A. S. A. rules, best two in three matches, won by the Alameda club team.

The Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association is endeavoring to introduce California Valley quails. The scheme cannot succeed, for the reason that the bird cannot withstand extreme cold.

Talk about dove shooters; there are but two in these parts, Mr. Thos. J. O'Keeffe and Mr. Chas. B. Randall the former of the New England Insurance Company fame and the other the deft manipulator of pill masses at Wakelee's. They have shot together for six days during the present season with the following results: 52, 93, 187, 193, 90, 77, a total of 632 and an average of 105 per shoot. Who can better the record?

California Wing Shooting Club.

A summary of the scores made by the club during the season which closed last month is kindly sent by Secretary Will De Vsull, snd is sppended. The three medals are allotted to those only who shoot in all six matches of the season, and to them in the order of merit: Mr. C. J. Hsas of Stockton took first, Mr. H. C. Golcher of this city second, snd Mr. Crittenden Rohinson third.

Selby Tournament at San Jose.

On August 31st a match was shot at Ssn Jose for the Selby artificial target championship. Mr. Joseph Delmas of thst city sends the scores and in so doing remarks:

As you will see by the score, the San Francisco attendance was small, which accounts for Ssn Jose taking the medsl. The day was a beautiful one without much wind, which accounts for better scoring than has been done ss yet at Alameda Point. Mr. De Zaldo, the winner of the medal, has appointed next Sunday, September 7th, for the next shoot at the San Jose Gun Clob grounds, as he thinks that by waiting later in the month the boys will have too much quail on the hrain to attend to the maich. The score for the medal wss at thirty single blue rock targets and ten pairs, A. S. A. rules. The medal was won by Mr. Louis De Zaldo.

Good Shooting.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—A very interesting match took place at Whatcom, Washington, on Aug. 23d, between Mr. Dell Cooper, holder of the Championship Trophy of the Northwest and Mr. J. C. Nattrass, of Clearbrook, Wash., at 100 Peoria blackbirds each msn, 50 singles and 25 pairs, opponents pulling traps for each other.

A large snd enthusiastic crowd of sportsmen were present and much money chsnged hands on result of match.

Mr. John E. Evans was referee and Mr. Tom Austin, scorer.

During progress of the shoot Mr. Cooper proved his wonderful nerve by making straight scores after hsving both barrels of his gun explode together, while shooting at donbles, three times in succession; at another time while closing the gun the shells exploded.

Mr. Nattrass handicapped himself by nsing a heavy, clnmsy gun which did not fit him and had a six pound trigger pull. He also had not shot at a composition target for over a yesr, his lack of practice showing in getting in second barrel on doubles, his gun being extreme choke he either totally obliterated his birds or missed them entirely.

Cooper used a Parker 12 guage at 16 and 14 ysrds; Nattrass a Smith at 18 and 16 yards.

Another match is talked of in the near future.

Whatcom, Wash., August 26th. B. Bay.

Five members of the California Wing Shooting Club were unable to shoot during the past season. They were Anstin B. Sperry, Dr. S. N. Cross both of Stockton and M. D. Rice, D, S. Regan and H. H. Briggs, of this oity.

Dr. S. N. Cross and Austin B. Sperry of Stockton drove out from that city on August 31st and hagged fourteen doves. Not had for a party of two of which one is accustomed to English and continental root patches and stall-fed partridges and the like.

A good clesn pocket oil carrier is a sine qua non to all users of guns, reels and other metal instruments, such ss hicycles. The "Perfect" oiler advertised in another column, hy Messrs. Cushman & Dennison, 172 Ninth avenue, New York City, seems unexceptionable in every respect. It is of hsndy size, has no leaksge, economizes oil and is neat in appearance.

The General Land Office hss issued the snhjoined notice which ahould be heeded by campers, aportsmen and all others whose necessities or inclination leads them to build fires upon puhlic lands:

"The attention of the public is called to the fsct that large qnantities of timber are annually destroyed hy forest fires, which in many cases originated through the carelessness of hunting, prospecting and other camping parties, while in some cases they may occur through deaign. I take this method of warning all persons that, hereafter, the canse and origin of all summer fires will he closely investigated, and where the fire is sscertained to have originated through either carelessnesa or design, the parties implicated will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Special timber agents are hereby directed to proceed against the offenders under the local laws of the State and Territories, relating to the unlawfol setting of fires, in which the samo may ocour. The public generally are requested to aid the officers of the government in its effort to check the evil referred to, and in the punishment of all offenders.

The trout of Upper Kern River are described as being beantiful golden trout, pale amher in color, darkening towards the sidea, until it becomes a greenish black on the hack. A thick vermillion stripe runs slong each aide of the fish immediately in the centre, whilst they are devoid of spots along the body until within a short space from the tail, when they commence, whilst on the helly, between the upper and the lower fins a thick stripe of deep amher completea the dress suit of the lovliest and most tasty fish it is ever ones good fortune to hook.

ROD.

From Mr. Callundan.

The Board of Fish Commissioners was to hsve met on Tuesday last, bnt the meeting wss nnavoidably postponed. Being favored with a copy of the report of the Chief of Patrol for August, that is presented as follows:

"But little more than a resume of routine work is to be reported for the month of August. The usual snpervision of the city markets snd of the wharves hss been maintsined by Inspector Ennis and myself, and it is a pleasure to be able to report that the fishermen hsve come quite to an appreciation of the porposes of your Honorable Board, and instead of remsining in opposition to your orders are inolined to side actively with your Depnties in enforcing the law. From time to time statements have been made in the daily press to the effect that hides from which evidence of sex had been removed were being received at short intervals hy San Francisco Commiasion men, hide merchsnts and tsnneries. Each statement of the sort has been investigated patiently snd proved to he erroneous. The Commission men of the city without sn exception, in so fsr as is known, are allied with the Board in enforcing the deer skin law.

On August 10th and 12th a visit was made to Vallejo snd the members of the Fishermen's Union in that vicinity for the purpose of impressing upon the salmon fishermen the necessity for observing September as a close month. The assurances of the officers of the Union and the fishermen warrant the helief that no illegal fishing will be done from that point during the coming month. Msny bosts were found which had not taken out licenses.

On August 14th and succeeding days, the Russian River was trsversed from a point a little above Ukiah to Cloverdale, about thirty miles. The visit was made in company with Inspector Ennis, and a number of Indian fish trsps were destroyed snd removed. No Indians were detected in the act of removing fish from the trsps nor could any be found who would admit ownership of the fish dams snd traps, and consequentiy no arresis could be made, but several rancheriss were called upon, and the Indians gathered at each were informed ss to the law and warned in the plainest terms against continning their illegal practices. With characteristic guilelessness they disclaimed sll knowledge of the fish trsps and insisted that they were enthnsfastic in sopport of the law: their statements were received with a grsin of salt. All along the Rossian River young qnails were fonnd in the greatest ahundance.

On August 20th, Santa Cruz snd its suburbs, Soqnel and Aptos were visiied. At Ssnta Cruz it wss found that the Gas Works of the city were depositing refuse in the San Lorenzo. A warning to the officers was sufficient to elicit the statement that they would refrain in future from such a violation of the law. Several hoats were found at Santa Cruz without licenses, the owners stating that they would gladly pay if the License Collector would call upon them. Jodge Sutton of Santa Cruz is qnite in sympathy with your Honorable Bosrd and is ready to enforce the law without fear or favor. Passing from Santa Cruz to Monterey many boats were found without the licenses, and four-inch numbers as required by law. The place offers s rich return to your License Collector."

"One hright summer morning a beautiful speckled Tront lay in a deep, dark hole in Rock creek and chatted plessantly with his friend, the Sucker, and tried to cheer him up a little."

"It mskes me feel sorry", said the Trout, "to see you going sround with your lip hanging down that wsy like a motherless colt. Why don't you get a move on and enjoy yourself? There! See that nice fat grasshopper? Watch me take him in," and the Trout made a fierce rush at the unfortunate hopper—and was wonnd up on Mac's reel.

The Sucker mournfnlly shook his head and told an Eel who had come up that he knew the Tront would not lsst long; he was too fresh. "You never see me taking any such chances; now here comes a worm—there is no danger in worms. Watch me pick it up," and the Eel saw him stretch his mouth a foot or two and pick np a fat worm in whose carcass was hidden one of Grandpa Hess's ringed Kirbys, snd he, too left the wetness.

Left all slone the Eel fastened to a wash houlder and fell to meditating, nntil, sfter considerable effort, he arrived at the following:

Moral: It mskes little difference whether one is a Tront or a Sucker, there is always something he will bite at. And if you cant catch a person with one bait, nse another."

A decidedly un-Apostolic crowd was thst company of Sacramentans which took shipping on Ssturday last from Folsom St. wharf in Messrs. Spreckles' tng Relief. Captain Al White had catered freely, hut somehow, soon after passing the Heads, most of the compsny became so absorhed in other things thst they failed to notice the dainty dishes. The Farralones and deep sea fishing were the attractions which drew District Attorney Elwood Brewer, Messrs. E. J. Sheehan and W. Gilkie of the Record-Union, Messrs. G. W. McMullen, W. C. Collins and J. B. Harris of the Sacramento Bee, Messrs. Al. J. Johnson, C. F. Schwilk, Harry Bay, Dick Bohn, S. F. McDonald, J. S. McDonald, E. G. Thomas, F. P. McCann, L. McLane, H. Preston, Fred Harges, W. Mnllaney, P. Phinney, B. Palm, H. Santer, A. Wilson, W. H. Rhoads, O. Sylvester, Dr. W. A. Rood, Ed Hook, E. A. Hare, Frank Bergman, Horace Greenwood, Chas. Leonhardt, John Parrott and J. C. Grigsby from that caloric city which is a subnrh of Sutter's Fort. Mr. Frank Bergman projected the trip and mansged it most successfnlly. Few accidents occurred. Mr E A. Hare presented a gold medsl to go to the man catching the first fish, hut he took the medal back, not a fish being taken. Elwood Brnner, weighing 190 pounds, was looking over the rail into the "soup". He wss so in sympathy with old occan, that convulsions siezed him, and in a few minntes he only weighed 180. Not that he waa guilty of mal de|mer—it was the tears that leasened his dignified presence. E. J. Sheehan developed the most extraordinary fondness for nothing to eat. In fsct, the total consumption of the party was four small sandwiches. The finds carried along were hrought back intact. If there is a donhter, let him address the Editor in Chief of this paper, who chanced upon the crowd just as it returned. Everything will be all right when Sacramento next sends her representative citizens a fishing. They will arrange for fish at Paladini'a, and then go to the lake at Woodwarda Garden and ride all day where waves never enter and ground swells are unknown.

THE TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$11,000 GUARANTEED $11,000

FOR

Trotting Foals of 1890.

$5,000 to First; $2,500 to Second; $1,500 to Third; $1,000 to Fourth; and $1,000 to the breeder of the Winner, in money or plate, at the option of said breeder.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Entrance

Payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for Starters, payable August 1, 1894.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11 000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Conditions.

Nominators will be required to state name, color and sex of foal; also to give the names of the sire, the dam, and the sire of the dam; also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nominated.

No nomination will be received unless the first payment of $10 accompanies the same.

Nominations are only liable for the first payment, but failure to make any of the subsequent payments, when due, shall be considered a withdrawal, with forfeiture of former payments.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the finest and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three-year-old in 2:12.

The above PURSE is given and all of its provisions guaranteed by the VIGO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY of Terre Haute, Ind.

Nominations to be made on or before NOVEMBER 1st, 1890, and addressed to

CHAS. C. OAKEY, Secretary, Terre Haute, Ind.

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. THE BAKER & ROSS TRACK HARROW

Is pronounced by all horsemen who have used it and seen it work to be the

BEST HARROW EVER INVENTED.

It has sloping chisel, shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Crabb, Sam'l Gamble, I. DeTurk, and the directors of the Napa and Petaluma Tracks, etc.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largeet horse market in the world, and we have already eslablished the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one slahle now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. Thie etable is built eepecially for the auction eale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horsee comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Deveioped epeed to he shown to barness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealtby breeding territory New hreeding farms are being started all over the conntry, and the choicest hred stock ie being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May wae the moet euccessful sale on record, and we have no donht this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry hlanks, and in making consignments of etock, address

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

Tbe Souther Farm ie one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stablee are about one mile east of the county road, which rune between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will he found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the nnusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All etock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Expreee, No. 3 Market street, San Francieco. They also have an order hox outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The expreee leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order hox at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at tbe office, No. 3 Market etreet, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very yonng or very valuable horeee, the Souther Farm will eend reliable men to lead or drive over any etock that will not lead behind a wagon. A emall charge will he made to such caees, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it ie inconvenient for owners to bring them or eend them, the farm will send after anytbing that ie to come.

Horeee can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before ebipping anything, and then men will he on hand to receive stock on arrival The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to tbe above farm, but when word is sent to tbe farm in good seaeon by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Paseenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several traioe from San Jose to San Leandro on both the hroad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, ie much more convenient for getting to the farm. Tbere are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to tbe Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek ronte ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when yon will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the etation. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, eays of this book: "In thie work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it ie so simple and plain tbat any hreeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for hie busineee can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent tbat colt'e capacity as a trotter. The work impreesed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. Ae a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the eame age. Instead of being a pacer, he ie a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner'e only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This ie a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore hy Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, addrese

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.

Nominations and entries to all stakes must be made to the Secretary on or before the 15th day of August, 1890. Entries for the puree must be made two days preceding the race at the regular time for closing entries as designated by the rules. Those who have nominated in stakes must name to the Secretary in writing which they will start the day before the races at 6 P. M. Horses entered in puree can only be drawn by consent of the Judges.

Entries to all trotting and pacing races will close September 1st, with the Secretary.

Five or more to enter and three or more to start in all trotting races.

National Trotting Association Rules to govern trotting races. Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Rules to govern running races.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start. But the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the withdrawal of a proportionate amount of the purse. Purse to be divided pro rata. Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on puree, to accompany nomination.

National Association Rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for the entrance money, to be divided as follows: 66⅔ to the first and 33⅓ to the second.

In divided purses no horse shall receive more than one money.

In all the foregoing stakes the declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Please observe that, in the above stakes, declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all running races entries not declared out by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race shall be required to start.

Where there is more than one entry by one person, or in one interest, the particular horse they are to start must be named by 6 P. M. of the day preceding the race. No added money paid for a walk-over.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

In trotting races drivers will be required to wear caps of distinct colors which must be named in their entries.

Each day's races will commence promptly at one o clock P. M.

All entries must be directed to C. H. Stoddard, Reno, Nevada.

W. H. GOULD, President,

C. H. STODDARD, Secretary.

WAYLAND W., Two Year-Old Record 2:34 3-4.

OWNED BY W. C. HELMAN, OF UKIAH.

We present to our readers this week an exceedingly good likeness of the promising two-year-old Wayland W, who was bred by L. H. McIntosh of Chico, and by him lately sold to W. C. Helman of Ukiah. Wayland W is a handsome bay with black points; stands about sixteen hands high, and is a perfect type of the ideal trotter. It was not until June of this year that the colt had ever seen a track, yet still in August he made his first appearance at the Willows, trotting second in two heats to Maud Merrill, the time being 2:40 and 2:42½. On August 19th we next find the colt at Red Bluff, where he won the two year old district purse, trotting against Lucy B, the time of the two heats being 2:55¼ and 2:54½. His last appearance for this year was at Chico, where on August 26th he lost the first heat in 2:39 and in the second heat distanced his field in the exceedingly good time of 2:34¾. At the conclusion of this race the colt changed ownership, Mr. Helman paying for him $2,500; and by many it is considered the bargain of the year, for, barring accidents, Wayland W haa a very bright future before him. The new purchaser will take him to Eureka, Cal., where he will stand next year to a limited nnmber of msrea, the price being fixed at $100. On being taken from the atnd, he will again be put in training to make a low record in his three year old form. Mr. Helman, the new owner of Wayland W, is a competent driver and trainer, having worked for qnite a number of breeding eatablishmenta in this State. Last year he was with the well known S. N. Straube of Fresno, and later in the season gave Idaho Patchen his record at Rohnerville. Wayland W. in looka poasessea the type of a thoroughbred and still beara rather a atriking resemblance to hia grandsire, Guy Wilkea 2:15¼. Wayland W ia by Arthur Wilkes (aon of Gny Wilkes) dam Letta by Wayland Forest, aecond dam Mary (dam of Apex 2:26), hy Flaxtail. We can heartily congratnlate the breeders of Humboldt County on having in their midat auch an exqnisitely bred and perfectly formed coit as the aubject of our sketch.

MARYSVILLE RACES.

Second Day.

The attendance was not very large. The track waa in fine condition. The first called was the district three year old trot. The starters were Actor, who aold at 10 to 6 for Silver King. It was a gift for Silver King; he took the lead at the atart and won as he pleased. Time, 2:53¼.

Second heat. Pools, Silver King 10, Actor 6, the betting reversed. At the word Silver King broke and Actor took the lead opening a gap of ten lengths and led by that distance to the upper turn where Silver King closed up, and turning into the stretch Silver King was only two lengths behind Actor; in the stretch Silver King overhauled Actor, pasaed him and won the heat by two lengths. Time, 2:49¾.

Third heat. No selling. They got an even atart; on the first turn King broke and Actor took the lead, but Silver King had too much apeed and in the stretch out-trotted Actor and won the heat. Time, 2:48½.

The aecond race waa for pacers without records. The entries were, Our Dick, C. W. G., Tom Norton and Minnie K.

Firat heat—Pools aold, Our Dick $15, C. W. G. $12 and the field $3. Dick took the lead aronnd the turn, C. W. G. who broke, second, and Minnie third. Down the backstretch Dick still held his advantage, and near tne three-quarter pole, when C. W. G. came up, and at the one-eighth pole waa on even terms with Dick, but broke, Dick winning the heat by a length, C. W. G. acoond, Minnie K third, Tom Norton distanced. Time, qnarter, 35½; half, 1:11¾; three-quarter, 1:49; mile, 2:22½.

Second heat—Pools: Our Dick $10, Field $10. On the first turn C. W. G. broke, Dick taking the lead, and at the qnarter waa first by four lengtha, Minnie K aecond, and C. W. G. almost a distance back. C. W. G. gradnally cloaed up, and on the npper turn he passed Minnie K and made a drive for the heat, but he could not catch Dick, who won the heat by two lengths from C. W. G., Minnie K third. Time, quarter, 34½; half, 1:09; three quarter, 1:48; mile 2:25½.

Third heat—Poola: Dick $12, Field $10. Dick went to the front and led to the half mile pole, where C. W. G. began to crawl np, and in the stretch headed Dick, passed him and won the heat by a length, Minnie D diatanced. Time, quarter, 36½; hslf, 1:11; three-quarter, 1:46; mile, 2:23.

Fourth heat of the no record pacera—Poola aold, C. W. G. $20, Dick $10. Dick went out and won the heat eaaily aa C. W. G. broke near the half mile pole, and waa never in it after. Time, quarter, 38¼; half, 1.12; three-quarter, 1:51; mile, 2:31¼.

Between the third and fourth heats of the pacing race, a special race was given for Belle Button and Tom Ryder. Bntton was favorite for $10 to $5 for Ryder.

Firat heat—Ryder at once went off in the lead, and opened a lead of three lengths, but on the upper turn Button began closing it, and at the head of the stretch Belle was only a length behind Ryder. In the atretch Button out-paced Ryder, and won the heat, the time being: quarter, 0:34¾; half, 1:09½; three-quarters, 1:46½; mile, 2:22.

Second heat of the special pace—Poola aold: Belle Button $20, Ryder $6. Aa in the first heat, Ryder took the lead and led well into the stretch, where Button collared him, and won the heat by a length. Time, quarter, 0:36; half, 1:11¾; three-qnartera, 1:48½; mile, 2:23.

Third heat—No betting in the auctions, but Ryder was favorite in the mutuals. Ryder went off in the lead, and Belle was never able to get to him, he winning by two lengtha. Time, quarter, 0:36; half, 1:11; three-quartera, 1:48; mile, 2:25.

Fourth heat—Many thought Belle laid up the laat heat, and ahe waa installed favorite at $20 to $10 for Ryder. McManns was put up behind Ryder, the jndgea thinking Mr. Newton waa not out for it, bnt the pool aelling did not ohange. Ryder went off in the lead, and McManus kept him agoing, Belle never being able to get to him, he winning the heat by two lengths. Time, quarter, 0:36½; half, 1:13; three-quarters, 1:48½; mile, 2:23½.

Second Race, Four-Year-Old Class.

This waa the only cloaely contested trotting race of the week. The startera were Annie E., Laura Z., Cupid and Gibber.

First heat.—Annie E. was a hot favorite at $20, Laura Z. bringing $6 and $7, Field $3. They got the word at the fourth score. Annie immediately took the lead, Gibber cloae up, Laura Z. third. At the half Gibber made a break and fell back laat. On the upper turn Cupid broke, Gibber taking third position. When the stretch was reached, Laura and Annie broke. Laura winning easily, Laura 2nd, Gibber 3d, Cupid 4th. Time, 2:36¼.

Second heat—Poola sold very lively, Laura Z being favorite at $15 to $15 for the field. Annie E led with Laura Z close up, Cupid third, Gibber fonrth. They kept theae poaitions well into the atretch, where Annie and Laura both awerved from their poaitions, cutting Cupid off who was coming faat on the inaide. Annie E and Laura Z finished head and head, Cupid a length behind, Gibber diatanced. The heat was awarded to Cupid, Laura given second place and Annie E third. No time given.

Third heat—Pools now aold, Laura Z. $15, Annie E. $10, Cupid $4. Annie E. led all the way to the homestretch, with Laura Z. second, about a length behind, Cupid three lengths beok. Near the aeven-eighths pole Annie E. broke, and Laura Z. forged ahead, winning the heat by hslf a length, Annie aecond, Cupid a good third. Time, 2·34¼.

Fourth heat—No betting. Aa in previoua heats Annie went away in front, and was never headed. It was a good race in the stretch between Cupid and Laura, but near the wire Cupid broke and Laura got the place. Time, 2:38.

Fifth heat Poola: Laura $10, field $6. Annie again went away in the lead, and waa in the lead to the half mile pole, where ahe broke, Laura, who was second, taking the lead, Annie was never able to recover the distance gsined by Laura, she winning by two lengths, Annie second, Cupid third. Saturday, September 6th.

The attendance was very light conaidering the previona day. The track was fine, hut a atrong north wind blowing; fast time was not expected. The first race of the day was a mile and repeat running, which the favorite, Heatherwood, won in atraight heats.

Firat race—One mile and repeat—The atartera were Leatherwood, who aold favorite at $10 to $5 for the field, with Dave Douglas, Leland and Lucky Dan in it. They got away at the first attempt, the atart being a good one. Leatherwood went out and set the pace, with Dan aecond. On the turn Lucky Dan stumbled and threw his rider, Leonard, bnt he waa not injured. Down the backstretch Leatherwood led, with Douglas second. Leatherwood kept the lead, and after a driving finish Leatherwood won the race by a length, Douglas aecond, Leland who gave up in the atretch third, Lucky Dan distanced. Time, 1:48.

Second heat—Pools Leatherwood $20, Field $5. Leatherwood got the best of the start, and down the backstretch was four lengtha in the lead, with Leland aecond. On the upper turn Douglas passed Lelsnd and made play for the heat and at the seven-eighths pole he waa within a length of Leatherwood. Dennison rode hard, but Short was cunning and allowed Douglaa to get to his aaddle akirts, when he sat down on Leatherwood and landed him winner of the race by a neck from Douglas, Leland eight lengths back. Second race, 2:25 pacing. The starteta were C. W. G. Acrobat, Sam Lewis, Costello. Gerster and Haverly.

First heat in the pools. C. W. G. was auoh a favorite that he was barred, and for second place Acrobat aold for 10 to 15 for the field. The send off was a bsd one, C. W. G. breaking when the bell tapped. Acrobat at once went to the front and led around the turn with Coatello second, Lewis third, Gerster fourth, C. W. G. a distance behind. Acrobat kept the lead and won the heat easily. C. W. G. paced fast on the upper turn and passed Gerster and Lewis but was nnable to get a place, Costello getting it, C. W. G. finishing third, Gerster fourth, Sam Lewis fifth, Haverly behind the flag. Time, 2:26½.

Second heat. Although C. W. G. had lost the heat he was made favorite at 20 to 8 for the field. The aend off waa a good one for Acrobat, and Keating hia driver did not pull up aa some of the drivers did thinking it was not a go. Acrobat had auch an advantage none of the othera were able to get near him and he won in a walk, Costello second, C. W. G. third, Gerster fourth. Time, 2:28¾.

Third heat. The C. W. G. people still atuck to him and he brought 10 to 15 for the field. it having two heats. Acrobat aa in the last heat took the lead at the word with Coatello second, C. W. G. third, and it waa no contest, Acrobat winning handa down, Costello aecond, C. W. G. third, Gerater distanced. Time, 2:25.

The 2:27 class—The atarters were Frank M, Sargent, Johnny Hayward, Maud H. and Idaho Patchen. Frank M., having won such a grand race at Chico, he waa made a big favorite aelling for $20 to $4 and $5 for the field. The first heat Frank M. took the lead, the rest all strnng ont, and it was a regular proceaaion into the atretch; it was Frank lat, Hayward 2d, Maud H. 3d, Sargent 4th. Patchen 5th. They finished the way Frank M. only jogging. Time, 2:29½.

Second heat—Frank M. was now barred in the poola, and for aecond place Hayward brought $20, Sargent $15, field $4. Frank at once took the lead followed by Sargent, but on the first turn Idaho Patchen took posession of second place. On the back stretch it waa a fine race between Sargent and Patchen, and passing the half Frank waa still four lengths in the lead with Sargent aecond a neck ahead of Patchen, Hayward fourth, Maud last. In the stretch Hayward passed Patchen bnt was nnable to get nearer to Sargent than a length. Frank M. won the heat, Sargent 2nd, Hayward 3d, Idaho Patchen 4th, Maud H. 5th. Time, 22½.

Third heat—The betting waa now lively. Hayward and Sargent each having a aecond position, and for place the pools aold Sargent $20, field $20. They acored three times and got a fine send off sa usual. Frank M. went off in the lead with Sargent 2d, Hayward 3d, Maud H. 4th, Idsho Patchen trailing. THE ROMANCE OF SIR MODRED.

A BIT OF AUSTRALIA'S TURF HISTORY HITHERTO UNWRITTEN.

FROM A BANK TO A PRISON.

How the Great Horse Won the Metropolitan in an Open Canter and How He Beat Malua.—A Most Unclerical Friday Breakfast.

CHAPTER I.

Two men stood in a paddock in the broad Sacramento Valley one day last week, sheltered by the evergreen boughs of an ancestral oak that was fit to have graced a ducal park in any shire of England. Above this grateful shade the sun careered grandly through a cloudless sky. A hoarse, croaking sound arrested the wayfarers' attention and looking out from under the oak's umbrageous boughs, they could see half a dozen vultures wheeling upwards against the clear zenith, like grains of powder sprinkled upon a mirror, circling proudly upon mighty but weary pinions.

One horse after another was led out for their inspection but not a word escaped either. One by one they were led away till, at last, the younger of the twain exclaimed "Great Heavens, what a picture!"

The travel-worn features of the elder visitor relaxed into a smile. In a low voice he asked:

"Well, is he not as handsome as I had pictured him to ou?"

"Yes, even more so," replied his companion. There were but two poets that ever could have properly described such a horse and both are dead. By a most singular coincidence they were both named Gordon. The one was the ill-starred Australian steeple-chaser, known only to voyagers like yourself. The other was the author of "The Giaour."

He had spoken truly, for the animal before them was a fit subject for the facile pencil of a Herring. The thousand manifold hues that gleamed from his rich coat of claret bay would have defied the most subtle amalgamation of coloring. In truth he was

"A king by birth, for who could tame
A neck so clothed with thunder lo the rein?"

His massive shoulders raked like the masts of a yacht, into a back and loin that were fit to have borne the sallow visaged Corsican through the sulphurous canopy of Austerlitz. Then those glorious hips and that long reach downwards to the broad, flat hocks through stifles that showed the power and leverage of beam-engines. Four hard and flintlike cannon bones carried this ponderous frame down into as many well-shapen and beautifully set feet, with pasterns that seemed made from steel springs. Above this gloriously laid foundation, a really masculine head and a patrician face were strongly set upon a neck that was not yet heavily crested, although his scions had won golden tributes alike under the dull Jersey pines and the whispering wattle-boughs of the great South Continent. Add to all this that often overlooked virtue, a perfect temper, and you have the horse with the knightly name, the lion's heart and the eagle's eye.

As the groom led the king of the winds back to his couch of straw and his banquet of oats, the elder man said: "There's an odd history attached to that same horse—would you like to hear it?"

"With greatest of pleasure," replied the Eastern visitor.

"Well, let's walk back to the switch, for the West-bound train will be along in a few minutes and I will give it to you as I got it on my last visit to sunny New South Wales."

CHAPTER II.

The two wayfarers were seated in the smoking carriage of the Reno Express when the Eastern visitor said.

"Well, now, how about that big Australian horse?"

"He was not bred in Australia, but in New Zealand. He was foaled at the Middle Park Stud near Auckland, and got by Traducer out of the imported mare Idalia by Cambuscan, her dam Dulcibella by Voltigeur. Cambuscan won the July Stakes of 1863, and was an important winter favorite for the Derby of the following year, although he ran unplaced. Ducibella won the Cesarewitch in a field of twenty-seven starters, and the Great Yorkshire Handicap from sixteen others. Cambuscan is the sire of Camballo who won the Two Thousand Guineas of 1875. Traducer, the sire of Sir Modred, was the best stallion imported into New Zealand, always barring Musket, and I must put him down as the best exponent of the Newminster blood in the colonies. He also got Welcome Jack, a great performer under the very heaviest weights; Cheviot, owned by Dr. Rosa of San Francisco, and a score of lesser lights, all good ones to go."

"And Sir Modred, was he a great racer?"

"He was as good as they ever make them," replied the elder gentleman. "The course was never too long nor the pace too hot. At two years old he won the Champagne Stakes at Dunedin. In his three year old form he won the Canterbury Derby, Dunedin Cup and Railway Plate, and was beaten half a length in a mile and a half race, conceding thirty-nine pounds to Lady Emma, a well tried mare. At four years he was of little or no account, and won but one race out of seven starts. At five years old he beat the great crack Malua, a Melbourne Cup winner, who did two miles in 3:30¾, with 135 lbs. up. He had now passed into the hands of a Sydney contractor named Proffitt, who was about as unscrupulous a man as you could easily find. He was entered in the principal events of 1884, including the Melbourne Cup as well as the Metropolitan Stakes and Craven Plate at Sydney. At this time there was a man named Boult, a New Zealander, employed as cashier of the Branch Bank of New Zealand in Sydney. He had backed several winners of important races, and, like most men of that class, did not know when to quit."

"So he used the bank's money to play Sir Modred, I suppose?" queried the visitor.

"Yes, and for nearly ten thousand pounds. Proffitt was surprised to find his horse steadily advancing in the betting quotations for the Melbourne cup, despite the fact that the stable money had not yet been placed on him. It did not take him long to trace this backing directly to Boult. One day he came into the bank and asked for a loan of five thousand pounds, but was told he would have to put up more collateral. He then charged Boult with having forestalled him in the betting and Boult denied it. Proffitt then threatened to scratch Sir Modred for the Melbourne Cup. Boult laughed at him, and told him he dared not do it. Proffitt walked down to the telegraph office and sent a dispatch to Byron Moore, Secretary of the V. R. C., to scratch Sir Modred. The affair created a profound sensation over the whole continent, and popular indignation rose to a boiling pitch. Proffitt was accused of dividing profits with the bookmakers, and, whether the accusation were true or false, has borne a very shady reputation ever since."

"How did Boult come out of it?"

"Badly enough, I assure you. With Sir Modred clean out of it, he hunted up another horse to back, and invested as much more on Commotion, who ran second to Malua. This created a heavy defalcation, and Boult was convicted and sent to Darlinghurst Jail for twelve years.

"And Sir Modred, did he win any more races?"

"To be sure he did. It was just at this point that his brilliant career began. The old trainer was so disgusted at the scratching that he at once threw up his job and left the horse without any attendant whatever. Four days after the scratching took place, the great Metropolitan, two miles, was to be run at Randwick. Sir Modred had not had a canter in the meantime. Proffitt took the big horse out himself, and gave him two slow miles in the morning. Sir Modred had a belly on him like a broodmare, but he went out that afternoon and made a holy show of his company, with odds of 8 to 1 against him. He carried 122 pounds, and won in a common canter by three lengths in 3:34¼. Two days later he beat Malua and twelve others for the Craven Plate, one and a quarter miles, in 2:10¾, and held hard at that. From that time out he was so loaded down with weight, that victory was impossible. In 1885 he was sold to Mr. D. F. Mackay, of Singleton, where he stood one season and got Antæus, Sir William and Camden, all good performers. Sir William won the Hawkesbury Handicap last April in such a way as to make him a prominent feature for the next Caulfield Cup, and he is a horse that will take lots of beating; and Antæus is a colt of great speed and high quality, that has won several good races."

"And Boult—whatever became of him?"

"Well, that is the strangest part of the story, because it is the only case I know where the prosecution, after having thrown a man into prison, were the principal factors in trying to get him out. It seems that the signature of a man in prison is of no value on a deed, and Boult had got some real estate in Sydney which, during his term of incarceration, had become valuable—nearly enough to pay off the amount of his defalcation. Applications were made to the Governor (Lord Carrington) for his pardon, but for a long time without avail. The Governor said that it could not be pleaded in his behalf, that he was indigent, and committed his crimes through the pressure of poverty. On the contrary he had a liberal salary, and could easily have lived on it had he kept down his mania for turf speculations. So Boult remained in jail till October, 1889. About that time the bank people got hold of the matter, and made such a strong pull upon the Governor, that Lord Carrington set him free, but very reluctantly. And where do you suppose he is now?"

"Well, certainly not in his old position?" said the New York man.

"Well, not exactly," replied the old-timer, "but almost the next thing to it. He is in London, a confidential adviser at the head-office of the bank. Its financial affairs are in none too good a condition, and as Boult is more conversant with all its colonial transactions than any other man alive, they have need of him. Yes, he gets a good salary, and doesn't play any more horses. It is a good lesson, in two parts. First, not to play races with other people's money; and secondly, not to back any horse for any large amount till you find out whether the owner has made his own book all right."

"It sometimes seems to me," continued the old Californian, "that everything painful or tragical must be surrounded with something absolutely ridiculous. The present instance was no exception, for when Boult found himself a defaulter with a penitentiary staring him in the face, he resolved upon flight. If he could only reach Brisbane in time to catch the steamer for Calcutta, he could leave her at Sourabaya and be comparatively safe from arrest. Accordingly he left Sydney on a night train, disguised as a Catholic priest, and got off at Newcastle, where he lay, till the next morning brought along the Brisbane train. All the way up that long ride of 1,250 miles, he could hear the passengers, who never once suspected his identity, talking about his defalcation and flight."

"And was he caught at Brisbane?"

"Of course he was, but let me tell you how. He went into the Bellvue Hotel and registered under an assumed name—Father Somebody, of course. Mr. Collins, the proprietor, has only Irish waiters in his employ, and it was in the dining-room that Boult gave himself away, as the slang goes. He walked in to the breakfast table, it being Friday morning, and astonished the waiter by calling for a porter-house steak, with some bacon and eggs. The waiter ejaculated 'Holy Mary,' and let half a dozen dishes fall to the floor, but he recovered his presence of mind and got Boult his order. This done, he went out into the office and told Mr Collins that there was a man in the dining-room who was masquerading in the garb of a priest. Mr. Collins, who is a devout Catholic himself, came to the same conclusion, and notified the police authorities, who had already been appraised of Boult's defalcation and flight. As a natural consequence, thereof, the big steamer Jumna went to sea that afternoon and he was not aboard, but safely locked in Brisbane jail, awaiting his turn to be taken back to Sydney.

"Well, it is indeed a strange story—sounds almost like one of Hawley Smart's novels, doesn't it?

"It does indeed," said the elderly man. "It may not be exactly, word for word, as I have given it to you, but the main facts are as it was told to me in Sydney. I have told it to you as I got it from others who were in a better position to know the facts than myself."

CHAPTER III.

Such is the romance surrounding Sir Modred. The reality is all that now remains to be told, and that is a portion of American turf history with which the veriest turf tyro is familiar. In October, 1886, he was purchased by Mr. Bruce Lowe, of Sydney, for J. B. Haggin, Esq., of California, and reached his new home in safety. In 1889, the first of his get appeared in public, there being but seven trained. All of these were bracketed, and five of them were returned as stake-winners. In the present year, the two most valuable three-year-old events, the Realization Stakes at Coney Island and the Omnibus Stakes at Long Branch, fell to his son Tournament, the property of that big-hearted gentleman, Senator Hearst; the Foxhall, Iroquois and Travers Stakes at Saratoga and the Spindrift Stakes at Coney Island, were won by his son Sir John; and the Elms Stakes at Westchester by his daughter, Gloaming; the Throgg's Neck Stakes at Westchester, worth over $2,000, were won by his son Dr. Helmuth, whose brother, Dr. Hasbrouck, won the Larchmont Stakes for two-year-olds and another stake, which place his winnings at $4,600, exclusive of second and third moneys in other races. In all, Sir Modred has done better in his first two seasons than any of the early famous importations to America, not excepting Glencoe, Leamington, Yorkshire or Bonnie Scotland. May he long be spared to perpetuate, through his sons and daughters, the halo of brilliancy that surrounds his knightly name.

Sound Feet on Horses, and How to Keep Them So.

A trial of Campbell's Horse Foot Remedy will convince any fair-minded person that it makes the foot soft but tough, and draws out all the fever and soreness. It promotes a rapid growth of a new foot and gives it that dark, healthy appearance seen only in good, sound healthy feet. In twenty minutes after it is applied you can drive your horse through dust and ashes and they will not stick to the hoof, proving beyond a doubt that the Remedy has penetrated into the foot where it acts as an oil to grease and lubricate the many joints and knuckles. It is applied with a small paint brush in a moment without trouble or dirt, and a simple painting all over the foot once a day is guaranteed to keep the horses' hoofs in perfect condition, no matter how long the drives or hard the roads. Under these circumstances can you afford to lose the services and impair the value of your horses by going without this valuable remedy? Remember, Campbell's Horse Foot Remedy PREVENTS as well as CURES all ailments of the feet, and preventation is better than cure. Try it. See advertisment.

A valuable horse of mine was taken with colic, and after using all means available, the thought struck me (as I had no salts) to use Simmons Liver Regulator. One-half hour after giving it he had an operation and was cured. I think it valuable information to yourselves and Stock-raisers.—W. A. Halland, Jessusville, Ga.

TURF AND TRACK.

Colonel Pulsifer is said to have won $30,000 on Tenny when he defeated Firenzi, Prince Royal and others for the Labor Day stakes.

Church Brothers of Frankfort have sold ont $1,500 to Clayton Brothers of Virden, Ill, the chestnnt colt Rene Onward, dam by King Rene.

Hal Pointer, the great Tennessee pacer, has been purchased by a Buffalo syndicate. The price paid was $7,500. The horse will continue down the circuit.

Mr. Corbitt last week purchased from Rufus Murphy, Santa Rosa, the bay mare Mountain Maid, by Anteeo 2:16¼, dam by Mountain Boy. Price, $2,000.

W. H. Barkley, of Lexington, has sold for $3.5000 to G. T. Clark of London, Ohio, the bay yearling colt Billy Redd, by Red Wilkes, dam by Dixon, a son of Happy Medinm.

D. L. Herr of Lexington has sold for $5,000 to J. J. Bright of Point Pleasant, West Va., the three-year-old gray colt Strong Boy (pacer) by Allendorf, dam Bashaw Belle, by Green's Bashaw.

One of the happiest looking men at the Oakland track last Satnday was Mr. Salisbury, the well known proprietor of the Pleasanton Stock Farm, who most have been qnite wearied by the congratulations he received.

Mr. Corbitt, the well known owner of San Mateo Stock Farm, has purchased a full sister to Mollie Drew 2:27, and three of her produce—a filly foal, a yearling colt and a two year old filly, all by Gny Wilkes.

Jimmy McLanghlin received quite an ovation when he made his first appearance in the saddle this year at the Coney Island Jockey Club Meeting. McLanghlin on Philosophy was beaten a head by Bunn on Lavina Belle.

Whipple & Co. of Meadsville, Penn., have sold for $6,000 to Darnall Brothers of Flemingsbury, Ky., the five year-old stallion Nutford by Nntwood, dam Moss Rose by Woodford Mambrino, second dam Primrose by Alexander's Abdallah.

W. H. Babb is said to have refused $6000 for the three year old Gnido in Montana; the colt was bought by C V Tupper at the Bay District Track when a yearling, being sold by his breeder Col. H. T. Thornton at public auction for $95.

A number of New York and New Brunswick capitalists have bought a large tract of land at South River, near here, and work was begnn to-day toward constructing a race track there, with a club house and other buildings. Seth Griffen is the contractor.

Cy Mulkey has a wonderfully successful season in Montana with the gallopers. Sinfax, the Palo Alto bred two year old won $3,759.50, Tom Daly $1440 and Tim Murphy $1350. He is now in Portland, Oregon, where he expects to add still further to his bank account.

Mr. Van Gordon sent the three trotters, Claremont, Lena H and Old Nick, back to San Simeon last Tuesday. Claremont, from whom great things were expected, went lame while Lena H, having obtained a record, will be retired to the paddock after this season.

Lake Du Bois stepped off the cars last Sunday evening like a two-year-old having just come on from Denver to see the State Fair again. The veteran who is as juvenile as ever says 'the Mayor' will trot Superior at the Denver fall meeting and may possibly winter here again.

Dash races of one mile for trottters may become popular among the members of the betting fraternity. They will not tend to increase the staying powers of our trotters, hence will not improve the foreign demand for American trotting stock. Dash races of two, three or four miles would be more sensible.

The Eleventh District Fair at Quincy, which commences on the 22nd, promises to be a great success. Among the visitors there will be Major Marion Biggs, who has made seven or eight entries. Mr. Biggs who was in Oakland on Monday, and Tuesday says he shall most certainly go up himself, and he expects that it will be an exceptionally good meeting.

If a vote were taken, says the Sporting World, among the trainers as to the best looking horse seen in the paddock Al Farrow would have won by a big majority. He is certainly a powerful looking racer, somewhat of the Exile make. Besides having the appearance of a weight carrier he looks as though he might be an old time cup winner.

On September the fourth, at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, Palo Alto trotted an exhibition mile in 2:12¼, Sunol in 2:11¾ while Orrin A. Hickok drove Alfred S to wagon against Maggie K to harness winning in straight heats. Time 2:21, 2:16¾. The time for the last heat 2:16¾, being the best on record in a race and only a quarter of a second behind Hopeful 2:16½ against time.

George Van Gordon, Senator Hearst's superintendent, has had the ground surveyed for the mile track on the recently purchased Valentine ranch near Pleasanton, and work will be begun almost immediately. The intention is to raise the colts on the ranch in San Louis Obispo and send them to Pleasanton to be educated. Mr. Van Gordon speaks in highly eulogistic terms of the youngsters on the ranch by imported Cheviot whom he thinks will prove one of the stallions of the century.

The trotter Maud Knox was sold two weeks ago by R. S. Perkins, the wealthy Portland turfman, to Captain Russell J. Lowe, of Seattle, owner of the pacer St. James and other notable fiyers for $3,000 cash. Maud Knox at one time was as good as sold to a well known capitalist of Tacoma for $3,500, but doing a trial mile better than her record, her owner refused to sell her. Captain Lowe has been after the mare for five months and was much elated when he secured her.

In England and on many parts of the Continent they have been for a long time using a horse shoe made by compressing common cowhide. It is composed of three thicknesses of the cowskin pressed in a steel mould and then subjected to a chemical preparation. It is claimed for it that it is much lighter, that it lasts longer, and that split hoofs are never known in horses using it. It is perfectly smooth at the bottom, no calks being required, the shoe adhering firmly to the most polished surface. Its elasticity prevents many sprains, the horses steps being lighter and surer.

We, says the Sporting Chronicle, have received volume 9 of the "Stud Book Francaise," comprising a register of thoroughbreds imported or borne in France from the year 1884 to 1889 inclusive. We note that the French are a little in front of us, as the work is published by order of the Minister of Agriculture, and we are not aware that Mr. H. Chaplin, M. P. has "ordered" anything so useful since he accepted a similar office in England. "The "Stnd Book Francaise" is a beautifully printed "tome" of close on 600 pages, and is a very valuable supplement indeed to the English work of the same character.

When Mr. Cyril Flower won the House of Commons' Steeplechase on Home Rule, a certain portion of that Angust assembly accepted the result as a pleasant omen as to the future of the Irish question, and some very witty and agreeable references were made to the winner in debates says the Umpire of the 17th. Another winner cropped up on Wednesday last at Kempton Park which would doubtless bring comfort to the heart of a distinguished M. P.—to wit, Sir Wilfred Lawson. We refer, of course, to the victory of Abstinence, whose dam was sister to Pulpit, and who had the blood of Edward the Confessor and Priestcraft in his vains. Curiously enough, this horse with so many goody-goody strains of blood was bought after the race by a Mr. Deacon.

The thirty days' Summer meeting of the Brighton Beach Racing Association ended last week. During its continuance 185 races were run, 478 horses contesting for the $96,875 that was the total value of the stakes and purses, the association giving $94,000 of this amount. The money was distributed among 120 owners, the largest sum going to W. C. Daly, who won 18 races and $14,832.75. The largest of the other winners were W, Lakeland, $7,175; J. H. McCormick, $7,154; S. Emery, $2,550; D. T. Pulsifer, $2,525; John Mullins, $2,450; J. H. Lewis, Jr., $2,225· R. Harper, $2,050; and the Wellington Stable, $2,130. Long distance races have been a feature of the meeting, there having been a race at each of the following distances: 1⅝, 1¾, 2, 2¼, 2½, 3, and 4 miles, a record which no other track can show.

Lee Paul, the veteran thoroughbred trainer, died of paralysis at his residence at Lexington on the 31st of August. Mr. Paul ranked among the most skillful trainers of horses in America. He has been in the ranks for nearly a half century, and during that time has trained many good ones, including the great Hindoo, the Kentucky Derby winner; Day Star, Mrs. Chubbs, Blue Lodge, Terra Cotta, Montana Regent, Julia L, and a half a hundred other noted winners. The last effort of his life in his profession was the final preparation he gave to Corrigan's crack, Riley, which enabled that colt to win the Louisvilte Derby and the Clark Stakes. Mr Paul's death removes from the turf about the last of the old school trainers that flourished in ante-bellum times.

Captain Russell England, says "Atlas," who some eighteen months ago arranged the sale of Ormonde for the Duke of Westminster, left on Thursday for Buenos Ayres. Before leaving he offered by cable to the present owner £14,000 for Ormonde, being the amount paid to the Duke for him, and it is understood that the offer was accepted. The buyer is Baron Hirsch, who is forming a breeding stud, and is now advertising for mares, dams of winners. The Hungarian Government were also anxious to offer £12,000 for Ormonde, but their agent has been told the sale is already agreed to. There is, of course, the risk of bringing the horses over, which the buyer must face. The sum of £14,000 pounds in gold at the present exchange represents in Buenos Ayres from £50,000 to £60,000.

Mr. Croft has among his treasures a plate that came off the foot of the American turf's noblest ornament, Salvator. Two years ago Secretary Crickmore presented to the turf writer of the Tribune, plates that had been worked by The Bard and Firenzi, and it is interesting to tote the difference in size and shape between the hoofs of the three horses, The Bard's plate is much the smallest. It fits inside of Salvator's very nicely, and Salvator's almost fits inside of Firenzi's. The mare's foot is flat, and almost perfectly round, while the feet of the horses are slightly elongated. The Bard's plate is decidedly pointed at the toe, and very irregular elsewhere. Salvator's is about two-thirds of a perfect oval. The Bard revelled in mud and Salvator does not mind it, but Firenzi is at her best on a fast track. Sott slush she can travel in, but in sticky going her great feet cause too much suction.

The ancient myth about Flying Childers running a mile in a minute, reminds "Kirk" of the good old days down in Kentucky, when trainers used to time horses without watches. The method was to sit on a fence and tap the rail with a pocket knife at what was supposed to be the end of each second. On any trial day you might see a dozen knives pecking away and hear a dozen voices mumbling in unison, one, two, three, four, five, etc. Some of these veterans could some pretty close to a minute with their sixty pecks. Long practice had made them very expert. They were seldom more than two seconds out of the way, either over or under. No doubt Flying Childers' wonderful mile was timed in a similar manner. The accuracy of the fast mile credited to the English horse Brag, is doubted by many turfmen on both sides of the Atlantic. It is interesting to know, however, that Mr. Belmont now has in his stable a colt by this same Brag.

The Monmouth Park Association have decided, says the Times, to build a hotel on property owned by them near their new race track. It is not intended to make a new summer resort, but a much-needed home for owners and trainers and their families, in close proximity to the stables where the horses are quartered and the tracks where they are exercised. The plans for this new hotel are not yet perfected, but the scheme in a general way is to build a house sufficiently large to accommodate the people for whose use it is intended, and to have it run in first-class shape by some good hotel manager who knows just what the class of people he will cater for desire, and will be able to furnish them with home comforts at a reasonable price. The association will own the house and have a general supervision of its conduct. It will be constructed and conducted solely because no adequate quarters, such as the horsemen require, now exist nearer than Long Branch, which is some five miles away.

The distances between the post stations in Persia differ greatly, sometimes they are under fifteen, and occasionally over thirty miles. On a stage of moderate length the horses are supposed to do eight miles an hour, and they will easily do that or more if they are in fair condition and have had a good rest before starting, but even under these conditions they have a will of their own and have to be humored. On leaving the station, however impatient you may be, don't attempt to go off immediately on a gallop. If you do your animal will resist, and will probably get sulky or obstreperous. Go for a few hundred yards at a slow walk, then increase the pace to a jog trot, and when you have been well shaken up for five or ten minutes, get him into an amble and keep him at it. The amble may not seem very fast but it will take you over your eight miles in an hour comfortably, and it has the advantage of being not at all fatiguing—a consideration not to be despised if you mean to cover quickly a long distance. I do not know what the record in this respect is, but I have myself repeatedly done over one hundred miles in twenty-four hours.

"Father Bill" Daly got an allopathic dose of his own medicine in the selling race which his horse Drumstick won from start to finish, with long odds against him, says the New York Times of the 2nd. Tattler and Firefly, two other Brighton Beachers, being the choicest in the betting. The horse was entered to be sold for $1,000, and, as everyone knew he was worth much more than that, fun was expected when the horse was put up for sale. The fun came when the horse was put up, "Jimmy" McCormick bidding $1,500 at the first crack. Father Bill replied with a raise of $25, and the bidding was lively until $2 625 was reached, at which price the horse was knocked down to Daly. The crowd applauded McCormick, laughed at "Father Bill," and the band rubbed it in when the old man went stumping across the lawn by playing "For we've all been there before many a time," much to the amusement of the regulars. As the race was worth but $750 to the winner, and it cost Father Bill $1,625 to keep the horse, he was out $875, and there was no one he could levy an assessment on to make good his loss. So he went home a sadder, and possibly a wiser man.

Sunol by Electioneer was three years six months and 24 days old when she made her record of 2:10½. Axtell by William L. was 3 years, 6 months and 10 days old when he made his record of 2:12. Lillian Wilkes by Gny Wilkes was 3 years, 5 months and 21 days old when she made her record of 2:17¾. Sable Wilkes by Gny was 3 years, 8 months and 5 days old when he made his record of 2:19. Allerton by Jay Bird was three years, 4 months and 7 days old when he made his record of 2:18¼. Fanst by Florida was 3 years, 3 months and 5 days old when he made his record of 2:18¼. Bell Boy by Electioneer was 3 years, 8 months and 7 days old when he made his record of 2:19½. Hinda Rose by Electioneer was 3 years, 7 months and 27 days old when she made her record of 2:19½. Patron by Pancoast was 3 years, 1 month and 1 day old when he made his record of 2:14½. Houri by Onward was 3 years, 5 months and 16 days old when she made her record of 2:17. Don Pizarro by Gambetta Wilkes was 3 yesrs, 2 months and 20 days old when he made his record of 2:14¾.

According to the law—in New South Wales, at all events—it is libellous to publish the disqualification of anybody who may have been ruled off by a racing club. In the Jury Court, Sydney, an action was brought by a C. A. L. Brown against Thomas Leary and others, representing the Wilcannia Jockey Club, to recover compensation from the defendants in consequence of their having published a notice that the Wilcannia Jockey Club had disqualified the plaintiff for twelve months for improper behavior to the race officials on the 27th and 28th of January last. The damages were laid at £1,000. It appeared that after the race meeting in January last, the plaintiff admittedly used some very warm language towards the committee with respect to the handicapping of one of his horses, and the committee in consequence disqualified him for twelve months, and posted the usual notice, not at their rooms at a local hotel, but in a passage near the bar. The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages one farthing.

The news that Mr. C. D. Rose has donated £1,000 to each of three long distance handicaps, has excited the envy of the Toronto Empire, which says:—"He is a steady business man, this young Canadian, from Montreal. He is Mr. C. D. Rose, son of the late Sir John Rose, once our Minister of Finance. Suppose this Rose had been left to blossom on its native heath; that he had moved west, as many good young men do, and having located at Toronto, had been now to the fore to help on the O. J. C. races at the Woodbine. But no, water runs to the river, and this young man of millions must needs go and lavish his wealth on Newmarket, where there is already 'encouragement' enough. By the bye, the young man's first effort was to give £10,000 for a racehorse, The Prince, who never won him a dollar. But this was ten years ago, He is now a middle aged man, and oh! why didn't he stay in Canada to decry sprinters and improve the breed of long distance runners?" It may interest the Canadians says the English Sporting Chronicle to learn that Mr. Rose purchased The Prince in 1883, and the horse won for him the £1000 Crawford Plate at Newmarket on April 16, 1884.

McLaughlin, America's foremost jockey in all the years that he rode upon the turf, will, according to the Tribune, return to the saddle. Frank Ehert, who recently bought Theodore Winters' horses, intends to go in for racing on an extensive sale, and has engaged McLaughlin to ride for him next season. Till the 1st of January the jockey will continue to train Pierre Lorillard's stable of middle class horses, then he will go back to his old trade. That he is still the idol of the racing community was made apparent yesterday by the applause that greeted him when he rode out on Philosophy, his first mount this year. It is understood that he will ride from time to time in welterweight races during the remainder of the season.

Though McLaughlin has had fair success as a trainer, he has not been entirely happy in his new calling. Mr. Lorillard is well satisfied with the way in which McLaughlin has handled the Rancocas stable, and the relations between owner and trainer have been of the pleasantest possible description.

"I have been thinking of going back to the saddle for several months," McLaughlin said yesterday. He had just left the jockey's room after taking off the colors in which he rode Philosophy, and was still breathing fast from the exhaustion of that hard finish. "I don't like training, and now that I am able to get down in weight without much wasting, I am anxious to ride again.'

"What is your weight now?" he was asked.

The well known English thoroughbred stallion Paradox died the property of Mr. Brodrick Cloete a few weeks ago. The cause of his death was inflammatory rheumatism, from which he had been ailing for some time. He was bred in 1883 at the Yardley stud, being sired by Sterling, dam Casuistry, and was purchased when a yearling by Captain Bowling for 700 guineas. He afterwards became the property of the Duke of Westminster, and ran in the colors of that gentleman in the Middle Park plate, but could only finish a dead heat with Royal Hampton for third place behind Melton and Xaintrailles. He was sold to Mr. Broderick Cloete after his defeat and won his next race the Dewhurst plate and his owner refused an offer of 10,000 sovs. for him. As a 3 year-old he won the two thousand guineas by a head from Crafton and six others, and in the Derby of that year ran a great race, being only beaten by a head from Melton. His other victories that year were the Grand Prix de Paris, the Sussex Stakes at Goodwood, the Champion Stakes at Newmarket, and the Free Handicap Sweepstakes at the Haughton meeting. He was then retired to the stud and was very popular with breeders. His first batch of foals will not be two years old till 1891.

"Stripped I weigh 124 pounds. I did not have to do any work to get down either. I'm lighter than I have been in two years without considerable wasting."

"What weight will you have to make with Ebret?"

"The contract is that I ride at 120 pounds."

To call Mr. Laughlin a hustler sums up in one word nearly all his perfections as a jockey. The dictionary definition of this word is not half broad enough, but the world does not have to go to Worcester or Webster to learn its meaning. It had its development and proper application in the wild and wooly region of our common country, and has spread wherever American push and energy have penetrated. To hustle, in short, means to get there by the nearest cut. Getting there made McLaughlin's fame and established the American school of riding. No other jockey ever rode as McLaughlin did when at the pinnacle of his fame. Turfmen will tell you on the spur of the moment that races are won at the finish, but when advised to consider seriously the style and methods of McLaughlin they will admit that most of his races are won at the beginning. In certain respects other jockeys are his equals in America, but as a rider of 2-year-olds he was never approached.

Many a betting man is very superstitious and volumes could be written on the whims and ideas that control their actions when wooing fortune's smiles. Few of them, however, have much of a weakness for ghosts, although the following dispatch from Rochester shows that they have the genuine article down there at present in the shape of poor Danny Mackin, a jockey that was killed at Detroit a few years ago by the horse he was riding making a sudden and vicious bolt and hurling him to the ground. When the jockey was picked up a stream of blood was running from a hole in his temple down his cheek and neck. A story has been current among jockeys and stablemen ever since Mackin's death that his ghost walks at night among the race track stables in quest of the horse that killed him. This story has always been believed by stablemen, and if any one had doubts of it they are dispelled now, for the ghost itself was seen by at least a dozen of them at Rochester Driving Park one night last week. The midnight watch of stablemen had come on duty and the men were lounging in front of the stables when one of them saw a slim figure in white approaching the stables from a clump of trees on the grounds. The man called the attention of his companions to the object. They all saw it clearly as it glided noiselessly to the stable. When the apparition came full in the light of the large hanging lamp in front of the stable and revealed the figure, clad in jockey garb, and a face as white as the clothes, with a red streak running from the right temple down the cheek and neck, like a line of blood trickling down, the stablemen were paralyzed with terror.

The specter jockey passed into the stable through the open door. The door leading to the stalls where the horses were was closed, but the ghost kept right on, passed through the door as if it had been open and disappeared. One of the stablemen recovered himself sufficiently to think that perhaps this might be a clever trick of some one to get at the horses to do them harm, and he hurried forward and opened the door leading to the stalls, with the intention of preventing any such purpose. Two or three of his companions followed him The apparition was moving slowly along the stalls, stopping an instant at each and then passing to the next. The horses seemed to be aware of the mysterious presence. They neigbed and plunged and stamped in their stalls as the specter passed along. The stablemen were again paralyzed by this second vision of the jockey ghost and stood motionless and speechless at the door. The apparition glided on and paused at every stall in the stable, turned its face for a moment toward the terror-stricken men in the door, and disappeared as suddenly and mysteriously as it had come. That they had seen the wandering ghost of poor Danny Mackin not one man of the midnight watch has the slightest doubt.

Count Valensin's Simmocolon, which James H. Goldsmith has been driving down the grand circuit with much success, derives his name from the union of the names of two characters, a stallion and a man. The Newark Sunday Call says: The sire of Simmocolon is Simmons, and Colon was a former owner or trainer. Mr. Goldsmith has frequently been guyed by those who did not know the derivation of the name, as having spelled it wrong. When informed that the signification was not a point of punctuation the "joke" was on the other side. Simmocolon is a grandson of George Wilkes and a nephew of Rosa Wilkes, 2:18¼. His sire, Simmons, is the sire of nine in the list, and the sire of one three-year-old with a record of 2:22¼, and one four year old with a record of 2:27½. Simmons was bred by T. J. Montagne, and foaled in 1879. His dam, Black Jane, was a daughter of Mambrino Patchen. He is owned by W. H. Wilson, of Cynthiana, Ky. Simmons is a coal black and elegantly formed. Ever since he was a yearling he has carried off the honors of the show ring in his class, and at the great American Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., in the fall of 1883, he carried off the first prize for four-year-old stallions. Mark Field, in writing of Simmons, says: Mr. Wilson paid an enormous price for him, in the faith that the horse, being a full brother to Rosa Wilkes and a son of one of the greatest trotting progenitors, might reasonably be esteemed a prospective sire in whose ultimate pre-eminence few chances were to be taken. That this faith was not chimerical appears evident in the splendid list which Simmons has appended to his name. Simmons is sixteen hands high, weighs 1,200 pounds and is gaited precisely like his immortal sire.

As you are always anxious to receive information that may interest some of your many readers, I beg to give you the following as a curious coincidence of nature, as well as a record of what experience and application may do.

A few weeks since I sent a mare, then heavy in foal, to Mr. William Flanders, Mepal, Isle of Ely, to be mated, after parturition, to his Elsenham Cup horse Reality. In due time the mare gave birth to a filly foal (by the late Lord Derby 2d), strong and healthy, but with a bag or udder full of milk, which flowed freely from the teats, the mother showing no more than a barren mare. Mr. Flanders was in a dilemma and became very anxious, having never seen or heard of a similar case. However, he took means at once to keep the foal going by supplying a substitute for nature's fluid, and by careful nursing and watchfulness, the spark of life was kept burning for two or three days. When the mare began to show signs of milk the foal was put to her, but unfortunately the milk was tainted, "so the last state was worse than the first," the foal became sick and weakened, and lay down to die. Mr. Flanders' anxiety increased, and he put forth all his energies, together with those of his son, to keep it alive while the dam was being physicked. This being done, the foal was again put to with the assistance of one or two men. This time all was right, and within two days of the crisis or eight after birth, it was showing marks of playfulness around the dam, and from the last report, a fortnight after, mare and foal were doing well, the latter's bag having entirely dried up. But for Mr. Flanders' experience the foal would have been lost.—J. Makeague, in Live Stock Journal London.

The declaration that it makes no difference in regard to size, and that size cuts no figure, so long as quality is kept uppermost in sight, is amply borne out by the performances of some of the greatest turf horses, both trotters and racers, that have so far appeared upon the American tracks. The Sporting World says: Among the former we have Jay Eye See, barely 15 hands high, with a record of 2:10; Phallas, 2:13¾ so small that notwithstanding he had the best stallion record of any living horse Mr. Corbitt purchased the untried Guy Wilkes in preference to him, and Alcazar, 2:20, barely over 15 hands and an inch high, but so beautifully formed that no man could guess within an inch of his true height. Moreover, the once famous May Howard, 2:23, was by Paddy McGee, a little gray pony, 14½ hands high, with a record of 2:33¼.

Among the racers recalled, the famous three-miler of olden times on the Pacific Coast, Little Flea by Grey Eagle, out of an imported mare by Actæon. He was but 14¾ hands high, and not only did three miles in 5:33½, but subsequently drove Red Eye out in a second heat of four miles in 7:39½. Sherrod, who won a second heat in three miles in 5:34 and lapped Molly Jackson out in a third heat in 5:28½, the record to this very day, although the race was run twenty-nine years ago, was even a smaller horse than Flea. Underhand, one of the cracks of the English turf, won the Northumberland Plate three years consecutively, carrying 122 pounds in his victory of 1859. He won the great Ebor Handicap at York with 127 pounds up, and a Queen's Plate, with 129 pounds, at five years old. Underhand was not fifteen hands high until he was five years old.

Imported Albion, who headed the winning sires of 1859, and was second to Revenue in the list of 1860 by only $14 of winnings, was a black horse just 15 hands high. Glencoe, the greatest of all our imported sires, was barely 15 hands 2 inches. Bonnie Scotland was under that height, and Luke Blackburn, his greatest son, never reached that figure till he was past six years old. King Fonso, who beat both Ten Broeck and Chesapeake, was barely 15½ hands, and his world famous son, Foxhall, was even smaller. Bramble, the crack two miler of 1879 was barely fifteen hands high, and was known as the "Tennessee Runt" all through his long turf career, and it is doubtful if a more consistent performer (always barring Hanover and Miss Woodford) ever carried the famous Dwyer colors to victory.

The monument to Rysdyk's Hambletonian, the obelisk which marks the resting place of Green Mountain Maid, and the marble column that tells where the dead thoroughbred king, Ten Broeck, lies buried, all show man's appreciation for God's most noble beast. But such homage is not an American inception, as the records show that John, Earl of Cork (Lord Boyle), who lived in England over one hundred and fifty years ago, was probably the originator of such memorials. The following inscription on a monument to one of his favorite horses was transcribed for the London Gentleman's Magazine, May, 1780:

"Monumental inscription on an urn in the gardens at Maratou:

"Hic sepultus est,
Rex Nobby,
Equorum Princeps.
Omnium sui generis.
Longe praestantissimus.
Ob. 12 Feb. 1754.
Ætatis 34.'

On another side:

"Under the stone we interred the bones of King Nobby, a Horse, who was superlatively beautiful in his kind. He loved his master with an affection far exceeding the love of brutes. He had sense, courage, strength, majesty, spirit and obedience. He never started, he never tripped, he never stumbled. He lived to an uncommon age, and till within two years of his death retained his natural excellence and vigor. His limbs were sound to his last moments, he having enjoyed the peculiar felicity of scarce ever having been lame or sick during the long course of his life."

On the third side:

"King Nobby
drew his first breath May 7, 1720.
He was purchased in a luck hour
by John, Lord Boyle, March 30, 1726, with whom he lived near 28 years, and to whom he proved himself
an incomparable horse,
a docile, social, and even domestic animal,
a sagacious brute, and a faithful servant."

On the fourth side:

"King Nobby performed two journeys into Ireland without accident and without fatigue. Though he was strong and hardy, his limbs were as light and delicate. His mane shown like jet and flowed gracefully from his neck to his shoulders; his ears were small. He was—oh! he was all perfection."

F. S Gordon, writing to Dunton's Spirit, says: E. J Travis and I bought at the Kellogg Sale, last spring, Pleasanton, b c, foaled 1888, by Director, record 2:17, dam May Day, record 2:30, by Cassius M. Clay Jr., 54. He is a full brother to Margaret S that made a record of 2:12½ last week, and the same week won her race against aged horses in the three fastest heats ever trotted by a four year old in a race, and on the day she was just four years old. To-day I bought from Mr. Travis his half of Pleasanton, and own him; Mr. Travis and I also own jointly Saccharine, b c, foaled 1888, by Director 2:17, dam Sweetness, record 2:21½, dam of Sidney, pacing record 2:19¾, and sire of the great Faustino 2:26½, and others. How many other stallions are there out of a mare with a record of 2:30 that have a produce of 2:12½, and then sires by a race horse, record 2:17?

Mr. Dan Swigert of the famous Elmendorf Stud has held his last yearling sale, and in the future the product of this great establishment will be trained and raced in his colors, it being his intention to return to the turf. It is stated that Mr. Swigert has become dissatisfied with the patronage he has received at the hands of the turfmen in the last few years at his annual sales, and being allured by the rich stakes now being hung up throughout the country, he has concluded to stake his chances once again in a racing stable.

Mr. Swigert is satisfied that yearlings are to day not bringing what they should bring in proportion to what they have a chance to win, and he has concluded in the future to race the product of the Elmendorf mares and stallions, and in this way derive all the profits of their winnings on the turf. Every year from forty-five to fifty yearlings are sired at Elmendorf, and when Mr. Swigert shows up with such a string of trained horses he will create a decided sensation, and it is safe to say that the Elmendorf Stable, known as "Stockwood," will be heard from when such horses as Kingfisher, Baden, Maplestick, Spendthrift and Hindoo were among the great cracks that bore its colors to victory.

The new racing firm will be the same as the present breeding one, Swigert & Son, and the East as well as the West will be the scene of its exploits.

One of the most important points investigated by every day horse buyers when selecting a racer or a horse for any purpose is, says the Sporting World, the eye of the animal inspected. Of course it is all important that the sight of a horse should be perfect, or his value is lessened to a greater extent than if troubled with other imperfections which are curable. The sight, as is known to all experts, cannot be improved upon as a general thing, and a horse practically becomes valueless in open market if blind or even if its sight shows indications of imperfection. In reference to the subject, experts considered the matter at a meeting held some time ago, when the optic nerve of horses was the subject under consideration. All horsemen should carefully consider views on such subjects. The report of the meeting of the experts reads as follows:

We were discussing the eye before breaking off to explain the mode of drenching animals. The Optic nerve seems to be the channel through which the impression is conveyed to the nervous center, while another nerve is that through which the motor impulse is conveyed to the iris; but there is some ground for the idea that the fifth pair of nerves may, in some degree, convey the requisite stimulus when the optic nerve has been divided. That the dilation of the pupil is a muscular action appears probable from the fact that the radiating fibers of the iris are of the same character with the circular. In treating this subject we must not lose sight of the situation of the eyes of the horse as contrasted with those of his master. The eyes of the former are placed laterally, the eyes of man in front of the face. We possess one advantage in being able to view very near objects which are situated in front of us, but the advantage is a very small one. The horse has many advantages. He can take cognizance of objects both laterally and posteriorly placed. We cannot do so with the same degree of accuracy. This is to be accounted for from the fact that our eyes being anteriorly placed, and the eyes of the horse, as I said before, being situated laterally, together with the greater size of the globe in that animal.

The eye of man when compared to that of the horse is, I should imagine, similar to that of a small telescope and a large one, both complete in themselves, but the larger affording a greater field than the smaller. The way to ascertain the seeing powers of a horse is to aim a blow at the head when standing before him. It will be observed he will have some difficulty in warding it, and of judging of the distance it is from him. Not so when you stand at his side. Shying is caused in most instances by perfect vision, although the generality of horsemen believe it is a trick or habit acquired from idleness, and they refer it to playfulness, skittishness, etc.

I am forced to believe, from much practical experience among young horses, as well as those more advanced in years, that in nineteen classes out of twenty the visual organ has not the power of perceiving things aright. There are several causes in operation to produce shying. I have known many with narrow and flat foreheads, possessing small ill shaped eyes, desperate and dangerous shyers. The shape of the corner has not been convex, but I have found it more prominent at one part than at another; they are what I have termed them, "angularly convex." I have noticed a similar shaped eye in the bovine race; I dare say many persons have noticed the cows, when driven along a street, shy a good deal, which may be accounted for from the fact that they meet objects they are unused to, and being excited their vision is less perfect than when they are in a tranquil state.

The human family could tell of many odd sensations when running or excited if they knew how to do so. The horses with the ill shaped eyes and foreheads are the worst shyers I have ever met with. They generally shy at water marks in the road, especially after dark. There are eyes which are prominent, and horses with eyes such as these are near-sighted; there are others with flat eyes, although said to be so from old age. I don't find these animals shy as they grow old, but the reverse. I think, as a general rule, if an eye is perfect in youth and up to 8 or 12 years old, the possessor of that eye will not be found to become a shyer, as these animals are not often found so old as to have impaired vision.

I have known hundreds of old horses that have not shyed in their old age. The shaped forehead to which allusion was made has been found to exist in nervous and ill-tempered horses. When they are bad tempered and shyers to boot it becomes dangerous to drive them. They seem to make a point of starting at an object when there is no difficulty in the way, which becomes very annoying. I am not aware of any writer having noticed this peculiarity. No doubt hundreds of veterians have made similar observations, but I don't know of any such having been recorded.

RACINE 1:39 1-2.

So many records have been broken this year, many of them by California horses, that a picture representing one that has a national reputation always has more or less interest for the reader. It is but a few weeks ago that Salvator stonished the world by running a mile over the Monmouth straight course in the remarkable time of 1:35½. Naturally Californians felt highly elated to think that the champion of the world was owned in California, but there were a few who saw fit to deride the wonderful time made, their grounds being that a straight track was not a proper one for a horse to make a record on; such being the case the honors would then fall back on a California-bred and owned colt, Racine having negotiated the distance on a circular track at Washington Park, Chicago, in the last week in June of this year, in 1:39¼. It is a great pity that Racine has been very sick, for the Eastern turfites have had no chance to see what a remarkable three-year-old he really is. Fit and well, we believe that he is the peer of any horse ever raced in America. It is but a short time ago that we gave an account of his performances, and in connection with the picture in this issue, it will not be out of place to republish the account of his races as then given.

fact that he won by six lengths from a field of good horses, the time being 1:02. On Thursday, April 25th, he was a contestant in the So So Stakes for two-year-olds, the stake to be named after the winner, if So So's time of 1:14¾ was beaten; the best the bookmakers would put against him in this race was $10 to $100, and he won by four lengths in 1:14¼, that being the time given out by the judges, although scores of watches made the time 1:13¾. After the good work performed by him in his spring form, he was given well merited rest, and did not again appear until the State Fair where on September 13th, he and four others fought out a spirited race for the Introduction Stakes. The three-fourths of a mile was easily completed in 1:15¾, Racine's runner up being Flambeau from the same stable. He made a second appearance at the same meeting on Wednesday, September 18th, the California Autumn Stakes being the prize. There was only three starters and again Racine won in 1:15, Flambeau again being the runner up.

At Stockton, on September 24th, in the five-eighths of a mile sweepstakes he won handily in 1:01¼. On September 27th at the same place in a sweepstakes he was again successful, Flambeau being second and Jessie C. third. Time, 1:14¾.

At San Jose on Saturday, October 5th, he had no difficulty and he won in a canter by six lengths, the time being 1:42¼. After the last performance mentioned, the running qualities of Racine were leased to the Undine Stable, and when that establishment started East Racine accompanied them. Unfortunately for his new owner, Racine had been stricken out of all his stake engagements, consequently he is only good for the small purses which are hung up over night. His debut was made at Chicago almost three months ago, he beating a good field of horses, distance one mile, in 1:41.

The story of his remarkable race made on Saturday, June 28th last, is still fresh in the minds of all our readers, and therefore it is unnecessary to give the details of that wonderful performance. As the matter stands to-day, Racine has the acknowledged mile record of the world on a circular track, and until that is beaten, will stand as one of the fastest horses of his age.

The following are the blood lines of Racine:

Racine by Bishop, dam imp Fairy Rose by Kisber, second dam Hippolyta by King Tom; third dam Daughter of the Star by Kremlin; fourth dam Evening Star by Touchstone; 5th dam Bertha by Rubens; sixth dam Boadicea by Alexander, etc.

Racine is owned by Senator Leland Stanford, who will Racine's first appearance before an audience occurred at San Jose on Saturday, March 30, 1889, in the Debut Stakes for two-year-olds, in which there were only three starters. Pliney, the stable companion of Racine, won in the exceedingly good time of 49½ seconds, beating Guido by half a neck, Racine being two lengths behind the second horse. On the following Tuesday the subject of our sketch started again in the Motor Stakes, in which the same three horses started, and also Mr. Ashe's Mirope; the five-eighths of a mile was negotiated in 1:02½, Racine winning from Guido by three-fourths of a length. On Saturday, April 6th, the same year, he started for the Lick House Stakes, three-quarters of a mile, the contestants being the same as those in the Motor Stakes. Racine won handily by a length, Pliney also carrying the Palo Alto colors being a good second, in 1:16¼.

The next appearance of Racine was at the Spring meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association on April 20, 1889, in which he started for the California Stakes, distance one-half mile. Six promising two-year-olds faced the flag, but again Racine had everything his own way, winning in 48½ seconds.

On Tuesday, April 30, he was again seen, this time as one of the entries for the Select Stakes, five-eighths of a mile. By this time he had stamped himself such a favorite that 25 to 100 was the best that the bookmakers would lay against him, and that their judgment was correct was amply proven in the in defeating Marigold and Capt. Al, the three-quarters of a mile being completed in 1:14¾.

His last race in his two year old form was at the fall meeting of the Blood Horse Association, in which he started for the Autumn Stake, defeating a large field of two year olds, distance one mile, in 1:44. It will thus be seen that during the season of 1889 he lost only one race, and that the first in which he started, and from the wonderful speed shown by him afterwards, there are many who to this day believe he might have won even his initial race.

As a three-year-old, his first appearance was at San Jose at the Spring meeting held there, his competitors in the one mile sweepstakes being Senator Hearst's Baggage, Palo Alto's Muta and the Owen Bros.' Captain Al. Racine won the event by four lengths in the remarkable time, for that season of the year, of 1:42½. During the Spring meeting of the Blood Horse Association, he was started as one of the contestants for the Tidal Stakes, but the Palo Alto Stable decided to win with Flambeau, and consequently Racine had to take a second place, but to do it his rider had to see-saw the grand young colt all the way down the homestretch. For the Pacific Derby the same thing occurred again, the stable desiring to win with Flambeau as before, Racine having his head almost pulled off to prevent him beating his stable companion.

At the Spring meeting at Sacramento he was started for the Weinstock-Lubin Stakes, the distance being one mile, reserve him for service in the stud, but at present the colt is leased by the Undine Stable, the proprietors of which have him at Sheepshead Bay.

At the time when Sinfax won the Pioneer Stakes at Helena Montana, Mr. Cy Mulkey, her owner, was offered $5,000 for the colt by two different men, says the Oregonian. The Pioneer Stakes, $700, increased Sinfax's winnings of regular purses to $3749.50. Tom Daly did pretty well himself, earning $1440 for Mr. Mulkey before he was sold for $1000 at Butte. Mr. Mulkey sold him on account of his erratic disposition. He was a good deal of trouble at the stable, and everybody knows how Tom delayed scoring. He had to be turned by hand at the post, and Mr. Mulkey got tired being put in the light of being a hindrance to starts.

Tim Murphy took in $1350 of the Montana purses. Mr. Mulkey says he thinks a great deal of his new acquisition, and well he may, as the nimble roan tied Bogus for the world record, half mile and repeat, in 48 48. The week before Murphy tied the record he ran in 48 and 48½, and in the second handicap the weights were proposed by Mr. Mulkey and accepted by the other starters as follows: Murphy 118; Sunday 115; Red Elm 108; The Jew 105; Bob Wade 118. It is a singular fact that Red Elm was the horse that forced both Bogus and Tim Murphy to make the great record.

During the meetings of the circuit Mr. Mulkey started nineteen times, winning fifteen first moneys, three second and one third, which is quite a phenomenal record. His colors were pink and green, and he was called the Irish stable by the turf men.

The Humors of Racing.

A few years ago, before book-betting bad become known in California, a certain well known trainer here, bad occasion to visit Australia, having taken across a couple of trotters to take part in the twenty races at the opening of the Elsternwick Trotting Park, Melbourne.

When he landed in Sydney tbe Spring meeting at Ranwicke was in full blast and of course he had to be there. The style of betting tbere was strange to him, as well as the manner and customs of the sporting fraternity, but what puzzled him most was the term "bar one." He had left his horses at Fennelly's Bazaar on Pitt St., and he hailed with delight the appearance on the scene of the jovial Mike Fennelly himself, who as trainer for the Hon. James White's runners, was of conrse present, having charge of tbe Derby favorite Seginhoe.

"Would you be kind enongh to tell me," asked our friend from the Golden Gate, "what sort of a horse this 'bar one' is that starts in every race?"

Mike dropped at once to the joke and introduced him to an old Californian whom he had already posted. He led him into the paddock and pointed out Navigator.

"Pnt me $50 on him" said the new chnm.

It was put on for him at 3 to 1 and Navigator won. In looking over the race card he was greatly snrprised not to see the name of "bar one," the borse he had backed, and which had won. When the cat was let out of the bag no one laughed louder at the joke than himself and gladly opened several bottles of wine. * * * * *

The first regnlar trotting meeting at Elsternwick Park was a snrprise to Australians. The light sulkies (wbich they called carts) astonished them greatly and many bets were laid that the "carts" would break down before they got ronnd the track. The boots, toe weights, etc, were also wonders, and when Startle came out all booted and accoutered, a native was beard to observe, "Blast my colonial eyes if that black borse ain't been and robbed a harness shop. He only wants a bloody pair of boots on his ears to make him perfect."

But the three American horses showed them that they could trot, "harness shop" and all. * * * * *

In Sydney one night, two well known horse men were bantering each other about the respective merits of the hacks they rode. One of them, Noab Beale, the old time trainer for John Tait, that late father of the Australian turf in New South Wales, owned and rode a little chnnky cob whicb wonld not run a mile in three minutes. The other, Jack Smiley, rode a handsome blooded mare whicb he fancied could gallop fancy. After a lot of talk Beal said "I tell you what I'll do, Jack. I'll run you a mile race over tbe Randwicke conrse for $125, under these conditions. We botb go to the post together bnt you will have to drink a quart of beer after the flag drops. This sounds like a good thing for Smiley, as be knew he could dispose of a qnart of ale before Noah Beale could get much of a start on him.

The match was fixed for two o'clock the next afternoon, and lots of horsemen, having got wind of it, a large crowd was on hand to see the novel race, and odds of ten to one were offered on Smiley's mare.

Both men and horses were on hand at the appointed time, jndges and starter were chosen and to the post they went. The start was to be made jnst opposite the grand stand, and there was Noah Beale's man in waiting with tbe qnart of beer. He held it in a cloth, which seemed rather odd, but did not attract much attention. As soon as the flag dropped he handed the pewter mug to Smiley, wbile Beale was off as fast as bis fat cob would travel. Smiley grabbed the mug in a hurry and took one pull at it. He then commenced to spit and swear like a trooper—the ale was boiling hot. Before it was possible for him to drink it Beale had made the circuit of the track and came puffing in with a broad grin on his face.

"Ginoe done me tbis time, Noah," was all that Smiley said, but be vowed he would get even some day. Whetber he ever did cannot be said, but for years after be was unmercifully chaffed about that quart of ale.

"One of the most amusing sights I ever saw," said an old racing man, "was an amateur steeple chase at Rouen, Normandy. Tbe race was run at the regular meeting, and tbe fences, as anyone knows who has been over there, are holy terrors. In front of the grand stand was a broad fence, four feet six in height with twenty feet of water the otber side. This outrageous jump proved a sad stumbling block to the professionals and their trained borses, but to the amateurs, who were all officers of a French regiment, it was a regular Waterloo. Eight horses started and only one got over, though several riders did so minus their horses. The fortunate one landed in the middle of the water, but managed to scramble out somehow or the other, while the rest, at least the disabled ones, charged at the obstacle again and again in vain. Every horse balked and tbe riders did not seem conspicuously anxious to force them to jump. At last the man who had got over came around again (it was a two mile dash) and was going full tilt at the fence, when lo and behold, his horse stopped dead short and shot him head first over the boards and into the muddy water. This ended the race, and who got the handsome cup and purse I could never find out. Somehow or the otber Frenchmen never make good cross country riders."

* * * * *

"Another queer thing happened at Rouen at tbe same meeting. In a three mile steeplechase the two leading horses took the jumps in fine style until they came to the last jump into the flat, when both were pushed so hard that tbey fell and rolled over together, having canoned in rising at tbe fence. Both men were badly dazed, and in the heat and confusion monnted the wrong horses. Page, who was riding the Duke of Hamilton's Romulns, mounted Mons Le Fiore's Frou Frou, wbile Jenkins jumped up on Romulus. They were both bay horses with black points. and having been lately clipped looked much alike. Frou Frou won, and it was not until the jockeys went to weigh in that they discovered their mistake. After a long consultation the stewards decided to give the race to the first horse past the post, as both jockeys brought in their entitled weight.

How We Beat the Favorite.

A LAY OF THE LOAMSHIRE HUNT CUP.

"Aye, Squire," said Stevens, "they back him at evens";
The race is all over, bar shouting they say;
The Clown ought to beat her; Dick Neville is sweeter
Than ever—he swears he can win all the way.

A gentleman rider--well, I'm an outsider,
But if he's a gent, who the mischief's a jock?
You swells mostly blunder, Dick rides for the plunder,
He rides, too, like thunder—he sits like a rock.

He calls 'hunted fairly' a horse that has barely
Been stripp'd for a trot within sight of the hounds;
A horse that at Warwick beat Birdlime and Yorick,
And gave Abdelkader at Aintree nine pounds.

They say we have no test to warrant a protest;
Dick rides for a lord, and stands in with a steward;
The light of their faces they show him—his case is Prejudged and his verdict already secured.

But none can outlast her, and few travel faster;
She strides in her work clean away from The Drag;
You hold her and sit her, she couldn't be fitter;
Whenever you hit her she'll spring like a stag.

"And p'raps the green jacket, at odds though they back it,
May fail, or there's no knowing what may turn up;
The mare is quite ready, sit still and ride steady,
Keep cool, and I think you may just win the Cup."

Dark-brown with tan muzzle, just stripped for the tussle,
Stood Iseult, arching her neck to the curb,
A lean head and fiery, strong quarters and wiry,
A loin rather light, but a shoulder superb.

Some parting injunction, bestowed with great unction,
I tried to recall, but forgot, like a dunce,
When Reginald Murray, full tilt on White Surrey,
Came down in a hurry to start us at once.

"Keep back in the yellow; come up on Othello!
Hold hard on the chestnut; turn round on The Drag!
Keep back there on Spartan; hark yon, sir, in Tartan!
So, steady there, easy!" and down went the flag.

We started, and Kerr made strong running on Mermaid,
Through furrows that led to the first stake—and bound,
The crack, half extended, look'd bloodlike and splendid,
Held wide on the right where the headland was sound.

I pulled hard to baffle her rush with the snaffle,
Before her two-thirds of the field got away,
All through the wet pasture where floods of the last year
Still loitered, they clotted my crimson with clay.

The fourth fence, a wattle, floor'd Monk and Bluebottle;
The Drag came to grief at the blackthorn and ditch;
The rails toppled over Redoubt and Red Rover,
The lane stopped Lycurgus and Leicestershire Witch.

She passed like an arrow Kildare and Cock Sparrow,
And Mantrap and Mermaid refused the stone wall,
And Giles on The Grayling came down at the paling,
And I was left sailing in front of them all.

I took them a burster, nor eased her nor nursed her
Until the Black Buiifinch led into the plough.
And through the strong bramble we bored with a scramble,
My cap was knocked off by the hazel tree bough.

Where furrows looked lighter I drew the rein tighter,
Her dark chest all dappled with flakes of white foam,
Her flanks mud bespattered, a weak rail she shattered,
We landed on turf with our heads turned for home.

Then crash'd a low binder, and then close behind her,
The sward to the strokes of the favorite shook;
His rush roused her mettle, yet ever so little
She shortened her stride as we raced at the brook.

She rose when I hit her, I saw the stream glitter;
A wide scarlet nostril flashed close to my knee;
Between sky and water The Clown came and caught her,
The space that he cleared was a caution to see.

And forcing the running, discarding all cunning,
A length to the front went the rider in green:
A long strip of stubble, and then the big double,
Two stiff flights of rails and a quickset between.

She raced at the rasper, I felt my knees grasp her,
I found my hands give to her strain on the bit,
She rose when The Clown did—our silks as we bounded
Brushed lightly, our stirrups clash'd loud as we lit.

A rise steeply sloping, a fence with stone coping—
The last—we diverged round the base of the hill,
His path was the nearer, his leap was the clearer,
I flogg'd up the straight and he led sitting still.

She came to his quarter, and on still I brought her,
And up to his girth, to his breastplate she drew;
A short prayer from Neville just reached me, "The Devil!"
He muttered—lock'd level the hurdles we flew.

A hum of hoarse cheering, a dense crowd careering,
All sights seen obscurely, all shouts vaguely heard;
"The green wins!" "The crimson!" The multitude swim on,
And figures are blended, and features are blurred.

"The horse is her master"; "The green forges past her";
"The Clown will outlast her"; "The Clown wins!" "The Clown!"
The white railing races, with all the white faces,
The chestnut outpaces, outstretches the brown,

On still past the gateway she strains in the straightway,
Still struggles "The Clown by a short neck at most";
He swerves the green scourges, the stand rocks and surges,
And flashes, and verges, and flits the white post.

Aye! so ends the tussle—I knew the tan muzzle
Was first, though the ring men were yelling "Dead heat."
A nose I could swear by, but Clarke said, "The mare by
A short head!" and that's how the favorite was beat.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public that he will be prepared to meet his old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

I take pleasure in saying that when my horses were sick with what we called lung fever, last spring I gave Simmona Liver Regulator (liqnid) in one ounce doses, twice a day. They all recovered speedily.—E. T. Michener, Proprietor Michener's Express, Jenkintown, Pa.

Letter From Humboldt County.

But one month intervenes before the fair, and it might be interesting to take a prospective view of the material to compose the speed programme, so far as known. There is now in training at the Rohnerville track four yearlings that are deserving of especial mention.

For the general enlightenment of all, it might be well to announce in the beginning that there are breeders in Humboldt who study their business as carefully, and are as well posted, perhaps, as anywbere in the State. They have their pet breeding theories, and manifest a pride in their work that will eventnally win for Humboldt stock a high reputation. Three of these colts belong to H. S. Hogoboom: Remember Me, Why Not and Unlncky. Remember Me, sired by Walstein, dam Gertrude by The Grand Moor; second dam Kate Tabor by Mambrino Messenger, strikes one at first by her beauty and symmetrical form. It is very evident she is a pet. The owner looks on her with pride akin to that bestowed upon a favorite child by a fond parent. Wide head, large, intelligent eyes, pricked ears, strong and muscular neck, in fact, every inch a splendid colt, and that she can trot quarters in 44 seconds is not to be wondered at. Whether at the coming fair last year's record, 2:56 by yearlings (Hogoboom's Sacramento Girl), will be broken, remains problematic. Why Not, sired by Walstein, dam by Tommy Benton, is a pert, gilt-edged youngster, doing quarters in 0:45. Unlncky, sired by Prompter, dam Josie N. by Bedowin; second dam by Lesbie, is a colt of wonderful stride, broke the last of June, but shows a three-minute gait already. The fourth colt of this list, Dignns, is owned by N. Groton. Dignns is a well developed colt, showing a quarter in 0:35, was sired by Antevolo, dam by The Moor; second dam by Echo.

Were it possible for these four colts to go together at the fair, tbose present would witness a phenomenal yearling race. Mr. Groton says "there are no yearlings that can outstep Dignus for the chance he has had." Mr. Groton has in training also for the fair Pete Steinway and Nancy Moor. The latter will compete in the three-year-old class; she is taking her work well. Poor Pete Steinway has participated in races under the greatest disadvantages, being an exceedingly unlucky horse, bnt his day is coming. He went a half in 1:13, and will do still better; look out for Pete. Mr. Groton is also working a promising Grand Moor colt, dam thoroughbred. This Moor, two years old, stands 16½ hands bigh.

Henry Haas, the popular horse trainer, has in charge Mazeppa, a three-year-old Poscora, owned by A. C. Roussin, Johnny Moor by The Moor, Damiana, a pacer, 2:27, Jolly Jogger, owned by Dr. Felt, a three-year-old mare owned by A. Leach, and Nellie Q, owned by Tom Quinn. All these will be heard from at the coming fair, as Haas has the reputation of being one of the best trainers on the coast, and these horses are well bred.

Visiting the stables of Coleman, we find the well known Little Cap, winner of the half mile and repeat last year; Mollie G., sired by Sampson, dam by Morgan, three years old; Steel Gray, now at the Spring Meeting of the E. J. Clnb, and Cling, who went in the free-for-all last year with Ira and Patchen. The general opinion here is that Cling will go below 2:28 this year.

Jeff Knight has three runners in training, the well known horse Stoneman and a two and a three-year-old colt sired by Joe Hooker, dam Bay Rose by Norfolk. These colts are full brother and sister to Tom Atchison, and will show their heels to some of the fleet ones this fall.

Tierney Bros. have Ella C., an Arthur H. two-year-old, wbo won two races in Eureka at the spring meeting, Sun Down by Arthur H., and Lewis P.

The splendid bred horse Nighttime, owned by Robert Latherow, showed up badly in races rnn so far, but is said to be getting down to work in fine shape.

Rows & Norton have Farewell, four years old, by Thad Stevens, dam by Woodbury, and Birdie G. by Ironwood, dam by Ironclad, who came a close second in two races at Petrolia.

Davis & Crippin have G. W., sired by Arthur H., dam thoroughbred, that held the record for best two minute class at one time, and a three-year-old, well bred, that has not been worked as yet.

Several other Arthur H. colts are in training, and some of the best, perhaps, have not been mentioned. One particular fine colt, owned by Clark at Petrolia, went lame, and was turned out. This seems to be an unlucky season for horses in this county. Pat Quinn, of Enreka, had a good horse drop dead on the track. A. C. Roussin's Desdemona, that could go in 2:57 as a yearling, was turned out somewhat the worse for wear. The rapid Sacramento Girl, that made a record as a yearling of 2:56 at the fair last year, has been under a cloud ever since, and is now just recovering from a severe case of some sort of epizooty, but has been for the last few days showing up her former self.

A four-year-old Poscora, owned by B. H. McNeil, after two week's training, went a mile in 2:40 easily, but accidentally wrenched a foot while playing, and had to be turned out. However, there is material on hand for a decidedly interesting speed programme this year, especially runners. Never before has there been such an array of fine classes, every race will be hotly contested by horses of great speed, and the local young trotters will be watched with keen interest. Tbe colts of Ira, Patchen, Poscora Hayward and Walstein are numerous, and the owners of those four great horses will note carefully the showing of their get, as every horse must stand or fall on the success of his colts. Ira and Patchen will possibly be back to Humboldt to participate in the free-for-all trot.

There are numerous other horses of more or less notority about the county, but entries in the races is set for September 1st, when the names and pedigrees will be forwarded to the Breeder and Sportsman.

Humboldt is looming up in the breeding of fleet racers and speedy trotters, and what with a taste for swift roadsters and men determined to get the best breeding, the time is not far distant when the speed programme of the 9th District Association will be second to none in the State outside of Sacramento.

Sec. 9th District Association.

OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 5.

The races were mnch better attended thsn on any of the previous days, the bangtails attrscting a large and gaily dressed crowd of ladies snd their escorts. The judges were Dr. Latham, G. Vsn Gordon and J. N. Bailhache. Starter, W. Coombs. The programme included fonr rnnning races and the nnfinished trot; in the latter Lena H. had one heat to her credit, Prince B. two and Mattie P. two. Prince B. sold in the pools for $20 agsinst $25 for the other two, and when the trio csme ont at one o'clock, very little betting was done at that rate of odds. When the word was given Prince went off at a rapid gait, and never left the issue in doubt, winning all the way, passing under the wire fifteen lengths in front of Mattie P., who just beat Lena for the place after a hard fight. Time, 2:29. Mntuals paid $10 on the heat.

The first rnnning race, for two-year-olds, was a complete facer for the talent, ss the erratic Duke of Milpitas, getting the worst of the start, never showed prominently except in the rear, while Nero, the Palo Alto colt, in a hood and blinkers, was well in front at the head of the stretch when he bolted to tbe ontside fence and destroyed his chance, the two Three Cheers fillies, Mystery snd Acclaim, both beating him.

The repeat was snpposed to be between Lida Fergnson and Ida Glenn, bnt the former had evidently not recovered from her pnnishing race of Wednesday, and Ida Glenn was beaten after a close finish by Gsmbo in the first heat, snd Vinco in the second, the Boots' geiding Vinco winning the run off in a canter.

The mile snd one-sixteenth was expected to be a good thing for Tycoon, bnt the gelding, who was rnn into by Dennison's horse two days before, had a slightly enlarged tendon, and Dr. Carpenter, who was called in, strongly advised his owner not to risk him in the race, the jndges, therefore, allowed him to be drawn. The race itself wss one of the most perfect snrprises of the year for Hotspnr, who went bogging in the overnight betting at one dollar in a hundred and forty, went to the front after passing the half, and won the race cleverly, the favorite, Captsin Al, finishing a fair second.

The last race of the day proved the good thing it looked for Applsuse, who won all the way.

First race, six fnrlongs, for two year olds, bad six entries, and Nero, the Palo Alto colt, had so easily beaten his opponents on Wednesday in the J. D. Carr pnrse, five furlongs, that, despite a three ponnd penalty, he wss made a red hot favorite at $40 to $20 for the eccentric Dnke of Milpitas, and $10 for the others ae a field. The horses were delayed at the post a short time by the Duke, who refused to join them, bnt getting him well nnder way, the flag was dropped with him two lengths behind. Minnie B jnmped off in front, with Mystery and Acclaim at her neck, and Nero a length back. Mystery, Acclaim and then Nero passed Minnie B. The colt going fast went past the other two with a rnsh on the tnrn, being a length in front of Mystery, some distance in advance of Acclaim, two lengths in front of the rest. Nero when in lead, trotted for the ontside fence at the head of the stretch, and spoilt his chance as Morton, never letting np on Mystery, got well away from him, and keeping the filly going cleverly by three lengthe, Acclaim second a head in front of Nero. Time, 1.15. Mntnals paid $41.10 straight, $34 Mystery a place, and $17.80 Acclaim a place.

Second race—Half mile and repeat.

First heat—The four starters, Lida Ferguson, Ida Glenn, Gambo and Vinco made a lively betting race, Ida Glenn selling for $110, while Fergnson bronght $55 and the field $20. The flag was dropped the first time up, Gambo having a length the best of Glenn, who was two lengths in front of Fergnson and Vinco; ronnd the turn the order wae Gambo, Glenn and Fergnson, a length of daylight between each of them, and Vinco three lengths back. Down the stretch Glenn and Fergnson collared Gambo and stayed with him to the drawgste, when Fergnson gave it up, and Glenn, ridden hard, wae beaten half a length, Vinco third and Fergnson pulling np fonrth. Time, 0:48½. Mutuals paid $34 40.

Second heat. The field now sold favorite at $50 to $40 for Glenn and $16 for Fergnsson. The flag was soon dropped with Vinco in the lead and going right along he went ronnd the turn two lengths in front of Fergnsson, a length in front of Ida Glenn with Gambo two further back. Fergusson was neck and neck with Vinco at the head of the stretch, bnt the gelding kept np his pace and she gave it up at the drawgate, while Glenn who came with a rnsh wae again too late, beaten a head, Gambo three lengths back. Time, 0:60¼. Mntnale paid on the field $8.40.

Third heat. Pools now sold, Gambo $70 to $42 for Vinoo. Gambo jumped away quickest, leading three lengths to the tnrn wben Vinco went np to him and entering the stretch drew away from him, winning in a gallop by three lengths. Time, 0:51¼. Mutuale paid $11.80.

Time, 0:48½, 0:50¼, 0:51¼.

Third race, one mile and a sixteenth. Tycoon who had been a hot over night favorite was drawn lame by permiesion of the jndges and pools sold at a very lively rate, Captain Al bringing $80 to Lurline $42, Raindrop $40 and the rest as a field $45. When the flag wae dropped all were well underway Fannie F. being quickest on her feet took the rails leading a length ronnd the tnrn with Mnta a length back and Lnrline a length fnrther behind, the reet in a bunch at the quarter pole. Lnrline had gone right up to Fannie and they were rnnning head and head a length in front of Raindrop with Mnta close up and Hotspur in front of the others. Dennison ronsed Hotspnr up and paesing the leaders just after the half the brown etallion led ronnd to the turn swinging into tbe stretch three lengths in front of Lurline with Fannie F. next and Captsin Al closing up. Dennison never let up on Hotspur and vigoronsly applied whip and spur all the way down tbe stretch won by a length with Captain Al hard ridden eecond four lengths in front of Fannie F., Muta and Lurline, Raindrop last. Time, 1:48. Mntnals paid on the field $19.50 for place, Hotspnr $44.70 and Captain Al $10.20.

The attendance was mnch better than than the previons days of the fair, and thongh the three races were not psrticularly exciting, every one seemed satisfied. The first race was practically a walk over for Sister V., who won with ease after losing the first heat to Wanda. The second race was an almost eqnally good thing for Maggie E, while the gentlemen's race did not attract mnch attention, the only featnre in it being the fact that Havey, the Palo Alto driver was up behind one of the pacers, the other drivers all agreeing. Dr. Walker, however, won the race in essy style. The ladies tournament, which should have preceded the races, had no entries.

First race.—The Directors' 2:24 pnrse had five starters: Sister V., Wanda, Pink, Guide and Redwood. Sister V. had besten the others so easily every time this year thet there were very few pools sold at $50 to $10 for the whole field. When the word was given Guide and Pink went ont in front bnt Pink broke before the turn and Wanda going fast on the tnrn passed the qnarter even up with Guide three lengths in front of Sieter, a length in front of Pink, seven lengths in front of Redwood. Sister broke on the backstretch and dropped back while Wanda passed the half witb Gnide at her snlky wheel and Sister eight lengths back with Pink close np. The order was nnchanged round the tnrn except Pink passed Sister and the leading four turned into the stretch three lengths apart. Pink closed up fast bnt broke badly a fnrlong from home and Wanda won easily by three lengths, Guide four lengthe in front of Pink, three ahead of Sieter, five lengths in advance of Redwood. Time, 2:24. Mutnale, Sister barred, paid $7.55.

Second heat—A few pools were sold at $40 for Sister to $15 for the field. After scoring up several times the word was given with Redwood two lengths back: Sister went out in front to the turn when she broke and dropped back last, Wanda going past the quarter a length in front of Pink, three lengths ahead of Gnide, four lengths in front of Sister with Redwood who broke on the turn five lengths behind. Wanda increased her lead to two lengths at the half with Pink and Gnide head and head two lengths in front of Sister, Pink, Guide and Sister close np on Wanda being only half a length behind at the head of the stretch; Pink broke all to pieces and Sister went on winning easily by three lengths, Wanda second three lengths in front of Gnide, four lengths in advance of Pink with Redwood just inside the flag. Time, 2:22. Mntuals paid on Sister $7.25 with Sister barred $8.60.

Third heat. Very few pools were sold at $30 for Sister to $6 for the field. A start was soon made with Sister in front and trotting very steadily; she was never headed, winning easily by three lengthe. Wanda and Gnide made a pretty race for the place nntil the head of the stretch when Pink joined them, bnt Wanda got the place by a length, Pink two lengthe in front of Guide. Time, 2:22½. Mutuals paid $8.95 on Wanda.

Fonrth heat. No pools were sold. Sister again went away in front and never headed won with ease by four lengths, Pink finishing second, three lengths in front of Wanda with Guide four lengths fnrther back. Time, 2:21¾.

Second race. Special trot. Four horses were entered for the special, viz, Victor, Maggie E. Flora Belle and Bob Mason. Pools sold, Victor $50, Flora Belle $20 and the field $17. The quartette were bronght out after the first heat of the 2:25 class and scored up for fifteen minntes and were then sent to the stable and brought out sgain after the third heat. The word was soon given on their re-appearance, Maggie setting the pace to the turn when she broke and Mason went on in front, psssing the qnarter three lengths in front of Maggie E. with Victor two lengths further back and Flora Belle three lengthe further back. Flora broke jnst after the quarter and lost several lengths by it while Victor joined Maggie E., bnt breaking on the upper tnrn dropped back while Flora closed np again, Mason having a length the best of it into tbe etretch with Maggie two lengths in front of Flora. Maggie out-trotted the othere down the stretch, winning the heat by two lengths with Flora Belle second and Mason third. Time, 2:22. Mutuals paid on field $10.-10.

Second heat.—Victor still sold favorite at $25 to $10 for Flora Belle and $12 for the field. The word was given with Victor a shade in front, closely pressed by Mason who however broke on the tnrn and Victor led to the half when Mason who bad trotted fast np the back stretch caught him and Victor broke bnt catching readily wae soon in front sgain. Maggie who had been third all the way came fast in the streich and passed Mason but Victor kept down to work and trotting fast won the heat by two lengths. Time 2:24. Mutnals paid $14.15.

Third heat—Victor now sold a hot favorite at $30 to $12 for the field and $4 for Flora Belle. When the word was given Mason went out in front. Victor broke twice before the tnrn while Maggie and Flora Belle broke on the tnrn. At the quartar Mason wss three lengths in front oi Victor with Maggie E a length behind. Victor who wss up and down several times hnng on to Mason all the way to tbe head of the stretch when he drew away from him but Maggie came in a clatter winning tbe heat by two lengths from Victor, three in front of Msson, four in front of Flora Belle, Victor set back to third for running. Time 2:24½. Mntusls psid $12.55 in the field.

Fonrth hest—With McConnell behind Victor, he still sold favorite at $60 to $46 Maggie E and $14 for the field. After scoring np several times the word was given, with Victor alt tangled np. Mason led to the qnarter, when Victor closed np and took the lead at the half. Msggie E closed np on the turn, and after a hard race down tbe stretch best him ont a neck with Mason third. Time, 2:23. Mutnals psid $10.45 on the field.

Third race, Gentleman's Driving Association.—Four horses tnrned out for the race, despite the fact that Hsrry was driving Oregon Boy. No pools could be sold and a start was soon effected. Dr. Walker going right ont was three lengths in front on the first turn and never headed won with ease by that distance, Oregon Boy second, the other two distanced. Sam ran into Dr. Walker's sulky and threw him out after finishing the mile bnt luckily did no dsmage. Time 2:37. Mutuals paid $8.95.

Second heat—Oregon Boy was in front sll the way to the three-eighths when Wsshington went past and led to the upper turn when he broke and Oregon Boy went past him and after a tight finish won by a length. Time, 2:38.

MONDAY.

Judgea, G. Van Gordon, E. Newland and Dr. Latham. Timers, Jas. A. Dnstin, George Bement and P. A. Finigan. Starter, W. Coombs.

The crowd at Oakland was again very large, bnt still there was plenty of room for those who were there. Four races were on the programme and prodnced several lively contests. The first was an easy thing for Nero, who, displaying none of his bolting propensities, won in good style from the two Three Cheer's fillies. The second race, one mile and one hundred yards selling race, was conceded on all hands to be a good thing for Applause who romped home three lengths in front of Larghetta. The five fnrlong scramble had seven starters—or would be etarters, or after wasting a lot of time the flag was dropped with four of them standing still, and there was only one in it for Gambo had two lengths tbe best of the start, and though Kildare made a game finish he oonld never qnite get there. The mile and a qnarter had eight horses, the Palo Alto crook Peel being thought to be a good thing bnt after getting pocketed on the lower tnrn he never seemed to have pace enough to come throngh.

First race. Only three two-year olds came out for the seven fnrlongs. Nero was made a strong favorite, selling for $35 to $14 for Mystery and $7 for Acclsim. The flag wae dropped with the two fillies three lengths in front of Nero and ran in the same order to the half. Nero then closed np all three being level on the turn, when Nero went on and won in a clever style by three lengths, Mystery two lengthe in front of Acclaim. Time, 1:27¾. Mntnals paid $8:15.

Second race. Six horses turned ont for the mile and one hundred yards, Applause selling a big favorite at $60 to $15 for Nerva and $13 for the others as a field. Applause got well away, leading Albatross and Nerva half a length past the stand with Joe Viva last. Applanse increased his lead round the turn going np the back stretch two lengtbs in front of Nerva with Larghetta at her saddle three lengths in front of the others, the order was nnchanged to the half when Joe Viva came ont of the ruck and was a good fourth, Applause going easy retained his advantage to the end, winning by three lengths, while Larghetta beat Nerva by half a length for the place after a pnnishing finish, Hernanda was a moderate fourth and Albatross fifth. Time, 1:48½. Mutuals psid $7.30 straight, and for place Applause $6.70 and Larghetta $11.20.

Third race—Seven horses turned ont and betting was very rapid at Kildare on $25, Gambo $24 and the otbers as a field $50. A long delay took place at the start Larena refusing to start. After half an hour's delay the flag was dropped with Gamho, Kildare and Ida Glenn moving, tbe others standing still. Gambo was quickest on his legs and soon had opened ont a gap of two lengths on Kildare with Gsmbo three back. The order wae nnohanged round the turn. Professional Pick-Ups.

Chase and Stanley make a great battery for the Fresnos.

Mike DePangher is now playing second base for the Merceds.

Catcher Stenzel, late of the Chicagos has been signed by Portland.

Ward and Brittan recently released from Tacoma have gone to Los Angeles.

Bob Blakiston, Frank Carroll and Dave Creamer took part in the Native Sons games.

Nat Hudson, until recently a pitcher with the Minneapolis team, is said to have fallen heir to $90,000.

Hugh Nicol is now Kansas City shortstop having displaced Holland who was signed to fill Nick Smith's shoes.

"Old man" Dallas is playing a good third for Merced and Thomma formerly of the Marysvilles is catching well with the same team.

The Fresno team has won four games straight. They would now like to tackle larger game in the shape of one of the big league teams.

Who will sign Pete Conway next season? He will be a star seat warmer. One game in two years is the best record made so far by any pitcher.

Harry Hulin is now captaining the Portland team and playing short stop. His former position—left field—is now occupied by Patsy Cahill.

Won't some one "for sweet charity's sake," start a relief fund to decently uniform the poor bedraggled looking team known as Finns Cripples.

The Baltimore and Columbus clubs during the week performed a feat probably unequaled in the history of base ball—playing two games on successive days, both ties, and by the same score,

The Sacramento boys all have an "eye to the future", as nearly every one in the team has from three to six hundred dollars to his credit at some of the Capitol City banks, the result of their savings for the season.

"Down on the farm," "Where did you get that hat?" "I say Mike", "When the Stocktons win a game" and all the latest songs for five cents sings out the Kearney St. fakir every night.

Three more clean-limbed or more athletic looking young fellows could scarcely be found anywhere than Carsey, McDonald and Dooley of the Oaklands.

Seattle has recently signed Fisher shortstop and Katz centerfielder of the Interstate League; first baseman Broughton recently of the St. Pauls and pitcher Somers. A strong quartet of players.

The South Bend team of Washington has been disbanded and their manager E. C. Belding owes the members of the team who are all "dead busted" some six hundred dollars. Jim Mullee was done out $110 due him, and every player in the team has a claim against the manager for from twenty five to one hundred and fifty dollars back salary with small chances of realizing ten cents on the dollar.

The Stockton management shows poor judgment in pitting Otto Young against the Frisco team when they have Kilroy and Perrott to choose from. The Friscos have batted in practice so often with Young in the box that they are thoroughly familiar with his delivery and curves which fact has been most practically demonstrated by their base hit column when they have met him.

For the nine games in which Norris O'Neill has played at third base since Stickney's release, he has accepted forty or fifty-two chances offered making twelve errors, nearly all of which were productive of runs. This gives the very poor percentage of 769 and still he is claimed by some deluded cranks—thank Heaven they are very few—to be a better man than his clever, brainy and gentlemanly predecessor.

Jimmy Fogarty, the crack outfielder of the Philadelphia Player's team, had his hands badly burned recently while extinguishing a fire in his bedroom at the Hotel Hilton, Philadelphia. The lace curtains at one of the windows took fire from the gas jet, which is in close proximity, and before Fogarty was aware of it, the curtains were all aflame, and the carpet had also caught fire. He succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but, in so doing, burned his hands badly, they being covered with blisters.—Sporting News.

The Sporting Life says:—"In spite of the fact that Zimmer has caught every game in the present championship season up to date his hands are in almost perfect condition, and his throwing arm was never better. The big fellow keeps himself in such excellent condition, and is a man of such irreproachable habits, that he deserves to succeed in finishing out the championship season, whether anybody else could do it or not. His record this season will show that he is not a shirk, and there are other ball players that might profit by it with advantage to themselves.

A glance at the work done by California boys in the Brotherhood and National Leagues this season, as shown by recently computed records, will no doubt prove interesting. The following are the batting averages Van Haltran, Brooklyn (P. L.) rank 10, per cent 331; Carroll, Pittsburg (P. L.) rank 20, per cent 314; T. Brown, Boston (P. L.) rank 32, per cent 291; Fogarty, Philadelphia (P. L.) rank 50, per cent 252; Veach, Cleveland (N L) rank 49, per cent 235; Brown, New York, (P. L.) rank 64, per cent 233; Knell, Philadelphia, (P. L.) rank 68, per cent 220; Denny, New York, (N. L.) rank 59, per cent 216; Smalley, Cleveland, (N. L.) rank 61, per cent 219; Swett, Boston, (P. L.) rank 76, per cent 193; Hardie, Boston, (N. L.) rank 76, per cent 187.

Knell ranks sixth in the pitchers of the Players League, the average earned runs per game made off him being 229. Van Haltran is tenth with an average of 317. Of the catchers Hardie ranks twelvth in the National League, fielding per cent 908. Brown is thirteenth in the Players with 875; Carroll fifteenth with 860 and Swett sixteenth with 832. Veach ranked ninth among National League first base man having a percentage of 965 and Smalley third as third baseman in the same league with 892. Denny is fifth with 889 to his credit. In fielding Fogarty accepted a percentage of 932 of the chances offered in center ranking fourth and Tom Brown 903 ranking ninth. As a rightfielder Fogarty is second per cent 967 and Van Haltran tenth, per cent 889.

To-Kalon Stock Farm.

It is now more than twenty years since Mr. H. W. Crabb located in Napa Valley. His vineyards are excelled by none in the State. They consist of five hundred acres, on which there is a magnificent mansion and also a first class house which is used by the new trainer and driver, whom Mr. Cobb has just secured. There is a wine cellar with a capacity of over a million gallons, with machinery of the latest improved patterns necessary for distillation and wine making. Mr. Crabb's reputation as a wine man is second to none and his goods always command a ready sale in any market. As is only natural to suppose, success in business has enabled Mr. Crabb to accumulate quite a fortune, and as his tastes run considerably toward horses, he has within the last four years purchased a number a number of brood mares and horses. The mares consist of those sired by Whippleton, Whipple's Hambletonian, Nanbuc, Vick's Ethan Allen, together with fillies by Woodnut, Director and many other favorite strains of blood. Mr. Crabb owns San Diego 8776 by Alcona Clay 2756, dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle 2:24 and Silas Skinner 2:20¼) by Almont 33; 2d dam Fanny Williams (dam of Bay Chieftain 2:28¼) by Abdallah 15. San Diego is a dark seal brown, now three years old, and can show quarters in 36 seconds.

The gentleman also owns To Kalon (to be beautiful) a brown stallion three years old by Whippleton 1883, dam Etta (dam of Cora C. 2:28½) by Nanbuc 2d dam by Vick's Ethan Allen 2903.

In addition to these fine stallions Mr. Crabb also owns a half interest in Grandissimo (full brother to Grandee, three year old record 2:23½) by LeGrande 2868, dam Norma by Arthurton 365; 2d dam Nourmahal (full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687, sire of Arrow 2:13¼, Romero 2:19½, What Ho 2:29¼, Richmond Jr. 2:22¾, Elwood 2:17¾, and is also the sire of the dam of Anteeo 2:16¼ and Antevelo 2:19½) by Blackbird 401. The object of Mr. Crabb is to breed to the very best of stallions so that eventually he will have stock second to none in the state. He also intends to give all of his fillies a record before putting them into the harem, and to that end he has had built a first class regulation three quarter mile track. It is delightfully situated only a short distance from the new and elegant stables, in the midst of a vineyard, the vines of which, at this particular season of the year, are laden with their luscious fruit. The track as it stands to-day is in first class order, and for speed is equal to any private one in the United States. The soil is particularly adapted for racing purposes and does not harden up enough to have any perceptible effect on the horses' feet. It is the intention of Mr. Crabb before long to put a covering of clay over the course, as he fancies that it will add to the speed thereof.

Within a short time twenty large box stalls have been erected which in addition to those already on the farm, gives ample opportunity to the trainer, James Corcoran, to keep as many in training as he may desire. Mr. Corcoran has full and complete charge as trainer and driver and he has already a dozen or more, to which he is giving daily exercise. Mr. Crabb not having enough of his own fit to work, has taken a number of outside horses, all of which are being handled by Mr. Corcoran. This is only temporarily, however, for it is barely possible that next season the owner of this fine estate will have enough of his own to fill all the available room.

A few of those we found receiving attentions from the trainer were the bay stallion Keepsake by Black Ralph, dam by Milton Medium, second dam Billy Cheatham. This young stallion is owned by Lill Boggs, of Lakeport.

Mr. W. G. Boggs, of the same place, also has a bay stallion by Black Ralph, the dam being a sister to the dam of Keepsake.

A. L. Bancroft, of San Francisco, has in training Whipada, bay filly by Whippleton, dam Queen by Admiral. She is only two years old and Corcoran says she is going to be very fast; for beauty, she cannot be beaten and if she only trots as fast as she is good looking, her mark will be very, very low.

A handsome yearling by Grandissimo was shown, the dam being by Whippleton, second dam by Bismarok, third dam by Whipple's Hambletonian. This really fine youngster is owned by F. W. Loeber, of Vineland, while the dam is owned by Professor Heald, who will give her a record next year.

Directa is a beautiful daughter of Director, out of Alida by Admiral. This filly is owned jointly by Messrs. Heald & Loeber. It is altogether possible that before this reaches the eyes of our readers that Directa will have been turned over to Andy McDowell to secure a low record as her owners feel sure that she has a wonderful amount of speed.

One of the handsomest colts to be found elsewhere is Alconeer only twenty-five months old by Alcona 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr. 2:30½ who is sire of Silas Skinner 2:20½) by Cassius M. Clay 22; second dam by Joe Downing 710 (sire of Abe Downing 2:20¾ and Dick Jamison 2:26, in addition to which he is the sire of three stallions with 3 horses in the 2:30 list and of seven dams who have six trotters and one pacer in the list.) Alconeer is a very handsome bay and would fill the eye of anyone who is a judge of first class horse flesh. This young stallion is owned by F. W. Loeber.

Mr. Crabb has a yearling stud colt by Whippleton, by dam a son of St. Lawrence; second dam the dam of Doc, sire of Occident 2:16¾.

Woodline is a handsome chestnut, two years old by Woodnut, dam by Whippleton; second dam by Dennison's Hawkins, son of Jack Hawkins.

Another in training is the bay mare, Ruby, six years old by Irvington Chief, son of Irvington 379, dam Alida (dam of Directa 2:31½) by Admiral.

St Helena Chief is by Whippleton, dam by Bassford's Abdallah; second dam by Whipple's Hambletonian 725 and is owned by Harry Sharpe of St. Helena.

To Kalon has already been spoken of above, and he also is receiving some slight amount of work preparatory to getting him in fix for a record if possible.

Vineland is a seal brown stallion, three year old by Whippleton, dam Sallie Gorham by Werner's Rattler; second dam Lady Rotan, an old time trotting mare who never found any road too long for her. This is an animal of good comformation and should prove a reliable trotter: he is owned by F. W. Loeber.

T. R. Eddington of Oakville has in training a bay stallion named Christo by Whippleton, dam said to be by Whipple's Hambletonian.

Billy Rose, a bay stallion three years old by Whippleton, dam by John Nelson 187; second dam said to be by St. Clair is owned by David Rose of Calistoga.

There were many others but time would not permit of a close examination as there were many other places to visit.

Mr. Crabb has had erected an exceedingly good kindergarten track which will be used for the purpose of breaking youngsters. It is one hundred and seventy feet around it and is built after the latest improved style. Granaries, barns, harness room, etc., tend to make the To Kalon Breeding Farm as fully equipped and ready for business as any to be found anywhere. We are perfectly well satisfied that the day is not far distant when Mr. Crabb will feel satisfied that he has made a good investment in entering the breeding business. He has started right, has secured excellent mares, has a good trainer and everything goes to show that he will make a financial success of what he started originally for amusement only.

California Boots.

It is really wonderful what giant strides California has made in almost every branch of industry which has been started in this State. Industry is hardly the proper word to use and "State products" is perhaps better.

No country in the world has ever produced the amount of gold which has emanated from the Golden State. There is no piece of land in the wide, wide world that in comparison with its size has produced as much wheat as California. Its horses to-day, both on the running and trotting tracks are recognized as the superiors of any bred elsewhere. In fruits it has no equal and in fact in everything which comes from the ground or which is manufactured, California takes a leading position.

Some years ago when the Haggin string first went East to compete with the Eastern monarchs on the running turf, a large majority of his horses appeared on the tracks with boots; Baldwin's stables likewise used boots; Hickok and Doble with their trotting stables took from California a large assortment of boots and all this within a very few years. The curiosity of the Eastern turfmen was naturally excited at the strange paraphernalia used by horses brought from Caltfornia, yet still when they saw the benefits arising therefrom, made haste to send to this State for appliances of like kind, for it was found that the manufacturers in the East who attempted to imitate Californian horse boots could not turn out anything like the work that was worn by those who had sent to California for them. The various trainers and drivers were only too pleased to give the address of the manufactnrer to those in the East who desired it, and in a very short time Jno. A. McKerron, formerly of Ellis street, had to increase the size of his manufactory to accommodate the extra hands which it was found necessary to employ. Within ten years the McKerron boots have been worn in almost country in the world where trotting and running horses are used on the track. A great deal of this is due to the fact that Mr. Marvin, the premier driver at Palo Alto has been a warm advocate of anything that tended to prevent injury to the horses under his care, and in his various trips East he has not hesitated to sound loudly the praises of the McKerron boots. In his word on "Training the Trotting Horse," Mr. Marvin says: "By far the best boots made in this country are those turned out by Jno. A. McKerron, of San Francisco. He has experimented and worked tirelessly and has perfected many an improved boot now in daily use all over the country." It must be said, however, that Mr. McKerron states emphatically that Chas. Marvin is one of the best men whom he has ever met for designing and putting into practical illustration, new ideas in regard to boots. Many new thoughts have emanated from Marvin, and one of the most improved articles now in use for horses wear is termed Marvin's Bell Quarter Boot, in honor of the veteran driver.

Finding that his business was increasing very rapidly, Mr. McKerron has lately removed from the old quarters to 203 and 205 Mason St. where he has secured two commodious stores which extend seventy feet in depth by forty in width. Twenty-six men are constantly employed in turning out one hundred and thirty-one different kinds of horse boots, and the light sulky harness which of late has come into such general use with all first-class drivers. At the present time Margaret S., Palo Alto and Regal Wilkes are being driven in harnesses made by this gentleman, the total weight of each set being only seven and a half pounds. Everything that appertains to the harness business can be found at Mr. McKerron's including all the latest styles of English riding saddles, from those used by Jockeys to the heavy weighted ones usually required for park service. Mr. McKerron will be pleased to receive a visit from horsemen who may come to San Francisco, and will esteem it a pleasure to show them over his new and elegant premises.

SALVATOR.

"Turn on, old Time."—Wallace.

I spent the months of March and April, 1858, in the city of New Orleans, and attended the Metairie races every day but one. On that night I came home to the St. Charles Hotel, where I found an immense crowd in the rotunda, some of whom said, "Isn't it wonderful?" while others said, "Well, I don't believe it." On inquiring the cause of these conflicting comments, I was told that Mr. Richard's Ten Broeck's bay filly Prioress (afterwards winner of the Cesarewitch in England) had won a mile race in 1:45. There was no end of dissenting comments on the performance. A few years later I saw Idlewild cover the same distance at Louisville in 1:44½, and there were just as many doubters then as at New Orleans on the previous occasion.

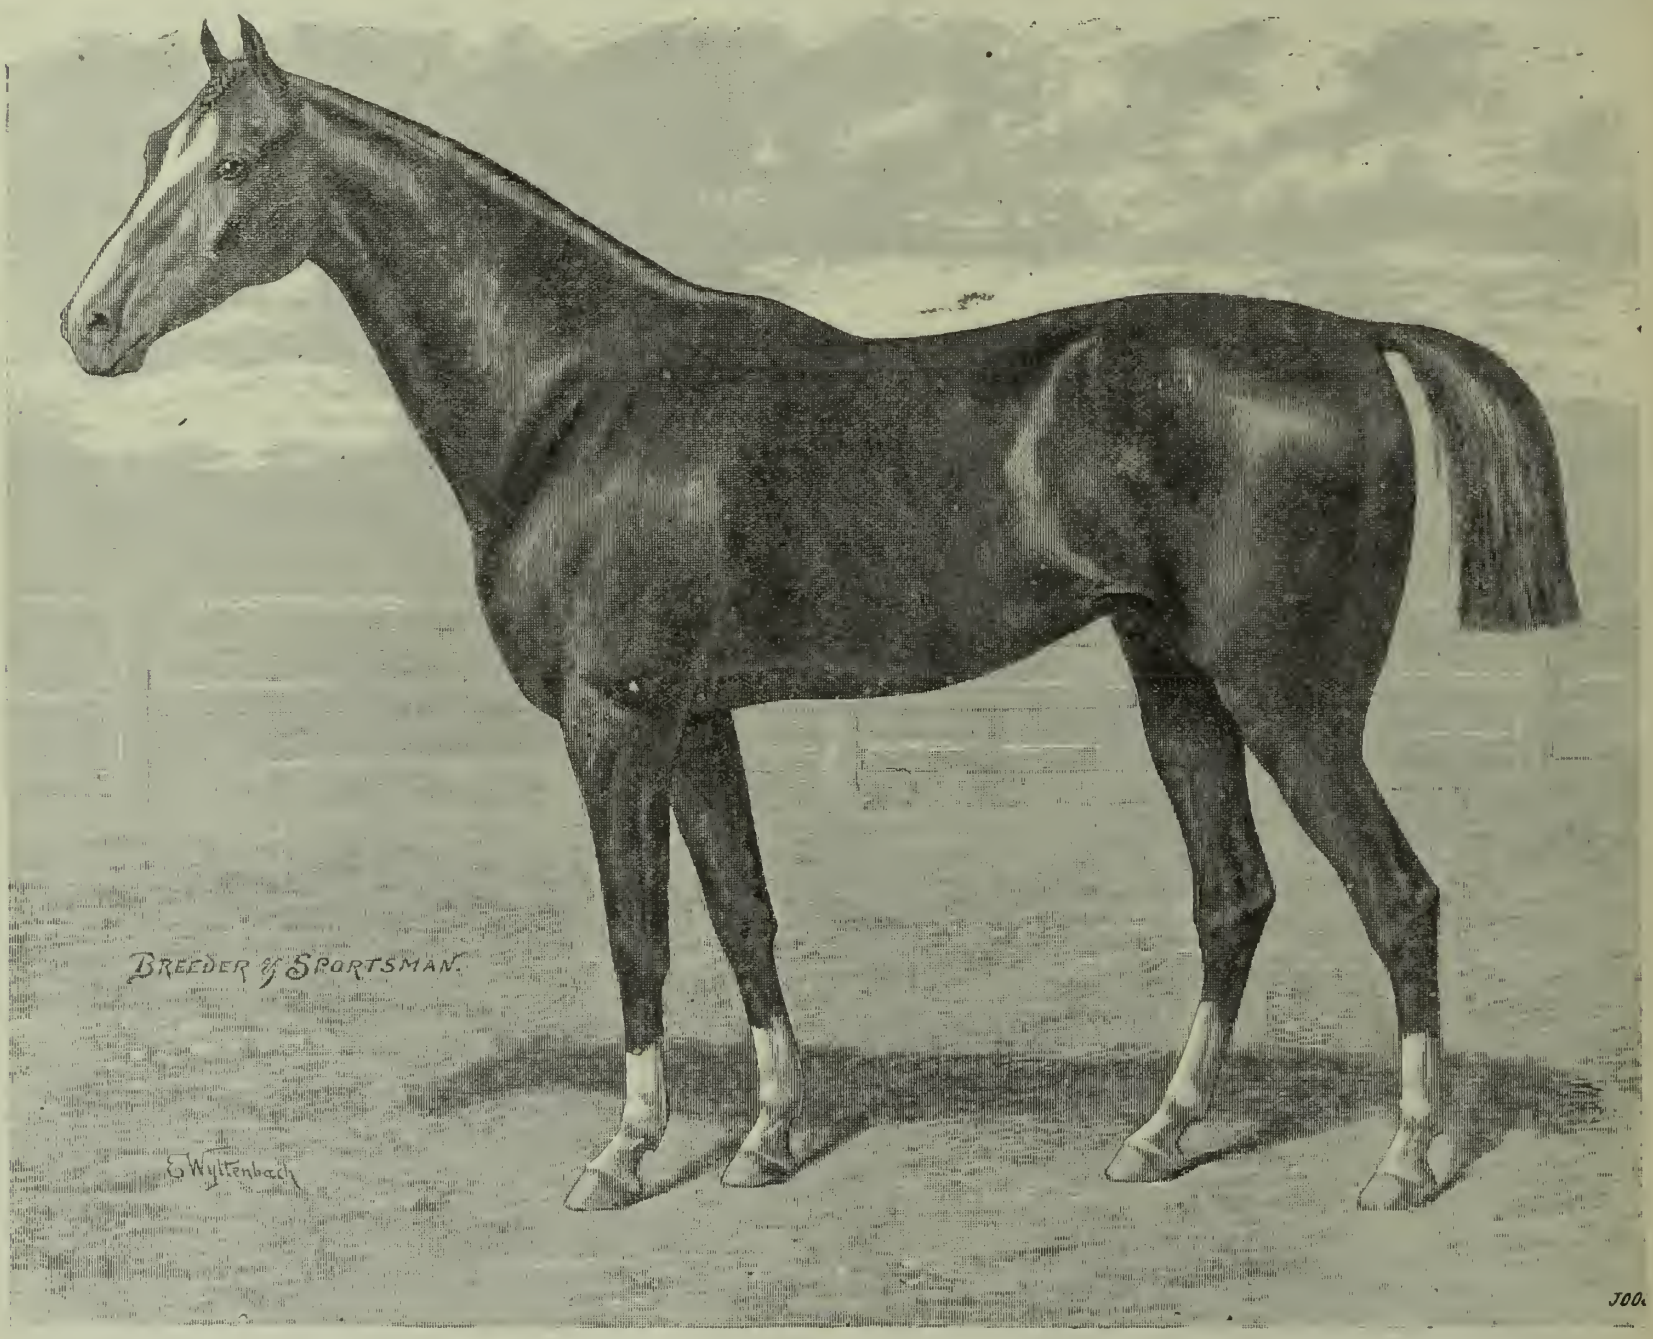
Then came the slow and sure whittling down of the mile record by Mammona, 1:44¼; Legal Tender, 1:44; Versailles, Herzog and Pompey Payne, all sons of Vandal, and each ran in 1:43½; Judge Curtis, 1:43; Alarm, 1:42½; and so along till Ten Broeck went out to "break the watch," and did so in 1:39¾.

Last year a mare called Maori did a mile in a race inside of 1:40, but had a very light weight on her. This year the fast mile horses were out in full force. Racine, a California bred colt from Palo Alto, drove the center in 1:39½, and then Ravaloe, one of the get of Joe Hooker, lowered it to 1:39¼. It was at this second demonstration that Mr. Haggin announced his intention of sending Salvator to beat the mile record.

On the morning of that day people were talking about the probabilities of Salvator's accomplishing the fact, and asked me what I thought about it. I never doubted what I heard about Australian performances—that Fryingpan did a mile in 1:38½ with 118lbs. up, for I knew that he won a mile race with 141 lbs. up in 1:42¾, beating Don Quixote, 108 lbs. and Malua, 119 lbs. Hence, when I was asked what I thought about the attempt, I said I thought he would do it in about 1:37. Everybody said I was crazy. They would bet even money against 1:38½, but not a man would bet me 60 to 20 against 1:37.

My reasons for these predictions were first, that he carried 31 pounds less than Fryingpan on his famous performance at Flemington; second, because the race was to be run upon a made track, instead of turf; third, because it was to be done on a straight course without a turn; fourth, because I knew Salvator was vastly improved over his Suburban form; and lastly, because the race was to be run with a flying start instead of a standing start like the Australian horses do it. Moreover, Salvator was to have the track all to himself, with nothing to interfere with him, while Fryingpan waited till the last available instant and then ran through a field of eleven horses. Had I been a bookmaker, knowing how Salvator had outstripped all such contemporary horses as Longstreet, Proctor Knott, Galen and Spokane, I should have selected 1:37½ as the mark and then laid odds on, rather than quit betting. But I am free to confess that 1:35½ rather surprised me. When I was a boy I was told that Bay Middleton did a mile (private trial) in 1:35, which I would now be quite willing to believe, although I cannot trace it to any authentic source.

A picture of Salvator lies before me, and in it I see a decided likeness to two famous Australian colts whose two-year-old performances were immense—Matador and Abercorn. Matador won, the only time they ever came together, but Abercorn was unquestionably the better horse. There is a resemblance, and a very striking one, between these famous cracks, and now Salvator makes it three-handed, save that he is a leggier horse than either of the two famous Australians.



Yet this goes for nothing. Kingston, Blink Bonny, Flying Dutchman and Priam, were all very leggy horses, and as for Bay Middleton (who could have run over and killed any two of them), he was absolutely a weed.

The outlines of Salvator are almost of the poetic order. The neck is strong, but so long as to preserve its symmetry. The head is large, and yet so exquisitely moulded as to appear small. The shoulder rakes beautifully backwards, the barrel is round and full. The stifles are heavy enough for a quarter-horse, but the muscles of the gaskins are so long strung out, that the capability of going a long distance is amply secured. Take him for all in all, he is the highest type of an American race-horse whose maternal veins are reinforced with the richest of all the choice life-currents of England. His breeding is exceptionally good, being by the English horse Prince Charlie, the "King of the T. Y. C." out of Salina by Lexington; 2d dam Lightsome by Glencoe; 3d dam Levity (dam of Ruric) by Trustee; and 4th dam the dam of Alaric by Tranby. To this family trace Vandal, Hindoo, Hanover, Luke Blackburn, George Kinney, and scores of other race-horses, the very pick of the American stud. That such a horse is certain to become the sire of great racers and many of them, is no vague conjecture. It is manifest destiny.

McDoel's Defeat at Buffalo.

There has been a good deal of chatter about the 2·22 race at Buffalo. The heat winners were McDoel, Mambrino Maid and Voucher. The other starters were Golden Rod, Yorktown Belle, Wonder and Frank B. This was a formidable field, says the Turf, Field and Farm. McDoel was the favorite and he won the first heat in 2:20¼. Mambrino Maid secured the second heat in 2.19¾ and the third heat in 2:21¼. Voucher stepped to the front in the fourth heat in 2:21¾, and was sent off badly in the fifth heat, won by Mambrino Maid in 2:21¾. It was a fighting race from first to last. Hickok drove McDoel, and when the tide was running against him, the judges asked him if he could not do better. He replied that he was doing the best he could with the horse, but would be glad to surrender the reins to any one who could win with him. Doble was then interviewed, and he explained that Hickok was driving at his request and for his money. Doble had asked Hickok to get behind McDoel because Ed Annan and Jack were engaged the same day, and he was very anxious to win with both. He argued that it would be unjust to compel him to drive three nerve-racking races the same afternoon, and added that he wanted to keep himself as fresh as possible for the Jack-Palo Alto race. The desire was earnest on the part of Doble to beat Rosalind Wilkes, Susie S. and Palo Alto with Jack, and the judges knew how the great reinsman, throwing his whole soul into a closely contested race, was likely to exhaust himself. Being assured by Doble that the driving of Hickok was perfectly satisfactory to him, the judges did not feel called upon to order a change. If we cannot believe a man like Budd Doble, who has spent a lifetime in building up a reputation for honesty, who can we believe? The snarlers who have sent libels broadcast, act as if they wished to create the impression that the only men in the world with the slightest pretentions to integrity are themselves. A lonely island in the sea, entirely out of touch with the throbbing heart of humanity, is the proper place for them. They are too sweet and pure for the practical walks of life.

The programme for the eleventh annual fair, to be held at Los Angeles on October 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18th, will appear in the next issue of the Breeder and Sportsman. The association offer $1,000 for the 2:19 class trotting and $800 for both the 2:23 and 2:28 class. The side-wheelers eligible to the 2:17 class October 1st can compete for a $600 purse. The principal running race is the three-quarter mile handicap, for a purse of $700.

THE FARM.

Blue-Grey Cattle.

Referring to eccentricities in cattle, Mr. Wm. Hausman in the Agricultural Gazette, London, England, says:

When we see a harlequin-spangled Shorthorn bull, or a red Shorthorn cow, with four white legs and a white stripe down her face, perhaps extending over one cheek, or of a very dirty sort of yellow—roan color, we are told, usually, that "a good beast is never of a bad color"—a fallacy which nobody would for one moment think of accepting if the words conveying it had not the ring of a proverb about them. We need not go far into many good herds to seek for a good beast of a bad color, nor, finding such a beast, need we think ourselves in any strait if we wish to do justice to its merit, whilst we frankly recognize the drawback of an unfortunate color. We must, in bare justice, say the animal is good, and in candor allow that its color is bad, thus virtually denying the proverb.

In certain districts, however, there is another piece of "proverbial philosophy," which is possibly founded on fact and observation—that is, that "a blue breast is never a bad one." In those parts of Scotland and the north of England where Shorthorn blood often mingles with that of a black Scotch breed—mostly within the present writer's knowledge, with that of either the West Highland or Polled Galloway—"blue" is often found, and is always popular, always pounced upon by buyers in market or fair. It is the common result of an even, or almost even, union of black and white, in broken mixture, as the yellow roan in the early Shorthorn coming from mixing of white and fallow red, the rich roan from the blending of dark red and white, and the deep, bloomy, ripe-plum roan, from the same union with a dash of black. Whether the excellence of "blue" cattle is merely fancied, whether there is any correlation of that color and good dairy and grazing properties, or whether the blue or blue-gray usually accompanies and betokens a happy blend of such breeds, it certainly has the credit of being the infallible sign of thorough usefulness.

If correlation be the true reason, why should not an attempt be made to multiply blue grays, or even to fix the color as the distinguishing color of a breed? It might be difficult to do so, no doubt; not less difficult than getting roan Shorthorns or gray Herefords to breed true to color, as there is in nature, whether in the wild or cultivated state, a tendency to let go the band that unites hostile powers. Thus, when the antagonistic colors black and white, or red and white, are mixed in broken blue-gray or roan, those antagonistic colors are inclined to separate and reappear as they were so that in the offspring of two blue-gray animals, two roan Shorthorns, or two gray Herefords reversion to the several component colors is very often found.

My suggestion, however, about the possibility of advantageously fixing the blue-gray color must not be regarded as much more than a play of fancy, or an aside thought, for I assume that breeds generally, and their colors, are brought out and established rather under the influence of converging conditions than by deliberate design or working up to results wholly foreseen and intended, although their improvement is doubtless always the result of premeditation. The wants of a district, in course of time—peace permitting—cause the development of the breed most suited to that district, by forcing the choice of the breeders collectively, and forcing it continuously in one direction. Thus we get the raw material of a distinct breed; and then there are always some breeders in advance of their fellows in taste and intelligence who designedly select for the finishing touches. The piece of marble is rough-hewn from the block by the common laborer, and again dressed to the required dimensions by hands without artistic skill, before the soulptor's genius, by delicate touches of the chisel, brings out the beauty of the human form and the silent expression of the human passion. The highest types of our live stock are indeed marvelous and beautiful results of design, patiently wrought out; but the designer who gave the finish had the raw material already at hand, and that raw material came to hand in the ordinary course of business, under the law of demand and supply.

Whether the "blue doddie" of the north, a smallish, short-legged, tidy, handy beast of compact form, nice springy flesh, and excellent dairy powers, or the usual medium-sized and horned blue-gray, equally useful for beef or milk, will either of them ever form a breed, both, assuredly, are at present, at least, local favorites as cross-bred cattle. They are found to be very healthy, hardy, profitable stock, and are examples of the abundant good material we have around us for future work. We hear people talk about the decline of breeds. Why, we could have a hundred new breeds, if we wanted them, out of the materials lying all around us, and a few years of concentration would secure constancy of type.

The Textile Record on the Wool Market.

The journal named says, in a review of the past month: All domestic wool markets have continued quiet. The support given to values by the expectation of tariff legislation has been perceptibly weakened by the delay of the McKinley bill in the Senate, and prices of most descriptions have receded 1 to 2 cents per pound. Manufacturers have adhered to their conservative method of buying only for actual wants, and while there has been a fair aggregate movement, the market at no time during the month has exhibited anything like general activity, such as is usually looked for in the early months of the clip year. Country markets have declined considerably from opening prices, and the movement of supplies to the seaboard has increased. Good assortments of nearly all descriptions are now available, but while mills generally are understood to be lightly stocked very few manufacturers are willing to anticipate requirements under existing conditions in the goods trade and pending a definite settlement of the tariff discussion. Foreign wool markets have advanced from the lowest figures established at the recent London auctions, but still average about 15 per cent. below the figures current at the close of last year. Values in this country in the interval have been so well sustained by the promised relief to the manufacturing industry by a revision of the tariff laws, that domestic markets as a rule are within 5 per cent. of the prices ruling a year ago. Conservative opinion looks for little improvement in values before the first of September, as the goods market must overcome the effect of recent heavy importations before it can rally from its present depression.

Texas Topics

CHANGED CONDITIONS.

It might be said that the Texas "cattle king" of a few years has since become the cattle pauper. This of course is an exaggeration, intended to set off, by antithesis, the changed condition of the cattle business. The time was when the cattlemen made the nearest approach of any individual in this free republican government to the qualities of king. In those days the grass was free, the range unlimited, the cattle were almost numberless and the prices were gorgeous. The cattle then were all "scrubs", which under the excitement of a boom inflation sold at $20 to $52 'round—cows, calves and unfatted steers. For reasons which it is profitless now to inquire into, these prices suddenly went to pieces and fell within two years to about $8, since which time they have climbed up a little, not reaching more than $10 to $12, where they now stand with slight fluctuations.

With the break in prices many cattlemen went to the wall and retired from the business, Others held up and have since been playing a fast and loose business after old methods, and with few exceptions have made no material gains. Still others perceived that the break was only the outward form of a genuine revolution in the cattle-raising industry, and prepared for the inevitable new order of things by introducing good blood into their herds and grading them up to better standards. As success begins to crown the efforts of the latter class, those who adhered to primitive methods have been forced to a realization of the fact that "blood tells", and they too are lately beginning to manifest an interest in pedigrees and performance records. So that Texas has now fairly entered upon the new era of cattle-raising—an era which means better cattle by means of intelligent breeding.

These changes have increased the total number of cattle, though scattering many of the larger herds into smaller but more thrifty hands. These smaller herds are maintained by improved systems of stock-farming, and the plow is now the companion of the cow. This creates, of necessity, a demand for more or less diversification, and as a result many formerly exclusive cattle raisesrs now have in addition to well fed herds of cattle, flocks of sheep and droves of hogs, all graded and in many instances pure bred, I have in mind two of the old time cattle kings who made a timely discovery of the drift of things, and changed their stock accordingly. One has since become a breeder of pure-bred Herefords, and the other in addition to a large herd of Holstein-Friesians has a magnificent stock of pure-bred, high-scoring Berkshire hogs, from which he is drawing a handsome income.

In addition to these changes among the oldtime cattlemen, the farmers over the State are raising a better class of stock, particularly of hogs and horses. Only the former have to do with this article. If one had visited Texas five years ago and should visit it again to-day, he would be surprised at the universal introduction of high-class swine. The best evidence that this is general, and that good results are following appears in the establishment of beef and pork packeries at Dallas and Fort Worth. In the former city where there are already extensive cotton and woolen mills, gin factories, buggy works and other manufacturing enterprises, is now in course of erection an extensive packing and refrigerating plant, occupying nine acres of ground, to be completed by October next, which will have a daily capacity of 250 beeves, 500 hogs, 300 sheep, 200 calves, and will also manufacture butterine and fertilizers. The Fort Worth packery is not so fully under way, but is an assured certainty. It must be perceived that moneyed men would not invest in these enterprises without reasonable prospects of success, and as the first element of success is the raw material it must appear that Texas is raising beef, mutton and pork. It is only a question of time when similar establishments will spring up in San Antonio, Houston and Galveston, in the Southern part of the State.

Now what does this mean? It means that the Texas farmer and stockman is to have a home market for every thing on foot. It means, further, that Northern breeders will find Texas in the next four years more than ever a profitable field to be worked. In this connection I would like to mention the breeds of swine which are most popular in Texas, but it will take enough space to warrant another letter.—C. Y. Nic, in Stockman and Farmer.

Salted Butter.

The query is raised whether a butter record will be of greater weight salted or unsalted. We learn says the Holstein-Friesian that actual experiments have been made with the view of answering this query. In one trial it was found that the addition of an ounce of salt to a pound of butter increased the weight of the record and the conclusion was drawn that butter thoroughly drained and worked before salting will increase in weight by the addition of salt. In other cases it was found that butter lost in weight by salting, and that the per cent. of loss depended on the degree with which it approached dryness through previous draining and working. In some of the trials the loss was large. In view of these facts ought there not to be uniformity of practice not only among Holstein-Friesian breeders but also among all breeders of dairy cattle who publicly report records? It seems to us that there can be no reliable comparison between the breeds or between individual cows without uniformity in draining, working and salting. And further we believe that such uniformity would settle all doubts and difficulties in the minds of candid men in regard to such records. We invite correspondence on this subject. We are proud of the fact that Holstein-Friesian breeders are not afraid of public trials or public discussions. Fellow Holstein-Friesian breeders we want your experience and observations in this matter. Do you find gain or loss in salting, and what practice in your opinion should be uniformly adopted? In our Rules for Advanced Registry we find the following requirements. "In each and every butter record reported, the butter shall be of good marketable quality, salted at not higher than one ounce of salt to a pound of butter, and worked free from any excess of water or buttermilk." Are these requirements explicit enough and strong enough? Would it involve any disadvantage to breeders to uniformly adopt them in practice. We understand that unsalted records have been received by this registry that were made previous to the adoption of the rules, and that thus a precedent was established for receiving unsalted records since made. Sould this practice be abandoned? We find our Jersey friends condemning our unsalted records. We would like to inquire of them what proportion of their records have been, in the language of Mr. Farlee in the Country Gentleman, "well worked, salted and thoroughly reworked" and also how much salt was used to a pound of butter.

They Swam the River.

How Walter Vail Brought His Cattle to California.

Walter L. Vail, a wealthy cattle man of Pima County, Arizona, recently leased the Warner ranch in San Diego County, which contains some of the finest grazing lands in Southern California, for the purpose of transferring some of his stock to this State, and entered into competition with the California stock raisers. After a careful consideration of the matter of the expense, the transfer of a large number of cattle by rail must necessarily entail, he came to the conclusion that as they had been driven over the Colorado desert, with more or less success, before the age of railroads in Arizona, such a scheme must be perfectly practicable now. Accordingly, he determined to test the question, and a few months ago started his brother Edward upon the trail for California with a large herd of cattle. The successful result of this drive, which was concluded several weeks ago conclusively demonstrates that cattle can now be driven across the Colorado desert with perfect safety and little risk of loss for lack of water and feed.

The route followed after leaving Tucson, was almost parallel with the track of the Southern Pacific railroad as far as Maricopa, where the cattle were watered at the railroad tanks. Thence to Gila Bend, a distance of fifty miles, the drive was made in two days and a night, the stock being entirely without water during that time. Following the Gila River the herd reached the Colorado River, and here the first difficulty occurred, as it was impossible to cross except by swimming. The crossing was finally accomplished, and the drive was made along the river for some twenty miles, thence to Willow Lake and across to New River, after which the rest of the distance was covered without trouble.

The success of this and other drives made by John Lang, have caused several of the leading stockmen of Arizona to make arrangements for the establishment of a permanent trail to this state. With this end in view, plans for the building of a ferry boat across the Colorado river are now under consideration and the money is already subscribed for it. This will, if carried out, be a severe blow to the railroads who have hitherto been able to maintain their high rates of freight on cattle, because stockmen were afraid to drive across the desert.

Cattle Trade of Canada.

Live-stock interests form an important item in Canadian agriculture. No exact figures of total numbers of the different classes of farm animals in the Dominion are at hand, but it was estimated that in 1888 the Dominion had 1,099,279 horses, and 3,791,908 cattle. The exportation of animals and other products make up a large feature of the foreign trade of the country. During the sixtsen years, 1874 to 1889, the exports of horses were 227,500 head, valued at $25,055 470; of cattle 1,062,898, with an aggregate value of $55,815,089; and of sheep 4,967,284, worth $17,649,260. This makes the aggregate value of the three classes of live stock sent abroad in sixteen years $98,520,749. In 1889 the exports of animals and their products the produce of Canada, amounting to 23,894,707, the principal items being:

Live animals	9,262,637
Cheese	8,915,684
Eggs	2,159,510
Hides, etc	462,361
All other	3,094,505
Total	23,894,707

The foreign cattle trade may be said to have had its inception in 1872, and up to 1880 this country was the leading market. In that year, however, Great Britain passed us in numbers purchased, and has since been the largest market. In connection with the live-stock trade of each country, the customs records bring out clearly the different character of the trade of each. Great Britain purchases beasts worth $89 per head, while the average value of those shipped to this country is only about $20. The first are high-grade beeves bought for slaughter, the latter common stock bought for the purpose of breeding upon, or for farm use. Commercial regulations of Great Britain are so arranged as to foster the trade in Canadian cattle, the regulation requiring that cattle shipped from the United States and European ports be slaughtered upon landing being suspended in the case of shipments from the Dominion. This privilege makes it possible to ship store cattle to be fattened after arrival, and has resulted in a steadily enlarging trade, from 69 head in 1874 to 60,000 in 1889. Sheep are exported in large numbers, the United States purchasing the larger part of the total shipments, though, as in the case of cattle and probably for the same reason, the value per head of those going to Great Britain is much greater. Cheese forms a large item in the exports of agricultural products, the sales of last year amounting to nearly $9,000,000, but the shipments of butter are insignificant and declining. Eggs are shipped almost entirely to the United States, and the aggregate value of the trade is large, exceeding $2,000,000 in 1889. Ontario furnishes the greater part of the supply.

The total value of animal and agricultural products exported in 1889 was $37,308,818, out of a total value of all domestic produce exported of $77,201,804. The proportion of agricultural exports is smaller than in this country, the cause being the large shipments of forest products.—United States Department of Agricultural Report.

Wet Pasture—Lame Sheep.

Just after a prolonged wet spell some lame sheep will often be noticed in the flock, says a writer in the American Sheep Breeder; these should be carefully examined, and i the cleft between the hoofs are found to be somewhat sore and irritated, foul, or the first stages of what may afterwards prove to be foot rot is present, it should be attended to; a few drops of a mixture of butter of antimony, two drops of muriatic acid and one ounce of white vitrol dropped in the sore cleft will dry up and remove the soreness. In warm, damp weather any member of the flock that appears uneasy, stamping and shifting position continually, should be examined for maggots, which if found, should be treated to a dose of turpentine, or some of the dips used for scabs or ticks will generally do the work. A continual supply of salt should be furnished in the salt trough, for if permitted to go without salt for a few days the tendency is for some of the flock to take too much with sometimes bad results. The flocks, if in good pastures, need but little care, but this little at the proper time.

Evolution of the Trotter.

The article upon this subject in another column affords food for reflection. It goes to prove what we have always contended—that, after the first cost of sire and dam, it costs no more to produce a good horse than a poor one. In one point the writer is not altogether clear—he does not establish in what year the first native California trotter crossed the 2:30 boundary, although he thinks it was in 1871.

Granting this to be true, it shows such a progress in nineteen years as no other State ever made. It is a great showing that 41 horses should have trotted in 2:20 or better; 84 more between 2:20 and 2:25; and 92 more between 2:25 and 2:30. The list is not complete—the author candidly acknowledges that—and the list would increase from 217 to 230 if carefully and diligently looked up. This requires a good deal more valuable time than our contributor has at his disposal.

The wealth added to the financial riches of this State by the sale of valuable trotters to residents of other States, as well as those exported to Australia and the Sandwich Islands, is at this date incalculable. Mr. Rose's last sale in New York alone approximated a quarter million dollars, while the sales of Senator Stanford and Messrs. Corbitt, Valensin, Salisbury and Haggin have repeatedly run up into six figures; and the wealth of any State depends chiefly upon the excess of its exports over its purchases from abroad.

We feel proud of the showing made by our contributor and only regret that he could not have made it complete enough to disarm criticism. Of course, in omitting some that he has done, he will be charged with carelessness, if not downright partiality. Nothing could be further from the truth. He was limited for time, and only began his work at a late hour Tuesday, The paper went to press on Thursday, and the only wonder is not that it was incomplete, but that its review contains as much valuable information as it does.

We feel proud of the exhibit while acknowledging its defects. The man who does the best within his power can certainly do no better.

A Great Auction Sale.

As will be seen by reference to the advertising columns, Peter C. Kellogg & Co., 107 John Street, New York, announces this week to our readers that he will dispose of a magnificent collection of trotting stallions, mares, fillies and colts at the Parkville Farm, Long Island, on September 29th and 30th. It was in 1886 when Jno. H. Shults, a very wealthy gentleman of Brooklyn, first made his appearance in the trotting world as a prominent buyer, when at the Glenview Stud dispersal sale he purchased the stallion Pancoast for $28,000; although comparatively speaking, unknown at that time among the trotting horse breeders of the country, since then he has made his presence felt at almost every prominent sale that has been held since. When Mr. Shults saw something that he fancied, there was no price that could stop him, and as a consequence he has collected together the best selected stock of broodmares that can be found on any farm in the country. The assertion can be made, and without fear of contradiction, that no such a collection of horses has ever been offered at public sale, as will be by Messrs. Kellogg & Co. on the date mentioned above. Nothing is being withheld, everything is being cleared out, from Pancoast and Cuyler, down to the weanlings of the present year. It is unnecessary to go into detail and mention any of the prominent horses which are catalogued in the advertisement, but it will amply repay perusal from all who are interested. If there be any Californians who feel that they would like to purchase some of the choice animals offered, Messrs, Kellogg & Co. will be only too pleased to forward catalogues immediately upon application.

Our Native Sons.

One of our oldest contributors favors us this week with a long dissertation upon the native-bred trotters of California. In it he goes back to the importation of David Hill from Vermont by Mr. Ansel Easton, and tells a great many interesting facts not known by the present generation.

But our ever-welcome contributor does not say anything about the native-bred boys of California, so we will have to say it ourselves, for we believe there is as much in good blood in the human race as in the breeding of quadrupeds. We saw nearly 8,000 of the "Native Sons" in that grand pageant, and not one of them the worse for drink or in anywise boisterously behaved. At the bottom of all this was good breeding.

Of course there was. The 8,000 youngsters who trampled these stony streets were the sons of as brave and manly a race of men as ever trampled down the solitude of a slumbering wilderness. All the heroism of private life that the great world could ever boast, was embodied in the gallant souls who sought these Western shores in the first ten years of California's existence as a State. They came alike from the bleak New England coast and the sunny vales of Kentucky and Tennessee; and alike from the dewy hop-fields of England, the vine-clad hills of France and Germany, and from the sterile shadows of the dark Norway pines. All these discordant elements have since blended into a harmonious unit, second to no people in the world for industry, courage, and the other components of a rich and vigorous manhood.

We are proud to pay this brief tribute to the worth and vigor of the generation that is to be our successors.

The liberties of a great State will never be jeopardized while they live. They will take up the great work where our tired hands have laid it down, and carry it to a successful conclusion, maintaiuing California's supremacy, and preserving the temple of Freedom without defiling the statue of Liberty. Well may we be proud of our "Native Sons of the Golden West.

A Racing Preposition.

Mr. Albert Joseph, the well known banker of Sandhurst, Victoria, has been in partnership with Joseph Thompson, the "leviathan bookmaker" of Melbourne for many years. In the course of a conversation in this office on Friday, Mr. Joseph said:

"If we come here to lay off and maintain a track we calculate to spend at least $300,000; and if we carry out my present ideas of it, we will be lucky to get off that cheap. We ask no pecuniary aid from anybody, as we have plenty money of our own. What we do ask is a hearty endorsement and co-operation of the leading breeders, as well as the wealthier classes whose presence and assistance goes so far to render racing successful. We shall merely maintain the track and give the prizes. We look for the formation of a club which will take cognizance of all races, govering with justice and punishing all offenders without fear or favor. If such an association be formed here it will lead to our having races every Saturday, so that people can see five good races and then get home by 6 o'clock to dinner. Twice a year we will give a grand meeting, with a cup race of $25,000 for a dash of two miles, or two and a quarter, as best suits the horse owners. As I said before, we don't ask anybody to take any stock in this concern—we will hold it all ourselves and will finish it as no other course in America is equipped. But we ask for the support and co-operation of the wealthy breeders. If sufficient inducements are offered me before I leave on the 20th, I shall come back in January and commence operations at once, so as to give races in October."

We have known Mr. Joseph for several years and know that he and Mr. Thompson can put half a million dollars such an enterprise and not feel embarrassed if it into does not pay from the very start.

Mr. Joseph has held public positions of honor and trust in the city of Saudhurst for many years. He was importuned to "stand" for an election as Mayor of that city, but he declined the proffered honor on account of private business. He is a man whose word is his bond, and the same may be said of his partner, Mr. Thompson. The gentlemen should not be suffered to make such a preposition without a response. They are deserving of substantial encouragement because they have means to carry out the good work, and are not afraid to take chances on it. Mr. Joseph will be found at the Occidental Hotel until the departure of the Australian steamer.

Standard Stakes.

The Breeders' Association will open Standard Stakes, to be closed the evening of each day and trotted on the followiug day, for horses that have never trotted in 2:30 or better. Entrance, $20, to accompany the nomination. Not less than three horses to enter and start in each race, three heats of a mile each. The winner of the first heat not to start in the second, and the winner of the second heat not to start in the third. Fifty per cent of the entrance to the winner of the fastest heat, provided that no money shall be paid to or be considered won by any horse which does not win a heat in 2:30 or better. The money in such case to go to the Association.

Nominations to these stakes to be made to the Secretary on or before seven o'clock of the evening before the race. Records made in these races are binding, valid and unimpeachable.

The P. C. Trotting Horse Breeders' Association.

On September 8th a meeting of the Directors of the Breeders' Association was held at their rooms, 313 Bush St. for the purpose of taking into consideration the offers that had been made by the various tracks for the purpose of securing the annual meeting of 1890. A majority of the Board were present, President White in the chair.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, bids were opened from Capt. N. T. Smith of the Bay District Association and A. R. Conkling, Secretary of the Solano and Napa Association. The first proposition read was from Capt. N. T. Smith in which he offered the use of the Bay District Track with certain privileges, the Association to pay for the same the sum of $1000. The one from the Napa Association was an offer to prepare and keep in condition the track and grounds during the race week, in addition to furnishing everything necessary for doing same, the Breeders' Association to have full use of stalls, grounds and track, together with all and every kind of privileges, also free use of water for stock, the cost to the Breeders' Association to be Nil; this last generous offer was accepted by the Association and on motion it was determined that the annual meeting of the Association for 1890 should be held at the Napa Fair Grounds. After this business had been attended to, Mr. White tendered his resignation as President, giving as a reason that on account of changes in his business he would be compelled to be away from the city a large portion of the time and would therefore be unable to attend to the duties of the office. After Vice-President Burke had taken the chair, on a motion that was duly seconded, Mr. White's resignation was accepted. Mr. Hatch placed in nomination F. L. Coombs, Esq. of Napa to fill the vacant office of President and Mr. Coombs was unanimously elected. On motion it was decided that the President and Vice-President take charge of the issuing of complimentary tickets. After some deliberation it was decided that the entrance fee at the gate should only be 50 cts. per capita. On motion a committee of three were appointed with full power to act and make arrangements for the coming race meeting; the President appointing for said committee, F. W. Loeber, F. B. Burke and Gilbert Tompkins.

On motion it was decided that the coming race meeting be held on the following dates inclusive, October 11th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, leaving the date of Monday, October 13th discretionary with the Executive Committee.

TUESDAY.

The concluding day of the Golden Gate Fair was not over well attended on account of the Native Sons' parade and the many other attractions, and equally also on account of the programme trot there being really only one race, the 2:40 nominatiou, which was readily won hy Silas Skinner. Before the first heat was trotted a protest was lodged against the gait of Silas Skiuner, and in the third heat, after finishing a length in front of Beaury Mc, the judges called it a dead heat between the two, giving ae their reason that he was set back twice the distance he gained. The decision was not particularly well received among horsemen, being as the late Dundreary said 'one of those things that no fellow can understand.' Surely the horse should have been first or last was the unanimous opinion of the spectatore including Mr. I. De Turk. The Gentleman'e Driving Association race attracted no attentiou from the general public. The judges were Dr. Lathom, C. S. Crittenden and W. Kent Timers, P. C, Pumyea, H. J. Aguew and L. J. Rose. The first race for the 2:40 clase had closed with 13 nominations, I De Turk's Silas Skinner, Undine Stahle's Beaury Mc, B C. Holly's Charles Derby, San Mateo Stock Farm's Una Wilkes and E. B. Gifford's Bob Mason were the starters. On the etreugth of hie easy win at Napa, Silas Skinner was made a hot favorite, selling for $40 to $18 for Beaury Mc and $20 for the field.

After scoring up three times the word was given. Skinuer broke before the turu, and Derby, who had the pole, set the pace round the turu, passing the quarter in 0:34¼, a length in front of Beaury Mc, four lengthe in advance of Mason just clear of Skiuner. Beaury Mcl collared Derby, and they passed the half in 1:10, head and head, with Skiuner five lengthe back, and Mason three lengths further behind, just clear of Una Wilkee. Derby broke on the turn, and Skiuner passed him, and thongh he skipped at the head of the stretch, he did not lose by it, and trotting very fast down the stretch, he caught Beaury at the drawgate and beat him out two lengths, Beaury Mc five lengths in front of Una Wilkes, a length and a half in front of Mason, with Charles Derby last. Time, 2:21. Mutuals paid $11.

Secoud heat—Pools sold rapidly at Skinner $110, Beanry Mc $11 and the field $16. When the word was given Skinner went out in front and set the pace so fast that Una Wilkes and Mason both broke on the turn, Mason going all to pieces. Meanwhile Skiuner kept going, passing the quarter in 0:34, with Beanry Mc three leugths back, and Una six lengths further behind. Skiuner kept going, paseing the half in 1:11, two leugths in front of Beanry Mc, ten lengths in advance of Una Wilkee, twelve lengthe ahead of Derby and ten lengths in front of Mason. The order was unchanged to the drawgate, when Beaury Mc closed up a little, hnt left his feet just before the wire, losing hy a leugth and a half, with Una Wilkes twelve leugths back and Derby a bad fourth, Masou barely inside the flag, Time, 2:20½. Mutuals paid $6 90.

Third heat—Pools sold slowly at $50 for Skiuner to $10 for the whole field. The word was giveu at the eixth time up, with Mason two lengths behiud. Derby broke at once, aud was pulled almost to a standstill before he caught, while Skinuer went on, passing the quarter a leugth and a half in front of Beaury Mc, seven lengths behiud was Una, three lengths in front of Mason, twenty lengths ahead of Derby. Skinuer broke, rnuning twenty yards, and catching, retained his lead, beiug at the half in 1:11¼, two lengths in front of Beaury Mc, who wae eight lengths ahead of Una. The order was unchauged all through; Skinner was up and down again handily a furloug from home, winning the heat hy a length, Beaury Mc eecond, fifteen lengthe in front of Una, with Masou close up to her aud Derby just inside. The judgee placed Beanry Mc aud Skinuer a dead heat. Time, 2:21¼. Mntuals paid $8 05 on the field and $3.35 on Skinner.

Fonrth heat—Poole sold slowly at $40 for Skiuner to $10 for the field. After about a dozen false starts the word was giveu, with Mason behiud. Beanry Mc was a length in front ou the tnrn, but Skiuner went to the fore before the quarter, and np the backstretch the black horee wae two lengthe iu frout, Beaury Mc, with Una Wilkes, three leugths hack, aud Maeon ten lengthe hehind and in front of Derby, who broke at the eud of three tnrlongs. The order was nnchauged all through. Skinner winuing cleverly hy a leugth and a half, Beaury Mc four lengths iu front of Una Wilkes, seven leugths in frout of Mason. Time, 2:24. Mntuals paid $8.45.

* Dead heat.

Between the heats of the first race Goldsmith drove Stamhoul two heats after giving him a half in 1:06¼. The big horse was not expected to equal his record as he has only heen worked for a short while, hut made a remarkably good showing. In the fast mile the stallion was sent away in good ehape, passing the qnarter in 0:34½, the half in 1:08½, three-quarters in 1:42½ aud quickened up down the stretch, hut tip-toeing at the drawgate Goldsmith took him back, finishing the mile in 2:17¼. The sscoud mile was done with remarkahle eveuuese, heing readily accomplished in 2:20, the half in 1:10. Mr. Rose, who was present, said that he thought it was an exceptionally good ehowing for his eretwhile pet, while the present owner, Mr. Hohart, was more than pleased.

The meeting wouud up with a race for members of the Oakland Gentlemen's Driving Association. Very little interest was taken in the event which was won by Charles Baah's Pet who took the first, third and fourth heats.

The Scale of Points.

BY HORACE M. DARLING, M. D.

An article on the scale of points now will not come amiss, as the interesting season of faire and eetablished fall meetings in the country approachee, hut the doubt assails me whether I am competent to elahorate the matter snccessfully and heneficially as it ought to be done for the novice, if for none others.

I presnme that in all sections of the land, as well as in my vicinity, the laity often inqnire of some one whom they expect to know more of applying the scale than others do, "How does the scale of points work? How do you apply it?"

The first answer I give is: Gentlemen, try it yourselves. One attempt for yourselves will give you an idea of what is required.

Thie effort calls their attention and study to the structnral points. and that they mnst acqnire a practical knowledge of the twenty or more anatomical strnctures that, nnited, constrnct the horse—body, head, legs, etc. This only can he accomplished hy practice of observation, investigation and comparison. Select this, that and as many animals ae yon have time to etndy—healthy horses, uneonnd horses, well hred horses and gradee—observe the entire structure, investigate the segregated parts and compare. Some pereons have quick sight, accurate feel and prompt, correct judgment; others require the eye and the haud to he educatsd and the senses developed; and this advanced education is possihle to most lovers of animals. It hae oftentimes surprised me to see how closely individuals—even non-professionals—have agreed in general results with their sizing marks and additions. Slight dsfects and advantages of one part escaping the eye aud haud of one, and slight advantages and defects of another part eecaping the eye and haud of the other, hut on consultation and comparison the eums total approximated.

Having acquired a definite knowledge of the structnral pointe, we look into the tout ensemble, the whole animal, standing, moving, at reet and in motion, the eymmetry, etyle and carriage. These require eyes aud seusss natural or educated. An eye and hand conversant only with the ox perceive heauty and merit in all fat horses eqnally and alike, hnt the practical eye and learned sense discern discriminate heauties and differential merits, en masse, aud then in detail, or in detail, then en masse.

The next answer is the most difficult and the least appreciated, although pedigree ie gradually enforcing its importance aud study. This is not inexplicable. Knowledge of pedigree ie an immeuse task, the hooks, writings and data are not generally distribnted, and onr laity are too apt to thiuk this learning not commensnrate with the expense, yet, honor to Wallace, et al, thie knowledge is gradually—too slowly—though enrely reaching aud impressing onr farmere and our business men and our every-day horsemen, so that oft, ten times as ofteu ae in yeare gone hy, is heard the inquiry: How ie yonr horse hred? what has he done? Exceptional, too, as it once was, now ie frequently inquired: What was the dam? Encouraging sigus of the etronghold which pedigree ie gaiuing in the equine interests of the day.

There are several thoronghly eetahlished siree aud well selected mares that most horsemen are pleased to give the highest marke. It is safe, in consideration of their autecedeute, snrroundings, aud post facts to give the highest merit aud a constaut unmber; their wealth has been fundamentally and positively proven; their poteucy and prepotency are developed in their offspring, and thus meritorioue families have heen segregated into leading familiee, the ramifications of whose blood linee mnet affect immediate and remote concnbinage. The pedigree of our leading siree and dams judiciously acquired, we can without any very wide divergence of opiuion and judgment locate the startiug points from which we will proceed, pro ratio, with our knowlenge to investigate and apply the ecale of pointe ou pedigree. A comprehensive recollection of the distinctive families, Hambletonians, Mambrino Chiefe, Clays, Stars, Pilot Jrs., Edwin Forrests, et al; a thorongh study of the individuality of the particular animal, his male and female relativee among the leading familles. Then an auslytical conception of the blood crossee; what hae been the result of snch and snch crossee; the advance or the deterioration, has the matiug been well or had. Experience here is teacher and a good one. Study np the Almoute, the Belmonts, the Onwards, the Kentucky Princes, ihe Princeps, et al, and the Dollys, the Neds, the Green Monntain Maids, the Black Floras, the Emeliues, et al. Also, further on the Nutwoods, Almont Jrs., Daniel Lamberts, Dr. Herrs, et al.

Thus is required the syuthetical application of all onr study and inquiry to the horse before ns; his history; the statne of his eire and dam aud ancestor; the crose from which hie blood results, and hie own form, size, bnild, color, gait, disposition, intelligence, health, action, compared with his relativee. Then comes performance, the 2:30 list being the object of spsed breediug. This is not of tantamonnt importance with our farmers, althongh they love to approach it. A horse may get into this list with scant performauces, or slovenly, or he may go in with eclat or in a hotly contested race. Two horses, with the same time below 2:30, would he justly marked differsnt, the lower they trot the higher the mark; the hetter, the freer, more etylish aud easy they go the higher the mark. Some with boots and weights, some without, some with artificial appliauces, and some in nature's habiliments, differing marke neceesarily represent the performauces, as justice requires to discriminate between our athletes, one with etimulue, the other without; one is himself aud something more, the other ie himself ouly.

Lastly, the character of the offspring mnet be investigated, and here it is nscessary to apply all the knowledge we have heretofore used. Are they healthy, well formed? Have they the characteristics of the familiee? In fact, are they worthy eone of worthy sires? Are they neat and tidy daughters of excellent mothers? Which side of the house marks the child? Do the best or worst points of the sire and dsm predominate? It is similar to the review of a book, it is a resume of all your study and learning of the auimal.

When we have acquired all this ready for use, the marks will follow with pretty certain fairuess aud jnstnese in our applying the scale of points.—Wallace's Monthly.

Our Los Angeles Letter.

The trotting horsemen have had plenty to talk about during the past week. The principal morsel of news was Walter Mahen'e retirement from Rosemeade. This event created a genuine surprise on all sides, ae Maben was regarded ae a life fixture at Rosemeade. He has grown up in the employ of L. J. Rose aud has won his spurs in many a gallantly fought battle down the line. Mahen stands to-day the peer of any driver in handling sultane and his success at Rosemeade has resulted in many prominent breedere all over the United States making flattering offers for his services. As the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN are doubtless aware, L. J. Rose hae gone into the thoroughbred business on a very extensive scale and hie trotting interests, owing to the last annual sale are not what they used to be. As I nnderstand it, Mr. Rose heard that Walter had received a big offer from an Eastern breeder and feeling that he conld not afford to pay that amount for the handling of his few colts and not wishing to stand in the road of Maben'e advancement he very magnanimously told Maben to accept any hetter position that might he offered him. There are other stories floating arouud in regard to Maben's qnitting Rosemeade, hut they are of a very contradictory nature.

Ae soon as it became generally known that Walter Maben had retired from Rosemeade, there was a big rnsh to secure his services. Among the local breeders who wantsd his services were Dr. K. D. Wiss and J. W. Robinson. The former gentleman offered him $300 a month for five years. Mr. Rohinson also made a most generone offer which has not yet been made public. An Eastern breeder was to the front with $400 a month. I labor nnder the impression that Walter Maben will remain in Southern California. Here it was where he first gained a national repntation by defeating Arab with Stamhoul and securing a mark of 2:15 for the great son of Snltan. Mr. Maben has been with L. J. Rose for many yeare and has always heen a faithful worker, aud probably no one appreciates thie fact more than the owner of Rosemeade. Harry Rose will hereafter look after the Rosemeade youngeters.

Another story has heen going the rounds for several days past. It is in effect that Dr. K. D. Wise and W. H. Wilson of Abdallah Park fame have formed a partnership to conduct a large breeding farm in Southern California. Dr. Wiee has an extensive ranch on the road to Rodondo and hae purchassd a number of broodmares in the past year. Mr. Wilson is to bring out several carloads of trottere from his Kentucky establishment. I met Dr. Wise and broached the snbject of the deal. While he did not affirm that snch was the case, yet he let fall enough to state that such a deal is contemplated. At all events, the Doctor'e anxiety to secure Maben shows the way the wind is blowing, especially when it is considered that Mr. Wilson owns Snltan and has been known to express the opinion that Maben conld handle them to better advantage than any driver in the land.

The Eleventh Annual Fair of the Sixth District Agricnltnral Assooiation takes place at Los Angeles Oct. 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th. The programme has just been issued and ie a very liberal one, conseiderng that it is the second meeting inside of ten weeks. The "Blue Ribbon" meeting was snch a enccess and gave snch universal satisfaction that a big entry list is confidently expected. The Secretary of the Association hae paid particular attention to the conditions of the running races so that all horses will have a fighting chance. The weights in the handicaps at the last meeting were adjusted with ench good judgment that horse owners will not hereafter hesitate to enter in handicap events in Los Angeles. The entries close for the entire programme with Secretary Benjamin on Oct. 1st.

QUARTER STRETCH GOSSIP.

Young Gard owns a snckling by Grinetead. He is swayhacked and will probably develop into the Tenny of the West one of these daye.

Messrs. Carpenter and McPherson of Chino were in the city the past week. Chino now boasts of a first-class track.

The Orange County Fair Association has heen organized. The directors appointed are S. Smith, S. M. Craddick, Geo. B. Bixby, R. J. Bln, W. K. Robinsou, N. H. Mitchell, J. E. Pleasance, Caeh Harney and Marcos Forster. Thie Association holds ite first fair on Oct. 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th. Entriee close September 26th.

Since writing the above Walter Maben hae eigned a five year contract with J. W. Robinson who owns Jud Wilkes by Red Wilkes; Redondo by Stamboul aud other good ones.

Since my last letter, L. J. Rose hae suffered a serions loss in the death of the yearling brother to Flambean. The old gentleman feels the loss very keenly as he very justly had great expectation for the youngster.

Ed Smith is jogging Radical and intends to enter him in the October meeting. Tom Reynolde is also training Stamboul Jr.

San Bernardino holds its initial Fair during the week beginning Oct. 20th.

BURLINGTONS vs. E. T. ALLENS.

Sunday, Sept. 7th, 1890, at San Francisco.

The reconstructed Burlington Route team under the management of Mr. Wm. Smith easily defeated Keller's tail enders last Sunday. The new team contains many "old familiar faces" who have done splendid service on other diamonds and if this first game is to be taken as an indication of their strength there is every reason for them to be termed "champion killers." Rohan and Wilds have been always considered a "prize battery" while the infield is strongly guarded at every point by Traynor, Strand, Kelly and Fitzgerald. The outfield is hardly as speedy as that of some of the other teams but they are all reliable stickers and as a whole the team can be sized up as sufficiently strong to give the leaders a hard battle. Lohman pitched for the Allens and did fairly. He was bunched on in the first and fifth, and these hits augmented by a combination of bases on balls and errors gave the Burlingtons four runs in each inning. McDonald pitched the last few innings and was effective. The Allens failed to do much with Rohan's delivery till the eight when they scored three runs, but it was then too late to do them any good. Billings and Wilds both handled their pitchers cleverly, although the Sports ran bases very freely on Wilds. The hitting of Kennedy, Mulvey, W. Kelly, Batchelder, Fitzgerald and Wilds was very strong. The infielding of both teams was somewhat ragged, while what few chances were offered the outfield were accepted in good style. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. Daily REPORTS.

Sunday, Sept. 7th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Marines had but little difficulty in defeating the Reports in last Sunday's game. Monet, who pitches winning ball against every team in the league, can do but little with the stalwart Marines, and generally Williams is put in against that team. But as Williams was unavoidably absent last Sunday, the "steady Vic" had to go in and was hit hard and often. His support was the poorest he ever received, the work in the outfield being especially wretched, while the infielders also produced many damaging errors. Besides hitting well, the Vallejoe, with the exception of Magnire, gave Baltz admirable support. Baltz's pitching was a feature, he being very steady and keeping the heavy hitting Reports down to five hits. Smith, Hughes, Murdock and Thompson put up brilliant ball in their positions. Wise, Bogle and Smith did very effective service at the bat. The score:

SANTA ROSA vs. WILL & FINCKS.

Sunday, Sept. 7th, at Santa Rosa.

The Santa Rosas, with their strongest nine of the season, did not have a hard battle in this game with Warren's pitched up team. Howell occupied the points for the visitors, and outside of the second inning pitched good ball. Dave Levy supported him in great style behind the bat. The remainder of the team put up a fairly good game, but the lead the Sonoma boys took in the second through their hitting, and a number of misplays, was too much for the Giants to overcome. The Santa Rosas put up a strong game at the bat and in the field, giving Callen, who was steady and effective, very encouraging support. Sullivan, who played left for the Fincks, did tremendous work at the bat, banging out a home run and double. Kelly, Pace and Cook also hit well. Besides the heavy stick work of Sullivan, the first base play of Longhran, Hulen's work at short, and the second base work of Deeney and Bradley were the most brilliant features. Billy King, formerly of the Burlingtons, umpired satisfactorily. The score.

The Native Son Games.

NATIONAL PARLOR vs. GOLDEN GATE PARLOR.

Monday (11 a. m), September 8th, 1890, at Central Park.

The Nationals, with some prominent amateurs in their team, were entirely too much for the Golden Gates, who were mostly composed of old timers and players who evidently had not played much base ball in their lives. Long started in to pitch for the Nationals, but was very wild, and in the fifth inning gave way to Commery, who succeeded in holding the Golden Gates down to four runs. Coleman did fairly well, being remarkably steady, but the Nationale found little difficulty in hitting him, and his team found less in fumbling everything that came their way, making nineteen errors, which were principally distributed among their infield. The hitting of Glocker was the principal feature of the contest, that player securing four safe hits and a sacrifice out of five times at bat. The following is the score:

RINCONS vs. PACIFICS.

Sunday (2 p. m.) Sept. 7th, 1890, at Central Park.

There was an increased attendance at the afternoon game, but the crowd hardly came up to expectations. The game was also an improvement on the morning one though the Pacifics were entirely too weak at all points too cope successfully with the Rincons who numbered several players of reputation in their team. Philpot pitched for them and had the Pacifice almost at his mercy but two hits being secured off him while he was rendered excellent support at the receiving end from "Mc Ginty" Carroll, the once famous catcher of the Pioneers. Bob Blakiston, Joe Finn, J. Carroll and Fitzler were all players of considerable note at some time or other and they experienced no difficulty whatever in hitting Durkin safely and hard. Blakiston was especially strong at the bat making four clean hits, while Finn and Carter followed with three each and Fitzler had a brace of doubles. Aside from the hard hitting and the clever battery work of the victors, the game was devoid of features. The score,

NATIONAL PARLOR vs. RINCON PARLOR.

Monday, Sept. 8th, 1890, at Central Park.

This game was the deciding one for the Championship Trophy—a handsome banner—and was easily won by the Nationals. Mahony, of the old Alcazars, pitched effective ball for the Nationals, striking out fifteen men. His support was splendid. The Rincons failed to hit at the proper time and put up a miserable fielding game. They changed the positions of their players several times in the game with disastrous effect. Finn pitched the first six innings for the Rincons, and with being hit hard his team made any number of costly fumbles. Jack and Frank Carroll twirled the latter part of the game, but they had little better success than their predecessor. The batting honors were carried off by Glocker, Creamer, Comary, Philpot and Carter, while Long, Broderick, Cresmer, Comary, Blakiston, Philpot and F. Carroll fielded their respective positions well. After the game the victors were trimphantly carried off to their headquarters in carriages. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

The Santa Rosas now lead the race.

Vallejo is coming to the front with a jump.

Pace is doing fine back stop work for the Santa Rosas.

Dave Levy, late of the Portlands, is catching great ball for the Fincks.

Sharp had an "off" day Sunday, but that often comes to the best of them.

The Fincks have sighed Frank Loughran, who adds great strength to the team.

It is said that Vallejo is negotiating for the services of Ben Hill, late of the Oaklands..

Billings and Strand, formerly catchers of the Giants, are now playing with the Allens and Burlingtons respectively.

Billy Kennedy severely sprained his ankle in last Sunday's game, which will prevent him playing for some time.

There are three Kellys playing in the Amateur League. George and Billy Kelly of the Burlingtons, and Tom Kelly of the Santa Rosas.

Harry Utt is no longer with the Santa Rosas, having had some disagreement with their players. He is now playing with the Fresno team.

Pat Sullivan is developing into a terrific sticker. With a few more men of his abilities in the Fincks, losing games will be a thing of the past with them.

Philpot plays a great second base. He is much better placed at that position than in the box, where he should only be used as an "emergency" man.

Jack Traynor, formerly of the Phœnix team of St. Marys College, and who has also played some games for the famous Alcazars, is now guarding first base for the Burlingtons.

McIntyre played with the Fincks last Sunday, having missed the boat when his team—the Reports—played. Of course Grace protested the game on this account, but it was unnecessary, as the Sonoma boys won hands down.

Buck Hughes, the second baseman of the Vallejos, has been playing a magnificent game of late. Nothing comes too speedy for this player who makes some wonderful pickups and throws, and has his head with him all the time. He is also a strong hitter, and as an "all rounder" is one of the best of Vallejo's many fine players.

The umpiring of Jim Cusick at the Native Sons games was excellent. On balls and strikes Jim was never at fault, while on base decisions but few exceptions could be taken to his rulings. Cusick showed himself to be an able and most impartial umpire, and if given an opportuniuy would prove himself vastly superior to a certain official now drawing good money from the California League.

The Will and Finck team now presents a very changed appearance having several new players in their ranks. No doubt the change will prove beneficial for there was certainly a lack of harmony existing among certain players in the old team caused by dissatisfaction with the management and as these players are now strengthening other teams, and their places are filled by equally as capable men, the chances are that better results will ensue. Billings and Strand were both good men, being fine catchers and outfielders and very strong batsman but as their differences with the management could not be amicably settled, it was the wisest course to accept their resignations and allow them to play with teams more congenial to them. Were it not for some recently disengaged professional talent the Fincks could illy afford to lose Strand and Billings but Dave Levy fills the backstop position excellently and will undoubtedly be kept there for the ramainder of the season. Farrell has also been signed and stationed at third base where he can do wonderful work. Then Warren through the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN secured that most clever pitcher and first baseman Frank Loughran, who adds great strength to the team. With Levy to do the backstop work and Howell and Loughran to pitch, great battery work ought to be accomplished. Loughran also plays a most efficient first base and could be used advantageously in that position. In our opinion Frank Delmas is much better fitted to play second base than first as his size greatly interferes with his getting wide thrown balls and being very active and sure of ground hits he would no doubt show up in fine form at the middle bag. Tillson is well placed at short a position in which he has made quite a reputation and Farrell is "in it" with any of them at third. This would be as strong an infield as can be secured anywhere and numbers two very fast base runners, while the poorest sticker in the quartet is way above the average. In regard to the outfield, which all season has appeared rather shaky, there are several good players Warren would do well to consider, and who should be selected not only for their fielding abilities, but for the hitting and base running qualifications as well. Among others who have favorably come under our notice and who being Class A players are eligible to positions in any amateur team in the country, might be mentioned Gene Forster, Deane and Lolly Dunn, late of the Burlingtons; Hammer and Mahoney of the old Alcazars, Donavin of the Greenhoods and Sullivan, Deeney, Commery and Coleman. With the infield and batteries as above mentioned, and an outfield composed of three of the best noted above, the Young Giants would, instead of rapidly declining, push their way back to the position they lost and even have a fair chance to win the championship.

ATHLETICS.

"Wind, Muscle, Condition."

Dr. Luther Gulick has made a special study of athletics, as they bear upon the general body politic, in lengthening the life of the citizen, increasing his producing capacity and tending to the improvement of the race in all attributes. Some of his views may most profitably be studied by our readers, and we particularly commend the following hints:

WIND.

"By the term 'wind' is meant the capacity of working without becoming distressed on account of the lack of breath. This does not depend on a large lung capacity as shown by the spirometer, for frequently men who can make only average, or even small records on this machine, have the greatest ability in this I am speaking of. In lack of breath, it does not seem possible to get enough air into the lungs; that, however, is not the real difficulty, for there is nothing to hinder us from breathing as deeply and frequently as we care to. Let us picture the internal operation of a man running rapidly. The large and powerful muscles of the legs are contracting with great force and frequency, steps are taken at the rate of four a second and each one six feet long; this would be running only at the rate of one hundred yards in twelve and a half seconds. This forces a large amount of blood up toward the heart; this organ almost immediately commences to work rapidly and throw the blood into the lungs. It is probable, however, that is not done at first as rapidly as the blood is brought by the veins from the muscles, so that the blood is backed up somewhat in the great veins. The capillaries in the lungs all dilate to accommodate the extra blood that is being thrown in by the heart. These capilliaries, as they dilate, take up room that is usually occupied by the air in the air-cells. Thus, at first, there is actually a little less room in the lungs for air than usual. The blood is commencing to go through the capillaries more rapidly than usual, and not quite so finely divided, as the capillaries are larger than usual. All these facts assist in the general condition of lack of oxygen. At first more blood is sent from the muscles to the heart than is sent from the heart to the muscles. After a varying length of time, depending on the vigor of the heart and lungs, these organs recover their balance. The temporary congestion of the lungs is relieved. The heart gets to working rapidly and forcibly enough to meet the need. The capillaries in the lungs are enabled to contract a little, so that the blood is more thoroughly oxygenated. And now second wind is established, and all goes well until the muscles are exhausted.

It will be noted that soon after commencing to run the legs seem to become exhausted, but when 'second wind' is secured they are quite fresh and good for a long stretch. This is due to the facts just mentioned. Until the heart and lungs become equal to this work, the legs will not have the kind and quantity of blood needed; thus the products of muscular work will accumulate in the muscle, and it will be tired. As soon as the blood supply is perfected these materials are washed away, and the sense of fatigue goes with them. 'Second wind,' then, is attained when heart and lung get to working evenly and regularly, oxygenating and regulating the blood supply. When either the heart or lungs or blood vessels are in poor shape this will be impossible, and the first thing to be done for such a person is to build up the weak part. How is a person to secure the ability to get this 'second wind' surely and quickly? Practice, practice, PRACTICE. This alone will strengthen the heart so that it can do the necessary work. It is possible for a man to so accustom himself to this work that he will hardly be conscious of any change from first to second wind, it seeming as if second wind came first. This indicates a fine condition of heart and lungs. It is well before any race to breathe deeply for a few minutes; this not merely removes the exhausted air from the lungs and fills them up with fresh air, which is in itself of great importance, but it stimulates the heart itself to commence working a little more rapidly and vigorously than before."

MUSCLE.

There are a great many ideas in regard to the subject of muscle, which, although seemingly at variance, are really in accord with each other, the difference in many cases being that different powers are referred to; thus what is referred to many times is the capacity of exerting great power for a little while, at other times it is the power of making a smaller series of exertions through a longer space of time. Some people have one kind of muscle to a marked degree, who have not the other.

There seem to be three elements that enter into the composition, or which determine muscular strength: nerve, muscular tissue and circulatory apparatus. I name them in the order of importance. Nerve is the battery that sends the discharge that occasions the contraction. No matter how strong a muscle is, it cannot contract strongly with a weak stimulation. A muscle comparatively weak, on the contrary, can make extremely powerful contractions under sufficiently powerful stimuls. So it is evident that a great deal depends on this nerve force. How are we to secure this capacity for sending a strong stimulus to the muscles? A man must be in good condition. This is of prime importance. I have spoken of this in a previous article, so will say no more here. He must give his whole attention to the matter. A man can never do his best work physically without giving every thought to it. Many times men make poor jumps because they are distracted by something the moment before the effort is to be made, so that as large a stimulus is not sent to the muscle as should have been. In order to accomplish this, he must also pay strict attention to 'habit,' of which I have already spoken. Few men can do their best except when comparatively fresh; one should approach a contest after two or three days or rest.

Muscular tissue refers to the muscle itself. To build up large and powerful muscles attention must be paid to exercise and food. In general it may be said that muscles are best trained by exercises similar to those for which they are being prepared. Thus, if one were training the muscles of the fingers that they might have more agility, it would be worse than useless to do so by giving the hand heavy weights to grasp and lift. This would make them strong, to be sure, but it would make them so slow that they would be almost useless for the purpose intended. It would be better to train them to some exercise that demanded agility and control as well as speed. A man could develope large muscles in the front of his legs by heavy lifting, but, although these are the very muscles that are used in jumping, if developed in that way they would not be of the greatest service. They would have the extremely bad habit of contracting slowly. In training for the five sports for which this series of articles is being written, it is best to develop the necessary muscle by careful systematic practice on the exercise itself, unless there is some specially weak spot in the individual which needs particular attention, besides the general practice. Generally, however, it will be found that those who take these five sports systematically will become fairly well developed all around. In the past there has been a great deal of dispute on the question of food. The following points, however, seem to be both clear and reasonable, and to bear the test of experience. Meat builds up the muscle but does not usually furnish energy. Sugars and fats furnish energy but do not build up muscle. Simple foods, including vegetables, no tobacco or wines, and regular habits, about sum up what is to be said on this side of the subject. If a man is too fat and the exercise does not reduce his weight as it should, he can go down rapidly by cutting down his supply of liquids, at the same time doing regular work that will make him sweat. Endurance depends in a large degree on the thoroughness and rapidity of the circulation;

CONDITION.

The object is not to discuss the scientific but the practical side of the most interesting subject. I shall speak of the training that is needed for an all-round championship contest. In some respects, then, the directions will differ from those which are given for specialists. The subject matter has been derived from actual experience, rather than from theory. The objects of training may be roughly classed, in order of importance, into four divisions: 1, condition; 2, habit; 3, muscle; 4, wind.

1. Condition. One of the greatest failings of trainers has been to work too rapidly, to over-train. Thus, when the one over-trained comes to the contest, while he may be strong and well developed, he finds that he has not that "snap" to put into his work that he needs, that each effort takes a greater amount of will, and that he has not the endurance that is necessary. The usual cause is over-work. A man in a contest who is a little under-trained will do better than the one who is equally over-trained. A good rule is "Follow your feelings." A man should not work so that he loses his "snap" the next day; he should not feel lame or exhausted. A moderate or small amount of work every day will put and keep a man in better shape than a good deal taken only once or twice a week.

Another error that beginners are apt to make is to endeavor by force of will to make up for this lack of condition. Day after day they will force themselves through the exercise that they have laid down for themselves, even though muscles are lame right along, and they feel quite unlike anything so vigorous as athletic work. In most instances this is a mistake. A man should feel like doing his work. Of course, I am now not referring to lazy persons; they would better find nice, comfortable, shady seats on the grand stand and criticise those who are doing the work and securing the benefits.

To do his best work a man does not want to do best work all around every day, by any means, strange as this may seem. He would only grow worse day by day if he attempted it. A man may overwork in two ways; by one day's work that is far too much for him, or by doing a little more every day than he should. In this way he does not recover from one over-work till another is added, and so on day by day. If a man is sore and lame, let him do very little real work till he feels himself again.

There are other causes for a lack of condition; excessive mental work, emotional strain, anxiety, will each prevent a man from getting into first class condition. Eating rich cakes, heavy custard pies and large amounts of fat, or irregular meals, loss of sleep, etc., etc, and each potent in the same direction. During training a man's sexual nature must be entirely restrained if he would do his best. A man cannot have sexual excitement, even though it be only mental, and at the same time be putting the most into his physique. I say, even though it be entirely in his mind. The physical results are not much less draining of power in this case than when the indulgence is more than mental. This is the product of experience, and is in accord with science.

For some days before the contest a man should do but very little work. He should eat, sleep and dress as usual, but instead of taking his exercise, let him do some walking and watch others work. A man should enter the contest feeling elastic, buoyant, strong, vigorous, light, clear-headed and courageous. He is then in good condition.

Olympic Club Entertainment.

A crowded house, a delightful entertainment and a well-pleased assemblage characterized the annual exhibition of the Olympic Athletic Club given on Wednesday evening of last week at the Grand Opera House.

President Richard P. Hammond Jr. was master of ceremonies, and in his introductory remarks just prior to the commencement of the evening's athletic programme referred to the fact that the Olympic Club has been the representative of amateur athletics on the coast for a period covering thirty years. He dwelt at some length upon the importance of physical education of the youth of the present age, and mentioned particularly the need of athletic training among girls and young ladies.

"It has been the aim of the Olympic Club," said the speaker, "to bring to each member a sense of his obligation to the world in general, that by the prolonging of his life he may better succeed in the sphere in which he has been placed. The practical study of athletics demonstrates the foolishness of excess of any kind. Athletics and dissolute habits are incompatible, and the true athlete, whether amateur or professional, despises the man whose weakness is immorality."

The athletic programme was under the direction of Leader John A. Hammersmith, and was well arranged and faithfully carried out. After an overture by the orchestra thirty members of the club, adult and juvenile, participated in artistic triple pyramid-ladder groupings. Following this exhibition, a quartet consisting of the Misses Collison and Messrs. T. S. Mitchell and William Toomy sang "Come, Pretty Fay," in such a charming manner as to call forth an encore. Professor William Smyth and ten of the most agile of the Olympics came next on the programme with interesting exercises on the horizontal bar.

The most exciting number on the programme, the fencing contests, followed the bar exercises. These were between Professor L. Tronchet and his pupil, C. A. Huime, with dueling rapiers; A. Liebes and L. Waterman, juveniles, with foils, and Professor Tronchet and his pupil, Miss A. Rathlot, with broad swords.

Among the participants in the boxing exhibition contests were Frank L. Cooley and J. L. Lafferty, and Robert McCord and Professor James J. Corbett. The latter made his first public appearance since his successful meeting with John Kilrain in Few Orleans. Alex and Willie Ensbury of the juvenile class gave acrobatic groupings very artistically, and then came the wrestling bouts of the evening between members of the juvenile class, followed by Eugene S. Van Court and F. A. Grimm, and D. S. McLeod and Professor George S. Miehling. There was an amusing bout between Jim Corbett and Professor Woolwich, aged 10 years.

A musical selection by the Mandolin Club and club swinging by members of the juvenile class, under the leadership of Professor William Smyth, was followed by exercises on parallel bars, in which E. A Kolb, G. C. Rouse, C. J. Schuster and other well-known athletes took part.

A feature of the evening's entertainment was a tug of war between teams from the juvenile class, captained by Eddie Winterburn and Fred Knight. Each team consisted of nine lads and weighed in the aggregate 600 pounds to the team The final number on the athletic programme was a realistic and laughable imitation of a knock-out by Ben Bogner, who stood before Prpfessor De Witt Van Court and gave an amusing but correct representation of how a professional pugilist is put to sleep in the ring.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

SAN FRANCISCO vs SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY SEPT. 5TH 1890, AT OAKLAND.

A small crowd saw this game, which the Friscos actually threw away. Their errors while few, were very costly, and poor base running also lost them runs at critical times. Hoffman was effective and steady throughout except in the fourth inning when three singles and two bases sent two men across the rubber. Lookabaugh pitched nice ball, but was bunched on lightly in the first, sixth and ninth, in all of which the Senators scored. The Sacramentos played an even and finished game, Reitz, Godar, Roberts and Stapleton putting up an excellent article of ball. The Friscos work was more streaked, Ebright's fielding being especially poor at times, which was in a measure redeemed by his good stick service. Levy, Goodenough and Harper also hit hard and opportunely. Donohue umpired excellently. The score.

STOCKTON vs OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 5TH, 1890 AT STOCKTON.

Kilroy pitched elegant ball, keeping the six hits made off him well separated. He received strong support from catcher Vogt and the remainder of the team. Carseys work was also good and although hit harder than Kilroy he was especially effective at critical times, no less than fourteen of the Stocktons being left on bases. The playing of the Colonels was wretched, Cantillion and O'Neill making several glaring errors. Although the Oaklands had a good lead, of four runs the Stocktons evened up matters in the fourth on a couple of hits, a sacrifice, and Cantillions and O'Neills wild throws. The Stocktons prevented Oakland from scoring after the third inning and by earning a run themselves in the eighth won the game. Armstrong, Lohman and Dooley hit very strongly. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, SEP. 6TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This was an intensely exciting game, the score being four to four at the end of the niuth. Both teams batted lightly, errors being principally responsible for the runs made. In the last half ot the tenth Stevens took his base on balls and Ebright got first on McHales error in missing the third strike. Levy then came up and made a slashing three bagger to deep center, scoring Stevens and Ebright and winning the game. The infield of the home team put up a good fielding game as did also Goodenough, Roberts, Daly, Godar and Reitz. The score:

STOCKTONS vs. OAKLANDS.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 6, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Gas City team lost this game through costly overthrows by Armstrong and Wilson. Young only pitched a fair game but received great support from Vogt who saved him a number of wild pitches and also made a wonderful catch of a most difficult foul. Cobb managed to keep the hits made off him well scattered except in the fourth and ninth innings, in each of which two runs were scored. He also kept the runners hugging the bases closely. Armstrong's hitting was a feature while Dungan, Lohman and C. and N. O'Neill hit heavily as well. Dooley, McDonald, Cantillion and Dungan played splendidly. Much dissatisfaction was expressed by both sides on McLaughlin's umpiring. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 7TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Senators' inability to touch Lookabaugh to any extent accounts for their defeat. But three hits were secured off him, and he only gave a single base on balls. His support was excellent from some of the Frisco team, and rather indifferent from others. Hoffman pitched fine ball, except in the first, when three hits were bunched off him, netting three runs and giving the Frisco a big lead. Reitz and Ebright both put up a marvelous game. The nimble second baseman accepted fourteen of fifteen chances, many of which were of a phenomenal order, and Ebright took nine of ten hard chances offersd. Shea's general work was also clever, and Hanley brought down a storm of applause by making a sensational catch of a long fly, which looked good for three bases. The score:

STOCKTON vs. OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 7TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

Captain Armstrong is entirely reeponsible for the loss of this game, for with two out and two men on bases in the first inning. Armstrong, in attempting to aeeiet Lohman out at first, made a bad overthrow, allowing one man to score and two hits following, gave Oakland three rune. Perrott pitched fairly, the Oaklands getting ten hits off him, while young Carsey was only found for six safe ehote. Dooley was especially effective when at the bat, making three hits for as many times up, including a home run. The infielding of the Stocktoos, with the exception of Armstrong, was very clever, as was also that of the Oaklands. Lohman'e catching was not up to his neual standard. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

MONDAY, SEPT. 7TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Although errors were few and hits abont even, this game —a posponed one—was dull and almost devoid of features. The runs hy both sides were made in the first three innings. After that nothing but a succession of goose eggs followed. In the fifth inning Shea smashed out a triple and scored on Hanley's single. In the third Shea and Hanley were on bases when Veach knocked out a three baser, and scoring himself on Stevens single. This made four runs for Frisco, three of which were earned. The Oaklands bunched on Coughlan in the second, scoring four runs on a base on balls, Lohman's triple, N. O'Neill's double and singles hy C. O'Neill and Cobb. Sweeney and Lohman tallied in the third for Oakland on the formers base on balls, Lohman's single and McDonald's safe shot. Shea, Lohman, C. O'Neill and McDonald hit well, while the general playing was good but not brilliant. The ecore:

STOKTON vs SACRAMENTO.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 9TH 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Stocktons suffered severely in this game through a single decision of umpire McLaughlin's. In the fourth inning with two men out and two balls called on the man at bat; Kilroy put another right across the plate, and although clearly a etrike, the umpire called "ball" giving the batter another chance, which he availed himself of and instead of the side being retired on the etrike, eight rune followed. Kilroy kicked bnt of course it was useless, and the Sacramentos had an easy victory. Harper pitched very effectively for the Senators, allowing but four hits while he and Kilroy divided honors evenly on etrike outs The fielding of Stapleton's men was brilliant, but two errors which fell to McHale, being made by the team. Roberts led the hitting having a single, double and triple to his credit, while Goodenough's one hit was a home run. Vogt caught Kilroy in splendid form. For the first time this season Reitz didn't have a single chance offered him at second, and his score presents a dismal row of ciphers. The score.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10TH, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Stocktons met a serious defeat in this game which was due to Youngs reckless pitching. The Friscos sized him up for eighteen safe hits, among which were a number of long shots, while he gave five men bases on balls and hit Speer, Stevens, Levy and Shea, the last named receiving a terrific blow on the head which laid him senseless for three minutes after which time he pluckily resumed playing. Conghlan was very steady and the ten hits made of him were well scattered, which lucky distribution, together with the splendid fielding work of the home team, kept the Stocktons down to three runs. Shea, Levy, Speer, Holliday and Stockwell made three hits each, Ebright had a triple and a double, and Hanley, Steveus and Yonng each had a couple of hits to their credit. Beside this heavy hitting, the game being eo one sided, was rendered featureless. The score:

Mr. E. J. Travis bas sold to F. S. Gorton, his one-balf interest in Pleasanton, a two-year-old own brother to Margaret S. We congratulate Mr. Gorton on tbe posession of a colt that is destined to becoms greatly in demand as a eire.

Tbe Ukiab Park Association will bold a racing meeting on October 2d, 3d and 4tb, for which an excellent speed programme bas been prepared. Running and trotting races fill up the bill, and a grand time is promised to all who attend.

No mention bas yet been made in any turf paper of tbe death of King David. Tbis three year old son of Kyrle-Daly —Trophy, died of lockjaw, the result of running a nail in his boof. He was the property of Steve Stroud, of Norwalk.

Secretary Neal, of tbe Pleasanton Stock Farm, bas gone to Portland, Ore., where he will receive Homsstake, 2:23, after his racs there to-day. Ed Lafferty has done wonderfully well with the gelding, and secured a low record for the son of Gibraltar.

Scott Quintou has bougbt, it is said for Marcus Daly, of Montana, the three-year-old filly Sappho, by Robert McGregor, dam by Clark Cbief. Tbis is said to be a very speedy filly, capable of beating 2:20, but she will not be trotted until next year.

Mr. Salisbury brought back witb him a roan filly two years old by Jay Bird, dam Sister Wilkes 2:22¾ by George Wilkes, and two bay fillies by Onward, both tbree years old. In the same car was a chestnut mare twelve years old, Sistsr to Blue Belle, by Blue Bull.

Theodore Winters purchased on Sept. 1 from Mrs Harriet Brown, Holmdel N. Both mares are in foal to Atilla. Mr. Winters' stock was shipped on the 2nd.

The church authorities have been overhauling tbe Rev. Mr. Varney for giving trotting exhibitions of his borses. The parson's reply is as courteous as it is cool and metbodical He says be did exhibit his horses but allowed no betting nor pool selling on tbe course. Up to date Mr. Varney has a good deal the best of it, and has our sincere wishes that be may overthrow his bigoted and intolerant accusers.

The Union Clubs of Berlin, Germany, representing the trotting interests of that country, bave appointed the Secretary of the National Trotting Association of America an Inspector or Censor to gnarantee by the certificate of the Association the identity, pedigree and record of all horses purcbased in this country and ebipped to Germany. Certificates will cover horses to be used for breeding, driving and trotting purposes.

Cbarlie Durfee is getting together a very formidable string for the Faire to be beld in Southern Californiia. He has McKinney, Leonor and Geronimo in training. By the way, McKinney's 2:29 is still the best record made by a tbree year old on tbe California circuit this year. McKinney is one of the most fashionably bred youngsters in those parts, being by Alcyone, one of the best sons of tbe celebrated George Wilkes.

On Friday, September 19th, Froomberg & Co. will sell at public auction at Mayfield, by order of A. P. This stock is tbe get of Elector, by Electioneer and Gen. Benton Jr. For catalogues and further particulare, inqnire of Froomberg & Co., 621 Mission Street, S. F.

On Wednesday morning of last week, the new stables lately erected by the Terre Haute Trotting Association, were burned to the ground. Tbe Palo Alto stable, now in the East, occupied tbese stalls when at Terre Haute, and tbey were full of horses at the time of tbe conflagration. Fortunately, a holocost was prevented hy tbe indefatigable and heroic work of the men at tbe grounds, but several of tbe workers were more or lees blistered while removing the animals from tbe burning buildings.

One of the brightest exchanges that comes to the table of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is the New York Spirit of the Times. It is ably conducted by E. A. Buck, a brilliant writer and an exceedingly good borseman. Last week he purchased from the Scoggan Bros. tbe fast filly Englieh Lady, cb. f. by Mieer, dam Bouny Lass, paying for ber the long price of $10,000. That Mr. Buck may win ber out in a speedy manner is my heart-felt wish.

Glenwood Park will be a scene of activity the week after the State Fair meeting, as the Nevada County Agricultural Association will bold their annual meeting. The president of tbe Board of Directors has visited many of the other meetings, and the assurance of liberal entries bave been made. Tbe Grass Valley and Nevada City folks turn out in large numbers to these fairs, and the miners of Nevada County always look forward with pleasure to what they term "the holidays." Those who attend sbould have a right royal time.

Frank Ehert who purcbased the Winters string of borses for $35,000, bas secured tbe services of Jimmy McLaughlin ae jockey for next season, that well known knigbt of the pig skin agreeing to reduce to 120 pounds. The horses will be be entered as from "the Hellgate Stable", and the colors are to be wbite jacket, scarlet cuffs, cap and star on breast and back.

At tbe recent Moonse Valley (Australia) meeting the Corinthian handicap for gentlemsn riders, was won hy Mr. C. J. Nichols on Danseuse, wbo carried 140 pounds, while thrse others carried less than 130. Danseuse was bred at Tocal by F. S. Reynolds and is by Goldsbrongh—Maritana by New Warrior, ber dam Msrmaid (g d of Melos) by Fisberman. Maritana ie tbe dam of Hon. L. J. Rose's bay mare Harmony, hy The Drummer, also bred by Mr. Reynolds. The distance was six furlongs.

The Flemington Steeplechase, two milss, run near Melbourne on the 19th of July, was won by Mr. S. Miller's h g Renmark, by Dante, out of Coolyrie hy Panic, her dam Seakale by imp. Ladykirk. Seakale is the dam of Senator Rose's bay mare Rose of California, now in foal to Dunlop, wbo won the Melbourne Cup of 1887, carrying 115 lbs and covering the two miles in 3:28¼, the best time evar made at that distance in a race betwesn horses. Tbere were 28 starters in Dunlop's year and tbe great Treuton was second witb the Australian Peer a good tbird.

Tbe popular botel of Napa for a long time bas heen tbe one conducted by W. J. McCollum. Wben tbis gentleman first went to Napa, he at once identified bimself with all popular movements, among otbers the Solano and Napa Agricultural Society. In sbort order be became one of the Directors, and proved a valuable member of the Board. A few days ago he sold ont his interest in the hotel, and bas now purchased the Pacific Ocean Honse at Santa Cruz, where he will reside in future. "Mac" is a splendid fellow, and has a bost of friends among the borsemen of California.

The imported bay mare Phœbe Marks, owned by Hon. L. J. Rose, and the only one of bis recent importation bred to Australian time, gave birth to a male foal last week and tbe Senator says it is a grand looking colt. Its sire is Othello hy The Barb (who won tbe Sydney Cup carrying 148 lbs.) out of Fairy Queen hy imp Peter Wilkins, brotber to Rose de Florence. Phœbe Marks is by the great two-miler Kingsborough out of Lady Audley (dam of Tbe Secret) by Little John (2). She is a blood bay mare nearly sixteen hands bigh and her foal is the same color. We suggest the name of Rosemeade for tbe new arrival, he beiug the first thoroughbred foal at tbat place.

There is a sensation promised at the Breedere' Mesting, wbich I deubt if even any of the Directors know anything at all about at present. Several very fast team records have been made in tbe past at various points tbrougbout tbe United States, and now a gentleman rssident of California tbinks he can bsat any time heretofore made. Now that the attention of the Breeders' Association has been called to the matter, it is probable tbat a purse or trophy will he offered for any one who may lower the pressnt team record. The pair of borses that tbe owner contemplates starting are far apart in point of record, and it will he a clever guesser who can name the two. Wben tbey start I want to have a trifle on the team as against time.

Tbe bay yearling colt hy Wildidle—imp Flirt by Hermit and tberefore an own brother to Flambeau, owned hy Senator Rose, died at that gentleman's farm last week after an illness of five weeks. Hs had as bad a case of distemper as ever a colt could bave and bad apparently recovered from it. The groom went into his stall at 11 o'clock at nigbt and gave him a bucket of water. The colt drank it down with a relish and appeared well enough for a convalescent. In tbe morning the groom looked in again and found him lying there dead. This loss, coming on that of the Sir Modred—Schoolgirl colt, would totally discourage a less plucky man than the master of Rosemeade. But the Senator is a good up-bill fighter and disowns any relationship with folks that ory over spilt milk.

Speaking of the new exp riment of single heat trotting races at Fleetwood, the New York Herald says:

The experiment of dash races is an assured success. Tbe initial attempt in this direction, on Wednesday last, indicatsd this, and tbe solid success yesterday made a certainty of the idea. The attendance was nearly double tbat of Wednesday, and tbe average New Yorker of sporting proclivity seemed satisfied that he could obtain as mucb for bis money, win or lose, hy speculating on tbe dash trots at Fleetwood as he could at any of the running tracks. Dscisions were equally as quick, and the contests tbemselves between the horses were quite as interesting as Sheepshead or Monmouth have ever afforded. The five races were so promptly disposed of and tbe facilities for going to and from the track were snch that tbe 2000 people who attended the races were able to return to their homes in time for a 6 o'clock dinner.

Theodore Winters' famous colt, El Rio Rey, in company with a number of mares which are to he nsed for hrood mares arrived at the Fair Grounds last week, says tbe St. Louie Republic, and will be given a rest a few days before they take up their long journey to California. Tbe other members of the etring, including Average, San Juan, Joe Courtney, Rey del Rey and a couple of other lesser ligbts were purchased by Frank Ehret, the wealthy New York brewer, for $35,000, wbo was under the impression tbat Rey del Rey's cbances for the Futurity Stakes at Monmouth were very promising. El Rio Rey is looking in eplendid torm, and his appearance would not indicate tbat be is suffering from any trouble. He will be placed in tbe stud upon his arrival at his home in California. Peach Blossom, one of the mares that arrived yesterday, is sick with peritonitis, and Trainer Evans, who has charge of the string, has small hopee for her recovery.

Wben Jack beat Palo Alto at Detroit we were treated to some wise and learned remarks on tbe subject of breeding the trotter, says the Live Stock Record. One writer in particular with a most portentione and obstretrical cast of countenance, a sure indicative that he was partnrient with sometbing prodigione, announced the fact tbat Jack was a much better stayer and bigber claes trotter than Palo Alto. But unfortunately Palo Alto has beaten Jack twice since his defeat at Detroit, and trotted a third beat in 2:13, the fastest heat ever trotted in a race. Sinoe Palo Alto's success some of the opponente of thoroughbred blood in tbe trotter are as dumb as oysters, wbile some others who bave committed themselves so far, when they allude to it are extremely reetless and impatient to draw the notice of Palo Alto's success to a close, and run all over the subject like a goose in the agonies of egg-laying, and try to escape the issue in bigh sounding phrases of instinct, hereditary, pure trotting blood, etc.

Vineland Stock Farm.

Having received many pressing invitations to visit the stock farm of F. W. Loeber of Vineland, Napa County, advantage was taken of a few leisnre hours last week and a visit paid to that gentleman's place. Mr. Loeber first came to Napa Valley in the year 1877, and, it can truthfully be said, was one of the very heet to advocate strongly the necessity of hreeding standard stock. There were but few in the neighborbood at the time who had paid any great amount of attention to tbe breeding problem so Mr. Loeber may be looked upon as one of the pioneere in that respect. After a time he purchased from Dr. Smith the well known stallion Naubuc 504 (full brother to Thomas Jefferson 2:23), who had brougbt him from the East; the Naubuc mares that are now in tbat neighborhood are commencing to be recognized as producers of speed, and already tbree of them bave produced, Cora C, 2:28½, Redwood 2:27, and Eva W 2:23½. There can be no question hut what in time all the mares by this horse will he eagerly sought after hy those who primarily want the blood of fillies that can produce trotters.

After a few years Mr. Loeber purchased a small vineyard wbich we are pleased to say at the present time contains no phylloxera and has ae fine a looking lot of vines as can be found in the entire Napa Valley. In addition to the vineyar ls. Mr. Loeber has one hundred and forty acrss of pasture land kept for the use of broodmares and young stock. This acreage is divided into many medium sized paddocks, all of which are seeded eitber with alfalfa or rye grass; there is not a single one of the small pastures but what contains running water, a river and a creek meandering through tbe farm. At this time of year fine green feed is observable in every one of tbe paddocks, and the stock looks in tbe very pink of condition.

After disposing of Naubuc, Mr. Loeber became the owner of Whippleton 1883 (sire of Homestake 2:16½, Lillie Stanley 2:17½, Cora C. 2:28½ and Flora B. 2:27) who has left in that neighborhood many of his get, all of which are either fast trotters or first class roadsters. In the course of time Mr. Loeber also secured Alcona 730, a magnificent chestnut of fine conformation, splsndid carriage and one which produces speed from all classes of mares. Alcona was bred by the late Gen. W. T. Withers of Kentucky, and was brought to this coast some years ago by the late Silas Skinner. He is by Almont 31 dam Queen Mary by Mambrino Chief II. Such blood combinations as this should surely prove of great value to tbose who may take advantage of the opportunity to secure foals hy this representative stallion. Although with but limited opportunities Alcona has already in tbe list Flora Belle, record 2:24 and also Alcona Jr. 2:30½ sire of Silas Skinner 2:20½). As is well known, Alcona is the sire of Prince Warwick, who is now back East in tbe Hickok string and who trotted a mile on the Detroit track prior to the opening of the meeting there in 2:18¼, but for some unaccountable reason has as yet failed to win a beat, notwithstanding he has been in all grades of company. Alcona is also the sire of Clay Duke, who last year made a record of 2:31½, and tbere is no doubt but what if he bad been bandled this year would bave reduced his record a great many seconds. These four are tbe only ones of the get of Alcona tbat bave been trained, wbicb should prove positively that tbis great son of Almont is going to leave an indelible mark as a speed producer, and that bsfore many years. The first colt that was dropped in this State by Alcona was Alcona Jr., tbe sire tben being only three years old. Alcona Jr. was hred to Fontana when only two years old, and tbe result of that union was the now celebrated horse, Silas Skinner, which goes to show the great power of this family to hreed on.

Mr. Loeber is also half owner with Mr. Crabb, in Grandissimo, a full brother to Grandee, 2:23½, being by Le Grande out of Norma by Arthurton; 2d dam Nourmahal, who is a full sister to A. W. Richmond. Owing to an attack of the epizootic, Grandissimo was not handled this year, but if sverytbing goes well, will doubtlessly receive a very low mark next eeason. In his three-year-old form, with scarcely any work, be has shown many quarters in 36 and 37 seconds; be has only been given one full mile out, and that be accomplished to cart in 2:40. With the blood lines of Grandissimo no one can find fault, and if be does not prove a very speedy trotter, it will be a surprise to everyone who knowe the horse.

Mr. Loeber also owns Alconeer, who is now in training at Mr. Crabb's private track, a distance of some tbree or four miles from Vineland. Some fifteen fine broodmares belong to Mr. Loeber, a large majority of which are etandard bred; they have been selected as much for individnality—that ie to say perfect conformation—as for pedigrees, tbe proprietor considering that perfect animals should he one of the requisites neceseary in eelecting broodmares for a breeding establishment. In looking over several of tbe tabulated pedigrees, we find in the second and third dams the blood of Eugene Casserly, General Taylor, Vick's Ethan Allen, and some of the popular thoroughbred strains such as Jack Hawkins, Billy Cheatbam, etc. Mr. Loeber is a believer in the thoroughbred croee, providing it is back two or three generations, feeling assured that it gives greater endnrance to tbe trotter when that blood is controlled by the trotting action of the later generations. In tbe close up strains we bnd among the mares the blood of Director, Milton Medium, Naubuc, Alcona, Whippleton, etc.

In addition to bis being a vineyardist and prominent stock breeder, Mr. Loeber has found time enough to associate himself witb the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, of which he is one of the Directors. He wae also for many years Preeident of the Sonoma and Napa Agricultural Association and is at present Vice-President of tbat Society. Mr. Loeber is also an ardent politician and works as hard for the snccees of his party as he does for any of tbe many business ventures in which he is engaged. He bas labored to inculcate the proper spirit in his neighbors towarde improving stock, and although a young man has the satisfaction of seeing standard bred horses springing up on all sidee of bim.

Time was taken to examine some Alcona fillies which were running loose in one of the paddocks, and it muet he confeesed that tbey are all of great promise. Tbie noted eire has the happy faculty of giving all his get great underpinnings and it does not look as though tbe hardest of work would break any of them down.

Mr. Loeber ie always pleased to show vieitors what there is at the Vineland Stock Farm, and we have no besitation in recommending any of our readers who may desire a pleasant day spent with agreeable company to visit his charming place in Napa county.

Hon. William Pearson wbo is immortalized in the South Continent as the owner of grand old Commotion, has won tbree races with his bandsome two-year-old filly Good Luck by Malua, whose two miles in 3:30¾ with 135 pounds in the saddle, is one of the world's heroic performances.

THE CALIFORNIA TROTTER.

His Evolution from Nothing in the Term of Thirty-two Years.

FROM SAN JOSE DAMSEL TO PALO ALTO.

A Record of which Any State in the Union might be Justly Proud—The Blending of Hambletonian and Clay Blood.

It was some time along in October 1858, that I met Dan Waldron, then one of the publishers of the California Spirit of the Times. He was as fat and jolly then as now and did not look so much younger as one might imagine. He asked me if I could report a race. I told him I had never done so but could make a good stagger at it.

"Well, we've got H— for an editor and a good writer he is in a general way but he knows nothing about reporting a race. So if you can go out and report that two year old trot for us to-morrow there is a steady job of work for you."

[Let me remark that "H", to whom he referred, is now a leading member of the San Francisco bar and has just brought off Miss Florence Blythe with flying colors. He showed his good sense by abandoning journalism very early in life.]

It was a little after twelve o'clock when I reached the old Pioneer track at Howard and 24th street, and went up stairs for a lunch of fried clams with George Trest. I can not remember all the incidents save that the exhibition was for a prize of $200, offered by Ansel I. Easton, long since dead, for the best of the get of his horse David Hill, a son of Vermont Black Hawk, purchased for him in 1855 by Benjamin F. Fish, who is still living. There were five two year olds shown, but I can only remember three of them—San Jose Damsel, ch f, bred and owned by Peter Quivey of San Jose; Iron Duke, gr o, by C. W. and E. V. Hathsway of this city; and Charley Case, ch c, owned by Henry D. Reynolds of Corte Madera, Marin County. The judges of the day I cannot recollect, but I am almost positive that Captain Mayhew was one of them. As the youngsters were very slightly trained, it was decided to let them trot singly. San Jose Damsel was the first to appear, and candor compels me to say that to the present day I have never seen a more blood-like animal in harness. Her dam was a thoroughbred mare by Red Bill (son of Medoc), called Lady Davis, and was brought to this State by Reason Jonrdan of Milpitas. Lady Davis afterwards produced to the cover of Belmont the noted horses Dashaway, Beanregard and Richmond, all distinguished winners of heat races. I cannot remember who drove the Damsel, but recollect I made her trial 3:19½, while the official time was given as 3:20. The following year the Damsel was bred to Vibbard's Stockbridge Chief, afterwards the property of Captain William Kohl. In 1861 she was sold to Edgar Mills, the Sacramento banker.

Iron Duke was the next to appear and, in order that he might be properly handled, his owners had secured the services of James Eoff for that purpose, in which I believe they made a mistake. Mr. Ben Fish was on the ground and had handled him ever since he was halter-broken; and I shall always think the colt would have done better with him than with Eoff. The Duke was a coarse looking colt about the head and neck, but his body was remarkably well rounded, and as for his legs and feet, they were simply perfection.

When Eoff got up behind the colt, he jogged him slowly the reverse way of the track for about three-fourths of a mile, and then turned back towards the wire. Down the stretch he opened the colt's pipes a little, intending to get him red hot, then cool him out and bring him up again for a brush at the record of the Damsel.

Instead of that, as he came under the wire the judges cried "Go!" Eoff evidently did not hear them, for he pulled the big colt up on reaching the turn, amid cries of "Go on!" "That was a go!" etc. Eoff had the colt almost in a walk when he made up his mind to go ahead, and yet, in spite of all that drawback, The Duke made the mile in 3:24. Judging by what he lost in the way I have described, I regarded his performance as the better of the two. Still the Damsel finished her trial with something to spare.

What horse was third I cannot now remember. Charley Case's trial was 3:28, and the judges placed him fourth. This was the beginning of a great and important industry, and laid the corner-stone of a great source of wealth to the State. In the following year the following trotting sires were brought out from the East: Comet, br h, by James H. Fish; Mystery, ch h, by F. S. Malone; John Nelson, ch h, by Ed M. Pitcher; State of Maine, by L. Grover; Corn Planter, by A. McClond, and Economy, by H. G. Wetmore. The previous importations were General Taylor in 1854; Werner's Rattler in 1857, and Stockbridge Chief early in 1858.

I do not recollect much about the events of 1860 save that San Jose Damsel won every three-year-old event for which she started. In these days there were no classified purses according to record, or she might have beaten a good many older horses. Iron Duke did not appear, if my memory serves me right, and I have nothing else to refer to, as all my books and papers collected prior to 1866 were destroyed by a fire at Red Bluff. At the period of which I speak, there was a perfect craze for the stock of the Vermont Black Hawks, for the Hambletonians were as yet unknown. Hence it was that both Iron Duke and Charley Case were kept so close at stud service that they were not trained. Again, there were no district fairs nor trotting circuits then as now. The State Fair was then on wheels, having been held at San Jose in 1856, Stockton in 1857 and Marysville in 1858. Hence I have no very clear recollections of 1859-60.

Some time in 1860, long after Princess had been taken back East to contend against Flora Temple, old Wash Montgomery and Frank Stevens got hold of a mare called Yolo Maid. She was claimed to be by a horse called Platt, which stood somewhere on Putah Creek. The California Stage Company was then almost omnipotent, and controlled every thing north of Sacramento. They matched this mare to go ten miles in harness against an old brown gelding called Jack Gambill, to wagon, for $500 a side, to trot on the old "Buck Harrigan" track near Sacramento. The horse won in something outside 31 minutes, being driven by O. Smiley. I mention this because the mare was always claimed to be a native trotter, and I never heard of her subsequently.

It was late in 1860 when I was spending a few days at Stockton, where I met Mr. George W. Trahern. In course of conversation, "Wash" told me of a wonderfully precocious trotting colt bred in his neighborhood. He was by Henry Trembly's thoroughbred horse Belshazzar, a son of the imported stallion of that name, and already noted as a sire of several second-rate gallopers. Mr. Trahern said he had been sold to a San Francisco merchant (George B. Gammans), and could trot all day. This horse was christened William H. Seward, and fully justified the great "beef baron's" estimate of his staying powers. His first race resulted in a defeat by Warren Lond's Powder in 2:44. In his next race he beat Geo. Ferguson's b g Confidence and two others in 2:46. Here was another new departure—the "dead line" of 2:50 had been crossed by a native son of our soil. Two months later he beat an old roan horse called Dick Vaux two-mile heats in a jog. It was evident he was a horse that would bear watching.

In 1861 a bay colt called Prince, got by Williamson's Belmont and owned by Mendenhall of Walnut Creek, trotted at Martinez in 2:52, but the track was said to be 85 yards short of a mile, so it was never put down as a record. In the same year another Belmont colt called Lafitte, owned by Col. E. S. Lathrop, trotted at the Pioneer course in 2:56, being three years old.

In 1862 this same colt Prince, since called Bell Alta, went out in a three-year-old stake at San Jose and distanced the field in 3:00½. In November of the same year, he met a more select field at the old "Willows" track out the Mission Dolores, and won the race in four heats. The fastest heat of the race, however, was won in 2:50 without a skip, by Mr. Josiah Sessions' gray filly Miss Vernon, by Easton's David Hill, out of old Lady Vernon (2:29), whom I must always regard the most valuable of all early trotting importations.

In 1862 63 I was out of newspaper business and kept but little run of the trotters. All I can recall now is the defeat of George M. Patchen Jr. at Stockton by Kentucky Hunter in 2:37 to skeleton wagons. Had the race been trotted according to the rules now in vogue, Patchen would have been given the race in straight heats for Hunter cantered about one-half of every mile in the race.

In 1864, the merit of California bred horses became a duly recognized fact. At the State Fair Oct. 17, Captain Hanford (first called Paddy Magee) by General Taylor, won the purse for stallion, beating Latham and distancing Geo. M. Patchen Jr., who won the first heat in 2:36¼. Captain Hanford subsequently got a record of 2:33¼ and was the sire of May Howard 2:24, one of the best campaigners of her day.

It was at the same fair that Seward, who had just then been sold to R. F. Morrow, established himself as the crack ten miler of the coast, if not of the entire continent. He had previously beaten Mr. Edward Barron's ch g Lowery Mathews (a capital two-miler by the way) five miles in 13:52, the last half mile of which was done in a jog. The closing day of the fair saw a purse of $600 offered for a ten mile race and the entries were Seward, Gentleman George and Fillmore, the latter horse having then the record 13:16 at five miles. The betting was Seward $100, Fillmore $60, and George $40 Seward took the lead in the second mile and kept it to the finish, beating George over 100 yards in 28:54. Fillmore broke a blood vessel in his nostrils and was withdrawn on the sixth mile. Seward won a ten mile race after this, also a race at two mile heats. He was taken sick at the old "White House" stables and died after a few hours illness.

In 1865 two phenomenal three year olds, came out in Sacramento, one of which was a tough looking brown gelding called John Conness by Werner's Rattler. He belonged to Christopher Green and beat a very clever chestnut gelding by John Nelson called April Fool, bred by Frank Malone. The latter horse was sold to Hon. William Watt and became the best five mile horse in the State. His best mile record was 2:40¼ driven by Dan Dennison. Conness subsequently reached a record of 2:30½. It was now evident that the California bred trotter had come to stay. In 1866 I did not see a race of any sort and cannot speak understandingly of any of the events of that year.

In 1867 I put in two days at the State Fair, and saw two Eastern-bred stallions beaten by a native horse—Ben Franklin, owned and driven by Isarel Lsrocque of San Mateo. The other contestants were Kentucky Hunter (Skenandoah) and Fly-by-Night, the latter of which had just returned from making a season in Oregon. The pools sold $50 for Hunter, $20 for Fly-by-Night and $7 for Franklin; and after Hunter won the first heat, you could get Franklin for $4 in pools of $100. Al Whipple must have won $2,500 that day, and, at his suggestion, I got some of the pie myself. Hunter won the first and third heats. Fly-by-Night the second, and the despised Franklin picked up the last three. The fastest heat was 2:37½, and Franklin's best time was 2:44½. Shortly afterwards Mr. Ben Fish matched another Black Hawk colt called George Allen to trot three miles out, and won it cleverly in 7:52 without any great effort.

In 1868 two phenomenal debutants came out for public honors. The first of these was a bay gelding owned by Capt. Ben Harris and driven by Sam Whitehead, whose pools are now as refreshing to race-goers as were the Pools of Siloam to the Hebrew pilgrims of old. This colt was by Signal (Singletary's Rattler), but who bred him or what his dam was I never heard. The other was Moulthrop, a magnificent iron gray gelding bred and owned by John Thompson, of Quincy, Plumas County. Pacific won two races at the Marysville Fair, getting a record of 2:32¾, but at Sacramento he was beaten by Regulator in 2:30¾. At the same meeting Moulthrop won a five-mile race, beating Columbia Maid, Algerine and Poorman in 13:53 without an effort. He was by McCracken's David Hill, and one of the grandest looking horses ever hitched up in America.

In 1869 I went up to Oregon, where I was engaged in river steamboating till 1872. During that time I did not see a San Francisco paper once a month, nor did I see a sporting paper at all. Hence I know nothing of what happened during those three years.

In 1872 I came down here and saw a great trot between two native bred mares, Lady Blanchard, 2:26¼, and Aurora, 2:27. The first was by Whipple's Hambletonian, out of the Mills filly, 2:48, by General Taylor. Aurora was by John Nelson, and a full sister to the dam of Albert W., 2:22. These mares were very evenly matched, and the races between them are noteworthy from the fact that Aurora was the first mare that ever wore the colors of that now world-famous breeder and turfman, Hon. Leland Stanford, in a public race. The next year, however, told a different story for that gentleman.

Up to 1873, the Californian trotters had shown a good deal of speed, considerable quality and no end of gameness, but the 2:20 mark was a barrier not yet invaded by native horse, mare or gelding. It was reserved for the brown gelding Occident, owned by Govenor Stanford, to be the first to knock the black out of that figure, which he did at the State Fair on the 17th day of September, 1873, making his mile in 2:16¾. The game little fellow is long since dead, but I certainly think he was the squarest trotter I ever saw in all my life. He was an unlucky horse, and his high temper caused him to lose several races he ought to have won.

Scarcely had the excitement concerning Occident died away when a new star arose upon the firmament. This was a big, sleepy-looking bay stallion, owned by a man named Helm, residing on the upper San Josquin. He was as constant a performer as can well be imagined, and finally got a record of 2:20½, besides beating Occident and the great Blackbird. He was by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., out of a road mare called Whisky Jane, and is now owned in Virginia. His name is Sam Purdy.

From 1874 to 1876 appeared a lot of good and reliable young native horses, averaging from 2:25 to 2:28, among which I mention Lou Whipple, Dan Voorhees, San Bruno, Governor Stanford, Tommy Gates, Prince Allen and St. Helena. Of these, the most noteworthy is little Tommy Gates, who trotted in 2:25 at four years old, and gave turf prophets a faint inkling of the great developments that were to come. Moreover, he was the exponent of a new strain of blood—The Moor—game as he was handsome and good as he was big. The Moor was by Clay Pilot, out of the great ten-mile mare Belle of Wabash, and it was no wonder, therefore, that he became the founder of a great and useful family of trotters. In addition to being a good performer and the sire of performers, he likewise afforded a vigorous outcross that could hardly be equalled for speed and gameness.

The mellow September days of 1880 saw something unprecedented in the annuals of trotting, for 2:27 was twice beaten by two-year-olds within a few weeks. Fred Crocker, by Electioneer, trotted a mile in 2:25¼, and only a few days later, Sweetheart, a daughter of Sultan (he by The Moor), did her mile in 2:26½. The same filly lowered her mark to 2:23¼, while Fred Crocker never again appeared on the turf. It was almost incredible that two-year-olds should have even equalled 2:30, much less beaten it.

By 1883 a thorough rivalry was organized between Governor Stanford and Hon. L. J. Rose, of Los Angeles. Sometimes the get of Electioneer were in the lead, and then Sultan would bring out some new favorite to explore the teens. One thing has been most commendable—no man ever heard either of these gentlemen decrying the other's stock. Had they been Lord George Bentinck and the Duke of Westminster, their conduct could not be better worth imitation. We subjoin a table of performances by the principal California-bred youngsters since 1883, giving their age at the time of the performance:

* Pacing record 2:17½.

In the above list I may have, without intention, omitted some good performers. My only apology for this lies in the fact that I have been out of the United States for ten months of the last twenty-six, and many clever performances have doubtless escaped my attention. In addition to what I have gained, I have been obliged to omit no less than eighty-four California-bred trotters with records between 2:25 and 2:30, for want of space.

In making Palo Alto the finishing post of this sketch, I have done so without prejudice. Both he and Stamboul have records of 2:12¼, but Palo Alto has the fastest heat in a race between horses. If I had any prejudice either way, it would be in favor of Stamboul, whose breeder I have found not only a liberal employer, but at all times a sincere and unselfish friend. Again, Stamboul is the larger and abowier horse, beside being the best strictly trotting-bred sire in the world.

It is a long period in the life of a man since that day I went out to chronicle the first display of California-bred trotters, but a very brief period in the history of a State. In the thirty-two years that have elapsed since 3:20 was made, Sunol has gone San Jose Damsel 1:09½ better for a mile. At that time New York was the leading State for breeding trotters. Now California has outstripped both New York and Kentucky. If such was not thought to be the case, why did the Eastern breeders purchase Alcazar, Anteeo, Antevolo, Bell Boy, Chimes, St. Bell, Ansel, Del Sur and Sultan?

Again, in 1862, Kentucky Chief, record 2:30 at three years old, was brought here as the trotting phenomenon of the continent, but died shortly after his arrival. It is safe to say that at least four California farms have since turned out stallions, which at that age could have beaten that performance at least five seconds. Either Stamboul, Palo Alto, Direct or Sable Wilkes could have done so and pulled a wagon. Kentucky Chief would now be regarded merely as a very respectable individual, if judgment rested only on performances.

It is not necessary at this day to enter into any special laudation of the Palo Alto farm. Its operations are so extensive, that the only matter of wonder is in regard to the enterprising spirit of its liberal founder. But California would be a great State in producing trotters if the Palo Alto ranch were blotted out of existence to-morrow. With less than one-twentieth part of his wealth, both Mr. Rose and Mr. Corbitt have nearly held the portly old war Governor level, and Mr. Salisbury and Count Valensin are not far behind. Mr. Corbitt has the best double record for sire and son in Guy Wilkes, 2:15, and Sable Wilkes, 2:18; and Mr. Salisbury holds the world's record for sire and daughter in Director, 2:17, and Margaret S., 2:12½. Mr. Rose was the most select breeder in America, and the prices realized at his sale last March attest it.

Another convincing proof of the great staying powers of California-bred horses, was the great five-heat race at Sacramento last year, won by Marcus Daly's four-year-old stallion Lord Byron, with the three-year-old Margaret S. in second place, and every heat plugged in below 2:20, and, what was more remarkable still, no horse in the all-aged division was capable of winning one heat in five. No other State in the Union can show, or has ever begun to show, a parallel to this race. There was no "tin-cup record" about this race. It was a bona fide contest, and the best one I ever heard of.

I know I am not as good a judge of a trotting horse as I ought to be for a man that is as good a driver, hence my estimates of certain performances may be faulty in the extreme, and the doctrinaires of the trotting track may find much to ridicule, and but little to commend, in this hastily written screed. But I have remembered the injunction of the Moor, "Nothing extenuate nor set down aught in malice;" and therefore conscious of a spirit of justice and rectitude, I hand my "copy" to the intelligent compositor, and feel that in this review of thirty two years' progress, I have at least been impartial enough to disarm carping critics and silence meddlesome scrutineers.

Our Tennessee Letter.

GALLATIN, TENN., Sept. 4, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—No season since the advent of racing into America, has been made more sensational by fast performances and other notable features than has the present one. From the day Brooklyn opened her gates in May and bade 20,000 people enter to witness the Brooklyn Handicap, sensational things have been ushered out upon the racing public daily, and there have been a few things of such a nature that seemed hard to believe. But they really happened, and have been recorded on the pages of turf history just as they were. On the trotting turf things have happened to make all the old veterans open their eyes with amazement. The first record has not been reached yet, but in these days of marvelous and wonderful feats who can foretell what will happen ere this reaches the printer's case? Sunol and Palo Alto are to do their best at Belmont Park, and we will see the record tremble. Both divisions have made old Father Time lie down and weep under their fast flying feet. They have handled him without gloves, and yet he sticks his head up to be surely clipped off next season and probably this fall.

The Louisville Fall meeting begins on the 16th. There are over a hundred horses in training there now, and with the Saratoga, West Side and Eastern contingents there should be over 500 horses on the grounds by the opening day. Ferguson will officiate as starter.

After Louisville's meeting comes Latonia, which begins September 27th and continues till October 18th.

Murphy's exhibition on Firenzi in the Monmouth Handicap, has probably been discussed throughout the country, and yet it is the topic of many conversations. Some censure Murphy and say he was drunk, while others say he was drugged. Well, do all people who know Issac well, known that he looks upon the wine that is red too often? If Isaac wasn't drunk when he made me very happy by letting Bill Letcher beat Riley out for the Latonia Derby, then I never saw a drunken man. He was dead drunk in that race, and many know it. I do not mean to say he was drunk when he so unmercifully yanked timid little Firenzi all over Monmouth's broad track, for it may be that he was not. Murphy is a man, and he has to undergo a hard process of wasting away that he may ride at a low weight, and after a hard effort to get down, just the least strong stimulant is enough to bring about vertigo or something like that, that may cause him to seem beastly drunk. But Murphy, even when drunk, can put up as good a finish as nine-tenths of the boys we see in the pig-skin nowadays. This is his last season in the saddle, as he has made it known that he will never again tax his physical powers by trying to get down to riding weight.

By the way, this reminds me that we are again to see Jimmy McLaughlin in the saddle. He will part company with Lorillard, and I am told will again ride for Dwyer. McLaughlin, I fear, will find it too big a task reducing. "Dare Devil" Fitzpatrick has several times been near death's door from this, and only his courage held him up. How many good jockeys—I mean first-class jockeys and not stable lads—have we in America to-day that could again ride if the weights were only raised, say five pounds? That they will have to be raised for this reason seems eminent, for in a few more seasons we will be totally unable to find any first class material. To-day scores of stable lads are to be seen upon the backs of crack horses in the big handicaps and two-year-old races. They do not know the first principle of jockeyship, and are only fit to trail in behind a good jockey and a very poor horse. Such are the conditions to-day, but these wiseacres who manipulate—or think they do—all these evils have nothing to say regarding them.

Some time since I made mention of the great difference in the value of two and three-year-old mares, and those for the older division. It will be seen that my predictions were just about right. Salvator, the greatest horse that has lived, has won five races this season worth $25,200 and Potomac, a two-year-old, has won two and about $75,000, and half a dozen mediocre three-year-olds have captured more than has the great champion. Take from Salvator's winning the amount won by his match race and race against time we have a total of $12,700. But this is a paltry sum for such a horse to win in three races, two of which, the Champion and Suburban, are expected and looked up as the two greatest races of the year. The net value of these two races were $10,900. To be sure that is enough to make an owner train a horse several years for. Do you wonder at owners retiring their well bred horses after their three-year-old form? There is more money in breeding to them than in training them.

Racing at Portland.

Some weeks ago a match race was arranged between several horse owners at Portland, Oregon, the conditions being that each one should stake $500, the forfeit being $100, the winner to take all the money including the gate receipts. Five entries were made, but owing to "a leg" Alta was withdrawn. The Oregonian says of the race: We are all Ham men now Kitty won a splendid victory yesterday—won it fairly on its merits and without a bauble. The Washingtonians, who went home "broke" on the eve of Alta's victory, are now in east and correspondingly jubilant over the clever work of their heroine, who is to day one of her foremost citizens. The losses yesterday, putting for the moment the owners out of the calculation, were men who could afford to lose and had really no right to expect to win. They were outsiders, and thought they knew everything. For weeks The Oregonian has been telling them that little could be expected of Antelope. Kitty and J. S. C. were pointed out as the likely winners, and proved to be the only two that were in the race. The big horse made many friends by his hard work. His Patchen head and Dexter gait behind were noted. He labors considerable, it is true, but will overcome that, as he is just out of the stud.

Susie disappointed many, and none more so than Captain Sorenson, who everybody wants to see win. Her sickness appears to have told upon her, and the distance was given her in the second heat for running. Mr. Glassford evidently saw he was in too fast company, for it was at his request, acquiesced in by the judges, that Sawyer went up behind the chestnut in the second heat.

The crowd that attended the race surpassed all expectations. It was equal to any first day ever held at City View. A remarkable number of fashionable people in carriages were out, showing that the fame of the great horses now here has taken firm hold on the people. It is a matter of deep significance that society is beginning to look with more favor on racing here. Nothing adds more to the zest of a day's racing than to have a grand stand crowded with the beauty, wealth and fashion of a great city. The prime course of this new movement is undoubtedly to be ascribed to the standing of the new association, in a financial and business way. Every one has confidence in the management, knowing it to be dead set against jobbery and determined to give comfortable accommodations.

First heat—Auction pools: Antelope $40, Susie S. $20, Kitty Ham $19, J. S. C, $10. Mutuals paid on Kitty Ham $18.75.

Susie S. drew the pole; then Antelope, Kitty and J. S. C. Mix's big stud delayed the scoring, which occupied several minutes. They were finally sent off, with Susie off her feet. She quickly recovered, however, and settled down to second place, Kitty taking the pole on the turn, Antelope going up badly and barely escaping being passed by J. S. C., who was making some very high jumps. At the quarter Kitty had increased her lead to three lengths, and kept her advantage to the finish. Susie went off her feet at the second turn, and let Antelope in to second place, J. S. C. to third. On the backstretch Hogoboom pressed J. S. C. up to a very pretty brush with Antelope, finally wresting second place from him. Susie was challenging J. S. C. at the three-quarters, but broke. She could only get it at the finish by half a length over J. S. C., Kitty coming on a slow trot a good three lengths ahead, Antelope fourth by three lengths.

Second heat—Auction pools: Kitty Ham $30, Antelope $10, Field $7. Mutuals paid on Kitty $10.25.

Sawyer was up behind Antelope, but fared little better, if any, than Glassford. It looked at first as though J. S. C. would make it hot for Kitty, but she set too fast a pace for him. Susie's breaking sent her back to fourth place. At the half, the order was Kitty by two lengths, Antelope by three, Susie by three. On the homestretch Antelope did some hard running, J. S. C. coming down very cleverly and finishing second two lengths behind Kitty, Susie distanced for running.

Third heat—Auction pools: Kitty Ham $20, Field $10. Mutuals paid on Kitty $8 60. Antelope was withdrawn on account of lameness. There was daylight between Kitty and J. S. C. when they were sent off, the mare having the advantage. The stud acted as though he wanted to win the heat, and crowded her up to the fastest quarter and half of the race, proving himself a stayer. He showed himself also to be a handy breaker, and though he went up two or three times, settled quickly to work and made a good race all the way around. He was second at the finish by a scarce length.

Vick's Ethan Allen Jr.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: I noticed a line in Grim's Gossip" several weeks ago asking for the history of "Vick's Ethan Allen." As I have been recently gathering what information I could obtain in regard to this horse. I will inclose it for publication.

The following is a letter from Judge W. E. Greene of Oakland who has made extensive search for the history of "Vick's Ethan Allen."

OAKLAND, Cal, Aug. 2, 1890.

FRED LOEBER, ESQ:—My Dear Sir: The late J. C. Morrison, liquor merchant of San Francisco, Cal., purchased Ethan Allen, Jr., of Mr. Vick and subsequently, to wit: in the latter part of the year of 1868 went about it to get his pedigree certified to, and among other things procured an affidavit of O. S. Roe sworn to Dec. 24, 1868, in which he says Ethan Allen Jr. was foaled about the year 1859; an affidavit of P. W. Fleming dated Dec. 22, 1868, in which he says that J. W. Holcomb in the year of '59' or 60 employed him to bring, and he did "bring the horse Ethan Allen, Jr, who was a colt, from Ticonderaga, Essex County, New York, to New York City, and put him in Horace Jones' Stable, Mercer St., New York City, according to the orders of Mr. Vick and delivered him to Mr. Vick there who took him to California." Also a statement of A. S. Beatty (one of our old Californians) which is in words following to wit: "I was in New York in 1860, saw the colt Ethan Allen Jr, at Horace Jones' stable waiting to be transported to California by purchaser, Mr. Vick of Napa Valley and know the pedigree to be correct." Dated San Jose, Cal., Dec. 24, 1868. Subsequently, when I was looking up the breeding of Ethan Allen Jr. I addressed a letter to Mr Beatty who was then living at Mayfield, Cal., and in his reply he says: "I was not present when Vick bought the horse but was at a stable in New York City when the colt came there. At that time he was two years old. That was the spring of 1860." In 1869 John Stewart stood the horse, then the property of John C. Morrison, at the three mile house on the San Leandro road in this county.

I have a letter from A. F. Grigsby of Napa in which he says: "Vick went East with me in 1859 and bought the horse Ethan Allen Jr. and imported him in 1860, remained here or hereabouts for five or six years, until he and his wife parted. She left him and went off with a man of this neighborhood, by name, John Hart. Since then I have not heard from her Vick died about 1867 or 1868 in San Francisco from effects of hard drinking."

I have a letter from Jesse Grigsby of Napa, in which, referring to the dam of Lynwood, (a Nutwood stallion which I lately owned which by him was called Vick but afterwards called 'Queen' and again Hattie Morrison). "The dam of Vick was foaled in Napa Co. and I purchased her from Jesse Hasting when a filly, paying him $350 for her. I bred her to Joe Vick's horse Ethan Allen. Mr. Vick was standing Ethan Allen at that time in Napa county, and being anxious to have him serve a few extra good mares he offered me his services without charge. When the colt was dropped I named her Vick in honor of the owner of her sire. Vick was foaled in the spring of 1862. As soon as she was well broken I gave her to my daughter Mrs. R. N. Steere. I think this was in 1866. Mr. Steere subsequently sold her to John C. Morrison, a liquor dealer on Front St, San Francisco, who afterwards became the owner of her sire Ethan Allen The underscoring is mine. Mr. Grigsby seems certain about the date of the foaling of Vick, 1862. Without doubt this is correct, but I am impressed that Mr. Steere sold Vick earlier than 1866. I have been informed by a man who was with Morrison as a sort of horseman whose name I cannot now recall, that Morrison bought Vick at three years old and paid $700 for her, and this same man told me he negotiated the sale of Ethan Allen Jr. from Vick to Morrison.

Mr. Morrison sold him about 1870 to Wm. Hamilton (I think it was William) who some years later sold him to Judge Blanchard of Placerville He sold him to a man by the name of Brewster, whose property he was when he died, which was about three years ago. He died on a ranch about six miles from Placerville. The old horse could trot a mile in three minutes only a year or two before his death. So Brewster and Blanchard both told me.

I think his best record was 2:46¾, made in Santa Cruz July 4th, 1871, while in the hands of Elias Williams, a brother of Pete Williams, the owner of Silver Bow. Mr. Elias Williams (sometimes called Doc Williams, I believe) so wrote me and also wrote me that he gave him a trial in 2:37 on one occasion. His feet were bad from want of care in his early career, or he would have made quite a mark, so I have been informed. Williams had him in charge for Hamilton. From the foregoing it would appear that the horse was foaled in 1858, was brought out here in 1860 (spring), that she served Grigsby's mare in 1861, which was probably his first work in the stud; that he remained Vick's property till about 1867 or 1868, and then left Napa County for good, made one season while Morrison owned him, possibly two seasons, and then went to San Jose and thence to Placerville.

I once in a great while see the man who negotiated the sale from Vick to Morrison, and when I next see him I will interview him, and if I get anything will give it to you. It is possible Mrs. Steere will remember definitely when she sold Vick to Morrison, for she got $700, as I am informed, and she was very warmly attached to the filly.

Very Truly Yours, W. E. GREENE.

I have interviewed some of the old residents of St. Helena, Napa Co. and consider the following statements quite reliable. John Potter; a retired blacksmith who was in business here when Vick came here, and was closely associated with Jos. Vick for several years, says:

Vick bought the colt "Vick's Ethan Allen" to California in the summer or fall of 1860; the colt was then a yearling past, he took him to Marysville and did not bring him to Napa Co. until 1864, when he made his first season at St. Helena and Napa. In 1866 or 1867 Vick traded the horse to the late J. C. Morrison, liquor merchant of San Francisco, the consideration being for Morrison to furnish the Hotel Vick, which had just been completed at St. Helena and a certain amount of whisky to furnish the bar. Potter says 1867 was the last season the horse made at St Helena. He thinks Morrison sent the horse back to Napa to make the season of 1868 but was not sure.

Ed. Kenyon of St. Helena says: Am sure Vick bought "Ethan Allen" to St. Helena in 1864. I took care of him during the season 1866. Vick sold him to J. C. Morrison after the season of 1867.

W. P. Grigsby of St. Helena, son of Jesse Grigsby, mentioned in Judge Greene's letter, says: "Vick's Ethan Allen stood at my father's place in 1866-67 and possibly sooner. He was sold to J. C. Morrison of San Francisco after the season of 1867 and taken to San Francisco, and was sent back to Napa and made the season of 1868 at Napa and at father's place. He did not go to St. Helena that season. I took care of the horse part of the season and know just where he went.

It would appear that the foregoing statements, from three gentlemen who were associated with Mr. Vick or the horse Ethan Allen, proves conclusively the following:

Ethan Allen was brought to Marysville in 1860 and kept on Vicks farm until 1864, when he brought him to St. Helena. He made the seasons of 1864, 65, 66 and 67 at St. Helena and Napa, and the season of 1868 at Napa, and then left Napa County for good. The youngest of any of his produce from mares in the vicinity of St. Helena would be 22 years, and from Napa and vicinity 21 years old. There are parties in Napa County who have mares by Vick's Ethan Allen, Jr., a son of Vick's Ethan Allen, and many honestly believe them to be by the old horse. This comes from the fact that Vick's Ethan Allen was known when here as Ethan Allen Jr. The history of the young horse as given to me by John Potter and Ed. Kenyon is about as follows: Jos. Vick bought a good looking large roan mare from Jerre Porter, who had a place about Calistoga in 1865 or 66. I cannot find any one who knows anything of this mares breeding; all the parties who knew the horse say her breeding was unknown. This mare foaled a horse colt, bay, with four white feet and white face by Vick's Ethan Allen, 1867, and when he grew up was known as Vick's Ethan Allen Jr. This colt made several seasons in St. Helena, was sold to Van Arsdale of Pope Valley, Napa County, and was afterward sold and left the county. There are some mares sired by the young horse now used as blood mares in Napa County, and the owners suppose them to be by the old horse, and the mistake has been occasioned by attaching the Jr. to both horses.

Yours truly,
FRED W. LOEBER.

A Time That is Coming.

BY AMBER.

It is not necessary that everything in a horse paper should appertain to matters horsey, and the following beautifully written article copied from the Horseman is so full of sentiment that we feel it a pleasure to reproduce it.

Did you ever stop in the midst of life's tumultuous hurry and think to yourself about the "last time" that is on its way to you and to me? There will be a last time for the careless good-bye to wife and children as you hurry to the morning train. There will be a last time when your step will board the car and your form will mingle with the crowd of those who go about their business when the day is new. There will be a last time to speak a kind word instead of a cross one, to give a smile for a frown. There will be a last time to mingle in the city's busy stream of life, to mount your office stairs and sit at your desk. There will be a last time to seize the chance of honesty and of uprightness. There will be a last time to lunch, a last time to read the daily papers, a last time to watch the sun go down. There will be a last time to spend a happy evening at home, and bestow your company, speech and manners upon the members of your own family circle. There will be a last time to say "good night," to turn out the light and woo the fickle goddess of slumber. There will be a last midnight, and a last new dawning of the day. Knowing all this to be true, how shall we set about to keep the vigil of what may be the last hour we have to spend? Take the children first. If an angel from heaven came suddenly down and whispered in your ear: "The last day has come. You have but twelve more hours to live;" how, think you, would you set about to best improve that time? Would you be solicitous about the practice hours, the dress, the personal appearance of the little ones you were so soon to leave? Would you stop to think of masters to teach them how to play, to dance, to paint or how to charm the shallow world with any gifts of alluring grace?

Would you care whether their dress was stylishly cut or made, or their garments freshly laundried and daintily trimmed? Would you give a second thought to any gift this world has in its power to bestow, whether of wealth, or beauty, or social honor? I think not. Facing that last time to be together, I think your mind would turn to sweeter, purer things, and you would say something to this effect: "The time has come, my little ones, when I must leave you. You will be alone in the world to-morrow, so far as mother-love goes, and I pray you heed my last words. Be pure in all things, despise evil companionship, and evil conversation, and evil books. Keep your heart like a spotless flower, however you keep your outward garb. Carry back your soul to God undefiled as the June evening carries upon its bosom the morning's rose. Be true always. You may be poor and forced to win your bread, but keep your lips from speaking untruths and your heart from brooding deceit. Honest speech may not win you many friends, but such as it does win for you will be worth the keeping. Remember in friendship, as in precious stones, it is not the quantity but the quality which tells."

"Keep your heart kind. Be tender to everything that God lets live. The child that will needlessly torture a fly will make a cruel man or woman. You may not have gold to give, but God has given you a purse to draw from, the alms of which dispensed among the children of earth true sorrow into gladness and tears into smiles. Thoughtful words and deeds of helpfulness are better than dollars in our pockets to make the world run smooth."

"Be loyal to principles, friends and God. The man who forgets a friend in time of need will make a no-account sort of angel, if ever he manages to get to heaven. He isn't worth his keep either here or yonder. And finally, little children" you may say, "remember and let love hold its beautiful sway in your hearts and homes for ever. Never be ashamed to manifest the demonstrations of love, for love is God, and where it dwells is the temple of God, whether it be rooted in by match or canopied with royal splendor. No home can be utterly unhappy where love is; no heart can go far astray by lovers' hands; no soul can perish upborne by the wings of pure and steadfast love." So saying you would bid the wondering little ones farewell, and walk with covered face into the shadows of death's soft and dusky wing.

Flaxtail.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—As my friend "H." in his article on Flaxtail 8132, has made a mistake in crediting Sister V. to my stock and I want nothing for them but what is their due, I hasten to correct the error. On the other hand he has omitted from his list Solitaire by Siugleton, son of Lightfoot, with a record of 2:32 or 2:32¼. And still another to the credit of the family is Wayland W., two-year-old record 2:34¾, and sold, as the BREEDER informs me for $2,500. Respectfully, M. W. HICKS.

I have a nice young colt that somehow or other got one of his ears split up the centre. It looks bad and I should like to know if it can be got to grow together. Please advise me what to do with it.

Answer.—By cutting a thin piece of each side of the slit and bringing it together by sutures, it will adhere.

T. R.

What is best to do for a curb? My horse has a large one on his off hind leg and it sometimes lames him.

Answer—Fire and blister him and give him two months' rest.

A. K.

Please tell me what is a good purgative for a horse. My horse is off his feed for the week, and the stable-man tells me that he wants a good physicing out and he will be all right. He says that Aloes is the best thing to give him.

Answer—Aloes is very commonly used as a cathartic, but I should advise you not to give him a strong purgative without knowing what is wrong with him. If there is a qualified veterinary surgeon near you get his advice. If your horse is suffering from pneumonia, you may kill him by giving him a dose of Aloes.

J. L.

I was told by a friend some time ago that the best way to castrate colts was to cut the testicles clean off with a sharp knife. He said that he has done that several times, and had only one death through it. Another friend of mine told me that he tried that plan on two colts last year, and each of them died. Now I have two colts to castrate, and what I want to know is, if this is a good way to castrate them, and if not, what is the best way to do it?

Answer.—That is not a safe way to castrate colts. The method most commonly used now is by means of the ecrasure. It is a simple and safe way to operate.

C. M.

My horse is lame off and on for the last month, and I don't know where to locate the lameness. He starts off nearly all right, and gets lamer the farther he goes. Sometimes he gets all right for a mile or so, and gets bad again; and again he is all right for a day or two, and bad again for a week. What do you think is the matter with him?

Answer.—You are not quite definite enough in your description of it. Please say what leg he is lame on, and give the age of the horse. Also say what kind of work he does, whether fast or slow, and we shall reply in our next issue.

Subscriber.

I have a valuable horse; when two years old it had very large blind teeth and had grown fast to the bone; when taken out they had affected his eyes and seemed to have affected the use of his limbs somewhat. When the teeth were extracted with forceps the roots of both were broken or split off and a portion left in his mouth. Immediately after these teeth were extracted the horse improved rapidly, regained the use of himself, and his eyes got well apparently. This was a year ago. Since last spring first one eye and then the other would get blue and about blind, recover, and then the other, and latterly the horse acts as though his loin was affected, not seeming to have good use of his hind legs, and in walking has a reeling motion behind, swinging his hind feet and legs outward, and occasionally drawing them up in a manner resembling spring halt. I have been using strong liniment over his loins and it seems to alleviate him somewhat, and shall get a dentist to cut through the gums outside and take out the piece of root that was left of each tooth Now what I want to learn is, would the roots, being broken off and left in still affect the eyes and also nervous system, spine, etc? What is best to be done in such a case? The horse is three years old, in good flesh, and wants to play whenever we has an opportunity.

Answer.—Your horse has got Periodic Opthalmia, a disease of the eyes which is liable to occur every year. Wolf teeth appear to have some influence to producing this disease, though they don't come in contact with any of the nerves of the eye. I should recommend you to get the parts of the teeth which remain extracted. When a horse has a bad attack of opthalmia, being almost blind, he is some times very nervous when made to move forward, and pokes his head out and lift his hind legs higher than usual, as though trying to stop himself. This may be all that is the matter with your horse. Try if he appears weak across the loins when you back him, or turn him round quickly. If so communicate with us again.

An Interview With M. Salisbury.

"Well here I am again."

The door of our editorial department had opened and the pleasant old gentleman who owns Margaret S., Direct, Katie S., Director and a host of other trotters walked in to exchange cordial greetings with the many horsemen who happened to be present. After hearty congratulations had been extended to Mr. Salisbury by J. H. White, F. H. Burke, G. Tompkins, F. W. Loeber, F. L. Coombs and others, the writer inquired how the Pleasanton horses had stood the trip back home.

"We could not have had a better time. Of course I suppose you know Katie S. has been off for some time and Direct has hardly come back to the form he had before the accident."

"Do you refer to casting the shoe?"

"Yes, you see we had given him an exhibition quarter, the result of which was telegraphed to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. But a day or two afterwards he was taken out to speed and when coming down the homestretch faster than I ever saw a horse go in my life, one of his forward shoes became loosed and cut him badly inside the stifle, up close to the testicles. Naturally we all thought he was ruined but he came around in a measure and he started in a race, when he had hardly recovered, making a had showing, however, I think we will be able to start at the Breeders Meeting and if he has fully recovered, Margaret S. will have to lower her present record, to beat the one I fully expect he will make."

"Did you feel safe in regard to first money in the Horseman Stake?"

"Well I must confess that I wished more than once that it was Direct was going to start against Allerton, for I had heard of several remarkable trials he had made and they were not of a nature to make me feel that the mare had an easy job on hand."

"I suppose Mr. Williams felt confident of victory."

"Yes, he was certain that he had the race as good as won. He told a friend of mine to bet all the money he wanted to and then go to sleep for Allerton would attend to the rest. One or two of the gentlemen who had entries came to me and asked that distance might be waived as they did not want to have their colts shut out. These gentlemen were representative breeders and to oblige them I said that if Mr. Williams would give his consent that I would not object. When the owner of Allerton was approached on the subject he refused to accede, and as you are already aware three of them were shut out in the first heat."

"Was there any truth in the rumor that Allerton was distanced in that heat also"?

"The judges received the report from the distance judge who said that Allerton was inside the flag by a short head, but there were a number of gentlemen who stood on a line with the distance judge and they all say that the Williams horse was out fully fifteen feet. That was only hear say and not being at that point myself cannot speak from personal observation. The morning papers made a great to-do about the matter, and quoted me as saying many things, which I had never given utterance to. When the postponed race was called next day, it was only an act of courtesy that compelled me to go into the stand and state to the judges that the language attributed to me was false and that I was satisfied with their decision."

"How did the Horsemen of the East receive you?"

"They could not have been more cordial. Every where we visited, our little delegation was warmly welcomed and we were made perfectly at home."

"Did you have good weather generally?"

"Well that is rather strange that you should ask that question, for there was something very remarkable about the days upon which we had entries. Whenever Margaret was to start we had heavy tracks or windy days and I felt assured that we were not near the height of the mare's speed; when Cricket was to pace the days were nice and fine and the tracks in good condition. It seemed that fate was against Margaret.

"What do you think of Cricket?"

"What do I think of her? Why, she is the gamest pacer that ever wore iron. The race we lost to Dallas was owing to the position of our stalls. I see you are langhing, but when I explain, you will understand what is meant. Cricket is a peculiar mare and wants to urinate immediately on the conclusion of each heat. Well, at Buffalo our stalls were a considerable distance from the track, and on the conclusion of the second heat, which she had paced in 2:13¾, the boys hurried her away to the stable without stopping. She left the stall without nature acting as usual and the mare did not urinate until the race was over, then fully two pails full of water came away from her. Since then she has always been allowed her own time and has not lost a race since."

"Are you aware that the Associated Press did not telegraph out the result of the two fast miles your horses made at Independence?"

"I did not know it until my return and was then glad that I had sent you a telegram. By the way, it may only be my imagination, but I fancied that all of the California horses were slighted in making up reports, and that much more space was given to Eastern bred horses when they won than was accorded to those that represented the Pacific Coast under like conditions."

"How was it you consented to send the two mares in exhibition heats at Independence when heretofore you have always opposed such records?"

"Well, that is easily explained. Mr. Williams had been very kind to us, especially in view of the fact that his horse had received such a disastrous defeat at Detroit. On arriving at Independence it was found that the other entries were unwilling to start if Margaret did, so it was agreed that we should receive first money and keep the mare in the stable. An offer was also made us that if we would consent to start Margaret and Cricket against their own records that the Association would pay us a thousand dollars each if the trick was performed. You know the result."

"Do you think the Independence track is extraordinarily fast on account of its shape?"

"No, I do not. The first three-eighths of a mile is up hill and then there is a cut to go through; however, the last half is very fast as it is slightly down hill."

"Are any of the California tracks as fast as it is?"

"Certainly, I can name several, notably the Napa track, which I consider the peer of any in the United States."

"Do you think you will take back any horses next year?"

"That is hard to say. Next year is a long time off, but probably I will if the Director stock keeps improving as it has done in the past. But I will have to say good-bye as I must visit the ranch and pick out what will have to start at the Breeders' meeting."

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

C. W. B.

Will you please give me the breeding of the stallion Niagara, sire of Fanny Malone?

Answer.—At present his pedigree is unknown.

A. L. S.

Can you give me through your valuable columns the pedigree or any information about a horse (stallion, I believe) called Silverthread?

Answer.—Silver Threads by The Moor, dam Grey Dale by American Boy Jr. (Hollenbeck's), record 2:42¾.

J. C. S.

Joe Hooker is still ailve, eighteen years old, and owned by Theodore Winters, of Washoe, Nevada. By writing to that gentleman you will likely be able to obtain the other information.

Last month there started at Rutland, Vt., in the 2:24 class the thirteen-year-old gelding Factory Boy driven by Charley Taylor who was 83 years old, and attached was a sulky that had campaigned a half a century. The whole outfit was one hundred and forty-three years old.

THE GUN.

Monterey Gun Club.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The Monterey Rod and Gun Club held its second meeting on Sunday last, and entertained a large number of visitors. The scores made by the majority of the members show great improvement as compared with the first official shoot, since which time all the members have been in constant practice. Great interest is taken in these matches, and already a rivalry can be noticed between certain members as to who will be the winner of the first prize, a gold medal, and the winner will certainly get something that is both ornamental and valuable. Frank Dangerfield, our genial druggist, is the destined crack shot of the club. He made 16 clean hits out of a possible 20. All the balance of the members shot remarkably well, and no doubt in the near future Monterey will have a pretty strong club of shooters.

After the shoot, friends and invited guests of the club were royally entertained with bulls heads and baked mussels, refreshments, etc., after which all went home well satisfied with the day's sport.

On Wednesday afternoon members of the club entertained Mr. Crittenden Robinson and Mr. Irelan of your city. They were taken all over the grounds, after which Mr. Robinson and the members had a friendly shoot.

It is our intention to so conduct our organization that the members will not only improve in skill with the shot gun, but also so that the club will be recognized as a company of genial sportsmen in whose gatherings not only shooters but ladies and gentlemen generally will find much to interest them.

Our worthy President, Mr F. R. Day, will visit San Francisco in a few days to renew old acquaintanceships. The scores on Sunday were made at 20 birds per man. A. S. A. rules.

The Ducks of America.

FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The American Eider Duck, Somateria dresseri Sharpe. The common Eider of America is found from Maine to Labrador and South in winter as far as Delaware. There are four species of Eiders in America, all of which may be taken in the Union at some period of the year. In addition to the one named above, we have the European Eider, but found in the same localities as the above and most abundant in Greenland; the Pacific Eider which has a range from Eastern Siberia along the Northern Pacific Coast line of North America and to Great Slave Lake; and the King Eider, which has an extended Northern range, but is found casually in winter as far south as New Jersey and the Great Lakes.

Our American Eidsr duck is found breeding on the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Northern Labrador. We once were favored by a seasonal appearance of these birds in considerable numbers from the North, but as soon as the nesting sites were often disturbed on Grand Menan and smaller islands in that vicinity, the annual appearance was confined to a few straggling flocks. It is still one of the characteristic summer ducks of Newfoundland and Labrador, but from constant persecutions its numbers have been greatly diminished.

Mr. Frazer found this Eider breeding commonly on small islands on the coast of Labrador and Newfoundland, making the nest in the soft grass. The favorite nesting place was at the foot of a large rock or in the crevices between rocks, where the birds found shelter from the wind. They are always made of the slate-colored down from the breasts of the birds. Most of the nests contained four or five eggs, a large number six or seven, and one eight. They are of a dull greenish drab in color, and are in measurement about three inches long by two, in their smaller dimension. When the female leaves her nest she covers the eggs perfectly with the down composing the structure, and they are not to be seen unless the protecting layer of warm covering is removed.

The Pacific Eider, S. v-nigra is a common species on both coasts and the islands of Behring's sea and the polar regions of Siberia. Dr. Stejneger says that it is now scarce on the Commander Islands and breed only in a few places. It nests on the Aleutian Islands and a few other places in great numbers. The nesting habits are quite similar to those of the other species.

The King Eider, S. spectabilis, is a beautiful Arctic duck. It is more particularly a resident of Greenland and is found on the Atlantic coasts of Europe and America and on the Pacific coasts of America and Asia.

The Common Eider, S. mollissima, so famous for its down, which has become an article of commerce and luxury is common to both continents. Its plumage is whitish, but the upper part of the head, its belly and tail are black; the side of the head and the neck are white, but the hair-like feathers on the back part of the cheeks are green of a delicate shade; the lower part of the neck is cream-colored.

When the eggs are laid the female, and according to some the male also, plucks the down from her breast and covers them with it. This down when shaken out will fill a space of a six inch cube, a peculiarity in elasticity of substance also observed, but to a less extent in all ducks and geese.

The principal home of the Eider is Northern Europe and America, is among the frozen seas and on the bleak coasts during the nesting season. They frequently lay their eggs in nearly inaccessible places among the rocks, for the getting of which and their down the people lower themselves by ropes. If a nest is robbed of the eggs and down, another attempt is made to rear a brood, and the male furnishes from his breast the fluffy down as a protection for the eggs. Pennant, a celebrated naturalist thus describes a visit he paid to a nesting locality. "I found the birds sitting and took some of the nests, the base of which was formed of sea plants and covered with the down. After separating it carefully from the plants it weighed only three-quarters of an ounce, yet was so elastic that it filled a greater space than the crown of the largest hat. These birds were not numerous on the islands and it was observed that the males kept on the side most remote from the sitting-places. The ducks continue on the nest till you come almost upon them, and when they rise they are very slow flyers."

Sir George, the Kenzie, in his 'Travels in Iceland,' says that "the boat in its approach to Vidoo passed multitudes of Eider ducks, which hardly moved out of the way; and between the landing place and the Governor's house it required some caution to avoid treading on the nests while the drakes were walking about even more familiar than tame ducks. The ducks were setting all around the house, on the garden wall, the roof, inside of the house and on the chapel."

This description hardly coincides with the account of another writer who says: "The locality where the Eiders make their nests is always difficult of access;" however, it is fair to believe the record of McKenzie, the celebrated traveler and explorer. The haunts of a bird yielding so valuable an article are carefully watched, and the proprietors do everything in their power to attract them to their land; and in Scotland and Norway the districts resorted to by the Eider are carefully preserved, everything likely to disturb them being strictly guarded against. The harvest which is desired from these birds is the source of considerable revenue. Eider-down being, in fact, a very large article of commerce. The rooks where the ducks build their nests are private property, and are handed down in families just as if they were the most valuable possessions.

The Eider although so well qualified for swimming is not a good flyer, and since the general use of firearms has come into vogue, their numbers have been greatly decimated, and in many quarters where they were formerly abundant, they are now not known, and the time described above, when the relations of man to these birds were such that Eiders would scarcely get out of one's way, are past.

When the young emerged from the eggs, they very soon follow the mother to the water, when they all disappear for nearly a year, preferring a life on the ocean wave to any pleasures that the land can offer. The young hatch generally about the first week in July.

The food of the Eiders is mostly of the order of bi-valve molluscs, but crustacea are also available, The food is secured at the bottom of sea or river by diving, at which they are very expert. M. G.

The Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association has issued the following circular letter which we commend to those whom it may concern:

DEAR SIR: The following kinds of game are wanted, viz.: Live prairie chickens, live sharp-tail grouse (commonly called pheasants), live wild turkeys, and live California quail (both mountain and valley kinds).

Can you ship any of the birds above wanted? If so, at what price and about how many; also, at what time of the year would you prefer to deliver them. Terms to be cash on delivery of the birds, in suitable coops, to the express company at your place. If prices are satisfactory, the local agent of the express company in your place will be put in funds immediately, and he will have orders to pay for the birds as soon as delivered to him. An immediate answer to this is wished for, that orders may be placed early. Should you not care to do anything in this line, please hand this to some friend of yours who might like to.

DIRECTIONS FOR SHIPPING LIVE GAME.

Birds should be put in light crates or boxes, with slats in front and back, with cloth top, and tins or dishes for food and water fastened on outside of crate, so they may feed without spilling or fouling food and water.

Prairie chickens and pheasants must not be sent more than 5 in each compartment of crate, which should be 15 inches high and 24 inches long and broad.

Quail must not be sent more than 15 in each compartment of crate, which should be 6 inches high and 20 inches broad and long.

Corn, either loose or on the ear, should be put in feeding troughs of crates in which chickens or pheasants are sent, and wheat or rye when quail are sent. A card should be fastened on the coop, asking the express to fill the water dishes when needed.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.—Crates in which birds are shipped may be longer or wider than above stated, but not higher. The heads of birds when in the crate should touch the top covering, and that covering must be of cloth or bagging and not slats. It is necessary that these instructions should be exactly followed, or the birds will arrive here dead.

Dr. S. E. Knowles writes:—"Have you seen the new order recently passed by the supervisors regarding sale of ducks? Can you inform me of its provisions?"

In order to answer authoritatively we asked Mr. Jno. A. Russell, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors for a copy of the ordinance and that gentleman sends the following:

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.—Order No. 2249.—Prohibiting any person from hunting, pursuing, selling, killing or offering for sale, etc., any mallard duck, widgeon, etc., between the 1st day of March and the 1st day of September of each year.

The People of the City and County of San Francisco do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, between the 1st day of March and the 1st day of September of each year, in the City and County of San Francisco, to hunt, pursue, kill or destroy, or to buy, sell, barter, exchange, offer or expose for sale, transport or have in his posession any mallard duck, widgeon, teal, redhead, pintail, gadwall wood-duck or Jack Wilson snipe, commonly known as English snipe.

SECTION 2. Any person violating the provisions of this order shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the County Jail for not more than six months.

In Board of Supervisors, San Francisco, July 21st, 1890.

After having been published five successive days, according to law, taken up and passed by the following vote:

Ayes—Supervisors Bingham, Wright, Boyd, Pescia, Bneh, Ellert, Wheelan, Becker, Pilster, Kingwell, Barry.

Absent—Supervisor Nohle. JNO. A. RUSSELL. Clerk.

Approved, San Francisco, July 22, 1890.

The Throckmorton Ranch back of Sausalito has been leased in so far as shooting and fishing priveleges go by Messrs Streaton, Bergez and friends. It will be stocked and preserved. A commendable and excellent project. The ranch is easy of access, affords fine quail and deer ground and good trout and sea fishing.

Messrs. Crittenden Robinson and William Irelan visited Monterey last week, and were delightfully entertained by President Day, Secretary Rodriguez and members of the Gun club. Drives, fishing, shooting, Spanish dinners and like pleasures filled the week.

Mr. J. M. Maddux, Secretary of the Pacific Sportsmen's Club of Sacramento sends this breezy invitation to members of the State Sportsman's Association:

TRAP SHOOTERS.

You should not fail to attend the ninth annual tournament of the State Sportsmen's Association to be held at Sacramento, October 8, 9, 10, 11th, in conjunction with the team contest for the $500 Selby trophy and the valuable Fay diamond medal. There will be a series of live bird and artificial target contests for valuable prizes. Clean up your guns, boys, and come along to Sacramento. The Pacific Gun Club will entertain you. Look for full particulars by mail, and if you fail to get a programme send to us for one.

ROD.

International Casting Tournament.

The eighth International Fly and Bait Casting Tournament was brought off at Orleans House, Twickenham, on the Thames, near London, England, on August 9th. The casting tournaments were instituted by Mr. R. B. Marston, editor of the leading publication for Anglers, The Fishing Gazette, Eng., and they have all been most successful, thanks to the executive ability and energy of that gentleman.

The one recently concluded was by odds the most interesting of the series, and we condense an account of it from The Fishing Gazette, regretting that we are unable to give space to all the details as to bait casting.

Mr. A. J. Little's arrangement for measuring the distances for fly-casting was an improvement even on previous years. The raft was moored lengthways in the river by stakes driven in the bed of the stream and cut off short. At 5 feet from the end of the raft was a wooden demarcation, behind which every competitor had to stand.

From this mark at the side of the raft was fixed a wooden marking rod, or rather rods, marked in feet and 6 inches to 129 feet (or forty three yards), the marking commencing at 40 feet.

The rods being some three inches square, were by means of sheet lead canted on edge, so that two sides were exposed out of the water, which sides were painted white, and figured in large black letters so that the public on the one side could easily view the distance cast, and the judges, who were in a punt on the reverse side, could also determine the length of cast. The rods being some 23 feet long, were screwed together by flat pieces of iron, let into the wood, so that by this general arrangement it was almost impossible to get hung up with a cast.

The raft was level with the surface of the water, and not raised 2 feet or more above it, as has been the case at previous tournaments, both in this country and America.

In the fly-casting for accuracy for professionals, that method adopted seemed to give general satisfaction. As each competitor had to cast not less than 28 yards, at 84 feet, four pegs were driven into the ground, thus forming three openings on the water line, the center space being about ten inches, the outer spaces a little over a foot.

The judges determined to give three points for each cast in the centre space and one point for each cast in the two outer spaces. Any cast more than 3 feet beyond the distance or outside the four pegs not to count. Ten casts were allowed. To onlookers the performance appeared easy, but when two such expert fly-casters as Stevens and Kerss could only score six points each, the contrary is apparent. It is a pity there was not time for a similar competition among amateurs.

The bait-casting competitions were carried out in two courts marked out on the grass. For the information of those of our readers who have not been present at any of these pleasant gatherings, it may be said that the courts are formed by means of a center tape marked in feet and inches, with radiating boundary line, no cast outside the boundaries being allowed to count, any deviation also from the center line being deducted from the length of throw. Another condition laid down was that the bait, which was provided by the committee, would weigh 1¾ oz. on the trace, and should be 24in. distant from the half-ounce lead, except, of course, in the heavy bait competitions, when a 2oz. bait was used, the lead being similarly dispersed.

Only one American angler, Mr. Hewitt, appears as a contestant, and in Class 7, where he won third prize, we infer that he used a five-ounce rod; for we learn from the text of a contributor: "I was not surprised to find that Mr. E. R. Hewitt could not do with his five-ounce what the winner, Mr. Marston, did with his powerful blue Mahoe." In Class 3 Mr. Marston's rod failed him utterly—"the tool he handled fairly doubled up when he wanted to get some work out of it." In Class 14 Mr. Hewitt won first, but it was a commonplace score; for Mr. D. Wilson, one of the judges, and the Hon. Secretary of the Fly Fishers' Club, after the contest, took a rod belonging to a competitor and switched his fly 114 feet away, while he smoked a cigar.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

1.—Entries for all competitions must be made and fees paid to the Honorary Secretary, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, before 8 P. M. on August 6th. After that date, and previous to each competition, entries can only be made by payment of double fees, and all persons so entering shall precede in casting those already entered. Entrance fees for each competition: Amateurs, 2s 6d. Professionals, 1s.

2.—The Balloting for order of competing shall take place at a meeting at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Wednesday, August 6th, at 8 P. M., when all interested in the matter are invited to attend. The order of competing will be rigidly adhered to, and contestants absent on the day of competition, when called upon by the timekeeper, disqualified.

3.—In the amateur classes no person shall be eligible to compete who has ever fished for his living, who has been a paid river keeper, guide, gillie, or instructor of fishing.

4.—In all contests the competitors shall use their own rods, reels and lines; the traces and baits will be provided by the committee. The rods and tackle must be bona fide fishing rods and tackle, in their respective classes, otherwise the judges shall disqualify.

5.—In the various competitions the length of rod shall not exceed in:—

Salmon Casting	20ft.
Single-Handed Front Casting	12ft.
Double Handed	14ft.
Spinning Bait Casting	14ft.

6.—In each contest prizes will be as follows:—Three for six competitors or more; two for four or five competitors; three or under, one prize only. Should the number competing he numerons in any of the classes, the committee may awsrd an additional prize or prizes, if the funds permit.

7.—No winner shall take more than one prize in any competition.

8.—The prizes will be presented at the completion of the Tournament.

9.—Competitors shall not be prompted, nor receive any outside assistance, except by special permission of the judges.

10.—The decision of the judges, umpire and timekeeper shall be final in each competition.

11.—The fly casting will take place from a raft moored in the river, and the distance shall he marked in feet and inches. In these competitions extra prizes will be given for delicacy and accuracy. Shooting the line will he permitted and competitors may use their own casts and flies, casts not to be less than 6ft. in length.

12.—The bait casting will take place on the lawn, in a court which will he formed by means of a centre tape marked in feet and inches, with radiating boundary lines; no cast outside the court shall count, and any deviation from the centre line will be deducted from the length of the throw.

13 —In all spinning bait casting competitions the bait will be 1¾oz. on trace, 24in distant from lead ½oz. in weight, except in heavy bait contests, which will be 2½oz. similarly dispersed.

14.—In the bait casting, the lines used for the 1¾oz. competition shall lift a weight of 6lb. throughout, and in the heavy casting 2½oz. competition a weight of 10lb. throughout.

15.—In every contest each competitor will be allowed five minutes only to cast; but in the case of the heavy bait contest, and the bait casting for accuracy, three casts only may he made.

16.—The punting races (for professionals only) will be single, and the punts provided by the Committee.

17.—The Committee reserve to themselves the right to refuse any entry, the power to make any alterations in the programme or in the foregoing rules they may think necessary, and to finally deal with any matter not provided for by these rules.

Note.—No person will be allowed to enter as both amateur and professional.

The Fish Commission.

That there should be a measure of public interest in the attitude of the Fish Commission as respects the charges made against the Chief of Patrol, Mr. Callundan, some weeks ago is not surprising. Mr. Callundan has pushed for a determination of the matter; the Commissioners have been urged to announce their conclusions and yet no official statement from the Board appears. The gentlemen of the daily press persist in claiming that Mr. Callundan is yet under investigation and justly suspected of improprieties in the management of his office. An injustice is being done Callundan and by those who should be his friends. We challenge contradiction of the following statement; Sworn charges against Callundan were filed by Thos. Tunstead with the Board of Fish Commissioners. Mr. Tunstead was invited to produce evidence in support of his charges and he was given ample time and opportunity. He failed to produce one bit of evidence in any wise implicating F. P. Callundan. His charges ware absolutely without foundation in fact, they fell unsupported. The Board of Fish Commissioners has knowledge in the premises. The Board refuses apparently to state the facts connected with the matter and they are therefore presented here. Neither Mr. Callundan, Mr. Tunstead, the Board of Fish Commissioners or anybody else should object to the presentation of the truth. Neither of them has any string tied to us, but we confess to a feeling of indignation that Tunstead and the Commissioners do not furnish to the daily press a statement of the facts which would square Mr. Callundan in the eyes of the public and place him where he belongs as a faithful, efficient, honest officer.

President Routier, of the Fish Commission, with the Chief of Patrol, inspected the markets of San Francisco on Wednesday morning last to ascertain whether salmon were being dealt in during the present close season. They found none.

Salmon trout fishing has been very good for some time near the mouths of the streams emptying into Monteray bay. One day last week H. S. Fletcher and K. F. Gray of Watsonville caught twenty-four salmon trout near the mouth of the Salinas river. The fish averaged about two pounds each, and were game fellows. They were caught with flies.

Whether English and Irish sea captains are selected because they are sportsmen or whether they become sportsmen after elevation to their autocratic positions is a query. Certain it is that those who come to the port of San Francisco almost without exception, are keen in their knowledge and pursuit of sport. One such captain, E. J. Molony, of the steel ship "British Merchant," hailing from Cork, on Friday last, invited a fellow master who is widely known in San Francisco, Captain McAllister, of the "Langdale" Mr. Fred P. Callundan, Mr. Henry Wormington, Dr. W. D. McCarty, and a reporter to lunch on board. After being shown all about that wonder of wonders, the perfectly appointed modern merchantman, Captain Molony, conducted the visitors to his sanctum, filled with curious carvings, the works of his own hands, canes and curios from every land, and a world of beautiful things, such as a tasteful man would naturally collect. Then came what was modestly styled a "sea luncheon," of which it may he said that only a John Bergez, a Frank LaCoste or a Westcott could prepare the like. The visitors, except Mr. Callundan, were unused to such affairs and came away in a most appreciative mood.

Professor A. B. Johnson, Zoologist at the University of Washington, is radical, if nothing else in his views, about fish and game. As to fish he will probably have many sympathizers, but when he speaks of game and gun clubs he is really so far from fact as to be absurd. He says:

'There is no better sport in the world than trolling for salmon in Puget Sound or angling for trout in the mountain streams, and there is no country more abundantly blessed in these respects than this Sound country. But there are a lot of fellows here who remember what fun they used to have in the East fishing for bass or catfish, or trolling for pickerel in the lakes, and they say, 'Oh, how I wish we could have some of the fishing we used to have at home.' They don't appreciate the splendid trout fishing they can have in the hundred streams and lakes flowing into the Sound and the ocean, or the fun they can have trolling for salmon in the Sound next month.

"If they had this favorite fish of theirs they would not appreciate them, for they have been educated out of the taste without knowing it. I did not appreciate salmon until I went East a year or two ago with Charles Denny. Mr. Denny had never been East and I had dilated to him on the delicious whitefish we would have in Chicago and the shad in Washington City. Well, I took particular care to order a good fresh whitefish in Chicago, but we could hardly eat it. Then I said, "Wait till we get to Washington City and have some shad.' We had the shad, but Charlie could not eat it and I found I had lost my taste for it. We concluded that there was no fish equal to salmon. The Columbia river salmon is the finest food fish in the world and the Puget Sound salmon is the next.

"As regards black bass, it will live well enough with the trout, but I believe it will not stay in the lakes, for I have the impression very strongly that it has to be put in lakes without an outlet for breeding purposes. It is a good game fish, but its meat is not nearly so good as that of the salmon or trout. The pickerel is a tyrant among fish and devours everything it meets with, though it cannot outswim the trout. It has a mouth like an alligator, with a great protruding lower jaw, which is the mark of a greedy tyrant from man down to the lowest animal. It is a long fish and tastes much like an eel, It is not fit to associate with fish like the trout.

"I don't believe in artifically propagating fish in any waters which are already abundantly supplied with good food fish. We have the best food fish in the world and the markets are full of them. Fish ought to be treated simply as an article of food and the fisheries should be preserved simply to secure abundant and cheap food for the people and not to amuse a few sportsmen. It is just the same with hunting. A rod and gun club clamors for a law to establish a close season, so that they may go out into the woods and kill deer and drive other hunters out. They violate these laws themselves with impunity, but whenever any other man does so they may have him arrested. If this goes on, the country will soon he as bad as England, where a man can't go out and kill a pheasant for dinner without being arrested for poaching on the preserves of some lord. This love of hunting is only a survival of barbarism, it is the love of killing and bloodshed, I shall be glad when all the deer and other game are killed off."

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Whelps.

T. J. Wattson's Miss Alice 2793 English setter bitch (Doncaster—May Queen) Sept. 6th, seven—5 bitches, 2 dogs, by Dan Gladstone.

Visits.

C. W. Wilson's English setter bitch "Jennie W" (Dick—Belle) to Dan Gladstone 3377 (Gladstone—Sue) Sept. 8th and 10th, 1890.

P. D. Linville's English setter bitch "Florine" (Carl R.—Bessie) to Dan Gladstone 3377 (Gladstone and Sue) Sept. 10th and 11th, 1890.

Dr. A. C. Davenports (Echo Cocker Kennel, Stockton) Woodstock Ada (Obo II—Woodstock Dinah) to owners Bronta A. K. C. S. B., 17064, August 1st, 1890.

Same owners, Vixie, A. K. C. S. B. 13193 to owners Kute (Carlo—Beauty) August 11th, 1890.

Same owners, Senora, A. K. C. S. B, 17063, to owners Bronta, A. K. C. S. B., 17064.

Mr. T. L. Bulled at Muskegon, Mich., offers through another column imported setters and pointers and a brace of imported greyhound bitches.

Mr. Linville's Florine (Carl R—Bessie) was bred to Dan Gladstone a few days ago and some parsgons in the way of English setters may confidently be looked for.

Pegmatite (Csmbridge—Marchioness Peg), belonging to Dr. N. Rowe of the American Field, was run over by a train of cars last week and killed. He was a Bergundthal's Rake in appearance, except for a heavier head. A nicer, more companionable dog never lived perhaps; at any rate in his owner's opinion.

Dan Gladstone is to be taken to New York by his owner Mr. Harley, in October, and owners of pure English setters will do well to utilize him while at hand. The litter by Dan out of Mr. Wattson's Alice is said to be very beautiful, all being black, white and tan.

Mr. J. W. Harper and Mr. J. C. Peyton came down from Suisun to enjoy the Native Son's parade. Mr. Harper is only six feet tall now but after he attends another field trial he will probably jump to eight feet. He is the proud owner of a Harold—Sunlit setter which under Mr. Allenders skillful handling is doing nicely.

Mr. Bernard Waters, Kennel Editor of the American Field is about to issue a second edition of his most excellent work "Modern Training Handling and Mansgement of Dogs." The task of adding anything to the value of the work is an onerous one, it is now so complete, but Mr. Waters may be able to amplify some topics, and to polish a phrase here and there. We congratulate the good writer and good man upon his success.

Mr. Fred. A. Taft, somewhat known as the owner of Dorr and now a resident of Dedham, Mass., writes that his health is improved so much that he is again able to tramp the fields and train a dog or two. He now has in hand a pointer by Pontiac—Queenie, which is very promising. Mr. Taft requests us to say to Mr. J. M Bassford Jr. and Mr. Wm. Schreiber that he is alert in looking up pointers for them and will so begin correspondence about him.

Mr. John Bergez brought his splendid young pointer by Mr. Schreibers Don—Sall to the city from Novato on Wednesday last. The dog is the peer of any pointer alive in workmanlike form and general quality. In fact some judges consider him the best bit of dog flesh yet seen in California. He is speedy as a ghost, can stay the longest day, has common sense, good nose and is a hunter all over. If any dog ever deserved the best care of an Allender or a Walter, Mr. Bergez pointer is the beast.

Mr. C. W. Wilson of this city, has bred his fine English setter Jennie W. to Dan Gladstone. Jennie W. is about perfect in form, and has proved her broody quality in the splendid litter thrown to Kittle's Luke. That litter of which two, one belonging to Mr. James Sanderson and the other to Captain Carroll were seen a few days ago is as strong, keen and business like as young setters ever are.

Mr. Edward Dexter, of Buzzards Bay near Boston who owns King of Kent, Rap and a lot of good dogs gives this line on the treatment of puppies. He writes: "It is best, and handlers prefer it, to have a dog which is to run in field trials under one man from the start. Captain McMurdo for instance wishes to teach them their A B C's as well as to finish them. So far does he carry it that even Mr. Buckle who was educated and works with the Captain, never takes out McMurdo's dogs, and vice versa."

In practice Mr. Dexter sends his field trial youngsters to South Carolina from January to March, where they remain, finishing the following fall just before the trials, and his success lends strength to his position.

Will He Find It?

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

As nearly as I remember, the paragraph read as follows:

"The steamer 'Storm King,' Capt. Turner, arrived yesterday after one of the most remarkable voyages that probably ever befell an 'ocean greyhound.' She left Queenstown on January 27, at 4 P. M., and reached Sandy Hook yesterday at 4 o'clock. This makes her actual time six days, nineteen hours. On Jan. 30, in latitude 43 degrees, 50 minutes north, and longitude 49 degrees, 20 minutes west, in perfectly clear and smooth weather, the ship was struck by an enormous tidal wave, which nearly threw her on her beam-ends, smashed in her port rail and bent the heavy stanchions as if they had been pins. Capt. Turner says that in his 22 years' experience he never saw the waters seethe and roar as they did on this occasion. The weather being fine, the majority of the passengers were upon the decks, from which they were swept like chaff before the wind. The struggles of the men and the shrieks of the women were appalling. When the waters finally subsided but 25 of the 85 passengers remained, and although the engines were reversed, the boats lowered, and the waters scanned carefully, not a soul was to be seen, all of the 60 swept overboard having found a watery grave. This is the saddest calamity that has happened in many years upon the Atlantic."

I well remember the great excitement which prevailed when the above dispatch was flashed over the United States. The passenger list bore names from almost every State in the Union, and the friends and relatives awaited with feverish impatience the published list of the names of the twenty-five survivors. The next day the great eastern dailies contained full particulars, given with that adherence to realism that marks the pathway of the modern newspaper. Indeed, it was claimed that the reporter who wrote up the occurrence was a bit too realistic. The scene when the waves rolled over the steamer; the screams of the women; the despairing cries of the men; the set white faces; the eyes wide with fear, their expression like those of a hunted animal at bay; the piercing cries of "save me or I die"—all these coupled with the crash of the waters were depicted with a fidelity that caused a shudder to creep over the ordinary reader and a groan to escape the relatives of the unfortunate dead.

Among the terse descriptions of the people drowned appeared the following:

"Walter Bennett, aged 25, fair complexion, blue eyes, about 5 feet 10 inches, probable weight 160 pounds, native of England."

About six years after, I was eating dinner at the old Auzerais House in San Jose. Shortly after my entrance to the dining room, a gentleman joined me at table whom I had seen loitering about the street during the afternoon. How our conversation started I do not now remember. At all events we were soon engaged in an argument as to embryotic life, he taking the unparalleled and unheard of standpoint that life could be brought about by a sort of protoplasm, in which the development of every function was necessarily somewhat slow, but yet very sure.

"Why," said he, "animal life can be originated, if you will allow the expression, by the concentration of vegetable germ cells, properly prepared and applied. The secret, of course, is in the manner of preparation and mode of application. Come to No. 14 at eight this evening and I will try to convince you that I am right."

He arose abruptly and left the room. Nothing but his quiet manner and evident education would have entitled his opinion to any respect, and indeed I was in rather of a quandary as to his sanity as it was.

Promptly at 8 o'clock I made my way to No. 14. In answer to my knock he opened the door and bade me enter. He lit the other gas jets, wheeled an easy chair into the center of the room and waved me into it. As he seated himself near me he said:

"I suppose we may as well get somewhat acquainted. Your card proclaims your name and business. I have no card but I can tell you of myself. Do you remember some years ago of reading that the steamship "Storm King" was struck by a great wave and sixty odd persons swept overboard? You do? Very good, I am one of the people who went into the ocean!"

"But," I exclaimed, "not one of those people were heard of again."

"Quite true, but nevertheless you see before you one of the crowd that the waves carried away. In order to properly lead up to our conversation at dinner I must beg of necessity to relate to you a tale that no one would give credence to if in print. But as wonderful as it all may seem, I will testify to the truthfulness of every assertion, and I hope at no distant day to be able to prove to the world at large that what I am about to relate has existence in fact and is capable of actual demonstration."

"The 'Storm King' was, as nearly as I can judge, about half way between the Azores and the Cape Verde Islands, and her regular track across the Atlantic, from Queenstown Ireland, to Sandy Hook, New Jersey, when the mountain o water swept her decks, and we were lifted like jack-straws and thrown into the ocean with great violence. I was pitched head first into the water with such force that I must have sunk some fifteen fathoms. Then occurred a most singular thing. It seemed to me in my dazed condition that I was carried along horizontally with great velocity. It also seemed that my momeotum increased as I went. Even to my half conscious senses I realized that I was drawn along in a submarine current, many of which exist in the Atlantic from 10 to 50 fathoms down. This current differed from any I have had experience with, from the fact that the center of it was filled with air, which blew through this watery tunnel with much velocity, and was extremely cold as well. As the suction grew stronger I was oftentimes whirled over, first on my face and then upon my back, my gyrations resembling very much the eccentric motion of an Australian boomerang as it descends to the earth from midair. Suddenly a slight roaring noise reached my ears, which increased in volume as I progressed. You must understand that I must have been carried along at a rate of possibly fifty miles an hour. I had a hard struggle to keep my mouth and nose free of water sufficiently long to take breath. The roaring increased until it sounded like peals of thunder. I was suddenly shot upward some hundreds of feet, and realized that I was being tossed about upon a vast column of water much as a ball is tossed upon the jet of a fountain. With a final shoot upwards I was thrown some distance and fell, to my amazement, upon land. Half stunned and somewhat bruised I staggered to my feet and looked about me. The thing I had been thrown out of was a spouting geyser, and even as I looked the roaring died away and the waters subsided, leaving exposed a cone-like crater about four feet above the land. Looking around me I discovered that I was upon a very large island—how large I did not know, but the heavy timber and tropical undergrowth hid from view what I afterward found to be the main part of the island. The sun was very warm, and the steam arising from my wet clothes recalled me to my situation. Removing most of my clothes I wrung the water from them and hung them over a hujama bush to dry. Within an hour I put them on and started upon a tour of what I thought an uninhabited island. The formation of the land would be hard to describe. It seemed a sort of turf, like one sometimes sees upon a marsh, though firmer withal. As I advanced many forms of tropical growth met my eyes, with none of which I was familar. Immense trees, resembling the giant bamboo, towered to great heights, while among the smaller growth I at last espied a bread-fruit tree, the only thing I had thus far seen that looked like anything I had hitherto encountered. In the center of the forest I suddenly came upon a circular basin hollowed out of the ground, the center of which was about six feet deep. This basin was about 75 feet across. Near the outer circle of this basin, upon square pedestals of earth, I was astounded to see some sort of animals moulded in clay.

They appeared upon closer observation to resemble a buffalo calf. I got down and handled them, and found they were smoothly made and very hard. The contour of all was alike. They were very perfectly moulded, but the most singular thing of all were the eyes. They were made from some substance that gave them the brilliancy of life. You may judge of my surprise when I encountered these things. Filled with curiosity I went forward. Within fifteen minutes walk I noticed the glistening of hundreds of glass houses (for so I thought them). Of all sizes, shapes and colors, the hues of the rainbow would pale into insignificance beside their united reflection. Hurrying forward, I was surrounded by hundreds of copper-colored natives, who jabbered incessantly and gazed upon me in wonder. They took hold of my clothing, my hands and my hair. Suddenly one of them near me darted away and returned shortly with an old man of patriarchial appearance, whom I recognized, in spite of his dark skin, as a white man. I stood like one in a dream while the old man tremblingly approached. He paused in front of me and holding his hands toward me, said in English: "Do I again see a white man?"

I replied that he did, and gave him a history of my manner of reaching the island. Before my narrative was completed, he waved his hands and the natives immediately left us. But why continue? I could entertain you for hours with the wonders of that island, but the recitation would tire me and render you incredulous. I will therefore only touch upon that part which has bearing upon our discussion at dinner.

The houses were built, I will say, by the way, of a gum which exudes from a variety of tree on the island and after short exposure to the air hardens like flint. The different colors are obtained by mixing coloring material with the gum.

The old man proved to be an Englishman, 71 years of age. He was wrecked off the Azore Islands, and after several days in a small boat was cast upon this island. Being hospitably treated by them, he soon learned their language, and in time became their chief. He had lived upon the island for thirty-six years.

Briefly stated by himself, his life upon this island was more wonderful than Alladdin and his wonderful life; the travels of Baron Munchausen or the Arabian Nights. For while these latter are simply vague imageries of the brain, his experience were real. His most wonderful discovery was the finding and proper preparation of a plant resembling mullen, by which process an oil was produced. This oil had a life giving power, properly applied. Bananas and bread fruit are plentiful on the island, but no animals are to be found, having become extinct through constant pursuit. This difficulty was obviated by molding in clay any animal and rubbing it briskly with the wonderful oil, which gave it life. Thus an inexhaustible supply of fresh meat could always be had. The natives had grown so used to this thing that it no longer caused comment among them. The strangeness of the proceeding grew less and less as time went by, until finally I looked upon it as an every day affair. Stanyan, the old Englishman, was looked upon by the natives as a superior being and they did not bother themselves in trying to unravel his mysteries, deeming it impossible and therefore useless.

In the old country I was a bit of a horseman and one day I proposed to Stanyan that we make a horse, to which he agreed. Our efforts were successful from the first. The old man was a moulder of great ability, and after making a perfect picture of a racer in clay we would "life it", as we termed it. Our first horses lacked speed, but I soon discovered that a brisker application of the oil, accompanied by more friction upon the clay, produced an animal of more speed. Acting upon this theory we finally produced an animal of exquisite proportions that went a measured mile for us in 1:12. I told Stanyan that unlimited wealth was ours, if we could get such horses to England or America, and keep secret the manner of their creation. In those days a thoroughbred that could run a mile in 1:40 was a good horse. The question was how to get to civilization. A ship, steamer, sloop, or fishing boat had never been seen by the oldest inhabitant. Finally I conceived the bold project of building a boat and trusting to fortune to meet a steamer or vessel of some kind upon the ocean. When all was ready I wrung the old man's hand, bid a kindly adieu to the natives and trimmed up sail toward the rising sun. For several hours I had the singular sensation of sliding down hill at great speed. When I looked backward the water seemed to rise at an angle of 45 degrees, yet it seemed smooth and level ahead.

The second day out a heavy squall struck my boat and capsized it. After hard work I righted it and bailed out the water, but my provisions were gone and my position seemed hopeless. To make matters worse I lost my bearings. For four days I drifted on the open sea. Then hunger and thirst overcame my better judgment and I drank some salt water. That, you know, is as fatal ordinarily as lying down in the snow during a storm. At the close of another day was delirious, and then I lost consciousness. When I again opened my eyes I was on a cot in a New Orleans hospital, having been picked up by the steamer "Astral" on her regular run between Liverpool and the Gulf of Mexico.

When I was convalescent I returned to England, where I was mourned for dead. To the numerous inquiries of my friends, I simply said that I had been miraculously saved.

Being possessed of a large private fortune, I fitted out, at a cost of 10,000 pounds, a steam yacht, took a picked crew and spent the next summer in a vain search for the island. Early the following summer I was again out. One night, as the sun sank into the sea, the day having been particularly pleasant, one of the seamen suddenly cried out that we were running up hill! I rushed to the bow, and saw that he was right. Remembering my experience upon leaving the island, I was filled with excitement. In a very short time, however, the yacht ran down again. I then understood that our course was across the apparent rise and not up it.

We put about as soon as possible, and although we tried until too dark to see, we failed to find the swell again. Every summer since, I have kept up a fruitless search. But I must find it sometime. I have a different theory that I shall work upon next summer. I am confident that I shall find the island at last! Think of a runner doing a mile in 1.12! And with a little more attention to detail, I feel sure we can produce one that can touch 1:03 or 1:04", and in contemplation of this beatific state of affairs, my companion leaned back in his chair and gazed steadfastly at me.

"By the bye, you have not told me your name."

Regarding me earnestly he replied,

"My name is Walter Bennett."

The next morning at eight o'clock I knocked again at No. 14. Receiving no answer, I opened the door. The room was vacated. Inquiring at the office adduced the fact that Mr. Bennett left on the early train.

The first two year old race of the year in Australia was won by Thirlmere, a bay filly by Segenhoe out of Gnelder Rose by Kingstone. This mare previously produced Bargo and Wycombe to the cover of Maribyonong, the sire of Segenhoe. Bargo won the A. J. C. Derby, and Wycombe defeated both Abercorn and the Australian Peer at three miles in October 1888, at Sydney. Segenhoe is own brother to Richmond, sire of Tradition and the Admiral; Bosworth, sire of Boz, winner of last year's Caulfield Cup. This is a good running family, and Thirlmere will be heard from again. She is the property of Mr. Thomas Payten who was trainer to Hon. James White, recently deceased.

THE BAKER & ROSS TRACK HARROW

Is pronounced by all horsemen who have used it and seen it work to be the

BEST HARROW EVER INVENTED.

It has sloping chisel, shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For references we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Crabb, Sam'l Gamble, I. DeTurk, and the directors of the Napa and Petaluma Tracks, etc.

BREEDERS' CATALOGUES A SPECIALTY.

THE TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$11,000 GUARANTEED $11,000

FOR

Trotting Foals of 1890.

$5,000 to First; $2,500 to Second; $1,500 to Third; $1,000 to Fourth; and $1,000 to the breeder of the Winner, in money or plate, at the option of said breeder.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Entrance

Payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for Starters, payable August 1, 1894.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11,000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Conditions.

Nominators will be required to state name, color and sex of foal; also to give the names of the sire, the dam, and the sire of the dam; also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nominated.

No nomination will be received unless the first payment of $10 accompanies the same.

Nominations are only liable for the first payment, but failure to make any of the subsequent payments, when due, shall be considered a withdrawal, with forfeiture of former payments.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination.

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the finest and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three-year-old in 2:12.

The above PURSE is given and all of its provisions guaranteed by the VIGO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY of Terre Haute, Ind.

Nominations to be made on or before NOVEMBER 1st, 1890, and addressed to

CHAS. C. OAKEY, Secretary, Terre Haute, Ind.

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

The BOYCE WASH can be applied ALL OVER THE BODY WITHOUT FEAR OF BLISTERING NOR DOES IT AFFECT THE KIDNEYS.

The BOYCE WASH will cure CRACKED HEELS, PUFFS, STOCKINGS, SCRATCHES, INFLAMED TENDONS and FEVERED LEGS.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States; six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on application. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

Entries close October 4th.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Trotting Stallion for Sale

We are authorized to offer at private sale
THE TROTTING STALLION

Brocken,

Five years old; color, brown; 16.2 hands; bred by Capt. A. J. Hutchinson; sired

By A. W Richmond,

(sire of RICHMOND JR., ROMERO, ARROW, the DAM OF ANTEEO, and ANTEVOLO and other noted horses); 1st dam Maid of the Mist, by Norfolk; 2d dam Eva Coombs, by Billy Cheatham; 3d dam Ruby by Winnebago, son of Imp. Glencoe.

BROCKEN is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed. He can trot a 40 gait now with ease. His pedigree shows rare breeding, combining trotting blood with the most fashionable strains of thoroughbred. It includes crosses to Lexington and Glencoe with a double cross to Boston. For good, stout blood, this pedigree cannot be excelled. For terms, apply to

KILLIP & CO., Auctioneers,

For Sale

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

Sacramento, September 11th, 1890.

THE FIRST DAY.

The State Fair has for years heen tbe only meeting in the State which could and did draw an immense crowd of people from the ontside regions, and this year proved no exception to the general rule, for despite the fact that the celebration of the Native Sons in San Francisco earlier in the week and the many other attractions offered, a large crowd was in Sacramento early in the week and kept gradually increasing. For two or three days the grand exhibits in the pavilion of the products of the Golden State drew innumerable spectators, all of them greatly interested in the magnificent displays of fruits, machinery, wines and other native products, while the Fair Grounds were daily crowded by interested spectators, farmers and tourists, who were astonished at the exceptionally high class of horses and cattle exhibited, several of the Eastern visitors saying without fear or favor that such a collection was rarely if ever seen in tbe East.

Despite the fact that the Palo Alto Stock Farm, Undine Stable, Santa Anita, Pleasanton and Valensin Stock Farms, Rancho Del Paso, Orrin A. Hickok and other prominent stables had most of their best horees in the East, a great collection of horses were found on the track, prominent among them being the Rosemeade Stable fresh from the East with W. Gardner in charge, two stables from Palo Alto, the runners in the veteran Henry Walsh's care, while the trotters were ably superintended by Richard Havey, Percy William's stable of trotters and runners, Appleby's more than useful string of runners, L. U. Shippee's runners and trotters, Matt. Storn's surprise stable of thoroughbreds, B. C. Holly's ever dangerous stable of trotters and a host of minor lights in the racing and trotting contingent, not forgetting the irrepressible Dan Dennison and Charlie Boots with the Elmwood Stable of hard bottom runners.

The energetic Secretary, Edwin F. Smith, attended to his many duties in his well known able manner and in his usual thoughtful way did not forget the members of the fourth estate as so many secretaries do, for the space reserved for reporters only in the grand stand was carefully arranged and ticketed, all the representative papers of tbe coast having a specially reserved space easy of access and free from the maddening crowd. The racing portion of the fair started on Thursday at 1:30 P. M., there being on the programme three races, the Occident Stake, a substitute for the 2:22 trotting purse and 2:30 pace.

The Classic Occident Stakes which is a trotting stake for three-year-olds to be entered as foals had originally fifty-three nominations, but owing to several being sold, including the Sidney filly Fleet who had a two-year-old record of 2:24 and the hundred and one other reasons only two made the final payment viz Palo Alto Stock Farm's b f Coral by Electioneer —Columbine by A. W. Richmond and Lot D. Slocum's b f Moss Rose by Anteeo—Luella by Nutwood. Coral is a full sister to tbe two great trotters Anteeo 2:16¼ and Antevolo 2:19½, while Moss Rose is by Anteeo 2:16¼ out of Luella by Nutwood 2:18¾. The sister to Anteeo proved too good for his daughter and won in easy style in straight heats and is evidently no disgrace to her illustrious relatives for she won the first heat in 2:39¼, the second in 2:28 and the third in 2:25, a complete reversal of her form at Oakland a fortnight ago when Lynette beat her easily in straight heats, in 2:30, 2:34, 2:36. Distance was courteously waived or Moss Rose would have been sent to the stable. Tbe 2:22 trot was declared off and as a substitute a purse of $800 was given for named horses three of which turned out viz., Palo Alto's Ladywell who obtained a record of 2:26 at Napa and again won in handy style at Oakland, P. Johnson's Sargent and T. C. Snyder's b m Vidette driven by Goldsmith.

Ladywell was made a red hot favorite and after losing the first heat to Sargent in 2:31¾, was in easy style in 2:25, 2:29¾ and 2:31. The 2:30 pace was supposed to be a certainty for the crack three-year-old pacer Rupee by Guy Wilkes - Sable Hayward by Poscora Hayward from Sable, the dam of Sable Wilkes and it proved to be correct for the three-year-old won in straight heats, in the exceptional time of 2:18½, 2:19½ and 2:20½.

The judges were H. M. La Rue, C. Green and F. Cox. Timers, F. C. DeLong, H. J. Agnew and F. P. Lowell. At 1:30 sharp Mr. La Rue rang the bell to call the horses out for the first race, The Occident Stake, founded by Senator Stanford and named after his well known trotter Occident 2:16¾. Only two horses came out Palo Alto Stock Farm's bay filly Coral, Electioneer—Columbine and L. D. Slocum by Moss Rose, Anteeo—Luella. Only one pool was sold at $50 for Coral to $6 for Moss Rose. The bell was rung on the third attempt Coral going away very well while Moss Rose found the pace too hot and left her feet twice before she got round the turn. Coral went up the backstretch ten lengths in front and Moss Rose breaking at the three furlongs increased it to fifteen and went round the upper turn with the same advantage hut slowing up down the homestretch won in almost a walk by seven lengths. Time, 2:39½. Mutuals paid $5.90

Second heat.—No pools were sold and after scoring up three times the bell was rung with Coral half a length behind but trotting very rapidly she went past Moss Rose at once and rounded the turn five lengths in the lead. Moss Rose broke on entering the back stretch and dropped back while Coral went right along and trotting squarely and rapidly passed the half in 1:13½ a hundred yards in front. Havey, evidently out for a record, kept the filly going and finished the mile without a skip or break in 2:28 with Moss Rose one hundred and fifty yards back. Time 2:28.

Third heat.—The word was given the second time up and again Moss Rose found the pace too hot and broke up before the turn while Havey sent the bay sister to Anteeo right along and moving in an exceptionally taking way, she never skipped or wavered passing the half in 1:12 and slackening up a little on the turn came down the stretch very strong with Havey doing his best and finished two hundred yards in front of Moss Rose. Time 2:25.

THE OCCIDENT STAKE.

For foals of 1887. Entries closed January 1, 1888. Entrance, $100, of which $10 must accompany nomination; $15 to be paid January 1, 1889; $25 January 1, 1890, and $50 thirty days before the race. The Occident Gold Cup, of the value of $400, to he added by the Society. First colt, cup and six tenths; second colt, three-tenths, and third colt, one-tenth of stake. Five to enter; three to start; otherwise National Trotting Association Rules. Mile heats, trotting, three in five, to harness. Closed in 1888 with fifty-three nominations. Value of stake $1,535

Time, 2:39¼, 2:28, 2:25.

Second Race—The substitute for the 2:22 class had originally five entries, but owing to some misunderstanding only three came out, viz , Palo Alto Stock Farm's h m Ladywell P. Johnson's g g Sargent, and T. C. Snyder's Vidette. Backers now being anxious to invest, rushed in, and pools sold at a lively rate, Ladywell bringing $30 to Sargent $8 and Vidette $8. The word was given the third time up with all three moving well. Ladywell set the pace, going round the turn two lengths in front of Sargent, with Vidette who broke before leaving the stretch, three lengths back. Sargent went right after the leader up the backstretch, and passed her before the half, and going on had three lengths advantage on the upper turn, when he broke, and Ladywell went past, leading him three lengths at the head of the homestretch. Sargent trotted squarely and fast down the stretch, and with Havey not urging the mare, passed him at the drawgate winning the heat by a length and a half, Vidette a bad third half a distance back. Time, 2:31¾. Mutuals paid $8.95.

Second heat—Despite the moderate showing made in the last heat, backers were not to be denied, and Ladywell brought $60 to $16 for the other two as a field. After coming up three times the word was given with all three going well. Ladywell left her feet before the turn and Sargent led two lengths into the backstretch, with Vidette last three lengths further back. Ladywell trotted fast and got to Sargent's wheel at the quarter, and was bead and head with him at the three-eighths, when she again broke and Sargent passed the half three lengths in front, with Vidette seven lengths in the rear. Ladywell decreased the lead round the upper turn, and gaining all the way down the stretch, took the lead at the drawgate and won handily by two lengths, Sargent second, and Vidette who barely saved distance third. Time, 2:25. Mutuals paid $6 10.

Third heat—There was now no betting and the word was given the sixth time up. Ladywell at once took the lead and trotting very steadily lead Sargeant two lengths round the turn with Vidette, who broke handily, two lengths back. The order was unchanged all the way, Ladywell winning without a skip or break by three lengths, Sargent second and Vidette a moderate third. Time 2:29¾. Mutuals paid $5.20.

Fourth heat—Very little interest was taken in the heat and neither pools or mutuals were sold. When the word was given Ladywell trotted away from Sargent, going round the turn four lengths in front and retained her advantage until a furlong from home, when Havey let up on her and won by a length from Sargent, with Vidette a bad third Time, 2:31.

Time, 2:31¾, 2:25, 2:29¾, 2:31.

First heat, 2:20 pacing—Six horses faced the music, viz., San Mateo's Rupee, J. Patterson's Princess Alice, H. Wilke's Our Dick, John Garrity's Hummer, S. C. Tryon's Costillo and C. W. Godar's C. W. G. With the exception of Our Dick C. W. G. and Cortillo, Rupee had readily beaten the field at Napa, Petaluma and Oakland, consequently he was made a big favorite at $50 to $15 for Our Dick and $10 for the field. After coming up twice Hummer and Prince Alice collided, but luckily no damage was done, and a start was effected the fourth time up, Alice going away at a great rate. Princess as usual at once made a bid for the lead, while C. W. G. pulled behind. Princess had half a length the best of Hummer, who, however, caught her at the quarter which they passed four lengths in front of Rupee, two in front of Our Dick, seven lengths in front of C. W. G. with Costello last. Hummer and Alice both broke up the back stretch, hut catching handily passed the half head and head three lengths who was in front of Rupee, the same distance ahead of Our Dick. Hummer drew away from Princess Alice in the turn, the order at the head of the stretch being Hummer, Princess Alice and Rupee a length apart, Our Dick three lengths back and the other pair out of it. Hummer broke badly in the stretch and Our Dick on the inside, Rupee next and Princess on the outside stayed together to the drawgate, when Rupee sharpened up, and drawing away, won by three lengths, Princess Alice second four lengths in front of Our Dick two lengths in front of Hummer. C. W. G. and Costillo distanced, the latter having one trace loose, which broke him all to pieces. Time, 2:18½. Mutuals paid $15.15.

Second heat—No pools could be sold, so the mutuals were the only thing to be used. After coming up twice the word was given. Princess Alice again made bold bid for the lead, but Rupee on the inside stayed with her all around the turn, passing the quarter level, with Dick three lengths back and Hummer, who broke before the turn, four lengths in the rear. Rupee slowly but surely drew away, passing the half a good length in front of Princess Alice, two lengths ahead of Hummer, with Dick running at his wheel. Rupee increased his lead round the turn, swinging into the stretch three lengths in front of Alice, with Hummer at her wheel; the latter went right up to Alice a furlong from home, but broke at the distance and fell back, while Rupee won cleverly by three lengths, Princess Alice the same distance ahead of Hummer, ten lengths in front of Dick. Time, 2:19. Mutuals paid $6.70.

Third heat—No pools, no mutuals. After scoring up half a dozen times, the word was given. Rupee and Alice again went out together round the turn, passing the quarter half a length apart, with Dick two lengths back, and two in front of Hummer. Our Dick made his effort up the backstretch, and passed Princess—who was stopping—before reaching the half, which Rupee passed two lengths in front. Round the turn Rupee drew further away, turning into the homestretch three lengths in front of Dick, half a length in front of Alice, with Hummer at her wheel. Half way down the stretch Rupee broke and swerved to the inside, and when Goldsmith had him squared out again, Dick was a length in front, but Rupee would not be denied, and finishing very gamely, he won the heat by a big length, Our Dick second, five lengths in front of Hummer, who was two lengths in advance of Alice. Time, 2:20½.

SECOND DAY, FRIDAY, SEPT. 12.

Judges.—H. M. La Rue, C. Green and E. C. Singletary.
Starter.—Jas. Sheldon.

The second day of the fair was much better patronized than the first. In the morning the ladies riding tournament drew a large crowd to the Park to see the various exercises tilting at the ring, hurdle jumping, etc., indulged in by the thirteen accomplished equestrienes while the afternoon was devoted to the thoroughbred brigade. Four races were on the programme, the first a six furlong scramble for two year olds had nineteen entries but only two came to the post, Palo Alto bay colt Nero who won two races at Oakland and L. J. Rose's Palo Alto bred Fairy, who had the worst of the weights carrying 118 lbs. to Nero 118. The filly, however, simply played with Nero to the head of the stretch when she came away winning as she pleased. The second race, the California Breeders Stake one mile and a quarter had only two starters L. U. Shippee's bay filly Mabel F and C. Boots bay filly Initiation. The former after running five or six lengths behind for the first mile closed up and won cleverly. The third race (The Rosemeade Handicap) one mile and a furlong proved a very heavy betting race, six well known horses facing the starter Peel carrying top weight 122, Tycoon 120, Carmen 117, Lurline 115, Alfarata 112 and Picnic 107. Peel was made a big favorite in the overnight pools but on the track Appleby's Stable (Carmen and Alfarata) were installed first choice and then the field (Tycoon, Picnic and Lurline) sold choice, while when the horses were at the post all three sold about even up. Appleby sent Alfarata out to make the pace and right well did she do it, but Tycoon ridden from start to finish hung on to her for three quarters of a mile, and then took the lead and in exactly the same way as at Oakland won the race by sheer gameness. Carmen who laid a little too far back came with a rush in the stretch just too late to get the place, while Peel who got a little the worst of the start was never prominent. The last was really a gift for Applause who won in straight heats in the easiest possible way. Of course no one attempted to buy the winner.

First race.—The opening scramble had only two starters L. J. Rose's Fairy, and Palo Alto Stables Nero. Pools sold very slowly at $25 Fairy, to $16 for Nero. The flag fell on the first attempt with both well under way. They ran together for a hundred yards when Fairy began to draw away and slowly but surely opened out a gap of two lengths on the upper turn and despite a vigorous effort by Harris on Nero the filly won cleverly by a length and a half. Time 1:15½. Mutuals paid $9 20.

SUMMARY.

Opening Scramble.—For two-year olds; a sweepstake of $25 each; $15 forfeit, or only $10 if declared on or before September first; with $350 added; of which $50 to second. Winners at this distance in 1890, once, to carry three pounds; twice, five pounds extra. Maidens allowed five pounds 19 entries. Three quarters of a mile.

Second race. The California Breeders' Stake for three-year-olds which closed in 1888 with thirty-nine subscribers had only two starters; L. U. Shippee's b f Mabel F. and Charles Boots' aptly named b f Initiation. Mabel F was made a warm favorite at $25 to $12 for Initiation who was ridden by Casey, who had not been seen in the saddle since his accident in Los Angeles on Abi. The flag fell at the second attempt, Casey setting the pace passed the stand seven lengths in front of Mabel, and retained his advantage round the lower turn, after which Mabel closed up gradually, getting to within a length and a half at the head of the stretch, and catching Initiation a furlong from home soon had her in trouble, winning easily at the finish by two lengths. Time, 2.11½. Mutuals paid $6.35.

SUMMARY.

The California Breeders' Stake—A sweepstake for three-year-olds (foals of 1887) to be run at State Fair, 1890 $100 each, h f, or only $10 if declared January 1st, $15 May 1st, or $25 August 1st, 1890. Declarations void unless accompanied by the money; with $600 added, of which $120 to second, $110 to third. Winner of any stake race in 1890, of the value of $1,000 to carry five pounds; of two or more ten pounds extra. Maidens allowed five pounds, of whom 14 declared at $20, two at $15 and three at $25. Third Race.—The Rosemeade Handicap had six starters, Peel 122, Tycoon 120, Carmen 117, Alfarata 112, Lurline 115, and Picnic 107. Peel sold first choice for some time, but eventually Peel, Appleby's stable and the others as a field, sold even up, $30 for each. After half a dozen breakaways the flag was dropped with all well together. Alfarata rushed to the front with Tycoon hard ridden half a length back and three lengths in front of the others, Carmen last. Alfarata kept her lead round the turn and to the half with Tycoon ridden desperately to keep up. Peel was two lengths behind and just in front of Picnic and Carmen. Tycoon obtained a length the best of it round the turn, and though vigorously challenged by Alfarata and then Picnic, was ridden clean out by a length, Picnic a head in front of Carmen who came with a rush, Peel three lengths back was fourth, and Lurline fifth. Alfarata who died away in the last a hundred yards last. Time, 1.55. Mutuals paid on Tycoon straight $21:30, and for place $9.40, while Picnic paid $27.30 for place.

SUMMARY.

ONE MILE AND REPEAT.

First heat—Pools sold slowly, Applause $40. Wild Oats $10 and the field $10. A slight delay was caused by the fractious Forester but the flag was dropped to a fair start, Albatross and Applause going out together while Larghetta and Forester were ridden hard round the turn to keep up. Applause passed the quarter with Albatross at his side three lengths in front of Installation, same distance in front of Larghetta and the rest in a heap. They were all strung out up the backstretch, Applause having a length the best of Albatross while Installation two lengths back was three in front of Larghetta, same distance in front of Wild Oats. Installation passed Albatross round the turn but could never catch Applause who won easily by two lengths, Installation two lengths in front of Wild Oats who came with a rush and just beat Larghetta on the post for third place. Time, 1:43. Mutuals paid $7 05 on Applause.

Second heat—A few pools were sold at $25 Applause, to $5 for the whole field. After three or four breakaways the flag was dropped, Albatross and Applause going out in front while Forester and Larghetta caught it round the turn to keep up. At the quarter Applause was two lengths in front of Albatross with Installation close up second and Wild Oats three lengths back fourth. Albatross had shot his bolt and dropped back while Applause passed the half three lengths in front of Installation, five lengths ahead of Wild Oats. Applause never headed won easily by three lengths, Wild Oats second four lengths in front of Larghetta, a length in front of Forester, half a dozen lengths in front of Albatross. Time, 1:43¼. Mutuals paid $6 70 on Applause.

SUMMARY.

THIRD DAY, SATURDAY, SEPT. 13TH.

The day opened out very well, the stock parade in the morning and the trotting in the afternoon, attracting large crowds. The stock parade—the best held during the fair—was acknowledged by every one to be one of the grandest sights ever seen in a show ring, thoroughbreds, trotters and horses of every description being represented by worthy specimens of their breed. The procession started at 10.30 with Marshal C. J. Cox in the lead, followed by Col. Jas. McNasser's pair of chestnut road horses, and then standard trotters, road horses and other light horses of all descriptions in harness, while immediately after them came the thoroughbred brigade, led by Dr. W. G. Ross' imported bay stallion Cheviot by Traducer, from Idalia by Cambuscan, and therefore an own brother to Rancho Del Paso's celebrated Sir Modred. Immediately after him came W. B. Todhunter's bay stallion Prince of Norfolk by Norfolk, from Marion, and consequently own brother to the Emperor, Duke, El Rio Rey, Rey Del Rey. Senator Stanford's well known three-year-old Flamheau followed in the rear and was carefully pointed out to the eager spectators as one of the might-have-beens had his leg stood the preparation. After the thoroughbred mares and foals and all ages had filed past, standard trotters came past in grand style, stretching out nearly a quarter of a mile, and then came the Cleveland Bays, Clydes, Percherons, Normans and horses of all work, with several useful looking jacks, jennies and mules at the end of the procession. The cattle parade was led by C. Younger & Sons twenty-eight head of grand looking Shorthorns, followed by P. S. Chiles with seven, P. H. Murphy's thirteen head, P. Peterson showing twenty head, Heilbron Bros. twenty five head of Shorthorns from Fresno, R. McEnespy of Chico followed with seven good-looking Devons. Dr. G. M. Dixon's Argonant herd of fourteen Polled Angus, and Aberdeen cattle were next in line, followed by J. E. Camp with thirteen of the same breed. W. Gibson of Woodland was next at line with nine heavy looking Galloways, and then came F. H. Burke's grand herd of Holstein Freisians, followed by the Hall Stock Farm, Marysville, with twenty head of the same breed, and the Bonnie Brae Co., Hollister, with seven head, and G. B. Polhemus' magnificent herd of sixteen black and whites. Geo. Bement of Oakland fell into line with twelve representative Ayrshires; A. Heilbron had twenty good representatives of the white faces (Herefords) T. T. Ward of Oakland, nine jerseys, W. C. Smith of Florin eight of the same pretty looking cattle and P. Stanton seven dainty looking jerseys, and L. F. Eaton five of the same breed.

The cattle, all round, were said by all old-timers to excell all previous parades held in Sacramento. In the afternoon Messrs. H. M LaRue, John Boggs and Christopher Green officisted as judges, while F. C. DeLong, H. J. Agnew and F. P. Lowell occupied the timer's stand. Three races were on the programme. The first, a two-year-old trotting stake, had fourteen nominations, but only three paid up entries, and one of these, the Palo Alto entry, failed to come to the post. The race was a gift for Vida Wilkes, who obtained a record of 2:28 at Petaluma, and after going easy the first heat in 2:42½, Goldsmith sent the good looking daughter of Guy Wilkes and Vixen a merry clip, and distanced Mr. Harris' filly in 2:31¼.

The second race, which took the place of the Pacific Stallion Stake, which failed to fill, had four entries, Percy Williams' Beaury Mc, driven by Goldsmith, was made a hot favorite over Pink, Wanda and Mary Lou. Beaury Mc won the first heat cleverly in 2:19¼, but breaking on the turn in the second heat, laid up the heat, which Wanda took in 2:22; Beaury then wound it up in good style.

The 2:30 class, which had thirteen entries, of which four came to the post, viz, Frank M., who went such a great race at Chico, Silas Skinner, the Napa and Oakland victor, Balkan and Lee. Frank M. was made a big favorite, but lost the first two heats to Skinner, being beaten a head each time in 2:20 and 2:19; Frank then took the third heat a head in front of Skinner in 2:21, Balkan, showing up well, was separately timed in 2:22. The fourth heat was trotted in semi-darkness, Skinner winning in the last stride by a head, but was set back to third, and the race postponed.

First race—The two-year-old stake had three paid up entries: San Mateo Stock Farm's Vida Wilkes, Palo Alto Stock Farm's Elleneer and B. C. Harris' Starlight. The Palo Alto entry was drawn over-night, and as Vida Wilkes had beaten Starlight with ridiculous ease at Petaluma, no pools could be sold. In the first heat Goldsmith jogged his filly round four lengths in front of Starlight, and quickening up the last hundred yards, won by seven lengths. Time, 2:42½.

Second heat—Goldsmith went away directly the word was given, and had fifteen lengths lead on entering the backstretch, but lost six of it when the filly broke at the quarter; she went away again rapidly, and was more than a distance ahead at the three-quarters, when she again broke, but settling down, Goldsmith drove her home in 2:31¾, Starlight seven lengths, having run from half way round the turn, and consequently distanced. Time, 2.31¼.

SUMMARY.

Two-year-old trotting stake—Entrance $50, of which $10 must accompany nomination; $15 payable July 1st, remaining $25 August 10, 1890; $300 added by the society. Closed March 15, 1890, with fourteen nominations. Three paid up entries. Total value of stake, $605. Mile heats.

Second race—For named horses, had four starters: Beaury Mc, Wanda, Mary Lou and Pink, on the strength of his good performance behind Skinner at Oakland, Beaury Mc was made a red-hot favorite at $30 to $6 for Wanda and $7 for the field. Beaury Mc was driven by Goldsmith. Mary Lou had the pole, Wanda next, then Beaury, and Pink outside. The word was given the third time up, with Mary Lou off her feet, but catching readily, she was only half a length behind Wanda on the turn, with Beaury Mc a length behind and Pink three lengths back; Wanda drew away, passing the half two lengths in front of Beaury, who was half in front of Mary Lou. Wanda and Beaury went away from the others on the turn, and rounded into the homestretch with Wanda a length in front, Beaury second, seven lengths in front of Pink. Beaury went up to Wanda an eighth of a mile from home, and going very steady, beat her out by a good length, Mary Lou third, seventy yards back, and Pink last. Time, 2:19¾. Mutuals paid $13.50.

Second heat—Pools sold: $30 Beaury Mc to $6 for the whole field, until the fielder quit and poolselling stopped. After scoring half a dozen times, Wanda coming in front of the pole horse and Lou generally breaking, the word was given, with Mary Lou two lengths in front. Beaury Mc broke all to pieces before the turn, and Mary Lou, with Wanda at her wheel, turned into the backstretch five lengths in front of Pink, eight lengths ahead of Beaury Mc. Mary Lou and Wanda kept together all the way up the backstretch, Round the turn Lou had about a length the best of it, but just past the three-quarters Wanda collared her, and Lou broke, running head and head with Wanda for forty yards before she struck a trot, but when she did she came fast, but broke again before the wire, losing by a length, Pink a bad third and Beaury Mc just inside the flag. Time, 2:22. Mutuals paid $16.20.

Third heat—Pools sold rapidly at $30 for Beaury Mo to $6 for the whole field. Pink came out very lame, but warmed out of it a little, though she went very feelingly when going slow after scoring. The word was given the seventh time up. Wanda and Mary Lou went round the turn three lengths in front of Beaury, five lengtbs ahead of Pink. Lou broke before the quarter and was two lengths behind Wanda when the latter left her feet and Beaury went past the pair, being half a length in front of Lou at the half, with Wanda five lengths back and Pink forty yards behind. Beaury and Lou trotted togetber round the turn, but when fairly straightened out the gelding came away, winning readily by four lengths, Lou seven lengths in front of Wanda, and Pink who jogged home very lame distanced. Time, 2:24. Mutuals paid $6.65.

Fourth heat—No pools sold. The word was given the second time up. Mary Lon broke almost immediately and ran head and head with the otber pair to the quarter, where she canght and dropped back, while Wanda shot out a length in front of Beaury Mc who however passed her again at the half and led a length and a half round the turn with Lou, who ran round the turn two lengths behind. Down the stretcb it looked an easy thing for Beaury Mc, bnt he stopped badly the last hundred yards, and Goldsmith bad all he could do to squeeze him home a length in front of Wanda, a head in front of Mary Lou wbo was trotting twice as fast as the others. Time, 2:24. Mntuals paid $5.70.

The trotting purse for the 2:30 class had only four starters T. Keating's Frank M, Dustin's Lee, Irving Ayer's Balkan, and I. DeTurk's Silas Skinner. Frank M on the strength of his great race at Chico with Vic H in which five heats were trotted in 2:19, 2:18½, 2:17½, 2:18 and 2:20½, Frank taking the first, second and fifth. was made overnight favorite at $50 to $30 for Silas Skinner, the Napa and Oakland winner, and $4 for Balkan (driven by Goldsmith) and Lee, when the four came out on the track for the first heat. After the third beat of the special Frank gradually got to be a hotter favorite eventually bringing $50 to $25 for the whole field. Balkan who lathered freely scored up rather rank but when Goldsmith got him settled he came up well with the others, but the start was delayed for some time by Lee who had the pole and could not come up fast enough. After scoring for twenty minutes the word was given with Balkan a lengtb behind. Frank M and Skinner went round the turn head and head but the pace proved too hot for Frank M who broke at the quarter and Skinner had four lengths lead with Frank M and Lee close together, and Balkan who broke on entering the back stretcb four lengths back. Lee went right up to Skinner and just after the half was two lengths in front of Skinner and Frank M who were level, ten lengths in front of Balkan. Lee kept his advantage to the head of the stretch when he broke and Skinner and Frank M fought out the heat but the black would not be denied and won. After a close race for the last furlong by a head, Lee a bad third and Balkan just behind him on a break. Time 2:20. Mutuals paid $11.90.

Second heat.—Pools sold very lively at $30 Frank M to $15 for the whole field. The word was given tbe third time up Skinner going right out had five lengths lead at tbe furlong pole, and at the quarter had increased it to six lengths Frank M second four lengths in front of Lee who broke and let Balkan past. Frank M gained on Skinner all the way up the back stretch going round the upper turn a lengtb and a half behind with Balkan five lengths back, and Lee six lengths further back. Skinner turned into the stretch a length in front of Frank who closed up to him at the drawgate but Skinner drew out again and beat him by a head, Lee a bad third and Balkan fourtb. Time 2:19. Mutuals paid $15.60.

Third heat- Pools changed altogetber, the field selling choice for $50 to $32 for Silas Skinner and finally settling down to $50 Skinner to $20 for the field when it could be found. A long time was wasted in scoring up first one and then another would come up behind or on a break until at a quarter past six the twelfth time up the word was given with Balkan behind. Skinner went out fast going round the turn a length in front of Frank M. but breaking was passed by Frank wbo went past the quarter tbree lengtbs in front of Skinner with Balkan six lengths back, four in front of Lee. Frank increased his advantage up the backstretch and round the upper turn swinging into the stretch seven lengths in front of Skinner, six lengths ahead of Balkan, five in front of Lee. Skinner closed up gradually and inside the drawgate came witb a rush just failing to get up by a head and going much the quickest, Balkan was six lengths back third, Lee fourth. Time, 2:21. Mutuals paid $7.40.

Fourth heat—It was now almost dark and very little could really be seen of the heat but the judges stationed patrol judges round the track. The word was given tbe second time up, and all four went away well Skinner broke before the turn and dropped back while Frank M. and Balkan set the pace passing the quarter a length and a half apart, with Skinner four lengths back and Lee five further in tbe rear, Balkan showing greatly improved form kept within a length and a half of Frank all the way to the head of the stretch and was going much the best down the straight until a furlong from home when he broke and Frank looked a sure winner but Skinner coming with a rush beat him on the post by the shortest of heads Balkan three lengths back and Lee eight lengths in the rear. The patrol judges stated that Skinner had run a good deal and he was consequently set back to third position and the race postponed to Monday. Time, 2:26.

The fifth heat of the unfinished trot was called up after the running races on Monday. Very few pools were sold at $30 Skinner to $25 for the field. After coming up half a dozen times the word was given, with Balkan and Lee a length behind. Balkan broke all to pieces before the turn, and Frank went round the turn with Skinner at his head; the black straightened out when in the backstretch, and took the pole, passing the half a length in front of Frank, five lengths ahead of Lee, with Balkan again off his feet. Frank closed up round tbe turn, and was only half a length behind at the head of the stretch, but breaking, let Skinner get three lengths in front, and the black looked all over a winner, bnt breaking at the drawgate, swerved into the fence, and did not catch in time, losing by a length, running under the wire, Lee a bad third and Balkan just in. Time, 2:23. Mutuals paid $9.10.

FOURTH DAY, MONDAY, SEPT. 15TH.

A much better crowd turned out in the morning and in the afternoon one of tbe old time Sacramento gatherings was to be found on the track. The morning programme included a grand exhibition by expert vaqueros who rode bucking horses and showed exceptional artistic work with the riata. The afternoon programme had four running races and the unfinished trot. The first race was the Daisy D. Stakes for all ages, six furlongs. Carmen was made a big favorite with Daisy D. choice and the rest as a field. Unfortunately Carmen, Peregrine and Picnic ran the full course in a false start and had to return to the post at once and the flag being soon dropped there was only one in it. After the first two hundred yards as the two-year-old danghter of Three Cheers and Rosette—a sister to Daisy D. simply galloped away from them. No one was too blame for tbe first start but the boys for the advance flag was never dropped and was in plain view; probably the riders will learn a good lesson from the result and not watch one another in future. The second race was supposed to be a good thing for Marigold but she only just got home from Rico and Take Notice, a good looking son of Prince of Charlie. The two-year-old race was a gift for Fairy but the start was very bad and probably lost Mystery the place. The fourth race was a good thing for Applause who won all the way and had Father William Daly been here the owners would have had to buy him in but selling races are only selling in name in California and might almost be as well called Owners Handicaps. The unfinished trot only required one heat to finish it, although when Frank M. broke at the head of the stretch Skinner had a good thing had McGraw kept him down. Judges—H. M. La Rue, C. Green and J. Boggs. Starter—Jas. Sheldon.

First race—The Daisy D. stakes, six furlongs, had originally 20 entries, but five turned out: Peregrine, 122, Daisy D., Picnic and Carmen 119, and Acclaim 93. Pools sold with Carmen and Daisy D. out of the field, the tbree tickets selling evenly $30 each for some time, but weight of money gradually brought Carmen to the front, and the last few pools sold at Carmen $40, Daisy D. $22 and the field $18. After one breakaway Carmen, Daisy D. and Picnic ran the full course, imagining it was a start, while Peregrine followed seven lengths behind. The leading trio were slowed up a hundred yards from the stand, being then about level. They were at once sent back to tbe starting post, and a few pools were sold at Carmen $50, the field $21 and Daisy $9. After one breakaway the flag was dropped, with Peregrine and Picnic a length behind. Daisy D. showed tbree-quarters of a length in front of Carmen and Acclaim, but the two-year-old rushed to the front, leading a lengtb past the half, with Carmen three lengtbs in front of Daisy, two in advance of Picnic, just clear of Peregrine. Round the turn Acclaim increased her lead, and turned into the stretch seven lengths in front of Carmen, tbree lengths ahead of Daisy D., with Peregrine close up and Picnic between. Acclaim galloped further away down the stretch, and simply romped home exactly sixty yards in front of Carmen; three lengths back came Peregrine, ridden out witb Daisy D. seven lengths further back, and Picnic beaten off. Time, 1:16½. Mutuals paid $15.90 on the field for place; Acclaim $11.95 and Carmen $7.60.

SUMMARY.

The Daisy D. Stake—For all ages; of $50 each, half forfeit, or only $15 if declared on or before Sept. 1st; with $350 added, of which $75 to second, third to save stake. Maidens, if three years old. allowed five pounds, if four or more, seven pounds. 20 entries. Three-quarters of a mile.

* Carried 93.

Second race—The Capital City Stake had ten entries, five of which started: Marigold, 110; Rico, 118; Captain Al, 118; Raindrop, 115; Take Notice, 110. The public soon made Marigold favorite at $100 to $51 for Rico, $47 Captain Al and $31 for the field. After selling for some time, betting settled down witb Marigold $50, Rico $23, Captain Al $16 and the field $17.

The flag was dropped to a beautiful start the second time up Marigold and Raindrop rushed to the front, passing the stand two lengths in front of Rico, and Take Notice a length in front of Captain Al. Raindrop set the pace round the turn going up the back stretch two lengths in front of Marigold with Captain Al and Rico a length back and Take Notice at their heels, half way down the back stretch Marigold went up to Raindrop's neck and passed her before the turn with Captain Al close up and Rico three lengths back and Take Notice two lengths in the rear. Marigold turned into the stretch a good lengtb in front of Captain Al and Raindrop four lengths in front of Take Notice and Rico. Marigold looked an easy winner half way down tbe stretch but Ricocame up on the inside and then Take Notice on the outside. and after a hard finish Marigold won by a short length, a dead heat for second between Take Notice and Rico three lengths in front of Raindrop. Time, 1:49¼. Mutuals paid $9 straight; for place on Marigold, $6; Rico, $5.80; Take Notice, $8 90.

The third race, the Sunny Slope Stake for two year old fillies had originally twenty entries but only three started, L. J. Rose's Fairy, J. B. Chase's Mystery and Palo Alto's Tearless. Fairy was barred in the pools and the other two sold at $25 each. After one breakaway the flag was dropped to a very moderate start, Fairy leading three lengths the best of Tearless who had the same advantage of Mystery. Mystery closed up to Tearless round the turn and both caught the whip from the head of the stretch to the drawgate, but it was perfectly useless for Fairy won ridiculously easy by four lengths, Tearless beating Mystery two lengths for the place. Time, 1:01¾. Mutuals paid $6.20 on Fairy and $10.40 on Tearless for place.

Fourth race—Selling race, one mile and one furlong, had six starters, Applause 108, Kildare 108, Mohawk 115, Wild Oats 102, Albatross 106, and Nerva 99. Applause had been running so well lately that he was made a big favorite at $100 to $41 for Kildare and $20 for the field. After a very short delay the flag was dropped to a beautiful start. Kildare was quickest on his legs, but at the stand Nerva on the rails, Kildare next and Applause outside, were head and head three lengths in front of Albatross, a length in front of Mohawk, same distance ahead of Wild Oats. Applause went to the front round the turn and passed the quarter a length in front of Nerva, just clear of Kildare, who moved up to Nerva at the half, being then two lengths behind Applause, who increased his lead round the upper turn and won easily by four lengths, while Nerva who had dropped back on the turn, came again in the stretch and beat Kildare three lengths for the place, Wild Oats a length back fourth, seven lengths in front of Albatross, three lengths in advance of Mohawk. Time, 1:56½. Mutuals paid $7.65. Applause place $7.45, Nerva $27.20.

FIFTH DAY, TUESDAY, SEPT. 16th.

A large crowd—in fact the best of the meeting—congregated on the track in the early morning to witness the stock parade and the baloon ascent, while in the afternoon the assemblage was still better being increased by a large number of San Francisco and outside people who came up on the morning train. Four races were on the programme for the afternoon, three trotting and one pacing. The first race for three year olds was supposed to be a certainty for the hithertoo, invincible Lynette but she seemed unable to get round the first turn and Lottery Ticket won in straight heats pretty handily, though Millie Wilkes was well in it in the third heat when she broke in the stretch and might have pulled off the race as Lottery was tiring perceptibly.

The second race was also won in straight heats, Geo. Washington having an easy thing, the Pale Alto mare Laureola being dead off. The special pace was won by Hummer in straight beats in exceptionally good time. After the second heat the Judges thinking that none of the horses were out except Hummer driven by Goldsmith and Belle Buton by Biglow, took the other three drivers down, and the last heat showed a marked improvement in time which was probably accounted for by the difference in the drivers as Dustin and McDowell are certainly a great deal better than McCord and Kesting and irrespective of that Winslow did a good deal of tall running, thereby forcing Hummer out faster than he cared to go for he stopped rapidly at the finish. Vic H turned out the certainty she was expected to for the last race and Derby beat Una Wilkes for the place, though had the filly been right she would probably have taken second money.

Judges.—H. M. LaRue, C. Green, and T. M. Boggs.

Timers.—L. J. Rose, H. J. Agnew and C. S. Crittenden.

First heat—Three-year-old class. Three horses turned out for the race and pools sold lively at $100 Lynette, $38 Frank B. and $30 for the field. After coming up once the word was given and all four went out together to the turn when Lynette broke and Frank B. went right away from the others passing the three furlong post four lengths in front of Lottery with Millie Wilkes six lengths behind and Lynette five lengths further back. Frank B. made a standstill break and dropped back last Lottery passing the half ten lengths in front of Millie Wilkes and Lynette just clear of Frank. Lottery increased his lead round the turn and coming right along won by eighty yards with Lynette two lengths in front of Millie Wilkes and Frank just outside the flag. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid $41.65.

Second heat—Pools sold slowly at $40 for Lynette to $21 for the field. The word was given the third time up with Lottery a length behind but going fast he collared her and carried her off her feet before the turn and went round the turn a length in front of Millie Wilkes, four lengths in advance of Lynette. Lottery increased his position all the way up the backstretch and round the upper turn coming into the homestretch five lengths in front of Millie Wilkes, two lengths in front of Lynette. Ober made a drive for the heat but finding he could not make it slowed down and Lottery Ticket won the heat three lengths in front of Millie Wilkes, four lengths in front of Lynette. Time, 2.31½. Mutuals paid $13.10.

Third heat—Poole sold rapidly as the backers of the favorite wanted to hedge the field selling choice at $70 to $26 for Lynette. The word was given the third time up Millie Wilkes going well took the pole on the turn and passed the furlong post three furlongs in front of Lottery Ticket, the same distance ahead of Lynette who broke all to pieces and dropped out of the race. Lottery gradually closed up to Millie Wilkes getting within a length at the head of the homestretch when he broke and swerving into the fence caught again and coming fast got to the Wilkes filly's head just inside the seven furlongs and the mare broke, but catching made a big effort for the heat but unfortunately breaking again fifty yards from the wire. Lottery Ticket won the heat and race by two lengths, Lynette a bad last. Time 2:32½. Mutuals paid $8.35.

Time, 2:30, 2:31½, 2:32½.

First heat—2:30 class. No poole were sold, as the pool-sellers were busy on the third heat of the three-year-old trot, which came immediately after the heat. The word was given the second time up. Laureola, on the outside, gradually worked her way to the front, passing the quarter half a length in front, and with Washington breaking just before the three furlong post, the Palo Alto mare passed the half eight lengths in front of him, and kept her lead to the turn, when Havey took her back, and Washington trotting steadily down the stretch, won the heat on suffrance by three lengths. Time, 2:30½. No mutuals sold.

Second heat—A few pools were sold at $90 Washington to $27 for Laureola. The word was given the second time up. Both went well to the turn when Laureola broke, and Washington went away, going up the backstretch ten lengths in front. Laureola closed up a little on the upper turn, but broke again before the three-quarters, and going up again in the stretch, Washington won in a jog by fifty yards. Time, 2:37½. Mutuals paid $6.95.

Third heat—No pools sold. The word was given the second time up, and again Laureola broke before the turn, and Washington had a big lead in the backstretch, but Laureola trotted very steadily, and gaining all the way, was at his head on the upper turn when he broke, and Laureola led him three lengths into the stretch, but breaking all to pieces, Washington won the heat, pulling up fifty yards in front. Time, 2:32½.

Time, 2:30½, 2:37½, 2:34½.

First heat—Pacing, special, had five entries: Hummer, Belle Button, Thos. Ryder, Ned Winslow and Sunrise. Betting was fast and furious, Hummer going to the post favorite at $50 to $30 for the field and $15 for Winslow. After scoring up a few times the bell was tapped; Ryder going away rapidly, set the pace round the turn, and going very steadily, had three lengths' lead into the backstretch, with Hummer second, four lengths in front of Winslow, who broke just after the quarter and dropped back, while Hummer closed up a little on Ryder, passing the half two lengths behind him and twenty lengths in front of Winslow. Hummer got to Ryder's wheel at the head of the stretch, and had him beaten half way down, and going on, won handily by four lengths, Ryder second, ten lengths in front of Winslow, three lengths in front of Button, with Sunrise hard run to save distance. Time, 2:20½. Mutuals paid $12 60.

Second heat--Pools sold with Hummer s still bigger favorite, bringing $70 to $24 for Winslow and $14 for the field. A start was effected the third time up; Hummer and Winslow going away fast, went round the turn together, but when fairly into the backstretch, Hummer was a length in front, with Ryder three lengths back, just in front of Sunrise, three lengths in front of Button. Winslow made a handy break or two on the backstretch and round the upper turn, but kept within a couple of lengths of Hummer, who beat him cleverly down the homestretch, going under the wire two lengths in front, with Button, fifty yards back, third, Sunrise fourth and Ryder pulling up last. Time, 2:20. Mutuals paid $8.05.

Third heat—The judges changed all the drivers except Goldsmith and Biglow. Mr. Dowell was put up behind Ryder, Havey behind Sunrise, and Dustin drove Winslow. No pools were sold. The word was given the third time up with Ryder a length in front and Winslow nearly a length in front of the pole house. Winslow broke but did not lose his position, and going fast took the pole before the turn, passing the furlong pole half a length in front of Ryder with Hummer three lengths back and Button one length behind Sunrise last. Winslow left his feet at the quarter, but gained, if anything, and was a length in front of Ryder, and going on increased his lead to two lengths at the half, with Hummer two lengths behind Ryder. Goldsmith went up to Rider in the turn and Winslow again broke, running twenty yards with Hummer pacing at his side down the stretch. Hummer looked all over a winner, and whips were cracking all round. Winslow, finishing well, just beat Hummer, who stopped a little at the finish under the wire by a head, Ryder third four lengths back, and three lengths further back came Button, with Sunrise run hard just inside. Winslow was set back to second place for running. Time, 2:18½. Mutuals paid $7.30.

First heat—Four starters, Vic H, Una Wilkes, Charles Derby and Free Coinage. Poole sold slowly at $60 Vic H to $12 for the field. A good deal of time was wasted, as Free Coinage was slow scoring up and refused to come back after scoring, eventually Brandow nodded for the word seven lengths behind. Vic broke before the turn and Una Wilkes passed the furlong post three lengths in front of Derby, the same distance ahead of Vic who settled down, and going well, took second place two lengths behind Una at the quarter, and in the next hundred yards took the lead and passed the half five lengths in front, Una a length and a half in front of Derby. The race was now all over, as Vic was never headed, winning pulling up three lengths in front of Charles Derby, who, after a hard race, broke just before the wire and ran a neck in front of Una, who obtained second place, Derby put back. Free Coinage was a furlong back distanced. Time, 2:22½. Mutuals paid $6.65.

Second heat—No pools sold. The word was given the second time up. Wilkes broke on the turn, while Derby trotted steadily, lapped on to Vic until well round, when he broke all to pieces, and Vic went clean away, leading past the half by seven lengths, Una Wilkes three lengths in front of Derby, who had caught and was coming up fast, and gradually closing up he was at Goldsmith's wheel all the way down the stretch, and when Una broke at the drawgate he passed her, getting second place two lengths behind, Vic H pulling up. Time, 2:23. Una Wilkes and C. Derby paid $12.95.

Third heat. No pools sold. The word was given the third time up and Derby going away well led two lengths on the turn with Una three lengths further back, Vic closed up rapidly directly she struck the back stretch and went past just after the quarter leading three lengths at the half with Una five lengths in the rear, and though Goldsmith decreased the lead round the turn Derby and Holly always held him safe, Vic winning easily by four lengths, Derby three lengths in front of Una. Time, 2:21½. Mutuals paid $8.50 on Derby for the place.

SIXTH DAY, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17TH.

Judges—H. M. LaRue, C. Green and J. D. Carr.

Starter—J. Shelton.

A large crowd turned out in the morning to witness the foot racing, and as it only wound up a few moments before racing began, one of the best attendances of the meeting criticised the running races in the afternoon. The first race, for two-year-olds, was an easy thing for Fairy, despite her penalty.

The second race, a mile and a quarter, handicap, proved a very unfortunate race, as after being at the post over an hour, the starter dropped his flag, but the assistant starter, for some reason, failed to drop his flag, and most of the horses pulled up, but urged on by the shouts of the crowd, Peel, Picnic and Lurline ran the race out, Peel winning cleverly Picnic second. The starter was called into the stand, and stated that not only did he drop his flag, but he also shouted "Go!" yet in spite of this pointed evidence, the judges declared it no race, and ordered it to be run off after the last race instead of sending them back to the post as they should have done if they considered it not a start. The starter immediately resigned, and Henry Walsh lodged a protest at the same time, refusing to run the race over again, but was afterwards prevailed on to run Peel, who won cleverly at the second attempt. The unfortunate affair spoilt the day's sport, and though the judges did a good thing in declaring all bets off, after half an hour's deliberation, it looked to most racing men as though they were not quite so well up in racing lore as they might be, and as one of the best-known California race-goers said: "What could one expect with trotting men for judges?"

The third race was a pretty race all through, but though Conrad only won by a head, I fancy he could have made it a little more.

The fourth race was a grand race. Jackson was in front all the way, and had he finished at all gamely, would have won easily, but as it was, Take Notice, who began badly, finished very strong, making a dead heat of it, though I thought he came just half a head too late.

The last race had Odette a hot favorite, and the sister to Mikado and half-sister to Tycoon, won easily in the good time of 1:42.

First race—The California Annual Stake had four starters, and despite her penalties, Fairy was made a red hot favorite at $100 to $28 for Lodowic and $10 for the other two as a field. After one breakaway the flag was dropped to a fair start, Lodowic having a little the worst of it. Cheerful shot out like a sprinter, leading two lengths at the head of a hundred yards, but Fairy closed up when she got into her stride, and passed the half a neck in front of Cheerful, with Altus three lengths back, the same distance in front of Lodowic. Fairy went right away from her field on the turn, and Lodowic passed Altus; while Fairy, turning into the stretch six lengths in the lead and fairly romped home by three lengths, Lodowic, hard ridden, passed Cheerful a furlong from home and finished second ten lengths in front of Cheerful, two lengths ahead of Altus, all out. Time, 1:16½. Mutuals paid $6.90 on Fairy and $7.80 on Lodowic for the place.

SUMMARY.

The California Autumn Stake—A sweepstake for two-year-olds (foals of 1889), to be run at the State Fair of 1890; $50 each, half forfeit, or only $10 if declared on or before January 1st, or $15 by May 1, 1890; declarations void unless accompanied by the money; with $500 added, of which $100 to second, third to save stake. Winner of any stake race to carry three pounds, of two or more, five pounds extra; maidens allowed five pounds; 33 entries, seven of whom declared at $10 and one at $15. Three-quarters of a mile.

Altus ran also.

Second race—One mile and a quarter, handicap, had six starters, and betting raged fast and furious until the flag dropped. Peel selling choice at $80 to $60 Tycoon $52 Applause and $100 for Lurline, Picnic and Carmen as a field. A long delay occurred at the post, Applause running a furlong three times in false starts, while Peel broke away almost every time, and fretted a good deal while Tycoon acted like a steady old trojan, and Lurline was as excitable as a young school girl, then for quarter of an hour Lurline did not start and Applause stayed with her. Then all dismounted while Applause had a plate fixed, and after being at the post an hour and a half, the starter dropped his flag, but his assistant did not drop the advance flag. Peel, Picnic and Lurline ran to the drawgate and were shouted to go on. Peel and Picnic ran round the turn a length apart with Lurline seven lengths back, and the order was unchanged all the way, Peel winning by five lengths, Picnic second, Lurline third and Carmen fourth. The judges declared it no race and moved it to be run off after the last race. The starter, Mr. Sheldon, stated that he dropped his flag, and that it was a start and resigned. C. S. Crittenden took the flag and started for the rest of the day. When the race was again called up it was six o'clock, but betting was heavy as usual, the judges having declared all previous bets off. Tycoon sold readily at $200 to $130 for Peel and $100 for the field. After a short delay the flag was dropped with Picnic behind and Pell sent right along, led past the stand with Tycoon and Lurline a length behind, two lengths in front of Carmen and Applause. Lurline went to the front round the turn and Applause took second place up on the back stretch, passing the half three lengths behind Lurline and just clear of Peel. The two latter closed up to Lurline at the head of the stretch, and Peel going on, won handily by two lengths, Applause second, three lengths in front of Carmen with Lurline who died away a bad fourth, Tycoon fifth and Picnic pulled up last 100 yards behind. Time, 2:09. Mutuals paid $12 40 on the field, for place $13.75 on Peel and $10.15 on Applause.

Tycoon, 124, Lurline, 110, Picnic, 105, also ran.

The third race had only two starters, Conrad and Duke of Milpitas. A few pools were sold at $40 Conrad to $16 for the Duke. The Duke got a length the best of the start, and though Conrad got to his head at the half post, he could never get his head in front ronnd the turn, and the Duke, hard ridden, hnng on to him to the finish, Conrad winning by a short head. Time, 1:16. Mutuals paid $6.30.

Fonrth race—Pools sold freely at $50 for Take Notice, $26 for Alfarata, and $30 for the field. The flag was dropped after a long delay to a moderate start. Jackson and Alfarata getting well away led to the turn, when Initiation came up, and at the qnarter Jackson and Initiation were heads apart three lengths in front of Alfarata, a lengtb in front of Captain Al, same in front of Take Notice, six lengths in front of Leland. Initiation had shot her bolt and dropped back, Jackson going on passed the half three lengths in front of Take Notice who led the rest all together, except Leland last. Take Notice closed up round the turn and was only a length behind at the head of the stretch with Alfarata the same distance back. A hard race took place down the stretch between Jackson and Take Notice, the latter just getting up in time to make a dead heat, Alfarata three lengths back third, Captain Al fourth, Leland a bad fifth and Initiation last. Time, 1:42¾. Mutnals paid straight $5 65 on Take Notice and $6 00 on the field, while for place Jackson paid $27.10 and Take Notice $7.35.

Blanketing Horses.

The Blanketing of horses, like everything else, requires to be done with discretion, in order to derive full benefit from it. From our observation and way of thinking many errors are committed even in this simple matter, hence a few remarks upon it are not out of place, as in a week or two from now horse-covering will again be called into requisition.

There is a wonderful attractiveness about a nice, clean, sleek coat on a horse. It is only second to flesh in filling the eye, and increasing the admiration of inexpert observers. It must further be confessed that few good judges of horses are not altogether uninfluenced by its allnring effects in forming an estimate of all that goes to make up value in horse flesh. Judicious blanketing has a great influence in improving a horse's coat. Exhibitors of horses at our fall shows experience a great deal of trouble in getting their animals' coats in the condition they would like.

There is no time dnring the warm period of the year in which it is so difficult to make a horse's coat look well as in the autumn. No matter how much trouble is taken it is impossible to make the coats of some horses look well during a portion of September. Horses shed all their coats in the spring, but in the autumn only a partial moult takes place. The hairs that are to fall out lose their gloss as they become loosened in the hair bulbs, and are practically dead. This process of shedding produces an irritable condition of the skin, which causes it to be more or less scaly and scurvy and tends to prevent it from lying. The natural oily secretion is impaired at this time, and consequently the glossiness of the coat is impaired. A good deal can be done, however, in the way of overcoming the results of this natural process. Perhaps the most important factor in the management is blanketing. Towards the end of August, or beginning of September, many of the nights are very cool, while the temperature dnring the different periods of the twenty-four hours causes marked changes in the circulation of the skin, which leads to irritability and dryness. In order to overcome the ill effects of the varying temperature, a sufficiently warm blanket should be used during the night, to keep the skin comfortably warm and the circulation active. This will tend to hasten the process of moulting, and keep soft and glossy those hairs that are not going to be shed. A thin, light, cotton sheet, used dnring the day to keep off flies, lessens the irritation of the skin. Horses that are being especially prepared for show are the better for getting their exercise in the morning or evening, or better still, if time is available, both morning and evening. Our experience is, that at this season rubbing can be overdone. Generally speaking, it is a good plan to rub a horse dry with clothes, on coming in from his work, as it stimulates the skin, makes it sleek, and improves the tone of the system generally. But in September the skin is very susceptible to irritation, and if rubbed very much, particularly when it is damp, it is apt to cause harshness rather than benefit it. In September, and even dnring August, if a horse comes in wet, we usually pursue the plan of allowing him to dry, before cleaning him.

Just here we would draw attention to the mistake usually made of using the curry comb too freely and of using sharp toothed ones. The teeth should be blunt, and the comb handled gently, and only used enough to separate matted hairs. Lazy grooms are particularly fond of using dandruff brushes, and neglect sufficiently strapping with the ordinary body brush. Dandruff brushes are very harsh and irritating to the skin, and their use should be limited.

In our use of blankets in the early autumn, we should be guided by the temperature; not only should they be used at nights, but on cool days their use should not be neglected. Care, however, has to be taken to avoid ever keeping the animal so warm as to sweat. Sweating under the blanket not only makes the horse uncomfortable but it destroys the condition of the coat. The cautious use of blankets in the early autumn, and of course continued, has considerable effect in checking the undue heaviness of the coat, and that tendency to profuse sweating so noticeable in October, and in fact for the remainder of the winter if the precaution of blanketing is not taken early in the season. Some horses that are inclined to have very heavy coats will not have the growth of the coat sufficiently checked even by careful blanketing, and such animals if they have to perform much fast work are greatly benefited by clipping about the first of November, or later if convenient. Unfortunately many people do not allow their horses to derive the full benefit of clipping, on account of not using a sufficiently liberal amount of covering; a clipped horse should have at least two warm blankets on him, and more are sometimes of benefit, particularly during cold spells. A great mistake is frequently made in applying a horse's covering while he is wet with sweat or from any other cause. The best plan to persue is to dry the animal with cloths, taking care to avoid cold draughts. If it is convenient to so rub him, a blanket may be applied to prevent chilling while the evaporation from the skin is taking place, but this should be removed as soon as it is thoroughly dappened with steam, and another dry one put on. Before putting on the first blanket the skin should be rubbed dry, if possible.

A great improvement has been made of late years in having blankets cut to fit properly. There is still room for another improvement, in order to have them fit more closely to the body and prevent them from becoming displaced, hanging off the quarters and getting torn. Our experience is that a couple of flank straps, buckled underneath the belly, is a great assistance to the surcingle in keeping the blanket in its place, and is an effectual prevention of tearing from the blankets getting under the hind feet. Horses that stand in the stable a great deal are apt to get sore on the back, from the constant pressure of a tightly buckled surcingle. This can be satisfactorily and effectually prevented, by using straps under the chest buckled in the same way as the flank straps. In fact we think that surcingles can be entirely dispensed with, if this much cheaper and equally satisfactory substitute be used.

Care should always be exercised in having blankets thoroughly dry, as a damp one is worse than useless, and they should be brushed, shaken, and beaten occasionally in order to keep them clean.

The object of sufficiently clothing a horse is not only to improve his coat, but there is in addition a wonderful saving of food, vigor, condition, and animal heat. The chief loss of the heat of the body is from radiation from its surface. This waste can be lessened and controlled very largely by judicious blanketing.

The unreasonable excuse for scanty blanketing is often made, that if a horse is well clothed in the stable he shivers on first coming into the cold air, but this is only momentary, for as soon as he begins to move, and the circulation is aroused, no chilliness is felt.—Dr. Grenside in Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

Developed and Non-Developed Sires.

Iconoclast says: The question as to the relative producing power of developed and non developed sires seems to be reduced to one of definition. It will be conceded, I think, by those who prefer the non-development theory that it is wise to teach a horse to trot that is intended to be used as a sire of trotters. The process of education which a horse then undergoes tends to increase and keep alive the trotting instinct; and it is almost unquestionably true that if this instinct is permitted to lie dormant for a number of generations it will eventually die out, just as any faculty or organ becomes "rudimentary" by continuous disuse. Many instances illustrating this principle are cited by naturalists. We see it every day in our domestic birds. The wild turkey, the wild goose, and the wild duck will almost lose their power of flight in two or three generations of domestication, and some birds inhabiting islands where they are undisturbed have entirely lost that power. Precisely how many generations it would take for a well bred trotting horse to loose his inclination to trot no one knows, because the experiment has never been tried. It is probable, however, as the fast trotting gait is comparatively a recent acquisition, it would not take long. The number of horses that prefer the trot to the run when turned out in the pasture, is comparatively small. With the growth of good trotting breeding, it is, however, rapidly on the increase, and instances are now not very uncommon where colts that have never been bridled can trot faster than they can run, and prefer that gait to the run when they are started up and urged to go fast. Instincts and habits which are the result of cultivation are more easily lost than those that are natural to the breed, and the ability to trot fast, which is almost purely the result of education, would soon disappear unless kept up by the means by which it has been developed. It is therefore wise to adopt proper means to prevent the decadence of this faculty, and that can only be done by training to some extent at least the animals through which it is intended to perpetuate trotting action and trotting proclivity.

The strongest advocates of the non-development theory would hardly dispute these propositions. But it is said that some horses that have achieved great distinction on the track have thus far failed in the stud. This is true not only of horses that have made fast records, but of well bred horses that have never been developed, as well; for it is not every well bred horse that makes a great sire. On the other hand, there is a possibility that a horse may by long periods of hard training and excessive campaigning have his vitality so impared that he will be incapable of imparting to his progeny the vigor and nerve force necessary to make them great performers on the track. I say there is a possibility of this. I do not say that it is extremely probable; for it may well be true that even in such cases a rest of a year or two will be sufficient to restore the horse to a condition of sufficient vigor to enable him to make a successful sire. Whether this be the case or not can hardly be determined as yet from the records. Three or four, or half a dozen cases does not prove a great deal. The case of George Wilkes may be an exceptional one. He was severely campaigned for a number of years, and yet all the world knows that he was a very successful sire. Nutwood was trained sufficiently to get a record of 2:18½ and trotted thirty-six heats in 2:30 or better, and he also is proving a very great producer. Director, 2:17, and Piedmont, 2:17¼, were great campaigners, and are proving very successful sires. Several instances can be cited of horses that have been very brilliant turf performers and have since had good opportunities in the stud, and have as yet failed to produce trotters. But, on the other hand, there have been well bred horses that have never been extensively trained or campaigned, that have been for a long time considered failures in the stud, and yet have eventually proved very prolific sires of speed.

I believe it to be true that no mare that has been very distinguished as a campaigner has yet produced a great campaigner. But it has sometimes happened that the produce of such mares in the second or later generation have been very successful on the track. Pocahontas, the old pacing mare, that was the first to take a record of 2:17½, had no son or daughter that made a great performer, but her blood is now producing in such horses as Nelson 2:14½, Gem (p) 2.14¾, Sleepy Tom (p) 2:12½, and Young Rolfe 2:21½. Princess, who was one of the greatest campaigners of her day, has no immediate offspring in the 2:30 list, but through her son Happy Medium she has produced such horses as Maxie Cobb 2:13½, Nancy Hanks 2:14½, and through her grandson Pilot Medium such performers as Jack 2:12¼, and Lady Bullion 2:18¼. The blood of Lady Thorne 2:18¼, and Goldsmith Maid 2:14, is beginning to be heard from, and there is no doubt that it will yet be productive of great results. These mares were all severely campaigned.

While it is yet too soon to determine whether or not hard campaigning will, as a rule, impair the vitality of a trotting stallion to such an extent as to render him inefficient as a sire, it is, I think, certain that trotting stallions should at least be well educated in the gait which they are intended to perpetuate. This can easily be done without the excessive work that is necessary for a great campaigner, and without any 'vitality sapping" process. No mark can be arbitrarily fixed as the point beyond which a trotting sire should not be permitted to go, as some horses will make a record of 2:15 with less training and less effort than will be necessary to give others a record of 2:25. Whether campaigned or not, a horse designed for the stud should be trained. On the same principle I believe that trotting dams should be educated to trot. This may be done on the road or on the track. Many dams of great trotters have received their education on the road. But whether on one or the other, they will doubtless be all the better dams for moderate work at the trotting gait. In this respect small breeders have an advantage over those that keep a great number of mares—they are able to give them plenty of road work, while on the larger farms it frequently happens that many of the mares are unbroken.

Whatever may be said of hard campaigning (and there is something to be said on both sides of this question), I have no doubt that moderate work will be a benefit to both sire and dam.

A young Western horse which had evidently been pampered up and drugged for sale was completely let down and and suffering from much fever. Finding it necessary to employ an active purge, I, at the request of the owner, used Simmons Liver Regulator, giving one pint doses twelve hours apart, and as soon as he could eat, giving it in powder form in bran. In one week he had fully recovered.—GEO. W. RODFONG, V. S. Germantown Pa.

The Portland Races.

The Portland Association have been very fortunate in having large attendance, good weather, fine racing, and the grandest meeting ever held in the Northwest. The following account of the races is taken from the Oregonian:

Auction poole: Bob Wade $40, Cyclone $5, Jim Miller $3, field $6. Mutuals paid $6.90.

Cyclone drew the pole, then in order Pedro, Eddie R., Bob Wade, White Cloud, Jim Miller, Joe Colton, Oregon Eclipse.

It wae a big field of handsome horees that faced etarter John Minto in his opening task, and one which proved worthy of hie best efforts, for eight gallopere are not started in a minute. Several ecoringe sent them off all together, excepting Jim Miller, who wae a length or two behind. It wae not more than 100 yards before Bob Wade emerged from the bunch and ehowed the way to the wire. White Clond and Jim Miller got out of the bunch at the quarter and challenged Bob Wade. By this time Garrison had lifted Cyclone into the leader's company, and when Wade got ont a few feet from the rail, whipped him down the stretch at the pole. Boyington rode a waiting race on Joe Colton and crowded him forward at the finish, gaining third place.

The order at the post was Jim Merritt, J. M. R., Circle J., Sinfax, Flora B., Coloma, Olympia.

Olympia was on his good behavior yeeterday. That is, he did not throw his rider half a dozen times as he often does, but contented himself with vaulting all over the track. The scoring was not as long as in the first race, and the start was very fair, except for Flora B who was left at the post and did not run. Olympia eet the pace and it wae a faet one for the City View Track, prophers doubting whether 1:32 would be beaten. Along the backstretch they were etrung out, Olympia first, Circle J second, J. M. R. way behind the rest. Jim Merritt quit at the three-quarter, despite Tompkin's hard whipping. In the stretch Esley came upon Sinfax, but either Olympia had set too fast a pace for him or he had waited too loug, for though the noble grandson of Idlewild made a gallant race, he wae only second by a head. Coloma was a length behind him.

First beat—Auction pools sold, W. H. Bailey $150, Clara Z $37, Hannibal Jr. $14, field $16. Mutuals paid $8.15.

Kinney drew the pole, Lady Spokane second, Hannibal Jr., Maud Knox, W. H. Bailey, Clara Z, and Alteo in order named. Hannibal took the pole on the turn and kept it till the half where Smith drove him off his feet on being overhauled by Bailey, who proceeded gracefully to ehow the way. Clara Z would probably have finished second if ehe had not broken badly on the home stretch. Mr. Lowe wae not satisfied with having Maud Knox adjudged distanced, as ehe finished neck and neck with Alteo, but the distance judge said he wae behind when the flag fell.

Second heat —Auction poole, Bailey $70, field $15. Mutuals paid $7.25.

Smith wae at his beet yesterday in hie peculiar art of ecoring well up, and he got the beet of the start again in this heat and drove Hannibal in the lead clear to the three-quarter, where he wae again overhauled by Bailey. He couldn't even get a place, for the faet California mare came down at a swift pace, close pressed by Kinney, Hannibal broke and was ont of it. Lady Spokane behaved very badly on the first turn and lost several lengths, whioh ehe was never able to make up. The finish was very exciting and wae greeted with deafening cheers, Clara Z forcing Bailey to do some very clever work, and all three placed horees coming down at a faet pace without a bauble.

Third heat.—Auction poole; Bailey $50, field $10; mutuale paid $7 90.

Lady Spokane went all to piecee again, and was not in the race. Clara Z had it all her own way, with Kinney second and Hannibal third, until the middle of the back etretch, when Bailey left Hannibal and Kinney behind him, and crowded on to Clara Z. There was a long struggle between them until the last turn, when Bailey came into the stretch ahead. It was a close finish again, Bailey coming under the wire best by half a length, Clara Z second, in the fasteet heat of the race.

Circle J. drew the pole, Tim Murphy second. Minto sent them off at the first score all together. Smith forced the pace with Circle J. and Harmon on Murphy contented himself with a waiting race until the homeetretoh when he closed up and Babb'e filly wae too tired to keep him company. Eddie R. was behind all the way. The race to the homestretoh wae a procession of three, Circle J., Tim Murphy and Eddie R, with barely daylight between. Murphn won by half a length, Eddie R. two lengths behind Circle J.

Raindrop drew the pole, Sir Henry second, Coloma third. Raindrop was a little fidgetv, and delayed the score a few minntee. They were sent off with a slight advantage in the reverse order of their positions. Coloma ehnt the others off on the first turn, and set the pace with Sir Henry a good second and Raindrop close behind. At the middle of the backetretch Sir Henry overhauled Coloma, and for 300 yards it was a close brush, Sir Henry finally getting the pole and ehowing the way to the head of the homestretch, when all came in on nearly even terms. Sir Henry went lame, however, and Coloma sustained his reputation for the finish, coming under the wire first by a length, Raindrop a neck behind Sir Henry. Sir Henry was led limping off the track.

Firet heat—Auction pools: W. H. Bailey $30, field $10. Mutuals paid $7 40.

Lady Mac drove the pole, Oaknut second, then Bailey, then Wonder. Bailey had a little the woree of the start and Wonder more. Wonder etrengthened hie hold on fourth place by a losing break at the first turn. By this time Oaknnt had taken the pole, Bailey lapping, Lady Mac third, by two lengths, Wonder out of it. Sawyer kept Bailey's nose at Oaknut's girth until the head the homestretch, when he secured the pole, and came down a winner by half a length, Lady Mac two lengths behind, Wonder jumping along behind the distance flag.

Second heat—Auction pools, Bailey $50, field $8, mutuale paid $7 40.

Bailey broke at the turn and gave Oaknut the pole; then he trailed him a length and a half behind until at the five-eighths Sawyer overhauled the California stud, and forced him to break. Lady Mac wae entirely too slow for her company, and was out of sight. The two leadere emerged into the etretch neck and neck. Woodnut got disgusted at the swift pace Sawyer eet for him and broke near the wire, but Lee Shaner brought him down after one or two ekipe and finished second by a length, Lady Mac distanced.

Third heat—No auotion pools. Mutuals paid $6.30.

Shaner made a desperate effort for the heat, forcing Bailey to the fasteet three-qnartere he hae yet made. There was no hope for him however, and the last quarter was a slow walkaway for Bailey, though he pushed Oaknut forward under the wire in hopee to oatch Sawyer napping. It was a beautiful race, head and head to the half, then Oaknut lapping, at the three-quarters there was daylight between them. Oaknut broke again 100 yarde from the wire but wae down in a minute.

First heat—Auction pools: Mink $40, Rosie C $18, Mollie Cooper $10, St. Jamee $8. Mutnals paid $50.

Mollie Cooper drew the pole, Rosie C second, St. James third, Mink fourth. Mollie'e breaking delayed the score, and they were finally sent off all together, except Rosie C who had nearly a length the woret of it. Rosie went off her feet immediately and elipped back to fourth place until the quarter, where Mink and St. Jamee broke badly, letting her in second. But by thie time Mollie Cooper had taken the pole and wae increaeing her lead, so that by the five-eighthe mark she had left Rosie C three lengthe behind, St. Jamee third and Mink fourth by about the eame distance between them. At the three-quartere Mink began to move up; he left St. Jamee behind, then ehowed Rosie hie heels, and then at a marvelous pace put hie nose at Davis' wheel. Here he etuck, and down the stretch both came together, Mollie getting to the wire only a neck ahead of Mink, St. James third, Rosie a bad fourth.

Second heat—Auction poole: Mink $40, Mollie Cooper $10, field $15. Mutnals paid $33 25.

St. Jamee, Smith up, had the best of the etart, but it did not avail him for Mollie kept the pole at the turn, Mink a good second. At the qnarter Mink and Rosie came up gamely and all were nearly neck and neck. Very shortly Mollie and Mink left Rosie at their hind wheel, St. James three lengthe behind. Then Mink began to show the way and seemed to think he had the race. To everybody's surpriee, however, the little mare kept him company until the turn at the head of the home etretch, when she forced him to break. Davis meant to be in it, and when Mink came up on him down the etretch, he plied his whip hard and fast on Mollie's back; and well he might; for Mink was coming down at a twenty-two clip and wae crawling up inch hy inch at every step. The little mare responded nobly. Without a bauble she finished first hy half a length. Rosie C. came in last considerably distressed, her boot flapping against her legs.

Third Heat—Auction poole: Mollie Cooper $20, field $10. Mutuals paid $12.

Mollie Cooper had the woret oi the etart and lost more ground by a bad break at the firet turn, and appeared to be out of it. Mink wae in the lead, but Roeie C. overhauled him and was neck and neck behind them at the quarter. It wae not long before Mink increased his lead to three lengths, St. James four lengths behind Rosie, Mollie way behind. At the half, however, Mollie began to come up. She overtook St. James, who went with her beyond Roeie, and at the last turn was at St. Jamee's flank, who was two lengths behind Mink. Sawyer up behind Mink emerged into the stretch with a long lead, bnt not as long ae he ehould have provided himself with on the bucketretch, for Davis knew what Mollie oonld do on a pinch. The whip came down, and again the little mare responded. Up and up she crept, and thirty yarde from the etand Mink broke. It was not a losing break for he was at it and eo fast at Mollie's side that one could scarcely tell which was in the lead. In a moment the track in front of the grand stand was filled with a surging, excited crowd crying "Mink!" and "Mollie Cooper!" Crazed admirers pulled Davis out of his eeat and overwhelmed him with congratulations. After eome delay the decision was rendered, giving Mollie the heat and race.

First heat.....	27½	51½	1:17
Second heat.....	24½	50	1:16½

Firet heat—Auction pools: Tim Murphy $40, Olympia $18. Circle J $5. Mutuale paid $7.60.

Minto sent them off at the first score. Olympia ehowed the way, Murphy at his tail, Circle J a cloee third. It wae at the half that Murphy began to lap the leader, and so they went to the head of the homestretch, where Harmon won on Mulkey's fleet roan without a touch of the whip. Circle J only distinguished herself by increasing the gap between herself and the leaders to three lengths at the finieh. The time showe that the third quarter wae made in 24 seoonds, and as Olympia quit at the three-quarter, allowing Murphy to finish on a straight etretch in 25½, he must have gone lame on that bad third turn. He was led limping off the track, and withdrawn from the second heat.

Second heat—Auction poole: Murphy $70, Field $30. Mutuals paid $5.75.

Babb's filly forced the Irishman to make beter time than on the firet heat. It wae a close race from flag to wire, one lapping the other all the way, Babb'e blue colors were in the lead until the half, bnt fisehed paet the stand a neck behind Cy Mulkey's noble roan.

Auction pools, Guido $100, Sinfax $40, Coloma $25, field $10. Mutuals paid $18.

Guido did not score up well and waa behind from the etart. Coloma eet the pace, Raindrop a little ahead of J. M. R. and Sinfax. They came down past the stand in this way and Coloma held his place. At the quarter Guido had left J. M. R. behind and challenged Raindrop and Sinfax. Raindrop soon wae vanquished by him, but in Coloma and Sinfax he encountered oppoeition of a different kind. Neither could he beet, and when at the half, Sixfax overhauled Coloma and kept him at hie girth, Guido was still a good length behind. Coloma came into the stretch for his old time finish, and made a great effort to regain hie lead, but in vain. The fleet grandeon of Idle Wild wae not to be heaten this time. Coloma was a good neck behind, Guido third by two lengthe—J. M. R. and Raindrop together behind.

First heat—Auction poole, Homestake $200, Clara Z. $90, Kitty Ham $55, field $30. Mutulss paid $24 25. Kitty Ham drew the pole, next in order named J. S. C., Lady Maxim, Lady Beaoh, Clara Z., Homeetake. Six horses made things pretty thick on the track, and the scoring wae long and difficult. When they were tapped off, J. S. C. and Lady Maxim had a length the worst of it, Homestake tra ling Kitty at the pole. Beach took the pole, close followed by Maxim and Homestake, Kitty off her feet and out of it, J. S. C. little better. Clara Z., took firm hold on third place by a length, Beach and Maxim lapping each other in the lead. At the third turn Homestake began to move up, leaving Lady Maxim third, Clara Z. fourth. At the head of the stretch, however, the four came down abreast on nearly even terms and Shaner began to drive. He soon put Clara Z. in advanoe of all bnt Homestake, who looked a sure winner, but went up badly and wae out of it. Clara Z. was first by two lengths, Beach and Maxim neck and neck next, then Homestake, then Kitty, then J. S. C. way behind. Homeetake wae set back for running.

Second Heat—Auction poole, Clara Z. $100, Homestake $50, Kitty Ham $20, field $7. Mutnals paid $13.

The start was good and the heat uneventful, except for Kitty's and J. S C's running. Homestake took the lead on the third turn with Maxim a good second, and eo they finished.

Third Heat—Auctio i pools, Homestake $50, Clara Z. $12, field $10. Mutnals paid 7.25.

Lnte Lindsay was put up behind Clara Z. Maxim and J. S. C. got off behind, and Beach broke badly. Homestake kept the pole, Ham and Clara Z. abreast trailing him along.

Kitty momentarily lost her scant lead over Clara Z. by a break, but got back again in no time. Beach was fourth by five lengths, Maxim fifth by four, J. S. C. sixth by three. Then the leaders strung out about two lengths apart keeping their order until the head of the stretch, Homestake, Ham, Clara Z., Maxim. At the head of the stretch Kitty got her nose up at Homestake's girth and there she stayed. The California mare was too many for Lindsay. She cantered along down the stretch and finished fifth.

Fourth Heat—Auction pools, Homestake $20, field $5.

Shaner was put back behind Clara Z. Maxim was not in the race. She was done for, and was in nobody's company after the first turn. There were two double teams—Homestake and Kitty first, Clara Z. and Beach second. Kitty broke badly, and Clara Z. passed her. Along the backstretch they strung out a length apart, the winner, Clara, Kitty and Beach. At the third turn Homestake had increased his lead to two lengths, Ham was four lengths behind Clara Z., Beach near her. Kitty disappointed her friends on the homestretch. She wouldn't trot, and allowed Clara Z to take second place from her in slow time when she should have made it impossible for Lafferty to slow down as he did, coming in two lengths ahead of Clara Z, who had Kitty at her wheel, Beach next, Maxim behind the flag.

Misty Morn wanted to set the pace so Esley let her have it. He kept along with John L. until the third turn, a length and a half behind, and then began to move up on Bybee's filly. It was hands down for Sinfax on the stretch, and Misty Morn knew it, for she vaulted gaily over the fresh line of the sprinkler, finishing second by half a length, John L. fifty yards behind.

Belva Cotton drew the pole, next in order, Eddie R. Bob Wade, Oregon Eclipse. After a long delay of futile scoring, they got off well together, and Eddie R. set the pace; the others bunched. It was not until the last turn that Murphy took the pole, and as they came into the stretch Eddie R. began to come up. Murphy had lamed himself on the short turn but was out for the money, and came in first by a length, Oregon Eclipse making a brave finish and leaving Eddie R. at her tail; Bob Wade fourth.

Fourth heat	0:36½	1:12	1:49	2:27½
Fifth heat	0,37	1:14	1:52	2:30

First heat—Auction pools, Oaknut, $50; Maud Singleton, $20; field, $13. Mutuals paid $42.25.

Maud Singleton was overweighted twenty seven pounds by her heavy driver. Wonder drew the pole, Maud Singleton next, then Oaknut, then Hannibal, Jr. The third score gave them a splendid start. Wonder lost the pole to Singleton on the first turn. Hannibal, Jr., after one bad break got down to work and by the quarter had begun to lap the leader, Oaknut third by three lengths, Wonder out of it. Smith pushed Hannibal, Jr., forward in good shape, and by the third turn had increased his lead over Singleton to a good length, Oaknut two lengths behind Singleton, Wonder trailing him. It was easy work for Hannibal on the stretch and he came in an easy winner, Singleton at his girth.

Second heat.—Auction pools; Oaknut $50, Maud Singleton $15, field $10. Mutuals paid $15.50.

Haunibal, Jr., disappointed all his friends. Singleton took the lead, Oaknut second, Haunibal a fair third until the home stretch, where he finished even with Wonder, but was set back to fourth place for his running.

Third heat.—Auction pools: Oaknut $70, Maud Singleton $25, field $7. Mutuals paid $7.25.

All got off at a good pace, Maud Singleton holding the pole until the quarter, where Oaknut overhauled her, and did not allow her to get near him until Shaner showed him up under the wire, so that Singlethn finished second by a neck, Hannibal, Jr., at the wheel, Wonder way behind. Hannibal, Jr., was again set back for running.

Fourth heat.—Auction pools; Oaknut $20, field $5. Mutuals paid $14.50

Oaknut had a length the worst of the start and Hannibal, Jr, took the pole on the first turo, Maud Singleton lapping Oaknut a good second. At the head of the home stretch Hannibal, Jr., had a lead of a length and a half, and barring a brief break, finished a fine heat with daylight between him and Singleton, Oaknut third, Wonder nowhere near.

Fifth heat.—Auction pools; Hannibal, Jr., $50, Oaknut $25, field $12. Mutuals paid $20.

Neil Hogoboom was put up behind Maud Singleton. All got off well at a good pace. Hannibal, Jr., kept the pole, with Maud second, lapped by Oaknut. Oaknut kept crawling up on the brown mare until at the half he was at the pole three lengths behind Hannibal, Jr., Maud Singleton next by two lengths, Wonder nowhere. Oaknut went to pieces again on the home stretch, and ruined what chances he ever had for the heat. Smith was easy enough winner by four lengths, Wonder distanced.

Sixth heat	0.38½	1:16½	1:55	2:33

First heat—Auction pools: Kinney $40, Maud Knox $9, Florida $4, J. S C. $3. No mutuals sold.

Kinney drew the pole, Maud Knox second, Florida third. Kinney was not warmed up yet and it was Knox's heat, after a sharp contest.

Second heat—Auction pools: Joe Kinney $20, Maud Knox $20, Florida $5, J. S. C. $3. Mutuals paid $32.25.

Another pretty heat and won after a struggle by Knox again. J. S. C. distanced.

Third heat—Auction pools: Maud Knox $30, Joe Kinney $25, Florida $10. Mutuals paid $14.25.

A very even start with a possible shade the best of it for Smith, who always earns his salary at the scoring. He put the big gelding first under the wire, Knox an indifferent third.

Fourth heat —Auction pools; Joe Kiuney $25, Florida $4, Maud Knox $11. Mutuals prid $24.50.

Barhonr's black mare surprised the talent who had been giving big odds against her. Maud Knox was a close second.

Fifth heat.—Auction pools; Kinney $20, Knox $15, Florida $15. Mutuals paid $13 50.

Williams was put up behind Maud Knox, but fared no better. Kinney finished second, but was put back to third place for running.

Sixth heat.—Anotion pools; Florida $80, Maud Knox $30, Joe Kinney $15. Mutuals paid $10.75.

Misuer was put back on Knox. After several scores the horses got a very even start, and it was a horse race between Kinney and Florida from start to fiuish. The mare lapped him all the way, and came into the head of the stretch on even terms. They finished nose and nose together, and the judges set Joe Kinney back for running, giving the heat and race to Florida.

Wade drew the pole, next in order White Cloud, Cyclone, Jim Miller, Oregon Eclipse. The Montana record-breaker delayed the scoring, which, lasted fully twenty minutes. Minto was determined to give all an equal show, and got them off finally well bunched, Wade being among the last. It was between Wade, Miller and Cyclone, but the pace was too fast for Cyclone He finished a length behind Miller, who was half a length short of the winner, Wade.

Second heat—Auction pools: Bob Wade $100, Cyclone $50, field $20. Mutuals paid $10.25.

Another long delay at the score made people impatient. They were finally sent off well together and came down in a bunch. It looked a little like Jim Miller down the stretch, but the best he could do was to finish second by half a length, Oregon Eclipse third by only a nose.

First heat—No auction pools. Mutuals paid $12.50. Leap Year drew the pole, Lady Daphne next, then Annabel, Golda, Electrify, Penelope, McMinnville Maid.

When everybody shouted "Go" it upset Annabel and she broke badly, Leap Year keeping the pole, Lady Daphne a close second. At the third turn the California stable appeared to have the right gait this time, for it was there that Annabel passed both Lsap Year and Daphne. Daphne was ahead at the time but soon got tired, allowing Leap Year to finish three lengths ahead of her, the California filly first by two lengths.

Second heat—Auction pools: Annabel $60, field $25. Mutuals paid $8 25.

There were four fillies only in the race now, and they made a beautiful race, coming under the wire in one, two, three, order.

Time, 2:13.

Auction pools: Guido $40; Time, 35. No mutuals.

Mr. Babb had unfortunately got the worst of it in two or three races he had entered in, and either had to let alone or else carry extra weight, so the Association offered him a purse of $400 to run Guido against Sinfax's record of 2:12½ in the Suburban, when Guido carried 124 pounds, and to allow him to go with 108 pounds up. Lord Lonsdale and Circle J. were stationed along to keep him company and incite him to do his best. Lonsdale started out from the flag, and was soon left behind; but fifty yards from the wire Circle J., with Little Gomer, Williams up, was turned loose, and away they sped. Circle J., Babb's three-year-old filly, made the better race of the two, and finished first, though Guido was after her all the way, part of the time lapping her.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 9TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Friscos put up an elegant game in the field and hit just hard enough to place a man across the plate in each the first, second, fourth, sixth and eighth innings. It looked as though the Friscos would celebrate Admission Day in the same manner as they did Labor Day by shutting out the Colonels, but a rather poor throw of Ehrights to Veach in the eighth inning allowed the runner, McDonald to go to third, and he scored the only run of their side on Carsey's sacrifice. The pitching of Lookabaugh and Carsey may be said to have been splendid, the hits by both sides being few as were the bases gained on balls. A magnificent catch of a terrific high liner by Veach and a wonderful one hand stop and throw by McDonald brought forth well deserved enthusiasm. The long hitting of Levy and Ehright, Lohman and Dooley's stick work and the playing of Ebright, Everett, Cantillion, McDonald and Dooley were special features. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

THURSDAY, SEPT, 11TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Stocktons outbatted and outfielded the Friscos in this game, bunching their hits well off Lookabaugh, while errors by Shea and Levy also contributed to the home team's defeat. It was a fine batting game right through, the Friscos hitting Perrott almost as heavily as the Gas City boys did Lookabaugh, but with the exception of the seventh inning, their hits were very badly scattered and consequently availed little. Perrott secured a home run in the fourth, though Hanley should have blocked the ball and prevented more than two bases being secured on the hit. The infield of the Stocktons played as pretty a game as has ever been seen here this season, Wilson, Armstrong and Fudger making many phenomenal stops, while Selna played a very efficient first bag. Ebright, Hanley and Everett were the only players in the Frisco team who played their game. Ebright's hitting was sharp, heavy and timely, and he easily carried off the batting honors of the day. Armstrong, Everett, Holliday, Pache and Hanley also did good, reliable stick service. Donahue and McLaughlin officiated as umpires. The score:

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 12TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

About an even thousand people, mostly Oakland cranks, saw this eleven inning game at Emeryville last Friday. It was a fine hitting game, and though blunders were numerous they served to even up the score at various times and consequently made matters very interesting. There was also an abundance of kicking, fining, excitement and phenomenal fielding in the game, and the crowd were more than satisfied with the day's sport. McLaughlin, the umpire, was also in the game and a decision of his in the tenth had much to do with Stockton's defeat. Armstrong lined out a hit which bounded over Dooley's head and advanced Fudger who had reached first on a single, to third. This would be two men on bases and no one out, but McLaughlin astonished every one by coolly announcing Armstrong's hit a foul ball and an excellent chance of Stockton's winning was thereby spoiled. The greatest feature of the day was Cantillion's marvellous second base play, the "Terror Hantentot" accepting in a most perfect and graceful manner seventeen difficult chances of various kinds. McDonald had a sprained ankle and Cobb played short stop with poor success. The outfield of the Oaklands performed excellent work. For the Stocktons, Fudger put a splendid game at short and Wilson accepted several hard chances at third but slipped up on four easy ones. Both Kilroy and Shaw pitched fairly well, being steady, although Kilroy was bunched on oftener than his adversary as the following score shows. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 12TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators found Lookabangh an easy mark and banged him out for sixteen safe shots while the Friscos secured but half that number off Hoffman. As regards bases on balls and strikeouts, honors were even between them. The Frisco team put up a strong fielding game considering the terrific manner their pitchers curves were treated, but their few errors, bases on balls given, and Speer's passed balls were sandwiched in so neatly with the Senators hits that only three of Sacramentos eleven runs were earned, The Sacramentos also fielded well and ran bases cleverly, Goodenough alone having three steals to his credit. This player also led in hitting having four safe hits and a sacrifice for five times up while McHale had three hits and two sacrifices for the same number of times bat. Roberts. Hoffman, Harper, Veach, Stevens and Lookabaugh also contributed a large share to the batting work, In fielding Reitz, Stapleton. Daly and Everett did the most praiseworthy service. The score:

OAKLAND va STOCKTON.

SATURDAY SEPT. 13TH 1890 AT SAN FRANCISCO.

A large sized crowd welcomed the above teams at the Haight St. grounds last Saturday, and witnessed as fine a game as has ever been played here this season in which the Stocktons participated. Every man in the Gas City team played like a fiend and not a chance was neglected, while some stops and throws by the infield were truly wonderful. They did not hit Carsey very hard. five singles constituting their stick work, but their hits followed bases on balls and errors, and so were productive of runs. The Oaklands found Perrott for five hits, but they were well scattered and the splendid, sharp fielding of the Stocktonians kept their run getting down to three tallies. N. O'Neill distinguished himself by making a very costly error in the fourth inning through which two men afterward scored. Selna was on the sick list and Holliday played a fine first base. Pache played center where he did well, and Hoffman late of Tacoma was in left, but was offered no chances. The infield work of Wilson, Fudger and Armstrong was clean, clever, and in a word, perfect. For Oakland, Cantillian, Dooley and Dungan did some pretty and brilliant playing. The game was close and exciting all through, and the crowd seemed well satisfied with the result. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 13TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

In presence of a mere handful of spectators the Friscos gave the Senators an awful drubbing, last Saturday. The Sacramento team played good ball, but Harper was bunched on heavily in the fourth, seventh and eighth innings, home runs, triples, doubles and singles being scattered aronnd by the hard sticking Goblins in reckless profusion. Fiuns contingent also put up a pennant winning game, every man playing strongly. Speer caught Conghlin in splendid style, and threw accurately and well to bases. The infielders covered their positions efficiently, while the work of the outfield was something grand, each player accepting a number of difficult chances. Coughlin was very effective in the forepart of the game, but weakened somewhat in the ninth, allowing three hits in the inning, which, with an error produced the Sacramentos only two runs. Roberts work in left field was of a magnificent character, that player, making four put-outs and two assists, one of the latter figuring in a clever double play. Godar and Stapleton also did well, but Reitz was charged with two errors, one a most pardonable one. In hitting Hanley, Everett and Speer led with three hits each. The score:

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Five thousand spectators witnessed this rather poor game at the Haight Street grounds Sunday. Both teams played a very ordinary fielding game, and after the Oaklands took a big lead in the sixth inning, little interest was manifested. The Stocktons were minus the services of Stockwell, so Pache played right and Hen Moore made his reappearance in his old position in center field. Cobb pitched a fine game, being remarkably steady, and allowing but five well scattered hits to be made through the nine innings. Kilroy was not so effective, being bunched on hard in the fourth and sixth inninga, in each of which four runs were made. The Stocktons scored one in the first on errors of C. and N. O'Neill, and two in the third on a missed third strike, a base on balls, a wild pitch, and "Sonny" Hoffman's single. This was the extent of their run-getting, being retired in short order every inning afterward. Sweeney distingnished himself at the bat and in the field, while Fudger, Dooley and C. O'Neill also did fine work at the bat. Pache made a wonderful catch in the second inning of Cobb's fly, getting the ball after a big run about a foot from the ground. He also made several other good catches, but misjudged another one. Moore captured three good flies in center, but erred on a hard one of Cantillion's. The infield work was miserable, N. O'Neill, as usual, leading with three glaring errors. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators made but four safe hits (three of which were secured by Bowman) and eleven errors which in itself is sufficient to tell their "mournful tsle of woe." The Friscos hit Hoffman well, getting twelve safe smashes, and these combined with the Senators eleven errors gave them ten runs, but one of which was earned. The Friscos also played a magnificent fielding game, but two errors marring a splendid record. Finn's aggregation took a lead from the start, which they increased right along. Stevens, Everett and Bowman were right on hand in the hitting, the last named making a triple and two doubles. He had no chances offered him in the field. Veach's end of a double play in the sixth inning was a most wonderful piece of fielding. Shea, Hanley, Veach, Stevens, Ebright, Everett and Stapleton played good ball throughout, and Speer and McHale's back stop work was excellent, but Godar, Daly, Reitz and Hoffman had a disastrous day. SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

MONDAY, SEPT. 15TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Friscos and Oaklands played a poor game at Haight street last Monday before a small crowd of shivering spectators. Shaw and Coughlin were in the points for their respective teams and both were punched out lively. The Friscos got in their deadly work in the first two innings, making eight runs at this stsge of the game and augmenting their score in the fourth, seventh and ninth, in all of which innings they bunched their hits. Oskland did not do any scoring until the latter part of the game, making their eight runs in the sixth, eighth and ninth, in which innings they also bunched their hits well. A side issue was the sarcastic remarks indulged in by pitcher Shaw snd which were opportunely and humorously answered in every instance by the wit of the leagne—Peek-a-boo Vesch. Barring the terrific hitting of Ebright, Shea, Speer, Lohman and McDonald, the game was well nigh devoid of featurea, the general fielding heing of a very ordinary character. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

With a lead of four runs gained in the first three innings in the game it looked rather chilly for the "Nadjy" costumed Colonels. But in the fifth came their turn to score, McDonald making the circuit on errors of Shea, Everett and Speer, and Cobb going round on his hit, steal and Cantillions safe shot. In the sixth the Colonels tied the score. Dooley was safe on Veach's error and scored on Sweeneys long triple. Then Dungan sent Sweeney across the plate with an earned run on his safe shot past third. Matters remained stationary till the ninth, in which the Friscos went out in one, two, three order. For Oakland, McDonald was the first ont on Ebrights assist. Then "Tip" O'Neill got a catch over short bnt it took an awkward long bound, and before the ball was fielded O'Neill was on second and credited with a double. Cobb sacrificed him to third and Cantillion's "beant" into left scored him and won the game. With the exception of the sixth and ninth innings, in which the Oaklands bunched their hits, Coughlin pitched a splendid game. Cobb was also effective, the Friscos being unable to gather their many long hits together in any inning except the third, when Shea got a single, Ebright a double, and Stevens a triple. There waa some powerful long hitting done, Ebright captnring the honors with three beantiful doubles. Sweeney and Stevens had a triple each, and Hanley and Norris O'Neill a double. Some of the atops made by Everett and McDonald were phenomenal, while Dungan made a sensational catch in right center in the fifth inning. Hanley's outfielding was also of a magnificent character while Dooley covered first in his own inimitable splendid style. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The Sensational party still hold their firm advantsge while the Oakland and Friscos are being tossed around second place. At present writing the Friscos are third, but the winning of a single game is sufficient to put them in second place, so close are they to the Oaklands. The Stocktons percentage remains almost stationary, for they even up a game won hy losing the next.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Ward, late of the Tacomas, ia now playing short stop for Fresno.

Little Carsey is a great pitcher, but he has been playing in hard luck lately.

It is rumored that Youngs release from the Stocktons will occur in the near future.

Patsy Cahill is doing excellent work at the bat and in center field for the Portlands.

The players of the Fresno team ahould be closely watched, They're winning everything "in sight.'

McGucken haa been released from the Baltimores and Johnson of the Newarks aigned in hia place.

Players Seward, Shafer and Robinson of the Athletic Clnb of the American Association have brought suit for back salaries.

"Chick" Speer is said immensely popnlar with the fair sex in Vallejo, who only know of the clever little backstop through the newspapers.

Jack Hayes' injuring waa such as to cause his retirement from the diamond for some time to come. He is now tending bar in Port Townsend.

First baseman Beckley, ahort stop Fuller, Fielder McCarthy and second baseman Robinson will all he with Comiskey on hia Pacific Coast trip.

Cobb has won ten of tbe eleven last games he has pitched in, winning nine straight. Quite a record for a pitcher many thought wouldn't last the season out.

The Boston League Club is now thanking its lucky stars that it did not releaae Lou Hardie when it contemplated doing so, saya a recent issne of the Sporting Life.

Pete Sweeney is putting np a "good every day" game at short for the Louisvilles. Pete has already been seen with the St. Louis, St. Paul and Lonisvilles thia season. Next!

Colonel Dungan has not been getting in hia two and three hits a game lately. About one a game seems to be his limit now. Can it be that the pitchera have discovered his weakness?

Zimmer, of Cleveland, canght one hundred and eleven snccessive gamea this season, and only quit on account of the aerious illness of his wife. Andy Somers replaces him behind the bat.

George Kelly, who played in the forepart of the season with Stockton, and who ranked tenth in the batting list of the Leagne with a percentage of 274, is now the short stop of the Amateur Burlingtons.

Captain Ebright is punishing the ball as severely as any of them now. Some of his hits are terrific long shots and come in very opportunely; for instance, that three bagger last Monday which cleared the bases.

The other day a man of a minsterial sir dropped into a news depot on High street and asked for a paper "with no base ball news in it." "Well sir," replied the dealer, "you just step in at the next door and get some fly paper.—Lonisville Post.

"Sonny" Hoffman, who has fonnd a bertb with the Stocktons, gives every evidence of being an excellent hitter and base-runner, and handles himself like an expert fielder. It is to be hoped that his future work will fulfill the good impressions he has created.

Pache, the amateur, has shown that he is a fielder of no ordinary merit, covering ground fast and judging a ball rightly, but at tbe bat he is somewhat weak. However, he is the making of a good ball player, and with a years' hard practice, will be capable enough to take his position with any of them.

Luby the Chicsgo twirler, hss displaced John Reilly as the leading Nationsl League batsman. His percentsge in twenty-two games is .377, while the lanky baseman's is 336. "Darby" O'Brien, Jack Glasscock, Hamilton and Tierman follow in the order named, with percentsges of 328, .322, .318 and .116 respectively.

From Sept. 5th to Sept. 15th inclusive, the San Franciscos played every day, taking part in eleven consecutive gsmes of which tbey won seven. They won four of five played with Sacramento, and quit even with Oakland and Stockton, takiug two of four played with the Colonels, and one of the two played with the tail enders.

Umpire McLanghlin, wbo, in his official capacity, did not score a brilliant success, has been released from the California League stsff of nmpires, and Charley Sweeney is temporarily filling the vacancy in a very acceptable manner. McLaughlin intends going to the Springs for a few weeks, as his system is completely run down, after which he will return to his home in Indiana.

We are much inclined to believe that the Stockton directors made a mistake when they appointed Armstrong captain of the team. Beyond qnestion, Armstrong is a first class ball player, but is poorly fitted to make an efficient captain being too domineering and obstreperous in disposition to snceeed in getting good harmonions work out of the players. A change of csptaincy would undoubtedly prove beneficial.

For three games played Sept. 13th, 14th, and 15th, the San Franciscos made 39 hits out of 121 times at bat, giving a team batting average of 322. This is excellent stick work, and considering that the three games were won off such pitchers as Harper, Hoffman and Shaw, manager Finn should appreciate his team's successful efforts by procnring them the much needed new uniforms.

Hen Moore received a most hearty ovation when be stepped to the hat in lsst Snndays gsme. Hen has always been a prime favorite here, and although be fsiled to distinguish himself in last Sunday's game, he is yet a strong reliable hitter, a magnificent fielder, and rapid bsse rnnner. If Moore was signed with some of the teams under congenial conditions, he would agsin he one of the "stars" of the Leagne.

On a ball field one often sees a catcher receive a ball full on the mask with force enongb, perhaps, to bend tbe strong wirea of the protector. He will grab his mask off, rub his forehead for a moment, and go on catching, and one wondera just how much protection the mask was. A blow on the mask is dreaded by a catcher almost as mnch as a broken finger. A heavy hlow with most catchers means a headache for several days, and sometimes longer. It freqnently hnrts the eyes. Almost every catcher has suffered that way at some time or another.

Here are a few minor leaguera that it will pay the big clubs to watch: Firat baseman Powers, of Baltimore; center fielder Lally and pitchers Horner, Doran and Gilliland, of New Haven: catcher McCaffrey, pitcher Swift and first baseman Rodgera, of Lebanon; second baseman Eagan and left fielder Jones, of Harrisburg; second baaeman Lang, of Quincy; catcher Frost, of Peoria; second baseman Day, of Minneapolis; pitcher and left fielder Smith and center field Burns, of Kanaas City; pitcher Clark, of Omaha; catcher Cahill, of New Haven, and pitcher Thornton, of Milwaukee.—Philadelphia Press.

It is said that Mr. Hellman, who is the promoter and prime factor in the Southern California League movement, will negotiate for the services of umpires Gaffney and Sheridan to officiate at the games to be played during the winter schedule of that League at Los Angeles and adjacent cities. While Gaffney is undoubtedly one of the foremost autocrats of the diamond, let us ask, why not give honest Jack Donahue, who has proven himself indisputably highly efficient, conscientions and gentlemanly, a chance? We have never seen Mr. Gaffney umpire, but if he is the superior of Donahue, he must be well nigh infallible.

The Stocktons' new uniforms, while not exceedingly attractive, are neat, tidy and servicable. When the directors of a tail end club, playing to empty benches are magnanimous enough to expend seventy-five or one hundred dollars on a new outfit so that their team may appear in respectable condition and also fulfill the requirements of the National Playing Rules, it would seem that there was "something rotten in the state of Denmark" when the team which represents the metropolis of the Pacific Coast, and which is making a big play for the pennant, has to be paraded time and time again before the wearied eyes of an indulgent public in uniforms that would actually disgrace a team from pauperdom.

I took her to the ball game,
And taught her how to score;
She clapped when all the others clapped,
She pounded on the floor.

She waved her dainty 'kerchief;
She yelled till she was hoarse;
And when an error graced the field
She cried aloud, of course.

She mixed assists and errors,
But tallied every ball;
She quite forgot the hits, and runs
She did not count at all.

She thought it was just lovely,
And dreadful, lots of fun;
The only thing she didn't know,
Was just which side had won!

—SAM S. STINSON, in Light.

Both the lesders, the Santa Rosas and Reports heing defeated last Sunday pulled their aversgea down a peg, while Vallejo went up anotber notcb. The Will & Fincks and Burlingtons also showed a slight improvement but the Allens are still in the hole. The Santa Rosas are first, though they are not far ahead of the Reports. WILL AND FINCKS vs. SANTA ROSAS.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Fincks broke their long string of defeats by winning a well contested game from the leaders last Sunday. Manager Grace brought down a powerful team, in fact his strongest of the season, with Callen and Pace in the "points." The Young Giants also showed up in splendid form having Howell in the box and Dave Levy at the receiving end. Both pitchers did excellent work but Howell was the steadier, giving but three bases on balls, and allowing six well scattered hits. Callen was touched un lively for eight "safe shots" and also gave five bases on balls and had two wild pitches. His battery errors figured materially in the Fincks run getting. The fielding game put up by both teams was of an exceptionally clever character, only three errors being made by each side. The infield of both teams were almost invincible many difficult chances being cleverly accepted. Tillson and Deeney figured in two splendid double plays. Reilly, Hulen, Bradley and Kelly for the Santa Rosas again showed their efficiency as a stonewall infield. The work of the outfielders was perfect. Gimmel, McCarthy and Conway were the only players offered chances, which were all well accepted, and the rapid return of the ball by Gimmel and McCarthy assisted in two put outs. Pace's back work was something grand, that player throwing out six runners at bases. Conway, Deeney and Pace led with two hits each. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. E. T. ALLENS.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14TH, 1890, AT VALLEJO.

The Marinea took another tnmble out of the "Sports" by just one run last Snnday. Both McDonald and Spragne were hit hard, hut Spragne was effective with men on bases striking ont no less than twelve men. In the ninth the Allens made a great finish by hunching their hits and tallying five runs, almost tying the acore. "Speedy" McDonald was steadier than usual hut the heavy hitting Marinea tapped him ont lively all throngb the game making thirteen "safe ahots" including two triplea and two doublcs. The same number of long hits were made off Spragne. Neither teams fielding was up to the standard, the left side of the Marines heing particnlarly "shaky." The Allens had one error distributed to each player with the exception of their first and second baseman and right fielder. In the hitting Broderick, Buckley, Wise and Smith carried off the honors, each making three hits while Philpot, Boyle, Mulvey and Stanford followed with two each to their credit. The praiseworthy features were Farrell's catching, Hughes' second base play and the clever infielding of Broderick,. Evatt, Philpot and Buckley. The score:

FRESNO vs. MERCED.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14TH, 1890, AT FRESNO.

Austin's clever Fresno team was again too much for the Merceds, for they ont-played them at every point. Kessell was landed on heavily, eleven "safeties" being secured by the Fresnos, one being a home run, another a donble and two triples. He gave way in the latter part of the game to De Pangher, who did hut little better. The nine errors distrihuted throughont the Merced team proved costly. Fresno fielded well, three of their five errors going to Utt, who had an "off day." The Merceds took a lead at the beginning, hut were overtaken and overtopped in the fonrth hy the Fresnos, who scored four runs in that inning, after which it was all clear sailing, and they won "hands down." Chase pitched a masterly game for the home tesm, allowing hut six hits and disposing of thirteen opposing batsmen on strikes. He wss admirably supported at the receiving end hy the veteran Jack Cullen. Matt Stanley at first, and Thurman at third base, played a perfect game. For Merced, Thomma caught in good shape, throwing out five men at hases. Drum, Thurman and Pier hit terrifically. McClure, an old-time player, umpired very satisfactorily. The score:

Well, well! how the Marines are climbing up.

Pace made the three runs of his side last Sunday.

Losing games hy just one run has been the Allens luck all season.

Billings is doing reliable work behind the bst for the Allens.

Warren had out a strong fielding and hard hitting team last Sunday.

Bsltz, the king pin twirler, pitches against Santa Rosa tomorrow.

Conway, of the Fincks, made two beautiful donhles last Sunday.

Farrell is putting up a bang up game for the Young Giants at third.

That three bagger of Josh Reilly'a in the Santa Rosa—Will & Finck game was a "corker."

No less than four amateur gsmes are played every Saturday on inclosed grounds in Melbourne.

The Yonng Giants won a game last Snnday, and from the leaders. Hope it will break their spell of bad luck.

Fred Sprague is pitching fine ball for the Marines. Last Snnday he did not give a hase on balls and struck out twelve batsman.

Smith'a Burlingtons have started off well. They're in the race with a rnsh, and thus far have practically snbstantiated President Gage's good judgment in making the change.

The Reporta were defeated last Sunday morning at the Haight St. grounds by the Burlingtons—score 4 to 1. It was a regnlar schednle game. The batteries were Rohan and Wilds, and Monet and Thompson. No official tahulated score of the game was kept

In the last two games Maguire of the Vallejos has accepted hut four chancea out of twelve, making eight errors. This is a miserable abowing for a player like Mgnire, who in the fore part of the season loomed np like a "star". Brace np Tom, yon don't want to he like O'Neill.

Cbarley Tillson's work at short this season has been truly magnificent. There is no player in the California Amateur or Professional League that fields the position more cleverly or brsinily than does tbis yonng player. Tillson should rightfully have been in the big league three years ago if players are to be judged hy their ahilities.

To-morrow at 2 o'clock the Allens and Burlingtons will play a benefit game at Emeryville, the proceeds to go to Billy Kennedy, the clever and popular young player who broke his ankle while participating in a game played hetween the aame teams at the Haight St. grounds on the 7th inst. The game is the regular championship one which was scbedn1ed for Vallejo. There will undonhtedly be a large attendance as both teams put up a good article of ball, and it will he the first Sunday afternoon game of any prominence played in Oakland this season. Those attending from this aide ahould take the 1 o'clock boat and connect with the Berkeley train.

The game between Santa Rosa and Vallejo to-morrow ought be to s dandy. The Vallejos want the game to add to their long list of victories, while the Santa Rosas will do their utmost to win it in order to keep the lead. The Vallejos have alresdy won four of the five games played with Grace'a men. A large crowd will accompany the Marines, and a "warm" day may be expected in the "City of the Roses."

Josh Reilly won a snit of clothes hy hanging out a three base bit in last Sunday's Santa Rosa—Will & Finck game. The donor is Manager Grace who made the proposition to his players that whoever scored a triple in the game would be presented with an order for a forty dollar suit, and Josh was the lucky man. The hit was a terrific one to the left field fence, snd went past Conway like a flash.

In the National—Rincon game at Central Park Sept. 8th, Larkins, the center fielder of the Nationals should have been credited with two put outs in the second inning, bnt which were, in some nnaccountable manner, accredited opposite the name of Long, the first hasemsn, whose nsme in the score book immedistely followed that of Larkins. We hasten to correct the mistake which was an over-sight and thoroughly unintentional on the part of the scorer. The put onts were two excellent catches, one retiring Finn, the first man up in the second inning, and the other, a long fly captured from Blakiston's bst retired the side. Instead of ten put outs Long should have eigbt, while the other two sbould be found opposite Larkins' name, making a clean fielding record for that player.

Senatorial Sayings.

Devine's Chat Concerning the Sacramento Team—Amateur Matters.

[Special Correspondence.]

Sacramento, Sept. 19th, 1890

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The State Fair has come, and with the races and many other attractions, the interest in base ball has been considerably lessened for a time at least. The Senators played three games last week with Mike Finn's convalescent aggregation, only one of which they won. All the games were replete with heavy hitting and some very abominable playing, especially on the part of the Senators. The attendance at the games on Friday snd Saturday was very small indeed, while that of Snnday was not above the average. The interest in base ball in the Capital City seems to he dying out, and for wbst reason no one seems to he able to tell. The owners of the local team have braved a great deal of trouble and expense, snd through their nntiring efforts they have placed a team before the ball loving public of this city, of which they should well feel prond. The attendance at the gsmes in this city is not what it shonld be, with snch a team as the Senators are, and it is very discouraging to the owners to think that after their hard labors to have a pennant winning club in the Capital City, their efforts are hnt poorly appreciated. I happened to he passing hy the place where the crsnks hold out, the other evening, and I overheard a conversation between two enthusiasts regarding the sitnation and the outlook for baseball here next sesson. They seemed to think that Sacrsmento would he dead to professionsl base ball for a good many years to come. On what they based their assertions I did not hear, hut I hope that they will he mistaken, as nothing goes so far to advertise a place as a good professional ball tesm. In a conversation with Mike Finn while he was in Ssramento, he remarked to me about the Amateur Leagne, and informed me that he has always been in favor of the younger organization, and hopes to see them prosper.

Dick Nagle of the old Alameda Maroons is now playing hall in Merced. Dick is a fine hall player and a gentleman, and I hope he will be successful.

Baltz and Hughes of the Vallejos, of the California Amateur Leagne are Sacramento boys, and have played nnder my mansgement for over three years. They both are excellent ball players, and in them the Vallejo club has a psir that are hard to heat.

Jack Daly, the Senator's hrilliant gnardian of their short field is still the same old Jack; and if there is to be a professional team in Sacramento next year, I hope that Jack will remain with us. Are you with us, Jack?

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V, M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S, 1117 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

W. E. G.

I have a yearling colt that seems healthy in every way and eats well, bnt when I bring him into his stable at night he grnnts and groans almost all the time. Please let me know the cause of this.

Answer.—Your colt is most probably a "roarer." You can find this ont by giving him severe exercise and listening to his breathing, or by standing him up by a fence or wall and pretending to strike him suddenly with a whip when, if he is a "roarer," he will emit a grunt. "Roarers" generally emit this grunting sonud when they lie down, especially after a large feed.

C. L.

I have a horse with five or six large warts on the belly. They sometimes get red and sore and look bad. I burned them with canstic but it does not appear to do them any good. How can I remove them?

Answer—Cut the skin round their base and remove them. If it bleeds mnch cauterize the part with a red hot iron.

X.

I followed the advice given in your issne of August 16th, and my colt has progressed rapidly, but he has still a thickening round the throat and when he runs fast makes a noise in breathing. Is there anything that can be done for him.

Answer.—Apply a heniodide of meronry, blister one part of the ben-iodide to eight of lard, to the throat where the thickening remains and give him half a drachm of potassium-iodide daily in a mash for a month.

H. T.

I have a nice colt four years old and very promising. He has an enlargement of the off hind leg where curb generally comes. I think it is too large to be a curb and it does not appear to lame him, bnt gets a little larger every time I drive him and comes down again when I give him a few days rest. What is it and what should I do to it?

Answer.—It is a ourb. The most effectnal treatment is to fire and blister it and give him rest.

Subscriber.

Dr. Egan requests to know if my colt shows weakness across the loins when backed np or turned aronnd quickly? He does show weakness of the loin, and turns with difficnlty with his hind legs.

This weakness in the back is due to a hurt or sprain, not from irritation of the wolfteeth. If he he so bad as to fall when yon back him qnickly, it is almost a hopeless case, bnt seeing that he is young, his chances of recovery are better. Apply some counter irritant such as the firing-iron or a blister, and do not allow him any severe exercise. You mnst be careful in blistering him to wash it off after it has risen, and smear the part over with sweet oil, as a blister over the loins is liable to become absorbed and injure the colt. Give him ten grains of nux vomica daily in a mash.

Answer—Your horses and cattle have not all died from the same disease.

The cattle appear to have died from an anthracoid disease, most probably anthrax or splenic apoplexy, which kills cattle very suddenly, generally within twenty-four hours of its first appearance.

In this disease a post-mortem examination shows the spleen enormously enlarged, and the blood of the animal is very dark. The contents of the intestines and bladder are also generally mixed with blood.

The snckling colts presents the symptions of aranyles, while the old mare showed some symptions of azotnria, and others of having eaten a poisonous herb which sometimes gets mixed with hay.

Some of the other horses appear to have had strangles strangles, in which disease, abcesses form in different parts of the body. The part becomes swollen and very painful, consequently the horse shows lameness in the leg nearest that part. The chest is a favorite place for these abscesses to form, but they are liable to form in almost any part of the body.

If any deaths should occur again in your neighborhood, make a post-mortem examination of the animal or animals and endeavor to answer as many of the questions asked by me in our issue of the Aug. 23rd as possible, and I shall endeavor to give you a more definite reply. You did not give any symptoms in the cattle either before or after death.

E. S. C.

I will try to answer as many of your questions as I can. I have had in all eight head affected with this same disease, and five of them have died. The stiffness affects the leg nearest the swollen part, and that has been in different cases from the throat to the hind hoofs. Some of the later cases ate and drank up to within a few hours of death, which has occurred in from twenty-four to sixty hours of the first appearance of the illness. The swellings that were opened consisted of a jellylike white substance. Some of the stock had free access to running water, but one or two were supplied from a flowing well of clear and apparently pure water. Some of them were on wet ground and others on dry soil. The horses varied in age from a snckling colt to sixteen years of age. The glands did not appear to be enlarged and with one or two exceptions, there was no discharge from the nose, and then the throat seemed badly involved. The actions of the horses were as near natnral as possible to an animal not perfectly well and none seemed to suffer any severe pain. A sucking filly made considerable noise in breathing for more than twenty-four hours, and her throat was covered with ulcers on the inside. As far as noticed, the urine and mannre were in a natnral state and there were no twitchings of the mnscles. As we were not prepared for such work, we did not make any postmortem examination. The cattle, most of them, seemed to die very suddenly, being well at night and dead in the morning. The colt, and apparently most of the fatal cases, seemed to keep on their feet till they dropped dead, and evidently without a struggle. One old mare was fed in the morning and in about half an hour it was noticed that she had begun to swell at the stifle and in an hour it had spread on to her belly and up her hip on top of her back, and seemed to be covered with small lumps. She recovered, while yonnger stock that seemed to be no worse at first died. I shall be glad to be able to have described this disease, so you can tell what it is.

Standard and Non-Standard Breeding.

We clip from the Boston Horse Breeder the following article:

The fact that Leopard Rose, a mare non-standard by breeding, has proved the fastest trotter and best campaigner in her class this season, shows that there is some deep, hidden mystery surrounding the cause or causes upon which trotting speed depends that the standard advocates have failed to reach. We have no desire to disparage the standard advocates have failed to reach. We have no desire to disparage the standard, but do believe that, if the deep thinkers and facile writers, like Iconoclast, Aurelius and others of that class, would drop the thoroughbred question for a time, and seek to unravel this mystery mentioned, they will render the breeders of trotting stock throughout the country even more valuable service than they are now doing.

It is a singular fact, as has often been remarked, that most of our very fastest trotters and greatest campaigners were either by sires or from dams which were not bred in accordance with the standard formula. Miss Russell, dam of Mand S., 2:08¾, was by Pilot Jr., out of the thoroughbred mare Sally Russell by Boston. She was not standard by breeding. She possessed qualities, however, and imparted them to her distinguished daughter, which enabled the latter to gain the trotting crown and hold it for years against all aspirants.

Midnight, dam of Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, the fastest gelding that has yet appeared, was by Pilot Jr., out of Twilight, a thoroughbred daughter of Lexington by Boston. Midnight could not have been admitted to standard rank when foaled. She had the power, however, to produce a trotter so fast that only Mand S. has yet been able to reach the mark he set.

The dam of Sunol, 2:10½, was Waxana by Gen. Benton, from Waxy, a thoroughbred daughter of Lexington, son of Boston. Waxana was not standard by breeding, yet there was something in her composition which enabled her to produce the trotting wonder of the age.

Flora Gardner, dam of Guy (2:19¾), was by Seeley's American Star; dam by Bay Richmond. She was not standard bred, but only the three trotters above named have yet succeeded in getting faster records than Guy, which, though somewhat eratis and national, has a world of speed. The next trotter in rank is St. Julien (2:11¼), whose sire is Volunteer, a son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and the famous Lady Patriot that was not standard by breeding. The dam of St. Julien was Flora, by Sayre's Harry Clay, and Flora's dam was by a dun colored horse whose sire was imported from France. Flora was not standard bred.

Here are five of the fastest trotters yet produced, and not one of the lot out of a dam that was standard bred. In fact, a large proportion of the most distinguished brood mares yet produced were of the non-standard variety. To date only six mares have ever produced five or more 2:30 performers each, viz: Green Mountain Maid, dam of seven; Minnehaha, dam of five; Alma Mater, dam of five; Ned, dam of five; Waterwich, dam of five, and Emeline, dam of six. Neither of these mares was standard by breeding.

The five greatest trotting sires yet brought to light, measured by the number of sons and daughters with which each is credited in the 2:30 list, are Geo. Wilkes, Wilson's Blue Bull, Electioneer, Happy Medium and Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Neither of the dams of these wonderful trotting progenitors were bred in conformity to the standard formula. Those of Blue Bull and Rysdyk's Hambletonian are not standard to-day. The same is true of the dam of Daniel Lambert, the greatest of New England sires, and also the dam of Geo. Knox, another famous New England sire, which ranks second only to Daniel Lambert among all the stallions that ever stood in New England, judged by the 2:30 list.

These mares, though not standard by breeding, possessed and transmitted qualities which gave them their marked distinction. What were those qualities? From what were they inherited? What were the characteristics of these great mares and their ancestors? These are questions which interest every breeder of trotting stock. Young breeders have been taught in the past to study the blood lines of the fast turf performers. Many have done so very carefully, and with profit to themselves. They have found, however, that these mares were bred from different strains. Not two of the five mares above mentioned are by the same sire, and they represent four different trotting families.

Breeders can learn such facts as these from the registers and records. The registers and records, however, do not furnish a key to the question why Green Mountain Maid proved so far superior to all other daughters of Sayre's Harry Clay, or why each of the other mares mentioned were so far superior to any of the other daughters of their respective sires. There is some reason for this condition of affairs, and the man who discovers this reason, and makes it plain to the average of breeders will confer on them a priceless boon.

We believe that if young breeders will study the characteristics of the ancestors more thoroughly, the knowledge which they gain can be so utilized as to largely increase their chances of success in producing animals far above the average in point of quality and speed.

Observation and experience have taught us to believe that the very best results are obtained by breeding from resolute, nervy mares that are free, courageous drivers and untiring roadsters, even though they may not be remarkably fast trotters. As a general rule the more vim, power or nerve force the mare possesses the more likely she will be to produce a trotting wonder.

We are informed that the dams of Axtell, 2.12 and Jack, 2:12½, were of that kind, and that neither of them could trot a full mile better than about four minutes. Young breeders who are starting in with a purpose to raise nothing but standard stock should not only aim to get the best bred animals that they can secure, but also insist upon having those possessing the characteristics that great brood mares exhibited, and possessing them so strongly that they show plainly when the animal is hitched to a carriage or led to a halter. Do not pay any less attention to the blood lines of your stallions and brood mares, young breeders, but do pay much more attention to the quality of them than has been done in the past. Follow this practice carefully and you will get animals that will sell for large prices on their merits, aside from their breeding.

A Good Place to Sell or Buy.

E. W. Woods, whose experience as a dealer in horses, and whose reputation for honesty cannot be questioned, is now located at the Central Park Horse Market, opposite the New City Hall, on Mission Street. He is prepared to buy, sell or take for sale on commission horses of every description, and is not above including mules or "burros." Those who have any business of this sort to transact, will find it to their benefit to give Mr. Woods a call, as they can depend upon getting a "square deal" either selling or buying.

Chicago Great Combination Sale.

Remember that entries for F. J. Berry & Co's sale Nov. 4th to 9th close Oct. 4th, and the catalogne is fast filling up. You want to hurry up your entries and secnre a good place in the sale. Remember the eale is the same week as the great horse show and horsemen will be here from all parts of America, and will attend the Berry sale in the daytime and the horse show in the evenings. The Great American Horse Show combined with the very large and extensive trade of Berry & Co., as their trade extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and have had 35 years experience in the business and the largest dealers in the world, selling 15,000 horses yearly. Thus consignors can readily see the vast amount of trade controlled by F. J. Berry & Co., and the double force of buyers brought to their sale will more than guarantee a great snccessful sale, as a very large per cent of the entries are of a very high order and will represent the blood of most all of the great sires such as Red Wilkes, Onward, Electioneer, Kentucky Prince, Pilot Medium, Happy Medinm and most all of the sons of Hambletonian 10 and many other very popnlar sires. They have a pavilion built on purpose for holding anction sales, heated by steam, all under cover, track 1¼ miles for showing speed and all of the accommodations. For entry blanks, address,

The Trotter in Australia.

In a letter to the Turf, Field and Farm dated August 5th, Mr. James A. Roberts of the firm of Roberts & Co., iron merchants, Sydney, writes:

Breeding is carried on very differently here to what it is in America, so I should imagine any way after years of diligent perusal of your splendid paper and the California Breeder and Sportsman.

As yon will doubtless know I was among the first to introdnce the American trotting horse to Australia, importing for this purpose, stallions: Boccaccio by Woodford; Len Rose by A. W Richmond; Pioneer by C. M. Clay; and mares: Tilda C, Sylph, Rosemary, Fanny, Cora, Victoria, Fernleaf, and the gelding Fred. And I am pleased to say that though the sporting men held up their hands in holy horror, they have now taken to it, and trotting races are of frequent occnrrence, well attended, well contested, and getting more popular yearly. In proof of this I may just mention that at a recent sale of the yearlings belonging to the hitherto largest breeder of thoroughbred stock in Australia, the trotting stock, a new feature, fetched higher prices and highest average. The fastest horses in Australia were bred by me, White Rose and DeCameron, both by Boccaccio.

A lot of horses which have come out from America were never more than third or fourth raters, and were sold on their name; they themselves were never good, and it is useless to expect their progeny to be. People are tired of being offered American trotters that either can't or won't trot; and thus those which come pass into obscurity—a place they should never have left. A horse that could fairly trot 2:20 would be a novelty here. People say our tracks are greased, or you calculate a furlong as 200 yards and eight to a mile—1,600 yards for an American mile, like your gallon as against English, or your hundredweight, 100 lbs. vs. 112 lbs. English; or your watches are slow; or, what is more horrible still, for your papers hint at it, or your laws are taking cognizance of it, your judges and timers make time to suit, as your Senator did with his sentiments—"Gents, them's my sentiments; if they don't suit I can alter them."

Boccaccio, whose stock is reported as doing so well in Australia, is a bay horse, foaled in 1873, bred in Kentucky, and by Woodford, out of Rising Star, by Gage's Logan, son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Woodford was by Woodford Mambrino, out of Mahala, by Mahomet, son of Sovereign, and she out of Madame Porter, by Orphan Boy. The Mambrino Chief and Hambletonian strains in him were stontly supported by thoroughbred strains. We hope that Boccaccio will become the recognized founder of a trotting family in Australia. It is gratifying to hear that trotting races are well attended in that country. With improved tracks and a better system of training and driving, a 2:20 horse will cease to be a novelty. The suspicion that our principal tracks are short, and the watches not started and stopped correctly, is without foundation. If Mr. Roberts will go down our Grand Circuit line next Summer, he will discover that as a rule the time is correctly taken.

There was a time when foreigners could be induced to buy our failures and broken down trotters, but not now. Eyes have been opened and deception is less easily practiced. We are glad of this, because the breeder will stand a better show when the dishonest trader is left severely alone by purchasers from abroad.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public that he will be prepared to meet his old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

The Turf Field and Farm, which is always ready to say mean things of the West, is very much exercised because there have been some notable reductions of records over the Independence track, and more than insinuates that the timing was done to order, says the Breeders Gazette. This is the sheerest nonsense. Everybody admits that the baloon-shaped track is the fastest yet devised, and while there are a good many people who were astonished at and suspicious of the records made at Independence, the only person with so little wit as to charge that the timing was fraudulent, is our Eastern contemporary. There is a well-defined impression among horsemen that it would be a good thing to have the Independence track measured under the supervision of the American or National Trotting Association, as was suggested in these columns last week, and it is more than likely that this will be done. To charge fraudulent timings is silly. There were hundreds of ontside watches at Independence that corresponded with those of the timers. There is no doubt that Roy Wilkes, Jack, Margaret S., Alvin and the rest trotted in the time hung out. The only question is: Did they go a mile?

Where Will You Go?

The two circuits which start early in August, to a certain extent clash against each other, but the distance separating Chico from Petaluma, and Marysvilles from Oakland, does not make very much matter in point of attendance, as there are always horses enough in training to fill all the purses offered by the different Associations, after which they all congregate together at Sacramento for the annual holding of the State Fair. From our reports we feel assured that this has been an exceedingly successful year, both in first-class racing and in liberal attendance, and that there will be a good showing on the right side of the ledger is now an assured fact. Where the horsemen will go next week we cannot tell. Stockton, the scene of so many equine triumphs and fast miles, has published a programme which will tempt many to visit the Slough City. Lakeport, that delightful little town in Lake County, has also given promises of what they will do, and there can be no question but what many will hie themselves away to that beautiful spot where there are so many beauties to enchant the eye. Reno, with its annual State Fair gathering for Nevada, will not be forgotten by those who have been in the habit of attending in the past, and where there are always purses enough offered to attract first class entries, and the betting is usually of the best. Owing to the backwardness of the season, Glenbrook Park had to postpone its meeting when advertised, but now are all ready to receive their guests, and the worthy Secretary notifies us that he has been promised many good horses, and he feels assured that the attendance will be larger than ever. Last but not least on the list comes the old fashioned town of Quincy, where everybody can have a good time, the hospitality of its citizens being proverbial. More money is offered at this point than was ever given in the district before, and the officers have been indefatigable in their efforts to make this the most successful meeting ever held in the mountains. With so many objective points of interest staring one in the face, the question naturally comes up, "Where will you go?"

Fresno Entries Close To-day.

No New Race Track.

Last week we called attention to the fact that Mr. Alfred Josephs of Sandhurst, Australia, was in this city, trying to arrange for a lease of land on which he contemplated laying out a large amount of money for the purpose of giving to the residents of California a race course which would have been the equal of any in the world. Those who were interested in the enterprise did not come in our midst and ask for money to assist them, but openly stated that they were willing to expend all the money necessary for the accomplishment of the object, and take all financial responsibilities on their own shoulders. Several sites eligible for a race track have been examined, and it is sadly to be regretted that Mr. Josephs has been unable to make satisfactory arrangements with those who own land suitable for the purpose. One instance in particular will show the grasping desires of those owning such land. A well known gentleman who, a short time ago, invested in outlying acreage, asked for a twenty-years lease, almost fifteen times more than he paid for the ground originally. Others were in a like mood, and Mr. Josephs has been unable to satisfy the inordinate desires of these would-be money makers, as it wouldseem too much like throwing away the money put in by himself and his associates.

In talking about the proposed track, many of our readers have given it their unqualified indorsement, and several letters have been received at this office which goes to show that the enterprise would have received hearty support from the breeders of this and adjoining States. Some of them are couched in language quite strong, and as an instance of how some of the prominent ones engaged in breeding feel in regard to this matter, we herewith insert in full a letter received from the Hon. Theo. Winters:

WASHOE, Nev., Sept. 14, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I notice in your issue of the 13th inst. an article headed "Racing Proposition," in in which Messrs. Josephs and Thompson propose to come here and lay off and maintain a first-class course upon this coast, providing they can secure the endorsement and co-operation of the principal breeders.

Owing to the smallness of the purses hung up on this coast as compared with those in the East, and the better facilities for the sale of young stock there, I have for the past two seasons in a measure changed my base of operations, but would gladly return and assist in building up a Home Association of fashionable racing, and thereby encourage a better market for the produce of our breeding farms.

I am, very truly yours, etc., THEO. WINTERS.

With such encouragement it can easily be seen that Mr. Josephs et. al. would have had little or no trouble in making their business venture a paying one, provided that the land could have been secured at living prices. Mr. Josephs sails to-day for Australia with, we are afraid, rather a bad idea of the land owners of this vicinity. Having known the gentleman for many years, we feel sorry to think he could not have successfully carried out the project, for we know that with his great wealth and executive ability, the proposed track would have been a complete success.

The Fresno Meeting.

In the advertising columns this week will be found a notice from the Directors of the Fresno Fair, inviting entries to several purses which will close to-day, September 20th. $500 is offered for the 2:35 class of trotters; $300 for half mile and repeat running horses; $500 for the 2:30 class trotting; and the promise is also given that $1,500 extra has been reserved for special races. Fresno in the past has been noted for its extreme liberality to horsemen, and this year seems to be no exception to the rule. With the stakes already closed, and with the new ones announced in this issue, they should have as good a meeting this year as has ever been given in the Raisin City. The Association believe in sticking to the old rule, and announce that in all of these races that they require three to enter and two to start, which gives horsemen much more of a chance than is usually offered them by the stringent conditions issued by many of the other Associations. Fresno is a beautiful city to visit; its hotels are of the best; its people are generous to a fault, and we know of many who look forward with much interest to their annual visit to that city.

Illness An Excuse.

In all well regulated newspaper offices, it becomes necessary to have such a corps of men in readiness for immediate work, that the illness of any one of the regular staff is not of much moment. However, there are times when offices are caught shorthanded, and we are in that condition this week, as three of our staff are confined to their rooms, while our extra men are scattered over the State, where racing is being held or about to be held. Usually all the departments of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN are kept up to such a high standard that we feel assured that the readers of the athletic department and the kennel and gun department will excuse us for the paucity of matter this week, and we sincerely trust that our associates may be able in the next issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to give the usual amount of their bright and breezy news matter.

Another Los Angeles Meeting.

The early summer meeting of the Los Angeles Agricultural Association was so highly successful that it has been deemed expedient by the Board of Directors to give another meeting later on in the year, and to that end advertise in the present issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that they will give five days' racing, commencing October 14th and extend to the 18th inclusive. The programme, as will be seen, is an exceedingly good one and consists of running, trotting and pacing, and beyond preadventure, the entries will be large as there are several stables now on the circuit, whose owners say that they will winter in the southern portion of the State. The Pacific Blood Horse Association rules will govern all the running races, while the American Trotting Association rules will be used for the trotters and the side wheel division. Entries, as will be seen, close on October 1st, so there is but little time to spare in making arrangements for a visit to the southern section. The railroad company, so it is stated, will convey horses by the car load from San Jose, Sacramento, Fresno and intermediate points to Los Angeles, either in baggage or special cars for $100. This is very reasonable, and shows that the railroad company is desirous of assisting the associations in their good work.

The Horse Illustrated.

We wish to acknowledge the receipt of a work entitled "The Horse Illustrated," which consists of a portfolio of twelve large plates of beautiful photo engraving, embracing one hundred and fifty accurate cuts of every feature, virtue, vice, disease and point of the horse. It is one of the most instructive publications that has been issued for a long time, and there is no horse owner who can afford to be without it, especially in view of the fact that the cost is only a half dollar. The cuts have been arranged with a great deal of care, and there is no one but what can obtain valuable information from the pictures as given. It is published by H. C. Brainerd, 675 St. Clair Street, Cleveland, Ohio, from whom it can be purchased.

The Old Admiral's Hand.

(Communicated.)

The American breeder who has familiarized himself with English racing history, would, if asked who was the best judge of race horses within the past century, answer "Admiral Rous," almost without a moment's hesitation. As a handicapper he never had an equal, and this fact is abundantly attested by the dead heat between three horses—Prioress, El Hakim and Queen Bess—for the Cesarewitch of 1858. In the run off Prioress won, owing largely, in my belief, to Mr. Pryor's experience in "cooling out" horses for the system of heat races then in vogue in America but long disused in England.

To the old Admiral is Australia very largely indebted for her great stock of galloping horses, originally imported from England and improved in bone and substance by a century of acclimatization upon the limestone pastures of the great South Continent. He first went out there in 1825 as a captain in the British Navy. Seeing great opportunities for young men to engage in pastoral pursuits and "grow up with the country," he sent out his two nephews from England and paved the way for them to acquire large leaseholds of crown lands. In the following year he shipped them out two stallions—Emigrant and Theorem—which arrived there in safety, together with seven blooded mares, among them Lady Emily, Mirror and Miss Lane, all of which figure prominently in good performers' pedigrees to this very day.

While Theorem was a horse above average excellence, Emigrant was vastly his superior. He was a brown horse, 15 hands, 3 inches high, and of immense substance. His feet were hard as vulcanized rubber and his cannon bones seemed made of flint. The venerable Mr. William Gosper of Windsor, said to us one day "I don't think I ever saw a horse I liked better than ould Emigrant; and you'll remember, The Barb died my property." And his life-long neighbor, Mr. George Yeo, who is now hugging the lee shores of seventy pretty close, said one day to us, "I was quite a well-grown lad when I saw Emigrant, and, barring Yattendon, I never saw a horse I liked better." The following table shows the list of the stallions sent out by the old Admiral to his nephews in New South Wales.

1823, EMIGRANT, br h, 5 years, got by Pioneer—Ringtail by Buzzard—Deceiver's dam by Trentham—Sister to Drone by Herod. Pioneer was by Whisky out of Prunella by Highflyer.

1828, THEOREM, ch h, 4 years, by Merlin, (son of Castrel)—Pawn (sister to Penelope) by Trumpator—Prunella by Highflyer. This horse was sent out from England on the brig Rainbow, and arrived in Sydney after a passage of 212 days.

1842, ALMACK, h h by Camel (sire of Touchstone)—Miss Skim by Skim—Striking Beauty by Sorcerer.

1860, AUSTRALIAN, b h, 3 years, by West Australian—Emilia by Young Emilius—Persian by Whisker. This colt was own brother to a horse of the same name; imported in utero by A. Keene Richards, of Kentucky, and subsequently sold to the late R. A. Alexander.

1869, BRIGADIER, br h, 2 yrs., got by King John (son of Kingston—Royal Curse by Mildew—Gipsy Queen by Tom-hoy—Lady Moore Carew (g d of Beadsman, by Tramp.

1872, SIR BENJAMIN, br h, 5 yrs, by Big Ben (son of Ethelbert—Lady Constance by Cotherstone—Drogheda by St. Patrick—Pawn Junior by Waxy.

A century of development of importations fully equal to these, has made the Australian thoroughbred very nearly a perfect horse. The man who goes there expecting to find such quality as prevails in the thoroughbred horse of America, will be disappointed. But he will find such strong frames and muscular development as America has only found in such occasional horses as Preakness and Ten Broeck. To the Admiral. therefore, must a great deal of this credit be given, for he not only sent out the above named horses as presents to his nephews, but likewise selected Kelpie for Simson & Rowe, as well as Fisherman for Mr. Hurtle Fisher.

The blood of Fisherman and Kelpie stands second to none in the colonies to-day. Although neither Kelpie's sons nor those of Fisherman won as many races as those of Musket and The Drummer, yet it must be borne in mind that in their day the distances were longer and the prizes of less value. Hence we do not think they suffer by comparison with either Chester, Goldsbrough, St. Albans or Tradncer.

The following great performers unite the blood of Kelpie and Fisherman: Nordenfelt, Abercorn, Trenton, Cuirassier, Melos, Navigator, Sardonyx, Trident and A. T., all performers under heavy weights and winners of classical events. Among winning horses of less valuable prizes over 500 can be found that trace directly back to the two stallions, Emigrant and Theorem. The latter was the more elegantly turned horse, but the former was the coarser and more substantial horse, and for that reason, the better calculated to become the founder of a great race of horses. The marks of the old Admiral's hand are indelibly graven upon the blood horse of Australia, and time shall not efface them.

Our Santa Barbara Letter.

Santa Barbara has had many fairs at this time of the year, but never had so many horses or ne'er as fast ones as there are entered for the races next week. Mr. Williams has the track in superb order, and under his management it is becoming a most favorite training track, but you can work your horses with no fear of their going wrong, and with no hesitancy it is pronounced by the trainers and jockeys to be the softest track on which to work a horse in the State.

The speed programme is very good, and next year the purses will be doubled, as the country is nearly full of well-bred and fast horses.

Lid Law, by Robbery Boy, dam Lillian by Chriton, is a famous half-mile gelding. He has run in 0:48½.

Comet, by the same horse, won a great race in Los Angeles this year, winning the half-mile and repeat against a good lot of horses in 0:48½, 0:48¾.

The Breeder's, for yearlings, closed with seventeen entries. The favorites are: Harry Stamboul by Stamboul, dam Carrie B. by A. W. Richmond; 2d dam Lillian. Harry is trotting quarters in 0:43.

White Cloud by Bashaw is also trotting close to a three-minute clip, and he is a well-behaved youngster. Excelsior, by Bashaw, will be with the leaders, and Bashaw Jr. will surprise many.

The three minute class will be interesting, and the one who guesses the winner will go home a happy man. Tommy Beach, by Bashaw, can trot better than 2:40. Neva, by Bashaw, is a rapid game horse.

The stallion race will be a hot one. Rosewall, by A. W. Richmond dam Mileta, by Chriten, has won four races this summer. He is entitled to honors, as in San Louis Obispo he trotted in 2:29. He will trot here in 2:27 or better. Bashaw is entered against him and he has shown miles better than 2:30. Don Patricio, by A. W. Richmond will also start in the stallion race.

Othello, by Hock Hockings, Consuelo, by Grinstead, and other bang tails, under the management of Menchsca will be heard of in the races. Mr. Menchaca has also in his charge Harry Stamboul.

James Mack, of Ventura, has some good horses in his string, all from Ventura.

Stamboul, Jr., by Stamboul, three years old; a black stallion Black Pilot, four years old by Sultan; a bay stallion, three years old by Hernani; J. B. by Corbet, sorrel gelding, three years old; Cyclone, by Whipple's Hambletonian, also Don Patricio.

Ferguson has Midnight, by Accident, dam by Newry, in excellent condition. Cornet in his charge is doing well, also the fine stallion from Ventura, Raindrop by Algona. Mr. Ferguson's grey filly Lathrop Belle is lame, and will not start in the three-quarter mile dash for two-year-olds

N. A. Covarrubias' geldings are doing well. His 4-year-old gelding Tono by Salisbury is trotting close to 2:30, and Nigger Baby faster still. The good people from Ventura and Lompoc admire Nick's handsome gelding Tono. He was not allowed to start in the :40 class. He was trotting too fast to suit the caprices of some of those who had horses entered in that race, so they, by some unaccountable and heterogeneous means, arrived at the conclusion, together with the Board of Directors, that they should dispose of Mr. Covarrubias' place of residence and allow that he hails from Utopia. If Mr. Covarrubias were interested in politics he might enjoy his new county seat, but as he is barred by the statues of the Agricultural Association, he insists on his right to select his place of residence, and all who are favored with his intimacy know that he has a strong predilection for his native city, Santa Barbara. SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 15, 1890.

Scene in Breeding.

Trotters Are Produced by Mares from Different Strains

A recent writer asserts that there is no such thing as a science of breeding. It is true that some authorities are doing the utmost that in them lies to make trotting breeders as unscientific as possible. On the reasoning of the writer referred to it is questionable whether or not there is a science of anything. Even mathematics, which is said to be the only exact science, rests on a series of unproven assumptions which are called axioms, things "which everybody knows to be true."

For instance, it is assumed that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. If the grounds of this assumption are challenged the only answer is that it is impossible to conceive that a straight line is not the shortest distance between two points. The power, or want of power of the human mind to conceive is therefore made the ultimate test of the truth of the axioms upon which the only exact science rests.

And yet every one will admit that there are many things which are totally beyond human powers of conception—infinite space, for instance, or infinite time. It is equally impossible to conceive time and space as limited or unlimited. The science of astronomy rests upon the veracity of the telescope and the photograph. But who knows that these witnesses always tell the truth? Oliver Wendell Holmes said but a few years ago, in effect, that medicine was as yet very far from a science.

Laws is in the same predicament, as no one ever heard of a legal proposition, the truth of which would not be disputed by some one. The fact is that if by science we mean absolute knowledge, there is no such thing as science among men; because, however much we may assert that we know such and such things, we can never be absolutely sure that we know anything, because even the evidence of our senses may be fallacious.

Bishop Berkley, as we all know (or think we know) proved by irrefutable logic that there was no such thing as matter; that mind was the only entity.

Nevertheless there are many things which most people know sufficiently well for the ordinary purposes of life. Notwithstanding the fact that it cannot be demonstrated that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, most persons are willing to accept it as a truth, and we are also willing to give credit to the evidence of our senses and to the testimony of the telescope and photograph. Hence we may say that there are such sciences as mathematics and astronomy, and in a mere limited sense a science of medicine and of law.

There is no fact that rests upon a surer scientific basis than the principle in heredity "like produces like or the likeness of some ancestor." This is fully as susceptible of demonstration as the assumption that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. This proposition is the corner stone of what may now well be termed the "science of breeding." It is not all of it, but it is a very important part of it.

Dash Racing.

For the past two or three years there has been more or less agitation for a change in the stereotyped three in five trotting programme, and while many have advocated this change, no association has yet felt bold enough to step forward and be the first to try the experiment, says the Sportsman.

The Northern New Jersey Fair Association have decided, after giving the matter mature deliberation to take the lead, and see if the horsemen and the public are as anxious for dash races as has been asserted.

The programme they throw to the breeze is certainly an attractive one, and well arranged to suit both owners and spectators. The nomination fee, too, is a nominal sum, and it will cost but a total of three hundred dollars to start a horse in every race, if such a thing was feasible for any owner, and to win three of the thirty events would ensure the entire sum of entrance money advanced. This is a decided advantage to owners, for instead of putting up a large entrance fee and then backing a horse to win, an owner can back his starter just as heavily on an investment of ten dollars to start, and not only this, but he can start the same horse two or three times on the same day, or one each day for the entire meeting.

I believe the change will be a pleasing one to the public, for although there is a pleasure in witnessing three or four heats in a race, after that the horses become tired, and to any one who has a real love for the noble animal a contest is no longer a pleasure when the starters no longer contest on their courage. Can anything be more unlike sport than to see a noble horse, tired and over exerted, straining every nerve, not to win as a high-bred, courageous horse will before the forces of nature are exhausted, but to escape the cruel lash.

Racing may be simply business to the gambler, but to a gentleman it is a recreation of the highest order, if properly conducted.

In the dash system of trotting and pacing, the long, tedious races of seven and eight heats and tired horses and spectators will be a thing of the past. So, too, will the plan of combining to wear out a good, game horse, and then bringing forward some second rate competitor that has been laid up to win the race at a time when the contest would have been ended had every man been out for himself.

If the dash system proves successful, it will almost entirely do away with that curse of the trotting turf "helping." The man who is always in a race to see how much he can get to "help" somebody or to "stop" someone, will find his occupation gone. The turf is rapidly outgrowing the days when illiteracy, low cunning and total depravity were the chief requisites for a successful turfman, and to-day brains and culture are the best "helpers" either in breeding or on the turf.

Is the dam of Electro (by Electioneer) Fatina by Berlin standard?

Answer.—Fatina is in the non standard list, vol. 6 page 397.

I would like to have you inform me what relation two colts would be, from the same stud and different mare.

Answer.—There is no term that adequately "fills the bill"; those not thoroughly posted in matters that pertains to breeding, usually call them half brothers, while breeders only use that term to those out of the same dam but by different sires.

Names Claimed.

I claim the name of SULTAN MAMBRINO, for two year old colt by Sultan S., dam May Queen by Abbotsford, brown, with star and two white hind feet.

VIOLET S., for yearling filly by Sultan S., dam May Queen by Abbotsford, bay, with star, left hind pastern white.

SABINA, for yearling filly by Sondan, dam by son of Geo. M. Patchen, brown, left hind pastern white.

ZARINA WILKES for yearling filly by Corbitt Wilkes, dam by Alonso Hayward; brown.

DETECTOR, for yearling colt by Designer, dam Winnie by Junio; bay, white heel on right hind foot.

DAPHNE S., for suckling filly by Designer, dam Winnie by Junio; bay.

New York Items.

While lovers of racing have been hugging themselves with pleasure at the prospect of a chance of Salvator and Kingston meeting, the fact of the matter would appear to be that the papers have been trying to bring such a matter about without any reference to the ideas of the interested owners, says the N. Y. Spirit of the Times. There has never really been any definite idea of a meeting between the two horses, and the reporters have apparently known more about it than Mr. Haggin, Matt Byrnes or anybody concerned. If the Dwyers would have consented to make a match at a mile and a quarter, it is on the cards that the thing might have been brought about, though it must be remembered that the frigidity engendered by the Kern episode of last season is against the arrangement. Apart from the fact that Salvator will probably go into retirement without having met Kingston, it is quite possible that he may never be again called upon to appear in public.

Sept. 5th the famous old race horse Helmbold died at the True Blue Stock Farm, Avoca, Steuben County, N. Y., the home of True Blue, Volney and Harrison Clay. Helmbold was foaled in 1866, being by imp. Australian, the son of West Australian and Emilia, his dam Lavender, by Wagner; second dam Alice Carneal (Lexington's dam) by imp. Sarpedon: third dam Rowena, by Sumpter. He was a horse of a peculiar color, which is sometimes known as black chestnut. While his normal color was a dark chestnut, his coat looked almost jet black when he sweated, especially at a distance of a few feet. Many as were the good horses of his era, he was second to none, and had he but a single claim to renown his victory over Longfellow at four mile heats in 1871 would establish his right to be called a great horse. He was bred at Woodburn) and in 1869 Mr. W. R. Babcock bought him. He was originally named Dublin, and was afterward called by the name he won renown with after the then famous quack doctor. To talk to a veteran turfite about him is sure to elicit fond memories of his performances, and more than one good judge still thinks him the best race horse of the century. Yet among those he had to meet were Longfellow, Glenelg and Harry Bassett. A list of his performances would be a lengthy screed, but among his victories were the Monmouth Cup at 2½ miles; the Saratoga Cup, the Westchester Cup, etc. In the fall of 1870 he met Glenelg, whom he had beaten right along till that time, in the Maturity Stakes at three miles at Jerome; but though he was a hot favorite, he was stiff and sore, while Jacob Pincus had Glenelg in great shape, and the son of Citadel beat him handily. Helmbold was an extraordinarily game horse, and though not possessed of phenomenal speed, he could rate along all day.

The fact that this is the time of the year when sundry cracks who had been on the shelf from one cause and another, step down and take a hand in the game, is scarcely an unmixed blessing. The entry of a race-horse of renown in any event is an attraction, provided always that he is to meet some animal who, at the weights, can make him extend himself. At the current meeting at Sheepshead the presence of Kingston has not had the desired effect, in fact, he has in reality acted as a "spoilsport." He has, up to date, run in five events, and not one of them has been a race for him. He was never better in his life, as he showed very conclusively Wednesday in the Racing States. With 123 lbs. on his back he made the mile in 1:40 4-5, winning in a canter. That race made many men alter their views of what would have happened if he and Salvator had met. We do not mean necessarily that people began to think that he could beat Mr. Haggin's great horse; but it is certain that a match between them would be a "horse race." Certainly the supreme ease with which Kingston accomplished this task make it look as if he could chip a bit off the mile record on a circular track if the question were asked of him.

However, popular as Kingston is, especially when he appears with his old time pilot, Jimmy McLaughlin, on his back, he has unassisted knocked all the real interest out of five races during the meeting, and the same may be said of Raceland in two events, though an unexpected measure of surprised and horrified interest was evoked when Tristan defeated him. Some of the races where Firenze has been named to start have been marked by the same feature, as for instance in the New York Handicap, Wednesday. No one was even found to start an animal for the $250, which constitutes third money in that event, and the Lahold Brothers' Retrieve was the only other one to face the flag. Despite Firenze's concession of 23 lbs., it was no race, and the gallant little mare won hard held. While it was not to be expected that the Hearst people would start Tournament at 121 lbs., he having incurred a penalty of 3 lbs. by his win in the Omnium Handicap, it surprised us that neither Buddhist, Erie or Enrus was sent to the post. These instances show well how very possible it is for the presence of absolutely first-class horses in tip-top racing trim to actually militate against the average standard of sport. Owners seem thoroughly awake to the fact that no impost will bring horses of entirely different classes together.

Grim's Gossip.

Eastern horsemen have fallen in love with Al Farrow on account of his good looks.

Lucky Baldwin will have another sack to bring home with him after paying expenses.

Any one desirous of obtaining a first class trainer can get the right man by sending address to this office.

Homer has been very unlucky since his advent on the the Atlantic Seaboard, and it is about time for him to beat a field of good horses.

J. M. LaRue, the Stockton secretary, says that the extra races they have offered will, with the original programme, make a week's racing such as Stockton has not seen for some time.

Holly is in pretty easy circumstances just now, having sold his stallion Woodnut for $16,000 last year, and he is training horses more for an amusement than anything else, says an Eastern exchange, but just fancy By Holly training horses for amusement.

And now reports come from the East that Mr. Nelson has been offered $58,000 for Nelson who lately made the record of 2:15¼ over a half mile track. If the sum stated had been $55,000 or even $60,000 it might have been believed, but there seems something curious about the oddly named price.

Among the late California arrivals is a new jockey, brought to this coast by L. J. Rose. It is probably unnecessary to say that he does not compare with Murphy but still he can almost discount any of our local jockeys. Borrill is his name and he is fast showing to those attending the State Fair that he understands his business.

I am sorry to hear the news from Sacramento that Una Wilkes wrenched herself in the train going up to Sacramento, and sprung a curb. This is to be regretted as she was fast coming to her speed, and it was altogether possible that another of Blanche's daughters would have touched the twenty mark.

Four four year olds have already this year beaten the record made by Manzanita and Edgemark of 2:16. They are Sunol 2:10½, Margaret S. 2:12½, Fancy Hanks 2:14½ and the stallion Alabaster 2:15. They are wonderful performances and tend to show that records cannot now be relied upon for any length of time.

Notwithstanding the very bad luck the Undine Stable has been in, owing to Racine's indisposition, I am pleased to state that Billy McCormack, the trainer, is very confident that he will have the colt fit to race within a very few days. He has lately had some pretty hard gallops and is looking fit to race for a man's life. It is altogether probable that he will start before another week is over.

For several years Jack Hallinan has been interested in breeding well-pedigreed trotters. It would seem, however, that this division of the equine family has lost charms for Jack, as we learn that on Saturday last, he purchased a yearling thoroughbred whose breeding is second to none and Jack vows and declares that next year the Hallinan colors will be prominent on all California tracks.

Mr. Stoddard, the versatile secretary of the Nevada State Fair Association, was in Sacramento during the early portion of the week, arranging with horsemen for entries to their annual meeting. He claims that already there have been assurances given that the fair of 1890 will far surpass anything heretofore held in that State. Dave Eismann, of the firm of Whitehead & Co, will conduct the pool selling over in the Silver State.

Those who witnessed Tea Tray's remarkable race at Brighton Beach on its closing day, when he defeated Ballston after being practically left at the post, will not be surprised to hear that he is on the retired list. The severe strain seems to have affected him to such an extent that his owner is giving him a rest, which he is now enjoying.

A Lexington correspondent is authority for the statement that B. B. Kenny, driver and developer of Nancy Hanks, is the youngest man that ever drove a horse in 2:15 or better. As Mr. Kenny is 26 years of age, the records do not bear the statement out. Rhody Patterson was under 21 when he drove Bessemer to a record of 2:15.

O. H. Lockhart, Esq., of Burbank writes: Cannonball 8820, by Simmons 2:28 dam Gurgle, 2:20, died September 14th at Lockhaven Stock Farms, of indigestion. He was all right when fed the evening before, and died some time during the night. Aside from being a fashionably bred horse, he was a good individual horse, dark bay, sixteen hands, and had trotted quarters in forty seconds as a three-year-old, and without preparation.

Owing to the success of the Dash Trotting Races at Leetwood Park, the Directors of Dundee Park have decided to hold a grand meeting during the first week of October, at which the specialties will consist of single dashes, as many trotting horse owners wish to send their horses longer distances than the ordinary mile heats. The Dundee Association has determined to have the races take place at all distances, from a mile to two and a half miles.

Eastern turf journals have been very busy speculating on the probable outcome of a race which has been reported as likely to occur between Sunol and Nancy Hanks. Some papers have even gone so far as to say that a special race has been arranged to take place at Maysville, Kentucky, between these celebrated oracks, but there is not a word of truth in any of the rumors. Sunol will in all probability start this week at Cleveland to try and beat her present record.

One of the greatest performances that has taken place this year was the mile made at Philadelphia by Alfred S. It occurred on the same day on which Sunol and Palo Alto started to reduce their records and was a match made between Alfred S. and an Eastern mare, the latter to harness while the California gelding was to go to wagon. The match was best two in three; Alfred S. winning both heats readily, the last one being accomplished in 2:16¾.

The victory of Vic H. at the Sacramento Fair caused no little excitement among the supporters of the mare, and Tuesday evening the Chicoites were very jubilant, offering to back her against anything in Mr. Corbitt's stable. The owner of the San Mateo Stock Farm finally said that he would back a three-year-old (presumably Regal Wilkes) or a five-year-old (supposed to be Hazel Wilkes) for $1,000 or more. The adherents of Vic H. have not as yet put up any forfeit so there is little chance for a match being made.

The kite-shaped track at Independence, Iowa, is by many turf writers conceded to be the fastest in the United States. If such is really the case, it behooves some of our California Associations to at once begin building such a course. Holding as California does to-day the premier position in breeding, it will not do to be without a track which is equal to any in any other portion of the country. If records can be reduced, we know California horses can do it, consequently we must have any appliance necessary to enable our representatives to accomplish the feat.

"The filly gave way with me at the head of the stretch," said Fred Taral yesterday, after he had dismounted from the flying Ruperta, and she was led away limping to her stall, says the Sporting World. A crowd, of course, at once gathered around, and the attaches of the Beaverwyck stable seemed to favor the opinion that the injury was temporary, but many of the old time trainers pronounce differently, and it is extremely doubtful if she will ever train for a bruising race again.

The success of imp. Prince Charles as a sire in this country was hitherto unparalleled, considering the limited time he was in service. Imp. St. Blaise, however, not only bids fair to equal Prince Charles' great record, but to surpass it. His get first appeared on the turf last season, and the eleven that started earned the net sum of $51,270. This season the winnings of his get reach close to $100,000, and with the present good form of several of his colts, it is entirely possible that he may head the list of winning stallions for this season.

One of the most admired horses in the Fair Grounds is Palo Alto's three year old stallion Flambeau, who won first prize in his class. He has grown into an almost perfect specimen of a thoroughbred stallion, and with his rare breeding should be invaluable. Henry Welsh, who should know, for he trained Flambeau and Racine from their youth up, says that although every one fancies Racine, yet shoes, plates or barefoot after six hundred yards Flambeau could beat the crack miler, and the further he went the further he would be beat.

The Eastern reporters for the daily press have showered vituperation on the heads of all concerned in the Palo Alto Stable, for the MISERABLE failure of Sunol and Palo Alto to lower their records at Belmont Park. It is more than the proverbial dollars to doughnuts that those who have been writing in the manner indicated do not know as much about speed as did the deacon who had the "one hoss shay". The fastest two heats ever trotted on the Atlantic Coast in one day were trotted by Sunol and Palo Alto at Belmont Park; but the reporters there did not know that.

One of the attendants at the State Fair has been John Mackey, superintendent of the Rancho del Paso, who can be seen almost daily shaking hands with his friends and narrating stories of the wonderful things he saw while in Europe. He says that Galopin, Barcaldine and St. Simon are the three best looking and most successful stallions in England, and the noted horseman hardly knows which to place first; however, from the way in which he talks, it is presumed that he is just a trifle biased in favor of the Galopin blood; at any rate, he says he would like to have some Galopin mares, just to see how they would breed out here.

Novelties in a circus tent are somewhat rare, but it must be confessed that those who have visited the Robinson Show at Central Park have full value for their money, if only in witnessing some of the hottest contested races that has been seen in San Francisco for many years. The management have a number of excellent thoroughbreds and several very good jockeys, and it is really a pleasure to witness the manner in which these circus jockeys perform their work. They would be a credit to many of the large tracks both East and West. It may be as well to state that they have an incentive in winning, for whichever one passes the post first receives a small present from Mr. Robinson.

It is now several years since Phallas electrified the trotting world by making a third heat in 2:13¾, and those who believe in the theory of breeding to developed sires at once selected Mr. J. I. Case's brown stallion as being the coming sire of the future. Contrary to all expectations, he has proved himself almost a failure, yet still all of his get have shown more than average trotting action; at last, however, we are pleased to chronicle the fact that Merlin, one of his get, secured a record last week of 2:27¼. Now that a beginning has been made we can confidently expect that many more will soon be in the charmed circle.

A match race between Roy Wilkes and Hal Pointer is doubtless on the card of events, says the Terre Haute Express. The owners of Hal Pointer express their willingness to wager $5,000 on the result of the race, and all that remains for a race to come off, is for Mr. Davies to call them. What a race it would be and how the money would go on. It would be an event of a life time, and what would be more fitting than for it to come off over our superb track during our great fall meeting. Indiana is the home of the pacer, and its people have ever a warm spot for the diagonal gait. There is no card that would equal the race in drawing the people; the world and his wife would be there.

Johnny Dickerson is generally known throughout the East as the "kid driver" on account of his extreme youth, but although not old in years, he has made a name for himself in the sulky that will last for all time. Johnny has another of the requisites that tend to make him popular with the public, he is honest in all his transactions, in fact is a second edition of the late John Murphy. When C. J. Hamlin of Buffalo had a falling out with Andrews, his driver, the old gentleman at once tried to secure the services of Dickerson, and a sort of half-way arrangement was come to that Dickerson should give him an answer by November first, but later accounts tend to show that he has signed with the Waters' Stock Farm, and will hereafter drive the fast stock which is located there.

There is a generally accepted theory among the goody, goody folks that all persons who are interested in horse racing are dishonest, and are seeking to make money at the expense of others. From far off Australia comes a really good story to show that at least one honest man is engaged in the business. It seems that he discovered that a thoroughbred which he had bought was possessed of considerable speed, and entered her at one of the district meetings in a race for maidens. It was with little difficulty that he won and received the money from the association. Some two weeks afterwards he returned the amount to the Directors, saying that he did not wish to defraud them, and that he had found out within a few days that his mare was not a maiden as she had had a foal two years before.

The Paris Mutual box, in which every heat is a race, is rapidly ruining trotting, for there is often upwards of a thousand dollars in the box on a single heat, and then one sees a horse who cannot lose the race beaten in the heat seven or eight seconds slower than his usual time, and the best drivers on the coast are not above such work. The judges at Sacramento did not act up to their previous ruling, for when they came to the conclusion it was no start in the Peel race, they should have sent them back to the post at once as they did in the Acclaim race on Monday.

The Mirror and Farmer says, "That the withdrawal of Axtell from training brings to mind the old adage that you cannot burn a candle at both ends, and you cannot expect the best results from stallions, if one-half of the year they are in the stud and the other half on the turf. If you give them a stud season in the spring, you cannot expect a brilliant turf season in the autumn." This may be all right theoretically, but trotting horse history does not prove that it is correct. Axtell last year served many mares, yet still reduced his record to where it stands to-day. Stamboul and Palo Alto had a large season last year, yet still reduced their past records to where they stand now, and in fact I think that a careful perusal of all stallion records made during the past few years will show that whatever records have been reduced, that the stallions were in service during the early portion of the year.

An Eastern Exchange says that C. J. Hamlin, the noted horse owner of Buffalo, and W. J. Andrews, his recent trainer and driver, had an interview, in which it is stated that Mr. Hamlin said: "Mr. Andrews, it was reported that I dispensed with your services because you would not pull a race for me. I wish to ask you here in the presence of this gentleman, if I ever asked you to pull a race." "There is no truth in that report," promptly replied Andrews, "you never asked me to pull a race, in the main, you have treated me fairly The reports in circulation were not started by me." Now this sounds very well on paper, but Mr. Hamlin has never been accused of asking Andrews to pull a race, but it has been openly charged that he wished Andrews to lay up heats so that he might be able to beat Ed. Annon. Mr. Hamlin had better have himself interviewed once more and put his queries to Andrews in different language.

Henry Labouchere, the editor of London Truth, is nothing if not "gally." This is how he describes the way he got home from the Derby:

"Soon afterwards we all betook ourselves to the station. One of the party had the tickets. I got separated from the others, and the official would not let me through the barrier because I could not produce my ticket. Just then a very florid-looking gentlemen came up and said, 'Where is the royal train?' With profuse bows they let him through. The hint was not thrown away on me. A minute later I returned to the gate, and with the air of an Emperor in partibus said, 'Where is the Royal train?' The word was an open sesame, one official pointed to it, another waved me on. My ticket was not asked for, and so, having passed the barrier, I ensconced myself in the carriage of an ordinary train, and sped back to London.

The records made at the great Independence meeting are still the wonder of the hour. It has been demonstrated that while the kite-shaped track will be popular with breeders and those desiring fast records for the horse, the public and professional horsemen are not in love with it. The public from the fact that they cannot see the drives and interesting points, the distance the horses are from them and the difficulty in placing them when going from or coming toward the stand, the chances for fraud which cannot be discovered only by having patrol judges about every furlong. The professional horsemen from the fact that his horse is liable to get a mark that will outclass him several seconds over a circular track. The Independence track is down hill "all the way," and in the words of a prominent driver "all you have to do is to hold your horses's head and let him slide." After all the hurrahs over there will be but very few tracks of this shape built.

The grand stand, club house, superintendent's office and board walk leading to the railroad station, located on the old Monmouth Park race track, were consumed by fire at noon on Thursday, Aug. 29, says the Turf Field and Farm. The old stables were also consumed and with them a number of mules and one horse. The fire originated in the mule stable and quickly spread to the adjoining building. The Long Branch and Eatontown fire companies were summoned, but the wooden structures were in ashes before they could get to work. The loss is placed at between $15,000 and $20,000, the latter figures being the estimate of the officers of the association, and is fully covered by insurance, The origin of the fire is shrouded in mystery. Mrs Edward Feakes, the wife of the trainer of the Preakness Stable, was the first to discover it. Mr. Feakes at once removed his horses to a place of safety, but nothing could be done to stay the flames, the old buildings burning like tinder, The draft through the long covered board walk was so strong that the flames were drawn through it with great rapidity.

The principal breeders in this State have of late neglected the stock exhibits at the State Fair; it is a great mistake as there are always many Eastern visitors, and they are apt to go away with a poor impression of the great breeding farms of the State. This year, however, Mr. Salisbury set a brilliant example to the breeders in the State, and the Pleasanton Stock Farm's exhibit in Tuesday's parade was the feature; everyone taking particular interest in it. Last year Director was awarded the gold medal, and Tuesday he was led down the line at the head of the Pleasanton entries. Following him came the grand little horse Direct, then California's pride Margaret S, Directa, Corrector, Decorator, a bay yearling filly by Director, out of Roxana by Gibraltar from May Day dam of Margaret S, a black yearling filly by Director from Belle Echo, and four royal brood maree with foale, Belle Echo with a dashing colt by Director, at her side; Crockett by Overland dam Nell Crockett, followed by a black filly by the iron horse; Roxana, a half sister to the Peerless, Margaret S with a brown Director filly, and Misfortune by Monroe Chief dam by American Star with a racy looking, black, Director filly, and last, but not least in the public estimation, a bay filly foal full sister to Margaret S. The foal had been weaned and was brought up alone. Mr. Hancock's mare Zephyr by Nutwood, dam by St. Clair was shown with Director's family and she has a grand bay colt by Director. In addition to the above Mr. Salisbury exhibited Cricket, who after a phenomenal Eastern campaign came back with a record of 2:10 pacing, and Homestead who has been almost invincible in Montana and Oregon this season. He is by Gibraltar, from a Volunteer mare, and was bred by Mr. Salisbury.

TURF AND TRACK.

The Buffalo papers give "Pa" Hamlin a terrible roasting in connection with the Grand Circuit trotting at Buffalo.

The Baltimore trotter St. Elmo made a mile in the free-for-all at Timonium half-mile track in 2:24¼, the fastest mile ever made on the track.

Wonder if it is the purpose to "ring" Majolica in Germany. He is no account anywhere at any time and has not been since he made his record.

Frank Work's valuable Wilkes colt, for which he paid $10,000 last spring, was put to death Sept. 4th. It was found that he could not live, having been internally injured while being driven three weeks ago.

It has been rumored aronnd the track at Sheepshead Bay that Al Farrow was to be sold for $10,000, and that Green Morris would be the purchaser. While the story has not been confirmed, it is said on good authority that Al Farrow will change hands before this week is over.

Old Pearl jennings won a fine race last Wednssday a week ago, defeating Steve Jerome and other good ones. The old mare is in fine form and if she takes it into her head to run she can make the best of them stretch their necks.

At Maple Ave. driving Park on Sept. 8th at Elmira N. Y. the world's record for high jumping was broken by the horse Roseberry, owned by Moorehouse & Pepper of Toronto, who cleared the bars at 7 feet and 5-8 of an inch. The best previous record, also made by Roseberry at Chicago, was 6 feet 11¼ inches. Many thousand persons witnessed the feat.

Jockeys are inscrutable institutions, says the Sportsman. The best of them ride like artists on Monday and like farmers on Tuesday. On Wednesday they are suspended and on Thursday we find them reinstated. On Friday they are generally drunk, in consequence of which on Saturday they ride without vigor, being weak from "reducing." What jockeys do on Sunday the Lord only knows.

W. C. Daly, who has the reputation of bulldozing owners who win selling races by threatening to run them up over their entered selling price unless given a little hush money, being refused $200 by Jimmy McCormick, when the latter's Firefly won at Brighton last week, bid the horse up to $1080, at which figure McCormick retained him. At Sheepshead on Monday, Daly's Drumstick, entered at $1000, won a selling race, and when put up at auction McCormick turned the tables on the old man by making him pay $2,625 to return him to his stable. A few more such doses as this and W. C. will not be so anxious to bid up other people's horses.

The claim made by some reasoners that a slightly undulating track is faster than a dead level may be as erroneous as the claim for the alleged muscle-resting turns, says the Horse and Stable. It is argued that the slight up and down grades rest the muscles, and in support of the claim it is said that a horse can make a long journey easier and quicker over a slightly hilly country than over a dead level. But even if that be admitted, it does not prove that a one mile dash must necessarily be undulating to be the fastest. We believe that the fastest possible mile track that could be built would be a perfectly straight, marble-smooth course, of a slightly—very slightly—inclining grade from start to finish.

A dispatch from Michigan says that the committee appointed by the Methodist Episcopal conference to investigate the Pastor Arney horse racing case reported on the 12th inst. Arney, quite at variance with his threats, confessed to having committed an imprudent act when he participated in the horse race. He sincerely regretted the notoriety caused by the transaction. He kept horses for personal pleasure and exercise, and the possibility of premiums and profits by their sale after being properly trained. He added that as long as he lives he will never again engage in horse racing. The conference accepted the report and the charges against Arney's character were allowed to pass.

The season of 1879 saws perhaps the most bitter contest between the three-year olds, Jewett and Steinway, that ever came off in Kentucky, says the Graphic. So warm did the battle wage to this day in some quarters the bitter feelings engendered by the meetings of these great colts, have even not as yet died out. Jewett proved the final victor and took a mark of 2:29¾, which he reduced afterwards to 2:20. Pacing, however, proved his forte, and at this way of going he now holds a record of 2:14. Steinway got a record that year of 2:25¾, which is still his best mark. Jewett turned to pacing, and it is odd of his great rival had he remained on the turf, as the fast performer of note to spring forth from his loins is the flying mare Cricket 2:12.

The steamer Helvetia, which sailed from England August 21st, had on board the following horses for Marcus Daly's ranch at Anaconda, Mont.: Erin-Go Bragh, a son of Magician (by The Flying Dutchman), dam Eugenie by Znyder Zee; second dam Helia by Phlegon; third dam Potestas by Plenipotentiary, foaled 1880; La Trappe (dam of Barmecide), by Hermit, dam Ambuscade by Camerino; second dam Crossfire by Vedette; third dam Crosslanes by Slane, foaled 1831; and Red Spinner, bay mare, by Rosicrucian, dam Reaction by King Tom; second dam Waterwitch by The Flying Dutchman; third dam Evening Star by Touchstone, foaled 1879. This consignment is from Kingsclere, and comes out in charge of Thomas Cartwright, formerly head man to John Porter. Red Spinner has a foal at foot by Springfield, sire of Sainfoin.

The value of the race track as a means of improving the gait and developing the speed of horses and, in direct ratio increasing the revenue of the districts where they are located, is illustrated by an article in a horse paper published in Canton, Me. "Previous to the opening of the track at Canton," says the article, "we had in town only two horses with records, viz: Goldbird, 2:50, and Rear Guard, 2:50. Now may be seen any day taking exercise a large number of trotters with records in the thirties, and some in the twenties. We have had Maggie Miller, 2:26½; Elcho, 2:35; Nellie B., 2:39½; C. S. P., 2:45¾, and Louviska, three-year-old record, 2:51¾, and it has been estimated that the increased value of the above animals, or rather the price they would bring in the market to-day over what they would have brought had there been no track here and their speed consequently undeveloped, would pay every dollar that the track and improvements have cost."

Jacob Dalton and William Booth, stable boys in the employ of J. & A. H. Morris, were arrested in Jersey City last Thursday on a charge of grand larceny. When trainer Wyndham Walden went to the stable at Sheepshead Bay, Dalton and Booth were missing. So were two of the firm's crack two-year-olds. The boys had been talking of going to Gloucester, N. J., and the trainer suspected that they had started for that place with the horses. He sent word to police headquarters in Jersey City and the boys were arrested at the Pennsylvania railroad station. Sure enough they were on their way to Gloucester, and the horses had been put on a train to be shipped to that point. The boys said they thought they would have a "cinch" with the two Morris cracks at Gloucester, and intended to enter the races unknown to their owners and to win a stake for themselves. Trainer Walden took the boys and colts back to Sheepshead Bay. He declined to make any charges against the lads.

War has been declared on the Louisville pool rooms says the Times Democrat of the third, and an effort will be made to close them up under the gambling law. This afternoon witnesses were subpœnaed, and it is believed that on their testimony the grand jury will indict the pool room people. There are five or six pool rooms in this city, and the proprietors are well known people, such as Joe Burt, who operates the room on Third street; A. M. Waddell, the Courlier Bros., and Major Ed. Hughes, Chief of the Fire Department. There are said to be a number of politicians interisted in the pool rooms, and their arrest and prosecution under the act will probably create a sensation.

It is contended by the prosecutor that the matter of selling pools on horse races is just as much gambling under the law as setting up a game of faro or keno, and is certainly, more vicious, because everybody is allowed to play—rich and poor, the drunk and the sober—in brief, any man with fifty cents or a dollar, no matter what his condition. The Louisville pool rooms practically control pool room operations all over the oonntry. They are fixtures here, and in palmy years the turf exchange has done $6,000,000 worth of business in a season. The closing of these establishments will be a blow at horse racing in Kentucky.

The following bit of turf history is from the Oregonian:

Mollie Cooper was bred in Iowa. She was sired by an English thoroughbred runner, and out of a mare that had a record of 50 seconds for a half mile run. Mollie is 8 years old now, and as a 3-year-old she got a record of 49½ in a half mile running race. The next year she was converted into a pacer, and in 1886 received a mark of 2:29½. This she never lowered until at Seattle this year when she made a mile in 2:28¼. Last spring when Mr. Davis took her, abe could not do better than 2:40, as she was in indifferent hands. She has, under his own charge, since gone in five races. In the first one she met Rosie C. and Sisepytown, and Rosie C. won, Mollie getting third place in every heat. The next race Mr. Davis always felt sore about, as Mink, he claims, won by running in the fifth heat. Mink won the first in 2:26½, back in 2:24. Mollie took the next two in 2:30 and 2:33 and Mink the last in 2:29½. This was at the Tacoma July meeting. From there she went to Seattle and started against Rosie C. and Harry T., where she was a close third in every heat. The next day she won in three straight heats and got her mark in 2:28½. Then Mr. Davis took her to Tacoma, where she had an easy time of it, the pace there not filling. Mr. Stone is a rich man. He does not care for the money he won, but has a pride in his mare and loves to see her beat the others.

It is a fact that occacionally a great performer will come from an obscure source. In the multitude of breeding ventures that are yearly being made this should not excite wonder. Indeed, it would be a matter of surprise if it were not so. It not frequently happens that "a little leaven leavanetb the whole loaf." Some farmer trades for or buys a mare of whose pedigree he knows nothing, and the party of whom he gets her is just as ignorant of her ancestry. She is bred to a horse that has more or less trotting blood in his veins, and everybody is astonished that the produce turns out to be a great trotter.

A daughter of George Wilkes was bought out of a farm wagon, the farmer being entirely ignorant of her pedigree. Had this mare been bred by the man in whose possession she was found and produced a great trotter the fact would have been heralded as an instance of a trotter without a pedigree. Aside from this, there are doubtless untried strains of blood that are liable in certain combinations to produce a trotter at any time, and that with cultivation might equal in time some of the best established families. Life is too short to be experimenting with them, however. It is the part of wisdom to stick to what we and everybody else knows to be good, rather than to "court failure into the unknown." While an occasional great trotter comes from an obscure family, the student of pedigrees will be struck with the fact that the great stream of trotters pours from sources in which the trotting gait and trotting instinct are the predominant elements.

The following is a list of entries in the races for the coming fair at Rohnerville, received by Secretary Underwood up to noon Tuesday.

No. 1, running—Davis & Crippen enters Nellie D.; W. Leer, Billy B.; Eddie Tierney, Molly W.

No. 2, trotting—2:40 class: Tom Quinn enters Nellie Q.; B. H. McNeil, Daisy Hayward; W. H. E. Smith, Tom.

No. 3, trotting—3 minute class: D. McGregor enters Poscora Jr.; H. Hogoboom, Gold Rose; A. C. Roussin, Mazeppa.

No. 4, running—¾ mile and repeat: John Rows enters Farewell; Jas. Goff, Nellie G.; T. T. Knight, Isabella; Lathrow & McDonald, Night-Time.

No. 5, trotting—Yearlings: H. Hogoboom enters Why Not and Remember Me; N. Groton, Dignus.

No. 7, running—½ mile and repeat: A. L. Norton enters Birdie G.; Eddie Tierney, Molly; W. Coleman, Little Cap; T. J. Knight, Stoneman; Lathrow & McDonald, Night Time.

No. 8, trotting—3-years-old and under: H. Hogoboom enters Sacramento Girl; A. C. Roussin, Mazeppa; N. Groton, Nancy Moor.

No. 9, trotting—2:36 class: Tom Quinn enters Nellie Q.; N. Groton, Pete Steinway; W. H. E. Smith, Covey.

No. 10, running—1¼ mile dash: John Rows enters Farewell; Jas. Goff, Nellie G.; T. J. Knight, Isabella; Lathrow & McDonald, Night Time.

No. 11, trotting—4-year-olds: S. Douglass enters Johnny Moor; H. Hogoboom, Sacramento Girl; A. C. Roussin, Mazeppa.

No. 13, running—2-year-old: Eddie Tierney enters Ella C.; Davis & Crippen, G. W.; T. J. Knight, Walter H. Overton; Mr. Curfoot, Sun Rise.

Named race, trotting (in place of No. 6): H. Hogoboom enters Josie N.; J. L. Eby, Posse; Charles W. Landigan, Dandy Hayward.

Simmocolon, by Simmons 2:28 dam Colon by Strathmore, 2d dam Coral (dam of Corraloid 2:25½), by Clark Chief, 2d dam Cassia (dam of Caliban), is probably the greatest trotting five-year-old stallion that has yet appeared, says the Western Sportsman. He has been an all summer campaigner, a great winner, and has indulged in a lowering of his record with persistent regularity. He started in at Dundee Park June 5th, where he won, reducing his record to 2:23¾. He then started in the Clay Stakes, which he lost; then at Boston he won, and also at Hartford. At Philadsphia he won after a long hard fight in a race of eight heats. At Pittsburg the following week he won a five-heat race, repeating the same thing the next week at Cleveland, where he drove Dick Smith out in 2:17, and won the next heat in 2:19, being the first of Simmon's get to enter the 2:20 list. At Buffalo in a long drawn out race of nine heats he won third money. At Rochester he won another hard race of six heats. At Poughkeepsie he rested, only to turn up fresh at Hartford and win the great Flower City Stakes in one of the hardest races of the season. In all he has trotted something like sixty-six heats this season with an average of a little better than 2:25. Here is the kind of trotting stallion to have, one with breeding, good individuality, speed and lasting qualities. There seems to be no lack of speed sustaining qualities in this fellow, and well may his owner, G. Valensin of Valensin Stock Farm, Pleasanton, Cal., be proud of such a stallion as Simocolon. What a stock horse he should, by all courses of reasoning, prove to be, and what record breakers should come from the loins of Simocolon when mated with Sidney mares.

The thousands who visited Belmont Park on Thursday witnessed two phenomenally fast miles, but were not treated to what they went to see. No records were broken, although Palo Alto came within a quarter of a second of his own record and within half a second of the world's stallion. Sunol trotted in 2:11¾, making a break which was a remarkable performance. The horses were given but one trial. There was some dissatisfaction expressed that Palo Alto was not sent again, as the track was in fine condition and the day everything that could be desired for fast time. The time of Jay-Eye-See, 2:11, over the same track remains untouched, while that of Maud S., 2:12, was beaten by Sunol. It was noticed that Sunol was tired at the end of the mile, while Palo Alto was not in the least distressed. The fractional parts of the mile of Sunol were made as follows: quarter, 30¼s; half, 1:04¼; three-quarters, 1:38½; mile, 2:11¾. The whip was used from the distance post home, though not severely. The opinion was freely expressed that the mare was driven off her feet and that Marvin used poor judgment in sending her so fast to the half. The affair was a disappointment in that the time made previously by Jay-Eye-See and Maud S. was not beaten. It is highly probable that there will be no more record breaking on the part of these horses this season. The season wanes apace and the work already received begins to tell.—Newark Sunday Call.

Joseph Battell, of Vermont, the indefatigable searcher after truths in trotting pedigrees, informed the writer a few days ago that after laborious research he had about succeeded in establishing what he believes to be the true pedigree of Harold on his dam's side. The pedigree of the sire of the queen of the turf, Maud S., 2:08¾, reads in the stud books as follows: "Harold 413, foaled 1864 by Hambletonian 10, dam Enchantress by Abdallah 1." Mr. Battell has had for years well grounded suspicions that this pedigree, or at least one-half of it, was not correct, and he is now prepared to come before the public with the statement backed up by evidence which he considers indisputable, that the dam of Harold was not by Abdallah 1, but by the imported horse Fiddler, a thoroughbred. He related to the writer the evidence which he has in his possession to support his claim, and it must be admitted that he makes out a very strong case. In a short time he intends to lay the matter in detail before the public in the columns of the Middlebury, Vt., Register. Mr. Battell is still working industriously on his Morgan history, and expects it will be placed in the printer's hands the coming winter. The volume will be of about the same size as the first volume of Chester's Trotting and Pacing Record, which comprises nearly 1,000 pages, and will be accompanied by a smaller volume containing a complete list of the names and pedigrees of all 2:30 performers up to date. The Morgan register is also progressing finely, and editions will be issued from time to time when the material is sufficient.—Mirror and Farmer.

The name of Nancy Hanks will doubtless strike some readers as peculiar. There are two theories as to the origin of her name afloat here, says a Lexington correspondent in the New Orleans Democrat. One is that she was named after President Lincoln's mother, who rejoiced in the euphoneous appellative of "Nancy Hanks," while the other story has a spice of romance in it.

A Kentucky lady, born and bred and bred in one of the oldest and most distinguished families of the Blue Grass region, tells the story as her mother handed it down to her, and she is of opinion that the filly's name was taken from this story, as it is familiar to all the old families:
