"About six miles out on the Russel Cave pike stands a house that must be more than a hundred years old. It is built partly of logs and partly of timbers, hoary and grizzled with age, and it looks to be held together by two huge black throated chimneys that buttress it at either end more outside than inside the house. Fifty years ago my mother says that house looked almost as grizzled, as lonesome and as dilapidated as it does now. It had the same black and twisted shingles on the roof and the great chimneys outside of the gables looked just a hoary and weather-beaten as they do now. The house had long been unoccupied and there came a family and lived in it. There were a mother, two grown up sons and a sweet faced pretty girl of eighteen who was called Nancy. This family had a name which was known well enough in the neighborhood, but my mother had forgotten it long before she ever told me the story. The family were proud and had little to say to their neighbors, the elder four being all alike in this respect, but the girl Nancy used to delight in being sociable and neighborly and was liked by everybody. She fell in love with a neighbor's son, but her parents and brothers would not countenance such an attachment and the match was broken off. A few weeks later Nancy, who had been completely crushed at the loss of her young lover, was found dead in the attic of the old house. She had hastily knotted a rope out of the hanks of yarn stored in the garret and had hanged herself at one of the rafters."

The suicide created a profound impression at the time, and two or three sentimental rustics of the time framed the story into halting verse, but through some strange perversity the name of the fair suicide has been handed down to posterity as Nancy "Hanks," the surname being simply supplied by the grim and uncanny manner of her taking off.

Notes.

H. D. Miller's chestnut mare Ida Glenn prematurely foaled, though how it could be pronounced a perfect looking foal I do not know, as it is only four months since she was bred to Prince of Norfolk. The accident was presumably the result of her hard races at Oakland.

W. B. Todhunter's stallion, Prince of Norfolk, proved victorious in the all aged thoroughbred stallion class at Sacramento. Among the defeated was Dr. Ross' imported Cheviot, a brother to Rancho Del Paso's Sir Modred.

John Mackey will leave for the East next week or shortly afterwards, and on his return will bring with him among others the peerless Firenzi and the phenomenal Salvator who will be retired into private life under the big oaks at Rancho Del Paso.

Flambeau will have about fifteen mares next spring at Palo Alto and should prove a success in the stud.

Vic H. will go to Stockton instead of Reno as was at first expected.

Tycoon and Lida Fergusson, as well as the trotter Beauty Mc, are now being raced in Percy William's name instead of the Undine Stable's.

THE GUN.

The Bear Said "Woof."

"Tenderfoot," in a communication to the "Forest and Stream," says:

"Monument is a small village about sixty miles south of Denver and twenty miles north of Colorado Springs. It is located on the main lines of four or five railroads running from this city to Denver. The adjacent country is called "The Divide," and is devoted mainly to the raising of very fine potatoes, wheat, oats, barley, etc. West of the village the country is mountainous, generally well timbered, and at the proper season of the year blackberries, raspberries and choke cherries abound in luxuriont profusion. Of these fruits bears are very fond, and during this season are reported unusually plentiful in the immediate neighborhood of these fruit patches, retiring when pursued to the rocky fastnesses in the direction of Pike's Peak.

A short time ago a fresh and callow youth from this city, in company with a friend, was climbing the mountains a few miles west of the village on their way to Young's tie camp. The wagon was some distance behind, they having walked on ahead enjoying the bracing mountain air. But the road was rough and steep, and as they neared the top of the ascent the young man from the city was nearly winded. He was toiling painfully along with hat in hand and coat over his arm when a sudden stir in the leaves and a startled "Woof!" caused the young men to halt abruptly and gaze fearfully around. There, within ten paces, was (to them) an enormous cinnamon bear just rising from his disturbed morning nap under a pine tree. For an instant fear and astonishment paralyzed all parties at the unexpected meeting. Then the bear said "Woof!" which is probably bear language for "Good morning, gentlemen," and gazed at his visitors with glad surprise. The youths returned the compliment by saying 'Bear!' But they did not prefix it by 'Morning, bear,' nor say it in a quiet, gentlemanly tone, such as is usually employed when meeting a stranger or a casual acquaintance in an out of the way place. They vociferated the ursine inhabitant's name with all the strength of their lungs, and then turned and took a beeline for the Atlantic coast down the mountain side, shedding coats, hats, and terrific yells at every jump. It was astonishing how suddenly their weariness vanished, and how rapidly the bracing mountain air had invigorated their frames and imparted speed to their footsteps. The bear, looking somewhat disgusted at this unceremonious departure of his visitors, ambled quietly off, and was seen shortly afterward as he disappeared over the mountain top half a mile off, in the direction of his rocky retreat.

A few days after this some of the men employed at the tie camp organized a bear hunt and proceeded to these rocks and caverns, where they succeeded in rounding up and killing a large cinnamon—possibly the same one encountered by the boys.

A few days after these occurrences a resident of the village, wife and child were out on the mountain picking berries. As a precaution the man took his gun along. The child, a little girl, strayed a short distance from its parents, and came suddenly upon a large bear, feeding upon the fruit. The child was paralyzed with terror and could neither move nor scream. The bear seemed anxious for a closer acquaintance and had advanced quite close to the child, when up rose the father from a patch of bushes with his gun in hand and blood in his eye. The skin of that bear is now drying upon the fence surrounding the family mansion.

The bears seen are all what is known as the cinnamon bear. They are not especially ferocious, though they make an ugly "scrap" when crowded.

Trout fishing is fair in this region, though no large ones have been reported this season.

Reports from the region of Meeker state that that section is overrun by tourists, who are slaughtering deer and elk out of season from mere wantonness. At this rate the large game of Colorado will soon be exterminated. If they want sport (with a spice of danger) let them go to Monument and try the bears.

Numerous fishing parties from this city have made excursions to Wagon Wheel Gap and vicinity, where the gamy trout are abundant and grow to a large size.

If quail could be protected for several years they would soon grow abundant in this State. In several localities on the Arkansas River east of here I have heard of there being quite a number of coveys. They are moving westward, and if not relentlessly slaughtered will, in a few years, be abundant in our mountains and valleys.

An antelope was killed the other day in this county by H. M. Morse, a crack hunter of this city. The shot which procured the game was fired at a distance of five hundred yards, breaking two of the animal's legs.

Colorado ought to be the greatest State in the Union for outing parties in the mountains. No snakes, no noxious insects, and beautiful weather about nine months in the year."

French Sportsmen.

The following graphic description of two French shooters is from the London Shooting Times:

"One was a spare, little, old man, who owned a half-bred beagle, the best hare finder I have ever seen, but he never followed his game. As soon as he had put up a hare, he left it for the other dogs to hunt and went himself to look for another without further parley. A most extraordinary dog, truly, and well matched by his master, if report spoke truly, for it was alleged, I know not with what truth, that although he went out every day with his gun and dog he never was known to have killed anything!"

I certainly never saw him kill a hare, although a dozen times, at least, I saw hares break cover near him and he fired at them—with the invariable result of a miss. He used to laugh himself at his want of skill and say that "doubtless it was all for the best, for if he had been as clever as I was there would not have been a hare left in the department long ago."

The other sportsman was the very antithesis to that one, for he was a stout, portly party, who never went out, on business or for sport, without two exceedingly large and very handsome hounds of some foreign breed. These two hounds were very picturesque, and gave tongue in a deep bass which contrasted singularly with the squeaking noise made by the aforesaid roquet. Their owner, contrary to the first man, shot very fairly; but was of a most lying and jealous disposition. No matter how far he was, if he had shot at a hare, and it was eventually bagged, he had done the deed. No one else was in it. And if he happened to reach the hare before anyone else, he coolly appropriated it, placed it in the net and carried it about all day thus, on his back!"

Big Bags.

A correspondent of the Asian sends the following list of game killed in the Punjab:

"I think your sporting readers will be glad to know that there is a native Prince well up in shikar in this Northern part of the Punjab. During the last ten years, his own, not including his father's shikar, has comprised several royal tigers, hundreds of leopards and black bears of all sizes and thousands of wild-hogs. As an example, I beg to give you an account of the bag made last month, which is not a very good month here in our Poonch State. The record is: 1st of June at Planja Furrish, two leopards and four black bears, one of which was shot by Mr. G. H. Lacy, the well known and popular honorary secretary of the aforesaid fishing club, and another by Mr. E. Dyer; 7th, at Jhullas Shikargarh, two leopards; 10th, at Canoora, one black bear, five wild-boar and two wild goats; 13th, at Jhullas again, a black bear and three wild goats; 16th, at Bhanch Shikargarh, a wild boar and a wild goat; 20th, at Phan Peer Mountain, one leopard, a boar and two wild goats; 25th, at Ghanetter Shikargarh and Gopalpara, a leopard, two black bear and four wild goats, totalling during the month half a dozen leopards, eight black bear, and a dozen wild boar, besides the wild goats.' Our correspondent, whose signature is illegible, but has the appearance of that of a native gentleman, then goes on to say: "The wild animals of these hills are so troublesome that if the Prince through press of work delays shooting them, in a little time the villages surrounding the capital becomes the residence of these beasts. In short, what leisure the master of this state gets from his own work he spends in shooting the wild animals, by which he confers a great boon on his subjects."

Mr. J. C. Mattrass of Clearbrook, Whalcom County, Washington, offers for sale a hammerless gun by L. C. Smith. It is a 10 gauge, 9½ lbs, $80 grade and a close, hard shooting arm. It is offered for about half its value and all who know the excellence of the L. C. Smith guns will agree with us in believing that the offer is an advantageous one to any man who needs a gun. Mr. Mattrass also offers Irish setters of the finest breeding and quality, both brood bitches and puppies.

Local sportsmen have not so far had much sport with quail. They are reported as being backward and scarce. Last winter was a hard one for quail, and many succumbed to the severe storms. In Marin County quail are numerous, but there will not be much sport until we have some rain, when the birds will lie better and the dogs have a show.

A few wretched looking ducks are exposed for sale in the markets, but find few purchasers, as they are hardly fit for food. It is a pity to shoot them.

In a month or so ducks will begin to come in, when we may expect to get something edible.

All the San Francisco sportsmen will be glad to hear that Bill Perkins, the veteran hunter and dog trainer, has turned up well and sound. He was reported to have been drowned and also to have been found dead in the Moraga valley. Uncle Bill, however, says that he is worth a good many dead men and does not intend to turn up his toes until the proper time comes. Perkins came to town to get his gun mended and also to show what a lively corpse he is.

A party consisting of M. W. Stackpole, J. M. Spencer and W. H. White enjoyed four days of royal sport among the quail in Calaveras Valley last week. The birds were as plentiful as could be desired, and although young proved lively enough of wing to tax the utmost skill of these well known shots to bring them to bag. During the four days no less than 190 of the little "hoodlums of the valley" succumbed to the power of Schultz and No. 9. Of this number eight dozen were grassed in the second day out among some of the thickest brush and covert in the valley. Here the birds lay splendidly to the dogs and afforded full opportunity for lively work at both singles and doubles.

Messrs. Stackpole and Spencer for ten years past have been constant companions in the sports of field and stream, and of all their trips rank that of last week as one of the most delightful. To all theer members of the party good fellowship and the handling of rod and gun constitute the highest possible enjoyment. On this occasion they had both in fullest measure, and now, having returned to the busy scenes of active life, all eagerly await the time and opportunity to again hie away with dog and gun to the fields or hills which have been the scenes of so many past enjoyments.

ROD.

Some Aquatic Giants.

The Gloucester (Mass.) Daily Times of recent dates announces the capture of some marine curiosities. A mackerel was taken off St. Peter's Harbor, Prince Edwards Island, measuring 2 feet in length—the largest ever known in that locality. It reports, also, the capture of a large codfish, near Shelbourne, Nova Scotia, having in its stomach a ladies purse containing a considerable sum of money. A turtle weighing 640 pounds was caught in a fish-trap near Sandwich, Mass., Aug. 25th. There are several species of marine turtles which attain to a weight of 1,000 pounds and upward; the green turtle occasionally weighs this amount. The loggerhead has been known to reach 1,600 pounds, and the leather turtle exceeds even this enormous weight.

Colorado Trout for Eastern Waters.

We have previously mentioned the proposed transfer of black-spotted trout from Colorado to eastern waters by the U. S. Fish Commission. This project has been carried out and the station at Wytheville, Virginia, now contains 2,000 fry hatched from eggs collected at Leadville, Colo. The young fish are large enough to feed and they are in a flourishing condition. There is every reason to believe that a goodly portion of them will be brought to maturity. The Superintendent of the Wytheville station, Mr. George Sesgle, finds that this trout developed in the Wytheville water much faster than the rainbows, the embryo sac being absorbed in about twenty days bringing the fish into the feeding condition while the rainbows require about thirty-five days to reach the same stage of development. This is one of the numerous varieties of the black spotted trout of the Rocky Mountain region, technically known as Salmo mykiss or purpuratus. The extensive range of this trout, under climatic conditions which must be greatly varied, encourages the belief that it will readily adapt itself to the conditions existing in our eastern lakes and streams, suitable for trout life and become a valuable addition to our rapidly increasing stock of noble fishes.—Forest and Stream.

Dr. Bacnman's Rod.

The Chattanooga, Tenn., Times, of August 31st, gives the report of a graceful incident: One of the most pleasant treats yet enjoyed by Rev. J. W. Bachman, D. D, who is preparing to leave on a journey to the Holy Land, occurred last evening at the Chamber of Commerce. As a fisher of fish, as well as "fisher of man," Dr. Bachman is renowned in this section, and he now has fishing tackle with which he may tackle the river Jordan to his heart's content. When Dr. Bachman was ushered into the Chamber of Commerce, ostensibly to look at a guide to London, he was met by a delegation of friends. Major Chas. D. McGuffey, who headed the delegation, presented the doctor with a costly jointed fishing rod, tackle, etc., and read the following neat and brief letters from the donors: To Dr. Bachman: * * * * "That you may, in the classic Orient, not forget the recreations of our Western continent, we beg to hand you, herewith, as a parting gift from some of your legion of friends this fishing-rod and tackle, with which an American fisherman may show the denizens of the old world the skill of our artisans as well as the prowess of our disciples of Izaak Walton. In this community anything you may vouch for, even a fishing story, will pass current, but you may be captured by the insatiable reporter and your stories given in print where irreverent strangers may smile incredulously. As a safeguard in such event, we are glad to know that you can have the corroboration of the comrade of your journey, Mr. John C. Griffiss, a gentleman so versatile that while building up and sustaining the reputation of one of our foremost business men and financiers, he could yet become familiar with fishing circles, from the bass of Northern Michigan to the stingarees and turtles of the Georgia coasts and the haunts of the Florida alligators, could sustain a membership in both the Chattanooga fishing clubs, and win from the lamented gentleman whose name the General McRae Club bears, the admiring comment: "That fine dressed gentleman; he can fall overboard oftener, go down deeper and come up wetter than any man I ever knew." With such a comrade to vouch for your fish stories, they need fear no discount, even among strangers. Jesting apart, our friend, when you throw your line in classic or sacred waters, when your eyes see no land to bound the vast Atlantic, when your feet tread the storied soil of Europe, or your brow is fanned by the breezes of the Mediterranean or the sultry zephyrs of the Nile or while you wander among the hallowed scenes of the Holy Land, may you feel ever how warmly our heart's best wishes follow you." Dr. Bachman replied that he had always found health and strength in fishing, as he stood on the shore and cast the fly or gave the minnow. He said he looked forward with pleasant anticipations to the day when he will stand where the great fisher of men stood, and view the sacred scenes of the Holy Land.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Irish Setters.

The following measurement of an imported Irish setter which is said to be a perfect dog, may be of interest to fanciers of that breed. The dog's name is Inchiquin, by Shandon II. He was bred by that noted breeder, the Rev. Robert O'Callaghan, of Rochester, England, and was imported by John C. Scanlan.

"For the benefit of your many readers, who are lovers of the reds, I send his measurements: 23½ inches at shoulder, 28 inches girth of chest, 9½ inches from tip of nose to occiput, 38 inches from tip of nose to set on of tail, 14 inches length of tail; muzzle deep, head dome shaped, eyes hazel, neck long, shoulders well placed and loin strong. He seems devoted to hunting and shows great style, carries his tail beautifully, with a merry lashing of his flag. In fact, I am more than pleased with him, and feel that Mr. O'Callaghan has sent me a dog that is fully up to his description in every particular, and I shall take great pleasure in embracing the first good opportunity of letting my brother fanciers see him on the bench."

According to the Stock-Keeper at the French Gordon Setter Club's field trials next month, all competing dogs must have been whelped and reared in France, have a pedigree and belong to French owners.

"Hector," in Puck, is one of Mr. Bunner's smartest things, "Hector" is a dog (?), in a household composed of three maiden ladies, who, one morning, discover that "Hector" has whelped four pups! (Tableau.)

Smothered dogs en route from bench shows are not unknown to Englishmen as well as Americans. Mr. Lowe's pointer was returned by the Tunbridge Wells show committee in a hamper too small for him with the usual result. Mr. Lowe claims £100 damages.

Sheep dog trials in Great Britain are important affairs and create as much interest among sheepmen as do field trials among sportsmen. Speaking of a late sheep day trial in Wales an English paper says: "Some beautiful work was done at the hurdles, the dogs going through the old crawling tactics, and turning away their heads at a critical moment so as not to frighten the sheep. With one or two exceptions all these dogs worked as mute as clumber spaniels. Such is considered a great point here in a dog's favor."

"What is the best all-round dog for California shooting?" is a question which one often hears asked, and which is variously answered. Some swear by the setter, others will hear of nothing but the pointer. It is a matter of fact, however, that the cross between the setter and pointer, known as the dropper, is the most useful dog a man can use. They are as good in water as on land, and will wear out the finely bred pointer or setter in a hard day's work. This may seem a somewhat queer statement, but such is the opinion of most hunters. Of course to get a good dropper you must breed from first-class stock in both the pointer and setter side. The only drawback is that the breed stops right there, unless dropper be bred to dropper, which is seldom done.

THE FARM.

ANIMAL DISEASES.

Diseases of the Locomotive Apparatus.

The bones as a whole constitute the frame of the body, the bones individually act mostly as levers. They are moved by the contraction of the muscles attached to them. The contraction results from will power under the influence of the brain and nervous system. The bones are kept together at the joints by means of little bands termed ligaments. There are several such ligaments to each joint. Besides this the joints are covered by a capsule so attached to the extremities of the bones as to form a kind of sack all around in which is secreted the joint oil (or synovia) the object of which is to lubricate the articular surfaces. This oil is essential to good, painless motion. If it oozes out through a wound it seriously impairs the articulation.

The muscles are attached from bone to bone by rounded or flat extremities of a white, gristly nature. These extremities are termed tendons or cords.

Blood vessels, lymphatic vessels and nerves supply all these parts.

Lameness is a defect in locomotion, i. e. an irregular, unnatural gait. It may show itself in one or more limbs, and sometimes it proceeds from the back (spinal column) and even from other parts as disease of the liver, for instance.

The immediate producer of lameness is the inability to sustain weight and move, and this inability comes from injury of organic or functional character.

It is apparent from the above explanation that there must be a great variety of lameness.

Causes.—They are predisposing and specific.

The predisposing causes are as follows: Condition of the extremities (feet), condition of the roads, kind of work, immaturity of age, shoeing and heredity.

The specific causes are the various diseases of the locomotive apparatus, and a few other organs, causing indirect interference on this apparatus.

Diagnosis: It is frequently very difficult to detect the seat of a disease producing lameness. The best of practitioners are often baffled for a long time when nothing is visible or perceptable to guide them. As a result there are many wise men who guess and unmercifully torture poor brutes by cruel blistering or firing from head to foot

The first thing in order when a case of lameness is present is to detect the lame limb. After this the exact locality may be searched for.

It is necessary, as a rule, to examine a subject under three conditions, viz: at rest, in motion and immediately after moving. It is sometimes useful also to move the animal over both soft and hard roads or ground. A horse lame in the foot is usually worse on hard roads than on soft ground. When lameness is in the fore quarters the movements of the foot and of the head occur in unison, i. e., when the lame foot is raised the head is raised with it, and when the sound foot is brought down to the ground the head drops also.

In lameness of the hind quarters the haunch settles downwards when the sound limb touches the ground, whilst the head drops when the diseased one is brought to rest.

In a word the weight is thrown on the sound limbs, consequently if a subject drops to the right he is lame on the left, if he drops to the left he is lame on the right.

Prevention: A great number of lamenesses are due to such causes as might have been prevented by judicious management.

I will mention first: Shoeing, which in the majority of cases is badly done—the foot being cut, burned and rasped to fit a badly made shoe instead of making a good shoe to fit the foot. The horse's hoofs should be shod monthly and trimmed around the edges just about as much as a month's wear would have done in an idle animal roaming at will. It takes experience, observation and judgment to understand this point well and to practice accordingly.

The frog should never be touched. It is a natural elastic cushion that prevents concussions and contractions. It should be allowed even with a shoe to rest squarely on the ground.

Second: Hereditary predisposition and transmission. In this class of preventable causes may be found ringbones, spavins, curbs, splints and various bony tumors about the articulation, etc. Don't breed from animals so blemished.

Third: Tender age, such as working colts too severely at two years. A horse should be three years old before he is worked or ridden much. Before that age the bones, ligaments and tendons are too imperfect, tender and weak.

Fourth: Accidental injuries due to careless driving, riding, or to neglect in repairing barns, fences, vehicles, harnesses, etc., etc., and in new constructions.—Paul Paquin, State Veterinarian in Coleman's Rural World.

A New Tomato Trouble.

Professor Stelle, the agricultural editor of the Mobile Register, was shown some specimens of tomato vines from which the flowers had fallen in a peculiar manner. "These seemed," said Professor Stelle, "to have been inflicted by some kind of injury on the fine fruit stems a short distance below the flowers causing the stems to rot at this point and break off with the flowers. He reports the trouble as general in his garden as to render his prospects for tomatoes extremely slim. On close examination we find it to be the work of a very minute insect known as the tarnished plant bug. In its different larval stages it presents a variety of colors, but when at full maturity it is of a dirty brownish color, oval in shape, and about one-sixth of an inch in length. The larvæ are more inclined to greenish.

"The huge work on various plants of the kitchen garden, but seem to most prefer something in the family to which the potato belongs, as the Irish potato, the egg-plant, the tomato, and so on. It punctures the small stem with its slender beak, sucks out the juices, and appears to poison the plant, so that it rots at the point of puncture and soon breaks off.

"'Kerosene powder' is the remedy proposed by the State entomologist of Arkansas. Its preparation consists in simply mixing, say ten per cent. of the kerosene with any available powder, such as road dust, flour, plaster, etc. The use of kerosene does not seem to be attended with any risk of hurting the plant Pulverize finely and dust over the plants in the morning when the dew is on."

An Englishman's View.

In a recent address before the Angus Agricultural Society of Scotland, Mr. Barclay, M. P., said:

Some years ago pleuro got a considerable hold in the United States of America, and, in consequence, the government—very properly he thought—took steps to have the importation of cattle from the United States prohibited for a time. The United States felt that that was a limit and embargo on their trade, and they also recognized the great risk to their own herds from the spread of the disease; and for the last two or three years the government of that country, supported generally by the States Governments, had been taking very active measures for the eradication of pleuro, and these measures had, he was glad to think, been nearly successful. A communication which he had had from the Minister of Agriculture for the United States, informed him that for several months there had been no case of pleuro in that country, and that for twelve months previously it had been limited to a very narrow section of the country. It was evident, however, that there were two classes of farmers who possessed separate interests in that matter. There were the breeders of cattle—those who owned the valuable and handsome animals that were seen in the showyard that day, and who were naturally jealous of the importation of foreign cattle in case it should introduce disease amongst their herds. That was a natural and very legitimate feeling, and one to which full effect ought to be given. On the other hand, the breeders of cattle—those who wanted to buy cheap stores—desired to have the widest market possible, and were anxious to have a chance of getting cheap store cattle from the United States. On the other hand, the breeder was entitled to say, you are not to bring any diseased cattle into this country; and on the other, the feeder might say, I demand in this free trade country to have a free market from which to buy my store cattle. If for twelve months there was no pleuro in the United States, and if the inspectors who examined the fat cattle brought into this country from abroad found no trace of disease amongst them, he thought that the breeders ought to be satisfied that there was no practical risk under continued supervision and inspection from the importation of store cattle from the United States, and that the Minister of Agriculture might then, with justice to all classes of the community, permit the importation of such cattle from the States. There was just one point to which he would call the attention of those gentlemen who were very anxious for the importation of stores from the United States, and that was that if store cattle were imported free and without any risk or restriction, the same law must apply to fat cattle, so that they might then expect that fat cattle from the States would be shown at the different markets all over the country, and so possibly prove still more formidable competitors than they had been in the past.

The Model Cow.

The characteristics of a good useful cow were thus particularly set forth by Secretary Batchelder of Concord, N. H., in a recent address: "She should have a fine, long head; be broad between the eyes, the eyes should be large and mild, the muzzle thin and wide, the ears thin and the inside covered with yellow skin; the fore-quarters light, the body wedge-shaped, increasing in size to the rear, the legs flat with fine bones, the thighs thin, the bones of the rump set widely apart, the back broad and straight, the ribs and barrel round and well sprung, the tail long and fine, the udder large and full, extending well behind, and the large milk-veins under the belly should be full and tortuous. A fine horn, a deep yellow skin, and a general feminine elegance of form are also good indications. A well shaped escutcheon on the back of the thighs and under will do no harm, but experience proves that some very excellent cows lack this characteristic."

He further remarked, that 40 pounds of ensilage with eight pounds of hay, or 20 pounds of dry barley or oat fodder, or hay, was about the requisite feed for a 1000-pound cow, per day. An excellent grain ration for the production of milk in a 1000-pound cow, would be four pounds of gluten or cottonseed meal, two pounds of corn meal and two pounds of wheat or rye bran.

A cow that gives less than 3,000 quarts of milk, or makes less than 250 pounds of butter in a year, is unprofitable, and yet the average production is far below this. The average in New Hampshire is 150 pounds. At present prices, it costs 20 cents a day to keep a cow in the stable, as cows are usually kept, so that the cow that gives seven quarts of milk a day, that is sold for three cents a quart is of very little benefit to her owner. Experience proves that a cow will yield a greater income by dropping her calf between September and November, or in the fall months, especially if she is turned out to grass in the spring. The green feed stimulates anew the flow of milk, and prolongs the milking season. Calves, he said, could be grown on skimmed milk with a little bran or grain after they were two or three weeks old, but a dissenter remarked that a flat-ribbed animal betrayed its scanty early feeding. A calf that is full fed on warm new milk will have a rotundity of form that the other never possesses.

The Sheep Fold.

Before cold weather sets in the flock should be gone over carefully and culled. All weaklings, ewes average, and all that are defective or ailing in any way should be removed and prepared for the shambles, if not already fit for this purpose, as they ought to be if they have had a good run of pasture. As a rule, it will not pay to keep wethers after they have attained full growth, as the only return for them is wool, and the longer they are kept the poorer mutton they make. The wool at current prices will hardly pay for keep. But with ewes the case is different. So long as they are healthy and strong, breed well and make good mothers, they are profitable to keep. They have been known to do well until twelve to fifteen years of age. Very few will fail to be profitable until six or eight years of age. See that their udders are all right and they are in good health and let them run. Of course a young flock of ewes has in it more of the elements of life and endurance and makes a fine appearance, but good ewes ought not to be hastily sacrificed to any foolish notions about age. Some are practically younger at eight than others are when four or five years old. A good constitution is a safe thing to depend on.

Wool.

The latest report from Bradford says: "Mohair good. Alpaca advanced," This advance in Alpaca will have a tendency to put up the value of Mohair.

Importations of Turkey Mohair have been very light this summer as compared with 1889, and if the present good market on the other side continues, fall shipments of domestic Mohair will find a ready market in spite of the slight curtailed demand.

There is very little raw stock in New York now, so that quotations are merely nominal, being based upon our last sales.

Fine Combing	45 to 50 cents
Fine Medium Combing	40 to 45 cents
Medium Combing	35 to 40 cents
Coarse Combing	28 to 35 cents
Carding	14 to 16 cents
Burry	10 to 15 cents

For the benefit of those who do not believe in Fall shearing, we quote from a successful grower of the "Southwest."

"When I do not shear until Spring I do not get half a fleece from the flock as it runs. If I shear in the fall, the new growth does not catch to the brush so badly, and a better average shearing from my flock can be had."

We believe there are many flocks, especially in Texas, New Mexico and Southern California, which would be very much improved by an occasional shearing in the fall. As Mohair is now a profitable product, growers would do well to shear this season is they wish to experiment

Pack your clip with great care, and make a point to keep burry and very dirty fleeces separate.

The Pig Pen.

The fresher and more succulent the food, the more the hogs need salt to promote digestion and maintain health. When they run in pasture, salt must be fed to them in some form. A good way is to prepare a mixture of salt, wood ashes, sulphur and perhaps a little fine ground bone and place it under shelter where the hogs can get at it as they may desire, but cannot soil or waste it. If, instead of running in pasture, the hogs are confined, the same course may be pursued, but we believe it better to salt, as far as it can be done conveniently, the food which is fed to them, instead of taking it into the stomach in raw doses. This is the way man does, and finds it much pleasanter, if not better than to eat it clear. We believe the same holds good with the whole animal creation as well as with man. There can be no material difference so far as the physical system is concerned. In such matters, human experience should serve as a guide until we can find a better one

Corn as a summer food for hogs is not a success, It is too heating and wasteful. An Indiana feeder gives, in the Swineherd, his experience in feeding a lot of seventeen hogs from June 2 to June 28—a period of twenty-six days. When the experiment began, they weighed a total of 3,270 pounds, an average of 193 pounds each. During the twenty-six days they were fed sixty-nine bushels of corn, which made 720 pounds of live weight, worth 3¼ cents a pound, or $23.40. The 69 bushels of corn were worth 35 cents a bushel, or $25.15. This shows a money loss of 75 cents, besides the time, trouble and interest on the investment. The more business of this kind a farmer does the poorer he gets. We have no doubt that if bran, middlings, oats or some other nitrogenous food had been fed with half the corn there would have been a much more favorable showing. In such a case it will always pay to sell half the corn and put the proceeds into some more nitrogenous feed than corn to be fed with it.

Cracking of Fruit.

A very little rain or a short immersion in water will often cause plums, tomatoes, grapes, cherries, etc., to crack. Many theories have been advanced regarding the cause, but the following, from the New Orleans Times-Democrat, seems to explain the matter in a very lucid way: If a bladder filled with syrup be immersed in a vessel of water the water will, after a while, become sweet; the syrup passes through the membrane of the bladder into the water, and correspondingly the water passes into the interior of the bladder. But this interchange is not an equal one; the lighter liquid—the water—passes in many times more rapidly than the heavier liquid—the syrup passes out. The consequence will be that the bladder will be distended to its utmost, and at length burst. A ripe tomato or plum may be considered, in the condition of the bladder of syrup. The rich juices of the fruit correspond to the syrup, and the thin membrane which forms the skin of the fruit represents the bladder. When the ripe fruit is kept constantly wet by a rain osmose takes place, and the water, passing constantly through into the fruit, distends the skin, which, not being very strong, is soon ruptured. If the fruit were to be surrounded by a liquid denser than its juices it would, instead of expanding and breaking, shrink, and the skin become shriveled. When strawberries or blackberries are sprinkled with sugar a syrup is soon formed by some of the juice of the fruit, and this being considerably denser than the juices of the berries, they are soon flabby and shriveled.

Breeding for Sex.

When I embarked in a Jersey dairy, and realized the advantages of raising a large per cent. of females, having heard that the formula was to serve the cow in the early stage of the heat, and have the bull wrought up to a high state of excitement, I worked on this programme as faithfully as I could. And what was the result of my first year's experience? Why, of twelve calves, nine were bulls! From this I became disgusted, voted the science of the thing a humbug, and for the next season, I went in on the let-her rip system. And strange as it may seem, of sixteen calves, but one was a male. Then for the next year, from the same bull, I had about twice as many heifers. Then I changed bulls, and for the next several years I was so fortunate as to have about twice as many females as males. And curiously enough, again, I now have another bull, who for the first season has produced so far nothing but females.—Correspondent Hoerd's Dairyman.

The Balloon Track.

The fact that so many records are being broken at Independence, Ia., creates much interest in the balloon-shaped track at that place, says the Kentucky Stock Farm. A good portion of the money received for Axtell was expended in the purchase of a tract of 310 acres of choice grass land. Part of this property was converted into a driving park and provided with a balloon-shaped track, exactly one mile in length, the stretches and turn one-third mile each, and a loop at the small end for the scoring and finishes. This form of track was an experiment, and has proved to be a success. Another of the same shape at Kankakee is also a fast course. The soil at the Independence track is a black loam that is easily worked and makes the footing elastic and safe. Turfmen in attendance at the meeting just closed could not sing loud enough the praises of the new track. M. Sanlsbury of California, who was present with his string, said it is one of the best, if not the best in the world. John Dickerson of Indiana, though an old driver, said: "I do not consider the shape of the track equal to the old in viewing a race, but it is much faster and horses like to go on it better. It is fast. Two years from now it will be speedier yet." Budd Doble said: "This is the grandest track I have ever been on. I have driven on all the great tracks in the country, but I consider this the safest and best."

Buffalo is fast collecting the speediest horseflesh in the world. Following the purchase of Hal Pointer by a Buffalo syndicate, Charles F. Dunbar has just bought the famous pacer, Johnston (2:06½) of E. C. Long of St. Paul for $8,000. Johnston has the fastest mile record of any trotter or pacer in the world.

THE TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$11,000 GUARANTEED $11,000

FOR

Trotting Foals of 1890.

$5,000 to First; $2,500 to Second; $1,500 to Third; $1,000 to Fourth; and $1,000 to the breeder of the Winner, in money or plate, at the option of said breeder.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Entrance

Payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for Starters, payable August 1, 1894.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11 000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Conditions.

Nominators will be required to state name, color and sex of foal; also to give the names of the sire, the dam, and the sire of the dam, when known; also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nominated.

No nomination will be received unless the first payment of $10 accompanies the same.

Nominations are only liable for the first payment, but failure to make any of the subsequent payments, when due, shall be considered a withdrawal, with forfeiture of former payments.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the finest and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three-year-old in 2:12.

The above PURSE is given and all of its provisions guaranteed by the VIGO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY of Terre Haute, Ind.

Nominations to be made on or before NOVEMBER 1st, 1890, and addressed to

CHAS. C. OAKEY, Secretary, Terre Haute, Ind.

THE BAKER & ROSS TRACK HARROW

Is pronounced by all horsemen who have used it and seen it work to be the

BEST HARROW EVER INVENTED.

It has sloping chisel, shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Crabb, Sam'l Gamble, I. DeTurk, and the directors of the Napa and Petaluma Tracks, etc.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Brocken,

Five years old; color, brown; 16.2 hands; bred by Capt. A. J. Hutchinson; sired

By A. W Richmond,

BROCKEN is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed. He can trot a 40 gait now with ease. ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3.4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

Raymond, 1482.

OWNED BY A. D. FERGUSON, OF FRESNO.

RAYMOND 1482.

A New Breeding Establishment Near Fresno —Fine Cattle.

Changes and revolutions are constantly taking place. It seems only the other day that one of the requisites to buy a horse was age, not age in the horse but age in the purchaser, for it was generally considered that to be a good horseman one had to be well up in years; in this respect a change has taken place, as there are just as bright young horsemen today as there were old ones in the time gone by.

Some time ago Messrs. Ferguson & Austin purchased 170 acres of land, situated some sixteen miles south and east of Fresno and in close proximity to the well known breeding farm owned by S. N. Straube, Esq. Last week, Mr. A. D. Ferguson purchased his partner's interest and will undertake to build up a breeding establishment for both trotting horses and fine cattle second to none in the State. The land is mostly all of it in alfalfa, divided off into good sized paddocks with plenty of water and the necessary stabling and barns which such a place requires.

Mr. Ferguson, although only a young man, has been engaged in the cattle business for some years. By seeing the great field which has opened up in California for breeding trotting horses, he secured the highly-bred trotting stallion Raymond 1482. Raymond is a dark bay horse with pasterns white below the ankles; stands about 15½ hands high, and weighs between 1150 and 1200 lbs; of great muscular development, he is a perfect picture to the eye of the connoisseur, his evenly balanced proportions being all that could be desired; his legs are broad and flat; good arms; short cannon bones; good sloping shoulders; an exquisite neck and a very intelligent head. Raymond is a son of Socrates, he by Hambletonian 10, the dam of Socrates being Lady Fallis (the dam of Kisber 2:27¾, Pickering 2:30, and also the grand dam of Clingstone 2:14 and Fallis 2:23). The dam of Raymond is Wallkill Maid (full sister to Peacemaker 260, who is the sire of Alroy 2:23, Kitty Frazier 2:30, Lady Moore 2:25 and Midnight 2:18¾, in addition to which he is the sire of the dams of Gretna 2:29½, Holmdel 2:25½ and Lyra 2:28¾) by Hambletonian 10; second dam, Sally Feaghles (who is the dam of Dauntless 3158, sire of Gens Smith 2:15½, Hendryx 2:18¾, Thornless 2:16¼, Ed. Annan 2:16½ and eight others in the 3:30 list) by Smith's Clay, son of Cassius M. Clay 20. With such grand blood lines and the commingling of so many speed producing families, can it be wondered at that Raymond is a favorite stallion in Fresno and vicinity? As can be seen the Hambletonian and American Star crosses are prominent, which brings him in close relationship to Dictator, the sire of Jay Eye See 2:10, Phallas 2:13¾, Moxey Cobb 2:13¼ Director 2:17, Stamboul 2:12¼ and the great Electioneer; in fact a careful examination of his pedigree goes to show that Raymond contains the blood of almost every prominent trotting family that there is to-day on the American continent. We had the pleasure of seeing one of his colts called Raymont, a three year old, which is as evenly turned youngster as can be found in a day's journey; nicely gaited, well balanced and a good head, in addition to which he has considerable speed, would make it apparent to the on looker that Raymond is destined to produce not only early speed but lots of it. Raymond was trotted as a two year old only, getting a record of 2:38, about which time he was bought by a minister and retired from the turf, he was sold to Mr. Connell of Fresno, who did not believe in training horses for the track, and as a consequence Raymond has never shown the world what he is capable of doing himself in the way of speed.

Mr. Ferguson also has a number of brood mares which he has picked up from time to time, all of which in their produce should add additional fame to his breeding establishment. Mr. Ferguson feeling assured of the bright future in store for his horse. Has also purchased several very handsome colts by him, all of whom show that they can trot fast. Raymont, the one alluded to above, has already been entered in the three year old stake at Fresno, and is now being carefully prepared for that event by the old driver and trainer, L. C. Smith. All of these colts are fine movers and are as honest as the day is long: their action cannot be excelled, and as for endurance, there is no road too long for them.

In addition to his breeding establishment Mr: Ferguson has two fine herds of cattle, one representing the Polled Angus division, while the other herd is of the short horn variety. The excellent illustration which we give this week of a group of cattle seen on Mr. Ferguson's ranch will give our readers an idea of the class of cattle owned by that gentleman. When Mr. Straube decided to give up his herd of Polled Angus, Mr. Ferguson purchased the whole lot, and as is well known, they were the very best herd that California has ever seen, prize winners without number are to be found among them, as their lineage is of the best. Among the older ones are those which have stood in competition with the very best that England or Scotland could produce, and it was on account of their excellency and general superiority that induced Mr. Straube to originally buy them.

Time would not permit of an examination of all the stock that is on the farm, but there are three head which deserve more than passing mention. The first of these is Fitz William, 7038, got by Knight of St. Patrick 354 (2194), he by Knight of the Legion 370 (1494), first dam Waterside Flirt 2964 (6300), granddam Flirt of Bogfernie 2965 (4105), by Captain of Bogfernie 1373 (579).

Another of the royally bred ones is Model II 755 (4307), bred by A. O. Stephenson, Blair Shinnock, Scotland, got by Nubian 761 (1294), he by Gainsborough 606 (596), dam Model of Blair Shinnock 756 (3423), by Con Accord 763 (466), granddam Isabelle of Careston 757 (3420), by Cal of Careston 766 (1305).

Welcome III, 3561, is another of the highly bred ones, being by His Highness The Sixth 2637 (2829), by His Excellency 1355 (1271), dam Welcome 1016 by Black Prince of Wellhouse 739 (1312).

The Short-horns are equal in breeding and good looks to their black companions and it is only fit and proper that Mr. Ferguson should esteem them as highly as he does.

The first crop of calves is now coming on, and during the fall Mr. Ferguson will sell them at private sale to those who may desire first-class animals of this description. The two herds are far superior to any of their kind on the coast and beyond a question, cannot be surpassed either in pedigree or good looks.

Lakeport Races.

LAKEPORT, Cal., Sept. 23, 1890

The eighth annual fair of the Twelfth Agricultural District, composing of the counties of Lake and Mendicino, opened to-day at Lakeport. The track is a mile track and situated a mile and a half from town. It is in a fair condition, but horsemen here say that if in first class condition would be one of the fastest tracks in the State.

The stock parade this morning was very fine, but as the stock is not all in, they are sure that the parade on Thursday will be better. The trotting race, although not fast, was very good. Lee Shaner behind Jolly Boy had a good time as he thought, but he "ain't in it." The yearling stake did not fill, so did not go, so there were two races on the programme. The first a dash for runners, half mile, and the second the three minute class.

There were only four stakes in the run and six in the trot. The judges for the run were M sars. Mannon, Hildireth and Keating; Dr. Abby starter. Those to face the flag were Fox the winner, Inkerman who ran second, Joe Hooker and Jack the Ripper.

Jack was a hot favorite at 20 to 12 for the field. They got a fine start, the Ripper making the pace, but he did not keep the lead long for Fox and Inkerman moved up and it looked at one time that Inkerman would win, but in the last strides Edson on Fox sat down and won by a head from Inkerman, Joe Hooker third, Jack the Ripper fourth. Time, 49 seconds. The judges for the trot were Messrs. Boggs, Mewhœnning, C. W. Aby.

Second race—Three-minute class. The starters were Lady Blanche, Warwick, Nimrod, Jolly Boy, Sam Tilden and Allowood.

First heat—Pools sold: Lady Blanche $20, Warwick $12, Field $10. Lady Blanche lead from the word with Jolly Boy second; down the backstretch the mare broke and Warwick, who had passed Jolly Boy led by half a length. The mare soon recovered and trotted fast and soon assumed command and won the heat by three lengths, Warwick second, Nimrod third, Jolly Boy and Sam Tilden just inside the red house, Allowood distanced, time 2:44¼.

The second and third heats were about a repetition of the first one as all but the mare were not in the chase. The time of the heats were 2:41½ and 2:42.

Nevada State Fair.

RENO, Aug. 23rd.

The Nevada State Fair opened yesterday with a good attendance. The weather was charming and the outlook was fully up to the standard of opening days.

M. D. Foley, W. O. H. Martin and John R. Bradley were the track judges. The first event of the day was a mile dash between Rolly Bolly, Nerva, Condor and Jackson. Rolly Bolly won in 1:44¼. The horses had some considerable trouble in starting, owing to Condor's nervousness. Nerva was the favorite in the pools with Rolly Bolly and Jackson following in order named.

A dash of five-eighths of a mile constituted the record race. Sir Walter and Boot'a Duke of Milpitas selling as a stable for $30 to $20 for Winter's Black Bart. The latter won in 1:04½, Sir Walter second.

The third race, a mile and a quarter, was a beautiful event and was contested by Hotspur, Prince of Norfolk. Applause and Nabeau, Applause winning easily in 2:11. Pools: Applause $25, Princess $15 and the field $6.

SECOND DAY.

The second day of the Fair opened with a clear, beautiful sky, and the long string of visitors which have streamed through the gates to witness the events on the programme were such as to make glad the hearts of the officers of the association. The Secretary wore an expansive smile, and the treasurer chuckled softly to himself as he figured up the income. Probably no second day in the history of the association has been more favorable. Five horses came out to take part in the first event, which was a running race of a half mile and repeat. Dewdrop, Lida Ferguson, The Jew and Sunday. After much endeavoring they got away like rockets, presenting a beautiful sight as they thundered down the course. The heat was won by Lida Ferguson in 0:48

The second heat was run after considerable delay in starting, but proved to be highly interesting. It was won by Sunday in 0:49, Lida Ferguson second. The two other horses dropped out, and the third heat was won by Sunday without much effort in 0:49.

Before the event was called the pools were selling at $40 for Sunday, $8 for Lida and $2 for the field. After the first heat Lida sprang to $10 to $6. Prior to third heat Sunday sold at $10 to $4 for Lida. The race was exciting and betting was freely carried on.

At 4 o'clock the pacers, Ned Winslow, Belle Button and Tom Ryder, contested for honors in a special race. Button took first heat in 2:22¼. Winslow won second heat and Ryder the third one, the fourth was captured by Button and the fifth by Ryder, when the race was postponed on account of darkness.

Just prior to the third heat Wilson and Bigelow gave way to Sullivan and Green as drivers for Belle Button and Tom Ryder. Belle Button won honors by closing up and winning the last heat in a really beautiful spirit. Time, 2:22¼, 2:23¼, 2:24, 2:28, 2:33.

Feeding Horses.

Prof. J. W. Sandborn says: The attempt to make hay the chief ration of horses imposes a severe tax upon them, and the result is seen in their distended stomachs and the spiritless and clumsy horses of many farmers. All intelligent students of the horse give little hay, and feed grain more liberally than to the ruminants, for the double reason that the horse will make poorer use of the hay than the steer or sheep will, and will be less easy of motion. Good horse feeders give but ten to twelve pounds of hay a day and feed once or twice daily. A colt is kept for his muscle; hence a fattening diet is out of date until matured and set to work. For the horse, bran mixed with corn meal will serve to assist digestion, while, incidentally, it will make more valuable manure. One half a pound of linseed meal, where carrots or some other roots or ensilage are not fed, will tend to keep the bowels open and secretion good. For traveling horses there seems to be but little doubt that oats are the best, although usually the most costly food. Horsemen agree that for a road-horse oats have no substitute. Great transportation companies using horses make rather free use of corn. Most of them use some oats. I should desire to give one feed a day of them and the rest of corn, with a little bran mixed with it on the score of economy. A trial of feeding grain before and after watering resulted in an advantage of importance to the practice of watering before feeding. This matter I went over with some care, and believe it invites a change of practice on the part of those who feed grain before watering horses. Grain mixed with hay for the horse was more effective than when either was fed alone.

Potatoes.

The consolidated county returns of our correspondents make the August condition of potatoes the lowest ever reported. The July return, the first of the season, is always high, but this year it was low, slightly below that of any previous year, but high enough if it has been maintained to have insured an abundant crop. The weather during the month past has been extremely unfavorable in many sections of the country, and especially so in the districts of large supply west of the Alleghany mountains. Drouth more or less local, and varying in intensity, has prevailed in the Ohio valley and in the states west of the Mississippi river. In some districts alternations of parching drouth and excessive rain-fall have been experienced, baking the ground, inducing excessive growth, and then scalding the vines, and the good prospect of a month ago has been succeeded by a depressing outlook.

Condition in the states lying east of the Alleghany mountains from Maine to Georgia has been well maintained, and is now quite generally good. The season has been favorable, and blight, rot and insect enemies are but rarely mentioned. The prospect is especially favorable in northern New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania where the averages differ little from those at the same date last year, though in portions of the middle states the crop has suffered somewhat from drouth.

The average condition of the crop of the whole country has fallen off 14 3 points during the month, and now stands at 77.4. Such a decline in one month is unprecedented, and illustrates the disaster which has overtaken the crop over a large district. The only approach to the present depressed prospect was in 1887, when the average declined from 93.3 in July to 80 0 in August and 61.5 at time of harvest, the average yield per acre being only about 57 bushels.

While, as a rule, slight decline is reported in nearly every section of the country, the main damage has been wrought in the states lying within the water-shed of the Mississippi river and its tributaries north of Tennessee and Arkansas. The falling off in some of these states is very heavy, and present conditions indicate a comparative failure of the crop. Kentucky returns only 50, a falling off of 37 points during the month of July; Ohio 56, a loss of 32 points; Illinois 39, a loss of 50 points; Missouri 53, a loss of 32 points; Iowa 75, a loss of 21 points; Kansas 55, a loss of 26 points, and Nebraska 50, a loss of 35 points. The Pacific coast maintains the relatively high condition of a month ago.—Government Report for August.

Growing in Wisdom.

Some of the agricultural editors are getting to be almost as wise as Solomon, who declared that "there is nothing new under the sun." They are declaring that newspaper writers repeat themselves and sell essentially the same matter, in different forms, to different papers. If they will examine into the matter, they will find that the number of ideas in the world are limited, and that these are repeated over and over again in somewhat varied form. It is only now and then that a really original idea is born. We are still cooking, eating, and washing dishes. To our certain knowledge we are discussing to-day the same old questions that were discussed twenty-five and thirty years ago—such as deep and shallow plowing, spring and fall plowing, early and late cutting of hay, how to breed and how to feed, and so on through all the topics of the day. They are like the bits of glass in kaleidoscope which present a new arrangement every time they are moved. The fellow who can conjure up the most striking combinations is the cleverest writer. Then what is the use of all this writing and publishing? Because new generations are constantly coming on, and the way-back farmer is not yet aware of the little progress that has been made. We must give "line upon line and precept upon precept." We have new text books, but the same alphabet and the same numerals, etc., are the foundation of them. The pulpit is still pounding away on the old topics, and the papers of all kinds, and the writers of them, must keep "placing it before the people" and follow the fashions of the times—no matter if they do change around and repeat themselves at intervals. Publishers might do as we have known to be done, go back eight or ten years and cut original matter from their files! It does not follow that an idea is original because it is new to the writer or to the one that reads it.—Mirror and Farm.

Stock and Dairy Notes.

Hogs are used for scavengers in some dirty Southern villages. That is better certainly than to turn them into a fine field of clover in June.

Think twice before you buy a cow of a man who brags about her, but can show no milk record. Tell him you may call again.

Some people thought when railways were first planned, that it would ruin the horse market. Now others are fearing the same thing in reference to cable and electric railways. But let them be patient. There will be a demand for horses a good while yet.

A cow is a machine for turning meal, hay, etc., into milk, hence treat her as a most useful machine, and she will return profits in proportion to her good treatment.

Pasteur, the celebrated French chemist, stated some years ago that cattle pastured on or near the graves of cattle dying from contagious diseases, will be poisoned by the pasturage. In fine, pasturage is the cause of many troubles.

According to Boussingault, sheep manure is nearly three times as valuable as ordinary barnyard manure. The exact figures are 300 for sheep to 108 for bardyard manure. This is a powerful argument for keeping sheep on rocky farms.

The odor in stables can easily be kept down by due forethought and attention. Sifted coal ashes, road dust, dry muck, saw dust, land plaster, German potash salts (commercially known as Kainite) sand, chaff and many other articles are serviceable for this purpose. It is not a waste of time to do it either, but there is rank waste in neglecting it.

Fancy farmers who take the word of their herdsmen in milk and butter tests, are liable to be deceived sometimes. The herdsman increases his importance by making out a good story. The fancy farmer had better look after details himself and not be credulous.

A Source of Loss.

Lice are a source of loss to the poultry-keeper who permits them to exist on his fowls, or about their quarters.

A hen that is bothered with these pests can not and will not lay enough to pay for her keep.

In a state of nature, wild birds and fowls of all kinds are free of lice—excepting those that are disabled from accident or disease, and therefore unable to apply natures remedy for lice—the dust bath.

Dust is nature's antidote and only remedy for lice, so far as relates to the feathered tribe.

Wild birds seek the dust as regular as they seek food and drink, and by means of it they keep their feathers free of lice, and in good condition.

Our domestic fowls are just as fond of dust, and understand the necessity of its application just as much as the wild creatures do. But, it is often the case that our fowls are so confined as to have no access to dust and a good wallowing place.

It is a common error with the new beginners with fine fowls, to give them a fine hen-house, and sometimes ample yard room, but to neglect the most important item of all—the dust bath.

Hens that have no access to dust soon become nervous and irritable in their actions, and to peck and pull at their own feathers and the feathers of each other. Deprived of dust for a considerable time they become feverish, their combs dwarf and turn pale, and they lose rapidly in flesh. In this condition they of course do not lay, and hence the presence of lice about them become a source of loss.

Given every other condition, fed and watered regularly, the lousy hen will pale and sicken, and dishearten her owner.

If she has a good dry place to roost, and ample dust to swallow in and a sheltered corner to stretch out and bask in the sunshine after her dust bath, she will have a fresh and healthy look and lay well, unless there be the regular annual drain upon her system—moulting. For a moulting hen lays but few eggs, and presents a dried, shrivelled and ragged appearance under any circumstances.

Bone Fertilizers.

A correspondent at Westfield, Wash., writes: "I have many tons of bones on hand Which is the cheapest way to utilize them for fertilizers? Lime sells at fifty cents per bushel." It is useless to attempt decomposing the bones with sulphuric acid, as that chemical is too dangerous to handle for that purpose. The making of "superphosphate" should be left to fertilizer manufacturers. Storer, in his "Agriculture," gives the following:

Engelbardt procured 4,000 lbs. of bones, 4,000 lbs. of wood ashes, 600 lbs. of quick lime and 4,500 lbs. of water. He dug a couple of trenches two feet deep and lined them with boards, and having slaked the lime with a part of the water, mixed the powdery product with the ashes. Into one of the trenches he put half the bones layer by layer with the mixture of lime and ashes, taking care to wet the material. The mixture was left to itself, with occasional moistenings, until the bones had become so soft that they could be rubbed down between the fingers. Three thousand six hundred pounds of water were used in this trench besides that employed for slacking the lime. When the contents of the first trench had become soft they were spread, layer by layer, in the second trench with the remaining 2,000 lbs. of fresh bones, and the whole was well worked together and then left to ferment until the bones were softened. The mass was then shoveled out and mixed with 4,000 lbs. of dry loam or peat to make it manageable."

Bones are sometimes softened by placing wood ashes and bones in alternate layers, about six inches of each, and saturating with water. Such a fertilizer as this will have a high value.

The Cornstalks Resource.

Perhaps in no other point were farmers of the last generation so wasteful as in neglect of corn stalks. When I was a boy not one acre in a hundred was saved, but the corn was husked and the cattle turned out and left in the fields, through all kinds of weather, till the husks were picked off, generally about midwinter; then until spring they starved at the strawstacks, and finally went to the pasture so poor they could scarcely walk, and often died from weakness. Farmers are still found who waste part of their fodder, but many have learned that it is exceedingly valuable. A lady farmer, whose deceased husband left her with an established business of breeding Shorthorn cattle, and who has successfuliy carried on the work, told me her estimation of corn fodder had increased with each year of its use; that she finds it worth nearly as much to her as the grain. She has not fed a pound of hay in several winters; has wintered thirty-five head of Shorthorn cattle, eight brood mares and forty sheep with no other rough feed than the fodder from fifteen acres of corn. Her land is rich bottom, she grows a large variety of corn, runs all the stalks through a cutter, and then feeds it as a chop, with bran and wheat mixed with cut fodder, and she says even the coarse butts are eaten. Her fifteen acres of fodder, cut up suffice to feed each cow and horse a tobacco-bucketful of the cut stover three times a day and of this with a sufficient grain ration, the stock did better, she thought than on hay. This fodder was, however, put in the barn in the fall, when bright and dry; and if it had been fed on the ground in mud, snow, rain and cold, as I saw thousands of cattle fed last winter, they would have been spring-poor and their owners complaining that farming don't pay.—Waldo F. Brown, in New York Tribune.

Standard for Grading Grain.

This is a matter of considerable interest to all agriculturists who have grain to sell, and indeed to all who have to buy grain or its products—for with fixed grades for grain the flour or meal from it should correspond, and therefore all consumers are interested in having breadstuffs properly graded according to some fixed and just standard. The House Committee on Agriculture has reported for this purpose a bill which provides that the secretary of agriculture "shall establish a standard for classifying and grading grains," which will in its judgment "best subserve the interest of the public in the conduct of interstate and foreign trade and commerce in grain." Something of this sort seems desirable; but, in our view of the matter, the best thing that can be done would be to declare that a certain number of cubic inches of wheat, weighing a certain number of pounds, shall always have the same grade, and the same with other grains, the number of grades to be sufficient to cover the different acknowledged qualities. Then there should be a penalty attached for mixing grades for sale, or as in the case of wheat, mixing them for the purpose of making flour of a quality inferior to the grade of wheat from which it purports to be manufactured.

Horses, Cattle and Chickens.

For colic and grubs, for lung fever, cough or hide-bound, I give Simmons Liver Regulator (liquid) in one ounce doses or, one teaspoonful of the powder in a mash twice a day. You can recommend it to every one having stock as the best medicine known for the above complaints. In using it with my chickens, for cholera and gapes. I mix with the dough and feed it to them once a day. By this treatment I have lost none where the Regulator was given promptly and regularly.—E. T. Taylor, Ag't for Grangers of Ga.

Charles Kerr, proprietor of the Antrim Stock Farm near Bakersfield, was in Sacramento for one week during the fair and left last Monday for his home taking with him his thoroughbred stallion Apache by imported Mortimer, out of The Banshee, a sister to True Blue. Charlie says that the Antrim Stock Farm will soon be known all over the States for he has some royally bred youngsters to race for him, while among trotters he has as premier stallion, the well known Corbitt Wilkes, and speaks very highly of a two-year-old called Prince Albert by Albert W, 2:20, dam Jeannette by Kentucky Prince 2470, granddam Wayward by Volunteer 55, etc.

FRESNO COUNTY.

FROM WASTE TO LUXURIANCE—FROM CATTLE RANCHES TO CEREALS, VINEYARDS, FRUITS, RAISINS, AND WEALTH.

Fresno County is among the remarkable countiee of California. The most noted of the regions and counties which became widest known in the early period of the American possession, on account of their great wealth of gold, are now outstripped in the more enduring rivalry which is perennially enriching the earth by its producte to the better uses and broadst bsnefit to all mankind, by the regions which at that early period were unknown, excspt as vast wastee of country that were considered only as deserts, incapable of cultivation or of profitable occupation. At the Spanish Miesione of the coast, nothing was known of the enormous expanse of country which extended eastward from the summit of the Coast Range of mountains, westward to the great peake of the Sierra Nevada, with its rivers and lakes and tributary streams; its vast plains and innumerable hills; its immense forests of the most gigantic growth found in all the world; its deposite of minerals that exceed in quantity and variety any now known in any other portion of the globe, and all of incalculable value and inexhaustible in product; and its exceeding productiveness of soil without parallel upon the face of the earth, in its adaptation to the plants and fruits of every clime, from which the sustenance and enjoyment of every people are derived and the commerce between all nations is sustained. It was only from the Indians who wandered or were brought to the Missions and became neophytes to the holy faith of the Fathers that information whatever was obtained of this vast region; but no exploration of it was ever undertaken until the discovery of gold had lured parties of emigrants from the other side of the continent to the strange land of California in eager quest for the precious metal. The emigrants who came into the Territory by the most southern routes and through Mexico, were the earliest explorers of the vast region which extends from the Tehachipa divide northward to the valley of the San Joaquin, and is already known as the Garden of California, as the granary of the world.

In the midst of this expansive region of unparalled affluence of soil, of magnificence of forest growth, and of incalculable wealth of minerals barely yet in process of development, is the county of Fresno, now possessing the proud rank of peerless distinguishment among the counties of the valley, occupying in it central position, and destined to become the most attractive, the most populous and the most prosperous, as it will be the richest of the interior counties of California. With an area greater than that of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Delaware combined—one hundred and fifty miles from east to west and sixty-five miles from north to south, with its 10,000 square miles—Fresno contains 4,000 square miles of hill and valley land of surpassing fertility, in which are produced luxuriant fields of grain and grasses, orchards of the fruits of the Temperate zone and of semi-tropical nature, vineyards of wine and raisin and table grapes, every variety of vegetables and roots and berries; many evergreens and deciduous trees, alike ornamental and useful, are indigenous; and exotic growths of forest and field and garden thrive as in their native climes and soils. Within its mountain border, to the west, are some of the loftiest peaks of the Coast Range, and its eastern boundary on the Sierras encompasses the towering summits of Mounts Gardner, Brewer and Abbott, with altitudes of from 12,000 to 14,000 feet, besides other peaks above 8,000 feet. Upon the Sierras, from their tops of eternal snow, flow the head-waters of the Chowchilla and Fresno and King's rivers, the great tributaries of the San Joaquin, the principal river of the southern portion of California, which likewise had its fountain head in the Sierras of the Fresno county embracement, and is navigable for hundreds of miles of its tortuous route to its own final disembouchement into the bay above Suisun.

Of the valley lands, of exceeding rich soil adapted to the cultivation of fruits and vines, are nearly one million and a quarter acres already applied to these products, of which Fresno township is the central portion. Other towns of the county are Selma, Madera, Sanger, Reedley, Fowler, Borden, Hanford, Centerville, Arcola, Chowchilla, Millerton, Sycamore, Panoche, Big Sandy, Fancher, Mill Creek, Orange, Liberty, Fair View, Washington, Duke, Daulton, Kingsbury, Mississippi, Kingston, New Idria, Hazelton, Webster, Clark's Valley, Cherry Hill, Pleasant Valley, Mechanicaville, Mendocino, Aubrey Valley, Hill's Valley. Substantial bridges, of iron and of wood, span the rivers and tributary streams for public travel, besides the railroad bridges. The Southern Pacific railroad line passes directly through the country, affording transportation overland and to San Francisco, connecting with the State system of railways and other roads overland, and within the coming year the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road will be extended from its present southern terminus northward to San Francisco or to tide-water on the bay. It can be confidently predicted that, besides, a road will be built from the base of the Sierras to an eligible port of the Pacific between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. The necessity of such a road is every year becoming more urgent, to afford transportation and promote the development of the untold wealth of the mountain region in the precious and useful metals—gold, silver, quicksilver, copper and iron—and of minerals and marble, of petroleum, and kindred products. The immense forests of giant sequoiae, also of the largest and the best species of white and sugar pine for lumbering, and of other varieties of valuable timber, will alone furnish constant and lucrative freight from the mountains to the coast, and to these will be added the increasing quantities of metals and ores, of minerals and quarried products, in the procurement of which thousands of men will be required, and hundreds of mills will be erected and put in operation.

The aggregation of population and wealth to flow from the augmentation of industries and improvements incident to the better development of Fresno county can be logically considered from the data of the past. Twenty years ago, Fresno county contained an insignificant number of inhabitants, and barely a church or a school house. There were very few farmers, and only the primitive methods of transportation, with merely local marketing facilities. The only industries were the grazing of horses, cattle and sheep, and the raising of hogs for driving to the distant markets of the lower San Joaquin at points favored with navigation. The advent of the railroad changed and improved the condition of things. Fresno City was planted, and in a few years the plant grew from the ranch of cattle, sheep and hogs, to the smart trading centre to which the two or three enterprising merchants had come and located—chief among them the pioneer firms of this day, Kutner & Goldstein and Louis Einstein & Co. Fresno continued the principal trading center—as it is now—but along the line of the railroad other towns were similarly planted, and to each of them has steadily flowed a good measure of trade and fair degree of prosperity. These flourishing settlements attracted immigration, and brought the adventurous and enterprising and industrious from every portion of the State and coast—parties seeking investments, merchants, mechanics, artisans, shop-keepers and men of every class to engage in every industry. Churches and schools sprung up. Cattle ranches and sheep breeding and the breeding of hogs gradually disappeared to make way for thorough agricultural pursuits. Farms were made and great fields were planted to grain and to grass, and as the merits of alfalfa became better understood, it was made the favorite fodder for the animals essential to the farms and to stockmen. The railroad furnished the transportation essential to the crops. The land was cheap and extremely productive. Agricultural industry expanded and the farmers prospered. Experiments were made in fruit raising. The surprising fertility of the soil further encouraged land owners to experiment in vines and vineyards, and wine making was added to the general cultivation. At length a season of abundant crops and stagnated markets wrought the discovery to lift the despondent into the contemplation of greater profit than they had before enjoyed from the better years of gladdening success. The grapes they had left to rot and waste upon their vines were found to be fair quality of raisins. It was a development of which the most sanguine had not dreamed. It was as the flowering of thistles into figs, as the plucking of grapes from thorns. It was as Biblical revelation, to raise them from the dejection of a ruined crop into the knowledge of the better means of enrichment, as the signal of the encouraging lesson by the cultivation of grapes for raisins as well as for wines. It was the year of brighter promise for all the future, for Fresno and her people.

Every year since the bright promise of Fresno's initial year of raisins has grown brighter, and every year it continues to grow From the few hundreds of population and two or three settlements of twenty years ago, Fresno county increased in 1880 to many settlements, a few prosperous trading points and a population of 9,000. Still its chief central depot and market had grown to a town of only a few hundred buildings, and a population a little more than 1,000. In 1880, besides, farming in Fresno county was still in its infancy, and the cultivation of fruits and grapes was merely experimental. The lands were held in great tracts and at low rates. Farms of less than 200 acres were considered insufficient for the purpose, and grain and hay were the principal crops The revelation of the raisin product wrought the marvellous change which has since come.

Large farms entail heavy expenditure in the management, and acquire the employment of many hands and of much machinery. Vineyards for wine making, likewise more acreage, help and expense than many can afford. Vineyards of forty acres, of twenty acres, and of ten acres, are sufficient for the fair support of a family. Beyond the family little help is required. Frugality, industry and economy are taught and encouraged, and with these qualities comes contentment with the home in which simple comfort can be enjoyed without disposition to extravagance. The smaller the tracts of land held in ownership, the larger the number that can dwell upon the soil, and the nearer to community life are its occupants for mutual and social protection and entertainment. The land increases in value, and the State better prospers. Where the country thrives, the towns prosper, and from these the large trading markets and financial centers gradually increase into flourishing cities and important marts to command commerce and grow in wealth. The grain farming counties of California are not the populous or the most flourishing counties of the State. These are to be found in the noted fruit raising, the wine-making and the raisin-producing counties of the interior. Santa Clara, Sacramento, Sonoma, Solano and Fresno are in proof of this; in contrast with the great grain producing counties of the Bay and the Sacramento, and of the valley of the San Joaquin.

The change of Fresno County from a grain producing county exclusively to the position she occupies of a principle raisin and considerable fruit producing county, is much attributable the extraordinary change in the condition of Fresno since 1880. At that time her population was only a little more than 9,000. It is now, according to the recent census, above 30,000—an increase of nearly 22,000 within the decade; an increase much beyond the leading two counties of the census district in which Fresno has place and far, very far beyond any other of the nine other counties in the district. In two of the counties in fact the decrease during the ten years is discouraging to contemplate.

But the prosperity and advancement of Fresno is not to be wholly attributed to this change in cultivation and crops.

The chief essential to this changed condition came through the material, blessed agency of water to supply the thirsty, parched soil. Irrigation was the figurative golden key by which the abundant treasures of the earth were brought forth. The Almighty Provider has furnished to the great valley of Fresno an amplitude of coursing, flowing water. Her four rivers, the Chowchilla, the Fresno, King's River and the San Joaquin, fresh and pure from their never-failing fountains in the perennial snows of the mighty Sierras, carried abundant streams thence through the country and onward to the Bay, which is a feeder and an arm of insatiable ocean. It was left for man to divert these waters to the uses of the soil. To the effete races of the Nile the God of Universe vouchsafes the annual overflow, which gives vitality to their needy lands But the race which dominates the world, and of all others of this race the people of America, and especially of this golden land of surpassing riches bedded in the untilled earth and wrought from their deposite by the energy of man, of greater riches wooed from the kindly soil by the industry and intelligence of his most favored race, are equal to whatever requirement that can be made upon their energy and skill to enable them to surmount every obstruction and utilize every opportunity to their own aggrandizement, and upon the people of Fresno themselves was devolved the arts and the means to supply their fruitful lands with the essential element to fructify the soil and bring the waters of the rivers to the nourishment of crops and their own enrichment. The carter that prayed to Jupiter at length aroused himself to the possible task, and alone and unaided lifted the clumsy vehicle out of the deep mire. The people of Fresno vainly prayed the State Legislature to aid them to the irrigation which their famishing lands needed. Upon the failure of these idle prayers the people made effort on their own account and triumphed, as they were bound to do. As the refreshing stream poured from the rock of Horeb as Moses struck with his rod, to relieve the thirsting Israelites, similarly did the generous waters of the rivers of Fresno pour into the deep ditches that were dug to receive them and to lead them to the eager lands upon the energetic methods of the people of Fresno who commanded that the ditches should be dug that the fructifying waters might flow thence on and for all times. To these gratifying efforts and the making of these irrigating ditches with their accompanying methods of supplying water to the lands, are mainly due, in man's sphere, the extraordinary prosperity and flourishing condition of Fresno and its increase of population and wealth and importance in the past ten years—now ranking, as Fresno does rank, the sixth county in the State, outside of San Francisco, and leading every county in the valley of the San Joaquin, except alone the county of that name, the oldest county of this entire section. By 1900, ten years further on, Fresno will number her population in six figures and her wealth and importance no man living can commensurately prophecy.

FRESNO ASSOCIATION AND TRACK.

The Best Racing Track in California—The Finest Grounds.

The Fresno Agricultural Association holding the Annual Fairs of State Agricultural District No. 21 at the Fair Grounds near Fresno City, is a joint stock company. It is composed of leading citizens of the county, with Dr. Lewis Leach as President, N. I. Baldwin, Secretary. Dr. Leach is a pioneer of Fresno county. In the early 50's he was the partner of Major James Savage, the famous Indian fighter, who was murdered at Campbell's ranch on King's river in 1853. Dr. Leach subsequently erected to his memory the monument which marks his resting place on the banks of Fresno river, near the spot where stood the trading station of Savage and Leach. Dr. Leach is also President of the Farmers' Bank of Fresno, one of the solid banking institutions of Fresno county and of Southern California. For nearly forty years he has been a constant resident of of Fresno, and identified with the interests, the growth and the destiny of that prospering county, among the foremost in every substantial enterprise and one of the sturdiest in his abiding faith in the great future of Fresno and of the central valley of the San Joaquin. In his time he has witnessed the planting of Fort Miller, the oldest military post in that region on the banks of the San Joaquin river, and of Millerton, the chief trading settlement and first county seat of Fresno prior to the building of the railroad and planting of Fresno City, to which the county seat was removed in 1874.

The Fresno Agricultural Grounds Company purchased the very eligible tract two and a half miles from Fresno City on which the buildings were erected and that tract laid out. The line of street cars which start from Hughes' Hotel near the Southern Pacific Railroad depot run irregularly between the city and the grounds. Rows of handsome shade trees line the roadway nearly the entire distance. The approach is by a broad avenue of ornamental trees to the great gateway, and thence to the commodious Pavilion and to the elegant Club House, the Grand Stand, and to the track by driveways and pedestrian paths gracefully diverging and smooth as those of a well kept park.

In less than half an hour the trip to the Fair grounds is made, with fine views of the surrounding fruit orchards, vineyards of wine and raisin grapes, native shade trees and magnificent landscapes extending in every direction to the distant mountain ranges. In all California are no more attractiva surroundings to delight the eye, no location better adapted to the purpose of husbandry, viticulture, breeding and the turf.

The tract is one hundred acres in extent, and is in every part as level nearly as a floor. The soil is a light and lively sandy loam, solid to wheel and springy to hoof, free from deep sand and dense dust in wettest and driest seasons. Abundant water is supplied by three large artesian wells and fifty wells of ordinary bore, which never fail in flow and volume. The track is one foot in excess of a mile three feet from the inside, and in its preparation, thorough meane were studied and applied. Upon the hard pan a few feet below the surface, sand was laid, and upon this quick loam was spread and worked in to ensure ease and elasticity, to guard against possible injury to horses in the severest trials of racing performance. It is said to be the best track in California for speed to the comfort and safety of the horse. In quality of soil it much resembles the old Union course on Long Island—the memorable scene of the feats of Eclipse and Sir Henry, of Fashion and Boston, and of Peytona and Fashion, many years agone. In appointments it is much superior to that famous old sporting ground, as the genius of the period surpasses the art of the early turfman in the management of racing grounds, and the many accessories in late days wrought to a degree that stamps it as perfection, with nothing beyond to devise or accomplish. The Fresno track is laid out after the best approved models, with clear starting way and first rate homestretch from the turn to the finish to enable judges and spectators to witness the concluding struggle for the mastery under the wire. From the straight of the homestretch to the judges' stand, there is an imperceptible decline of twelve inches, which assures utmost speed without possible injury, and heightens the excitement of the race. This is the only departure from complete level all the way around the track, which is maintained in thorough order in every season.

The Grand Stand is well placed, with shade during afternoons to the occupants, and the view of the track free from obstacle or obstruction. The structure is 130 feet in length, raised to two high stories, with comfortable seats and clear look to everyone, and its capacity is 3,000 grown persons—1,500 on each floor. At each front corner is a lofty tower, of hexagon form, projecting and constructed in trussel manner, so as not to obstruct the view of any in the main stand. On each tier floor is room for thirty persons, seated with comfort. In these are reserved places for press representatives. The entire structure is built with chief regard to strength and safety. The foundation, supports and walls and roofing are assuring against possible acoident, from the giving away of any part under the utmost preesure. The judge's stand and the box-like bow structure for the timers both need remodelling and improvement. The track appointments, for weighing, for trainers and grooms, riders and drivers and horses, for placing at the score, for announcing results, and all else, are quite complete. The fences, gatee and entrance to the track show the skill of a master hand in arrangement and manner.

Near the track, with fine views of it from the broad and extended balconies of the lower and upper stories, is the Club House, a capacious building, fully adapted to its uses and enjoyments, with commodious parlors elegantly furnished, members' rooms, offices and apartments, all appropriately fitted and furnished. The choice portion of the upper balcony is reserved for ladies and their escorts, and proper care is observed in admission to the building and balconies.

Within the tract are fields of alfalfa and nutritious grasses, choicest for pasturing, and these supply abundant feed during every month of the year. In the severest winters there is no trouble from inclement weather, and with the bounteous supply of water by artificial means, the perils of drouth are no more to be dreaded. Budd Doble, with his wide experience in such matters, selected Fresno Fair Grounds last winter for the care of his valuable horses, and those committed to his charge, and in the spring he started eastward with them all in prime condition. It was, too, on Freeno track, that Marvin reduced the record of Sunol to 2:13¾, and at the time he was in doubt of her ability to meet the issue because of the condition of the peerless filly of Palo Alto.

Nearer to the principal entrance of the Fair Ground is the Pavillion for agricultural and kindred exhibitions of the products of the farm, the orchard, the vineyard, of the skill and handicraft of the housewife, and the fair of the household, of the mechanical art, of everything which goes to make up the grand aggregate of the accustomed Annual Fair which attract multitudes from afar, and in the great holiday festival event of the year to the producers and residents of the locality. It is a large building, of unique architecture, a capacious octagon, with entrance to every side, and one side the equal of every other in the choice of place of exhibition and display. It rises to the equivalent of two lofty stories and a dome or cupola. The roofing is of corrugated iron and to that degree fireproof and preventive of rain pour or trickings. The lower floor is devoted to the more cumbersome exhibits, with the great central space held for visitors, and on occasions cleaned for dancing if required. The second floor is a kind of gallery for visitors and a place for the display of the delicate and attractive articles of the artifices and from the realm of femininity, paintings, feathers, flowers, needlework, etc. Above is the cupola, giving light to the graceful finish which it gives the structure from the outside view. The whole building is amply lighted with great windows above and below on every side. Adjacent are the sheds and stalls and pens, for farm animals of every kind; the farms and coops and "contraptions" for poultry, fowls, and every species of the domestic creation. In all the appointments of our Agricultural Fair, up to the advanced condition of the agriculturists of the country, the Fresno Fair Grounds are up to the best examples.

There is still more to add in reference to the excellence of the Grounds in another and kindred relation. The stables especially built for the accommodation of horses with their trainers, grooms, handlers, riders, drivers, and others, are superior to almost any others in the State, in plan, structure, furnishment, space, comfort, food and water, and other important accessions. The care and condition of the horse has evidently been the mindful study and consideration of the owners and managere of the Grounds. It is difficult to suggest improvement upon what has been done so very well.

Frank B Baldwin, the veteran turfman, is the Superintendent for the Company and manager of the fair, the track and grounds. He has successfully and for many years managed race tracks and superintended Agricultural Fairs and similar exhibitions in the States eastward—New York, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Illinois, and in California. He has visited England and Australia and is conversant with racing methods in each country. As a breeder and trainer of horses he ranks among the foremost of the American Turf, with Marvin and Doble, with Splan and Goldsmith, with Dennison and the chief breeders of trotters in New York and the West. Manager Baldwin planned and superintended the making of the track of the Fresno Company and the construction of the buildings, the ornamentation of the grounds, and the fashioning of all within. He was employed to superintend the track at Coronado Beach and arrange the order of the midsummer programme. He is master of his art.

The present Fair is the Fourth Annual Fair of the Fresno Agricultural Society, each one of which was a success, and the fair of this year the coming week has the promise of excelling any of its predecessors. It will add to the general interest on account of this being the year of the State election. It is moreover a year of singularly bountiful crops, ready markets, high prices, and lucrative sales. The whole State is in flourishing condition. Farmers and fruit-growers and vineyardists alike are prospering. Grain is commanding top figures, fruits of every kind are finding quicker purchase and better prices than in any previous year, wine grapes and wines are advancing, and the raisin crop has never been so lucrative or in such demand. Fresno has little to do with the hop product, but the counties of Northern California in which hops make an important figure in the yearly returns, and thriving upon the hop crop of this year, and as they receive fair proportion of the benefits which accrue to Fresno from her manifold productions different from theirs, in turn will Fresno surely reap fair share of the good which shall flow to them from their various products this year. It is the equation of fair distribution from out the common wealth.

It is Freeno's annual Fair. Other counties and other State Agricultural Districts have already had their appointed Faire or are yet to hold them. The great State Fair has but lately closed at Sacramento. To all of these Fresno has liberally contributed or will contribute. All the world over, in politics, in finance, in trade, in communities, everywhere and between all manner of bodies—except in the State Legislature and in love affairs—the motto goes, "You tickle me and I'll tickle you." Fresno has tickled the other counties and District Fairs to their good enjoyment. Her sister counties of the valley and hereelf could make little impression upon the Legislature in the earnest matter of irrigation through a series of years, but at last there came a smile of appreciation; and now at the Fourth Annual Fair of Fresno all of these valley counties, with Freeno in the lead, will example the order of the period toward reciprocity, and so tickle the welcomed visitors of other counties to the delightful entertainments of track and pavilion and grounds, that all will join in the general commendation and evermore vote for Fresno and the Valley and Irrigation to heart's content. Manager Baldwin will be on hand to receive them. Mr. Fresno will give them hearty greeting. The grand army of Irrigationists will give their comrades cordial entertainment. The Fair of Fresno will beam their manifestations of appreciation upon the faire t who may come from other sections.

FRESNO CITY.

Its Manifest Destiny—The Future Great City of Interior Southern California.

Fresno is the central county of the great San Joaquin Valley, the most fertile of the grand divieions of California, as the State is geographically apportioned. Fresno City is the pith and heart of Fresno county. Fresno County was before Fresno City, but it is nevertheless the fact that the distinguishment of Fresno, as an attractive, a growing, a flourishing, and a conepicuons county of California, dates from and is allied with the planting and the development of Fresno City. It is the illustration of the truism that the son is the father of the man. Fresno County was the creation of 1856. In its territory the county was as long and as broad as it is now. There were in it as many square miles and as many acres. There has been no change of soil since the first white man set foot within the domain of Fresno. There is change in conditions. The Fresno of trails and wide roadways, of sparse population and primitive methods, of a single trading post and a few hundreds of population to thousands of square miles of territory; the Fresno of a military post and an Indian reservation, the Fresno of large cattle ranches, of sheep pastures, and of hay raising. There was soil for grain, but no market for the product; there were no facilities of transportation beyond the prairie schooner and the pack train; travel was light and trade was occasional. Fresno was known in San Francisco, but much as the Spokane region in the Northwest was known or as Patagonia is now.

The Southern Pacific extended the railroad line down through the valley of the San Joaquin and planted stations. Within the broad strip of Fresno county was the geographical and trade centre of the vast territory between San Francisco and Los Angeles, directly upon the line. Fresno City marks the location. The seed of the embryo city was planted. Confidence is a plant of slow growth. Young settlements have precarious lives. Confidence once established there is no reason for apprehension. On the crest of the wave of advancement the place will surely be borne along or be borne under. The plant of Fresno was destined to permanance and promotion. For ten years the growth was slow and the promise poor. A radical change was needed, in products and in system. Population was the essential quantity; the means to its attractiveness of first importance. Cattle and sheep and hogs were not especial inducements. Grain as a sole product had more favored fields in the way of marketing. During the decade the material change came. Fresno ceased to be a region of only cattle and sheep and hogs. It continued to grow in importance as a grain producing county. It blossomed into the condition of the land of the vine and of fruits, and in these it has attained rank without rivalry; fame throughout the whole broad land.

Fresno City is the chief interior city of Southern California between Stockton and Los Angeles. As Fresno County is the central belt of San Joaquin Valley, Fresno City is the central point of the county, the principal market of the county and of the valley. From its plant of less than a hundred souls it has grown to a city of eleven thousand, and posesses the qualifications of a full-fledged city. It contains more population than all the other towns combined along the line of the railroad in the valley, and is every year more progressing in trade, in wealth, in population and importance. There is substantial reason for this. Fresno is the heart of the most luxuriant of the notable productive areas in California in the plants and products most lucrative to the producer with readiest command in markets at home an abroad. Orchards and vineyards are more profitable per acre than fields of grain, however prolific. They require less acre, less employed help, give better opportunity to the struggling cultivation and insure better recompense. The country immediately about Fresno is famous for its raisin culture. There is no exaggeration in the statement that, acre for acre and product for product, in no part of California—and therefore the continent can be safely challenged—is the compensation of the producer equally assured one year with another. The frugal family of moderate means secures a plot of ten acres, plants it in raisin grapes and fruit trees, and in a few years the neet egg of a bank account is put by, to surely increase by industry and thrift to the sufficiency to add other acres to the possession until enough is had to warrant a life-time occupation with increment of of plenty and assurance of comfortable wealth. Lands that were bought for a few dollars acquire a real worth of hundreds of dollars, rated as property pays interest on the investment, and this is justified by the value of the products of the soil as they are marketed.

All about Fresno City are seen the proofs of this gratifying growth. Since the era of Irrigation, Freeno has advanced as the water coursed and spread to enliven every foot of soil, to fructify every product. The flow of water is enduring; the crops can never fail; and every year the demand is expanding, the facilities of transportation are increasing. The markets are better established; the city which has a fertile and productive country surrounding it must inevitably prosper. It is as a bank with unfailing depositors. The riches of the contribution combine to advance it to the commanding position from which no earthly agency can remove it. This is the position of Fresno, the destined great city of interior Southern California.

The City of Fresno is in itself a marvel until its conditions are investigated and understood. The plant of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in 1873, with the pioneer mercantile houses of Louis Einstein and Kutner and Goldstein as foster brothers to its growth and aid, it has remained fixed, gradually improved, prospered, increased, spread, become noted, gained surpassing attractions among all the interior towns and cities of the State; and without a drawback to its progress it is now flourishing beyond the most sanguine expectations of its founder and promoters and steadfast friends. Louis Einstein and Kutner and Goldstein still continue faithful to the young city of their early enterprise. It has enriched these and they have not been unmindful of the obligations incident. The two houses have builded in the city and invested in the country about. Handsome blocks of brick are the evidences of their wealth and their energy, and other improvements attest their sagacity and public spirit.

Fresno City is built upon a plain, almost level in every direction. The railroad divides it in almost equal parts, running diagonally through the center. The streets are broad, and grand avenues extend out to the various colonies for miles. Figuratively, Fresno is the hub, from which radiate the grand avennes, which have no parallel in any other city of California for delightful drives and entrancing views of charming landscape of valley order, with the arts of cultivation to adorn the beauties and embellish the scenes of nature. These avenues—Orange, East, Cherry, Elm, Fig, Walnut, Fruit, Blackstone, Belmont, Grant, Ventura, and others less conspicuously known, are broad, well made and lined with trees and shrubbery, which afford shade and are pleasant to the eye. Elm avenue is a magnificent drive—one hundred feet wide, on either side planted with elms of healthful growth and dense foliage in the season. Similarly do Orange, Cherry, Fig, Walnut and Fruit avennes derive their nomenclature. The distinctive fruitage of the parallel lines of guarding trees to each broad avenue and pretty drive is the token of the avenue. Strange that there is no Pomegranate avenue, for there are hedges of this delicious fruit which line the way on almost every avenue and throughout the colonies which surround Fresno City. In the affluence of semi-tropical fruits and plants the pomegranate in Fresno seems to be omitted from its proper ratiug.

In all California is no equal to the Court House Square of Fresno. It is greater in area, more tastefully planted in trees of foliage and of beauty, and is in every feature more enchanting. The graceful, indigenous, deciduous trees, intermingled with the symmetrical exotic, the umbrella tree and the mulberry, the lithe poplars and the umbrageous oaks, with walks lined wholy of fig trees in full bearing, make the square by day a grateful retreat in the fullness of the sun, and at night the tall electric lights make it a scene of brilliancy, in which the lights of day and the shades of night appear as of enchantment. Throughout the city shade trees grace and beautify the walks and afford comfort to passers. There are many handsome dwellings, a number of stately houses and sumptnous mansions about the city—homes of comfort, palatial abodes. The system of naming the streets is particularly admirable. The founders of Fresno were intelligent and broad-minded. They embraced the State in the naming of the streets.

Each county has its representative in the nomenclature of the streets of Fresno, from the north to the south and from the Sierras to the Pacific. The heart of Fresno is faithful to its own section, as the streets of Mariposa, of Tulare, of Fresno, of Stanislaus, of Tuolumme, of Kern, of Inyo attest; but no section of the State is neglected. Transversely the letters of the alphabet are followed. Thus the memorizing of the streets of Fresno is an enduring lesson to the pupil of the primary schools and a liberal knowledge to the adult dweller. It is the combination of localities with letters, as the woof and warp of a well woven fabric.

In its business portion Fresno has to its credit the grandest structures of any interior city in the State. The Farmers Bank, of which Dr. Lewis Lesch, the pioneer and veteran, is President and John Reichman the Cashier; the Fresno National Bank, the First National Bank, the Loan and Savings Bank and the Bank of Central California, are grand edifices which would adorn San Franciscos. The Fisk building, Donoho, Emmons & Co., Griffith's building, Temple Bar, Garibaldi Block, Wiener & Co , and the Hughes Block are worthy of metropolitan placement. Barton's Opera House is i self metropolitan in size, in grandeur, in completeness.

The hotels of Fresno are a conspicuous feature. There is no better managed hostelry in California than the Grand Central Hotel, Fulton G. Berry the host, Fred Dexter the chief clerk. The Hughes with Thos. E. Hughes, the "Father of Fresno," the proprietor, is a grand hotel. The Fahey House, the Abingdon, and others, complete the list. Berry's Grand Central is the transient rendezvous, the chosen of the city people. It is a home as it is a hotel. The host is himself a host, and Fred Dexter is as worthy as he is popular. No traveler need carry a lunch if his journey is to Fresno. There is no city in California in which better meals or better refreshments are at call.

The Colonies about Fresno City are chief attractions of the place. These Colonies are the famous localities of the fruit orchards and the vineyards—of grapes for wines and for raisins. Central Colony was first formed. Since have come Washington, Fresno, Church, Scandinavian, and others. Of these it may be said that they surround Fresno with unfailing wealth of product. In these Colonies are the beautiful homes of Colonel William Forsyth, in whom California is honored by his fit appointment as Commissioner of the World's Fair at Chicago; of Robert Barton, the enterprising citizen who has built in Fresno City the grandest theatrical structure in California, the California theatre in San Francisco alone excepted; of T. C. White, a prominent citizen; of Theo. Kearney, of M. J. Church, of Emil Bretzner, and many others. Tracts in these Colonies command from $100 to $500 per acre. Some manage to live in comparative comfort and make a small saving every year upon ten acres, in raisin grapes and fruits—apricots, peaches, pears, figs, prunes and oranges. Many possess no more than twenty acres, and every year add to a snug bank account. The area of forty acres is considered a fair competency. Above that the rich expand to a quarter section, and this quantity, in vines and fruit trees, is assured wealth.

Fresno City is well equipped in the habiliments of a city A good fire department, with Chief Higgins, experienced and competent, guards the city from conflagration. Two steam engines, a chemical engine, with hose carriages and hooks and ladders, and an electric alarm system, constitute the safe protection. Fresno is well supplied with electric lights. The streets in the business part of the city are admirably Paved, with bituminous and asphaltum pavements, and sidewalks are of patent stone, smooth and clearly. It is the best paved and cleanliest city in California, San Francisco not excepted.

Since the system of irrigation has been brought to general usefulness, Fresno is in no lack of water, and it is of pure, healthful quality for household uses, for drinking and for every purpose. Broad, deep ditches, lead from the rivers into every Colony, into the city, all through the adjacent lands. It is a net work of flowing streams and revivifying conduits. Every acre is flooded or gently laved, as the occasion requires; and every household is amply supplied with the water of life. Fresno is amply furnished for protection in the extinguishment of fires. The rivers of Fresno county afford abundance for the cultivation of every acre.

The newspapers of Fresno merit special mention and commendation. In no interior city in the State, in no city of California of equal population, exist daily newspapers which are up to the high grade of the two daily newspapers of Fresno City. The Expositor is the oldest, owned and conducted by J. W. Ferguson, a veteran of the Press, and an estimable citizen of substantial worth. T. C. Judkins owns and conducts the Republican. He is a gentleman of lofty character and pure mold,able, judgmatical and conscientious These dailies honor Fresno and are well patronized. As the city will grow prosperous and great, they will become more and more influential and potential; for, without an honest and an adequate Press, no community can be fitly represented or commensurately thrive.

Fresno has more than the fair proportion of honored and distinguished citizens among the counties of California. Foremost in rank and worth and popularity is Dr. Chester Rowell. He is a pioneer resident, the most modest of Fresno's citizens in proportion to his real merit. He is beloved by all, from youth to age, and he deserves it. Devoted to the people—and he knows no bounds of township or country lines—he is faithful to every interest of the locality, of the State and of the Republic.

Of Fresno it may be said the promise is beyond human calculation. None comprehended California in the early period. The vast mental grasp of Webster was unequal to the study. Heroic Tom Benton, Senator of Missouri, the father of Jessie Fremont, who was the senator above all others of his rank in the knowledge and prescience of the Great West, never came to the understanding of the boundless greatness of this Pacific Coast, and of its golden territory—now proved to be richer in material products of the soil than it was or is in the deposits of precious metals. Gold lifted California to distingnishment in the world. Her products of soil have further elevated the State. The prospecting of the miners found only gold, and the earth was impoverished as it was dug out. It was the delving of the agricultnrist which discovered the greater and the nobler and perpetual worth of California. Wastes have bloomed and deserts have borne fruit more precious than gold or silver. The world is attracted to these shores. California is the cynosnre. Fresno is the interior city, and the country is the snrrounding region, which is destined to the most gratifying future. The prophecy cannot fail. It is predicted upon the unction of the soil which always yields the richest gifts to mankind.

Our Tennessee Letter.

GALLATIN, TENN., Sept. 16, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It was forty-six years ago this past summer that a little mare by imp Tranby (a son of the renowned English horse Blacklock) was mated to the imported horse Trustee, who was brought over from England in 1835. The Tranby mare was mated first to Mirsbeau, and the result was the great horse Alaric. In 1855 Tranby Anns, for that is what she was frequently called, was sent to the embrace of imp Trustee. and I may say right here that it was the result of that union that now, after forty-six years of remarksble changes and transformations on the American turf, gives me cause to pick up my pen and write this article. And, why not? Had not Tranby Anna been bred to Trustee, and Levity been the result, there could have been no Lightsome, and, consequently, there would have been a serious absence of Salvators, Luke Blackburns, Ecquadors, Volturnos, Elias Lawrences, and other horses of that ilk. After a prolonged silence of forty years, I now wield my pen to do honor to the greatest family of runners that the American turf has ever known, but if I were to confine this article wholly to the prepotency of Levity, some wide monthed fellow would angrily shout, "Chestnuts!" and he would be justified in doing so. Who is it, no matter how ignorant of the breeding of our greatest horses, does not know that a score of our best American horses trace directly to Levity? They are very few and far between. And who is it that does not know that Lightsome, the incomparable daughter of Levity, was the dam of Salina, Sprightly, Nevada, Crucifix and Gulnare, the first four being noted the country over as the "Four great producing sisters"? But who is it that knows for what a mere song the produce of Lightsome were sold by Mr. Alexander at Woodburn Farm? Very few. It would naturally be supposed that after Lightsome had produced Lexicon and Salina, the latter being the best three-year-old of her year—1871—that the produce of Lightsome would have commanded high prices. And then after Nevada came in 1869, and was in 1872 the best of her age, it would seem that Lightsome's colts would have been in great demand. Not so; they were always sold at paltry figures, and what a great contrast there is to be noticed if these mares are compared with others that were sold for high figures and failed to produce even a first-class selling plater.

I am indebted to Mr. Lucas Broadhead, the efficient manager of Woodburn Farm, and, whose racy pen is well known and much appreciated by turf readers, for the following prices obtained for the entire produce of Lightsome.

The following figures show what that produce of Lightsome brought:

1859, b f Sprightly, by Lexington—(sold when 4 years old)	$355
1860, b f Linda, by imp Scythicin (sold when 9 year old..... with foal)	330
1861, ch c Lexicon, by Lexington sold in 1863 for	360
1862, ch c Lively, by Ringgold, sold in 1864	170
1863 and 1864 foals died young
1865, Fadette, by Alexander's Abdallah (trotter)	—
1866, b f Crucifix, by Lexington, was sold to Dan Sweigert but.. bought back	—
1868, b f Salina, sold as a yearling	45
1869, b f Nevada, by Lexington, sold in 1870	380
1870, Emmett (hipped) sold for	100
1872, ch c Lightheels, sold for	325
1876, ch f Gulnare, by imp. Glen Athol	525

It will be seen that Lightsome produced eleven living foals nine of which were sold for $2,795. The four great brood mares, Salina, Crucifix, Nevada and Sprightly, produced more first-class race horses than have ever been produced by four fillies out of one dam.

Sprightly was the dam of Volurno, Elias Lawrence and Aretino, all great turf performers, and now give promise of becoming famous in the stud. Crucifix was the dam of St. Augustine, and Semper Felix (dam of Leonatus) (winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1883) and Semper Viva (dam of the speedy Fordham. Salina produced Danicheff and the great Salvator, whose performance is too well known to need further mention here. Nevada was the dam of the celebrated Luke Blackburn, Greenland, Bradford, Ecquador, etc.

Sprightly was for several years bred to trotting horses, and by producing her three great sons afterwards completely knock the theory of "mares will not produce after being bred to cold blooded horses" into a cocked hat. It was the same case with Lightsome who produced Fadette in 1875 to Alexander's Abdallah, a trotter, and afterwards produced Salina and Nevada, who were the best three year olds of their years, 1871 and 1872 respectively.

Fadette, by Alexander's Abdallah, was brought by Lightsome into fame in the trotting registers through the performance of her daughter Favonia, one of the gamest race mares upon the turf, and who has a record of 2:15. She was also the dam of Glenview, sire of Euclid, who took a record of 2:28.

Lightsome was undoubtedly one of the best and most prepotent mares ever known. Her fame is well known. Lightstone died at Woodburn Farm in December, 1879, and she has the distinction of being the greatest producing mare of the time. While she never produced as many winners as Belle Knight, Kathleen and Mariposa, there is no other mare more productive and the produce of her daughters have won so much money. The sons and daughters of Lightsome's daughters are now coming upon the turf, and they are following in the footsteps of their ancestors. It is a great family that needs to be preserved, and we may always expect to see star performers come from these blood lines.

In point of producing and prepotency Levity can have but one equal, if any. Black Sophia by Top Gallant, was the dam of Morgiana, Jerry, Fortuna, Parasol, 'Birmingham' Beeswing and Tom Teefe, all noted turf performers in their day in Tennessee, and through the produce of Black Sophia's four filly foals we have seen many of our star performers as Longitude, Fanny Malone, Jack Malone, Pat Malloy, Favor, Come to Taw, Isimony, Belle d'Or, Bombast, Bookmaker, Tennessee, Brooklyn, Tyrant, Vinegairette, Ferncliff, Elengarine, Bootjack, Penn P., Lord Murch, Ozark, etc., perpetuate these two great families. KENNESAW.

LIGHT WEIGHTS —In a recent number of the London Referee "Pendragon" discusses the light-weight question, incidentally throwing in some remarks anent short distance racing. His ideas are, as usual, pithy, and are very applicable to the present state of affairs here:

"By-and-bye the lowest racing weight will be 6 st. 7lb; in due course it will be 7 st., and then the best sort of racing men, who may or may not be owners, will wonder how it was it could ever have been as little as we have known it. When that time comes all of us may not be here to see, but whoever thinks he is likely to be left may as well note now, in case he requires the fact for future use, that no races will then be run, except for two-year-olds, at a less distance than seven furlongs. In all probability a mile will be the shortest permissable distance. If, as I expect they will do by then, they limit the length of two-year-old races to half a mile, why, so much the better. A range of no more than 3 st. 7lbs in handicaps—say from 7 st. to 10 st. 7 lb.—would make an immense amount of difference in the quality of our horses, though at first it might throw half of them out of training. As for the difference in the jockeys caused by the lift in the weights, why, it would at once abolish much of the trouble that exists now, and all the fat-headed admiration that shows such extremes of folly about present-day pigmies simply because they can sit on horses while they are galloping would be abolished with it. What a lot of really fine riders there must be who are kept out of the saddle simply because they cannot get down to the weights required by the existent wretchedly absurd system! When everybody was able to ride races with some degree of nous and ability, what would become of the vainglorious mannikins who are now so puffed up with pride, not because they can do what they have to do extremely well, but because they can do it better than the wretched brats and weaklings who as a rule have to oppose them. A friend of mine who travels the meetings, and whose lucubrations are read and enjoyed by thousands, was telling me about a pasty-faced abortion of a 'fashionable middle-weight' the other day, and, says he, 'I really do believe the brute has gone stark starking mad over the fulsome praise some writers are always giving him: my opinion is that he's a d—d poor rider.'"

OFFICERS OF THE FRESNO FAIR GROUNDS ASSOCIATION.

Tbe coming annual fair of the Fresno Fair Gronnds Association, to commence Monday, September 29th and close October 4th, will be the grandest occasion of the kind ever witnessed in the valley of the San Joaqnin—in the sports upon the track; in the displays at the pavilion; in the delights of the grounds. The Association is a company of prominent citizens, Dr. Lewis Leach, the veteran of Fresno and pioneer of the State, is President. Tbe vice-President is N. S. Straube, tbe owner of tbe principal breeding farm in Fresno County, the owner of the grand stallions Clovis, of Sultan line, and of Junio, the handsome son of Electioneer. Mr. Stranbe is in the lead of intelligent breeders in California, of trotters and roadsters. Mr. N. T. Baldwin is Secretary of the Association—tbe worthy son of a worthy sire.

The manager, Mr. F. B. Baldwin, is a veteran of the turf, known in tbe continents and in Anstralasia. He bred trotters and trained them in the days when Hiram Woodruff was tbe acknowledged master and authority of the trotting turf; when Alf. Conkling and George Spicer, Jake Somerindike and Jim Bevans, John Murphy and Pat Hunt, old Cale Weeks and John I. Snediker were alike turfmen, judges of trotters and famous patrons of the sports whicb improve horses and better men. Manager Baldwin has superintended gricultural fairs in half a dozsn States, and the pure "agricultural horse trot" is within the round of ripe experience. Within the present year he snpsrvised the patient work on the elegant track of Coronado Beach in San Diego. The Fresno track—Budd Doble's favorite—is Baldwin's own in design and finish. It is an exact mile, of most eligible soil for tbe foot of the racer and the trotter, and assures speed by its singular springiness of surfacs.

The Fair Ground buildings are admirably adapted. The Club House is an inviting structure, with its commanding balconies, broad and safe, to look out upon the track. The Grand Stand is constructed with especial care to safety and comfort and fine view of every portion of the course from start to finish.

The stand of the judges and timers was placed at Manager Baldwin's command, from his many years of expsrience and good judgment.

The fair will attract visitors. Fresno is itself a focus. Thousands will come to behold the valley of the richest fruits of earth—the country of the grape and of fruit, of figs and raisins and prunes. In the valley are the growths of the semi-tropical belt. In the distant mountains, snow-capped

N. I. BALDWIN, SECRETARY. F. B. BALDWIN, MANAGER.

S. N. STRAUBE, VICE-PRESIDENT.

There is a report current in the East that James Goldsmith will next year have a stable of running horses, and that in future he will discard tbe trotters. It hardly seems possible that tbe story can be trne, for Jimmie has been so successful this season tbat it would seems almost impossible for him to better his condition by making the change.

Sunol has never had a horse at her collar going with nearly the same speed throngh a race of heats. When she has had that test sbe may be prononnced npon as a race mare, says the Newark Sunday Call. The Call man had better hunt up the records before making any more such statements.

Elector, owned by Mr. Richards of Grayson, is fast making a name for himself, as his colts are of a very high order. Mr. Jeff Fruit of Merced has a yearling tbat for good looks is bard to beat, and he shows all the indications of having lots of speed.

I asked Mr. Salisbnry the other day if it was trne that he has sent $80,000 to Lexington, Ky., for the purpose of purchasing first-class broodmares; langbingly he replied that he never had any such intention, but that probably the rumor started from the fact that a friend of his, who was going to Kentucky for the purpose of bnying some well bred trotting mares, was anthorized by Mr. Salisbury to try and purchase the Director filly Evangeline. Tbat was all tbe foundation that there was for such a story's being started.

Andy McDowell is the only driver who has this year put two horses inside the 2:15 mark. Give Andy tbe goods and he is bound to get them there.

Ben. Hill, who is known on every track throughout the State, has evidently given up the sport of kings for a time at least, as by one of the San Diego papers I see that he has manufactured this ye ar 5,000 gallons of wine from grapes grown on his ranch.

In addition to being a copper king and many times a millionaire Marcus Daly of Montana who has come prominently before the horse world within the last two years on account of his enormons purchases, is taking a hand in the political arena and has been selected as the chairman of the democratic State Central Committee of that State.

John A. Goldsmitb has a little three-year-old filly by Sidney that can trot as fast as Sister V. For some reason best known to the master reinsman it was thought best not to start the precocious miss this yaar, bnt all things being well 1891 will see her introduced to the patrons of tbe turf.

Sometime next week John Mackey, Snperintendent of Rancho Del Paso will start back East for tbe purpose of bringing ont to this State the mighty king of the turf, Salvator, who will take his place among the other highly bred stallions on Mr. Haggin's famous farm.

in their grandeur, are the great trees which astonnd. As the dalliance of winter with mildest snmmer comes the humors of the plants and fruits of Fresno.

The fair grounds are near Fresno railroad depot—only two and a half miles from Hughes' Hotel. Berry's Grand Central Hotel is near. The street-car line runs every fifteen minntes from Hnghes' Hotel. The fare is only a dime. The ride is along a level roadway of shade and beauty. The scenery is picturesque; the enjoyment of the ride is realistic. Tbe Annnal Fair of Fresno of 1890 is not as California on Wheels, but it will be as the bosom of California decollete in her lnxuriance of fruits and flowers; as California snrpassing the world in horses of speed and mettle; as California represented by tbe hnb of Fresno to radiate its every spoke to every one of the encompassing felloes.

Well Spoken Of.

The Eureka Co. state that they are in receipt of the most flattering reports from all parts of the country, from parties nsing tbe "Eureka" Pregnator. It seems a settled fact that if the egg from tbe ovaries of the mare is in her womb at the time of service, and the "Eureka" Pregnator is used, conception surely follows, as the seed from the horse is then brought in direct contact witb the egg. A list of testimonials will soon be published.

C. M. Ballard of White River Junction, Vt., takes proper pride in the fact tbat he bred the dam of tbe great four-year-old trotter Margaret S. 2:12¼, and also her granddam. The dam of Margaret S. was by Ballard's Cassius M. Clay.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public that he will be prepared to meet his old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

Notes.

$12,000 has been refused for a son of Guy Wilkes named Guy Kohl. $20,000 is the price asked.

Number 11 of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide is to hand, and as usual is replete with information necessary to those who are interested in turf matters.

Superior 2:19¼, owned by the Du Bois Bros. of Denver, is being shaped up to go a fast mile. Some of the believers in Egbert blood think tbat Superior can show a mile just a little faster than Axtell's record.

Now the pacing war has commenced again, but tbis time it is away back East. L. A. Davies and others have begnn tbeir usual newspaper talk abont bow fast RoyWillkes is and now Ed. Geers offers to pace Hal Pointer against Roy Wilkes for $5,000 a side, equal weights. Geers weighs 165 ponnds, and he wants Roy Wilkes to pull the same load.

The press correspondents in the Philadelphia papers have, without an exception as far as I bave noticed, made sad complaints against Sunol and Palo Alto for what they term a fake exhibition. Tbere never was in tbe bistory of Philadelphia turf matters, two such heats ever trotted in the State in one day before, and as tbere was considerable wind blowing at the time of both trials, it was really remarkable that such low time was made by both of the trotters.

On next Wednesday morning Col. Irvin Ayres of the San Miguel Stock Farm will ship a carload of horses to Lexington, Kentucky, wbere they will be disposed of at Woodard's Great Combination Sale next month. Mr. Adams of Stockton also sends back two mares, which will be disposed of at the same time.

The old Nutwood trotting horse Wormwood with a record of 2:25 at that gait has lately shown a disposition to pace and Dr. Edwards of Fresno, wbo is handling him at the Association's gronnds there feels confident tbat next year he will have a pacer wbo will do credit to the coast circuit. I saw the old horse pace a mile better than 2:35, and he seems to take to that gait very kindly.

One of the innovations wbich will be carried out by the Breeders' Association is the giving of the Standard Breeders Stake on each day of tbeir meeting. There are any qnantity of small breedera throughout this State who should take advantage of the opportunity and try and place their horses in the 30 list, for such an occasion will not present itself for many a day to come. Already we hear of horses coming from all sections of the State to take advantage of this opportunity and it goes without saying that there will be quite a nnmber added to the list.

Well, what a dnmp there was of the talent at Sacramento in the free-for-all pacing race. In conversation with Mr. Salisbury, he states that the action of Cricket on tbat day is simply an enigma to him, as in all the hard fongbt races which she had back East, she has never once shown such a disposition to break as sbe did at the State Fair. The friends of Mr. Corey who were there from San Jose, won large snms out of the pool box, and there were also a few from Colnsa County who were benefited in the same manner.

The Oregon State Fair.

FIRST DAY.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 14.—The city of conventions and legislatures is again in holiday attire and ready to receive the pilgrims to the annual displays of the products of the state of Oregon. Whatever the census people may say, the thirtieth annual exhibition of the State Board of Agriculture gives evidence in its displays, in premiums, in attendance, of wonderful strides forward, which surpass expectations, say the Oregonian.

Time, 1:17½.
Auction pools—Raindrop $20, Lord Lonsdale $5. Mutuals paid $6,30.

Colonel Fitzmaurice sent them off at the first score, and Tompkins set the pace with daylight between him and Bybee's filly until the five-eighths, where Raindrop overhauled him, lapping him into the head of the homestretch. Here the race was over, and the colt came in easily, Lord Lonsdale a length and a half behind.

Second heat	.38	1:15	1.51	2:27½

The judges of the trot were Messrs. D. H. Looney, T. C. Davidson and T. G. Richmond; timers, S. J. Jones and Col. Fitzmaurice.

First heat—Auction pools: Hannibal, Jr., $20; Harry Howe, $15; Maud Knox, $4; J. S. C, $3. Mutuals paid $8.05.

J. S. C. was in no better form than usual at the score. Hannibal broke with his usual freedom and it took four scores to get them off, with Knox a length and a half behind. J. S. C. took the pole until the quarter, where he went to pieces and got a cinch on fourth place which he strengthened by coming in about fifty yards behind the distance flag. When J. S. C. went down Howe went to the front, trailed two lengths behind by Hannibal, Knox getting about that nerr to the grav. They finished in the same position, though Smith forced Howe out in a much faster pace than he made on the third quarter.

Second heat—Auction pools: Hannibal, Jr., $20; field, $15. Mutuals paid $16.50.

Howe was a little behind at the start, but kept the pole and set a pace so fast for Hanuibal that he appeared to want to rest himself by breaking. Thia he did three or four times, but paid for it by being set back to third place by the judges. He lapped the winner nearly all the way and finished second by half a length. Knox trotted a good honest heat, coming in thirty yards behind the others.

Third heat—Auction pools: Hannibal $10, field $20. Mutuals paid $5 75. Maud Knox had to be sent off behind again, as Captain Lowe could not get her to score up. The heat was uneventful, except for the fact that Hannibal, Jr., forced Howe to show faster speed than he had hitherto done, and took the lead between the quarter and the half. At the half mile post Howe crowded up so fast that Tongne's gray had to break, and Howe had the pole all the rest of the way to the head of the homestretch. Here they came in on even terms, and Smith put Hannibal down in good shape, though he had to break under the wire. Owing to breaking he was put back to third place.

SECOND DAY.

The talent received a severe tumble as Coloma was beaten in the initial event. The following are the summaries and results:

SUMMARY.

W. H. Whitmore's ch b Coloma, 5, by Joe Hooker, dam Callie Smart, 118 ..... Shaw 2
Auction pools, Coloma $20; Raindrop, $10.
Time, 1:53.

Three pools sold at the start with Raindrop a hot favorite, but her backers soon took a tumble and let the most money buy the first choice. Mutuals paid $10.50.

The judges were Messrs. Apperson, Richmond and Davidson. Tongne and DeLashmutt timed. Coloma set the pace, Raindrop lapping until at the five-eighth, where she forged ahead and began to run with a speed which must have astoniahed Shaw, for though both came down the homestretch, the best Whitmore's horse could do was to leave just daylight between him and Bybee's fast filly.

Second heat	.38½	1:16½	1:53	2:30½
Third heat	.39	1:17	1:55	2:32½

First heat—Anction pools (Bailey barred): Beulah $20, Lady Mac $5, Rockwood $5. Mutuals (two boxes) paid on Baily $5.95, on Lady Mac $16.25.

At the secoud score Sawyer nodded for the word three lengths behind, but they were sent back. They got off well on the third, with Beulah a little the worst of it. Smith kept Lady Mac at the pole, Ouida even up until at the quarter, where she went to pieces, giving Bailey her place at Lady Mac's side, Rockwood Jr. half a length behind, four lengths to Beulah, four to Ouida. Then Bailey took the pole. At the five-eighths Rockwood broke, but quickly recovered. Lady Mac continued into the head of the stretch even with Bailey, and finished second by only half a length. Beulah made a fine spurt down the homestretch, and was only a neck behind Rockwood at the wire. The grandstand was jubilant over Bailey's victory, and shouted: "Hurrah for Sawyer!"

Second heat—Anction pools: "Lady Mac $20, field $5. Mutuals paid on Bailey $5.05, Lady Mac $16.25.

It was a wonderfully good start for five horses, and at the quarter they were strung out a length behind each other—Bailey, Lady Mack, Rockwood, Beulah and Ouida. It was all between Lady Mac and Beulah, for Rockwood broke and went to pieces, getting last place until the homestretch, where he made a good finish ahead of Ouida, who was inside the flag, but was set back for running.

Third heat—Auction pools: Lady Mac $20, field $4. Mutuals paid on Lady Mac $7.75.

Bailey got off two lengths behind, but nobody borrowed any trouble about him, as he played with the leaders all the way around. Lady Mac made a bad break and lost her show for second place, as Woods put Beulah through in excellent form. The other two were some four lengths apart until the homestretch, where Lady Mac made a desperate effort to regain her second place, but in vain.

Time, 1.02.

Pool selling was very lively. Wade brought $10, Oregon Eclipse $10, field $20. Mutuals paid $19.

Eddie R. drew the pole, Herald second, Bob Wade third. Considerable time was consumed in scoring. Wade took the lead from the start, trailed by Oregon Eclipse, Eddie R. and Herald even a length behind. Herald quit on the homestretch, and while Eclipse and Wade come down nearly even, Foster's colt was a nose ahead at the finish. It was a wonderful finish, Wade and Oregon Eclipse being whipped for all that was in them. Epperson was taken off his horse dripping with sweat and was carried into the weigher's stand and carried ont again to his stall. He was overcome with the exertion of his finish. It was a great winning for Oregon, the winner being an Oregon bred horse, his mother being owned by Foster Bros., of Southern Oregon. Mr. Foster backed his colt heavily, as so also did the other owners It was a great overthrow also for the sports, who had given credence to a rumor that it had been fixed up for Eddie R. or Herald to win. The race proved to be for blood, however, and was won by the fastest horse. Wade was carrying a pretty heavy weight, 120 pounds, and had an uphill fight from the start, as Eddie R. and Oregon Eclipse both beat him out in the five-eighths dash at City View. He proved himself a great horse, as his close finish in the good time shows:

First heat—Anction pools: Kitty Ham $25, Alta $14, Lady Beach $11, field $10. Mutuals paid $19 15.

Howe drew the pole, J. S. C. next, then Kinney, then Kitty Ham. It did not take long for Kitty to show her superiority, while Howe, under Sawyer's honest hands, was with her until the homestretch, where, true to his previous record, he finished very badly, breaking all over the track. Woods drove Lady Beach a very clever race down the stretch, finishing a good third, and getting second place by the decision of the judges, who set Alta back for running, though she finished first under the wire. J. S. C. was fortunate enough to escape the distance flag.

Second heat—Anction pools: Kitty Ham $30, Lady Beach $6, Alta $6, field $6. Mutuals paid $29.

J. S. C. was sent off behind and didn't come anywhere near the leaders Enos drove the heat of his life, though Sawyer endeavored to wrest it from him, and might have done so, had it not been for Howe's customary bad break on the home stretch. The pace was entirely too fast for Kinney, and J. S. C., who were both distanced. Enos lost his hat on the last turn, but was glad enough to lose it as he won the heat. He said to Bill Matlock after the heat, "Didn't I tell you she could come in here in :23, if she got a fair start?"

The position in the last heat is Kitty Ham, Harry Howe, Lady Beach, Alta; places of horses—Ham, Beach, Alta, Howe, Kinney, J. I. C.

Third heat—Kitty Ham $20, field $5. Mutuals paid $14. Lady Beach had the best of the start, and Howe went to the rear by a bad break. Ham went to the front early and won in a jog, as the last quarter's time shows. Beach made a good finish and Alta disappointed her friends by her poor work.

Fourth heat—Auction pools: Kitty Ham $20, field $6. Mutuals paid $44.50. Ham held the pole until the three-eighth, where she went up badly and was relegated to fourth place, Howe taking the lead, Lady Beach next. Ham and Beach both ran badly. Beach finished first by two lengths, Howe second, and Kitty third by about the same distance. There was considerable discussion about how the judges would view the running of the mare, and when the decision was announced, there were expressions of dissatisfaction as well as approval.

Fifth heat—Anction pools: Kitty Ham $20, field $9. Mutuals paid $8 50. Kitty Ham showed her staying powers, for although her bad breaking set her back to four place from the quarter to the five eighths, she finished in excellent form. It looked like Alta's heat most of the way round, though Howe was right with her.

Fourth heat	.36½	1:12	1:59½	2:29½
Fifth heat	.37	1:18	1 50	2:27½

First heat—Auction pools: Mink $35, Mollie Cooper $15, Field $10. Mutuals paid $25 50.

Rosie C. drew the pole, St. James next, then Mink. Rosie got off behind so that Smith was enabled to get the pole with St. James, Mink second. At the quarter Captain Lowe's big gelding went to pieces and lost so much ground that Clancy set, he was no longer in the race. Mink now showed the way lapped by Mollie Cooper; but at the half Rosie began to move up, followed by Cooper. At the five-eighths there was daylight between Rosie and Cooper, Mink third by a length. Then Davis laid on the whip, but the pace appeared to be too fast for her. Mink also got mad at his inability to close up the gap and went under the wire on a bad break.

Second heat—Anction pools: Rosie C. $40. Mollie Cooper $10, Field $10. Mutuals paid $9 10.

The horses got off well together, but at a very slow pace. Mollie took the pole at the first turn and kept it until at the quarter Mink overhauled her. Then she broke badly and let Rosie C. in ahead of her. Pretty soon Mink was three lengths ahead, and the nearest Rosie could get to him was a short length. Clancy's hard driving down the homestretch was the object of considerable criticism, as it was thought he might have won the third heat had he not driven her so hard against a forlorn hope. Probably he wanted to save his position, fearing Mollie's fast finishes.

Third heat—Anction pools: Mink $20, Rosie C. $4, Mollie Cooper $4. Mutuals paid $8.25.

It was Mink's heat from start to finish. Mollie was way behind until at the five-eighths, where Rosie's bad behavior led her into second place.

Fourth heat—No auction pools. Mutuals paid $11.50.

Sawyer was put up behind Rosie C., and George Graves behind Mollie Cooper. The judges delivered quite a lecture to the new drivers about expecting them to beat Mink, and the grand stand stood in with them, testifying to their approval by uproarous cheers and applause. "This change is made," said Captain Anderson from the stand, "to try and get better time out of these horses by the new drivers. It is made in the interests of the society and for your satisfaction. Try and assist us in lowering the time by preserving perfect quiet." They obeyed the summons until after the finish, when "Honest John" came in on a slow jog four lengths ahead of the others Then the track was a scene of the wildest pandemonium. Hats flew into the air, everybody screamed at the top of their voice and pounded the seats of the grand stand. The heat was remarkable for Mink's stopping at the quarter. He had the pole until here, but when Sawyer came up alongside of him he went all to pieces, and virtually stopped still in the race. He was, without exaggeration, a good eighth of a mile behind when he settled down to work, and his finish to escape a distance was a phenomenal showing of speed. He finished a length ahead of Rosie C. After the heat, people crowded around Mollie Cooper to such an extent that it was with the greatest difficulty that Sawyer and his men unhitched their mare. He felt obliged to send for a marshal to keep the crowd away. Wain Williams, Tony Noltner's brother-in-law, responded, and stood guard over Mollie's stall while she was being walked about and afterwards being hitched up. "I could have shut them out," said Sawyer, "but I was afraid of driving the mare too hard."

Fifth heat—Anction pools: Mollie Cooper $40. Mink $20, Rosie C $4. Mutuals paid $12.

Mr. Barlow put Charley Smith up behind Mink. Mollie followed Mink's bad example of the previous heat, and went all to pieces at the first turn, and then again at the quarter, giving Mink first place, and then strengthening him in it. She braced up, however, and at the five-eighths, where Rosie was three lengths behind Mink, she passed her and was hard after the leader. Sawyer remembered how well she stood the whip, and brought it down on the homestretch, but it was no use; she was two far behind, and Mink was entirely too fast., finishing in better time than Mollie showed the previous heat. There is no doubt, however, that if she had not gone to pieces at the quarter, she would either have forced Mink out in better than 2:27, or have beaten him altogether. The only thing gained by the judges in taking Charley Clancy out from his sulkey was that he lost even third money to Barlow. Clancy was backing his mare heavily and has been in hard luck. It is a serious question if he is wholly without good grounds for complaint, as the new driver the judges put up only succeeded in getting her distanced, thus destroying her show for a place. It would have been no more than right for them to have waived the distance and given him third money. Mr. Barlow resents the imputation that he was interested in a job in the pace. "I had Smith in reserve," he said, "so that if I couldn't win it with Woods, I would put him up. If any man thinks that either of the mares can beat my horse, 3 in 5, they can win $1,000 of my money, for he is getting pretty near right now."

First heat—Anction pools: Canemah $20, Pandora $12. Mutuals paid $8.50. Canemah won the heat by her speedy work after her numerous breaks, especially on the homestretch.

Second heat—Auction pools: Canemah $20, Pandora $15. Mutuals paid $7.50. It was a close race throughout, Pandora winning by only half a length.

Third heat—There were no auction pools. Mutuals paid $7.25. Canemah's bad breaking lost the race to her. as Pandora increased her lead from one length at the quarter to four at the head of the homestretch, finishing cleverly in good time, seventy-five yards ahead of Canemah. The race was quite a victory for Mr. Tongue, as Pandora's work beats Cœur d'Alene's time at Tacoma this fall by half a second. Pandora has been laid up with a cut leg, and was not given mile better than three minutes before August 10th.

Next in order were Jim Miller, Bob Wade and Joe D. It took several scores to get them off, and Joe D., carrying the hopes of the field, forged to the front into the head of the stretch, but only by a slight advantage, for the others, except Jim Miller, were close after him. It was a hot finish for second place between Cyclone and Joe D., but Joe D.'s white face was a trifle behind Cyclone's. Miller was out of it and laid up for the next heat.

Second heat—No auction pools. Mutuals paid on Wade $5.75, and on Miller $7.75. The scoring was long and tedious. Wade was in his worst form and Cyclone didn't come up well. The flag finally fell, Colonel Fitzmaurice giving them an excellent start, Cyclone having slightly the worst of it, but made a great finish down the homestretch, his bad start, however, proving too much for him. Miller came up, true to expectations, and finished second by a neck, with Joe D. at his tail.

First heat —Auction pools, Bailey barred, Susie S. $25, Hannibal $18, field $5. Mutuals paid on Bailey $6.75, on Knox $47.50.

Knox drew the pole, then in order Bailey, Kinney, Susie, Hannibal Jr. Knox was slow in coming up to score and Hannibal did some high cavorting. Bailey and Susie were tapped off behind at the fourth score. Bailey broke and set an example which was followed with greater or less persistence by all the horses in the race. In the opinion of the judges, Kinney and Tongue's gray did most of it, and they were accordingly set back for running. Susie S. was last all the way around after Bailey had recovered from his first break. Kinney took the pole, lapped by Hannibal and then Maud Knox. Kinney began to run, then Bailey moved up past Knox and challenged Hannibal. This move Hannibal thought justified him in running past Kinney in Bailey's company. Before recovering, however, he fell back, and at the half the order was Bailey, Kinney, Hannibal, Knox and Susie S. It was difficult to keep track of the breaking of Hannibal, Kinney and the mares down the stretch. They were up and down with charming variety, finishing with Bailey first by two lengths, Kinney a nose ahead of Hannibal, Knox fourth by a length, Susie with her.

Second heat.—Anction pools, Bailey barred, Susie S. $15, Hannibal Jr. $7, field, $7. Mutuals paid on field $23, on Susie S. $9.

Kinney was withdrawn, as his sulky was broken. Then Misner got another, and wanted to come in after two scores, but the judges would not allow it. The three got off even, Bailey two lengths behind. Knox held the pole until at the eighth, where she broke, giving Susie the pole. Then Hannibal moved up, then Bailey. But Susie got a lead of two lengths by this time, and set a faster pace, apparently, than "Honest John" had calculated on. The best he could do was to finish second by a nose, Hannibal a half a length behind. Hannibal Jr., did some good work, closing up the gap, and keeping company with the leaders as they came down in a 2:27 gait. Knox was fourth by four lengths.

Third heat.—Auction pools, Bailey barred, Susie S., $5; field, $10. Mutuals paid on Bailey, $5 50; on Susie S., $8

Hannibal Jr., had the best of the start, but as Bailey took the pole on the first turn, Smith had to content himself with keeping company with Susie, a length and a half behind Bailey. At the half the order was Bailey, Susie, Hannibal and Knox about three lengths between each, and in this order they finished a fine heat, almost without a break, a length between them under the wire.

Fourth heat—No auction pools or mutuals on Bailey. Knox mutuals paid $35.

The heat was marked by Susie's bad breaking, causing her to lose to fourth place, and by Knox's hard and honest work by which she was enabled to finish second by two lengths, Hannibal breaking badly at her wheel. Woods had nothing to gain by hard driving as Susie's second place was already assured. Smith disappointed his friends by not putting the gray in ahead of either Susie or Knox, in the remarkably slow time. Mr. Tongue says Hannibal's quarters are sore.

TIME BY QUARTERS.

	Quarter.	Half.
First heat	52	1:45½
Second heat	49½	1:42

First heat—Colonel Fitzmaurice sent the Ham colts off at the half-mile post in good shape, and when they once got into line along the rail they kept the same positions throughout. Pender's colt neighed as he passed the stand, exciting the laughter of the crowd.

Second heat—The order was the same as before, except that J. R. Wintler made a harder fight and finished a good third.

Auction pools: Flora B. $50, Joe Cotton $65, Joe D. $57, Hercules $90, Lancer D. $105. Mutuals paid $75.

The race—It was a good start for all but Flora B., who acted in her usual bad form, and came near being left at the post. It was not long, however, before all were in a close bunch, and kept well together until they reached the head of the homestretch, when Hercules, Joseph Foster up, a full brother to Oregon Eclipse, went to the front in an entirely too fast pace for the rest.

TIME BY QUARTERS.

	Quarter	Half	Three-fourths	Mile.
First heat	43	1:25	2:06	2:48½
Second heat	46	1:31½	2:17	3:00

First heat—The colts got off at the first score and Electrify was soon out of the race. The work of Lady Daphne and Penelope was very fine, they lapping all the way into the homestretch, where Crawford put the whip on Daphne and brought her about three lengths ahead. The time of Daphne makes her the fourth 2 year old Altamont to beat 2:50, the other three being Benlah, Prisemont and Canemah. Crawford feels that he is in some degree paid for the disgrace put upon him at City View, when he was taken out of the sulky under the imputation of being drunk.

Second heat—Crawford had apparently driven his Altamont filly too hard in the first heat, for she acted very tired, and, after breaking several times, was so far behind that her speed on the homestretch did not avail her.

Auction pools—Raindrop $25, field $5. Mutuals paid $6.10 on Raindrop and $6 50 on Merritt for second place.

Tompkins showed the boys the way about five-eighths of the mile, Oceanica being about twenty yards behind from the quarter to the wire. Bybee's instructions to Eddie were to take the pole just after the quarter, but he couldn't do it, as Raindrop is not in the best of fix. He came near losing the race by reason of his saddle being poorly put on, for it was pretty nearly off when he finished, and he was standing in his stirrups.

TIME BY QUARTERS.

	Quarter.	Half.	Three-quarters.	Mile
First heal	35	1:11½	1:47¼	2:25¼
Second heat	36	1:11¾	1:47¼	2:22
Third heat	36½	1:14	1:51	2:28

First heat—Bailey $30, Kitty Ham $4, field $4. Mutuals paid on Bailey $6.50, on Palatina $15.

The horses all broke badly before the quarter, excepting Palatina, and when they settled down the order was: Palatina first by three lengths, Ham second, with Bailey a length behind, Lady Beach on a dead run out of sight in the rear. Then Sawyer began to move up. He passed Kitty at the half, and when Palatina slowed up at the three-quarters, from behind Bailey went two lengths ahead of her in about 100 yards of driving. Sawyer was able to come in three lengths ahead in a slow jog, two lengths ahead of Palatina, Kitty Ham's nose at her wheel.

Second heat—Action pools, Bailey barred, Ham $20. Palatina $16. Mutuals paid on Bailey $6.80, on Ham $7.25.

Kitty trotted the fastest heat of her life, and her steady work, with scarcely a break, reflects credit upon Smith's handling of her. She gave her friends, who always back her in every race for the good she has done them, no cause to complain. It has been given out solid that Palatina and Kitty were both to be driven to force Bailey out in a mark that would effectually bar him from all but the fastest classes hereafter, and Smith did it. However one may stand on the Altamont Ham controversy, no one who saw Kitty yesterday as she gamely stayed with Quimby's importation in the fastest heat ever trotted in Oregon can fail to admire the noble mare. Kitty is now in her prime, and will be a good mare for the remainder of the circuit. She finished a clever second in a wonderfully fast quarter—a 2:17 clip.

Of the winner it is perhaps enough to say that his remarkable performance, honest style of work, general good conduct and large earnings this season, demonstrate the wisdom of Mr. Quimby's system of purchasing horses. That is,—he buys good ones, and does not fritter his money away by loading down his stables with a lot of second class animals to be fed, doctored and cared for. In Prisemont. Phalmont, Boy, Bailey and Howe, he has a string of performers that are second to none among those of standard bred horses in the Pacific Northwest.

Third heat—No auction pools. Mutuals paid $6.45. The heat was uneventful, and was merely a matter of form, Bailey winning easily by a length in slow time.

Auction pools: Wade $30, field $8. Mutuals paid on Wade $5.75, and on Joe D. $6.25.

Wade ran nearly to the wire before McLaughlin found out that it was no start. Then they got off nicely, with Wade a little behind, but it took him only three jumps to get ahead and show the way to the wire, Joe D. second by a neck, Miller out of it.

Old Ryestraw was brought out of his stall to grace the occasion, and let the occupants of the grand stand look upon this hero of by gone days.

Little Ross Belt, who used to ride Oregon Eclipe, brought "Old Rye" up to the scoring as gaily as any kitten, and when the flag finally fell he took the lead and the others allowed him to finish winner by a length.

The grand stand went wild over his victory and cheered lustily for several minutes. Harry Bluff was second. He had run the half mile the other day, lapping Joe D. out in 49½.

There are many good two-year-olds in Kentucky this year, but it is a significant fact that the best one so far is a daughter of the California sire and game race-horse, Director, 2:17, says the Horse World. The first of these two-year-olds to claim attention this spring was Sternberg by Wilkes Boy 2:24½, and a little later Moonstone, the daughter of Sultan, 2:24, gave him a beating, and last week the daughter of Director disposed of both these colts, as well as a number of other good ones, trotting the third heart in 2:28¾. There will be some breeders in Kentucky, no doubt, that will wish they had patronized Director more than they did the Season he stood in their State, even though he was owned by a Californian. Not many sires have been represented on the turf by as good a two-year-old, three-year-old and four-year-old as Director has been, by Evangeline, Margaret S., and Direct. Another fact worth noting about the three great two-year-olds Kentucky has produced is that they all carry the blood of George Wilkes. Evangeline is by Director and out of a daughter of Red Wilkes; Sternberg is by Wilkes Boy, and Moonstone is by Sultan and out of a daughter of George Wilkes Truly, speed seems to come through every line that this great horse left, and his sons and daughters seem to be as prepotent as he was himself.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

SACRAMENTO, THURSDAY, SEPT. 18, 1890.

The park waa crowded all the morning, the eager apectators criticising the atock parade from a horaeman's atandpoint and evidently taking interest in it, while the cattle department was thronged by spectators. The main feature of the morning waa the presentation to Monroe Salisbury, Esq., Pleasanton, of a gold medal awarded to the Pleasanton Stock Farm for the beat average performances of the progeny of any stallion in the raoea the laat three State Fairs. Direct and Margaret S. have done so well last year and the previous years that the medal was awarded to Director's progeny, and the handeome gold trophy was presented to Mr. Salisbury by Director John Boggs in a very instructive and eloquent speech. The medal, which is a beautifnl piece of work, was produced by Messrs. Vanderslice and Co, at a cost of $200; has the inscription, to Director (No 1989), time, 2;17 in 1887, Direct 2:18¼ and Margaret S. 2:19½, for the best average performances of a sire and his progeny in races for trotting pursea for foals of 2, 3 and 4 year olde at the State Fairs of 1887-8-9. There are also three portraits of Director, Direct and Margaret S. in the center of the medal. Mr. Salisbury in his well known courteous manner thanked the Directors and they adjourned presumably to luncheon.

The afternoon programme had four racea and Directors La Rue, Green and Singletary officiated in the stand, while H. J. Agnew, F. C. De Long and L. J. Roee acted as timers. The lirat race on the programme, a trotting purse for named horaes, had five atarters, J. Cochran's Maud H. being made a big favorite, probably because Goldsmith was up behind her. After winning the first heat she waa second every time to Mattie P. who won in handy style and will probably go much better than 2:27¾ before spring. The 2:24 trot was a certainty for Sialer V. who haa not been beaten so far on the circuit. The Sacramento yearling colt stake came next, which is nnder the auspices of the Sacramento Colt Stake Aasociation, a time honored associatiou which in its day has had many cracks among its entries, Yolo Maid, Adonis, Creole and othera competing for the three year old pacing stake at their meeting. Three colts turned ont, the winner proving to be Wilber Field Smith's bay colt Kebir, by Alcazar from Yerba Santa by Santa Claus, etc. The colt, who is a very good looking youngster was bred by L. J. Rose and sold to W. F. Smith. He won is easy style, and judging from his square gait and resolute way of going is a valuable inveatment, aa he could have easily trotted much faster than 3:14.

The last race, the free for all pace, was a frightful throw down. Racing is proverbially nncertain, but never was it ao plainly evident as to-day when the pretty little Steinway mare, Cricket, who has done so well in the Eaat, broke on the first turn and then again in the back stretch to a standstill, and though she tiniahed well, another break half way down the stretch left her outside the flag according to the holder of the red, though many said she was in. The msre who had in the earlier part of the day paced the last half in 1:06 was sold in the pools at $200 to $56 for the field. After she was ont Almont Patchen won with ease the last heat in 2:28, ahowing what an awful exhibition Cricket would have made of them had she been left in it.

The first race a special for named horaes had five startera, Mattie P., Maud H, Rockwood, Laura Z and Whalebone Maud H driven by Goldsmith, was immediately made favorite at $50, to $34 for the field and $15 for Laura Z. A start was made the sixth time up with Whalebone off his feet and breaking again on the turn he had a prominent position in the rear all through. Rockwood and Mattie P went away together round the turn and Rockwood drew out up the back paaaing the quarter a length in front of Mattie P with Maud three lengtha back and Laura two further in the rear. Rockwood trotting steadily, passed the half three lengths in front of Msnd, four in front of the other pair. Goldsmith closed up on the upper turn being only a half a length behind at the head of the stretch with Laura four lengths back and Mattie a length further back. Maud went past Rockwood before the seven furlongs and the latter breaking just before the drawgate was closely heaten by Maud who finished a length in front, Laura Z six lengths back third, and Mattie P three lengths further behind fourth, Whalebone last. Time 2:32½. Mutuals paid $8.10

Second heat.—Maud H aold readily for $50 to $25 for the whole field. The word was given the second time up and all five went away well but Laura broke just before the turn and then Whalebone went but putting his foot down right gained by it. Maud and Rockwood had meanwhile been showing the way and at the quarter Maud was a length in front of Rockwood three lengths in front of Whalebone with Mattie P at his wheel and Laura fifteen lengths back. Whalebone running and trotting at intervals got up to Maud at the half and the mare breaking had two lengths lead to the turn when Maud again went up to him and deapite a handy break or two on Whalehoue's part the mare drew away from him turning into the stretch two lengtha in front of Mattie P, two lengtha ahead of Whalebone and Rockwood. Mattie came fast in the atretch and when Maud broke a furlong from home looked a sure winner but Goldsmith got his mare to work in good shape and beat her out ahead, the other three at the drawgate. The heat waa given to Mattie P. Time 2:27¾. Mntuals paid $11.50.

Third heat.—Pools now aold at a livelier rate, Maud $50, Mattie $40 and the field $25. After several attempts the word was given and Whalebone at once broke, and was ever after a moderate laat. Mattie and Rockwood set the pace to half way round the turn when Rockwood took a clear lead, passing the qnarter a length in front of Mattie, and Maud level five lengths in front of Laura. Mattie went right up to Rockwood at the half, and when he broke she took a two lengths lead round the upper turn, with Rockwood a length in front of Maud. Both closed up on Mattie on the turn, and at the head of the stretch Goldsmith, with Maud, was a short length behind after being carried out very wide. A pretty race took place all the way down the stretch, but Maud broke just before the drawgate, and Mattie won by two lengths, Maud a neck in front of Rockwood, same in advance of Laura, with Whalebone last. Time, 2:30¾ Mutuals paid $10.90

Fourth heat—Mattie P. was now made a red hot favorite at $100 to $25 for the whole field. Corey was taken out and Dustin put up behind Rockwood. The word was given the third time up, with Laura Z a length back. Mattie P. set the pace round the turn, passing the half a length and a half in front of Maud, who broke just before the quarter, and Rockwood a length back and three lengtha in front of Laura. Rockwood went past Maud before the three-eighths pole and she broke, but catching again was level with him at the half, two lengths behind Mattie, and getting a little the best of it round the turn, was only a length behind at the head of the stretch, with Rockwood and Laura close up. Mattie, however, proved the steadiest, and the others all breaking before the wire, she won handily by two lengths, Maud two lengths in front of Laura Z., three lengths ahead of Rockwood, and Whalebone a bad last. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid $8.75.

First heat—The 2:24 claaa had four startera: Mary Lon, Sister V., Wanda and Nona Y. Sister V. had ao readily beaten two of the quartette (Mary Lou and Wanda) all down the line, that $25 waa the best offer againat $200 for Sister. The word was given the fonrth time up. Mary Lon and Wanda went out in front for a furlong, when Mary Lou broke and Wanda led past the quarter, with Mary Lou and Sister second and third a length apart. Wanda kept going on, passing the half two lengtha in front of Sister, a length and a half in front of Mary Lou, five lengtha in front of Nona Y. Sister went up to Wanda on the turn, and at the head of the atretch they were abont level a length in front of Mary Lou, who broke, running for forty yards, but catching again, went on in hot pursuit, Sister, however, had the race well in hand, winning, pulling up by two lengths, Mary Lon getting up just in time to beat Wanda a head for aecond place, Nona a bad third. Time, 2:19¼. Mutuals paid $6.10.

Second heat—No pools aold. The third time up the word was given. Sister going very steadily, went round the turn a length in front and increased it two at the quarter, with Wanda second, a length and a half in front of Mary Lou, four lengths in advance of Nona Y. The order was unchanged all the way to the head of the atretch, Nona Y. running round the turn: Vioget made a hard drive down the etretch, but Wanda broke a furlong from home and swerved in behind Sister, who won readily by three lengtha, Mary Lou getting the place a head in front of Wanda, Nona Y., dead lame, a bad last. Time, 2:21¼. Mutuals paid $8.95 on Mary Lou for place.

Third heat—McDowell drove Wanda at the owner's request. The word was given the second time up, with Wanda a length in front, and going fast she took the pole on the turn, passing the quarter two lengtha in front of Sister, three lengths ahead of Lon. Wanda kept up the pace and retained her advantage until the upper turn, when Sister closed up, being only a length behind at the head of the atretch, and coming well ont from the pole, trotted clean away from Wanda and won, pulling up by two lengths, Mary Lou just beating Wanda, who tired badly, for the place, Nona just inside. Time, 2:21. Mutuals, none aold.

The latter, fresh from a phenomenal eastern campaign, was made an overwhelming favorite, readily bringing $200 to $40 for Almont Patchen and $6 for the field. Belle Button had the pole, Patchen next, then Cricket and Winslow on the outside. After half an hour's scoring the word was given with Cricket a length behind, and attempting to go through at the turn she broke all to piecea, and Button going on had four lengths lead of Patchen and Winelow at the quarter, with Cricket twenty lengtha back and breaking to a standatill at the qnarter. She waa fully two hundred yards behind when she caught. Button led three lengthe past the half, Patchen three lengths back, aame distance in front of Winslow. Patchen closed up on the turn, and passing Button on the stretch won easily by five lengths, Winslow second three lengths in front of Button. Cricket, who came very fast round the turn, broke again in the atretch and waa declared just outside the flag. Time, 2;16½. Mutuals paid $15 50.

Second heat—Poole sold rapidly at $100 for Patchen to $17 for the field. A start waa effected the third time up. Patchen going well went round the turn in front, and with Winslow breaking, increased his lead to five lengths at the qnarter, Button a length behind Winslow. RACING.

Judges—H. M. LaRue, C. Green and J. D. Carr. Starter—C. H. Milea.

The afternoon raoea attracted a larger crowd than had previonaly been seen on the grounda this year. Five running racee were on the programme, and though fielda were small, great intereat was taken in the sport. The first race, a mile for two year olds, with penalties and allowancea, saw L. J. Rose's Conrad defeat his two opponents, at 8 lbs. difference in the weights, and though the general crowd said Lodowic should have won, I think Conrad had a little in hand. The mile and a half for three-year-olda proved the certainty it was expected to be for L. U. Shippee's Take Notice, and the mile dash waa won by M. Storn's Marigold after a tight finish with Daisy D. The mile and a half, to every one's surpriae, was won by the outsider of the trio Nabeau, who after making all the running, won in a canter by half a dozen lengths. The last race turned ont to be another anrpriae aa Fanny F, after running behind all the way until a furlong from home, moved up and apparently could have gone away any moment, but Courtney sat still and just won in the last stride—admirable judgment as it turned out but a little too close for these times. C. H. Mills, the starter, wse a marked success, so much ao that it is presumable, considering the lack of even average talent in that direction, he will be given a chance further down the line.

Firat race. The California Annual Stake had only three atartera, L. J. Rose's brown colt Conrad who had a three pound penalty, while Lodowic and Mero had five pounds allowance. SATURDAY, SEPT. 20.

The closing day of the State Fair drew a tremendous crowd to the psrk in the esrly morning. The stock parade with all the winners decorated with ribbons attracted almost everyone in the city while before the afternoon programme was started a big crowd filled the stands and enclosures almost too full. The judges in the afternoon were H. M. La Rue, C. Green and J. Boggs. Timers, H. J. Agnew, F. C. De Long and W. Corbitt.

Three races and two walk overs were one the programme. The first race for the 2.35 class had six starters, but really lay between Frank M and Silss Skinner, the former winning in handy style. The pace was really a good thing for Almont Patchen who was only opposed by Rupee, the three-year old Wilkes pacer, and when Goldsmith fonnd out Patchen was too good for him he stopped driving in the stretch. Judge La Rue ordered him to drive the horse out faster in the last heat bnt Goldsmith gave up a furlong from home when he found it useless and showed his good judgment in doing so, for there is no advantage to be gained in punishing a young horse when it is palpable to even an ordinary observer that he is beaten. The last rsce of the day for named horses had four starters, Lathom Almont took the first heat, Clay Duke the second, and in the last heat whiob was trotted at 6:15 Clay Duke between trotting and running shut the others out and was given all the money. A more equitable decision would have been to either place him or call it no heat.

The four year old trotting stake, which originally had six nominations, was walked over for by Margsret S. who frightened away all her intended competitors and showed what a marvellous turn of speed she possesses by coming the last half in 1:04½. The three year old stake which also had six nominations had only one paid up hy Regal Wilkes who jogged to the upper turn and came down the stretch in 34 seconds.

First race, 2:35 class, hsd six starters and pools sold slowly at $30 Frank M., $15 Skinner and $5 for the field. After a long scoring and various tbreats by the judges a start was effected with Foxy V. two lengths behind. Frank M. at onoe went to the front and led round the turn hut broke before the quarter, and although he caught oleverly he lost by it and passed the quarter two lengths in front of Skinner with Ladywell at his wheel, Clara Z, two lengths behind, Una three lengths further baok and Foxy five lengths in the rear. Frank M. and Skinner maintained their relative positions, while the others dropped further back and Foxy was soon out of it. Frank going very steadily was three lengths in front of Skinner on the upper turn with Ladywell twelve lengths behind and two lengths in front of Clara Z the same distance in front of Una Wilkes, twenty lengths in front of Foxy. Skinner was driven hard down the stretch, but could never catch Frank M. who won with a little in hand by a length, the third horse sixty yards back. Ladywell driven out beat Clara Z. a length for third place with Una Wilkes four lengths back and Foxy distanced. Time, 2:21. Mntuals paid $10 65.

Second heat—Pools sold Frank M $50 to $20 for the whole field. The word was given the third time up. Ladywell broke before the turn, and Una Wilkes on the tnrn, while Frank M, with Skinner on his wheel, cut out the work, passing the quarter a length apart, Clara Z three lengths back, and Una the same distance baok fourth, two lengths in front of Ladywell. Una Wilkes broke at the three-eighths pole and dropped back last, while Frank and Skinner gradnally drew away from the field, going round the upper turn a length apart, with Clara ten lengths back, eight lengths in front of Ladywell, with Una at her wheel. Clara broke in the stretch and dropped back last, while Skinner went right up to Frsnk and carried him off his feet 100 yards from home, and going on, won the heat by three lengths. Sixty yards back came Ladywell and Una, making a hard fight for third place, Una finishing a neck in front of Ladywell, both off their feet, and Clara three lengths back. Ladywell was given third place. Time, 2:22½. Mutuals paid $9.95

Third heat—Frank M still sold favorite, bringing $25 to $20 for the whole field. The word was given after half a dozen attempts. Una Wilkes broke jnst before leaving the stretch, and Clara broke immediately after. Skinner on the ineide had a little the best of Frank round the turn and paesed the qnarter with Frank at his wheel, and Ladywell three lengths back, seven in front of Clara Z, three lengths ahead of Una Wilkes. Frank went up to Skinner's head at the half and carried him to a break, going round the npper turn five lengths in the lead, Skinner second, three lengths in front of Ladywell, an open length ahead of Clara, with Una last. The heat was never in doubt after this as Frank won in easy style, two lengths in front of Skinner, five lengths in advance of Ladywell, three lengths clear of Clara, tiring fast, and Una Wilkes pnlling np last, Time, 2:23¼. Mutuals paid $9.70.

Fourth heat—Pools now sold Frank M $20 to $9 for the field. The judges warned McGraw that they had heard he was only out for one heat and that if he did not do his best, etc., they would make it hot. The second time up the word was given. Una broke almost immediately, and Skinner broke just as he left the stretch, losing two lengths by it, and Frank M passed the qnarter two lengths in front of Lsdywell with Skinner at her wheel, Clara three lengths back, and Una four lengths in the rear. Skinner got to Ladywell's head at the hslf, three lengths behind Frank M, and Ladywell fell back on the turn, Skinner being three lengths behind Frank at the head of the stretch, with Ladywell two lengths behind Skinner. Frank went fsster down the stretch, winning easily by four lengths, Skinner four lengths in front of Ladywell, six lengths in advance of Una Wilkes, with Clara last. Time, 2:23¾. Mutuals paid $7:30.

The special pace had only two starters, Almont Patchen and the three-year-old Wilkes pacer, Rupee. Pools sold $14 Almont Patchen to $15 for Rupee. The word was given the second time up with Patchen half a length in front on the outside, and going away fast, he took the pole on the turn and opened a gap of six lengths at the quarter, and pacing easily and steadily, passed the half five lengths in front in 1:10. Rupee closed up on the turn, being two lengths behind at the head of the stretch, but could never hold Patchen, who won essily by two lengths. Time, 2:17¾. Mutuals paid $6.90.

Second heat—Pools sold slowly at $70 for Patchen to $10 for Rupee. The word was given the third time np snd Patchen going fast opened out a gap of five lengths at the quarter, snd going very steadily retsined his advantage past the half in 1:07, and though Rupee got to within three lengths at the head of the stretch, the race was never in doubt, Patchen winning, pulling up by five lengths. Time, 2:18½. Mutuals paid $6 35.

Third heat—No pools sold. Judge La Rue, after Margaret's phenomensl half, informed Goldsmith that they expected Rupee to go faster. The word wss given the first time up with Rupee hslf a length behind, and Patchen pacing rapidly had six lengths lead at the qnarter, and going easily all the way. Ajax was in front on the turn, but broke all to pieces; Almont trotting steadily passed the quarter three lengths in front of Alcona, and Clay Duke the same distance ahead of Ajax, oame broke, and lost his place just past the quarter. Almont, trotting steadily, passed the half four lengths in front of Clay Duke, with Alcona third and Ajax fourth, five lengths apart. SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

This was one of the most exciting games ever played between the above teams. The attendance though small, which was due to the races being a strong counter attraction, was highly appreciative and the many bits of good playing were warmly applauded. Goodenough opened the first inning by making a double to right field. Roberts was safe on Fudger's fumble and Bowman's short single advanced each a base. A passed ball permitted Goodenough to score and Roberts came home on Stockwell's error of McHale's fly. Two runs for Sacramento and all they secured in the game. The Stocktons were unable to do anything with Harper's delivery all through the game and scored their only run in the eighth, through misplays of the Senators. Wilson's first man up, took first on Harper's muff and Psache got to the same bag on Godar's low throw of his ground hit to catch Wilson at second. Perrott struck out but Holliday took his base on balls, filling the bases. Then Fogarty struck out. Selna was patient and reached the initial on balls forcing home Wilson. Stockwell made the third strike out for the inning and Wilson's was the only run for the Stocktons in the game. The fielding of both teams was splendid with the exception of the work of the short stops, Fudger and Daly. The very rough condition of the ground of their territory, however, fully explains their apparently ragged work. Charley Sweeney's umpiring was very satisfactory. The score.

OAKLAND vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19TH, 1890 AT OAKLAND.

Carsey and Lohman did very indifferent battery work in this game, and the Friscos immediately got the hang of the "Kids'" curves, making three singles and three sacrifices in the first inning, which together with a base on balls and Cantillian's poor throw, sent five men over the rubber and gave them a mighty lead. This rather disheartened the usually frisky Colonels, for they didn't get a single hit off Lookabaugh till the fourth, when Danny Sweeney banged one to center. They scored one run, however, in the fifth on Charley O'Neill's double to left, and sacrifices by McDonald and N. O'Neill. Another came in in the seventh on Dungan's hit, Everett's error and McDonald's double. Two more in the ninth was their limit, which were produced by Midget Sweeney's second hit, Everett's error, Dungan's sacrifice and safe hits by C. O'Neill, McDonald and Tip O'Neill. The Metropolitans added two runs to their five in each the fifth and the eighth, and so took the game easily. The game put up by the Friscos was of a pretty character, no less than thirteen of the Oaklands being retired on fly hits. Outside of the battery the Colonels also fielded well. The score;

SACRAMENSO vs. STOCKTON.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

Both teams backed up their pitchers well, the only player doing poor work being Daly, whose arm was in bad condition. The Senators tied the score in the second inning and neither side tallied again till the seventh, the Senators then making two runs, winning the game thereby. Hoffman's home run followed by singles of Goodenough and Roberts and Daly's sacrifice produced the winning runs. Both pitchers' work was effective except in the innings in which the runs were made. Hoffman's long hitting and Goodenough's stick work was a feature of the batting. Bowman and Armstrong caught very strongly not allowing a single base to be pilfered. Roberts' two put outs were magnificent catches and McHale throwing men out on hits was another interesting feature. Sweeney again umpiring splendidly. The score:

SAN FRANCISCOS vs. OAKLANDS.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 20TH, 1890 AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Carsey had his speed, his curves and his head with him in this game, and kept the slugging Friscos down to four single hits. On the other hand, Conghlin was hit freely, Dungan's triple in first inning scoring three men, while two more came home on Lohman's hit and errors of the infield. This was the same beginning as their opponents made the day previous, and they won the game in the same easy manner. Although there were several glaring errors made, and the score very one sided, there were also some very attractive and commendable work done by both teams. Ebright, on account of a sprained finger, played right, and Stevens poorly filled his position at third. The work of Cantillion, McDonald and Shea in the infield and the outfielding of Sweeney, Levy, Ebright and Hanley, was of a high order. Veach, Cantillion, Sweeney, Dungan, Lohman and N. O'Neill all hit hard and well. The score.

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, SEPT 20TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

A good attendance saw the Senators "do up" the Stocktons to the Queen's taste last Saturday. The Gas City boys found it impossible to do anything with Harper's delivery, while Perrott's curves were kindly taken to. The Senators put up a magnificent game in the field, the only errors of the side being made by Goodenough, and as the ball was a most difficult one to get, it was partially excusable. The Stocktons did not play their regular game, errors in the out and infield, proving costly. In the third inning, Armstrong was hit in the stomach by a foul tip and remained unconscious for ten minutes. Stockwell caught the game out in good shape. The hitting of the Sacramentos was especially heavy, Roberts and Goodenough again making long drives. McHale distinguished himself by his clever work in right field, and Hoffman, who took Daly's place, filled the position very acceptably. The other members of the Sacramento team put up their usual finished game. Sweeney's umpiring was very fine. The score:

OAKLANDS vs. SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 21ST, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Senators were picked as sure winners in this game, odds of 10 to 8 being freely laid on them, but Shaw was their stumbling block and the Colonels had an easy victory. The day was cold and cheerless, nevertheless, some five thousand people filled the stands and bleachers. Lohman was sick and unable to play, so Robinson secured the services of Dave Levy, late of the Portlands. Levy handled the erratic Shaw in splendid form. The cold weather had a bad effect on all the members of the Sacramento team and more particularly on Hoffman, whose work in the box was very poor. After being hit hard for seven innings, and when there was no possibility of the Senators winning the game, Manager Enright foolishly put in Harper, who was on the bench, to finish the game out. Harper was chilled through and consequently had no command of the ball. For the two innings in which he was in the box, he gave four men bases on balls, hit two others, and was touched out for a single, double and triple, altogether augmenting the Colonels score five runs and making their aggregate, thirteen. The Senators runs came in slowly and were principally made by the few errors credited the Oaklands. McDonald, Dungan and Dooley did some very clever work at the bat, while their general fielding was excellent. Prominent features were a magnificent catch of Goodenough's, of Levy's long fly in the third, Reitz's stop and throw of C. O'Neill's hard hit in the fifth and McHale's fast field and throw out to first of McDonald's seemingly safe hit. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 21ST, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Frisco's wagon tongues collided with sufficient force against Mike Kilroy's curves to entitle them to a representation in the score for fifteen hits of which one was a home run, another a triple, and three doubles, making a total of twenty-three bases which simmered down produced ten runs, of which six were earned. Lookabaugh, whose work "up country" has been generally clever, occupied the box for Finn's Metropolitans and gave a good account of himself. His support was at times very streaked, permitting the Gastown boys to make seven unearned runs. The Stocktons tied the score in the second and seventh innings, but heavy hitting in the eighth won the game for the Bay Club. Stevens Ebright, Lookabaugh, Veach, Everett, Fudger and Hoffman did some fearfully strong stick work, and the fielding game put up by Veach, Shea, Hanley, Wilson, Fogarty and Hoffman is worthy of special mention. OAKLANDS vs. STOCKTONS.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 25TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Stocktons seldom played a better game than this one, but stupid work at critical points lost it for them. With a lead of two to nothing at the beginning of the seventh inning, Vogt fell in a trance, and, through his blunders, gave the Colonels two runs. Had the Gas City boys hit in the ninth inning, they could have pulled out on top as they had two men on bases with no one out. Fudger and Wilson failed to hit the ball, however, and a good chance for scoring was lost. In the tenth a base on balls, Dooley's hit, followed by Pache'a error, Dungan'a sacrifice and Shaw'e single, gave the Oaklands two runs and the game. Carsey's work in the box was splendid, but his support at the receiving end was only fair. The Stocktons' runs came in by men being safe in the first and sixth innings on poor throws by McDonald and N. O'Neill, and the runners were batted home by safe hits. The fielding was generally clever, the work in the outfield being of a magnificent character. C. O'Neill, Hoffman, Wilson, Fogarty, N. O'Neill and Stockwell all made phenomenal catches, for which they were liberally applauded. Sweeney's judicious umpiring was also a feature. The score:

Professional Pick-Ups.

But you ought to have seen Daly!

Perrott and Armstrong are both on Stockton'e sick list.

There will he plenty of baseball in California this winter.

Ryan is once more playing with the Chicago Brotherhood Club.

Dave Levy handed Shaw's very uncertain delivery excellently last Sunday.

Stockwell's work at the bat and in the field shows a big falling off this season.

Dave Levy did not sign with the Colonels, but will finish the season out with the Stocktons.

Rube Levy still leads the race as the most popular player in the California League. Danny Sweeney is second.

Charley Tillson received an offer from the Sacramento team this week, but declined to accept it for business reasons.

Dick Nagle, well known here as a rising player, umpired the Fresno-Merced game last Sunday, and gave perfect satisfaction.

"Old man" Dallas, formerly with Stockton, played a great game at short for the Merceda recently, accepting eleven of twelve chances offered.

The Sporting News of this week contains an excellent likeness of "Pop" Swett, California prize catcher, now with the Boston Brotherhood team.

Stockton is well pleased with "Sonny Hoffman," whose general fielding, batting and base running is as good as that of any player in the team.

Mike DePangher will take a team to Fresno during fair week to play that team two games for a purse of Two Hundred Dollars each game.

Pitcher Bakely, of the Cleveland Brotherhood team, has been suspended for the rest of the season, without pay, for excessive indulgence in liquor.

Ed Crane, of the New Yorks, who was here with the Philadelphias in '88, will be one of the Comiskey party on their California-Mexico tour this winter.

Including last Sunday each team in the Pacific Northwest League had played 82 games, of which the Spokanes won 53, Tacoma 44, Seattle 42 and Portland 25.

Ten of the players now with the Boston (N L) team will in all probability be with the same team next season. Lou Hardie is not mentioned among those who are to be retained.

The Boston Players' League Club has cleared $25,000 over and above all expenses, including the fitting up of their grounds, which are valued at $30,000, a remarkable showing for the first year.

Old Jack Cullen alternates with Matt Stanley behind the bat for Fresno. When Cullen catches Stanley is seen on first base, and when the youngster is behind the bat "Uncle Jack" plays in the outfield.

The managers promise that next season the grounds at Haight St. will be second to none in the country. A number of much needed improvements will be made at an outlay of almost four thousand dollars.

In the game of life there is now and then one
We can properly credit with earning a run,
But time's fadeless tally sheets truthfully show
That the most of us score on somebody's wild throw.
—Chicago Post.

Last Sunday Dave Levy caught two games, one amateur and the other the professional game in the afternoon. A singular coincidence in each game, he had the same number of put outs and assists and the same fielding average.

George Miller has invented a new coaching gag. Hecker was caught between the bases at Brooklyn, and while the men were trying to run him down Miller stood on the lines and yelled: "Compromise, Heck! Compromise!" But Heck couldn't do it and was put out.

A team composed of the Chicago reporters recently defeated the Jenney and Graham team 2 to 1, making their eighth consecutive victory. The Frisco'a reporters recently contemplated forming a team to do battle with Dixey's Adonis nine, but on hearing of the strength of the theatrical ball tossers, were frightened out of playing.

Ed Austin, the base ball manager of the Fresno team, on his return from practicing the champions, yesterday, found that he had become the father of two twin boys. This is the original Fresno battery. The pitcher weighs four pounds and the catcher six. The charming mother as umpire is doing well, and Ed. is the happiest man in town.—Exchange.

It is said that over a thousand dollars changed hands on the result of the Santa Rosa—Vallejo game last Sunday. The majority of the bets were not made, however, till the Santa Rosas had a "cinch" of 7 to 0 on the game, when there was plenty of money offered on them. The Vallejos friends were "game" and took up several wagers at slight odds.

The Pacific North West League is full of ex-Inter State League players just at present. With the Portland Club is Breckenridge, of Burlington. Tacoma has Manassau, Fuller, Van Zant and Stephens, of Burlington; Wright of Evansville, and Strouthers and Fanning, of Davenport. Peeples, of Quincy; Turner, of Peoria, and Phillips, of Burlington, are with Spokane and Snyder, of Terre Haute; Pender, of Davenport; France, of Burlington, and Fisher, of Quincy, with Seattle.

Billy Cooney, who recently returned from the north, reports that base ball is still enjoying a big boom up there. Every town of any consequence has its ball teams, and some of the minor organizations are composed of very clever players. The Salem team, which was managed by Wm. Boggs, son of Senator Boggs, had the following well known players in its ranks: Leveque and Crosby, pitchers; Paul McCarthy, catcher; Morgan, first base; Cooney, second base; Booth, third base; Howard, short stop; Smith, left field; Leveque or Crosby center and Melleu right field. Next season it is proposed to organize a regular league to be known as the Willamette Valley League and which will include teams from Portland, Salem, Albany and McMinville or Corvallis.

Many people wonder why it is that the best fielder sometimes muffs a fly that seems right in his hands. The explanation is easy—they can't hold them. A ball struck in a certain way—Elmer Smith says it is with the end of the bat—while it rises in the air, has a twisting motion that is as hard to explain as as a curved ball. When it turns to come down, instead of falling sixteen feet the first second in answer to the power of gravity, it falls with the swiftness of a line hit, often tearing through the hands of a fielder. A few players have discovered the secret of hitting this kind of a ball in knocking "fungo" flies and have great sport in watching the fielders drop flies in practice. There is a difference in the flies knocked off the different pitches. The Kansas City outfielders say that flies hit while Swartzel is in the box come down harder than those of the other pitchers.—Kansas City Star.

THE STAR OF THE CLUB.

I'm the champion coach of the champion nine,
I've got ball playing down so fine
I can tell a ball from a strike or a foul,
And know just when to kick or growl.
I can rap a ball clean over the fence,
And will bet a dollar to fifteen cents
I can make a throw from home to second
In the quickest time that ever was reckoned.

In stealing bases I'm number one,
In sliding I'm surpassed by none;
As a twirler I'm a regular puzzle,
And I always catch without a muzzle.
For judging a ball I've got a great eye,
And you orter to see me get under a fly!
Nobody can get a home run on me,
For I pull down the ball as quick as can be.

I'm a daisy at short, I'm great on third,
And a dandy at center, I give you my word;
As a fielder my excellence is conceded,
I can place a hit just where it is needed.
I can write a book or umpire a game,
And first on the list you'll see my name;
I'm a dandy ball player all the time,
The champion slugger of the champion nine.

The Fresno Base Ball Team.

Fresno can certainly feel proud of her ball team. Manager Edward Austin's indefatigable efforts to have his city represented by a team of efficient and gentlemanly ball players, has been crowned to the fullest measure with success. But recently organized, the Fresnos can boast of twelve consecutive victories won from the strongest teams in the San Joaquin Valley.

Their grounds located within the city limits and being passed by two lines of street cars, are the finest in the State, excepting those of the California League cities. The grand stand is elegant and commodious, having a seating capacity for a thousand persons, while the "bleachers" will seat as many more. A number of private boxes are soon to be erected and plans are laid for the construction of a bicycle track which will encircle the field. Large and constantly increasing audiences have been attracted by the games, and the players work of the co-operative plan, all being well satisfied with the remuneration they receive.

The team is composed of the following players, nearly all of whom have made excellent reputations on many diamonds: Pitchers, Chas. Chase, Fred Pier; catchers, Matt Stanley, John Cullen; infielders, Robt. Thurman, Harry Utt, James Ward, Arthur Brittan, Matt Stanley; out fielders, J. E. Drum, Rodney Waggoner, J. Cullen, Guy and Hugh Dyer.

Charley or "Pokey" Chase, as he is familiarly called, scarcely needs an introduction to the base ball public of this State, as he has been seen in many championship games for the past few years with the Sacramento, Stockton and San Francisco teams. He is a most earnest worker, possesses great speed, has some very deceptive curves and lately has had good control of the ball, the lack of which was, when with the California League teams, his greatest drawback. Fred Pier commenced his base ball career with a prominent amateur team in Los Angeles, and shortly afterward pitched very successfully with the team representing that city. Otto Young, late of the Friscos and Stocktons, also twirled for the same team. Pier has speed, fine curves, and that most important requisite "a good head," and is a most promising twirler.

Old Jack Cullen or "Uncle Jack" is one of the "land marks" of the profession. He was known here way back in the seventies when he caught for the Eagles and Athletics. Cullen captains the Fresnos and is immensely popular with the "raisin growers." He is hitting the ball hard and with great frequency, and does most efficient work behind the bat. He occasionally plays in the field where his work is always of a high order. Young Matt Stanley, the "comer of them all," alternates behind the bat with Cullen, and when not in that position guards first base. Stanley is certainly one of the most promising young catchers in the business. He first attracted the attention of the Eastern ball players while playing with the Buckeyes at Central Park in 1886. He soon joined the famous Alcazar team, handling the speedy deliveries of Purcell and Longhran perfectly. After the disbandment of that team, he played with the Del Montes and Merceds, he and "Chief" Borchers being the battery for the latter team. Last year and the fore part of this season saw Stanley receiving the erratic delivery of "Speedy" McDonald with the E. T. Allens of the Amateur League. When Vogt, of the Stocktons, was disabled and the team without a capable catcher, Stanley caught Perrott, Kilroy and Hapeman in four games and did admirable work. His record was 14 put outs, 5 assists and 2 errors, giving him a very creditable percentage of 910, and although all three pitchers were new to him he had but one passed ball in the four games. Were it not for the fact that Dnane and Armstrong were then on their way to fulfill their engagements, Stanley would have been retained by the Stockton management. The young backstop's work while with the Fresnos has been excellent in every respect and he is among the foremost in the hitting. On and off the diamond Stanley is known by his quiet and gentlemanly disposition.

Harry Utt, who is stationed at second base has played with many interior teams, notably, the Stocktons, Marysvilles, Willows and Santa Rosas. Besides being a good infielder, he is a clever backstop and strong hitter. Utt is keeping up with the procession in all departments of the game. "Little Jimmie" Ward, late of the Tacomas, is the Fresnos shortstop. Ward is a clever infielder, covering lots of territory, and handles ground balls with perfect ease besides being a most accurate thrower. He is also a good "sticker" and his amusing sayings on the coaching lines has made him a warm favorite with everyone. Ward played in Kansas in '87, with Santa Fe, of the Territorial League of New Mexico, in '88, and with the Colorado State League in '89. Brittan, who was also released from Tacoma with Ward and Hoffman, led the third basemen of the Kansas League in both hitting and fielding in '88. He was with the champion Pueblo (Col) team last year, of which team Lookabaugh, Stevens and Buchan were also members. He is a brainy player, good bitter and base runner and a most desirable acquisition to the team.

"Deacon" Thurman, from Kansas, is also a fine infielder, and is the heaviest hitter in the team. Drum, the centerfielder, also hails from the "Cow-boy State," and is credited with being one of the speediest base runners in the country. He is also a splendid hitter and fast fielder. Rodney Waggoner, the "kid," is a Fresno boy who gives great promise. He only lacks experience, and thus far has done good reliable work in the field, on the paths and at the bat. Guy and Hugh Dyer are both college players and have demonstrated the fact that their speedy company is none too fast for them. Altogether, the team as at present constituted is one of the strongest in the State, and teams of the big league would have to play ball to defeat them. The Fresnos uniform is a pretty shade of navy blue and white trimmings, and is at once attractive and servicable.

Marriage Bells.

Last Wednesday afternoon in the presence of many well-wishing friends Mr. Edward J. Stapleton was united to Miss Libbie Ricker in marriage. The Rev. Father Haupts performed the beautiful and impressive ceremony of the Catholic Church, which took place at the residence of the brides parents in Sacramento. John J. Daly was the best man and Miss Minnie McGinnes was the bridesmaid.

The happy couple were the recipient of many handsome presents, and when departing on the train for San Francisco were deluged with showers of rice. The genial captain's bride is a charming, pretty and accomplished young lady just turned eighteen of a decided brunette type. Her "lord and master" is the jovial and intellectual first baseman and captain of the Sacramento team, and besides being a most clever exponent of the National game, is a gentleman of rare musical attainments and culture. Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton spent a short honeymoon in this city, but will enjoy a more extended one this winter in southern California, where the nobby Senators play a three months engagement.

The Amateurs.

The past week has shown no change in the relative positions of the teams, but there has been considerable alteration in the percentages. The Santa Rosas have now a firm lead, with the Reports second, seventy-one points behind. The Vallejos have dropped a little, but are still a very comfortable third, and the Will & Fincks and Burlingtons, whose work shows a marked improvement, are fourth and fifth, respectively. The Allens lost again, and still keep in last position in the race.

WILL & FINCKS vs. REPORTS.

Sunday, Sept. 21st, 1890, at San Francisco.

The Will & Fincks have some way disposed of the "hoodoo" that affectionately lingered aronnd them dnring the month of Augnst, and have commenced playing ball in their old time form. Their last two victories were from the "leaders," defeating the Santa Rosas on the 14th, and last Sunday capturing a good game from the Reports. Howell and Monet faced each other and both pitched high class ball, the errors made by both sides accounting for the runs. Green and Levy both gave their pitchers splendid snpport. In the fore part of the contest errors were frequent, but after the fonrth inning both teams steadied down and played ont an admirable game. The "Giants" scored two rnns in the first inning on hits by Tillson and Farrell, and two errors made by Sharp. The fourth was a disastrous inning tor the "Newsies," errors by Creamer, Thompson and Hearty and a base on balls allowing the Fincks two more tallies. They added another in the eighth, Deeney secnring his base on balls, took second on a passed ball, stole third and scored on Coleman's sacrifice. The Reports scored their first run in the third, McIntyre being safe on Farrell's poor throw of his hit of which a marvellons stop was made. Thompson hit safely to center and the hall passing Sullivan, McIntyre came home. In the next inning Sharp reached first on Coleman's muff of his high fly, took second on Deeney's error by allowing Levy's throw to pass him, and on Tillson's high throw to head him off at third, Sharp scampered home with the second and last rnn of his team. Tillson and Thompson led the hitting with two hits each, one of Tillson's being a double. Particnlar featnres were beautifnl catches made by Conway, Coleman and McIntyre, a phenomenal one hand pick up over second base and throw out by Thompson, and Dnnphy's, Tillson's and Delmas' clever infielding. SANTA ROSA vs VALLEJO.

Sunday, Sept 21st, 1890, at Santa Rosa.

Preceeded by the Mare Island Brass Band and followed by four hundred loyal constitnents, who had chartered a special train, the Vallejo baseball team paraded throngh the streets of Santa Rosa last Sunday. It was to be a game of games and one which the "Marines" were most anxious to take. The Santa Rosa boys were equally desirons of winning, as heretofore in their contests with the "Navy Yarders" they came off second best on four occasions. Neither side was imbned with confidence, and over anxionsness on the part of Grace's men, was probably the canse of the many errors accnmulated by their best players. But Callen pitched a masterly game, keeping the Vallejos down to a single hit, and to his clever work the Santa Rosa's victory is principally dne. Baltz was not hit hard but the "safeties" came at times when they did the most good and aided by five sacrifices, eight bases on balls, three men hit and two wild pitches together with six good sized errors of the Vallejo infield, easily allowed the Santa Rosan's to roll up nine runs, not one of which was earned. The Vallejo's had things nncomfortably warm for their opponents at the end of their sixth inning having made seven runs and almost tying the score. At this stage of the game, Kelly, the Santa Rosas first baseman, retired and Hnlen took his place. Arlett filled the vacancy caused by Hnlen's change of position, and filled it admirably, accepting, in a most finished manner, seven difficnlt chances in three innings. It is thought by many that his timely assistance materially lessened the Vallejo's chances of winning. Hnlen was the only player who did any hitting with the exception of Gimmel who sacrificed three times. McCarthy and Arlett did the only creditable fielding in the game. Pete Meegan umpired the game very satisfactorily, not a single decision calling forth a dissenting voice. The score:

MERCED vs. FRESNO.

Sunday, Sept. 21st 1890, at Merced.

Merced was again defeated by the invincible Fresnos on their own ground, last Snnday. The Fresnos took a big lead from the start, by hitting English, and assisted by the Merceds' errors. "Shadow" Pier pitched for the Fresnos, and did good work, keeping the hits made off him well scattered. He was rendered fine support from Matt Stanley at the receiving end, and the team generally. English was not hit any harder than Pier, but the Fresnos earned two runs off him by bunching their hits, while his teams errors occurred at disastrous moments. Stanley, Brittan, Chase, Thomma and Dallas did some very strong hitting, and the fielding of Dallas, Cullen, Utt, Dyer and English was most praiseworthy. The score.

PORT COSTA vs. SUISUN.

Sunday, Sept. 21st, 1890, at Suisun.

The above teams played a fine game last Sunday, in which the Port Costas were victories by reason of the Suisun's errors occuring at critical times. Both pitchers, Seymour and Tillman pitched fine ball, four hits only being made by each team, while they were very steady in the matter of bases on balls. Seymonr, however, was more effective than his opponent when men were on bases, striking out eight of the Snisuns. Larkin and Gibbs both handled their pitchers' delivery in good shape, the former throwing out seven men at bases. McInnis, the short stop af the viotors, carried off the honors of the day, making three safe hits for as many times up, and having two runs, two steals and a clean fielding record. The first base work of Traynor and O'Neill was also clever. A large crowd witnessed the game. The score:

Billy Cooney, late of the Portland and Salem (Or.) teams will probably finish the season with the Reports. There has been one very weak spot in that team,—first base, and Cooney will nndoubtedly he signed to play that position. Cooney is one of the heaviest hitters ever seen on a local diamond and is a famous all round player, base runner and coacher. He ought to be of great benefit to the "Newsies."

Amateur Short Hits.

The Reports have lost two straight.

The Santa Rosa's are now in the lead.

The "Yonng Giants" are again coming to the front.

Centerfielder Deane may soon be seen with the Sports.

Dick Nagle, of the Merceds, has not done any work of late with his team.

Joe Levegne is expected home shortly. He has been pitching magnificent ball for the Salems.

Fresno is well off for catchers, having four in the teame They are Cullen, Stanley, Ward and Utt.

Dave Levy's signing with the Colonels makes a big gap in an important position in the Will & Finck team.

Lonny Delmas' absence from the Yonng Giants is accounted for by an injury he sustained in a game on the 6th inst.

The next time the Vallejos play at Santa Rosa they will win the game, and then send for the band.—Vallejo Chronicle.

The "Young Giants" and "Railroaders" battle to-morrow at the Haight St. grounds for a purse of Two Hundred Dollars.

The new Burlingtons or Railrosders have made a great beginning. They have won the three games contested in thus far, hands down.

McClure, who plays right field for the Merceds, and who has umpired some games very satisfactorily, is editorially connected with an interior newspaper.

At the benefit game for Billy Kennedy, played at Oakland last Sunday, the Burlingtons defeated the Allens 9 to 1. A neat little sum was raised for the beneficiary.

Hen Stultz the "cracker jack", first baseman of the Santa Rosas has not been playing with the team lately, as he is "doing" the racing circuit. Hen is one of the best first baseman in the amateur ranks and his loss is greatly felt by his team.

What's the matter with some team making it an object for Frank Loughran to sign with them. Here is a pitcher who is capable of helping any of them "out of a hole," and whose services can be secnred at a reasonable figure. Look him up, you managers with losing teams.

Keller has his lines ont for Billy Cooney, and may possibly get him as Strand has been anxions to play first base for the Reports for some time, and with Strand on first the Report team will be complete. Ashman very sensibly does not favor changes in his team and so Cooney may have an opportunity of signing with the "Sports."

The E & O E team is soon to reorganize under the management of Mr. Dick Belcher, who was for several years Captain of the Amherst College team and who was seen early this season with the Tacomas. The battery will be Reed, a clever University pitcher and Billinga of the California Amateur League. Woolrich, Boyd, Hittell, Creely, Belcher, Beck and Campbell, who played with the team in the spring schedule will also be seen "in the ranks" again.

Pitcher Lohman has been released from the Allens. Manager Keller is on the lookout for a good twirler and may sign either Walcott or Maloney. Walcott pitched with the Burlington Rontes in the forepart of the season very successfully and Mahoney, though but recently a pitcher is one of the cleverest young ball players in the country. Mahony pitched a great game against the Rincons in the Native Sons games striking out fifteen and only nine hits were made off him by a team which numbered such hitters as Blakiston, Carroll, Finn, Fitzler, Philpot, et. al.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

A special correspondent of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN waa present at the athletic games which were held at Sacramento on the 17th inst., and we are able this week to pnblish a full and graphic discription of the results. In the cycling wnrld matters are hooming. The contests which are annonnced to oome off nnder the joint anspices of the Olympic Athletic Clnb and Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association are causing the Amateurs to remain in training, and good sport may be looked forward to during the winter months.

ATHLETICS AT SACRAMENTO.

Grand Running and a Large Audience.

Skillman and Garrison Distinguish Themselves.

Some months ago the idea occnrred to Walter A. Scott, Captain of the Olympic Club and President of the P. C. A. A. A., that an athletic tournament in conjunction with the State Fair at Sacramento, would prove an extra attraction for the viaitors at the capitol. His fertile brain at once begsn to plan for the carrying out of the project, and on Wednesday, September 17th, the tonrnament was held under the moat favorable auapices.

The athletic sports were snnounced to come off at 9 A. M., hut owing to a misunderstanding, the water-cart man wet the track on that morning as nsual, and in consequence when the athletea appeared at the Agricnltnral Park long before 9 o'clock, they were doomed to disappointment, for, instead of being dry and springy, the course was muddy and slow. After the trackmen had worked abont two honrs scraping and rolling, it was finally decided that the track was in fair condition, and at 10:30 A M. the firat event was called. When the games began there were several thousand ladies and children present at the park, which fact proved how high in the estimation of the fair aex the amateur sprinters stood. The lovers of the horse remained away nntil the afternoon, when their aport began. It waa a big mistake, in the first place, to announce the athletic sports for such an early hour, for many of the visiting competitors were badly incommoded by having to rise with the lark. The introdnction of the athletic programme was regarded as an experiment, and the resnlt of the trial waa that the majority of the visitora patronized the athletes in the morning, while hut a small crowd was present at the park in the afternoon. Captain Walter A. Scott, of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, was the general manager of the gamea, and owing to his exertiona, everything went off amoothly and in order. The directors of the fair were so pleaaed with the sports, that it is safe to predict that many more inducements will be offered the athletes to visit Sacramento next year. The track, one lap to the mile, was, despite the wetting it received in the morning, in fair condition, and the weather cloae and warm. There were several clubs represented, but the Olympic and Alpine Clnbs of San Francisco especially distinguished themselves. For the former clnb, Young, Foster and Cooley made a good showing, while Garrison, Cooke and Creagh, of the Alpine, each succeeded in winning a first prize Skillman, the imported crack runner, ran nnder the auspices of the Olympic Club, bnt his efforts were rather tame in compariaon with some of his previoua performances.

The one hundred yards run was very interesting owing to the large number of entries, nearly every one of whom atarted. The fifty yard rnn and the mile walk would not have been missed from the programme, the former on account of its shortness, the latter on account of the few starters. Next year'a list of events will of course be more varied, and there will be less chance for comments. The selection of the officers of the day was a good one, bnt we think the Alpine Clnb might have been honored by having some of its members appointed on the list of officials. Next to the Olympic, the Alpine is now the strongest athletic clnb on the Pacific coast, and the P. C. A. A. A. should not forget this fact when they again appoint officers to supervise the aporta held nnder their auspices. The following gentlemen were in charge of the gamea: Referee, W. Greer Harrison, O C.; Jndges, W. F. Bonton, O. C., E. A. Rix, O. C., H. H. Egbert; Timera, P. McIntyre, O. C., D. W. Donnelly, O C., John Elliot, O. C.; Starter, Capt. W. A. Scott, O C.; Jndge of walking, John Elliot, O. C; Inspectors, A. Kleinsorge, S. A. C., A. P. Booth, S. A. C., J. G. Mansfield, S. A. C., G. H. Clark, S A. C., Geo. McMullan, S. A. C.; Clerk of the oonrse, J. M. Hamilton; Assiatant clerks, J. J. Theobald, O. C., Cal Godefrey, S. A. C., A. L. Ripley, S, A. C; Marshalls, C. J. Cox, and assistants; Scorers, Ira A. Rohie, S. A. C., Morrill Hamilton, S A. C; Official reporters, T. L. Enright, S. A. C., Elwood Brnner, S. A. C.

At 10 30 A M. the day's aport began wlth a hurdle race of 120 yards, handicap. The followiog were the entries: F F Foster, O A C, penalized 12 yds; P M Wand, O A C, 4 yds; H C Cassidy, A A A C, 4 yds; A Cooke, A A A C, 0 yds, and J Campbell, L A C, 0 yds. This was a very exciting race and all five men got over the timber in good ahape. The hurdles were 3ft 6in high. Foster, who is the coming champion, essily overcame his heavy handicap and won a fine race by abont five yarda, with Casidy secoud. Campbell got third place. Time, 20 3-5 secs. Casidy has a good stride, and with better practice might do well at this game. The coaat record is 18 3 5 seca., held by John Puroell, O A C. For the fifty yard run there were entered, 1st heat, A S Henderson, C A Jellineak and J C Kortick of the O A C, and J N Black of the G G A C. Henderson won in 5¾ seconds, Kortick second. The second heat had John W Flynn, Roy Gallagher, P M Wand and F G O'Kane of the O A C, and F E Holland of the Alpines. Wand won in 6 seconds, Gallagher second. The final heat waa csptured by Henderson in 5 7-8 secs, Gallagher second. This race was won from the scratch. Next came one of the most important events of the day on account of P D Skillman, late of the N Y A C, being one of the contestanta. It was a half mile scratch run The coast record is 2min, 5¾ secs, held by Walter A Scott, O A C. It was expected that the New Yorker would have broken thia record, but he failed to do so. The atarters were Clyde Frost, G C A C; R McArthur, O A C; P. D. Skillman, O A C; and H C Casidy, A A A C. Skillman won hands down in 2 min 8 secs, McArthur a fair aecond. Casidy gave up.

Not less than twenty five men were entered for the 100 yards handicap rnn which waa run off in five heats and a final. All except D A Cohen, A O C, R Lnttringea, A A A C, F F Foster, O A C, H Lnhenstein, S A C, A Bergmen, S A C, and W E Newhert, S A C, started.

The first heat had, J N Black, G C A C, 5 yards; J C Kortick, O A C, 2½ yards, F G O Kane, O A C, 3 yards; C B Vanderbilt, S A C, 5 yards; Kortich won in 11 seconds. The second heat brought out A S Henderson, O A C, scratch; J F McDonald, O A C, 6 yards; A M King, A A A C, 5 yards, T W Measure, S A C, 4 yards. Henderson won nicely in 11¼ seconds. Roy Gallagher, O A C, scratch; Fred Holland, A A A C, 5 yards; H P Coleman, A A A C, 7 yards. Gallagher won in 11 aeca. Heat number four had P M Wand, O A C., 3 yards; C A Jallineak, O A C, 2 yards; J W Creagh, A A A C, 6 yards; Creagh won easily in 10½ seconds. The last heat had rhree starters, S V Winalow, O A C, 4 yards; G M Bishop, A A A C, 5 yards; John D Garrison, A A A C, 2 yards. Garrison breasted the tape first in 10½.

The final heat wss looked forward to with much inlerest and little Creagh won a magnificent rsce in 10½secs, Garrison being a good second. The coaat record is 10secs. H Coffin, O A C scratch and P N Gaffney, A A A C, scratch, A Cooke, A A A C, 20 secs; G W Armbruster, A A A C, 40seca, were down for the mile handicap walk hnt only Coffin and Cooke started. The coast record ia 7min 8½secs, held by J Jarvis, O A C. Cooke went off at a rattling pace and Coffin soon followed at a much faster gait. At the last quarter pole Coffin canght his man and held him nntil within ahont fifty yds. of the finish when he became auddenly weak from the heat, allowing Cooke to finish alone in 7min 47½secs with his handicap of 20secs. Cook did not walk at his best and Coffin waa also a little out of sorts for he conld not beat 7min 27½ secs. Cooke is an improving man and will probably not get such a big handicap in the next race. Both men walked fair and the judge was not called npon to act. The 220 yds. handicap rnn for members of the S A C had the following atarters: T W Measnre, scratch; C E Bauer, 5 yds; F Whitmore, 5yds; N H Hanlon, 5yds; E M Simp on, 7yds; Bauer won in 27½secs. Heat No. 2 had W E Newhert, 3yds; C B Vanderbilt, 3 yds; H Rubenstein, 5 yds; J Campbell, 5yds; F Welch, 6yds; A Bergman 7 yds. Campbell won in 28¼ seca. The finsl was won hy Bauer in 26½, Campbell second.

The prettiest contest ot the day was the 440-yard scratch race. Four of the best men on the coast were entered and it was hard to name the winner. S V Cassidy, O A C, the present champion, was one of the startera and many thought that he wonld have no trouble in winning. The five fol. lowing were entered: S V Cassidy, O A C; J. D Garrison, A A A C; Roy Gallagher, O A C; S V Winslow, O A C; J C Kortick, O A C. Kortick and Gallagher did not start. Garrison at once cnt ont the pace and won hands down amidst unbonnded applause in the fine time of 51¾ seconds. Casidy was a poor second. By winning this race Garrison proved himself to be the fastest quarter man on the Pacific Coast and by next year with proper training he will certainly do better than 50 seconds.

The next event was a 2:20 yard open handicap rnn. There were three heats as follows: 1st heat—C A Jellineak, O A C, six yards; S V Winslow, O A C, seven yards; J F McDonald, O A C, 10 yards; C W Meyer, A A A C, ten yards; T W Measnre, S A C, 8 yards; John W Creagh, A A A C, 10 yards. McDonald, Measure and Creagh did not start. Jelleneak won in 25¼, Meyer second.

Second heat—J C Kortick, O A C, 6 yards; F F Foster, O A C, 6 yards; F G O Kane, O A C, 6 yards; Roy Gallagher, O A C, scratch; H Rubenstein, S A C, 10 yards; H P Coleman, A A A C, 10 yards; G W Bishop, A A A C, 8 yards Kortick won in 25 seconds, Coleman second.

Third heat—S V Casady, O A C, scratch; P M Wand, O A C, 7 yards; H M Collins, O A C, 12 yards; D A Cohen, O A C, 10 yards; J D Garrison, A A A C, 5 yards; D J Barnert, O A C, 15 yards; M L Espinosa, O A C, 10 yards; C B Vanderbret, S A C, 9 yards; Clyde Frost, G C A C, 10 yards. Winslow won first in 25½ seconds, Casady second. The final heat was neatly won by J C Kortick, O A C in 23¾, Charley Jellineak, O A C second.

The following were entered for the two mile handicap run: W M Phelps, O A C, 85 sec; W H Toomey, O A C, 65 secs; A Cooke, A A A C, 65 secs; A Choynski, A A A C, 65 secs; S Choynski, A A A C, 65 secs; C W Meyer, A A A C, 65 secs; F W Welch, S A C, 65 secs; F Q Galvez, L A C 65 secs; H M Collins, O A C, 60 secs; J A Christie, O A C, 60 secs; E P Moody, A A A C, 60 secs; A Snow, A O C, 55 secs; M L Espinosa, O A C, 50 secs; F L Cooley, O A C, 45 secs; R McArthur, O A C, 40 secs; H C Casidy, A A A C, 35 secs; P D Skillman, O A C, scratch. There were ten starters Cooley who was in fine trim at once cut ont the pace, and in a very short while wss in first place, which position he held to the finish. Skillman did not run up to his best form and Casidy, who had trained hsrd for weeks previous fell to pieces. Both he and Skillman complained of the heat at the end of the race, the latter wss black in the face. Skillman took second prize after a grand struggle. Cooley's time was 10 min., 8 secs. Skillman ran the two miles in 10 min., 13 secs from scratch. This race ended the athletic games which were highly enjoyed by the large audience present. There wss some kicking over the handicap, but on the whole Capt Scott who is new in the business did very well. It can hardly be expected that he can at once do as well as George W Jordan, who served a long apprenticeship at the business Armbruster should have received at least 60 seconds start in the walk. Cassidy and Cooley should have been placed on the same mark in the two miles and Creagh should not have received snch big starts in the sprint events. There were the only handicaps with which fault could fairly be found.

The medals were given out after each event which is quite an innovation in athletics on the Pacific Coast. As this was the initial tournament at Sacramento it would be hardly fair to criticise the medals, hut it is to be hoped that the prizes which will be offered next year will be of greater valne. Great praise is dne Captain Walter A. Scott for the able and efficient manner in which he managed the gamea, and the athletes are more than lucky in having such a good and faithful worker at the head of the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association.

LAWN TENNIS.

The California Tennis Clnb will meet thia afternoon at its grounds, corner of Bnsh and Scott streets, for the purpose of discuasing the election of a new board of officers, the securing of new quartera and the amending of the constitntion. The regular ticket to be voted npon is as follows: H H Sherwood, R J Wooda, George N Gray, Ward McAllister Jr, W H Taylor Jr., Dee Linderman, Miss Morgan. No opposition ticket is spoken of as all the members selected are popnlar. The new board will probably elect the following officers: President, De l Linderman; Vice-President, Miss Morgan; Secretary, George V Gray; Treasurer, R J Woods.

A. Taylor left for the East last week and will he absent for some time.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

To-morrow morning the Alameda Cricket club will plsy a match gsme of baseball with the Razzle Dszzle Club. The game will be played at the West End grounds and will no doubt he closely contested as there are many good players on each side.

It is expected that the season will soon close as winter is fast approaching. In Spring a bay boom is expected when all the lnvers of cricket will be in better form than they were thia seeson.

IN THE SURF.

The bath-house keepers will soon have a chance to take a much needed rest after having worked hard for the past five nr six months. The warm and sunny days are becoming very scarce, and the bathers are already beginning to feel the influence of the winter's blast.

The Palace and Crystal baths which, dnring the warm weather, did only a fair amount of business, will soon he crowded again, and all through the winter the tanks will he filled with bathers both day and evening.

The end of the present month will practically close the season along the coast, although many persons continue to bathe at Monterey and Santa Cruz until November.

AT THE OARS.

Since the regslts everythiug has been quiet in rowing circlea. Some of the defeated oarsmen have been expressing their opinions as to the merits of the men hy whom they were beaten, but as the atmosphere is growing rather chilly, it is safe to presume that no challenge matchea will he made until the return of spring

The members of the South End Rowing Club are talking about getting up some club races next month.

The Alsmeda Boating Club is fast gaining in membership. The race for members, which took place in the vicinity of the club's quarters last Sunday afternoon, was witnessed by an unusually large crowd of people, who enjoyed the contest immensely. The event was a barge race that had been arranged for an elegant silver cup presented to the club by O. F. Westphal of Alameda. The two crews, with their weights, were as follows: Dennis (captain). 160 ponnds; Schroeder, 180; Fransne, 180; Hartman, 150; Master Schroeder (coxswain), 50. Jackson crew: Jackson, 180 ponnds; A. Schumacher, 160; Peter Brock, 175; Kramer, 155; Master Jackson (coxswain), 45. The latter crew were given the barge "Alameda," while the other took the barge "Kate." The start was a good one and the crews kept well together for a short distance, when the Jackson men led. At the turn, however, the Dennis crew were in the lead, and made the turn first. From this to the finishing point they held the lead and won easily by about ten lengths. They proved themselves to he much better than their opponents and were loudly cheered hy the spectators when they crossed the line The time waa 15 minutes and 30 seconds The distance, 2 miles. F. H. Kellogg acted aa starter, and W. J. Hamilton was time-keeper and referee.

To morrow there will be single scull races for members of the club. The club will offer a valuable prize in the near future for a sculling race which will be open to outsiders.

The Rowing Association, which now embraces all the rowing clubs around the bay, was very slow in its movements this season so far. It is to be hoped that the officers will take more real interest in rowing mattera next year, for there is lots of good material to be found, and any amount of suitsble courses hoth on this and the other side of the bay.

Several of the Lurline Club membera say they will resign unless the club orders some boats right away.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

C. Stnlz of the Lurline Club has resigned and is now proposed for membership in the Olympic Clnh.

The Bay District track is still in existence and the runnera practice on it every day. Without this historical training quarters the Alpine boys would he in a bad fix. It may be many months yet before the owners begin to tear up the track and the boys are sure of another seasons practice ont there.

We are in receipt of several Englisb sporting papers from our friend Patrick J. Sheedy of the Alpine Club who is now visiting his native land. He will remain in Ireland for a couple of years, and will he glad to hear from his friends in this city. His address is: Royal Marine Hotel, Kilkee, Co. Clare, Ireland.

On Thursday last Mr. James H. Gilhnly one of the newly appointed Directors of the Olympic Club was united in marriage to Miss Anna E Rice. Mr. Gilhuly has the best wishes of his clnb mates with whom he is very popular.

A box-yard handicap race will he held at the Olympic grounds to-morrow morinng. Handsome prizes will be given to the winners. Hereafter Captain Scott will try to have handicap races at the grounds every Sunday morning for prizes and his men will then take the psins to keep in good condition all the time. Moderate training will never hurt an athlete and when a man atarts in to train hard for a special race he will find the task less hard than if he allowed himself to get entirely ont of condition.

Captain Scott has appointed as his lieutenants John Elliott and D. W. Donnelly. The selection is a good one for both gentlemen are well up in all kinds of athletic sports and as neither one ever takes any part in competitions they will be able to give all their time to the coaching of the young members who represent the club on field days.

The prize exercises and gymnastic exhibition by the scholars and junior classes of the San Francisco Turn Verein attracted a large assemblage of the parents and friends of the children to Turn Verein Hall on Sunday last where the contests took place. The performances were far above the average and reflected much credit on the teachers. Many prizea were awarded. In the evening the senior and the junior classes gave interesting exhibitions on the horizontal and parallel bars.

The San Francisco Athletic Club held their eighth annual picnic and gamea at Badgers Park on Sunday last. Several hundred people witnessed the sporta which were very interesting. The following is a summary of the gamea with a list of the winners, each of whom were presented with handsome and valuable prizes: 100 yard rnn, C Malloy, 1st, W Snow, 2nd; 50 yard run for girls, Miss Knuth, 1st, Miss Caccia, 2nd; 220 yard run, C Tye, 1st, J Frainer, 2nd; Race for Ladies, Miss Caccia 1st, Miss Mulcahy, 2nd; 135 yard run, Tom Riley, 1st, W Davis, 2nd; Membera race, D Sullivan, 1st. William Cleary, 2nd; Race for married ladies, Mrs. Moore, 1st, Mrs. Jordan 2nd; Race for fat men, Mr. Ferg, 1st, D Breslin 2nd; 1 mile run for professionals, A J Leighton, 1st, W Ross, 2nd, T Kenny, 3d.

The Sylvia Park Stud.

This world-wide known breeding establishment was originally instituted by what was known as the New Zealand Stud and Pedigree Stock Co., and for years has been known as one of the greatest breeding farms in the known world. It requires but few words to introduce it to the notice of breeders either in this country or in England. There has never been such an establishment before, and the chances are that it will be many years before another like it is seen. It has finally been determined by the owners to dispose of all the stock at public sale, and the home of Musket will be broken up for all time. We have before us a catalogue of the animals that will be offered for sale, which includes the following well known horses:

The sires to be offered are four in number, viz., Nordenfeldt by Musket from Onyx; St. Leger (imp.) by Doncaster from Atlantis; Hotchkiss by Musket from Petroleuse; and Fusillade by Musket from Wai-i ti. As a racehorse, Nordenfeldt proved himself one of the best and most brilliant performers that the Australasian turf has brought to light; and his first season at the stud has shown that the Company made a most wise selection when they secured him at the close of his racing career from the late Hon. James White for 2,000 guineas. In his first season, Nordenfeldt got Medallion, Mary, King William and Cambria, who all proved themselves winners; and that his stock bear the stamp of the great Musket family may be gathered from the fact of one of his yearlings fetching 1,025 guineas, while as a two-year-old one of his sons (Gatling) was sold for 2,000 guineas. Anything more beautifully bred than St. Leger could not be wished for, and as the son of Doncaster and Atlantis has shown by the performances of his sons, St. Andrew and Town Moor, that he can beget winners, he is well worthy the attention of breeders. Hotchkiss is a young sire that may safely be expected to make a great name for himself. Being much overgrown he was never raced, and the wisdom of this course cannot be gainsaid. He is only five years old, stands close upon seventeen hands, and altogether is one of the finest looking horses that could be found anywhere. Fusillade is another young son of Musket that is well worthy of attention, for as a racehorse he proved himself equal to winning the New Zealand Cup and other races.

Among the forty-two mares to be offered are some of the most noteworthy animals that grace the Australian Stud Book, included in the list being Sylvia (dam of Goldsbrough and Martini-Henry), Mersey (dam of Carbine), Onyx (dam of Sardonyx and Nordenfeldt), My Idea (dam of Nelson), Nelly Moore (dam of Lochiel), Realisation (dam of Maxim), Florence McCarthy (dam of Tirailleur), Steppe (dam of Lady Norah and Russley), Tres Deuce (dam of Manton), Pearl Ash (dam of Pearl), Ericyna (dam of Mitrailleuse), Lovebird (dam of Leopold), and Radiance (dam of Quadrant).

The yearlings number twenty-four, and they are in every respect as fine looking a lot as have been sent up for sale in previous years. Amongst the most noteworthy of those to be offered are colts from Nelly Moore [dam of Lochiel], Florence McCarthy [dam of Tirailleur], My Idea [dam of Nelson], Steppe [dam of Russley and Lady Nora], and Ericyna [dam of Mitrailleuse], all of which have been sired by Nordenfeldt; and fillies from Tres Deuse [dam of Manton], Radiance [dam of Quadrant and Lady Mersey [sister to Carbine.]

The auction sale will take place during the first week week in January 1891, and intending purchasers should apply at once to Mr. Hugh Craig of the New Zealand Insurance Co., California St., for one of the catalogues, as unquestionably there has never been such a lot of animals offered at public vendue before.

The Washington Park Club.

The Association whose name is the caption of this article solicits through our advertising colums this week, the patronage of California horsemen for their annual summer meeting, which will begin on Saturday, June 20th, 1891. There will be in all twenty-five days' racing, and more than $100,000 will be given in added money to stakes and purses. Those which are advertised now consist of the Hyde Park Stake, the added money to which is $5,000, the Kenwood Stake $1,000, Lakeside Stakes $1,000, Drexel Stakes $1;000. In addition to this the Secretary also asks for entries to the American Derby to be run at their meeting in 1892, the added money to which alone will be $10,000, the society also adds $1000 to the Englewood Stakes and $1500 to the Sheridan Stakes. Entries to all of these events close on October 15th, 1890, and it may be worth the while of all breeders of thoroughbreds in this State to scan the advertisement closely and determine where it is to their best interests to make entries. The Washington Park Club stands to-day as the great racing association of the West, and its officers have always acted in the most liberal manner toward horsemen; it is for that reason that so many entries are usually made from this State, and there is no reason to belive but what more than ever will be made this year.

The Breeders' Association.

The time is not very far distant when the members of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will begin to gather at Napa for the purpose of showing to the world what California-bred horses can do. Correspondents writing from this State have seen fit to inform the readers of Eastern turf journals, that California is away behind this year in the matter of sensational performers, and still the same papers which publish such letters are making a great to-do over Keno F., Leopard Rose, Mambrino Maid, and others of a like quality. With the three whose names are herewith mentioned, we have every reason to feel assured that in such company Vic H., Frank M., Beaurey Mc, Silas Skinner, Sister V. and Homestake could fully hold their own, and without fear of contradiction we make the assertion that California has produced this year more good performers than any other three States in the Union, call them as you will, sensational or otherwise. When the great galaxy of talent meet at Napa on the 11th of next month, there will be such contests as has rarely been seen in this or any other State. The purses and stakes have all received liberal entries, and as far as is known, a large majority of the horses are in prime condition; it must be borne in mind, however, by those who have entries in all nomination stakes, that the last payments are due on October 1st, and on that day horses must be named. It is needless to go into a long description of the various events which will be trotted on the different days of the meeting, but those who attend can confidently rely on seeing some splendid sport.

On the first of October entries will close also for three purses lately offered by the association, the full conditions of which can be seen by reference to our advertising columns. It must also be borne in mind by those having entries in the stakes and purses, the last payments are due on October 6th, five days before the first advertised day of the meeting.

The Los Angeles Fall Meeting.

We desire to call the attention of all horsemen once more and for the last time to the fact that on October 1st the entries close for the fall meeting at Los Angeles. It is much to be regretted that the Southern Association has seen fit to claim dates which were taken by the Breeders, Association many months ago; however, it is too late now to rectify the matter, and it is to be hoped that both of the Associations will be financially successful. At Los Angeles there will be racing on October 14th to 18th inclusive, and the programme consists of trotting, pacing and running races, there being three and four events each day. At their August gathering grand results were attained, both in the character of the contests and in the financial outcome, and those who attended were loud in their praises of the efforts put forth by the Directors and Officers toward making them feel at home. The purses offered are large and should induce many who are not members of the Breeders' Association to visit the southern section at this particularly agreeable time of the year. The programme as arranged will be found in the advertising columns, to which we call the attention of all who may be interested.

The Poplar Grove Breeding Farm.

One of the best known breeders in the State is S. N. Straube, Esq., owner of the Poplar Grove Breeding Farm, situated sixteen miles south-east of Fresno, near the little town of Wildflower. Mr. Straube originally settled in the San Joaquin Valley in 1873, and in time started a sheep ranch, after a while becoming interested in breeding the better grades of cattle. Seeing the amount of money that was being invested in trotting stock, he after a time became interested in a number of good brood mares and then purchased three stallions, Clovis 4909, Apex 8935 and Pasha 2039. During last winter Mr. Straube disposed of Pasha and secured the well known Electioneer stallion, Junio, record 2:22. This stallion is known by every horseman throughout the State on account of his successful campaigning, and owing to the one sterling qualification, dead gameness, he can readily take rank with the best in the country. Junio is a dark mahogany bay horse about sixteen hands in height, weighs in the neighborhood of 1250 pounds, and as stated before, is by Electioneer dam by Granger, a son of imp. Hercules. It was extreme good luck that enabled Mr. Straube to purchase this magnificent horse, as Robert Steele, Esq., of Philadelphia, had opened up communications tending to his purchase, and there is no question but what he would have ultimately bought the horse, but for Mr. Straube's concluding negotiations in the middle of the season. This horse is bound to leave a good mark in Fresno County, as he has already served some of the best mares in that section of the State. Knowing full well that his present record is not a full measure of his speed, Mr. Straube has determined to try and reduce that record during the coming meeting at Fresno. About a week ago he was given his first work-out for the season, and showed a mile very handily in 2:23, proving from his actions that he still had more reserve speed left. During the past season he served between seventy and eighty mares, about twenty of which are the property of Mr. Straube. In disposition he cannot be excelled, and it is really a treat to see the big, handsome fellow either in his stall or on the track at work.

Clovis, who is now seven years old, was sired by Sultan (sire of the mighty Stamboul 2:12¼), his dam being Sweetbriar by Thorndale 2:22¼, sire of Edward Thorne 2:16¼ This fine Sultan stallion has been much sought after by those who own good mares, and the day is not far distant when we fully expect to see a large number of his get enter the 2:30 list.

Ever since Mr. Straube purchased this horse, he has had so much stallion service to perform that it was found impossible to train him for a record, but it is the owner's present intention after the Fresno Fair to have Clovis worked so that his speed may be developed. Last year he had in the neighborhood of seventy-five mares, and this year eighty-four were sent to his harem.

The third of Mr. Straube's stallions is Apex, a beautiful bay, seven years old, record 2:26, by Prompter 2305, dam Mary by Flaxtail, he by Pruden's Blue Bull. In conversation with Mr. Straube he informed us that next year the price for services for all of his stallions will be increased and the number of mares limited. This gentleman now owns in the neighborhood of eighty brood mares; the blood of Whipple's Hambletonian, Steinway, A. W. Richmond, Nephew and George M. Patchen, Jr., being prominent. With such desirable stallions and first-class brood mares, it may well be expected that extreme speed can and will be sired at the Poplar Grove Farm.

Mr. Straube has one hundred and sixty acres of land, most of which is laid out in alfalfa pastures, and as the land is all under irrigation there is green feed to be had from one year's end to the other.

The farm is well equipped in regard to barns, stables and track, and the weanlings and suckling foals are a sight to behold. It can safely be said that there is not a better looking lot of youngsters to be found anywhere than at this establishment. One thing that the beholder invariably notices is the magnificent legs which all of these little lads and lassies have. It would indeed be a hard matter to go on to any farm in the United States and find a more evenly turned lot of foals than are now in Mr. Straube's possession.

Mr. Straube is still a young man, and having started with the right foot forward, is sure to make a grand success of the business to which he now devotes his entire time. An excellent judge of horses himself, what he buys must be on individual merit in addition in addition to pedigrees, and those to be found at Poplar Grove Farm are the equal of any. The proprietor of this now noted establishment is an energetic, wide awake, level-headed business man and has tended greatly towards advertising Fresno as a great stock breeding center, for his name and his place is constantly being quoted all over the United States in journals that make first class stock a specialty. At present he has a large number of horses in training on the Fresno track, they being under the guiding hand of Matt. Dwyer, who was Chas. Marvin's under-study at Palo Alto for some years. Mr Dwyer is a conscientious, pain-staking mechanic, and it will indeed be surprising if we do not hear good news from the Straube stable during the coming meeting of the Fresno Association.

Glenbrook Park Races.

The Seventeenth Agricultural District held their Sixth Annual Fair during the past week at Glenbrook Park, Nevada Co. Owing to the unprecedented fall of snow, fruit and cereals were so backward that after fixing the date the Directors at the request of the agriculturists and fruit growers decided to postpone the fair until the week after the California State Fair, and consequently at the conclusion of the Sacramento Fair the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN representative took the train for Colfax en route for Nevada City, and leaving Colfax at 3:30 on the Nevada Co Narrow Gauge Railroad were soon among the towering pines of Nevada and in a very short space of time passed Grass Valley, aptly named, for in the fertile canyon in the hills almost every kind of luxuriant grass, native or other variety can be found, from the white and red clover, timothy and Italian rye grass so much thought of in England to the burr clover, alfalfa, mesquite blue grass and other well known American varieties. From Grass Valley to Nevada City is but a few miles and the countless orchards and vineyards all bore witness to the wonderful fertility of the soil.

The racing programme commenced on Tuesday, and though owing to the postponement and confliction with Reno and Stockton the entries were not as numerous as they usually are, yet owing to the energetic rustling of every one connected with the association, from President M. L. Marsh, Sec. J. G. Rolfe and the Directors down to every Nevada Co. man a goodly number of well known runners and trotters were enticed to the Park. The judges in the stand the first day were A. B. Driesbach, James Linden and I. Eddy. Timers G. F. Jacobs, M. C. Hogan and W. A. Finley. Two races were on the programme, a special trotting race and a three-quarter mile repeat for runners. The trot had three well known horses as starters, J. Cochrane's Maud H, who competed last week at the State Fair, Wilber Field Smith's Brigadier mare Balance All, and the local horse Sidney J. Maud H was well backed, but the local horse always held her safe and delighted the local talent by winning readily; the time was much better than it looks on paper for the track was cut up too much and was very heavy on the inside. The running was what is usually known as a pretty race, for Fanny F only won by a hare majority, but it was only by sheer strength she could be kept back and prevented from distancing the field. The stock department was well filled with Jerseys, Holsteins, Shorthorns, Ayrshires, and other popular breeds of cattle which were admirably housed in the Park for, despite the winter storm which broke in many of the structures, they have been repaired and renovated, being now in grand shape. When the first race was called up the attendance was only slight, but as the day went on it increased and gave every promise of better things for the next day.

First heat—Pools sold readily at $10 for Maud H. to $15 Sidney J, and $3 for Balance Al. After scoring up twice the word was given. Balance All broke at once and the other two trotted away together; two lengths in front of Balance round the turn, Maud drew away on the back stretch but the others closed up on the turn and Sidney took the lead, but breaking at the head of the stretch was passed by Balance and Maud head and head until a furlong from home, when both broke and Sidney took the lead winning cleverly by a length in front of Balance. Time, 2:37½. Mutuals paid $16.60.

Second heat—Sidney J. now sold choice for $10 to $8 for the other two as a field. Balance All scored up a little slow, and Sidney and Maud went out together. Maud on the outside had about half a length the best of it all the way round, but could never draw away, and leaving her feet at the draw gate, Sidney beat her out half a length, Balance a bad third. Time, 2:31. Mutuals $9.50.

Third heat—Pools sold slowly: Sidney $10 to the field $5. A start was soon made, and Maud took the pole before the turn, and going steadily was two lengths in front in the backstretch, and won easily, never headed, by two open lengths, Sidney J. second, ten lengths back. Time, 2:33½. Mutuals paid $7.20.

Fourth heat—Pools sold readily at $10 Sidney to $5 for the field. After coming up once, Smith nodded for the word when a length behind, and a start was made, Sidney being a good length in front of Maud, and going very steadily, took the pole on the turn, and going easy, won without an effort by a length and a half, Maud two lengths in front of Balance All. Time, 2:33. Mutuals paid $7.20.

The flag was dropped the second time up, Fannie F. going out in front had three quarters of a length advantage all the way to the head of the stretch when Fannie drew further away. WEDNESDAY.

Judges.—J. M. Walling, P. H. Paynton, and G. Fletcher. Timers.—Capt. J. A. Rapp, W. F. Finley, and George Jacobs.

Two races were again on the programme and a much better attendance patronized the Park. The first race, a special, had the three well known trotters, Sargent, Dinah, and Pasha, with the side wheeler George Wapple as starters. Sargent was made favorite and looked all over a winner, at the end of the third heat but tired away to nothing in the fourth and Pasha won the last three heats easily. The District two year old trot had three entries and Milton S by Elmo sire of Alfred S and a host of other well known performers won in the hollowest kind of style. The winner is a big lengthy colt of great promise and will be heard from ere many seasons on the big circuit.

First race for named horses had four starters, Wapple pacer, and three trotters, Dinah, Sargent and Pasha. After a little warming up, pools sold readily with Sargent choice $10, Pasha $6, Dinah $5, and Wapple $3. The word was given the second time up. Dinah left her feet at once, and Pasha followed suit, Wapple taking the lead dut breaking all to pieces Sargent passed the quarter three lengths in front pf Pasha, Dinah and Wapple, all of three of whom broke again and Sargent increased his lead to seven lengths at the half, and came into the stretch five lengths in front of Dinah, and Pasha with Wapple a bad last. Dinah left her feet and was passed by Pasho who finished three lengths behind Sargent with Dinah tws lengths further back and Wapple just inside. Time 2:22. Mutuals paid $10.10.

Second heat—Pools sold steadily at $10 for Sargent $5 for Pasha and $2 for the field. The word was given the first time up. Dinah again broke and Sargent led round the turn with Wapple at his wheel and Pasha three lengths back. Sargent increased his advantage to three lengths at the half, and had the same lead at the head of the stretch, but Wapple going very steadily got level fifty yards from the wire and won handily by a length, Pasha three lengths back third and Dinah close up fourth. Time, 2:28¼. Mutuals paid $23.75.

Third heat—Pools sold slowly at $10 for Sargent $5 for Pasha and $3 for the field. The word was given with Wapple tangled up. Sargent went away well, and with the others breaking before the quarter the grey had four lengths lead at the quarter, with Pasha two lengths in front of the other pair. Pasha broke again before the half, and Sargent going on very steadily won easily by three lengths, Pasha six lengths in front of Dinah four lengths in advance of Wapple. Time, 2:30¼. Mutuals paid $9.50.

Fourth heat—Sargent sold readily for $10 to $5 for the whole field. The word was given the first time up; Sargent, going steadily, went round the turn in front, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Pasha, the same distance in front of Dinah, seven lengths ahead of Wapple, who broke into a run and passed everything but Sargent before the half, and then catching, dropped back again, while Pasha, who broke when Wapple passed him, went round the turn six lengths behind Sargent, and when fairly in the stretch, Pasha came fast, and though he left his feet, he caught handily, and won the heat readily from Sargent, who tired a good deal, with Dinah third and Wapple fourth. Time, 2:30½. Mutuals paid $7 50.

Fifth heat—Only a few pools sold at $10 for Sargent to $9 for the field. The word was given the third time up, and all five went away well. Pasha broke before the turn, but catching handily, led into the backstretch with Wapple at his wheel, seven lengths in front of Sargent, three lengths in advance of Dinah, who broke all to pieces. The order was the same all the way to the homestretch, when Wapple broke, and Pasha going on, won the heat easily three lengths in front of Wapple; Sargent pulling up was beaten for third place by Smith. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid $7 10.

Sixth heat. Pools sold at $10 Pasha to $3 for the field.

The word was given the second time up, Pasha going out passed the quarter two lengths in front, but breaking was passed by Sargent with Wapple three lengths back. Pasha trotted steadily round the turn and coming into the stretch level soon went away winning the heat easily by seven lengths, Wapple second and Sargent pulling up third. Time, 2:32.

Injudicions feeding of a horse produces far more baneful results than does overwork. When a horse is constantly kept upon food as concentrated as he can bear there is necessarily a tendency to inflammation and consequent lameness, but lameness is more certainly produced with sudden changes from bulky to concentrated food, and that the day when his feet are to be most severely tried by concussion on a hard road. It would be safer to abuse his digestive organs one day and his feet another, than to abuse them both at the same time. Grass-fed horses can be lamed at any time without any extra work by simply giving them more corn and less chaff.

My huggy mare has continued to bolt her oats for some months past, and appears to be getting gradually worse. She is wearing away to a skeleton. She does not eat her hay very well, either. Kindly let me know through your columns what is best to do for her.

Answer.—Most probably her teeth want attending to. Examine them, and see if she has any of them decayed, or if there be sharp projections on them. If so, get a good veterinary dentist to attend to them.

M. G. W.

I have followed the advice given by you with regard to my colt some time ago. The lameness has all disappeared, but there is a slight enlargement left after the blister. What should I do to remove it?

Answer.—Hand-rub the part daily, and give walking exercise.

C. H.

I have a colt two months old with a rupture about the size of a hen-egg near the navel. What can I do to remove it?

Answer.—Let it alone. In young colts small ruptures generally disappear as they grow older.

H T.

Does it leave a large mark to have a shoe-boil cut out. I have a nice mare that has had a large one for more than a year. It has been opened four or five different times, and is now very hard and large. If it does not leave a large mark, I should like to get it away, but if it leaves a scar as large as itself, I don't see the good of cutting it out.

Answer.—If the skin round it be much thickened, it must be removed, and generally leaves a large scar; but if the skin be of the natural thickness and not involved, the scar will be scarcely perceptible.

T. C. W.

My horse has had a red lump on the inside corner of his left eye for three or four months. It began to appear, very small, with tears and matter running from the eye, and has gradually grown to the size of a walnut. It is very red and soft looking, and appears to grow out of the hook in the corner of the eye, not on the inside. Please say through your valuable paper if it can be removed?

Answer.—It can be removed by excision. You had better call in a qualified veterinary surgeon to remove it, as the eye is a delicate part for an inexperienced man to operate on.

M P.

I have a three-year-old colt that has a small splint on the off fore leg just below the knee. It lames him when he is exercised. I have applied the cold water from the hose to the part every day for a week, but it does not appear to do it any good. What is best to do for it?

Answer.—Apply a beniodide of mercury blister (one part of the mercury to eight of lard) to the part, and give him six or eight weeks' rest. Keep him on soft feed.

X.

Would you recommend breeding a mare with ringbone? She has been a real good one, but for the last year or so goes very sore in front. She has a high ring-bone on both fore feet, but it never appeared to trouble her except within the last year. She has gone in 2:40, and she has such grit in her that I should like to get a colt from her. Is it likely that he would get ringbone?

Answer.—Ringbone is hereditary almost invariably. Occasionally, however, there are exceptions to the rule, especially if the ringbone has been caused by a hurt of some kind.

D. G.

My horse keeps all the time stocked up in his legs, about the fetlock joints. Please advise me what is best to do for it in your next issue.

Answer.—Give him regular daily exercise, and apply wet bandages after coming in for a couple of hours. Hand rub the legs after removing the bandages.

Napa Wilkes—Continued.

"Corbin Bashaw is now in the stud at Quincy. He may never again go on the turf. But if he should not, he has in the honors he has already gained sufficiently distinguished himself as a race-horse. He has demonstrated on numerous fields the value of his pedigree, and has proven himself fully worthy of the confidence of all who may breed to him.

"As a show horse he has, in the roadster ring, been for years the most triumphant stallion in the West, and this for the excellent reason that as a combination of size, speed, beauty, excellence of points, and tractability in harness he is absolutely without an equal, and has few, if any, seconds. He never did any stud-work till 1882, and, therefore, his oldest colts are yearlings. Of these I have seen a few, of which Pattie R., out of Carrie R. by Champion, 807, is a fair specimen. This filly is the property of Mr Henry Ruff, one of the principal brewers of Quincy. She is one of the largest and handsomest animals of her age I have ever seen in Illinois or elsewhere. In color and shape she is a faithful copy of her sire, and shows in the pasture so much trot that no reasonable sum will buy her. She is one of the very few standard-bred fillies in this region of country, and is consequently worth keeping track of."

Mr. Baker also owns a very fine young stallion two years old called Blonde Wilkes, being by Gny Wilkes, dam Blonde by Irvington; second dam Huntress by Shenandoah. A prettier colt than this could not be desired and he will surely perpetnate the good name which his family already has.

There is also a bay stallion as yet unnamed, one year old by Bay Rose 9814, dam Beauty by Arthurton; second dam Black Bess by General McClellan; third dam Belle by Belmont.

Mr. Baker has gone into this business with the proper spirit and with a thorough understanding that it will take time to develope and to make known to the people of California what he really has. But a determination to succeed is so strongly implanted in him, that we expect it will be but a very few years before he will be recognized as one of the leading breeders of the State.

Illiers, 2275.

Among the many illustrations which are to be found in the present issue is one to which particular attention is called, as of his class he has the reputation of being one of the best in California; we refer to Dr. Prather's Illiers, 2275, as handsome a Norman stallion as can be found anywhere. Illiers was foaled in France in the year 1878 and was imported to the United States by J C Morrison of Pontiac Ill. In the course of time Mr. Skillman of Petaluma purchased the horse and brought him to this State in 1884, and he ultimately became the property of his present owner. In color he is an iron gray, standing about 16 hands high, his weight being a trifle over 1700 lbs. It can truly be said that he is a perfect draft horse in all that that implies; he stands very high headed, has plenty of room around the heart, with a powerful breast and coupling, is very long in the hips, and stands on a finely shaped set of heavy boned legs, and his feet are simply perfect. During the State Fair in 1889 a handsome Rushford wagon was offered as a premium for the stallion winning the walking match, and among other entries was the subject of our sketch. He walked around the track pulling a ton in the exceedingly fast time of 13 minutes and 45 seconds. He also took at the same Fair, the first premium for Norman draft horses. At the Fresno County Fair of last year, one of his two-year-olds took the first premium, while another succeeded in winning the red ribbon; a yearling of his took the second premium, and his suckling took the first premium. Dr. Prather is justly proud of this fine handsome stallion, and that he is thoroughly appreciated in that section of the State is evidenced in the fact that his book was filled very early in the present season and he had all the mares he could serve.

The Doctor also has the Cleveland Bay stallion Lord Hartington 11, who was bred by Mr. Clarke of North Hallerton, Yorkshire, England. He is only four years old and was imported by Jesse Harris of Fort Collins, Colorado in 1887, two years afterwards he was brought to Fresno and sold for a good round figure to his present owner, Dr. Prather; his sire is the well known Cleveland Bay stallion Bradgate; dam by Prince Federick 234; 2nd dam by Brithan 42; his grandsire is Cambuscan, his great grandsire being Voltigeu; his weight is 1400 lbs.; he is a beautiful red bay in color, stands 16 hands high, has a fine action and lofty carriage characteristic of this well known breed of horses. Following up the successes of his stable companion Lord Hartington in 1889 took the first premium at the State Fair for three-year-old Cleveland Bays.

In addition to these two stallions, Dr. Prather has several very fine Cleveland Bay mares, with which he proposes to enter into competition with any others in the State, feeling assured that the exquisite breeding of his animals is bound to produce grand results in the foals. We heartily congratulate the doctor on the possession of such grandly formed individuals and well pedigreed horses. There can be no question but what he is bound to make a success in the venture that he has entered into.

Heald's Business College.

"An honest man is the noblest work of God." Likewise the successful one in business is the most envied man in the community. This last is the one who is not infrequently referred to by his less prosperous competitors as one who has been peculiarly fortunate in all his business ventures. If the biography of this favored son of Dame Fortune were written in faithful detail, it would, in the great majority of instances, be seen that his success in life was due, not to fickle fate, but to a sound practical business education commenced with energy, pluck and perseverance. That is the history of the "lucky man."

If you would be a successful business man, and useful citizen, competent in book-keeping, telegraphy, short-hand, type-writing, besides the usual commercial branches and the modern languages, enter for a course at Heald's Business College, and receive the benefit of the experience of those able educators, Messrs. Heald, Haley and their assistants.

The 12,000 graduates from this excellent school since its foundation, filling positions of honor, trust and importance, all over the Pacific Coast, speak volumes for the value of a practical education to every young lady or gentleman who is ambitious. Their announcement will be found in another column.

The highest price ever paid for a horse bred and raised in Nebraska was that which, on Sept. 14th, purchased Winslow Wilkes, a four-year-old pacer. The colt was the property of E. G. Solomon, of the Spring Valley stock farm, and the purchasers were Flanery & McCoy of Denver. The price was $5,000. Winslow Wilkes has a record of 2:32, and his new owners will take him East this fall and enter him in the Terre Haute and Lexington races.

NAPA WILKES.

For several years Mr. A F. Bsker has been recognized as one of the stndions and intelligent breeders of the Southern San Joaqnin Valley. Realiz'ng the importance of gilt edge blood, he has from time to time picked up trotting horses with good pedigrees, hsving in view the establishment of a first class breeding farm in that section of the State. Being engaged in mercsntile pnrsnits he has not been able to give the reqnisite amount of attention that was reqnired to the breeding business, but finally he resolved to dispose ot his commercial pursnits and attend entirely to the hree ling interest.

Some time ago he purchased the well known stallion Napa Wilkes, having made up his mind thst the premier stallion of the San Msteo Stock Farm was one of the leading trotting representatives on the Pacific Coast, and from the looks of the yonngsters which he at present owns, it can ssfely he said that his judgment was good, for no better looking lot oi young horses can he seen anywhere. Mr. Baker hss lately disposed of his breeding farm and is at present looking for another, where he may launch out in the manner which he considers necessary for one who is going to give his entire attention to the trotting horse bnsiness.

Napa Wilkes is a son of Guy Wilkes 2:15¼, who, as the world already knows, is the sire of Sable Wilkes 2:18; Lillian Wilkes 2:17¾; Regal Wilkes, who has the two-yesr old stallion record of the world, 2:20¾; Hazel Wilkes 2:20, etc., and many others that are abont ready to enter the charmed circle. The dam of Napa Wilkes is Napa Maid by Irvington 379 (a son of Ryskyk's Hambletonian); 2d dam Napa Qneen by Eugene Casserly; 3rd dam by Bald Chief. Irvington is a fnll brother to Arthurton, who has done so mnch in the way of speed in popularizing Csliforois trotters. Napa Wilkes was foaled in 1884, is bay in color and typical of the celebrated family to which he belongs. There can be no reason to doubt bnt what Mr. Baker will, in a very short time, reap the reward of his excellent selection, as this son of Guy is bonnd to breed on.

Mr. Baker also has a number of brood mares, the first being Beauty by Arthurton, dam Black Bess by General McClellan, 2nd dam Belle hy Belmont.

Rnnning in the same field is a fnll sister to Beanty called Brunette, and these two fine shapely matrons attract the attention of all who have seen them in the paddocks. Beanty and Brunette esch has a brown filly hy Napa Wilkes, Beauty's foal being distinguished by three white ankles. These yonngsters are natural trotters, and with ordinary lnck shonld each make a reputation for sire and dam.

Jessie is a bay filly four years old by Berlin 3514 (sire of Kste Ewing 2:21¼, Pansy 2:24¼ and Thapsin 2:21¼), dam Lncy, a mare brought to California by Col. McNasser, of Sacramento.

Mand is a sorrel filly by Abbo'tsford 707 (sire of Condee 2 20, Waterford 2:27, etc.), dsm Blonde hy Irvington; second dam Huntress by Shenendoah; 3rd dam by Easton's David Hill.

Minnie is a black mare by Electioneer, dam Lncy by Norfolk, and was bred hy Mrs. W. W. Traylor, of Oakland This mare hss a beantifnl filly at foot by Nspa Wilkes, and by many is considered the choice of Mr. Baker's many good yonng ones.

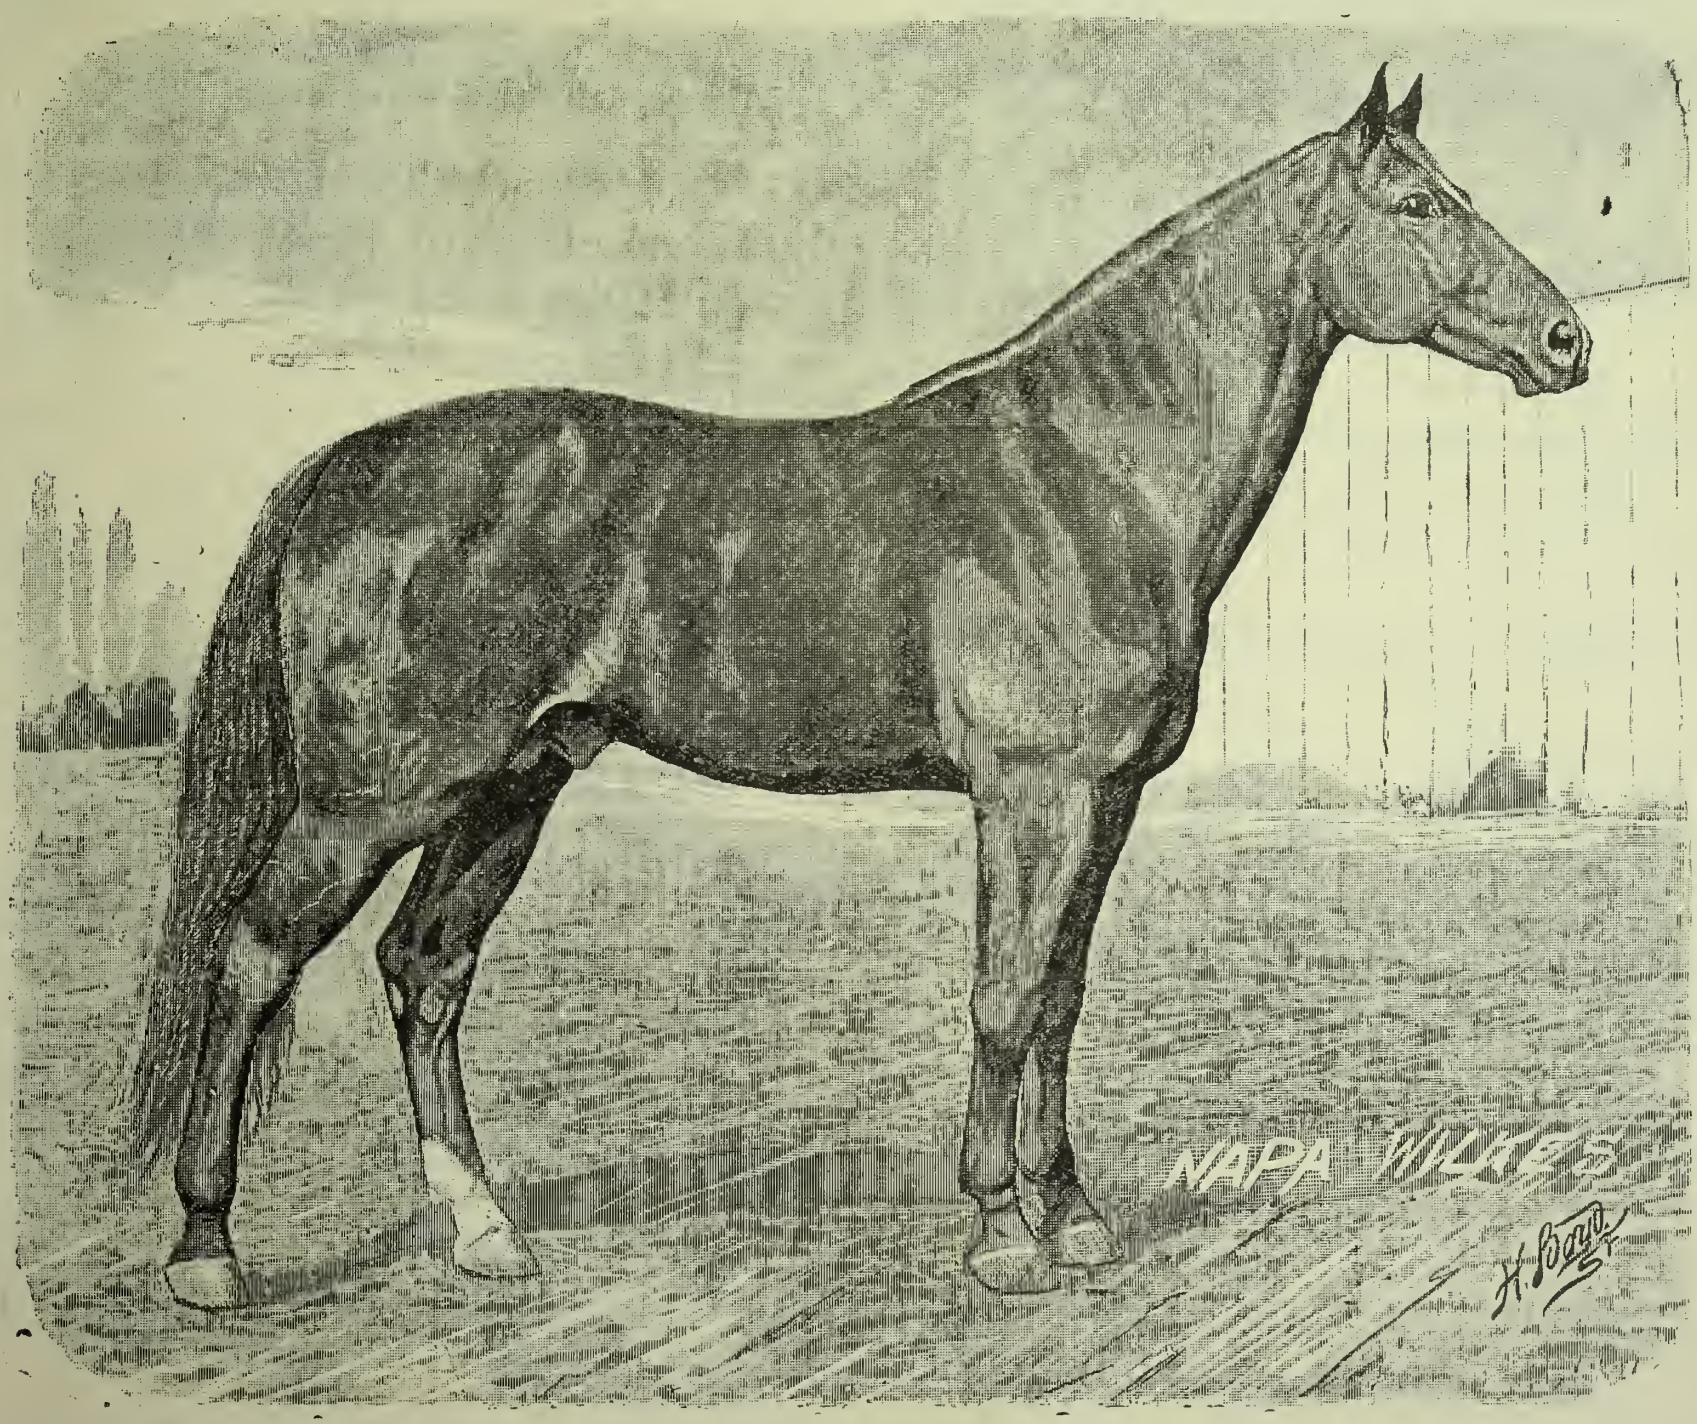
There is also a yonng filly, who as yet is unnamed, by Napa Wilkes, dam Moxie by Don Jnan (a son of Specnlation); second dam by St. Lawrence.

A very handsome brown filly, one yesr old, was also seen, she being by Mambrino Wilkes 6083 (sire of Gns Wilkes 2:22, Clara P. 2:29½, Balkan, who as a three-year-old made a record of 2:29½ and Alphens 2:27), dam Brnnette, whose pedigree is given ahove.

Another yearling filly which was shown is brown in color, with star and one white ankle by Napa Wilkes, dam Blonde by Irvington, and she has any qnantity of speed and gives every promise of heing very fast.

Mr. Bsker also has a steel gray filly, a yearling by Free Trade, dam Dolly, the celebrated road mare. Free Trade is an exceptionally well hred horse, being by Princeps 536, who is the sire of twenty-two in the 2:30 list, while the dam of Free Trade is Dawn by Belmont 64; second dam Midnight (dam of Jay-Eye-See 2:10 and Noontide 2:20½) by Pilot Jr.; third dam Twilight by Lexington

The last and the best of them all is Patty R., who was imported from Bloomington, Illinois, by Mr. Baker in 1888. She is very fast and has shown a qnarter in 32 seconds, a 2:08 gait, on the Fresno track. Patty R wss sired hy Corbin's Bashaw 1762, dam Carrie R. by Champion 807; second dam Nellie hy Nighthawk 514; third dam being thoroughbred. This msre is of snch exqnisite conformation and so very speedy that it would be as well to repnblish an article on her sire which originally appeared in Wallace's Monthly in 1883.



CORBIN BASHAW 1762.

"It is often said in comparing sons with sires that 'the stream cannot rise higher than its fountain.' Never was comparison more nnfortunate. The real fonntain—the whole fonntain—is not in the sire alone, hut in both sire and dam, and even in the twain it is freqnently so invisible tbat we have to go far up the ancestral cnrrent to find it. Of this truth we have a striking illnstration in the case before us.

"Fifteen years ago Amboy met Black Maria, a danghter of Banner Chief, son of Mambrino Chief 11. The resnlt of that meeting was Corbin Bashsw, 1762, in whom we have an animal that is in many respects decidedly superior to either of his parents. In color and in ontline he is an Amboy, bnt in size and snbstance he is more of a Mambrino Chief than was Black Maria, while in style and finish he leads all the Amboys, and leaves the Mambrino Chiefs far ont of sight. In other words he is a greatly enlarged, highly flattering likeness of his sire and a snbstantial epitome of the typical qualities of the noblest of the ancestry of his dam.

"Corbin Bashaw measures 16 hands and 1 inch high, weighs 1,200 pounds, and is clothed in a dark chestnnt coat, through whose rich, wavy sheen may be counted many a pulsing plexus of plump, tortuous blood vessels. In general portrait, in justness and elegance of proportions, he is the sculptor's model, the poet's ideal, the horsemsn's delight. He is, indeed, a pictnre the like of which is very rarely seen in the course of a lifetime; and it is little, if any, over the mark to say thst he is the perfection of equine symmetry, and is fanltless in every visible point. His action, spirit and power of endnrance are in good keeping with his beantv and strength of conformation. He is a thoronghly natural trotter, and so admirably are all the parts of his anatomical machinery adspted to his gait that he never requires a boot or a strap of any kind, and on a good track does not even require to be shod. His long, eloping shoulders, his sweeping arms snd thighs, his glibly-folding knee action, and his great mnscnlar power give him a mssterly yet essy way of going, and carry him along the course with the speed of an arrow and the grace of a fawn. In his trotting there is no labored exertion, no waste of force, no discord of motion. Every part of the machine works in perfect harmony with every other part in the production of a movement whose exqnisite nicety of balance, and whose grandly rolling cadence make him on the homestretch, one of the most entrancing sights that ever filled the human eye. He is long, rspid, but not very open strider. His hocks are bronght up in vertical lines, hut his hin' feet, being pointed from his body, never touch his fore feet. This gives him that strong, precise, nniform stroke which tells in the race withont wearing ont the horse.

"Corhin Bashaw is now fonrteen years old, his rich trotting inheritance is well developed. He has been campaigned more or less every season since he was fonr years old, and as a winner has achieved great renown in the West. On the 23rd of June, 1881, he won a hotly contested race at Marshalltown, Ia., making a record of 2:26¾. In the summer of the following yesr, immediately after a stud service in which he hsd been mated with msres sixty-five times, he went to Chicago, and in a great stallion contest lapped out Fred Douglass, 1153, in 2:20¼. By critical timing it wss found thst he trotted the heat in which he did this in 2:21½. Such a performance can, under the circumstances, be considered little less than marvelous· and, to my mind, it clearly shows that Corhin Bashaw is one of the very gamest and most speedy trotting stallions in the world.

"It is not to be overlooked that this splendid horse trains on, advances in rank, constantly improves in speed, and trots all his races out, invariably making his best showing in his last heats. It is admitted by all who know him that he is one of the most enduring trotters in America. I call special attention to this fact because there is no thoroughbred to which the glory of it belongs.

Entries for the Los Angeles races close on Wednesday. It will pay horse owners to glance at the programme in another column.

The Los Angeles Association offer $700 for three-fourths of a mile handicap, and a good size Consolation race will in all probability be given on the last day of the meeting.

Mr. Valensin, who has been ailing for some time, is at Springfield, Mass., where he is detained by a severe attack of pneumonia. It is to be hoped that he will recover in short order.

W. J. Casey of Santa Clara calls attention to the fact that he has for sale both Electioneer and George Wilkes blood and offers to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN a choice lot of trotting horses, many of which were bred by himself. The list is in the appropriate column and will repay perusal.

Mrs. A. M. Goodrich of Jordan Valley, Oregon, advertises that she has a black stallion two year old sired by Almont Medium 2133, son of Happy Medium 400, dam Clara Hoppin by Alcona 730; second dam Theodora by Post's Hambletonian, which she will sell at a reasonable figure. The same lady also has a bay filly foaled in 1889, of equally good breeding which she also wishes to dispose of. Here is a rare opportunity for some of our breeders to secure a bargain.

If there be any of our readers who desire elegant pictures for the office, the stable or the library, they should give the Schussler Bros. a call, and see the elegant pictures which this firm has for sale.

The Labold Bros. had an auction sale in New York last week, at which their chestnut colt Isaac Lewis, by Prince Charlie, dam Bellona sold for the very fair figure of $7,500.

While in Fresno last week I was placed under many obligations to that old-time horseman, Jas. Waterman, for courtesies extended to me while there. Jim, by the way, has in his stallion, Buccaneer Jr., one of the handsomest horses in the State, and there is no question but what on the first favorable opportunity a lower record than 2:30 will be made by him. Buccaneer Jr. has many foals in the Southern San Joaquin Valley, the major portion of them being as fine as any in the State. Mr. Waterman himself owns four which it would be a very hard matter to duplicate in any stock farm here or elsewhere. With good mares Buccaneer Jr. can make a showing of his get that should entitle him to a front rank among the stallions of California.

In another column will be found an advertisement showing the advantages of using the Phelps spreader in training horses that travel too close behind. Of the many contrivances in the market it is far and away the best that has ever been offered to the public. The following letter is an endorsement from a gentleman that has already used one of them.

WHEATLAND, Cal., Sept. 23, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I have used one of Mr. Phelphs' spreaders this summer on my horse Ratler, and can say that it has improved his gait and speed wonderfully and feel assured that you can safely recommend it to any and all that are interested in breeding and training fast stock. The horse wore boots until I used this spreader, but now I have discarded them entirely as the spreader has given him an open gate and long stride. Yours truly,

BENJ. F. COONS.

Mayor De Lashmutt of Portland Oregon, has purchased from Judge Galloway the trotting mare, Lady Beach by Altamont, dam Hollywood by Hambletonian Mambrino. This is a very valuable addition to Mr. De Lashmutt's noted stable, and he should soon win back with her the money she cost, $2,000.

Some time ago the information was telegraphed to the coast that Mr. Valensin had engaged the services of Andrews, late trainer and driver for C. Hamlin. When the mail arrived the story was refuted in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as being not true. Now, however, comes the news that Millard Sanders has been engaged for the Valensin Stock Farm, so it is to be presumed that next year the Count's colors will once more be seen to the fore.

A little bird whispers to me that a wager has been made between Munroe Salisbury, the owner of Margaret S., and Wm. Corbitt, of the San Mateo Stock Farm, in which the former claims that he will, at Napa, show a faster mile with his peerless filly than she showed at Independence, Iowa. After her very fast half mile at Sacramento, there are many willing to believe that 2:12½ is really no mark for the mare.

Messrs. Killip & Co., live stock auctioneers of 22 Montgomery street, San Francisco, announce this week to our readers that they will have two auction sales in the near future, the first of which will take place during the Breeder's meeting at the Fair Grounds in Napa. This sale will consist of over forty head of trotting stock, comprising the get of Alexander 490, La Grande 2868, Admont 5349, Mortimer 5346, Electic 11,321, Arthurton, Mohawk Chief and Elector All of the animals will be sold absolutely without limit or reserve, thus placing the sale entirely in the hands of the purchasers. Next week we will be able to give a full and complete description of the horses that will be offered at this sale.

The second event consists of a joint auction sale of standard and well-bred trotting and road horses owned by D. J. Murphy of San Jose, and Col Harry I. Thornton of San Francisco. This sale will take place on Thursday, October 23rd in this City, the location to be hereafter announced.

DEER HUNTING IN TEXAS.

The Sportsman's Paradise.

Deer, Turkey, Quail, Pheasant and Squirrel in Abundance.

ORANGE, TEXAS, September 15, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I write you from one of the best sporting sections to be found in the whole country. Texas has many points of superior attraction for field sport, but none of them can compare with East Texas. It is here that we find a greater variety of game, and owing to the splendid marshes and lakes, a greater variety and quantity of migratory birds in season than at almost any other point in the Union.

The best season for duck shooting is of course later in the season, December and for the succeeding quarter of the year, the duck shooting here is perhaps as fine as any grounds to be met with in the whole country. The wild rice and other succulent and fruitful grasses furnish the best of living for the birds, and by reason of these same grasses furnishing such secure and perfect shelter for the huntsman, it adds in no small degree, to their destruction.

The sport at present, in this section, consists of deer and wild turkey hunting. Orange is situated on the banks of the Sabine river, about forty miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and at the border line between the great marshes, which stretch away to the gulf, and the vast timber district of the State which runs along its eastern border into Arkansas. This great forest, which is about 500 miles in length from north to south by 150 miles in width, presents, perhaps, the most natural and undisturbed appearance of any like body of forest land in the country.

This point is reached by the Southern Pacific Railroad, and is about 150 miles east of Houston, which is the terminal of more roads than any other city in the State, and may be reached from any direction. The country, beside growing more and more broken from this point as you proceed northward, is traversed by numerous streams, some of them of considerable importance, notably the Sabine, Nachea and Angelina rivers. These streams and their many confluent branches are all heavily timbered. These pine forests are as dense and wild as any upon which the sun ever shown, and this condition extends in places for miles and miles These districts are the favorite haunts of the deer, which here abound in quantities, to make the hunter's heart glad.

In the less remote districts, where the fields of the backwoods pioneer afford them favorable feeding grounds, the wild turkey, quail, pheasant and squirrel are found in great quantities.

Recently a party was here made up for the purpose of enjoying a couple of days hunt in the forest after deer.

The experienced hunter of this region insists on hunting the deer on horseback and thus, with much misgivings on my part, we finally prepared for the sport. It was a clear and beautiful afternoon that we rode out of the village headed for the hunting grounds about twenty miles distant where our leader had decided we should camp at night, and make our first "drive" in the morning. A more delightful ride I never enjoyed. The winding trail led us through the most beautiful groves of pines, which stood like giants towering for hundreds of feet into the sky. Now and then we would find our way through a great body of timber covering the entire upland, wherein there grew no underbrush or other obstruction. Nothing as far as the eye could reach save the tall straight limbless bodies of the pines. At intervals the wind would go a tossing through the boughs, and the low peculiar music of the spirit of the trees would lend a deepening pleasure to the grandeur of the scene.

The gold and orange of the sun's last rays was gilding the tree tops, and splashing crimson figures over the soft emerald carpeting of the quiet little valley, which had been chosen for our camp, as we drew rein beside the stream which flowed through it, joining the Sabine some distance below.

The more anxious of the party were disposed to try their luck by the torch light, but they were finally persuaded that the better plan would be to await the regular morning "drive."

After a supper, to which we all did ample justice, the evening was spent in listening to the usual drift of camp talk, and at an early hour we turned in and soon the camp was as silent as though devoid of life save for a movement now and then by the horses which were tethered to the trees hard by.

As morning approached, and while yet the gloom of night hung over the camp, we were awakened by the leader who was anxious that our morning "drive" should prove successful, and to this end he was not disposed to be caught napping.

Breakfast was hastily prepared and despatched, and the preparations for immediate action begun. Horses were saddled and guns were carefully examined and made ready for action. Our captain then gave the dogs in charge of the two men selected as "drivers," and cautioning them as to the route to follow, he led off, describing a half circle, the points of which touched the stream, while the crest rested on the ridge to the left and south of camp.

Around this circle the remaining men of the party were stationed, each so placed as to command a view of the several ravines and ridges declining to the stream. I felt quite well satisfied with my station for the old Captain was on my right and the last man in station. He said in parting, "Look sharp down the ravine to your left for you are almost certain of securing a shot."

The first faint streaks of coloring were creeping into the silver sheen, which morning places between the bluish gray banner of her first herald and her triumphful entrance, when the peculiar silence was awakened by a single note from one of the hounds, which was quickly followed by a succession of single cries, and then the full music of the four dogs in chorus broke in upon the scene, and the silence of a moment previous was turned into the sweetest melody on earth to a waiting huntsman's ears.

The game, judging by the music of the hounds, is turning toward the extreme right of our line. A sharp whip like report of a rifle in the distance confirms this conclusion. The game deflects and returns toward the stream, when the shouting of the drivers and echoing notes from their horns frighten the game back again and now they are coming my way. For the hundredth time I see that my rifle is in order, and I confess to myself that a perceptible tremor of the buck fever has seized me.

Just then, as the music of the hounds grows clearer and clearer, the man stationed at my right thunders forth with his shotgun, sending a charge of buckshot after the fleeing game, and creating noise enough to frighten them into a state of absolute terror. The course is changed again and in a moment more I see coming up the ravine at full speed a full grown doe and a yearling running close by her side. I see that if no unforeseen incident occurs to again turn them that they will pass near me and across an open space, thus giving me an excellent opportunity. I raise my piece, and with the first jump the pair make into the open glade I fire. The doe keeps right on, but the yearling turns and dashes off at a diverging angle. Again and again I send a bullet after the doe, but she reaches the brush at the other side of the opening and disappears. What shall I say? What excuse can I offer for not bagging at least one of the animals when so fair an opportunity was afforded?

A moment more and the hounds come by and cross the glade, where their voices rise from one point for a moment, and the captain's voice is heard shouting to me, "Come and claim your prize!" Was it possible? Yes, sure enough, there lay the doe, pierced by two of the bullets from my Colt's No. 44. Dr. Husted had killed a fine buck farther down the line.

The horns sounded the signal for assembling, and soon the entire party were detailing their several experiences and congratulating the lucky ones.

Another drive was made, which resulted in one of the "drivers" killing a fine buck as he jumped from the stream where he had been to drink. Four deer, seven turkeys and a number of squirrel was the result of our hunt.

In the afternoon of the second day we turned our horses' heads homewards, well satisfied with the success of our venture.

Any one visiting this section should not fail to call upon Mr. J. F. Lutcher of the lumber firm of Lutcher & Moore, who with banker Orr of our party, will see that they are furnished with every facility for the enjoyment of the splendid sports which the surrounding country affords. CRINO.

Selby Medal.

The scores of the last shot for the Selby Medal for artificial birds are kindly sent by Mr. Joseph Delmas of San Jose, the city in which the meeting was held. Mr. Delmas adds that the scores would have been better if the shooters had been able to secure the artificial bird cartridge made by the Selby Company. Through some error they could not be had and the ordinary shells were used with black powder, a disadvantage only to be appreciated by those who have used smokeless powders at the game.

The subjoined scores were made at 30 single Blue Rock Targets and 10 pairs A. S. A. rules. Won by Mr. J. A. Delmas Jr.

Squirrels and Mudhens.

Any one fond of shooting a rifle can find plenty of sport shooting ground squirrels with a 22 or 32. These ground squirrels abound in the neighborhood of San Mateo and Menlo Park, and a good shot should be able to bag a couple of dozen or so a day. Squirrel shooting requires a vast amount of patience as well as a quick eye and steady nerve. So tenacious of life is the ground squirrel, that unless hit through the head or heart he is almost sure to make his way to his hole, and once there, farewell. There was a few years ago a club in this city known as the Ballard Club. It was composed of a few enthusiasts on small bores and among them were several fine shots. It is true that large bags were seldom made, but any amount of fun was had and many a mile tramped in pursuit of squirrels, larks, cottontails, etc. One memorable day in the annals of the club was a day after mudhens at Brook's Lake, near Colma. At certain seasons this string of lakes, or rather ponds, literally swarm with mudhens, which are fairly easy to approach. That day the four club members bagged 64.

It is a mistake to suppose that a mudhen is unfit for food. On the contrary they are remarkably good eating if properly dressed and cooked. And this is the way to do it. As soon as possible after shooting skin and clean them; then let them soak over night in salt and water. Roast in a quick oven for twenty minutes, baste well, and serve with bread sauce and fried crumbs. Of course there is a popular prejudice against eating mudhens as there is also against squirrels, yet both are excellent in their way. Squirrels, like mudhens, should always be soaked in brine over night, and are best stewed with tomatoes, onions and green peppers, Spanish style.

The Tulare Shooting Tournament.

The shooting tournament, held under the auspices of the Tulare Gun Club on the 17th, 18th and 19th of the present month, was a most pleasurable and successful affair in all respects. The attendance was good, and no incidents arose to mar the pleasure of the assembly. Prof. Reitz's orchestra furnished music for the occasion which enlivened the daily gatherings.

The scores of the rifle matches are given below.

There were 555 shots fired on the bulls-eye pool target, and 75 bulls-eyes were made.

At the annual meeting of the club, held on the 16th inst., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J.

F. Baller, President; Dr. C. F. Taggart, vice-President; A. Borders, Secretary; R. N. Hough, Treasurer; Capt. G. B. Fairbanks, Captain Rifle Department; M. S. Wagy, Captain Shot Gun Department. G. B. F.

Straight Stocked Guns.

A few years ago it was hardly possible to obtain a gun of American make with a moderately straight stock. The reason was that nobody wanted them. Now this is all changed, and guns of almost any kind of stock can be had. It is a fact acknowledged by our best shots that the straighter the stock a man can use with comfort, the better shooting he will make. A very long armed man with a neck in proportion, would naturally want a gun more bent in the stock than a short armed and necked man would, but still the straighter the stock he can use, the better he will shoot. A man can get on to his game more quickly with a straight stocked gun, and is not nearly so liable to shoot under it. More than half the birds missed in the field and at the trap are under-shot. This is one reason why many old and experienced shooters object to the artificial targets. All of these, unless shaped, (and that is next to impossible) have to be shot under to be hit, as they are nearly always on the drop when fired at. With live birds the opposite is nearly always the case, and the man who is a crack shot at the "artificial", is very apt to put more shot into mother earth than the bird. Most of the strongest advocates of the crooked stock are now getting their guns straightened, and those who are buying new ones will find it to their advantage to get a gun as straight in the stock as can be conveniently used.

John Ebright was out with his gun and dog on Sunday in the foothills back of San Mateo. He reports quail plentifully and in many instances well grown. The birds he came across were nearly all large ones, and the best evidence of the sport he had was the bag which he showed and which held four dozen beauties.

Howard Black was out at Livermore on Sunday last with Dr Hammond. The day was very hot and but little shooting was done, in fact, the trip was made chiefly to give Black's new Irish setter pup, lately purchased from Trueman some work. Only some ten quail were killed, but the pup behaved like an old dog.

W. A. Janke and J. Pelton were out after quail at Belmont on Sunday last. They found the birds plentiful and well grown; killing between them 37. By far the larger portion of these fell to Janke's gun. The weather was so hot that both shooters took off their shooting coats and wrung the perspiration out of them like a sponge. On the 15th Mr. Janke killed five dozen on the same grounds, but many were small birds.

Al Donaldson, the well known pigeon shot of Fairfield called in at the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S office on Monday. He has just returned from a seal hunting trip to Alaska on the schooner Lily L. He was hunting from the Mary Ellen, but that vessel ran on a rock one dark foggy night and was wrecked. Al did fairly well at the seal killing business and came home with plenty of money to put up at the Sacramento shoot where he hopes and expects to hold his own with the boys.

Harry Golcher took a jaunt to Pleasanton all by himself on last Sunday. He had his dog with him and the two of them managed to get a couple of dozen quail. Harry, however, says that he was entirely played out climbing the steep, slippery hills, and when asked if it was hot, said he was too tired to feel the heat or anything else Hunting by one's self is somehow far more tiring than with company, for with a jolly companion a man's mind is taken away from the the thought of his own bodily fatigue.

Captain McBeth writes from Denver to Mr. Henry Wormington that on an evening recently a little party including the Captain, Colonel Sedam, Major Dixon and Captain Preny were discussing the comparative hospitality of cities. Each stated his case, but when McBeth had finished his little story about Mr. Wormington's perfect open handedness, his cheerful surrender of time, team, home, acquaintance and all else to the entertainment of his friend the verdict was unanimously awarded to San Francisco.

Charley Raynaud was at San Pedro on Sunday last hunting quail. He managed to bag eighteen, but found it very hard work as the hills are steep and the brush thick. He commenced shooting about two miles from what is known as the "Adobe House." Charley drove from the city on Saturday afternoon and camped out. He just got on the grounds in time to shoot a couple of cotton tails for supper. He reports the quail fairly plentiful but backward. The morning fogs were very unpleasant.

John K. Orr and a friend were out after quail last Saturday. Their hunting ground was back of Haywards. The two of them killed fifty-eight quail, many of which were about three parts grown. They only shot until two o'clock as the day was exceedingly hot. Mr. Orr had with him his King Charles spaniel, which did wonderful work retrieving, bringing in over forty birds.

The ranchers around Haywards have combined to prevent promiscuous shooting on their lands. Last year much damage was done by city hunters, who set fire to grass and stubble, and in one instance caused the death of a valuable thoroughbred colt.

Mr. Orr is anxiously looking forward to October 1st, when the quail shooting season opens in Marine County. He reports the quail on the county club's preserve as being plentiful and forward.

Thousands of ducks, he says, are now coming to the Sacramento tules, and a grand year may be looked forward to. The late wet winter has made feed plentiful, and has sweetened the feeding grounds.

The duck season does not open in Sacramento County until October 1st, as the supervisors of that county found that such a law had to be passed or there would be a sad falling off in ducks.

AMPHIBIANS.

A Few Remarks About Frogs and Their Allies.

Students are taught that the earth is divided into land and water, but there are few indeed who stop to consider in their study of geography, those vast areas lying between land and water comprising marshes, etc., and embracing marginel, river, lake and sea tracts in that indefinite word shore line. These regions are alternately deluged with overflows and dried from long drouths or are in a condition of muck and mire. These localities comprising not a small portion of the area of our country are inhabited by an odd class of creatures alike interesting from their peculiar habits and singular forms. The animals found here are known as amphibians, that is literally two-lived or both-lived, from their having both lungs to breath with as well as gills which they use in the water. The amphibious tribe embraces the frogs, toads, salamanders, newts, tritons, etc., a very extensive group and is also known as batrachians or naked-skinned reptiles, the representatives having no scales as with lizards and snakes.

All amphibious animals undergo certain transformations or metamorphoses in the early stages of their existence, as is well known to most of my readers, in the case of the changes of the tad pole, more or less understood by ever gone, even of the smallest observation. A few points in the changes that gradually occur may not be understood by all, and to those who are familiar, a short review may not come amiss. The eggs of salamanders, frogs, toads, etc., are generally laid in spring or early summer and are known to nearly all school boys by their odd surroundings. The eggs are small, black, round bodies, having on the side a white spot, and are held together in large numbers by a gelatinous mass provided by the mother when the eggs are laid. When the eggs hatch there emerge from them very small wriggling creatures, which are called pollywogs or tadpoles when they are large enough to deserve a name. They are little animals with large heads for their size, so to speak, but if this head is examined it will be found in reality to be the head and body, and the elongated, spindling extremity behind is found to be the tail. Tadpoles are usually found swimming about in stagnant pools in large colonies, where they breath the aqueous gases as do fishes, being provided with gills. By degree they are transformed, however, their limbs and air breathing lungs are gradually developed, then the tail slowly disappears, is absorbed; and a day arrives when they find themselves conveniently formed for another kind of existence; they leave the care of the ditch or pond and disport themselves on the bordering land. The tadpole meanwhile being subject to a series of changes in every system concerned in the daily needs of coming aerial and terestrial existence, still passes more or less of its time in the water, or at the times when a delivery of a squad of young frogs from some pond, for several days, tadpoles may be seen airing themselves at the edges and trying their new lungs, unwilling to quit their early home; while many may be seen hopping about the bank near, still wearing a stump of the old or early life tail.

Nevertheless they do not altogether forget their early quarters; thanks to their webbed feet they can still traverse the waters which sheltered their infancy and where they once swam about; and when alarmed they rush into the water at any unusual sight or noise, as a place of safety, and where they swim and dive with a seeming spirit of enjoyment and security. There are some of these naked-skinned reptiles which are truly amphibious throughout their lives, being provided with air-breathing lungs as well as gills during their entire existence. These most singular creatures in a peculiar class have a remarkable arterial system which can be controlled by the will power of the animal, or perhaps more properly is controlled by the requirements of the times. Certain it is though, that the blood flows to the gills or lungs as is required by the creatures predilection for land or water.

Animals of this class are known as cold-blooded as well as snakes, turtles, etc., and for this reason the warmer parts of the world are most affected by them; this is the cause also of their becoming torpid in cold countries during the winter months. Not having sufficient heat in themselves to produce reaction against the external cold, they fall asleep for many months awakening only when the temperature permits of activity. Serpents, lizards, tortoises, frogs, toads, etc, are all subject to this law of their being. Some hybernate upon the earth, under heaps of stones, in holes and in the mud at the edges or bottoms of ponds. The senses are very slightly developed in these animals; those of touch, taste and smell are very imperfect; that of hearing, though less obtuse, leaves much to be desired; but sight is very suitably exercised, particularly so in the frogs, which have large and powerful eyes.

The whole class of reptiles are calculated to inspire feelings of disgust, and such has been the sentiment in all ages. Some people cannot suppress a movement of fright at the ordinary frog or toad notwithstanding that they are the most perfectly inoffensive animals. Several causes concur to this aversion. In the first place the low temperature of their bodies and clammy feel of their skins, contact with which communicates an involuntary shudder to the person who touches one of them. Their fixed, strong gaze also impresses one unfavorably; add to this fear, probably embraced since a child, and we shall have the secret of a sort of instinctive horror which is felt by many people at the sight of most reptiles. Nevertheless, the injurious species are exceptional amongst reptiles, and there are not any amongst the amphibious animals. It is true that many of them are repulsive to all, but we can nevertheless recognize their services to the economy of nature.

In America there are a great many kinds of frogs, salamanders and other batrachians but of all these, only a few are known familiarly and throughout the Union. These are the common green or grass frog much sought for as a delicate table morsel; the pickeral frog so often used for bait by bass and pickeral fishers; the common tree toad or tree frog; the big bull frog, so called on account of his sonorous voice; and last but probably best known, the common warty toad. There are many others, well known to the naturalist, among which are the wood frog, Pickering's tree toad and many species of salamanders and so-called water lizards, though not lizards, which will not be named as they are rarely met with by the general observer.

Frogs are usually considered innocuous, and are quite generally eaten by sensible people when they can get them, but toads continue to hold, it not to merit the opprobrium thrust upon them by the people of all ages. This animal so repulsive in form has been furnished by nature with a most efficient armature; namely a very acrid secretion found in various parts of its body, but mainly in the two large warts on the top of its head. These glands can be made to eject a severely irritating, tenacious liquid when pressed, which is undoubtedly used as a defense by the creature against its natural enemies among the carnivora. I do not consider this material poisonous beyond its local effects on the mucous membranes, but it is a decided irritant to those parts. Once some of this material was rubbed in my eye accidentally, when I was experimenting, producing severe itching and burning which lasted for some time. If a dog takes a toad into his mouth, severe frothing from the acridity of the substance is often produced. This has given rise to the old and ridiculous notion that hydropbobia is produced in dogs by toads. A notion at once proved untenable when we consider that dogs suffer within the North polar circle and where toads are not found.

Before closing this paper a description of the manner of rearing the young by a queer South American toad will be presented. The species is known as the Surinam toad and its peculiar habits in caring for its offspring during early life are decidedly anomalous as composed with habits of all other known reptiles. At first this toad was considered unique in its queer actions during the breeding season, but later others of the same peculiarities were discovered in adjoining countries and as far North as Mexico. The one we are to describe is found in Guiana and some provinces of Brazil. It is hideous in appearance and yet grotesque as well. The head is flat and triangular; a very short neck separates it from the body which is itself flattened and depressed; and it has small eyes. This singular animal is oviparous, and when the female has laid her eggs, the male takes them and piles upon the back of his mate, these, his hopes of a family. She, bearing upon her back the fertilized eggs, reaches the marshes and there immerses herself. The skin of the back soon becomes inflamed and swollen caused by the irritation produced by the eggs, which are then absorbed by the integument and disappear in the tissues.

The young toads in tadpole form are hatched and rapidly developed in these dorsal cells, but they are extricated in a less advanced stage than almost any other vertebrate animal. After partial tadpole growth, extrication from the cells fully takes place and the liberated pollywog grows rapidly, and the chief change of form is witnessed in the gills. As to the mother of the brood, it is only after she has got rid of her progeny and they are capable of shifting for themselves, that she abandons her aquatic residence and betakes herself to her usual toad quarters.

There are many features of deep interest in the study of just common frogs and toads, and at another time observations may be given on some peculiar varieties, as well as regarding the odd salamanders—creatures belonging to the same general class, yet provided with tails.

Around the Bay.

A party, consisting of Messrs. Hazlett, Thompson and Caduc, had a grand day's fishing on Sunday last off Arch Rock. They fished while the tide suited (some three hours) and came home with 106 fish, weighing in all 90 lbs. Some of the fish were quite large, and a real rock cod weighing close on to six pounds. One fine seatrout was also caught and a green cod. It is very deep out at the Arch Rock, and the tide at times runs like a mill race. The best bait to use is smelt cut into thin slices, or pile worms if they can be obtained. There are great complaints among bay fishermen about the scarcity of this bait as the supply is not half equal to the demand. However, for rock cod fishing it may be a pointer to fishermen worth knowing that the common earth worm will answer the purpose almost as well as the pile worm. It of course will not last as long on the hook, and in general is less desirable, but on the whole it is the best substitute for the pile worm.

Live Fish From the Clouds.

A dispatch from Cairo, Ill., stated that during a shower on the 9th inst, there fell quite a large number of live fish in and about that city. The fish are described as being about four inches in length and of the species known as sun, perch and buffalo. The fish were stunned by the fall, but it is stated that many of them revived on being placed in water, and are alive and flourishing, apparently none the worse for their strange voyage in one of nature's balloons. About one dozen of them were picked up at one point. This strange occurrence is not unprecedented, but has been said to have transpired at various times and places.

At Sausalito the boys have been having some fair sport lately with both smelt and rock cod. The smelt are not running as well as they were a couple of weeks ago, but still fair baskets are being made. A Mrs. Cooper made the biggest haul last Sunday of all those who fished on the water front. She caught 64 fine fish.

Messrs. Chase, Harper and Reid, three ardent fishermen who live in Oakland, but occasionally long for the babbling brook and the "speckled beauties," wended their way on Saturday last to Taylor's dam on the Paper Mill creek, in Marin Co. They took their blankets along, and a light skirmishing outfit for cooking. They found the Paper Mill fished out, and so determined to work their way up the Lagunitas creek which debouchee into the Paper Mill. About a mile up the fishing was excellent, some half-pound fish being caught in deep, shady pools under high rocks.

"It was terribly tough traveling" said Mr Reid, who told of the adventure, "and several times we were on the point of turning back, but when the fish began to be plentiful, we all three cheered up and pushed on, but my shins are all skinned up, and my feet are all one mass of blisters."

It was half past nine at night when these three weary travelers arrived at Bontempi's milk ranch, where about twenty dogs of various breeds made it very lively for them. They managed, however, to arouse the "boss" before they were completely gobbled up, and got permission to sleep in the barn.

"We were too tired to even think of eating, but after each of us had a good pull at the "snake medicine", we rolled up in our blankets and slept like tops. Next morning, Sunday, we were up bright and early, and started to fish the Lagunitas. None of us did much, and in the afternoon our total footed up to 74, mostly small fish. We saw plenty of quail, and Chase declared he saw a bear. Upon investigation, however, it turned out to be a large black hog.

Chase killed a small rattlesnake on Sunday, which had four rattles and a button.

On Sunday evening the milk-man drove us to Ross' station, and we started for home. I don't want to make the trip again in a hurry, you can bet."

Some Fine Trout.

Thirty thousand rainbow trout were received in Napa Tuesday morning from the State hatchery at Sissons. They were distributed into the different streams as follows: Dry Creek, by R. D. Hopkins; Rector, by Chas. Arnold; Milliken (above falls), by W. H. Evans and J. B. Dorr; Sage Creek, by R. Wyatt; Napa Creek, by Wm. West. These trout were furnished free by the State upon the earnest request of Messrs. Wm. West and J. C. Noyes, who particularly interested themselves in the matter, and upon the understanding that an honest effort would be made to enforce the fishery laws.—Napa Journal.

It is earnestly desired by the State authorities, and we venture to assert by every true sportsman, especially, and all good citizens in general, that the laws in this behalf, will be honestly and effectively enforced. It is of the first importance that they should be, and if every citizen who is interested in the matter, will only give to the authorities that support and co-operation which is their due, their efforts will undoubtedly prove effective.

Let us all work together to this end, and the streams of California, from one end of the State to the other, will in a few years be teeming with rich, ripe fruit for the rod.

On the old Oakland wharf quite a crowd of fishermen were at work on Sunday and a few smelt were caught, but not enough to make up for the dreary day spent.

On account of the early and continued cold rains during the [illegible] as up ringut fishing in the Adirondacks has been very disappointing to the anglers who visited the streams at the usual season for sport of this nature.

Some fine baskets of fish were caught off the rocks near the Narrow Gauge wharf on Sunday. They were nearly all rockcod, with a few silver perch. The luckiest man was Ed Price, who went home with ten pounds of fine rockcod, some of them over a pound.

The smelt fishing was not good on Sunday and the man who caught half a dozen was in luck. It is getting late for smelt.

Off the old Alameda lumber wharf at Birde Point, some fine catches of pogies and perch were made during the week, and a man who was netting crabs off the end of the wharf did a "land office business." He caught twenty fine crabs one day, which was a fine day's work and paid well. A few smelt were caught on set-lines, but the rod fishermen have had but a poor week of it.

At Lime Point on Sunday, F. Abner and T. Cole caught some thirty pounds of rock cod, among which were some very large ones. The tide did not quite suit, or a far larger catch would probably have been made.

The Sacramento Bee records the fact that Mr. S. E. Stephens, of this city, while angling in the streams of Plumas County, landed after an exciting battle of fifteen minutes a trout of the rainbow variety weighing twelve pounds and one ounce. It is stated that this is the largest trout ever taken in that region.

J. Butler and a friend have been having good sport at Pillarcitos Lake. The fish can only be caught in the early evenings and mornings. A black gnat is the best fly to use. The fish vary from a half to a pound, and are all in fine condition. Crystal Springs and San Andreas have been closed all the season, and the black bass fishermen are disconsolate.

A spirited and highly interesting fishing match took place at the Rigolets, which are reached by way of the Louisville and Nashville railway, from New Orleans distant some thirty-two miles. The contest was between the Thatcher and Hanselman teams of the above named city, and took place on the 13th inst. The teams were arranged and pegged; and the signal sounded for the casting of the lines at near sunrise, and sounded for closing of contest promptly at noon. The scale of points by which the match was scored was as follows:

Silver fish 1000, devil fish 1000, pompano 100, caranx (jack fish) 80, red fish 60, sheep-head 50, drum 40, green trout 25, Spanish mackeral 15, striped or rock bass 15 flounder 10, eel 10, lady fish 10, speckled or white trout 5, black mullet 5 and croaker 5. Captain John K. Reynolds won first prize by a score of 1135, being nearly double that of his leading competitor, W. E. Lawrence, whose catch numbered 580.

The teams were composed of 16 men each, Captain Thatchers' team leading by a score of 3,900 to that of 2,335, accredited to Captain Hanselman's.

The Leadville Trout Station at Leadville, Colorado, is in a flourishing condition and has been achieving some splendid results during the season.

It now has on hand a stock of 92,691 Eastern brook trout in size from 1½ to 2 inches in length, all in good condition and ready for distribution. In addition to these, the commission have gathered about 300 native black-spotted trout which added to the number already on hand give them a total of something over 1,200 of this species. A number of the last mentioned class will spawn next spring. A number of brook trout will yield eggs this fall. There are also 3,288 Loch Leven fry at the station. The commission is very much encouraged over the outlook.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

The Chase.

[Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

Ho! for the chase, for the royal chase,
With the music of horns and hounds;
On a noble steed to take the lead,
Of them all on the hunting grounds;
To feel the blood, a rushing flood,
Go bounding, leaping through the veins,
And know the field we need not yield
While we keep our grip on the reins.

Urging our steed to his utmost speed,
We sail like a bird on the wing;
While the very wind is left behind,
Heavy winged with sounds that ring,
Up from the dells like legions of hells,
Swelling over valleys and hills,
The echoes rebound with a double sound,
Then fade into musical trills.

Hard on the pack we follow the track,
Of the wild game speeding away;
Our noble steed increasing his speed,
At each touch of the spur or fray;
'Til we see the prize before our eyes,
For behold it is brought to bay,
And now before us panting lies,
We have won, hurrah! hurrah!! hurrah!!!

American Coursing Club.

GREAT BEND, KANSAS, Sept. 16th, 1890.

Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting of the American Coursing Club held at the rooms of the club in Great Bend, Kansas, on the evening of October 20th, 1890, for the purpose of nominating and balloting on application for membership, as prescribed by the By Laws All applications should be handed to the Secretary at once.

IRA D. BROUGHER, Secretary.
GREAT BEND, KANSAS.

House and Pet Dogs.

A neat little book bearing the above title has just been issued by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company of New York.

It is handsomely and profusely illustrated by numerous cuts, presenting portraits of all of the more valuable species of this faithful animal, in an artistic manner. The contents of the work has been carefully prepared, and will prove of value to all interested in such matters. The choice of house dogs, care, feeding and training of pets, and other kindred subjects form the gist of the work. Price, in paper, 50 cents.

Coursing.

The best day's coursing that has been had at Ocean View since it was opened as a Coursing Park came off on Sunday last. The attraction was a twelve dog stake, $5 entrance. The hares were above the average in point of speed and endurance, and some rattling good courses were had, notably those between Catherine Hayes and Laurelwood, and Whip and the latter. The course between Sam Nash and Playboy was also a rattler. There were several dogs from San Jose present, and altogether the meeting was a most enjoyable one. The following were the results:

First ties—James Wren's Playboy beat T. J. McHugh's Seashell, T. J. Cronin's Sam Nash beat M. Tiernan's Catherine Hayes, James McDonald's Laurelwood beat J. E. Hill's Tom, James Wren's Whip beat P. F. Canovan's Examiner, T. J. Cronin's Katherine beat J. Redmaker's Al Farrow, P. F. Canovan's Ben Or ran a tie.

Second ties—Sam Nash beat Playboy, Whip beat Laurel wood, Kathleen beat Ben Or.

Final—Sam Nash beat Whip, leaving only Mr. Cronin's two dogs in for first and second money, $40, Whip taking third money, $8.

The grounds at Ocean View are a trifle too small for good coursing, it being more like chasing a cat around a kitchen than legitimate work.

On Thanksgiving Day the Occidental Club will hold its first meeting of the season at Newark, and fine sport may be looked forward to. The members who own dogs (and none are allowed to run but those owned by members) have their dogs already in training for the occasion. Last year the meetings of the club were the most enjoyable features of coursing near home.

Regent Dead.

That very handsome and well bred English setter dog Regent, owned by John DeVaull, Esq., of this city, died on Sunday morning last of old age. He was of the most fashionable breeding, being by Royal Duke (Carlowitz—True) out of Gift (Rob Roy—Pickles). Regent had a checkered career. Dr. Rowe, of the American Field was one of the first Americans to take up the English setter for field purposes, and one of his earliest crosses was to breed his beautiful black, white and tan Gift, to Royal Duke, a splendid three-quarter Laverach, owned by Wm. Demuth at Storm Lake, Iowa. Regent was one of the litter, and was bought when a puppy by a Mr. Elmore, of Milwaukee Wis., and brought to California. At first the dog, which was then about a year and a half old, was not appreciated, having his lot cast among men who had been used to the common mongrel which usually infests new lands such as California then was in respect to well bred dogs. As knowledge increased, however, Regent was more highly estimated, until he passed into Mr. DeVaull's hands. The latter showed him at the dog shows, and he was in demand at stud. Some of his progeny have shown great field merit, and all have been of fine form and great beauty. Regent was a big dog, of grand form, beautiful color, black, white and tan, coat and markings. He was as fast in the field as a ghost, but wholly uncontrollable. No day was too long for him, nor did several days' work quench his spirit. He was a gentle, affectionate companion, and in the household of Mr. DeVaull was quite the monarch. He had reached the span allotted to dogs, having been born in 1879.

The Ottawa bench show is now in progress, and will continue during the week. Mr. H. W. Lacy, of New York, is judging.

Mr. Watson's greyhound bitch, Mollie Bawn, threw a litter of ten pups last week, to Saturday Night. There were five dogs and five bitches, all black and white. Mr. Watson drowned two of them.

Mr. William Cairnes showed us his Point—Queen Croxteth puppy on Monday last, and we could not but be pleased with the fine quality, great substance and exceeding brightness of the well sized youngster.

Mr. William Schreiber's pointer, Sall, which was to have been sent to Mr. Edward Dexter's Rip Rap, at The Charlotte Kennels, Lynchs, Va., has come in use so that she cannot be sent until December next.

Mr. H. A. Bassford's pointer by Tom Pinch—Galatea will be reserved for his owner's shooting and not go in the field trials. He is a fine looking dog and shows extra good nose. Perhaps lacking in speed for public competition but a grand dog for a gentleman to shoot over.

At the Detroit Bench Show, held during the first week of this month, we notice that Miss Anna Whitney, of Lancaster, Mass., awarded the first prize, in the Pug's Challenge Class, to Bob Ivy over Lord Nelson. People differ in their judgment of dogs as well as on other matters.

In the recent death of Dr George B. Ayers of Omaha, the kennel loses one of its most active and progressive devotees. He was surgeon of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and stood at the head of his profession, yet he found time and took great pleasure in the breeding of mastiffs, of which his Waconta Kennel contained some splendid animals.

The climate at this point is of a nature to render the breeding of dogs feasible in the highest degree. It has often been noted that the excessive heat of the interior has had a most depressing effect, evidenced by the diminution in the size of litters numerically, as well as in that of structure and vitality of the puppies.

Mr. S. L. Boggs has sold his interest in the Mt. Washington Kennel to Mr. Joseph Lewis, of Canonsburg, Pa. This includes the famous English setter, Paul Gladstone, and numerous other valuable animals. Mr. Boggs has removed to Salt Lake and we may expect to hear of his awakening a new interest there.

Baron von Schroeder's splendid pointer Point (Vandevorts Don—Drab) is incapacitated for field work by reason of asthma or emphysema. He cannot endure fast work, nor can he stay long. He was the dog of his year, being a double field trial winner, and in the opinion of many experts, the best all around dog ever seen in California. Baron von Schroeder is most generous with the dog, and it is probable he will be much sought after at stud.

Not having tried it ourselves, we cannot say whether the remedy would prove efficacious which the editor of the kennel department of the Poultry Bulletin (America) gives in the August number of his paper. A German employee recommended to the editor's friend salt for distemper. The friend had no faith, but having a finely bred setter pup in the last stages of distemper that he knew must die anyway, he thought to try it. The dog was lying before the kitchen fire so weak he could hardly raise himself up. He gave him a teaspoonful of salt. It set him to vomiting, and, strange to say, he began to improve from that time on, and became a fine large dog. Should any of our readers try this remedy we would be glad to hear the result.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I was surprised to see that you should state that a "dropper" was the best dog for all-round shooting and rough work. What droppers could stand to work with such dogs as a Lassie, Point, Old Black Joe, Shot or Patti M. Surely not the far-famed "droppers" "You Nip" or Streeton's "Joe?" GEO. T. ALLENDER.

[Mr. Allender hits us hard, but not with such deadly effect as though we had not a parry. In our absence the paragraph was inserted wholly without our knowledge, and, it need not be said, very much to our chagrin when we saw it. After years of advocacy of pure breeding in all breeds, it would be singular if we should recommend corruption of the blood of the very breeds in which purity is most essential to value. A dropper is a thing we have no use for. Occasionally a dropper shows some field quality, but usually the praises of droppers are sounded by men who know nothing of the performances of really well bred animals. We are sorry the item appeared, and disclaim it utterly.—KEN. ED.]

THE TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$11,000 GUARANTEED $11,000

FOR

Trotting Foals of 1890.

$5,000 to First; $2,500 to Second; $1,500 to Third; $1,000 to Fourth; and $1,000 to the breeder of the Winner, in money or plate, at the option of said breeder.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Entrance

Payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for Starters, payable August 1, 1894.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11,000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Conditions.

Nominators will be required to state name, color and sex of foal; also to give the names of the sire, the dam, and the sire of the dam, when known; also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nomtuated.

No nomination will be received unless the first payment of $10 accompanies the same.

Nominations are only liable for the first payment, but failure to make any of the subsequent payments, when due, shall be considered a withdrawal, with forfeiture of former payments.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the finest and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three-year-old in 2:12.

The above PURSE is given and all of its provisions guaranteed by the VIGO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY of Terre Haute, Ind.

Nominations to be made on or before NOVEMBER 1st, 1890, and addressed to

BEST HARROW EVER INVENTED.

It has stoping chisel, shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630; who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Gorris's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price list. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

GLENBROOK PARK RACES.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 25TH.

Judges, J. M. Walling, E. O. Tompkins and J. Montgomery. Timers, M. C. Hogan and N. Searle.

The attendance was much better than on the previous days, the stock parade in the morning drawing a goodly number of agriculturists, while the three races in the afternoon still further increased the attendance. The first race in the afternoon had four starters, C. Wheeler's Lady Turner, W. F. Smith's Balance All, C. F. Taylor's Ida D. and A. Herold's Duke Cameo. Balance All was made favorite, but Lady Turner proved the winner, having a shade too much pace all the way through, while Duke Cameo although only a three year old trotted very well, and had he been a little steadier would probably have won. The second race for saddle horses had three entries, C. Sherman's No Name was ridden by Miss Miller, and had it not been for the warm up she would probably have won but her horse was pumped out before the race began. The mile and an eighth was supposed by the talent to be a certainty for Fannie F. who had only Wild Oats to beat which she did with ease, being in front and going well within herself all the way.

First heat. Pools sold rapidly at $10 for Balance All, $5 for Lady Turner and $2 for the field. The word was given the tenth time up—after ordering the quartette to score by Cameo, instead of Lady Turner who had the pole. Lady Turner and Ida went away quickest, but Ida broke after going seventy yards and swerved in front of Balance All, while Lady Turner went on, passing the quarter two lengths in front of Cameo, three lengths in front of Balance All. Cameo broke and ran hard while Balance trotted steadily and went up to Lady Turner at the half and with the latter breaking went round the turn three lengths in front and going easily round the turn won handily by two lengths, Cameo three lengths in front of Lady Turner, and Ida a bad fourth. Time, 2:37¼. Mutuals paid $14.25.

Second heat. Pools sold $10 Balance All to $5 for the field.

The word was given the first time up, Lady Turner going away well took the pole on the turn and passed the quarter two lengths in front of Balance All, three lengths in front of Cameo, four in front of Ida D. Balance broke all to pieces and was passed by Cameo who was up and down a couple of times before the half which Lady Turner passed five lengths in front of Cameo, two lengths in front of Balance. Cameo went almost up to Lady Turner on the turn and came into the stretch two lengths behind and three in front of Balance who closed up fast in the stretch, and when Cameo broke at the distance Balance went up to Lady Turner, but leaving her feet before the wire lost by a head. Cameo close up third and Ida D. distanced. Time, 2:40. Mutuals paid $14.25.

Third heat—The driver of Cameo who was 47 pounds overweight was replaced by Taylor. A few pools were sold at $10 Balance All to $5 for the field. A start was effected the second time up. Balance broke before the turn and Lady Turner went round the turn with Cameo at her wheel and Balance four lengths back. Cameo broke a couple of times but passed the half a length behind Lady Turner with Balance three lengths back. When the stretch was reached Balance All broke again, and Cameo got to Lady Turner's head, but left his feet just before the wire and Lady Turner took the heat with Balance third. Time, 2:39½. Mutuals paid $20.35.

Fourth heat—No pools sold. The word was given the second time up. Balance All trotting very steadily went to the front on the turn, passing the quarter a length in front of Turner, two lengths in front of Cameo, who broke just after the quarter and Turner followed suit, Balance when five lengths in front also broke, and when all were down again Balance had a length lead of Cameo, seven lengths in front of Turner. The order was unchanged until half way up the stretch when Cameo broke and Balance won cleverly by two lengths, Cameo three lengths in front of Turner. Time, 2:41¼. Mutuals paid $8.55.

Fifth heat—No pools sold as the running mile and an eighth engsged the attention of bettors. After coming up five times the word was given. Balance broke before the turn and Cameo took the lead, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Turner with Balance four lengths back. The order was unchanged to the head of the stretch when Balance passed Turner who broke, Cameo, however, won cleverly by three lengths, Balance two lengths in front of Turner. Time, 2:37. Mutuals paid $8.55.

Sixth heat—No pools sold. The word was given the second time up. Balance broke on the first turn and Cameo and Turner trotting together like a team passed the quarter ten lengths in front, and keeping together went down the back stretch and round the turn twelve lengths in front. Turner broke in the turn, but catching handily had a length the best of it at the head of the stretch, and trotting steadily won cleverly by a length, Cameo ten lengths in front of Balance. Time, 2:38. Mutuals paid $7 10.

FRIDAY.

Judges—J. M. Walling, M. C. Hogan and J. Pierce. Timers—E. O. Tompkins, C. Sherman and H. Searle.

The attendance at the Park all day was by far the best of the week. In the morning the Ladies' Tournament drew quite a gathering of the fair sex to the track, and after the usual exercises the equestriennes were called up in front of the judges' stand, and the prizes awarded. Miss Mary Miller, Grass Valley, who rode unsuccessfully in the saddle horse race the previous day, was placed first; Miss D. Robinson second, Miss Carey third. Miss Ida Cole fourth, Miss Mattie George, Miss Katie Brown, and Miss Annie Moyle equal fifth.

When the afternoon races began, the grand stand was packed with eager spectators, while the inside of the track was lined for two hundreds with carriages. The first race, trotting, had three starters: G. F. Jacob's Sidney J.; J. Cochrane's Maud H. and G. Prowse's Harry Velox, the latter, who six years ago obtained a record of 2:24½, was dead lame, and was shut out in the first heat, after which Sidney J. wound it up, obtaining a record of 2:30 in the fourth heat.

The district yearling trot, contrary to expectation, was won by General, who proved much steadier than his opponent. The Nevada County horse race was a gift for Glenbrook, who won both heats in easy style.

First heat—Pools sold with Maud H. choice, but weight of money forced Sidney to the front, and the last pools sold Sidney J. $15, Velox $6 and Maud H. $5. Velox had the pole, but was too slow for the others, and when the word was given, dropped back, and going very lame behind, was soon a distance out. Maud had two lengths lead at the quarter, and though she broke a couple of times on the backstretch, she went round the upper turn a length in front, and won the heat after a light finish by a head, Harry Velox distanced. Time, 2:31. Mutuals paid $9.75.

Second heat—Pools sold $10 Sidney to $5 Maud H. The word was given the third time up. Sidney J. left his feet at once, but only lost a length, and Maud passed the quarter a length in front, but Sidney, going very steadily, got to her head half way down the backstretch, and carrying her to a break, went past, and trotting very steadily, was never headed, winning cleverly by a length. Time, 2:31. Mutuals paid $6.75.

Third heat—No pools sold. The word was given the first time, and both went away together to the turn, when Sidney broke and Maud passed the quarter two lengths in front. Sidney trotted fast down the backstretch and caught Maud at the half, and despite a break, turned into the homestretch a length in front, and won the heat by two lengths. Time, 2:32. Mutuals paid $7.10.

Fourth heat—No pools sold. Sidney J. went away in front, and never headed, won easily by four lengths. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid $6.30.

M'Liss got up to him at the half but broke again and General was three lengths in front when she caught and going very steady retained his lead into the homestretch, and with the filly breaking again won handily by two lengths. SATURDAY.

The closing day of the races was highly successful in every way, the stock parade in the morning proving a drawing card while in the afternoon almost as good a gathering was to be found as on the preceding day. Two races were on the programme, the first a purse of $300 for named horses had

Sargent, Maud H, Dinah and the pacer Geo. Wapple, the latter was distanced in the first heat and Sargent had an easy thing winning in straight heats. The second race had three named horses in it and after Lady Turner won the first heat Waite who was 47 lbs. overweight and had a hundred pounds sulky allowed Taylor to drive Cameo and the three year old trotted in much improved form taking the second, third and fourth heats.

First heat.—Pools sold rapidly at $10 for Sargent to $3 for Maud and $6 for the field. The word was given the second time Dinah was very unsteady breaking twice on the turn and Sargent passed the quarter a length in front of Maud with Dinah three lengths back, and Wapple five further in the rear. Sargent increased his lead all the way round winning the heat easily by ten lengths Maud H second and Dinah a bad third, Wapple distanced. Time 2:30½. Mutuals paid $7.45.

Second heat Pools sold slowly, $10 for Sargent to $5 for the field. A start was effected the second time up, Sargent at once drew out having two lengths the best of it on the turn and increasing his lead all the way round won easily by six lengths from Maud with Dinah just inside the flag. Time 2:28. Mutuals paid $6.75.

Third heat.—No pools sold. Jas. Linden was put up behind Maud H and A. Tietjens behind Dinah. After a long tedious scoring the bell was rung with Maud behind; Sargent on the inside had two lengths lead at the quarter and Dinah who was second broke running a hundred yards, when she caught Sargent drew away passing the half ten lengths in front of Dinah, the same distance in front of Maud H, Sargent trotting very steadily increased his lead all the way winning easily by half a distance from Dinah with Maud just inside. Time 2:31. Mutuals paid $7.60.

Time, 2:30½, 2:28, 2:31.

First heat—Pools sold readily at $10 for Lady Turner, $6 for Cameo and $4 for Balance. The driver of Cameo was 47 lbs. overweight. A start was effected the fifth time. Balance left her feet at once; Lady Turner and Cameo going on together passed the quarter four lengths in front and, despite a break or two, Cameo was level at the half, three lengths in front of Balance. Cameo broke all to pieces just before reaching the stretch, and Balance, driven out, never quite got up to Lady Turner, who won by half a length, Cameo four lengths back. Time, 2:37¼. Mutuals paid $8.30.

Second heat—Taylor was put up behind Cameo, and pools sold readily at $10 for the field to $6 for Turner. The word was given the second time up. Cameo and Lady Turner set the pace to the turn, when the three year old broke, but only lost a length, and trotting very fast, was half a length behind at the quarter, and going right past was six lengths in front at the half, and keeping his feet, won cleverly by two lengths, Turner two lengths in front of Balance. Time, 2:39½. Mutuals paid $6.75.

Third heat—Pools changed completely, Cameo selling for $10 to $5 for the field. A start was effected after half a dozen attempts. Cameo going well away led two lengths round the turn and increased his lead to five lengths at the half, with Turner three lengths in front of Balance. Cameo turned into the homestretch three lengths in front of Lady Turner, who closed gradually, and getting to Cameo's neck at the drawgate, the latter broke and ran under the wire a neck in front, Balance All three lengths back Time, 2:39. Mutuals paid $6.75,

Fourth heat—Pools sold rapidly at $10 for Cameo to $3 for the field. The bell was tapped the second time up, Cameo, trotting very steadily, went clear away from the other two, passing the quarter five lengths in front of Balance, just clear of Lady Turner, and going right on, won the heat, pulling up six lengths in front of Balance, a head in front of Turner. Time, 2:40. Mutuals paid $5.70.

The Fair, taking all in all may be said to have been very successful, and the energetic Directors say that next year they hope to have a much more successful one, for their programme will be out early, and they will take great pains not to clash with other meetings. The pavilion exhibit was one of the best in the State. Fruit of all kinds and grasses of almost every variety were exhibited and were to be seen in luxuriant growth outside, while the mineral exhibit of the pioneer mining country was a credit to the whole State, worth crossing the continent to see.

John L. Spears, aged 40, a trotting horse breeder near Lexington, committed suicide last Friday at his home with a shotgun, the charge tearing away the left side of his head. His brother George killed himself in Missouri a few years ago; another brother killed his father while the latter was crazy and trying to kill him, and a sister is in an asylum for the insane located at Lexington.

The Fair at Santa Barbara.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 23, 1890.

FIRST DAY.

It must be admitted that Santa Barbara has been always considered a slow town for equine sports, but in the future it will be the liveliest place on the southern coast. The county of Santa Barbara has advanced so rapidly within the last two years, and this fair has been such a grand success, that in the future the county fair of Santa Barbara will be looked to with great expectations; for the horses in the county have improved so rapidly in speed, and the stock is so far better bred, that next year the two and three-year olds raised in the county will be so superior to those of this year, that everybody expects to see fast records made next year.

Ventura county is rapidly coming to the front. The horses brought from there, by that skillful and most popular driver, James Mack, are well bred and show great expectations. The horses in his string showed to great advantage, for they are all square, level-headed and game. The horses show that a patient, kind and skillful master has guided them to victory. The horses that James brought with him, are horses that have been crippled and put away as "hack numbers," and he has nursed and trained them till they he made whole, and able to fight for position. The three horses entered by him won their races, and two of them were desperately contested from the start to the finish. Mr. Mack is the driver and trainer of the popular stock farm of Santa Paula in Ventura County. In this farm they have fashionably bred stallions and mares, and under his able management, the horses from this farm will make a reputation.

The first day of our fair had for a programme a drawing card. There were two thousand people at the track, and Judge Malone, of San Francisco, officiated as judge, with the assistants. It is the popular opinion that Mr. Malone was most avidious to please all, and he watched each heat most conscientously, and protected jealously the rights of each horse and driver. His rulings in every case were most satisfactory. The people of Santa Barbara are enthusiastic and most generous when they see that the judge in the stand is determined to protect the honest driver and the true race horse.

The first race was called at 2 P. M. It was a half-mile and and repeat, free for all, in which appeared Comet, Sid Law and Bell. Pools sold very lively, $1,000 went into the pool box; Comet $10, Sid Law and Bell selling in the field for $6. The horses acted so well, that it did not take the starter but a few minutes to start them to a most even "Go." Comet took the lead immediately, Sid Law running one length behind, and Bell two behind Sid Law. The horses reached the quarter in 0:24, and Comet running easily. When the horses reached the three eighths post, Comet drew away and won handily. Sid Law two lengths behind, Bell a fair third. Time, 0:49¾. After this heat Comet sold for $20, field for $5, and a great deal of money went into the pool box at these odds.

When the horses came ont for the second dash, half mile, Comet was cheered by the Santa Maria boys, and Juan Arrellane, the owner of Comet, looked proud and happy. The second heat was a repetition of the first, Comet winning handily, Sid Law a good second, Bell third. Time, 0:50.

Comet has made a grand record for himself this year. He is a great horse, and can run with the fastest. David Sheehan, the popular trainer, is in the city to witness the races, and he offered to wager $1,000, that in three months he would run Comet a half mile in 0.47¼ and repeat in 0:48, and run him three-eighths in 1:01, and three-quarters in 1:14 Comet's dam was by a son of Belmont: 2d dam by Belmont.

The second race was the Breeders' Stakes, which closed with thirteen entries. The following yearlings started, half mile and repeat: Harry Stamboul, Bashaw Jr, Excelsior, Lottery and White Cloud. In the auction pools Excelsior sold for $15, Harry Stamboul $10, White Cloud $6, field, $4. The youngsters were driven to the half mile post for a start It was surprising and most praiseworthy to see them act so like racehorses with no bad qualities. At the fourth attempt the colts were sent off to a good start. Harry Stamboul immediately took the lead. All the colts trotted well, and when the quarter post was reached Stamboul was two lengths ahead, Bashaw Jr. trotting well, and the rest strung out. Harry Stamboul won the heat handily, Lottery second, Bashaw Jr. third. Time, 1:46½. No pools could be sold. After the legal recess between heats the youngsters again faced the starter Harry immediately took the lead, and was never headed, winning handily, Bashaw Jr. second, Lottery third. Time, 1:43½. The winner is a most handsome yearling by the famous Stamboul 2:12¼. He has a beautiful way of going and is a most willing and steady youngster. It is not saying too much that as a two year old he will trot in 2:30. Menchaca broke him and trained him five weeks.

When the third race was called the crowd hung around the pool box, and $3,000 went in on this race. The starters were: Tommy Beach, Red W, Neva, Black Pilot, Sleepy Sam, Munroe and Biddy Toole. B. Pilot sold for $10, Munroe $8, and the field $6. James Mack was behind Pilot and Pete Doyle behind Monroe. After scoring ten times the horses were sent away to a good start. Munroe took the lead, closely followed by Neva and Pilot They reached the first quarter in :44. Red W made a run and caught the leader, and when they reached the hal in 1.24, Munroe, Pilot, Red W and Neva were in a bunch. Tommy Beach was close on to them. Around the second turn Neva broke, Munroe and Pilot trotting well together. Pilot made a hard finish with Munroe, but the bay stallion beat him out in 2:45¾, Neva third.

After this heat Pilot sold for $15, Munroe for $15 and the field for $5. When the horses came out for the second heat it was getting late. After the horses scored six times an accident happened which might have proved most fatal. Pete Doyle's horse that had the pole swerved and crowded Pilot out, so that Pilot's sulkey locked with Neva's. Had Neva's driver rushed ahead instead of pulling up there would have been no damage, but he stiffed Neva so quickly that his axle was broken square off. Neva's driver, Mr. Rucker, rolled out, but he held his horse, while Black Pilot run into the inner fence, threw Mack almost on his back, the horse, sulky and man went over the fence and then back. It was a desperate struggle. The horse fought viciously to get away from his driver, but Mack's nerve and superior strength saved the sulky, horse and himself. He was all scared up and exhausted and so was the horse. After an interval of ten minutes the horses were brought out and even started. Munroe took the lead and kept it till he reached the half in 1:20, Pilot second, Red W., who had run a great deal third and Neva fourth. Around the last turn Pilot was on Munroe's wheel and so they trotted till they reached the home-stretch. Pilot was then on even terms with Munroe. Both drivers made a fight and well did they drive, but Pilot had more speed and he won by a half length in 2:39½, Long Beach third, Neva fourth.

The third heat was won handily by Munroe. He took the lead immediately and reached the first quarter in :41, the half in 1:20 and finished in 2:38½, Pilot second, Long Beach third. The race was then postponed till the next day. In the evening it was said that Pilot would be so sore that he might not be started. Munroe sold for $20 and the field for $8.

SECOND DAY, WEDNESDAY, SEPT 24TH.

The largest crowd of the week attended on the second day. Fully five thousand people were present. The unfinished trot was called promptly at 2 P. M. Black Pilot was sore, but Doyle scored so many times that Pilot warmed out of his soreness and when the word was given Pilot was a good horse. He immediately took a lead and when he reached the quarter in :40 he was half a length ahead of Munroe. On the back stretch Munroe made a break and Pilot was soon four lengths ahead and the reached the half in 1:21. Munroe settled down and Pete drove him with all his might. At the three quarter post Pilot was but a length behind, when the home stretch was reached. Munroe was on his wheel; a desperate, hard fought finish, Pilot winning by a short neck in 2:39½.

Pilot had two heats and Munroe two. Slopy Sam was distanced. The fifth heat was fought all the way round by Munroe and Pilot, but a bad break for Munroe lost him the heat and race. The stallion Black Pilot that won the race is a very handsome black, 4 years old, by Sultan, dam Highland Maid by Arthurton. Pilot is crippled and was purchased by the Santa Paula Driving Association for breeding purposes and it was not their attention to drive the stallion in a race, but John Mack worked him along slowly and the horse went so well that he was started in the 3 minute class. It was a great triumph for the horse to win, as he was a cripple before the race, and during the race he met with an accident. Pilot's and Mack's friends were so elated over the race that they took him from the sulky and on their shoulders bore the successful driver to the judges' stand.

Mr. Ferguson will locate permanently in Santa Barbara, and those who have well bred and fast horses should make arrangement with him before his stables are full.

The next race was for two-year-old trotting colts. The starters were Emory, Phœnix and Nellie. Pools sold Emory $10 the other two $3

The horses were soon started. Emory took the lead and trotted around without a skip, Phœnix on his wheel all the way around, Nellie a good third. Emory won in 2:59¼.

THIRD DAY, THURSDAY, SEPT. 25, 1890.

An immense crowd went on the third day. It was a dark, close day, and imminent clouds lingered on the coast mountains. When the stallion race was called, the boys from Lompoc became boisterous and jubilant. They had been unsuccessful, but on this race they were certain that Bashaw would make them winners. They had placed all their money on him, and they thought that Rosewall or Dan Patricio could never head him. Auction pools sold, Bashaw $20, field $14. When Bashaw came on the track the Lompocers made themselves hoarse; they had had too much horse.

When it was seen that James Mack was to drive Bashaw, the boys offered to bet two to one. The horses came for the word Bashaw did not show his usual speed, and Rosewall came up at a 2:20 gait. At the fourth attempt the horses were sent away. Dan Patricio stepped on his quarter, and almost stood still. Bashaw seemed to step into a hole and broke all up. Rosewall reached the first quarter ten lengths ahead in :41, to the half in 1:20. Bashaw recovered himself and trotted fast. But Rosewall had a lead of twenty lengths. Rosewall won the heat, Bashaw second, Dan Patricio distanced. This heat made no change in the betting. Bashaw was up for the second heat, with Pete Doyle behind him. James Mack was too exhausted to drive. Rosewall showed great speed scoring. The horses were sent away to a most even start. They trotted like a double team, reaching the first quarter in :38. On the backstretch Bashaw made an awkward break; Rosewall reached the half in 1:16, five lengths ahead, and he never got closer to Rosewall, who ran in a jog in 2:38½

The third heat Bashaw showed up much better. Rosewall scored at a 2:18. The word was soon given, and off went the horse at a most rapid gait. The two stallions trotted like a double team. To the first quarter they went in 0:39, to the half in 1.61.7. There was not a head's difference all the way round; never a skip made by either horse, and after an easy finish, for Rosewall, Bashaw won the heat by six inches. Time, 2.32¾. The Lowpocers were too jubilant, their jollity made them more hilarious than hayseeds generally get on a race track.

The fourth heat was finally called. Rosewall seemed mad at something. He seemed to know that his driver was not letting him go as fast as Rosewall wanted to go. The two horses went to the first quarter in 0:39. The next quarter they went very fast, but at the three-eighths post Bashaw gave it up, and Rosewall reached the half in 1:14. When Rosewall reached the homestretch Bashaw was more than a distance behind. Delaney held his horse in, and came under the wire almost on a walk in 2:22¾.

Rosewall could have gone a "merry mile," and it is to be regretted that Bashaw was in no condition to force Rosewall to finish a mile in 2:26 or better. Rosewall is as fine a scorer as one ever saw come up for the word.

The horses were a long time getting off, but when they were off they went like the wind, Comet cutting out the pace, closely followed by Othello, Moses B. and Bell running easily six lengths behind. They reached the first quarter in 0:24½ seconds, the three-eighths in 0:37¼, the half in 0;50 and the three-quarters in 1:16¾; Comet four lengths ahead of Othello, and Moses B. third, Bell fourth.

Then came the 2:40 trot, in which started Leon, Tony Beach, Miss Monroe, Cyclone and Dewdrop. Cyclone sold for $10, Miss Monroe for $8 and field for $6. This was a good race. Miss Monroe took the lead from the start, and she was never headed, winning as she pleased in 2:42, Leon second, Dewdrop third, Cyclone fourth.

The second heat was won by Cyclone, Miss Monroe second, Leon third, Dewdrop fourth.

FOURTH DAY, FRIDAY, SEPT. 26TH.

Friday night it rained, and Friday all morning. It was a poor day for racing, still there was a good crowd present to see the horses trot and run in the mud. The unfinished trot was called, and the heat was won easily by Cyclone, Miss Monroe second, Leon third, Dewdrop fourth.

The next heat was exciting. Miss Monroe was a head at the first one-eighths, but she soon went to pieces. Cyclone took the lead. On the backstretch Cyclone broke, and so did Miss Monroe. Cyclone crawled up rapidly, and when they struck the homestretch the three were together. Miss Monroe broke again, and Leon made one of the finest finishes imaginable. Mr. Carson, behind Leon, drove him for all that he was worth. Leon came in a head in the lead, but the heat was given to Cyclone, who won the race over which there was so much jealousy.

The next race was for the bangtails. It was a mile and repeat. Auction pools sold Sid $20, Othello $20, Moses B. $10. But before the start the betters ran the sorrel Moses B. favorite till he brought $20, Othello $16, Sid $12. Othello had developed a quarter and Menchoca his trainer, who had worked assidiously to have him in prime condition for this race, was sadly disappointed. The mud was 3 inches deep and very slippery so that Othello refused to run. The first mile was won handily by Moses B. The second heat he won easier.

The next race was a three quarter mile dash for 2 year olds in which started, Birdie N and Black Bart. Birdie N sold for $10 and Black Bart $4.

It was a walk over for Birdie N. She won easily in 1:24¾. What the result would have been if Black Bart had not run away before the race, is doubtful, as Black Bart was a good colt. But he ran fully a mile with his rider before the race.

It seems unkind and ungrateful that the gods should interfere with the race just as the fast horses were preparing for a hard struggle. Had it not rained Friday and Saturday the free-for-all trotters were going to have a hot race Saturday. Ed Nick's Nigger Baby and Rosewall would have made a lively race. The fastest heat would have been trotted in 2:23 or faster.

Henry Delaney is a young man who is well liked in the county. He took Rosewall in August and drove him in five races, meeting such campaigners as Ed 2:26, Alpheus 2:27, Fred Arnold and others and he defested them all. Rosewall is as game a stallion as ever trotted, and he is the best scorer in the Southern county. Next year he will trot in 2:20, and he can trot ten heats and all about in the same notch. Mr. Delany will locate here permanently and he will have his hands full, for he is honest, keeps his own counsel and attends to his horses with that care and judgment that is "bound" to win in the long run. The secret of his success is honesty, hard work and faithfulness, and he keeps assistance in whom he can depend. He placed Rosewall in the 2:30.

Ventura was well represented during the Fair. L. J. Rose, Jr., was here and was proud of the get of the great stallion Sultan. Tom Chintman was here also, and watched the races closely. He speaks highly of Comet, and as he is a horseman it means a great deal. J. B. Paulin of Ventura, owner of Dewdrop witnessed every race. J. M. Kaiser, Willoughby, J. G. Hill, Jake Greis, Hobson Brothers, and J. Begs were enthusiastic in their predilections for the Ventura horses. Cap Harris, DeNise, Hathaway, Jim Wickenden, Juan Arullanes, Comer, and others of Los Alamos made it lively. J. M. Rochin played the races with his usual luck, but his favorite sport is a "donkey race," as they say here, "Burra."

The Lakeport Races.

THIRD DAY, SEPTEMBER 25TH.

The first event on the programme for the third day of the Lakeport races was the unfinished stallion race, four heats of which had been trotted on the day previous. Snr Del was allowed to be withdrawn, consequently only the other two contestants started. Milton R. had little or no trouble in winning the concluding heat in 2:39.

The first regular race on the programme for the day was a dash of a quarter of a mile, the starters being Lulu B, Fox and Hobo. Lulu B. had things all her own way and won as she pleased in 23 seconds.

The two-year-old trot was next scheduled; those coming to the wire being Starlight, Belle Emet and Renben. Starlight won the first and third heats in 3:13½ and 2:55, Belle Emet taking the second heat in 2:56½. The old veteran, Capt. Ben. E. Harris, of San Francisco, was up behind Starlight, and after the race, was heartily congratulated for his victory.

The races of the day concluded with a match arranged between the owners of Fresno Buck and Zilla. The contestants got off to a very even start, but Fresno Buck was evidently in better condition than the other, for he at once went to the front and won by three open lengths in 24½ seconds.

FOURTH DAY, SEPT. 26TH.

The attendance was large to-day, the weather exquisite and the track fast. The first event on the card was a running race, five-eighths of a mile and repeat, which was won by Inkerman, second choice in the pool selling. This is a young colt owned by Mr. Sanbern or Santa Rosa and gives promise of being able to be a bread winner. As was expected Leatherwood was a prime favorite but in the first heat Inkerman beat him by a length. Time. 1:03½.

In the second heat the favorite went off in the lead and maintained his position very readily notwithstanding Hooker made play for him in the stretch, but the latter fell away so perceptibly after the short spurt that he was distanced, Leatherwood winning the heat with Inkerman second in 1:04½.

In the third heat quite a catastrophe occurred. The railings on the outside of the track only extend about a hundred yards each way from the stand, and when Leatherwood seemed to have the race well in hand, he swerved, struck the upper end of the fence and ran a piece of timber in his breast, he fell, throwing his rider and Inkerman came home in a canter. Time. 1:05.

The free for all trotting purse had three starters, they being Captor, Patty P. and Lady Blanche. Captor sold in the pools at $5 while the field brought $3. The favorite had the foot of the party and won as he pleased in three straight heats; Lady Blanche being distanced in the first.

LAST DAY OF THE FAIR.

The attendance was very large; the track good, but the betting very light. The judges for the day were Messrs. Keeting, Aby and Mewinne.

The first on the programme was a Novelty Race, running, for gentlemen riders; one mile. Fox, ridden by Mr. O'Farrell, broke away in the lead and was never headed, winning by twelve lengths. Johnny Mack second, Zilla third, Fresno Buck fourth, and Sally H fifth. Time, 1:59.

Next came the Ladies' Tournament. Eight ladies mounted on spirited horses came on the track, escorted by Dr. Aby. They paraded by fours, next by twos and singly. The riding of Miss Ada Higgins and Miss Tolman showed great equestrienneship, and after the ladies had all displayed their skill, the judges awarded Miss Higgins first prize, Miss Tolman second, and Mrs. Redwine third.

The last event of the day was a special trot between Van and Sunset for a purse of $50. In the first heat Sunset broke just after the word was given, and Van led by three lengths to the wire. Time, 2;39¾.

In the next heat Sunset went off in the lead, but again broke; he quickly recovered and the pair trotted like a double team to the three-quarter pole, where Van broke, Sunset gaining a lead of two lengths and won by that distance. Time, 2:40¾.

Sunset won the next two heats in easy style, winning the race. Time, 2:41 and 2:41½

Sunset is a brown stallion by Anteeo, dam by King Phillip, is a four year old, and promises to make a very fast horse as he is well gaited.

The Fair financially was a success, and horsemen who were there expressed a wish to visit Lakeport again.

Doc Aby was there in great style, driving Freddy Gebhardt's four-in-hand coach. Among prominent horsemen from San Francisco were Capt. Ben E. Harris and Lee Shaner.

Our Tennessee Letter.

GALLATIN, Tenn., Sept. 25th, 1890.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Ill luck seems to attend Palo Alto in his races against time. The great horse has made several ineffectual attempts to lower his record in the past two months, but each time he has labored under disadvantages. At Cincinnati this week he went to the half very easily in 1:06¾, and was moving like a whirlwind but a bad break settled his chances of touching his own best record. He will again try to beat his record at Cincinnati, but Mr. Marvin will find it rather an uphill business beating his record on that track, as it is considered very slow. I am told the horse will be sent to Independence, Iowa, or Kankakee, Illinois, and given a trial over one of the kite-shaped tracks. In this case I expect him to trot considerably faster than his present record, and for him to equal Roy Wilkes fast mile at Independence does by no means seems an impossibility.

Nelson's performance at Kankakee this week on the kite-shaped track shows that the horse from Maine has not lost his speed since the fiasco at Hartford where he and Alcyon were the principals of quite a sensational turf scandal. This week he knocked half a second of 2:12 at Kankakee and the press reports say he could have gone considerably faster. The horse and owner is now under suspension by the National Trotting Association, and consequently is barred from the tracks of that association.

Since the kite shaped track was proven to be so much faster than the oval course, they are all the rage on this side of the Rockies, and not a few new ones are now contemplated to be constructed in the near future. The company recently formed at Nashville to build a trotting track have decided to construct one on the same plan, of the Independence track, and it will be a magnificent course. $40,000 has been subscribed to the new track, and the men backing it can be counted on to do the trotting horse interests in Tennessee full justice by erecting a first class course in every particular. The Association will hold Spring and Fall meetings, and the races will be opened to the world. Nashville, Lexington, Terre Haute, Independence and St. Louis, will form a circuit, and it may be that Memphis will also come into the same circuit. Memphis already has an exceedingly good trotting track, and her fall meeting begins day after to-morrow. This would be a strong circuit, and as each town would make its meetings a success there can hardly be any doubts that it will be formed.

A report gained current recently that the West Side Park Association would be cut up and sold out into town lots. This is a mistake, for the association will next year increase the added money to all its stakes, and new stakes will be opened. The present association has made money, and I am told by one of the directors, that no such thought as cutting the Park up into lots has ever existed among the members of the association. The added money in the Two Thousand will be increased, and after next year it will be worth as much to the winner as the Kentucky Derby. In this case the name of the race will necessarily be changed, as it derives its name through the amount of added money. The Broodmare sweepstakes will also be increased in value, as will several of the other stakes.

Bow Bells, purchased by Mr. May Overton in California, has never started since he has been in Tennessee, which is due to his being injured early in the spring while covering a mare at the Hermitage Stud. He is sure to add another to Beautiful Bells' list or 2:30 performers. When he does start, which I hope will be soon, for he is a great horse, and is ready to go into the list most any day. KENNESAW.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public that he will be prepared to meet his old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

TURF AND TRACK.

Georgs Forbes purchased from Scoggan Bros. the well known three year old mare English Lady; price, $10,000.

G. A. Wheelock, the bookmaker, has purchased the yearling colt by St. Blaise from Perhaps, the dam of Reckon, for $5 000.

J. E. Madden a fortnight ago sold the well known Electioneer mare Suisun to H. S. Henry, Marysville, Pa., price $11,000.

Game old Trouble, once the king of chasers, has been latterly used as to draw the harrow at the Saratoga Track. Such is the end of a racehorse.

The b m Lydia Wilkes, four years, by Red Wilkes—Aileen, by Mambrino Patchen, has been sold by J. B. Perry, Lexington, Ky., to L. A. Ragsdale, Clarksville, Tenn., for $5,000.

August Belmont, the well known racing banker, is said to he wonderfully impressed with Hamilton's capacity as a jockey, and has made the colored jock many valuable presents.

J. D. Creighton, Omaha, Nebraska, has bought for $1,250 from H. Huntington, South Charleston, Ohio, the blk c John Turner, three years, by Director—Lady Salisbury, by Mambrino Patchen.

John E. Madden of Lexington, Ky., has sold his trotting mare Suisun 2:18½ by Electioneer—Susie, by George M. Patchen Jr., to H. L Henry, Morrisonville, Penn. The price is said to be $11 000.

Klamath County, Oregon, has organized a "Blooded Horse Association," and will hold a meeting next year, at which it is expected all the best known thoroughbreds west of the Rockies will compete.

John Goldsmith went direct from Sacramento to Fresno and will have some of his youngsters in shape for the Breeders meeting at Napa. He is now working the yearling from Blanche, dam of Hazel and Una Wilkes.

Conductor, the three-year-old by Electioneer dam Sontag Mohawk, dam of Sallie Benton, Sport and Eros, is the property of Messrs. Miller and Sibley, reduced his record to 2:25¼ in the sixth heat at Cleveland on September 20th.

Margaret S., half in 1:04½, at Sacramento, was exceptionally good when one also considers that the track was not particularly fast, and that she had to come very wide on the turn to avoid the deep going used by the gallopers.

Mr. Seaman, of San Diego, once the owner of the illfated Bell Boy, was one of the visitors at the State Fair, and on Sunday and Monday he drove out to Rancho Del Paso, and expressed himself as being highly delighted with his visit.

Cricket the little pacing wonder has a big splint which bothers her a good deal and though she shows extreme speed is now rather erratic. She was returned last Saturday to her owner, Mr. Meek, and will not be seen on the track again this year.

Bal Gal, by Adventurer out of Cantiniere, who was a very successful two-year-old, winning many a good race under the famous magpie jacket of the late Lord Falmouth, has been recently sold for $10,000 to Mr. Sneyd, a well known English racing man.

There is every reason to believe that Andy McDowell, who has been so successful in the East this year with the Pleasanton Stock Farm's horses, Direct, Cricket, Margaret S. and Katie S., will next season wear the colors of the Montana copper magnate Marcus Daly.

It developed yesterday that there will be no more matinee racing this season at St. Louis, says the Republic. There are over 100 horses yet at the track, and, if rumor is to be believed, the man who has been furnishing the feed owns the majority of the racers.

During the Fair at Oskaloosa Iowa, last week, the grand stand, where about 5,000 people were congregated, caught fire, and in twenty minutes, the whole structure was in flames, and shortly afterwards was a total ruin. The occupants escaped uninjured.

Electra, the dam of Hidalgo, Filz James and others, and Miss Woodford occupy adjacent paddocks in the rear of Mr. Mackey's house at the Arcade Rancho Del Paso. 'The Queen of the turf' is in foal to Sir Modred. Maud Hampton and Explosion share a paddock at 'The Bottom.'

Harry Howard, who trained last season for the Harrison Bros. of Stockton, and was very successful with Hello and others, has gone to the Antrim Stock Farm, Bakersfield, and will get the youthful runners into shape for the Spring Meeting, and may possibly be out this fall with one or two.

Dr. Ross shipped last Monday to San Simeon, five mares which had been bred by Senator Hearst to imported Cheviot. They were Martha F., the dam of Baggage; Evalita by Hock Hocking from Vixen by Saxon; imp. Borbus, a royally bred daughter of Darebin and Sophistina by Brown Bread etc; a chestnut sister to Joe Courtney, (Joe Hooker—Abbi W.)

Mr. Reavis shipped Vic H. to Chico after the State Fair, and will not trot her again. She will be sent East at the head of the long string of Blackbirds, Monroe Chiefs, etc., that Mr. Reavis intends selling in New York this fall, and should sell well with her record of 2:18 and her good campaign.

Buster McConnell went out to Rancho Del Paso during the State Fair, and was so pleased with the looks of his erstwhile pet Albert W. that he asked John Mackey to let him take him for a few months and give him tho mark he is entitled to. The impressible Johnny says 2:15 would not stop him.

In all probability Rancho Del Paso's Electioneer stallion Alaska will be given a record at the Breeders meeting at Napa. The horse has already demonstrated his ability to beat 2:20, Col. Thornton will also send his stallion James Madison a big son of Anteeo well inside thirty, if he is all right then but at present he is suffering from a kick on his near foreleg.

Scott Quintin in a note says: I notice all the papers in reporting sale of the ch f Sappho announce that I bought her for Mr. Daly, of Montana. I wish to state right here that in so doing an injury is done me. I bought her strictly as a business speculation, and she is the sole property of myself and my brother. She has never been described to Mr. Daly that I know of.

The famous pacing sire Tom Hal that died in Tennessee last June, was buried with becoming honors, and his last resting place is marked by an appropriate head stone, on which is the following inscription: "Tom Hal, foaled 1862· died June 5, 1890; Rockdale Stock Farm, Bufords, Tenn. Sire of Brown Hal, 2:12½; Little Brown Jug, 2:11½; Hal Pointer, 2:13."

One of the most conspicuous failures of a high priced colt is that of the bay colt National, by Leonatus, dam Brandoline. He showed remarkable promise last spring, and Tucker & Cherry bought him from the Scoggan Bros. for $7,500. He has started fourteen times under their colors, and only succeeded in capturing a small purse race at Saratoga. In four stake races he was beaten just a head for the first money.

A gentleman representing a French syndicate, who witnessed Nelson's great performance on Saturday of week before last, in beating the world's record of 2:15½, on a half mile track, offered C. H. Nelson $58.000 for the great Maine stallion. The purpose was to take Nelson to Paris, France, and there trot him for a time, after which he would be put into the stud. The offer was refused by Mr. Nelson, who says the horse will remain in Maine.

Onward has put the following sons and daughters in the list this year: Nellie Mason (3), 2:26¼; Susette (4), 2:28; Grit (4), 2:29¾; Elkhorn (3), 2:30; Prelude (3), 2:28¼, and the following grandsons and daughters: Fancy Bess (4), 2:27¼, by Olmedo Wilkes; Vatican (3), 2:27½, by Acolite; Rashleigh, 2:28¼, by Inglewood. This gives Onward 29 in the 2:30 list, and five grandsons and granddaughters—a wonderful showing.

The following "ad" recently appeared in the Liverpool Post: "Will the lady wearing spectacles, who, on Thursday evening, the 7th inst., drove a pony and four-wheeled phaeton, with groom behind, along Halewood road, and injured a valuable saddle horse by not taking her side of the road, kindly get a better pair of glasses and take driving lessons before she ventures out again?"

Lord Lytton, one of the best bred young stallions ever foaled on Maryland soil, dropped dead at Sprankling, on the Harford road, on September 23rd. Lord Lytton was a three year old, sired by the famous Old Orange Blossom, dam Queen Bess, she by Backman's Idol, making the colt a full brother to Garrison 2:25½. Lord Lytton was the property of Mr. William Lanahan, who thought so much of the colt that he refused the offer of $4,200 made some weeks ago.

There were 284 British stallions exported to British North America during the seven months ended July 31, against 446 in 1889, and 163 to other countries, against 349. It would thus appear that the falling off in the foreign demand is chiefly in that from South America and Canada. The total number of horses exported was 6,948, against 6,664 in the corresponding period of last year, and 6,582 in 1888; the value having been £123,831, compared with £429,689 in 1889, and £414,625 in 1888.

Wilber Field Smith made a lucky purchase when he secured Kebir, by Alcazar 2:20½, dam Yerba Santa by Santa Claus 2:17½, granddam Pacific Maid by Elmo 2:27, from L. J. Rose, as the yearling won the Sacramento Colt Stakes at the State Fair in easy fashion, and also won the sweepstakes, $100 added, for the best stallion, any age. Kebir will, if all goes well, trot at the forthcoming Breeders Meeting.

Jackson the five year old stallion by Luke Blackburn from Ivy Leaf was sold at Sacramento to Edward Savage, San Francisco, and though the price was not mentioned it is known that the figure was not large, and for stock purposes he should be valuable, while if he can be made to run true he will be had to beat in any company. Since writing the above, I see that Jones has won a race at Reno with the horse.

Theodore Winters was in Sacramento at the State Fair, and after spending a day at his ranch, left for Reno. Mr. Winters' bad luck seems to stick to him at present for he lost two valuable mares on their way back from New York, and El Rio Rey was again taken sick, and his life is still in danger. Mr. Winters is said to have put a price on all his yearlings, but how much truth there is in it, can't say.

The Trotting Union of Great Britain proposes to pass a rule, to go into effect in January next, providing that no American horses shall be permitted to enter for the races of the union excepting such as have already raced in this country or which are able to produce an American certificate. This important step, it is said, will also be taken by Germany and other trotting countries on the Continent. Mr. Cathcart, Secretary of the English Union, is to visit the Continent for the purpose of creating a strong union among foreign trotting societies.

O. Kelly's celebraced wager of Eclipse first—the rest nowhere, was evidently in Percy Williams' mind when finding that his money on Lynette for the place could not be won at Stockton last week, he ordered his driver to send Beauty Mc right along and distance the field, which he did, and in such good style that there could be no dispute. Pools never should not be sold for second place any more than mutuals should be sold on the heat. How often do we see a horse selling a big favorite in the pools lose a heat in slow time? and the peculiar feature is that the winner generally pays less than $10.00 on a $5 00 ticket, and pools sell at the old rate of odds.

The sale of Ruperta to Mr. A. F. Walcott for $16,000 is off, as she was sold to him as a perfectly sound filly. Her first race showed that she was lame, and must have been at the time of the sale, as it has been claimed that she pulled up lame after two races at Saratoga. So Mr. Walcott has returned the filly to B. J. Johnston, who had owned her, and from whom Mr. Walcott was to take her in partnership with John Campbell of the Beverwyck Stable. The reports that Mr. Walcott lost $10,000 on the betting ring on the day Ruperta pulled up lame are denied by that gentleman and his friends, who say that Mr. Walcott had only a small bet on, and that one for the benefit of his jockey, Taral.

W. S. Corbitt, the well known proprietor of the San Mateo Stock Farm, says Mr. Shippee was perfectly right when he gave his name for Mr. Corbitt's nonappearance at the fair. The races in which Mr. C. had any chance were declared off—a little late in the day—and as everyone knows, in order to prevent the San Mateo Stock Farm having a chance to win, it would be necessary to have races for named horses and not name Hazel Wilkes, Sister F. or Rupee, and of course Regal Wilkes.

For the first time in the history of the Turf, the name of a Hindoo appears in the English Forfeit List. When the Prince of Wales came back from India, there were several black princes in his suits. Fine handsome men they were, and most conspicuous as they rode to and fro on the Newmarket Heath. One of these was Hurgi Sing, who at Mr. Chaplin's sale, bought a costly yearling by Galopin, and he has been in the Forfeit List in respect to that animal ever since.

A. Reuter's telegram, dated New York, Sunday, states that on Saturday last a mare named Roy Wilkes trotted a mile in 2 min., 8¼ secs., at Independence, Iowa, thus beating the world's record. The previous performance which stood as the standard record was 2 min. 8¾ secs., done by Maud S. at Glenville, Ohio, on July 30, 1865.

Evidently it is a mistake as Roy Wilkes (a stallion) paced and Maud S made her record at Cleveland.

Mr. John Huby Jr., Moorlands Stud Farm, New York, says that although Amphion is describe as being by Speculum or Rosebery, he is in reality a son of Rosebery. Suicide, the dam of Amphion, was covered by Speculum in the spring of 1885, but unfortunately on April 16th in that year, Speculum dropped down dead at the time of the mare's visit. In the following month (May) Suicide came in season, again was put to Rosebery, to whom she held in foal, and the well known race horse Amphion was the produce.

The English Racing Calendar states that at a meeting of the Jockey Club, to be held at the Newmarket Second October Meeting, Lord Cadogan will move to add to rule 45: "No added money shall be given to any two-yeare old race run before the week which includes the 25th of May," and to follow rule 71: "No entry or declaration of forfeit shall be made for races for two-years-old between the last Tuesday in September, when they are yearlings, and the first Tuesday in March in the following year.

The Duchess of Montrose, who for many years was the only woman on the English turf, now has several companions, among them being Mrs. Challener, Mrs. Ayre, Miss Graham, Mrs. Hall and Miss Temple. The Duchess of Montrose ran her horses in the name of "Mr. Manton," having some little delicacy in the matter. Last year being left for the second time a widow, and being at the time nearly sixty years of age, she married a young man of twenty-three, a good looking fellow on whom she made an ante-nuptial settlement of $100,000. The Duchess is evidently a game sport.

According to present arrangements, says the Manchester Chronicle, Anterior to the (Doncaster) St. Leger, John Porter will have to superintend the saddling of five horses for the St. Leger. This will be starting the whole fleet, a la William IV., with a vengeance. For the Goodwood Cup of 1830 His Majesty had three horses engaged, called Fleur de Lis, Zingance and The Colonel. He started all three, and they finished first, second and third. Surely three such stayers were never owned by one man at the same time. A similar piece of good fortune attended Croft, the trainer, in the St. Leger, of some sixty years ago. He ran four horses, and they finished first, second, third and fourth, the outsider of the party, against whom as much as £100 to a walking-stick was laid, winning.

Sir Wilford Brett, in replying to a letter which appeared in the Times, says that at Sandown Park race meetings a horse ambulance is always kept properly horsed in readiness for immediate use, together with apparatus for slinging. A special accident box is also provided with slinging gear at the stables. A qualified veterinary surgeon is in attendance, also a certified knacker. There are accident wards for riders, and two surgeons always held in readiness. How useful these arrangements are has been practically proved over and over again. They have saved much unnecessary suffering both to man and horse, and they should be provided at all race meetings.

Ripple, the little Michigan mare that made a record better than 2:18 early in the season, has been "fired" on several National Association tracks where it was sought to trot her. The mare is entered as the property of the Standard Stock Farm, of which Frank Noble, the man who was suspended last season on account of the Boston stallion race, is President. It is claimed that the mare is not owned by Noble, one of his relatives appearing on the scene with a bill of sale, but at one place where he tried to start the mare he rather tipped his hand by not knowing in what class Ripple was entered, Thus far the attempt to get the best of the National Association's order has not been successful, and it looks as though Mr. Noble would have to go into winter quarters with an unsatisfied ambition.

Mr. Belmont has sold his filly, Her Highness, three years, by St. Blaise-Princess, to William Lakeland far $5,000. Mr. Belmont, it is reported, will sell all the aged division of his horses, and hereafter devote himself to breeding and racing his two year olds. Mr. Withers will also pursue the same course in the future.

Mr. Belmont would have done well to keep Her Highness for her breeding is as good as any in the land; by imported St. Blaise—a Derby winner and a son of the mighty Hermit, also a Derby winner, dam imported Princess by King Tom sire of Kingcraft a Derby winner, grand dam by North Lincoln great grand dam by Bay Middleton winner of 2,000 guineas and Derby, fourth dam by Venison sire of Kingston, fifth dam by Whisker winner of the Derby etc.

The well known racing man who has already been black balled on the French Jockey Club is Baron Hirsch, upon whose shoulders, says the Atlas in the World, the cloak of the late lamented Sir James McKenzie has descended, is a very shrewd and a very remarkable man. He can neither drive nor dance as well as many less favored mortals, but he is one of the few speculators in the world's history who have made, and what is more, retained, one milliard of francs. His one great grief is the loss of his only son, who, however, left two children by a Christian wife whom he married without his father's consent. Baron Hirsch first caused them to be adopted by a respectable family of his own faith, and he has since adopted them himself. His grandchildren—a boy and a girl—are likely to become his inseparable companions.

The Racing Calendar states that the stewards of the Jockey Club having received a report from the Belgian Jockey Club that they have warned Joseph Barker off all courses where their rules are in force, the stewards of the Jockey Club notify that the said Joseph Barker is warned off Newmarket Heath.

A correspondent with an eye for coincidences writes to the Sporting Chronicle Manchester, Eng., as follows: "On looking over the Calendar I notice that in the past nine years the St. Ledger winner has neen ridden as under: 1881-2 by Archer, 1883-4 by Watts, 1885-6 by Archer, 1887-8 by Robinson, 1889 by F. Barrett. What price Heaume after this?" Heaume is still running.

Sir Frederick Roberts, it seems, says an English exchange, has issued a general order against polo. Polo ponies are getting higher and higher, increased mettle is demanded, precautions are increasingly neglected, and altogether there seems a prospect that polo in the English army will become as fatal as duelling in the German. But the main point made by Sir Frederick is the expense of the game.

The upshot of the Vivid affair at Sheepshead Bay has been a change in the Rules of racing. There is no doubt that the rule as it stood was unsatisfactory and extremely difficult of interpretation, and the present reading, while much simpler, is quite unmistakable in its meaning. The last clause of Rule 63 (Racing) now reads: "If a horse carry more than two pounds over his proper or declared weight he is disqualified, unless the judges are satisfied that such excess of weight has been caused by rain or mud." The last clause of Rule 23 (Betting) reads: "If a horse is disqualified for incorrect weight, bets on him are not effected by the disqualification, if he carried not less than the weight on the official programme, or as corrected on the notice board." In the latter case the necessary alteration has been readily effected by the insertion of the words italicized.

The New York World gives timely and sound advice when it warns race track managers that unless they pay more attention to improving the breed of horses and less to improving the breed of gamblers they will soon see the beginning of the end. Betting is necessary to the life of racing, but the betting ring must not dominate the interests of which it is a none too respectable servant. It is a trait of human nature to frown on those things it cannot enjoy. The man who never goes to a race is very apt to see only the evil and none of the good of racing. That class of men are numerous and their influence not to be despised. It is well for the racing men to remember that should the evils of the tracks become too glaring the true friends of the turf interest, who believe its good overbalances it evil, might not be able to protect them from the strong arm of hostile legislation.

An incident of General Peel's Turf career is, says "Pavo," worth recording even at this distant date. It may not be generally known that some time after the notorious Running Rein affair, the exposure of which secured the Blue Riband of the Turf to the owner of Orlando, Colonel Peel, whose horses were trained by W. Cooper at Newmarket, and invariably ridden by Arthur Paris or Nat Flatman, disposed of all the lot in training to the late Lord Ribblesdale, who subsequently re-sold Marsyas, Talfourd, Baalbec and others to the late Mr. F. Knowles, and Mr. Morris bought Kingston from his lordship for £2,000 in the summer of 1852. What a contrast to the ridiculous sums asked nowadays for the commoners that could not hold a candle to the good horse in question.

Warnke & Son's well known three year old filly Reclare by Reform, dam imp Clara, was offered at auction on September 25th. When she was put up $5 000 was the first bid, and it ran up to $15 000, at which price she was knocked down to Hough Bros. The Hough Bros. were bidding on Reclare for her owners, and she was bought in. Other important sales were:

Syracuse, ch c, 4, by Saracen—Bijou, by Warpath; George Withers, $1,400.

Frontenac, ch c. 3, by Falsetto—Lerna, by Asteroid; A. Thompson, $3,500.

Foxmede, ch c, 3, by Falsetto—Brittomarte, by Asteroid; C. Maxwell, $2,000.

Silver Prince, b c, 2, by Spendthrift—Phœbe Mayflower, by Phaeton; C Jordan, $2 600.

Brown colt, 1, by Darebin—Carrie, by Wanderer; H. Durham, $1,300. The colt was purchased at the last Rancho del Paso sale for $700 by A. Thompson.

An English writer says: High knee action had its origin in England in the far off days before the coming of Cæsar. It seems to be certain that at first the high knee action was found combined with profuse hair on tail, neck and fetlock. Of course the action has been modified, and the legs, too; the American speed records are an illustration of this. But the high knee action originated, as we believe, in Britain, before the Romans came to teach us how to make roads. When wheeled vehicles had to be dragged, full speed, over land covered with sedge and rank herbage, the horses had to lift their feet. The fact that the original inhabitants of Britain were bad road makers made it imperative that their horses should have action suitable to such going as there was, and that meant that they should lift their feet well off the ground. Their shaggy coats were consequent to a climate which made such hair necessary for survival of a British spring. What the Americans seem to have done is to combine the gait of the Western horse with the nostril and clean bone of the Orient.

A tale of distress is (says a well known writer) disclosed by the publication in the Forfeit List of the name of Mr. Chas. Seaton. He went to grief over the victory of The Imp in the Great Jubilee Handicap at Kempton. There is enough material in the life of this gentleman to make the fortune of half a dozen novels, and the curious part of the business is that no two men on the turf can agree as to whether he is a "sharp" or a "flat." Since he left Liverpool some fifteen or twenty years ago, some hundreds of thousands of pounds have passed through his hands, and the difference that the riding of a drunken jockey, who was beaten by a head, made to him four or five years ago must have been enormous. It sent him into exile for a time, but thanks to one or two gaming clubs which have now been suppressed, he emerged from his difficulties and speculated more largely on the turf than ever. At his rooms as much as £20,000 was lost in a night, and one young peer is stated to have played most extravagantly, as did the "Jubilee Plunger." It was understood that this becoming known to the mother of the young peer in question, she placed herself in communication with the Prime Minister, who in turn moved the Home Secretary to action, with the result that the club was suppressed.

When the now celebrated horse Hampton was a yearling a gentleman to whom he was on offer declined to give his breeder, Mr. Ireland, of Tetsworth, £70 pounds for him on the ground that he was too small. He ran first in the selling race at Oxford, went on to Hampton, and won a selling race (thereby earning his famous name), when Mr. James Nightingall gave £200 for the winner. After awhile Hamptom was claimed by Mr. Harvey out of a selling race, and after going over hurdles, won the Goodwood Stakes and Great Metropolitan, and was eventually sold to Lord Ellesmere for 7,000 guineas, returning a profit on the original outlay of about £6,800.

Joseph Salomon, of 497 Sixth St., Milwaukee, owns a valuable horse which was never shod on his hind feet until recently. The animal, usually gentle, became vicious the moment his hind feet were touched. His owner had him in nearly every blacksmith shop in the city, but every attempt to put shoes on him proved futile. Finally Mr. Salomon tried it again at a shop on Fourth St., when Veterinary Surgeon F. I. Toussaint suggested the use of chloroform. Mr. Salomon consented, and the novel operation was performed. After the horse had been secured on the "amputating" table he was made to inhale six ounces of chloroform, which took effect after a lapse of six minutes. The kicking quadruped was then dead to the world. Christ Laminski, a blacksmith in the employ of William Herzer, stood ready with his tools, and twenty minutes later a pair of strong shoes was attached to the animal's hind feet. Half and hour later the subdued kicker came to again. For fully ten minutes he tried his best to liberate himself from the undesired incumbrance, but failing in it, finally gave in and trotted away meek and humbled. The horse apparently suffered no inconvenience whatever from the large dose of chloroform.

Mr. M. Salisbury has returned to San Francisco, and submitted to an interview. He is reported in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:

Do you think the Independence track is extraordinarily fast on account of its shape?

No, I do not. The first three-eighths of a mile is up hill, and then there is a cut to go through. However, the last half is very fast, as it is slightly down hill.

Are any of the California tracks as fast as it is?

Certainly; I can name several, notably the Napa track, which I consider the peer of any in the United States.

After the Independence meeting Andy McDowell, who drives Mr. Salisbury's horses, was interviewed, and this is the way he is reported:

This is the fastest track in America. For a horse of bad action the long stretches are especially advantageous. On the down stretch a horse has a long time to get to the pole, and a good gait beofre the turn; and then the fact that there is only one turn is another advantage.

The opinions of Mr. Salisbury and Mr. McDowell, if both are correctly reported, openly conflict. Which is right? We do know that Margaret S. trotted and Cricket paced her fastest mile at Independence. A critical comparison of the performances would make the Independence track not less than three seconds faster than the Cleveland track. If Mr. Salisbury has as much faith in Napa as he pretends to have why does he not start Margaret S. on the track to trot a mile in 2.12½ or better, and Cricket to pace a mile in 2:10 or better?—Turf, Field and Farm.

Mr. Salisbury will start Margaret S. at Napa to beat her record but Cricket has been turned out so she must rest on her present laurels for this year.

Unless a horse has brains you can't teach him, says the Medical Classics. See that tall bay there, a fine looking animal, fifteen hands high. You can't teach that horse anything. Why? Well, Ill show a difference in heads, but have a care of his heels. Look at the brute's head, that rounding nose, that tapering forehead, that broad, full place between the eyes. You can't trust him. That's an awful good mare, as true as the sun. You can see breadth and fullness between the ears and eyes. You couldn't hire that mare to act mean or hurt anybody. The eye should be full, and hazel is a good color.

I like a horse with a small, thin ear, and want him to throw his ears well forward. Look out for the brute that wants to listen to all conversation going on behind him. The horse that turns back his ears till they almost meet at the points, take my word for it, is sure to do something wrong. See that straight, elegant face. A horse with a dishing face is cowardly, and a cowardly brute is usually vicious. Then I like a square muzzle, with large nostrils, to let plenty of air to the lungs. For the under side of the head, a good horse should be well cut under the jowl, with jawbones broad and wide apart under the throttle.

The next thing to consider is the build of the animal. Never buy a long legged, stilted horse. Let him have a short, straight back and a straight rump, and you've got a gentleman's horse. The withers should be high and the shoulders well set back and broad, but don't get them too deep in the chest. The foreleg should be short. Give me a pretty straight hind leg, with the hock low down, short pastern joints and a round mulish foot. There are all kinds of horses, but the animal that has these points is almost sure to be sightly, graceful, good natured and servicable.

Many years ago, says the Montana Chronicle, Mr. Dixon, in one of his charming "Sporting Review" articles, told in a few masterly words of the excitement with which the men of the Ridings watched an unimportant contest for two-years-old, won by Comfit, a filly, the property of the late Lord Zetland.

He described the breathless excitement with which the lookers on waited to see whether she or a southern country rival would first show symptoms of distress, and the storm of delight that arose when the bearer of the spotted jacket got the better of her opponent. Another writer, whose life has been spent in the country of many acres, remarks: "Clannish to the bone are the Yorkshire folks, and they are greatly delighted when some strongly-fancied competitor from Newmarket goes down before an opponent trained at Middleham or Malton. This, by the bye, happens nowadays all to seldom. The Yorkshire people are, however, good sportsmen, and take a beating gracefully if they feel that their favorite has succumbed to a better horse. They delight in neat jockeyship. The enthusiasm shown on one occasion when Alfred Day snatched a race on Knavesmire "out of the fire"—it was when Vivandiere, an own sister to Voltigeur, defeated Lord Derby's Iris for the Yorkshire Oaks—has been handed down in Turf history as especially exemplifying north country appreciation of a jockey's skill. Job Marson used to be a great favorite amongst the lovers of the Turf north of the Trent. Aldcroft succeeded him in their affections, and to this hour the well-deserved reputation of John Osborne stands as high as it did when Lord Clifden roused them to the highest pitch of enthusiasm by winning the St. Leger after his chance had once appeared to be gone.

It is more than likely, says a foreign exchange, that a few of our best stallions of all types will be on view at the World's Fair, but certainly not those which have proved most successful breeders at home, as they could not undergo with any degree of safety a voyage out and home. The horses which go out will be those which are likely to stay there and serve at the stud. The system of bottling up champions at the end of their fourth or fifth year of showing can be overdone to some extent, we find, in this country, as the patronage bestowed on many of these causes, for a time, neglect of promising young sires, and a good vigorous four year old or five year old horse invariably gets very healthy stock if he has not been pampered for show purposes. At present, however, patronage is bestowed on the sire according to his stock's prizes, quite apart from his own pedigree, performances or good looks.

A recent steamer took back Mr. Jas. White, a well known book-maker, to Australia, who must not be confounded with the Hon James White lately deceased, after having made a trip to the old country. He remained such a short time in Colombo, that we (the Ceylon Times) were unable to get more than a few hurried words with him as to his trip and how he enjoyed it. He is so well known a book-maker in Australia, and has had such a lengthened experience of racing there, that his English experiences are worth noticing. He met with great hospitality at home from racing men and others, and got the entree everywhere, expressing himself as particularly pleased with all that was done for him. He saw the Derby and the Guineas run for; and, in reply to a question as to how it is that Kirkham and Narellan did so badly, he said they were never in it in such company. They looked like two good hunters, but not race horses. Interrogated as to what he thought of the riding, he expressed his unbounded admiration for the jockeys at home, and said he never in his life saw such riding. In fact, he admitted that he never had seen good riding until he had been to the old country. His questioner remarked upon the fact that Australians generally thought that no one in England or out of Australia could ride, and he laughed at the idea. Hales, the great Australian jockey, would not have been fit to ride in any of the best races in England, and in fact Mr. White was very enthusiastic over the superiority of English riding and English horses. He returned to Australia fully convinced that all the talk down there is mere "blow", and that they have a lot to learn there yet—a fact which it is as well that they should be told by one in Mr. White's position.

The celebrated "Colored Trust" is broken. Six hundred thousand dollars strong on July 4 and "dead broke" on September 15. This in brief is the sad story, says the American Sportsman. In just one month and a half the sum named was dumped into the coffers of the book-makers at Monmouth Park and Sheepshead Bay by a select coterie of six colored men. The Colored Trust was formed by Billy Walker, C. A. Jordon, Andy Thompson, Patton Clay, John Carter and Sam Morrell. They owned a stable of good horses, among them Ruperta, Asa Frontenac, Pearlset, Foxmet and Silver Prince. The history of the "Colored Trust" dates from August 20, 1889 It was the opening day at Morris Park, and 20,000 people were present. There were ninety book-makers in the ring, with bank rolls amounting to $300,000. The money turned into the boxes by the people was $250,000 more, and the "Trust" determined to get as much of this as was possible. That night they counted out $42,000 as the result of their day's sport, not counting the stake won by Ruperta, which was $3,575, or the sweepstake won by Frontenac, which was about $1,100. The news of their hard hit at the ring leaked out. Race track frequenters became anxious to know what Jordan, Walker et al. were doing. But they were too shrewd for the public and the talent. They secured the co-operation of a clever white man, who placed their money and his own, and when the inaugural meeting at Westchester ended, the Trust had over $60,000, and "Burkey," the white man, had a big roll. At Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn and Elizabeth, the colored Trust kept up its work and they had more than $700,000 when the snow fell. During the season the "Trust" won in stakes and purses about $80,000. There are no victories for the "Trust" now. They have a few horses left, but these will soon be sold and probably the money will be played against the hooks to give the "combine" a fresh start.

The New York Times describes the two-year-old race on the 20th, in which the Undine Stable's Homer ran, as follows: The two-year-old scramble which followed the decision of the two stakes brought about a victory for the favorite, Nellie Bly, and an accident of a peculiar character to the California colt Homer, who was ridden by the Greaser jockey, Narvaez. Homer had led the horses from the start into the stretch, with Equity and Nellie Bly close up. When Narvaez applied pressure to Homer and called on him for a final effort the horse swerved to the outside of the track. Then Narvaez hit him with his whip, and Homer, instead of shooting ahead as his jockey expected, bolted directly across the track to the inside rail. This he tried to jump, but instead of that he struck against the rail, breaking it and landing in the field. Narvaez was thrown off and the horse rolled over him and rendering him insensible. There were no bones broken and the jockey did not seem to be more seriously injured than being stunned and pretty badly shaken up, and doctors said he would be all right in a day or two. The horse was badly cut about the flanks and legs and his racing career for this year at least is ended. How the other horses managed to escape being hit by Homer when he shot wildly across the track is beyond explanation and a mystery that the other jockeys in the race cannot solve. The race was a sweepstakes of $20 each, for two-year-olds, with $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Three-quarters of a mile.

The Stockton Fair.

It very rarely happens that a day's racing has to be postponed in the month of September in California, yet still we have had just such an experience during the last week at the Stockton Fair. The racing began on Tuesday, the 23rd inst., but the attendance was not as large as is the usual case. At the annual meeting of the San Joaquin Agricultural Association the farmers turn out en masse for miles around to witness the contests of speed, which are usually of the most exciting nature. The opening day for 1890 was an exception to the rule, as the attendance was small, although very enthusiastic. The various events on the programme for the day were of a mixed nature, there being two trotting races and a running race, the latter causing the short-enders to feel happy as the winner turned up in one of Mr. Shippee's fillies it being supposed that she had no chance at all by those who are usually called "the talent."

There is no doubt but that the absence of the San Mateo Stock Farm's stables, the Palo Alto stable and Frank Burke's stable tended to lessen the interest, they having left Stockton out of their circuit, going directly from the State Fair to Fresno.

On the cards of the day the first race announced was a handicap for three year olds; the distance being one mile and one eighth, for which three starters came to the post, they being J. B. Chase's Marigold, L. J. Rose's Rico and L. U. Shippee's Mabel F. $25 was bid for first choice, the favorite being Marigold, while $10 or $11 was bid for Mabel F, Rico selling for $9; the latter horse was at one time in the spring heavily backed to win the Suburban, but owing to his getting loose from the stall prior to his trip back East, he was considerably bruised up and has not been in condition to run since. While in the Palo Alto stable he was considered one of the California cracks but his escapade in getting away from the Bay District Track has evidently made him deteriorate in speed, and at present he is far from being what he once was. The starter was Mr. Wm. Coombs of Napa, who got them away to a very even send off, Marigold attempting to make pace, Rico, however, kept close alongside of Mr. Crase's lilly and the two were head and head all the way up the back stretch, Mabel being a very close third; coming into the home stretch Marigold altered her position and took the inside, the three coming down the straight in a bunch. When at one-sixteenth of a mile from the wire, Rico, who was being severely punished swerved and jostled Marigold, Marigold caroming against Mabel F. Rico still receiving the lash, was under the wire first by a half length in front of Mabel, Marigold being a length in the rear. Mr. Storn claimed that Mr. Chase's filly had lost the race owing to the foul and asked the judges to decide in her favor, but after a consultation the race was awarded to Mabel F., Marigold second and Rico third.

The two-year old district stakes for trotters brought out Pilot Prince, Elastic and Eda. This contest was very uninteresting, owing to the speed of Pilot Prince, he having the others completely at his mercy; the two heats were of such an uninteresting character that it is unnecessary to give a description of them. Pilot Prince won the first in 2:52½, distancing Eda, and also won the second in 2:47½, the gait being too much for Elastic, who was behind the red flag when the winner passed under the wire.

The last event on the card was very exciting, and was enjoyed by all the spectators. It was for a purse of $1,000, for the 2:30 class of trotters, the only two putting in an appearance being Mr. Salisbury's Homestake, who has lately arrived from the Montana and Oregon circuit, where he has won a large majority of races in which he started; his competitors were Percy Williams' Beauty Mc, who has made a name for himself this year throughout the California circuit. Those who usually hang around the pool box for the purpose of getting a good thing, were not loth to put up $50 for Mr. Williams' entry, while Homestake found lots of supporters who were willing to risk $40 on his chances of winning. On the very first attempt the word was given, Beauty Mc having the pole, and he took the lead almost immediately, being a good two lengths in advance as they passed from the first turn into the backstretch. At the half-mile post the gap had been diminished a trifle, Homestake sticking like a porous plaster. In swinging into the upper turn, Beauty Mc made a most disastrous break, and before he settled, Homestake was a dozen lengths in front. The driver of Beauty Mc made a spurt for the heat, but without success, as his horse a second time went into the air, and Homestake had no trouble in winning in 2:24, Beauty being almost a half dozen lengths in the rear.

For the second heat the betting changed but very little, $30 still being bid for Beauty Mc., while Homestake sold readily for $25. After scoring twice the word was given, Homestake having a trifle the best of the send off, he trotted down the straight and into the turn at a very fast gait, entering the back stretch fully a length to the good; notwithstanding that the pace was a very hot one, Beauty Mc. clung to the leader, and as they passed into the home stretch it was anybody's race, a length still dividing the two horses. At this point both of the drivers called on their charges, and without skip or break they passed under the wire, Homestake winning by two lengths. When the time was hung out 2:17¾, those who had been supporting the Stockton horse at once endeavored to hedge, and Homestake was made a favorite at $25 to $6. On the third attempt the word was given and Homestake again took the lead, at the quarter pole being a length in front of his opponent; these same relative positions were maintained around the upper turn and into the home stretch, there being no perceptible difference between them. McDowell called on homestake, and gallantly the son of Gibralter responded, coming under the wire winner by two lengths in 2:18¼.

SECOND DAY.

During the evening of Tuesday rain came down quite heavily, and on Wednesday morning, after a consultation, the Directors deemed it expedient to postpone the programme which had been arranged for Wednesday, and announced that the two days' programme would be run off on the following afternoon, the track being considered unsafe for the horses. This announcement, however, was not made until almost 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and by that time quite a number of spectators had gathered at the track. After the President of the Association had made his speech from the judges' stand, there was an immediate clamor among the crowd for their money which had been paid in at the gate. As a large number had passed in on season tickets, it was arranged that those who were present should receive tickets entitling them to admission on another day, which was, under the circumstances, the best that could be done. On Thursday afternoon there was an enormous crowd present, the grand stand being packed, while a large number of carriages were inside the enclosure and tended largely to enliven the scene.

Six races were on the card owing to the rain the day before, and as can be readily understood everything had to go with a rush so as to enable all the contests to take place. The first event was a five-eighths of a mile dash, those coming to the post being the Fashion Stable's Cheerful, Owen Bros' Mero and L. U. Shippee's Lodowic. In the pools, Mr. Shippee's entry was a decided favorite, he bringing 2 to 1 over the field. Some little delay was occasioned by the fractiousness of the horses, but the flag at last fell to a very even start; the favorite had no difficulty in winning very easily in 1:05, Mero second, Cheerful ten lengths behind.

Another running race was on the programme to follow the first event, the starters being Carmen, Daisy D. and Alfaretta; Carmen being the choice in the pools selling for $25, Daisy D. brought $15, while Alfaretta's chances were sold at the insignificant sum of $5. Again the talent were successful in their choice, for although Alfarata started in the lead with the favorite in the rear, at the half-mile pole the trio were bunched and from there out the race was virtually over, as Carmen had things all her own way, notwithstanding the fact that Daisy D. challenged her down the straight, but could not head the winner, who passed under the wire in 1:44½, Daisy D. being two lengths behind, while Alfarata was almost a dozen in the rear.

A mile and one-eight dash for all ages had only two starters, Matt Storn's Lurline and L. U. Shippee's Take Notice. The latter sold as favorite at $40, while the short enders were willing to pay $15 for Lurline's chances. There was no difficulty in getting the horses off, and as they passed under the wire the first time they were neck and neck, and there was no time during the race that the proverbial blanket would not have covered both of them. Coming down the homestretch the whip was applied very vigorously to Lurline, but Take Notice passed under the wire winner by a short length, his rider using excellent judgment as it was not necessary to apply whip or spur to him.

The next event on the programme was a special trotting race for named horses, the entries being Mattie P, Barbero, Foxy V, Rockwood and Prince B. Mattie P having already shown her qualifications, was immediately installed as favorite, although Prince B had very strong backing, it being considered by the local people that he had a strong chance to win. Mattie had no difficulty in pulling off the first heat in 2:33, and also won the second in 2:29. Notwithstanding that the mare had already two heats to her credit, the backers of Prince B were still willing to buy their choice at almost the same price as was paid for Mattie. To show that their confidence was not misplaced Prince B won the third heat in 2:34, although Mattie quickly decided the race in the fourth heat by winning again in 2:29.

The district three-year-old trot was nothing more than a walk over for Lottery Ticket, the other two starters being Countless and Elect Moore. This was an uninteresting race as Lottery Ticket was much the speediest of the lot, winning the first heat in 2:39, Countless being distanced. In the second heat which was negotiated in exactly the same time, Elect Moore was distanced, although the driver of Lottery Ticket pulled his horse almost to a walk to enable Elect to save his distance.

We now come to the pacing race in which there was Princess Alice, Hummer, Gold Medal and Sunrise. Owing to what Hummer had already shown on the circuit, he was a pronounced favorite, selling for $40 while Princess Alice brought $18, the field selling for $3. The first heat was considerable of a surprise party to those who had bought the long end, as Princess Alice and Gold Medal cut out the pace, the mare winning in the remarkable good time of 2:18½; Hummer was third and Sunrise was distanced.

The second heat was but a repetition of the first, the daughter of Dexter Prince again winning in 2:20, Gold Medal second and the favorite last. A great deal of time was consumed in getting the horses off for the third heat, President Shippee having to deliver a lecture, and as even patience ceased to be a virtue, imposed a fine on one of the drivers which drew out cheers from the spectators. When the word was finally given, the driver of Alice resumed his tactics of the two former heats, and kept the mare going for all there was in her; she was never headed winning as she pleased in 2:21, with Gold Medal second and Hummer last, the two having a narrow escape from a shut out.

FOURTH DAY.

Friday witnessed another large attendance, both of the grand stands being jammed, while there were more vehicles present than on any other day; this was probably owing to the many attractions which were billed for the afternoon, among which was an exhibition of vaquero riding, the entertainment being equal to anything ever seen on the coast. A balloon ascension also added to the interests of the day, in addition to which there were several good races.

The first event on the card was the Yosemite Stake, the only entry to make an appearance being Mr. Rose's Conrad, who had a walk-over and rather strange to say the second event was for two-year-old fillies, three-fourths of a mile and again Mr. Rose had a walk-over, his filly, Fairy, evidently having frightened out the balance of the entries.

Then came a match race for two-year-olds, between Acclaim and Seminole, the latter selling for $30 against $25 for Acclaim. The favorite started out at a terrific pace and at the head of the stretch was three lengths in advance, but there she shut up like a jack knife and Acclaim had no difficulty in winning, hands down, in 1:15½.

The 2:30 class for district horses brought out Beauty Mc, Lynette, Chloe and James L. Beauty Mc was known to have so much speed that there were no pools sold on him, but with Mr. William's entry barred, Lynette was a strong favorite In the first and second heats Beauty simply jogged around in the slow time of 2:33½ and 2.33¼, Lynette showing in the last heat considerable distress. For the third heat Beauty Mc was turned loose and trotted in 2:21¼, distancing his field. In showing why this fast heat was made, the following from the Stockton Independent will explain matters.

"It began to appear that Lynette had no chance for second place. As Percy Williams had backed the horse strongly he was anxious to get his money back at least. It is provided in the racing rules that where a horse distances the field he is entitled to first and third money, and the second money is withheld. A distanced horse gets no money. If Mc succeeded in shutting out the field there would be no second money, and consequently the pools that were sold on the field would be declared off, and Williams would quit even. So he instructed the driver of Mc to shut out the field, which was not a particularly hard thing for the fast trotter to do. Mc sped around the course in the third heat in the fast time of 2:21½, and distanced the field, as he was expected to do, Chloe being second and Lynette third."

Considerable excitement was experienced during the match trotting race between Mr. William's Sultan mare and F. D. Cobb's Gipsey. A great deal of money went into the pool box about this event, the two horses selling for about even money. Gipsey in the first two heats proved rather unsteady and consequently the Sultan mare won the first two heats very readily in 2:40½ and 2:35½, but at this juncture the judges were complained to, that the mare performed a part of her work pacing, so the marshal was instructed to gallop around the track with the horses and see if any pacing or running was indulged in. In the third heat the verdict was reversed Gipsey winning in 2:37½, the Sultan mare breaking when close to the distance flag. The fourth heat was a very close and exciting one, the two trotting very steadily together, as the horses passed into the home stretch, it was anybody's race but at the upper end of the grand stand Gipsey made a break, which cost her the race, the Sultan mare winning in 2:35.

In the special trotting race the entries were Mambrino Chief, Latham Almont, Foxy V. and Clay Duke; the latter sold in the pools at $25 against $10 for the field. The confidence of Clay Duke's backers was not misplaced, as he won the race in three straight heats. The time being 2:36, 2:31½ and 2:32¾.

The last event on the day's programme was a pacing race for three year olds, which owing to the darkness, was unfinished at the conclusion of the day's sport. The entries were Brilliante, Fairose and Vigor. Brilliante sold favorite at $25, Vigor bringing $16 while Fairose sold for $8 In the first heat the favorite behaved very badly, breaking frequently and it looked when coming down the home stretch as though the driver of the favorite was making determined efforts to have his horse shut out. This was noticed by the judges and when the horses appeared for the second heat Dustin was requested to get up behind the favorite. Vigor won the first heat in 2:48, Fairose being second. The change in drivers proved advantageous to those who had the long end, as Dustin forged at once to the front and was never headed in the heat. The time was 2:36, Fairose finishing second. The third heat was but a mere repetition of the second, Brilliante winning in the fairly good time of 2:30½.

LAST DAY OF THE MEETING.

The attendance at the race track on the last day of the meeting was not quite so large as it had been on the two preceding days, yet still the crowd in attendance was enough to satisfy the Board of Directors, and taken all in all, it must be confessed that notwithstanding the one rainy day, the fair has been eminently successful.

The first thing on the programme was the pacing race which had been postponed from the preceding afternoon, and notwithstanding the fact that Brilliante made a very disastrous break immediately after passing the wire, yet still on steadying down he had no trouble in beating out his opponents, making the mile and winning the race in 2:30.

In the Big Tree Stake, Take Notice was the only horse that came to the wire, and consequently he had a walk-over for it.

In the Stockton Stake, a mile and a sixteenth, a big upset was received by the talent. The starters were Rico, Take Notice and Odette. As was to be supposed, Odette was a terrific favorite, selling at $40. Take Notice $20 and Rico $10. When the flag fell, Take Notice and Odette cut out the pace, leaving Rico in the rear by some five open lengths of daylight. When at the head of the stretch, Rico's jockey let go the head of the colt, and in a few moments he demonstrated that he was still in the race, for the gap was soon closed, and a slashing race ensued down the straight, Rico winning by a head from Odette in 1:48.

The next race was a three-quarter mile dash, Carmen being the choice of the knowing ones, the other two starters being Daisy D. and Acclaim. Carmen, however, never was in it, for Daisy D. and Acclaim fought for first honors, Daisy D. being the one to pass first under the wire, with Acclaim second.

The 2:30 trotting class brought out Lee and George Washington. As was only natural to suppose after Lee's performances along the line he was made a decided favorite, selling for $25 to $12 for Mr. Smith's stallion. Lee won the first heat in the very slow time for him of 2:33. In the second heat, however, Washington showed his backers what he could to by winning it in 2:27½. Lee having made a bad break at the distance flag. The third heat was rather a facer for those who were backing Lee, for Washington again won, this time in 2:26. The fourth heat was a very close one, they going around the track like a double team, making a dead heat in 2:25½. In the fifth heat Lee's backers commenced to have a little more confidence as he won that in 2:25½, but by a short head only. In the sixth heat both horses were on their mettle and the drivers used every endeavor to make their respective charges win; again it was a neck and neck race and as they passed under the wire many in the grand stand and in front of the judges' stand began calling out 'dead heat'; however, the decision of the judges was that "Washington wins the heat and race." Time, 2:23½. Three better heats than the fourth, five and sixth were never seen on the track.

A special race was then announced, the starters being Moses S., Mattie P and Foxy V. Moses S. trotted the first mile without skip or break in 2:22½. Foxy V. being shut out and Mattie only saved her distance by a scant length. Moses S. won the second heat and race in 2:25; Mattie being given second money.

Margaret S. during the afternoon was given a half mile, the announcement being made that she would attempt to lower her record of 1:04½ made at Sacramento. Although she was accompanied by a runner the best the speedy mare could do was to equal her Sacramento time.

During the afternoon the Ladies' Equestrian Tournament took place, the contestants being Miss Edith Bailey of Stockton, Miss Lola Taylor of San Joaquin County, and Mrs. Trefry of Sacramento. The judges awarded the first premium to Miss Bailey; second to Miss Taylor, and third to Mrs. Trefry.

THE FARM.

Montana Cattle Trade.

The Montana cattle run will exceed the run of last year by 20,000 head, ssys the St. Paul Globe. That is to say, there will move eastward from the ranges northwest of here 104,000 head, instead of 84,000 head, which was the total number of last year. Twenty thousand head of cattle are worth fully $600,000 on the range of tne reasonable prices now prevailing. That number is about as many as Nelse Morrii bought in Montana last spring, and when the markets and other things went against his judgment he sent up into the new state which is the abode of cattle and gold and silver and sheep and horses, paid abont $65,000 in a straightforward manner, and annulled most of his cattle contracts at the rate of $5 to $7.50 per head for the annullment. Cattle men are generally off-hand in their methods, and if their deal goes crosswise they ante the bargains and settle the account, especially in Montana, unless some high-strung tenderfoot insists upon knowing the exact difference between a dry cow and a dry heifer, in which case the courts may be called upon to determine the momentous question.

The Montana cattle movemeut of 1889 would have been larger but for the winter losses of 1886-7, when the calf crop was greatly deminished, making the number of ripe steers in 1886 abont eqnal to that of 1888. Dry weather early this year and low prices in the eastern markets have kept the shipments lower thus far then some expected, but the feeling all around now is better. Tne steers are fatter and more msrketable, the beef herds are being rounded up, and many thousands of steers are moving toward the shipping points. About $4,000,000 should be realized at present prices from 104,000 cattle. Tnat number of head requires 5,200 cars for its movement. Fvery cattle carrying railroad eager for the tariff has electrified its "drivers" and tracks, and is sending forward the palace cattle stable on wheels almost with the swiftness of a "vestibuled limited." The season began July 15th. The middle of it has now been reached. Next week it will be at its height, and will last two months longer—until about November 15th. The nnmber of carloads moved since July 15th to date has been 1,222 Street's stable csrs and 401 common stock cars. Total, 1,623 cars. Over 500 cars are now ordered to be used beforo October 1st in loading 11,000 head of cattle at stations on Northern Pacific railroad. The Great Northern will handle about 35,000 head of the above mentioned season's run. About sixty per cent of the Montana cattle already received went through the Minnesota Transfer, their owners having waybilled direct to points further east. The Union stockyards have received a large number, and the yards at New Brighton did a fair business during the early part of the season.

An interesting view of the livestock business now going on here was gained yesterday by a visit to the Union stock yards at South St. Paul, where upwards of 5,000 Montana steers have been handled in the ten days from September 7th to 17th. The receipts there during the last five days of Augnst (Montana cattle) numbered 1,473 head, while from September 7th to 17th there arrived at South St. Paul 3,440 head, an increase in that brief period of 134 per cent. The following shippers were represented: Flowerree & Lowerree, 858; Neyer, N. Morriss & Co, 1,443; Towers & Gndgell, 124; Berry & Boice, 353; Holt & Murphy, 315; Montana Cattle company, 347; total number of head, 3 440. These, together with the other receipts mentioned above and 353 head owned by Baritch & Weis make the total amount of recent arrivals 6,966 heads. If they weighed only 1,100 pounds each and brought only $3.50 cents per 100 pounds their value would he somewhat more than a quarter of a million dollars. This department of the live stock business is only in its development this season.

Among other promineut Montana names recently registered at South St. Paul were: The Home Land and Cattle Company, Miles City; Conrad Kohrs, Deer Lodge; R. Ashworth, of Red Lodge, and T. C. Power & Co., Fort Benton. Mr. Ashworth had two trains in this week, one of which, 294 heads, went east yesterday; 4,563 head of sheep, nineteeu double decks, went east yesterday for P. J. Moule & Co., of Armington, Mont, and 2,786 head for George W. Wentworth, who is fattening 10,000 on his farms near South St. Paul.

Many outside buyers have representatives at South St. Paul and fill their needs there. Nelson Morris & Co. are buyers of bulls and heavy feeders for the barns of the St. Paul Distilling company. The shipment records of the past two weeks show that the kind of stock mentioned went to the following parties: J. B. Sutphin, Duluth, hogs; Waller Bros., Butte, Mon., hogs; Twin City Packing company and Minneapolis Provision company, hogs, cattle and sheep; J. J. O'Lsary & Sons, St. Paul, hogs; Memmer & Becker and Sweeney and Keller, Minneapolis, cattle, Hansen & Lund, Minneapolis, sheep; John Marty, St. Paul, cattle and sheep; Henry Baymond, Iowa, stock pigs; Uhlman Bros., Roberts, Wis,, cattle; and so on through a lengthy list that includes the pineries and mining camps as well as the ranges and corn fatteuing sections of this Northwest.

The demand from the butchers of the large cities and from dressed meat concerns, such as the Minnesota Packing and Provision company, is the backbone of the St. Paul live stock market, and it grows with the great development that can be seen on every hand. These large concerns, of conrse, market a great deal of their pork products in the East and in Europe.

Wonder is often expressed as to where the live stock at the Union stockyards come from. The business is in its infancy, yet it compares very favorable with the growth of older markets, and it attracts shipments from Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Idaho. Yes, Idaho cattle and sheep have been sold at South St. Paul, and a good many horses, taking various sales together, that came from Washington state. Minnesota contributes a great many hogs, cattle and sheep, but the frequency with which Iowa and South Dakota shippers visit the St. Paul market shows that their trips are attended with profit. Every lot of stock that comes into a city brings its qnota of stockmen, and, while they do not don the broakcloth to any great extent in the activities of their business, they generally have some cash in their inside pockets, part of which finds its way to the tills of the tradesmen and merchants, the banks, the manufacturing establishments, and occasionally they scatter "chicken-feed" aronnd town when visiting the theatres and other entertainments that glide the pathway of city life.

Malarial fevers and effects quickly give way to Simmons Liver Regulator.

Fine Stock for Arizona.

Among the many visitors to the State Fair was the Hon. T. W. Norton of Mohawk Valley, Yuma County, Arizona. Mr. Norton has been interested for a number of years in cattle breeding, and for the purpose of improving the grades that he at present has, he purchased while at Sacramento quite a number of head offered at the annnal sale of the California Shorthorn Breeders' Association. Among those he purchased were Mandane 6th, four years old, got by Belmont 37,648, dam Shaker Lasse 2nd by Mazourka Duke 4th; 2nd dam Shaker Lass by Maiver, etc.

Rose of Brighton 2nd, a two year old, got by Hermit Duke, dam Hazel Kirk by 6th Red Thorndale; 2nd dam Miranda XIV by Monkey John, and thence on throngh the celebrated Miranda family. This animal was bred by Henry Clay of Kentucky.

Miss Bartlett got by Bartlett 84,612, dam Linda Belle by 6th Red Thorndale, her dam being also Miranda XIV.

Second Earl of Aberdeen 51,413 is a beautiful bull by Earl of Aberdeen 45,992, dam Golden Queen by Barmpton 31,461; 2nd dam Golden Gem by Knight of the Rose 38,526, and thence back through the best blood in the herd book.

Red Dolly 32d by 32d Kirk Levington of Forest Home, 63,259, dam Red Dolly 22d by Duke of Kirk Levington, 2d dam Red Dolly 8th by Red Thorndale 20,802; Red Dolly 26th by 5th Kirk Levington of Forest Home 6,326; 1st dam Red Dolly 13th by 2d Duke of Alameda 38,254; 2d dam Red Dolly 8th by Red Thorndale.

Oxford Rose 13th by Duke of Kirk Levington 51,123 dam Oxford Rose 3rd by Red Thorndale 20,802; 2d dam Oxford Rose by Oxford Lad 17,888.

One of the bulls bought by Mr. Norton is 2d Duke of Lavender, whose name was not entered in the catalogue, consequently we failed to obtained his breeding, but if good looks go for anything, he should be very successful in his new home.

Dr. Merritt of Woodland, Yolo County, has sold to the same gentlemen a very fine Jack, who was shipped at the same time that the cattle were sent away.

Mr. Norton has had the promise from Governor Stanford of an Electioneer colt, and on the return of the Senator from Europe the colt will he shipped to his future Arizona home.

Mr. Norton is one of the progressive breeders of this section, and we confidently expect to hear splendid reports from his new purchases.

Third Volume Advanced Register.

Whatever opinion a breeder may have of the value or perfection of our systsm of Advanced Registry, he cannot afford to be without a knowlege of it, says the Holstein Friesian Register. It appears to be gaining grounnd not only in our Association but in others. The latest movement in this direction has recently appeared in Scotland. The third volume of our Register has been out about two weeks. A copy lies before us. It is nestly printed and bonnd and contains 242 pages. The entries consist of 297 cows and 25 bulls. We notice some large butter records, the majority, however, are not greatly above the requirements. While extremely large records are valuable, the reputation of the breed is more likely to be advanced by the many records of medium size, records of two-year-old heifers ranging from nine to eleven ponnds, of those three years old from eleven to thirteen ponnds, of those four years old from thirteen to fifteen pounds and of cows above this age from fifteen to eighteen ponnds, made strictly in accordance with the rules. We wish there might be competition among the breeders not only in making large records but in making many records.

This volume also contains the rules as amended last year, the Scale of Points also amended at the same time, the nomenclature improved from former volumes, and instructions to applicants and and Inspectors. We bespeak a general perusal of these. They give a mass of information helpful to all breeders in determining the points of their cattle and in describing them. We are pleased to know that all our leading breeders are availing themselves of such information the product of this system of registry. In connection with this, are the illustrations that have appeared in former volumes, especially valnable to beginners in breeding.

We notice a change from former volnmes in the giving of pedigrees. Each generation is preceded by a fractional sign showing the amount of blood contributed by each ancestor to the subject of entry. We think this is an important improvement. Any person, whether his skill in forming diagrams of breeding can determine at a glance the bearing of any ancestor on the make-up of the animal entered without mental effort. We think the breeders will generally approve of this change.

The reputation of our cattle has been built up on records. For a time our milk records were received by the public with many doubts. Some of our public journals more or less directly expressed contempt for them. This has all passed away. The evidence of their correctness has been so conclusive that no one now presumes to question them. We have now entered upon the work of convincing the public of the equal importance and correctness of our butter records, and of the value of our breed in butter making. We believe there is no surer way of doing this than through this system of registry. Let entries follow entries, and let records be made and attested strictly in accordance with its rules. We believe every breeder should contribute to build up as far as his circumstances will permit, the common reputation in which he is a common sharer.

A New Disease.

A new disease, the name of which is unknown to veterinary surgeons at present, has broken out among the cattle in some portions of Missouri. The disease was first noticed over a month ago in the interior of the State. In a short time letters began pouring in to Dr. Paquin, the State Veterinarian, informing him of the presence of the disease in several parts of the State, the owners declaring the disease to be entirely new to them, and requesting a diagnosis. The letters became so numerous that Dr. Paquin did make an investigation and found the cattle reported sick to be suffering from the one disease, an affection of the mouth and foot. Finding he could not attend to all the cases reported to his office, Dr. Paquin compiled a circular letter, which he had printed and sent around to every newspaper in the state, requesting the editors to publish it in full. He begins the circular by asking stockmen not to be in the least alarmed for even if it is the "foot and mouth" diseases of Europe, it is the mildest epidemic known among stock. The death rate rarely rises to 10 per cent, the only serious damage that it does cause is in reducing the flesh and stopping the milk.

Holstein-Friesians as a Butter Breed.

Mr. G. W. Farlee, in the Country Gentleman of August 14th, labors to show, says the Holstein Friesian Register, that Holstein-Friesians are not and cannot be for several generations to come a butter breed.

We quote briefly from his article: "Some of their admirers claim that the Holsteins as a breed may be properly considered rivals of the Jerseys as butter cows. One of the prominent breeders claims that he has made great butter cows of them. By a systematic course of heavy feeding for months he has made them produce heavy yields of butter for a week. This is possible with any heavy milker of strong frame and constitution. But in forcing the individual cow out of her accustomed habits you have not made a breed. * * * The moist pastures [of Holland] have developed milking habits in the Holsteins that cannot be revolutionized. * * * By persistent breeding for butter for eight or ten generations, reversing the process she has been subjected to for generations past she may become a butter breed—whether or not a profitable butter producer time alone will show."

A butter breed according to the views of our Jersey friends necessarily gives a small quantity of milk. According to common sense views, it is a breed that produces a large quantity of butter. A Jersey cow gives fifteen pounds of milk from which one pound of butter is made, at the same time a Holstein-Friesian cow gives fifty pounds of milk from which one pound of butter is made, at the same time a Holstein Friesian cow gives fifty pounds of milk from which two pounds of equally good butter is made. Which is entitled to the pre-eminence of being called a butter cow? Mr. Farlee and his friends would make our dairymen believe that it is the former, common sense would decide that it is the latter. Mr. Farlee would lead his reader to infer that butter is not made to any great extent in Holland from our breed of cattle. Very possibly he has this impression. It is an impression that many of our journals under the dictation of Jersey breeds have labored to incalculate, and many honest men have obtained. We do not have statistics of the total production of butter in Holland, but we have of the amount of Holland butter imported into Great Britain.

In 1884, 124,924,128 pounds of butter from Holland was received at British ports; from all other countries including France at 57,126,038 lbs., Denmark at 37,527 504 lbs., Germany at 16,177,288 lbs., Sweden at 11,404,064 lbs. United States at 11,231,472 lbs, there was received 152,325,028 lbs. In 1874 the province of Friesland, where our breed of cattle are exclnsively nsed, exported 29,796 592 pounds of butter which was 23,782 pounds to every square mile of that province including lands occupied by lakes, canals, rivers, cities, marshes, as well as that cultivated for other than grass crops.

In 1884 the Channel Islands where the Jersey and Guernsey breeds are exclnsively kept, exported 100,464 ponnds, or 1,647 ponnds to every square mile. A perusal of these figures may enlighten Mr. Farlee and perhaps others that have obtained the impression that the Holstein-Friesian is not a butter breed. The facts are that the Holstein Friesian breed has been producing for generations more butter than any other breed in the world, more per cow, more per acre of land occupied and more in the aggregate.

Hasty Dishes.

Something that can be got ready in "five minutes"—a hasty yet presentable and satisfactory dish, demanding the least possible outlay of time and trouble—how often this is just what we want! Of what shall we make them—these five-minute or two-minute dishes—hearty enough for a lunch, or even, upon occasion, for a dinner, of which a hungry man would approve? Milk and eggs are indispensable, as being perfect forms of food and being most easily cooked. Canned meats make a very convenient resource, especially valuable where there is a lack of ice. Considering the important item of immunity from waste, they are not expensive, when compared with butcher's meat. Extract of beef is a standard article of great value in catering for a small family. Where a large quantity of meat is used, there may be "stock" always on hand, but in our American households this is doubtless the exception rather than the rule. For hurried or easy cooking, beef extract, which keeps perfectly even after the jar is opened, serves an excellent purpose.

A Hearty Dish of Eggs.—Boil as many eggs as will be required while getting breakfast, or at any other convenient time, and put them aside. When wanted for the mid-day lunch or dinner, or hearty tea, remove the shells and cut the eggs in slices. Make a smooth, creamy sance by rubbing together a piece of butter the size of an egg and two tablespoons full of flower; let it bubble up for a minute in the sauce pan, then add slowly a pint of milk, and stir until perfectly cooked. Mix half a teaspoonful of beef extract with two tablespoonsfull of cream and add to the sance. Season lightly with salt and pepper, and pour over the eggs. Thin shavings of ham or tougue may be added to this dish of eggs, or it will serve as an excellent accompaniment to cold meat offered separately.

The same sauce with small new potatoes dropped in it so as to warm through, or larger ones, cut in four quarters, makes an acceptable variation. It is likewise an excellent sauce for cauliflower.

Meat Puffs.—In a cool place, and in the coolest part of the day, chop whatever cold meat you may have on hand as finely as possible—chicken, veal, lamb—whatever it may be, and there is no objection to mixing two or more sorts; make it perfectly free from skin and gristle, and chop it as fine as mince meat. Season with salt and pepper, and a little pepper-sance and catsup, if liked; allow one beaten egg to each cup of meat, and enough mashed potato or rolled craoker to bind together. Make into small balls, and when wanted, put over the frying kettle and fry to a golden brown.

Stuffed Tomatoes with Cream Sauce.—Improve the opportunity when you have a hot oven to bake a dozen fine large tomatoes, removing the skins and setting them side by side in a baking pan like apples. Take them up in an earthen dish, and they will keep for a day or two if desired. When they are to be served, cut each one half through, and fill with a spoonful of canned chicken, deviled ham or whatever meat you prefer. Set the dish where the tomatoes will become warm while you make a white sauce of thin sweet cream thickened in the usual way with flour and butter rubbed together. Pour over the tomatoes, garnish prettily and serve.

Another way of using the cold baked tomatoes is to fry them in a little melted butter until hot and slightly browned. Add a few shavings of dried beef and dish up together on toast. Dorothy, In Cultivator & County Gentleman.

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 26TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

The Friscos played great ball at the Oakland grounds against the Stocktons last Friday. Besides putting up a very clever game in the field, they hit Sonny Hoffman for twelve clean hits with a total of eighteen bases, and of their ten runs easily earned five. Lookabaugh was in the box for the Friscos, and for six innings kept the Stocktons guessing. Not a run was secured off him for that time, the hits being well scattered, and the Goblins fielding perfectly. In the seventh, Ebright made a disastrous throw of Wilson's grounder, which went to the fence, and Stockton's third baseman cantered home. The Stocktons got four men over the rubber in the eighth, Hoffman reaching first on a base on balls, and went to the third on Levy's error of Stockwell's fly. Fogarty's sacrifice scored Hoffman, and Armstrong's double to right field sent Stockwell home. Wilson sent up a high fly, which Veach failed to secure, Armstrong scoring, and Wilson tallied on Dave Levy's safe hit to left field. The Friscos landed heavily on Hoffman, and when they got a man on base they sent him home by strong hitting. Veach led the batting, making a triple and two doubles. Everett, Shea, Wilson and Stockwell also showed up well with the stick. The most particular fielding features were, Dave Levy's excellent work behind the bat, Fogarty's, Shea's and Ebright's work on the bases, and Armstrong's and Pache's splendid performance in the outfield. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 26th, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Senators outbatted and outfielded the Colonels in this game but lost by hard luck. Harper and Cobb pitched fine ball, both being very effective. Five hits were only made off Harper's delivery while ten of the Senators reached first on safeties off Cobb. Both pitches struck out eight batsmen. Harper allowed four bases on balls which proved disastrous, two of the players reaching first this way, scoring. McHale and Lohman rendered their pitches excellent support. In the absence of Captain Stapleton, Bowman played, first doing well, and Ward, late of Tacoma, made a good impression in right field and at the bat.

In the first inning, Dooley reached first on balls, went to third on Sweeney's single, and scored on Dungan's sacrifice. In the fifth Cobb hit for a single, went to third on Cantillion's safe hit and scored on Hoffman's error of McHale's throw. Cantillion scored on Dooley's single. In the seventh McDonald was given first on balls, took third on a wild pitch and scored on N. O'Neil's sacrifice. In the eighth, Ward took first on balls, went to third on hits by Godar and Reitz and scored on Hoffman's hit. Godar scored while Hoffman was being run down from first. In the ninth, after two men were out, Roberts scored on his long drive for four bags. The Senators would have scored in the fifth had not Dooley twice deliberately blocked the runner.

Roberts led in the hitting making four safe hits for as many times up, one of which was a "homer." Ward, Reitz and Sweeney each secured two hits. The general fielding of the Sacramentos was of a finished character while McDonald, Cantillion and Dooley played a strong fielding game for the Colonels. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 27TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Of the many fine games played at the Haight St. grounds this season, the one played last Saturday will take the palm for general excellence. Although one side was shut out with out a run, the fielding of both teams was of a most meritorious character, while the hitting of the Friscos was sharp and clean and the batteries work exceptionally clever. Coughlin was in the points for the Metropolitans and his work was simply grand. But a single scratch hit was made off him and he sent but one man to his base on balls. Kilroy did the twirling for the Gas City aggregation, and although he was pretty heavily bunched on in the second and sixth innings, his work was on the whole, good. Armstrong supported him in fine shape, and the two errors made by his team did not cut any figure in the run getting. The Friscos played an errorless and scientific game. In the second inning, Ebright led off with a corking double to left, which Hoffman cleverly blocked, and scored on Levy's single to the same field. Everett sacrified Levy to second and Coughlin's triple, sent the left fielder home with the second earned run. They earned another in the sixth. Ebright made another double and went to third on Everett's single. The Frisco's Captain played off third a little and Armstrong lined the ball to Wilson. It rolled away from the third baseman, and Ebright sprinted for home, but Fudger secured the ball and by a magnificent throw caught Ebright at the plate. Everett had by this time reached third and scored on Speer's single. The heavy hitting of Ebright, and magnificent catches by Fogarty, Armstrong, Stockwell and Everett were the most particular features of the game. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 27TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

To Shaw's unsteadiness at critical stages of the game was the Senators victory of last Saturday due. He was given fair support by his team, but the two errors made were responsible for some of the run getting. Hoffman pitched fine ball for the Sacramentos, but Bowman had an off day, his two errors permitting three of the Oaklands runs. Hoffman's catch of a hot liner was a special feature of the game. Ward played his first game at short and made a very favorable impression, but was weak at the bat. Stapleton made his re-appearance at first and Reitz put up a splendid article of ball at second. Goodenough, McHale, Reitz, Cantillion and N. O'Neill did the best work at the bat. The runs were made as follows:

Oakland scored twice in the third inning on Cantillion's double, Dooley's scratch single, Sweeney's sacrifice and Mc Hale's error. The home team took the lead in the sixth on three bases on balls, two hits and an error. Oakland made two in the seventh on Godar's error, N. O'Neill's single and Bowman's error. In the eighth the Senators tied the score on Roberts' force hit and McHale's triple. In the ninth, Godar was given first base on balls and took second on Reitz's single. McDonald's error scored Godar and gave Hoffman first. Goodenough went to first on balls. Roberts forced Reitz out at the plate and Bowman cleared the bases with a rattling three-bagger. In the last half Shaw scored on his base on balls and Bowman's wild throw. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 28TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Although the Stocktons started off by making a run in the first inning, they were never in the game afterward. They couldn't touch Lookabaugh to any extent, and when in the eighth inning they did manage to bunch three hits, it was too late to do them any material good. The Friscos put up another fine game for which they are now being celebrated, and hit the Stockton pitcher frequently and hard. Fudger, who was at one time a star twirler of the League, was in the box for the Stocktons, but had poor command of the ball and was badly handicapped in his catcher, Vogt. Armstrong commenced to catch but was injured in the first inning, causing his retirement from the game. The Stocktons did not play a very good game, errors assisting the Friscos to pile on the agony. In the eighth inning with two out, Holliday made a single along the first base line and scored on Hoffman's triple to deep right. Stockwell's safety to left field scored Hoffman, making two earned runs for the Stocktons. There was some fine fielding in the game, notably that of Ebright, Everett, Hoffman, Fogarty and Wilson in the infield, and Levy, Pache and Kilroys outfielding. Speer handled Lookabaugh's delivery splendidly, and Shea made four stolen bases in the game. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 28TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

Both Harper and Cobb were touched up lively in this game, but blunders on the Sacramento's infield were principally responsible for the Oakland's victory. The Colonels played a remarkable game in the field, cutting off many hits. Hoffman did not play, and Mike Fisher was extra man. In the fourth inning Dungan ran into Stapleton with such force as to sprain the first baseman's ankle, causing him to retire. Bowman then played first, McHale went behind the bat and Fisher to right field. Harper struck out five men, N. O'Neill succumbing to his curves three times. The runs were made as follows: In the first inning Cantillion's base on balls, Dooley's hit and Lohman's sacrifice scored one run for the visitors. In the third Dooley and Sweeney reached first on Stapleton's errors and scored on Lohman's hit and Goodenough's error. Lohman scored on C. O'Neill's triple and O'Neill scored on a wild pitch. In the fourth Cantillion made a single, took second on Dooley's sacrifice and scored on Godar's error. Godar and Reitz scored for the Senators on three two-baggers. In the fifth Bowman took first on balls and third on McHale's single. Mac stole second, both scoring on two sacrifices. In the eighth Cobb hit safely. Cantillion hit to Godar and took third on his overthrow, Cobb scoring. Cantillion scored on Dooley's single. Donohue umpired splendidly, not a single decision being questioned. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, OCT. 2ND, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Oaklands almost annihilated the Sacramentos in this game banging pitcher Hoffman all over the lot at a tremendous pace. Singles, doubles, triples and even home runs were the order of the day and they came in just when they did the most good. Of the fourteen runs made by the Colonels seven were earned. Although Shaw was wild he received magnificent support from Lohman and all the players of the team. The Sacramentos opened well, for with three men on bases gained on balls Reitz's sent them all home by banging the ball to deep center, and although Sweeney got under it he misjudged it at the last moment. The Colonels had been touching up Hoffman pretty lively all along, but in the fifth they hit him as he was never hit before. A base on balls, two doubles by McDonald and Dungan, a triple by Sweeney and a home run by N. O'Neill, sent five men over the plate in this most disastrous inning for the Senators blonde twirler. Ward, late of Tacoma, played his first game in this city and made a fine impression behind the bat. The Senators were without the services of Captain Stapleton and Bowman played first base very efficiently. McDonald's marvellous one hand catch in short left was the particular feature of the game. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The Senators' lead is becoming beautifully less as the season draws to a close, and the race promises to be a fast and furious one between the Sacramentos, Oaklands and Friscos. The Colonels are now in second place, having a slight advance over the home team. It is needless to say Stockton is still "in the soup."

Ebright still continues his tremendous hitting.

Little Danny Sweeney is a great favorite in Sacramento.

Next season will be a lively one for base ball in California.

Tom Powers has fallen off considerably in his batting of late.

It is doubtful if "Kid" Carsey will play in California next year.

Speer and Kilroy will be with Stapleton's San Diego team this winter.

The Omahas will play the teams of the Northwest before coming here.

Billy Cooney, late of the Portlands is now Captain and second baseman of the Allens.

Buck Ewing has struck out but seven times in seventy-eight games.

John J. Mone is said to have aspirations for the Public Administratorship.

It is reported that Harry O'Day is seriously ill in a hospital at Portland.

Daly's lay off was very temporary as he is again playing short for the team.

It is very doubtful if Stockton will be represented in the League next year.

Comiskey, Pfeiffer, Cooney and Lyons will most likely be Chicago's infield next year.

It is doubtful if Managers Finn and Robinson will permit Borchers to play with Sacramento.

George Bright, the clever brainy infielder and captain of the Seattle team has been released.

Harper is coming to the front as a batter. In the last ten games he has averaged a hit in each.

It is a "toss up" between Fresno and San Diego as to which will be in the league next year.

As pitcher "Sonny Hoffman" is a failure, but as a fielder and kicker he's "in it" with any of them.

Brittan, the third baseman, lately released from Tacoma, umpired the Fresno—Merced game Sunday.

"Blockers" Hanley is rather weak on throwing yet but their is nothing that gets past him in his territory.

Dave Orr and Jim O'Rourke are tie for batting honors in the Players League. Each has a percentage of 373.

Until Stapleton is able to resume his position at first, Bowman will guard the initial and Ward will do the back stopping.

Jimmy Ward, the Sacramentos' new short stop and change catcher, is said to bear a very striking resemblance to Jack Daly.

With Lookabaugh crippled and McCarty on the sick list, the bulk of the pitching devolves on the shoulders of Roscoe Coughlin.

Tommy Foster who was here with the Philadelphias in '88, will most probably be with Colonel Robinson on his Southern trip.

Danny Long is quite frequently played on the bench now as Curt Welch, the star centerfielder has been signed by the Baltimores.

No doubt but that many of the promising youngsters in the Amateur league will have a chance to enter some of the big teams next season.

Glenalvin is hit more by pitchers than any other Chicago players. He is either a mark for the twirlers, or unusually awkward in dodging.

Shaw and the Sacramento crowd don't hitch. In fact, their remarks during a game so unnerves him that he can scarcely play his game.

In consequence of the injury received by colliding with Dungan, Stapleton will not be able to appear in his position for a week more at least.

Those who have seen the Spokanes play, say that any of the California League teams would'nt be in it with the Pacific North-West champions.

Eddie Howell and Billy Farrell, late of the Sacramentos, left yesterday for Fresno where they are under engagement to play with Ed Austin's team.

Jack Crooks, the second baseman, will be out here again this winter with one of Comiskey's teams. Ed. Crane, the pitcher, will also be with the party.

In Everett, the Friscos have a hard "sticking" infielder and one whose mind is on the game from the time "play ball" is called till the last man is out.

The race is becoming intensely interesting, and whether the pennant will float over Sacramento, Oakland or San Francisco, is as yet a betting proposition.

In practicing Wednesday, Lookabaugh had the nail of the index finger of his right hand completely torn off, which will prevent his occupying the box for some little time.

Manager Barnie secured a great battery in McMahon and Robinson, late of the Athletics, and aided by the new strength lately introduced, his team is more than holding their own.

McCarthy is slowly recovering from his rheumatism. He is still under his physicians care, but is taking light practice with the team. It is doubtful if he can go in the box before a month.

Fogarty says he's bottled up with choice bits of information of events to be sprung in 1890. When asked to pop he declined, saying: "Excuse me, but I've lost me corkscrew."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Last Sunday Dungan collided with Stapleton with such force as to knock him off his feet and badly wrenched his ankle. "Stape" had to be carried off the field and conveyed to his home in a carriage.

Pete Sweeney has taken another move. He is now playing third base for the new Athletic Club of Philadelphia. Pete has played with St. Louis, St. Paul, Louisville and the Athletics all in one season.

Most likely, Charley Tillson, who lately received an offer from Sacramento, and Matt Stanley the clever little catcher now with Fresno, will both have an engagement with one of the teams for next season.

The Sacramentos are called the Senators; the Oaklands, the Colonels; the Stocktons, the Gas City's or Gastowns and the San Franciscos are now referred to as the Metropolitans, Goblins or Finns Cripples.

Tip O'Neill (not the Colonel's Tip)) but the O'Neill who lead the American Association batsmen in '87, and at one time the brilliant outfielder, will not be played with the Chicagos next season as his arm is said to be completely gone.

"There," said the little girl, "Ma always said that these base ball games are full of quarrels and fights. Here I see by the paper that one club, not content with beating the other, has gone to work and actually whitewashed them."

Manager Enright now gets back at his high priced team by fining them for the most trivial offence. Not long ago Harper was slow in handling two ground hits and although he got one of the men out he was fined $5 for each offence.

With Comiskey's two teams, Barnie's "All Californias," Leonard's Omahas, the champion Spokanes, and all the native son base ballists who winter here, the interval between the closing of the season and the opening of next, will be well covered with exhibitions.

The Brooklyn Eagle says that "John Ward's Brooklyns are the most remarkable nine in the country when unity of purpose and absolute good feeling is considered. There isn't a vestige of cliqueism, and the men act toward each other like brothers." The same might truthfully be said of the Sacramentos.—ED.

Besides the many good ball players California has sent East, she has also sent one of the brainiest umpires who ever made his debut on a diamond and if needed could send three more of equal intelligence and cleverness. They are Gagns, Donohue and Sweeney, who with Jack Sheridan make a most judicious quartette.

Stevens' appearance on the ball field is deceptive. Although to the general public he appears to be moping, there is no player in the Metropolitans that is more alive to every play than the big right fielder. Stevens is a player from "way back," and is a heavy "sticker" and fine right fielder. His only drawback is, slowness on the paths.

The Spokanes are the champions of the Northwestern League and the Kansas Citys, of the Western Association. Most probably Boston will take the pennant for the Players League, Brooklyn of the National and Louisville of the American Association, but just where the bird of victory will perch in the California League is yet a matter of conjecture.

Powers, Hardie, Smalley and Long of Barnies "All Californias" need no advance agent as all are well and favorably known in California. Harry Raymond, the third baseman is also a Californian and played with Los Angeles while Norman Baker will be remembered as the clever but eccentric pitcher of the Stocktons in '88. "Hub" Collins the second baseman of the Brooklyns was here in '86 with Jim Hart's Louisvilles, playing left field for that famous team.

Manager Barnie, of the Baltimores, talks of taking a club to California this winter to be composed of California players as follows: Power, of Baltimore, first base and captain; Collins, of Brooklyn, second base; Smalley, of Cleveland, short stop; Raymond, of Louisville, third base; Davis, of Cleveland, left field; Long, of Baltimore, center field; Burns, of Brooklyn, right field; pitchers, Baker, of Baltimore; Nichols, of Boston, and Lovett, of Brooklyn; catchers, Hardie, of Boston; Towusend, of Baltimore,—Sporting News.

Boston has ten players in the Brotherhood team who have been with championship clubs in former years. They are Bronthers, Richardson, Kelly, Stovey, Irwin, Radbourne, Madden, Quinn, Murphy and Daley. Bronthers and Richardson were with the champion Detroits of '87, Kelly with Chicago's pennant winners of 1887 and 1886, Radbourne and Irwin with Providence in 1884, Quinn with Des Moines in 1883, Daley with Jersey City in 1889, Madden with Portland in 1886, Stovey with the Athletics in 1883 and Murphy with Lowell last year.—Chicago Sportsman.

The Continental Hotel, where the team is staying, is crowded with base ball men all day. Champion John L. Sullivan is stopping here with his company. John is very anxious to see Boston win the pennant, and says that Mike Kelly is the greatest ball player in the world. It's amusing to see the crowds come and look over the two best advertised men today in the sporting world. Both are in the pink of condition, and both inclined to like the theatrical profession.

"I say, John," said Kelly, as the two stars stood among a group of admirers. "I think you should have an understudy, and I am your man."

"That's right," answered John, "but Boston must have you to take care of her baseball interests."—Boston Herald.

The National Base Ball League of Great Britain is now firmly established, in fact the season is about over. Next season the League will be enlarged by the addition of several other clubs, and the organization will be stronger than ever. The fact that about all the clubs have paid expenses this year speaks volumes for the future success of base ball in England. Manager Hart of last year's Boston team is now in England, and in a letter to the writer, says that the future success of base ball in England is assured. "You would be surprised," writes Hart, "to see how proficient the Englishmen are becoming in the game. They are fielding well and run their bases almost as well as their American cousins. They will in time become good batsmen, although the mystery of curve pitching has mixed them up a bit."—Exchange.

The Amateurs.

The Santa Rosas have been winning steadily, and now enjoy a good lead. The Reports have experienced a series of set backs and have taken a big drop, while the Vallejos are still pushing their way upward and onward, and are almost on top of the Reports. The Will & Fincks have lately shown their mettle, and are doing excellent work. The new Burlingtons have won three of their four games and are in the race for place. The Allens still remain last, with little hope of bettering their condition. The record to date:

WILL & FINCKS vs. BURLINGTONS.

Sunday, Sept. 28th, 1890, at San Francisco.

The game last Sunday between the Young Giants and Railroaders was a peculiar one. A purse of $200 was to go to the winning team and this accentuated the rivalry between the two teams, who are fourth and fifth in the league race, respectively. Neither side put up good ball, errors being very frequent. The left side of the Burlingtons was especially weak and if not strengthened they can hope to win but few games. There was coneiderable unnecessary "joshing" in the game which should have been suppressed. Both Rohan and Howell did excellent work in the box; in fact the pitching was the only really commendable feature of the contest. The score was tied twice but the Giants forged ahead in the eighth on errors of the Burlingtons, and so won handily. In the first inning, with two out, Traynor of the Burlingtons, banged out a double to the right field, stole third and scored on Levy's poor throw to catch him at that bag. They made three in the sixth. Wilds hit safely and Traynor reached first on Deeney's error. Mulvey's single advanced each a base, and Rohan's deep double to left center cleared the bases. The next three men went out in order. In the seventh, Crowley led off with a single along the third base line, and took second on Tillson's error of Strand's hit. Wilds then banged a hot one to Tillson, forcing Strand at second, but through Strand's interference, Tillson in attempting a double play threw wild and Crowley scored. This was the extent of their run getting. The Will and Fincks tallied one in the second. With one out, Sullivan hit safely and was advanced to second and third on a base on balls and batsman hit by pitched ball and scored on Conway's sacrifice, Strand to Traynor. They got another in the fourth. Sweeney was safe on Fitzgerald's error, but was forced at second on Gormley's hit to third. Strand threw wild to double up Gormley and he went to second; he stole third and came home on Traynor's muff of ball thrown him to catch Howell, who reached first on balls, napping. Farrell's corking three bagger and a wild pitch gave the Giants another run in the fifth. On errors of Fitzgerald and Kelly, Delmas went to third and scored on Farrell's sacrifice hit on which Fitzgerald erred, Farrell reaching second. He stole third and scored on Fitzgerald's poor throw to the plate. In the eighth they added three more runs. Deeney was awarded his base on balls, reached second on Strand's error of throw down, went to third on Saunder's error of Gormley's hit and Conway's long triple scored both men. Howell's sacrifice to Rohan sent Conway across the plate. Sullivan in the ninth, made a single to right, took second on Levy's out at the plate, stole third, and on Rohan's failure to stop the ball on return to the box Sullivan tallied. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. DAILY REPORTS.

Sunday, Sept. 28th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Reports received, besides an awful drubbing, their first shut out of the season last Sunday. It was indeed a great achievement for the Marines, for besides defeating the team that for a considerable period was reckoned as "sure pennant winners," they boosted themselves very close to second position. Sprague kept the ball over the plate all through the game, allowing but a single to base on balls and being touched out for only three hits. His support was of the Class A. kind. Farrell at the receiving end and Smith, Hughes, McGuire and Murdock on the infield accepted everything that came their way in great shape. There were two errors made by the outfield, but they did no special damage outside of disfiguring the fielders scores. Williams was in the box for the Newsies, and although generally strong against this team, he was plunched out at a lively rate. His support from all sides was poor, while the Vallejos experienced no difficulty in stealing eight bases off Green. The Reports were short a player, and McCarthy, a Vallejo man, was put in, butproved to be a poor "find," both in his position and at the bat. McGuire, Bogle, Murdock, Stanford and Smith led the hitting with a brace of hits each. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Billy Cooney was a great find for the "Sports."

Gormley is now a "Giant," having resigned from the Reports.

Lolly Dunn should have a berth with one of the Amateur teams.

Saunders and Fitzgerald were way off in their fielding last Sunday.

Batchelder and Geo. Kelly did not play with the Burlingtons Sunday.

The E. T. Allens have lost one game more than the Santa Rosas have won.

Monet was not with the Reports on their trip to Vallejo Sunday, and his absence was greatly felt.

Josh Reilly is now the long hitter in the League. Doubles, triples and home runs come oftener to this player than to any other.

The Allens keep up their reputation of losing games by one run for last Sunday, the Santa Rosas defeated them 12 to 11. The Allens have lost all of ten games this season by a solitary tally.

Frank Mulvey is again a "Railroader," and although Wilds will undoubtedly do most of the catching for the team, Mulvey will be kept steadily in right field on account of his heavy hitting.

There are three of the amateur league players laid up with sprains or bruises. Billy Kennedy is still on crutches, and it will be several months before he can return to the diamond again. Lonny Delmas' ankle is in such condition as to prevent his playing for a couple of weeks at least, and Billy Farrell is suffering from a sprained back caused by lifting a heavy weight.

The Santa Rosas built up their percentage on winnings from the two weakest teams—the Allens and Burlingtons. Of their eighteen victories, six were gained from the Allens and five from the Burlingtons. Vallejo has been the Sonoma boys stumbling block, that team defeating them four times of six games played, while the Reports have a quit even with them, winning two out of four thus far.

Although the season is well advanced, the pennant is not a "cinch" for any team yet. While the Santa Rosas loom up formidably in the percentage column, on close comparison it will be seen that they are but three games ahead of the Vallejos, while the Reports are a trifle ahead of the last named team. The Will & Fincks have strengthened up considerably and are making a fast finish, and the Burlingtons and Allens are due to yet lessen the percentage of the leaders and thereby hunch the four first teams closer together.

It now behooves the managers of all the teams to have a watchful eye for the "weak spots" in their teams and as rapidly as possible replace them by the strongest available material. Another important matter and in which the managers appear to be very lax is the enforcing of discipline in their teams. In this all important factor of success, we would say that the managers are too lenient, in fact negligent, in looking after the doings of their players Saturday nights. While this is an evening given up to social enjoyments of one kind or another by mostly all classes, it is the very night that ball players should most rigorously refrain from indulgence of any kind.

There are some players who, with the interests of their team at heart, are sensible enough to know that to do good work on the morrow requiree a night of sound and refreshing sleep, which naturally producee a bright eye and clear intellect. Others, and they are generally of the "swelled head" class, think they are fulfilling their duty if, after "making a night of it," they drag their weary forms to the grounds, and, with eyes half opened, don their uniforms and remain in a trance all through the game, neither hitting the ball or fielding their positions properly. And these are the very players who are only too willing to ascribe their defeat to a decision of the umpire or some other equally ridiculous and feeble excuse. No matter whether you think you have a "snap" or whether it is to be your hardest game of the season, let your jollification take place after the game, and in justice to your team, your manager and yourself, retire at a reasonable hour Saturday nights.

Fine Points in Scoring.

By Jacob C. Morse.

The need of uniformity in scoring is as great as ever. The importance of this is no less than that of entrusting official scoring to expert hands. The averages this year will be of little practical use, both on account of the lack of uniformity and the unreliability of the scorers. I have found that there exists among scorers the greatest uncertainty as to what constitutes a stolen base. Some score a stolen base to a man if he makes the attempt to steal, as soon as the ball has left the hand of the pitcher, and not on account of any battery error. If the attempt is concomitant with the pitching of the ball, then a passed ball, wild pitch, or wild throw, will not effect the steal. Others will not give a stolen base unless the steal is a clean one, i. e., unattended with any error. In the former case, the runner is given credit for his attempt; in the latter case, this may, and may not, be the case. Some scorers give a stolen base on a base made after a fly is caught by an outfielder. If the making of the base arises more out of the speed and ability of the runner, and it this that outstrips the throw, well and good; but often a base is thus made on a ball batted out so far that the retirement of the runner is out of the question, and all he has to do is to leisurely proceed to the home base. Some scorers give a stolen base where a base runner makes home from second base on an infield hit, and this is manifestly proper as it requires great daring, judgment, speed and skill to make such a play. One can easily see how very unsettled are the fine points of scoring in the matter of stolen bases alone.

Scorers differ also on the following point. Suppose a man is on first and one out. An outfielder muffs a fly, but recovers and puts out the man at second. Many scorers give the outfielder an error, but there has been nothing lost through the play, and, indeed, there may have been something gained, as, for instance, the man forced at second may be a good runner, and a poor one replaces him.

Some scorers do not give an error on a foul fly, palpably muffed, unless the batsman afterwards gets his base. Now suppose there is a man on third, two out, and the catcher or an infielder muffs a foul fly. A wild pitch or a passed ball lets in a run, but the batsman afterwards goes out. Why should the error not be scored? Again, why not go on in the way these scorers reason, and argue that no error should be scored against any infielder, unless a run results from the error? Here is a batsman, for instance, who hits a foul that is dropped. He then gets a base on balls, but this does not result seriously. Why score an error against the fielder in such a case?

Such matters ought to receive more attention than they have received, and there is surely as much necessity for a conference of the secretary of any league with the official scorers, as there is between the secretary and the umpires. The readers of newspapers are very critical students of the scoree and the importance of such a matter cannot be underrated. At present, every one is allowed to score just as he is inclined, and the result is general confusion and gross inaccuracies. In a recent game, I noticed at least a dozen (scarcely less) errors in an official score. There were omissions in stolen bases and in assists. It was the result of incompetency, pure and simple, and I would say here that it did not occur in Boston.

In sacrifice hitting, too, there exists confusion as great as in the matter of stolen bases. I have found that some scorers only give a sacrifice with one hand out; some do not score a sacrifice, even if a base has been gained through an error with no one out; others score a sacrifice hit on anything that advances a runner when there was no one out or but one hand out. In this department the need for a careful revision is obvious.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

Last week we were unavoidably compelled to omit several important notes, especially the club and wheel jottings. In this issue we will try and make up for last week's paucity of wheel and club notes. The Alpine Club road race and the Olympic Club handicap run, both of which took place on Sunday last, were very successful. The Bay City Wheelmen are very active just now, planning for future events to take place under their auspices. In the aquatic line matters are rather quiet, and no event of importance is billed for the future.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

Never before in the history of athletics on the Pacific Coast have so many challenges been issued as appeared last month Every day brings a new defy, and if the craze keeps up, the jewelers will reap a rich harvest during the winter months.

George W. Armbruster, of the Alpine Amateur Athletic Club, has asked us to state that he will run Daniel Cohen, of the Alameda Olympic Club, 880 yards scratch for a gold medal. A communication will reach Mr. Armbruster at 230 Montgomery Street, Rooms 15 and 16.

In the September issue of the Pacific National Guardsman, a very fine poem entitled "Bayard Wilkensen" appeared over the name of George D. Baird.

Captain Walter A. Scott, President of the P. C. A. A. A., writes us that before selecting the officers for the Sacramento athletic meeting, he notified the corresponding secretary of the Alpine Club, that the P. C. A. A. A. would like to have some of its members act as judges, etc. The secretary, it would seem, neglected his duty, and the Alpine members were never informed of the offer. If the secretary of the Alpine Club is losing interest in its welfare, he should resign in order to give an attentive man a show.

A. Cooke's net time in the mile walk at Sacramento was 7:27½ and not 7:47½ as previously announced. Mr. Coffin finished only thirty yards behind Cooke, and as he was on scratch, his time must have been better than the record.

The Olympic Club will hold an invitation field-day at its new out-door grounds on October 25.

Every man competing will receive a bronz souvenir medal. There will be no prizes. The following will constitute the programme: 75, 120, 250, 600, and 1320 yard runs, handicap; 220 yard handicap race for members of the juvenile class only; one-sixth of a mile scratch wheelbarrow race; 100 yard scratch sack race; pole vaulting; 1 mile handicap walk; ½ mile bicycle race, open only to members of the L. A. W. and a potato race. In the latter race the contestants, as they run, pick up potatoes at regular intervals along the coast.

The O. A. C. will give a boxing tournament in November, and an all-round competition in gymnastics will be held in February.

The boxing tournament will be represented by six classes viz: bantain, feather, light, welter middle and heavy. The contests will be commenced during the first week in November, the object of the club being to continue the fistic sports for several weeks. Gold medals will be given to the first and second men who will score the greater number of points.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Olympic Club held Tuesday evening Sept. 23, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved—That as an incentive for the members of the Olympic Club to strive for championship form, the Board of Directors hereby offers the following schedule of prizes under the following conditions:

First—To each member who will succeed in breaking a Pacific Coast record, a medal or cup of the value of $50.

Second—To each member who may break an American record, a medal or cup of the value of $250,

Third—To each member who may break a world's record, a medal or cup of the value of $500.

The performances must be accomplished under the conditions prescribed by the P. C. A. A. A. rules for establishing records.

Some of the outsiders seem to concur in the opinion that these offers might have been extended to all members of the P. C. A. A. A.

It was also decided that any member of the Club who shall score the most points for his club in open competition between October 1st 1890, and September 1st 1891, shall be presented with a handsome gold watch as a reward for his work.

The indoor competitive tournament programme will be as follows: Horizontal bars, parallel bars, flying rings, side horse, long horse, vaulting back, rope climbing, and fence vaulting.

G. D. Baird, the old time amateur walker, is at present residing in San Francisco. In 1883 while a member of the American Athletic Club of New York City he won the 3 mile walking championship in 22m 8 3 5s, and in 1885 as a representative of the N. Y. Olympic Athletic Club he captured the 1 mile championship in 6m 42s. Mr. Baird gave up walking in 1885 just at the time when he was beginning to show wonderful speed. Had his leg not given out it is not at all improbable but that he would have knocked all the world records, both amateur and professional on the head. Shortly after his arrival here he walked a mile on the Olympic out door track in 6m 32½s, but of course his style was not square. With several weeks training he can no doubt make that time as a perfectly square walk, as when he was on the track years ago he always had the reputation of being a very fair heel and toe artist,

The championship meeting next year will probably bring out many new men, and it is safe to predict that neither Winslow, Baird nor Skillman was in San Francisco at the time. It would be no surprise either if John Purcell, James Jervis or Victor Schuffersten should fail to compete.

Harry Casidy of the Alpine Club and his club mate A. Cooke are both out with challenges to two members of the Olympic Club. The former wants to run Frank Cooley two miles level while Cooke would like a go at Horace Coffin in a 3-mile walk. A couple of weeks ago Mr. Casidy through the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN challenged Cooley to a one mile run but the defy was not taken up. Mr. Cooley explains that while he is not at all afraid of being defeated he cannot at the present time afford to put up money for a trophy. Cooke's proposition is rather a curious one, and if he agrees to put twenty or thirty dollars against a like amount from Mr. Coffin the winner to withdraw his stake and buy a prize with the losers money the Olympian will possibly oblige the Alpinite by walking him a race of any distance. If anything comes of either challenge it would be a good idea to have both races come off on the same day in conjunction with other events when the club under whose auspices the matches would be decided might possibly be able to subscribe a sum of money towards increasing the value of the trophies for the winners of the match races.

The "coy insects" at Sacramento proved a great annoyance to the visiting athletes. One of the Alpine men suggested that a committee on "skelters" be appointed, whose duty would be to walk around all night with fans and protect the amateurs who had to run next day. Garrison states that when the pistol was fired for the "quarter" he escaped a large skelter coming for him in the distance and hence his speed.

J. W. Cregh who won the "hundred" at Sacramento, is a very promising man. Previous to the race he had his spikes on but twice and judging from this he should without trouble be able to repeat the same performance from scratch with a month's careful practice.

The Alpine Club at the present time is without a good boxer and will probably not be represented at the coming boxing tournament.

The track at the Olympic grounds seems to improve as it grows old. Next summer, if kept in good order from now on, it will he in fine condition for record breaking.

Professor Garrison, of the Alpine Club, laughed out right when asked by one of our representatives if he had sanctioned that sweeping challenge which said that he was willing to run any amateur in America from 100 yards to half a mile for a $100 medal "The newspapers must have something to talk about," said John, "and let them go ahead. My pile of medals is increasing fast enough, and I am satisfied without wanting to be too much of a hog.

One of the outsiders who won a second prize at the Alpine games last May, desires to know when the prizes will be given out. The club should give the outsiders their prizes as there are only four of them and ask its own members to wait for theirs until there is more money in the cash box.

J. W. Flynn is in fine trim and it is not at all improbable but that he will carry the flying O to the front in the hundred at next year's championship meeting.

Ed Cahill, of the Olympic Club, and Fred Holland, of the Alpines, will probably make a match to run ten miles before long.

The Olympian, edited by J. P. Bean, has made its appearance. It is a very neat publication and is devoted to physical culture and athletes. The first number was issued on September 25th, and contains several good articles on physical culture. Mr. Bean is a well known instructor in boxing and physical culture and is a prominent member of the Alpine Club. We wish him success in his undertaking.

Clement J. Schuester has been appointed assistant leader to Eddie Kolb, of the Olympic Club.

Owing to the fine inducements offered to its young members by the Olympic Club both the out door grounds and the gymnasium are now well patronized by athletes who sigh for the possession of the valuable trophies which will be awarded during the winter.

THE WHEEL.

At the Olympic Club sports on October 25th O. F. Morgan of the Welsh Racing Cyclist Club will attempt to lower the Pacific Coast record for one mile. His club mate, Mr. Harris, will try to knock out the record for five miles.

Mr. Vincent, of the Alameda Bicycle Club, severely sprained his ankle by a fall a few days since while practicing fancy riding on his machine in Tony Oakes' hall, Haywards. He will he laid up for several weeks.

R. A. Smythe is going to join the Alameda Bicycle Club.

The Bay City Wheelmen will hold a handicap tournament on Thanksgiving Day, and if the Haight Street grounds can be secured the corners will be built up and the track put into good condition. The club will bring an expert trainer out from Boston to train its members, about fifteen of whom will enter the races. Prizes will he given to the different winners except in the novice races, for which medals will be awarded.

The Alameda Bicycle Club, owing to its increased membership, has been able to secure fine club rooms on Railroad Avenue, near Park Street. A grand opening will shortly he given. The following are some of the most prominent members: Jesse Ives, Fred White, Harry Potter, Henry Williams, Will Hebard, Charley Hanley, Judge Tappin, C. Conkey, Burt Boyle, F. K. Howlett, C. M. Culver, Mr. Burke, Walter Foster, Will Foster, Fred Brown, Ed. Bradley. There are now over thirty names on the roll of membership. Seventeen of the members rode to Haywards on Sunday and took breakfast at Tony Oakes.

A week ago Sunday R. M. Thompson, C. W. Hammer and George P. Wetmore of the B. C. W. rode to Point Bonita. Hammer had a very narrow escape from a sudden death, as his wheel slid over the cliff and was caught in some bushes fifty feet below. Mr. Hammer was left standing on the brink bewailing the loss of his lunch while all the scare of the occasion seemed to be in the other riders who witnessed the affair.

The Bay City's will probably raffle again the wheel they had up before and which was won by the club. Only 125 or 150 tickets will be sold this time.

Jesse Ives will hardly bother about putting in a claim of foul against Smith in connection with the late road race at San Leandro.

In connection with the incorporation of the B. C. W., the papers have already been returned from Sacramento, and the Directors are now in search of a lot upon which to erect a club house. They have several good sites in view, and as soon as they agree on a choice operations on the building will at once he commenced. The new club house will he a handsome structure, and will be planned by George P. Wetmore, who is an experienced architect. It will contain wheel rooms, locker rooms, smoking and billiard rooms, parlors, chess and card room, meeting rooms, library and reading rooms, etc. The Building Committee expect to have everything complete inside of six months from now.

Rather an innovation in club affairs was decided on at the first annual meeting of the members of the new corporation when Sanford Plummer was elected Captain for the ensuing year. The Captain is the only road officer elected by the club, he having the power to appoint whatever lieutenants he may desire C. W. Hammer has been appointed First Lieutenant. The two named, with T. H. Doane and George P. Wetmore, constitute the "big four," as they are commonly called, and are known as inveterate road riders. The club intends keeping a full list of road maps and information concerning the condition of roads throughout the State for the benefit of its members and any others who may require information. Communications should be addressed to G. P. Wetmore, Secretary B. C. W., 17 Franklin street, San Francisco.

We are in receipt of an invitation from the Alameda Bicycle Club to attend a banquet to be held at its club rooms this evening.

The members of the Oakland Bicycle Club have been keeping very quiet of late, but the late election of officers will probably help to stir the boys to action. The club is composed of good material, and will no doubt gain many honors on the racing path next year.

The Bay City Wheelmen Association formally disbanded last Monday night for the purpose of affiliating with the corporation. The Board of Directors has been divided into a number of committees in order to work to greater advantage.

In addition to the proposed Thanksgiving tournament, an effort will be made to secure the Mechanics' Pavilion for a week to give races every night. A track will be built and everything possible done to afford the competitors a chance to make or break records. This idea is an excellent one, and all the clubs should unite with the B. C. W. in trying to boom the proposition. There is no reason why large crowds of people should not attend every night to witness the contests, which will be quite novel.

Captain Sanford Plummer, of the Bay City Wheelmen, will hold his first club run immediately after October 15th, when all the members shall have signed the new by-laws.

G. P. Wetmore, W. M. Meeker and Calvin N. Langton constitute the B. C. W. house committee, and in their hands the building is sure to be a success.

The late rains have put the roads in excellent condition, and Captain Plummer and Lieutenant Hammer will go scouring out for suitable places to hold their future club runs.

Another whist tournament is about to be started by the B. C. W. similar to the one which was so successfully held last winter.

Mr. Harris, one of the men who was to have raced in the late road race at San Leandro, has received his pneumatic tired wheel. It is a most ungainly thing to look at, but is geared to 63 or 65 inches, and is remarkably easy running.

Some of the wheelmen who have tried the track at the Olympic Club grounds, say that it is better adapted for faster time than the old track was at 14th and Center streets, Oakland.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Golden Gate Athletic Club appears to be dead. Probably if the California Club gets the best of the law, the G. G. A. C. may make a bid for fame again. We hope the test case will be decided against the prize fighting community, for then there will be some chance of reforming the youths of San Francisco.

The Acme Athletic Club of Oakland will give a fine in-door exhibition at the Oakland Theatre on October 9th. Several members of the Olympic Club of this city have volunteered their services, and the entertainment promises to be well worth the price of admission. Prof. Jim Corbett will spar with Bob McCord.

Vice-President E. A. Rex, of the O. A. C., left for the East last week. He will attend the championship games, which will be held at Washington, D. C., October 11th.

The Lurline Club will shortly be re-organized. The present condition of affairs is not at all satisfactory, and unless something is done in the near future the club may go over to the silent few. The fact that one of the officers got away with the proceeds of the picnic which was held at Wildwood Glen, Sausalito, some months ago, has tended to financially cripple the organization, and many members have left the club in disgust. The approach of winter is another drawback, as the majority of the members are interested in swimming.

The smoker concert of the Olympic Club which was held at the club rooms on Thursday evening last was a grand success. The programme was a happy one and was greatly enjoyed by the large number of ladies and gentlemen who were fortunate enough to be present.

The Alpine Club is still located at Central Park. We wish this very promising young organization every possible success, and if we address a few remarks to the officers and members it is because we have this interest at heart. By remaining in their present quarters they are doing themselves a great injury and the sooner they secure more suitable rooms the better for their own good. Central Park never was a proper place for an amateur athletic club to locate and as the years roll by the place does not seem to improve any either in appearance or in the quality of its surroundings. The club room now occupied by the Alpine boys and for which they pay a very big rent is more suited for circus beasts than for human beings. The room is a disgrace and the grounds themselves are much akin to the dump lots of North Beach. There is no track, no convenience of any kind and gentlemen should blush to be connected with such an institution. The club is at the present time comprised namely of out-door athletes and by securing a comfortable suite of rooms in a nice neighborhood where the boys could meet in the evening and talk over matters of interest to themselves, the reputation of the organization would grow better and it would gain instead of lose members. As the majority of the Alpine boys train at the Bay District Track, there is no necessity for the club to rent grounds. We sincerely hope that before such excellent material is scattered to the winds that some change may be made.

AT THE OARS.

At the Alameda Eastary on Sunday, two picked crews from the Alameda Boating Club rowed a match race. George Hamilton was starter. The winning crew was made up as follows: A. Dennis, C, Broecke, S. Shoemaker and W. Oshorn (coxswain).

The other crew was as follows: M. Trorer, J. Hartman, G. Cramer, L. Brown and L. Schroeder (coxswain).

THE ALPINE ROAD RACE.

The first prize handicap road race was held at San Leandro on Sunday morning. Out of twenty-five entries only seven men toed the mark. Several of the men missed the boat, hence the small number of starters. C. Meyer, who had a start of three minutes, won. A. Cooke, one minute, was second, and H. C. Casidy, the scratch man, third. Both Cooke and Casidy ran fine, and the latter, despite his heavy handicaps came within an ace of winning. He was only fifteen seconds behind the first man. W. T. Vollmer three minutes, finished fourth. The winner's time was 26 minutes. Casidy finished in 24;16, and Cooke in 24:10. The prizes were: first, a pair of running shoes; second, woolen sweater; third, a hand bag. Capt. Garrison acted as handicapper and starter.

THE 600 YARD RUN AT THE OLYMPIC GROUNDS.

There was quite a sprinkling of spectators at the out-door grounds of the Olympic Club last Sunday forenoon, to witness the handicap 600-yard run for members of the club. The following were the handicaps and starters:

S. V. Casady scratch; P. Wand, F. G. O'Kane, C. A. Jelleneak and E. M. Espinosa each 15 yards; J. C. Kortick 9; W. Collins 20; W. Toomey, R. McArthur, F. L. Cooley and J. A. Christie each 25; E. L. Gross, J. L. Woolrich and G. H. Hammersly each 30; F. J. Redding 35; S. G. Groucher 40.

Casady won by two yards. Time 1:16½. McArthur second, Espinosa third, Cooley fourth. During the day McArthur and Cooley ran a hundred yards for a French dinner. Cooley had eight yards start, but lost the race by two yards. Time 11 seconds.

A Change.

Mr. H. H. Briggs, who for more than four years bas been connec'ed with this paper, has but recently severed his connection tberewith. He is an able writer and a tborough sportsman, being well versed in matters pertaining to tbe kennel, rod and gun. He is succeeded on our staff by Mr. C. W. Kyle, recently of Colorado, wbo is a gentleman of large experience and acquaintance in tbe East and throughout the country in sporting circles. He will endeavor to conduct tbe above mentioned department of this paper to the best of his ability in tbe line of legitimate sports, and asks for tbe hearty co-operation of all sportsmen of the country to this end. We bespeak for bim a successful course.

Farmers' Institutes.

We have received Bulletin No. 4, Wisconsin Farmers' Institutes. It makes a book of 352 pages—a hand book of Agriculture, containing a verbatim report of the closing Institute of three days, sbort, pithy experience in all branches of farming, and the hundreds of questions are answered resulting in a general discussion, making tbe richest publication upon Dairying, Horse Breeding, Swine and Sheep Husbandry as given at sixty-six two-day Institutes held in the State last winter. This book is sent at cost price to encourage farmers to read, think, and band themselves together in similar meetings for mutual improvement and benefit. Wisconsin for twenty years has been holding farmers' meetings. Send 30 cents to W. H Morrison, Madison, Wis., who is Superintendent of the Farmers' Institute work of tbat State, and you will receive a volume that will bear reading and re-reading.

Young Salmon.

Mr. F. P. Callundan bas received a communication from Mr. William West of Napa, tbanking the Fish Commission for their consignment of the 30,000 salmon sent recently to that section. The fisb were received in excellent condition. Mr. West promises, on behalf of the good citizens of that region, that the fish will be effectually protected, and suggests that a deputy be appointed to supervise and lend assistance to tbe enforcement of the law in that particular.

Important Auction Sale of Stock.

At many of the principal meetings of the various Breeders' Associations, one of the features is always the selling of first class stock, and those wbo attend, do so, not only for the purpose of witnessing the speed contests but also to see how many rare bargains can be picked up when stock is disposed of.

During the coming meeting of tbe Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, Messrs. Killip & Co. will dispose of over forty lots, the property of Wilfred Page, Esq., of Penn's Grove, Sonoma County. Before the present issue of this paper reaches our readers the catalogues will have been issued, and those who do not receive them through the mail should make immediate application for one, as it will amply repay perusal. This is only a slight synopsis of the many good ones that will be offered for sale at Napa, and those wbo are on the lookout for well bred stock can do no better than attend this sale where undoubtedly many bargains will be secured.

The Breeders' Meeting.

As the time draws near for tbe annual meeting of tbe Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, the interest in this annual event increases, and there is every assurance tbat the gathering of horsemen from all over the State at Napa will far exceed in numbers any bitherto held in California. That there will be plenty of racing, and of the very best, goes without saying, and that there will be sensational performances no one can doubt. Sunol and Palo Alto will be there in all probability, and then we bave Margaret S 2:12½, to go against her record, which, if she beats it, will demonstrate tbe fact that the regulation track in California is even better than the kite-shaped track which has jumped into popularity so quickly in tbe Eastern States. There are bundreds, yes thousands, wbo predict that Mr. Salisbury's four-year-old filly will bave no trouble in accomplishing the desired end. The San Mateo Stock Farm will be represented by Regal Wilkes, who made a national reputation for himself last year by lowering the two-year-old stallion record to 2:20¾; already be is able and fit to knock a great many seconds off tbat time, and we look for a sensational mile, from Mr. Corbitt's young horse.

Mr. Goldsmith bas telegraphed that in a trial at Fresno Stamboul accomplished a mile in 2:14, and to those who know this remarkable stallion it is easy to conceive that his present mark of 2:12½ will be materially lessened. Then rumor is rife that Norlaine's yearling record is to be swept from the boards, and there are those who predict that about 2:28 will be made. There are a number of fast yearlings now in training, and it is within the bounds of possibility that another than Norlaine will wear the yearlings' crown after the Breeders' Meeting. In addition to these there are the tried campaigners, wbo bave been down the line this season, and those wbo attend the meeting will see such racing as will satisfy the desires of the most fastidious.

The Terra Haute Guaranteed Purse.

The Vigo Agricultural Society has evidently determined that tbey will leave no stone unturned to make their $11,000 Futurity Purse one of the most successful wbicb bas ever been instituted. As our readers are aware, the stake closes on tbe 1st of November next, wben nominations must be made, for foals of 1890; $11,000 is guaranteed by the Directors of the Association, of which $5,000 will go to the winner, $2,500 to tbe second horse, $1,500 to tbe third, and $1,000 to the fourtb, witb $1,000 to be given to tbe breeder of the winner in money or plate, at the option of the breeder. The corporation consists of many of the principal business men of Terre Haute, and to show the world that the money will surely be given, they have sent out circulars indorsed by twenty-seven merchants, bankers and capitalists, and the list does not contain a name that is not amply responsible for the amount named, and were the aggregate wealth of the list computed, it would be found to be the financially strongest backed indorsement ever placed behind a purse.

The payment to tbis great stake are $10 to accompany tbe nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 on April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894, and $100 for starters payable August 1, 1894, the race to take place during tbe latter part of that month at Terra Haute, Indiana, under the rules of tbe Association of which that track is then a member. A special provision is also made tbat in case tbe total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz., $11,000, then and in that event fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by tbe person wbo is also tbe breeder, the first money will in all probability exceed $10,000. One of the conditions of the stake is that the nominator will be required to state the name, color and sex of foal; also to give tbe names of the sire, the dam and the sire of the dam when such is known; also to name tbe post office address of tbe actual breeder of each foal nominated. Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator.

The clause relative to transfer of nominations shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to tbe breeder of the winner, as it is a part of tbe purpose of this purse that $1,000 in money or plate shall go to tbe actual breeder, and tbat said breeder's interest to this extent in tbe purse shall be non transferable.

Another very favorable clause which the Association bas in its condition is that in the event of injury or accident to any foal nominated therein, tbat the nominator shall bave the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for that one originally nominated, subject, however, to the following restriction, tbat tbe substituted foal must bave been owned by the nominator at the time be made the original nomination.

The many breeders in California should make large entries in this purse, as there is a strong probability that it will prove to be one of the largest trotting stakes ever instituted in tbe country.

Letter From Dr. Hicks.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—As I have been repeatedly asked "how I came to make that mistake in claiming 'Sister V' as one of my stock," and as my prompt but short disclaimer was printed at the bottom of the last page of reading matter in the Breeder, and has been overlooked by all who have reproached me for an inexcusable blunder, or still worse, an attempt to claim for my stock what was not their due. I ask space in your widely read journal for a fuller explanation.

My friend who writes over the initial "H" in his article on Flaxtail, credited Sister V. to my stock, I did not write the article, did not furnish the facts, nor see the article until I saw it in the Breeder and Sportsman, and am in no wise responsible for the mistake, and on seeing it wrote at once to correct the error.

On the other hand "H" has omitted from his credits Scota 2:29½ by Singleton, son of Lightfoot, and Solitaire 2:32½ also by Singleton, and Cora, two-year-old record 2:43 out of Pearl, a daughter of Lightfoot, and Wayland W., two-year-old record 2:34¾, out of a daughter of Mary.

It will be seen by a reference to "H's" article and this correction that four of the seven Flaxtail mares he names have produced sons that have already sired 2:30 performers.

One of them is a horse that never sired a 2:30 performer, and that never sired any other son that got a 2:30 performer, nor any daughter that produced a 2:30 performer.

Even Dr. Blank (for whose benefit I understand "H's" article was written) while ridiculing Flaxtail, will have to admit that this instance at least, looks as though Flaxtail blood had something to do with it.

Since writing the above, one race at Stockton has given Sterling one more 2:30 performer, and has given his seven-year-old son Brilliant a 2:30 performer, and his stable companion, Prompter, two producing daughters, all of which performers, sires and dams, carry the Flaxtail blood of one or more of those seven mares. Does not this justify "H's" estimate of the stock and their "breeding on" capacity.

Respectfully, M. W. Hicks.

Our Australian Letter.

Sydney, N. S. Wales, Sept. 3, 1890.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—To-morrow, the 4th of September, the Australian racing season may be said to fairly begin, when the Hawkesbury (near Sydney) Racing Club start their annual spring meeting.

The 1st of August was the Australian equine natal day, and our two-year-olds entered upon the most eventful year of their existence. The Hawkesbury Guineas, a three-year-old mile spin, will bring out some of the young flyers, and as a line is generally taken from this race for the big events to follow at Randwick and Flemington, the respective metropolitan courses of New South Wales and Victoria, the result is naturally looked forward to by racing men with much interest. On two-year-old form there is nothing in it but "Plunger" Brodribb's 4,600 guinea flying gelding Titan by Chester from Tempe, but experience has shown us that flying two-year-olds do not always develop into Derby winners. However, Titan appears to have retained all his juvenile vim, and he is showing great form in his training gallops. Titan was only beaten twice as a two-year-old—in the Sydney Turf Club Handicap at the Andrew Town Complimentary Meeting, and in the Australian Jockey Club Champagne Stakes—but in the latter case it was the jockey and not the horse that was beaten, for there cannot be a doubt Titan was at the time many pounds a better horse than Wilga, the filly who finished in front of him. One of the most likely three-year-olds on the Australian turf is Gatling, a colt by Nordenfeldt—the sire your Captain Tom Merry was so enamoured of—from Petroleuse. His best performance so far was in the Australian Jockey Club, first foal stakes, when he made Titan gallop to win, and I fancy he may make Mr. Brodribb's gelding run even faster when they meet in the Derbys. It was a coincidence that the finest children of Musket's—Martini-Henry and Nordenfeldt to wit—were named after a firearm, and perhaps the fetish is going to stick to the grandchildren. Mr. W. A. Long has a good one in Town Talk by Epigram from the imported Olive, with whom he won the Pace Welter at Warwick Farm, (near Sydney) carrying 8st. 11lb. over 6 furlongs and fifty yards. Mr. W. A. Long is one of our wealthiest sportsmen, and although the owner of many fine animals, his luck has not been good.

The best horse he ever owned was Grand Flaneur, by Yattendon from First Lady, who ten years ago carried all before him, winning his two Derbies, Melbourne and Sydney, and the plum of the Australian Turf, the Melbourne Cup. Grand Flaneur was one of the very few animals who have entered upon their stud duties with an unbeaten record. Now that Mr. James White's stud is broken up, I shall not be at all surprised to see Mr. Long take his place on the turf out here. Mr. Long has between thirty and forty highly bred horses in training at his private establishment "Chipping Norton," some thirty miles from Sydney, many of them untried animals so far as the general public is concerned, and as Mr. Long is one of the most astute horsemen on the Continent, my hair will not stand on end if one of these years he comes out and sweeps the board. The Australian Jockey Club, Sydney, hold their spring meeting—the big event of the year on September 13, 16, 18 and 20, the principal handicap being the Metropolitan Stakes, a two mile gallop for 1000 sovs., but I think I explained in my last letter that owing to the winner incurring a 14 lb. penalty in the Melbourne Cup of 10,000 sovs., run in the beginning of November, the owners of horses considered to have a show in the Cup would not enter them for the Metrop., and as a consequence Sir William, by Sir Modred from Vesper, heads the list at 8 stone 12 lb. Marvel the second on the list at 6 st 10lb. was a veritable flyer as a two year old, and has done nothing since to justify such a position unless it be the fact that he has furnished into the picture of a racehorse. Antaeus, Sir Modred—Millie—looks twice the horse of his half brother Sir William, but he has not shown himself to be a stayer and poor as Sir William's chance looks on paper, I prefer it to that of Antaeus.

I lay stress on these two horses as being of interest to your readers on account of their Sir Modred blood, but personally I prefer the chances of Marvel, Capua and Eclipse to anything in the race. Lochiel, the sire next to Nordenfeldt fancied by Mr. Merry, has been withdrawn from the Melbourne Cup and has been purchased for stud duty by Mr. Rouse, the well known breeder of Mudgee, New South Wales. He is by the great galloper Prince Charlie from Nellie Moore, and changed hands at 650 sovereigns, a price which ought to have suited some of your Yankee breeders on the look-out for a good horse. Boase, the jockey who was sent home with Kirkham and Navellan, has returned to Australia.

Out here we were under the impression that Kirkham made such a poor showing on account of want of work, but Boase says it was the other way about, that Dawson had heard such yarns about the quantity of work Chester stock could put up with, that they fairly galloped them off their legs, and the pair are rank cripples. A couple of weeks ago the well known horse Cranbrook was stolen from the stable his owner, Mr. H. C. White, of Havilah Station, near Mudgee, New South Wales, and so far the police have been unable to trace him. Cranbrook was bred by the late Hon. James White by Chester from La Princesse, and is full brother to Kirkham, now in England. He never ran as a two year old. At three years he had a most successful career, winning, amongst other events, the Newmarket Handicap of six furlongs, running the distance in 1:14½, with 8st. 12lb. up. Cranbrook, who stands—if still in existence—17 hands, was essentially a sprinter, and outgrew his strength, never showing up prominently as a four year old, and the Hon. James sold him to his brother for stud duty for 1,000 guineas, and 2,000 has since been refused for him. Cranbrook's case is somewhat similar to that of Duke of Athol, by Blair Athol, who was stolen many years ago from his owner, Mr. Tindale. The burnt remains of a horse were found in the mountains, and it was supposed they were all that remained of the stallion.

Mahdi, one of the best of our steeplechasers (and we have some good 'chasers and the men to ride them, as even that chronic growler "Pendragon" of the London Refereee had to acknowledge when out here), broke his leg last week when running in the Adelaide Racing Club Grand National Steeplechase; by Glorious from Bluey; he has shown many good ones over the sticks in most of the Australian colonies. A few weeks ago, with 11 stone up, he ran third in the Victoria Racing Club Grand National Steeplechase, and through his long career he has fallen but twice, the second event causing his death. Old Mahdi was an identity with the race going public. The Spring meeting of the Victoria Racing Club to be held next November, will be the biggest Spring event yet brought off this side of the globe, as no less than £29,000 is to be given as added money. £10,000 of this goes to the Melbourne Cup, for which the Champion Carbine is most fancied by the public at the present time. However, the Randwick Spring meeting will throw some light upon the form of many of the cracks, and as this fixture will be a thing of the past before my next letter is written. I ought to be able to pen some interesting matter for my American readers.

J. Berry & Co., Union Stock Yard Stables, Chicago.

The young stallion, Simmocolon, which James H. Goldsmith has been driving down the Grand Circuit with much success, derives his name from the union of the names of two characters, a stallion and a man. The sire of Simmocolon is Simmons, and Colon was a former owner or trainer. Mr. Goldsmith has frequently been guyed by those who did not know the derivation of the name, as having spelled it wrong. When informed that the signification was not a point of punctuation the "joke" was on the other side. Simmocolon is a grandson of George Wilkes and a nephew of Rosa Wilkes, 2:18¼.—(Kentucky Stock Farm.) You are wrong in reference to the name, the latter syllable being taken from the name of his dam.

I have a very fine buggy horse that has gone a little lame in his right hind leg for three or four months. I have been told that it is a low spavin, and that ossidine would cure it. I tried it for a month but it caused the leg to swell and did not remove the lameness. I was then told that Kendal's Spavin Cure would surely cure it, and that I could work the horses all the time. I have been using that ever since and my horse is still lame, and the swelling is as large as ever. What am I to do for it, or is there any cure for it?

Answer—What age is your horse? If he is very old his chances are bad. Try the firing iron and give him two months rest.

C. L.

In your issue of Sept. 20th, you advised me to remove warts from my horse's belly by cutting the skin round their base and taking them right out. Now I am told by several friends that his bowels would come out and I would kill my horse. Is that true.

Answer.—There is little or no danger in cutting the skin there. However, it would be safer for you to get a qualified veterinary surgeon to do it.

T. R.

Thanks for your advice in the Breeder and Sportsman of August 16th. The treatment is simple and effective. My horse is almost all right now, but within the last week he has gone lame in the off hind leg. When I was driving him he appeared to stumble with it and went dead lame; his fetlock is swollen and sore to the touch. I think it is sprained. Please advise me what to do for it.

Answer.—Apply cold water from the hose to it morning and evening for a week. If the fever and inflammation have left it by that time, blister it.

Subscriber.

Is the following prescription good for colic? I am told that it is the best thing that can be used. Tincture of opium one ounce, sweet spirits of nitre one ounce, Jamaica ginger half an ounce. It was given to me by a friend last week when my horse had colic. The first dose relieved him a good deal and the second dose cured him.

Answer.—It is a very good colic cure.

A B & C start in a half mile and repeat race, best two in three. A takes the first heat, B second. C's rider falls off and the horse runs under the wire without a rider. When called up for the second heat A is crippled and can not start. B & C run the heat out and it is won by B. Does C have a right to run the race out against B, or was the race finished when the second heat was run as far as C is concerned. The race was advertised to be governed by the Pacific Coast Rules. An early answer in the Breeder and Sportsman would greatly oblige.

Answer.—C cannot start in the third heat.

W. S. R.

Will you please publish in your next issue the breeding of a horse called "Stockbridge Chief" which made a stand at Marysville in 1884 and 85. He was a black horse and was owned by a Mr. Hounsen who purchased him in the East; also state if this horse is the same that sired Abe Edington 2:23¾. By answering the above questions in your paper you will greatly oblige.

Answer.—We do not know the pedigree of the horse you allude to. Stockbridge Chief Jr., sire of Abe Edgington was a grey horse, and died in 1865.

E. Commins, City.

From description given in your letter the mare is not standard. You had better call at this office when it is convenient.

Please settle the following dispute; did a Mr. George Starr drive Margaret S. at the State Fair of 1889.

Answer—No; George Starr drove her at Cleveland in 1889 when she won the Spirit Futurity Stake,

N. H.

Please be kind enough to state whether Joe Daniels is now living, his age, present owner and in how many four mile races he took part.

Answer.—Joe Daniels is still alive and is owned by J. B. Haggin. We only have an account of his starting in two four mile races, although he may have been engaged in others.

J. L. P.

Will you kindly answer through the columns of your much appreciated journal the following queries: What was the sire and dam of Jim Brown thoroughbred? The breeding of the sire and dam of Tilton Almont 2:26.

Fresno Races.

The Fresno Fair which has slowly but surely forced itself to the front as one of the best trotting and running meetings in California was to have opened out last Tuesday but Jupiter Pluvius is ever erratic and for two days previous he turned on the hose, consequently the races had to be postponed for one day to the sorrow of the assembled crowd which included most of the prominent horsemen of California. Mr Salisbury was there with six head of well known performers, Direct, Margaret S, Homestake, Directa Gold medal and Decora and the lucky McDowell was there to propria persona to hold the lines over the crack Directors while Goldsmith had a large string of the Wilkes horses all warranted to uphold the reputation of Guy and his illustrious sire George Wilkes. Percy Williams was there and had Beauty Mc in good shape with the demon Buster, to drive him. Shaner and Emma Temple were on hand and McCord was eager for the fray with Mary Lou and Ned Winslow, C H Cory was on the alert with Patchen feeling certain he could beat any pacer in California as Cricket was on the shelf, and several others were in from Nevada and Los Angeles. The running element was well upheld by W. L. Appleby (Odette, Carmen, Alfarata etc.,) Owen's Bros. (Daisy D Captain Al et al), the Maltese Villa stables Mozart Judge Terry and others, and many minor lights. Unfortunately however the races had to be set back one day and on Wednesday the start was made with President Lewis Leach, F B Baldwin and W Helm in the stand as Judges.

Three races were on the programme and the track was dead slow on the inside—in fact all the horses had to go about the middle of the track which explains the slow time made. The first race was a district race for yearlings, half mile heats, eight youngsters turned out and the steadiest colt of the gang won in easy style after losing the first heat The second race was a dead cinch for Sister V. who followed her victories on the circuit by winning in hollow style in spite the heavy going and a palpable lameness. The first race, a mile and a quarter handicap, running, had four starters, and Odette, a red hot favorite won in a hard canter. Time, 2:09—as a matter of fact 2:10½ or my watch was wrong.

YEARLING TROTTERS.

First heat—Pools sold very slowly with April Fool choice at $20 to $7 for Selma Wilkes and $12 for the other six as a field. A long delay took place while the youngsters scored up first one and then another breaking and at last the flag was dropped to a straggling start. Selma Wilkes going very steadily took the lead round the turn and looked a winner all over, but April Fool trotting in good style passed her at the drawgate and had a three lengths lead. Bisby, however, came with a rush and was only just beaten by April Fool, Selma Wilkes third, and the rest strung out. Time 1:39. Mutuals paid $12 85.

Second heat. April Fool still continued choice, readily bringing $20 to $6 for Selma Wilkes and $17 for the field. After coming up half a dozen times a start was effected, Selma Wilkes setting the pace to the turn when Bisby passed her and led into the stretch and Helman keeping him going all the way won the heat by half a length. Selma three lengths in front of April Fool and ten lengths in advance of Poplar Girl, the rest strung out. Time, 1:35¼. Mutuals paid $8 55.

Third heat. The field sold favorite at $20 to $7 for April Fool. After an unprecedented delay the starter took the colts in hand and soon dropped his flag, Selma Wilkes took the lead, but breaking a couple of times was passed by Bisby who trotting very squarely and steadily drew further away every stride, winning easily by four lengths, Selma Wilkes second a length in front of Poplar Girl. Time, 1:34. Mutuals paid $8.45.

2:24 CLASS TROTTING.

First heat—No pools could be sold as Sister V had proved herself to be immeasurably superior to her two opponents. The word was given the first time up. Nona Y stayed with Sister to the turn, when she broke and dropped back last, while Sister went away from Mary Lou, passing the quarter four lengths in front, and retained her advantage all the way to the drawgate, when Goldsmith let up on her and Lou got to within a length of her. Nona broke on the backstretch, and again on the upper turn, finishing twelve lengths behind the winner. Time, 2:27.

Second heat—The word was given the third time up. Sister at once went to the front, going round the turn two lengths in front of the pair, and going very steadily increased it to three at the quarter, when Nona broke, but did not lose by it. Sister improved the pace and Nona dropped back. Sister turned into the homestretch two lengths in front of Mary Lou, three lengths in front of Nona Y. Mary Lou left her feet a furlong from home, but catching cleverly trotted very fast to the wire, being only beaten a neck, Nona Y sixty yards back. Time, 2:22¼.

Third heat—The word was given at the second attempt. Mary Lou left her feet before the turn, and Sister broke badly directly she left the stretch. Mary Lou was three lengths in front of her when she caught with Nona four lengths back. Sister soon made up the last ground, being level with Mary Lou at the quarter, and then gradually increasing her lead passed the half, three lengths in front, the three quarters six lengths to the good, and won pulling up four lengths in front of Lou, 60 yards in front of Nona Y. Time, 2:25½.

The flag was dropped the first time with all four well under way. Daisy D set the pace passing the stand a length in front of Mozart with Odette at his girths and Captain Al three lengths back. Daisy increased her lead to the three lengths at the quarter, with Odette a length in front of Mozart four lengths in front of Captain Al. Odette raced up to Daisy on the backstretch and going away on the upper turn the issue was never in doubt, winning readily by three lengths, Daisy D. a length in front of Captain Al, six lengths in front of Mozart. Lakeport Races.

SECOND DAY, SEPT. 24TH.

The attendance was good, the track fair, and the weather fine. A slight sprinkle of rain in the morning made the road to the track better than yesterday, the dust not being so deep. There were two races on the programme, one of half-mile heats running, and a District Stallion race. The first took three heats to decide, and the second was postponed on account of darkness.

First race, special running, one-half mile heats. The starters were Inkerman, Joe Hooker and Wild Bill. Inkerman sold favorite for the first heat at 5 to 3 for the field. The start was a fine one for Inkerman and Hooker, the rider of Bill telling the starter that he was not in it and to pay no attention to him as he acted very badly at the post. They got away at the first attempt, Hooker slightly in the lead. He held his position and won by a length, Inkerman second, Bill third. Time, :48½ secs. The judges had neglected to send out a distance judge, and as Bill was so far back and at request of his owner he was allowed to be drawn. Time, 48½ seconds.

Second heat—Poole: Hooker $10, Inkerman $10. It was a good start but just after passing the one-half mile pole, Hooker who was on the inside, as there is no inside fence on the track swerved on the bank and came near uneseting his rider, but when he recovered the jockey set sail for the heat but he could not make up lost ground, Inkerman winning by three lengths. Time, :49¾

Third heat.—Inkerman was a hot favorite, and he went to the post the fresher of the two.

They broke on even terms, but he at once went to the front and won by three lengths galloping. Time 50¾ seconds.

Second race—Substituted for number 5. Free for all district stallions.

There were four heats trotted to-day but it did not decide the race.

First heat —The starters were Sunset who sold for 10 to 8 for the field, with Melton R., Sur Del and Sam Tilden in it. Sunset went off in the lead and was never headed winning the heat by two lengths, Milton 2d, Sur Del 3d, Sam Tilden distanced. Time 2:38.

Second heat.—Poole, Sunset 10, Field 6. This heat was a repetition of the previous one, Sunset winning in a jog Milton R. 2d, Sur Del 3d. Time 2:40.

Third heat. No betting On the first turn Sunset broke and Sur Del took the lead but down the back stretch Sunset out trotted Sur Del and near the three quarter pole both Sur Del and Sunset broke, Milton R passed both came away from them and won the heat, Sunset 2d. Time 2:39.

Fourth heat.—Sunset still favorite at 10 to 4 for the field. Sunset broke just after getting the word and Milton R took the lead and was never headed winning by 2 lengths. Sunset 2d. Time 2:38.

It was now so near dark the judges postponed the race until to morrow at 1 o'clock.

Grim's Gossip.

Jimmy Goldsmith emphatically denies that he is going to train thoroughbrede next year.

The Stout Bros., of Dubuque, Iowa, announce that the fee of Nutwood for 1891 will be $1,000.

Another Steinway pacer has made a record; this time it is Ceaser who, at Rochester, Minn., won a race, the fastest heat being 2:24¾.

Phallas has had another of his get go into the 2:30 list At Milwaukee last week Gus Voltz made a record of 2:29½, and also won his race.

Cricket 2:10 is now receiving a well merited rest having been sent to Mr. Meek's farm near San Leandro. She was entered at Fresno and also at the Breeders Meeting, but will not appear again this year.

At the Oregon State Fair last week Jim Merritt was one of the entries in the mile running race, his jockey being Tompkins, who is over sixty years old, and the horse himself is fourteen years old. They were in truth a venerable pair.

Mr. J M. Learned of Stockton was in the city during the early portion of the week, and we spent several hours together talking over old reminiscences. The old horseman still sticks to it that Reliance was the fastest stallion ever foaled in the State.

The mares and fillies offered at private sale by W. J. Casey of Santa Clara will amply repay inspection. Flora Pierce, one of the mares, is in foal to Antinous (son of Electioneer) while another of them, Maud Center, is in foal to Boxwood (a son of Nutwood.)

Many inquiries have been made why Lillian Wilkes has not been seen this year as she showed up so well last season. Mr. Corbitt informs me that the mare has developed a pair of splints that prevents work, so she has been fired and turned out,

In a telegram to Ariel Lathrop Esq., Marvin states that he has sold Navidad 2:22¼, but to whom sold or for what price is not stated. In the same telegram information is given that Colma by Electioneer, dam Sontag Mohawk, has made a record of 2:25¼.

On the kite-shaped track at Kankakee, Nelson reduced the stallion record of the world by trotting a mile in 2:11½. Although Axtell is now dethroned as king of the turf, still there are many who will look upon him as a better horse than Nelson owing to the fact that his 2:12 was made over the regulation track.

G. W. Stimpson, the well known veterinary surgeon of Oakland, has an advertisement in this week's paper, offering for sale an imported Cleveland bay stallion. He is spoken of as a grand individual and a good breeder as his colts will show. This stallion has been a prize winner in England, and as the price is reasonable, he will undoubtedly soon find a purchaser.

H. E. Curry, who has been engaged with J. I. Case as manager and driver of Hickory Grove stock farm, has tendered his resignation. Jackson I. Case, Mr. Case's son, will handle the string of trotters from Hickory Grove during the balance of the season. He can drive with as much skill as a professional and keep his end up at any turn.

Word has been received in San Francisco that Orrin A. Hickok is in very poor health at present, and has decided not to return with his stable of horses, but will visit the Hot Springs of Arkansas for the purpose of recuperating. Mr. Hickok's string of trotters will leave the East to-day under the charge of Mr. Marvin.

Quite a number of those interested in the Breeders Association have been anxious to find out whether the Palo Alto stable now in the East, would take part in the annual meeting at Napa; the anxiety was heightened by the fact that many of the Eastern sporting journals have announced that Sunol and Palo Alto would start at the fall meeting to be held at Independence Iowa. It is now known, however, that Marvin will be on hand and we may expect to see an exhibition by the two cracks now in his stable.

The Lockhaven Stock Farm of Burbank, Los Angeles County, Cal., desires to call the attention of the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to the fact that they have several standard and non-standard mares and fillies by such sires as Bonnie McGregor 2:13½, Monroe Chief 2:18½, Alcazar 2:20¾, Del Sur 2:24, etc., which they wish to exchange for a well bred, good individual stallion; they wish one that can show speed, size, style and action. Those who have such a horse may hear of something to their benefit by addressing the manager at the address given above.

Deaths of trotting horses on the track are becoming to be of unusual frequency. A few days ago the valuable five year-old mare Seraph, which had within a week previous obtained a record of 2:29½, dropped dead on the track at Defiance, O. The $10,000 stallion Almont was killed at the Uhrichsville, O., fair grounds a shaft of a sulky running into his breast, penetrating the heart. During the fair races at Racine Wis. last Thursday, the four-year-old Bob Phallas, 2:32, fell dead. He was owned by James McAnnany of Racine, and valued at $5,000.

W. E. Shaw of 1621 Market St., San Francisco is turning out at present as fine sulkies as can be bought in the United States. Those who have purchased the latest 45 pound sulky declare that they are better than any that have been brought from the East, and that for strength and durability they are superior to any ever seen on the coast.

Mr. Shaw also manufactures carts for light work or track use, and carriages and light vehicles of all description. To the professional trainers and drivers of the Pacific Coast we can thoroughly recommend the Shaw sulky.

For the last few weeks dame rumor has kept her busy tongue at work, at one time asserting that Sunol would be wintered in Mr. Bonner's stable in New York, and again that the pride of California would be left under Mr. Marvin's management for another year. Exactly what arrangements have been made we do not know, but it is certain that she will leave the Eastern States to-day (Saturday) for California. This evidently goes to show that Mr. Bonner has determined to let the Palo Alto driver have the mare for another season, and to that end has made up his own mind that the California winter climate will be more beneficial to her than the extreme cold weather of the Eastern States.

Wilber Field Smith of Sacramento writes as follows to the Secretary of the Breeders' Association: Please alter the name of my entry in the Yearling Stake to trot at Napa from Algiers to Kebir. The reason is this: I entered him in several stakes under the name of Algiers, but when I came to have him registered as a standard trotter I found that the name was already taken. I took up the name of Kebir. He is registered No. 13107. He was entered in stakes here, at Sacramento, and as he had never started, the name was changed without comment. I have trotted him since as Kebir, and that is the name he must go by.

The good news is sent up from Fresno that Stamboul has regained all his old speed, and has shown a mile in 2:14. At the Breeders' Meeting he should be about ready to go the best mile of his life, and Johnny Goldsmith fully expects him to beat all stallion records. That he could have done it last year there can be no question of doubt, but the elements were against the accomplishment of the task. Mr. Goldsmith also has his other charges in good form, and there is a prospect of a general lowering of records all round. One of the Sable Wilkes yearlings has been given a half-mile on the Fresno track in 1:11½, an indication that Norlaine's yearling mark is in danger.

Messrs Killip & Co wish to have it known that the joint auction sale of standard trotting and roadster horses which they will sell on account of D. J. Murphy of San Jose and Col. Harry I. Thornton of San Francisco has been changed from Thursday, October 23rd to Tuesday October 28th at 11 o'clock A. M., the sale to take place at the Railroad Stables, corner of Turk and Steiner streets. In all there will be about fifty head of stallions, mares, colts and fillies; the get of such celebrated horses as Electioneer, Whipple's Hambletonian, George M. Patchen, Jr., Director, Soudan, Alexander and others. Catalogues will be issued within a few days giving a full description of the pedigrees of the horses to be sold.

Marvin still occasionally picks up a few dollars for the Palo Alto farm, and has lately won a race with Navidad, which it seems really wonderful to me, has not been more generally noticed. At Cleveland on September 19th he defeated a field of eight competitors, among them being the well known Hussar and Twist, the best time being 2:23. Twiet, it will be remembered, is the trotter that defeated Cubic at Terre Haute in the early part of the season, and it was telegraphed from the Atlantic to the Pacific that Senator Stanford's theory of breeding was a mistake. As yet the associated press back there have forgotten to mention that this last race has taken place; probably they fancy by this time that the Senator's theory is more worthy of consideration than it was in the early portion of the season. At the same meeting Alfred S. had no difficulty in winning the 2:16 purse in straight heats. Time, 2:19½, 2:19 and 2:17¼.

Horse Breeding in Butte.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Horse breeding in Butte county is attracting much attention, the number of persons engaged in raising fine stock is each season increasing, and the prices realized are such as to induce the investment of large sums in good stallions and superior brood mares. Many excellent young animals are being broken for driving purposes and the speed contests this fall excelled those of former years owing to the large number of high bred two and three year olds that competed for premiums.

Those who are breeding horses, however, do not confine their attention to racing animals only, for there are a number of splendid Norman stallions and other good draft animals, while roadsters receive a full share or attention.

On the eastern side of the county at Moore station, one of the leading breeders is E. H. Gould, who has a range of eight thousand acres upon which he keeps many cattle and three hundred head of horses and mules. He owns a fine Norfolk Hambletonian stallion "Top Gallant" and also nine Kentucky jacks. He bred this season eighty mares. During seven months his stock is kept on the Butte county range, and the remainder of the year the animals are kept at Big Meadows in Plumas county where Mr. Gould owns extensive ranges. John Moore of Moore station has for several years been engaged in rearing good horses. He owns a French Canadian stallion "Brigham" and to him this season bred thirty mares.

Moore & Simpson are joint owners in a splendid racing stalion "Barham" sired by Norfolk. He is a beautiful, bay horse, sixteen hands high, is four years of age and is a half brother to El Rio Ray and Emperor Norfolk. Mr. Moore has two fine young fillies sired by Joe Hooker.

Moore this season will breed fifty mares. N. F. Wood of this same locality has a fine Promptor stallion, "Call Boy" and bred to him ten good mares. He has a number of large, showy and fine colts and in a few years will become prominent as a breeder of good animals. Daniel Abbey has this season bred thirty mares of his own to his stallion which is a half Canadian.

L. H, Phillips of the same neighborhood bred this season fifteen mares to a Norman stallion owned by Mr. C. Porter of Central House. Another very superior horse kept in this locality is the standard bred Hambletonian stallion "Silver King." He is a handsome chestnut animal foaled in 1881 and bred by Alvinza Hayward of San Mateo. He is owned by Mr. J. D. Forbes and is considered by many the finest horse in the county. Fifty mares were bred to him this season. A race track has been put in good condition at Moore Station and a number of excellent young animals are being trained there.

The Central House is a rich farming neighborhood on the east bank of Feather river, twelve miles south of Oroville, and in that vicinity much attention has been paid to raising good horses. Philip Hefner owns and breeds about thirty mares, J. S. Hutchins twenty mares, D. N. Friesleben twenty-five mares, T. B. Hutchins, George E. Mattoon, Matt Lynch and John Harrigan each a less number.

Among the stallions owned in this neighborhood is "Romulons," a Percheron Norman, the property of John Pollock; a dark, handsome brown Hambletonian "Secretary" owned by John Dowd; a large and showy Percheron Norman "Bertram" owned by C. Porter; a French Canadian horse called "Young Compton" owned by Andrew Savage and "Cap," a French Canadian owned by Frank Harrigar. While no one in this locality has gone into stock raising as a sole business, yet each farmer keeps a number of good mares. In this vicinity there are five stallions owned and about two hundred mares kept.

Near Orovilie P. R. Welsh owns a stallion known as "Glory" of the English Glory breed and two Kentucky jacks. He bred this season forty-one mares, most of which are in foal from one of the Jacks. Mr. Welsh owns a range of sixteen hundred acres here, while at Humbug Valley in Plumas county he owns another stock ranch.

At Oroville no one has made a business of raising good horses nor are many good horses kept, Fred Faul and Frank Faul each own Nutwood horses. On the west side of the Feather and Gridley W. W. Elliott owns a fine Hambletonian stallion known as "Cyclone." Near Biggs, Marion Biggs, Jr., has for some years paid much attention to horse breeding and has many excellent and superior animals. He bred this year about fifty mares and keeps two stallions, one of these is a Hambletonian by Brigadier named "Ed. Biggs" and is a splendid young horse.

Barney Mnsholt, a prominent farmer of Hamilton township, keeps one stallion and bred this season about fifty-five mares.

W A. Shippee of Nelson has given much attention to horse breeding for some years past, and has tried to improve the breed of this county by bringing here one of the finest stallions in this part of the State and by keeping only first class mares.

This season he bred twenty-five, and several of these are standard bred trotters. Two of these were sired by Almont.

His best stallion is of Nutwood stock, while a second one is a half Norman. Mr. Shippee has been a Director of the District Agricultural Society for the past four years, and has taken a deep interest in the rearing of good stock in Butte.

West of Nelson a gentleman named Cummings is interested in horse breeding to some extent. Near Oroville, but on the west side of the Feather, Chas. Wick owns a good many mares, and breeds them to a stallion kept upon the ranch. He also raises many good mules.

In the vicinity of Durham Mr. Goodspeed owns a fine animal named La Harp, and bred this season to him forty mares of his own.

In the same locality Mr. Shinn owns a thoroughbred horse which he has bred for the past two or three years to Clydesdale mares. Stock raisers here are watching with some interest to note the results of this cross.

Near the upper end of this county John Crouch is largely engaged in raising mules.

At Chico Mr. Duncan owns two stallions, one of these is a Nutwood and the other a Wilkes, named Signal Wilkes. He is a very fine animal. He has a number of well-bred mares.

B. F. Allen, of the same place, has an imported Cleveland Bay four years old, and is a splendid horse. His name is Stanford Hero, and to him this season Mr. Allen bred fifteen fine mares.

General John Bidwell bred this season forty mares, most of these were work animals, but a few were first class. He keeps an English coach horse named King Richard that is a fine animal.

No town in this part of the State has as many fine driving animals and as many first class trotting horses as Chico, but most of the owners are not breeding horses, hence their names are not given.

D. M. Reavis is the largest horse breeder in this part of the State. He owns six thousand acres of excellent pastnre and farming land a few miles south of Chico, and upon this he keeps 300 broodmares; all of these are standard bred trotters. He keeps four as good stallions as can be found in Northern California. First among these is Blackbird, then comes Monroe Chief, then Steinway, and then Monroe King, besides a number of splendid young horses. Monroe Chief is an imported horse with a record of 2:18, and he won eleven out of the twelve races in which he was entered. Old Blackbird has a record of 2:22.

Among the fine young stallions is Burwell, Monroe Prince, Lusk and others. Mr. Reavis keeps upon his breeding farm more horses than is kept by any one breeder in this part of California. During the present summer he had in training not less than eighty young animals, and kept five drivers and a large force of helpers constantly at work. He is the owner of Vic H., whose name has been so often mentioned in the California papers during the present summer, and who at Chico made five successive heats each inside of 2:20. He owns a number of imported Kentucky jacks, and to them breeds a large number of common mares.

Lack of space prevents us from giving some interesting details concerning this great breeding farm. In addition to his home ranch, Mr. Reavis owns a large range in Dixie Valley, and from there each year brings down a good many horses and mules. He has during the past year sold many mules that were shipped to Australia.

It will be seen from the summary that we have here given, that Butte is not lagging in the matter of breeding good horses. On the contrary, her land owners are paying much attention to the same, and within the next two years some of the young horses from this county will make her name famous in the racing annals of our State. S. S. BOYNTON.

Duck hunting in Utah is eaid to be nnusually fine this fall. In fact all kinds of game is eaid to be more plentiful there now than for several seasone paet.

The huntere in and about Grass Valley, Nevada County, report the quail ehooting in that vicinity ee being very poor thie year. The season jnet passed seeme to have had a ruinons effect on the birde in many sections. It would be in the line of good sportemanship to discourage, as much as poseible, the killing of birde in regions where the weather hae been nnfavorable to their increase until they are given an opportunity to regain a strong footing.

By no meane the leaet intereeting event of the Tulare shooting tournament, held last week wae the ladiee contest. The fair conteetants were Madams M. C. Hunt, J. F. Willee, A. P. Hall and A. Bardere, with ecores, made on standard American target at 200 yarde off hand with the rifle, of 62, 59, 43, and 40 in the order named. Several of the ladies conteeted in other matchee with the gentlemen and showed, ae evidenced by the record a eteady nerve and a olear eye.

We are pleaeed to note your intereet ladiea, keep it up.

The seaeon of field trials, the most interesting and charming of all the several clasees of sports, is at hand. It may be expected that eome intereating accounts will be chronicled of these evente. We are pleaeed to note the increased attention which thia most legitimate feature of sportsmanship is attracting all over the country. Almost every state, from Maine to Texas, will participate in a greater or lese degree in this important feature, althongh much ie yet to be done to bring the interest up to that high standard of which it is so deserving.

Jim Shaw, the giant hunter of Loe Guilicos, has but recently returned from Southern Oregon, where he hae been on a hunting expedition of aome two months. He reports the deer in that region as plentiful, of which he brought down a great number. Ten Elk, three black bear and two mountain lione dropped at the crack of hia 45-90 sixteen pound Winchester. The stories which he recounte ae to the abundance and size of the trout in that region, are such ae to make all anglers whom the old man meets, wish for an opportunity to verify them. The skins and heads of the animals slain were brought home, and it ie his purpose to decorate his domicile at Los Guilicos with them.

What ie termed poor shooting in this country would, ae a rule, be deemed excellent sport in the New England Statee. There, when the hunter can count a bag of a half dozen quail he ie more than satisfied, even elated.

It ie, paradoxical as it may seem, [a fact, that the real pleasure of the true sportsman ie not to be measured by the number of birds secured. The working of the dogs; the pictures they present when coming to a stand; the faithfulnesa and accuracy with which they retrieve a dead bird, or, perhaps, still more interesting, when it ie a wounded one, furnishes in no small degree the pleasures of the field.

The California quail hae been for a number of years much talked of and admired by Eastern sportemen, and in fact by all who have been fortunate enough to come in contact with the proud, plump and aristocratic little beauty. An effort haa been contemplated by the Maseachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association, looking to the introduction of this splendid game bird into that State. We much doubt the success of the venture, and base our reasons on the radically different conditions during the winter seasons presented by this State and that of our Eastern brothers. The habits of the quail here are to come down into the valleys during the winter seasons, and to frequent the protected and sunny slopes of the lower range of mountains or foothills. Whether the abundance of snow and the severity of weather causes them to do thie, or the fact that food is more readily obtained in the lower altitudes, is a question. How far the rigors of winter could be overcome by abundance of food, furnished by the cultivated districts of our Eastern brothers, is a matter which a thorough test can alone determine. They are vigorous birds, especially the blue quail, and furnish, perhaps, the finest sport of any of our small game birds.

There ie no more pleasant chapter in the life of the sportsman than the recollection and contemplation of his first "catch" or the result of his first successful aim and fire.

I have in mind the picture of a towheaded boy of seven years, with pants rolled well toward the knees, barefooted, and with ankles browned, coatless, and with well worn straw hat, coming from the kitchen door of the old farm house, in Kentucky, bearing proudly a little smooth bore gun. Pausing for a moment, under the spreading branches of a boxalder, I see him carefully load his miniature fowling piece and walk down through the orchard, to the brook which flows along its further border, separated from the truck patch by an old worm fence whereon are perched a bevy of blackbirds, which are noisily consulting, as they make frequent flights to the freshly turned furroughs, in search of bugs and worms, or to swing on the rushes which grow along the brook.

The cautious approach from tree to tree, the stealthily turned corners of the rail fence, and finally the crack of the gun and the fall of the red wing, which was carried home and exhibited to mother with such pride. I have made many good "bags" since then, but none of them awoke feelings of greater pleasure than that of thie, the result of my first shot at wild game.

He Swallowed It, Can You?

A contributor to a New York daily writes as follows about a dog:—It seems thie dog was owned by a young married woman, who was at times given to a little mild flirtation. A young bachelor of the same town, Halifax, Nova Scotia, was at one time the favored one, and billets doux passed frequently between them. The post was not considered safe in the transfer of these dangerous missives, so Druid, the name of the dog, a Newfoundland, by the way, was pressed into the service, and ably he performed his task. Every morning he would be sent to the young Lothario with a letter tucked under his collar and soon after would return with the reply. If the husband was present, knowing intuitively that his goods were contraband, he would lay down and wait till he could deliver it to his mistress when alone. This went on very nicely till one afternoon when the couple were seated in the garden he returned with his letter, but seeing the husband there he laid down and, while awaiting developments, dozed off. After a while the husband began to tickle the dog's nose with a straw which aroused Mr. Druid thoroughly, and, rising up, he gave himself a good shake, so good that the secret missive dropped to the ground, fortunately with the address side down. The husband sprang to pick up the letter, but, quick as he was, the dog was quicker, as he snapped it off the ground, and calmly chewed it up and swallowed it, with a look at his mistress that said plainly enough, "Trust to me and it will be all right."

Druid, by his prompt action, saved his mistress all explanation, as the husband could make nothing of the affair, never for a moment suspecting that the letter was for his wife, and contented himself by remarking: "I wonder what is in that letter, and who it is from?" But Druid never told him.

We acknowledge the receipt of a neatly bound and faultlessly printed little book of 140 odd pages, issued by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company, bearing the title of "The Spaniel and its training," by F. H. F. Mercer. The book is devoted to the revival of interest in this beautiful little sporting dog, and will be found to contain much interesting matter for all those handling this engaging little animal.

Mr. G. W. Bassford, breeder of pointere of Vallejo, made a pleasant call on the Elcho Kennels, this city, on last Sunday.

John Kerrigan wishes to claim the name of Dolly for his four months old Llwellyn setter bitch, out of Beesey by Regent, by Kittlee' Karl.

Mr. Dodd of Georgia has purchased Lady Garnet, a famous St. Bernard bitch, that has been a prize winner in the puppy classes at Glasgow and Hartlepool.

Lad of Bow, the famous pointer, is dead. For some time past he has been the property of the Westminster Kennel Club, and beyond question was one of the finest dogs of his day.

Ormskirk Leofric (Collie) was purchased by Mr. A. H. Megson from Mr. T. H. Stretch, at the Birkenhead show for £100.

The purchase was sired by Christopher.

In the Toronto Bench Show, held last month, Dick Swiveler, the king of the Irish Setter class for some time past, was held to divide honors with Ruby Glenmore, owned by W. L. Washingtn of Pittsburg Pa.

Dr. Derby, Secretary of the American Mastiff Club, was accorded a cordial welcome, across the waters, by the Old English Mastiff Club. They got up a special show at the Crystal Palace which took place on the 22d ult., at which a large number of this splendid class of dogs were benched.

It is stated by the Stock Keeper that it was reported at the Cardiff show that Mr. Chapman, had refused £2,000 for Princess Florence, his celebrated St. Barnard bitch. Who would have predicted such an outcome, with nothing but the Jackall and wild dog of the East, of some centuries ago to breed from.

Mr. Frank F. Miner of Muskegon, Michigan, writes us that the Bulled-Miner Kennel, Devonshire, Eng., and Muskegon, Mich., has purchased a kennel of Pointers, which was one of the largest in England, making their kennel, he claims, the most extensive one of sporting dogs in the world.

"Hath a dog money? Is it possible a cur can lend 3,000 ducats?" sneeringly asks Shylock of the merchant. Well, perhaps not, strictly speaking, but if many dogs we know, had the handling of the funds which they represent, they would be able to accommodate a friend occasionally, with sums equal to that which any reasonable dog would solicit or any prudent dog advance.

James Lawlor has just been made a present of two fine greyhound pups, a dog and a bitch. The dog is jet black and has been christened Black Jack. The bitch has not yet been named. They are both highly bred and should make a name for themselves when they appear in public. They are at present in the hands of Mr. Hettich, who knows as well as any one how to handle them.

The first Stockton bench show began yesterday and will continue to-day. Mr. H. H. Brigge of this city will judge all classes.

There are nearly one hundred entries. The gentlemen in charge are to be congratulated, on thus inaugurating a schooling which can but result in the elevation of true aportsmanship.

During the first of the week we made a call on the Elcho Kennels, kept by Mr. A. B. Truman, at 1425 Steiner street, this city, and were much pleased to note the excellent quality and condition of his dogs.

Champion Mike T and Champion Lady Elcho are remarkably fine dogs of the Irish Setter breed. Champion Patti Croxteth T. is a splendid specimen of the Pointer class, of first class breeding, and has a record second to but few dogs in the country. These dogs are all excellently trained animals for all purposes. The latter's puppies less than three months old, show most excellent qualities, and are already broken, if such a term be permissible in describing dogs, to which nature has given the sense of retrieving, to an almost perfect degree. It was a pleasure indeed to note the little fellows work at retrieving with the feather ball with as much eagerness as their sire and dam. Mr. Truman is doing much to elevate the standard of well bred dogs on the coast.

The Toronto Bench Show was a great success. Not only were the dogs shown of superior class, but the public was interested to a remarkable degree. On Wednesday the attendance reached the handsome number of 16,281. Mr. Mason judged the Mastiffs, St. Bernards, Newfoundlands, Great Danes, Greyhounds, Bulldogs, Bull Terriers, Fox Terriers, Irish Terriers, Dandie Dinmonts, Bedlington Terriers, Skye Terriers, Black and Tan Terriers, Yorkshire Terriers, Pugs and Toy Spaniels, while Mr. Davidson decided the comparative merits of all classes of Pointers, English Setters, Irish Setters, Gordon Setters, Fox Hounds, Collies and Beagles. Mr. Oldham looked after the Spaniels, of which it is said there was a large display in numbers, and of the best quality that has gladdened the eyes of a judge in many seasons. All Setter classes were finely represented. The usual amount of kicking was indulged in, many contending that Blarney should have out-ranked Dick Swiveller in the challenge dog class.

ROD.

FISHING IN THE RIO GRANDE.

Colorado's Favorite Resort.

The Beautiful Home of the Mountain Trout at Wagon Wheel Gap.

WAGON WHEEL GAP, COLORADO, Sept. 27, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—For several seasons this place, nestled away as it is in the heart of the continental range of the Rockies, to the west of the beautiful and picturesque San Louis valley, on the upper waters of the Rio Grande, has been the favorite resort for all lovers and devotees of the rod.

The scenery is beautiful beyond description. As you enter the valley by way of Veta Pass, the course of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroads leads up the steep and rocky sides of Veta mountain, by a succession of winding circles, until track after track can be discerned from the car window as you reach the last circling route of the spiral way. Then the beauty and grandeur of Mount Blanc, the highest mountain in the State bursts fully upon the view. It rises nearly 15,000 feet, and presents with its numerous snow-crested peaks and domes, a picture of interest, second to none in the land.

The mountain now hides all else from view to the westward, until we circle its base and are presented with the sight of the valley beyond. The train pauses for a moment at Old Fort Garland, about which so much of historical and primative interest is clustered.

Just over there to the left and south, where the effect of volcanic force is so clearly indicated by the cone shaped mountains, is the spot where General Fremont lost so many of his men during the intense cold of the winter, and following the general course of the Cojanos river, which flows at the base of the Ratoon Range, we mark the old town of Toas, where he obtained relief from the Pueblo Indians and Spaniards.

Following down the valley to the westward, we mark the way over which the greatest race was ever run. For testing the endurance of the horse, it stands without a parallel. General Fremont and escort rode to the relief of General Kearney, who was sorely in need of assistance, making an average of 125 miles per day for six days.

Before us lies the valley 150 miles in length by 75 miles in breadth, apparently as level as a floor, yet, in fact, gently inclining to the south, from that singularly and peculiarly beautiful freak of nature, the mount of the Holy Cross which marks the head of the valley at the north.

It is a charming scene, is this valley, surrounded on every hand by snow-crowned mountains. The strikingly beautiful Sangre de Christo mountains forming its eastern boundary with their sharp glacial spires, reflecting the rays of the morning sun in a thousand gleams, brilliant, dazzling, bewildering in their matchless splendor. The Continental range commencing at the north, and forming a junction with the Sangre de Christo mountains, circles along the western border of the valley. To the south the Ratoon range stretches away along the border. This valley furnishes, perhaps, the best opportunities for trout fishing of any point in the Rockies. In its northern portion are a number of lakes which have no visible outlets Fourteen streams come glancing in the sunlight from the mountains around, and loose themselves in the lap of the valley.

The larger and better known trout streams, are the Rio Grande, the Cojanos, Picket wire and further down toward its southwestern border the Animas and other less important streams.

A run across the valley, passing through Alamosa, Montevista to Del Norte and we find our course has lain along the beautiful Rio Grande which rises above this point. From the last mentioned place, which is located in the foot hills, on the western border of the valley, the railway winds along a narrow and highly interesting valley of but a few hundred yards in width, curving, and winding along the banks of the stream which is now broken into foaming cascades as it glides over the rocks and around the great boulders which have fallen from the mountain sides into its bed. Thirty miles from the valley proper and this arm debouches and we are at Wagon Wheel Gap, the name suggesting the appearance of the little valley in which a hotel, and a few cottages appear, and where numberless white tents are dotting the green indicating that many like ourselves, have chosen this point for a weeks vacation. Dean Hart and Rev. Myron W. Reed, of the First Congregational Church of Denver, are taking a turn at Peter's vocation and good anglers they both are.

Eugene Field, of the Chicago News, spent some time here recently with Stanley Wood of The Divide published at Denver. It is reported that Eugene can make more fuss over landing a three quarter pound trout, than the average angler would make even with a six pound gamester to conquer.

The day was spent in gossiping about the camp and listening to the yarns of our friends and acquaintances who had already spent some time with the finny tribe. Marvelous tales were recited of big hauls having been made at this point and that. The crank who is always anxious to impress you with his superior skill and knowledge of angling was there, in fact, there were several of them. They talked of flies and tackle, demonstrated over and over again and again, just how to make a "cast" so as to tempt irresistably the cautious trout to take the hook, and then manœuvered all about the the sward, illustrating the exact manner in which to land the gamesters. It is a harmless and at times, that is the first time, not an uninteresting deversion to listen to stories of one of these imaginative anglers. It is their chief mode of fishing. It at least does no harm to listen to them, and the recital never fails to result in great pleasure and satisfaction to themselves.

The morning found us up as the first streakings of dawn shot across the distant mountain peaks, ready to get the early fishing before our less fortunate neighbors had finished their slumbers.

My companion and I stole away down the stream and were soon engaged in the enjoyment of some fine sport. The trout rose finely, and in a short time I could feel the weight of my basket quite perceptably, which gradually increased as one after another of the beautiful black spotted mountain beauties peculiar to this region went to join its fellow captors.

The trout of this region are not large. Seldom would the fly be caught by more than a two pound prize, but they were all unwilling captors and gave us fine sport in landing them.

I could but pause to note the grandeur of the morning in this lovely spot. The sun arose to greet a well nigh cloudless sky, save here and there where soft, feathery fragments floated dreamily on the bosom of their shoreless sea of blue.

The shadows of the mountains which lay across the valley, become more distinct as the mists which hung about the stream lifted, and the gloom retreated into the gulches and ravines on either hand. Now the mountain tops are growing brighter and brighter, and now they are lit with a crimson glow as the first rays of the rising sun strike upon their rohings of snow. The flames of gold and scarlet shooting through the openings, contrast most strikingly with the dark shadows which lie sheltered in the crevices by the towering peaks. It is a sight of marvelous beauty and attraction, and long we stood drinking in the pleasures which it presented. We returned to camp in time for a late breakfast, each having captured about twenty pounds of fish. We met the crowd going out, whose noisy chatter foretold the fact that their flies would fret the waters to but little purpose.

After breakfast I accompanied a party of a half dozen ladies and gentlemen down the stream. Now a ripple in some resting portion of the pool would indicate the presence of a trout, and the air would be cut with the vigorous swish of a number of lines, the flies striking the water in quick succession, and immediately becoming hopelessly entangled, and much time is spent in disengaging the hooks. Finally a small trout, more venturesome than his fellows, is hooked and sent sailing through the air by one of the ladies, the act being punctuated by a succession of screams, which send all the fish within hearing, trembling with terror to their hiding places. Thus begun and ended the catch, but we all had lots of fun.

A stroll through the mountains in search of specimens of agate, topaz, crystal, moonstone, anything of curious rocks and flowers which are here found in abundance occupied the day, with a pleasant little party in the evening at the hotel, where dancing and social chat with strolls by moonlight brought to a close the regular round of festivities of this popular resort. After a week's sojourn we are preparing to return home, well pleased with our outing.

KARL.

Distributing Trout.

On the 26th of last month 30,000 rainbow trout were planted in the streams of El Dorado County by the State Board of Fish Commissioners. The work was accomplished under the management and direction of Mr. Edward D. Stuart, of the hatching station at Sissons.

The little fellows were distributed in lots ranging from 3,000 to 12,000 in various places in the County. It is said that the horrible and destructive pracice of killing fish by the use of giant powder, is resorted to by persons living along the head waters of the Cosumnes; and that as a result the fish therein have become almost extinct. This practice should be stopped at once. It is useless to attempt to build up the fish interests in any community where such practices are tolerated.

The U, S. Fish Commission are exchanging calico bass, croppie and sun fish, for some 50,000 eggs of trout (Salmo fario) from German rivers. Col. McDonald of the Commission is making the exchange with Herr Max von dem Borne, of Berneuchen, Germany.

The past week has been a very poor one for anglers. About the best work among the trout was done at Pilarcitos by Messrs. Grove and Barnes, who caught three dozen fair sized fish in two evenings fishing, using a fly only. The fish were in fine condition and good color.

A scientific journal of recent issue calls attention to the fact that the liquor found in oyster shells when opened contains multitudes of small oysters swinging about, being covered with shells. It is stated that they can be distinctly discerned by use of the microscope.

Mr. F. P. Callundan, Chief of Patrol of the State Board of Fish Commissioners, attended the call of the case against Jones & Co., at Marysville, on the 29th of last month on the charge of violating the game law, by exposing for sale fresh salmon in contravention of the statute. The case was adjourned until October 29th, the plea of defendants. It is to be hoped that the law touching this matter may be strictly enforced whenever any violation is shown to the courts. It is one of those questions wherein the strict enforcement of the statute is the only means of protecting the public interests.

Seattle received a car load of black bass, croppies, catfish and pike, last week from the United States Fish Commission which were placed in lakes Union and Washington at that place. The total number of fish added by this magnificent consignment was nearly 3,000, chiefly black bass and croppies. These fish were taken from the Illinois river near Maredosie, where the United States Fish Commission have headquarters, with Dr. Bartlett in charge. The Pacific Coast waters are receiving considerable attention from the Commission this year. The waters of the Yellowstone have been quite freely planted with trout. The car returned East for another load of fish, designed for western waters.

One of the most attractive features of the St. Louis exposition now in progress, is said to be the elegant display of live fish. One department of the aquarium contains seventeen brook trout of remarkable beauty. They are being exhibited by the Missouri Fish Commission, and were bred in the well nigh icy waters of Mammoth Springs, on the Missouri and Arkansas line. There can be but few more beautiful and interesting sights than that presented by fish as they swim about in clear waters, describing the perfection of graceful curves in their pleasing movements. The rainbow trout are especially attractive. We congratulate the Missouri Commission in thus successfully attracting public attention to their important work.

The department of the State Fish Commisaion at the Nebraska State Fair is said to have been one of the most interesting features of that gathering. The Commission of that State have a special car fitted up for the purpose of distributing trout, which the railroads transport free of charge, greatly facilitating the work.

The display included trout, sunfish, perch, black buffalo, black sucker, and red horse, all of which are natives of Nebraska waters. German carp, speckled catfish, black bass, quillback and hickory boned shad, and a large catfish weighing sixty-five pounds taken from the Platte river were on exhibition. That veteran in this department, Hon. W. L. May, of Fremont, is responsible for much of the growth and success of fish culture in that State.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11 000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the finest and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three-year-old in 2:12.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness. Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple or hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Trotting Stallion for Sale

We are authorized to offer at private sale

THE TROTTING STALLION

Brocken,

Five years old; color, brown; 16.2 hands; bred by Capt. A. J. Hutchinson; sired

By A. W Richmond,

(sire of RICHMOND JR., ROMERO, ARROW, the DAM OF ANTEEO, and ANTEVOLO and other noted horses); 1st dam Maid of the Mist, by Norfolk; 2d dam Eva Coombs, by Billy Cheatham; 3d dam Ruby by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe.

BROCKEN is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed. He can trot a 40 gait now with ease. His pedigree shows rare breeding, combining trotting blood with the most fashionable strains of thoroughbred. It includes crosses to Lexington and Glencoe with a double cross to Boston. For good, stout blood, this pedigree cannot be excelled. For terms, apply to

A HALF BROTHER TO

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

Training

The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

FRESNO RACES.

SECOND DAY—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1890.

The weather being exceptionally fine, neither too hot nor too cold, a large crowd witnessed the day's racing at the Fair Grounds and though the programme included no sensational horses yet the public went away well satisfied with the sport provided. The judges were President Lewis Leach, F. B. Baldwin and W. Helm. Timers—T. S. Ripporden, C. Saxe, F, H. Cox. Starter—W. Hughes.

Three races were originally on the programme. The first a two-old trotting stake called the S ranbe Stakes was appropriately won by S. N. Straube's Elise, a good looking bay filly by Clovis, who distanced the whole field in the first heat.

The second race a six furlong dash for runners had three starters, Alfarata, Acclaim and Judge Terry, the latter who is an inbred Norfolk (sire and dam by Norfolk) showed a fair turn of speed but in the first place made his effort too soon and secondly was hardly fit and the lack of condition stopped him at the finish which Acclaim and Alfarata fought out to the end, the former winning by about a neck after a whipping finish.

The third race, a trotting race for the 2:35 class, had four starters, J. Goldsmith Mountain Maid, C. F. Taylor's Sidney T , H. Helman's Aleric and S. N. Straube's St. Joe. Mountain Maid was originally made favorite but proved to be lame and at the post for the first heat Sidney J. was a shade better favorite, but having the outside position had to go very wide and finished second to St. Joe. Sidney was then made a hot favorite and took the second heat handily in 2:30. St. Joe who is by Junio took the third heat in 2:29¼. The race was postponed until next, when Sidney wound it up. A fourth race with the pacers Gold Medal, Sunrise and Birdie was started after the first heat in the 2.35 trot. Gold Medal laid up the first heat and then readily took the next two and ended the race next day by taking the fourth heat in 2:23.

The two-year-old trotting had four starters. S. N. Straube's Elise, E C. Adam's Lockford, F. P. Wickersham's El Capitan colt and W. Gates' Clarence G. Pools sold very slowly at $20 for Elise, $5 for Clarence G. and $8 for the field. A delay of nearly an hour occurred while Elise had her shoes reset. When the quartette eventually came up for the word, it took ten minutes before a satisfactory start could be effected. Wickersham's colt broke and ran to the turn, when Elise left her feet and Rockford cut out the work to the quarter, which he passed three lengths in front of Elise, who broke again. Lockford was up and down four times on the backstretch, and Elise having settled down, trotted clean away from the others, and going very steadily, distanced the whole field. Time, 2:57¾. Mutuals paid $6.80.

SUMMARY.

Straube Stakes (Two-year-old colt stakes)—Trotting; mile heats 2 in 3; $50 entrance, with $150 added. Closed March 1, 1890, with 15 nominations. Value of stake $590.

Second race, six furlong dash, for all ages, had three starters: Alfarata, Acclaim and Judge Terry; the two latter has a five pound penalty, and Acclaim also carried three pounds over weight. Pools sold rapidly at $60 for Acclaim, $21 for Alfarata and $7 for Judge Terry. The flag was dropped to a beautiful start after one breakaway. Alfarata was quickest on her feet, and had three-quarters of a length's lead when all were fairly going, Acclaim closed up, and at the half the mares were head and head two lengths in front of Terry, who came up on the outside on the upper turn and took the lead at the head of the stretch, looking a winner, but stopping a furlong from home, Alfarata and Acclaim ran a hard race home. Acclaim, who was on the rails, was pinched for room, but Cooper used his whip on both sides, and just squeezed the two-year-old home a head in front of Alfarata, three lengths in front of Terry. Time, 1:18. Mutuals paid $6.75.

SUMMARY.

Purse $400—Running. Three-quarters of a mile dash. Purse to be divided as follows: 70 per cent. to first, 20 per cent. to second, and 10 per cent. to third. For all ages. Winners of any purse or stake to the amount of $500, or over, in 1890, to carry five lbs. extra. Horses not having won a race in 1890 allowed seven pounds. Maidens three years old and upwards allowed ten pounds.

Third race, 2:35 class, had four starters all of which were sold out, and after chopping and changing all round the last few pools sold $60 Sidney J., $50 Mountain Maid, $15 St. Joe and $8 for Aleric. After coming up three times the bell was tapped and Aleric at once broke, while St. Joe on the inside set the pace, Goldsmith going very wide with the Maid carried Sidney J. well to the outside on the turn and at the quarter St. Joe was three lengths in front of Aleric, the same distance ahead of the Maid with Sidney three lengths back. St. Joe drew further away up the back stretch passing the half six lengths in front of the Maid, two lengths in front of the other pair; Sidney trotting fast went right past the Maid on the turn but broke and was two lengths behind her at the head of the stretch, while St. Joe was twelve lengths in front and driven right along won readily by forty yards, Sidney J. second, three lengths in front of the Maid and five lengths in front of Aleric. Time, 2:31½. Mutuals paid $17 60.

Second heat. Pools settled down with Sidney J. favorite at $50 to $30 for St. Joe and $6 for the field. A start was effected the fourth time up, St. Joe and Sidney J. trotted together to the turn and when three lengths in front both broke, St. Joe gaining, but Sidney, trotting better when he caught, passed him and at the quarter was level with the Maid, three lengths in front of St. Joe, three in advance of Aleric; Sidney and the Maid kept the same distance apart to the head of the stretch when Sidney drew away winning easily by ten lengths, Maid two lengths in front of St. Joe, five lengths ahead of Aleric. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid $8.25.

Third heat. After coming up twice the word was given and Sidney J. going well passed the quarter six lengths in front of St. Joe just clear of the Maid. St. Joe closed up gradually and getting up to Sidney on the upper turn drew away, winning handily by three lengths, Sidney two lengths in front of the Maid with Aleric five lengths further back. Time, 2:29½. Mutuals paid $21.25.

Fourth heat. No pools were sold and a start was made in semi-darkness. St. Joe and Sidney went away together and it was nip and tuck to the quarter when St. Joe was half a length in front, but breaking badly Sidney went clean away, passing the half seven lengths in front of Mountain Maid just clear of the Saint. Sidney increased his lead round the turn and won easily by five lengths, Mountain Maid second and St. Joe who broke at the head of the stretch third. Time, 2:32.

Race was postponed until Friday.

Fifth heat—Pools sold rapidly, Sidney J. against the field in the overnight selling, but changed round when the track was reached, in the morning the field selling choice for $25 to $16 for Sidney J. When the word was given Sidney went to the front closely followed by Little Joe, who passed him before the half but broke just after passing the half mile, and Sidney again took the lead, and Little Joe breaking again on the upper turn Sidney won handily, three lengths from Mountain Maid, two lengths in front of Little Joe. Time, 2:31. Mutuals paid $15.70.

The special pace with Gold Medal driven by McDowell, Birdie by Helmsn and Sunrise by Garrity was a good betting race. Gold Medal sold choice $20, Birdie $15 and Sunrise $10. After coming up four times the word was given, Birdie on the inside paced away from the others, passing the quarter six lengths in front of Medal, three in front of Sunrise, who went up to Medal at the half and going on was five lengths behind Birdie at the head of the stretch, and six lengths in front of Medal. Birdie won easily by four lengths, Sunrise ten lengths in front of Medal. Time, 2:30. No mutuals sold.

Second heat—Pools sold steadily with Gold Medal choice at $30 to $18 for Birdie and $5 for Sunrise. The word was given the fifth time up. Gold Medal went out in front, and pacing steadily was five lengths in front at the quarter, with Birdie seven lengths in front of Sunrise who fell further and further back, while the other two maintained their relative positions to the head of the stretch, when Birdie closed up on sufferance, Medal went away again inside the distance, winning readily by two lengths, Sunrise distanced. Time 2:26¼.

Third heat—A start was made after scoring up twice, and Gold Medal opened up a three lengths gap on the first turn, and going easily all the way won by four lengths. Time 2:25½.

The race was then postponed until Friday.

Fourth heat—No pools could be sold on Friday. When the two pacers were called up, Gold Medal had the race in hand all the way, winning easily by two lengths in 2:23.

THIRD DAY, OCTOBER 3, 1890.

There was every indication over-night of a great day's racing, but the unfortunate death of Percy Williams who was shot during the night cast a gloom over everything. Mr. Williams was one of the most popular racing man in California. A liberal, enthusiastic sportsman in every sense of the word, he was generous almost to a fault; to his friends he was as staunch and true as steel, never known to go back on his word which was as readily accepted as any man's bond. A truer, kinder hearted, more generous men never lived; there was no wonder that he was so much regretted and so often thought of. Expressions of sympathy and sorrow for his relatives were in everyone's heart and mouth.

The judges were Dr. Lewis Leach, F. B. Baldwin and W. Helm. Timers, S. Crane, T. C. Ripporden and C. Saxe. Starter, W. Hughes.

Three races were on the programme, a run, a trot and a pace, while as attractions W. S. Hobart's Stamboul was to trot against 2:15 made by Palo Alto on the Fresno track last fall, and Regal Wilkes was expected to go against his own record of 2:20¾; the latter was postponed until the next day, but Stamboul added to the glory already attached to the Fresno track by trotting a full mile in 2:13, beating all previous records on the track whether pacing or trotting, and the general opinion was that had it not been for the rain the earlier part of the week he would have knocked the stallion record out. The three year old trot took six heats to decide it and was eventually won by a roan son of Monroe Chief from a Richmond mare, though had it not been for the accident in the second heat Lizzie Thorne would undoubtedly have won the race. The pacing 2:30 class showed Rupee in his best form and the crack three year old who has only been beaten in his class once this season went the three heats in 2:19, 2:16½ and 2:17, winning easily every time. The half mile and repeat was postponed until Saturday.

The sensational race of the day was a special purse to beat Palo Alto's record of 2:15 made at Fresno last fall.

STAMBOUL'S GREAT PERFORMANCE.

Immedistely after the second heat in the three-year old trot, Manager Baldwin got up on the smoother, and carefully went over the track, after which Goldsmith came out with Stamboul and scored up to the turn alone three times, then Andy McDowell, with the roan runner, went to the turn twice with him, and the sixth time up at fifteen minutes past four.

Goldsmith nodded for the word, and the bay stallion left the wire at a terrific pace, and getting well round the turn, passed the quarter in 0:32½, with the runner three lengths behind, and going on resolutely, passed the half in 1:05½, and trotting steadily went a little wide on the upper turn, passing the three-quarters in 1:39, with the runner close up; Goldsmith drove the stallion hard down the stretch and he responded nobly, finishing boldly and gamely head and head with the runner, going under the wire in 2:13.

Cheer after cheer greeted Goldsmith and the horse, and when the time was hung out, the crowd broke loose again, and shouted themselves hoarse at the grand performance, eclipsing as it did every performance on the Fresno track, being three-quarters of a second faster than Snnol's and two seconds better than Palo Alto's. Everyone was in a great state of enthusiasm over the performance. In the judges' stand were—as well as judges of the day—Messrs. Salisbury, Gamble and Du Bois.

Mr. Salisbury said at once "It was a grand mile, and he did like a gentleman. I consider it equal to 2:12, as he had to go so wide on the turns." Sam Gamble, Mr. Hobart's superintendent, said: "I knew he could do it, and you will see him do much better if all goes well; Goldsmith seems to understand him." The veteran Luke Du Bois said: "By God, sir, he's a daisy; why, he never lifted his head. I never saw anything like it; wonder whether I could take him to Denver?"

President Lewis Leach was highly eulogistic of horse and driver, and of their grand track; while Manager Baldwin said: "I never doubted his ability to beat Palo Alto's time, but I placed it a little lower, and assured Goldsmith at Sacramento that he would trot in 2:12 on our track, and now I am certain that he would have beaten 2:12 had it not been for the rain.

John A. Goldsmith said: "Grand mile, wasn't it, eh? Took him a little fast to the half, but have found he goes better if you keep whooping him up; had to go a little wide on the upper turn partly because track was not good close to the rails and partly because he trots better there, but he finished game enough, though a little tired the last hundred yards. If he strikes Naps good, he will make things hum.

Andy McDowell, who drove the runner, said: "Equal to 2:12 should say it was. Why, if Johnny would turn him loose here next week, 2:12 would not be in it.

FIRST RACE.

Three-year-old trotting, district horses, had four starters: S. N. Straube's Lizzie Thorne, C. English's Richmond Chief, L. C. Smith's Raymont and W. J. Dickey's El Pastore.

First heat—Lizzie Thorne was made a hot favorite, selling for $30 to $10 Richmond Chief and $6 for the other two as a field. Distance waived. A start was effected the fifth time up. Raymont broke before the turn and dropped back, while Lizzie Thorne, trotting very steadily, went away from the others, passing the quarter six lengths in front of Richmond Chief, with El Pastore ten lengths in front of Raymont. Lizzie Thorne left her feet half way up the backstretch, but soon settling down, passed the half four lengths in front of Richmond, and going very steadily, retained her advantage to the distance when Richmond broke, and the mare going on, won easily by ten lengths, Richmond four lengths in front of El Pastore, with Raymont a furlong back. Time, 2:41. Mutuals paid $7 60.

Second heat—No pools could be sold. A start was soon made, and Lizzie Thorne again trotted away on the turn, but Richmond closed up, being on her wheel at the quarter, and the mare broke, swerving outward, and Helman ran into Dwyer's sulky and upset it; Pastore passed him and led past the half two lengths in front, but Richmond closed up on the turn, and finishing strongly, won the heat by a length, Raymont a bad third. Lizzie Thorne was caught half way down the stretch, and kicked the sulky almost to pieces, but luckily did not seriously injure herself. Time, 2:44. Mutuals paid $16.60.

Third heat—Lizzie Thorne sold for $22 to $20 for the field. Lizzie came out with a kicking strap on, and went rather tenderly in the warm up. After scoring up four times the word was given, and Thorne almost immediately broke, and leaving her feet again on the turn, dropped back while Richmond set the pace, passing the quarter with Pastore at his wheel, ten lengths in front of the other pair. Pastore and Richmond, trotted head and head to the half, but the former broke twice before the head of the stretch, and again at the distance was beaten five lengths by Richmond, Lizzie Thorne, who broke badly on the backstretch, was a hundred yards back, and Raymont ninety yards further back Time, 2:44. Mutuals paid $9.50.

Fourth heat—Goldsmith drove El Pastore and Bayliss Lizzie Thorne. Pools sold rapidly at $50 for Richmond to $20 for the whole field. After half a dozen attempts the word was given. Thorne broke just prior to leaving the backstretch, and Richmond cut out the work with Pastore at his wheel, four lengths in front of Thorne. Pastore passed Richmond, but left his feet at the three-eighths; Richmond, however, broke shortly afterwards, and Pastore passed the half four lengths in front of Richmond and Thorne; the latter broke and dropped back, and Richmond broke on the turn; Pastore turned into the homestretch six lengths in front, with Thorne two lengths behind. Pastore, going steadily, won, pulling up four lengths in front of Richmond, two lengths ahead of Thorne, with Raymont nicely inside the stretch. Time, 2:41¾.

Fifth heat—Pools changed, El Pastore selling choice for $50 to $20 for Richmond Chief and $6 for the field. The word was given the second time up. Richmond broke at once and ran half way round the turn, Pastore was three lengths in front when he caught, and going very steadily, retained his advantage into the backstretch, with Lizzie Thorne three lengths further back. Richmond went up to Pastore at the three-eighths but dropped back again, and went round the turn a length behind, with Lizzie Thorne two lengths further back. When fairly straightened out, Richmond and Thorne challenged Pastore; Thorne was the first to break, but Richmond hung on to Pastore to the distance, when the latter broke, and Richmond won the heat two lengths in front of Pastore, four in front of Lizzie Thorne, with Raymont well in the stretch. Goldsmith protested vigorously, stating that Richmond Chief gained a good deal on his break, and the heat was given to Pastore, Richmond second. Time, 2:42¼. Mutuals paid $12.75.

Sixth heat—It was almost dusk when the horses were sent off for the last time. El Pastore gradually trotted away from Richmond, and despite a break, passed the quarter two lengths in front, with Richmond three in advance of Lizzie Richmond broke just after the three-eighths and Lizzie followed suit, while Pastore also broke before the half. When all settled down again, Pastore was three lengths in front of Richmond, who got to within a length at the head of the stretch, with Lizzie six lengths back, Pastore kept in front to the distance when he broke, and Richmond passed him, winning by three lengths, Pastore six in front of Lizzie. Time, 2:42.

Pacing—2:30 class. Pools sold slowly at $20 for Rupee to $10 for the field. Rupee had the pole with Princess Alice next and Hummer on the outside. After one attempt the bell was tapped with Alice half a length in front and going very fast she was two lengths in front, and had the pole, on the turn. Rupee, however, was at her wheel at the quarter, but George leaving an opening, Hummer came up in a hurry on the rails and was at Princess' saddle at the half, and getting to her head before the upper turn, carried her wide and Goldsmith came up on the inside and had the heat safe all the way down the stretch. Hummer broke at the half distance and Alice came with a rush just beaten half a length by Rupee, Hummer two lengths back. Time, 2:19. Mutuals paid $7 60.

Second heat—Pools could not be sold on the race and the word was given the first time up. Hummer dropped back on the turn while the other pair went together head and head to the half in 1:08, when Rupee gradually drew out, turning into the homestretch a length in front of Alice, with Hummer coming fast on the rails. Alice broke a furlong from home, and Rupee going on won by two lengths, Hummer second and Alice sixty yards back. Time, 2:16½. Mutuals paid $7.60.

Third heat—No pools sold. Rupee went away in front and turned into the back stretch a length in front of Alice with Hummer at her wheel. Hummer got his head in front of Alice at the half, and going very steadily went round the upper turn two lengths behind Rupee, who won easily by two good lengths, Hummer five lengths in front of Princess tiring fast. Time, 2.18.

FOURTH DAY, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1890.

Judges—Dr. Lewis Leach, F. B. Baldwin and W. Helm.
Timers—T. S. Ripporden, E. H. Cox and C. Saxe.
Starter—W. Hughes.

The early morning found hosts of people on the track to witness the stock parade, which was a credit to any district, and immediately afterwards the Ladies Riding Tournament took place. Three ladies entered and the usual exercises were indulged in. In the last canter past, Miss Burnside's horse bolted and fell over the fence, but luckily the fair rider was not seriously injured. The judges awarded Miss Burnside first prize, Mrs. W. R. Furnish second and Mrs. Balford third. The afternoon programme included three running races, a trot, a walk-over and two exhibition miles against previous records. The first race, half mile heats, proved an easy thing for Ida Glenn, who laid up the first heat, and despite getting the worst of the start readily took the second, and in the run off broke away three lengths in front, and was never extended. The mile and three furlongs was cleverly won by Raindrop, but had the pace been better at the first end of it the result might have been different. The quarter and repeat was a gift for Cyclone, who fairly romped away from his field in each heat.

The 2:30 trot showed Mr. Straube's four-year-old St. Joe by his stallion Junio in much better form than on Thursday, and handled by Goldsmith he won readily in 2:29¾, 2:28 and 2:26. At half past four San Mateo Stock Farm's brown colt Regal Wilkes, Guy Wilkes—Margaret appeared on the track driven by Goldsmith, to go for a purse against his record 2:20¾. An hour previous Goldsmith brought him out with a two ounce toe weight on and warmed him up, going the mile in 2:33, last quarter in 0:35½, and then finding the toe weight did not suit, gave him, after an interval of half an hour another work out in 2:26½, the last quarter in 0:35¼. McDowell appeared with the runner, and the first time up they scored to the turn, the second time Regal broke before reaching the wire and the third time Goldsmith nodded for the word with the runner at his head. The colt went away, and trotting steadily went round the turn two lengths in front of the runner and passed the quarter in 0:33, and coming back a little passed the half in 1:09—official, Goldsmith said 1:07½, and most watches 1:08 or better. The runner came almost to the colt on the turn and Regal passed the three quarters in 1:42½, and going well to the distance past was joined by the runner, and with Goldsmith coming down heavily on him with the whip he finished well, head and head with the runner in 2:17½. Most outside watches said 2:17 and Goldsmith 2:16¾ Manager Baldwin said 2:16¾, and explained the discrepancy by the fact that the bell was tapped when Goldsmith nodded, three lengths before he reached the wire, and probably the timers started their watches then.

After the first heat in the 2:30 trot Vida Wilkes was brought out to beat her record of 2:28½ made at Petaluma; the two two-year-old who was not assisted by a runner was sent to the turn twice and then Goldsmith turned her loose and going away smoothly and squarely she passed the quarter in 0:36, the half in 1:11, and the three-quarters in 1:48, and seemed to be going easy, but left her feet when nicely in the stretch and lost fully a second. She trotted fast after she settled, however, and finished the mile gamely in 2:26.

The first race on the card, the half mile and repeat running had four starters, Ida Glenn 114, Gambo 112, Toots 110 and Eddie R. 117.

First heat—Pools sold rapidly at $35 for Ida Glenn to $25 for Gambo and $31 for the field. The flag was dropped the first time, Toots and Gambo being quickest away were two lengths in front at the turn and going on Toots turned into the stretch half a length in front of Gambo with Glenn three lengths back and Eddie four further back. Murphy rode Gambo hard down the stretch, but Toots always held him safe winning cleverly by a neck, Glenn three lengths back third. Time, 0:49½. Mutuals paid $20.

Second heat—Pools still sold with Ida Glenn choice at $50, to $25 for the field and $5 for Gambo After two false starts the flag was dropped with Gambo a length in front of Ida Glenn and Eddie R. last. Toots ran up to Gambo and they ran head round the turn swinging into the stretch three lengths in front of Glenn. Half way down the stretch Gambo shot out but Glenn on the outside came with a rush and catching him at the half distance had him beat, winning the heat readily by half a length, Gambo two lengths in front of Eddie R., a length and a half in front of Toots pulling up. Time, 0:49½. Mutuals paid $8.

Third heat—A few pools were sold at $20 for Glenn to $5 for Toots. The flag was dropped to a bad start, Glenn being four lengths in front, and never headed won in a gallop by three lengths. Time, 0:50.

Pools sold very rapidly, Owen's Stable selling choice at $30 to $22 for Raindrop and $8 for Mozart. A fairly good start the first time up, Daisy D. set the pace turning into the stretch a length in front of Raindrop, two lengths in front of the other pair. Raindrop came up on the outside, passing the stand level with Daisy, three lengths in front, Mozart just clear of Captain Al. Raindrop went away from Daisy on the turn and went up the back stretch two lengths in front of Daisy the same distance in front of Captain Al who was, however, passed by Mozart who closed up to Daisy before leaving the back stretch and turned into the straight for home head and head with Daisy, three lengths behind Raindrop. Mozart caught it hot down the stretch to keep his place, while Raindrop ran easily to the drawgate when

Murphy rode her hard until forty yards from the wire winning a little handily by a length from Daisy who beat Mozart two lengths for the place, Captain Al seven lengths back. Time, 2:26. Mutuals paid $11 00

2:30 TROTTING.

First heat—It was five o'clock when the horses were called up for the first heat of the 2:30 trot. Goldsmith was behind St. Joe, who consequently sold a big favorite at $50 to $20 for Maud Singleton and $7 for Barbero. The word was given the fourth time up. St. Joe broke before the turn, and Barbero when two lengths in front broke and ran a furlong, when he caught. Maud went past him and passed the quarter a length in front with St. Joe five lengths back. Barbero broke again and ran past Maud and never struck a trot until the head of the stretch. St. Joe gradually closed up to Maud, and when Barbero settled down at the head of the stretch there was only half a length between the trio. St. Joe, however, trotted away, being three lengths in front at the distance, but Maud finisbed grandly only beaten half a length, Barbero five lengths back. Time, 2:29¾. Mutuals paid $8.60.

Second heat—Williams was called into the stand and warned that if he did not do his best he would be punished and a new driver put up behind Maud, immediately it was known, pools changed and the field sold for $50 to $20 for St. Joe. The word was given the fourth time. Joe and Maud trotting well together went round the turn six lengths in front of Barbero, who was never in it afterwards. The gelding had a neck the best of it at the quarter, when Maud broke but did not lose ground, and trotted away from Joe, passing the half two lengths in front. Goldsmith closed up on the turn and down the stretch, getting on even terms sixty yards from home, and Maud, leaving her feet, Joe won the heat by half a length, Barbero distanced. Time, 2:28. Mutuals paid $16.25.

Third heat—At the request of P. Williams, McDowell was allowed to drive Maud. Pools sold with Joe a big favorite $80 to $15. A start was soon made, St. Joe and the mare staying together to the turn, when Maud broke and dropped back, Joe passing the quarter three lengths in front. Maud closed up a little, but broke again, and Joe passed the half three lengths in front, despite a break. Maud closed up again a little, but breaking on the upper turn, ran for fifty yards she settled down a length behind, and trotting steadily seemed to have a chance, but left her feet at the half distance and was beaten two lengths. Time, 2:26.

The Guaranteed Purse of $1,200 for the 2;20 class, trotting, was walked over for by San Mateo Stock Farm's ch m Hazel Wilkes, Guy Wilkes—Blanche, driven by Goldsmith. No time taken.

FIFTH DAY, MONDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1890.

Judges—Dr. Lewis Leach, W. Helm and F. B. Baldwin. Timers—S. N. Straube, G. Bayliss and Dr. Edwards. Starter W. Hughes.

The last day of the meeting was devoted to extra races, but owing to the weather which caused the last day to come on Monday instead of Saturday as was originally intended. the attendance was not large, in fact was very slim, but the the class of sport was excellent. The first race a handicap, six furlong dash, for all ages, was readily won by W. L. Appleby's Alfarata. The next race had two starters, Emma Temple and Homestake. The mare could never carry the Gibraltar gelding until the last heat; when getting the worst of the start she trotted a close second to Homestake in 2:17¼ and must have trotted in 2:17½ or better. Mr. Agnew was satisfied that she could repeat near the same notch and was anxious to give her a record. So a purse of $100 was offered for Emma Temple to beat her record of 2:21, and accompanied by McDowell and the runner, she was brought out after an hour's rest, and getting round the first turn well she passed the quarter in 0:35, the half in 1:12, and finishing strongly completed the mile in 2:23.

The third race was an easy thing for Una Wilkes who won in straight heats in 2:26, 2:25½ and 2:27½. The last race of the day Sidney J. lowered his record to 2:26¾ in the first heat, and he will evidently beat that, ere the season is out, if necessary.

First race.—Six furlongs, had five entries and four starters. Pools sold steadily for a while with Ida Glenn and Dan Murphy ont of the field and at the post The field brougbt $25, to $7 for Murphy and $4 for Glenn. The flag was dropped the first time, Alfarata and Glenn baving two lengths the best of it and sent right along Alfarata passed the half a length and a half in front of Glenn, two lengths ahead of the other pair. Alfarata was still in front at the head of the stretch and galloping away won easily by four lengths, Glenn just beating Murphy for the place with Terry two lengths back. Time 1:15½. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Second race—Special for Homestake and Emma Temple.

First heat—Very few pools were sold at $25, always there, for Homestake to $6 for Temple when it could be got. The bell was tapped the second time, Temple going very steadily, passing the quarter a length in front, but Homestake went right past her on the back stretch, and turned into the stretch four lengths in front, and never headed, won easily by three lengths. Time, 2:20. Mutuals paid $6.50.

Second heat—No pools sold. The word was given the first time up Homestake going steadily, gradually drew away, being four lengths in front at the half and was driven right along to the distance, when he slowed up a little, winning the heat by two lengths. Time, 2:21. Mutuals paid $6.90.

Third heat—After several attempts the word was given with Homestake three quarters of a length in front, and going well he increased it to three lengths at the quarter and four at the half in 1:08. Temple decreased the lead a little round the turn and finishing strong got to his wheel at the wire. Time, 2:17¼.

Third race, special, for Una Wilkes, Nona Y and Mattie P.

First heat—A few pools sold at $40 Una Wilkes, and $18 for the field. Wilkes was barred and Nona Y brought $20 to $16 for Mattie P. The word was given the first time up. Nona Y on the inside cut out the work, passing the quarter three lengths in front of Una, six lengths ahead of Mattie. Una went up to Nona at the three-eighths and the latter broke, while Una went on, passing the half three lengths in front, Nona ten lengths ahead of Mattie. The order was not changed all the way home. Nona breaking half way down the stretch, finished three lengths behind Una pulling up, with Mattie sixty yards back. Time, 2:26.

Second heat—Pools sold Nona Y $20 to $7 for Mattie P The word was given the second time up and Nona broke, running to the turn, settled down three lengths behind Una and two in front of Mattie. Nona broke again after leaving the quarter, and when she caught Mattie P was a length in front of ber and ten lengths behind Una, Nona who was very unsteady, hung on to Mattie to the head of the stretch, and breaking badly half way down, was beaten two lengths for the place, Una winning the heat by six lengths. Time, 2:25½. Mutuals paid $9.50 on Mattie P.

Third heat—Pools sold $60 for Mattie P to $16 for Nona Y. After coming up several times, Nona Y was seen to be very lame. When the bell was tapped Una went away in front and passed the quarter five lengths in front of Mattie, a length in front of Nona. Una increased her lead to ten lengths at the half and twelve at the three quarters, and slowing down to let Nona Y in, finisbed fifty yards in front of Mattie P, with Nona who was hitch all the way, lame before and behind, just inside. Fourth race—Pools opened at $20 for Sidney J. to $10 for Maud Singleton and $12 for Ned Locke, and finished at $25 for Sidney J. to $25 for Ned Locke and $6 for Maud Singleton. After scoring up several times, during which they all were very unsteady, they were sent away, with Singleton half a length in front, and trotting well, she increased her lead to six lengths at the quarter, with Ned Locke three lengths in front of Sidney, who trotted up to Locke before the next furlong was passed, and the latter breaking, dropped back. Maud passed the half seven lengths in front of Sidney, who decreased her lead to a length and a half at the head of the stretch, and got to her wheel before the end of the next furlong, but broke, and Maud followed suit; when both caught, Maud was a length in front and looked a sure winner, but Sidney came again and getting to her neck forty yards from the wire, carried her to a break and won the heat by a head, with Maud running, Ned Locke a moderate third. Time, 2:26. Mutuals paid $39.50.

Second heat—Sidney sold for $30 to $10 for the whole field, with McDowell behind Maud Singleton. After coming up four times, the bell was tapped four lengths after they passed under the wire, with Sidney behind, but trotting well he took the lead on the turn and passed the quarter a length in front of Maud, four lengths in front of Ned Locke. Maud went past Sidney, having a length the best of it at the half, but left her feet twice on the turn, and at the head of the stretch, when head and head with Sidney, she again broke, but catching, was at his wheel at the half distance, when she again broke, and Locke coming with a rush, got second place, a length behind Sidney and half a length in front of Maud. Time, 2:27½. Mutuals paid $8 20.

Third heat—No pools sold. Williams drove Maud The word was given the first time up, Sidney left her feet on the turn but closed up again being at Maud's neck at the quarter with Locke six lengths back. Maud drew out again passing the half a length in front, but Sidney came up to her on the turn and at the head of the stretch they were level three lengths in front of Locke. It was touch and go all the way down the stretch and Sidney breaking inside the distance, Maud won the heat by a length, Locke three lengths back. Time, 2:28½. Mutuals, with Sidney harred, paid $11.60.

Fourth heat—It was almost dusk when the horses were called up for the last heat and the word was soon given. Maud getting away well led Sidney by a length all the way to the head of the head of the stretch, and a hard race took place. Sidney left his feet half way down the stretch, but finishing strongly was just able to get up in time, winning the heat and race by a short head with Locke ten lengths back. Time, 2:31½.

The Salinas Fair.

Owing to the rain storm which was so general throughout the State during Sunday and Monday of last week, it was thought by many that the Salinas Fair might have been postponed for at least a day if not more. However, old Sol. came out in all his brilliancy Monday afternoon, and on Tuesday Sherwood Park was well filled for the purpose of seeing the various speed events. James Dwain, the lessee of the track, had it in superb condition, and those who had horses there are all loud in their praises of the manner in which the course had been prepared.

In the judges' stand were J. D. Carr, H. S Ball and R. I. Orr. The timers being Messrs. Sargent, Lynn and Hebert.

The first event was the two year old colt stake for foals of 1888, to which $100 had been added by the Association. Heats best two in three. The entries were Spokane, Salinas Maid and Auntie Wilkes. In the pools Salinas Maid sold for $30, Spokane $15 and Auntie Wilkes for $10. The confidence of the backers of Salinas Maid was amply repaid, she winning as she pleased in straight heats. Time being 2:52½ and 2:52. The judges decided that the second and third money should be equally divided between Spokane and Auntie Wilkes.

The thoroughbreds next had an inning, the race being three quarters of a mile and repeat for all horses owned in the district, the purse being $150. The entries were Cody B., Pirate and Lady R. It being a foregone conclusion that Lady R. could not be beaten, the pools sold with her barred at Pirate $10, Cody B. $5. For some unknown reason the jockey on Lady R. saw fit to make a waiting race of the first heat, and at the quarter pole he was fully six lengths behind the other two, and from there out he did not seemed disposed to try to win and the consequence was that Cody B. beat Pirate by a short length, Lady R. third. Time, 1:21½. Alviso was called into the stand where the judges reprimanded him; the owner of the mare made statement to the judges that he had ordered Alviso to win the heat if possible, and agreed with the judges that a new jockey should be put up on the mare. A. G. Wilson having been selected the horses were sent out for the second heat. When the word was given the trio ran in a bunch to the half mile pole where Lady R was given her head, and in a few moments was leading by a half dozen lengths, she had so much speed that there was no difficulty in her distancing the other pair. The time of the other heat being 1.20½. The judges awarded first and third money to Lady R. and declared all pools off; they also suspended jockey Alviso for the presumed crooked work in the first heat.

The last race of the day was for named horses, best three in five, the Association offering a purse of $150. The entries were St. Patrick, Myron and Mary O. In the pools St. Patrick sold for $12, the other pair selling for $6 each. On the third attempt at scoring the word was given when Mary O. led out to make the pace. St. Patrick stuck to her wheel however, and in the last forty yards came up and beat her under the wire by a short head. Time, 2:34. St. Patrick was now made a favorite over the field, he selling for $10 against $4. The second and third heats were almost a repetition of the first, St. Patrick beating Mary O. by half a length in the second and a scant length in the third. Time of each being 2:36½ and 2:41.

SECOND DAY.

A much larger attendance was present on the second day of the races than on the first, and the grand stand was well filled in addition to which there were many vehicles inside the enclosure.

On the card we found the first event to be a district purse of $150. Pools sold, Starlight $19, Gilpatrick $10, Lucky Jim $5 and Alfred G. $2. The judges of the day were Messrs. Carr, Ball and Graves, the timers being Messrs. Hebert and Matthews. When the word was given Lucky Jim and Alfred G. indulged in the most reprehensible conduct of breaking almost every few steps. At the quarter pole Starlight led by two lengths from Gilpatrick. Up the backstretch the two leaders had a hot fight together, the other pair being fully a distance behind. On the upper turn Gilpatrick moved up a trifle and rounded into the homestretch lapped on Starlight's wheel. Coming down the homestretch Gilpatrick forced Starlight to a break and won the heat by a neck from the filly, the other pair being just inside the distance flag. Time, 2:39. Gilpatrick now became the favorite, he selling for $5, Starlight for $4, the filly for $1. Before reaching the quarter Gilpatrick made a break and Starlight took the lead, she being a length in advance at the quarter, Lucky Jim being third and Alfred G. way behind in the rear. On the upper turn Gilpatrick again moved up and came into the homestretch on even terms with the filly; half way down the homestretch Gilpatrick again broke and was passed by Lucky Jim, who also broke and lost second place, Starlight winning the heat by four lengths from Gilpatrick, Lucky Jim third and Alfred G. a bad fourth. Time, 2:48.

For the third heat Starlight was made a favorite in the pool at $10 against $7 for the field. The favorite was the only one that did not break before reaching the quarter; from there up the backstretch it was a regular procession, Starlight leading, Lucky Jim second, Gilpatrick third and as usual Alfred G. last. In the turn Lucky Jim again broke, Gilpatrick passed him, and in the homestretch was only one length behind Starlight; however, a bad break lost him all chance for the heat, the filly finishing first by two lengths, Gilpatrick second, Lucky Jim a close third and Alfred G. fourth. Time, 2:45.

Pools now sold: Starlight $10, field $6 On account of lameness, the judges allowed Alfred G. to be withdrawn, and his driver, Mr. Dwain, got up behind Gilpatrick. Starlight led in the fourth heat from the wire to the head of the homestretch, but Gilpatrick was lapped on her wheel all the distance; coming down the straight, Gilpatrick forced the filly to a break and won the heat himself, with Lucky Jim second and Starlight last. Time, 2:45½. The field now became favorite at $10 against $8 for Starlight. The word was promptly given and Starlight cut out the work, taking the pole from Gilpatrick before the quarter was reached; she kept the lead until at the head of the homestretch, when Dwain made play at her with Gilpatrick, but was unable to beat the grey filly out, the time being 2:42½. The driver of Gilpatrick claimed that McCartney, who was driving the chestnut filly, had carried him out on the stretch and thus prevented him from winning; and also claimed that on the first turn, Starlight crossed in front of Gilpatrick in such short order as to cause him to lose his stride; both these claims of foul were allowed by the judges, but instead of setting Starlight back, they declared it no heat.

Once more McCartney made play for first money in the sixth heat, but the handsome little filly stumbled and nearly went on her head; when she recovered she was some distance behind, and by the time she had settled, Gilpatrick was fully a half dozen lengths to the good, but when the half mile pole was reached, there were only two lengths of daylight between them; inch by inch she gained on the leader, and on arriving at the head of the homestretch, was on nearly even terms, but the gradual strain in making up so much lost time began to tell on the youngster, and she made a tired break, causing her to lose the heat and race by a scant length, Lucky Jim being a half dozen lengths in the rear. Time, 2:42.

The next event was for the district yearling trotters for a purse of $150, the diatance being a half mile and repeat. Bruno, Lucky Girl and Katie B. were the starters. Bruno sold for $10 in the pools while the others as a field brought $6. Bruno won in straight heats, Lucky Girl taking second money and Katie B. third, the time of the heats being 1:46½, and 1:33.

On account of the lateness of the hour the third race on the programme was postponed until the following day.

THIRD DAY.

The third day showed an increased attendance over the two former days, and is a strong indication of the increasing interest which is being taken in horse breeding and racing in this section of the State.

The half mile and repeat race for a purse of $100 had as starters Hollister Dennis, Rondout, Lady R., Johnny I and Pirate. In the pools Lady R sold for $10, Johnny I for $7, Rondout $3 and $2 for the other pair as a field. After about a half hour's delay, a start was effected with the two field horses behind, Pirate acting in a very fractious manner, and before a hundred yards had been negotiated, he threw his rider, luckily without serious injury to the jock. Lady R., Johnny I. and Rondout ran in a bunch to the head of the stretch when Lady R. drew away and won by a length, Johnny I. being second, Rondout third, the other distanced. Time, 51 seconds. For the second heat Lady R. sold for $10 to $4 for the field. In this heat Lady R. led from start to finish, the horses coming in in the same manner as they did in the first heat, time being 51 seconds.

The second race was for the trotting division, named horses, purse $250. The starters were Chancellor, Sargent and Maud H. Sergent had a very easy victory, winning three consecutive heats in 2:31½, 2:32 and 2:29, he taking first money, Chancellor second and Maud H. third.

The last race of the day was for the pacing brigade for named horses, the purse being $100. The starters were Prince of the Oaks, San Carlos and Tococa. Pools sold San Carlos $20, Prince of the Oaks $20 and Tocaco $3. This was another very uneven race, San Carlos having the speed of the party and winning the first three heats as he pleased in 2:51½, 2:48 and 2:44; Prince of the Oaks taking second money and Tococa third.

FOURTH DAY.

Owing to the stock parade in the morning a much larger attendance was present on Friday than on any other day of the meeting.

The first race on the programme was for the three year olds owned in the district, the purse being $200. Gilpatrick and Starlight were again contestants as was also Alex. S. Before the first heat pools sold Starlight $10 to $8 for the other two in the field, like the race on a former day. Gilpatrick and Starlight had a determined brush for the first money. When the word was given in the first heat Gilpatrick cut out the work and led Starlight by fully two lengths on the backstretch. On the move into the upper turn the filly crawled up gradually, but could not overcome the distance, the son of Junio winning by a short half length. As distance had been waived, Alex S did not receive the flag in his face. The field now became the favorite at $5 to $4 on Starlight: almost immediately on leaving the wire in the second heat, Gilpatrick broke and Starlight got a good lead. The hard work had evidently commenced to tell on Gilpatrick for he broke again in the homestretch, and his driver did not try any further for the heat, Starlight winning as she pleased by ten lengths in 2:46½. Once more Starlight became the favorite, she selling for $10 to $6 for the field. In the third heat Starlight took the lead, Gilpatrick being behind until the upper turn was reached, when he went up to the mare's wheel. In the homestretch a very pretty race ensued; when McCartney called on the filly she responded: the clip was a very hot one, and Gilpatrick broke, losing the heat by a short length, Alex S a poor third. Time, 2.42. For the fourth heat pools sold Starlight $10, the field $5. This was a repetition of the first heat. Starlight went off in the lead and was never headed, although Gilpatrick made a determined drive in the homestretch, but again broke, Starlight winning by half a length, Alex S third. Time, 2:43.

The runners again had an inning, the next race being a half mile and repeat for two-year-olds, for a purse of $120. Three starters faced the flag, they being Jenny D., Valle dore and Rhineheck. Jenny D. was a hot favorite selling for $10 against $6 for the field. This time, however, the plungers made a serious mistake as the favorite was never in it, Valle dore winning the first heat in 52½ seconds, and the second in 54½.

The third race of the day was for the pacers, the purse being $150 and the starters were Geo. Wapple, T. B. and San Jose. San Jose was the favorite at $10, Wapple selling for $3, while $1 was the most that could be got for T. B. San Jose won the first and second heats in the easiest of manners in 2:34 and 2:33½, and was also under the wire first in the third heat in 2:30, but the judges gave the heat to Wapple. San Jose having broken considerably on the backstretch, Wapple won the fourth heat in 2:31, San Jose being second, the gelding having made a disastrous break on the first turn. The fifth heat caused a little change, T. B. and San Jose making a fight for the heat from start to finish. When at the three quarter pole San Jose broke and from there out fell behind, T. B. finishing first by two lengths, Wapple a poor third. Time, 2:32. The conclusion of this race was postponed owing to the darkness, as was also the trotting race in which Myron won the first heat and Billy Emerson the next two.

LAST DAY.

Another large attendance was present on the closing day of the fair. At 10 o'clock the stock was again paraded and the premiums awarded.

The first race was called at 1 o'clock, it being the unfinished trot in which Billy Emerson had taken two heats and Myron one. Emerson captured the deciding heat handily with Mary O. close up, St. Patrick a fairly good third and Myron last. Time 2:34.

The unfinished pacing race in which San Jose had two heats, Geo. Wapple and T. B. one was easily settled, San Jose proving too much for Wapple, winning by a short length in 2:30½, T. B. being a poor third.

The first regular race on the programme was for named horses for a purse of $150, the starters being Emmet C., Fred Grant and Sorrel Prince. Grant sold as favorite in the pools but much to the disgust of his backers, lost the first heat to Sorrel Prince in 2:48½; however, he easily won the next three in 2:49½, 2:49 and 2:54½, he taking first money, Sorrel Prince second, and Emmet C. third; Tom Mitchell was distanced in the second heat.

The next contest was between Mr. G. C. Johnson's Sargent and S. Theuer kauf's Lee. This race was best three in five, for a purse of $150 with $50 added providing 2:25 was beaten. The horses got away on the second score and Sargent led to the half mile pole by two lengths where Lee was moved up and at the five eighths was nearly at Sargent's wheel, in the stretch the distance had been dimished so that the horses were on even terms and from there out Lee gradually forged ahead and won by a short length in the exceedingly good time of 2:23¾. The next two heats were gained easily by Lee the pace being too much for Sargent.

The last race on the annual programme for 1890 was best two in three for the two-year-old trotters for a purse of $150. The starters were Auntie Wilkes, Pocahontas and Spokane. The Wilkes filly sold favorite at $10 to $4 for the field, she amply repaid the confidence of her backers by winning easily in 2.55 and 2:53½.

Our Tennessee Letter.

GALLATIN, TENN., Oct. 1.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—With the close of the present West Chester Meeting, which begins to-day, closes the popular racing season on this side of the Father of Waters. Then all the horses of Belmont, Hearst, Haggin, Scott, Morris, Withers and others of the more aristocratic owners will hear the sound of the drum top no more until the flowers have blossomed in the Spring of 1891. The Dwyers will probably race a few of their horses all winter, but the pick of their expensive stable will probably go into winter quarters after the Westchester meeting. "Lucky" Baldwin's horses will return to California, so it is given out, and they will all participate in the meetings on your coast.

Here in the West the stables are gradually hunting winter quarters, and as they are journeying southward, there are many stables dropping off at the various race tracks and wintering quarters. After the present Latonia meeting there will be no more stake events in the West this Fall, as Lexington and Nashville have abolished the system of having stake races for their fall meetings. The class of horses running in the meet at this time of year are, as a general thing, very mechanical performers, and far below the average stake material. Many of the stables now at Latonia will quit the circuit at Lexington, so will be the case at Nashville, some stopping there while many will go to Memphia. Of course the New Orleans contingent will be usually large enough to keep things moving down there all winter, and there will be several prominent stables take quarters there for the winter. Among the most notable to spend the winter there will be Ed. Gardner's Avondale Stable, consisting of 20 horses, most of which will be 2-year-olds next season. Gardner also has the two crack two-year-olds Ida Pickwick and Monte Rosa, both daughters by imp Mr. Pickwick, and very successful and consistent performers in the West in the early summer. Gardner's yearlings are a grand lot, and all have been highly tried, Bracelet, by Pickwick, dam Brademante, (dam of the Bard) showed a quarter at Nashville last week in 24 seconds flat, and not extended, Pierre by Casino and Koran, by Pickwick, did the same distance in :25.

Nelson's performance at Kankakee this week on the kite-shaped track did not create such a sensation as one would naturally expect to be the outcome for a record-lowering feat. The horse made the mile in 2:11¼, and by one-half second eclipsed the previous record held by Axtell and himself. That these kite-shaped tracks are much faster than the oval no one can doubt, and I am inclined to think some distinction should be made between a performance on it and a record made on the oval track. The way the horses marked their records fully illustrated a great difference, and in considering the performance of his horses, one on a kite-shaped and the other on the oval course, and both in the same time, I would certainly give the oval track record the preference, and consider it much the best performance. The kite-shaped tracks are all the craze now, and I would not be surprised to see a circuit before long in which only the new tracks are used. I learn that several half mile kite-shaped tracks are in course of construction throughout the country, and the day may soon come when no other tracks will be in use. Speed and fast time is the one absorbing thing now among horsemen, and they will have the track now that is most conducive for fast time. It doesn't matter so materially whether or not the present record is ever lowered, and I am adverse to asking horses to anihilate space and time when the record is so far from their reach that to do so literally damages a horse for breeding purposes. Many horses have been so severely campaigned that they developed certain weaknesses, which they impart to their progeny, and the result is that it takes several generations of constant out-breeding to overcome these troubles.

The owners of Superior 2:19¼ by Egbert, are anxious to arrange a match with Mr. Marvin between their horse and Palo Alto, or at least they have challenged the latter or any other horse for a match, 3 in 5, for $5,000 a side. Superior made his record in 1888, but then he was not considered of such high material as to some day be claimed among the cream of the turf. Mr. Marvin has not accepted the challenge and most likely does not expect to. The owners of Superior will strike a "snag" with their western horse if they do not steer clear of such horses as Palo Alto, Jack, Nelson, Alcyon, and a few more I might mention, and I shouldn't think it at all advisable for them to make such broad and sweeping challenges. The horse, however, has probably shown some very fast trials, but when he meets any of the above horses he will find it quite different to negotiating time in private trials.

The match between Roy Wilkes and Hal Pointer has most likely past the way of all earthly things. Geer's driver of Pointer was very willing to match his horse against Roy, providing the latter's driver weigh-in at 165 pounds, which is Geer's weight. There is no probability in the two horses meeting now, and unless they meet in the free for alls of next year, it is doubtful if they will ever measure strides.

For the past two weeks hopes have been entertained that Sunol and Nancy Hanks would meet, but that like other proposed matches, have fallen through. The Kentuckians are yet willing to trot their mare against Sunol, and believe the trotting foundation of Nancy Hank's breeding would enable her to out last the California wonder. Sunol has much more speed, as is evidenced by her trials this year, but she is such a nervous and excitable creature I am led to believe the chances would be in Nancy Hank's favor.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, held in Cleveland, Ohio, last night, new rules were made and adopted for the securing of standard records. "Tin Cup" records were abolished, and the Association did a very wise act when a new rule was substituted. The new rule provides for a standard stake in which each horse winning a heat in as good time as 2:30 is sent to the stable. The new rule goes into effect today, and a much needed want was fulfilled when the Association unanimously adopted it. Yours,

KENNESAW.

HUMBOLDT COUNTY FAIR.

ROHNERVILLE, SEPT. 22-26.

The Fair is the principal event of the year in Humboldt. Notwithstanding the general stringency in money matters and the cold, foggy mornings, people thronged the grounds and manifested great interest at the exhibits and racing. Early on the first day the roads leading to Rohnerville were jammed with teams, and when the trains from Eureka arrived the gate keepers and ticket sellers were kept at their full bent.

The exhibits, though not so extensive as last year, are of much better quality and speak well for this isolated county. Financially, the Association did better than at any previous fair on account of large attendance, larger percentage of entrance fees, a better system of issuing tickets and fine judgment in general supervision.

The interesting programme of races is due not to the purses offered, which are generally conceded to be too small, but to a combination of circumstances which worked well for the Association.

When Kausen's Brass Band struck up one of their thrilling productions on Tuesday morning the Fair may be said to have opened, and the stock parade showed that the entry clerks had had a busy day on Monday. All breeds of cattle were well represented, and the whole a credit to the county.

As usual the speed programme opened with a half mile and repeat saddle race with two starters, the g m Mollie W. and b h Billy B. Mollie W. was a favorite, winning both heats easily. Time, 0:54¾, 0:56.

Tom Quinn's g m Nellie Q. and Smith's b g Tom contested for the $200 purse in the 2:40 class at 1:30 P. M. Nellie Q. got the inside and won in three straight heats, though Tom hung closely to her wheels. Time, 2:42¼, 2.41½, 2:45.

The entries in the three minute class, purse $120, were the two gray stallions, McGregor's Poscora Jun and Rousin's Mazeppa, both sired by Poscora Hayward. Poscora Jun drew the outside but outfooted Mazeppa, winning first heat in 2:51. Poscora became unsteady, leaving his feet frequently in the second while Mazeppa somewhat more reliable lead at the home stretch several lengths. Time, 2:53½. Both horses broke badly in the other two heats, Mazeppa winning each. Time, 2:54½, 2:57.

Wednesday was cool and the attendance not so large as Thursday and Friday which are the great days of the fair. However, the programme was opened with a very interesting three-fourths mile and repeat running race for a purse of $200. The starters were Nellie G., s g m, sired by Sampson, lately purchased of Jas. Goff by Crippan & Davis. Isabella br and w mare, a three year old, sire Joe Hooker, owned by T. J. Knight, and the a s Night time, sire Joe Hooker owned by Latherow & McDonald. Isabella sold favorite in the pools, bringing $10, Nellie G. $8 and Night-time $4. Nellie G. got the inside, Night-time second and Isabella third. They went off at the first trial and were bunched to the first quarter when Isabella gave down suddenly. Nellie G. took a slight lead in the second quarter but Night time closed up and the horses driven hard finished under the whip, Nellie G winning by a length, Isabella distanced. Time, 1:16½ Nellie G. won the heat in 1:19, Night-time close up.

The yearling one mile dash for a purse of $100 occupied the attention of those present at 1:30. Hogoboom's b f Why Not, sire Walstein won the race easily without a break in 3:08½; Dignus, sire Antevolo, acting badly from the start.

The next on the programme was a named race for local horses. Hogoboom named Josie N. b m, sire Bedouin. Frank Miser named Posse, c s m, sire Poscora, and Chas. Landergen, Dandy Hayward g s, sired by Poscora.

Posse was the favorite, but Dandy Hayward won in two straight heats. Time 2:57½ and 3:00.

The 600 yards dash for a purse of $150 had five starters. Will Clark entered Rondo; F. J. Knight, Stoneman; Crippan & Davis, Monte; T. Coleman, Little Cap; Lewis Branstetter, Combination. Pools sold lively, Rondo being favorite and Stoneman second choice. After one trial the flag was dropped on one of the most remarkable starts ever witnessed here. Every horse leaped from the pole in a straight line, and came thundering down the stretch under the whip, while the audience stood on tip toes in dead silence. Stoneman's gray nose passed the wire first, winning in 33 seconds. A long and loud shout of applause went up from the audience, and then there was a hurry skurry for teams, it being rather late. This was an interesting race, as much local pride was centered in the horses and a considerable sum of money changed hands.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 25TH.

People began to pour in at an early hour from the country and by 9 A. M the receipts at the gate amounted to $800. The trains from Eureka and north were crowded, and the entrance was jammed with teams. The sun began to pierce through the fog, and by the time the first race, half mile and repeat for $100 was called, the weather was beautiful for racing. Stoneman and Little Cap came together, and Stoneman proving to be too speedy, winning both heats in 0:5f, 0:51.

The Equestrienne Tournament was unusually interesting, the five contestants went through the usual exercises in fine shape, but Mrs. Jim Howard came near having a serious accident. Her horse became excited, unmanageable, and running away leaped a pair of bars down a steep declivity out of sight. She kept the saddle, however, and was uninjured. Miss Musa Campton received first prize, Miss Cora Gray second and Mrs. John Minard third.

At 1.30 sharp the three-year-olds and under was called. Hogoboom's b m Sacramento Girl, sire Alcazar, who made a yearling record of 2:56 last year, appeared against Mazeppa, winning in two straight heats, time 2:51½, 2:46.

By this time the afternoon's train had brought many more from Eureka to witness the five mile bicycle race for the championship of the county and a fine gold medal.

J. A. McNamara, G. L. Roberts, F. W Faucett, Lou Putnam and Will Robins started from a dead line and kept well bunched for the first half mile. In the fourth mile McMamara, who was with Faucett far ahead of the rest, was taken with a cramp and stopped suddenly. Faucett kept his place, making the five miles in 19 minutes 28 seconds, but by mistake made the sixth mile. Roberts was the only other contestant to finish the five miles.

Pools sold heavy and Eureka people took great interest in the race. Thursdays unusually interesting programme closed with the 2:36 trot for a purse of $250.

Tom Quinn entered g m Nellie Q., sire Overland; N. Groton's g g Pete Steinway, sire Steinway, and W. H. E. Smith's b g Covey sire Steinway. As we predicted in a former article, Pete's day had come. He won in three straight heats without a break, Nellie Q. second. Time, 2:41½, 2:39¼, 2:43.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 26, 1890.

Friday was a beautiful day, and there was no abatement in the attendance. The directors might well be proud of the stock display, which shows the interest taken in good breeding. The procession, nearly a mile long, filed by, and was witnessed by a brilliant gathering of ladies from the grand stand and very favorably commented upon by the men generally, but the time had arrived for the much-talked of one and one-quarter mile dash, for a purse of $200. The giving down of Isabella in the three-quarter was a great surprise to all, and there were many surmises that she had been tampered with; then Nighttime had been so close in the three-quarter that it was hard to decide between him and Nellie G. Pools sold, however, Nellie G. $20, Nighttime $8, Isabella $4, Farewell $4. Farewell, s s, was sired by Nimbus.

After a few trials the horses got away in good shape. Isabella took the lead and held it past the three-quarter, when Nellie G. and Nighttime closed up, passed Isabella and both came under the whip for the finish, but the plucky little mare won by a length amidst immense applause. Time, 2:18. The time would have been much better, but there was a charge of foul riding brought against Leer, the rider of Nighttime, which resulted in Leer being ruled off the track for one year.

The four-year old trot, for a purse of $150 at 1:30, was soon over. Hogoboom's two-year old Sacramento Girl again appearing against the b s Johnny Moor, sire Grand Moor. Johnny Moor acted badly from the start, breaking continually, while Sacramento Girl lead away, and without a break distanced Johnny Moor. Time, 2:42, the fastest two-year-old record for the district, and all knew she could have done much better if it had been necessary.

The free for all pacers and trotters, for a purse of $400, made a lively time at the pool box. The well known b a Idaho Patchen, sire H. B. Patchen, sold favorite, but there were many to back Mr. Graham's b g Cling and Damiana, a pacer of some local fame.

The first heat found Damiana second, Patchen inside and Cling third. It was anybody's heat to the half, when Damiana took the lead and won easily, Patchen second. In the second heat Cling and Damiana kept well together, but Cling broke about 200 yards from the wire, and ran under the wire at full speed in spite of the efforts of A. Franks, the driver, to get him on his feet; second heat decided for Patchen. Patchen's lameness, very marked at first, now became the subject of comment in the grand stand, and it was very evident that the game stallion was under great disadvantage. Tom Ricks was put up behind Cling, but Damiana won the heat easily, Cling second. Time, 2:29¾, 2:32, 2:30½.

Considerable money had been lost on this race and when the last race of the day was announced, the three quarter mile dash for two-year-olds, purse $75, their seemed a desire to get even, pools selling high and rapidly. The s f Ella C. sire Arthur H. was the favorite; Davis & Crippan's s g G. W. sire Arthur H., dam White Cloud sold second. G. W. is very diminutive and was dubbed the Jack Rabbit, but what he lacked in size he made up in speed, winning easily in 1:26, Ella C. second and b s Sunrise, sire Arthur H. third. Before closing there were some other features not strictly belonging to the programme, but of great interest to the audience that needs mentioning. Hogoboom drove the yearling Remember Me, b f, sire Walstein against the colt record for $50, making the heat in 3:06¼, and Walstein an exhibition trot in 2:29½. Walstein has been driven as a buggy horse by Mrs. Hogoboom up to a week ago. Remember Me has had a severe case of distemper and has just recovered. We know positively that she can go a mile in 3:02.

Remember Me and Why Not are Walstein's first colts. A careful survey of these facts will convince any thoughtful person that right here in Humboldt we have a stallion that stands second to none in the country. In a future letter we will give the colts of Humboldt a detailed account, and hope that lovers of good colts will turn their eyes in this direction in the future. The Humboldt Co. Fair at Rohnerville was an entire success financially and otherwise, and is becoming one of the most popular race meetings north of San Francisco.

Artificial Incubation.

Should Eggs be Aired

The following letters published in the Poultry Keeper from Mr J. M. Campbell West Elizabeth Penn., who makes the well known Eureka Incubator, should be read by all, as Mr. Campbell is one of the most experienced men on artificial incubation in the United States. He writes:

I see there is considerable disoussion goiug on at present as to whether eggs should be aired or not in incubators. I have done considerable experimenting on that point, of late, and have found no reason to change the rule that I have always followed when I wanted to make a good hatch, that is, to air in warm weather, but not in cold.

I have several times tried two machines, filled at the same time and exactly the same kind of eggs, and sitting side by side, one I would air, and the other never open more than two or three times during the hatch, I always find that in warm weather, when the eggs are not aired, the chicks are sure to come out too soon, and not come evenly, sometimes a few coming out as early as the eighteenth day while the others would run as late as the 24th.

I have also found that by airing occasionally in warm weather the chicks usually go the full time, and come out much more evenly. In the last hatch I made the eggs were three-fourth chipped before a chick came out. These had been cooled quite cold several times during the hatch, and when they began to come out they came out all in a pile, which is always the most satisfactory way to have chickens come out. I do not air every day at any time, but two or four times a week, seldom more than three times, being governed by the heat of the weather.

A machine full of eggs that are kept at 103 degrees, and never aired any, will begin chipping sometimes as early as the seventeenth day and many of the eggs will show blood where broken, which shows conclusively that the egg was opened too soon. Just where the benefit comes in seems to be rather a disputed point, but I am inclined to think that the cooling down gives the chick more air.

Airing in cold weather I have invariably found to produce poor hatches, and I think that the eggs get all that is needed in cold weather during the time the machine has to be opened, testing eggs, etc. As long as the temperature of a hatching room is below fifty I do not think it necessary to air eggs. At least that has been my experience.

The editor adds: Our experience is similar to that of Mr. Campbell, and we consider the above valuable to those interested. The seasons, the weather, the climate, are all factors. We hope others will experiment and give their views.

A United States Grain Standard.

The following bill (H. R. 11,895) has been reported and recommended to the national House of Representatives by the Committee on Agriculture:

A bill to provide for establishing a uniform standard for wheat, corn, oats, barley and other grains, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of Agriculture be, and he is hereby, authorized and required, as soon as may be after the enactment hereof, to establish a standard for classifying and grading grains, and according to such standard to determine and fix such classification and grading of wheat, corn, rye, oats and other grains as the usages of trade warrant and permit, and the standard classification and grades shall be such as in his judgment will best subserve the interest of the public in the conduct of interstate and foreign trade and commerce in grain.

§2. That such standard and classification and grades shall be made matter of permanent record in the Agricultural Department, and public notice thereof shall be given in such manner as the Secretary shall direct, and thereafter the same shall be known as the United States standard. All persons interested shall have access to said record; and on payment of such proper charge as the Secretary may fix, a certified copy thereof shall be supplied to those who may apply for the same.

§3 That from and after thirty days after such standard has been established and such classification and grades have been determined upon and fixed and duly placed on record as herein provided, such classification and grading shall be taken and held to be the standard in all interstate and foreign trade and commerce in grain, in all cases where no other standard or grade is agreed upon.

The report of the committee in presenting this bill is as below:

That there is urgent need for a national standard governing the classification and grading of grain, uniform in its application to the several kinds of grain produced in the several States, is evident when the fact is known that there exists no uniformity in the rules governing the classification and grading of grain in the several States, and that an identical consignment of grain, classified and graded according to the standard of one State, may be rated as of a different class and grade in any other market.

For example, a shipper of No. 2 wheat from one market has no assurance, even though the identity of the consignment be preserved, that the wheat will grade above No. 3 when graded according to the standard in another State, the disposition being to make the grade as low as possible in order that inferior grain may be added without detection, and without danger of condemning the grain to a lower grade in the open market. The mixing of grain of different grades by the manipulators of the grain markets, thus inflicting great injustice upon the producers of good grain, and placing upon the market and unwholesome food, is one of the evils for which this bill provides a remedy.

Let Congress pass this bill authorizing and instructing the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a simple government standard for classifying and grading all kinds of grain, which shall be uniform in its application and in no way conflicting with any local standard or the inspection laws of any State; let this general law establishing this standard simply require that the grain of the best grades shall be clean, sound, plump and in good condition, and that the weights per standard measure shall meet such and such requirements, according to the rules regulating the rating of different kinds and qualities of grain, as experience may determine to be fair and right, in the judgment of the Secretary of Agriculture, and the producers of clean and high gradet of grain will be protected and properly remunerated and the purchasers will know precisely what they are getting, regardless of where the grain was grown; and warehouse certificates, issued in compliance with the standard provided for in this bill, will be sought after and accepted at their face value as the most desirous collateral security for loans, at the lowest rate of interest.

The committee are of the opinion that this is a most excellent bill in its all features, and therefore recommend its passage.

Profitable Potato Culture; Thorough Tillage.

BY T. B. TERRY.

Mr. Henry Reed, of Massachusetts, likes my rotation of clover, potatoes and wheat; but says wheat is not grown there and wonders if rye would do as well. I should think it would; perhaps better. It can be sown safely later than wheat can, thus giving more time to get the potatoes off. It is an excellent grain crop here to seed with. Mr. Reed also says: "I hope you will tell us when and how you prepare the ground for wheat and potatoes."

We plow the clover sod (if a heavy second crop was left on the surface the Fall before, all the better) as soon in the Spring as it is dry enough to crumble, using a jointer on plow so as to turn all rubbish under nicely. We do not turn a flat furrow but a lapping one, so that the surface soil and clover will be somewhat mixed through the lower part of the plowed land and not all right at the bottom of the furrow. Before the newly turned land dries out it is harrowed down with a loaded Thomas harrow. Then the Cutaway is used, going back and forth, lapping half, lengthwise and crosswise if necessary (4 times over really). Then just before planting we run over with the smoothing harrow again, and roll for planting.

As soon as the potatoes are planted we begin working the ground, first with smoothing harrow and then Breed's weeder, as the plants begin to show, followed by light one horse cultivators. All this work is much the same, although done with different tools, as the farmer who Summer fallowed used to put on his land in preparing for wheat when this practice was popular. There is this difference in the result, however. While the Summer fallow man worked all Summer getting ready to grow one big crop of wheat, and that was all the pay he got, we get just as large a crop of wheat and $100 per acre, more or less from the potatoes which are not very much in the way of our working the land.

When the potatoes are ripe the big four-horse digger works the land still more, while taking out the crop. Then the Cutaway and Thomas and roller are used again, to make a seed bed for the wheat. We have other tools; but these three are all that are really needed. I hope Mr. Reed will not think we have any certain number of times that we harrow or cultivate. No, no; we go over a field until there is no possible chance for further improvement. A seed bed for wheat with us should be fine and firm; when it cannot be made any finer or firmer we quit. With 12 acres of potatoes one man can keep cultivating most all the time to advantage. I well remember a good friend coming along, some seventeen years ago, when we were preparing a field for a crop, and remarking in a sneering tone, "I should hate to have to earn a crop twice before I got it." But we have very few of this kind of men around here now. Sooner or later they drift to the towns or cities and work by the day for some one else, while some one who is not afraid to do thorough work takes the old farm and is soon independent and well fixed.

Doubtless some will wonder how we manage to get rid of the vines and weeds, if we do not plow the ground after potatoes, but just fit the surface and sow wheat. In the first place we do not raise weeds. No business farmer will let weeds grow in his potatoes. Here is the point: Will you have say $25 worth more potatoes on an acre, or let that much plant food go to weeds? You can have about the former instead of the latter by say $3 worth more labor expended at the right time and in the right way. Where in all the world can one put money outside of the farm to make any such profit as this? The vines can usually be cut up in the middle day in a dry time, by using the Cutaway or Disc harrow, so they will not be in the way of drilling wheat. I much prefer to have them broken up and left on the surface. They are of considerable value for the potash there is in them and as a mulch. If they cannot be broken up, which sometimes happens with potatoes ripening just before wheat sowing "time," I rake them up and draw off and spread on clover sod that is to be plowed the next Spring. Some rake up the vines and weeds and burn them. This is nearly as poor business as letting the weeds grow. If they could be turned evenly all over the piece it would not be so bad, as the mineral matter would then be left where it would do good.

Another point might be mentioned. So much tillage will seem to some far more costly than it really is. I find from letters received that many farmers do not have the improved tillage implements, and again I have frequently noticed how little some men accomplish with a team. With our ten foot smoothing harrow we can easily go over ten acres in five hours, if we keep moving as though our business was of some purpose. Breed's weeder will hoe seven acres in five hours. With straight rows one can cultivate six or seven acres in ten hours with a one horse cultivator.

With one digger we can put two acres of potatoes in the barn in a day. We are doing it now. I was amused the other day at a writer in the Ohio Farmer, calling me a "half bushel man." He thought some of my practices were all right for a half bushel farmer, but wouldn't answer at all for a large farmer with his many crops, etc. Is he certain that the half bushel farmer doesn't have the most money in the bank at the end of the year? That he isn't less of a slave, with more time to enjoy life as he goes along? I do not care to spread myself just for the pleasure of doing business. I am after the net profit. We dug this morning one bushel ($1) of potatoes to the square rod. We have acres of such. Many of the spread formers will have to buy or go without. One man may attempt to do everything but he cannot succeed.—Practical Farmer.

California Products.

This is a harvest year for California. Not only is she supplying the rest of the United States with fruit, but vegetables as well, potatoes and cabbages going in quantities at stiff prices to the Central States and Territories. New York dealers have been buying California canned peaches in England, and shipping them back at a handsome profit. Grape syrup is a new product of last year's introduction, of which one firm will make 25,000 gallons. Two carloads go to Washington, D. C., at 55 per gallon. An apricot grower has sold $1,500 worth from 220 trees. Expenses were $190. Pomona valley has raised and dried 1,100 tons of prunes, worth $60,000 to the valley, including amount paid for labor. A grower sold his 16-acre crop of 112 tons on the tree to a cannery for $38 per ton. The average yield of various prune orchards is $300 per acre. A fruit drying establishment at Monrovia will handle about 3,000 tons of various fruits, paying an average of 1½ cents per pound. Two women have sold 4,412 pounds of dried cling peaches from 136 trees for $749, or 17 cents per pound. A large dryer sold 38 tons of peaches to one firm at 20 cents a pound. The Rancho Chico orchards have yielded over 575 tons of all kinds, with the season not half over.—American Cultivator and Country Gentleman.

To Prevent Roup.

The young stock that are now roosting in the trees and other unprotected places should be driven to the hen-house or waterproof sheds.

During the warm and comparatively dry summer time, the chickens may safely roost in the trees; but with the coming of fall and the chilly rains and winds that accompany it, we must hustle the chickens from their high perches, if we would prevent the appearance of roup among them.

It is well enough, perhaps, to talk of the hardness and vigor of fowls that roost where they please and shift for themselves, but the truth is, that class of fowls usually succumb to some disease or other in the fall of the year, and, we venture the assertion that if a close investigation should be made, it would be learned that they perished with the roup, or its attendant evils, canker, chicken pox, etc.

The fall rains are chilly and penetrating when accompanied by wind, and it is a risky business to trust the fowls in the tree tops at such a season.

A close house—one that is too light and warm, often breeds roup; but a good roof, which insures dry ground beneath, and a fair amount of ventilation, makes a hen house both comfortable and healthy.

Dampness underneath should be avoided as well as dampness from above, and everything about the chicken quarters should be kept dry.

Even a shed—one that will not leak, containing roosting perches high up from the ground, is much better than the tree tops, and will answer very well for all except the large comb varieties, excepting in very cold weather.

But to prevent roup, we must keep the chickens out of the trees for the next four or five months and keep them dry.

Choice Cattle Steadily Advancing.

Rather more than the usual activity has characterized the live stock markets during the past week and the tendency of prices for hogs and sheep and the best grades of cattle have been in the direction of improvement, despite the fact that the receipts have continued of unusually liberal proportions. The choicer grades of cattle are arriving very sparingly; in fact there is just now a scarcity of that class. As a result we note a further enhancement of values, the market having moved up to $5.00 to $5 50 for choice to extra, which is an advance on the prices current a week ago of from ten to fifteen cents per 100 lbs. That strictly choice cattle will continue scarce during the remainder of 1890 is a conclusion that seems fully warrantod, and prices bid fair to score a further substantial advance, despite the machinations of the dressed beef combine. The market for common and medium cattle continues to be largely overstocked. We are receiving of range cattle from 30,000 to 40,000 head per week, and as a very considerable part of the natives now arriving do not grade better than medium there is slim chance for any improvement in prices. The grades below good have declined fifteen to twenty-five cents within the week.

The closing prices for hogs Monday were $4 15 to $4.70 for heavy and $4 15 to $4.75 for light and medium weights. This is an advance on the previous week's prices of five cents. Early in the week (during Monday and Tuesday) the market slid downward to the extent of twenty to twenty-five cents, the best heavy hogs selling off to $4.45, but there was a full recovery before the close of business on Saturday. The slight upward inclination of prices is in response to the advance in corn and provisions. If the course of prices was influenced solely by the receipts it most emphatically would not be upward, for we are setting more and better hogs than is usual to the time of the year. Although the bulls are pretty active just now, the bears have decidely the best of the argument, and it looks as though sellers might have some difficulty in sustaining the market.

Sheep and lambs are higher, notwithstanding the continued heavy receipts. Increased activity among feeders relieved the market of a large part of the common and medium grades, and at no time was the supply of good qualities to the demand; hence there was a strengthening of values all along the line. Further improvement in prices is among the probabilities.—Breeders' Gazette.

A Scotchman named Murchland has invented a milking machine and it is said to "milk dry." The thing works on the plan of a sucking calf. The teat cup is so arranged that the free end is surrounded by milk, the root or neck alone being held firmly by an india-rubber lining at the mouth of the cup. There is only one point in which the machine lacks, and, for that part, hand-milking as well, that is in the occasional violent thrusting at, or tossing up of, its dam's udder indulged in by the sucking calf when solacing itself at the old one's expense. Whatever the reason of it may be, whether it be in order to stir up sluggish glands to the same end that a good shaking is said to have in stimulating a torpid liver, Mr. Murchland has given up the idea of imitating it by his apparatus. When working out the affair, he intended to provide something of the kind, but now he considers it unnecessary.—Field and Farm.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

SAN FRANCISCO vs SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY OCT. 3RD 1890, AT OAKLAND.

This wss sn exciting, excellently played and stubbornly contested game from stsrt to finish. A large and appreciative audience wss in attendance. The Sacramentos plsyed an errorless game, hnt Hsrper's wildness was entirely responsible for the loss of the game. The Ssn Franciscos put up fine ball in the field, and batted heavily and timely. The ssme number of hits were msde off both Harper and Coughlin, hnt Roscoe was far more effective at critical points. Ward snd Speer supported their pitchers in great style. Both teams scored a brace of rnns in the fourth, the two Senators coming in on Ebright's error of Daly's grounder, Harper's base on balls, a double steal and Roberts' single. They took two more in the fifth, earning them on Godar's single to center, and Reitz's hard hit to right, the ball clearing the fence on a hound, and dropping into the race trsck, easily giving the second hsseman a home run. Splendid pitching and fielding kept the Senators down to these four runs. The Ssn Franciscos made two in the fonrth throngh Harper's heing nnable to get the ball over the plate. Stevens was hit hy a pitched hall snd went to second on a wild pitch. Ebright, Levy snd Everett gsined the initial in turn on hases on balls, the last one forcing in Stevens, and Speer's sacrifice following scored Everett In the sixth Ebright led off with a single, and Levy's single to right sent the captain to third. Levy stole second, snd on Speer's single to left, both Ebright and Levy tallied, tieing the score. The Friscos won in the eighth on Levy's double to center, a passed ball and Shea's single past short. The score.

STOCKTON vs. OAKLAND.

FRIDAY, OCT. 3RD, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Stocktons hit hard, fielder better, and ran bases more cleverly than their opponents, but the Oaklands hits were luckily hunched with the Gas towns errors and so they won. Perrott pitched fine ball and fielded his position admirably. He was well supnorted by cstcher Armstrong. Carsey's work in the hox was also fine but he was off in fielding his position. The Oaklands scored in three innings, making a brace of runs in each. In the first, after Cantillion went ont on his fly toWilson, Dooley hit safely and scored on Sweeney's triple, the "Midget" coming home on Fudger's fumble ot Dungan's hit. In the fourth, two bases on balls, a hit, a sacrifice and an error gave them two more and they tallied twice again in the seventh, on bases on balls, errors and a hit. The Stocktons got a man across the plate in the second on Hoffman's force hit, a wild pitch, his steal of third and Carsey's muff of Wilson's fly. In the third they tied the score, making another on Perrott's base on balls, Holliday's sacrifice and Stockwell's single. Their two last runs occurred in the ninth. Hoffman took first on halls and was followed by Fogarty, Wilson and Pache, all of whom made safeties—Hoffman and Fogsrty scoring. The most prominent feature of the contest was Pache's fine running catch with which he fell but retained the hall. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs SACRAMENTO.

SATURDAY OCT. 4TH, 1890 AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This was another gsme of gilt edged ball playing, snd which the home team won through snperior batting. Coughlin and Speer were in the points for the Friscos, and Hoffmsn and Ward did the battery work for the Senators. The fielding was first class in every respect, snd of the two errors made by both teams, one on each side was excusable. After retiring the Friscos in order in the first inniug, the Sacrsmentos went in and hy sôme good stick work made three runs, sll they secnred for the game. Roberts hit sharply and safely past third, and Bowman reached first on balls, both men advancing a base on a passed ball. McHale hit to right, the ball passing Stevens and both scored, McHsle taking third. Godar's fly out to Hanley gave McHale the third run. The Friscos made two in the second after two men were out. Levy reached first on his hit, forcing Ebright st second, stole second and went to third on Everett's scratch hit which neither Bowman nor Reitz got. Everett stole second, and he and Levy tallied two earned runs on Speer's safety to center. They tied the score with sn earned run in the fifth. Levy made a double to the right field fence, made third on Speer's sscrifice and tallied on Conghlin's hit along the left field foul line. In the next inning, the sixth, the game was won. Hanley led off with a single, Veach got his base on balls, Stevens made an infield safe hit and Ebright's sharp grounder to left sent Hanley and Veach home. Levy sacrificed, giving Stevens third, and a wild pitch scored him. The fielding features were catches made hy McHale, Levy and Speer and the splendid infielding of hoth teams. The score.

STOCKTON vs. OAKLAND.

SATURDAY, OCT. 4TH 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Stocktons conldn't hit Shaw s li tle hit snd didn't score a single run till the ninth, when with the assistance of errors hy C. O'Neill and McDonald they managed to get a man across the plate. But previons to this time the Oaklands had been industriously wielding the willow and had accumulated seven runs. There was considerable good playing and a great deal of side play, in which the players and "corporals gusrd" of spectators indulged freely. Oakland made one in the second on Dungan's hit to short, and advanced on Sweeney's short bunt. C. O'Neill sacrificed, and on Fogarty's high throw of McDonald's hit, Dungan scored. In the sixth they made three. Sweeney took his base on halls, but was put ont at second by poor base running. Dungan hit safely to left and C. O'Neill took first on balls. McDonald hit to Wilson who threw to first, and on Holliday's error Dungan scored. On Fudger's poor throw of N. O'Neill's hit both C. O'Neill and McDonald tallied. In the seventh the Colonels bunched their hits. Cantillion led off with a three baser and Dooley's hit to left gave him a home run as the ball was lost in a bunch of weeds Sweeney then made a double and scored on hits by Lohman and C. O'Neill. The Stocktons solitary run was made on Holliday's fly to C. O'Neill, which the latter dropped after a hard run, the ex-fielder going to second. He took third on Stockwell's sacrifice on which McDonald's erred and scored on Armstrong's hit, forcing Stockwell at second. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, OCT. 5TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The game at Haight street Sunday was very lsrgely attended. Although early in the game the home team took a hig lead and were never overtaken, still there wss sufficient good playing to keep the crowd well interested. Perrott was in the hox for the Stocktons, and received an unmercifnl bombardment. The Friscos made twenty hits altogether, including a home run and two triples, while Coughlin, who had pitched the two previons days, did excellent work except in the fifth and seventh, in which he was bunched on quite lively. The Friscos gave him grand snpport, Ebright making the only error of his side. In the first inning the Friscos scored on Hanley's hit to right, Psche's error and Holliday's wild throw. They msde six hits in the second, which, with a passed hall and errors by Fudger and Wilson, netted six runs. In the sixth they scored agsin, Stevens making a home run and Ebright making the circnit on his hit, Stockwell's and Fogarty's errors and Everett's sacrifice. One run came in in the eighth for them, Ebright going to second on his hit and Stockwell's fumble, and scoring on Everett's ssfety to center Another was made in the ninth on Hanley's double and Stockwell's error and Veach's sacrifice. The Stocktons tallied three times in the fifth. Fudger led off with a single and acored on Wilson's double to left. Pache hit to Everett, who threw to Ebright to catch Wilson, hut Ebright dropped the ball, Pache reaching first and Wilson third. Holliday's triple scored both Pache and Wilson. They got two more in the seventh, Pache leading off with a safe shot, and Perrott's safety to left sent Pache to the next bag. Holliday's sscrifice sent each up another bag, and Hoffman's single to center scored botn men. Stevens, Ebright, Speer, Conghlin and Holliday led the hitting. The fly catches made by Hanley, Levy, Ebright and Wilson were very fine, as was the infielding of Shea, Vesch, Everett, Ebright, Fogarty, Fndger and Wilson. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, OCT. 5TH 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

By winning this game the Colonels wrested first place away from the Senators. For this occasion Robinson chartered a special train, engaged a bra s hand, purchased a number of calliopes and roosters and with three or four hundred constituents of the Oakland team made a flying trip to Sscramento His team was there before him and were intent on winning. The Sacramento people turned ont in full force, and gave vent to their enthusiasm by the ringing of thousands of cow bells which effectively drowned out the shrill whistle of the calliopes. But it was the Colonels' game. Harper was not in form, and his ineffectiveness in the second inning lost the game. Hoffman then took his place, doing splendid work There was some great fielding and hitting in the game. Goodenongh did some magnificent work in center, and Godar captured the batting honors. Reitz, Daly and McDonald's infielding was particularly fine. The game was umpired by Charley Sweeney and Frank Lane of the Midnight Bell Company, both officials doing excellemtly. The runs were made as follows: In the second inning Dungan led off with a triple. Lohman flew out to Goodenough, Dungan scoring. C. O'Neill hit safe for a single, taking second on McDonald's base on balls. Both advanced a base on N. O'Neill's safe hit. Cobb's single scored C. O'Neill and McDonald. Dooley's triple cleared the bases. Dooley scored on Roberts' error of Sweeney's hit. Sweeney scored on Roberts' error of Dungan's hit, and the right fielder scored Lohman's fly ont In the third inning Daly hit for a single and scored on Sweeney's error. Ward drove out a single. Goodenough forced out Ward. Roberts' safety put Goody to third. Roberts stole second and both scored on N. O'Neill's error. In the fourth, Godar made a long hit for four cushions. In the seventh McHale's error and a sacrifice gave the Colonels a run. In the eighth two singles and errors gave two more. The score.

SAN FRANCISCO vs OAKLAND.

THURSDAY, OCT. 9TH, 1890 AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game was of a streaked character being exceptionally good in places and again rsgged. It was easily seen that the San Franciscos had tbe best of it from the start as they hit Kilroy frequently and hard and the support accorded him wss of a very amateurish order. Armstrongs work was particnlarly poor, that player making several costly overthrows. Wilson also had an off day in throwing and tbe ontfield played a slow game. The Friscos fielded splendidly giving Coughlin fine support. Stevens was the bright particnlar star of the game as regards fielding snd his end of a double play was a marvellous piece of work and well wortb witnessing. At the bst Speer hit terrifically getting four safe shots of five times up, one of which was a corking triple and immediately followed a hit of the same order by Everett. The last named player with Ebright, Sbea. Wilson snd Holliday also did telling stick work. Fogarty played a grand game at second accepting twelve difficult chances witb perfect ease and grace. Selna made his reappearance at first for the Stocktons but his work was handicapped by a lameness in his shoulders and arms resulting from rheumatism. The Friscos bunched their hits and aided by errors of Armstrong, Wilson and Holliday had no difficulty in winning. Sweeneys umpiring was very satisfactory. A fair sized crowd witnessed the game. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

Tbe result of the games of the past week bas changed the aspect of the percentage column considerably. Sacramento, who held tbe lead for so long is now third, tbe Friscos and Oaklands being tied for first place. Stockton of conrse has not been in it for some time, and continues to lose almost as regularly as the team plays. Tbe situation as it now stands is an intensely interesting one, and the events of the near fnture in tbe base ball world are awaited with keen anticipation.

Vogt has been released.

Pache is now on the bench.

Coming—Comiskey and Kelly.

Hill is often out at the grounds.

Levy still leads the vote contest.

McLanghlin has not yet returned home.

Strouthers of the Tacomas has been released.

Next season will be a bristling one for base ball.

The Pacific North West schedule ends to-morrow.

Patsy Cahill has lately been leading off in batting for the Portlands.

It is said that Borchers received $300 per month for pitching for Spokane.

Manager Barnes, of the Spokanes, is expected to be in this city shortly.

Fresno, San Jose and Los Angeles will probaby be in the leagne next year.

John Patrick Parnell Csbill bss been captaining the Portlands for some time psst.

There sre more shirkers in the Stockton tesm than in any other team in the league.

Brodie, of the Boston National League team, has only struck out twice this season.

Cbarley Sweeney has received the nomination for Assemblyman from the 37th district.

Tom Buckley and Billy Cooney, ex-Pioneers, are playing witb the E. T. Allens of the Amateur Lesgne.

Jim McDonald ranks tbird in base rnnning, having purloined fifty-five cushions thns far this sesson.

Lou Hardie bas played behind the bat, third base and in left, center and right fields this sesson for Boston.

Wbitehead has returned snd is already making preparations for his annual winter hunt on tbe San Joaqnin.

Lookabaughs finger is now healed and Dick is to be counted on to do some winning for his team from this onward.

Speer is now batting as well as any player in tbe San Francisco team, and they are all hitting the sphere like fiends.

Selna is back again on first for the Stocktons bnt is in no condition to play ball as he is all stiffened np with rheumatism.

The finish of the Brotherhood, National League and American Association attracted little attention in local base ball circles.

Pete Meegan alternates between Santa Rosa and Vallejo every Sunday, nmpiring the gsmes of the Amateur Leagne played in these cities.

Tbe Comiskey party will be accompanied by Chas. G. Kilpatrick, a champion one legged bicyclist, who is also said to be an expert base ball nmpire.

My! how a series of games for the cbampionsbip of the Pacific Coast would draw between the Spokanes and eitber tbe Friscos, Oaklands or Sacramentos.

Holliday is again in center for the Stocktons, where he is playing for sure catches and not exerting himself much after balls which to get, an effort is reqnired.

Dungan still leads the batting list of the California League, with Dooley second. Shea has stolen the most bases, and in this department is very closely followed by Goodenongh.

She—"What's a poacher, Jack?"
He—"A fellow who steals tbe game."
Sbe—"Wby you told me tbat was an umpire."

Although Holliday is a very speedy runner, he only ranks eleventh in the base runners in the leagne. Poor judgment is principally the canse of this players non success on the bases.

Harry O'Day, who was seriously ill in Portland, is rapidly convalescing, and will return home shortly. Joe Leveqne, who has been pitching good ball for Salem, is also expected back soon.

Godar led the hitting for Sacramento last Sunday. He had three hits of four times up, one of which was a four cushion shot, anotber a double and a single, giving him a total of eight bases.

Secretary Brunell of the Players' League says the Brotherhood's losses wonld be between $50,000 and $60,000 tbis year. He estimates the losses of the National League at a much greater figure.

This season Armstrong ranked 6th in the now defnnct Texas League in batting, having a percentage of 230. With the California League he only ranks 30th having a percentage of 226. Quite a difference.

Al Scooney, recently with the Port Townsends, of which team Jack Hayes was also a player, is in town, and would like an engagement. He thinks he could fill first base position satisfactorily for the Stocktons.

It is quite probable that Mike Kilroy will be transferred to Sacramento, and will end the season with that team. With such support as tbe Sacramentos are capable of giving him, he ought to be a "winner" for tbem.

With the Comiskey aggregation who play on this Coast this winter will be snch players as Boyle, Baldwin, McPhee, Tebeau, Robinson, Griffin, Swett, Fuller, Ryan, Mullane, Foutz, O'Brien, McAleer, McCarthy and Crane.

Pitcher McCarthy will make his reappearance in the box for the Friscos to-morrow in the afternoon game. No doubt tbe largest attendance of tbe season will be attracted and the little twirler is bound to receive a right royal welcome.

Beneath the cloak of indifference which both leagues carelessly wear there is a burning desire for a compromise. The only trouble is each wants the lion's share of the concessions which would have to come with a compromise.—Times Star.

Tbe Players' League teams finished the season in the following order: Boston, Brooklyn, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo.

The Nationals stand: Brooklyn, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Boston, New York, Cleveland, Pittsburgh.

For a player who was tbought to be a weak hitter when he first made his appearance on the California diamond, Bill Everett shows up remarkably strong in his batting percentage ranking eighth of sixty hitters and having the very creditable average of 277.

It is to be regretted tbst the injury Ed Stapleton received in the Oakland Sacramento game Sept. 28, will undoubtedly prevent his appearing with his team sgain tbis season. With snch hard luck as the loss of their captain snd one of tbe best hitters in the tesm it is little wonder tbat the Senators have been losing games.

This is the song the victorious Colonels sang on tbe train returning homeward from Sacramento last Snnday:

Sacramento wasn't in it from the start,
We won the game; it almost broke their hearts,
How the leather they did chase when
They put us in first place,
Sacramento wasn't in it from the start.

Of the members of the Kansas City Club, Stearns, Nicol, Carpenter, Conway, Gunson and Burns have played with championship tesms before. Stearns was witb tbe old Cincinnati Reds, the Topekas and Des Moines, Carpenter witb Cincinnati, Nicol with St Louis, Burns with Osbkosh, and Conwsy and Gunson witb Atlanta and Topeka.

Tbe 'Friscos have been putting up a Class A article of ball lstely and sbonld, as a well merited reward be presented with a new set of uniforms. After baving for a whole season seen them in tbeir slouchy, dingy suits, how refreshing it would be to witness their final efforts attired in bright, fresb and clean garments.

Peek-a-boo Veach, Hanley and Stevens went on a hunting excursion lsst Monday to Newark, where they claim they killed all the birds in sigbt. After Peek bad recounted the exact number of meadow larks, mud-bens and cottontail rabbits this sporting trio bad annibilated, some one rudely inqnired, How many "steams" did yon kill Peek?"

Next sesson promises to be a very rocky one for tbe banner boozers of the profession. The Leagne, Brotherhood and American Association bave given it ont that "no barrel house followers or growler-rusbers need apply." Some of the soaks wbo have been bunkoing tbe people in tbeir correct imitations of how a man can csrry a small sized distillery under his belt and make a blnff at playing ball, will have to work new routes in 1891.

As an umpire Cbarley Sweeney has been highly successful. He carefully watches every point, his decisions on the bases are almost invariably correct, while on balls and strikes he is tbe peer of any umpire we bave ever seen. His only drawback, if it can be called one, is a little hesitancy in giving utterance to his decisions,' bnt this is wearing off gradnally. Sweeney, and most probably Donohue, will be with the California Lesgne staff of tbe umpires next season.

After robbing the players of their salaries the managers of tbe old Atbletic club now have the nerve to send nine tramps ont on the circuit, all wearing dirty shirts with the name Athletic on tbe breast. If, as Mr. Von der A be said some time ago, the American Association is now on easy street, why does it not take this very recent athletic aggregation in out of tbe cold and not ship it around the country a monumental disgrsce to the body a member of which it claims to be.—Exchange.

There will be donble games between the four teams tomorrow, the result of which will have important bearing on the standing of the teams. Stockton and Sacramento will play at Stockton in tbe forenoon and tbe same teams will play at Sacramento in tbe afternoon. At 11 o'clock the Oaklands and San Franciscos play at Emeryville and at 2.30 the same teams will contest at she Haight Street Grounds.

Tip O'Neil made an offer to the Directors on Saturday to take tbe Stockton team next year and run it through the season, providing $1,500 was guaranteed him. He said tbat he wonld win tbe pennant for this city if he took cbarge of the clnb. O'Neil can do this if anybody can, for he knows how to captain a ball team, even if he is not popular. The Directors are willing to accept his offer, and it is believed that the money will be fortbcoming if the public learn that a responsible person is going to take charge of affairs.—Exchsnge.

The Second Reformed Church was crowded to overflowing yesterday when tbe fnneral services of Ben Yonng, the well known base ball umpire, and his sister, the wife of Rev. Charles Hartman of Fort Wayne, Ind, were held. Yonng was killed by a railroad accident near Tacoma, Wash., on Sept. 1st, and Mrs. Hartman came to Cleveland to attend the funeral. Sbe was taken sick with typboid fever and died before the arrival of her brotber's remains. After impressive services at the church, brother and sister were bnried side by side at Woodland Cemetsry —Life.

In the first twenty hitters in the League, Oakland, San Francisco and Sacramento have four each, and Stockton two. Oakland's heaviest batsmen are Dungan, Dooley, Lohman and Dan Sweeney. Frisco's are Ebright, Everett, Sbea and Hanley. For Sacramento, Goodenongh, Roberts, Stapleton and Daley have done the best stick work, and Stockwell and Fogarty rank inside tbe first twenty for Stockton. Early in the season Stockton released four players who, for the time they were in the league, ranked inside the twenty. They were Borchers, now with Spokane, Cahill witb Portland, Kelly now short stop of tbe amateur Burlingtons, and Swan. Charley Sweeney and Isaacson were also with the foremost.

How would Frank Loughran look on first for the Reports. Loughran is witbout exception the peer of any amateur first baseman on the coast, having a tremendons reach, a cool bead, and being a sure catcb of all kinds of balls. He could also alternate advantageously in the box with Monet, who bimself covers the initial in splendid style. If tbe pennant is worth winning, why not make an effort to strengthen in the right direction. First base is a position which bas all tbrough tbe season been a weak spot in the Report team, as the players who have been placed at that position while earnest were and are incspable of handling effectively the numerous wide thrown balls sent from the infield. Put tbe right man on the initial, keep the same battery, short stop, second and third baseman, left and centerfielder, and place Hearty in right, then instill the same harmony in the team that existed in the fore part of the season and tbe Newsies will come pretty near winning the amateur pennant.

The Amateurs.

The Santa Rosas have greatly increased their lead and may be said to have a mortgage on the pennant. Vallejo, however, is coming down to the homestretch with tremendous strides, and with a little good luck may make things uncomfortably close for their rivals. The Reports and Will & Fincks are still in it and second place will be hotly contested for. The Burlingtons and Allens are the "pennant killers," and are very liable to upset the hopes of the most sanguine. The record to date:

WILL AND FINCKS vs. E. T. ALLENS.

Sunday, Oct. 5th, 1890, at San Francisco.

This game which was scheduled to be played at Santa Rosa was transferred to this city and was commenced at 9.30 A. M. last Sunday morning. Besides counting in the regular championship series there was a side issue of a purse of Fifty Dollars which went to the victors. McCarty of the Santa Rosas officiated as umpire, and barring a couple of close decisions did well. The game itself was an excellent one for seven innings, but in the eighth McDonald weaked considerably and the team fell all to pieces making a number of wild and costly throws. Sullivan of the Fincks pitched a fine game being remarkably steady and keeping the hits judiciously separated. His support was generally good. The Allens also fielded well, but Billings made several bad errors mostly in throwing. The runs were made as follows:

In the first inning for the Young Giants, Delmas first up, banged out a double to right went to third on a passed ball and scored on Tillsons single to left. Tillson reached third on another passed ball and was caught between third and home by Billings and Broderick. Farrell and Levy struck out. One run.

The Burlingtons made two in the third, Broderick gaining first on Deeneys wild throw and second on Evatts sacrifice. Buckleys single to center sent him to third and he scored on a passed ball. Buckley stole second and another passed ball permitted his tallying. Two runs.

The Will and Fincks went them one better in the fourth. Farrell was hit by a pitched ball and sprinted to third on Billings wild throw over second. He scored on Levys single Dave took second on the throw in, third on Sullivans single to right and stole home making the only earned tally of the game. Two runs.

Evatt made one more for the Allens in the fifth, tying the score on his hit to center, which Dunn let pass him, the short stop making the circuit on the error.

Another run was made by the Giants in the seventh. Dunn hit to Broderick who fumbled, went to second on Conway's safety to left, but was forced at third on Groth's hit to Broderick, Conway making second. Groth was caught napping at first but Delmas' hit sent Conway across the plate.

Through battery and fielding errors, the Fincks were enabled to get four runs in the eighth. Farrell took his base on balls and went to third on Broderick's foolish and wide throw over first. Levy hit to Evatt who with Broderick and Billings got Farrell between third and home, but on Billings error, Farrell scored. Levy went round on the play, and after Sullivan was safe out Billings' error. Deeney hit to McDonald who threw out Levy at the plate. Deeney stole second, and the ball passing Geishaker, Sullivan tallied, Deeney making third. On Evatt's high throw in the little second baseman tallied. Dunn got his base on balls, stole the middle bag, reached third on a passed ball and scored the last run of the game on Billings wild throw to first on Conways strike out. The score:

SANTA ROSA vs. DAILY REPORTS.

Sunday, Oct 5th, 1890, at San Francisco.

After the first inning the Reports were never in this game. Thirteen hits, four bases on balls and sixteen errors accounts for the Santa Rosa's twenty-one runs. Monet was punished severely, while his team's work was the most miserable of any seen on the local amateur diamond. Callen was not in form either and started off very wild, giving two bases on balls, and making two wild pitches in the first inning, which with a hit and a passed ball gave the Reports three runs. He steadied down after that, however, and clever outfielding aided him much in keeping down the hits. In fact the catches made Gimmel, McCarthy, Sharp and one by Collins with Reilly and Hulen's work were the only commendable features of this long and uninteresting contest. Two catches by Gimmel were simply magnificent and have never been excelled at the Haight St. grounds. Manager Finn umpired and called game at the end of the seventh, there being no hope of the Reports winning. Cook, Reilly and Sharp led in hitting. The score:

VALLEJO vs. BURLINGTON ROUTE.

Sunday, Oct. 5th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Marines jumped into second place last Sunday through the Reports being defeated by the Santa Rosas and their own overwhelming victory over the Railroaders. Rohan and Wilds, who are not on the most amicable terms with the base ball public of Vallejo, were the battery for the Burlingtons, and all through the game they were made the target of uncomplimentary remarks. This probably had a detrimental effect on Rohan's pitching, as that twirler was sized up for sixteen safe hits, including several of the double and triple variety. Balsz pitched an excellent game, and received great support all round, but especially from Farrell at the receiving end, who had ten put-outs and five assists. The Burlingtons also put up a strong fielding game, but four errors being made, Balsz did the best work at the bat, making four hits of five times up, two of which were doubles. Smith, Bogle, Strand and Hughes also hit hard and well. Pete Meegan umpired very satisfactorily. The score:

FRESNO vs. MERCED.

Sunday, Oct. 5th, 1890, At Fresno.

The Fresnos whitewashed the Merceds last Sunday, winning by a score of 6 to 0. Howell, late of the Will and Fincks, made his debut with the Fresno team and created a most favorable impression. He was admirably supported at the receiving end by Matt Stanley. the two constituting a formidable battery. Pokey Chase twirled for the Merceds, and while not as steady as his youthful opponent, pitched a fine game. Vincent gave him but poor support behind the bat, while the work of some of the fielders was very ordinary. Quite the opposite was the case with the Fresnos who fielded magnificently, making several rapid plays, which, together with a couple of double ups and Howell's effective pitching, robbed their opponents of runs. The batting generally was light. Dyer threw the first man up out at first on his apparently safe hit to right, and Callen alone figured in a double play. The Fresnos stole bases with impunity. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

The Santa Rosas now look like sure winners.

Cooney shows up well at second base for the Allens.

Jimmy English is playing a good third bag for Merced,

The Reports are badly in need of a good first baseman.

We would like to see Jack Ryan, formerly of the Greenhoods in the ranks again.

Gimmel made two sensational catches in the field last Sunday.

Drum is said to be playing a "bang up" fielding game for Fresno.

"Cap" Maguire of the Marines, has picked up in his fielding again.

Sky rocket throwing was the cause of the Allens defeat by the Giants.

There seems to be a lack of harmony in the Report team at present.

Tom Buckley continues playing an errorless game at first for the Sports.

"Scissors" Dunn, late of the Burlingtons played center for the Giants Sunday.

The Allens have not won a game yet from either the Santa Rosas or Will & Fincks.

George Kelly is again on short for the Burlingtons where he adds great strength to that team.

It is rumored that Hen Ashman is about to resign from the management of the Report team.

Warrens Will and Fincks have been winning as steadily lately as they were losing a couple of months ago.

Pokey Chase is no longer with the Fresnos. He now occupies the pitcher's box for the Merceds.

The Fresno Republican says that as a pony battery, Howell and Stanley are a (Howell)ing success.

Billy Farrell did not go with Howell to Fresno last week, but will nevertheless be a member of that team very shortly.

Dick Wise of the Vallejos, is said to be the equal of Gimmel and Sharp on fly balls. Unfortunately we have never had an opportunity of witnessing this player's work, but if he is as good as either Billy or George he must be a "nailer."

Shorty Mahoney, a very clever fielder, hitter, base runner and coacher would like to play with the Allens. Shorty is a player who would be an immense improvement on many of the players of the present nine, and would add much strength in all departments.

The Merceds after their defeat last Sunday by the Fresno's indulged in a free fight on the train homeward. English, Nagle and Vincent were badly injured. Such disgraceful actions are detrimental to the game and should be met with severe measures.

We are at a loss to understand why umpire McCarthy called Tom Buckley out in the fifth inning while he was at bat last Sunday morning, and know of no rule which decides the batsman to be out for stepping over the plate and out of the box after he has made the first or second strike if no runner occupies the bases.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

The indicatione are very promising for a dry winter, and it ie safe to anticipate that out-door sports will he bnt elightly interfered with by the rain for the balance of the year. Last winter the weather was so inclement that the athletes were compelled to remain off the cinder track for weeks at a time. In consequence of this many of them were not in their hest form on the date of the championehip meeting. At the present time the majority of both the in and out door men are practicing hard for the many important exhibitions whicb will he held during the next three months.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

For the past couple of weeks there has been a great falling off in the attendance at the Alameda grounds. It is getting rather advanced in the season, of couree, and many of the cricketers have retired from the field, bnt with the opening of Spring tbere is hound to he a big hoom in thie good old pastime, There is sufficient material on the Pacific Coast to form the nnclens of several first class teams, and in 1891 it would not he at all eurprising if a monster Cricket Association was formed which would fit np elaborate grounds of its own for the nse of aseociate clnbs.

Base ball was substituted for Cricket last Sunday, and the Razzle Dazzle Base Ball Clnb defeated the Alameda Cricket Club at the West End grounds, Alameda, with a score of 8 to 4.

AT THE OARS.

Last Snnday was an exceptionally fine day, and a good many racing boats were noticed on the bay.

Several crews from the Ariel and South End clube were ont for practice. Spiers and most of the oarsmen showed that they were not entirely out of practice yet.

It is tbought that a brief programme will be arranged for Thanksgiving Day. There will probably he a few open evente in conjunction with some match races which are already as good as made.

Harry O. Farrell and Eugene Flanders have been appointed a committee to arranged for the Thanksgiving Dinner of the Pacific Rowing Association.

The racing members of the Lnrline Club are in eorry plight. Their clnb has got no shells and they are unable to pratice.

Tbe Pacific Rowing Assoclaaion will make a big effort before long to try and indnce the S. P. Co. to build a large boat house to the Alameda mole.

The third large race by members of the Alameda Boat Clnb took place last Sunday afternoon over the conrse in the estuary. There was a very large crowd present. Two crews, a heavy one and a light one, contested. The former was composed of Jackeon, Schroeder, Tranene and Schnmacher. The light crew was made up of Messrs. Hartman, Pfeiffer, Osborne and Albers. The light weights were allowed a handicap of four boat lengths, but not witnstanding this advantage, the heavy crew won easily. The membership of the club is rapidly inoreasing, and several new members will be admitted at the next meeting.

THE WHEEL.

"O! the rain, tbe beantiful rain, come again, come again," is now the cry of the cyclers. The roads are just a trifle too duety, and a couple of good heavy showers would he welcomed witb delight.

Sanford Plummer, of the Bay City Wheelmen, rode a trial mile on the Olympic track last Sunday. His time was 3:6. Considering the fact that Mr. Plnmmer rode a safety machine without having been on one for weeks previous, the time made was splendid, and proves the track to be fast for wheel racing.

Several experienced wheelmen say that the Olympic track ie at least one second slow at each turn. For enoh a small track this is not such a great drawback, as all the Eastern records are made on big tracks.

An enterprising sporting manager bas leased the Mechanic's Pavillion for six months, and when the fair is over he will open a bicycle school in conjunction with a skating rink. It is his idea to use the entire main floor for riding purposes, and wheels oan be rented by ambitious tyros for an hour or for alday, just as they desire. The Bay City Wheelmen will try and arrange with the lessee for the holding of a six night's tonrnament open to all L. A. W. amateurs, to be conducted under their auspices. Several races will take place each evening, and very handeome and costly prizes will he presented to the winners.

Morgan is in training at the Olympic Club grounds, and is now doing better than three minutes. He nses a pneumatic-tie machine. His chance of breaking the coast one mile record on October 52th is very good.

Mr. Harris intends going away on a few weeks' trip, and before taking bis departnre be will try and dispose of hie "Ormonde" pneumatic-tired roadster. The wheel weighs 27lbs., and is a very fast one. Some prominent Bay City man may purchase it and introdnce it at one of his club tonrnamente.

Qnite a crowd of wheelmen visited the O. A. C. grounde on Sunday, and many of them tried the track.

The Olympio Club grounds are now open to the use of cycling members at the discretion of the track-maeter, except Sundays, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tbe Bay City Wheelmen are going to move to more epacions rooms, which they will occupy nntil after tbeir own building ie finished.

The American Bicycle Clnb membere will hold their 14th club run to-morrow to Nilee Canyon. The membere are requested to aseemble at 7 A. M. at the ferry, foot of Market street. Several of the Garden City wheelmen will join in the run, and a good daye' onting may he expected. The two clnbs will hold a picnic at tbe canyon in tbe afternoon.

The new rooms of the Alameda Bicycle Club in the Vogt Building on Railroad Avenne were formally opened on Saturday evening last. The members of the club turned ont in fnll force, and did full justice to the banquet which had been prepared for them. The following gentlemen were preeent: C. M. Culver, George Borneman, A. C. Lassen, R. A. Smythe, Pete Brock, Ed. Peck, Chas. Hebard, Will Hebard, Walter Foster, Burt Burrell, Charles Vincent, Frank Howlitt, Frank Boyle, Harry Williams, Ambrose C. Snow, Harry Potter, Walter Osborne, Fred Brown, P. N. Osborne, Clyde Conkey, Chas. Hanley, George Foeter, R. B. Tappin, J. E. Barber, W. H. Foster, Will Clarke. F. G. White, Preeident of the Clnb presided, with Jesse Ives as Vice-Chairman. The table was spread in the main room and was laden with many good things. The clnb ie in a very prosperoue condition, and new members are being rapidly added to the roll. The new quarters consist of a main room for meetings, etc.; a emaller room where the membere store their wheels; reading and card rooms and a locker room. Next to the Bay City Wheelmen the Alameda Bicycle Clnb ie now the most important cycling organization on the Pacific Coast, and already the yonng membere have won much fame for themselvee on the racing path. The following is a list of the officers: President, F. G. White; Captain, Jesse Ives; Secretary and Treasurer, Frank Howlitt; First Lieutenant, Harry Potter; Second Lieutenant, Harry Williams; Bugler, Burt Burrell.

The B. C. W. Honse Committee are very bnsy looking over the plans of the proposed new building.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

A large crowd of the Alpine boys were at tbe Bay District track on Sunday morning.

George Armbrnster ran half a mile in 2:14, and from the easy manner in which he finished it ie bnt right to predict that Dan Cohen of Alameda will have to beat 2:10 to get ahead of the young Alpinite.

Garrison wae also on the track and does not eeem to have lost any of hfs Sacramento speed.

Cooke is keeping np practice and ie improving both in etyle and speed. Captain Garrison, who hae been timing Cooke for eome weeks past, thinks that he will beat 24 minntes for three milee before he gets through.

Ex-Captain George W. Jordan of the O A C is in town and was at the gronnds on Sunday to handicap the boys.

Yonng Douglas B. Crane did not compete in the handicap rnn on Sunday becanee Jordan wonld not give him enough start.

Billy Kenealley is seldom seen on the cinder path now-a-days. Like the rest of the old timere, he may take it in his head to go into training again.

Dave Egan is as fat as a tub of bntter, and it would reqnire at least six months' hard training to bring him down to his old form again.

Where have Yates and Zehfus, the heel and toe artists disappeared to?

To-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock a 220 yard, handicap, run for members of the Alpine Clnb will take place at the Bay District track. The liet of entries is large and the race will be exciting. Three prizes will he awarded.

There was bnt a very slim crowd at the Olmympic grounds last Sunday to witnese the 220 yard handicap run for members of the clnb. The handicapping was done by George W. Jordan. Captain Walter A. Scott held the pistol. The following is a liet of the entries with the handicaps: Steve V Casady, scratch; Charley A Jelleneak, 7 yards; P M Wand, 9 yards; Martin Espincsa, 11 yards; C Toomey, H C Collins, R McArthnr, Christie and Ball each 18 yards; Quinn, 19 yards; Wilson and Belan each 20 yards; Herlihy, 21 yards; F M Cooley and Redding each 24 yards; Goncher, 27 yards; Morrell 28 yards.

The prizes were 1st, a band satchel; 2nd, a running sbirt.

The race was run in four heats and a final and resulted as follows:

First heat—C Jelleneak, 1st; F M Cooley 2nd. Time, 24 2 5secs.

Second heat—P M Wand, 1st; C Toomey, 2nd. Time, 24 4 5secs.

Third heat—H C Collins, 1st; M Espinosa, 2nd. Time, 24 1 5secs.

Fourth heat—R McArthur, 1st; V Casady 2nd. Time, 24 1-5secs.

Final heat—M Espinosa, 1st, McArthur 2nd. Time, 23 1 5secs. The final had eight etartere and Espinosa won a good race from McArthur who was a close second. Tomorrow there will be a 1200 yard handicap run. Two prizes will be given to the first and second men.

Little, the runner, ie up North. He ie sufferiug from a bad calf and will not be able to run for some time. Kendall, his partner, has also ekipped the tra la la la for parts nnknown.

James Jervis has retired from active practice for an indefinite period. Mr. Jervie has been in the athletic business for a good many years and is growing tired of winning honors in the cinder path.

The captains of the Olympic and Alpine Clubs should try and arrange for a competitive cross country run between the two clubs.

When June Dennis, the colored slogger found, like Othello, that bis occnpation was gone he became insane and is now confined in an asylnm. A good many more "fighters" are liable to follow in the footsteps of Mr. Dennis before long.

Harry Casidy is taking light exercise at San Leandro. He is snrprised to think that Frank Cooley does not accept either of his two challenges.

Since the State Fair Athletic meeting the Sacramento Athletes have been very active planning for the fntnre welfare of tbeir club. It is almoet a certainity that they will eucceed in having a cinder path built for tbeir use and with proper facilities for training there is no telling what kind of material may crop up in course of tfme.

The University paper "The Occident" hae made ite reappearance and its Athletic editor nrgee the etudents to begin training at once for coming field days. Between the Olympic and Alpine Clubs it is eafe to presume that the students will not be in it again next year.

The Oakland foot-hall teams have organized for the eeason. The U. C. team will organize in a couple of weeks. There ie every indication that the game will he extensively practiced this coming eeason.

The Cinder path at Berkeley ie in a very wretched condition.

Secretary Holloway of the Olympic Clnb hae jnst iseued a circular concerning the coming boxing tonrnament. The entrance fee for each claee will be $2, and entriee can be made through the Secretaries of the Aesociate Clnbs not later than Oct. 31 at 10 P. M. The weighte will he arranged as follows: Bantam, not to excell 115 lbs; Feather 125; Light 135; Welter 145; Middle 158: Heavy over 158lb. The tournament will be under the auspices of the P. C. A. A. A. and sanction of the American Athletic Union. Diamond medals will be given to winnere of first and second place in each claes providing the number of contestante are more than three. If less than three only one medal will be awarded. Each hond field competition will be allowed three tickets to include two for seconds who must he membere of associate clubs.

It is expected that genuine interest will be taken in the tournament and that the number of entries will be large. Now that the Golden Gate Clnb is virtnally closed up and war is waging between the authorities and the California Club it is not at all improbable bnt that several lovers of fistana will leave the latter organization and join the Olympic Clnb for the pnrpose of witnessing the boxing contest.

It is reported that several young athletes who do not aspire to championship honors are about to organize and form a social and athletic club. They are to secure the Harbor View grounds for out-door purposes, and comfortable rooms will be rented for social gatherings somewhere near the center of the city.

"Practice makes perfect," bnt without practice a man cannot expect to he perfect. Shot putting, weight throwing, jumping and pole vaulting is not very extensively practiced on the Pacific Coast, and the records made in these events at our annual championship meetings cannot begin to compare with the records made at ordinary athletic meetings in Ireland. Irish athletes practice hard previous to the games in which they intend taking part, and they practice all the year round as well, so that their muscles are always hard and ready to act when called upon.

Here is a comparison between California and Ireland. At the games of the Gælic Amateur Athletic Association held at Limerick, Ireland, September 7th, J. M. Ryan cleared 6ft. 1½in. as the high jump. Our champion could do no better than 5ft. 5in. at the last championship sports. T. M. Mahon ran the half mile in 2 min. 3 1 5 secs. against 2:08 made by the local champion. In the pole vault P. Stokes leaped 10ft. 9in. against 9ft. 3in. made by our man Purcell. In the weight performances the Pacific Coast records were all beaten hollow. We have just as good material in and aronnd San Francisco, and only practice ie needed to develop it. Our athletes have just as much time to practice as our brethren across the herring pond, and why don't they?

The members' games of the Acorn Athletic Association of Brooklyn, N. Y., were held on the clnb grounds September 27th. F. P. Murray, the ex champion walker, won both walks in fast time, and he is sure to gain his old form again. The following is a summary:

220 yd. hurdle, handicap; first round—First heat, F. Barnard, 10 yds., 1; J. Hopewell, scratch, 2. Second heat, E. Edwards, 15 yds., 1; G Jackson, 10 yds., 2. Final heat, Hopewell, 1; Jackson, 2; Barnard, 3

440 yd. handicap run—F Barnard, 20 yds., 56½s.; W Brown, 30 yds., 2; F. M. Reilly, scratch, 3.

Throwing 56 lb. weight, handicap—J. Hopewell, 2 ft., 15 ft. 4½in; J. Jackson, 5ft., 2. 11ft. 9½in; M. Seelman, 2ft., 13ft. 8in.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Acme Athletic Club of Oakland held a very successful exhibition at the Oakland theatre on Thursday evening last. The house was well filled and the applanse frequent. Love, Miss Kittie Stone, Mrs. L Lansing and Mre. H. C Davis.

The rooms of the Alpine Club at Central Park have just been fitted up in good shape and the place now looks more presentible than it did a couple of weeks ago. A general meeting of the club will soon he called and action will be taker on the future movements of the organization. If D. R. McNeill will build a six lap track in the park for the use of the members, the chances are that the clnb will remain at Central Park, but if he refuses to make the necessary improvements then it ie donghnuts to dollars that the majority of the membere will vote against remaining in tne place. The clnb intende giving a grand benefit exhibition shortly, and if the Grand Opera Houee can he secured the entertainment will be held there. The Alpine Club has a good many friends and there ie no reason why ite benefit exhibition should not be a euccessful one.

Through the exertione of Professor Henri Ansot, a gentleman's fencing clnb known as the California Fencers Ciub, has been organized. The rooms are at 1439 Pine street. The parlor will be open to members from 7 o'clock in the morning nntil 11 o'clock in the evening of Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Prominent among the membere are: J. W. Levy, President: Joseph Lonjon French, Vice-Preeident; F. B. Killain, A. Rosenthal, Mark E., Frank, Seldon Leonard, Baruch Cerf, Eugene Dolet and C. Lemonsen. Professor Ansot will he the instructor. He ie a skilled swordsman and is a pupil of Professor Regie Senac, of the New York Athletic Club.

Last Wednesday night (Profeseore night) at the O. A. C., was a busy one for the teachers. A large number of visitore were in attendance and the professors were kept pretty warm all the evening.

Palo Alto.

Sometime ago C. H. Nelson, owner of the stallion Nelson, offered to make a match race against Palo Alto, but Mr. Marvin very properly declined, in all probability owing to the complicated state of affairs existing between the National Trotting Association and Mr. Nelson, in which his exceedingly fast horse is also implicated. Under the circumstances it would have been unwise of Marvin to accept any proposal eminating from that quarter. Now, however, a new Richmond appears upon the field, and the gage of battle has been thrown down on behalf of Superior 2:19¼, the owners having a fancy that he can defeat the greatest race performing stallion in the world. We herewith append the letter sent to Mr. Marvin:

Denver, Col., September 29, 1890.

Charles Marvin, Manager and Superintendent Palo Alto Stables:—Dear Sir: We are desirous of matching our trotting stallion Superior, record 2.19¼, by Egbert, dam Mary by Woodford Mambrino, against any and all trotting stallions, your stallion Palo Alto preferred, and in order to bring the matter before you in proper shape make the following proposition:

We will match our horse Superior against your horse Palo Alto for $2,500 a side, a trotting race in harness, mile heats, best three in five, over the mile track of the Overland Park Club, at Denver, Col., on any day between October 4th and November 15, 1890, good day and track. The race to be trotted under the rules and regulations of the American Trotting Association. This proposition to remain open to you for acceptance or rejection ten days from date. Should you not see fit to accept, the proposition is open for the acceptance of the owner of any trotting stallion in the world. Should you accept, the terms, minor details and conditions of the match to be determined by mutual agreement. Should you accept and wish to increase or decrease the amount named, that is also open to further consideration.

We have this day deposited the sum of $2,500 in the hands of W. R. Mygatt, Vice-President of the National Bank of Commerce and Treasurer of the Overland Park Club, of this city, subject to the acceptance of this proposition. Should this match be made the Overland Park Club have agreed to add to the stake a sum of money commensurate with their value and the importance of the match.

Awaiting your early answer, we remain, Yours truly,

(Signed) DuBois Bros.

Now, knowing the firm of owners well, we unhesitatingly pronounce the challenge to be issued in the best of faith, and it is an open secret that their beautiful stallion has shown some remarkable trials. Still there is a seeming spirit of unfairness in the Messrs. Du Bois issuing their cartel at this late date. During the past six weeks Mr. Marvin has been interviewed many times in his trip through the East, and to each and all of the reporters he has stated that he had to return to the Pacific Coast in time to take part in the Breeders' Meeting. It has been extensively noted that the stable would start on the overland journey Saturday, October 4th, and yet the date of the "defi" is September 29th. There is, however, one course open for the challengers. Palo Alto has traveled many thousands of miles since the 15th of May, and contested in many hard fought races. Now what is to prevent Superior being sent over to California and prepared for a special race later in the season? The Messrs. Du Bois can be accommodated with such a race, and there is not a track in the State but what would be crowded to excess to witness such a hattle royal. By all means bring Superior to the Pacific Coast and there will be excitement galore.

The Breeders' Meeting.

To day, Saturday, October 11th, ushers in the commencement os the second annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. Napa, which has been selected as an appropriate place for the speed contests, has generously contributed the free use of its fast track, together with all privileges, and at the same time guarantees to keep the track in proper condition for use. There are hotels in numbers and plenty of private rooms for the accomodation of those who will stay during the entire meeting. Aud at the same time the railroad company, to accomodate those who wish to return to San Francisco each evening, have kindly placed a special train at the disposal of the Directors, and this will return to San Fraucisco from Napa each evening after the sport of the afternoon is over. Already the stables at the race track present an animated and lively appearance, the best known of the trotting horse contingent having been sent there in goodly numbers within the past few days. Sensational performances are promised by many, and it is confidently expected that at least two California bred horses will equal or lower 2:12; we hear of many others who are liable to trot between "fifteen" and "eighteen," and a majority of these come together in several of the stakes and purses, and fierce battles may be expected for the supremacy. All of the prominent breeders throughout the State will be present and the influx of visitors that Napa will receive during the next eight days should fill up almost every nook and corner in it. With every indication that we will have fine weather, the Breeder and Sportsman wishes success to the Directors in this, their second meeting.

The Death of John Nelson.

Some three months ago we published for the first time a correct account of the time of the death of John Nelson 187. On several occasions we have been asked why it was that Mr. Wallace had made no reference to the matter in his Monthly, as the proof offered was conclusive as to the time of death. In the October number of his valuable Magazine, Mr. Wallace acknowledges that an error has been made in asserting that John Nelson died in 1871, using the following language:

"Noticing an error in the date of the death of John Nelson, as published in several editions of the Year-Book, the Breeder and Sportsman, (California) took up the matter a few months ago with the intention of finding out just what year he did die, and has proved that in the spring of 1877 Nathan Price, of Reno, Cal., bought this horse of James Eoff, and about three weeks later sold him to T. B. Cooper, who now lives in Adin, Modoc Co., Cal., but then lived in Oolusa, and in the fall of 1878 John Nelson died on his property at his ranch about one and a half miles from the town of Colusa, Cal."

This is very important news to many breeders in the State of California, especially to those living in the upper San Joaquin Valley, as there are a great number of mares in that neighborhood sired hy the celebrated old horse and in many cases they are eligible to registration. We feel glad that this matter has been definitely settled and that Mr. Wallace has acknowledged his error.

The Standard Stakes.

When the committee appointed by the National Trotting Horse Breeders' Association formulated the set of rules which are now in existence for the purpose of enabling trotting horses to enter the 2:30 list, it probably never occurred to them that they were making a set of rules, which almost barred out one class of horses from getting a record. Norlaine at present holds the yearling record of the world, 2:31½, and yet Mr. Corbitt and many of his friends are positive in the belief that the San Mateo Stock Farm has at least one if not more that can beat the time formerly made by the Palo Alto representative; yet under the new rules Mr. Corbitt can not trot his yearling against Norlaine's record, but he is forced to go in with other horses to try and beat 2:30. As we understand the rules, if he should trot in 2:30¼, he fails to make a record, so it is presumed that Norlaine's time would still stand good: be that as it may, Mr. Corbitt has determined to enter at least one of his yearlings in the Standard Stakes at the Breeders' Meeting, and for his pluck in doing so, we wish him all the success imaginable. What a victory it would be for his now celebrated farm if he should produce the first yearling, to enter the 2:30 list.

A Dead Sportsman.

He has gone with the dry leaves at the falling of the year. Percy Williams is to-day one of the clods in the valley. Only 28 years of age and gifted with a perception of men and manners far beyond most men of his age, he has gone from our midst, leaving behind him only the sunniest of memories. Faults he had beyond all cavil, but they were the faults of a brave and generous nature. Quick-tempered and impulsive, he was just as ready to forgive, nor did he ever sully his manhood by brooding in malice over a wrong and seeking a coward's revenge in the dark. The dead man was a loyal friend and an honorable foe to ell the world.

Percy Williams was born in this city in 1862, his father, Thomas H. Williams, having been a prominent attorney of this State, and subsequently Attorney General of Nevada. His mother was Miss Mary Bryant before marriage, daughter of Col. J. J. Bryant, who ran against Col. Jack Hays for Sheriff of San Francisco at the first county election held here after the admission of the State into the Union. He leaves behind him two brothers, one of whom we regard as one of the finest business men in the State, and a childless widow, the daughter of our life-long friend, Geo. W. Trahern, Esq., of Stockton. His estate is something in excess of half a million dollars.

It is hard to recall a cleaner cut Saxon face or a jauntier figure. Graceful in action, he was equally graceful in speech and genial of manner. If a man went to him for a favor, and he was able to grant it, he did so in a quiet and unostentatious manner which doubled the value of the obligation. If he refused it, he did so in such a gracious way that the refusal carried with it no sting. But the last word must be said and the last garland cast upon his grave. If the little of good we achieve here is to be forgotten, and the evil we do is to be carved in adamant, life will not be worth the living. We forget his faults, and remember him only as a brave and manly man, whose word was his bond and whose honesty defied impeachment.

The Washington Park Club.

No more successful racing and social organization exists in the United States than the club whose name forms the caption of this notice. For years they have been acknowledged as the leading racing association of the West, and horses are sent from all over the country to take part in the rich stakes and purses which are yearly offered. On next Wednesday, October 15th, there will close seven of their events, four of which will be run off in 1891 and three of them in 1892. Of those for next year, the most important is the Hyde Park, to which the association adds the sum of $5,000; this is a sweepstakes for two-year olds, and usually has a very large number of entries. The three other stakes to be run off in 1891 are the Kenwood, the Lakeside and Drexel to which is added $1,000 to each stake. The two former of these stakes are for two-year-olds, while the latter is for three-year-olds. The three races which are to be run off in 1892 consist of the American Derby, the Englewood and the Sheridan stakes. To the American Derby the Washington Park Club has added the magnificent sum of $10,000. This now classic event is always generously supported from the Pacific Slope, and it may be presumed that this year will form no exception to the rule. This will prove the richest American Derby ever run for, and we can but simply hope that a California horse may win the small fortune which will go to the horse first under the wire. To the Englewood stakes the association adds $1,000; to the Sheridan, $1,500. The first of these is for fillies (foals of 1889), while the latter is for three year-olds with no sex restriction.

In the advertisement it will be seen that the association announces that they are going to give twenty-five days' racing, and that more than $100,000 will be given in added money to stakes and purses. All communications in reference to these or other entries must be made to J. E. Brewster, Room 32, Palmer House, Chicago.

The Page Sale.

Already a great deal of interest is being manifested by prominent breeders throughout the State in reference to the sales which will he made at the Napa Race Track during the meeting of the Breeders' Association. Mr. Page has carefully selected a splendid lot of well bred trotting stock; many of the mares being in foal to either Eclectic 11,321 or Mortimer 5,346. Many of the young colts and fillies are entered in some of the large stakes both East and West, and one cannot tell but what a well bred trotting horse may be purchased for a small amount and in the near future proved a winner of a small fortune. Messrs Killip & Co. have the matter in hand and have issued a full and complete catalogue, which will be sent on application. Those who have not already received them will find in our advertising columns a synopsis of the stock which will be offered for sale.

Many Good Trotters Sold

Sale of the Shults Stock.

One-half of John H. Shults' Parkville trotting stock was sold at auction Monday, September 29th, at Parkville, L. I. Although there were hundreds of bidders, representing the best stables of the country, it was eminently a breeders' day. The prices were fair, but not high. They ranged between $190 for Katie Robinson and $7,600 for Edith R. There were some great bargains, and some of the prices made Mr. Shults look disgusted.

SECOND DAY.

There was a decided change in the bidding the second day at the winding-up sale at Parkville, L. I., of John H. Shults' trotting stock. Nebraska, at $6,100, touched the limit at one end, and an unnamed five months colt at $200 brought up the rear. While neither of these extremes was so great as at the first day, the run of prices was far the better. The attendance was large, and very many sorrowfully found that they were in too fast company, and came away without making a purchase.

When W. S. Lawson, J. W. Daly, Peter Lang and Schmulbach, Hamilton & Park made up their minds that they wanted a horse, it was useless to bid against them. There were no sensational purchases, but there were some indications of surprise when the stallion Pancoast, which cost Mr. Shults $28,000, was knocked down at $3,750. Benjamin Johnson of Bodstown, N. J., was the buyer, and some fancy prices were paid for high-blooded colts but a few months old. One, the offspring of Stamboul and Gulnare, but eight months old, went to J. W. Daly for $2,100. The whole sale, which was concluded yesterday, has been eminently satisfactory to buyers, and Mr. Shults has but few horses left.

Rey del Rey, the California two year old that Frank Ehret, the son of a New York brewer, recently purchased for $20,000, ran away the other day while a stable boy was exercising him, and when he was finally pulled up had a suspicious limp, says the Breeders' Gazette. Ehret's stable, which contains some fairly useful horses, has not yet done anything in the way of winning races, but as the young fellow has plenty of money behind him there will be no trouble about his getting the kind that can win once and a while, although whether or not he can make a financial success of his turf venture is another matter. It has been the experience of several rich young men who have gone on the running turf, and of some old ones, too, for that matter—that, no matter how liberally a man buys, his horses are certain to go wrong just when they should surely win. Of course to those who are on the inside of things the explanation of this state of affairs is not particularly difficult, it being well known that bookmakers have a "pull" of the most potent character with nearly every trainer and jockey in the land, but Mr. Ehret has yet to make the discovery.

To make a slow horse fast, tie him to a post or give him S. L. R. (Simmons Liver Regulator.)

Grim's Gossip.

A bay gelding that can show a mile in 2:30 can be bought cheap at the Napa race track.

John Green was one of the visitors at the Reno and Carson fairs, and he reports good attendance and fine sport.

J. W. Bailey of Portland, Oregon, has been unfortunate enough to lose his trotting stallion, Bailey's Kisber, by Kisber, dam by Pathfinder.

Well, alack-a-day, Whipple's Hambletonian has another of his get in the list, as Cyclone trotted at Hueneme in 2:30 during the races there.

Abdol, the well known stallion, (son of The Grand Moor) has been taken to Pleasanton where he will receive attention at the hands of Andy McDowell.

The catalognes are out for the Wilfred Page sale at the Breeder's meeting, and from the character of the stock to be offered there should be lively competition among prospective purchasers.

Guy Wilkes is the only stallion who is the sire of four three-year-olds with records better than 2:20; they are Rupee, 2:16¼, Regal Wilkes, 2:17½, Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾, and Sable Wilkes, 2:18.

By Holly pulled off a couple of races in Nevada with the trotting stallion Charles Derby 2:24½. By the way, Steineer, a full brother to Derby, is showing considereble speed and should be heard from next year.

Last week mention was made that Mr. Marvin had sold Navidad to some Eastern party. It now turns out that John Splan was the purchaser, and from Navidad's performances, Genial John has not a better one in his stable.

Charles Greene has a Sultan mare for sale, and also a two-year-old filly out of her by Junio, together with the trotting mare Emma G., 2:27¼, which he will dispose of reasonably to those who desire to purchase first class stock.

Mr. Corey drove Almont Patchen a mile out last Sunday, at Fresno, in 2:12½. He was assisted by a runner (Willoughby), who had to be honed to keep up with the pacer, who Mr. Corey says will pace in about 2.10 before 1891.

Some one lost a certificate a few days ago, issued by Mr. E. Topham, which refers to the breeding of Lady Nutwood, Lady Grosvenor, Nutgrove and Sylvia. The party who dropped the paper can have the same by calling at this office.

Our correspondent in sending in an account of the races at Santa Barbara, mentioned Brown's Monroe as a five-year-old, where as it should be four, he having been foaled in 1886. He is by Monroe Chief 875, dam Lady Tiffany by Gibraltar.

Matt Storn started yesterday for Los Angeles, having eight head of thoroughbreds with him. Matt has made a number of entries at the Angel City, and as his string are in prime condition at present, should be able to carry away his share of the purses.

The Porterville races are always well attended by the citizens of Tulare County, and the sports of the best. On October 16th, 17th and 18th there will be some exerting speed contests, the directors promising the best programme that has ever been offered.

John A. Goldsmith has now given five three-year-olds records better then 2:20; a showing which I think no driver in the world has equalled. The five are Regal Wilkes, 2:17½, Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾, Sable Wilkes, 2:18, and the pacers Yolo Maid, 2:14, and Rupee, 2:16½.

Mr. Gilbert Tompkins of the Souther Farm has sent quite a string of horses to Napa where they will be given the finishing touches preparatory to the Breeders Meeting. They have gone up under the care and guidance of Peter Woode and we hope that he may be able to pilot many of his charges to victory.

Fanstino is going a right merry clip under the able Mentorship of John Dickerson, and there is still a chance for him to equal or beat the record of Regal Wilkes. At Kankakee, last week, he trotted the mile in 2.23½, with a trifle to spare, and it is predicted that at Independence he will make a strong bid for the two year old stallion record.

F. B. Baldwin, the well known manager of the Fresno and Coronado Beach race tracks, is naturally highly elated at the great showing made over the Fresno track last week. Frank tells me that he will go to Coronado in the latter part of this month and personally superintend the track, and expects to put it into such shape that records will fall like grain before the reaper.

Louis Schaffer of Livermore Valley has sold to A. T. Hatch the two year old stallion Sidney Roy, by Sidney, dam Miss Roy by Buccaneer, second dam Ella Roy (dam of Allen Roy 2:17½). This promising young colt trotted a half mile last week in 1:13¼ to cart; and his new owner has every confidence that at Napa the colt will enter the 2:30 list. Price paid $4,000.

All of the horsemen whom we have seen that has returned from Fresno speak in the highest terms of the management there. More money was divided than was promised in the advertisements, and those who took horses there that were not entered in any of the stakes or purses, had plenty of opportunities to take part in special races that were made up for their benefit. A liberal management is always appreciated by the public.

The Stockton Association propose having a supplemental meeting on November 18th and 19th, at which a majority of the races will be the Standard Breeder Stakes. There will be contests for yearlings, two, three and four-year olds. In these races the winner of any heat inside of 2;30 will be given the society's medal. It is also announced that the racing will take place under the Village rules which is a mistake, as the rules were instituted by the National Trotting Horse Breeders Association.

The Los Angeles Association offered a big purse for the pacere Hummer and Silkwood, but it is said that the owner of Silkwood will not start; if he does a good race should be seen. Hummer has proved himself an exceptional race horse despite his lameness, which no one can locate, some saying it is in his hip while others place it all the way down to his foot. Silkwood, at the Los Angeles meeting, paced three heats in 2:21¾, 2:20 and 2:20¾ with such ridiculous ease that he should give Hummer all he wants betore the race ends.

The Wilkes 3 year old stallion Alcyon, owned by Dr John Wilbur of Palmer, Mass., and valued at $10,000, was burned in a barn near Iowa City last week. The horse was sent there recently for breeding purposes. No insurance.

An amateur driver who is the proud possessor of a fast pacer and a fairly good trotter has been driving them double lately and the team show up pretty well although unevenly mated as to gait. Last Saturday they were driven around the Bay District track and completed the mile in 2:21½.

Some of the Eastern papers have seen fit to ridicule what they term the homely appearance of Hickok's two crack horses, Alfred S. and Adonis, and claim that they are as homely a pair as can possibly be seen in any one stable. For gracious' sake, I wonder if the man who first penned the item about this pair ever saw Johnston and Ed. Annan.

The New Zealand colt Teksum, (whose name is "Musket" spelled backwards,) won the Country Purse at Windsor after a splendid contest with eighteen others. He was bred by Thomas Morrin, of Wellington Park, New Zealand and was sold in May last to Edward Keys of Sydney for $2000. He was a very unpromising colt in his early training, and has since become a great galloper. Teksum is by Musket, out of Renga, and came of a good New Zealand family.

Bowerman Bros. of Lexington, Ky., have sold to Brasfield & Tipton the 2 year old bay filly Lady Wilton, 2:25, by Wilton, 2:19½; dam Lemonade, 2:27½, by Kentucky Prince, Jr; price, $10,000, which is of money than a 2 year old trotter ever brought in Kentucky. Lady Wilton is royally bred. Her sire is a son of George Wilkes and is the only stallion that ever beat Palo Alto in a race, and, through her dam, she traces back to Alexander's Abdallah, Brignoli, Pilot, Jr., and Old Bull. Her engagements for this year have been declared off by the sale, but she will be campaigned next year.

John Mackey, the well known Rancho Del Paso Superintendent, left for New York last Monday evening. The genial horseman—who was in San Francisco for several days prior to leaving, says that he will bring back the two equine giants, Salvator and the peerless Firenzi, as well as several mares which have been purchased in the East. Game old Firenzi will now retire to private life under the big oaks at Rancho del Paso, while the incomparable Salvator will take his place in the stud among the kings of the turf near Mr. Mackey's temple at "The Bottom."

Megaphone, by Newbold, out of Sound by The Drummer, won the great Hawksbury Handicap at Windsor in the hollowest sort of style in 2:35½, and carrying 108 pounds. Prince Imperial, who won it in exactly the same time, carried but 96 pounds and was five years old, while Megaphone is but three. Little Bernie, by Dr. Rosa' Cheviot, was a good second. This colt Megaphone sold for $285 as a yearling, and won three races at Brisbane as a two-year-old. His owner is kicking himself for not entering him in the Caulfield Cup.

There were many prominent horsemen at Fresno last week. L. M. Morse, the owner of Dexter Prince, went down to see Princese Alice perform; Monroe Salisbury was to be seen exercising many of his celebrities. Unfortunetely it was not thought advisable to start Margaret S., as although she was perfectly sound, yet there was a slight puff on one leg where she hit herself at Sacremento, and Mr. S. thought he would not run chances but, would save her for Napa. G. E. Gurne and A. Button went down together, while General Luke Du Bois, Baldwin, Hamilton, Capt. B. E Harris Professor Heald, H. J. Agnew, T. R Blasingham and many others were there for the week.

Tantallon, by Wellington out of Phizgig by Volligeur, is now in fourth place in the betting on the Melbourne Cup, which is to be run on the fourth of November. He is own brother to Mr. L J. Rose's brown mare Catherine Wheel, which was left behind to be bred to Malua in February next. Tantallon belongs to Hon. Donald Wallace, who owns the great Carbine, as well as Mentor, winner of the Melbourne Cup of 1888. Should Carbine be unable to win the Cup, Tantillon will be on hand to do the trick; and as he will have but 111 pounds in the saddle, his chances are none of the worst.

Two years ago Thomas Keating brought out the speedy Sensation, and made quite a reputetion for him This year he has brought before the public Frank M, 2:18, who has proved himself game to the backbone. An examination of the breeding of these two horses will show that they are bred in almost the same lines.

What a sire Tilton Almont might have been if his opportunities had been equal to those of other prominent stallions in this State; as it is he himself, backed by the great Almont and Clark Chief blood, has proved a racehorse, having a record of 2:26, while his grandson, Almont Patchen, has a racing record of 2:15. Almonta, one of his daughters, has a record of 2:25, Daisy S, another one, has a record of 2:23½, Kitty Almont 2:22¾, while Belle A has a record of 2:29. In the advertising colnmne this week it will be seen that this great horse is advertised for sale by W. W. Belton of Colusa, who, upon application, will send full particulars, and also the price for which the stallion may be bought.

Mr. G. E. Gnerne, the well known owner of Alfred G. 2:19¾, and Mr. Button were in Fresno last week and both gentlemen expressed their anxiety to match Alfred G. against Hazel Wilkes 2:20 for $2000, or as much more as the Wilkes side of the house would put up. That evening I saw Mr. Goldsmith and mentioned it to him, and he said that if the gentlemen were really anxious, he was going to Napa in the morning (Tuesday) and if they were still of the same mind he could be found in Napa on Saturday, (to-day) and would put up $2000 forfeit and make the match for as much more as they wished, provided the match be trotted in California, before January 1st, 1891

The San Francisco Breeder and Sportsman, the only true sportsman's paper in California, of its last issue publishes a paper that does James P. Kerr honor. It is styled the "Fresno Fair Number," and contains a splendid description of Fresno County, the track. Association and city, besides photographs and biographical sketches of the officers of the Fresno Fair Association. Elegant photographs of Junio, Raymond, Napa Wilkes, Clovis, and Illiers are published. The paper is brimful of good, reliable baseball, athletic and horse news, and is as a whole the finest publication of its kind ever printed in California, unless it is with the exception of its State Fair edition of one year ago.— Petalnma Imprint.

Dr. A. E. Buzzard, the veterinary surgeon who is making an inspection of the horses of Monterey county with a view to finding glanders or other infectious diseases, writes to Supervisor Samnels that he found the country free from glenders until he reached the Soledad Mission where he says "I find ths disease terribly bad. I condemned and had killed six horses yesterdey (Wednesday) afternoon." The Dr. says that he is going at once to the Arroyo Seco district where he is informed that glanders are very prevalent. After examining throughly the stock in the Arroyo Seco country, he will go to San Lucas where he is credibly informed many horsee are affected. Dr. Buzzard writes that he has met with no trouble, as everybody seems anxious to have the matter investigated. They declare that they have had the disease among their stock for three or four years and did not know what it was. He says: "The owners themselves have had many infected animals destroyed."—Salinas Democrat.

Since the above was set up we learn that the Doctor has had nineteen horses killed.

Two years ago Charles Kerr who was building up a breading farm near Bakersfield which he has since christened "The Antrim Stock Farm," purchased from Rancho Del Paso several regal thoroughbred brood mares in foal to Mr. Haggin's renowned stallion. Several times since then Mr. Kerr hes received what seemed liberal offers for the produce of the mares but always declined to put a price on them declaring he would race them and gain everlasting fame and renown, for the Antrim Stock Farm but last Saturday he was induced by Dr. Sargent to put a price on some of them with the result that eight yearlings, all fillies, by Sir Modred, Kyrle Daly, Tyrant, Milner et al, changed ownership for $6,000. The purchaser Dr. Sargent is one of our new racing men, young, and with plenty of money he should make a success and certainly cannot go far wrong if he buys such highly bred youngsters as he has already done, for when they have ended their career on the turf they should be invalvable in the paddock.

An English writer says: High knee action had its origin in England in the far off days before the coming of Cæsar. It seems to be certain that at first the high knee action was found combined with profuse hair on tail, neck and fetlock. Of course the action has been modified, and the legs, too—the American speed records are an illustration of this. But the high knee-action origineted, as we believe, in Britain, before the Romene came to teach us how to make roads. When wheeled vehicles had to be dragged, full speed, over land covered with sedge and rank herbage, the horses had to lift their feet. The fact that the original inhabitants of Britain were bad road makers made it imperative that their horses should have action suitable to such going as there was, and that meant that they should lift their feet well off the ground. Their shaggy coats were consequent to a climate which made such hair necessery for survival of a British spring. What the Americans seem to have done is to combine the gait of the Western horse with the nostril and clean bone of the Oriental.

Prominent among the many race goers who attend the Fresno races was L. R. Richards Grayson, Stanislaus Co. Mr. Richards has been gradually picking up a lot of valuable bred mares, and several years ago he purchased Elector 2:70 usually known as Richards Elector. He has a record of 2:31 but was not trained much and it is said on reliable authority that he many times showed halves at a 2:20 gait. His breeding is unexceptional. He was bred at Palo Alto, by Electioneer dam Gilberta by St. Clair (Fred Low) 656 sire of Clay 2:25½, grand dam Lady Gilbert the grand dam of Lot Slocum 2:17¼ etc. I have heard of many of his colts which showed great promise while only last season J. A Dustin drove J R. a three year old by him in 2:24 at Stockton distancing the whole field. About the only other of his colts that has had really been worked is Wesley a five year old gelding by Elector. He was taken easily by Dan M Carty and sold a few weeks ago for $5,000 after showing a mile better than 2:25 with ridiculous ease. Mr. Richards says that he intends having all his stock catelogued and will probably have them trained as he is particularly sweet on some youngsters by the horse and with the many well bred mares he has he should soon be in the foremost rank of breeders as his judgment is remarkably good in all horse business.

The gentleman who writes the horse notes in the Breedere Gazette is evidently suffering trom splecnic disorder, judging from his comments in the current number. He declares that the public has a right to question the records made at Independence; asserts that Monroe Salisbury has purchased a lot of brood mares in Kentucky, although the story was denied many weeks ago; claims that Roy Wilkes 2·08½, the best for a pacer, is lame, when it is neither his record nor the best for a pacer; says that John Madden was lucky to get rid of Suisun at $11,000, and seems to be disappointed that Edith R. only sold for $7,600 at the Shultz Sale, but he makes the worst display when he says: "Through the performences this season of the little pacer Cricket, the California stallion Steinway has come into prominence, and now it appears that another of his get is going well, this being the stallion Charles Derby, that "Bi" Holly has been working at Napa. He was started in a race not long ago, winning the second and fifth heats in 2:25½, 2:30, by which time it looked as though he had the race at his mercy. In the next mile, however, he became much distressed, finishing far behind the distance flag. A veterinary surgeon was called, and after an examination he decided that the horse was suffering from congestion of the heart. In this part of the country when a horse wins a couple of heats and is then distanced the general verdict is that the driver is suffering with muscular contraction of the arms, but perhaps in the genial climate of California it does not work this way. Probably Mr. "Bi" Holly could tell the innocent reporters of that section something about this complaint, as it was very prevalent some years ago when "Bi" was driving Little Sam and other horses in Michigan, and he doubtless had an opportunity to observe its effects on other drivers."

The White Stallion.

[Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

Away back from Fort Burke on the Maquarrie river in New South Wales, some years ago, numerous bands of wild horses used to roam over the vast myall plains. At the head of one mob of horses was an old white stallion. He was a beauty, and so fleet of foot that for years he had defied the best stockmen in the country, and many a good horse had been broken down in a vain attempt to capture this white monarch of the plains.

One night after a hard day's work cutting out cattle (a process almost similar to the Californian "rodea), a number of stockmen were sitting around the open fireplace, in the big room at Injabar station, when the subject of wild horses came up, and of course the white stallion came in for the major part of the conversation.

"What do you say, boys,"said Jack Frost from Emaweena, "if we all meet a week from to-day and see if we can't yard up that d—d white stallion. He plays the devil with all the quiet horses around, and only last week he, or one of his hand, nearly killed a valuable thoroughbred of mine."

After some little further talk on the subject, it was arranged that we were all to meet at Frost's place on the night of the following Tuesday, and start from there at daylight on Wednesday morning.

It was about ten miles from Frost's to the plains, where the band of horses, led by the famous white stallion, were usually seen, and we calculated to get there just about the time the horses had gone out in the open to feed. We employed the time that intervened in collecting all the "sweaters" we could from among the hands of tame horses around the station.

It may be as well to explain to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that a "sweater" is a stray horse belonging to someone else, and I regret to say that in those days we preferred using them for such hard work as running in wild horses to taking chances with our own. With an accommodating sophistry of our own, we argued that we were only making them earn their grub It is true that in several instances the "sweater" was not of much use after a day or two's running horses with him.

We managed to muster up, before the day came, six good horses, and started off to Jack Frost's place at Emaweena. There were eight of us in all, and as we sat around the big open fireplace that winter's night, smoking and drinking rum and water, some pretty tough old yarns were spun. Snake stories were in order, and one told by Jim Carter is really worth repeating.

Said Jim: "A couple of years ago I was out kangaroo hunting near the Bojan creek. The day was terribly hot, as a regular "brickduster" was blowing, and I thought that a bath in the creek would be a good idea. I found a nice deep hole with a sandy little beach to dress on, and lost no time in getting undressed and taking a header into the cool water. My four dogs came in, too, and we were all having a high old time, when my attention was attracted by a tremendous commotion on the little sandy beach where I had left my clothes.

I hurried to the spot and found some ten black snakes waging a war to the death with my clothes right in the middle of them. I never saw such fierce fighting in my life, and in less than five minutes four snakes were disabled and writhing in impotent wrath, with broken backs. I watched them fight for probably a quarter of an hour, when I concluded that standing naked under a scorching sun was not as good fun as it might be, so I made a break for my clothes. I expected that the snakes would creep off at my approach, but, much to my surprise and alarm, as soon as they saw me they stopped their fighting, and with one accord made for me, hissing and rearing up their heads as if ready to eat me up. It is needless to say that I beat a hasty retreat to the water, and then plunging in, defied my pursuers, who did not like water.

In vain I hunted for a stone that I could throw at the creatures. There was not one to be found. Would you believe me, those snakes kept me four hours in the water before they dispersed and allowed me to get to my clothes?"

"That's a pretty good snake story," said our host, "and I vote we go to bed on it." And we all did so.

Before daylight we were all up getting our horses, and after a hasty breakfast of salt beef and damper, started off after the white stallion.

It was a lovely morning, and the brush was fairly alive with wallahys and parrots,and every now and then we would come across a dingo slinking off through the brush.

A couple of hours easy riding brought us to the big Yarra plain, where the white stallion and his band had usually been seen.

On one side of this plain was a small water hole, surrounded by gum and wattle trees, and we determined to get round to the back of this so that should the horses be there we could rush them out into the open. This was a wise move, for just as we were approaching within quarter of a mile of the water hole a cloud of dust and the rattle of hoofs told us that the wild horses were there and had already scented us.

Hastily tightening our girths we all started off at full gallop to get behind the hand and force them into the plain. After half an hour hard riding we succeeded in turning them and soon had the large band with the famous white stallion out in the open and heading for home. There were over a hundred head of horses in the band, and quite a number of colts and fillies. Crack! crack! went our stock whips and faster flew along our horses. The old white led the way, and a grand sight he was with his mighty mane almost touching the ground, and his nostrils dilated and his tail streaming out as he galloped along.

The pace was terrific and several mares and colts dropped behind. We did not bother with them but kept right on after the main band.

At last we came in sight of the stock yard, which had two wings built out some quarter of a mile in length. If we could only get the charskins between these wings we had them safe, so running up our horses for a final effort, we rushed the band along at the top of their speed. Just as we reached the wings the old white steed made a break to escape. but we managed to turn him in time, and in ten minutes more we had the whole band safely yarded up.

We all dismounted and eagerly crowded in to get a good look at the famous white, that had so long defied the best riders in the country.

We did not have much time to examine the noble animal, for as soon as he found that he was a prisoner he made a fierce dash at the eight foot fence and fell back with a broken neck. It was too bad, but could not be helped, and after all he would have been no good for he was too old to break and never could have been tamed. We divided the rest of the band between us, drawing lots for choice, and each of us went home eight horses richer than we started. There were a few good young horses in the band and of course a good many duffers, but on the whole they were a fair lot and none of us had much cause to complain. W. L. EYRE.

According to Dr. Egan's directions I have used the medicine, 10 grains of nux vomica, per day for seven days and the horse is greatly improved. I have also kept his loin irritated with strong liniment and washed it clean and oiled it frequently. I will continue the medicine a few days and will be obliged if Dr. Egan will advise me through the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN whether or not to continue the treatment, if so how long?

Answer.—After you have given the medicine as directed for two weeks, stop giving it for four or five days and then continue as before, leaving it off about every two weeks. You can judge by the appearance and action of the colt when there is no further need for it.

You may again repeat the liniment when the scab or scruff caused by it has all disappeared and the skin on that part of appears in its natural condition.

My dog has had the mange for several years. Have used a wash heretofore which has had the desired effect for the time being. He now has swelling of the joints and breaking out all over his hind legs and stomach, of running matterated sores What is the best course of treatment?

Answer—Apply the following mixture daily:

Iodide of sulphur, two ounces.
Glycerine, sixteen ounces.

If the sores do not appear to yield to this treatment, dust Iodoform over them daily. Give the dog a bath every three days in water containing some of Littles Soluble Phenyle.

Continue this treatment until all the sores have disappeared, and continue the baths every three or four days for two weeks after all signs of the disese have gone.

Is lockjaw in horses cureable. I have had three cases within the last year and all of them died.

The man who attended them said that it is doubtful if a true case of lockjaw ever gets well, and it so not one in a hundred.

Answer.—Tetanus or "Loakjaw" is curable. In looking over my books I see that I have attended eight cases within the last year, and six out of the eight are alive yet to-day.

The chances of recovery depend as much on the attention paid to them by the owner or his man, as on the medicines given by the veterinary surgeon. You must keep them in a quiet comfortable stable, and above all things dont have an irritable bad tempered groom attending to them.

A horse affected in this way is very nervous and every little thing that frightens him injures him.

About three months ago I was attending to a horse affected with tetanus, the owner of which was himself acting as stableman. I saw that whenever the owner came into the stable the horse would rush up into the stall and tremble violently from head to foot. A few days later he would snort, and kick when his owner went near him.

I saw that this was injuring him so I got him removed to a neighbors stable where all his nervousness left him and he rapidly improved. He is working steadily ever since.

I write this to show you what influence the surroundings have in treating a horse affected with tetanus.

The Secretary then read hie report as follows:

NEW YORK, SEPT. 24, 1890.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AMERICAN KENNEL CLUB—

GENTLEMEN: I beg to submit for your action, the applications for admission to membership from the English Setter Club, New York; National Beagle Club, Boston, Massachusetts; South Carolina Poultry and Pet Stock Association, Greenville, South Carolina. According to the Constitutions of above clubs, they are eligible to membership. In the case of the National Beagle Club, the application specifies that the principal object of said club is for the purpose of holding field trials for beagles, but the Constitution also specifies as one of its objects "to promote the improvement on the bench" of its special breed. The American Beagle Club has been a member of this club since February 23, 1888, and was organized for the purpose of the improvement of the beagle, the adoption of a standard to breed to, and to be judged by on the bench It is now for you to decide as to the justice or expediency of the admission of another club confined to the beagle. In the case of the application of the South Carolina Poultry and Pet Stock Association, I would call your attention to the fact that we already have a member under the same title, with its headquarters at Charleston, S. C. Said Club was elected February 1, 1889. The application from the Peoria Kennel Club, advertised in June, July and August Gazettes, was withdrawn September 3, 1890. I have to report that under date of July 18, 1890, I received a notice from the Maryland Kennel Club, and signed James Thompson, Secretary protem, to the effect that at a meeting of said club, the following resolution was passed: "That the American Kennel Club be censured for refusing to receive our delegate at their meeting of May 22d," he being furnished with proper credentials by the Maryland Kennel Club. The Cleveland Bench Show Association notified this club of its change of name to that of the Cleveland Kennel Club, and requests that such change may be made upon our records. I beg to report that the suspension of F. W. Knoblauch, for a period of six months, has been removed by the expiration of the time stated, March 21, 1890, to September 21, 1890

I hereby report that I filed with the Michigan Kennel Club a protest against the award to entry 312. Class 118, Wire haired Fox Terriers, at its show held September 2-5, 18 0, sal dog being shown under the name of Wentworth Wonder. My reason for said protest was to protect the prefix "Wentworth," which was duly registered June 23, 1888, by another party I have been instructed by the owner of the dog shown at Detroit, to change the name of his dog to "Wonder," and have corrected it accordingly in the certified prize list, to be published in the Gazette for September. I submit herewith a complaint from Mrs. F. Smyth against the Cincinnati Kennel Club for a violation of its own rules at its Show held in June of this year, in that said club reopened a class that had been already judged to admit two other dogs that had been received on the second day of the show. I also submit an appeal from Dr. M. H Cryer against the awarding of the special prize "for best kennel of four pugs" at the Cincinnati Kennel Club Show June, 1890. Dr. Cryer protested the said award, and said protest was not allowed by the Show Committee of the Cincinnati Kennel Club; he now appeals against this decision. The necessary deposits of five dollars with the protest, and ten dollars with the appeal have been made, as required by the rules I herewith submit a complaint from Mr. T. Jacobs of Newton Abbot, England, against Mr. B. H. Oldham, New York, stating that in connection with the sale of some of his dogs to said Oldham, a balance of £90 or $450 was due; that he accepted a draft on New York for said amount, said draft was not honored by the bank when presented for payment, and up to August 18, 1890, had never been redeemed by said Oldham Mr. Jacobs asks for some action by this club in order to prevent said Oldham from exhibiting the dogs not paid for, and advises that his attorney in this city, will produce such evidence and proof in his behalf as may be reqnired. Under date of May 5, 1889, Mr. James Watson filed with this club an appeal from the decision of the Rochester Kennel Club, in the matter of his protest against Metchley Surprise wrongly entered in the challenge class at the show of 1889. At the meeting of this club held May 24, 1889, this appeal was heard and action of the Rochester Club was reversed and Mr. Watson's protest sustained. In Mr. Watson's protest he requested the Rochester Kennel Club to have reserve numbers taken on account of his dog Clipper competing against Hetchley Surprise for a special prize As said Watson has never been able to learn from the Rochester Kennel Club whether or not, his request for reserve numbers had been complied with, he submitted the matter to this club, and asked that some action might be taken to ascertain why his reqnest had not been granted. This matter was referred to the Advisory Committee, and at its meeting December 19, 1889, the matter was laid over until such time as Mr. Watson would produce evidence to sustain his appeal. And again at the meeting of said Committee held April 7, 1890, both parties were requested to furnish further particulars, as to time and dates of protest, and request for reserve numbers Mr. Watson has complied with all of the requests of the Committee, but the Committee finds it impossible to obtain any information from the Rochester Kennel Club. Its Secretary writes under date of July 26, 1890, that he prefers to say nothing regarding the matter, and refers me to Dr. J. P. Gray, the President of the Club. I addressed a communication to said Gray on April 3, 1890, requesting him to reply to five questions, as directed by the Advisory Committee, in which no reply has yet been received, neither has the letter been returned to this office. I again wrote Gray on July 30, 1890, and registered the letter, which was returned to me from the post office as unclaimed. I respectfully submit that the Rochester Club should be compelled to reply to the questions put to it to enable this club to transact the business before it, or, said club should be disciplined for such neglect. Owing to an impression that the Danbury, Conn. wins would count this year, probably gained by the recognition of the awards won at that show in 1889, I thought it my duty to publish in the Sporting papers the following card:

In reply to the many inquiries received from intended exhibitors, and for the general information of the public, I desire to give notice through your columns, that the wins at the forthcoming bench show to be held at Danbury, Conn., will not be recognized, the Connecticut State Kennel Club, under whose auspices the Danbury show was held last year, having in the mean time ceased to be a member of the American Kennel Club.

This action has been rather severely criticised, and I desire an expression of the sense of this meeting regarding my action, by which I may be guided in the future.

Respectfully submitted,
A. P. VREDENBURGH, Secretary.

On motion received and adopted.

The Treasurer's Report was read as follows:

September 24, 1890.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AMERICAN KENNEL CLUB,

Gentlemen: I beg to submit the following report of moneys received and disbursed by me during the year 1890:

Receipts from all sources from January 1st to date	$7,746.88
Expenses for same period	5,055.69
Balance on hand	$2,191.19

I also beg leave to report that since the last meeting I have received the dues for 1890 from the German Mastiff or Great Dane Club which was reported at that time in arrears. Respectfully submitted,
A. P. VREDENBURGH, Treasurer.

Adopted.

President Belmont stated that he had been criticised by some of the sporting papers and others on his action in leaving the chair and taking part in certain proceedings from the fact that he was not a delegate. He proceeded, "I never for a moment questioned my right to do so, although there is nothing in the constitution about it, for the reason that the president is not simply and purely the Chairman of the Executive Committee or Association. The President, under the constitution, is required to act on questions of disqualification. He is obliged to be ex-officio of the Advisory Committee, and to transact all sorts of routine business between the meetings between the meetings, and I supposed it was my privilege to speak on any important matter that came up, but, as the question has been raised, I desire to ask the delegates what their views are upon the subject, which were presented as follows: "That it is the sense of this meeting that we unanimously sanction the action of the President heretofore, according to the spirit of the constitution of the American Kennel Club. That it is also the sense of this meeting that such privilege hereafter be granted to him.

Unanimously carried.

The report of the Stud Book Committee was read and adopted. Mr. C. J. Peshall was permanently disqualified from membership.

Appeals, protests and other business suggested by the secretaries' report was referred to the advisory committee with power.

The English Setter Club was admitted to membership.

The National Beagle Club of Boston rejected because it would conflict with American Beagle Club.

Mr. Vredenburgh gave notice that he would propose certain amendments to the constitution of the club and was authorized to have same published in the Gazette.

Adjourned.

A. P. VREDENBURGH, Secretary.

Vredenburgh vs. Peshall.

I desire to state, for the information of all who may have at any time read any or all of the charges Mr. Chas. J. Peshall promulgated against me through the sporting papers and every other available source, that, after I had taken every proper step consistent with dignity and an honest desire to disabuse Mr. Peshall's mind of what might have been considered a mistake on his part, by having an Auditing Committee investigate my accounts, securing besides for all doubters the statements of reputable officers of the American Kennel Club that my accounts, after thorough investigation, were perfectly in order, I concluded to seek protection from the law, as neither Mr. Peshall nor some of the sporting papers, nor some of his friends, would accept the undoubtable proofs furnished by the rectitude of my accounts as final. I will not rest under even a suspicion of my integrity from any quarter, however insignificant. The Grand Jury of New York has, upon my complaint, indicted Mr. Peshall for criminal libel. He was arrested to answer the charge. Mr. Leslie Bruce, who has aided and abetted him in his libelous attacks, very properly went bail for him. Mr. Peshall has, for eighteen months, threatened both myself and a half dozen prominent officers and delegates of the American Kennel Club with suit, spreading this threat both far and wide, with a view, he claimed, to get my hooks into court. I am happy to say that this will now be done in the proper way, and I regret for the honor of our sporting press and some of our breeders, who seem to be too willing to think ill of their fellow dogmen, that this course should have been made indispensable for my protection. A. P. VREDENBURGH.

BERGEN, POINT, N. J.

After reading the minutes published herewith, which have been approved by A. K. C., it would seem that the worthy Secretary has been fully vindicated.

What Is Style?

We see much written in sporting journals, regarding the question as to what constitutes "style" in a dog. Some of the writers go so far as to single out certain acts and habits of the animal and grouping them together build up a pyramid of stilted acts and complacently announce that this constitutes style! The broad assertions that a dog shows "style" in movement, "in his way of feeling for acent" and "in coming to a point" are perhaps general enough to approach the truth, but when any writer attempts to particularize the acts which constitute "style" in a dog or any other animal or person he is in our opinion undertaking a task which is simply absurd. The reason which impels us to say so is that "style" is that general air of ease and grace, shown at all times by the animal or person possessing it, which is so elusive as to render minute definition impossible, for the reason that any act which would be susceptable of direct and positive definition would of itself be in a measure stiff and stilted.

Where is "style" shown more fully and clearly than in repose? Yet even the camera fails to convey that indefinable grace which the animal or person reveals even in this state, which perhaps would be easier of delineation and definition than "the poetry of motion," which must be seen in order to be appreciated.

Form, harmony of color, grace, ease and lightness of movement, delicacy of touch and acent, expressions indicating anticipation, wonder or satisfaction, are too delicate for cold type to adequately convey.

Good style is, we believe, that indefinable blending and subtle voicing of all the better elements of ease, grace and intelligence, which indicate the state of perfection of the animal or person possessing them.

No rule can be made for this; each one is essentially different from all others, and in this very freedom from set rules is true "style" revealed.

Mr. T. A. Andrews, breeder of rough coated St. Bernards in this city, made us a pleasant call last week.

Mr. James E. Watson, the proprietor of the splendid kennels at Berkeley, made this office a social call on Thursday last.

The quarrel between the A. K. C. and the E. K. C. is growing interesting, at least to the members engaged in the controversy.

Some remarkable work is recorded of the performance of Collies at the Leominster sheepdog trials on September 10th, in the Stock-keeper.

The English mastiff is growing daily in the esteem of the people for the many excellent qualities they possess, and the demand for them is good.

All lovers of St. Bernards will be plessed to know that the Swiss Kennels have purchssed and imported the little Donna Silva, by Duke of Wellington out of Cslypso. Sbe is winner of some firet prizes.

It would be well for all interested in Water Spaniels to know that, perhsps, the finest dog of this class ever shown —King Slssh—is owned at Denver, Colorado. English dog fanciers conceed him the pslm.

Tbe Fancier's Jovrnal of Pbiladelpbis states thst Mrs. Frank Smith of tbat city has just purchased tbe St. Bernsrd bitch Dart by Duke of Wellington, and that she is in whelp to the celebrated dog Lord Bute. St. Bernsrd fanciers should take a note of it.

The Eleventh Scottish Kennel Club's Show at Elinburg, on the 17th of last month, is reported to have been the finest and most satisfactory of any gathering yet held by that body. St. Bernards, Retrievers, Collies, Pointers snd Fox-Terriers were especially well represented.

The action of tbe Nstional Greyhound Club of Brooklyn, New York, in donating a solid silver cup to be run for ss a prize at Grest Bend, Kanssas, October 21 to 25, was a graceful method of expressing tbe interest of the Club in that event. Sucb actiou serves to cement the fellow feeling wbich should be and ever is uppermost in tbe minds of true sportsmen.

Mr. J. W. Harper of Suisun, and Mr. G. W. Watson, interested in tbe California Kennels at Sacrsmento, called at this office on Monday. Tbe first named gentleman's young dog Pierre by Harrold out of Sunlit is being handled by Mr. J. T. Allender for the field trials, which occur January 19th. Tbe latter reports his fine lot of English Setters to be in splendid condition. Sunlit and others will be on hand for the above mentioned events which promises to surpass in point of interest all previous field trials on the coast.

The Central Field Trials Association offer a special prize of $100 for Gordon Setters, providing there are ten entries and eight starters at Lexington, N. C., in December. The Gordon Setter has been eminently successful as a bench dog, and there seems to be no good reason wby he should not measure up with the best of dogs in the field. It is to be hoped tbat a good trial will be made of his qualities in this respect this year, although we would not be understood as saying that he has not already shown most excellent qualities as a field dog.

Tbe Irish Setter dog, Dick Swiveler. (8410) is now a cbampion of record, having won his third first in tbe challenge class at London, Ontario last month. He was bred by Mr. W. H. Child, Philadelpbia, Pa., aud is by Champion Bruce —Leigh Doane II, by Champion Elcho—Rose. Champion Bruce is by Champion Elcho—Cbampion Noreen.

This dog has appeared all over tbe States, in the leading shows aud has everywhere beeu admired for his superior style and quality. Mr. George H. Covert proprietor of tbe Killarney Kennels and owner of Dick Swiveler, is to be congratulated on the success accredited this splendid animal.

In tbis enlightened day, it would seem to be needless in the extreme to mention tbe fact tbat in handling animals one should avoid extreme measures in training.

I would not own or haudle a dog wbich would require a resort to severe measures and treatment in order to control him. With such a dog there is sometbing essential lacking, a blemish in breeding, or rather an unbappy combination of traits of character, wbicb it is needless to attempt to overcome or combat. A well bred dog can invariably be handled by kind and patient treatment.

A trainer who resorts to severe methods is apt to do more harm to a good animal than good. Kindness is repaid a hundred fold. Let harsh measures be set aside by all who would accomplish the best results in handling and training, not ouly dogs, but good animals of every kind as well.

The English Setter Club will hold a meeting October 23, at the office of tbe Secretary, Mr. P. C. Obl, 50 Broadway, "For tbe consideration and adoption of a standard, and the transaction of any other business that may come before it." It is a matter of vital importance to all breeders of English Setters and tbey shonld not fail to be present if possible, or if this be inexpedient, it would be feasible and of the first importance tbat tbey communicate tbeir views to the secretary tbat tbey may be placed before the Club for consideration relative to tbe many questions of interest which will come before it for adjudication. Much of division and discussion which arises in clubs, arises from the facts wbicb migbt have been avoided by a fair consensus of opinion being stated at the formation of tbe clubs as to a just standard.

Tbe secretary states tbat all communications will receive dne and full attention and in all cases wbere members cannot attend they will be allowed to vote by proxy.

At the instance of Mr. J. M. Larne, Secretary of tbe San Joaquin Valley Agricultural Association, aided by Messrs. I. D. Holden, J. E Doak and Dr A. C. Davenport tbe first bench show ever held at Stockton occurred on last Friday and Saturday. It was a very successful undertaking, considering the circnmstances.

The sportsmen of Stockton alone, entered forty-one more than average dogs, and thus evidenced the fact that they are well up as dog fanciers.

Tbe Cocker spaniels are spoken of as being an exceptionally fine exhibit.

Mr. J. E. Doak's Tasso took the first prize, while Dr. A. C. Davenports' spaniels had little or no competition in their class.

Saladin, an Englisb setter is said to have been the finest dog in the show. He is owned by Mr. J. S. Dunham. Mr. H. H. Briggs, of this city, judged all classes to the entire satisfaction of all interested.

This interesting feature is promised in connection with each annual recurrence of the Stockton Fair.

THE GUN.

My Ancient Hunting Coat.

An old, brown garment, pitc ed and weather worn,
With pockets numberless on every side;
Long, ragged rents, by envious briars torn,
And darkened spots in divers places dyed;
Faint streaks of yellow here and there descried,
And raveled edges by the thickets shorn
A rough, stanch coat, through storm and sunshine tried,
And over many miles of field and prairie borne.

Discolored by the sleet and driving rain,
And faded by the burning autumn sun,
The texture firm with interwoven grain,
Within its russet threads, though closely spun,
Show what the gnawing teeth of time have done;
On the right shoulder is a smooth, wide stain
That marks the place where shiftingly the gun
Has in my old-time outdoor wanderings often lain.

Here is some plumage from a pheasant's crest,
And here are traces of a rabbit's fur;
And in this corner, hidden with the rest,
Clings to the cloth a prickly cockle burr
That pierces suddenly and like a spur;
And in this upper pocket close are pressed
Old sprays of sumac, full of woodsy myrrh,
And various feathers, too, in metl y colors dressed.

And these bring pictures to my dreaming eyes
Of river, woo land marsh and stubble field;
As bygone days like ghosts forgotten rise,
And olden memories are again unsealed,
Like legends carven on an antique shield
These days come back and woo in dear disguise,
While nature waits, in loveliness revealed,
Under a still, rapt glory of fair, unshadowed ski s.

Plan for State Rifle Tournament.

Tulare Cal., Oct. 4, 1890

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—In a recent issue of an Eastern sporting journal a very interesting article appears, written by s prominent New Jersey rifleman, tbat I tbink is worthy of much thought and consideration by the rifle fraternity on tbis coast.

Among other tbings, he suggests tbe best way, I think, in whicb to condnct tournaments so as to insure prize lists tbst would draw large crowds and at tbe same time not run a club "into a hole."

His plan was, in brief, to form a Tournament Association by consolidating tbe strength of the most active rifle clubs of the State and hold a big shoot, opeu to all comers, on one or another of the Scbutzen ranges, once or twice a year, each club to contribute to the guarantee fund a given amount, tbe aggregate to be sufficient to cover all necessary expenses Say ten clubs were affiliated by paying in $250 each, a $25 prize list could be arranged and tbe advantage would be tbat as each club would have a financial interest in the outcome of tbe affair, each and every member could be depended upon to work bard for its success. If a failure financially—which is a remote possibility—the amount lost by each club would be a mere bagatelle, as even if tbe total shortage was $300 on a shoot, it would be bnt $30 for each club, whereas it would be a very large sum for any one club to lose. The plan is one tbat is to be commended, and tbere is no donbt tbat the best clubs in tbis State would be willing to join a Rifle League of tbis character.

We have some of tbe finest riflemen in the country on this coast and I would like to see tbe above plan carried out, the advantages of which cannot be over-estimated by far seeing riflemen. Sometbing of that kind would awaken an interest in rifle practice on tbis coast tbat has not been felt for years. I would like to hear from the riflemen on the subject and would like to see a call issued for a meeting, to be held by delegates from various clnbs at an early date, when it is hoped that a good start may be made toward tbe formation of a league. If the riflemen will come to tbe front and put their shoulders to tbe wheel we will bave an association in California that will not only be a credit to itself, but to the State also. Let every one come to the front and freely discuss this subject. I will do all in my power to further the interests of our association of this kind.

Yours fraternially, Geo. B. Fairbanks,
Capt. Tulare Gun Club.

We heartily approve of Captain Fairbanks suggestiou, and trust that the matter will receive the prompt attention and co-operation of the riflemen on the coast, to the end that such an association may be formed. It would prove of surpassing interest to all riflemen.

Antidote for Snake Poison.

The Kern County Californian of last week records the following remarkable fact, which it would be worth while for all to remember.

"A son of J. P. K. Cox, who lives near San Emigdio, while hunting with another boy on Wednesday of last week, was bitten on tbe leg by a rattlesnake He was several miles from home and assistance was impossible; but he rose to the occasion and manifested a remarkable degree of courage and resonrce for a boy only ten years of age. He remembered to have heard his father say tbat raw meat applied to the place bitten would draw out the poison. So he made incisions above and below the bite, which he accomplished with difficulty with a dull knife and applied a quail which he bad cut open. Fortunately he bad with him several of tbese birds tbat he had shot. He was very sick for a time, but the application was successful. Tbe raw flesh drew out or absorbed tbe poison and in a few days he was well. There are many instances on record of the bites of these venomous reptiles having been cured by the application of raw flesh and it is probably the best remedy known. A piece of tbe snake itself, if the victim is fortunate enongh to kill it, is said to be peonliarly effective. The argonauts found the native Californians in possession of a plant that was an infallible remedy, and we have noticed it in this vicinity. It has a spicy, pungent, bnt not unpleasant tsste, and has intoxicating, narcotio properties in a high degree. It is administered if circumstances admit, in the form of a decoction, and some of tbe plant pounded and moistened is applied to the bite. Its admiuistration eitber to man or the domestic animals is followed by prolonged sleep."

On last Thursday evening, as the ferry boat was crossing tbe bay from this city to San Rafael, and wbile out near the center of the bay, a covey of about fifteen quail flew on tbe boat, alightiug on the rear deck for the moment, entirely ignoring the presence of the crowd of passengers. Two of the birds were caugbt and the balance fell into tbe water, where tbey were immediately pounced upon by the sea gulls. It was a singular freak for them to thus be caught in this strange and unnatural predicament, and illustrates that instinct is not always infallible.

Gun Raffle.

Louis Goldhammer of Bay Station, Alameda, is practicing very diligently for the coming shoot of bis club, tbe Independent Rifles, which will come off on Saturday, October 18. Mr. Goldhammer is going to purchase one of the very latest improved Winchester rifles, and tbe gun wbicb he bas used to such good advantage for months past he will raffle off at his place, the Bay Station Grocery Store, on Oct. 11. Tbe tickets will be fifty cents each, and as all tbe loading tools will be included witb tbe rifle tbe lucky winner will receive good value for his small investment.

The Country Club.

The Champion Amateur of America Beaten by a Local Expert.

The Country Clnb passed Tuesday at Oakland Trotting Park, over the traps. Mr. Cbarles Macslester of Philsdelphia was tbe guest of the Club and the meeting was arranged by President F. R. Webster in his honor. Tbe day was perfect, the birds very good and the company just of tbat temper whicb makes trap sbooting enjoyable. An eloborate luncheon was sent over from tbe Pacific Union Club to which ample justice was done at noon.

Tbe guest of the day Mr. Macalester proved himself a premier shot. His position is excellent. He stands erect, with legs spread a little. Tbe right foot nearly behind the left and a foot distant, so that he can swing on a right quartering bird easily. His gun is thrown at once to position when he steps to the score, without sighting. After the word "pull" the utmost quickness cbsracterizes his shooting bnt such in the smoothuess and ease of all motions that he actually seems slow.

After several matches bad been sbot, it was proposed that Mr. Fred L Wooster of tbe Club should shoot a match with Mr. Macalester. The match was a surprise. It was known that Fred Wooster was a very fine sbot, but that he could win against such an expert as Macalester was not believed.

However be did so in fine style, killing thirty four of his thirty-five birds, wbile Macalester missed two. Fred bore his honors meekly as was right, and Macalester did not seem in the least annoyed.

Tbe shooting done by President Webster, R. B. Woodward, Fred Wooster, Harry Babcock, Captain R. A. Eddy and others throughout tbe day was excellent, particularly at quick birds. The scores are appended:

At 35 birds each, A. S. A. rules, won by Fred L. Wooster.

The Art of Shooting.

By Charles Lancaster, gunmaker. Second edition now ready. An illustrated treatise on the art of shooting, with extracts from the best authorities, containing full-page explanatory illustrations, sketched from instantaneous and other photographs. Price, 7s. 6d; postage, 6d extra. Published by Charles Lancaster, 151 New Bond Street London, W.

Singular, isn't it, that the Californian who is the crack chicken and game shot in the field is something of a Chick himself?

Reports from Navato state that quail are quite plentiful in that region, with a greater abundance of large game in the hills of that vicinity than is usual at this season of the year. The hunters of that vicinity are reported as being for some cause, inactive this season, and the game consequently is more numerous.

The Haywards Journal states that Messrs. F. F. Allen, J. D. Smalley, Charles Allen and Mark Templeton have recently returned from a hunting trip in the Monterey mountains. They report deer as being very plentiful, and judging from their bag of sixteen, they must have been found in numbers to have rendered their hunt exceedingly pleasant. Judging from the account given these gentlemen must have had an unusually pleasant outing.

In the endeavor to establish interesting and profitable gun clubs, the admiration for "crack shots" should not be carried too far. The stability of most clubs must be attained by interesting the average shot. It is to bring up the average of the skill of all of its members that the club should most earnestly work for. To this end let it be so arranged, by classification of its members contending for prizes, so that the poorer shots will not have to contend with the well nigh perfect ones.

In racing courses the prizes are divided: the contestants classified according to speed; the interest could not otherwise be kept up.

Why not apply this rule more systematically in shooting tournaments. It would, beyond question tend to enhance the general interest, of the club members contesting, and thus insure a greater interest on the part of the public.

Report of Fish Commission.

In the absence of a meeting by the Board of Fish Commissioners, which was to have been held on Tuesday the 7th instant, we present the report of Mr Callundan, the Chief of Patrol for September. It reads as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 30, 1890.

The Honorable, the Board of Fish Commissioners:—

GENTLEMEN: The month just passed has been one of great activity on the part of your deputies by reason of the fact that the taking of salmon is prohibited during that time.

It is with pleasure that I am enabled to report that fresh salmon has not been exposed for sale in the markets of San Francisco, Sacramento or Stockton during the month.

The lack of a suitable steam launch has made it difficult to cover the salmon fishing waters perfectly, but by visiting the shipping stations at intervals, we have been satisfied that no fishing was being done.

On September 3d and succeeding days, in company with a deputy, the whole of the San Joaquin River was traversed. Each of the landing places of the steamers was inspected. At all of them many fishermen were found, all of them idle, with their boats out of the water being overhauled and painted, and their nets in like condition.

September 10th was spent with President Routier making a close inspection of the San Francisco markets. Several complaints that salmon was being sold had been filed, but in each case investigation showed that the fish were sea bass, which to the unskilled eye are not unlike salmon. No salmon were found.

The 12th to the 14th inclusive were passed on the Sacramento River. There things were in the same condition as on the San Joaquin, no fishing being done, although the river was full of salmon.

September 19th to 23rd inclusive were spent in and about Sacramento by direction of President Routier. Regular morning visits were made to the markets and fishing stations without detecting anyone in illegal acts. Deputy Ennes assisted during the time.

On the 17th was sent to Marysville to assist in the prosecution of Martin Casey for having salmon in possession during the close season. Upon application of Attorney W. G Murphy for the defence, a continuance was granted by Judge Garber until October 29th, City Attorney Wallace Densmore not objecting.

The case is one of peculiar interest, since upon it hinges the right to store salmon in cold storage during the open season and deal them out during September.

Respectfully submitted,

T. P. CALLUNDAN, Chief of Patrol.

Biennial Report of Fish Commission.

Mr. J. G. Woodbury, Superintendent of Hatcheries of the Fish Commission, is now about completing his biennial report, which will in a few days go into the hands of the printer. It will contain much valuable information relative to the subject of fish culture. Mr. Woodbury has spent much time and labor on the subject, and no one is more able to treat the question than he. The subject is one of those touching economics which is of leading importance. Fish is about the only species of property in which the public have an absolute community of interest that is susceptible of practical encouragement, culture and development. As an article of daily consumption, they form no inconsiderable portion of the food supply of the masses, in addition to furnishing the finest and most healthful of recreations in their capture. The streams of this State afford the very best of opportunities for a practical application of all possible suggestions that the experience and knowledge of those who have made the subject a matter of special investigation may suggest. The labors of the commission have been and still are being carried on under very great and obvious difficulties which it is to be hoped future legislation will be prompt to remedy. The placing of this work on a firm and solid basis in proportion to the importance of the subject, is a matter of general importance, and should in no wise be overlooked. It is a work of the first and most practical means of philanthropy far reaching in its effects. Let all who have the public weal at heart lend their active support in developing this department.

Mr. A. W. Ingoldshe, the active and efficient Secretary of the Santa Clara Gun Club, is lending serviceable aid in the enforcement of the game laws of that district. We trust that all sportsmen will make it a point to interest themselves in these matters and lend all assistance possible to the State authorities in seeing that the laws are enforced, and the game and fish protected.

Wanton Lawlessness.

The Marysville Democrat says:

"There are persons north of here along the Sacramento river who are reported as violators of the law for the protection of fish, and the matter is to be looked after, and if as stated, there will be arrests made. Near the lower Soda Springs one A. F. George has a saw mill running, and dumps the sawdust into the Sacramento river in violation of the law. There are traps in the river for catching fish at a point a mile below Delta, and about the same distance on the other side. Also traps just below tunnel No. 9, this side of Redding. There have been some violations by using giant powder cartridges in the vicinity of Dunsmuir, but the citizens up there at present have put a stop to that. The use of traps for fishing is prohibited as well as explosives, and it seems strange that men will persist in a violation of the law."

We sincerely trust that all violators may be brought to justice and fined roundly for each and every offense in this regard, until the sinners will be made to understand "that the way of the transgressor is hard."

A Mackerel With a Waist.

It is certainly a curious coincidence what you mentioned with regard to the above. I have never seen a fish with a band further down the body than just behind the gills, and this I accounted for probably by the fish rising at a lost india rubber band and getting it over its nose, and then, as is the usual custom with fish to scour themselves on the bottom against the gravel or sand, the band gradually gets worked back behind the gill covers. I have a trout in my possession that was caught by Mr. C. O. Clark, a well known sportsman in this district, which had an india-rubber band tight around its head and underneath the gill covers. It was illustrated in your contemporary, Land and Water of May 6th, 1882, as the shape of the head was very much altered. The fish was in splendid condition when caught with the fly, and I should rather think that these fish took the band in the water for a bait, and somehow or other got their nose through it, and with constant rubbing got it back over their body.—WILLIAM HEARDER, in the Fishing Gazette.

The investigation by the Senate of the United States Fish Commission has been closed. The result of their labors is presented in a volume of some 600 pages of printed matter setting forth exhaustive testimony on all of the complaints and charges preferred against the Commission. These seem to have been principally confined to the charges of nepotism and the use of official position to advance private interests at the public expense. While the report of the committee has not as yet been made officially, yet it is understood from reliable sources, that the investigation has resulted in the complete vindication of the Fish Commission in all respects, the testimony tending to show that the interests of the public have been kept steadily in view and the duties of the Commission faithfully and honestly discharged. It is well that the investigation has been made, although prompted by persons with envious motives. It will result in a reaction of feeling in favor of this important branch of the public service and thus strengthen and assist the work.

THE TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$11,000 GUARANTEED $11,000

FOR

Trotting Foals of 1890.

$5,000 to First; $2,500 to Second; $1,500 to Third; $1,000 to Fourth; and $1,000 to the breeder of the Winner, in money or plate, at the option of said breeder.

Race to be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and to be trotted over the superb mile track at TERRE HAUTE, IND., at a meeting to be held during the latter part of August, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which that track is then a member.

Entrance

Payable as follows: $10 with the nomination on November 1, 1890; $10 April 1, 1891; $10 October 1, 1891; $10 April 1, 1892; $10 October 1, 1892; $10 April 1, 1893; $15 October 1, 1893; $25 April 1, 1894; and $100 for Starters, payable August 1, 1894.

Special Provision.

In case the total amount received as payments and forfeits on nominations shall amount to more than the amount guaranteed, viz.: $11,000, then and in that event, fifty per cent. of such excess shall be added to the first money. It is estimated that this will make the first money amount to $9,000 or more, and should the winning horse be started in the race by the person who is also the breeder, the first money will, in all probability, exceed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Conditions.

Nominators will be required to state name, color and sex of foal; also to give the names of the sire, the dam, and the sire of the dam, when known; also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nominated.

No nomination will be received unless the first payment of $10 accompanies the same.

Nominations are only liable for the first payment, but failure to make any of the subsequent payments, when due, shall be considered a withdrawal, with forfeiture of former payments.

Nominations shall follow ownership of the foal, and the bona fide sale of any nominated foal prior to August 1, 1894, will entitle it to start against any other foal entered by the same nominator. The foregoing clause relative to transfer of nomination, shall not be construed to apply to that part of the purse to be awarded to the breeder of the winner, as it is a part of the purpose of this purse that $1,000 (in money or plate) shall go to the actual breeder, and that said breeder's interest to this extent in the purse, shall be non-transferable.

In the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated herein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1, 1891, to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz: the substituted foal must have been owned by said nominator, at the time he made the original nomination.

The race shall be trotted over the TERRE HAUTE mile track, universally acknowledged to be one of the fineet and fastest in the United States, and quite generally known as the track over which AXTELL trotted his famous mile as a three year-old in 2:12.

The above PURSE is given and all of its provisions guaranteed by the VIGO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY of Terre Haute, Ind.

Nominations to be made on or before NOVEMBER 1st, 1890, and addressed to

AN UNQUALIFIED ENDORSEMENT.

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

F. J. BERRY & CO.'S,

Union Stock Yards, November 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1890.

The First Week of the American Horse Show.

Chicago is the largest horse market in the world, and we have already established the fact that we are the largest dealers in the world, our sales reaching from twelve to fifteen thousand horses yearly. The first six months of 1890 we sold eight thousand horses. We have one stable now in the course of construction that will accommodate two hundred horses. This stable is built especially for the auction sale, with adjoining stables for five hundred more. The pavilion for the auction sale will seat one thousand people, all heated by steam, and has lunch counter and all the accommodations to make both customers and horses comfortable in case of rainy weather, all under cover and rain will make no difference, with three-eighths of a mile speed track for showing speed, style and action. Developed speed to be shown to harness Undeveloped will be led. The best of accommodations for showing speed. Chicago is located in the center of a wealthy breeding territory New breeding farms are being started all over the country, and the choicest bred stock is being purchased to place thereon. The leading breeders are with us in our efforts to more firmly establish Chicago as the leading horse market of the world, and we expect this to be the largest breeders' sale ever held in the West. Our combination sale in May was the most successful sale on record, and we have no doubt this sale will far exceed it. Feed 75 cents per day. Commission 5 Per Cent. For entry blanks, and in making consignments of stock, address

Trotting Stallion for Sale

THE TROTTING STALLION

Brocken,

Five years old; color, brown; 16.2 hands; bred by Capt. A. J. Hutchinson; sired

By A. W Richmond,

(sire of RICHMOND JR., ROMERO, ARROW, the DAM OF ANTEEO, and ANTEVOLO and other noted horses); 1st dam Maid of the Mist, by Norfolk; 2d dam Eva Coombs, by Billy Cheatham; 3d dam Ruby by Winnebago, son of Imp. Glencoe.

BROCKEN is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed. He can trot a 40 gait now with ease. His pedigree shows rare breeding, combining trotting blood with the most fashionable strains of thoroughbred. It includes crosses to Lexington and Glencoe with a double cross to Boston. For good, stout blood, this pedigree cannot be excelled. For terms, apply to

A HALF BROTHER TO

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square trotter, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanito (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon, A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Training

The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

Annual Meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association.

Fair Weather and Splendid Track—Every Indication Favorable for Record Breaking—Good Attendance and Interest.

The Second Annual Meeting of the Breeders' Association was commenced at Napa on last Saturday, Oct. 11th. From the entry list in the different stakes and purses there was every indication that a very successful gathering of the horse breeders of California would be held, and those who have the best interests of the Association at heart were not disappointed for representative men from all portions of the State were congregated at the Napa Course on the opening day. The weather was not as propitious as might have been expected at this season of the year, the sky being overcast and a cold wind blowing from the south, making light overcoats necessary for personal comfort.

In the early morning the track was well filled with horses that were receiving preparatory work and the onlookers were kept busy clicking off their watches as they tried to keep "tab" on favorites, quarters, halves and miles being timed in rapid succession. John Goldsmith had one of the Sable Wilkes yearlings out, one quarter being completed in 37 seconds; the old favorite Andy McDowell pushed Direct a quarter on the home stretch in 32 seconds, and the little black was seemingly as good as ever. Margaret S. was given a couple of miles while Dave Young of Stockton sent along a two year old at a spanking clip. Lee Shaner had Sidena out for an airing and later gave Capt. B E. Harris' Starlight a smart brush. "Dick" Havey of Palo Alto Stock Farm was out with quite a number of his string, Electricity being especially admired for his work. Wm. Vioget, trainer and driver for the La Siesta Farm, worked Wanda and Maggie E. slowly, but Tom Keating of Reno sent Frank M. along at better than a "twenty-five" gait. The black coated Silas Skinner gave the spectators a slight exhibition of his ability to go fast and was accompanied a short distance by George Kneier who was driving the pacer Princess Alice. Redwood moved along very well, Tom Murphy not extending the stallion very rapidly. The veteran driver, A. L. Hinds, jogged Balkan in an easy manner, the grand looking son of Mambrino Wilkes showing an inclination for slow work owing to an ailing leg. J. L. McCord was content with giving Ned Winslow one fast quarter, the mile being completed in very ordinary time for him. Peter Wood was seen brushing with El Benton, the young Electioneer stallion so highly valued by the Souther Farm folks. Tom Smith of Vallejo showed off to advantage behind George Washington, a magnificent bay stallion by Mambrino Chief. Jr. The mare Emma Temple was sent for a fairly good mile and Charley David's warmed up Gold Medal, the bay gelding pleasing his admirers greatly. Scores of others were noticed but lack of space prevents a detailed account of the many seen trotting and pacing up and down the stretches.

As high noon was reached the sun burst through the clouds and the prospects for a splendid afternoon was assured. As the time set for the races approached, carriages began to roll into the mammoth enclosure and the many public hacks and busses engaged in transporting passengers from town were kept busy in bringing out the race goers who had congregated to witness the speed contests. The directors of the association were present in full force, with the exception of Mr. Valensin, who is at present in the East. All of the minor details had been carefully attended to, each of the committees carrying out their duties to the letter. At the hour appointed, J. H. White, of Lakeville, F. W. Loeber of St. Helena and Wilfred Page, of Penn's Grove, ascended the stairs to the judges' stand, Mr. Page having been selected to act as starting judge. The timers appointed were Hon. F. L. Coombs of Napa, Wm. Hendrickson of Sacramento and H. W. Meek of San Leandro. The bell was tapped for the first event of the meeting which was a special given by the association in place of the free-for-all pacing race, the latter having to be declared off owing to Almont Patchen being withdrawn. The entries for the special were Mary Lou, driven by J. L. McCord; Maggie E handled by Wm. Vioget and Emma Temple who was piloted by Lee Shaner. The bettors who surrounded the pool box at once made Emma Temple a favorite, she selling for $30, Mary Lou $12 and Maggie E. $10. In the mutuals Temple sold against the field, but during the early portion of the day the selling was not lively. When the word was given Emma Temple was sent to the front and led to the turn with Mary Lou lapped on her wheel, Maggie E. not relishing the speed of the leaders, laying a mile and a half behind. These relative positions were maintained until the quarter pole was reached at which point the head of Mary Lou showed in front and kept there for two hundred feet, when Maggie was brought up and at the half the trio were on even terms. For a moment or two Maggie had her nose in front, Temple falling behind, and although Shaner had had the pole, he pulled the mare to the outside and made a drive for the leaders, catching up with them as they all rounded into the home-stretch. Down the straight the three came head and head with no perceptable advantage to any of them.

Gradually Mary Lou crept ahead, and at the draw gate she was a short head to the good, Maggie E. and Temple nose and nose. As they passed under the wire, the judges saw the nose of Mary Lou first, Maggie E. second and Emma Temple third, not more than a head separating the entire three. Time, 2:21.

The second heat saw an increased interest taken in the pool box, the talent taking a fancy that Maggie was showing in better form than her two competitors, so the La Siesta entry was made choice at $25, Emma Temple $20, and the winner of the first heat sold at $18 When they started after several false scores, Temple at once went to the fore, and at the turn led by half a length. When the middle of the turn was reached Mary Lou made a spurt, and in short order was a length in front of Temple, the same distance separating the latter faom Maggie E. From the quarter Temple moved up, and at the three-eighths pole she was on even terms with Mary Lou. When the half was reached Maggie was brought up until no daylight separated them. Around the turn the three kept together, all of the drivers doing their utmost to get to the front. On turning into the stretch Maggie was half a length ahead, the others lapped on her wheel. As they came down the stretch, Mary Lou showed an extra burst of speed and headed the leader, ultimately winning the heat by half a length from Emma Temple, Maggie E. last. Time, 2:21¼.

As a natural consequence, Mary Lou was now made a pronounced favorite, Mr. McCord's mare selling for $25, while the field brought $12.

A change was made with Emma Temple, Lee Shaner giving up the reins to Andy McDowell. When the word was given Temple had half a length the best of the send off, which was taken advantage of by McDowell, for by the time he reached the turn there was a full length between Temple and Maggie E., the favorite being last. By the time the leader touched the three eighths post, Maggie, who at the time was lapped on her wheel, made a break and fell behind, Mary Lou passing up to second place. From here out the positions were unchanged, Emma Temple winning by two lengths from Mary Lou, Maggie E. a fairly good third. Time, 2:21¼.

The fourth heat proved to be the last one of the race. Vioget, the driver of Maggie E., was 27 pounds overweight, so it was deemed expedient to make a change, and Goldsmith was seen behind the mare in this heat.

Temple had a trifling advantage when the start was effected, and Andy improved his chance by giving the mare her head, and at the quarter she was four lengths to the good. As the three trotted up the back stretch, Maggie and Mary gradually improved, their positions having gained inch by inch on the leader. On the upper turn Emma lost her feet and made a stand-still break, the other two passing her quickly, and before she caught her stride the daughter of Jackson Temple was twenty lengths behind. Goldsmith made a hold bid for the leadership, but Mary Lou had too much speed, for when given her head she won by six lengths from Maggie in 2:22¾.

Between the second and third heats of the special race, J. A. Goldsmith brought out Stamboul 2:12¾, the announcement being made from the stand that the great son of Sultan would be driven to try and accomplish the task of beating his record. By the time the stallion was ready for his allotted task, the wind was blowing very strongly and it was generally acknowledged by the knowing ones that the horse had a difficult job of accomplishment, yet there was hardly any one present but what was anxious to see the noble animal lower his mark. Stamboul hardly looked up to form, his skin was too dry, and he did not sweat out properly, yet with all the drawbacks he finished a wonderful mile.

After scoring several times, Goldsmith nodded for the word, having as company McDowell who was "teasing" with Little Jug (a full brother to Little Brown Jug 2:11¼). The quarters were rated well, but there was too much to combat against. At the three-eighths pole Stamboul broke but caught very readily, losing very little by his behavior. Although every exertion was used, the son of Sultan could only compass the distance in 2:13¾.

Time, 0:32¾, 1:06, 1:39¾, 2 13¾.

The track was in superb condition, which accounted for some of the fast time that was made by the horses, and every credit is due the Directors of the Napa Association for the splendid condition in which the course was turned over to the Society.

The Breeder's Standard is the new method adopted by the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders to enable owners to secure records for green horses, and by many it was supposed that the innovation would prove acceptable to those who have always placed their faces resolutely against "tin cup records," or, to be more explicit, records made against the watch. The Pacific Coast Association fell into line and announced that one of these new stakes would be trotted each day during the meeting. For the first day Palo Alto entered Laura C., the San Mateo Stock Farm naming Anita, and the Nutwood Stock Farm Maud C. Twenty dollars each were paid into the Association by those making entries, and it was stipulated that one-half of the amount paid in should be returned to the one making the fastest heat. There was but little time consumed in scoring, and when the word was given, a very even start was the result. Laura C. proved the victor in the first heat, and, according to the rules, was sent to the stable, she having made a record of 2:29¼.

The first attempt saw the remaining pair sent away, Maud C. cutting away at a remarkable pace, the first heat having evidently sharpened her up a bit. She was never headed in the heat, winning in 2:27. After the conclusion of the second heat, Mr. Corbitt announced to the judges that, owing to shortness of work, he wanted to withdraw Anita, and that he would start her in a like race later on in the meeting. The breeding of the two mares that made records is as follows: Maud C. by California Nutwood, dam by Steinway; 2d dam Fanny Malone by Niagara, Fanny Malone being also the grandam of Chas. Derby, 2:24½. Laura C. by Electioneer, dam Fanny Lewis by imp. Buckden.

The 2:22 class for trotters was productive of much interest, as the two great geldings, Homestake and Frank M., were starters, and the supporters of each were confident their particular favorite could beat the other. Those who fancied Homestake as the winner made him first choice at $25, Frank M. selling for $18, while the field sold for $5.

Each of the drivers tried for an advantage, and there was repeated scoring before Starter Page sent the quartette off on their mission, Redwood having two lengths the worst of it. McDowell had so much confidence in Homestake that he gave the gelding his head, and the quarter was negotiated in 33½ seconds, but even with this speed the only mare in the race was sticking close to him, and the pair reached the half in 1:06½, although the official time was announced as 1:06¾. This clip was too much for Homestake, who left his feet, and for a few seconds Wanda held the lead, but it was of short duration, as Frank M., who was going very steady, soon passed the daughter of Eros, the exertion on the first half having pumped the mare out. Around the turn Frank led by two lengths, Wanda second, Redwood third and Homestake twenty lengths in the rear. When the latter reached the middle of the turn he broke a second time, and McDowell let him run in a style that, as far as speed is concerned, would have done credit to Firenzi. Frank M. won an easy heat in 2:19½, the positions on the outcome being as given above, Homestake being just inside the distance flag, although he ran all the way from the three-quarter pole.

Frank M. was now supported as favorite, still lots of Homestake money was forthcoming on his chances, and when the horses came to the wire for the second heat, he had again been installed as first choice. The second heat showed that Homestake could trot when he kept steady, as he was leading on the turn, Frank M. having made a break shortly after leaving the wire. Homestake was never headed in the heat, Wanda again getting second place, Frank M. third and Redwood distanced. Time, 2:20¾.

For the third heat Homestake sold at $25, the Field selling for $12, and the latter was eagerly nibbled at by many who were willing to pin their faith to the well known gameness of Frank M. But the fates and Homestake were against any chance that the Keating horse might have had, for the best he could do was to gain second place to Mr. Salisbury's horse who won in 2:19½. The last heat was postponed until Monday morning, but to keep the races in regular order the description of it is given here. On Saturday evening the shoes were taken off Frank M., his feet being in a frightful condition from the effects of the hard campaign that he has passed through this season. Poulticse were applied with beneficial effects and on Monday he came out looking much better than he did on Saturday. The fine appearance of Frank caused the shortenders to buy him up greedily at $12, especially as Wanda was thrown in for nothing. The Homestake people felt they had a good thing and showered in their money at $25 for the amount given for the field. The two geldings were sent off together with Wanda two lengths behind. The black and the bay kept head and head to the middle of the first turn where Frank broke and fell behind, Wanda taking second place. At the quarter Homestake led by two lengths from Wanda, with Frank M. six lengths further back. After the black fairly settled and regained his natural stride, the gap was speedily reduced, and as Wanda broke at the three-eighths, was soon in second place. At the entrance to the upper turn only a length and a half separated the pair, both going very steadily. On entering the stretch Keating sent Frank M. along at a fearful clip and it looked any one's race but the sore feet played sad havoc with Frank and he made a second break, virtually giving the son of Gibralter the race and heat, but to win Andy was compelled to let Homestake have his head as he has a decided inclination to break when taken back. When the time 2:15½ was hung out, the audience applauded liberally, and the backers of Homestake were happy.

The two year old stake had five paid up entries, and consisted of Vida Wilkes, Almoneer, Starlight, El Benton and Mylitta. As it was generally acknowledged that Vida had the foot of the party, by mutual consent distance was waved. When the word was given, a straggling start resulted the youngsters showing considerable fractiousness. Goldsmith made the pace with the representative of the Wilkes family and on the turn the positions were Vida Wilkes, Almoneer, Starlight, Mylitta and El Benton last, he having lost his feet shortly after the start. From here out the five little lads and lassies were strung out in processional form, the last mentioned alternately breaking. On the upper turn the order was Vida, Almoneer, El Benton, Mylitta and Starlight, they passing under the wire in the order named. Time, 2:29¾.

The second heat was simply a repetition of the first and they came in exactly the same. Goldsmith drove the young filly a fast mile being anxious to get a record for her, and 2:26 is now hung to her credit. The balance were strung out all along the home stretch, the hollow victory causing no excitement among the spectators.

SECOND DAY.

After the unfinished race from Saturday had been trotted, an account of which is given under the proceedings of the initial day, the first regular event on the programme was called, it being for the 2:40 class of trotters, and although four horses had been named, only one of the quartette put in an appearance, that being Electricity, by Electioneer, dam Midnight (dam of Jay Eye See 2:10, and Noontide 2:20½) by Pilot Jr, 12. The Directors allowed Mr. Havey to drive over for the entrance money, and the "big stud," as he is usually called, had no difficulty in negotiating a mile in 2:24¾, the quarters being completed in 35¼, 1:11½, 1:50¾, and the full mile as given above. After the Electricity mile, the three year old stake for trotters was announced, but again there was only one starter as the champion three yeor old colt of 1890 evidently frightened out the balance of the entries, and he travelled the distance for the money paid in by the subscribers, which must have amounted to a goodly sum, as the stake was one of the first opened by the Association this year. The young bay stallion was hardly as good as he was at Fresno, yet still he had a world of speed, and after a hard drive, finished very fresh, the quarters being 33½, 1:09, 1:44½, 2:18¼. This was not within three-quarters of a second of his record, yet still there was an amount of reserve that convinced the bystanders that this son of Guy Wilkes can beat his present mark when called upon for a supreme effort.

Another of the stakes which closed early in the season was the 2:30 class for stallions eligible to the class named, the starters being Balkan, Silas Skinner and George Washington. In the pools Silas Skinner sold as first choice at $50 while the field sold for $9.

After several ineffectual attempts, the word was given to a fairly even start, and the three were on an equality when the trio entered the backstretch, but when well on their way up the straight the head and shoulders of Skinner showed in front, and at the three-eighths pole the leader made a slight skip and gained two lengths, Washington being second and Balkan still another length behind the middle horse. Smith behind Washington made a drive for the favorite, and on rounding into the turn there was only one length separating the pair, the bay stallion showing a tenacity of purpose that was delightful to those who had speculated on the short end. At the middle of the turn Balkan was four lengths to the bad, but going in a good, steady manner. Down the homestretch Skinner and Washington came in perfect ding-dong fashion, and the hopes of the short end pool buyers were elevated to a high degree as the favorite broke at the seven-eighth pole, but almost in the same instant Washington went up and the "fielders" were correspondingly depressed. Skinner caught first and passed under the wire a winner by two lengths, Balkan six lengths behind Washington. Time, 2:21½.

The betting fraternity made a rush for the box, as a rumor had gained currency that Washington could put the next three heats in about "twenty," but the Skinner people kept their horse as first choice at $25, the field selling at $9.

Again a good send off was made, and now it was discovered that John Goldsmith was up behind Washington. On entering the first turn Balkan fell behind, Hinds evidently intending to reserve his stallion in event of split heat, so the fight was left to the other two. On the backstretch Skinner broke and fell behind, but ran so determinedly that he carried Washington off his feet. When the pair settled, Skinner was ten lengths to the good of Washington, Balkan two lengths further behind. Goldsmith urged Washington forward, and slowly closed on Skinner until only three lengths separated them. As they came down the straight the heat was virtually over, as Skinner came with his full speed, winning by four lengths from Washington, the same distance separating the second and third horses. Time, 2:20¼.

For the next heat the betting was very light at $20 for Skinner to $5 on the field.

On the fourth attempt the word was given, Washington and Skinner cutting out the pace, Hinds drawing Balkan in behind the pole horse. The quarter was reached in 35 seconds, with Washington and Skinner nose and nose. When well into the back stretch, Skinner broke and Washington took the lead by a length, which was quickly cut down to even terms when Skinner settled. The two travelled like a double team to the turn when Skinner again broke, but caught with little difficulty, and again the battle royal was renewed. Down the home stretch the pair came at a twenty gait, Skinner winning by half a length, Washington second, Balkan well inside the flag. The judge had appointed Director Tompkins a patrol judge to report on the actions of Skinner, as he has a peculiar running motion behind, while trotting fairly with his front legs.

After listening to the report from Mr. Tompkins and taking into consideration the two breaks, decided in favor of Washington, placing Balkan second and Skinner third. Time, 2:20. The result was received by cheers and applause by those holding short end tickets.

The fourth and last heat of the stallion race drew the undivided attention of the audience, as great local interest was manifested in this result, Skinner being a Santa Rosa owned horse, while Washington is owned in Vallejo. On the fifth score the word was given, the two fast ones again locking horns, with Balkan trailing. Skinner kept up his skip Jack motion, alternating it with good square trotting, The fight was between Skinner and Washington, Balkan being out of the contest, owing to an ailing leg, Mr. Hinde, the driver, asked permission to withdraw his horse after the third heat, but his request was refused. As the leaders turned into the home stretch, Skinner led by a length, Washington crawling up inch by inch until within a few feet of the wire, when he broke, leaving victory with Skinner. Time, 2:22¼.

A match race had been arranged between the owners of Susette and Daly and permission was asked the Judges to allow the contest to take place during the day. Consent being given the horses were brought out between the third and fourth heats of the stallion race, but the interest amounted to but little as Susette cut out the pace and was never headed the time being 2:25¼.

The second heat was reversed as Daly won in 2:31½ and in the third heat simply walked away from the mare in 2:25¼

THIRD DAY.

The morning opened up bright and beautiful, but a heavy wind was blowing quite fiercely from the northwest, and there was not much chance for fast time. The attendance was small, the sport warranting crowded stands, but only a beggarly array of empty benches were discernable from the stand on the opposite side of the track. Four events were on the programme, the first of which was the $500 purse, for three-year-olds. Only two of the many entries came out to start: Lynette, owned by U. S. Gregory of Ione, and Lottery Ticket, the property of L. Funk of Farmington, San Joaquin county. In the pools Lottery ticket was the favorite at $20 to $9 for Lynette, and at this rate a large sum went into the box. In drawing for position, Lottery Ticket failed to win the prize as usual, Lynette taking the pole. The Farmington horse acted very unruly, and broke five times, each of these causing him to lose ground, and Lynette had no trouble in winning easy, the time being 2:31¾. After the heat was trotted, the owner of Lynette claimed the race on the ground that the Judges had the discretionary power to distance a horse breaking four or more times. After consultation, the claim was disallowed, and Lottery Ticket given second place.

Before the second heat, Lottery Ticket sold at $25 Lynette selling for $5, the backers of the favorite having every confidence in the ability of the colt to beat the filly. When the word was given, Lottery Ticket took the lead, and was not headed, Lynette acting as badly in this one as did Lottery Ticket in the former. Coming down the stretch Dustin eased up on the colt, and almost walked under the wire in 2:41½.

For the third heat of the colt purse, no pools were sold, the race being considered all over but the shouting. It was only an exercising jog for Lottery Ticket who took the lead and was never headed, Lynette again acting badly. Time, 2:38.

The fourth and last heat was similar to the last two, Lottery Ticket winning easily in 2:29.

Naturally a great deal of interest centered in the 2:20 race and money fairly flowed into the box, Hazel Wilkes selling for $25, Homestake $18, and the Field consisting of Emma Temple coupled with Maggie fetching $4.

On the fifth attempt the word was given to a very even start, but just as the four reached the turn Hazel Wilkes made a bad break and fell a dozen lengths behind, Homestake leading by a head from Maggie E. When Hazel Wilkes settled Goldsmith brought her gradually up and on the upper turn was only two lengths behind the leader. Maggie E. in the meantime had made a disastrous break and was almost a distance behind. The first and second choices made a good fight down the stretch but Homestake had an easy heat in 2:18, Hazel four lengths behind, Emma Temple well in and Maggie E only just within the distance flag.

The second heat of the 2:20 class was again productive of good betting, Homestake selling for $25, Hazel Wilkes $21, and the field $3.

Again a good start was made, but Goldsmith did not urge the mare around the first turn, where Homestake led by a length and a half. When the backstretch was reached Andy let out Homestake and was soon leading by half a dozen lengths. Again Goldsmith pursued the same tactics as before, closing up the gap slowly but surely. On the upper turn only a length separated the two leaders, but Hazel could not get any nearer to Homestake, who passed under the wire in 2:14¼. Hazel Wilkes who was second, was timed in 2.15½, Maggie E was third and Emma Temple last.

The third heat of the 2:20 class, trotting, saw still another change in the betting, Homestake selling for $25 and the field at $16 or $17, with Hazel Wilkes now in the field.

When Mr. Page shouted "go" Hazel was three quarters of a length behind Homestake and on equal terms with Emma Temple, Maggie E being head and head with the favorite. At the beginning of the first turn Andy again took a commanding lead with Johnny Goldsmith holding back on Hazel, being a little afraid to let the man have her head. On the entrance to the backstretch she was let out a link or two, and decreased slightly the lead of four lengths, Maggie E. and Temple being on even terms. On the upper turn Hazel still kept creeping up on Homestake until the head of the stretch was reached, when a regular hammer and tongs fight ensued between the two leaders and the crowd stood with bated breath as they came down the straight at a 2:10 gait. There was simply a flash and the pair passed under the wire with Homestake winner by a short head, and the two greatest heats that were ever trotted in California in one race was a thing of the past, and those present were willing to acknowledge that the Pleasanton Stock Farm entry had amply verified the predictions of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that there would be sensational performers at the Breeders Meeting. But the honor is not entirely due to Homestake, for Hazel Wilkes is entitled to great credit for her two grand performances, she forcing the son of Gibraltar to his terrific speed. In the last heat she trotted faster than the gelding for receiving the worst of the send off she was only beaten by a short head,

The sensational performance of Homestake was followed by a special race for named horses, the starters being Mattie P., Rockwood, Prince B. and Foxy V. Prince B. was the favorite at good substantial odds, his Stockton performance proving him to be a good reliable horse. Mattie P. was a fair second choice, the Petaluma contingent sticking to her like leeches. The first two heats were eye openers for the Prince B. people as Mattie P. won as she liked in 2:27¾ and 2:30½. At this stage of the game, complaint was made to the judges that Prince B. was not being driven to win, and Dustin was asked if he would drive the gelding. Before the matter could be arranged, Mr. Phillips, one of the owners of Prince B. went into the stand and stated that he would like permission to put Goldsmith behind his horse as the other driver had notified him that he would like some other driver put up. The request was granted and on the horses being called for the third heat "our John" was holding the ribbons over him. A change now occured as Prince B. was taken to the front and never headed during the heat, although Misner behind Mattie made a determined drive for the first money, trying to finish it in straight heats. Prince B. won the third heat in 2:26, when darkness compelled a postponement until the next morning. Sandwiched between the heats of the special was a match race for two pacers, the consideration being $50. Albert H. and Modjeska were the starters, and the former proved himself the best stayer of the two, winning consecutive heats. It must be said, however, that Mojeska had sore feet and was decidedly lame, so that she may possibly make a better showing in future.

FOURTH DAY.

Again a small attendance gathered at the track, notwithstanding the advertised match race between Margaret S. and Regal Wilkes, and also the announcement that ladies would be permitted into the course free. From the time that the match was made, the subject was the main topic of conversation on the street of this beautiful town, and wherever a knot of persons congregated, the respective merits of the two great youngsters were discussed. A number of wagers were laid at the odds of $100 to $60 that the mare would beat the three-year-old, yet still there were many who imagined that as Margaret made her record of 2:12½ on a kite-shaped track, and that her best record on an oval course was 2:16½, that Regal could hold his own with the now celebrated daughter of Director, and as he already had a record of 2:17½, there was not so very much difference in the speed of the two.

The first race on the card for the day was a match for $50 between A. B. Rodman's Patty P. and F. H. Burke's Mariquita, a friendly rivalry existing in regard to the relative merits of the two mares.

The word was given after one false score, but at the turn Patty broke, and from there out she played but little part in the first heat, Mariquita winning in 2:35½. The next two heats were won easily by Patty P. in 2:36 and 2:37. The winner is a daughter of Richmont (son of Almont), and is as game a little mare as ever put a foot to ground. With proper care and the necessary amount of work, she should prove a fast trotter.

After the match R Havey, on behalf of Palo Alto, brought out Laura C. to go a mile against her present record of 2:20¼. The wind was too high to permit of fast time, yet she trotted in 2:29½, an unusually good mile considering the weather.

The unfinished special race of the day before was the next event on the programme, and when the bell rang for the horses to come out, Andy McDowell was found behind Mattie P. The change was productive of some good, as the mare drove out Prince B. in 2:24½, which is at present his record. The fifth and deciding heat was won by the favorite, Goldsmith driving him with rare good judgment. The Phillips Bros. have a trotter in Prince B. that should be heard from all over the circuit next year, and we predict for him a low mark.

Number 5 on the programme was announced as a special match race for $2,500, mile heats, best three in five, the horses being Margaret S. four years old, owned by the Pleasanton Stock Farm, and Regal Wilkes, three years old, owned by William Corbitt. The match was made on Monday night between McDowell and Goldsmith, each representing their respective stables. When the forfeit money was put up, Mr. Salisbury was called upon by McDowell and a committee from the Association, who stated that if the match could be bought off on Wednesday they would add $500 to the $1000 each supposed to be put up by the two drivers. The owner of Margaret S. gave full permission to McDowell to do as he pleased, so the match was announced in all the papers that it was possible to reach, but lo and behold on Wednesday morning rumors were rife that the mare was lame and that she would not start. When the Directors heard this story for the first time it was a staggerer, as on the night previous McDowell had gone before their meeting and declared that the race would positively take place. On Andy being interviewed he stated that the story was true and that they had worked on her almost all night in hopes that she would pull around all right. As was only natural, when the starting Judge made a speech expressing the regret of the Directors that the match was now declared of, cries of "fake" and "give us our money back" could be plainly heard from various portions of the ground. Many of the officials felt keenly their position in regard to the matter and it was only the conscientiousness of their innocence that relieved the embarrassment engendered by the circumstances. A rather strange coincidence in connection with the affair was that on the same day one of the events was a walk over for the four year old stake, and Margaret S. was the only one on which the final payment was made. The judges examined the mare's leg and they allowed her to walk over for the entrance money.

A special pacing race was now in order, Ned Winslow, Gold Medal and Princess Alice making an appearance to fight for the $400 purse. Princess Alice was made a strong favorite, and the knowing ones were up to their in what was considered a something. How the talent did sluice in their money, for was it not an air tight bottled up cinch, one of those "morals" which are heard of so often but so seldom run against? To make a long story short and without going into details, Gold Medal was in fine fettle for one mile, while Winslow was keyed up for a long contest, and between the two the favorite never got a heat, Winslow winning the second, third and fourth in 2:15, 2.19½, and 2:20, while Gold Medal took the first in 2:17¼. Clear and distinct were the mutterings from the Stockton delegation as heat after heat slipped through their fingers. Complaint was laid before the judges that George Kneier was incompetent and that the driver should be changed. The judges, after listening to the argument, denied their right to make a change, and it was only after the third heat that Mr. Patterson concluded to put up Goldsmith, but the mare had been pumped in the third heat and was no future use.

Then came what at one time promised to be a sensational event—the Stanford Stake—but when the last payment came due, Palo Alto Stock Farm was the only one to pay up, so a walk over was in order. Coral, three years old, by Electioneer, dam Columbine by A. W. Richmond, was the one selected to carry away the rich stake amounting to over $2,000, and the filly had an easy time, not being asked to do any better than 2:46.

The last race of the day was between the two-year-olds, Almoneer and Sidney Roy. The latter was very short of work and could not get in a heat, but in what trotting he did do, stamped himself as by far the fastest youngster of the two. Almoneer won in 2:33¾ and 2:31½. This pair may come together again on Saturday, when much better time may be expected.

THE LOS ANGELES RACES.

The Sixth District Agricultural Fair now in Progress.

The opening day of the Sixth District Agricultural Fair races opened on Tuesday last. The opening day was all that could be expected or desired by the management. The weather was propitious and as the day wore on, the indications were that the anticipations of the officers of the Association would be fulfilled. The usual bustle and commotion attending the opening of so important an event to the horsemen of that district presaged a splendid outcome for the gathering.

Long before the first event was announced the grounds presented a lively appearance. The gate-keepers were fairly busy, and the rumble of busses and vehicles of all kinds as they ran to and fro from the grounds, announced that the interest of the public in such events had not fallen away. The first event was for the Nursery Stakes. This race was a half-mile dash, for which three horses, Mystery, Zingarella and Sinaloa were entered. After a sharp contest, Mystery won with Zingarella second and Sinaloa third. Time, 0:49. Mystery carried five pounds overweight. Paris mutuals paid $865.

The second race of the day was looked forward to with more than the usual interest. It was for the Pomona Stakes, a running race, distance, a mile and one-sixteenth, in which there were two starters, namely Gladiator and Minuet. The race proved fairly interesting and was won by Minuet. Time 1:50½. The Paris mutuals paid $320.

The next event was a trotting race for 2:28 class, for a purse of $600, best three in five. In this race there were four starters, namely Lucy R., McKinney, Jim Teach and Bashaw. The first heat was won by Jim Teach, McKinney second, Lucy R. third and Bashaw fourth. In the second heat Lucy R showed her metal winning the heat, Jim Teach second, McKinney third, Bashaw being distanced.

Lucy R. took the next heat also, with Jim Teach second and McKinney third.

In the fourth heat the order was reversed all around, McKinney taking first, Jim Teach second and Lucy R. third. The race was here postponed on account of darkness, but was finished on Wednesday, the 15th instant, Lucy R. taking the heat and winning the race, Jim Teach second and McKinney third.

SECOND DAY.

The second day opened in excellent condition. The attendance was much better that on the day previous. In fact crowds of people swarmed through the gates all the morning hours, and by the time the first event was called the grounds presented an inspiring appearance and the officers of the association were correspondingly happy.

The unfinished 2:28 trotting race was full of interest to all, as the heats had been so evenly distributed on the day previous that it yet seemed any one's race. The event closed with a very prettily contested heat, Lucy R. winning the heat and race as above noted.

Second race.—The second race was for the Ventura Cup, half-mile heats, for all ages, $200 being added. In this event, three horses came on at the call, being Amazon, Gambo and Comet.

It proved to be a very fair race Gambo winning in 0:48½, Amazon second, Comet distanced.

Third race.—The third event was for the Riverside handicap, mile and a quarter, all ages, $250 added.

In this race were entered Marigold, Rico, and Nacho B, the latter winning in 2:08¼.

Fourth race.—The fourth race was for three minute class, and was contested by Orphan Girl, Carrie S., and Sullandin.

After some difficulty in starting the trio were given the word and sent away to a fair start, Sullandin winning the heat. Time 2:32¾.

Darkness coming on the race was postponed.

Hueneme Park Races.

Hneneme ie a swest littie village close by the sea. It does hot claim over thres hnndred Inhabitents, but the farms around the village are so prodnctive end so numeroue, that on a race day fully one thousand people gather around to attend the reces.

Ventnre Connty should be prond of ths fast treck at thie little villege of Hueneme. The farms around the place ate well equipped, and the farmers ere all intereeted in well bred and fast horees. Nearly every yonng colt aronnd is either by A. W. Richmond or Wildidle.

They ship more grain from the Hueneme wharf than from any other wharf south of Sen Francisco, and Ventura alone ships more barley than any other coast county. Hueneme hae a rich bank, and the efficient and affable cashier, Mayor Gregg and his aesistant, Arthur Greenwell, are highly epoken of. The bank building is a credit to the little village.

The race track was snrveyed and laid out by the most popular jnry man of Hneneme, Charles Greenwell. He received instructions from the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and no one has a doubt but thet he has laid out the fastest track in the State. It is a new track, but without hesitancy we claim it to be the feetest track in the State. The soil ie elastic, compact and nature made it as even as ground can lay. The turns have been turned with great care, and the stretches are nnexcelled.

J. G. Hill, one of the prime movers of the track, is a wealthy, energetic farmer, who looks out, perhaps too zealously, of his own interests, but he has endeavored to make the Hneneme track the most popular in Southern California. Mr. Hill has a beantiful farm stooked with ine finest bred horees, and he has now very promising young colts. His stallion Sid by Sid Arthur is a fashionably bred horse, and has been a race crack. Mr. Hill has Richmond mares and geldings, and many fashionably bred horses. Ile has the dam of the greet race horse of this year, Tycoon, and aiso of Odette. He has a full sister to Gladstone, thet promisee to be a grset mare. Mr. Hill is an actual equine lover, end if he will manage moro judiciously, will win many great races next year.

This wae Hneneme's first racing soason, and it is natural that many deficiencioe were noticeable. Leon Lehman, Henry Levy, Chas. Greenwell and Mr. Carsen worked assidiously for the aecommodation of their guests and the horsee. Stable room was furnished to all the race horsee, and the purses, although ths racee in most instances did not fill, etill the purses were paid without any deduction. The judges on the first day were somewhat rattled, or else they wished to favor Mr. Hill, for it is nuiversally admitted that the race between Othello, a Santa Barbara horse, and Sid, Mr. Hill's horse, was either won by Othello or it was a dead heat. Mr. Johnson, one of the judges, says that Othello won the race by eight inchee at least. We are inclined to believe that the other two judges were excited, and as their inclination was for Mr. Hill's horse, in their excitement and haste, they nnwittingly decided the race in favor of Sid. We think that if they had thought somewhat over it, that they, although unwillingly, would have declared the pools off for the mile, and have divided the money bstween the two horsss. As it was a Novelty race, it was their best conrse.

FRIDAY, OCT. 3—FIRST DAY.

The first race was the Novelty race, for one mile, in which started Sid, Othello, Sid Law, Midnight, Sleepy Dick, Hnmming Bird, Loco and Ulpiano. In the pools for the first quarter, Midnight was favorite, Sid Lew secoud, Humming Bird third, and the rest in the field. For the half they sold the same, and for the mile Othello $10, Sid $10, field $3. The horses got off to a very poor start. Ulpiano wes left at the post, and Midnight got off five lengths bebind The first qnarter was run in 0:24½ and won handily by Sid Law, and the half also in 0:49¼ The three-qnartere was won by Sid and also the mile, at leeet eo two of the judgee decided.

The next race wae the race of the Fair. Cyclone and Leon were to have it single handed. Cyclone had beaten Leon in Santa Barbara, and as Leon belongs in Hneneme, the people of this village felt that the gray gelding by tbe famone old A. W. Richmond, wonld defeat Cyclone. Many pools were eold on this race, the Ventura City boye and the Santa Paula boys betting on Cyclone, while Santa Barbara and Hneneme made Leon ihe favorite. Pools sold Leon $10, Cyclone $5 and somstimes $7. At the track Leon brought $12 and Cyclone $7. When the horses were called great cheering wae indulged in. John Hobeon of Ventura had hie money on the sorrel, and he was sure of success. Carson, with his red cap and jacket, looked proud behind his grey. Leon drew the pole. The horses wsre started on the fifth attempt and they went around the first quarter well together, Leon reaching the firet quarter in :38¼. On the backetretch he had two lengths tbe best of Cyclone, and so they were when they reached the half in 1:16. At the three-quartsr post Cyclone was on his wheel, and at the distance flag they were head and head, but Leon drew away from there and won handily by a length in 2:32½.

The Hueneme boys did great cheering. Even the eweet young ladies of the village waved their handkerchiefe, smiled and bowed. When the horsss came out for the eecond heat all was quiet. Intently were the horses watched. James Mack, behind the old warrior, Cyclone, looked determined. He scored Leon at a terrific clip, and when the horees got the word they went fast. Together they went aronnd the turn, fighting each step. To the first quarter they went in :38. On the back stretch Leon broke and when they reeched the half in 1.15½, Cyclone wae a half a length in the lead. From there Leon increaeed his pace and was soon in the head. When ths home stretch wae reached Leon was two lengths ahead, and Carson looking back. Mack could not reach him, hut when within one hnndred feet of the wire Cyclone came np to Lewis's whsel. Careon took another look hack and when he looked at his horse Cyclone wes at the wire and half a length ahead. Cyclone won the heat in 2:30. The first mile that has been trotted in Ventura County in 2:30 and Whipple's Hambletonian has another in the charmed list. The Hueneme people were less jubilant, and the Ventnrenoe were boisterous. A good displey of skillful driving.

Again the horses were brought out and they scored twenty minutee before they were started. Cyclone broke right under the wire, but the word "go" had been given, and he had to go. Leon reached the first quarter ten lengthe ahead. Cyclone eettled down and trotted fast, hut never caught Leon who won in 2:32.

When they were called for the fourth heat, Cyclone was lame. It wae a fore gone conclneion. The crippled gelding must give np the heat and race. The two horsee went aronnd at a slow gait. Leon leading all the way by eix lengths and winning handily in 2:42. Thns ended the race over which each great intereet wae manifeeted. "Hueneme is on top," yelled the little village boys.

THE NURSERY STUD.

Breeding Farm of Mr. August Belmont.

St. Blaise, One of the Most Promising Sires in the Country—Ill Used and His Son, Magnetizer.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 26th.—Two and a half milee from Lexington, on the "Georgetown pike," one of the moet beentiful thoronghfares leading out of the Blue Grass metropolis ie the hendsomely kept Nursery Stud, one of the finest etock farme in America, and the breeding establishment of thet eucceesful breeder and turfman, Mr. August Belmont, says the New Orleens Timoe—Demociat.

The drive to the Nursery Stud was e delightful one, and it would not take the most pronounced stranger in the region to recognize the heautiful farm es the breeding headquarters of one of ihe moet liberal and painstaking horse-breeders in the country. In the rich, heavily ehaded blue grses psetures fronting on the turnpike a little band of blue-blooded stud matrone wore grezing, but a double line of snowy whitewaehed fences bordered the pastnre, with a narrow grasey lene eeperating the outer from the inner line. Every animal on Mr. Belmont'e farm ie worth a great deal of money, and the introdnction of any fatal malady like glanders would mean a tremendons blow, not only financially, hut to the preetige of his farm and the continued snocess of hie colors on the turf. The equine tramp who may wander along the roadside, the peddler'e horse, or the drummer's livery outfit cannot by any possibility sow the seeds of diease on Mr. Belmont'e farm. The patrician stock of the Nursery Stud is afforded no opportunity of commnnication with the plebeian who may nibble grase by the roadside heyond an exchange of the commoneet civilities at long range.

Though thie device for preeerving valuable horses from contamination ie not in general use, there are many precautions which Kentucky breeders practice for prsveuting the introduction of intection into their breeding studs. A livery horee or a horee from any of the public etables in the city ie never even for a few moments houeed in a stall intended to be occnpied by any of the etock belonging to the farm, while the utmoet care is taken with stable buckets, hlankets and other appliances to prevent the possible carrying of infection.

In the arrangement of hie etable Mr. Belmont has adopted the plan described in a former letter as prevailing on Kingston Stnd Farm. The buildinge are all of modern size and so ecattered as to prevent the spreading of fire from one to another.

Everything about the farm ie kept in the most perfect order, and the moet ecrnpulone neatnese and cleenlinese prevails everywhere. There ie not a panel of fence that ie not thickly crnsted with enowy whitewash, every outhuilding is either freehly painted or whitewaehed, there is not a weed to he seen in any of the great velvety blue grass peetnres, every clump of woodlend ie carefully underhrnshed, and the giant ehade trees are as neatly prnned as though they were young frnit trees. In a beautiful roomy paddock or emall pasture throngh whioh rune a limpid spring brook was found the stud king, imported St. Blaise, who bide fair to prove one of the most brilliantly enceseful siree that ever etood in America.

St. Blaise is in all respecte a grand looking horee. A bright golden cheetnut with a silken coat that glitlers in the afternoon snnlight like gold dust, a blazed fece and white feet, he looke a veritable prince of his race. He stands fully eixteen hands higb, but he is so long and massive that the beholder could hardly helieve him ae tall ae he really is. He hae a splendid looking head, a big, bright, prominent eye, a fine blood like ear, clean, wide throttle, a grandly arched neck, hoth rangy and muecular: a broad, full chest, sloping shouldere, long, etout and beautifnlly rounded barrel, powerful closely coupled loins; broad, rangy and maseive quarters, with thick etiflee well let down, end clean flat limbe. He is altogether a euperb looking horse. With euch a grand ehowing as hie two-year-olds have made this year, with his rich heritege of winning etrains and with his own splendid individuality, St. Blaise hae everything in hie favor. Hie pedigree ie ae follows:

Saint Blaise, ch h, foaled 1880; bred by Lord Alington: imported 1886, and owned by Hon. Aneuet Belmont, Nureery Stud, Lexington, Ky. hy Hermit. First dam, Fusee by Marsyas; eecond dam, Veeuvienne by Gladiator; third dam, Venus by Sir Hercnles; fourth dam, Echo by Eurilinе; fifth dam by Send or Pioneer; eixth dam, Canary Bird by Whisky or Sorcerer; eeventh dam, Canary by Coriander; eighth dam Miee Green by Highflyer; ninth dam, Harriet hy Matchem; tenth dam, Flora by Regulne; eleventh dam by Bartlet's Childere; twelfth dam hy Bay Bolton; thirteenth dam by Belgrade Turk.

As the sire of ao many fast and promieing youngsters (especially hia two-year-olds), St. Blaise is sure to prove a most valuable acquisition to the thoroughbred horse interest of this conntry. The success of his two-year-olds has been almost phenomenal this year, while even his first crop showed to no amall advantage. His breeding ia extremely rich on all sidea, and his individuality is good enongh to atamp him as firat class in all reapects. His sons and danghters are speedy np to great weight, and capable of winning in fast company in either light or heavy going.

In the next paddock was found imported Ill Used, another sire of winnera and a horse of grand breeding and fine individuality. His get have proved themaelves stout, game and speedy upon the turf and they have been animala that almoat invariably trained on, nearly all being of the hard wear-and-tear sort that will nearly always give good acconnts of themselves in any company. Though St. Blaise had the honor of prodncing the Futurity winner, hia stnrdy little atnd companion had the honor of being the sire of the place horse in that rich event.

Ill Used, while not such a grand-looking horse as Saint Bleiae, is a wonderfully stout little fellow of marvelous high quality. He ia in fact a big horse on short legs. He is long, low and stout, and massive rather than large. He haa a small tapering head, a handsome muscular neck, which, though less arched than that of Saint Blaise, is beantifully turned and gracefully laid between rangy, aloping shonlders. His barrel is long, very atout and beautifully rounded with a high, closely coupled broad loin and grand qnarters. He is in fact, a hard horse to describe in a pen picture, as he is strongly stamped with a peculiarly high quality and patrician grace that, while readily recognized by the practical eye of the horaeman, is very difficult to describe. He has an indescribable admixture of the stoutness of the cob with the reach, the quality and the peculiarly graceful quality of a race horse of the highest type. He is a bright bay with a wonderfully fine coat and a skin so delicate that the network of veins ia easily discernible beneath it.

His pedigree is as follows:

Ill Used, b h, foaled 1870, bred by Col. Townly, imported and owned by Hon. A. Belmont, Nursery Stud, Lexington, Ky. By Breadalbane.

First dam, Ellimier by Chanticleer; second dam, Ellerdale by Lanercost; third dam, by Tom Boy; fourth dam, Tisane, by Whisker; fifth dam. Lady of the Tees by Octavian; aixth dam, by Sancho; seventh dam, Miss Fury by Trumpator; eigbth dam by Mark Anthony; ninth dam, S gnora by Snap; tenth dam, Misa Windnor by The Godolphin Arabian; eleventh dam, Sister to Wyville's Volunteer by Young Belgrade: twelfth dam by Barthel's Childers; thirteenth dam, by Devonahire cheatnut Arabian: fourteenth dam, Sister to Duke of Somerset's Westbury by the Curwen bay Barb; fifteentb dam by Old Spot; sixteenth dam by Woodcock.

The third of the Nursery stnd sirea was visited in his box. This was the splendid looking young stallion Magnetizer. Though new to the stnd Magnetizer is already a grand looking horse. Though only six years old he is an animal of fine range and anbstance, having more size than hia aire, Ill Used, without the aacrifice of any of that rare quality that constitntes such a distinguishing featnre of the old horse's make up. In color he closely resembles his sire, aa well as in general outline, and except that he has a little more length of limb, he might pasa for an enlarged copy of the old horse. Except in his two-year-old form Magnetizer was unfortnnate on the tnrf, failing to win bracketa in his three-year-old form, and not starting afterward. As a two-year old he started aix times and won three races.

At Jerome Park he started againat a field of maiden two year olds and carrying 110 pounds (top weight) beating a tield of six and running a half mile in 0:50¼. The betting against Magnetizer was 15 to 1.

At Coney Island, in tbe race for the Foam stakes, be carried 115 pounds and finished seventh, with Omaha 112, Guarantee 115, King Fish 115, and Miracle 115, ahead of him. A few daya later in the Snrf stakes, however, he carried 115 and beat Guarantee 115, Ballaton 115, Fanita 112, Miracle 115, and Omaha 119, running five furlongs in 1:02, and paid his backera 20 to 1.

His last victory waa in the Independence Stakea at Monmouth, when he carried 120 pounds and beat Flitaway 162, Satisfaction 117, Bay Ridge 112, Mirabean 105, Miracle 107, Balston 113, Sensation—Idalia colt 110, King Ernest—Invermore filly 102 and Sir Dixon 105 In thia race Magnetizer atarting with four to one against him got off absolntely last, bnt ran through his field and won easily by a length and a half, aix furlonga, in 1:15½. In the Hopefnl stakea he ran aecond to Woden and Torchlight. He finished away back in the Jnnior Champion Stakes won by King Fish with Los Angeles second and Sir Dixon third. Magnetizer's pedigree is as follows:

Bay horse, foaled 1885, bred by Hon. A. Belmont, Nursery Stnd, by imported Ill Uaed.

First dam Magnetiam by Kingfisher.
Second dam Attraction by imp. Balrownie.
Third dam imp. Mand by Stockwell.
Fonrth dam Conntesa Albemarle by Lanercost.
Fifth dam aister to Hornesea by Velocipede.
Sixth dam by Cerberus.
Seventh dam Miaa Cranfield by Sir Peter Teazle.
Eighth dam by Pegasns.
Ninth dam by Paymaster.
Teuth dam Pomona by Herod.
Eleventh dam Caroline by Snap.
Twelfth dam hy Regnlus.
Thirteenth dam by Hip.
Fourteenth dam Large Hartley by Hartley'a blind horae.
Fifteenth dam by Flying Whig by Williams' Woodstock Arabian.
Sixteenth dam by St. Victor Barb.
Seventeenth dam by Whynot (son of Fenwick Barb).
Eighteenth dam Royal mare.

It is probable that it would be difficult to find a more choice selection of broodmares anywhere under the sun than are to be seen at the Nuraery Stud.

Palo Alto's celebrated grey mare Sontag Mohawk by Mohawk Chief, is now the dam of five 2:30 performers—Sallie Benton by General Benton, 2:17¾ at four years old; Sport by Piedmont, 2:22¾ at five years old; Colma by Electioneer, 2:25¼ at four years old; Conductor by Electioneer, 2:25¼ at three years old, and Eros by Electioneer, 2:29½ at eight years old. Mr. Marvin saya by next Fall she will have another in the 2:30 list, and as she ia only fifteen, ahe ahould soon be at the head of trotting brood marea, for ahe aeema to throw trotters to every horse ahe ia mated with.

HARVEY WARDE PECK.

Now comes the day of the kite-shaped track. It originated as an experiment, gained a fasthold, and arose in a blaze of glory. That they are conducive to speed is undeniable Jack's mile in 2:12¼; Roy Wilkes' mile in 2:08¼; the two-year old Manager'a mile in 2:16½; Margaret S's mile in 2:12½ and Cricket's mile in 2:10; all made on the kite-shaped track at Independence, Ind., would seem too conclusive to awaken adverse argument. It is to be presumed that the kite-shaped will now blossom like the fabled lotns, and it may also be that a taste of its joys will affect the participator similarly to that accredited the lotus-eaters—they forgot the old love for the new! But while the horsemen advocate the shape for speed, beneath it all there ariaes a still, small kick—the races cannot be seen with anything like the same distinctness they can on the regulation track. This objection will be found to count for mnch, when it is properly nnderstood, for race meetings cannot succeed without patronage, and anything that militates against the gate money will have to go sooner or later. The horsemen alone cannot make any fair, a financial success by and in themselves, as cooperation must come from the public as well, to enable Fair managers to offer purses of sufficient size to tempt the owners of the best horsea.

I quote the following from the Examiner of Sept. 24th:

"To night an Examiner reporter had an interview with L U. Shippee, Preaident of the Society, relative to the charge that the Stockton Association does not treat the horsemen with tairness, and this ia what he haa to say:

"Tbere are always a few kickers at the fair who get angry because the judges and directors compel them to live up to the rules; They want their influence to be felt, too, and they join in the attack. The gamblers and these kickers want Sheriff Cnnningham, the Fair Directors and the people here to feel that if they are not allowed to do aa they please, the fair cannot be made a success. Well, now I think the people of this valley and manly horsemen will contribnte to make the fair successful, regardlesa of what the gamblers say:

"Frank Burke is quoted as saying tbat he is not coming to Stockton this year, because the Directors will not give him a fair deal and that he has no gnarantee of fair treatment. The true reason why Frank Bnrke will not come to the fair here this year is that he has no horses at present that can win a penny in any class. So far as fair treatment ia concerned neither he nor any other man can show a single instance where the directors of the fair ever failed to live np to their agreement. I defy anybody to give a single example.

"Goldsmith says he will not be here; that is trne, and I will tell you why. None of Corbitt'a horses which he is handling can win a prise in any class at this fair. That is the pitch of why Goldsmith will not be at the fair. Corbitt is a kicker, too, becanse several years ago when a horse of hia did not win he took exceptiona to the decisions of the race, and the judges decided against him. Last year, when he had a walk over, Goldsmith, who was driving, nodded to the judges for the go, according to the agreement he had made with them. After he had gone about a third of the conrse the horse made a bad break and Goldsmith came back for another start. The judges notified him before he got back to the starting point that he had been started once and conld not be started again. He insisted that he had a right to send his horse aronnd the conrse any time he pleased that afternoon. Well, we paid him the money and left the decision of the qnestion to the Tnrf Congress, which decided against him. He got his money, thongh, throngb the association's generosity."

This is, from some standpoints a very unique prodnction. Underneath it all is developed tbe praiseworthy desire to let the public know that the Stockton Fair waa a gigantic success in apite of opposition of all and every kind—of which I am trnely glad. I do not feel called upon to take np any peraonal quarrel that either Mr. Corbett, Mr. Burke or Mr. Goldsmith may have had witb the directora of the San Joaqnin Association. I am, however, compelled to say tbat, if Mr. Shippee ia correctly reported, his knowledge of aome horaes upon this coast is of very inferior order! To aay that Hazel Wilkea, Regal Wilkes, Sister V. Rupee, Wanda and Maggie E, could win no money at Stockton, (unless indeed there class racea were expnnged from the programme) is like confessing ones self a great navigator, without ever having seen salt water.

In the Sept. 15th iasue of that aplendid Eastern publication, Clark'a Horse Review, appeared thia squib:

"A writer who is well posted as to the Benton family, claims that Sunol is a typical Benton and possesaes but few of the characteriatica of Electioneer or of the thoroughred."

Without knowing thie writer peraonally, I venture the assertion that his claims to form will not be eeriously handicapped by any comment that can be made upon him. When a writer "well posted as to the Benton family" atands forth and declares him elf by stating that "Sunol ia a typical Benton" he can snrely have no pretention to fame, except anch as might accrue by avoiding the truth! Sunol in no one respect reaemblea Gen. Benton or any of his prodnce. Neither in conformation, gait nor disposition, does ahe reaemble the Benton family! Everyone that knows the mare well ia aware of this fact. Her general conformation ia patterned after her sire, her gait more nearly approaches the Electioneer family than any other; while her dispoaition wonld indicate that the infnsion of thoroughbred blood took a decided hold npon her, aa the Electioneer'a and Benton'a are very gentle and kindly dispositioned horses, aa a rule.

The Examiner of September 14th contained a picture of Mr. Gibson'a fine herd of Galloway cattle. The cnt was followed by a pleasing description of Mr. Gibson's anccesa in the rearing of Galloways—which I will say, incidentally, are a breed of hornless cattle. The picture, however, showed a gronp of draft horaes, a stallion, mare and colt! Beneath the pictnre waa the following—"From a photograph at the Fair grounds by the Examiner, special camera artist." Did the Galloways object to being photographed in public, or is it possible that the "special artist" did not know the difference between Galloways and draft horses when he met them face to face? Anyhow, Mr. Gibson was somewhat misrepresentated, although probably not so much so as he would have been had his own photograph appeared in the paper.

A modest epitaph that may be read on a tomb in a cemetery at Madrid: "Hic jacet Juan Pinto, the Spanish Orpheus. When he arrived in heaven he joined his voice to thoae of the archangels. Scarcely had He heard it than the Almighty exclaimed: 'Be silent, all, and allow the illustrious tenor, Juan Pinto, to sing alone!' "

This is conclusive evidence that human nature in all parts of the universe is very like. A couple of weeks since a gentleman of florid appearance, with his hat npon one side of his head and a "Pride of The Sewer" cigar in his mouth came through town on his way to the Lakeport races. He had a runner with him With this animal he intended winning most of the purses at the above mentioned fair. Aa he chewed his cigar, with his hands plunged deep in his pockets he assured me that his horse could literally run away from anything he would meet. I was diaposed to doubt tbis statement, as the only indication of running ability that his horse aeemed to possess was a banged tail! I asked,

"What sort of a run would he make with Salvator, do you think?"

"Salvator! Well—say, Salvator wouldn't be in it. They wouldn't go more'n a half before Salvator'a jockey would pull him to a atand still just to watch my horse run!"

Unfortunately he never reached Lakeport. He fell by the wayside.

TO BLACKLIST POOL BUYERS.

A NEW AND DETERMINED ENDEAVOR TO SUPPRESS THE GAMBLING EVIL.

The Society for the Suppression of Vice has determined to start out on a fresh crusade against the poolrooms.

The chief aim of the society is to prevent the growing patronage of the poolrooms by minors. A number of the Panper alley shops subsist almost entirely on the trade which they have trom boys and young men.

It ia well known that the practice of buying pools on the races has led a great many young clerks and office boys into all sorts of pernicions habits. A nnmber of cases on record sbow that petty and even grand larcenies which have been committed by minors are directly traceable to demands made upon the young betters for fnnds which their employment does not provide them with.

The latest move of the society is that of making a minute visit to the poolrooms throngb the medium of its agents and obtaining a complete list of those who patronize the places. It is proposed to get the names, addresses and employment of all who are fonnd playing pools on the races.—S. F. Examiner.

This Society for the Suppression of Vice, is, taken collectively, an ass! There are many occasiona wben they endeavor to cut a wide awatb, said swath being located entirely outside their jurisdiction. This is a fact that these very able gentlemen never comprehend, however. Notbing seems to come amiss to them. They are as indiscriminate in their attentions as the "brown bees of Hymettus." It is always a mistake for one half the world to attempt the conversion of the other half to their way of tbinking. That some defalcations have ariaen from a too free indnlgence in the pool box or too laviah patronage of the book-makers, there will be none to deny. Bnt that they are more numerous or more frequent tban crimes arising from other conrses, ia folly to assert. Dry wine; a cozy flat in the Western Addition, presided over by a fair-haired divinity; futile attempts to coerce "the tiger;" great admiration for diamonda of large eize; a swell tally-ho coach, and aeveral other things as well, have each and all contribnted to tbe downfall of many men, old and young, preachers and laymen. It would be an intereating atudy in bas-re-lief to "shadow" aome people I know wbom I think are ornamental membera of that great and good organization now known as the Society for the Suppreasion of Vice, and which will be known to posterity aa the Society for Incipient Lunatics—Limited.

There are none too poor to do reverence to a body of men or women, who are engaged in any hnmane and laudable undertaking, so long as they stay within bonnds. When, however, they transgresa the lawa of decency to the extent of obtaining the names, addresses and employment of people whose views and ways diverge from their own, in order that they may compel them to their way of thinkiug and acting by "blacklisting" them; then this body of men or women becomes a common nuisance and a stench in the nostrils of every right thinking man. If the agenta of this aociety vieit the San Francisco pool rooms for the above mentioned purpoae, it is sincerely to be hoped their advances will be met with a four-year-old club, ao thoroughly and promptly applied, that their mothers would paes them in the light of high noon, unrecognized.

Notice to Horsemen.

Wm. Boyd, the well known horseshoer, wishes to notify the public tbat he will be prepared to meet hia old customers and new ones, at the Stockton Race Track during the fair.

It appears that the sire moat fancied in Buenoa Ayrea is Phœnix, who will perhaps be remembered as one of the Count de Lagrange's horses, and about the running of which there was a very lively acene at Epsom some years ago. Mr. Kemmiss, who now owns Phœnix proposes to send one or two youngsters by him to England, and try and win the Derby. They will probably go to Kingsclere.

TURF AND TRACK.

The Grand Prize of Paris for 1892 has closed with no fewer than 383 entries.

W. Willett's well known horse Leatherwood, who was staked at the Lakeport races, has since died of lock jaw.

It is said that that clever and accomplished trainer and owner, William Lakeland, will handle the flag at Clifton this winter.

The English stallion Springfield's list is full for next season at 150 guineas ($750) and the same remark applies to Barcaldine.

Adonis the Sidney pacer who was left in Terra Haute will be brought to California in the Undine Stables Car which will come through shortly.

Mamie Fonso who has been very successful in the west this season is said to be safely in foal to Volante and her racing days will soon be o'er.

"Aurelius" thinks now that the kite-shaped tracks have come that the oval courses will become obsolete as factors of fast speed and honest racing.

John H. Wallace says the next movement will be for no records under any circumstances except in regularly contested races against other horses.

Orion, by Bend Or, out of Shotover, is said to be the crack two-year-old in England, and no wonder, for Bend Or won the Derby in 1880 and Shotover in 1882.

That grand old race horse Parole had his jaw broken by a kick from a horse recently. He is used at Rancocas as a leader for the yearlings in their first gallops.

The official timers at Terra Haute when Nelson made his great mile were Orrin A. Hickok, W. H. Crawford and P. D. Cox. The time by quarters was :32, 1:04¾, 1:36½ and 2:11¼.

The Rutland County (Vt.) Agricultural Society announces that the premiums awarded at the fair cannot be paid. The cause is the failure of the exhibition because of the rainy season.

G H. Hopper of Unionsville, Ohio, recently lost a bay filly by Bell Boy, dam Miss Wilkes, 2:29, by George Wilkes. This is the fourth valuable animal that Mr. Hopper has lost this year.

Mr. Withers believes that the mile record of 1:35¼, made by Salvator, could be beaten several seconds on the same course next year. The track was not in good condition when Salvator ran.

Charles Reed has purchased Laggard by Uncas from imp. Dawdle by Saunterer, grand dam Moula by Touchstone, from D. D. Withers, and will place him in the Fairview Stud where Exile already is.

Sir Dixon by Billet from Jaconet, a sister to the English Derby winner of 1880—Iroquois, has returned to Kentucky after a successful racing career. He will take Billet's place in the Runnymede Stud.

The Messrs. Briggs of Auburn, Me., owns a full sister to Nelson, 2:11½, the fastest stallion in the world, and a full brother to Sunol, 2:10½, the fastest three and four-year-old trotter the world has ever produced.

At Pittsburg the grand jury ignored bills against Samuel English, Frank Herdic, Harry Johnson and Jerome Smith for selling pools at the Homewood races and placed the costs on Capt. A. Wishart, the prosecutor.

The Agricultural and Mechanical Association has bought from the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association five acres of land adjoining their grounds and fronting sixty feet on South Broadway at $500 per acre.

J. D. Creighton, of Omaha, Neb., has purchased from Jacob T. Hugely, of Danville, Ky., for $10,000, the two-year-old filly Evangeline, who recently made a record of 2:28¾. She is by Director, dam by Red Wilkes.

Noah Armstrong says that Spokane, by Hyder Ali, dam Interpose, by Intruder, who won the Kentucky Derby in 1889, will never face the starter again. Mr. Armstrong says he has been permanently retired to the stud.

The Eureka Jockey Club will give two days' racing at South Park this month, on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 30th and 31st. A very good programme has been arranged and some exciting events may be anticipated.

Pierre Lorillard intends to engage in breeding thoroughbreds for racing on a more extensive plan than ever before. He will soon have at least one hundred and fifty first-class brood mares on his great farm at Jobstown, N. J.

Miss Majolica, the sister of Majolica 2:15, and of Mambrino Maid 2:17¾, was driven to a record of 2:24½ at Cleveland. She has been bred to Kremlin, the great young son of Lord Russell. Both are owned at Allen Farm.

Proctor Knott has been turned over to the Scorgan Bros. by Dr. Shepherd, who has been attending to his ailments for some time, and the white-faced chestnut should be seen in the van again next spring when racing commences.

Margaret S. heads the list of grand circuit winners. Her winnings are placed at $10,700. Walter E ranks second with $8,000, Mambrino Maid third with $7,625, Prince Regent fourth with $7,250, and Pamlico fifth with $6,000.

It is rumored among horsemen that Chicago is to have a kite-shaped track exclusively for trotters in the near future, and that an option on a tract of land for the purpose in the southwestern part of the city has already been obtained.

The Stewards of the English Jockey Club have decided that no declaration of partnership in brood mares which are engaged in Produce Races need be made until the declaration of produce, with which it must be made simultaneously.

A French journalist rejoiced the other day over a meeting at which there had been three walks-over, and waggishly suggested what a delightful remedy for betting—that English vice—it would be if only one horse were started for each race.

Pedigree certificates of the following yearlings (bred in U. S. America), the property of Mr. Leopold Rothschild, have been duly lodged with Messrs. Weatherby:—Engineer, b c by Darebin (imp.) —Tulare, b c by Sir Modred (imp.)—Typhoon.

Chinn & Morgan, Leonatus Stud, Ky., have bought of W. R. Letcher, Richmond, Ky., the six year old bay horse Tenacity, by Ten Broeck—Vivacity, by Virgil, for $1500 Tenacity is said to be very good just now, and should soon be won out.

Ed Gardner's yearling, half brother to The Bard, Bracelet by Mr. Pickwick—Bradmante, is credited with having done a quarter at Nashville recently in :24. Evidently the younggster has a touch of the speed that made his great half brother so famous.

John W. Stout, Jr. who owns a farm in the vicinity of Leedsville, is training a number of yearlings for the Dwyer Brothers. Last week there arrived at the farm Kingston, Hanover, and other well known racers who will remain there during the winter.

Marcus Daly, Anaconda, Mont., has bought of W. R. Brasfield & Co., Lexington the 2-year-old filly Lady Wilton (2:25) by Wilton, dam by Kentucky Prince, Jr. This is the filly that sold for $10,000 a short time ago, and it is said Daly paid more than that sum for her.

The noted brood mare, Naiad Queen, 2:20¼, by Champion, dam Tackey, 2:26, by Pilot, Jr., fell and broke her leg in the pasture of her owner, George G. White, near Paris, Ky., on Monday, and may have to be killed. She cost her owner $5,200 at auction a few years ago, Nashville is to have a new trotting track built on the kite-shaped plan. The track and the necessary buildings will occupy eighty acres on the Nolansville Pike, and the cost will be about $40,000. Street-car lines will run from the city to the track, which will be opened next summer.

St. Gatien, who was purchased some time back from Mr. John Hammond for £14,000 by Count Lehndorff, on behalf of the Royal German Stud, left Newmarket last August for his new home under the charge of Tom M'Lean. The horse was insured for £15,000 during his journey to Germany.

The horses belonging to the Chicago stables were sold at Morris Park Saturday. The following are among the horses disposed of, with the prices brought: Little Minch $1,000, Kaloolah $3,600, Terra Cotta $1,550, Exmont $2 650, Lela May $1,600, Robespierre $5 625, Joe Blakburn $2,100, Wrestler $2,025, Pessara $4,100

The fastest time made on the Lexington track by any yearling this fall was made by a Volturno filly out of Foshia. She ran a quarter with her weight up in 0:23½. She is the property of Mr. G.W. Simmons, the owner of the late George Wilkes. The trial was publicly made and is said to be correctly timed.

Dr. Charles William Aby was in San Francisco several days this week, and left for New York. He expects to return next month with some highly bred mares for the Guenoc Stock Farm. The Doctor says that the youngsters on the ranch are looking particularly well, and it will not be long before some of them will be heard from.

Telegraph operators at the English race-tracks have a busy time of it when there is a big event on the card. On St. Leger day upward of sixteen thousand ordinary messages were received and dispatched from Doncaster, in addition to press telegrams which contained one hundred thousand words. Sixty-five operators coped with this mass of work.

Scott Quinton, of Trenton, N. J., who last year trained Marcus Daly's trotters, writes: "I notice all the papers in reporting the sale of the chestnut filly Sappho, announce that I bought her for Marcus Daly, of Montana. I wish to state right here that I bought the mare strictly as a business speculation, and she is the sole property of myself and my brother."

The famous pacing sire Tom Hal that died in Tennessee last June, was buried with becoming honors, and his last resting place is marked by an appropriate head stone, on which is the following inscription: "Tom Hal, foaled 1862; died June 5, 1890; Rockdale Stock Farm, Bufords, Tenn. Sire of Brown Hal, 2:12½; Little Brown Jug, 2:11½; Hal Pointer, 2:13."

Little El Anoan, 2:16½, who last year wintered in Fresno among Budd Doble's string under George Starr's care, will, on account of a bad leg, be retired from the turf. His owner, Major Dickinson, will present the game little pacer to his sister for a road horse. When to wagon on the road Annan sticks close to the trot. He has been a successful campaigner, and has earned a rest from turf work.

The famous old race horse Helmbold died at the True Blue Stock Farm, Avoca, Steuben County, N. Y., the home of True Blue, Volney and Harrison Clay. Helmbold was foaled in 1866, being by imp. Australian, dam Lavender, by Wagner, second dam Alice Carneal (Lexington's dam), by imp. Sarpedon; third dam Rowena by Sumpter.

On Friday October 2nd, W. H. E. Smith, the owner of Al Farrow, purchased at the McGrathiana sale for $475 a bay yearling colt by Onondaga from Briganza (Elsinore) by Bertram and the same day bought for $775 at the Astor sale a chestnut yearling colt by imp Woodlands from Glidelia by imp. Bonnie Scotland, grand dam Walz by Lexington, etc.

The Trotting Union of Great Britian proposes adopting a new rule, the object being to debar American trotters from contests under the auspices of that organization. Exception will be made, however, in favor of horses which have previously trotted in the country, and also those who can produce a certificate of eligibility from the U. S.

It is said that Mr. Dunbar, who recently purchased Johnston, 2:06¼, has driven him a quarter over the Buffalo track in thirty seconds, and is so delighted with the gelding, that he would not part with him for $20,000. He will use him entirely on the road, and the Buffalo people are looking forward with much satisfaction to the time, this coming winter, when Johnston and Hal Pointer will meet on the snow path.

Monterey, the four-year old from whom so much was expected when Hickok went East this spring, has been turned over to his owner, Will Snyder, of New York City, who will place him at the head of the El Dorado farm, near Poughkeepsie. Monterey has a world of speed but went wrong. With a little more age he should prove a sterling race horse.

J. D. Patton has lost by death the valuable thoroughbred stallion. Duke of Kent, who during his racing days won 63 races, of which several were large stake events. He was retired to the stud several years ago and was the sire of Carter B., Little Crete, Lucy P., and a number of others that have performed well on Western tracks in the past few years.

The sporting man on Truth offers a good suggestion when he thinks that the Jockey Club would do well to pass a rule postponing the time of making entries for the Derby and Oaks until the Tuesday after Doncaster, when the Leger closes, and then, as the yearling sales would all be over, there would be no object in deducting £500 from the Derby and £400 from the Oaks for the benefit of the nominator of the winner.

Count Valensin will be with us, says the racy Terra Haute Express, to enjoy the races. The Count is the owner of a stock farm at Pleasanton, Cal., which has at its head the great sire of extreme speed, Sidney, 2:19¾. It will be recollected that the Count paid us a pleasant visit in the spring of 1889, at the time Knap McCarthy was working several of his horses. His many friends will take pleasure in seeing him again.

C. W. Chapin, manager of the steamboat line between New York and New Haven, has bought a farm of sixty-four acres near the Grant farm on the Leadsville Road, which will be converted into a stock raising farm. A half mile track is being laid out and a large stable to accommodate fifty horses is being built. The foreman of the farm is Michael A Coleman, who has been employed by D. D. Withers for the last fifteen years.

There were 284 British stallions exported to British North America during the seven months ended July 31st, against 446 in 1889, and 163 to other countries, against 349. It would thus appear that the falling off in the foreign demand is chiefly in that from South America and Canada. The total number of horses exported was 6 948 against 6,664 in the corresponding period of last year, and 6 582 in 1888; the value having been £823,841 compared with £129,689 in 1889, and £414,625 in 1888.

Commenting on the Prince of Wales's ill-luck with Golden Maze in the Goodwood Cup, I fear, says a veteran racegoer, it will never be in my time that his Royal Highness will own three such famous race horses, even if they should be bred, as Fleur de Lis, Zingaree, and The Colonel, who ran first, second and third for the Cup in 1830, on that memorable occasion when his illustrious ancestor William IV., in reply to Mr. Delme Radcliffe's inquiry as to which of the lot was to run, replied, "Start the whole fleet, and let the best win!"

George Van Gorden, superintendent of Senator Hearst's ranch in San Luis Obispo, has been in Pleasanton for several days supervising the building of the new track on the property recently purchased by Senator Hearst, just below the Pleasanton Stock Farm, Mr. Van Gorden says the track will, he expects, be ready for use early in the spring. Mr. Van Gorden speaks highly of the colts by imported Cheviot, brother to Rancho del Paso's Sir Modred; he says they are of remarkable quality and good size, several of the yearlings weighing over 900 lbs.

Veillen, the Megibben Stable's sister to Huntress, is a handsome, rangy filly, resembling no little her famous relative, who sleeps her last sleep under the sod at Latonia, the scene of her last great turf triumph. Thus far Veillen has failed to show any of the racing qualities of her sister, but if looks go for anything, her racing career will yet be a brilliant one. Her full brother Eberlee, who has been off the whole of the year, is now gradually rounding to, and may appear in public before the season is over. It is thought that with the recovery of his health once more Eberlee will yet live to fulfill the promise of his two year old form.

"B. B." what does it stand for? No one seems to know and so they call him "Branded Broncho." He is branded "C. H.," or "G. H," and he looks a Texas broncho. Yet he is a very close second to Hal Pointer in 2:09¾, 2:12¾ and 2:13. The peerless Sunol, by the way, is branded C. 66, under the mane as are all Palo Alto bred horses, Mr. Lathrop observing the other day that it was of great assistance at times, for instance last week he received a letter stating that a gentleman in the East had bought a horse with a certain pedigree and giving the brand, on referring to the books it was at once seen that the horse was not what he was represented to be.

An amusing story is told of a well known Western plunger, who, like all the big bettors of that section, got nearly swamped at Saratoga and elsewhere in the East. It seems he had been betting markers, and, after getting in debt to nearly everybody in the ring he shaved off his whiskers to keep from being recognized at a glance by his creditors. Disguised thus, he would send money down into the ring by boys, and in this way back his judgment. Fortune finally turned his way, and before the Saratoga meeting closed, he not only had settled up, but had a big roll beside. His whiskers have again grown out now, and the plunger appears as of old, and for a period, at least until luck changes again, his burnsides will be the envy of his acquaintances and friends.

The Australian jockey Bowes, who came over here, says the Manchester Sporting Chronicle, with the late Hon. J. White's horses, Kirkham and Narellan, is said to be dissatisfied at the treatment he received in this country. It was understood, he says, that he should ride the horses in their engagements, but no chance was offered him, and he feels sore on the point. M. Dawson, who had charge of the colts, was, it is stated, not responsible for the substitution of English jockeys, this course being taken on the instructions of a gentleman who came over from Australia to "manage" the horses. The Colonials are no doubt disappointed at the poor figure Kirkham and Narellan cut, but it is foolish of them to lose their temper and make unsupported statements detrimental to the high character enjoyed in this country by the trainer in whose hands they were placed.

Speaking of Newmarket, the greatest of all training grounds, the Sporting Chronicle says: It is occasionally a marvel to notice the haste of owners to put horses into training at Newmarket, when there are so many other and better galloping grounds to be had in the country. True it is that an immense amount of training talent is located in the district, but the gallops are often past praying for. The army of thoroughbreds which make use of them every day accounts for this to a large extent, there being some 2,800 stabled there. It must, however, be remembered that the galloping of the portion of these in active training tends to harden the going, and as the indentures of the hoofs are rolled out as far as practicable, the gallops get like asphalte.

At a recent sale of thoroughbred yearlings held at Doncaster, England, a filly by Hermit sold for $20,000, a filly by Scottish Chief brought $19,400, a colt by Rosicrucian $11,000, a colt by Macgregor $12,000. The prices realized by the youngsters averaged from $5.000 upward. Fifty yearlings disposed of in one string sold for $150,305, and in another string of fifty $96,775 was realized for the lot, which was the largest sum ever realized in one day at any previous Doncaster sale.

John Corlett is well known as the proprietor of one of the wittiest English racing newspapers. We have known him personally for many years, and are gratified to hear that at last there is a chance. William the Silent, and many others were expected to be the coming K, but judging from the Sporting Chronicle, Ich Dien is the hope of the Pink Un.

"Mr. Corlett's yearling colt, Ich Dien, by Beaudesert is at Kingsclere, owing to John Porter having taken such a great liking to him that he persuaded his owner to let him have a quarter share in the good-looking youngster, which partnership has been registered; and he also has a "slice" of the yearling bet of 10,000 to 100 for the Derby of 1892, which Mr. Corlett has taken from Captain Paget, who has charge of Sir John Willoughby's book for that event.

P. J. Williams informs us that he has sold for $7,500 a half interest in his three-year-old stallion Silver Bow. The purchaser is Isaac Moorehouse, Butte City, Montana, and the horse will probably make a season in the stud there next spring. Silver Bow 11708 is by Robert McGregor 2:17¼, dam Sadie by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, grand dam Lady Wynne by William Welch 341, third dam Eleanor Margrave by imp. Margrave, etc., his breeding is, therefore, unexceptional, showing the most valuable trotting blood backed up by stout running blood, his third dam being thoroughbred. Although only three years old, Silver Bow proved himself a high class racehorse through the Montana Circuit last season, winning, among other races, two at Butte City, the first in 2:29½ 2:31 and 2:31 on July 2nd, and again on August 15th he took the first heat in 2:31, and distanced his solitary opponent in 2:26, which is his present record.

That well known English writer "Pavo" falls very foul of the Sandringham Gold Cup, a private sweepstakes to be run at Sandown in 1892. To term such an engagement with no fewer than 21 subscribers, who were canvassed for, a "private sweepstakes" amounts to a subversion of the Laws of Racing, which debar winners of such stakes, like the winners of matches, from incurring penalties. The precedent is one, he says, that may create enormous mischief hereafter by inaugurating an injurious system which demands the serious interference of the Stewards of the Jockey Club, not one of whom, it is satisfactory to notice, figures amongst the subscribers, although no fewer than a dozen of the number are members of that body. It has been very truthfully pointed out by a contemporary that the winner of such a valuable prize would escape extra weight, which might have to be carried by the winner of a paltry selling race at Yarmouth.

While the public are still marveling over Salvator's wonderful performance in running a mile in 1:45¼, says a Western mathematician, there are a few who have, through comparison and analysis, sought to realize what a terrific burst of speed this is. It is nearly forty miles an hour—a rate averaged by very few of our fastest railway trains. There are 5,280 feet in a mile, so that every one of these ninety-five seconds—for every beat of a man's pulse—this wonderful horse covered fifty-five and three tenths feet of ground. The shortest space of time noted by a turfman's watch is a quarter of a second—an interval so brief that the eye can hardly observe, the mind can hardly appreciate it. Yet in every one of those 38 quarters of a second that magnificent creature leaped 16 3-10 feet. Such are the amazing results of careful breeding as exhibited in the American race horse. Is the human race improving in the same ratio? Scarcely.

At the London Bankruptcy Court last month, Ernest Benzon, the "Jubilee Plunger," was again before Mr. Registrar Giffard, upon his adjourned public examination. (An amended account was now filed showing gross debts £40 162, of which £21,447 is unsecured, and the indebtedness being increased by £1,779. The securities in the hands of Mr. Samuel Lewis and Mr. G. Whittaker are houses in Kensington, and, as to his book, the bankrupt states that he is entitled to "one-third share in my book, 'How I lost £250,000 in two years,' which I am informed has not made any profits." Mr. Rubinstein said he was instructed by Mr. Hasluck, the trustee, to state that, with reference to the book debt of between £13,000 and £14,000 owing to the bankrupt, under legal pressure a sum of £5,000 had been paid, and that an immediate dividend of 5s. in the pound would be paid to the creditors. No further question being asked, the public examination was ordered to be concluded.

Charlie Marvin arrived last Friday at the Bay District Track with Palo Alto, Sunol, Voucher, Gertrude, Russell, Colma, Wildmont and Amigo in addition to which Hickok's Prince Warwick and the pacer Chris Smith were brought over. Mr. Marvin who looks in exceptionally good health, said that luck was against him; the horses were never better and several times while East he expected to lower Palo Alto and Sunol's records, but either wind or rain spoilt his prospects. Sunol who was clipped last Tuesday and given her first work on Wednesday looked as hard and fit as could be although a little tucked up she evidently has grown a little while East. She will make an attempt to lower her record in a few weeks, probably on the Bay District Track which is being put into shape again. Palo Alto never looked better in his life and should go a mile way down before January. Mr. Marvin says that Voucher is a much better horse than any one had any idea, and there is no telling how good he is.

The Royal Commission on Horse-breeding, appointed in England, has obtained a lot of useful information from veterinary surgeons, trainers, etc. Dr. Fleming declares that short distance races are the cause of a great deal of the increase in roaring, because the strain on a horse's windpipe is much more sudden in five furlong races than in longer ones. He also says that no horse should be raced until he is three years old. Matthew Dawson, the famous trainer, differs from the worthy doctor, his opinion being that training and racing two-year-olds in moderation tends to develop them as animals, and improves them. The question of what constitutes hereditary unsoundness was considered, and it was decided that the following should render sires liable to disqualification for Queen's premiums;—Roaring, whistling, sidebone, ringbone, navicular disease, curb, bone spavin, bog spavin, grease, shivering, cataract. To these were added, under certain circumstances, splint, stringhalt, weak feet, contracted feet, brissal enlargements, such as thoroughpin and windgalls.

The case of John A. Morris and the New York Jockey Club against the Mayor of the City of New York has been decided by the Court of Appeals at Albany in favor of the Mayor. This is the notorious jockey club fence case which caused so much newspaper comment in the summer of 1889. The fence was built by the jockey club upon a portion of the Bronx and Pelham Parkway, which is a public highway. The decision rendered leaves the city free to remove the fence.

Spain is not so very far behind in the matter of horse-racing, as will be seen by the following from the French Le Sport: "It will no doubt surprise many of your readers to learn that there are, exclusive of the two English societies at Gibraltar, nine racing associations, viz: At Madrid, Lishon, Seville, Cadiz, Xeres, Cordova, Granada, Baena and Barcelona. The rules of the Society of Encouragement at Madrid, which is under the patronage of the Queen Regent and under the Presidency of the Duke of Fernan-Nunez, are, with slight modifications, adopted by the other societies, and they differ but little from those prevailing in France and England, except that the scale of weights is rather higher. With the exception of Madrid, where there are eight days' racing in spring and autumn, none of the other meetings have more than two days in the year, and the most valuable prizes are both run for at Madrid, one being the Grand Prize of £400, for three year olds bred in Spain, and the other the Competencia Prize of £320, for three year olds bred in Spain or imported while still yearlings. The Derby Del Mediodia, or Southern Derby, run at Seville, is worth £200, and is open to all three year olds, though foreign bred horses have to carry seven pounds extra, the conditions of the Barcelona Derby being much the same, and altogether about £10,400 was given in public money last year."

Bingo won every race at the Yreka Fair in which he ran says the Democratic Times, and added several hundred dollars to his owner's wealth. He is a race horse in every particular. Klickitat was not so successful as at the district fair, losing every race he ran in, which may also be said of Wolf Creek Baldy and the trotting horse E. P. Argo won a three-eighth mile race in 35 seconds, which is within a half second of the best time on record. Aiken's Sammy H. was a close second, and subsequently won the one-half mile race for beaten horses defeating both Klickitat and Baldy. L. Swan's three-year-old stallion Ante-Echo won three trotting races, making 2.43 in his contest with E. P. Wanda, who is of the McDonough stock, won the $500 trotting race, heating Ante echo and Effie V. in straight heats and making 2:37. Vance's Effie V. won a trotting race, as also did Swan's Zephyr and McDonald's Miss Hogan, while Wild Oats won two running races.

There was an outburst of crazy clatter a few months ago about the "spirit" and "enterprise" manifested by Lord Dudley in giving £5,000 for Royal Meath just before that horse won the Auteuil Steeplechase, says Truth. Some painful proceedings in the Irish Court of Queen's Bench last week are calculated to confirm the impression which Lord Dudley's aberrations and extravagances have created, that Lord Haremarch would be a more suitable name for him. It seems that Lord Dudley has never yet paid for Royal Meath, and the Court granted an application that he might be served with a writ, although out of the jurisdiction. Under the circumstances, this is a discreditable scandal, and if Lord Dudley could not even pay for Royal Meath, it was exceedingly wrong of him to go to Newmarket during the July week and expend some £6,000 in buying yearlings. It would be interesting to learn whether these animals have yet been paid for. Lord Dudley's relatives had better endeavor to induce him to give up racing altogether, for if he goes on for many more years with such muddy-minded fatuities as have so far distinguished his turf careeer, he will ruin himself irretrievably.

Green Morris is a well known turfman and has had lots of experience. He can give good advice to younger men on the turf, and anything he says is always of interest. This year he has had very fair success, although he has also had a fair share of bad luck. His hardest piece of luck was the death of the colt Lisimony, when he appeared to have the rich Realization Stakes at his mercy.

Mr. Morris has been a cattle driver, a miner, a horse trader, and almost everything else that in the great West twenty, thirty and forty years ago seemed to be congenial to an astute and courageous man. Many an Indian pony bearing a young red skin has come in second to his horseback riding.

"What does it cost you to keep your stable?" he was asked recently.

"I have ten horses," he answered, "and if I don't win $20.000 during the season I will come out behind."

"It surely does not cost $2,000 a horse?"

"Not for its keeping alone. That costs, including help, about $700. The balance is made up by entrance fees, forfeits, jockeys' pay, etc. I paid Isaac Murphy $500 when he won the Junior Championship for me."

Of all the horses inspected at Morris Park on October 6th, Racine probably attracted the most attention, says the Sporting World.

On all sides remarks were made about the Western record breaker. Before he was sent to the starting post the general verdict was that he looked big and course, and would be beaten before he had gone half a mile, When he was seen in his reception box after the contest, however, he was looked upon as a wonder. In fact, the owners and trainers who had pronounced him unfit to race before the contest joined with his lucky backers in singing his praise after his performance. The truth of the matter is that Racine did look very big and entirely too fat to race successfully against well seasoned horses At least it so appeared to the ordinary observer, but those who had seen him before he made his best performances in the West pronounced him to be in the pink of condition. There is no question but that Racine has run his best races when apparently high in flesh. In fact, he cannot perform when reduced to the same proportions as the average racer. He did not appear to be distressed in the least after his race, and when in the paddock acted more as though he had only been warmed up than as though he had been given a real race at a mile.

"Don't be act like old Bishop," was the remark to be heard on all sides while he was being cared for in his box. "I backed him," said a well known Western trainer, "because he was sent to the post so high in flesh." Again another individual remarked that he backed the westerner because he felt confident that McCormick would not send his horse to the post unless he was in condition to make a good performance. Taken all in all Racine ran a remarkable race for a horse who appeared so high in flesh. He was not distressed in the slightest, and will show improvement the next time he runs, although over a dry track he will not show as good relative speed.

The terrific losses of the local pool rooms during the past month is a profitable subject of comment, says the St. Louis Republic.

So continuous has been the public raid on the treasuries of the bookmakers that the oldest pool-room in the city was forced to close this week. This is Roche's old stand in the alley. Dick Roche and Hank Wilder both grew tired of putting up, and both abandoned the room. W. B. Eaton, who came from New York 18 months ago as the representative of Lovell, is said to have lost $40,000 in Roche's room making a book. He has given it up and returned to New York. Aleck Ullman lost $25,000 this season in the alley, and he has drawn out. Furber is over $15,000 loser, but is still doing a heavy business, with six hooks laying the odds. Furber's and Hambrick's are about the only rooms now in the alley. Donovan's rooms in the Exchange have lost heavily, in the neighborhood of $25,000 in the past month, and taking it altogether the public is getting much the best of the game. Nearly all the rooms made a practice of giving a point better odds than are laid at the track, which is called "bunching." Since the "run" became a raid nearly all rooms have quit "bunching" except Furber's, Hambrick's and Donovan's. Among the heavy outside winners are two brothers engaged in the quarry business in North St. Louis, the son of a prominent government official, a young man formerly in the gas business and a hundred others.

In the July number of Baily's Magazine there is a portrait of Ormonde, one of the mightiest race horses of modern or ancient times. It is said to be a very faithful representation of the Duke of Westminster's champion, and, says Augur in the Australasian, judging from the engraving. I should take the English crack to be something like Mr. Donald Wallace's champion, Le Grand. At first sight he looks a tall, shortish horse, and as he is described to be just 3ft. from the ground to the elbow, he is more on the leg than most horses, for this is said to be about one inch and a half in excess of average. "Nevertheless," says a writer in Baily, "the length of limb possessed by this, the horse of the century, doubtless contributed in no small degree to propel him to victory over all courses and against all comers and had much to do with that prodigious stride which is never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it." His head is described as an inch longer than the average, and he was always a tall, forward specimen of the thoroughbred, even from his foalhood and yearling days. Before the great horse left for his new home in Buenos Ayres his exact proportions were taken, in order that the present and future generations of racing men might know what manner of horse he was in regard to make and shape, and they will prove interesting to our readers: Here they are:

Col. Robert Rivers, of the St. Charles Hotel, has returned from the North brimful of turf news, and says the New Orleans Times Democrat of October 1st, is decidedly enthusiastic over the prospect of the approaching winter meeting of the New Orleans Jockey Club. He says that the turf interest is booming everywhere this year and that horse racing was never so universally popular in America as it is to-day. At the Brooklyn meeting which recently closed, he had seen from 30,000 to 35,000 people attending the races in the pouring rain and when the track looked like one great sea of muddy water. Often the rain was falling so fast that the spectators could not distinguish the contending horses, but still they would turn out, rain or shine, and he was of opinion that the big tracks in the East would clear from 30 to 40 per cent. on the current season. There were so many horses running this year that New Orleans could not help being well supplied. Last winter's meeting had proved satisfactory to both horsemen and bookmakers, and there appeared to be a general disposition on the part of both classes, as well as hackers and pleasure seekers, to spend the coming winter in New Orleans. At one time it had been feared that many of the Western stables would be attracted to Hot Springs, Ark., and that an extra effort might be necessary to secure a good attendance of horses here, but on investigation it had been learned that the rumors about a winter meeting at Hot Springs were altogether without foundation and that Hot Springs would not have a race track this winter, to say nothing of a race meeting. According to present appearances, New Orleans should capture nearly all the stables now in the West, with a fair sprinkling of those in the East, and it is altogether probable that even the extensive stable room now at the track will be taxed to its utmost to meet the requirements of the coming meeting. Though the exact date for the opening of the meeting has not been definitely fixed, Col. Rivers says it will be about the 15th of November, or possibly a few days earlier.

Col. Rivers is of opinion that the coming season of Southern travel will be an exceptionally good one, and that it will open early, with New Orleans as the chief objective point.

"I have no hesitation in predicting," said he, "that the coming race meeting will be by a long way the most brilliant and successful ever held on the grounds of the New Louisiana Jockey Club."

In speaking of the stables pretty sure to be represented here the name of Messrs. J. M. Brown & Co. was mentioned.

"Mr. Brown has been in great luck this year," said Col. Rivers. "He bought Bobby Beach in Chicago for 5,000 and he must have won not less than $30,000 with him during the short time he has had him East."

Of Salvator he said: "Mr. Haggin will never start Salvator again. He said of him: 'I have the fastest horse in the world and I have proved it, and I will retire him while he is unquestionably and indisputably the king of the turf."

"Is Salvator faster than Firenzi?"

"Up to a mile and a quarter, yes; beyond that distance, no."

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

OAKLAND vs STOCKTON.

FRIDAY, OCT. 10TH, 1890, AT OARLAND.

This was the Stocktons game up to the seventh, when a lucky bunching of hits in this inning gave the Oaklands a slight lead which they augmented by four runs in the ninth. It was a fine game all through both pitchers doing good work while the fielding was excellent. The Stocktons opened well by scoring two in the first inning on Selnas infield hit, Paches sacrifice on which Lohman erred, and Fudgers single back of second. They added another in the third, on Selnas single to left center, Paches hit, a wild throw and Lohmans error of dropping a thrown ball to catch Selna at home. This was the extent of their run making. The Oaklands set the ball rolling in the fourth, Dungan leading off with a hot hit to short, taking second on Lohmans safeshot to center and both advancing a bag on C. O'Neills sacrifice. McDonald then flew to Hoffman who threw wildly, Dungan scoring. In the fifth, Cantillions base on balls, his steal and Dooleys double gave them another run. The seventh was productfull of two. McDonald let off with a single to left and went to third on Carseys single by Fogarty. Cantillion sacrificed and McDonald scored, Carsey making third A hit by Sweeney sent Carsey home. In the ninth with two out Perrott gave Cantillion his base on balls. Then followed some terrific hitting. Cantillion stole second and scored on Dooleys second double. D Sweeney banged out a triple to right sending Dooley home. Dungan got his base on balls, stole second, and went to third on a passed ball on which Sweeney also scored. Lohmans single tallied Dungan. Sweeney and Dooley led the hitting the former making three hits while Dungan made a brace of doubles. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, OCT. 10TH 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

This was a most stubbornly contested game, and took twelve innings to decide. For six innings neither side scored and in the seventh the Friscos made a run but were tied in the eighth. Both sides made one in the ninth, and so matters continued until the twelfth, when the Friscos made their third tally, winning the game. A very small crowd, scarcely more than one hundred people witnessed the play. Harper, although receiving poor support, pitched a masterly game, allowing but two hits and sent four men to bases on balls. Lookahangh was touched up pretty lively and was very wild, giving eleven men bases on balls. The out fielding was especially fine, Roberts, Goodenough, McHale, Stevens and Levy making several splendid catches. Everett played a fine short, but McHale's catch in deep right and doubling up a runner at the plate, was the feature of the game. Stapleton resumed his position at first base.

The first run was scored in the seventh, when Levy reached first on balls, stole second, went to third on Ward's wild throw and scored on Speer's sacrifice. In the eighth Reitz' triple and a sacrifice by Ward tied the score. In the ninth Goodenough hit a single, took second on Roberts' safe hit, third on a sacrifice and scored on Veach's error. In the last half Ebright hit for a triple and scored on Godar's error. No more runs were scored until the twelfth, although the home team had men on bases each inning. In that inning Speer reached first on balls. Lookahangh hit to Daly, who threw wild to second, Speer going to third and scoring on McHale's wild throw. Had Daly thrown the ball accurately a double play would have resulted and more innings would probably have been necessary. Donahue umpired an impartial game and gave satisfaction both to the teams and the audience. The score:

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

SATURDAY, OCT. 11TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This game looked as though it would certainly go to the Stocktons, for in the fourth inning they took a comfortable lead of three runs, but through errors of Armstrong and Hoffman were unable to keep it, and in the eighth inning Oakland beat them out. It was a fine game to witness, however, being exciting and interesting all through. Kilroy and Shaw were the pitchers, and although thirteen hits appear against the Stockton pitcher, several of these were scratches. Stockwell was at the receiving end for Stockton, and did fairly well. Shaw pitched for Oakland, and by his dilatory tactics, greatly displeased the crowd. Holliday was the first man to cross the plate, coming home in the first inning through his being hit by a pitched ball, a wild pitch and Fudger's double. Hoffman had previously secured his base on balls, travelled to third on Fudger's hit, and scored on Armstrong's single to center. Fudger was caught at the plate on throws by Sweeney to Shaw to Lohman. The Oakland's two in the first were made on Cantillion's hit to left, his steals of second and third, Dooley's single, Dungan's safe hit, Lohman's force and Dooley's clever steal home. McDonald tallied in the second on his safe hit to right, went to second on Tip O'Neill being hit by pitched ball, took third on Shaw's sacrifice and home on Cantillion's fly out to right. A base on balls, sacrifice and Cantillion's wild throw tied the score for Stockton in the third. When the Oaklands went to bat in their half of the eighth, they had to make two runs to win the game, and succeeded. Shaw struck out, but Cantillion singled to center. Dooley sent a safety to left, but Hoffman fumbled it, Cantillion making third and Dooley second; Sweeney's safe shot to center scored both men. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, OCT. 11TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO

The Senators were again beaten in a brillisntly played game by the Friscos by a score of 3 to 1. Although the Sacramentos hit Coughlin hard, they were unable to place him safe, but five hits, one a home run, made by Roberts being gained against him. Hoffman was in the box for the Senators and pitched steady ball, seven singles being made by the heavy slugging Friscos. Stapleton and Veach both played fine ball at the initial, the former figuring in two double plays. The general fielding was good, and that of Levy, Roberts and Stevens especially fine. Frisco scored two runs in the second, Everett and Speer tallying on Goodenough's juggle and wild throw to third. Hanley crossed the rubber in the eighth with the last run. Roberts was the only Sacramento player to make a run, his coming home in the fifth on his magnificent home run drive. Donohue umpired very successfully. The score:

OAKLAND vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, OCT. 12TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

At 11 A. M. last Sunday the Emery grounds were crowded with Oakland enthusiasts to the number of five thousand. It was to be a great game and every one was on the tip-toe of expectation, of course hoping that the Colonels would win. But they were doomed to be disappointed as the Oaklands lost, principally through the errors of their battery. Coughlin was in the points for the Friscos and pitched fine steady ball, and was splendidly supported. Cobb twirled for Oakland, and his high pitch in the eighth inning gave Friscos the victory. The Friscos scored in the third on Speer's force hit, Coughlin's single, a passed ball and a wild pitch. They got another in the fourth on O'Neill's muff of Stevens pop fly, the runner taking second and scoring on Everett's slashing hit past short. The Oaklands made one in the sixth. Cantillion hit safely, and on Dooley's interfering with Veach, Cantillion made third. Sweeney's safe shot scored him. Another was added to their score in the eighth on Cantillion's double and Dooley's single. The Friscos won in their half of the eight. Hanley beat out his infield hit and took third on Steven's safety to right. Ebright was at hat, and O'Neill instructed Cobb to give Buck his base on balls. Cobb threw to first ball high beyond Lohman's reach, and Hauley scored, Stevens also, tallied on O'Neill's failure to stop Lohman's throw, to head him off at third. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs OAKLAND.

SUNDAY, OCT. 12TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The largest crowd of the season was attracted to the Haight Street Grounds last Sunday. It was a gala day in baseball circles and each team had an immense number of supporters who with fish horns, calliopes and rattles spurred their favorities on to their utmost endeavors. The teams were late in arriving and game was not commenced till twenty minutes to three. Carsey and Lohman were in the points for the Oaklands and the Kids work was simply magnificent. Not a solitary hit was secured off him which was partly attributable to the excellent support he received all round. Lookahaugh pitched for the Friscos and did fine steady work allowing but six hits. He was well supported, four errors, three of which were of a scratch order, being made by his team. The in and outfielding was of an especially high order and brought forth round after round of applause. Everett at short was the star of the game, his stops of the most difficult ground balls, and throwing being superb. McDonald, Ebright, Dooley, Shea, N. O'Neill and Carsey also did some splendid infield work, and Sweeney and Hanley made brilliant catches in the outfield. Runs were scored in two innings, the first and second. In the first, Cantillion led off with a safety to left and on Levy's fumbling it, dashed to second and reached third safely on Levys poor throw to Everett. Dooley was struck out, and Sweeney was retired on his foul fly to Speer. Dungan then smashed a double between left and center, and Cantillion scored. Lohman ended the inning by flying out to Hanley, Blockers making a magnificent catch. In the second, two hits and two sacrifices gave another run. C. O'Neill hit safely to right, and was followed by McDonald with another to the same garden. N. O'Neill was struck out, but Carsey hit one to Veach, who failed to throw quick enough to Lookahaugh to retire Carsey. Cantillion then smashed a hard one to Everelt who threw to Shea forcing Carsey at second, and Shea doubled up Cantillion at first but C. O'Neill had already scored. Although players got on bases afterward the most excellent fielding prevented further run making. The score:

SACRAMENTO vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, OCT. 12TH, 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

The Sacramentos defeated Stockton in the afternoon in a hotly contested game before a fair sized audience. Both teams used two pitchers. Sonny Hoffman was in the box for Stockton at the commencement of the game, but only lasted a single inning, as he was touched up for four singles and gave three bases on balls. Kilroy finished the game, doing excellent work. Hoffman, of the Senators, was touched up pretty lively, and in the eighth was substituted by Harper, who didn't allow a hit. Goodenough's base running, Stapleton's hitting and Robert's outfielding were the principal features. In the first inning Goodenough went to first base on balls, stole second and reached third on Armstrong's error. Roberts got first on balls and scored on Stapleton's and Daly's singles. In the second Goodenough hit a single and stole second and third. Roberts got first on Pache's error, and both scored on Stockwell's wild throw. In the fourth Goodenough got first on Armstrong's error, stole second and scored on Stapleton's single. In the fifth Stockwell and Wilson hit singles, Pache forced out Stockwell and Ward muffed Kilroy's pop fly, filling the bases. Holliday cleared the bases on a long drive for three bags. In the sixth a base ball, a steal, and Stapleton's single scored one for the home team. In the last half Armstrong's single and Wilson's double gave the visitors one. In the seventh the singles of Holliday and Fudger, Hoffman's double and Daly's error gave the last two runs of the game. The score:

STOCKTON vs SACRAMENTO.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Senators easily won their contest with the Stocktons last Sunday morning. Fudger was in the box for the Gas towns, and was hit freely by the Sacramentos. The outfielders however saved him a number of hits by doing some fast work. Stockwell caught, doing fair work and throwing three men out at bases. Harper was in the box for Sacramento and did fine work, being remarkably steady and effective. He gave one man base on balls and permitted but three singles to be secured. Ward supported him well at the receiving end, and the fielding of his team was very good. The Stocktons also played a strong fielding game. Sacramento took a big lead in the third and steadily augmented it, while Stockton did not get a man across the plate till the seventh. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning to enable the teams to catch the train for Sacramento. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. SACRAMENTO.

THURSDAY, OCT. 16TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The game last Thursday was well attended, and though poorly played was interesting and exciting. The Senators were in strong shape, all being in condition again. Isaacson appeared on first base for the Friscos, and was well received. Both pitchers, Harper and Lookabaugh, were hit out lively, being bunched on heavily in an inning each and ten hits being made by each team. In the first inning the Friscos tallied five runs. Everett took his base on balls and went to third on Stapleton and McHale's error of Hanley's hot drive. Shea's single scored Everett and Hanley. Ebright hit to center and went to third on Goodenough's error, Shea scoring. Issacson's safety over Ward's head, gave Ebright a run and the new first baseman tallied on Levy's double to center. In the second, they made another. On Ward's fumble Hanley was safe, and after stealing second crossed the rubber on Stevens splendid drive to right. The Senators secured one in the third, Roberts and Bowman taking first on balls, the former scoring on Stapleton's safety over second base. In the sixth, the Senators tied the score. McHsle reached first on his base on balls and went to third on Reitz's hit to right. Harper's hit to the same field sllowed McHale to tally, and Goodenough's hit over short sent both Reitz and Harper over the plate. On Robert's single to left Goodenongh tallied and Roberts took third on the throw in and Speer's error. Bowman's sharp drive to right tallied Roberts. In the seventh the Friscos made their winning run. Stevens started off with a safe hit to right and Isaacson's sacrifice sent him to second. Ward's error or Speer's grounder gave Stevens his run. The features of the game were Goodenough's hitting and McHale's splendid catch of Shea's fly in the eighth inning. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The 'Friscos have broke the chain which so long linked them with the Oaklands, and are now in indisputed possession of first place, although their advantage is only a transitory one. The Oaklands are but one game won behind, while Sacramento is a strong third, with the most favorable chances of any team. Stockton jogs along undisturbed in last place.

Professional Pick-Ups.

Phil Knell and Tom Powers are expected to be back here next week.

Goodenough now has a slight advantage over Shea in the base stealing race.

The Friscos never fielded better or hit harder than they are doing just now.

Bowman is now all right, and will hereafter do all the catching for the Senators.

Charley Isaacson will most likely guard first base for the remainder of the season for the Friscos.

Everetts fielding at short last Sunday was the grandest exhibition ever seen in that position on the local diamond.

Dad Clark, Milt Whitehead and Monk Cline have been reserved by their respective teams in the Western Association.

Tom Brown of the Bostons ranks second in base stealing in the Players League, having pilfered 90 bases in 125 games. Stovey of the same team leads with 101 bases stolen.

Kid Carsey's wondrous feat of shutting out the heavy slugging Friscos last Sunday without a hit or a run, will be remembered as one of the greatest events in the history of the national game in California.

Of the fourteen third basemen of the Western Association, Pete Sweeney ranked tenth with a fielding average of 840. Of the same number of shortstops Harry O'Day was sixth on the list with a percentage of 835, Nick Smith ninth, with 865, and Milt Whitehead fourteenth having a percentage of 839.

Jack Daly has been relessed by Sacramento on account of his weak throwing. The Sacramento management would have done a wise thing had they let Jack take a months vacation and undergone the treatment his arm so much needed. By this time he would be in condition again, and just now his batting is most needed.

The Sporting News says that on their way to the Coast Comiskeys teams will play exhibition games in Kansas City, St. Joe, Leavenworth, Omaha, Lincoln, Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Leadville, Cheyenne, Ogden, Salt Lake, Boise City, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland, Sacramento, Stockton and Fresno, reaching Frisco on Thanksgiving Day.

"The pair of Jacks," Fogarty and Wilson, are foremost among the few earnest players in the Stockton team. Both these players are in the game all the time, and there is nothing but what they make the most commendable effort for, and are frequently rewarded by making catches and stops other players would never think of trying to get. Fogarty and Wilson deserve to be with a better team than the Stocktons.

Joe Leveque has returned from Oregon and looks in splendid condition. Joe says that base ball is all the rage in Oregon and Washington, and that the prospects are very rosy for the coming year. He pitched ten games for Salem, of which nine were victorious, the losing one being to the Portlands, who secured nine hits off him. He speaks highly of his treatment from the managers, players and people, and says next season will find him twirling for the same team.

Latham says that he can not tell whether he is a member of the Clan-na Gael, the Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood or the Nationalists. He jumped the American Association and joined the Brotherhood. Then he was released by the Players' Lesgue, and sold by the American Association which he had jumped, to the National League. Now the National Lesgue Club sells out to the Players' League, and he goes with it.

The following are the champion teams for the season of 1890, and is complete with the single exception of the California League: Players' League—Boston, National Lesgue—Brooklyn, American Association—Louisville, Western Association—Kansas City, Atlantic Association—New Haven, Inter-State League—(West) Evansville, Inter-State League (East) Harrisburg, Tri-State League—Mansfield, Iowa-Illinois League—Ottumwa, Texas League—Galveston, North Pacific League—Spokane, International League—Saginaw, New York-Pennsylvania League—Jamestown.

The grand National game of the American people will hardly stand another season of quarreling. It has already been injured to an immeasurable extent by the Kilkenny cat warfare that has been in progress this season. Let the magnates on both sides swallow big gulps of their pride, meet each other and devise some means for bringing the fight to a close. Neither side has benefited one cent by the quarrel, the game has been almost ruined and the public is disgusted with the quarreling and bickering. For the sake of base-all put your pride in your hip pockets, get together and fix up some sort of a compromise. The eyes of the enthusiasts are on you. If you want to keep base-ball on a breadwinning basis stop the fight. The sooner the better.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Peek a boo Veach has been suspended by Manager Finn. Little Willie Walter since his return to this glorious State, is said to have formed a strong attachment for certain resorts that attract the weary but convivially inclined ball tosser by means of a singular combination of painting and printing on its outer walls. The landscape presented to view, though somewhat limited as to the space it occupies, is exceedingly attractive both from the force of the subject and the high coloring employed to produce the correct effect. The view generally presented to the passing stranger represents a huge glass supposed to contain a yellowish red fluid overtopped with an abundance of creamy flakiness. The accompanying design is a large gilt V which is equivalent in Arabic to the figure 5. All this is significant that what the painting represents is to be procured in reality on the inside for a realty in the shape of the burdensome "buck" nickle. To such places, presided over by a good natured, white aproned hostlace is Peek supposed to wend his footsteps after a game, and once comfortably ensconced is loath to leave his pleasant surroundings. But whether this is so or not we cannot definitely state as it is merely hearsay. But it is certain that the Friscos first basseman has been tardy on several occasions at practice. Wednesday morning the manager made his appearance at the grounds and noting the absence of Peek's imposing form from first, inquired, "Where's Veach"? Some one responded "In the club house, dressing." The manager then pulled out his eight day Waterbury and hied himself to the club house where he met Veach coming out. It was then after eleven and the players are supposed to be in uniform and on the field at 10.30.

"You're late Veach" was Finn's salutation.

Will four or five minutes' late make you sick?" rejoined Peek.

Finn's Tipperary temper arose and he said, "You are paid for being here on time and you'll have to live up to the rules; that's all there is about it." "Well," said Peek, "you're not talking to a Chinsman anyhow." This nettled Finn still more and he informed his jovial but erratic first baseman that he had better remove his traps from the club house and the team could get along very well without his practicing or playing. So the great and only Veach is once more released.

SACRAMENTO, October 15th, 1890.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—After struggling hard to maintain their position in the League race, the Senators have had to succumb to the inevitable and have dropped into third place. This is very disheartening to the local cranks, who always expected that the Sacramentos would win in a canter, and that the Capital City would for once in its existence be the proud possessor of a champion team. Although we are in third place, yet the chances for a better position are very favorable, and before the week closes we expect to see our club once more in a position their playing entitles them to. George Borchers has arrived in town and signed a contract to pitch the balance of the season for the Senatorial aggregation. He is in splendid form and says that he intends pitching the ball of his life for the local team.

Will we have a professional team next season? is the question that is at present aggitating the cranks. Some seem to think that Sacramento will be dead to professional ball for many years to come, but what their reasons are no one can find out. The hint is given however that the mansgement has killed it. Of course I am not a prophet, but if the attendance at the games in this city does not show up a great deal better than of late, I am inclined to think that the "fans" are correct in their surmises. If the worst must come, let it come, but here's hoping that Sacramento will be alive to bssebsll for many seasons more.

Genial Jack Daly has once more resumed his position at short, his arm having come around in shape. How is he playing his position do you ask? Why, he's simply "out of sight."

I am glad to hear of the success of my two old players, Baltz and Hughes, in Vallejo, for a more gentlemanly and hard working pair you will seldom find.

I hope that the next time Colonel Robinson intends bringing a "hand" with him to this place he will use better judgment and have some regard for the feelings of a cultured Sacramento audience. It is said that "music hath charms to sooth the savage breast," but the appaling noises of those Oakland "bazoos" would drive an educated poodle to strong drink. It is a sorry thing for the people of Oakland that the Legislature was not in session at the time the Oaklands played the last two games here, for had that noble body gathered at the Capital City, an appropriation would surely have been made, out of consideration of the suffering people of Oakland, for the establishment of a private Insane Asylum away out in the woods where the "bszoo wind jammers" could hold their wild and weird discords far from the sight and hearing of man.

The Amateurs.

The race for the amateur pennant now assumes a very interesting aspect. By the Burlingtons defeating the Santa Rosas Sunday, and the Vallejos winning, there is an excellent chance for the Marines making matters decidedly uncomfortable for the Sonoma boys. The Reports have been constantly retrograding, and are now but slightly in advance of the Will & Fincks. However, with first place an uncertainty, any of the four leading teams have a chance for second position. The new Burlingtons have done nobly since their admission, and even the Allens are showing up in their best form of the season. The record to date:

E. T. ALLENS vs DAILY REPORTS.

Sunday, Oct. 12th, 1890, at San Francisco.

The E. T. Allens gained a decisive and well earned victory over the Daily Reports last Sunday. It was a splendid game, both pitchers doing very steady work. Monet, however was bunched on in the sixth, which, together with errors of the "Newsies," enabled the "Sports" to make four runs. The batting was heavy, but fine outfielding kept the hits down. The particular features were a splendid line catch of Philpot's back of second, Evatt's fine stop of a terrifically hit ball, Buckley catching the throw with one hand and retiring Sharp, the runner, and the clever outfielding of Cooney, Sharp and Deane. The Allens made one in the first, Broderick going to first on Green's error in failing to catch his third strike, taking second on a poor throw and third on Gormley's error in letting the ball pass him. Evatt's sacrifice scored Broderick. In the third, the Reports made two runs. Green was assisted out at first by Evatt. Monet then hit a liner to Philpot, who stopped the ball but could not recover. After being chased up and down between first and second, Monet secured the middle bag safely. John Thompson then hit to Evatt, who made a bad break, trying to touch out Monet, and both men scored on Broderick's wild throw over first of Dunphy's grounder. In the fifth, the Reports made another on McIntyre's base on balls, Thompson's safe hit to third, and scored on Dunphy's single. The Sports won in the sixth. Geishaker was safe on J. Thompson's fumble. Walcott hit to Monet, who threw to Merve Thompson to catch Geishaker, but the second baseman dropped the ball. Broderick's pretty single to center scored both Geishaker and Walcott, Broderick reaching third on the throw in, the ball taking a very awkward bound. Evatt's two base hit to center sent Broderick over the plate, but in trying to steal third Evatt was neatly caught. Buckley then hit safely past short and stole second. Cooney took his base on balls and each moved up a base on a passed ball. Philpot sacrificed, but Monet fumbled the ball, Buckley scoring, but Cooney was nailed at the plate on Hearty's throw home. Billings ended the inning by flying out to Sharp. Four runs however and a lead of two were added to the Sports' string. In the eighth, the Newsies scored their last run. Dunphy hit safely to left just inside foul line, and Deane let ball pass him, Dunphy going to third. Sharp hit to Evatt, who made a poor throw, and Dunphy tallied. Gormley flew out to Cooney, and Merve Thompson was safe on Evatt's error. Thompson was caught at first on Billings' throw, and Hearty ended the inning on his pop fly to Philpot. The score:

VALLEJOS vs. WILL & FINCKS.

Sunday, Oct. 12th, 1890, at Vallejo.

An immense assemblage witnessed the Marines well merited victory last Sunday. They played a superior game to their opponents in hitting, fielding and base running. The Giants played what would usually be termed a strong game, but their errors were costly and their hitting light. Sprague occupied the points for the Marines and Sullivan did the twirling for Warren's men. Sprague only allowed four hits and did not send a single man to base on balls. Sullivan was touched up for seven hits, four of which were long ones. He disposed of ten men on strikes. Levy supported Sullivan in great shape and Farrell handled Sprague's delivery very acceptably. In the absence of Frank and Lonny Delmas, McInness and Kavanagh were substituted, the latter making the Giants only run. Detraze, late of the Seattle team, played a clever first for Warren's men. Two magnificent double plays, participated in by Levy, Dextraze, Tillson and Deeny, were noteworthy features, as was the perfect infielding of Murdock, Magnire, Hughes and Smith. Wm. Kelly, an old time player, officiated as umpire, and filled the position very successfully. The score:

SANTA ROSA vs. BURLINGTON ROUTE.

Sunday, Oct. 12th, 1890, at Santa Rosa.

The prospective champions were downed last Sunday by the new "Railroaders." It was a good game in which the Burlingtons did the best batting. Rohan was in the box for the visitors, and kept them guessing all through. He received fine support from Wilds and his infield, but the outfield was somewhat shaky. Callen was unable to play and Hulen went in the box, causing a change in the infield of the team. Stulz went to third, Scooney of Port Townsend playing the initial, and Reilly took Hulen's place at second; Arlett played short. These changes did not effect the game to any extent, as all the players were equally as capable of fielding their new positions as their former ones. Gimmel played a fine field, but dropped a ball after a long run. McCarthy made a sensational catch in center, and Pace did good services behind the bat, being especially strong in throwing to bases. The Burlingtons took a big lead in the fifth, and were never overtaken. Pete Meegan umpired, giving good satisfaction. Gimmel was fined $5 for disputing a decision. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Vallejo is coming to the front.

Blondie Callen is on the sick list.

Billy Hulen is quite a pitcher himself.

The Young Giants are now in great playing form.

Billy Hulen and Josh Reilly are said to be great chums.

Joe Leveque will finish the season with the Will & Fincks

Billy Cooney played a splendid middle field for the Sports Sunday.

Gormley is again with the Reports, and has been appointed captain.

The Detroit Amateur team has won the championship of the country.

Jack Rohan had the Santa Rosas pretty much at his mercy last Sunday.

Speedy Mac says he will pitch the game of his life against Santa Rosa to-morrow.

Billy Kennedy is now rapidly convalescing and expects to be able to resume playing in a couple of weeks.

Billy Billings caught Walcott in splendid style Sunday and threw exceptionally well to bases.

Buck Hughss is putting up a great game around the middle cushion for the Marines.

Vallejo and Santa Rosa have two more games to be played with each other, and they will be "hummers."

Aleck Bradley did not play with Santa Rosa last Sunday. Josh Reilly played his position in good shape.

The "old war horse" Joe Murdock is putting up as fine a game as any of the young blood on the difficult corner.

Billy Gimmel was fined a "fiver" last Sunday for disputing Pete Meegan's decision. "Gim" has been "docked" oftener than any player in the league.

Al Scooney who is said to be a clever young infielder and who has until recently been with the Port Townsends, played a fine first bag for Santa Rosa Sunday.

Frank and Lonny Delmas missed the boat last Sunday, and their absence considerably weakened the team. McInness and Kavanagh, two Vallejo players, filled the vacancies.

LaRoche is the name of the Reports' new manager, Hen Ashman having resigned. Hen probably found out that a manager's life, like that of a policeman, is not a happy one.

The bitter feeling that existed between the Vallejo people and Rohan and Wilds, has been completely wiped out by this battery doing such effective work against Santa Rosa Sunday.

Dave Creamer has been released from the Reports and it is said that Sharp and Dunphy are at liberty to accept engagements. Here are three fine players that there ought to be a scramble after.

There are now four Kellys in the amateur ranks. Tom Kelly of Santa Rosa, Billy and George Kelly of the Burlingtons, and Wm. Kelly of the old Vallejo Red Stockings, now officiating as umpire.

Manager Keller says he will have a winning team next year. All luck to you Paul. Your team should have been a winner from the start this year, but you were too indulgent towards the other managers. However, experience is a great teacher.

There are several professional players now playing with the amateur teams in and around San Francisco. They are Tom Buckley, Billy Cooney, Scotty Evatt with the Allens; Vic Monet with the Reports; Joe Murdock, Andy Smith and Baltz with Vallejo; Billy Farrell, Dave Levy and Dextraze with the Will & Fincks; Al Scooney and Josh Reilly with the Santa Rosas; Ben Hill with the Suisun Ætnas; Matt Stanley, Jack Cullen and Brittan with the Fresnos; and Charley Chase with the Merceds.

The Allens go to Santa Rosa Sunday prepared to play the game of their life. They have met the Santa Rosa boys six times this season, and have been defeated in every game. If the Sports win this game, Manager Keller will be the happiest man in the country. His team will be the same as the one which defeated the Reports last Sunday, and if they use a little judgment, the Santa Rosa boys will have to play ball to beat them. McDonald will pitch for the Sports, and if he is wild or hit hard, Walcott will be substituted.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

The handicap runs of the Olympic and Athletic clubs which were decided on Sunday last were in every way a grand success. The Athletics are beginning to take a genuine interest in both in and out door sports, and competition will be keen from now on. The result of next year's championship meeting may prove a big surprise to the sport loving public. Last May the fight was somewhat one-sided, but in 1891 the probabilities are that some of the crack amateurs will have changed their colors. Certain it is, however, that the Alpine representatives will enter into the combat with more real vim than they did on the occasion of the last meeting on May 30th.

IN THE SURF.

Miss Kelly, the young lady in charge of the Shelter Cove Baths at North Beach, reports that the cold weather is not at all interfering with the attendance at that institution. She states that never before at this time of the year was the attendance at the baths as large as it is at the present time.

The Palace and Crystal baths are crowded nightly. During the week the teachers are kept unusually busy instructing the new pupils that are flocking in as thick as the fog into the Golden Gate on a winter's night.

The Tenace baths at Alameda are still doing a fine business. The young members of the Tenace Club will continue to practice all through the winter and spring.

The Alpine Club may hold a swimming tournament for members of the club at the Sheltered Cove Baths before long.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

The Alameda, Pacific and Burnaby clubs have leased the West End grounds at Alameda for two years. Westher permitting, the game will be practiced all the year round.

Messrs. John D. Neild, Rogers, Curtis and Winters of the Alameda Club are inveterate players, and when they face the bowlers the score usually takes a big jump.

Charley Hill and John Theobald are still in the field, and next year these old Merrion Club champions will be heard from.

Captain Rodgers, of the steamer Encinal, says that he is getting too old to handle a boat, but it makes his heart beat with delight when the "Alamedas" are on top, which is nearly always the case.

Most of the Cricketers are good base ball players.

The Alameda and Pacific clubs were matched at the West End grounds last Saturday afternoon. Thanks to steady practice, the team from across the water had things all their own way. The attendance was not very large, but the crowd was very profuse in its applause when any good batting was done. The following is the summary of the play:

Every day, Saturday and Sunday afternoon, practice and match games will be played at the West End grounds. The experienced players will always be willing to instruct the novices.

AT THE OARS.

Last Sunday afternoon several members of the Carleton Opera Company visited the quarters of the Delphin Swimming and Boating Club. The guests were treated to a row on the bay in the eight oared barge John Willard, which was manned by a crew of club members. The singers expressed their regret at not being able to attend the ball of the club which will be held at Saratoga Hall on the evening of the 25th.

Captain Phelan of the amateur crew of the Ariels has just begun to practice single sculling. He was out on Sunday and for an initial effort his progress was first class.

In view of the resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Pacific Rowing Association to the effect that in future the principal event at all regattas held under its auspices will be a four oared shell race, the Pioneer Club has organized the following crew: Charles Long, captain (bow) John T. Sullivan (stroke) Dan Leahy (aft) M. Stokes (ford). The Pioneers will back this crew against any other in the State.

The following officers have been elected by the Pioneer Rowing Club to serve for the next year: P H McDonald, President; W C Espy, Vice-President; R J Espy, Secretary; J P McDonnell, Treasurer; Wm. Ellis, Sergeant-at-arms; M Stokes, Captain; D Leahy, Vice-Captain; Trustees, R Crowley, James Brennan, M Long. Delegates to the Pacific Rowing Association: W C Espy, J T Sullivan, John Stanton.

The club had a very successful anniversary at Hunter's Point on Sunday last.

Eugene Flanders of the Ariels and H O Farrell, Secretary of the Pacific Rowing Association are about to organize a Naphtha steam launch club. The membership will be limited to twenty. All persons desiring information should apply to Eugene Flanders, 1148 Market St., San Francisco.

Although the water was in good order and the weather warm but few of the South End oarsmen were out on Sunday. Many of them went over to Tiburon and Sansalito in search of smelt and rock cod, and the racing shells lay idle all day.

On Thanksgiving Day there will be a match single scull race at Long Bridge. The course will be a mile straight away. The following will compete: Sullivan, Long, Leahy and White of the Pioneers; Growney and C. Peterson of the Ariels; Griffin and Thomas of the South Ends.

THE WHEEL

The joint run of the American Bicycle Club and Garden City Wheelmen to Niles Canyon on last Sunday was well attended, and the boys all had a good time.

Almost any afternoon except Sunday small parties of young ladies may be seen taking tandem exercise in Golden Gate Park.

Walter Fisher, R. A. Smythe, Harry Williams, Harry Potter and C. Konke, five members of the Alameda Bicycle Club, took a ride to Menlo Park last Sunday. They report the roads in fair condition.

The Alameda B. C. will give a grand ball about November 7th. The following have been appointed a committee to make arrangements for the occasion. Mesars. Hanley, Hebbard, Burrell, Culver and White.

A run of the club will be held to-morrow to Bolenas. Members are requested to take the 7 o'clock boat from Alameda.

For the first time during the season Charley Culver and his friend Will Hebbard gave their wheel a Sabbath rest last Sunday.

Since the Alameda Bicycle Club moved to its new quarters the membership has been rapidly increasing, and the members are confident that before another year the club will be able to erect a fine building of its own.

The wheelmen are anxiously awaiting for further information in regard to the proposed Mechanics' Pavilion tournament of the Bay City Wheelmen.

On dit that several of the local riders are about to purchase pneumatic-tired wheels.

A meeting of members of the California Division League of American Wheelmen will be held at Welcome Hall, Odd Fellows Building, corner 7th and Market Streets, on Saturday, Nov. 1, 1890, at 8 P. M.

On the following day, Sunday, a run through Golden Gate Park and Presidio Reservation will take place. The start will be made at 10 o'clock A. M. from the hall.

The Bay City wheelmen will hold a club run to Redwood City and return to-morrow. The start will be made from 21st and Mission Streets at 8:15 A. M. The pace will be made easy and all wheelmen are invited to join in the run. A fine dinner will be specially served for the wheelmen at the new hotel.

UNIVERSITY JOTTINGS.

The Associated Students held a meeting last week, when an assessment of $1.50 per capita for athletic expenses was levied. An assessment of $2.50 was levied on each class team to buy baseballs.

Regular exercise in the gymnasium began last week.

Fred C. Cleft, the walker, who is at present traveling in Europe will return about November 15th.

The handsome relay trophy presented by ex-President Davis, has been properly mounted and placed in a conspicuous place in the library. A scroll has been added on which to keep a record of the relay races.

The athletes will make a big effort to capture the championship flag in 1891.

The cinder path will shortly be put in good condition. It is the intention of several of the students to take light outdoor practice during the winter months.

The gymnasium is now supplied with apparatus of improved manufacture, and hot water has been added to the baths. The dressing rooms are also heated, and a fine running track has just been finished. In door contests will be held during the winter, and medals will be awarded for competitions.

The Field Captain will organize his team early next year so that he will be able to coach the men who intend fighting the battle on next Decoration Day.

The Board of Directors of the Tennis Club have taken steps to have the courts put in order.

The following officers have been elected by the University Lawn Tennis Club: President, J. Garber; Vice-President, Warren Only: Secretary, W. D. Chapman; Treasurer, J. Leabbert; Directors, Messrs. Palache, Blake and Sedgwick.

Ed Van Dyke '92 and Todd '94 were slightly hurt in the foot-ball game last Wednesday.

The V. C. may be represented by one or two men at the coming boxing tournament.

It is not at all improbable but that the students will follow the example set by the Olympic and Alpine Clubs by holding weekly handicap races for prizes.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

Ambition is the stepping stone to fame. During its last days in the Eureka Turn Verein Hall on Powell St. the Alpine Amateur Club was in a very bad condition and I was very much afraid that this promising young club would not be able to pull through. After the first board went out of office things did not seem to run as smoothly as before but thanks to the ambition of President Farrell, Secretary Steinway, privates Lang and King and last but by no means least Field-captain Johnny Garrison the organization surmounted its difficulties and is ot the present time existing on a very solid foundation.

I paid a visit to the Olympic grounds last Sunday and it pleased me to see so many athletes stripped.

Smiling George W. Hupers, who has lately indentified himself with the Olympics was jumping around like a six months old lamb and judging from the happy grin on his face I think the track came up to his expectations. Four or five years ago George was a great "half miler" and it he should take it in his head to train again the chances are that he will win a medal at the next championship games.

Peter McIntyre was kept busy all day attending to the gate. Pete was so careful of "his boys" that every time any one entered the grounds the good natured son of Scotia would shout "close the gate" least an extra zephyr would enter.

I was much pleased at the surroundings of the grounds. The grass is now well above the earth which gives the place a handsome appearance. The flower beds make a very pleasing effect and I think the boys should take a great delight in lounging around their Paradisical home.

I dropped into the gymnasium of the Olympic Club the other evening, and could not help exclaiming: O tempora! O Mores! What a difference now in the attendance towards when Charley Wittram used to run "his mile" every night in ten minutes, and then retire to dream of his future chance of becoming America's greatest runner. There must have been at least one hundred members exercising, and the exhibition given by some of them made my hair fairly stand on end. So much for the careful couching of skilled professors.

After all, I think dear old 'Frisco, for its population is one of the most athletic cities in the United States.

"RAMBLER."

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

C. Simmons and Arthur Blake, who were arrested on a warrant sworn out by J. H. Boyd, who accused them of having cheated him out of $250 in a foot race which came off at the Bay District track, in which Fred A. Redmond and George W. Miett ran, were recently exonerated, it having been proved that the contest was on the square.

Secretary E. Phil Moody, of the Alpine Club, contradicts the statement recently made in the columns of the Morning Call, to the effect that he had joined the army of benedicts. Phil informs us that after reading the announcement his "best girl" got mad at him, and now he is in a bad fix.

Harry Casidy, of the Alpine Club, was at the Olympic grounds on Sunday looking for Frank Cooley. That worthy was not there when Mr. Casidy arrived, and so the Alpinite was obliged to return to San Leandro without having a chance to interview his old opponent. Mr. Casidy states that the challenge in his behalf, offering to run Cooley two miles, which appeared in the columns of a daily paper, was put in without his knowledge or consent, and he says that he only desires to meet Mr. Cooley in a one-mile race as he previously announced through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. A representative of this paper met Mr. Cooley on Pine street on Wednesday last, and this is what passed between the two: "Why did you not answer Casidy's challenge offering to run you a mile, which appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN several weeks ago?" "I was willing to run him, but at the time I did not have any money to put up I was sorry that I did not see him on Sunday, for I heard he was looking for me. I am sure he would have made a match there and then. Unfortunately I sprained my ankle since then, and it will take at least a couple of weeks to mend. I will be only too happy to meet Mr. Casidy and arrange for a one-mile race with him for a medal or trophy, which must not be too expensive, for at the present time I am not a capitalist. I think I will be able to race him about the middle of next month. If he would like it better I will go him a series of three races, say, one, three and five miles." The amateurs are all anxious to see a match made between the two men, for opinion differs as to which is the speediest for a mile.

The outsiders who won medals at the last Field-day of the Alpine Club on May 4th, will receive their prizes in about two weeks. The medals are now being made.

The Woman's Club for Physical Culture is making rapid progress. New members are being daily added to the roll. The members exercise in the gymnasium of the Olympic Club, whose professors have been engaged to assist the fair ones in learning how to swing clubs, fence, etc.

"The Olympic Club has decided to uniform its members" —Daily Report, October 15th. The Sporting editor must have been at a political meeting the night before he wrote the above. We understand that the servants are to be uniformed, but the uniforming of the members is something new to us.

Regarding the coming boxing tournament the Secretary of the Olympic Club has issued the following circular to all the members:

Dear Sir: You are advised that this tournament will be held for the special amusement and instruction of members of this club. You are aware that these events are expensive and the club cannot afford to throw them open to the public. No invitations therefore will be issued, and members are requested to keep this notice in view, particularly as the tournament will extend over a period of weeks.

Gentlemen who (from this date up to the 5th of November) may apply for membership under the usual conditions will be admitted as guests of the club.

It is necessary that our membership should be increased, and unless we conserve our entertainments we are not likely to gain the desired increase. I am, dear sir, etc.,

W. E. HOLLOWAY, Secretary O. A. C.

"Francisco" (Mrs. Bunker) in last Saturday's Daily Report wrote rather disparagingly of the Smoker Concert recently given at the club rooms of the Olympic Club. Here is a specimen of her remarks.

If we expect any domestic freedom in the year passing and to come we must sit down on him at once We have brought about this callousness in man by giving way, when a gentle insistance of the respect due us would have placed a layer of gentle manliness on our, in many cases, careless husbands. When a man asks me if smoking is offensive I always incline to the reply, "I do not know; no gentleman has ever smoked in my presence." When I ask a man to light his cigar it is because there is reason and excuse for his smoking. But for a club of men to dedicate an evening to the deliberate puffing of cigar smoke into the faces of women they profess to respect is a trifle too "good-fellowish." So women of Olympia, again I say to you put down the "smoking concert." If you turn on the hose of common sense you will put out the cigar fire at perhaps small expense. If not the little smoke may a great fire kindle that not even the Olympics can quench. "Have your "smoking concerts," men, but don't insult your wives and women friends by invitations thereto. Every man in the land tells his wife that there are certain things she should know nothing about. The "smoking concert" is surely one of them.

Messrs. Lang and Steinway, of the Alpine Club, are hard at work preparing themselves for the coming boxing tournament. Every evening the pair may be seen at the Central Park Club rooms practicing the "Steinway swing." Last Tuesday night Steinway got his blow properly focused and the result was that Lang suddenly found himself on Market near ninth. His negligee costume excited much curiosity and one of the fair exhibitors who was passing tried to capture the surprised boxer for his booth in the pavilion. Mr. Lang is somewhat of a sprinter, however, and he covered the block between where he landed and the club rooms in five seconds.

Dooley, of the Alpines, will enter the light-weight class. While sparring recently Mr Dooley slipped and hurt his leg He expects to be all right again when the time comes round.

Last Wednesday, an evening paper printed a picture of James Jervis, the amateur champion walker. The biography which appeared beneath the picture is certainly a very clever piece of composition. Mr. Jervis is a very square walker and it must certainly have been a surprise to him to be told that he walked a mile in Scotland, in 1884, in 7min. 8secs., "running very easy." The sketch also stated that Jervis "won some good handicaps, off short marks, one of the best performances for the season being the running of the two-mile handicap at Staylebridge of the 40 yard mark. Time 14 min. 2secs. on a grass course.

The Alpine Club will give a half-mile handicap run for members at the Bay District Track on Sunday, Oct. 26th. Three prizes will be awarded. The next cross country run will be held from Berkeley, on Sunday, Nov. 10th. An all round meeting for members only will shortly be given.

Elements of Success.

The history of the many meetings held over the country during the now closing season for racing, plainly indicate the cause of failure, where failure has occurred, and with equal certainty point out the causes which have contributed to success where it has been most marked.

The history of racing in this respect is but the repetition of that of every organization which caters to the public for patronage.

The public are always critical and severe in the condemnation of any organization which seeks to foist upon it anything which savors of unfairness or of fraud. The eagle is not more keen of glance. Nothing of this nature escapes the public eye, as some organizations have found to their loss and humiliation.

Racing for years has been steadily gaining in the estimation of the public, and any organization in which the public confidence is reposed, can have but little cause for complaint for treatment received. On the other hand, the meetings of such organizations are almost invariably attended with the most satisfactory results.

Even though a person have not one penny's interest in the result of a race there is found to be a natural and strong desire for fair play, which if contravened or perverted by any acts of the officers in charge or by any one else, will bring down upon their heads an avalanche of contumely and opprobrium which they cannot avoid, nor long successfully withstand.

It is with no small degree of pride that we are enabled to state that in every well established organization for the improvement of the horse, that "sharp practices" are becoming less and less frequent, and the demand for fair and honorable conduct, is becoming more and more of an essential element.

In short, we believe fully, that there is to-day as much of fairness and uprightness in all well regulated organizations for testing the speed of horses, as there is to be found in any of the other avenues of commercial and business life. Whenever fraud is shown it is speedily condemned and almost arbitrarially punished.

Fair and honest endeavor never fails to receive its merited commendation and reward.

The liberty-loving and fair-minded people of this country will countenance no other methods.

The universal cry is "a fair field and no favors, and may the best horse win."

Homestake seems to have opened the eyes of many of the attendants at the Napa races.

National Parks.

One of the important questions which should occupy the attention of our national legislators is the one relating to a system of national parks.

We have no adequate parks. Nothing whatever save the Yellow Stone Park, and that is only one and by far too small to be dignified, or classed as a park providing for the wants of a nation, like that of ours, which is annually growing larger and larger in numbers. If one person out of every 1,000 of our population should visit this park once a year, it would cease to be a park in the true sense of the word, and an army of police would be required to warn them to "keep off the grass!" Hundreds of thousands of acres within the mountains are practically useless for any other purpose than parks. Nature has suggested these districts for this purpose, and we owe it to posterity to see that they are secured for this purpose.

There is only an occasional piece of land that could be used for homesteading, and these, if improved, would only serve, in a limited way, for providing for the entertainment of man and beast, when on excursions to these natural parks. The proper preservation and adaptation of these otherwise barren and useless regions, can only properly be done under the national protection. It should be done now, before the already scantily clothed mountains are denuded of the timber which is growing upon them. The streams should be preserved, which can only be done by preserving the forests. They should be stocked with fish. The game should be preserved, to which end, game wardens, appointed under supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, should be created. It will be a great loss to future generations, as well as to those of the present, if some measures are not provided to preserve the mountains with their wealth of beauty and their abundance of game and fish.

The legislator who takes the initiative in this matter will have for his monument the everlasting hills, and the grateful tribute of all successive generations to his honor.

The opportunity is ripe and should not be neglected. California has at least ample room for at least one such park. Nevada, Utah and Colorado also present like opportunities.

The Sportsman's Month.

This is the sportsman's favorite month. All field sports are in their prime, and the surroundings are all that could be desired for rendering an outing most pleasurable. All classes of game are reported more than usually plentiful, excepting ducks.

Quail, snipe and grouse are found in abundance and afford an unlimited supply of interesting hunting. The rains have been frequent enough of late to place the fields and covers in excellent condition for the dogs to work over with the best of results. From all over the State are heard splendid results of field sporting. The nobler species of game, especially deer, are found to be quite plentiful, and the more hardy nimrods are having more than their usual share of sport of this royal class. Some splendid sport is reported to have recently been enjoyed in the northern part of the State, and in the southern districts of Oregon. The deer are in excellent condition. Black bear are reported numerous in the mountains east of Chico and Red Bluff, but few of our hunters have lost any game even of this semi-domesticated class of the bear family, and consequently but few of our hunters are searching for them. Food is abundant, and the birds are in fine condition, strong of wing and exceedingly active. The better sport, however, will come on later in the season, when the birds become more wary and require more care, in both hunter and dog, in approaching them.

Blood Horse Fall Meeting.

The Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association has since its organization been recognized at home and abroad as the leading racing association west of the Rockies. The Fall programme, which was issued last week by the Directors, give spromise of a highly interesting meeting, and it is hoped that with favorable weather the public will turn out in greater numbers than of late. The meeting will be held at the Bay District Track on November 22d, 25th, 27th and 29th, 1890, and all race horse owners should recollect that entries close on Monday, November 3rd.

The coming Chicago Horse Show, which opens on November 1st and closes November 8th, gives promise of being an unusually interesting event. Upwards of $20,000 is guaranteed in prizes, and everything points to a highly satisfactory and interesting meeting. The well known names of Potter Palmer, R. H. McCormick, Chas. Schwartz and H. J. McFarland, officers of the association, are a sure guarantee of a successful gathering.

The Pride of California.

California has just reason to be proud over the achievements accredited her on the turf for the season. Her banners are being hung on the outer wall. Wherever her horses have been entered they have succeeded in winning many of the very best races of the year. Leading horses of other sections have been beaten on on their own courses. Records, deemed secure by horsemen, have been broken, and the names of the leading flyers on the track are now inseparably connected with California. Her horsemen are smiling and happy and bear their honors with becoming modesty. It is therefore excusable for the Breeder and Sportsman, which has contended so earnestly and long for the California horse, to indulge in a few comments of congratulation, not to say boasting, on the achievements of the immediate past.

But a few years ago the leading interest in turf sporting matters was largely conceded to Kentucky, but the advancement of civilization, and the population of new States, has removed the pivotal point of American industries and enterprises of many leading natures from their former centers. Advancement has been made every where—all over the country—but we may be pardoned for calling attention to the record, which of itself affirms more potentially than any words of ours can do, that in the breeding, developing and culture of the horse, California stands head and shoulders above all would-be competitors.

We take this occasion to congratulate the horsemen of the State on this splendid state of affairs, and to add that the results secured and the records made are a special cause of gratification to this journal.

Farmers' Law and Order Clubs.

If we could be so fortunate as to impress the farmers of the State with the idea that it is of more importance to them, than to any other class of the community, that the game and fish laws should be rigidly enforced, we would accomplish a leading and important measure. We do not mean that the farmers, as a class, are given to disregard the statutory provisions in this respect, far from it, for they are among our most law abiding citizens. What we do desire to bring prominently before them is the fact that as they are living nearer the game districts than any other class of people, they are in a position to derive more of the benefits arising from the use of game and fish than any other of our citizens, and at the same time are in a position to detect the violations of the law more readily. The farmers of Ohio have formed a Farmers' Law and Order League with the intention of affording protection to the game. The organization has for its object the enforcement of the law and the discouragement by all fair and reasonable means of the wanton destruction of game. It would be well for the game interest of this State were such organizations established here. It is an erroneous idea, too frequently held by the farmers, to suppose that the action of sporting clubs are in any sense in conflict with their interests and the best interests of the State.

Game Preserves.

There seems to us to be a very wide and unnecessary difference of opinion relative to the matter game preserves. The main point at issue, which all true sportsmen will at once concede, is the preservation of the game. The means by which this may be accomplished is of secondary consideration, so long as the main object is attained.

All men are human, exceedingly so, and it must be admitted that some men and some organizations carry out the meaning which this term implies, to a degree of selfishness which is mean and contemptible. But what are we to do? Shall we say because some clubs are penurious and exceedingly selfish in exercising authority over their preserves that we will object to them entirely, and thus cut down and utterly destroy about the only means extant for the preservation of game?

We think every true sportsman will be slow in arriving at such a conclusion.

Questionable results have followed the formation and action of large and influential bodies of men, whose objects and purposes, in the main, have been to preserve the game and fish within their districts. If they do enjoy some especial privileges, does not their work and expenditure entitle them to it?

Let it be understood that first, last and all the time, we are in favor most heartily of any and all plans which give promise of proving effectual in stopping the wholesale slaughter and destruction of game of every character. Private enterprise has always preceded public action along all the more prominent questions of reformation, and we doubt not will continue to do so in this particular field.

Grim's Gossip.

D. M. Reavis will sell a large consignment of trotting horses in New York next Februsry.

It is abont definately settled tbat Mr. Corbitt will have a string of trotters in tbe Esst next year.

Mr. Gilbert Tompkin's young stallion El Benton is lame, and bas not sbown up so well at Napa as was expected.

Tbe well known Bob Stewart of Kansas City, will winter all of bis celebrated trotters in California this coming winter.

Racquet, tbe black gelding formerly owned by Mr. Havens of this city, is now a ringer in tbe slow classes tbroughout New York state under another name.

President Green of the State Agricultnral Society was one of tbe judges on Thnrsday, Mr. Loeber stepping out of the stand, as be had an entry in tbe four-yesr-old rsce.

Tbe "Kicking Stakes" is likely to prove a walk over. The San Jose entry was favorite for a long time, bnt a dark horse cropped up on Wednesday, and last payments bave not been made on any of tbe others.

McDowell will leave for Montana almost immediately after tbe Napa meeting, and bring to California a lot of trotters wbich be will winter here preparatory to taking tbem back on tbe Eastern Circuit next year.

Andy McDowell declares tbat Cricket is tbe fastest pacer on eartb, and that 2:10 is no measure of her speed. Tbe owner, Mr. Meek, informs me that tbe msre will be campaigned on tbe big circuit back East next season.

A well known rounder and petty larceny tbief stole a pool ticket out of an old gentleman's pocket at Napa, but did not get it cashed, as the pool firm were notified of tbe loss and tbe tbief was frightened away from tbe town.

Tbe judges fined Mr. Salisbury $25 for waving his hat on the track wben he motioned McDowell to slow up. Wben tbe old gentleman paid tbe money be said he had done wrong and tbat tbe fine should have been a hundred.

As Mr. Killip bas been ratber nnder the weather lately, Dave Eisman bas presided at the pool box and bow be does wbeedle tbe by standers into buying tickets. Dave bas an aptitude for tbe business and is already a success.

In tbe last heat of tbe race so bardly fougbt out between Homestake and Frank M., tbe latter lost a four ounce toe weigbt, which tended greatly to nnbalance bim, and it was simply a marvelous performance when he finished second in 2:15¼.

The pool selling at Napa has proven tbat "all sorts and oonditions of men" will play "tbe box on pacing races. There seems to he an uncertainty abont tbese events tbat incites a spirit of gambling and from tbe highest to tbe lowest all put up on tbeir fancy.

Frank Denio, the Vallejo blacksmith, has been busy two days of the week on tbe feet of Frank M., hut wbat tbe result will be can only be demonstrated wben tbe result of the Homestake and Frank M. race is known. Tbe report will oome in too late for tbis week's issne, but it takes no spirit of prophesy to predict that tbere will be a great horse race.

Rumor, who is sometimes right and sometimes wrong, states that the pacing gelding Edwin C, with a record of 2:15, who was sold to some Eastern parties, is now being used as a ringer in the Western States nnder the name of Doctor M. Far be it from me to do any party an injustice but I think it will repay tbe trouble if some one will try and trace up the pedigree and breeding of Doctor M.

One of the happiest men at Napa on Wednesday was John McCord, of Sacramento, when Ned Winslow, tbe pacer, passed under the wire in 2:15. He bad every rigbt to be happy, for does be not own both the sire and dam of tbe fleety gelding? Tom Benton is snre to make a mark for bimself, as he is also the sire of Mary Lou, a game and reliable trotter. The day is not far distant when Tom Benton will be one of California's representative stallions.

It was a lively party that went up on the train Friday night of last week, the destination being Napa, and tbe stories tbat were told, well, you can imagine? Frank Burke, Jimmy Dustin, A. B. Rodman, John McConnell, John McCord of Napa, Capt. Harris and Mr. Button all full of hope as to tbe prospective result of the meeting, and each willing to talk abont their respective ideas of breeding. It was a jolly party, and fun reigned supreme.

When Johnny Goldsmith was warming up Stamboul on Saturday last preparatory to sending him a mile against the watch, he sent him two fast quarters, one of them being completed in 31¾ seconds and the other in 31¼. Tbe result of tbe trial was a disappointment to many as it was expected that with the track being fast that Sultan's noted son would lower his present record. Mr. Goldsmitb will send him again this afternoon and there are thousands wbo sincerely trust that the stallion record of the world may be broken.

One of tbe old time horsemen present at the Breeders' Meeting was Uncle Joe Bassford of Vacaville, who came over to see the sport and sbake bands with his many friends. Mr. Bassford in tbe early days was a noted figure on all the tracks of the State, and for many years acted as a judge at many of the prominent meetings in California. Uncle Joe carries his age well, and tbere are many younger men who cannot jump over a five barred gate as fast or as nimbly as the old veteran.

One of the neatest bits of appreciation that bas come under my notice for some time, occurred on Saturday last at Napa, when Mr. George Wiley of the Cook Stock Farm approached Andy McDowell and thanked him in the warmest terms for his marvelous work with the pacingmare Cricket tbis season. Said Mr. Wiley "our bearty thanks for what you bave done for the daughter of Steinway is not an adeqnate return and on bebalf of the Farm, I desire that you accept tbis more snbstantial token of our regard" and he handed Andy ten bright twenty dollar gold pieces. Tbe noted driver says that as tbe weather is pretty cold in Montana, the money will come in good play to purchase a sealskin jacket for Mrs. McDowell and then neither of them will forget for a long time the little bay mare tbat brought additional fame to the McDowell family.

The first clause in those often quoted rules usually known as Boise Basin, is—as I understand it, "You mnst win by two open lengths or it don't go if tbe judges are not in with it." At one of our district meetings held northb of San Francisco not long ago, which was advertised to be run nnder State Fair rules, one of our most popular thoroughbred owners so far forgot himself as to protest against the decision of the judges when he only won by a bead. Tbe rider of tbe winner (?) said to me tbat be thongbt he lost by a neck and qualified it by saying every one said he did, bnt tbe judges thought otherwise. It is not tbe first time in tbe bistory of tbe district fair tbat their judges have tbougbt differently to the public, but it will not pay in tbe long run.—[BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, Aug. 23rd.]

It is funny bow tbe shoe will fit at times. Seated at tbe breakfast table a few mornings ago at Napa, the President of a society located northb of San Francisco began a tirade against me because the above item appeared. Well, let it be made a little more empbatic, the result of the race, as announced from the stand was a deliberate fraud on tbe betting public and there was not a person nnder tbe wire, but what knew that the horse placed second had won by a bead and a neck, and a score of affidavits can be had to that effect. Run your races square, gentlemen, and tbere will be no need to criticise your actions. And by tbe way put men in tbe stand tbat can be depended on to give fair and impartial decisions.

FIFTH DAY.

The fiftb day of the Napa meeting was not productive of any sensational events, altbongh tbere was a promise of one witb tbe yearling colt Freedom by Sable Wilkes. As is well known, tbe youngster has sbown many fast quarters and halves, and only last Sunday trotted a full mile in 2:33. Tbe betting was strongly in favor of tbe colt, as everyone felt assured that be could beat the yearling stallion record of 2:35, and the betting public was so confident of his speed that in selling bim against Norlaine's record of 2:31¼, Freedom was choice at $20 against $17 for tbe old Scytbe bearer. Just before be was called up for the trial, Mr. Goldsmith went into the judges stand and stated that he did not like the way the colt was acting, and tbat be was afraid tbe affair would not end in success. He was told that he might bave tbree trials, but whenever he nodded for the word that he would have to go all tbe way around wbetber the colt broke or not. When at last everything was ready, tbe driver nodded, but almost immediately tbe little fellow broke, and Goldsmith only jogged him around. He was then asked if he would waive his time between heats and he answered, "Yes," but tbat be would have to go to tbe stable for a minute or two as his saddle was broken and it was necessary to repair or replace it. Witbin five minutes he was on tbe track again, and once more the word was given. Away went the best of Sable's get witbout skip or break, and tbe quarter was reached in 37¾ seconds. On tbe backstretch there is a slight bill to ascend, whicb detracts somewbat from the speed of an ordinary trotter, bnt the brave little thing successfully overcame the rise and reached the balf in 1:15½.

Tbe spectators were alive to tbe fact that success was now probable, and every eye was riveted on the baby trotter as be struggled gamely along toward tbe three-quarter pole, which was reached in 1:53¼. He now had 41½ seconds to tye Faustino's record and 38 to equal that made by Norlaine. As he rounded into the homestretcb, the strain was too much for tbe colt, his strength not being sufficient to carry him along at the pace with which he had gone to the balf, and he weakened perceptibly, the last quarter taking bim 0:44¾ to accomplish. He will he sent again to-day (Saturday) in hopes tbat he may be successful.

A pacing matcb for $25 a side was not productive of much betting, the contestants being Annie C. and Cora C. The former is a daughter of California Nutwood, Martin Carter's horse, and she proved to be the better of tbe two by distancing her opponent in 2:27¾.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. P. K.

I have a horse with a large leg caused by mud fever. It is on him since last winter and appears to be quite hard. He works all right with it, and does not favor it any, but I would like to remove it if possible.

Please say through your columns what is best to do for it.

Answer.—Apply a bichloride of Mercury blister, half an ounce of the iodide to two ounces of lard, and communicate with us again with regard to it.

J. L.

I blistered my colt as you advised about a month ago. The lameness has all disappeared. Can I now work him as usual.

Answer.—Give him at least six weeks rest from the time you blistered him, and even then do not give him fast work immediately. Work him slowly at first, and bring him gradually into his usual amount.

C. K.

My mare has a soft swelling in front of the off hock. I think it is blood spavin, but it does not lame her. Would you advise me to blister it.

Answer.—No; as long as it does not lame her, let it alone.

M. C. W.

I have a fine dark bay colt, about sixteen and a half hands high, which I think will make a fast road horse. He makes a noise in breathing when I drive him fast or when he gets excited. What is it due to, and what can I do to cure it? It does not appear to injure him, but I should like to get rid of it.

Answer.—Your horse is what is generally termed a roarer. This disease is incurable, but does not interfere with a horse's ordinary work. This noise is sometimes caused by any injury to the nasal bones. It may be due to conformation, as is often the case in a horse with a "Roman nose." But it is more properly due to a disease of the larynx, in which one of the muscles becomes paralyzed, and the opening for the passage of air is constricted. The passage can be enlarged by an operation, but it is not often attended with success.

B.

I have a five year old mare that got cut with barbed wire on her right fore foot between the fetlock and hoof, three years ago, and it has never entirely healed, or rather it will heal and then break out at intervals of three or four months. At present she is quite lame. The place is nearly as large as a twenty-five cent piece, feels hard and movable, as though there was something under the skin. Do you think there was any of the wire left in? What would you advise me to do?

Answer—Is the ulcer deep when it breaks out? Does it appear to go right into the joint, or merely a little deeper than the skin?

It it be only skin deep, the thickened part should be cut right out. But if it appears to go near the joint, you had better get a qualified veterinary surgeon to attend to it, as it is a dangerous part for an inexperienced person to tamper with.

Communicate with us again.

Names Claimed.

I hereby claim the name of ORIOLE for chestnut colt by Hooker, dam Dolly Varden by Montezuma, foaled April 7th, 1889. W. F. CUTLER, Sacramento.

Take State St. cars and get transfer to Stock Yards.

The County Fairs held thus far over the State have been moderately successful, as well as could be expected under the conditions with which the several Agricultural Societies have had to contend.

The Washington Jockey Club holds a ten days' meeting at Bennings Race Course, commencing October 21st. Purses for this event amounting to $21,000 are offered. A large gathering is expected.

The races on the whole at Napa have been of an encouraging nature. The crowd for the most part, barring one or two unavoidable changes and omissions in the programme were well pleased.

Visalia Fair.

FIRST DAY, OCTOBER 7TH.

The attendance at Visalia on the opening day was very slim, owing probably to the fact that the Fresno races were run over into the next week and quits a large number of horsemen left Fresno for Napa, while others went straight on to Los Angeles.

Three races were on the programme for the first day. Three minute class, trotting, three-eighths and repeat running and one quarter mile dash. The three minute trotting race had three starters, St. Joe, Col. Gannon and Sadie Mc Gregor. St. Joe was made a red hot favorite on the strength of his good victory at Fresno, and won in straight heats without ever being extended.

SECOND DAY, OCTOBER 8TH.

The crowd was a slight improvement on that of the opening day; the stock parade in the morning not having been properly advertised, did not draw many people. In the afternoon three races were competed for.

The first event was a trotting race for three year olds eligible to the 2:40 class. Second race, half mile dash for district two year olds, running. The third race was a five furlong dash for all ages. In the first heat two horses started, Richmond Chief and El Pastore. El Pastore sold favorite at $10 to $8 for Richmond Chief. After scoring up a couple of times, the word was given. El Pastore going very steadily, was two lengths in the lead at the quarter, and was never headed, and won cleverly by two lengths. Time, 2 45. In the second heat El Pastore made a bad break on the first turn and never fairly settled, while Richmond Chief went on, winning by almost a distance. El Pastore who had run hard the last two hundred yards to save his distance, was distanced for running.

THIRD DAY, OCTOBER 9TH.

The programme for the third day was much better than any of the previous days, and consequently drew a much larger crowd.

The first race was for the 2:30 trotters, had four starters: St. Joe, Bay Wilkes, Rysdyk Chief and Barbaro. In the first heat when the word was given, all four horses broke, Barbara cut out the work around the turn, St. Joe second and Bay Wilkes third; Bay Wilkes went clear around the other two, going steadily from there home and won easily by two lengths from St. Joe. In the second heat Bay Wilkes took the lead with St. Joe second, and going very steadily, won by a length after a hard finish with St. Joe. The third heat was a repetition of the second, with the exception that Rysdyk was the contesting horse instead of St. Joe, Bay Wilkes coming in first by a length after a hard drive down the stretch.

When the flag dropped Ella G. and Murphy jumped off in front and made the running to the homestretch when Daisy D. and Glenn closed up and passed them. Daisy D. shook Ida Glenn off a furlong from home and Dan Murphy came up with a rush, and at the finish was half a length behind Daisy D. and three-fourths of a length in front of Glenn.

FOURTH DAY, OCTOBER 10TH.

There was a marked increase in the attendance, everybody in Tulare and Visalia seemed to be there. The stock parade in the morning was witnessed by a large and intelligent crowd of farmers. The afternoon programme consisted of four races: Two-year-old, trotting race and three running races.

The first race was three-quarters of a mile, running, and had four starters: Billy Lee, Bishno, Wild Flower and Ella G. Ella G. and Bishno sold for $10 each while Wild Flower and Billy Lee brought $5 as a field. When the flag fell Billy Lee got off in front and turned into the homestretch a length in front of Bishno and Wild Flower and won in a canter by two lengths Bishno getting second place after a hard fight with Wildflower. ALPINE SPRINTERS.

The regular Sunday handicaps of the Alpine Club were decided at the Bay District Track last Sunday forenoon. Track in line condition.. Attendance large. Weather Splendid. The first event was a series of heats to decide a 220 yard handicap run. There were three heats and a final. The first and second man in each heat was allowed to enter the final heat. The starters, fifteen in number, were started as follows:

First heat—John W. Creagh 7 yards; H. C. Casidy 12 yards; H. Coleman 15 yards; W. Edgar 15 yards; W. F. Vollmer 18 yards. Creagh and Mahoney ran a dead heat. Time 23 2-5 seconds. Coleman third.

Second heat—A. Cooke 14 yards; J. J. Larkey 11 yards; C. Armbruster 18 yards; C. W. Meyer 15 yards; G. Bishop 15 yards. Meyer won first. Time 24 2-5 seconds. Charles Armbruster second.

Third heat—John D. Garrison scratch; E. P. Mordy 10 yards; J. Gawne 15 yards. Gawne won first. Time 23 2-5 seconds. Garrison second.

Final heat—Gawne first. Time 23 2-5 seconds. Mahoney second, Meyer third, Armbruster fourth. Four prizes were given. The winner, J. Gawne, is a new man, and the old-timers were rather surprised at his great show of speed. He hails from San Leandro, and showed the effects of careful training on the Souther Farm race track. He is a "dark horse" of Cassidy's, and he may yet make his mark as a sprinter. Creagh did not start in the final, and Garrison was not feeling well. During the day H. C. Cassidy ran an exhibition mile in very good time. Several of the other athletes also gave good exhibitions of running, jumping and walking.

AT THE OLYMPIC GROUNDS.

The Olympic sprinters were out in full force last Sunday. The chief event of the day at the new grounds was a 1200-yard handicap run for members of the club for two valuable prizes. Twelve men started and they were handicapped as follows: R Mc Arthur and M Espinosa, scratch; S V Casady, 20 yds; F L Coolsy, 25 yds; J Kortick, 35 yds; C Jelleneak, G W Hapers and P Wand each 40 yds; H Catlin, J Christie, each 45 yds; C Toomey, 60 yds; M Framhoni, 80 yds. The race was won rather easily by Toomey, McArthur second. The next event was a one hundred yard run: First heat, S V Casady, scratch: Gross, 7 yds; Sheath, 10 yds; Landsmann, 10 yds. The heat was won by Gross in 10½secs. Heat No. 2 brought out J Kortick, 2 yds; P Wand, 3 yds; R McArthur, 7½ yds. Kortick won in 10 3-5secs; Wand second. The third heat had C A Jelleneak, 2yds; M Espinosa, 6 yds; J Andrews, 7½ yds. Jellenak won in 10½ secs, Kortick being a good second. The hand ball court was crowded all day and and several wrestling matches took place on the turf. The races were witnessed by a large crowd of sport lovers. In the afternoon over fifty members of the Alpine Club visited the grounds and were very cordially received by the Olympians. Thanks to Mr. McIntyre, the track master, the path was in fine shape.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Alameda Olympic Club will give an informal hop at its club rooms on October 24. The Alameda Brass Band will be in attendance. The following officers were recently elected: President, W. F. Chipman; Vice-President, E. M. Shaw; Treasurer, L. Hewson; Leader, John P. Bylsr; Directors, C. E. Elliott, T. C. Hoddard, Giles Bradley, Perham N. Nahl, W. B. Josselyn, J. A. Leonard, J. H. Halton and A. C. Larsen.

The Directors of the Olympic Club have decided to allow members of P. C. A. A. A. clubs the privilege of using their grounds, track, etc., when training for games that are to be held out there. This is generosity itself and the outside athletes should not abuse their privileges.

The following circular has just been issued:

The Women's Educational and Industrial Union has had among its earliest objects the provision, under its own roof, of a gymnasium where women could have the benefit of intelligent physical culture.

This has, so far, not been accomplished, because the other and urgent objects of the union have absorbed all the energy and time of its earnest workers.

Now, however, a well-equipped gymnasium has been taken, the services and co-operation of Professor Smyth—the able instructor at the Olympic Club—have been secured, and such arrangements made as will provide in the simplest manner for the needs of women in the direction of symmetrical and healthful development.

The especial purpose of this circular is to announce that besides the private classes, and the larger general classes on different days of the week, there are evening classes for those women whose business or other cares preclude day attendance.

Many persons think their daily occupations bring exercise enough, and that gymnastic training is only useful to the idle, or the semi-invalid, or the badly developed: but the fact is well established that tired persons are better rested and refreshed by proper gymnastics than by complete repose. This is true of all kinds of fatigue, but especially true of that sort of weariness which accompanies occupations requiring long sitting or standing without change.

Not only school children, but all children, need this careful direction and exercise of their nervous and muscular force; and no woman, whether too idle or too busy, can get the best use of herself without it.

It is hoped that teachers and mothers will ponder this statement and be prepared to advise or direct those for whose physical well-being they are responsible.

LINCOLN'S MELANCHOLY.

His Sympathetic Nature and His Early Misfortunes.

Those who saw much of Abraham Lincoln during the later years of his life, were greatly impressed with the expression of profound melancholy his face always wore in repose.

Mr. Lincoln was of a peculiarly sympathetic and kindly nature. These strong characteristics influenced, very happily, as it proved, his entire political career. They would not seem, at first glance, to be efficient aids to political success; but in the peculiar emergency which Lincoln, in the providence of God, was called to meet, no vessel of common clay could possibly have become the "chosen of the Lord".

Those acquainted with him from boyhood knew that early griefs tinged his whole life with sadness. His partner in the business at Salem was "Uncle" Billy Green, of Tallula, Ill., who used at night, when the customers were few, to hold the grammar while Lincoln recited his lessons.

It was to his sympathetic ear Lincoln told the story of his love for sweet Ann Rutlidge; and he, in return, offered what comfort he could when poor Ann died, and Lincoln's great heart nearly broke.

"After Ann died," says "Uncle" Billy, "on stormy nights, when the wind blew the rain against the roof, she would set thar in the grocery, his elbows on his knees, his face in his hands, and the tears runnin' through his fingers. I hated to see him feel bad, an' I'd say, 'Abe don't cry'; an' he'd look up an' say 'I can't help it, Bill, the rain'a a fallin' on her.'"

There are many who can sympathize with this overpowering grief, as they think of a lost loved one, when "the rain's a fallin' on her." What adds poignancy to the grief some times is the thought that the lost one might have been saved.

Fortunate, indeed, is William Johnson of Corona L. I., a builder, who writes June 28, 1890: "Last February, on returning from church one night, my daughter complained of having a pain in her ankle. The pain gradually extended until her entire limb was swollen and very painful to the touch. We called a physician, who after a careful examination, pronounced it disease of the kidneys of long standing. All we could do, did not seem to benefit her until we used Warner's Safe Cure; from the first she commenced to improve. When she commenced taking it she could not turn over in bed, and could just move her hands a little, but today she is as well as she ever was. I believe I owe the recovery of my daughter to its use."

THE FARM.

Poultry Breeding.

That veteran farcier, E. R. Spaulding, thus expresses himself to the Poultry World on the prospects of the business.

Those who suppose that the interest taken in breeding thoroughbred poultry in America has reached its height are much mistaken. The majority of farmers keep poultry of some kind, but the most of them do not keep the improved varieties, nor do they yet understand the advantages that may be derived from keeping those kinds that have been bred up to a high degree of usefulness.

There is nothing a farmer produces that sells for as much in proportion on what it costs as eggs and poultry. In proportion to the cost of grain, eggs sell for more than they did twenty years ago. Although the increase in the production of poultry and eggs has been very large in the past ten years, yet the increase has not been equal to the increased demand for those products.

There is no doubt but it will nay the farmers of America to give special attention to the breeding of thoroughbred poultry and the production of eggs. And on many farms in New England it would pay to make it the leading industry.

The majority of farmers still keep the old mongrel hen. It is hard to make them realize that this is a mistake.

These are days of specialties. The general purpose cow and the general purpose hen are no longer of any use to those who keep cows and hens for the purpose of making money. Varieties of poultry that for years have been bled for the specific purpose of producing eggs will produce a much larger quantity of eggs in proportion to the cost of feeding them than can be got from the mongrels that can be found in a majority of the farm yards. It will take some time to educate the aversge farmer up to this point. but they are gradually coming to it. I believe that for the next twenty five years at least there will he an increasing demand for thoroughbred poultry. The expense of feeding and raising fowls that breed alike in form and feather, that present a beautiful appearance on the yard, and that have characteristics that fit them for some special purpose, is not greater than is incurred in producing mongrels that are without beauty or a high degree of usefulness. The majority of people can find much more pleasure in breeding stock of any kind that combines a high degree of grace and beauty, with the qualities that make it profitable, than they can where profit alone is the only point of interest there is about it.

The American farmer's homes can be made much more interesting and attractive than they usually are, and at the same time become more profitable in a financial point of view,and nowhere is this point more striking than in the management of the poultry yard. A few dollars invested to improve this branch of industry will pay much better on the majority of New England farms than to put money in a savings bank or to loan it on western bonds.

The Value of Pedigree.

The value of pedigree is best known to those who deal in thoroughbred or pedigreed stock, says the World. To the man who knows nothing of the protection that a pedigree affords in establishing purity of blood it is treated lightly by egotistical expressions as, "I want the animal, not the pedigree," "Give me a good animal and he will make the pedigree for himself," etc. Such remarks never pass the lips of a breeder, a man skilled in producing pure bred stock for the pure bred market. As soon as a person becomes interested in producing any kind of pure bred animals you will find that person making inquiry about the origin of this family or strain of stock.

It is natural to want to trace the family history back to noted ancestry. This can only be done through a systematized record of pedigree. The demands of the times require that you he able to tell all about your stock, if you make any claim at all to purity of blood. Be able to give sire and dam, grand sire and grand dam, etc , back to some noted and familiar animals at least. A break in this history by throwing in, "I don't know what the sire of her great grand dam was", is fatal in most instances, especially if your purchaser knows his business and is after straight goods.

Recently we called at a large poultry killing establishment in Omaha and in looking over the various coops and pens of chickens discovered a dozen or more very large, fine looking Light Brahma chicks fenced off by themselves. On inquiry they were introduced to us as a lot of choice, pure bred birds of great value, and were held for a fancy price. We made more inquiry and were assured by all manner of assertions that they were as fine a lot of thoroughbred chickens as could be found in the United States. We at once accepted the price and asked for the evidence of purity of blood. This could not be produced, not even evidence to prove that they were natives of Nebraska. Yet the owner thought they were good enough to introduce into any pure bred flock.

If you make breeding a business for the purpose of selling your produce for breeding purposes you cannot be too careful in the matter of pedigree, even if it be in a poultry yard. You can accommodate those who do not know or care for the value of pedigree, and you are regarded reliable by those who would not buy from a breeder whose stock is not based upon purity of blood.

System and Persistence.

There is far too much of the hand-to-mouth practice on the farm, and this applies especially to crops and the make of the diary. If the farmer has one good year of potatoes, the next year he will go into potatoes strong. So it is with the dairyman. If it is a good butter year, and the cheese factory returns but small dividends, he is about certain to desert the factory next year and go into butter strong. Now, the better plan is to first determine what make of goods and what character of product the farm and surroundings are best fitted for, and work on, year after year, on that line, always improving your conditions to better and better in that line. Let the market take care of itself, which it certainly will do in the long run. If prices are low this year, they are pretty certain to do much better next year; or, if they are had two years in succession, they are almost certain to be extra good the third year, so that the market price in a series of years will just about equalize itself in any one product of the farm or dairy. If you keep jumping from one to another of cheese and butter, you are just as apt to miss it as to hit it, and thus you become a speculator or gambler in a mild way, with the chance about equal, and the farm no better in the end that when you began. The reputation alone that a persistent man makes in a series of years is far more valuable than all the profits he will ever make out of the good luck of hitting two good seasons by a change in management.—Am. Dairyman

American Feeders for England.

Elsewhere we give a very interesting summary of a letter from the Philadelphia correspondent of the Times, dealing with the American meat inspection bill. It, as stated by this correspondent, our Board of Agricutture has agreed to admit American sheep on the open markets, we may be very sure that the time is not far distant when American cattle will be relieved from the restrictions presently imposed against them. These restrictions were imposed for certain sanitary reasons, which our American friends now claim no longer exist, and are further prepared to prove this to the satisfaction of our legislative and scientific authorities. For years American statesmen have been endeavoring to raise the embargo against their cattle and sheep, and apparently are now within a measurable distance of doing so. As butchers, the opening of our markets for the sale of American cattle would be a perfect Godsend, relieving us from the machinations and manipulations of foreign meat merchants, and also from the loss and misery attendant upon the purchase of tuberculosis home bred stock. Our markets would be less subject to the panicky conditions which appear to be equally incidental to a short supply or an over supply. Our farmers would have an opportunity of increasing their supplies of young stock with well bred, strong, hardy animals from the west, at prices which would enable them to be marketed when fat on more equal terms than they could get from animals bred at home. Our tanning manufactories and the many other cognate businesses that cluster round the central live stock industry, would all receive an impetus of the healthiest possible kind, creating at one and the same time a productive and wage-spending power that must add materially to the wealth of the country. The method by which our American friends are endeavoring to gain their object does not commend itself favorably, but this apart, the result they desire must, we think, approve itself to every trader in the country. Thus far, the reply or attitude of our own government has not been disclosed, but judging from the editorial remarks of the times, it would seem as if they were determined to meet the wishes of the American Government. Whether this is so or not, the speedy withdrawal of the restrictions against United States cattle is a foregone conclusion, if they are sustained only for protectionist purposes.—London Meat Trades Journal.

In and In Breeding.

One of our esteemed correspondents writes: You frequently declaim against in and in breeding. Now, what have you to say about the following testimony, which was given two or three years ago by a practical swine breeder? He said: How many failures have been made in close breeding, I am unable to say. I believe one of Ohio's prominent breeders never had better success than when he bred Give or Take sows to Town Corwin 2nd, his sire's pigs; also the reverse, Tom Corwin sows to Give or Take. What was the result? Several of this direct progeny were famous breeders. Noted among these are Commodore and Lord Corwin 2nd. These animals were large, strong and vigorous and very impressive sires. I have heard it said that in-breeding tended to decrease the size. This I will say is not always the case, but to what extent I am unable to state. I have often heard that the tendency was to destroy the vitality or vigor of the animals. This is certainly not true in all cases, as is shown in our line-bred American trotters. Several crosses of Hambletonian does not prevent fast time on the track where vitality and nerve power are all important. A noted breeder of Shorthorn cattle says: "Bates Duchess upon Bates Duchess and Bates Duchess upon all other Shorthorns." I believe I would as well say Corwin upon Corwin and Corwin upon all other Poland Chinas. I do not think that near all animals thus closely bred would he valuable as breeders, but I say rare good ones can and have been produced in this way. I have a pair of animals that have been an entire success for three years. They are Corwin line-bred, only twenty-five different animals are represented in five generations, or a concentration of about twenty per cent.

There is nothing to say upon this. The Rural and Stockman has always said that the greatest success that has ever been achieved in breeding has come from in and in breeding, but at the same time we lay it down as a scientific fact that there is too much danger in it to do it in a haphazard way. —Western Rural.

English Ideas of the Cattle Trade.

The United States Government is paying the way to demand open markets for their cattle and sheep. This is glad news for the butchers, but sad news for the dead meat vendors.

American sheep will shortly be allowed to travel free throughout England, our board of agriculture having agreed to this, provided the sheep are inspected before shipment and are found free from disease.

Should States cattle be allowed to travel the same as Canadians we shall have £10,000,000 distributed annually throughout the country instead of being locked up in the Foreign Animal Leagues; and the £3 000,000 spent on American frozen beef will probably dwindle down to a mere hole in the ground.

Students of political economy who have studied the subject say the only way to combat the designs of America as to forcing their cattle and sheep upon us, is to levy a tax upon them, and only allow Colonial cattle and sheep raisers—Australasian and Canadian—the privilege of our markets free. The "most favored" countries should be those where Britain's flag is honorably acknowledged by British subjects.

It is a startling item of news, says the Irish Times, when the British farmer is told that in six years he will he free from competition by the producer of beef in United States, because that country will then require all her oxen to feed her own population. Yet the information comes from the chief of the American bureau of animal industry, who on this point speaks with all the authority of an expert.—London Meat Trades Journal.

Hollow Horn.

Mr. A. W. Cheever says in the New England Farmer: "Is there such a disease as hollow horn and hollow tail?" asks in all seriousness a cow owner in Arkansas. A gentleman who saw the letter on my desk remarked: "How disgusting to have to answer such foolish questions!" Well, it does seem as if cattle owners ought to have learned before now that hollow horn is a natural condition, for the horns of all mature cattle are hollow, whether the animals are sick or well. The horns of young cattle are solid, but as they advance in years the inner portions become partially absorbed, thus relieving the head of unnecessary weight. The horns of a Texas ox, if solid, would become a burden to carry about. The belief had been very general that hollow horn or "horn-eil" is a disease, and that the horns and tail are usually in sympathy in this regard—that the "disease" extends the whole length of the vertebra. The remedy has been to cut off the tail and bore holes in the horns and pour in some irritating substance like pepner, salt and vinegar. Another method is to split the last joint of the tail with a hatchet or chisel and apply the salt at that end. Quackery dies hard. Less than a year ago my attention was called to the case of a cow supposed to be sick with some sort of stoppage, and where the attending quack run a broom handle the whole length into the bowel of the animal, exclaiming as he withdrew it: "I guess that opened a passage." Of course the cow died,

A Short-Horn Scale of Points.

In response to the query of a California reader we append herewith the latest scale of points for scoring Shorthorns passed upon by an association of breeders of the "red, white and roans," viz: that adopted by the State organization of Kansas. The Breeder's Gazette says: It should be explained, however, that the Kansas breeders adopted this not for actual use in judging cattle, but rather as a general statement of their views as to the relative value of the different points:

Importance of Cleanliness in Milking.

Dirt settlings in the bottom of the milk bucket, into which the milking has been done, is pretty sure to be followed by like settlings in the cream and milk pitchers on the table, and are unmistakable evidences that the milking has been done in an uncleanly and careless manner, for these dirty specks have dropped into the milk at the stable and when once in, they stay in spite of strainers and fine wire cloth sieves.

The presence of the "specks" in cream or milk, does not operate as an appetizer to any considerable extent, and when discovered no means should be left untried to prevent their reappearance; they render the milk unfit for use and good butter cannot possibly be made from such milk. The milker turning out such milk should be reformed, and if improved method and more cleanliness are beyond his reach, he should speedily he replaced by one more competent to perform such an important duty.—Indiana Farmer.

Great Britain vs. Massachusetts.

Consul Brown, of Glasgow, has lately furnished the state department with fresh statistics, prepared under the auspices of the British Board of Trade, concerning the rates of wages of men, women, boys and girls in the cotton, woolen, worsted and linen mills of the United Kingdom. It is interesting to compare these figures with those of Mr. Wadlin, chief of the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics, in his latest report for similar industries in the United States.

The average yearly wages of men, women, boys and girls in the United Kingdom and in the United States are as follows:

	United States.	Great Britain.	Difference.	Per cent.
Cotton	$329.33	$179.50	$149 83	84
Woolen	364.34	165.00	199.34	131
Worsted	361 99	151.00	210 99	129
Linen	305.44	126.00	179.44	142

There are several ways to proceed in blanching celery for fall and early winter use. One is to pack soil up against the rows from each side, clear up to the upper part of the leaves so as to form cones of soil, with a row of plants in the center, and only the tops of leaves exposed. This work is usually begun with the plow and finished with the spade. Another method is to enclose each row of plants in boards ten inches wide. First lay one board down on one side of the row, so that the edge will touch the soil and packed around the plants in handling; then lay another board on the other side in the same way. Then take hold of the outside edge of each board, lifting them up on edge, and bringing the upper edges as close together over the row of plants as the foliage will permit. The boards are then fastened in this position by means of little stakes, by strings tied around them near the ends, or by little slats nailed across them on top.

The use of drain tile (about six or eight inches) for bleaching has not been entirely satisfactory; doubtless because too much air was allowed inside the tile. Those using this method should make an effort to avoid the difficulty in some way. Wads of paper introduced into the upper half of the tile might do well.

STATE SPORTSMAN'S ASSOCIATION.

Ninth Annual Gathering of the Sportsmen of California.

The Meeting Passes off Pleasantly—Some excellent Shooting—The Unexpected Always Happens—The Unheralded Boys Carry off The Trophies.

The Ninth Annual Meeting of the California Sportsmen's Association came off as previously announced at Sacramento on the 8, 9, 10, and 11, of this month. The attendance was good, better than usual. The weather, with the exception of the opening day was very favorable, and as a result the meeting was all that could be desired.

There were many excellent shots in attendance, and the gathering has served to bring more closely together a number of gentlemen on whose shoulders the advancement of legitimate sports on the coast will in a large measure rest.

In such contests it is but the result of human imperfections to say that they usually leave more or less of hard feelings engendered by the sharp competitions for honors. To the credit of the organization be it said, and to that of the gentlemen composing it, no stings are left as a result of this meeting.

The team match for the Selby trophy was the event of the first day. Entrance $100 per team, winners to get the trophy and 50 per cent of purse, 30 to second and 20 to the third. Five teams entered this contest, being the Colton Gun Club of Los Angeles, the Stockton Gun Club, the Pacific Sportsman's Club and the Pelican Gun Club both of Sacramento.

Match at 100 live birds for each team. The score stood as follows:

Coykendall	11	01	11	11	11— 9
Wittenbrock	10	11	01	11	10— 7

The third day of the meeting, was a gala day all around. The weather was as fine as could be desired. The crowd of spectators was large, among which were a large number of ladies. Some slight wrangling over the application of the rules, to certain events, occurred, but in the main all was pleasant and smooth sailing both for shooters and referee.

The first event was the one for the Fay diamond badge and was looked forward to with much interest. The "crack shots" were all on their metal, and many of the spectators were almost equally interested.

The shooting of Mr. J. M. Morrison with a 16-gauge gun, was remarkable in showing that good shooting may be done with so small a gun.

In addition to the badge, which is a beauty, these rules provide for an entrance fee of $5, from each contestant which purse goes to the winner.

There being twenty entries, the additional purse was for $100. The score stood as follows:

Wiley	0 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 0	—16

Glatz	1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0
Vaughn	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 0

Those tieing on 19 birds shot off with the following result:

Hass	1 1 0 1	1 1 1 0	1 1 1 1	1 1 1 1—15
Bassford	1 1 1 1	1 1 1 0	1 1 1 1	1 1 1 1—15
Morrison	0 1 1 1

It was now long after mid-day and Messrs. Haas and Bassford agreed to let the final of the first contest rest with their score on the next event. This was the match for the Standard Cartridge medal, to be measured at 20 live birds. The shooting in this match was also unusually good resulting as follows:

Coykendal	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—20
Chick	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1	0—17
Wiley	1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 0 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—16
Bassford	1 1 1 1 0 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—18
Hass	1 1 1 0 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—18
Johnson	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—19
Flower	1 1 1 0 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 0 1	—16
Merrill	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1	—19
Knight	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1	—19
Packard	0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	—19

It will be seen that the contest for diamond badge was left still undecided as Hass and Bassford tied again.

The shooting on Saturday morning opened with the interest of all the participants still at high tide. It was understood that Haas and Bassford would bring to a final decision the contest for the Fay diamond badge, and this they did in splendid order. The final culmination of the contest for this handsome trophy was decided by the following score:

Haas	1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 0 1 1 1				1—17
Bassford	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1				0—17

Shoot-off at three birds each.

Haas	1	1	1	—3
Bassford	1	1	0	—2

It will thus be seen that the badge goes into the possession of Mr. Hass for the ensuing year by one point only after as severe a contest as ever was witnessed on the coast. Mr. Bassford killed his three birds in the last score, but the last one fell just outside the bounds, and under the rules was declared lost. Thus honors between these two gentlemen are practically even.

THE NOVELTY MATCH.

This was at six live birds to each man. Entrance $5, divided in five purses of 50, 30, 20, 15 and 10 per cent., and resulted as follows:

Haas	1	1	0	1	1	1—5

The gentlemen tieing on highest score divided the money on account of the scarcity of birds.

TURKEY HUNTING IN TEXAS.

Fine Sport With Royal Birds.

Pursuing the Splendid Wing Game on the Red and Trinity Rivers.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Since writing you my last from Orange, in the south-eastern portion of the State, I have enjoyed some splendid quail shooting in the cotton and wheat fields along the line of railway running from Houston to Dallas. The birds are more plentiful this season all over the State, than they have been for several seasons past. The climate seems to be especially favorable for the "Bob Whits" family, and the echo of the shot gun may be heard in the fields any of these fine mornings, as the hunters are numerous owing to the plentifulness of the birds. We bagged 36 brace in a three hours' hunt to two guns, a short distance south of Dallas. Coming on to Fort Worth we tarried for a couple of days in that beautiful and rapidly developing metropolis, viewing the city under the guidance of that genial and splendid gentleman, Mr L. B. Imboden, of the Imboden—Hamilton Investment Co. Fort Worth has a number of gentlemanly sportsmen, among those we met being "Alamo", the well known contributor to the American Field, and the Forest and Stream.

The country here is generally undulating, the Trinity and Red rivers flowing in from the North, watering the country crossed by the Denver, Texas and Fort Worth railroad, in a large measure to the State line in that direction. These streams are quite heavily timbered in places for miles, and it was to these points directly north of Fort Worth some seventy miles distant, that we finally concluded to go in search of turkey, as they were reported to be found there in goodly numbers. Bidding our friends adieu, we in due time found ourselves at Waverly, a beautiful little town of some thousands of inhabitants, situated in a rolling stretch of country which is well covered with oak, and dropping away in broken ridges and knolls, with pleasant little stretches of valley intervening to the Trinity which flows along the western valley in the distance. To the East and North, the country stretches away, presenting much the same appearance.

After a night's rest we succeeded in securing an outfit and guide, and early the next morning were wending our way through the hills toward the river. It was a pleasant drive; now through a stretch of valley where the fields were for the most part shorn of the season's fruitage and stacked away in the grain yard, and again over some gentle hill, from whose crest we could obtain the glimpse of a beautiful picture as the landscape was spread out to our view, in all the gorgeous robings which autumn gives the field and wood. The sombre hue of ash and elm formed a beautiful contrast, to the scarlet foliage of the oak, which seemed as though they had been splashed with the blood of expiring summer, with here and there a golden asp and the deep green of the live oak, the yellow fields and verdant valleys, while over all was thrown the mystic veil with which October clothes her features from the sun.

We finally reached a small branch which flows into the river and here we halted and were soon refreshed by a hasty lunch and were ready for the sport. The place had a decided turkey look; that indefinable impression which old woods and fields, with tangled copse, stretching along the sides of broken ridges and gulches, always gives to the mind of the sportsman.

We were soon placed by our guide in order for the forward movement. My companion was to take the ridge to the left of the stream, and I to take the one to the right, while our guide would follow along the stream and with his dog cover the immediate slopes.

"Keep about fifty yards in front of me," was his parting injunction; "travel down to where the brook comes in from the right hand and there come together."

Off we started. All was as silent as could be imagined, not a sign of game could be seen for the first half hour or more, when I was beginning to think that we should be doomed to disappointment for that day. I was slowly working my way along the side of the ridge, which at this point is thickly covered with brush, when, glancing before me, I caught a glimpse of four turkeys running at full speed along a path through the copse. I quickly fired at what seemed a moving shadow, for so the birds appeared, so thick was the covering. Rushing to the spot, I was rewarded by finding a few feathers, and listening, caught the sound of a fluttering in the brush below. Passing down the dim pathway, along which the birds had evidently been running, for a few yards, I came to a fine hen which I had badly wounded, and which I had but little trouble in securing.

Picking up my bird I awaited to hear what, if any movement, the others of our party were making, and in a moment off to my left heard two shots in quick succession, fired evidently by my companion from the opposite side of the stream. The next instant a splendid old bird came sailing in my direction, and I was just preparing to pull on him when a report rang out near me, and the bird came flopping down almost at my feet, and I heard our guide say "dead bird" and a moment more his dog came through the bushes followed by his master, when I showed him my prize and told him that he had cheated me out of the pleasure of dropping the gobbler only by about two seconds of time.

We congratulated each other and expressed the hope that Jim had been as lucky. Going to the top of the ridge and signaling for him, we were answered, and he soon appeared bearing a large hen, and asking if we had seen the gobbler in his flight after which his second barrell was fired, at long range, without effect.

We exchanged congratulations, Jim being especially gratified to find that the old gobbler had not escaped us. He was a magnificent bird, weighing something over sixteen pounds. After consultation and noting that the day was already well spent, we returned to camp, and by moonlight journed back to town.

The next day we continued our way to Iowa Park, where we enjoyed some splendid chicken shooting. The prairie chickens are more plentiful here than in any other part of the State I have yet visited. The upland is entirely given over to wheat raising, and the whole country for miles on either hand, is one succession of fields. Chickens were found everywhere. The first day we succeeded in bagging over five dozen of as fine birds as it has ever been my good fortune to meet with.

Our dogs worked splendidly, and the weather, fields and game, were in such condition as to admit of little or no thought of improvement. We much doubt if any section of the Union could furnish better wing shooting. The next day, we moved further up the road but did not hunt very extensively, but managed to have some more fine sport, mixing our bag with some fine quail.

The country is hunted over but little, save now and then a farmer kills a few birds, but as few of them have bird dogs, but little execution is done.

The birds are said to have left this region last year almost entirely, and I believe they have been heretofore quite transitory, but from the appearance of the country, which has been settled and cultivated with remarkable rapidity in the past two years, it is my impression that they will hereafter be found in this region in good quantities. I see no reason why it should not become an abiding home for them. Jim showed his remarkable skill with the revolver by killing a prairie dog at fifty yards, while I succeeded in making numbers of them scamper into their holes, as the bullets would tear up the dirt, in little puffs, now on this side and now on that of their queer little abodes. It is needless to say that I would not be guilty of killing an innocent little prairie dog—that is, with a revolver!

We are going to stop at Childress and try our hand at deer and antelope hunting, where these fleet footed gamesters are reported to be found in great numbers. CRINO.

Bursting Guns.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 22, 1890.

EDITORS TURF FIELD AND FARM.—Last season I was shooting partridges (quail) with a fine W. C. Scott & Son (breech loader) 12 gauge, 7½lb. gun, using 3 drams Schultze powder, 1⅛oz. shot, three No. 11 wads over powder, and No. 12 cardboard wad over shot, and my right barrel burst about midway between muzzle and breech; aperture was about 3 inches long and ½ inch wide. I had a covey scattered, and had shot a number of times before the bursting, and there couldn't possibly have been any obstruction in the barrel. I sent gun on to the manufacturers, Wm. Read & Sons, Boston. They had it examined by expert workmen, and say that there was to flaw or defect in the barrel. I like the Schultze powder better than any powder I ever used, it being almost smokeless, and after shooting it all day the barrels are almost clean, the report is less than any other powder, and the penetration equal to any. Will you be kind enough to answer through Turf Field and Farm whether you have ever heard of any other bursting of guns by the use of the Schultze powder, and which is considered the best and safest sporting powder, and greatly oblige an old and ardent sportsman of nearly 40 years' experience, and now nearly as good as ever. Am also one of the earliest subscribers to the Turf Field and Farm. Yours truly, H. H. TATE.

Note by Field Editor.—"As we have not the opportunity of seeing the gun or knowing the manner of loading and other essential features of the accident it is impossible to advise, but treat the matter only in a general way. During the past ten years we have fired several thousand cartridges loaded with the American wood powder and the Schultze, and, besides, seen many others use the same without any unpleasant experience—on the contrary, with satisfaction and success. We fancy that improper loading has more to do with mishaps than any other agencies. Some weapons will shoot a charge that would shake or shatter another barrel, and all strong, quick burning powder must especially be loaded with proper caution. Every gun when using too much or too strong shooting powder will give different results. In a rifle it will cause the bullet to strip, i. e., not take the rifling, so fall short or go out of its course. The same will apply to shot guns. An excess of powder, or if too strong and quick, will cause the shot to jam and scatter without effect, and eventually injure the gun in its weakest parts. The subject is one that admits of a wide scope for discussion, and we would be glad to hear from any reader of the Turf Field and Farm on the subject."

The subject is one of interest to all sportsmen.

Photographic illustrations of the results of 14 tests made by Captain W. McK. Heath at Philadelphia, in 1884, made with various obstructions in the muzzle of the barrels show the bursting in the majority of cases, to have occurred some distance from the muzzle of the guns. Is it not a reasonable solution of the question to presume that the bursting occurred at that point where the gasses from the charge could no further force the air in the barrel against the abstruction, which however slight, was enough to cause a checking, and a secondary explosion of the gasses so confined? In the case above presented by Mr. Tate, there was no obstruction other than the air. He had fired his gun a number of times. At each fire there was the creation of a vacuum in the barrel, followed by a rush of air into the cavity. Is the position untenable that the effect of the air rushing into the gun barrel could cause a recoil and explosion at the place where the bursting occurred? If this is not the true solution, what is? We have known of at least one other similar occurrence.

Fight Between a Dog and Crane.

I remember, when but a boy, of a splendid bit of sport which I had with a crane. It was in Iowa, and if I rightly remember, about the 1st of May. The geese and ducks, which had been unusually plentiful, had mostly passed over in their northward flight, but the cranes lingered about, feeding in the cornfields adjacent to the river, whence they would repair to rest secure on the sand bars, after their morning flight. I was returning home after an unsuccessful hunt during the morning when suddenly I caught sight of a long line of crane, some twelve or fifteen, flying very low and coming toward me. I dropped in the grass and they came on with slow motion, being very near the ground. As they came over me I rose and, singling out my birds, knocked the first one down but the second one flew in a circle and fell over in an adjoining field where a farmer was planting corn. A common cur dog was in the field and immediately made off for the crane which was standing but a few hundred yards away. As the dog came up to the bird, it made a vicious stroke at him with its beak and took out a large tuft of hair, making a wound from which the blood flowed freely. The dog howled with pain and drew back, walking around the crane waiting for a favorable opening, but the crane kept its eye on the dog and thus they stood when the farmer and I drew near. By urging, the dog made another attack, when the crane, after striking at him, and seeing the dog determined to force the fighting, fell on its back and using its claws vigorously, made the fur fly in great shape. The fight continued for several minutes before the dog finally conquered the bird. The two birds made a heavy load as I carried them home, their feet dragging the ground as I held to their heads over my shoulder. K. W.

The Art of Shooting.

By Charles Lancaster, gunmaker. Second edition now ready. An illustrated treatise on the art of shooting, with extracts from the best authorities, containing full-page explanatory illustrations, sketched from instantaneous and other photographs. Price, 7s. 6d; postage, 6d extra. Published by CHARLES LANCASTER, 151 New Bond Street London, W.

English snipe are abundant on Bouldin Island and at Brannon, Roberts and Sherman above Clark's Slough.

Ducks are reported to be unusually plentiful in Montana. Accounts of some splendid sport in that region has reached us.

Messrs. Coleman, Kennett and Dillard have been spending some time in the Belt mountains, and returned with six deer. They also killed a large number of grouse and caught an abundance of trout.

Ned Bosqui, whose fondness for pointers and setters is widely known, has recently came into possession of a number of fine dogs and has been in a state of perplexity regarding what disposition to make of them, as he had no suitable place to keep them. Since Mr. Mason Dodge has taken charge of the Country Club's grounds he has taken charge of the dogs, where there is ample range for them with good quail shooting close at hand. It is Mr. Dodge's intention, after the club is fully organized, to handle a number of dogs under the direction of the club rules.

We much regret that space will not permit of a more extended report of the State tournament. The fine features shown by many individual members at the trap are worthy of extended notice. It often occurs that many brilliant shots are made of which the recording of the scores gives no adequate conception. This is true in many instances of the shooting done at the late tournament at Sacramento. Taken as a whole, it is doubtful if a more accurate number of shots could be gathered from any other one State in the entire country. It is one thing to kill one bird rising from the trap, and it may be, and frequently is, quite another thing to kill the next one from the same trap. There is a vast difference in the birds themselves, some slow and easy of wing, others swift, vigorous and taciturn in flight. No shooting presents more variable features than that at the trap.

Among the Quail.

[Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

Come from thy case my trusty gun
Come Rover, too, my dear old dog.
To morrow, lad, we'll have some fun,
Ere rolls away the morntng fog.

We'll shake from foot the city's dust
And leave dull care and pen behtnd.
He wags his tail, he knows he must—
To-morrow there'll be quail to find.

For there's a sparkle tn his eye
As tf he knew each word I said.
Down, charge, there sir! Look at him lte
As tf carved out of stone—or dead.

Hard by the foot of Tamalpats
Where Lagunitas babbtes on,
The morntng finds my dog and I
Before the early dew is gone.

Steady old boy! be wtnds bts game—
—There tn the wttlow clump I'll bet.
"Hold up old boy!" They're pretty tame—
Yes, there they are—just watch him set.

He looks around as tf to say,
Here come along and knock them over.
I'il tell you what no coin to-day
Would make me ever part with Rover.

Bang! bang! two down—that's not so bad
For the first shot at quail this year—
They've all flown out—"Seek dead my boy".
—He's got them both out in the clear.

So we work on untti the sun
Has reached his zentth, then we rest.
I've just scored twenty to my gun
And both bave done our best.

Old Rover's feet are pretty sore,
Those grass seeds play the very devil
With bis poor feet; I'll shoot no more.
'Tis well to treat a good dog ctvtl.

An Intelligent Collie.

Colonel Harry L. Thorntou, recounts a etory whlch shows the wonderful intelligence of the Collie. On his ranch near this city he has a splendid dog of thls celebrated family, and also a fine bull dog. These dogs, althongh so different in their struoture and qualities, as can well be imagined, are the very best of friends. "This feeling of friendship was strikingly illustrated a few days ago," said Col. Thornton. "It happened in this wise. One of the men abont the place was riding into the hille one day, both of these dogs accompanying him. He had ridden forward some dietance, when suddenly he heard the Collie coming after him with all possible speed, barking furiously to arrest his attention. On coming up the dog eeized his styrup etrap and pulled it backwards and ran a little way down the road again, looking back and saying in clear dog language 'Come back, you'r wanted.' The man rode back and at the foot of the hill found the bull dog engaged in a desperate battle with three coyotes. He held one of them down and was fast choking the life out of it, but the other two were unmercifully enapping him in turn, ae they darted about bringing the blood at every pass.

"The two were chased away and the fight soon ended. The Collie has uo element of fight in hie nature but he showed remarkable intelligence and also friendship for his strange companion, the bull dog, in going for assistance on this occasion."

We are pleased to know that Dr. A. de Monco, of Denver, Col., has recently purchased Minnie T. by Young Sleaford, out of ex-Daisy B. Dr. de Monco's West Morland Don took first premium at Denver in pointer class last year, and it may be expected that some fine pointers will be the result of his recent purchase.

Importance of Pedigree.

The questions arising from the breeding of all classes of animals relative to the practical value of pedigrees are numerons. Some men are so eminently practical that they become disgusted at what they are pleased to term the red tape of so called fancy breeders. I know one or two good men who are breeding a good strain of dogs, who pay no attention to the matter of pedigree, yet the very dogs they own come of the very best stock, and have pedigrees which contd be shown as well as not.

But from some cause or another, possibly a certain crankiness of nature, leads their owners to disregard their dog's pedigree, and allows no opportunity to pass by without railing out against the custom. I have known many good dogs that had no pedigree, but their appearance, to the practical eye, carried the stamp of royalty with them.

But on the whole, we should be very careful, in buying a dog, to be sure of his pedigree. We should want to know all about his history, and be able to trace him back to an honorable and pure blooded ancestry, and the further back the better. We are in favor of royal blood and plenty of the very best nature of it in a dog. The dog and horse are among the purest and best aristocrats. The breeding of animals is about the only place which we have in this country, where pure aristocracy can he found and where it ie really most desirable. By the selection of the qualities most desired, the canine race hae been wrought up to its present prond position. It will never be allowed to deterioate because experience has shown again and again that blood will speak for itself, yet for the protection of all and most for the protection and proper culture of the dogs themselvee, let the important item of pedigree be not forgotten or neglected. When a man offers to sell you a dog, require him to furnish you a pedigree, and let it, if possible, be full and complete. It can do no harm and on the other hand is really nothing more nor lese than a clear title and warrant of the genuineness of the animal purchased. In the sale of the animal's progeny it is an all important factor, for it speaks in a voice of reliable prophecy of the future of the young dogs. Stick to the pedigree always.

Mr. E. W. Chapin, of this city made us a pleasant call recently. He ie much interested in the question of game, forest and fish protection.

We notice the importation of some fine Pointers and Fox hounds by some gentlemen of Denver. The "Queen of the Rockies" is becoming, among good traits, a doggy city.

Nebraska is to have an open State meeting some time in the near future. Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice and Grand Island are central points for sportsmen of the State and interest in field matters is steadily on the increase.

Mr. Mitchel Harrison, of Philadelphia, contemplates sending some of his famous Collies from the Chestnut Hill Kennels to England, to contest with the dogs of that country. Mr. Harrison is perhaps the leading Collie breeder of America.

Mrs. L. H. Fuller of New York, who has been stopping at the Palace for some weeks, has purchased Barrymore, a splendid Irish Setter, from Mr. L. L. Campbell of this city. Barrymore is by Elcho Jr., out of Maid, and is a splendid dog. Mrs. Fuller returne home in a few days, and will perhaps secure one or two more dogs hefore going.

In the matter of breeding bitches, it would seem to be a pretty well settled rule, judging from the testimony of many of our best and most thorough breeders, that it ehould not be done until the bitch has come in heat the second time. No abstract reason is given as to why nature should not be allowed to govern in this matter, but it seems to be the result of experience that on following the above rule better results are obtained.

It is a remarkable fact that a good dog will make friends where ever he goes. In the matter of transportation of dogs it is to be observed with a great deal of satisfaction, that any thing like neglect of a dog in transit by the express companies is a decided exception. The rule is that dogs may be safely shipped by express anywhere and the best of care will be given them.

The Secretary of the Occidental Coursing Club, Mr. J. F. Carrol, may be found at the club rooms at 21 Kearney street, where entries may be made for the fall meeting which takes place at Newark, on the 27th of November. Entry fee $5. All entries close on November 24th, at 8:30 P. M. Any one desiring to enter their dogs for the races should not fail to have them properly entered. The above provisions are positive and the entries according to the rules of the club are a necessary precedent to the starting of any dog in the races.

There is considerable "kicking" indulged in by the members and friends of the National Beagle Club because that organization was refused admission to the A. K. C. They deem that the reason alleged that they would antagonize the American Beagle Club, which is already a member of the A. K. C. insufficient to debar them from membership. The claim is made for them that they have done, and are now doing more for the culture of Beagle breeding than any other organization in the country and place the merits for membership, not so much on priority as on the amount of work accomplished, which would look to the uninitiated as a pretty strong reason.

With the meeting of the American Coursing Club at Great Bend, Kansas, and the increased interest in bench shows and field trials throughout the West generally, our friends of the East will come to recognize the growth of the sporting interests in the West. From the present period forward, there appears to be no reason why the West should not lead the East in all classes of sports. The bench is well enough in its place, but there can be no question but that the field, which is the legitimate place for snorting, has in a measure been neglected. The opportunities offered in the West are such as will undoubtedly lead to an increased improvement and interest in this feature. A dog may be a perfect paragon of his type, but still the more important questions remain to be demonstrated by his actual work in the field.

During the first of the week we made a visit to the kennel of Mr. James E. Watson at Berkeley, and were much gratified to see a splendid lot of dogs. This gentleman has a large variety of animals including Mastiffs Greyhounds, Fox Hounds, Pointers, Irish Setters, Fox Terriers, and other breeds.

His dogs are all in excellent condition as he has ample grounds for them to range over.

We found Mr. Watson, suffering from an accident, which occurred last week, which, while not serious, yet is of a nature to incapacitate him from active duty for some weeks to come.

The injury spoken of consists of the breaking of the right collar bone and the fracture of a rib, sustained by his buggy being overturned and his horse running away, while out with a friend on a hunting excursion. The gentleman is getting along nicely, and will suffer no inconvenience from the accident bevond the pain and the necessary period of inactivity while convalesing.

The Forest and stream says: In a letter from England we are informed of an important importation of black and tan terriers, which will shortly start for this country. Mr. Comstock of Providence, R. I., either the Irish terrier owner or his brother, has purchased from Mr. Lacy, Middleton, Eng, his Salisbury, Jasper, Louie and Queen III. Salisbury and Jasper are both good winners, and Queen III, we are told, was bred and raised by the man who bred Queen II, who won for Mr. Lacy $3,000 in money and 33 cups, and this man says she can beat Rosabel, so we shall expect to see something pretty smart, if she only turns out half as good as "old Queen." We are pressed for space this week, but will have more to say about these dogs in our next issue. There is one thing about it, judging from press notices, Mr. Comstock will not be disappointed in the dogs at any rate. Who says black and tan terriers are not the coming breed? "Cheerful Horn" tells us that the King Charles Royal Duke is on his way to this country, having been purchased by a gentleman in Milwaukee, whom he puts down as a Mr. Niemann. The sum paid for this spaniel was $250.

Here is a pretty little yarn from Longman's; "The Newfoundland dog is a particular favorite of mine. He is the most magnanimous fellow in the world, and small dogs may insult him with impunity unless a river happens to be near, when one too venturesome and impudent will sometimes experience an involuntary bath. On one occasion, lately, a particularly fine one was sitting on a wooden bridge discnesing a bone, when a predatory mastiff came along, and being unable or unwilling to distinguish between meum et tuum, a smart altercation arose. So violent became the debate that both suddenly overbalanced and fell into the stream beneath. The nearest landing place was a hundred yards down, and to it the Newfoundland betook himself without much difficulty, and after a good shake was preparing to depart, when he suddenly became aware that the other dog who was more of a soldier than a sailor, was wildly beating the water, and drowning as fast as he could drown. One look was enough. In went he of the shaggy coat, and seizing the other by the collar, brought his late enemy safe to land. The two dogs then eyed each other with a perfectly indescribable expression for some seconds, then silently and solemnly wagged their caudal appendages, and with dignity departed. Some will, no doubt, say that this was but instinct; and they may be right, but I prefer to give my four-footed friend the benefit of the doubt.

Mr. J. H. Bridge, of San Luis Obispo, has some elegant blood hounds of the very best strain. They are from the Hon. Edwin Brough's English Kennels.

Burgho's Warrior owned by Mr. Bridge is a beautiful animal and was sired by Burgo, the famous dog spoken of so favorably in connection in the efforts to trace Jack the Ripper.

Ripple—Buxom is a fine bitch and is also owned by Mr. Bridge. She has recently thrown a fine litter of eight puppies, which are now some two months old. This bitch was imported in whelp to Burgo, and is conceeded to be as fine a specimen of the blood hound as was ever brought to this country.

The public have a very erroneous idea of the nature of these invaluable dogs. They are exceedingly kind and affectionate in disposition and of the first value on a ranch or farm. They will trace any animal or person successfully, when all other means have proven ineffectual.

As guards and companions for children they cannot be surpassed.

Burgho's Warrior is a model dog in many respects. He is five feet six inches in length; shoulders, twenty-nine inches; ears, twenty-seven inches.

The puppies above mentioned are advertised for sale elsewhere in this issue.

A Mermaid at the Brighton Aquarium.

"Within the last few hours there has been added to the marine collection at the Brighton Aquarium a specimen of the manatee or 'sea cow,' which is the nearest representative of the mermaid of tradition. These rare specimens seldom reach our shores, the difficulties of transit being so great. The last one known to have been brought to this country was purchased by the Zoological Society, and attracted immense attention from naturalists and the public. Its decease was recorded quite recently. Its formation is indeed remarkable, this being particularly noticeable in connection with the hand-like fore fins. Its tail fin is largely developed horizontally, viz., in the opposite direction to that of fishes, and it may be described as being destitute of hind limbs. The present specimen has been imported from Trinidad, and was brought from Liverpool by Mr. Wells, the Marine Superintendent, under whose careful supervision it was safely transferred to its new home in the Brighton Aquarium. The tank in which it has been placed has been specially fitted with heating apparatus, it being necessary to keep the temperature to between 70 and 80 degrees. The manatee is 4ft. 6 in. in length, and feeds principally upon lettuce, of which it consumes large quantities. Without doubt it will attract the attention of visitors to Brighton, and once more the Directors of this institution indicate by their spirited action that they intend to maintain and keep up the reputation of this the premier Aquarium in the country. This new addition will be on view daily.—Sussex Daily News, Sept. 15th.

Fish Culture on the Farm.

The opportunities for the application of practical plans in fish culture are especially favorable in this State. The higher altitudes afford many admirable conveniences for the breeding of trout, salmon, perch and similar varieties of fish. There is not a farmer in the land who may not, at a very small outlay, enjoy the benefits and pleasures to be derived from a fish pond. It would take but about two weeks' time, with two teams, shovels and the usual appliances to construct a fish pond, which in a few years would be a source of profit second to no feature of like cost on the farm; aside from the fact of furnishing a means of pleasurable work which would be recreation of itself to those engaged in it.

We shall hereafter present articles of practical value, showing the cost and methods of constructing ponds, which are feasible and may be enjoyed by every farmer, who so desires, in the State. The item of fish as a food when they can thus be taken direct from the pond, is one of no inconsiderable moment to the farmer, and the subject is one of such importance as should receive careful attention of each and every one who is so situated as to be able to reduce the suggestions to a practical demonstration.

There is no need that farming should be confined to the raising of stock and grain alone in the sense that those terms are usually interpreted.

If you would make the farm the place to hold the interest of the young, every possible factor should be made use of to make it attractive and pleasant. What can be done in a practical way which would forward this interest more than a good fish pond, filled with beautiful fish, which afford not only in their taking, but in their care and culture, a source of pleasure which is never failing in its nature. We trust that the matter may receive the careful consideration of all who may be in condition to make use of the plans hereafter suggested.

Fishing in the Gulf.

GALVESTON, TEXES.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The fishing here has been unusually fine during the entire season. It has been my good fortune to fall in with a number of enthusiastic devotees of the rod and as a result I have enjoyed more than the usual degree of sport. The bays and inlets from the gulf proper are well stocked, in fact, swarming with fish. The sea trout and channel cats are especially plentiful, and have been taken in great numbers.

One evening we caught with two rods upwards of sixty pounds of fish, including all kinds. The mullets and sheepshead are good biters and furnish fine sport.

The red fish are, perhaps, the most pleasurable catches here made, and the surf fishing is quite popular, as this point presents the finest opportunities for it of any place on the continent. The beach is one grand roll of surf for a distance of thirty-five miles along the island. The fall is only about six feet on the average to the mile into the gulf.

The sands of the beach are hard, and present a supurb drive all the distance for carriages, as something like a hundred yards is left by the waves, swept clean and smooth, and as level as a floor. Along the beach in the mornings and evenings the fishing is fine. Casts may be made from dry and secure positions on the beach, and it is wonderful to note how the fish play in the surf; they seemingly enjoy the sport of frolicking along the shallow waters. To find a four-pound, and sometimes a larger catch on your hook at the end of a hundred feet of line, is the signal for some exciting pleasure. A real gamester will sometimes rush frantically about, curving to this side and then to that, until by chance riding with an incoming breaker he lands himself high and dry as the billow recedes into the gulf.

A number of June fish have been taken during the season farther out in the bay, mostly at the entrance of the channel to the bay proper from the gulf. One was caught during the season that weighed upwards of 200 pounds, and a royal time the fishermen had in landing their prize.

The porpoise are unusually plentiful this season in the Gulf, and more sharks have been noted during the summer than at any period in the past. A number of times these "scavengers of the ocean" have come rolling up to the beach, causing many misgivings on the part of the bathers, but we all know but little or no danger is to be apprehended from them by a noisy crowd of bathers. The average chorus of shrieks and yells which accompany every successive breaker rolling beachward by the merry crowd in the water, would be enough to frighten the boldest shark and send him retreating into deep water in a hurry.

A number of ladies and gentlemen, but a few weeks ago witnessed a rare and singular battle between a porpoise and a 14 foot shark. A number of shark were seen swimming about but a short distance from the beach and a little way off a porpoise could occasionally be seen coming to the surface as he worked his way along the beach distant less than 100 yards from shore. As the latter approached the sharks an unusual commotion was noticed, when it was discovered that what proved to be a fight to the death was going on between one of the sharks and the porpoise. Back and forth they lashed the water, now in plain view and now hid by the breakers.

Gradually they worked nearer and nearer to the beach, where much of their action was plainly visible. The water was dyed with blood, but they continued fighting furiously, with but little apparent advantage. Finally with a terrific lunge the porpoise rushed for his enemy and literally tore his bowels open, and the shark became inactive and lay quivering in the water but a few feet from the beach, on which the breakers soon washed him, and he was dragged out on dry land, while the porpoise slowly made its way out into the gulf. These monsters, in their contest, presented a strangely interesting sight, the like to which probably has never before been witnessed. Quail and chicken are taking up the attention of our gunners. The former are to be found all over the State in abundance, and the latter are numerous in the wheat raising districts. A. M.

The Black Bass a Comorant.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: The question of the classes or varieties of fish which may dwell in unity together is worthy of the first consideration. We have noticed that many persons are favorable to black bass. Now we desire to say that while black bass is a good fish in many essentials, yet it is the most vicious and destructive fish which swims the waters—of course I mean of those fish which we cultivate.

The black bass is a veritable shark, as compared to the rest of the finny tribe. They will literally clean out and utterly exterminate the trout wherever brought into contact with them. In fact, it is my opinion, and I may say more, that of my observation, that the black bass is the enemy of almost every other species of fish. I speak of what I know, when I say that as to trout they will speedily exterminate them. The black bass will devour frogs, snakes and almost anything which they can conquer. There is no use fishing for other fish which are less hardy than the bass wherever they are found in abundance.

We all know from experience that if we would capture the largest bass that there is no bate equal to a frog. They will dart for it the moment it strikes the water with as much avidity as a hungry hawk ever does for a chicken. I have fished in many waters where bass were plentiful and have always found that the streams were devoid of trout.

Therefrom, I would say never plant black bass in connection with trout for you will find that the latter will be killed off by the bass. A. L.

Fish Culture.

U. S. FISH COMMISSION WORK.—Dr. Hessel, Superintendent of the U. S. Fish Commission carp ponds, Washington, D. C., estimates the number of carp now in the pond to be upward of 400,000. Owing to the cold weather of last May, the season is at least a month backward, and the ponds are not to be drawn off until about November 1st, instead of early October, the usual time. The month of May, the Doctor says, is the most important one of the year to warm water fishes, and a low temperature of the water then marks a very late season. Besides the carp, there will be about 6,000 tench and 30,000 gold fish for distribution. The ponds are in good condition, and have a good supply of stock fish for breeders in them. Since the flood of 1889 there has been little trouble from snakes. In one year, previous to 1889, 1,900 snakes were killed at the ponds with a 22-cal. parlor rifle.

The Lobster's Queer Coat.

The shell of the crab and lobster owes its blush-gray color to the superstition of two pigments or coloring matters, which have been isolated—a red pigment and a blue one. As long as these two pigments exist simultaneously the crustaceans remain gray. But the blue pigment is fugitive, and sometimes, under the influences of a disease, it is destroyed, and crabs are found with portions of their shell more or less reddish. When the crustaceans are immersed in boiling water the blue pigment is entirely destroyed, and the red pigment, which is very staple, appears alone in all its brilliancy.—Ex.

Col. Harry I. Thornton spent several days last week at the beautiful mountain fishing resort, Gold Lake. He reports the fishing to have been very fine. He hooked two beautiful trout at one cast, and had more than usual sport in landing them.

The Scotch Fishery Board have marked a number of fish and turned them loose in the waters which they control. The fish are of the salmon species and the experiment is being made with the object in view of solving one or more of the many problems which have been agitating the members of the board.

The trout season closes on November 1st, and even now may be said to be practically over.

It would be well for all sportsmen to remember that now is the time that a little care and attention given to their fishing tackle, will be of the first importance.

The life of a rod depends more on the care given it during the idle season rather than its use during the active one. Rods should be carefully cleaned and dried, then nicely varnished and put away. The fly hook should be overhauled and all worn and fretted specimens rejected and the good ones carefully arranged; lines should be reeled off, smoothed, dried and carefully rewound so that they may be in readiness for next season's sport.

Mr. G. P. Wilder, of Kahului, Maui, is at present visiting old friends in the city. For some weeks past, in company with a few friends, he has been enjoying the splendid trout and game districts of Mendocino county. He reports one of the most successful outings yet enjoyed during the season. His account of the splendid fishing enjoyed in the head waters of Big river, sounds like the recital of some fisherman's dream of the Utopia, but as we know Mr. Wilder to be a truthful gentleman, we give his statement full credit:

"In two hours," said Mr. Wilder, "I caught eighty trout. It was only a question of making rapid casts. I caught as high as three trout at one cast more than once."

If any one can beat this for a two hours' bout, we should be pleased to record the fact.

Deer, quail and grouse were reported plentiful. Mr. Wilder succeeded in killing two fine bucks. Rock cod, blue fish, halibut and shad were taken in plentiful numbers by the party all along the coast. Mr. Wilder returns shortly to his ocean home, and will carry back many pleasant memories of his sporting days in the mountains and on the coast.

ENGLISH BLOODHOUNDS.

The FIRST and ONLY LITTER of PURE ENGLISH BLOODHOUNDS whelped in California are now offered for sale. They are by Burgho's Warrior (A. K. C. 19753) out of Ripple Buxom E. K. C. 19,768), prize taker at Dover, England, New York and Albany. Warrior has never been shown, but is full brother to Burgho Jr., the well known show dog. Warrior is one of the handsomest hounds ever seen. His ears are twenty-seven inches across, and he is two inches taller than the average of bloodhounds. These noble hounds are kind and gentle, fond of children, marvelously intelligent, of stately bearing, and companionable in every sense. They are not fierce like the cross-bred hounds of Southern States, which are wrongly called bloodhounds, though they are excellent watch dogs. While possessing a rich, deep voice, they never give tongue without cause. A dozen bloodhounds make less noise than one pug. Their kind disposition, rare intelligence and wonderful scent fit them equally for house, farm or field. In the East the bloodhound is becoming more fashionable than the St. Bernard or the Mastiff, for while he is handsomer than either, his remarkable intelligence and scent make him useful as well. Read his character in the Century Magazine for June, 1889, and see his great beauty in the bronzes at Shreve's, and photographs at Vickers. Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

How to Get Stock to the Souther Farm.

The Souther Farm is one and a half miles northeast of San Leandro and eight miles southeast of Oakland. The stables are about one mile east of the county road, which runs between Oakland and San Leandro. The place to turn off is at Stanley Road, where a large signboard of the farm is placed. Guide boards will be found at every cross road. In any ordinary weather the roads are very good, and they are fairly good after the unusually heavy rainfall of the past winter.

All stock sent from San Francisco may be brought over by Garcia's Express, No. 3 Market street, San Francisco. They also have an order box outside of Hawley Bros.' Hardware house on the corner of Market and Beale streets. The express leaves San Francisco on the Creek route boat, which starts at 1:30, but all orders should be in the order box at Market and Beale streets by 10 o'clock, or at the office, No. 3 Market street, by 11 o'clock at the latest. In the case of very young or very valuable horses, the Souther Farm will send reliable men to lead or drive over any stock that will not lead behind a wagon. A small charge will be made in such cases, to cover the extra expense incurred.

Horses are very easily taken from Oakland to the farm, and where it is inconvenient for owners to bring them or send them, the farm will send after anything that is to come.

Horses can be shipped by rail from almost all parts of the State to San Leandro. Always notify the Farm several days before shipping anything, and then men will be on hand to receive stock on arrival. The railroad station is but two miles from the Souther Farm, and the agent invariably gives immediate notice of the arrival of any stock consigned to the above farm, but when word is sent to the farm in good season by letter or telegram, the animals sent are saved waiting a couple of hours in the car.

Passenger trains leave San Francisco (from the broad gauge ferry) and First and Broadway, Oakland, at frequent intervals during the day. There are several trains from San Jose to San Leandro on both the broad and narrow gauge railroads; the broad gauge, by way of Niles, is much more convenient for getting to the farm. There are trains each day from Sacramento, Stockton and Livermore to San Leandro. In ordinary weather it is a short and pleasant drive from Oakland to the Souther Farm or from San Francisco to the Farm by way of the Creek route ferry boat. Always notify the Souther Farm just when you will arrive at San Leandro, and some one will meet you at the station. If you do not recognize the farm conveyance ask the stage driver, who will point it out.

Write to the above address for references, circulars and price lists. Terms reasonable. Visitors Welcome any day except Sunday.

Trotting Stallion for Sale

We are authorized to offer at private sale

THE TROTTING STALLION

Brocken,

Five years old; color, brown; 16.2 hands; bred by Capt. A. J. Hutchinson; sired

By A. W Richmond,

(sire of RICHMOND JR., ROMERO, ARROW, the DAM OF ANTEEO, and ANTEVOLO and other noted horses); 1st dam Maid of the Mist, by Norfolk; 2d dam Eva Coombs, by Billy Cheatham; 3d dam Ruby by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe.

BROCKEN is thoroughly broken, but has never been driven for speed. He can trot a 40 gait now with ease. His pedigree shows rare breeding, combining trotting blood with the most fashionable strains of thoroughbred. It includes crosses to Lexington and Glencoe with a double cross to Boston. For good, stout blood, this pedigree cannot be excelled. For terms, apply to

A HALF BROTHER TO

ALMONT PATCHEN,

(2:15, trial 2:13 3-4).

JUANITO JR. is a beautiful bright bay, black points, with no white, foaled 1886. As a colt he has given much more promise than did Almont Patchen at the same age. Instead of being a pacer, he is a good square troller, with every indication of great speed, and is so gentle and kind, that a lady can drive him. The owner's only reason for selling him is that business calls him away from this section of the State. He will be sold at a reasonable figure This is a splendid opportunity for a gentleman to secure a first-class trotter at a very low figure.

The pedigree of Juanito Jr. is by Juanilo (sire of Almont Patchen), dam Nettie Moore by Old Tom Moore. For further particulars, address

Peruvian Bitters are made of the purest ingredients and compounded as carefully as any prescription.

Peruvian Bark, one of its principal ingredients, was introduced into Spain by the Countess, wife of Count CINCHON, Spanish Viceroy to Peru in 1630, who was cured of a fever by its use, since which time, no better remedy for Malaria and for Restoring the Natural Tone of the Stomach has been discovered.

On the Atlantic Coast they are used in the principal Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants, and sold by all Grocers and Druggists. We have sold them for the past three years WITHOUT ANY ADVERTISING and sales have constantly increased UPON MERIT ALONE, and we unqualifiedly recommend them to our friends and customers.

FREEDOM, A YEARLING, TROTS IN 2:29 3-4.

When the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN went to press last week it was deemed expedient to leave out the two unfinished Special Races of Thursday, as the result would have been unsatisfactory to our readers with a part of the race in one week's issue and the remainder in another.

The first of the Specials had as entries, the gelding Lee, Balkan, Charles Derby and Redwood, the three latter being representative California stallions. When the auction pools began in this race, Balkan was made a slight favorite, he selling for $30, Lee $28, Derby $23 and Redwood $20. Although all of these horses are known as campaigners, still the judges had a very annoying time in trying to get them off and it was only on the eighth score-up that the word could be given, and even then to a start, that was far from satisfactory. McDowell, who was driving Redwood, at once went to the front, Derby being second, Balkan third and Lee bringing up the rear; on the back stretch Derby headed Redwood and was almost a length to the good; on the upper turn Redwood and Balkan made slight breaks, and Derby was still leading when the quartette entered the home stretch. Coming down the straight all of them with the exception of Redwood indulged their breaking propensities and the son of Anteeo had no difficulty in winning in 2:25, Derby being second, Balkan third and Lee last. Derby having shown considerable more ability than any of the others although he did not win the first heat, was now made a pronounced favorite selling at $50 to $40 for Redwood, Lee $25 and Balkan $7 or $8. Again it took considerable time to get them away, Balkan and Lee being the principal offenders, when at last starter Page gave the word Redwood had a little more than a length the best of it; on the first turn, however, Redwood broke, enabling Derby to take the lead, Redwood being second and Lee third; those positions were maintained in processional order until the three-quarter pole was reached where McDowell sent Redwood after the leader, he made a slight skip but caught handily and from sheer endurance, carried Derby to a break and managed to win the second heat by a length, Lee being second, Derby third and Balkan last. Time 2:25¾.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Dustin appeared in the judges' stand and notified the officials that he had heard a rumor to the effect that the horse Lee was not out to win, and stated that the horse had been travelling from the previous Sunday up to Wednesday morning, and that there had been no chance to give him a work out, consequently the gelding was very rank, and also said that if the judges had any idea there was anything wrong, he would be more than pleased to turn over his charge to any other driver, but that he felt that there was little or no chance for his horse to win. After the second heat Balkan began to show signs of distress, and Mr. Hinds notified the judges that when he came up for the word, that they need pay no attention to his position, as he felt that his horse was out of the race. In the pools Redwood now brought $40, Derby selling for $24, while the field was generously backed at $23. As in the previous heats, Redwood started off in the lead, but his unlucky forte of breaking on the turn was again demonstrated, and as they reached the quarter pole, Derby and Lee were in the leading position, there being barely a quarter of a length between them. Derby maintained his slight advantage to the head of the homestretch, where Lee attempted to make a desperate finish, but broke, allowing the son of Steinway to finish in a jog by half a dozen lengths, the time being 2:25½; Lee came in second, Redwood a bad third and Balkan was distanced. Although it was getting rather late, the judges called up the horses for the fourth heat, and as the pool sellers had closed up, there was no chance for the speculatively inclined to back their respective choices. It took but a few minutes for the three to come up head and head, and the word was quickly given, Derby and Lee making a determined fight of it all the way to the quarter pole, where Derby had the advantage of half a length. From there home the gelding and the stallion had it nip and tuck, Derby winning by half a length only from Lee, the time announced being 2:24½, which caused considerable argument among the many independent timers who always hold their watches while horses are speeding. Owing to darkness the race was now postponed until the following morning.

The second Special having to be postponed for the same cause, although two heats in it had already been sandwiched with the first special. During the evening the principal topic of conversation around the hotel was the time given out by the judges in the Derby-Lee race, it being maintained by many that the time was fully a second faster than was given, while a few were positive in the statement that 2:22½ was the time that should have been announced. Owing to the argument pro and con, the judges on the following morning announced that a mistake had been made by the timers, and that Derby was entitled to a record of 2:23½.

The second Special race had as starters Sunset, Oakville Maid, Mambrino Chief Jr. and Van, but owing to the local character of the horses no pools were sold as the "regulars" had no line to go by, by which the best of the quartette could be picked. The scoring was very tedious, as more than twenty minutes were consumed before the field was started; on the word being given, Mambrino Chief Jr. cut out the pace and was never headed, Van being the only one that seemed worthy of being a competitor, Mambrino Chief Jr. passing under the wire half a length ahead of Van, Sunset third and Oakville Maid fourth. Van having made repeated breaks was set back last for running, Sunset and Oakville Maid being placed second and third. Time 2:34. Mambrino Chief Jr. won the second heat in an equally easy manner. Time being 2:34½.

SIXTH DAY.

On the previous evening a meeting of the Board of Directors had been held, and owing to the length of the programme, 12 o'clock was set as the hour for beginning the sport of the day. The attendance still remained small, the local people seeming to pay but little attention to the high class of racing that was daily taking place on their remarkable fast track.

The first event on the card was what was known as the second Special, and as Van had been drawn, only three starters came up for the word. On the first turn Oakville Maid broke badly, and was soon away behind the leading pair, and as Mambrino Chief, Jr. also acted very badly, Sunset had no difficulty in winning the heat in 2:30½. Oakville Maid being distanced. A small amount of betting was now indulged in, Mambrino Chief, Jr, selling for $20, while Sunset sold for $14 or $15. In the fourth heat Mambrino Chief, Jr., again acted very badly, his repeated breaks causing him to lose the heat, and Sunset led all the way and won handily in 2:37¾. In the fifth and deciding heat Sunset acted fully as badly as old Mambrino Chief. Jr., in the two preceding heats, and consequently had no chance in the race whatever, Mambrino Chief, Jr. winning by almost a half dozen lengths in 2:36.

The postponed first Special brought out Charles Derby and Redwood, who were each credited on the night before with two heats, Lee as yet having failed to distinguish himself by winning. In the pools Derby sold for $20, while the field went almost begging for the trifling sum of $6. On the afternoon before McDowell had handled the reins over Redwood, and on Friday morning Tom Murphy was seen up behind the stallion. After a couple of ineffectual scores the trio was started off at the third attempt, Derby and Lee going around the first turn at a terrific gait, Redwood trailing behind, the speed shown being too much for him; at the quarter Derby was leading by half a neck only, these same relative positions being maintained to the three-quarter pole, where Dustin brought up Lee so rapidly that he forced Derby to a break, winning the heat in the remarkable good time of 2:20, Derby being a length and a half behind, while Redwood was at least ten lengths behind the second horse. In the auction pools Derby still maintained as favorite, selling for $20, the field bringing $15. The three got off to an exceedingly good start, Derby taking the lead on the turn showing a full length to the good when the quarter pole was reached. Up the backstretch Lee made play for the leader but the hard work of the previous afternoon and the preceding fast heat had evidently tired the gelding, for he was unable to head Derby, who won the heat and first money by a length in the good time of 2:20, Redwood being distanced.

The $1,500 purse for the 2:27 class had only two starters, Frank M and Homestake having evidently frightened out the balance of the nominators. $40 was the ruling odds for Homestake, while Frank M was sold for $16. This betting was not extraordinary as the fast time shown by Homestake in the earlier portion of the week demonstrated to all that the Pleasanton Stock Farm entry was able to compete with any trotter in the country. As was expected, Homestake easily vanquished his opponent in three straight heats, the time being 2:17½, 2:23½ and 2:18¾. Frank M evidently needs a rest and is fairly entitled to it as he has gone through many hardly contested races this season, his feet being badly punished from the arduous work he has had to go through. We fully expect that if the black winters well that he will make a very low record before the end of 1891.

In one of the previous races Daly, owned by Dr. Finlaw of Santa Rosa, had made a record of 2:25½, and was now sent to beat that record, but on the first attempt was unsuccessful, owing to repeated breaking. Later on in the day Daly was again brought out, and as he compassed a mile without skip or break, was enabled to put the mark of 2:22½ against himself, the stallion evidently finishing with speed still in reserve.

The two-year-old purse had three starters, Pilot Prince, who was under the care of Dustin, Starlight being manipulated by Hecox, and Freda, who was piloted by Woods. Pilot Prince had already shown on a former occasion what he could do, and was established a strong favorite at $30, the field going almost begging at $6. The confidence of the favorite's backers was in nowise misplaced, as he negotiated both of the miles in the easiest of manners in 2:35¼ and 2:31¾.

There was hardly a day during the big circuit but what Johnny Goldsmith could produce from the Corbitt stable something that would astonish the spectator, and Friday afternoon was no exception to the rule, as he brought out for record purposes, the now celebrated two-year-old filly, Vida Wilkes, who had previously made a record of 2:26 Mr. Goldsmith was evidently successful in his effort to fix a lower mark for this really magnificent youngster, as the mile was completed in 2:22¾, a notch which fixed the fact permanently and beyond the peradventure of a doubt that Guy Wilkes is a producer of extreme speed even in the younger generations.

The directors had arranged a special race between Sidney J., Vidette and Soudan, but those who support the pool box ought very shy of the three, and no pools were sold on the event. In the first heat Sidney J. won very handily by a half dozen lengths from Soudan, Vidette bringing up the rear position. Time, 2:31. After having illustrated what speed he possessed, Sidney J. was made a favorite, selling for $50 against $20 for the field, and at these odds quite a good business was done. In the second heat it required two attempts to get them off to a good, even start, Sondan breaking at the first turn; when the quarter pole was reached, Vidette had the leading position, being two lengths in front of Sidney J. As the trio trotted down the backstretch, Sidney J. improved his position, and at the half was only a length behind, Soudan being three lengths still further back. On the upper turn Sidney broke, and before he settled, Sondan and he were on even terms. When well into the homestretch Soudan was urged, and rapidly passed the other pair, winning the heat by a neck in 2:30½, Vidette being second, Sidney J. third. For the next heat Sidney was still favorite, selling for $25 to $10 for the field. But little time was taken up before the judges started them off on the journey, Soudan taking a commanding lead almost immediately, Sidney breaking on the turn giving second position to Vidette; these positions remained unchanged until the homestretch was reached, where Vidette was given her head, and carrying Soudan to a break, the mare won the heat by three lengths in 2:25½, Sidney being a bad third.

Another special race had been interspersed between the heats of the Sydney J., Soudan and Vidette race, the starters being Anita, driven by Goldsmith, Directa with McDowell up behind, and Susette, a full sister to Suisun, who was handled by Havey. After scoring several times they were started off, Anita taking the lead and never being headed, won by four lengths from Directa in 2:25½, Susette being announced as distanced. Mr. Havey, driver for the Palo Alto stable, made strong objections to Susette being declared behind the red flag, and after a consultation two of the judges voted in favor of allowing the mare to start again, they taking the driver's word in preference to the distance judge's, whom they considered incompetent for the position. In the second heat Susette showed plainly that she had plenty of speed as she was never headed from start to finish, Directa being second, Anita third. Time 2:26½.

This concluded the sport for the day, the two unfinished races being postponed until Saturday morning.

LAST DAY.

Saturday, October 18th was the seventh and last day of the second annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, and many were the predictions when the horsemen met together on that morning that within twenty-four hours it would rain. The sky was overcast and very cloudy, giving every indication that before many hours the torrents would be turned loose, and that there would be a similar experience to what was had last season when the record breakers went to Napa for the purpose of reducing low marks. An extraordinary long programme had been arranged and the Directors decided on the previous evening that the bell should be rung at eleven o'clock sharp for the purpose of calling up the first event on the programme; None of those interested caring about remaining over the Sabbath and having postponed races on Monday. The horsemen had all been notified that fines would be imposed for any negligence in promptly coming to the post, and after a couple of drivers had had to part, one with $5 and the other with $10, there was no more complaint on the score of tardiness, and all seemed anxious to finish the day's sport. At about 11 o'clock the sun came out brightly although there was a raw, disagreeable wind blowing which caused many of the spectators to shake their heads and prophesy that Stamboul would be unable to lower his record in the face of such a gale. It was also generally conceded that Mr. Corbitt's yearling colt, Freedom, would be unable to make any kind of a respectable showing owing to the high wind, and those who were actuated by the desire to see records lowered, felt that their time had been thrown away in visiting the course for that purpose.

The bill of fare opened with a mixed race between Modjeska, Puss and Patti P. This was a match race arranged between the owners of the horses, the first named being a pacer, while the two latter were trotters. Patti P. was thought by many to be fast enough to win, but the pacer was the speediest of the trio, and had no difficulty in defeating her competitors in 2:37½ and 2:32½ Patti P. was last in the first heat and second in the second heat, Puss being distanced.

The next race on the card was one of the postponed specials from the day previous, in which Susette had secured one heat and Anita one also. Prior to the horses starting in this race, Mr. Losher, one of the proprietors of Directa, made protest to the judges against the payment of any part of the purse to Susette, as she had been declared distanced in the first heat and yet was allowed to start again in the second, and also asked that the testimony of several bystanders be taken, who were fully cognizant of the real facts in the case, and furthermore declared that he could absolutely prove that the Palo Alto mare had been shut out in the first heat as at first announced by the judges. The officials refused to listen to any evidence on the part of Mr. Loeber, but called Havey, the driver of Susette, into the stand, whereupon he was duly sworn and deposed that his horse was inside the distance flag when the flag fell. Mr. Loeber also notified the judges that he would carry the case to the Board of Review and have the matter adjudicated by the higher authority. The three horses were then called for what proved to be the last heat in the race, as the conditions were best two in three. Susette cut out the pace from the time the word was given, and was never headed in the heat, winning it and the match in 2:23½ by a dozen lengths from Anita, who was second, Directa winning.

Then came the other postponed specials, the starters, in which were Sidney J., Soudan and Vidette, each having one heat on the previous afternoon. In the pool box Sidney was the pronounced first choice, selling for $25, Vidette for $10 and Soudan for $8. When the word was given they all started off together, but before the middle of the first turn was reached, each had played hop, skip and jump. At the quarter pole Sidney and Vidette had settled down to hard work, the former leading by half a length, with Soudan many lengths behind. At the half-mile pole there were at least three open lengths of daylight between Sidney and Vidette, although the latter was coming very fast; breaking a couple of times, the mare lost all chances for the heat, Sidney winning in a very easy manner in 2:30½, Sondan just saving his distance. At the conclusion of this heat Mr. Murphy, of San Jose, the owner of Sondan, appealed to the judges to be allowed to withdraw his stallion, as in the former heat he had cut himself very badly on the quarters. A visit was made to his stall by two of the judges, and permission was given the gentleman to withdraw his entry. For the fifth heat Sidney sold for $25, Vidette finding a few friends who were willing to risk $5 on her chances. Sidney proved his staying abilities by winning very easily in 2:31¼, Vidette acting rather badly throughout the heat. The following is the

A $400 purse was offered for the side wheel division, the starters being Gold Medal and Princess Alice. After the speed shown by the mare during the earlier portion of the week, she was made first choice at $25, Gold Medal selling for $10. McDowell, who was driving Gold Medal, evidently intended to break the heart of the mare, carrying her to the half mile pole at a 2:12 gait, but she had plenty of speed to stand him off, and had no difficulty in winning the heat by three lengths in 2:18. Pool selling now absolutely stopped as the result was a foregone conclusion. In the second heat the half mile was reached in 1:07½, the pace telling very perceptibly on Gold Medal, Alice winning by many lengths in 2:16. The third and last heat of the race was equally uninteresting to the spectator as Princess Alice won as she pleased in 2.17¾, there being more than a dozen lengths between her and her competitor as she passed under the wire.

The three-year-old stake was the next race on the programme, the society adding $400 to the event. By consent of all interested, the distance was waived, and Millie Wilkes sold for $20, Lynette and Lizzie F. selling as a field for $10. It is rare that the speed of any trotting horse is so much overlooked by the betting fraternity as it was in this race, for although Millie Wilkes sold as favorite in the pool box, Lynette could have distanced the field at almost any stage of the race. She won the first heat by three lengths only in 2:29¼; in the second heat she absolutely walked under the wire in 2:32½, while in the third heat, Worth Ober, her driver, urged up the handsome daughter of Lynwood, and she completed the distance in 2:25½.

As is well known Stamboul's record of 2:12¼ was identical with that of Palo Alto, both of the stallions having secured their marks at Napa last year.

It had been prettily generally advertised that the son of Sultan would be sent on the last day of the meeting to beat his former record if possible, and that probably accounted for the larger attendance at the last day of the races. After the first heat in the special, the great stallion was brought out by Johnny Goldsmith, and the announcement was made from the judges' stand that he would be driven to try and beat his present record. As stated before, the wind had been blowing very hard all the morning, but for some unaccountable reason, all at once it died down until there was hardly a breath of air stirring. The flags hung listlessly from the poles, and the cessation of the wind was the general cause of comment. Taking advantage of the lull, Goldsmith very quickly nodded for the word, only having scored a couple of times. Andy McDowell always ready and willing to assist a fellow driver, was up behind the runner and by his comanche like screams probably added to the excitement, and caused Stamboul to go faster than he otherwise would have done. When Goldsmith found that he had the stallion going steadily, the word was given and away he went to try and beat old Father Time. It is always a risky undertaking, as there is the certainty against uncertainty. The eighth pole was reached in 16 seconds, and the quarter in 32½. When going up the incline his speed was decreased somewhat, the three-eighths being made in 50 seconds flat; 1:06½ was the time given for the half mile and many then thought that he would fail of accomplishing the desired object. However, the rise in the backstretch always takes somewhat of a horse's speed away, and the moment the big stallion found himself on level ground, his gait was increased; the five-eighths was negotiated in 1:22½, and the three-quarters in 1:39¾. As they turned into the stretch Andy brought the runner up a trifle closer, Goldsmith urging Stamboul to the top of his speed; down came the gallant horse, upon whom every eye was turned, and "he can't do it" was heard from all sides, yet still Goldsmith had every confidence in the ability of the horse and never stopped urging his charge on to the wire. As the trotter and the runner flashed past the judges' stand, there was a sigh of relief to think that the great tension was over, and a spontaneous burst of applause came from the throats of those present, as hundreds of watches had caught the time, 2:11½.

Even with this remarkable mile, disappointment was expressed by many as it had been fondly hoped that Napa would be the scene of Nelson's record being broken, and to come so near the mark and to fail in the accomplishment was a source of regret to many, however, the enthusiasm was unbounded, people shook hands with one another in the transport of their joy, and it was conceded that with two weeks' more good weather and barring accidents that Stamboul would yet have the stallion record of the world. Although the performance of Stamboul had created considerable excitement, it was as nothing compared to what ensued but a few minutes afterwards when Goldsmith brought out for a trial, the yearling stallion Freedom by Sable Wilkes, dam Laura Drew by Arthurton; 2nd dam Molly Drew by Winthrop; 3rd dam Fanny Fern (the dam of Balkan 2:29½) by Jack Hawkins. Again the wind commenced to blow even worse than before, and there were but very few present who expected that this great son of Sable Wilkes would be able to reduce the yearling stallion record, which up to that time was held by Faustino. It will be remembered that at the Bay District Track last year Faustino was given a mile by Jas A. Dustin in 2:35 beating the former record held by Von Wilkes. Mr. Page, the starting judge announced to the audience that it was the request of Mr. Goldsmith that all persons should get off the track and the utmost silence maintained, as the colt was very high spirited and it took but little to frighten him which might eventually cause him to break. An almost breathless silence ensued, and Johnny scored the youngster up once or twice and finally finding that he was going to his satisfaction, the word was nodded for and the yearling sent off on his mission. The eighth pole was reached in 18 seconds; the quarter in 37½, the three-eighths in 56½ and the one-half in 1:17½. It will be remembered by our readers that there is a rise of almost seven feet on the back stretch of the Napa track and consequently the second quarter is a very slow one, but from there out there is a gradual decline, which assists the horses very materially in making fast time on the last half; the three-quarters pole was reached in 1:55, while the mile was completed in the remarkable time, for a yearling, of 2:29¾, wiping out, not only the yearling stallion record of Faustino but also knocking a second and three-quarters from the performance of Norlaine which has stood for such a long time; when it is considered that the last quarter was made in the remarkable time of 34¾ seconds it can readily be understood what a speedy colt the new record breaker is. Applause and cheers were accorded to both the colt and the driver, Mr. Goldsmith having to lift his blue cap many times in answer to the recognition; when Goldsmith came up to weigh, many of his friends shook hands with him and in his quiet, unassuming manner calmly said "I wish there had been no wind, I would then have shown you a good mile." Mr. Corbitt, the owner of Freedom was kept busy for the balance of the afternoon receiving congratulations from his friends, and it is sufficient to say that the future success of Freedom was drank in many bottles of wine.

The free for all trotting race for a purse of $1,500 had only two paid up entries, they being Hazel Wilkes and Margaret S; the lameness which had prevented Margaret S from starting in other races during the week compelled her owner to keep her in the stable, consequently Hazel Wilkes had a walk over for the first money; she was only jogged to the five-eighths pole, then Mr. Goldsmith turned her head loose, coming home the last quarter in 32½ seconds.

The great betting race of the day, and in fact of the week, was the one in which there were three starters, for a special purse of $400, the named horses being Mary Lou, Emma Temple and Maggie E. When the betting first commenced on this race Mary Lou was the favorite at $25, Emma Temple selling for $15, Maggie E bringing up the rear at $11 or $12; pools were sold in this race at these odds on Friday night, but when the big money began to roll into the box at the track, Maggie E sold for $25, Mary Lou $20, and Emma Temple $16. There was but little scoring before the word was given; all three got off on even terms; Maggie immediately cut out the work with Mary Lou hanging close to her, Emma Temple evidently being laid up for the heat. At the quarter Maggie E led by two lengths, and by about the same distance at the half. Mary Lou made two slight breaks on the upper turn, and was at least four lengths behind when the three-quarters pole was reached. McCord, who was driving Mary Lou, tried his utmost to overtake Maggie E in the stretch, but without avail, the latter winning by three lengths in 2:19¾, which is the same time as her record made two years or more ago; Emma Temple showed up very lame, and only brought $5 in the second heat, Mary Lou selling for $9, while Maggie E sold like hot cakes at $25. On the second score up they went off, Maggie E again taking the lead, Mary Lou pressing her very hard for supremacy. Maggie E was a much better mare than on the Saturday previous, and was never overtaken, winning the second heat with plenty of speed to spare, in 2:23½, Emma Temple being distanced. Pools now sold at $50 for the favorite, Mary Lou bringing $8, $9 and $10. Again McCord hung on close to Maggie's wheel all the way down the backstretch and round the upper turn, but Vioget had plenty of reserve speed in Maggie, and on entering the homestretch, drew away gradually, although he won the heat by a half length only in 2:21¾.

Time, 2:19¾, 2:2 ½, 2:21¾.

After the regular programme of the day, Wanda, owned by the La Siesta Ranch, was driven by Vioget two miles, accompanied by a runner, this simply being a work out for the mare and not a test of speed or of endurance. The daughter of Eros made the first mile in 2:17¾, and the second in 2:20 flat, notwithstanding the fact that she made a most disastrous break on the upper turn. This is a very fast mare and with age should prove dangerous among any class of horses, on the Pacific Coast or elsewhere.

Mr. Salisbury, to add to the pleasure of the afternoon, had two of his grooms bring out for inspection on the quarter stretch, Margaret S. 2:12½, the record she procured over the kite-shaped track at Independence less than two months ago, and Homestake, who was introduced as the fastest trotting horse on the Pacific Coast, he having gone two consecutive miles in 2:14½ and 2:14¼. A call was made for Direct, and the owner very obligingly had McDowell bring the little stallion out on the track, around which he was sent once accompanied by a runner. Notwithstanding the severe injur- at Saginaw Michigan during last summer. McDowell sent him from the wire so fast that it seemed almost as though he was flying; the eighth pole was reached in 15 seconds and the quarter was made in 31 seconds, and there can be no doubt but what he also would have gone a phenomenal mile had it not been for the terrific wind which was blowing down the back stretch. Notwithstanding this great disadvantage the half mile was reached in 1:06½, but the strain was too much for the game little son of Director, and Andy held him back as it seemed too much like punishment to ask the horse to go against such strong odds, the latter half of the mile was finished in an easy jog, the full mile being completed in 2:19¼. It is greatly to be regretted that such an obstacle as the heavy gale of wind prevented Direct from showing what he really could do. His owner and also the driver are positive that under favorable conditions Direct can beat any mark heretofore made by Margaret S., and as there are to be several record meetings during the next month, we sincerely trust that Mr. Salisbury will have the stallion kept in good condition so that a mark commensurate with his speed may be recorded against him. It might not be out of place to state that since his return from the East he has been worked only three times, once at Sacramento, the best mile being 2:23; once at Stockton, the best mile being 2:22½, and at Fresno, where his best mile was made in the mud, in 2:28.

This ended the second annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, and that it has ended with a financial success can hardly be said, yet still there is every indication that there will be no loss on the meeting, and the breeders of the State feel amply paid in the fine work that has been shown during the eight days, for all the trouble to which they have gone in bringing the meeting to a successful conclusion.

Racing on a Cash Basis.

The Necessity of Abolishing Promissory Notes for Forfeits.

San Francisco, Oct. 22, 1890.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—As your paper has always devoted more or less space to the matter of reform in racing, I wish to say something about the slovenly way in which forfeits are allowed to be incurred in the United States.

We have, as you are aware, some twelve or fifteen rich men in America who would rather win a race worth $1,000 than to have one of their horses pulled for twenty times that sum. Every time one of these men wins a race, it increases the value of all the saleable stock he has on hand. It is this class, therefore, that alone protects the public from the thousand manifold turf jobs and robberies concooted by the lower and more desperate class of needy adventurers who hang upon the verge of racing.

The Futurity Stake was first run for in 1888 and won by Mr. S. Bryant's ch g Proctor Knott, a son of the great Luke Blackburn. The stake was nominally $44,500, but I learn that of this amount, less than $32,000 has been collected. Last year it was won by Hon. W. L. Scott, of Erie, Pa., and its face value was close on $60,000, the greater part of which remains unpaid to this day. This year its alleged value is in excess of $70,000, but Mr. Belmont, who ran first and second for it, has received so far less than half that amount, although the race was run two months ago.

This thing of accepting the promissory notes of men whom one does not know and has never seen, is something that would not be for one moment tolerated in any other sort of business. Yet secretaries of jockey clubs accept them as if every man in the nation were an Astor or a Stanford. It looks to me to be radically wrong. Everything that involves a wager is, to a greater or less extent, a gambling transaction, and all gambling should be done for cash.

Down in Australia, whence I have recently returned, all forfeits are paid in cash. The man who would ask Tom Clibborn or George Rowley to take his note for a forfeit in a race, would be quietly told: "It is not customary, sir—we must have the cash or decline to accept your entry." There would be nothing more to be said. But in the United States a man wins a big sweepstake race and then he gets the added money and the starters' entrance in cash, leaving him to collect all the forfeits from non-starters for the next two years. The club is not responsible, and the winner knows very well he cannot enforce the payment of such notes in any court of law.

It is to this cause, more than any other, that I attribute the retirement of Messrs. Cassatt and Brown, and the contemplated withdrawal of Hon. W. L. Scott and that glorious old high-priest of the turf, August Belmont, Esq. These gentlemen's money was always ready if any one else won, and they naturally expected to be treated likewise. When they find that, after all they have risked in getting to a race with a good horse, they can only receive one-half of what is just due them, is it any wonder they feel that the man who races fairly and pays honestly has no protection, and retires from the turf accordingly?

There is enough crooked racing done already in the United States, even with men of the stamp of Belmont, Haggin, Scott and Withers on the turf to protect the public. What will it be when they retire? And who will see that the public get a run for their money, when these gentlemen are forced to retire because they cannot collect what they have honestly won?

Therefore, in fairness to all concerned, racing should be conducted upon a cash basis. A man living out in Missouri or Dakota, can make entries by a promissory note in races to be run at Morris Park in October. He goes out in the early spring and races through the Western circuit which is lined, as everybody knows, with the worst kind of thieves. If he has a good horse and the touts find it out, he is allowed to win, but the "pullers" and "ropers" have their agents at the pool box and win out dollars, where he wins dimes. At last he gets together several thousand dollars and goes in for a big coup. His horse is pulled in the interest of the ring, and all his winnings are swept away. The fall races at Morris Park come along, and he has not money enough to get there. The races are over and he is called on to pay, but has no money. He is put down as a defaulter and a "welcher," although not a dishonest man at heart. This is only one case in hundreds I could name.

Therefore I say that a reform is needed in this matter and a return to the cash system of forfeits absolutely necessary at once, or we shall have the millionaires leaving the turf forever; and when they are gone, jobbery will the rule and fair contests the exception. To keep them in full harmony with the sport, cash forfeits must be demanded and notes refused. The man who cannot afford to pay cash on a forfeit six months in advance of the race, has no business on the turf. He needs what money he has got for the support and education of his family.

I suppose that both Mr. Haggin and Mr. Baldwin, and, perhaps, Mr. Theodore Winters, could bear ample testimony to the truth of what I have said above, as they have all won large and valuable sweepstakes in the Eastern States. Desiring to see the sport kept up in the future and believing fully that there is no salvation for it if rich men are compelled to withdraw because they cannot collect what they have honestly won, I clamor to have racing put upon a cash basis and the promissory note abolished altogether.

True, it will greatly decrease the number of entries, but it will insure winners a full payment of what they have won; and will, for that reason, put racing on a much better footing in America. Every man who owns ten thoroughbred mares and a stallion is interested in seeing this reform inaugurated and that with all reasonable speed. Hidalgo.

Return of Cy Mulkey.

There is nothing succeeds like success, and the old saying is more than carried out in the result of the trip made by Cy Mulkey this summer. When the Blood Horse Meeting of last Spring was a thing of the past, Cy shipped two horses to Portland, Oregon, to take part in the spring meeting at place, the thoroughbreds being Tom Daly and Sinfax, the latter having been leased from L. J. Rose, who looked on the colt as of little account. The pair of "bangtails" gave a good account of themselves at Portland and also at Tacoma, where they were in the pink of condition winning in almost all the races in which they started. In the course of time Mr. Mulkey added to his string the roan gelding Tim Murphy, who had been named after the former owner of old Black Maria, an historical mare owned in the bygone days up in Butte County.

From the time that the small stable was first turned loose at Portland, there has not been a race but what some part of the money has fallen to the share of Mulkey, his horses demonstrating that superior judgment in training is bound to bring about winning results. Missoula, Deer Lodge, Anaconda, Butte and Helena were each visited in turn, and although all kinds of combinations were suggested to the owner, he stood aloof from the would-be, sure-thing men, and ran the animals on their merits, making a handsome return for his honesty of purpose and independence. Toward the end of the season it was almost impossible to get any money in the pool box against the Mulkey entries as it was considered a foregone conclusion that he was bound to prove the winner. On leaving Montana Cy retraced his steps to Portland and took part in the last meeting held there, again showing up well among the winning stables. Prior to leaving Montana, Tom Daly was disposed of, his owner receiving a good long price for the gelding. All kinds of weights were tried by the handicappers to prevent Sinfax and Tim Murphy from winning, but with no other result as the tour was almost a complete round of victories. A few statistics will show how uniformly successful the Mulkey Stable has been since it left San Francisco in May last. But perhaps it would be better to give an account of all the races that Mr. Mulkey has taken part in since the races started on the opening day of the Blood Horse Meeting, and then it will be seen how successful one small stable can be when properly looked after. Daly started eleven times, winning seven times, has two seconds to his credit, one third and once unplaced. Sinfax started fifteen times, won twelve races, was twice second and once third, carrying as high as 123 pounds. Tim Murphy started also fifteen times, was eleven times first, second three times, and once third. This is a grand showing, forty-one starts and in forty races money was won. As is only natural, Cy feels highly elated over the result of his tour and has determined to become a public trainer, so that hereafter he will be prepared to take horses and prepare them for the arduous work of a campaign. Mr. Mulkey has been so successful in the past that he should have little or no difficulty in securing all the horses necessary to keep his time fully employed. During the season he has purchased Sinfax from Mr. Rose, paying for the two year old colt $2,000, and during the trip has twice refused $5,000 for him. He is at present at the Bay District track, in splendid condition, and should give a good account of himself at the fall meeting. Tim Murphy is at present turned out, having injured one of his hoofs in the last race in which he took part at Portland. Both of the horses are looking superb and fit to race for a man's life, and it is to be sincerely wished that the old trainer may be as successful in 1891 as he has been during the present season.

The above is a phenomenal showing, and when one considers that there are many other Electioneers which will probably enter the list before January 1st, it looks as though Electioneer will set a mark which will be as bad to beat as Salvator's. Lack of space precludes further comment, and any how it is unnecessary. "Res non verba" should be emblazoned on the escutcheon of Electioneer and Palo Alto in the future.

TURF AND TRACK.

Cæsar 2:24¾, is another Steinway pacer to enter the list.

Frank Harper of Longfellow and Ten Broeck Fame will sell some of his yearlings in December.

The Hazlitt Stable is now in Lexington, Kentucky, and will probably winter in that neighborhood.

Mr. L. J. Rose says that his two-year-old filly Fairy has been blistered and is sound again, but will not be raced again this season.

Hon. August Belmont has claimed the name of St. Mark for the yearling colt by St. Blaise—Black Maria, recently purchased by him.

Red Wilkes is now on the private stallion list. Nutwood and Axtell will stand at $1000 each; and Wilton, Wilkes Boy and William L at $500.

J. W. Knox, the well known horsemen who took Anteeo East, has gone further East and is now managing the Fashion Stock Farm at Trenton N. J.

Shotover, the English Derby winner in 1882 is, besides being the dam of the crack two-year-old Orion by Bend Or, the mother of a slashing yearling by Ormonde.

Andy McDowell, who leaves for Montana in a few days, will be greatly missed in California, and nowhere more so than Pleasanton, where he is a general favorite.

W. Vioget has Wanda 2:22, Maggie E. 2:19¾, and Starlight, on the Bay District track, and will have Eros, the premier Stallion on La Siesta Ranch brought down next week.

W. L. Appleby returned from Los Angeles last Monday, and in addition to his own horses, brought up L. J. Rose's Rico and Conrad, who will race at the Blood Horse Meeting.

Over $1,200 was the amount of the tax paid into the Boyle County Treasury in Kentucky this year for standing stallions. This amount refers only to horses and not to jacks.

"Pittsburg Phil," who purchased Buddhist at Capt. Brown's sale last week, was offered $1,000 advance on his bargain. He declined, and will keep the racer in his own stable.

Mr. Ebret who purchased the Winters' string, and engaged Matt Allen as trainer has also engaged McLaughlin to do the heavy weight riding and Lambley the light weight for next season.

Jimmy Newington, who has ridden so successfully for C. Mulkey this season, came down from Portland last week, and will probably be seen on the saddle at the forth coming Blood Horse meeting.

Col. R. S. Strader, Lexington, sold on October 11th to W. C. France & Son, Highland Farm, the four-year-old b f Nell Wilkes by Red Wilkes, dam Young Nellie Bly by Justin Morgan, for more than $5,000.

The rumors as to the new hotel that Mr. Withers has contemplated building at Monmouth are well founded. Plans for the building have been submitted, and work on the structure will soon be commenced.

C. X. Larabie, Home Park, Mont., has two developed mares, Lady Triceps, 2:28, by Triceps, and Beesie Franklin, 2:29¾, by Ben Franklin, and both have colts by their side by the developed sire Jerome Eddy, 2:16¼.

Tom Kinney one of By Holly's pupils who has been for some time driving for Mr. Topham at Milpitas has left the latter gentleman's employ and is now working Sondan and several colts for D. J. Murphy at Milpitas.

The Monmouth people intend building a new stable and sales paddock in connection with a three-quarter course to be used for training yearlings. The improvement will be located between the main track and Oceanport.

Rupee, the Guy Wilkes three year old who has made such a successful campaign, ran a nail into his foot at Napa, and though his foot is about all right again, he was sent down to San Mateo, where he will have a well earned rest.

The fastest mile Goldsmith ever drove was last Saturday at Napa, 2:11½, but he expects to go faster soon, for Mr. Hobart informed him on Sunday that he could start the horse every Saturday he felt inclined until the last day in December.

Mr. D. P. Cox presented Rhody Patterson with a $200 diamond ring on the 9th at Terre Haute, in appreciation of his driving of Uncle Sam. Another of Rhody'a friends who found "a sleeper" on Uncle Sam, gave him a silk umbrella.

G. Van Gorden, Senator Hearst's superintendent returned last Tuesday from San Simeon. He says the youngsters all look well and healthy. He expects Donathan back again in a few days with Almont and several of the horses which have been in the East.

7,500 guineas is now the price of the stallion St. Honorat by Hermit, out of Devotion by Stockwell. Several years ago a prominent Californian, while in England, intended to buy him, but unfortunately was sick in bed when the sale was held, and missed the horse who sold for a tithe of his present price.

"Colonel," said Splan, after Hal Pointer's great race at Terre Haute. "lets you and I give Messrs. Hamlin and Dunbar $10,000 for the use of Hal Pointer and Johnston for July 4th, and give a match race. Why the grounds could not be secured large enough to hold the people."

There is a great deal of complaint this year in Eastern racing circles about forfeits. Belmont's Futurity was worth $74,000 on paper, but there is said to be still something like $30,000 outstanding. Sam Bryant has not yet collected all his Futurity forfeits for 1888. The other big stakes are the same.

The stakes to be run for at the Victoria Racing Club, of Melbourne, Australia, for the season of 1890 91 amount to over $3,000,000, with over $2 000 000 added. The handicap sweepstakes for the Melbourne Cup, run November 4th, has $50,000 and a $750 trophy added.

J. A. Goldsmith last Monday afternoon brought seven trotters to the Bay District, having sent the rest of his horses home on Sunday. The seven are Stamboul 2:11¼, Regal Wilkes 2:17¼, Hazel Wilkes 2:20, Vida Wilkes 2:23½, Freedom 2:29¾, Millie Wilkes, the Sidney two year old, and a Director filly.

Senator Hearst's Rhono wrenched his pastern in his last race at Sheepshead Bay, is in a bad shape, and may not be seen again at the post. It is to be hoped that trainer Cooper will be able to bring him around all right, as his retirement would be a serious loss to the stable, which has been in hard enough luck this season.

It is interesting to note how many record breakers there are at the Bay District Track. Sunol holds the two three and four year old records, while Regal Wilkes has the best two year old stallion record and Freedom the yearling record. Stamboul 2:11½ and Palo Alto 2:12¼ both have a great chance of beating the 2:10¾ of Nelson.

P. P. Johnston of Lexington, Ky., President of the National Trotting Association, will sport silk on the running turf. He has just put in training a stable of young thoroughbreds. Being personally known to nearly every prominent trotting horse man in the Union, this new departure of Judge Johnson will be watched with interest.

There are already several thoroughbreds in training for the Blood Horse meeting at the Bay District and Oakland tracks. Across the bay T. G. Jones is rapidly getting Jackson, the well bred son of Luke Blackburn and Ivy Leaf into shape again after his trip to Nevada, while J. H. Muse has Fanny F, Wild Oats and Katisha, but none of them are in very great trim just now.

We understand that the Directors of the Blood Horse Association will make an effort to induce Mr. Haggin to exhibit Firenzi and Salvator at the meeting to be held next month at the Bay District track. The two champions should prove a great drawing card, and as Mr. Haggin is himself a director of the association, it is hoped he will assist them to that extent.

The Bay District Track is now the home of the crack trotters. The Palo Alto stable under Marvin's charge being located in Hickok's old stable, while Goldsmith has seven head in the rear of the grand stand—where Marvin had his string last fall, La Siesta Ranch, Dustin's stable, Nolan's, Brandow's and others being scattered around in the various stables.

The Australian horse Paramatta by Cheviot out of Scraps, won a good race on the closing day at Morris Park; carrying 112 lbs, he beat Masterlode 98, Benedictine 122, Foxmede 103, and Elyton 113; the distance was one mile. Paramatta is one of the horses brought over by J. K. Newton and afterwards sold by him in New York.

A draught from the racing stables of D. D. Withers, James Galway and R. Porter Ashe were sold at auction at Morris Park on the 17th, the lot attracting pretty sharp bidding. As a rule, good prices were obtained. The 17 from Mr. Withers' Stable brought $25,225; 9 from the Preakness Stable, $7,235; and Mr. Ashe's six fetching $6,850.

The following is not a new story told of Tom Olliver, the once famous cross country jockey, but it seems to be worth repeating: Finding his horse had no chance in the first round of a steeplechase, he secreted himself in a haystack till the horses came round again, when he joined in and won. "Where on earth did you come from?" asked one of the riders as the fresh horse shot up to him. "I was waiting on yer," said Tom, "I was waiting on yer."

Australians, who should know more of Mr. Alfred Josephs than we do, have not an exalted opinion of him. "Augur," one of the best writers in the Colonies, says in the Australasian, while mentioning a conversation he had with the well known rider (Bowes) that he "with other Australians, considers Mr. Alfred Josephs' assumption of the role of a 'leading Australian sportsman' as a piece of impertinence."

In speaking of the would be archers, an exchange says: Jockeys are inscrutable institutions. The best of them ride like artists on Monday, and like farmers on Tuesday. On Wednesday they are suspended, and on Thursday we find them reinstated. On Friday they are generally drunk, in consequence of which on Saturday they ride without vigor, being weak from "reducing." What jockeys do on Sunday the Lord only knows.

Allen Farm, at Pittsfield, owns Sable Hayward (dam of Rupee, three-year-old pacing record, 2:16½). She is by Pescora Hayward, dam Sable (dam of Sable Wilkes 2:18), by The Moor. The mare dropped a filly, full sister to Rupee this spring, and has produced four foals in all, though not seven years old. Rancho del Paso also owns a relative to Rupee in the stallion at present called 'Riverside', a full brother to Sable Hayward. He is said to be a natural trotter.

Andy McDowell still thinks Cricket is the only pacer, while Goldsmith and the astute Holly say that when once he holds the lines over Yolo Maid he will change his opinion, and as Holly and Goldsmith have both driven the Maid they should have some idea of her capabilities, and Holly offered to bet McDowell $100, McDowell to be the judge, that after handling the Maid he would say she could go the first quarter faster than Cricket.

On the 16th, at Morris Park, R. P. Ashe sold at public auction six thoroughbreds, including the celebrated sprinter Geraldine and the useful Flood Tide. The six sold were:

Geraldine, ch m, 5 years, by Grinstead-Cousin Peggy; T. W. Shreve	$4,000
Flood Tide, b c, 4, by Flood—Lady Evangeline; Keystone Stable	1,000
Sir Rae, b c, 2, by Alta—Constellation; D. H. Honig	700
Romella, b f, 2, by Woodlands—Dizzy Blonde; J. L. Ramsdell	700
Chestnut filly by Volturno—Miss McGowan; M Shea	200
King Alta, br c, 2, by Alta—Cousin Peggy; E. Gillison	150

Sidney, 2:19½. This horse, by Santa Claus 2000, record 2:17½, dam Sweetness 2:21¼ by Volunteer 55, was foaled in 1882, and is the only sire of his age that has a grandson in the 2:30 list. This descendant of the precocious Sidney is the chestnut gelding G. W. C, pacer, 2:22½, by Adonis 2:11½, son of Sidney. The above was published in Bruce's Live Stock Record. "C. W. G." is a pinto pacer, but can not be by Hickok's Adonis who is only five years old, while C. W. G. is probably six or seven.

We have heard great reports of Black Bart, the two year old by Three Cheers from Bonita, by Norfolk, granddam Margretta by Lexington, etc. Black Bart simply romped away from the California two year olds, who went to Nevada after the California State Fair. Leh, another of Mr. Winters' horses, readily disposed of Applause Hotspur and Co when they got to Carson. He is a four year old by Joe Hooker out of Illusion, and consequently is a full brother to Ravelo, who ran a mile in 1:39½. It is almost certain that the above two, with several other flyers, will be down for the Blood Horse Meeting.

A correspondent writes to the Kentucky Stock Farm: "Merlin 2:27¼ is the first of the get of that fast and game stallion Phallas to enter the 2:30 list, and there are several mares of his get ready to beat 2:30, which will silence parties who have said that he would never get fast trotters. The dam of Merlin is Mila C., 2:26½, by Blue Bull. It is significant that his first 2:30 performer is out of a mare by Blue Bull. The daughters of Blue Bull are going right to the front in the matter of foaling 2:30 trotters when mated with stallions that have a strong trotting inheritance."

John Splann, while in England, was presented with an Orloff stallion. The Orloffs are the trotting bred horses of Russia. The manner of handling the trotter in the land of the Czar is entirely different from that in this country. The distances for races are never less than two miles. The vehicles cumbersome and heavy, and the time made nothing like as fast as in this country. "When I was in England," said Splann, "the Budd Doble of Russia called upon me, and through courtesy I hitched up and gave him a ride behind Mambrino Sparkle 2:17. When I got her up to near speed, I thought he would blow out of the wagon. It was something he had never experienced.

Many men complain about a few of their colts selling for low figures at sales, and while it looks like a dead loss, all and more, too, will come back in the future if the youngsters are made of the right kind of stuff. Woodburn sold Maud S for a song under the hammer, and her performances brought thousands into the Woodburn coffers. A prominent breeder once remarked: "I stood once and saw fifteen of my colts given away by an auctioneer. None of them were sold under contract to bring so much or no commission, as is now done by a man I could name, and who will soon hold another sale, and they proved the best sales I ever made in my life, as I afterwards received three or four customers from every town which one of those youngsters was taken.

Memoir, this year's English St. Leger winner, was bred by the late Lord Glasgow, and was bought by the Duke of Portland as a yearling for $1,500 guineas. She is by St. Simon, dam Quiver by Toxopholite, second dam by Young Melbourne, from Brown Bess by Camel. As a two-year old she ran seven times and won three races. Her first race this year was in the One Thousand Guineas, which she would have won had she not been sacrificed to her stable companion Semolina. It is interesting to compare her breeding with the celebrated stallion Musket who has done such great service in New Zealand. He is by Toxopholite, dam by West Australian (son of Melbourne) from Brown Bess by Camel.

Among the many men who will be made happy by the grand mile trotted by Freedom last Saturday at Napa should be Dan DeNoyelles, who, says an exchange, "Is a believer in the development in stallions and mares intended for breeding purposes. He bred his mare to Adelaide, 2:19¾, to Nutwood, 2:18¾, and got the two mares Nina De, 2:26½, and Addie De, 2:25¾. When Nina De got her record she was in foal to Sable Wilkes, 2:18, and the foal proved to be a filly, and she was this year bred to Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼. Addie De got her record of 2:25¾ this year, and she is in foal to Wilton 2:19¼. Mr. DeNoyelles also has a fine two-year-old colt by Robert McGregor, 2:17½, out of Adelaide, 2:19¾, that can show a 2:40 clip very easily."

Another race horse owner will appear on the running turf next year in the person of Chester W. Chapen of New York, says the Sporting News. For six years Mr. Chapen has owned the old Errickson farm of eighty acres near Morrisville N. J. The larger part of the farm is now being converted into a half mile track, which will be finished this week. Upon the track Mr Chapen will train his yearlings, six of which are stabled on the farm. Ten more yearlings are quartered in New York. The seventeen horses are entered for the races next year. Large stables are to be built on the place, which will be one of the finest training tracks in the country. Mr. Chapen has engaged as trainer Michael Coleman, who was assistant trainer for the Withers stable for many years.

Mr. W. R. Wilson has made an offer for the whole of the Sylvia Park thoroughbreds, as well as the farm itself, but the offer has been refused. It was Mr. Wilson's intention, says Augur, had he become possessed of the valuable New Zealand Stud Company's estate, to have kept it on in the same manner as the company, and hold annual sales of yearlings. Some of the mares would probably have been removed to St. Albans, and several of the St. Albans mares would have been sent to New Zealand, where Nordenfeldt would have remained as lord of the harem. Whatever may be the result of the negotiations between the present owners and intending purchasers, I sincerely hope the Sylvia Park establishment will not be broken up.

There has been for several years a good deal of starting price betting in England and every once in a while a big kick arises as to what is the time of starting, but a short while ago the committees of Tattersall's and the Newmarket Subscription Rooms argued the case thoroughly and decided that "for betting purposes the time of starting for any race shall be decided in accordance with Rule 38 of the Rules of Racing." Rule 38 reads as follows: "The starter shall report to the stewards the time at which each race was actually started; also the time of the first, if any false starts, which shall be held to fix the time of starting for that race. He shall also report by whom, or by what cause any delay was occasioned." The italics are our own, and, it will be seen, contain the whole gist of the question.

Mr. Foster is expected down from Oregon with Oregon Eclipse for the Blood Horse meeting. Oregon Eclipse is said to be very speedy by the Montana contingent; he is by Joe Hooker out of Lulu Riggs, the well known sprinter.

A. J. Welch, the well known Hartford, Conn., horseman began life as a bootblack on the streets of Pittsburg. To-day he is said to be worth $500,000, and made it all on the race course. The story of his success is an exceptional one. Eighteen years ago he was blacking boots around the grounds of the Pittsburg Driving Association, and having a good run of luck invested $1 in a pool ticket and won. He placed his winnings on a second horse and won again. Then he resolved to follow the races as a business. He was shrewd and managed to pick up enough good "tips" to keep him winning. He finally bought a trotter of his own and put it on the track. The investment was a good one, as the horse developed great speed, and a few years afterward Mr. Welch sold him to an English capitalist for $10,000. He now owns a good stable, and is reported to be worth in the neighborhood of half a million. One peculiar method he has which he invariably follows is that he never bets on any kind of race except a trotting match.

The thoroughbred horse has become the synonym of gameness through the number of times that he had been tested and found equal to the occasion. A number of years ago a horse named McWhirter ran the last quarter of a mile at St. Louis with both legs broken, and at Morris Park last week Best Boy gave a very similar exhibition. He stumbled, threw his rider, but came hobbling down the track after his field till he reached the grand stand. Here he turned around and looked up at the crowd intelligently, held up his fore leg, mute evidence of his defeat. The hoof was merely hanging to the leg by the merest shed of nerve and all the way down the horse was running on the bone which protruded. Lambley, who had the mount on Best Boy, had his shoulder bone broken. The same day in the sixth race Torchlight ran away with Slack. He dashed the boy against the fence and threw him off. In trying to escape he trampled on the fallen jockey. All this occurred in full view of the horror-stricken thousands in the grand stand. One lady was so affected that she tumbled off a chair and added one more in the chapter of accidents by breaking her leg. Slack was picked up insensible. There was a deep gash in his leg and he was otherwise badly shaken up, but was not seriously hurt.

The death of Mr. James White having rendered void all the English nominations in his name, the question is certain to be revived, says Augur, and there will be the usual amount of talk and paper warfare on the part of those who do and those who don't believe in the English rule. It has been threshed out for the last 20 or 30 years, but in conservative old England they seem to be as far off a solution of the difficulty as ever. About four years ago, when Macheath, a favorite for the Derby, was ruled out in consequence of the death of his owner, a writer in Baily penned some of the most sensible remarks I have ever read concerning this burning question: "Another relic of barbarism in racing is the law rendering nominations void on the death of the nominator. It appears to me to be only playing into the hands of the speculators, while robbing the representatives of the late owner of the legitimate worth, in many cases of a good horse that has been carefully entered and trained for the purpose of fulfilling these engagements. Why an owner in his lifetime should not be allowed to insure the validity of his nominations by payment, or his executors be permitted to do so within a certain time after his death, and before the date of the engagements, I cannot by an fair reasoning make out. Over and over again we see the present rule step in and disquality good horses, and thus render them a tithe of the value that they otherwise would be.

Rey del Rey's failure to show conspicuously in the race for the Titan Stakes was a disappointment to his party, says Druid Hill in the New York Sportsman, without being altogether a surprise. The fact is that they prefer a fast track for the handsome colt who promises to be a thorn in the side of Brother Ehret and his trainer, the immaculate Matt Allen. Prior to the opening at Morris Park they thought the colt to have the surest sort of mortgage on the Titan. In his work Rey del Rey shows form enough to speed and stay with the best of his year.

"You have a good-looking colt," the writer observed to Trainer Allen as the colt was being prepared in the paddock.

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Matt somewhat bitterly. "He ought to be for the money he cost," and then young Mr. Ehret and his side-partner, Mr. McElwee, came along and agreed that while the track did not quite suit their fancy, still, on the colt's work in private he should come close to scoring first bracket for the new and enthusiastic proprietor of the white jacket and its scarlet stars and trimmings. But it was not to be, that day at least. After the race the opinion was rife in many quarter that the brother of El Rio is a counterfeit of the rarest kind. But I cannot subscribe to this, in view of Rey del Rey's conformation and style. Surely the coquettish star of good fortune will yet rise on the horizon of Mr. Ehret, dispelling the discouraging experiences of his short connection with the turf:

Turf writers on metropolitan dailies have much to answer for, to at least our popular and prominent gentleman who is always to be seen on the race course, the inevitable cigar in his mouth, his hands in his trousers pockets and his derby hat slightly inclined downward over his left temple. David Tenny Pulsifer, or "the Colonel," as he is known in the East, marvels at the peculiar faculty possessed by the scribes of changing a silver dollar into a $100 bank note. During the entire racing season Colonel Pulsifer's "enormous winnings" have furnished the dailies with plenty of material for gossip On Kirkover, Sir George (one two three), Punster Jr. and Park Ridge, not to speak of Tenny, the genial "Colonel" has been reported upon different occasions to have won a fortune. The fact is, however, that "the Colonel' is by no means a heavy bettor. The money lost on Tenny in the famous match race in June came almost entirely from the Dwyer pocket. One ticket which called for $22 000 on the swayback, and which was issued by Chicago parties, was exhibited as the property of Tenny's owner, when it belonged in realty to one of the Dwyers, who has always been a staunch supporter of the hooded colt. Indeed, it is hinted that Pulsifer lost but $2,500 on the match race, his only investment having been one-half the $5,000 stake money. Other reports referred to of the Colonel's large winnings have no foundation in fact. Only the other day he jocularly told me, says a New York writer in the Horseman, that if he bought himself on the newspapers' estimate of his acquired wealth and sold himself for what he really possesses, he would be ar-

Charming, who stopped like as if she had been shot in the first race a week ago last Wednesday at Morris Park, died the same night from injuries which she sustained in the race. It appears she wrenched her back so severely as to affect her spine, with the fatal result stated above. By her decease Ed Brown, better known as Brown Dick, sustains a heavy loss, not alone from her value as a race mare, but also as a matron. A daughter of Prince Charlie and Nannie Bay by Glenelg, should be invaluable as a broodmare.

A correspondent of the Week's Sport furnishes the following, which shows how much racing tips are worth:

SIR—Your last week's article on fraud on our race tracks prompts me to send you a few figures, showing what the selections given by the six papers below would have netted if the "winner" had been played each way, and the "second horse" for place only, $5 each bet, or $15 each race. I was curious to see what the "talent" could do. My figuring shows that either the talent are not talented or that fraud reigns supreme.

Six miles from this city, on the Maysville turnpike, is located the famous Elmendorf stud farm, where Mr. D. Swigert has a grand collection of high class thoroughbreds, and where such equine wonders as Salvator, Firenzi, Tremont and many others equally famous first saw the light. The Times Democrat says the farm is an exceedingly handsome and well kept one, and Kentucky boasts of few if any more elegant homesteads than the Swigert mansion, in which genuine old-fashioned Kentucky ideas of comfort are gracefully blended with the fruits of modern art.

The first of the stud kings of the establishment shown was that grand old race horse and sire of winners, imported Glenelg. Though showing unmistakably the effects of a twenty-four years' existence, most of which has been made up of an active career upon the turf and in the stud, Glenelg still shows unmistakably the stamp of a great racehorse. Of good size, fine substance and great length, he shows grand racing conformation everywhere. Despite his swayed back, he still has a magnificent loin, deep brisket, oblique shoulder, long, round barrel, broad, full chest, finely arched neck, and massive, rangy quarters. Except for his sway back, age appears to sit very lightly on Glenelg, who is still as frisky and full of fire as a two year-old. He is a rich bay, with little or no white.

Several of our American trainers might derive a good deal of benefit from a letter in the London Sporting World which says:

"I have noticed that winners of our great races much less frequently spring from horses who are sent a strong gallop over the course on the day next preceding the race. The fact that many trainers regularly subject horses to it would seem to imply that their charges are not thoroughly prepared before leaving their stables, or that the trainer often overlooks, in his feverish anxiety to have a horse fit, the equally important requirement of freshness. Now, the daily training reports reveal that Memoir went a mile steadily on Monday, and was not on the course for a strong gallop on Tuesday morning, when Saifoin and Rightaway went a mile and a half at a fast pace, accompanied by Blue Green and Gonsalvo. The two latter were not allowed to be prominent with their other stable companions. A horse, to show his true form must not, one would think, be in the least tired by continual and hard work to the very day of his race, but should have done with serious training before being sent to a meeting, and given on arrival only such work as will maintain his condition while ensuring comparative rest. Such a policy, I think, notwithstanding the class of the Duke of Portland's horses, has had much influence in their extraordinary success in George Dawson's hands."

Records are made and broken again almost every year, but it will be many a day before a driver will be able to sit behind a stallion in 2:11¼, and the same afternoon pilot a yearling colt round the track in 2:29¾ as John A. Goldsmith did last Saturday at Napa. Goldsmith altered his tactics with his two charges, giving Samboul an easy mile in 2:30 instead of finishing up with a fast quarter as he had done the Saturday previous, while he gave the colt a half in 1:17 and brushed him a quarter in 0:37, which, as he explained, was to steady him, for when he attempted on Thursday to beat the record, the colt was so headstrong he could not take him back, and had to let him trot himself out. The colt this time went away nicely, trotting the first half in 1:17½, the three-quarters in 1:55, and finishing strong and true like an old racer, he trotted the last quarter in 0:34¾. I do not think the record will stand long, for probably next Saturday Goldsmith will start him against his record. The colt is a phenomenon in more ways than one. He was foaled in May, and has never had any kindergarten work, being taken up when he was 12 months old, and bitted and broken, showing himself to be a natural trotter but headstrong, and if the weather holds out, he should certainly lower his record, as he has trotted a half in 1:11¼ and a quarter in 0:33¾, and every day will find him handier and easier to rate.

That well known writer 'Hark Comstock' in an article in the N. Y. Herald says that J. C. Hamlin in a recent letter to him regarding Belle Hamlin and Sunol said: "Your views and mine agree to a dot in regard to the necessity of the trotter possessing a good percentage of thoroughbred blood to enable it to continue the fast clip for a full mile. The colder strains in Belle's dam, her granddam and her great granddam I regard as hurtful. Still she gives me great evidence of her ability to trot a fast mile. As you say, I have seen both mares' method of action and can hardly decide which is the best.

"I know Belle is the most amiable and I believe less liable to make mistakes than Sunol, but the latter is a wonderful animal and a great mare, and I am very glad she is. I have already, adding those now on the farm to those coming next year, about one hundred of the get of Chimes, Sunol's equal and possibly her superior, no matter how fast she goes. Many of them have the Mambrino King and Almont cross and additional thoroughbred blood beyond.

"I have declined the challenge, as, in my judgment, the chances are in favor of Sunol beating Belle Hamlin. Besides, I would not put up a forfeit of $5000 and run the risk of the mare going wrong. You know I don't want, say forty or fifty years hence, when I am laid away, to have some horseman come along and hit my tombstone a kick and say, 'Here

The St. Leger Stakes, run at Doncaster last month, was the one hundred and fifteenth renewal of this time honored race, which was first run in 1776 and is three years older than the Epsom Oaks, and four years older than the Derby. The initial event, though the stake was not known as the St. Leger until 1878, when it was so termed in honor of Col. St. Leger, was won by Lord Rockingham's Allabaculia, by Sampson, ridden by J. Singleton. The original distance was two miles, over Doncaster moor, and the first weight carried was 8 stone for colts. The weight has been altered five times, and is now 9 stone for colts and 8 stone 11 pounds for fillies. The course has been altered three times, and from two miles was reduced to one mile six furlongs and 132 yards in 1826. The race was first run over the new St. Leger course in 1878.

The veteran trainer and owner, Cy Mulkey, returned on the Columbia from Oregon last week. Mr. Mulkey, who took in the Northern Circuit—Montana and Oregon—says he was very successful, winning right along with Sinfax, Tom Daly and Tim Murphy. Tom Daly was sold and Mr. Mulkey brought Sinfax, Murphy and Maggie R., the dam of Murphy, down with him on the boat.

Sinfax is the two year old by Wildidle from Fostress, and has been started fifteen times, winning twelve of them, including a mile and a quarter handicap in which he had twelve pounds the worst of the weights against Coloma, Raindrop, Guido and J. M. R. Mr. Mulkey purchased Sinfax by telegram from L. J. Rose for $2,000 while he was in Montana. Tom Daly won seven races for the Mulkey Stable this season, while Tim Murphy won eleven races out of fifteen, and equalled the record for half mile heats. He is a five year old roan gelding by imported Kyrle Daly, dam Maggie R; his color, a red roan, is not the color one usually expects for a racehorse, yet when carefully looked over he is built like a race horse from head to tail, and looks a regular weight carrier: he is at present slightly lame, having bruised his foot badly in his last race, and will probably not be worked again for a month or two. If he is only half as good as he looks and his record reads, what a killing could be made with him in the East! Maggie R, the dam of Tim Murphy, is a racy looking chestnut mare, an inbred Belmont. She was bought by Mulkey from Mr. Murphy—after whom the horse was named, for $1,000, and not being in foal will be bred to some of the crack Californian stallions.

In speaking of the condition of Axtell, an exchange says: "The wind-puffs on his ankles kept getting larger as soon as he was taken from the stud and jogged by Doble. Veterinarians who were called in said there was no danger of a break-down, but Doble is the soul of caution in such matters, and as a number of men were interested in the ownership of the stallion, he decided to get them together in Chicago and state the case. This was done, Doble saying that in his opinion the best plan was to at once throw the stallion out of training, winter him carefully, and next year allow him to make a full season in the stud. Then, when six years old, he would be fit to trot against all records. If his leg would not stand at that time it would not just now, and to make an attempt to prepare the colt for a race with Sunol and then have him collapse would be a bad move. The other partners in the great stallion agreed with Doble, and the programme as outlined will be carried out. There is, of course, a difference of opinion as to whether or not Axtell would stand training. The veterinarians may talk as much as they like about the puffs on one of his forward legs not being dangerous, but all the same it would be a bold trainer: a reckless one, in fact, who would, under the circumstances, start out to give Axtell the hard work necessary to bring him to the post fit for a race with Sunol. It is possible that Axtell will never trot again, but if a year's rest will cure his ailing leg, Doble will bring him out for the world's record, which by that time is likely to be faster than 2:08¼. But although Doble is careful, he is not afraid to act on his own judgment, even when a mistake would mean a good deal to him. This was aptly shown after Jack had trotted a mile over the Independence track in 2:13. It was a great performance, but from the manner in which the gray gelding cooled out, Doble was satisfied that it was not the best effort of which the horse was capable, and consequently he was sent another mile, proving Doble's judgment to have been good by doing the distance in 2:12¼. Had he failed to beat the 2:13 of his previous heat, there would have been plenty of people ready to criticise Doble trying to do something that was impossible, but when the scheme worked well they had nothing but praise."

It is very amusing to read, says that well known "Augur" in the Australasian, the miserable subterfuges of some "breeding students" after certain lines which they have denounced have proved successful. When Galopin won the Derby the detractors of the Blacklock blood had recourse to all sorts of insinuations respecting the colt's parentage, and several declared that he was by Delight. The phenomenal success achieved lately by Galopin's descendants has caused the resuscitation of these baseless rumors, and Mr. W. Taylor Sharpe has replied to them. He declares that such assertions are without the slightest foundation. He bought Delight the year before he bought Flying Duchess, who was then in foal to Vedette, and during the interesting occupation of manufacturing Galopin, Delight was never within 60 miles of Flying Duchess. It is a great pity, says Mr. Sharpe, that in this racing world of ours there are so many who believe in nothing, enjoy nothing, revel in nothing that is not either mysterious, improbable, or dishonest. Continuing, he says that if they who put down Delight as the sire of Galopin knew the horse as he did they would never have given him credit for siring such a horse as Galopin. He had Delight and Suffolk at the same time, and the young Delights could run rings round the young Suffolks, and he recommended all his friends to buy the Delights, to the great loss of their money and his reputation, for every Suffolk won a race of some sort, but not one Delight ever won a race of any description; they could go three furlongs like lightning, but no further. Mr. Sharpe very pertinently continues:—"What is there to wonder at that Voltigeur's best son and one of the Flying Dutchman's finest daughters should produce a good horse? Vedette, in my opinion, would have been one of the most successful sires of his time, had his harem and his produce received that attention which is absolutely necessary to produce racehorses. Flying Duchess was badly colicked four times during the winter preceding the birth of Galopin, and during one of these attacks I quite thought she would have died, but happily she recovered and was no worse; she had been used to poor food, and could not stand much, and I had to be very careful with her, and had she not fallen into some such hands as mine, Galopin would never have existed, or if he had, instead of living in clover (or rather on clover) at Blankney, would have been now drawing a shrimp net at some

THE FIRST SOUTHER FARM SALE.

Great Broodmares and Promising Young Stock at Auction.

Good Road Horses—Some Well Bred Young Stallions—A Good Opportunity to See a California Stock Farm.

The Southern Farm began collecting well bred trotting stock in January, 1887. The collection has been gradually increased since that time, and as nothing has been sold, the farm is at present greatly overstocked; consequently, a large number of well bred trotting stock will be sold at the first annual sale, which will take place on Thursday, November 20th, 1890 at the Souther Farm, near San Leandro. On that day practically the entire produce of the farm will be sold, the only exceptions among the young stock being two or three fillies reserved for broodmares, and all the foals of 1890, which are too young for present sale. Furthermore, on that same day the entire Souther Farm collection of broodmares will be sold, saving and excepting a few that are not in condition to place on the market, besides three or four kept for road use. Among this collection of broodmares are some of the best and most fashionably bred, and there are a great many individuals that produce good colts. The produce of almost every mare offered will be shown in such a manner that purchasers may judge for themselves of the worth of the mares.

It will be distinctly understood that every animal offered will be sold without reserve, limit, or by bidding, and it will be a long time before those who are looking for brood mares will have a better opportunity of purchasing first class stock at exactly what they will bring when fairly and squarely offered at public sale.

The following is a partial list of the stock that will be sold on Nov. 20th:

BROOD MARES.

VERONICA, b m, right hind foot white, foaled 1884; bred by Silas Skinner. Napa, Cal., by Alcona 730, son of Almont 33, and Queen Mary by Mambrino Chief 11; 1st dam Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner 2:19, Flora Belle 2:24) by Almont 33; 2d dam Fanny Williams (dam of Bay Chieftain 2:28¼) by Alexander's Abdallah 15; 3d dam by Denmark, etc.

Veronica is a full sister to Flora Belle 2:24, for whom Mr. Corbitt paid $3,000, and a three-quarter sister to Silas Skinner 2:19. he being by a son of Alcona from Fontana, whereas Veronica is by Alcona from the same mare. Her dam has produced two with fast records and her granddam produced Bay Chieftain 2:28¼, the only trotter ever produced by John F. Payne. Veronica is a grand individual fully sixteen hands high, beautiful head and neck, has grand size, substance and finish, and has every mark of a grand brood mare which she will undoubtedly be. Her first colt Woodside, by Woodnut, Mr. B. C. Holly considers one of the best colts he ever handled, as he drove him quarters close to forty seconds when the colt was but fourteen months old. Her second foal is the bay colt Lord Clive by Sable Wilkes, now the property of Coombs Bros, Napa. Her third foal, a weanling, is now at the Souther Farm, and will be exhibited on the day of the sale. At the sale of Mrs. Silas Skinner's stock on March 6th, 1890, Veronica brought $2,500, and her dam Fontana $4,400. Stinted in 1890 to Figaro (son of Whipple's Hambletonian and Emblem, sister to Voltaire 2:20¼, by Tattler.)

ROSALINE, b m hind anklea white, by Major Mono, son of Pacific, he by Old Niagara, dam unknown.

Rosaline is the dam of Alpheus 2:27—a gamer horse never lived. The mare is very powerfully built and is a model brood mare; every colt she ever produced has shown great speed.

Not stinted in 1890—the mare was supposed to be in foal until so late in the season that it was decided not to breed her until 1891.

PUSS, ch m, strip, hind foot white, foaled 1866, bred by D. H. Gleason, San Leandro, Cal., by Skenandoah 926, (Kentucky Hunter).

Puss is the dam of Haverly (pacing) 2:25, and Modjeska (pacing) 2:32½, who showed a half mile at Napa in 1:11½, in the heat she nearly lost through slipping in a wet part of the track. Puss is also the dam of Belle Davis, who was the best three-year-old of her year, and made a record of 2:40 some thirteen years ago. Puss has produced two fine looking colts by Figaro, and is in foal again to the same horse.

NAMORA, br mare, small strip, foaled May 24, 1879; bred at Fairlawn, Kentucky; by Almont Mambrino 761 (by Almont 33 out of Monogram by Mambrino Chief); 1st dam the Lackey mare by Blood's Black Hawk. I bought this mare on the showing made by two of her colts which I purchased at the sale of Mrs. Silas Skinner's stock in March, 1890. She is well bred, being by a son of Almont from a Mambrino Chief mare; and Blood's Black Hawk has through his sons and daughters, given the trotting turf some of its very best and purest gaited performers. See Wallace's Year Book, page 428 for Blood's Blackhawk.

ROSEBUD, br m, foaled 1884; bred by Monroe Salisbury; by Gibraltar 2:22½ (sire of Homestake 2:14½); 1st dam by A. W. Richmond, sire of Arrow (pacer) 2:13¼, and dam of Anteeo 2:16½ and Antevolo 2:19½; 2d dam by Crichton, thoroughbred, (son of imp Glencoe) sire of the dam of Arrow (pacer) 2:13¾. Homestake won one of the best races of the year at Napa, on Oct. 14th, defeating Hazel Wilkes, Maggie E and Emma Temple in three straight heats. Time 2:18, 2:14½ and 2:14¼, the last two heats the fastest ever trotted in a contested race in California. Rosebud is by the sire of Homestake out of a three-quarter sister to Arrow 2:13¼. She is a grand individual, and showed a full mile in her work at Napa in 2:40, last quarter in 38 seconds. In the right hands she will make a good race mare, and will be of great value as a brood mare.

EFFIE DEANS, br m, foaled about 1875; bred by David Stoddart (now) of Oakland; by Whipple's Hambletonian; first dam, Hallidie mare, a mare that carried Mr. A. S. Hallidie from one end of California to the other when he was Surveyor-General of this State. Effie Deans is the dam of Gerster, by Washington, a pacer that drove out the winner of a heat in about 2:24 on the Northern Circuit this past summer. Effie Deans weanling foal by Jester D. is one of the best colts of his age at the farm and will be exhibited on the day of the sale. The mare had great speed and wonderful endurance, and she will produce trotters. Daughters of Whipple's Hambletonian are producing very creditably.

ROBERTA, gr m, foaled about 1878; by Patchen Vernon (sire of Allan Roy 2:17½ and the dam of Vonoher 2:22) son of George M. Patchen Jr. 31 and Lady Vernon); first dam by John Nelson (sire of Nerea 2:23½ and of the dams of Albert W. 2:20, Valensin 2:23 and others.) This mare is bred from strong lines. She has great endurance herself and should produce game and fast colts.

STRAWBERRY, roan m, foaled about 1879; by Newland's Hambletonian (son of Speculation and a mare by imp. Joseph, the sire of the dam of Vanderlynn 2:21); first dam by Owen Dale, one of the best, if not the best son of Williamson's Belmont. This mare has beautiful finish and was a great road mare; but she ran away one day and was put to breeding. Her first foal is a yearling by Figaro and is simply a phenomenal pacer. He has been driven but about six weeks and has been worked very easily, as he is too good a colt to spoil. He will be sold with the other Souther Farm yearlings. Her weanling foal is also by Figaro, and is the best lot trotter on the farm, and unless all signs fail he will be a horse of wonderful trotting speed. He will be exhibited on the day of the sale. This mare will produce extreme speed and will be simply invaluable to whoever purchases her.

FANNY LINFOOT, bl m, foaled about 1873, by Erwin Davis (son of Skenandoah 926) sire of Ed 2:26, Carrie F 2:27¾ and the dam of Florence R. 2:26¼. 1st dam by Frank Wise, a Black Hawk horse formerly owned by Mr. Hathaway of San Lorenzo.

Fanny Linfoot is the dam of Jim Linfoot by Figaro, who was the fastest two year old on the Souther Farm last spring except El Benton, and he could make it lively for him. He took to growing however, and it was deemed prudent to stop driving him for fear of overtasking his strength. He will be shown in harness and sold at the sale, and in the right hands will make a dead game race horse.

LA TOSCA, b m, foaled 1887, by Ulster Chief, son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian. 1st dam Puss (dam of Haverly (pacing) 2:25, and Modjeska (pacing) 2:32½) by Skenandoah 926

La Tosca is a full sister to Modjeska (pacer), 2:32½, and half sister to Haverly (pacer), 2:25. With proper handling she should become fast, and will make a good broodmare.

FREDA, brown filly, foaled 1888, by Fred Arnold, son of Nephew; 1st dam Bernarda, a great road mare, every one of whose colts show speed.

Freda started in the two-year-old purse at N pa on October 17, 1890, and divided second and third money with Captain Ben Harris' Dawn filly Starlight.

Freda was timed in the second heat of this race a mile in 2:49¾. She is a perfect beauty in form and coloring, is a dead game little trotter, and with proper handling will make a grand campaigner. She has shown quarters very close to forty seconds; is very clean gaited and a delightful filly to drive; whoever gets her may consider himself fortunate. If she were by one of my own horses, I would reserve her for a broodmare.

Freda's dam Bernarda and two of her half sisters, four and five years of age, both by Fleetwood (son of Nutwood and Centennial Belle by Woodburn) will also be sold.

BABY, ch m, star, foaled about 1885 by Tom Benton, [son of General Benton (sire of the dam of Sunol, 2:10½), from a mare by George M Patchen Jr. Tom Benton is the sire of Ned Winslow (pacer), 2:15, and Mary Lou, 2:21]; 1st dam Weasel by McCracken's Golddust (sire of Artist, 2:26½); 2d dam Young St. Lawrence by McCracken's David Hill (sire of Black Swan, 2:28½); 3d dam Old St. Lawrence mare, dam of Dave Hill Jr. (sire of George Treat, 2:25½), by Foster's St. Lawrence, who had a record of about 2.32, and died in a race on the Kalamazoo track.

This mare had great natural speed, but was foundered before she came to the Souther Farm. She is a splendid broodmare, and has a remarkably good pedigree which will bear close scrutiny. Her sire, Tom Benton, is a producing son of the great General Benton, and through her dam she has three crosses of first class Black Hawk and St. Lawrence blood, so useful in giving purity of action and fine road qualities, coupled with extreme speed.

With the above will be sold many other well bred trotting road and work broodmares. Everything will be sold to the highest bidder, and no by bidding will be tolerated; so this will be an unusual opportunity to acquire good breeding stock.

The following two-year-old stallions will be sold:

JIM LINFOOT, br c, foaled 1888 by Figaro (son of Whipple's Hambletonian and Emblem, full sister to Voltaire, 2:20¼, by Tattler); 1st dam Fanny Linfoot (see above) by Erwin Davis; 2d dam by Frank Wise (Black Hawk).

A very fast colt of fine size and conformation; would make a first class stock horse for the coming season of 1891.

THE BARBER, grey colt, foaled 1888 by Figaro; 1st dam Roberta (see above) by Patchen Vernon; 2d dam by John Nelson.

A large, stout built colt of very speedy formation. He certainly ought to finish his miles in good shape if speed sustaining blood will tell.

HORATIO, b c, foaled 1888 by Alcona (sire of Flora Bell, 2:24, etc.), by Almont; 1st dam Namora (see above) by Almont Mambrino 761; 2d dam by Blood's Black Hawk.

Horatio is of fine appearance, and shows a first class gait. He is a three-quarter brother to Prince Warwick, a horse that Mr. Hickok campaigned through the past season without getting him a record. Prince Warwick went through the Grand Circuit and seemed as capable of trotting second in 2:15 as in 2:25. Horatio will earn some man a good living, as he is well bred and very promising.

GRAN MORO, bl c, foaled 1888; by Le Grande (son of Almont and Jessie Pepper by Mambrino Chief) sire of Grandee, three-year-old record 2:23½; first dam Sunny Slope Belle (dam of Don Carlos three-year-old record 2:32) by The Moor [sire of Sultan 2:24 (sire of nineteen in 2:30 list), and grandsire of Stamboul 2:11½, within three-quarters of a second of the world's stallion record]; second dam, running bred, a mare that won races in and about Los Angeles for Mr. L. J. Rose. I hope to have her pedigree by the date of the sale. Don Carlos, 2:32 (out of the dam of Gran Moro), is used as a gentleman's roadster in New York, and has been driven a mile over the Fleetwood track in 2:25.

The above is a preliminary and partial list of the stock that will be sold on November 20th at the Souther Farm. Besides these there will be sold the yearlings, colts and fillies, and the two-year olds, colts, geldings and fillies. A complete catalogue will be issued about the 5th of November, and will be mailed to all applying to Killip & Co., 22 Montgomery street, San Francisco, or to the Souther Farm, San Leandro, Cal.

Full instructions for reaching San Leandro, where conveyances will take purchasers to the farm, will be duly advertised. It is a pleasant drive from San Francisco to the farm by way of the Creek ferry boat to Oakland, and the place is but eight miles from Oakland, so that all living in or about that city can drive to the farm easily, where careful men will look after all horses driven there. Take the county road between Oakland and San Leandro, and turn off at the sign board.

The stock will be exhibited in harness and at the batter a few days before the sale; due notice will be given of the exact date. On the day of the sale a good lunch will be provided for all attending. An invitation is extended to all interested in fine stock to come and see the horses and the appointments of the farm which are very complete.

The stallions El Benton, Glen Fortune, Figaro and Jester D. will remain at the farm and the business of educating, training and boarding horses will be carried on in the most careful manner.

None of the foals of 1890 will be sold, as it is intended to sell them when they are yearlings in the spring of 1891.

Cleveland Bays.

The Handsome Stable Shown By Dr. Prather and Mr. Wilkinson at State and Fresno Fairs.

Among the many noted horses shown at the State Fair and the Fresno County Fairs this year, no stable attracted superior interest and attention than that of Dr. Prather and Mr. Wilkinson, which was comprised of the justly celebrated Cleveland Bays.

Of the many individual horses shown, none caught the eye of the public, and especially that of the horse fancier more than the superb and well nigh ideally formed horse Lord Harington. This splendid animal is owned by Dr. Prather, and is a beauty, rarely equalled and never excelled. His coat is of that beautiful blood bay color so much admired and sought after. He stands 14¾ hands high and weighs 1,400 pounds. His action is smooth and easy, remarkable for a horse of his size and weight. In addition to the splendid appearance of this beautiful animal is the remarkable feature of his kind disposition. This magnificent animal took the first prize at the State Fair as a three year old, and this year he repeated the same winning as a four year old, adding the first premium at the Fresno County Fair and received many compliments for his beauty of structure, coat and carriage, in fact was the center of attraction in his class. The book of this splendid stallion for 1891 is being rapidly filled.

Another beautiful animal in this stable was the handsome three year old horse "Loyalty," owned by Mr. William Wilkinson. He is a dark bay, weighing 1,360 pounds, and is very promising in every way.

He has to his credit the winnings of first prize in his class at Sacramento and also at Fresno.

The third horse shown was a fitting companion for the preceding ones mentioned, being Scampton Swell, owned by Capt. Norris, of Fowler. This animal is a very rangy horse weighing 1250 pounds and is of a dark bay color. He has to his credit the second premium taken at the State fair.

It is not too much to say that one of the finest and most handsome animals ever shown, was the beautiful Cleveland Bay mare "Rose Leaf" owned by Dr. Prather.

This superb creature tips the scale at 1,500 pounds and stands nearly 16 hands high. She carried off the honors at the State Fair winning the first prize as mare and foal, which latter was shown at her side. She also took the first prize at the Fresno Fair as well as the second prize in the sweep stakes exhibit.

She is the dam of a fine suckling named Hunter, sired by Tertius, winner of first prize at Texas and Colorado State fairs and is now owned in Dallas, Texas.

Hunter is a very promising colt, rangy and finely shaped and if he develops as now indicated he will make a magnificent animal. He has to his credit the winning of first prize at the County Fair. Another beautiful mare was exhibited in the three-year-old "Billington Lasaie," Dr. Prather owner. She stands 16¼ hands high and weighs 1,260 pounds. This young mare is rangy and stylish, shows splendid action, and will unquestionably prove to be an excellent brood mare. She took first premium at the State and County Fair.

In the stable was also found the fine four-year-old mares Queenie and Phantom. Both are blood bays, handsome in appearance and structure, and took the first and second premiums at the State Fair.

All of these animals are registered of the Harris importation. Hundreds of people were drawn to this stable of horses to feast their eyes upon the splendid picture which they presented. They were universally commended and admired as the finest stable of horses on exhibition. It is universally conceded by horsemen that the Cleveland Bays are the coming horses for general purposes.

The day of half breeds is past. They have been thoroughly tested and proven to be a source of expense without the satisfactory results obtained by the pure bloods.

The public demands a horse large enough, and with action sufficient for all demands for speed, as well as a neatness of structure, which will make a pleasing presentation for all classes of work and for driving purposes.

For this class of work, what horse can measure up with the Cleveland Bays? We venture to assert there are none.

Mr. Prather also had on exhibition the Norman horse Illiers, but he, like his class, is to well known to need an extolation here, but cut was given in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Illiers shows many fine colts here.

About Starting.

The Turf Field and Farm has this to say editorially about starting:

"It has been suggested in some of the public prints that the starter at trotting races should occupy a stand on the track opposite the stand assigned to the regularly appointed judges. This plan was tried at the breeders meeting at Chicago in August and it did not give the highest satisfaction. Under the present rules the starter has no authority except that delegated to him by the judges. To place him where the judges cannot communicate with him and have very little control over him, is to stretch authority and magnify his importance. The judges have power to assess fines and impose other penalties for disobedience in scoring, and a complete surrender of this power to a rattle-headed starter was never contemplated by the rules. The dignity of the stand cannot be preserved unless the starter is made the servant instead of the master of the judges. First change the law before you give him a seperate stand. Usually he is a man of crotchets and prejudices and will bear watching. The judges' stand should be on the outer circle of the track. This gives a better command of the horses and makes it easier to convey official information to the occupants of the grand stand. Steps should be built so that one judge would stand on the finish line directly above the other judge, and the starter could stand on the lowest step while trying to get the horses off evenly, and retire to the rear as soon as the word was given. In such a position he would be under the immediate eyes of his superiors and all of his acts would be subject to instant approval or revision.

THE FARM.

Spaying for Milk Production.

From experiments conducted under the supervision of Prof. A. E Menke, director of the agricultural experiment station of the Arkansss Industrial University, as to the influence of spaying on milk production, we find the following conclusions:

The figures show that the oows suffer little from the immediate effects of spaying—that is, they stand the operation well, the shrinkage of the milk, which may be tsken as a measure of their physiological disturbance, being limited practically to the first two or three days following the opsration.

As for the quantity, even allowing for the better pasturage dnring the last month, the showing is good. There is certainly no falling off in the amount snch as migbt be expected to occur in the noncastrated cow nine months after calving. But neither is there any very noticeable increase.

The quality of the milk as seen from the table of chemical analysis does not, at this date—that is, four months after spaying, differ to any exlent from what it was before.

If spaying increases the proportions ot cream and caseine it does not do so witbin at least four months after onerating.

It is proposed to keep the cows and again analyze the milk at the end of a year or so.

The queslion as to whether or not it is profitable to spray milch cows we cannot answer. It is only to certain classes of animals of wide occurrence, however, that the operation is at all applicable, and in these, although the prospect seems favorable, further observation is necessary before any general recommendation in its favor can be made.

The analyses were made, using Adam's method supplemented by Short's. The latter was found easily manipulated and accurate.

Both cows show an increase in quantity and in total fats. This may be partly due to the grass obtained after spaying. Cow No. 2 sbows a light decrease in per cent. both of total solids and fats, but so slight as to be hardly attributable to spaying. It would be equally difficult to attribute the increassd percentage of botb solids and fats in cow No. 1 to that operation.

As far as this experiment goes it shows spaying to have no effect on the quality of the milk.

Proposed Duties on Farm Products.

The following proposed dnties on farm produce, as provided for in the new tariff bill, are given in the Dairy Circular of D. W. Lewis & Co., New York, together with the old or now existing rates of duty in parentheses:

Dairy Rules.

The last session of the New York Dairyman's Association adopted the following rules: To make dairying a success certain things and conditions are necessary, and the better these things and conditions are understood and carried out in practice the more desirable and the more perfect will be the product. The following are some of the points necessary to be observed.

1. Milk from healthy cows only should be used.

2. Avoid excitement of the cows produced by chasing with dogs or in any other manner. Harsh treatment lessens the quantity and injures the quality of milk.

3. Cows should have an abundance of suitable food and pure water, and salt kept where they can have ready access to it every day.

4. Cows should be kept from all foul odors and not be allowed to eat or drink anything that will give taint to the milk.

5. Milking should be done at regular hours, with clean hands, clean udders and clean stables, and the milk kept away from any contaminating odors.

6. Milk should be strained immediately after being drawn, and not be disturbed until creamed.

7. Milk pails and other vessels for keeping milk and cream should be thoroughly cleansed—first, well washed and scalded with boiling water, and then aired to keep them perfectly sweet.

Salting Butter.

The Amount—Shall it be in Brine?

F. C. Curtis, the dairy authority, opposes the idea taught by some that butter should be twice salted, as butter itself does not absorb salt. He says:

"Our scientific instructors tells us that it is allowable or right to leave in the butter 12 per cent. of water when the butter is completed. This we will accept as correct. What then remains to do is to salt that 12 per cent. of water sufficiently to season the butter, which is about as salt as we can make it without having undissolved salt in the butter. Let us suppose we have, say, 15 lbs. of butter, which has been churned to granules about the size of wheat grains, washed and drained without the use of salt. We can add the salt (15 oz) in the churn. A few revolutions will mix the salt evenly through the butter, when it should remain at rest about five minutes for the salt to dissolve. Then revolve the churn until the butter is worked into a mass or in solid lumps. It will be found that most of the superfluous brine has worked out. At one time we will find this brine to measure one quart, at another time three or four quarts, although we suppose we have followed the same process. Many insist on the ounce-to-the pound, not knowing that half that quantity is plenty to remain in the butter. It matters not how much salt is put in the butter. The question is, how much salt remains in it, for in this process of salting more than half of the salt comes out in the superfluous brine. The best way is, therefore, to salt the butter in the churn, and there is little danger of getting in too much, provided no more is used than will dissolve. The butter may be placed in the tub directly from the churn without other working than solid packing with the common butter ladle. These views are not offered for creameries who sift on the salt when the butter is comparatively dry, but to those who have so much contradictory advice offered that the subject becomes mystified.

Foot Rot in Sheep

Was discussed, says Colman's Rural World at a recent meeting of the council of the Royal Agricultural Society, England. Although not mortal, the disease is provokingly widespread, causes serious loss of condition, and entails much labor and expense in holding it in check, and still more in effectually curing it. Flock masters, not only in this country but in the Colonies, are believed to be generally of the opinion that the complaint is contagious; although the few veterinarians who have studied it are understood to consider it non-contagious. The fact seems to be that of the several forms and stages of the disease, or rather of the several diseases grouped under the title of foot rot, a few are non-contageous, but the majority are contagious. Bruising and laceration of the horn of the crust and sole, and consequent lameness, occurring in travelled sheep, and coming under the category of foot rot, in the first instance, is devoid of contagious characters. The hoof is sound and strong when exposed to the natural tear and wear which it has on the upland pastures, which are the native habitat of sheep, but when such flocks are placed upon soft lowland grazings the horn grows more rapidly, is of a more soft and spongy texture, little travel being requisite in pursuit of food, it is not duly worn down, it accordingly cracks and splits, dirt insinuates, inflammation of subjacent sensitive parts supervenes leading to acrid discharges which are liable to induce irritation and inflammation when brought into contact with the overgrown, soft, cracked hooves common amongst such flocks. The form of the foot rot commencing with irritation and discharge in the interdigital space is, we believe, equally contagious. Fortunately, the infectiveness of the several foot rot discharges is not very great, provided the feet of the flock be kept in a fairly sound state by removing, as required, all redundancy of horn at intervals, say of six or eight weeks, and dressing any abrasions with an antiseptic. At the meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society, Mr. Rawlance, who has under his care some 10,000 sheep, stated that he succeeded in keeping their feet sound by paring when required, and running them once or twice a week through a shallow tank contsining an antiseptic mixture. Many flockmasters, both in this country and in the Colonies, by such preventive treatment keep their sheep free from foot rot. Solution ot copper sulphate in water, or of arsenic in diluted alkaline carbonate solutions are the foot baths generally used. Such measures might, with advantage, be more generally adopted.

How to Fatten Hogs.

The writer well remembers how, in his early days the custom prevailed among the farmers of fattening a few hogs for home use upon the refuse, squashes, pumpkins, small potatoes, and even a few apples, boiled up together in a big kettle and poured boiling hot into a big feeding box, mixing in enough cornmeal to make a thick pudding when cold, so thick as to be fed with a shovel. In those days we never heard of such a thing as hog cholera, or any other disease among the hogs; they were as healthy as the cattle and sheep, and pork was regarded as a wholesome and excellent article of food.

The present prevalence of hog cholera seems to be closely connected in some way with the herding of swine in large numbers where their pens become filthy in consequence of being crowded together for convenience in feeding upon corn or swill.

It is a well establisbed fact that feeding corn alone is not the best way to make good pork; even in "finishing off" just before killing it is better to mix some wheat bran and skim milk with the ration. Corn alone will make hard pork and plenty of lard, but the hogs fed thus will be more subject to disease, and the pork will not have the desirable mixture of a streak of fat with a streak of lean, which most people relish far more than solid fat.

Where good clover pasture can be had there is nothing so good for breeding swine and young stock to grow upon; and probably clover hay or clover ensilage where it is cheap and abundant, would prove the best of feed for store hogs in winter; we have heard of cases where diseased hogs that were being fed on corn recovered quickly when turned into a clover pasture. And it is quite likely that hogs when fattening would be more healthy, and that the pork would be better if fed clover along with the corn.

It is the custom of most swine feeders near our large cities to feed mostly on city swill: When this is fed out quickly, before it has time to sour much, it is an excellent article of food for breeding sows and young stock; but hogs fattened upon it make rather soft pork unless they have considerable corn during the last few weeks of their life.

Sows when suckling their pigs should have some skim milk and shorts along with their swill, and we know of one large swill feeder near Boston who is in the habit of finishing off his fat hogs for about two months upon a diet of skim milk, shorts and corn meal. Such hogs make good pork that no one need be afraid to eat

The common prejudice against pork as an article of food has its foundation in the filthy surroundings in which many hogs are kept. The hog can endure more filth than most animals, and still live, but he will chose clean, dry quarters every time if you give him a chance, he will wallow in mire when the weather is hot with seeming satisfaction, but try him with a pond of clean water and see if he don't like it as well.—Massachusetts Plowman.

A Goat Dairy.

It is surely somewhat noteworthy that the United States Government propose, this year for the first time, to include in its agricultural returns a census of the goats. In the official report—No. 74—it is stated that "While our farmers 'despise the day of small things' and decline to utilize goats for milk or cheese dairying. they may find it profitable to supply meat, fleece or pelt. The imports of these, last year, were to the amount of $7 668,472." This is a big bill; and an American at Rome writes: "I desire to draw attention to the value of the goat of Malta, which I think would do much good in the mountain region of the Carolinas, Tennessee and Georgia. The Maltese goat is hornless, giving six to eight quarts a day. We (the London Live Stock Journal) venture to think the Hon. Rufus Kellogg (the American in question) was deceived as to the quantity of milk yielded by a Maltese goat. We do not, however, question this inference by the official statisticians of the U. S A. Government: "The milk of the dairy strains would be valuable and healthful food for infants; and the goats might be kept in villages and suburbs of towns by thousands of families, who, because of the expense and want of accommodation, cannot keep a cow." As it seems to us, the chief obstacles in extending goat keeping in England lie in the difficulty of getting English folks to combine. On the Continent a common goat herd daily calls for, and leads out to feed, the goats of a whole village. Now, if any one in England could arrange this, let customers have goats, at so much per week, when in milk, taking charge when dry, he might get together a business.

Russian Wool Protection.

The Russie Commercisle says that Russia owns nearly 50,000,00 ordinary sheep and 15,000,000 Merinos. European Russia has 40,000,000, of which 38,000,000 are ordinary sheep and 2,000,000 Merinos. The Caucasus has 12,000 000, of which 10,000,000 are ordinary sheep and 2,000,000 are Merinos. Sheep are met with in nearly every province of Russia, with this difference, that they are far more numerous in the southern provinces than in those of the north. Owing to the immense stretches of pasture land, and to the temperate climate of the centre of Russia—which allows of flock being kept in the fields nearly the whole of the year—the rearing of fine-wooled sheep predominates, particularly in the kingdom of Poland. There was a time—about 1860—when the rearing of fine-wooled sheep was in a high state of development, owing to the protectionist measures adopted by the government, but since that period it has fallen off considerably. The construction of new railways has given a fresh impetus to land cultivation in the centre of Russia, the rents of land increased while the prices of wool simultaneously decreased under the influence of the competition of Australia, America and the Cape of Good Hope. During the last few years the rearing of fine-wooled sheep has shown a tendency to increase in the southern part of the Caucasus, which is rich in pasturage. The annual production of wool in Russi amounts to about 160,700 tons, which gives approxmately 6 lbs. of wool for each sheep. Of this amount over 20,000 tons are exported, the greater part of which comes to this country; while, on the other hand, Russia imports more than 10,000 tons of wool, the value of the imports being more than that of the large quantity of exports.

Raising Pullets for Eggs.

If you want good laying hens in winter, writes a correspondent of the New York World, keep an eye on your early hatched chickens, and select the best developed and healthy looking pullets for furnishing you with eggs next winter. For several weeks after hatching, the young chicks should be fed a little five or six times a day. After they are half grown three or four times a day—not to fatten them, but to make them grow. I would give but very little grain, and that should be mostly wheat, oats or rye, some buckwheat and very rarely a little cracked corn. Two rations out of every three should be soft food made of wheat bran, shorts, mashed potatoes, and a little corn meal, all well stirred up together. If mixed up with milk instead of water, it will be greatly improved.

Give the scraps from the table through the day along with their other rations. See to it that they have green food of some description and plenty of fresh water. Green clover and cabbage leaves will be excellent; also a little bone meal in their mash. and gravel should always be within their reach. By forcing the best pullets in this way, you will be quite sure to set them to laying in the fall, which, if properly housed and fed, they will continue through the winter, when, if left to shift for themselves and make a slow and scanty growth until cold weather, they are not likely to lay at all until the next spring.

Dentition of Sheep.

A Scotch sheep herder says the lamb when about a month old possesses eight temporary incisor teeth—usnally termed the "milk teeth." The after dentition is considerably affected by the nature of the feeding. When the sheep are on poor keep the center pair of incisors are "shed" at about one year old, and are replaced by two large and permanent teeth. At about two years old a second pair of large teeth are acquired, at three years old a third pair; and at four years a fourth pair; the animal is then termed "full-mouthed."

When the sheep are liberally fed the first pair of permanent teeth are acquired at about ten months old; the second at eighteen; the third at twenty seven; and the fourth at about three years. There are, however, exceptions to every rule, and the teeth cannot always be relied on in correctly determining the age.—Western Agriculturist.

GAMES PLAYED AT HOME, OAKLAND, SACRAMENTO AND STOCKTON.

OAKLAND vs SACRAMENTO.

FRIDAY, OCT. 17TH, 1890, AT OAKLAND.

This was a splendid game in which the Senators excelled. The hitting was sharp and the fielding smart, hnt the Oakland'a battery and fielding errors were disaatrona, and loat them the game. Shaw pitched for Oakland and was very erratic, his tilling the hasea on balls in the second inning virtnally losing the game for hia side. On the other hand, Hoffman pitched fine steady hall, keeping the hita well scattered. His support was excellent all round. There were some splendid features in the game, notably a terrific line catch off Dooley's hat by Godar and Stapleton's long running catch of a foul fly. The Senators acored four runs in the second inning. McHale, Reitz and Hoffman each secnred hia hase on balla in snccesaion, but on Goodenongh's hit to McDonald, McHale waa thrown out at the plate. Roberts then hanged ont a single to right, Reitz and Hoffman scoring, and on Lohman's allowing the ball to bonnd away from him, Roberts and Goodenongh tallied. In the fifth, Bowman hit safely to center; was advanced to second on Stapleton's hard hit to short, which McDonald fumbled and took third on Ward's hit to Dooley, which forced Stapleton out at second. Ward and Bowman attempted a double steal, and while Ward was being chased between first and second, Bowman tallied, making five runa for Sacramento. Through N. O'Neill's error another rnn came in in the ninth. Goodenough hit to O'Neill who fumbled and made third on a passed hall. Lohman threw to Tip to catch "Goody" at third, hut O'Neill let the ball pasa him and the centerfielder scored the last run for the Senatora. The Oakland tallied one in the second. Charley O'Neill was hit by a pitched hall and went to third on McDonald's and N. O'Neill's sacrifices. "Texas" was caught between third and home, but Bowman's high throw to Godar permitted him to score. In the ninth they made two. Lohman took first on balls and C. O'Neill was again hit hy a pitched ball N. O'Neill's sacrifice advanced each a base, and Shaw's single to center scored hoth men. The score:

STOCKTON vs SAN FRANCISCO.

FRIDAY, OCT. 17TH, 1890, AT STOCKTON.

The Stocktons outbatted the Friscoa in this game and won thereby. Both teams put up a fine fielding game, Everett making Friscos only errors. Pache at short, did fine work for the Gastowns accepting nine of eleven difficult chances, and not meriting one of the errors credited to him. Kilroy pitched in splendid form. The runs were made as follows:

The Stocktons opened the rnn getting in the first inning. Selna, first up, made a clean hit. Holliday hit a slow one to short and was safe. Both runnera were advanced a base on a passed ball. Hoffman was sent to the initial on halls and the bases were filled. Stockwell hit to Ehright, forcing Holliday at third, Selna scoring. Armatrong hit safely to left and again the bases were filled. Wilson hit to Everett, who erred, and Hoffman scored. Stockwell overran third, and before he could get back Ehright had secured the ball and touched the runner out. Pache flew to Isaacaon, making the third man ont. In running down to third Ehright got in the way of Armatrong, and the latter made a pass at Ebright. The umpire fined Armstrong $5 for "dirty hall playing."

In the third inning the Stocktons got another run. Hoffman was given first on balls and two aacrifices sent him around to third. Everett'a error of Wilson's grounder allowed him to score.

In the aixth inning the San Franciscoa made two. Speer made a hit, but waa forced at aecond by Coughlin. Everett sent a grounder to center which Holliday tried to atop with one hand. He failed in the attempt and Coughlin reached home, while Everett landed in third. Hanley hit to Pache, and waa safe on an attempt to catch Everett at third. Shea hit to Pache, who threw Everett ont at the plate, Hanley going to third. Shea stole second and Hanley scored on the throw down to catch Shea.

In the ninth inning the Stocktons made the game binding. Armatrong hit safely and was sacrificed to second by Wilaon, going to third on a wild pitch. Pache got his hase on halls and stole second. Fogarty got in a timely single, bringing in two runs.

OAKLAND vs. SACRAMENTO.

SATURDAY, OCT. 18TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

This was one of the liveliest games played at the Haight street grounds thia season, and waa marked by good hitting, fine hase rnnning and superb fielding. It waa, however, marred hy some disreputable playing on the part of Tip O'Neill and Cantillion, for which those two players were roundly hiased. Cobb pitched for Oakland, doing masterly work till the eighth inning, when the Senators banged him ont for four hits, and which with two bases on balls gave them five runs and the game. Harper was in the box for Sacramento, and pitched his best game of the aeason, being remarkably cool, steady and effective throughout the entire contest. His support was admirable all ronnd, hut Reitz and Godar excelled in fielding. Charley O'Neill, Stapleton, McDonald and Sweeney also made some marvellous catchea. The Sacramenios acored one in the first, Goodenough being safe on Tip O'Neill's fumble, and going to third on the same player's overthrow. Roberts' sacrifice fly out scored Goodenongh In the sixth the Colonels tied the score, Dooley taking first on his hit, which forced Canlillion ont at second. A base on balls advanced Dooley a bag, and Dungan's double to right scored him. In the eighth Sacramento won. Harper reached first on balla and went to second on Goodenough's safety to center. On Robert's hit to left, Harper attempted to score, but Tip O'Neill deliberately tripped him up, and Donohue allowed the run. Goodenough and Roberts each stole a hase, and Bowman's baae on balls filled the cushions. Stapleton then placed one in short right just ont of Cantillion's reach, and Goodenough scored. Hoffman's corking double to left cleared the hases. In the Oakland's half of the eighth, Sweeney was presented with his hase on balls and alole second. Dungan's safe hit to left advanced him to third, and Lohman's clean triple sent both men over the plate. The result of this game put Oakland in third place. The score:

STOCKTON vs. SAN FRANCISCO.

SATURDAY, OCT. 18TH, AT STOCKTON.

Through a hunching of disastrous errors on the part of the Stocktons, the Friscos heat the tail enders out in the last inning. Both Lookahaugh and Perrott pitched fine ball, each allowing but four hits. The support, however, rendered the Friaco pitcher waa superior to the Gas Town's work, hnt Perrott himself, was largely responaible for his team's defeat. Ehright and Everett played a great infield, and the double play participated in by Perrott, Armstrong and Selna waa a apecial feature. The Stocktons got a rnn in the first inning. Selna reached first on an error by Hanley, and was sacrificed to second hy Holliday. Hoffman got in a donble, scoring Selna. The San Franciscos tied the score in their half of the first inning. Wilson made one of his costly overthrows, which allowed Hanley to reach third, and he scored on a passed hall. In the fourth inning Ehright lined out a single and stole second. An error by Pache allowed him to acore. For the next five inninga neither aide scored; in the ninth it seemed that the Stocktons had no chance to tie the score, hnt Holliday set the few people in the grand atand cheering by aending a pretty home run drive over the short stop's head, and the acore was tied. Stevens was the first man up for San Francisco in their half of their inning, and he waa hit hy the pitcher. There followed in snccession three errors, two by Perrott, and the other by Pache, allowing the San Franciacos to score the winning run with no man ont. The acore:

SACRAMENTO vs SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, OCT. 19TH 1890, AT SACRAMENTO.

Chief Borchera, on whom so mnoh dependence was placed, was the cause of the loss of thia game. He waa frightfully wild, sending aeven men to bases on balls, hit Isaacson twice, made three wild pitches and had three fielding errors, all of which materially aided the Friscos to victory. Notwithatanding his wretched work he was given the most enconraging support by his team, Bowman handling his erratic delivery splendidly, while the fielders pnt up an almost perfect game. Three rapid donble plays waa an important featnre of their work. Coughlin waa in the box for the Friscos, and was opened on lively hy the Senators, who made four rnns off him the first inning. After that he steadied down and pitched good hall. His support was also clever, Hanley particularly excelling. In the firat inning, Roberts got his base on halls and Bowman hit to right; Roberts scored on Stevens' fumble of the ball, and Bowman made second. Stapleton's single to left scored Bowman, and Hoffman'a magnificent home run drive made the fourth run of the game. In the fifth, Goodenough knocked ont another home run, making the fifth and last rnn for the Sacramentoa. The Friscoa acored one in the second, Isaacaon waa hit by a pitched hall and stole second. On Borchera' wild pitch Isaacson went over third and made for home. Bowman fielded the hall to Borchera who dropped it and Isaacson scored. In the sixth the Friscos made two more. Shea and Ehright hit safely, and each advanced a base on another wild pitch. On Stevens' fly ont sacrifice, Shea acored Isaacson hit to Borchers who threw wild to firat, and Ebright tallied. The leaders won the game in the ninth. Conghlin made a scratch hit and Everett took his hase on balls. Hanley fonled ont to Bowman. Shea'a safety to left acored Coughlin, and Everett went to third. On Borchera' failnre to receive Bowman's return of the ball to the box Everelt acored, and Borchers' wild pitch gave Shea the winning run. The score.

OAKLAND vs. STOCKTON.

SUNDAY, OCT. 19TH, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Thia game proved to be the most exciting one of the season as well as being the longeat contest played on the local grounda this year. The Stocktons had a patched up team, Fudger, Armatrong and Stockwell being absent. Paache was placed at ahort, Perrott in right and Horace Wilds, the back stop of the amateur Burlingtons, was secured to do the catching. Bets were freely offered at odds of 2 to 1 on the Oaklands with no takers. But this misfit aggregation gave the Colonels their hardest batile of the season For thirteen innings dtd they contest before the Oaklands could claim the supremacy. Carsey and Kilroy were the pitchers and hoth did admirable work in the box. Carae7 allowed hnt seven hits and atruck out fourteen, and although Kilroy waa hit safely nine times and had but four strike outs he was at critical times as effective aa the Oaklander. The support accorded from the catchers, Lohman and Wilds, waa perfect, and the work of the fielders, fine. Pache, Perrott, Wilson, Fogarty and Selna, all played their poaitions "ont of sight" for the Gaa towns, while Sweeney and Cantillion put up a strong game for the Oaklands. A feature ot the game waa Holliday's home run drive over the left field carriage fence and which tied the acore. The Stocktons aent two men over the plate in the firat inning. Selna opened with a donble to left, took third by Holliday's sacritice and scored on Hoffman's single. Pache's bit to O'Neill forced Hoffman at second and on Canlillion letting Wilds hit go through him, Pache went to third, scoring on Cantillion's wild throw home. With two ont the Colonels made three in the third. Dooley was hit hy a pitched hall. Sweeney hit safely to right and on Perrott's allowing the ball to go by him, Dooley scored and Sweeney went to third. Dungan's safe shot to left aent Sweeney across the rubber and on Lohman'a hit which went through both Pache and Hoffman, Dungan made the third run Holliday'a clean home run evened up the score in the third. Neither side tallied again till the thirteenth inning. Dooley was struck ont. Sweeney hit safely to center and Dungan reached firaton balls. Lohman hit sharply to Pache who misjndged the hound, Sweeney acoring. Mc Donald'a safe ahot to center brought home Dungan. The score:

SAN FRANCISCO vs. OAKLAND.

THURSDAY, OCT. 23RD, 1890, AT SAN FRANCISCO.

There was an unusual large week day crowd out to the Haight St. grounds last Thursday, who witnessed one of the most brilliant games played this season. Carsey and Lookabaugh were the pitchers, and it must by admitted that young Carsey did the superior box work, although Lookabaugh also pitched a find strong game. Six hits (two of which were scratches) were secured off the Frisco twirler, while hut half of that number appear against Carsey, and one of these, gained by Hanley in the ninth inning, was also of a very scratch order. The fielding was exceptionally fine, several magnificent catches being secured by the outfielders, while on the infield some brisk dashing work was exeonted. The most prominent feature aside from the catches of Cantillion, Sweeney, Hanley and Levy, was a phenomenal one hand pick up off Everett's bat hy McDonald in the sixtb inning. Neitber side scored in the first three innings. The Oaklands made their only run in the third. Sweeney, first man up, hit to Shea who fumhled, hut the "Midget" was shortly after forced at second on Dungan's bit to Everett. Dooley banged a safe shot to left and Dungan attempted taking third on it but was thrown out by Levy. Dooley made second on the play and scored on Lohman's slashing single to center, which got away from Hanley. Althongh the Friscos made strenuous efforts afterward to get a man across the plate, splendid fielding prevented them accomplishing this feat. The score:

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The race for tbe pennant still continues to present the same interesting aspect as the previous weeks, with the San Franciscos slightly in the lead. Oakland holds a good second place, while Sacramento is comfortably third. The positions are still such that a weeks work can alter the rank of all three. Stockton, though irretrievably last, is still an important factor in the race, as she serves to pull down the averages of the hay teams, while Sacramento has hut little difficulty in fattening her averages on this team.

Professional Pick-Ups.

'Friscos are still in advance.

Holliday is quite a home run hitter.

Frank Fudger is suspended from Stockton.

Catcher Vogt is back again in Philadelphia.

Sheridan pronounced Thursday's game an excellent one.

Harry Howard and Harry O'Day arrived in town last Monday.

Little Carsey leads all the other pitchers in fielding his position.

Kilroy says he wouldn't want a better catcher than Horace Wilds.

Peek a boo Veach is now in Sacramento, where his family reside.

Tom Powers, Fred Carroll and Danny Long have returned from the East.

Joe Cantillion will play with one of the Eastern clubs out here this winter.

Carsey and Lohman, the blonde battery of the Oaklands are great friends.

Just as soon as the season closes, Everett and Lookabaugh will returu home.

It is reported that Bill Smalley will sign with the Clevelands for next year.

O'Day. Hulin, (Howard) Cahill, Levy and Cooney of the Portlands are in town.

Umpire Gaffney will officiate this winter in the games played in Southern California.

Jack Daly has been reinstated by the Sacramento management, and little Jimmy Ward released.

Pop Swett, Fogarty and Knell, according to reports, will play in Southern California this season.

Red Armstrong, the captain of the Stocktons, is about as well liked by the players as is Tip O'Neill.

Hon. Morgan E. Bnlkeley, ex-Governor of Connecticut was the first presedent of the National League.

Perrott seemed out of his element last Sunday in right field, nevertheless he played an excellent game.

Jack Sheridan, Tom Powers, Danny Long, Harry O'Day and Patsy Cahill were out to the game Thursday.

Frank Hoffman, the pitcher of the Sacramentos, was at one time a base ball reporter on an Eastern paper.

The umpiring of Sheridan at the recent Brotherhood games was the best seen in St. Louis this year.—Sporting News.

Harry Wright, tbe manager of the Philadelphia League Club, has been actively engaged in base ball over twenty three years.

It is said that Pop Swett now sports one of the biggest "sparks" in the profession. Pop always did have a hankering after fine stones.

Pete Meegan will umpire the Vallejo's Santa Rosa game at Vallejo to-morrow. Pete may expect to have a lively game on his hands.

Donohne feels keenly Robinson's charge against him for being drunk in last Saturdays game and says that Robinson will have to prove his assertions.

Its hard tellingwho are "the people" now. One day it is the Friscos, the next the Oaklands and occasionally the Sacramentos, loom np as sure winners.

Horace Wilds caught Kilroy magnificently last Sunday. Another case of the amateur ranks lending valuable assistance to the professionals in an emergency.

Al Havens is in receipt of a letter from Secretary Brown of the Chicago Club, which states that Tom Burns will positively play with the Chicagos again next season.

It is reported tbat the Pacific Northwest League will consist of six teams next season, and that Salem and Vancouver will be added to the four cities that constitnted the League this year.

Perrier, Cahill, Howard, O'Day, Cooney, Perrier and Levy, who have all played in the California League and who were members of the Portland team this season, are now back in town.

"There are only a few of us left," yelled Latham, in a game at Cincinnati last week. "Thank God!" shouted a weary spectator on the bleachers, and a perfect storms of "Amens" followed.

If Dungan wins the Roederer medal for the heaviest hitter in the leagne, it wonld not be surprising to see him wearing it on his uniform when playing, and on the outside of his civilian coat instead of a houtenniere.

When the Stocktons get "gingered np" they are great stayers. They have contested in the longest games played this season, one of fourteen innings with the Friscos, and last Sunday's thirteen inninger with the Colonels.

The Stockton management was not out anything financially by Stockwell and Armstrong missing the train Snnday. Each player was fined $50, and as Wilds was only paid $7.50 for catching and Kelly 2 50 for playing on the bench, the management is just $90 ahead.

The benefit to the Boston Brotherhood team, in Music Hall last Sunday night, was a success. Ahont 3,000 persons were present, and the players cleared $250 each. Messrs. Evans & Hoey, Maurice Barrymore, and Joseph Haworth made the bits of the entertainment.—Ex.

The following is a list of the World Champion teams since 1869: Cincinnati, '69 and '70; Athletics, '71; Bostons. '72 '73 '74 '75· Chicago, '76; Boston, '77 '78; Providence, '79; Chicago, '80 '81 '82; Boston. '83; Providence, '84; St. Louis, '85; Chicago, '86; Detroit, '87; New York, '88 '89; Boston, '90.

A well known manager said recently: "You have to play ball against every club nowadays. Your team may he stronger in batting, or fielding, or in base running or in every way, bnt all are so strong now, and there is so much of the element of luck in the game that you have to play ball every day if you expect to win." This manager knows his business.

Says a New York critic: "Among the players who owe their reputations largely to Capt. Anson are Pfeffer, Williamson, Daly, Corcoran, Goldsmith, Gore, Kelly, Clarkson, Burns, Flint, Van Haltren, Dalrymple, Duffy, Darling, Quest, Pettitt, Ryan, Farrell, Sullivan, Sunday and others. The majority of these men were as little known when Anson signed them as Cooney, Glenalvin, Luhy and Earle were at the beginning of the season.

Among the players of the Pacific North West League and minor Northern clubs, who have secured engagements with California teams are: Borchers of Spokane, now with Sacramento; Hoffman of Tacoma with Stockton; Ward and Brittan, Tacoma, with Fresno; Levy, Portland; Dextraze, Seattle; Leveque, Salem, Will & Fincks; Scooney and Hulin, Port Townsends, with Santa Rosa, and Billy Cooney, Portlands, with the E. T. Allens.

Jack Sheridan is again with us having returned last Wednesday. Jack looks in splendid condition and speaks warmly of his treatment in the East. He says he experienced no difficulty whatever in giving satisfaction and worked most harmoniously with Gaffney, whom he says is the "king of them all." Referring to the conflict between the two big leagues he unhesitatingly said that the Players had the best of the fight in every respect all throngh the season and that its financial backing was such as to insure it continuing successfully in face of any opposition that might be raised. He would however like to see a compromise and expects that one will be amicably consumated at the coming meetings of the magnates. Sheridan will with Gaffney, umpire the games of the Southern California League this winter.

According to the Sporting News, this is the make up of the Comiskey—Kelly combination, who play their opening game here Thanksgiving Day.

Comiskey's team: Boyle, of Chicago, catcher; Baldwin, of Chicago, pitcher; Comiskey, of Chicago, first base; McPhee, of Cincinnati, second base; Tebeau, of Cleveland, third base; Crooks, of Colnmbus, short stop; Ryan, of Chicago, left field; Hoy, of Buffalo, center field; one of the pitchers, right field.

Kelly's team: Kelly, of Boston catcher; Mullane, of Cincinnati, pitcher; Crane, of New York, pitcher; Doyle, of Colnmbns, first base and change catcher; Robinson, of Pittsburg, second base; Burns, of Boooklyn, third base; Nash, of Boston, short stop; O'Brien of Brooklyn, left field; McAleer, of Cleveland, center field, one of the pitchers right field.

A meeting of the Executive committee of the California Baseball League will be held at the Court Room of Justice Stafford, New City Hall—Larkin Street wing—on the evening of Oct. 28th, inst., at 8 o'clock, at which the following business will he transacted:

I. Investigation into the charges made against Messrs. N. O'Neill and Cantillion of the Oakland Club, for unbecoming conduct on the field during the game played in San Francisco, October 25th and 26th inst.

II. Investigation of the charges made by the Sacramento Clnb against Umpire Sweeney during the game played in Sacramento October 20th.

III. Investigation of the charge made by Manager Robinson of the Oakland Club against Umpire Donahue.

IV. Hearing of the protest made by the San Francisco Club during the game played in Sacramento October 26th inst. against the playing of Mr. George Borchers in that game.

There are many difficulties to overcome before the base ball war can be said to be over, says the Philadelphia Record. The conference of the joint committees of the National League, Players' League and American Association was a big step in the right direction, but the details of the compromise deal have not yet been even mentioned. The division of territory, which is one of the most important features, is not fixed. It is proposed to amalgamate the National League and Players' League clubs now located at New York, Brooklyn, Pittsburg and Cleveland, making one strong clnb in the place of two weak ones in each of those cities; take in four American Association clnbs and then make up two new organizations. The point of difference on which the deal hangs at present is the names by which these organizations are to be known. The Players' League people have consented to drop the name "Players' League" on condition that the name "National League" is also dropped. This proposition was at first scouted at hy the League Committee, but when it was found that it was the only basis on which the Players' League people would talk compromise, A. G. Spalding, the League spokesman, said that while he considered the name "National League" a valnable trademark, having been in existance fifteen years, he would consider it bad policy to allow such a secondary consideration as a name stand in the way of a settlement of the differences The circuits as at present outlined would be as follows:

National League (perhaps to be known as Union League)—Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago.

Players' League (to he known as American Association)—Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Columbus, Louisville, St. Louis and Chicago.

The Slugger's Lament.

On a bench near the grand stand a poor slugger sat
With his willow, his willow, oh, willow.
And he mournfully cried, "I can field but can't bat
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow.
How thankful I'de he for a whack at the moon,
For the manager says I must find something soon."
And he plaintively wailed, "I can't hit a balloon
With my willow, my willow, my willow."

"At the top of the season I headed the list
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow.
And smashed twenty singles for one that I missed,
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow
My good eye and arm saved many a game,
Grand stand and bleachers all spoke my front name
As swiftly I slid to the summit of fame.
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow."

"But now the dread seal of the hoodoo is there,
On my willow, my willow, oh, willow.
Instead of home runs I pound holes in the air
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow.
I'm no longer a pet of the fickle crank mob"—
And he dolefully sighed with a queer little sob—
"I've fanned myself out of a good paying job,
With my willow, my willow, oh, willow."

The Amateurs.

The race has practically simmered down to two clubs for first place, and they are the Santa Rosas and Vallejos. Grace's men have much in their favor, hnt the Marines have been playing a very stiff game of late, and will fight fiercely for the coveted rag. Third place lies between the Will & Fincks and Reports, with the chances in favor of the Young Giants, who, since strengthening, have done some telling work. The Burlingtons can't hope for better than fourth, but had they been in the race from the start, and not handicapped with the overwhelming load of defeats they had to assume for the team whose place in the league they took, it is safe to say that the Railroaders would have been "in the swim" all along. The Allens can't better themselves, and will have to "carry the target."

BURLINGTON ROUTE vs. DAILY REPORT.

Sunday, Oct. 19th, 1890, at San Francisco.

The new Railroaders added victory to their already creditable list, by defeating the Reports Sunday. They hit Monet pretty freely, hut expensive errors of Merve and John Thompson in the third and fourth innings gave them a "cinch" on the game. Rohan pitched another capital game, allowing but four hits, besides being very steady. He had a strong team back of him that tendered fine support. The infield work of Strand, Fitzgerald, Traynor and Kelly was particularly clever. Besides catcher Green, Sharp and Dunphy were the only players in the Reports to put up any kind of a game. At the bat, the Burlington's battery, Rohau and Wilds, did the most effective work. A special feature was the number of sacrifices made in the game, four being credited to each side. Three splendid double plays also occurred. Dohohue's umpiring was very satisfactory. The score:

VALLEJO vs. WILL & FINCK.

Sunday, Oct. 19th, 1890, at Vallejo.

The Vallejos pushed themselves up another peg in the amateur race by winning a hard game from the Young Giants, Sunday. Leveque was in the box for the Fincks for the first three innings and was hit out pretty hard. The Marines made their five runs of the game in these innings. Sullivan was then substituted and did not allow a single run to be made off him. Levy caught him in splendid shape. In the fourth the Fincks got one man across the plate and two more runs in the seventh, but this was the utmost they could do. Sprague pitched a fine, steady and most effective game and received good support. McGuire excelled in the hitting, which was generally light. Russell's umpiring was on many occasions dissatisfactory, both teams complaining. The score:

SANTA ROSAS vs E. T. ALLENS.

Sunday, Oct. 19th 1890, at Santa Rosa.

The leaders and tail enders played a poor game last Sunday, twenty errors being made by both teams, twelve of which go to the Sonoma boys. Both pitchers, Callen and McDonald were hit hard, but the former was more steady than his speedy opponent. The Santa Rosas took a big lead in the beginning of the game, and thought they had a walk over, but the Sports made a hard fight toward the close, making a brace of runs in each the fifth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings. Notwithstanding the numerous errors, there were some fine plays accomplished, the Santa Rosas having no less than four fine double ups. Buckley, Cooney and Billings played great ball for the Allens. In the hitting, Reilly, Gimmell, McCarthy, Geishaker and Broderick led. Hulen had three splendid sacrifices. A phenomenal one hand catch by Philpot was one of the features. Meegan's umpiring was very satisfactory. The score.

Interior Base Ball.

FRESNO vs STOCKTON MYSTICS.

Sunday, Oct. 19th, 1890, at Fresno.

The Fresnos defeated the Mystics of Stockton last Sunday in a splendidly contested game of ten innings. Both teams put up a magnificent fielding exhibition, but two errors appearing against the Fresnos and three against the Stockton boys. Howell and Stanley were in the points for the Fresnos and did most effective battery work. But three hits were secured off the little twirler, and he retired eleven men on strikes. Pokey Chase pitched great ball for the Mystics, being hit safely but seven times, and using his change of pace and curves so effectively that the greater part of the balls were hit to the infielders, as twenty-two put outs for first baseman Davis, and ten assists for himself will attest. Scknrer caught him fairly well, but although he threw five men out on bases, no less than twelve of the Fresnos stole bases successfully off him. The score was two to two at the end of the fifth inning, and remained that way till the first of the tenth, when McMahon's safety, his steal, Pier's sacrifice and Cullen's single to center scored the winning run. The score:

Amateur Short Hits.

Jack Rohan is pitching great ball.

Vallejos outfield was way off Sunday.

To-morrow will be a great day at Vallejo.

Sharp and Dunphy are still with the Newsies.

Billy English is now a weigher in a mine near Tuscarora.

Aleck Bradley has not played the last few games with Santa Rosa.

Al Scooney is said to have been a big find for the Santa Rosas.

Ward, late shortstop of the Sacramentos, is again with the Fresnos.

Billy Kennedy will make his reappearance with the Allens to-morrow.

Harry McIntyre has fallen off considerably in his hitting of late.

Howell and Stanley are doing famous battery work for the Fresnos.

Chase is said to have pitched the game of his life against Fresno last Sunday.

Short stop Brittan's injuries will confine him to his bed for at least two weeks.

Buck Hughes is more than playing second base "out of sight" for the Marines.

Geishaker's three bagger at Santa Rosa was a corker and loosened a board in the fence.

The grand stand at the Fresno grounds is being enlarged and a new back stop is also being erected.

Manager La Roche has had poor success with the Reports since he assumed the reins of management.

The amateurs will await the news of the result of the Vallejo-Santa Rosa game with bated breaths.

Vic Monet enjoys the distinction of being the quietest man on the California diamond. Vic says nothing but "sawa wood."

The Fresno manager complains that his team, like many others, has a few players afflicted with the "swelled head" malady.

Josh Reilly came to the front with four base steals last Sunday. By the way Reilly's score presents quite a combination of fours.

Manager Austin, of the Fresnos, speaks very highly of the character of the Mystics of Stocktons, as gentlemen, both on and off the diamond.

In last Sunday's game at Santa Rosa Reilly and Philpot both had twelve chances and each made four put outs, four assists and four errors.

Short stop Brittan is laid up and will be unable to play for a couple of weeks. He injured his knee cap in stealing second base last Sunday.

Leveque says that Salem has a player named Booth, who in appearance and style of playing, is a "dead ringer" for Bill Smalley, the Haywards boy.

Sullivan, with Levy behind the bat, and Sullivan with any other catcher, is a much different pitcher. Dave gets excellent work of this young twirler.

Manager Keller has closed negotiations with the Fresno management whereby his team will play at that place three games on Nov. 27th, 29th and 30th.

John Thompson was offered the chance to catch for the Stocktons Sunday, but John set his price too high. Wilds was paid just half of what Thompson wanted.

Chase and Davis, of the Mystics of Stockton, had the game almost to themselves last Sunday. Chase had eleven chances in his pitcher's position, and Davis on first base had twenty-two put outs and one error.

It is reported that Milt Whitehead is to play third base for the Vallejos. This is hardly probable as Milt is not in condition to play third, his arm being weak and besides he would not give up his duck hunting to practice and play with an amateur team.

Joe Leveque did not show up to his best advantage in last Sunday's game against the Vallejos. Joe had been receiving the congratulations of his many friends all through the week, and was not in condition to do himself justice.

The new Railroaders have more than fulfilled Manager Smith's prophecy, that if admitted to the League they would do some tall playing. In the past years Oakland was always represented in the amateur league, and it was a big mistake not to have a team from there in the early part of this season. Had the Star team, which now bears the name of the Burlingtons, started in with the rest of them we might have the pennant landed nearer home than it will be.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

SUMMARY.

The first invitation field day of the Olympic Club will be held this afternoon, and judging from the entry list the sport will be well worth seeing. We publish the full list of entries with the handicaps. The boxers are getting ready for the coming championship trials and in the bantam and light weight classes some good sparring and hard hitting will be witnessed. There is a new boom in cricketing and foot ball, and athletics in general will receive much attention during the winter.

THE WHEELMEN.

The prizes awarded by the Bay City Wheelmen for the late road race have all been distributed, and the winners are much pleased with them.

Owing to a sprained ankle, Jessie Ives, of the Alameda Bicycle Club, was unable to take part in the run of his club to Bolenas on Sunday last.

This afternoon at the new grounds of the Olympic Club, O. T. Morgan will essay to lower the Pacific Coast record for one mile safety riding. T. H. Harris will try to beat the five-mile record. Judging from the splendid time which both men have been making in practice trials, it is safe to predict that they will be more than successful in their efforts.

The Alameda Bicycle Club has changed the date of its ball to November 12th. The committee who has charge of the arrangements will spare no pains to make the affair a big success. All wheelmen are invited to attend. Cards of invitation can be obtained from any of the members. The ball will be held in Harmony Hall, Parn street, Alameda.

Last Sunday, Harry Williams, Harry Potter, Frank Howell, F. Boyle, Will Hubbard, C. M. Culver, W. Osborn and W. Fisk rode up to Nevato, a distance of thirteen miles.

A good many of the Alameda boys will take part in the run of the L. A. W., on November 1st.

Last Sunday morning about twenty members of the Bay City Wheelmen started from the corner of 21st and Mission streets on a run to Redwood City. The wheelmen started at 8:30 o'clock and an easy pace was kept up all the way. The roads between San Francisco and San Bruno are slightly rough, but from San Bruno on they are nearly perfect. Most of the boys complained of the easy nature of the run and wished that the pace was harder. Captain Plummer branched off the main road when about one and a half miles from San Mateo, and took the boys over an unusual but remarkably good road to Redwood City. A splendid dinner specially served for the B. C. W. was partaken of at the new hotel. After dinner and an inspection of the new building, the start was made for home, some taking the train at San Mateo while others preferred making the round trip on their wheels. This was the first run under the new regime and it was pronounced a genuine success by all hands.

C. N. Langton, the financial Secretary of the Bay City Wheelmen, has returned from the southern part of the State completely recovered from the seven surgical operations which he underwent some time ago. He attended the club run on Sunday last much to the surprise of his club mates.

The roll book which was open for the members of the B. C. W. Association, closed on the 15th, and was signed by all but two or three of the old members.

The Bay City boys are all on the qui vive, and a new life appears to have been infused into the club since the corporation government went into effect.

The membership of the California Division League of American Wheelmen is increasing rapidly.

THE GAME OF CRICKET.

The Thistle and Alameda clubs played a match game at the West End grounds on Sunday last. The latter club won the match easily. This was the initial appearance of the Thistle Club in the field, and it would be hardly fair to comment on the playing of its representatives. The Thistle cricketers will begin practice at Central Park right away, and in a month or so the Alameda Club will not have such an easy thing of it.

The Alpine Club team will also begin practice at Central Park a week from to-morrow, and it is intended that a picked eleven made up of Alpine and Thistle men, will be matched against the best eleven Alameda can produce.

The members of the Pacific Club should devote more time to practice if they intend making their marks this season.

UNIVERSITY JOTTINGS.

Several of the students are anxious to organize a boat club. The idea is a capital one, and there is no reason why it should not be carried out. The athletic branch of any university is never complete without an addition of a boat club.

E. C. Van Dyke '93, had his nose severely fractured in a foot ball game recently. He will not be able to support his team any more.

A writer in the "Occident" suggests that any member of the championship team that does not train faithfully previous to the next championship meeting, should be removed from the team entirely. We think this is a very bad way to encourage the athletes.

A HINT TO PLAGIARISTS.

The different departments of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN are presided over by able and competent editors, who are paid good salaries for their services. It has always been the aim of this paper to present to its readers original and newsy matter, and its reporters have been trained to seek out their own notes. There are several papers in this city that profess to publish "Sporting Columns," but with the exception of two or three, not one of them employ a regular sporting writer. The general editors of these journals never find any trouble in running their so-called sporting departments simply because they steal the news from the columns of other papers that employ regular sporting editors. To say that this is a mean practice would be but putting it mildly and it certainly must be very annoying to persons who are interested in sporting matters to be served with the same trick every week. The Daily Alta California is the most striking example we can put before our readers, and we do hope that if it cannot afford to pay a regular sporting editor, it will refrain from stealing the notes which our writers are paid for gathering. In last Monday's Alta twenty-two items appeared under the heading of "The World of Sport;" eleven of these items were plagiarised from the preceding Saturday's BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. We will give another example, and that is the copying of a note referring to Jervis the walker, which appeared in our last issue, by the sporting editor of a morning paper. The unlucky scribe was unfortunate enough to cloak the piece with variations of his own, and the result was that the sporting editor of the evening journal against whom his sarcasm was hurled took it into his head to retaliate, and now a wordy war is going on between the two. We do hope that the battle will not be as long or fierce as that of the struggle between Ford of the Turf, Field and Farm, and Curtis of the New York Spirit of the Times. There is an excuse for a man copying an occasional note, but when everything of any importance is copied then the line should be drawn. If such papers as the Alta cannot afford to employ a regular sporting editor, then for common decency's sake it would be more judicious to omit the "Sporting Department" entirely.

OLYMPIC CLUB GAMES.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the first invitation out door athletic meeting of the Olympic Athletic Club will begin. The best men from the Alpine and Olympic Clubs have entered, and all the running races will be very closely contested. G. W. Jordan framed the handicaps and on the whole they are very fair. The mile walk was left out because Coffin was out of trim, and Cooke is in the country. The pole vault has also been taken from the programme on account of the want of entries. There will be boxing and wrestling on the turf, and George D. Baird, the ex-champion walker of America, will walk half a mile against the coast record. Messrs. Morgan and Harris will try to eclipse the safety records for one and five miles respectively. The following is a full list of the entries:

AT THE OARS.

The Dolphin Boating Club will give a social in Saratoga Hall this evening in celebration of their 15th anniversary.

The Alameda Boating Club offers medals for match races between its members almost every Sunday. The club is now in a very prosperous condition and there is some talk of improving the boat house.

The weather on Sunday was fine and the usual number of oarsmen were noticed on the bay.

The medals won at the Fourth of July regatta are very neat and costly.

The professional single scullers are practicing daily for the great Thanksgiving Day match.

The Dolphin has more money in its treasury than any of the other clubs.

NOTES BY OUR RAMBLER.

I was out at Harbor View a couple of days ago and the athletic portion of the park looks very gloomy indeed. The house erected by the Alpine Club is still standing and the track, which, by the way, is not a bad one of its kind, is all covered over with weeds.

I am inclined to think that there will be lots of blood drawn at the coming boxing tournaments. At any rate the sport will be pure and the club members will get the worth of their money, I hope the members will turn out in full force, for square amateur sport is more deserving of recognition than professional fakes.

I was present at the Olympic Club rooms on Wednesday evening and it pleased me much to see such genuine interest taken in in-door sports. The many ladies who were present seemed to be highly impressed with the exhibitions and I think cards of admission will soon have to be issued on "Professors' Nights" in order to keep out the crowd.

RAMBLER.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

Sprinter R D Barbon took unto himself a wife on Wednesday evening. Mr. B. says he will appear in the cinder path again next season.

R. C. Mays, a brother of the University champion of the same name, has joined the Alpine Club. He is a very promising sprinter and will bring credit on his club.

Professor "Mike" Gery and his "student" "Young" Mc Laughlin are both stranded up North. Morrissey, who accompanied the two on their "boxing" tour has left their company minus his money, and the last heard of Gery and McLaughlin was that they were picking hops with a crowd of Chinamen. If Mr. Gery had taken our advice several months ago he would now be occupying a good position in San Francisco.

The boxing tournament for the amateur championship of the Pacific Coast will commence at the Olympic Club rooms on the evening of November 6.

Massey, the Australian amateur sprinter, has applied for admission to the Alpine Club.

A series of handicap races took place at the Olympic Club grounds last Sunday in the presence of a large audience. Capt. Walter A. Scott acted as starter and George W. Jordan fixed the starts. During the day several outside athletes who have entered for to-day's games practiced on the track. The first event, a quarter of a mile, handicap, hurdle race was won by J A Christie who had 40 yards start in 5½ secs. S V Casady came in second. The first prize was a gentleman's dressing case; second, a pair of Russian bath towels.

The next event was the Directors 120 yards, handicap, run. The prizes which were donated by the Directors were as follows: 1st, a gold pen and pencil holder, by A. C. Forsythe; 2d, a pair of Opera glasses by John Elliott. P. M. Mand, 6 yards, won first in 12 2-5 seconds, Martin Espenosa 8 yards, second by 3 inches, J. C. Kortik, 2½ yards, 3d.

The following letter from John D. Garrison, the well known local amateur sprinter, recently appeared in the Toronto "Empire."

"A few months ago one W. H. Clark of Kingston challenged me to a foot race for $250 a side. I did not reply to the challenge simply because he was a professional (and a very poor one at that), and I am yet an amateur. I came here from Napanee about four and a half years ago, but have only been running this year. I have been very successful, having won twelve first prizes at running and two second prizes out of eighteen races. I covered the 440 yards in 51¾ seconds, making me the fastest amateur on the coast and the time being the best made since 1880. Where Mr. Clarke a recognized amateur I would like to give him ten yards in 440 and run him for a $100 medal, and if I could not beat him five yards I would forfeit the medal. His challenge hurt me very much."

Commentary on the letter the editor of the paper referred to said:

"It is unnecessary to say that it is very unsportsmanlike to place a man in the false position Garrison has been forced into by this challenge, but he is evidently distinguishing himself on the slope, and as long as things run his way he is hardly likely to trouble himself about W. H. Clark or any other of his jealous countrymen.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

At a meeting of the P. C. A. A. A. held at the Olympic Club rooms on last Friday evening, Ed Hartley's record for swimming half a mile in a tank, with ten turns, in 15 minutes 26½ seconds, was allowed. An application for membership from the Pasadena Athletic Club was received. A committee was appointed to see about the holding of an indoor supplementary championship meeting in the pavilion in January. W. E Newbert was reinstated to the amateur ranks.

The gymnasium of the Olympic Club is crowded day and night with persevering and ambitious athletes. It will be a long time before the teachers may expect a rest, for there are so many important events on the list, that their pupils will need all their assistance for months to come.

At a meeting of the Alpine Amateur Athletic Club held at Central Park on Thursday evening, it was decided to have cricket and foot ball teams in conjunction with the clubs. Captains will be appointed soon, and practice will be begun at once. The following were elected members of the club: M. J. Lyons, Robert C. Mays, John Corbett, Conrad Trieber, Jerry Sheehan, B. F Aimes, F. McCarthy, J. Kelly, J. J. Kincaid, O. W. Turney, E. Dreyfus, H. Hanson, J. F. Clark, J. Lyons, W. Garone and G W. Bishop. The membership is rapidly increasing, and it is expected that unusual interest will be taken in the coming election of officers.

Too much cannot be said in praise of William Guer Harrison, President of the Olympic Club. Mr. Harrison is working assiduously day and night trying to increase the interest of members in club affairs. It is needless to say that up to date his work has been a big success. In less than five years the O. A. C. will have a club house second to none, and then the slow members will begin to appreciate the services of Mr. Harrison.

AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES.

The third annual championship meeting of the American Athletic Union were successfully held at the Analastan Island, Washington, D. C, on Saturday afternoon, October 12th; attendance about 3,000; track in fair condition; weather charming. Hundreds of ladies were amongst the audience. Three records were broken. As an effort will be made to have the meeting of 1892 held in San Francisco, the different results will be read with much interest by our local men who, should the Eastern cracks pay us a visit, will be pitied against them. The following is a complete list of the different results:

The day's score for the trophy was as follows: Manhattan A C, 78; New York A C, 35; Detroit A C, 18; Acorn A A, 15; A C S N, 6; Boston A A, 4; Pastime A C, 3; New Jersey A C, 1; M C A of Philadelphia, 1. The total score of the four leaders for the year ending to day is as follows: Manhattan A C, 190; N Y A C, 143; Detroit A C, 86; New Jersey A C, 59, with the postponed pole vault points to be distributed.

One hundred yard run—First heat—Won by John Owen Jr, D A C; P Vredenburgh, N Y A C, second. Time, 10¾ seconds. Second heat—Won by L H Cary, M A C; F W Robinson, N Y A C, second. Time, 10 1-5 seconds. The Terre Haute Guaranteed Purse.

For the last time we call attention to the advertisement of the Vigo Agricultural Society, in which they inform the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that they will give a guaranteed purse of $11,000 for trotting foals of 1890, the race to take place in the latter part of 1894. Several times already we have called the attention of our readers to this very generous purse, and also to the fact that the large amount is guaranteed by the National State Bank of Terre Haute, they having been indentified against any loss by twenty-seven of the principal business men, bankers and capitalists of that city. As divided, $5,000 will go to the winner; $2,500 to the second horse; $1,500 to the third; $1000 to the fourth and $1000 to the breeder of the winner in money or plate, at the option of said breeder. The race will be mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and will be trotted over the superb track which now has a national reputation, at Terre Haute, Indiana, the meeting to be held during the latter part of August 1894. The entrance is on the installment plan, $10 of which must accompany the nomiuation on November 1st, 1890; $10 on April 1st 1891; $10 April 1st 1892; $10 October 1st 1892; $10 April 1st 1893; $15 October 1st 1893; $25 April 1st 1894, and $100 for starters payable August 1st 1894. Nomiuators will be required to state name, color and sex of the foal, also to give the names of the sire, the dam and the sire of the dam when known, also the name and postoffice address of the actual breeder of each foal nominated. One of the special clauses in the conditions is that in the event of accident or injury to any foal nominated therein, nominators shall have the right at any time on or before April 1st 1891 to substitute another foal for the one originally nominated, subject, however, to this restriction, viz., The substituting foal must have been owned by said nominator at the time he made the original nomination.

As this is an extremely liberal purse, we confidently expect that there will be a large number of entries from California, and knowing the character of the gentlemen connected with the enterprise, we can heartily indorse it and give it our strongest recommendation.

Death of Superior.

A telegram to this office states that Superior 4012 (record 2:19¼) by Egbert, dam Mary by Woodford Mambrino, was killed at Pueblo by falling from the cars. He was owned by the Du Bois Bros. of Denver, and valued at $40,000.

Auction Sale of Trotting and Roadster Horses.

We have received from D. J. Murphy, Esq., of San Jose, a catalogue of trotting stock and roadster horses, which will be disposed of at public auction on Tuesday, October 28th, 1890, at the Railroad Stables, corner of Turk and Steiner streets, San Francisco.

In glancing through the pamphlet it will be noticed that there is an exceedingly fine lot of broodmares offered for sale, in addition to the colts and fillies, which are also catalogued.

HAZEL is a bay mare (standard), foaled in 1885, by Exile (standard), son of Echo 462; the dam of Hazel being Black Swan (dam of Annie Laurie 2:30); 2nd dam by David Crocket. This mare should prove of inestimable value to any breeder in the State, as the blood lines here shown fairly bristle with records. Echo having no less than fourteen in the 2:30 list. Exile, the sire of Hazel is full brother to Bob Mason, who secured a mark this year of 2:27¼, and who lapped out Silas Skinner in 2:21 at the Napa track in August last. Exile's dam, Belle Mason, was by Williamson's Belmont, sire of Venture 2:27¼, and also the sire of the dams of Belle Echo 2:20, Flora Shepherd 2:20, Nellie Patchen 2:27¼, Monarch 2:28½, etc. L. J. Rose formed such a favorable opinion of this family that in his clearing-out sale he reserved two of Belle Mason's colts for stud use at Rosemead. Hazel is at present in foal to Soudan 2:27¾, he a son of Sultan, his dam, Lady Babcock, dam of Elector 2:21¼, by Whipple's Hambletonian.

GIPSIE (standard) is a black mare, four years of age, by Grosvenor 1833 (sire of Governor, two-year-old record 2:55, and Lady Grosvenor, trial 2:28). The dam of Gipsie is the dam of Mamie Comet 2:23¼, by Sportsman (sire of Ben Allen 2:31), the second dam by St. Clair (sire of the dams of Bonita 2:18½, Fred Crocker 2:25½, and Manzanita 2:16). Grosvenor is by Administrator 357, who is the sire of a dozen or more in the 2:30 list, his dam being by Edwin Forest 49; the second dam, Corinne, by Mambrino Chief II. Gipsie is well broken, and can show a mile close to three minutes although she has never been trained to track purposes; in foal to Soudan, she should also prove a perfect gem to any stock farm.

MISS BARNS is a three year-old brown filly by Grosvenor, dam full sister to Zero 2:30, by Hercules, sire of the dam of Azmore 2:24¾, and grandsire of the dam of Junio 2.22; 2nd dam by American Boy; 3rd dam a thoroughbred brought from Australia by I. C. Wood. This is a choice filly and should be highly prized by any breeder who has an Electioneer stallion as this nick should prove of the very best.

BELLE is a sorrel mare, foaled in 1872 by Geo. M. Patchen, Jr. 31, dam Zoe by Stockbridge Chief, Jr., (sire of Abe Edington 2:23¾); 2d dam by Williamson's Belmont. All of this mare's colts show speed, and her yearling colt by Soudan can pace a mile in 45 seconds. Belle is also in foal to Soudan 2:27¾.

LADY FISHER trotted a remarkable mile as a three-year-old in 2:57, the record at that time being much above what it is at present. The performance of Lady Fisher was considered almost phenomenal. She is the dam of Fisher 2:28, and the great dam of Chancellor 2:30. Lady Fisher is by Captain Fisher (sire of Simcoe 2:26), dam by Sir George; 2d dam by American Eclipse. Sometimes there is a doubt cast on the pedigree of Lady Fisher as given above, but this is undoubtedly true as stated. At the time Mr. Crim brought Lady Fisher's dam from the East, there was not the same importance paid to tracing a mare to the breeder as is now required. Mr. Crim being dead, it is impossible, except by accident, to ever fully establish her pedigree. Lady Fisher has been bred to Soudan and is undoubtedly in foal.

LADY FRANKLIN, bay mare foaled in 1890, by Ben Franklin (sire of Easton's David Hill), dam Lady Fisher by Captain Fisher; 3rd dam by Sir George by American Eclipse. This mare has also been stinted to Soudan and is in foal.

CHISPA, seven years old, sire Tom Patchen, has also for a dam Lady Fish with same pedigree as given before. Tom Patchen is a son of Geo. M. Patchen, Jr., his dam being by Chieftain 721. Chispa is a very beautiful bay with black points, built on lines that should produce great speed, and can trot ten miles at an average of a very little over three minutes per mile. She has also been bred and has produced colts, all of whom show exquisite style and finish. Chispa is also in foal to Soudan.

OUIDA is another daugbter of Lady Fisher and was sired by Lame Deer, a thoroughbred son of Joe Daniels. This is a most beautiful animal and can show a three-minute gait, is of excellent disposition, and any lady can drive her. Ouida was not bred this year.

BELLE BRANDON, foaled in 1880; by Electioneer, dam Queen by Belmont Jr., son of Williamson's Belmont; 3rd dam by Lexington. Belle Brandon is a bay, large and rangy, has been broken single and double, and makes a fine showy road mare. Her mother was a well known roadster and was driven a mile out in 2:36. Belle Brandon has been stinted to Soudan and is in foal.

MEG is a grey mare, eight years old, by Tom Patchen; first dam by Stockbridge Chief Jr.; second dam by American Boy; third dam Lady Johnson owned by Orrick Johnson, a mare that was brought to this State at a cost of $2,000 in 1852; her owner always claimed that Lady Johnson was a Morgan mare. Meg is a very fine looker and can travel all day; her owner has driven her sixty miles between sunrise and sunset many times. She is very stylish in harness, a splendid animal and can trot a mile in three minutes or better. Meg has been stinted to Soudan.

HATTIE is another one of the mares sired by Tom Patchen, dam Queen by Joseph, son of Hermes; second dam the dam of Quinn's Patchen by Stockbridge Chief Jr. Hattie is a beautiful brown with tan muzzle. Some years ago she received an injury to one of her feet, which permanently disabled her. All of her colts, however, show plenty of trot and trot fast; bred to Soudan.

MINERVA has a record of 2:46, and a trial of 2:26; by Jim Lick; he a grandson of Hambletonian 10. Minerva's dam was by Hardwood, a son of Woodburn. This is a round-made, blocky-built mare and has any quantity of speed. She has frequently paced quarters in 33 seconds, and there is no doubt but what with very little work she can make a record of 20. Minerva like many of the balance has been bred to Soudan.

HAGER is a daughter of Dick Patchen, and with this exception is bred in the same lines as Hattie, who is spoken of above.

Space will hardly permit notice of all the mares that are mentioned in the catalogue, but there are enough in the list to warrant a close inspection of the catalogues, which will be sent on application by Messrs. Killip & Co., auctioneers, at 22 Montgomery St., S. F.

The Coronado Driving Park Association.

Mr. Frank B. Baldwin, manager, not only of the Fresno Fair Association Grounds, but also manager for the Coronado Beach Driving Park Association, has been in town several days this week, drumming up entries for the programme, which appears under the appropriate heading. Mr. Baldwin has interviewed many of the prominent horsemen throughout the State, and has received ample assurance that there will be entries from all sections to assist him in the inauguration of the first meeting, which will be held commencing December 2nd and continuing on the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th; these days mentioned are for trotting horses only, while on December 25th, 26th and 27th, and January 1st, 2nd and 3rd, there will be three or more races given each day to the bangtail division. In the 2:20 purse the management leaves the purse free for all, but at the same time promise that Hazel Wilkes will not be one of the entries. In the 2:15 pacing race, Almont Patchen is barred, giving the balance of the side wheelers a splendid chance to fight out the mooted question as to which is the best in the lot. The well known liberality of Mr. Baldwin in connection with the Fresno track is proverbial, and we know that the horsemen from this section will attend in a body to inaugurate the initial meeting of Coronado Beach. Entries for pacers and trotters close on November 13th, while for the runners entries can be made until December 1st, with the Secretary, N. I. Baldwin, Coronado Beach Hotel, San Diego County.

A Cattle Sale.

Among other announcements in our advertising columns will be found one from Killip & Co., Live Stock Auctioneers, announcing that they will sell on Tuesday, October 28th, 1890, at the Railroad Stables, corner of Turk and Steiner streets, San Francisco, a choice selection of Holstein cattle' the property of George B. Polhemus, Esq., of Coyote, Santa Clara County. The catalogue consists of a choice selection of bulls from the Cerro Allegro Herd, and many of them are well known, having been exhibited at the various fairs throughout the State.

Romley, the head of the herd is No. 62 in the H. H. B. A. R., and as is indicated by his number was the sixty second bull ever admitted in the United States to the American Register, and also was the first admitted from California. Mr. Polhemus has determined to sell these choice cattle at whatever they will bring and no restrictions whatever have been placed upon the price for which they must be sold. There are no doubt many cattlemen throughout California, who desire to increase the value of their herds, and this will be an excellent opportunity for them to secure bulls of the very highest type of breeding and probably at a price that may not be equalled in a long time. Remember the sale takes place Tuesday, October 28th.

The Yearling Record.

Gracious Goodness only knows what John H. Wallace will say when he hears that a yearling has trotted against the watch and has beaten 2.30. We can imagine the indignation that will be implied and expressed when he hears that the son of Sable Wilkes was not started in a Standard Stake, and we can also readily believe that he will refuse to receive the record as being a legitimate one. Originally it was intended that Freedom would he started against aged horses, but after careful deliberation, Mr. Corbitt, the owner, and John Goldsmith, than whom there is no better driver in the country, determined that the trial should be made in the same manner in which the yearling stallion, Faustino, made his record of 2:35, especially as it was in like manner that Norlaine made her record of 2:31½. The fact has been sent broadcast to the world that Freedom is the first yearling that ever entered the 2:30 list, and whether the censors of the National Trotting Horse Breeders' Association see fit to accept it or not, the trotting horse world will always give Sable Wilkes the credit of being the first sire to have a yearling enter into the charmed circle. We shall await with some little curiosity the result of Mr. Wallace's deliberation to see whether he will put the name of Freedom in the list of his 1890 performers or whether he will, as in some cases we know of refuse to accept them because it pleases his own sweet will.

The Breeders' Meeting.

The second annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association is at last a thing of the past, and there are but few who have taken an active interest in the association, but what are well pleased with the result of their labors. As is well known, the association is not run for the purpose of making money, but with two objects in view. First, the improvement of the light harness horse, and to provide first class sport for their patrons.

For some unknown reason the attendance was not what might have been expected, owing probably to the fact that many of the farmers and those who are working on vineyards were hard at work, trying to finish their summer's labor before the rains set in. Notwithstanding the paucity of the attendance, the racing was all that could be desired, and it is more than a pleasure to state that no assessment will be necessary from the members, as the sales of the various privileges, and the entries from the horse owners will just about bring the association out even on the meeting. Many horses have obtained records, and their owners are more than gratified; records that could not have been obtained without the assistance of such an association as is now trying to foster the trotting horse interests of California. It is to be regretted that Mr. Marvin returned too late with his stable of fine performers to allow him to make an appearance at Napa; however, it will be a source of gratification to many to learn that within a very few weeks, a two day's racing meeting will he arranged, probably under the auspices of the Breeders' Association, at which time Sunol, Palo Alto, Stamboul, Freedom, Vida Wilkes, and many other fast and promising horses will show their speed to the public.

The Los Angeles Meeting.

The eleventh annual fair or the Sixth District Agricultural Association began at Los Angeles Tuesday, Oct. 14th and proved to be a brilliant success. The attendance, with the exception of the opening day, was gratifyingly large and the sport furnished throughout the week was of the best description. Never in the history of racing in California has a week furnished so many neck and neck finishes. The trotting and pacing was also hotly contested and it took six and seven heats to decide most of the events. The meeting ended in a blaze of glory with Marigold's wonderful 2 mile run.

The game three year old daughter of Milner—Katie Pease ran the distance in the remarkable time of 3:30½, thus establishing another world's record for California. This is the fastest time ever made by a three year old, and unless I am in error, the fastest 2 miles ever run in California. It was a great race for a mile and three-quarters between Marigold and Naicho B., but the mare drew away coming down the stretch and won under a pull by half a dozen lengths. Murphy rode Marigold. Horsemen present all agreed that Marigold could have made the distance in 3:29 flat, if she had been ridden out the last quarter. The time for each half was as follows: one-half mile, 51½; one mile, 1:44½; one and a half miles, 2:36¼, and two miles 3:30½. Naicho B., who was in great form was backed heavily. The son of Wanderer—Flower Girl ran a grand race and justified the confidence reposed in him by his backers, but no one expected such a phenomenal race. The excitement was intense after the timers had hung out the magic 3:30½, although it was generally known that it had been a fast race from the fall of the flag. A cheer went up from the crowd when presiding Judge J. C. Newton announced that Marigold had broken the three year old record of the world. Matt. Storn was of course, the most elated man on the course and he did not lose any time in sending up to the judges' stand a plentiful supply of Pommeroy Sec. Marigold was surrounded by an admiring crowd when Murphy rode up to get permission to dismount. Billy Holloway, the trainer for Matt Storn, was also congratulated by his admirers.

The Los Angeles track is one of the fastest in the country, as in addition to the wonderful two-mile record performance, Peri, a two-year old, ran three quarters in 1:14½, and Naicho B. won the one and one-quarter mile handicap in the fast time of 2:08¾. The Junior Stakes was won by the speedy Mystery. She negotiated the distance with 112 pounds up in the excellent time of 1:14¾. In the same race Conrad demonstrated that he was a great colt. He was barely beaten half a length by Mystery, and when it is stated that the hand some son of Flood packed the terrific impost of 127 pounds, horsemen will understand the merit of the performance.

A desirable feature of the meeting was that there was not a semblance of a job. Every horse was run to win, and as a result, the sport gave entire satisfaction In fact, the August and the present meeting will help along future meetings. The public can now be relied on to turn out in force, and Los Angeles is destined to become one of the most important racing points in California. One of the events of the week was the special pacing between Silkwood and Hummer. The contest was set for Friday afternoon. Seldom has two more evenly matched members of the side-wheel division battled for supremacy. The "pumpkin rollers" and "hayseeds" from Santa Ana backed Silkwood. The Northern "talent" put up their coin on Hummer at odds of about $100 to $80. It proved to be a sensational race. Silkwood captured the first heat by the shortest of noses. The crowd surrounded the judges' stand, and when the announcement was made "Silkwood first," a mighty cheer went up from thousands of throats. The second heat was a repetition of the first. It was nip and tuck all the way round, Silkwood gaining the verdict in the last score of strides Notwithstanding Silkwood's win in the first heat, Hummer sold a slight favorite, the Northern horse bringing $40 against $36 for Silkwood. There was a big chop in the betting after the second heat, however, and Hummer brought little or nothing. Silkwood was equal to the occasion, and won the third heat in gallant style. The enthusiasm of the spectators knew no bounds. Ladies waved their handkerchiefs and men threw their hats in the air. The scene was one that will long be remembered. Such enthusiastic cheering has not been heard at the park since the afternoon that Stamboul beat Arah in 2:15. Willetts, the owner and driver of Silkwood, is three score years and past, and weighs less than 125 pounds. Five thousand people cheered the old man as he drove up to the stand to get weighed in. The result of the race was a bitter disappointment to the talent. Garrity was confident of victory even after the second heat. He and his friends must have lost over $4,000.

At some future time I will give the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman some information in regard to the peculiar methods adopted in training Silkwood.

SECOND DAY.

The attendance was quite fair and the sport provided first class. The favorites were again knocked ont. Comet was backed for considerable in the half mile heats, but he was never in the hunt. The Santa Maria horse proved to be clearly off. Amazon captured the first heat, but it was all over with the short bred horse when he failed to land the second heat. The one and a quarter mile handicap resulted in a big surprise. According to the talent there was nothing in it except Rico and Marigold.

The betting on the race was fast and furious. Naicho B with the light impost of 102 pounds won the race in the fast time of 2:08¾. The summaries tell the story:

THIRD DAY.

Two thousand people put in an appearance at the track on Thursday. The three minute trot was finished. It took six heats, however, to decide for Sultandin who had two heats to his credit, fell down coming down the stretch in the fourth heat and was distanced. The victory of Orphan Girl was a big surprise, as she showed up lame after the third heat. The two year old races had another surprise party, Mystery landing the event after a splendid race. Conrad just beat Peri for the place. Billy Appleby rode Conrad at 127 pounds and the Rose colt ran a wonderful race with such terrific weight up. Raindrop won the Pasadena Handicap rather handily. There was a strong tip out on Minuet, but the Rayon D'Or filly did not prove equal to the occasion. Three heats of the mixed pacing and trotting between Senor, Rory O'More and Sunrise were finished before dark, but as Sunrise won the last heat and Leonore the first and second, the race went over until 1 next day

FOURTH DAY.

An enormous crowd attended the races on Friday. It was estimated that there were five thousand people at the track. The races were of a sensational character. Leonor won the fourth heat and the race in the mixed pacing and trotting. Naicho B., Mozart and Forrester sported silk in the selling race. It was a nip and tuck race between Naicho B. and Mozart from the fall of the flag. Naicho B. won by a nose after a desperate finish in the good time of 1:48. The Santa Barbara Handicap was another grand race—Conrad was the favorite with Kildare and Dan Murphy next in demand. Conrad got decidedly the worst of the start and was never in the hunt. Kildare, Murphy and Peri dashed down the straight. Whips were plied vigorously but Peri won cleverly by little to spare. Murphy got the verdict over Kildare for the place. The Silkwood-Hummer race was next called. It resulted in a victory for Silkwood, but it was a deep contest. Hummer broke soon after getting the word in the first heat and was four lengths to the bad at the quarter. Garrity urged Hummer along and had made up the lost ground at the half, the second quarter having been paced in 31 seconds. Garrity undoubtedly made too much use of his horse in the early part of the race and it was not surprising that he was unable to stall off the black horse when he came with a big burst of speed near the finish. Silkwood won the heat in the last half dozen strides. The finish was so close that many thought it was a dead heat. The third heat was closely contested but it was Silkwood's heat from the word go. The summaries are herewith appended.

FIFTH DAY.

There was a surprisingly good attendance for the last day and the racing was fully up to the preceding days. The two year old race dwindled down to a match between Mystery and Peri. The betting was spirited and each filly had many staunch admirers. Peri won after a capital race.

The two mile race was hotly contested for a mile and three quarters when Marigold drew away and won one of the most remarkable races ever run in the West.

The five-eighths mile special proved to be an even betting race. The quartette entered all sold out for about even money. Just before the race Alfarata had a slight call in the betting.

Ida Glenn came down the stretch looking all over a winner, but Alfarata came up with a rush on the outside and captured the race by a short nose. The rider of Ida Glenn quit riding just a trifle too soon. The 2:45 class was another knocker for the talent. Jim went begging in the pools for $2.00 to $30., but he went the first, second and fourth heats to the surprise of the backers of Leon, who labored under the delusion that the horse from Ventura county was the biggest kind of a cinch.

Grim's Gossip.

W. C. Daly has sold to W. Lakeland, the bay colt foaled 1888, by imported Darebin, dam Miss Hooker by Joe Hooker.

Racine's queer running in the Dixiana Handicap at Morris Park, continues to be the subject of much unfavorable comment in the New York sporting papers.

The President of the San Jose Blood Horse Association sends us a telegram in which he states that the Jockey Club of the Garden City will give a running meeting commencing November 7th and continuing on the 13th and 15th. Entries will close on November 3rd.

Demuth, one of the best three-year-olds in America and good enough to beat anything but Racine and Tournament, was sold at auction in New York last week. He brought $11,000. Demuth is by Ten Broeck, out of Belle of Nantura by Longfellow; and was bred as his name indicates, at the old Harper place near Midway.

John Mackey, superintendent of the Rancho del Paso, started East some few weeks ago, to bring back with him Salvator, Firenzi and a car load of brood mares which have lately been purchased by J. B. Haggin Esq. Barring accident the genial John will arrive at Sacramento to-day, with his precious charges, where they will all be relegated to the harem.

Mr. Rose was telling us, on Wednesday, of his yearling fillies which are now getting their first track work to render them bridlewise. "They had a run of a quarter the other day, and they ran it too well to suit me. I don't like to see them all making the same time. To be race horses, they ought to be fast enough to beat one another on the home track." A dry old joker is the Senator.

An "ont" in last week's BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN caused the statement to be made that Stamboul was by Hambletonian 10. The copy, as sent from Napa read: "Stamboul by Sultan, dam Fleetwing by Hambletonian 10". Oversights of this kind are liable at times, and yet it it is seldom that such a blunder appears in our columns. We trust that our readers will overlook the error.

At the recent sale of August Belmont's yearlings, the chestnut colt St. Dennis was purchased by Albert Cooper, the well known trainer of Senator Hearst's horses. The youngster is royally bred, being by St. Blaise, out of Delilah by Ill-Used, second dam the imported mare Dauntless by Macaroni. Here is a combination of the blood of Sweetmeat, Newminster, Stockwell and Melbourne, not often seen either in England or America.

Toward the latter part of next week Andy McDowell will start for his new home in Montana, where in future he will look after the trotting horse interests of Marcus Daly. Since his arrival on the Pacific Coast, the Pleasanton driver has made many friends, and his genial countenance will be sadly missed on the circuit next year. Wherever he may go his legion of acquaintances will always hope that Andy's lines may be cast in pleasant places.

It is providential that all of the trotting horse men dress neatly and take a personal pride in their appearance. Knowing this J. H. Curley & Co. of 846 Market St., announces to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week that they are prepared to turn out the latest styles of clothes, and at prices that will suit all sorts of pocket books. Give them a call and see what you can do for a little money.

A few weeks ago J. H. Chambers Esq., one of the firm of Panlin & Co., Winnipeg, Manitoba, arrived in this city, and at once began to look around for a suitable place to locate a breeding Farm. He has finally selected the Ferguson place, situated some fifteen miles from Fresno, and the firm will ship out a large number of brood mares and several first class stallions. Mr. Chambers started for the East Thursday night, and will return with two car loads of horses in about three weeks'

Mr. D. D. Withers' horses, sold at the same time as those of Mr. Ashe, brought $25,285 for seventeen head, an average of $1,369.50. The highest price paid was for King Erio, by King Ernest—imp. Cyclone, who was sold to George Walbaum, the bookmaker, for $3,800. The colt has been off the turf for some time and the buyers seemed to think he would not stand a severe preparation. Mr. Walbaum seems to have been of a different opinion.

Among the horses offered for sale on the same day as the Astor Sale was Black Dean a full brother to that great mare Geheimniss (Rosicrucian—Namelees by Blinkhoolie) who in the mares year—1882 won the Oaks and many other races, running a close second to Dutch Oven for the Leger with Shotover the winner of the Two Thousand and Derby a moderate third. Black Dean was not sold, being withdrawn at $2400.

Oregon Eclipse, by Joe Hooker, out of the old half-mile mare Lulu Riggs, is expected to be here at the Blood Horse meeting. He is owned by James Foster, of Lake county, Oregon, and is said to be a colt of great speed. At Spokane Falls last week, he ran a dead heat with Jim Miller at three furlongs and tied the record. His dam won races all over Oregon and Washington in 1882, beating such nags as Blue Mountain Bell, Premium, and others of that stripe, at 600 yards.

John A. Goldsmith was the lion of the hour at Napa, his performances with Stamboul, Hazel Wilkes, Vida Wilkes, Regal Wilkes, Freedom, etc., stamping him as the star driver of the Pacific Coast. There can be no question as to John's ability, it being generally conceded that he is far and away the best driver that has ever been on the Pacific Coast, and there are many who consider that he is the most competent driver and conditioner in the United States. Doble, Splan and James H Goldsmith have each their admirers, but it is safe to say that John can hold his own with any of these well known celebrities.

Money is as plenty as water in San Francisco when it comes to matching either Stamboul or Palo Alto against Nelson, to trot either here in December or at the East next year. The stumbling block in the way of a match is, that the owners of both these great horses will need them for stud purposes next year. Senator Stanford likewise disapproves of match races. Hence, if either of these great California bred horses meets Nelson, it will have to be this year. And as the snow will soon fly at the East, the race will have to take place here or not at all.

Several weeks ago H. J. Agnew purchased from Mr. Bunch of Ione the bay filly Lynette, by Linwood, dam Lady Belle by Kentucky Hunter. At the Oakland meeting she made a record of 2:30 and at the Breeders meeting still further reduced this mark to 2:25½. The price paid for Lynette was $2,000, and not satisfied with having one in the family Mr. Agnew has also bought from S. N. Straube of Fresno a full sister to Lynette for $600, and in addition has purchased the dam also. This is a great addition to the Agnew Stock Farm as far as breeding is concerned, and also gives the trotting stable a good reliable mare in Lynette.

Tournament's winnings for the year have reached the enormous amount of $89,575, the largest amount won by any horse yet foaled in America, in a single season. When we consider that, after losing six races before he won any, he has won just twice as much money as Luke Blackburn, the best three-year-old up to his time; and that he lost by bad riding, at least three valuable races which he ought to have won, his success seems almost phenomenal. We predict he will be the most dangerous four-year-old of 1891, and certain to be favorite for the Suburban in all the winter betting, notwithstanding his certainty of incurring the top weight.

My belief is that it will not do to sell any more California stallions to Eastern breeders, or we shall have none left for ourselves; and I am glad to think that both Senator Stanford and Mr. Hobart have refused a great many tempting offers for Palo Alto and Stamboul, that these great and vigorous sires may be retained within the State. Even should both be retained as private stallions henceforth and forever, the State would still be the gainer. Look at the brilliant galaxy that has left these shores within a few years—Nutwood, Anteeo, Woodnut, Antevolo, Abbottsford, Alcazar, Bell Boy, Chimes, Aneel and a host of other good ones omitted for the lack of space.

Well, Nelson is at the head of the list of stallions with low records, provided the Cambridge track is full length. On Tuesday last Nelson reduced his record to 2:10¾at that point, and astonished the light harness horse world with his effort. When Mr. Rose saw the announcement that Nelson had beaten "eleven," he quietly said the Eastern horse will have to beat 2:10 to beat Stamboul as I am confident he can easily make that time. The supporters of the Palo Alto colors are equally sure that Senator Stanford's game son of Electioneer can touch 2:10 or better, and assert that it is only a question of a few weeks before California will hold the stallion record of the world.

The happiest man in Napa on last Saturday, was Wm. Corbitt, proprietor of the San Mateo Stock Farm, when Freedom started and beat the yearling stallion record 2:35 and also knocked out Norlaine's record of 2:31½, made in 1887. Now that so much attention is being paid to the education of yearlings, it may be expected that within a very few years there will be many of that age in the 2:30 list, but at the same time a majority of the colts will in all probability be bred and raised in California, as the climate here is much better suited for early speed than the Eastern States, and it may be many a day before such a sensational yearling performer as Freedom is seen east of the Rocky Mountains.

The following directions are given by a horseman for making the several mashes recommended for sick or delicate horses: Bran mash: Put two quarts of good sweet bran into a pail and pour boiling water over it, mix thoroughly with a clean stick or iron spoon and let stand until cool. Bread mash: Break up a loaf of bread and soak it in fresh milk, and add a little salt. This is a nourishing feed for weak and delicate animals. Linseed mash: Boil half a pound of whole flaxseed in two quarts of water until it is reduced to about three pints, and while hot pour over a quart of bran, mix and feed when cold. Man is the only animal that takes kindly to hot feeds and drinks.

On his last visit to Los Angeles, Captain Tom Merry spent three days at Rosemeade, and fell in love with the yearling bay colt by Stamboul out of Minnehaha, dam of Alcazar and Beautiful Bells. "Never saw such a developed colt in all my life," said the emaciated Oregonian, "He has the back and loins of Nordenfelt, the strongest built thoroughbred horse I ever beheld, linked with the quality and finish of Locksley. In all my born days I never saw such a gentleman in har ness. "A quaint, dry smile overspread Mr. Rose's features at this remark, such as only a breeder could wear. No man who had merely purchased such an animal for money, could have realized such a feeling as the master of Rosemeade concealed in that smile. Any man with money may buy good horses, but it requires genius to breed them.

A very well written article upon the kite track, from the pen of Edwin F. Smith, the Secretary of the California State Agricultural Society, appears in the last New York Spirit. That gentleman takes the ground that, as long as the public are as desirous to witness the start for a race as to admire its finish, the oval track will continue to retain its pristine popularity: and the kite shaped track will never be so popular for that reason. And as the gate money is the chief support of all trotting and racing associations, the people will be more apt to attend contests given upon elliptical courses than on the kite-shaped tracks which have given birth already to so many purely sensational performances at the diagonal gait.

John Goldsmith came home from Napa, literally "Shouting the battle cry of Freedom." Most men regard him as a better driver than his brother James, though inferior to him as a trainer. The performance of Freedom at Napa on Saturday afternoon, a mile in 2:29¾ by a yearling, left him little or nothing to wish for in the way of reputation. The mighty youngster was trained to the hour and never was a horse more fit for the fray. The only regret he could probably have had, was that his honored old father could not have been there to witness his triumph:

> Though the old "Maid's" friends have ceased to cheer
> And Alden peacefully sleeps;
> Though hushed is the clamor for Volunteer,
> The stable its prestige keeps.

The well known "By" Holly has at last determined to sell out his entire racing establishment including the farm, stallions and brood mares. The old time driver has been under the weather for a long time, asthma having taken a firm hold on the formerly rugged constitution, and the sale is a necessity. For thirty-one years the veteran has been a familiar figure on many of the tracks throughout the United States and in that time has managed to scrape up a sufficient fortune to last him for the balance of his days, and now he is going to take a well earned rest. In the course of a few weeks an announcement will be made giving full particulars when the sale will take place.

The Hell Gate Stable, after an existence of three weeks, has collapsed, and thereby hangs a tale. It is owned by young Ehert, son of the famous brewer. He started out by buying the entire stable of Theodore Winters and putting Matt Allen in charge. Then he engaged the noted James McLaughlin as jockey next season, with Lambley as assistant. All this time Papa Ehert was in Europe. His young son was bossing the business at this end. Where he got the racing fever nobody knew. When the Hell Gate Stable made its appearance in public print, the many relatives of young Mr. Ehert marvelled much at the prodigality of his expenditures, and suggested by what they said that there might not be any Hell Gate Stable when Ehert senior returned.

A. Smith, Toronto, Can., has recently imported from England the following royally bred horses:

Silurian, bay horse, foaled 1877, by Wenlock (winner of the St. Leger), dam Piastre by Wild Dayrell (winner of the Derby), her dam Rupee, by The Nabob, out of Bravery by Gameboy, &c.

Sarah, bay mare, foaled 1878, by Playfair, (brother to Sterling), dam by Lifeboat, her dam Mellona by Teddington, out of Honey Dear by Plenipotentiary, 4th dam My Dear by Bay Middleton, &c.

Lottie Dott, bay filly, foaled 1887, by Muncaster, dam Eiderdown by King John, her dam Gossamer by Birdcatcher, out of Cast Steel by Whisker, &c.

Rarely, if ever, are such a host of prominent turfmen to be found at a sale as were present at the Astor sale on October 16th. Amongst them were to be seen J. B. Haggin, Pierre Lorillard, W. H. Fearing, Charles Reed, E. R. Cassidy, J. E. Kittson, W. A. Engeman, James Galway, J. A. Morris, L. C. Sanford, New Amsterdam, N. Y.; B. G. Thomas, Casper Johnson, G. W. and J. M. Littrell, Milton Young, Henry Miller and C. Doyle, from Kentucky; T. C. Patterson and William Hendrie from Canada, and L. C. Murray, Baltimore, D. D. Withers, Eugene Leigh, Watt Rogers, Dr. Carter S. M. Smith, C. W. Chapin, Lamasney Bros., Matt Byrnes, L. C. Bruce, Legrande Lucas, J. J. Williams and others.

The total realized for the Ferncliff stud was $85,675 for thirty-three head, an average of $2,596.

At the sale of the Ferncliffe Stud last week, J. B. Haggin purchased Glidelia (Bonnie Scotland—Waltz) in foal to Galore, for $6,000; Peoria, (Mortemer—Matchless) in foal to Galore, for $5,000; Maid, (Mortemer—Highland Lassie) for $1,600; Bedotte, (Bonnie Scotland—Ermengarde) $1,400, and Jewelry, (War Dance—Gold Ring) $1,000. The three latter are in foal to imported Kingston. When imported Galore, a five year old stallion by Galopin out of Lady Mauna by Macaroni, was offered, Chas. Reed started him at $5,000 and bids went up rapidly to $28,000, J. B. Haggin, J. A. Morrie, P. Lorillard, B. G. Thomas and C. Reed all seeming anxious to get the horse. E. V. Snedeker, however offered $30,000, and he was knocked down to him for R. W. Walden, of Middleburg Md. Mr. Haggin also purchased the brown mare imported Windmill by Favonius, dam by North Lincoln for $300, and a yearling filly by Friar Tuck from Windmill, for $1100.

Monroe Chief holds, up to date, the stallion record at two miles, being 4:46, the fastest time being 4:43 by Fanny Withers spoon. It is now past the middle of October and, as yet, there are no indication that this is going to be a severe winter. Indeed, the unparalled rigor of last winter would lead to a contrary prediction from almost any of our weather prophets. I am quite sure of at least five weeks good weather, during which either Stamboul or Palo Alto can be got as hard as nails and fit to go a thrusing race at two miles. Palo Alto's gameness has never yet been called in question, and his breeding would indicate him a glutton for a distance. On the other hand, Stamboul has the smoothest and most fictionless gait we can remember to have seen, and nothing has yet developed in all his races to indicate that he would tire at two miles, especially under the skillful pilotage of such a reinsman as Goldsmith. I hope to see one or the other of these famous stallions lower the two-mile record to 4:42 before the close of this brilliant old year.

The New York Times of the 17th describes in great style the attempt to stop betting on the opening day (16th) of the New Jersey Jockey Club at Elizabeth.

The comedy of the afternoon was supplied by "Pete" De Lacy, the Tammany politician and faro-bank proprietor of this city, who has for a year past been trying to annoy the jockey clubs in New Jersey because they would not furnish him news from the tracks so that he may keep his pool rooms in this city open in defiance of the law. De Lacy drove to the track in company with one Fraser, a Justice from Rahway. Halted outside the gate, Fraser established court in De Lacy's carriage. One Skahill, a clerk for De Lacy in one of his gambling houses here, was made a special constable to arrest the officers of the jockey club and the bookmakers on the track for keeping a disorderly house under an obsolete New Jersey law.

This Skahill then went into the betting ring in search of violators of the law. He got some names, and Justice Fraser in De Lacy's carriage issued warrants for their arrest. Skahill had four dilapidated farmer-looking men with him to serve the warrants. There was hayseed in their hair and no courage in their bosoms. The betting ring was crowded with spectators, and, as usual, a number of Pinkerton's men were scattered about to preserve order and look out for pickpockets or other disreputable characters. The Hayseed constables under Skahill's leadership started in to serve the warrants several times and on each occasion there was a crowd to follow them to see the fun. The bookmakers who were wanted would disappear from their stands as if by magic, and in this game of hide and seek the countrymen with their warrants seemed to lose both their heads and hearts. They faltered in the face of a crowd and they hesitated to serve a warrant for fear they would get the wrong man. A score or more of such attempts, always with the same results, were made. Finally Skahill and his assistants gave the thing up in disguet, and Skahill, much crestfallen, drove his country constables from the track, abusing them as a lot of cowards in language as inelegant as it was forcible. This comedy lasted about two hours, but at the end of an hour and a half Justice Fraser adjourned his court in the gambler's carriage and left the vicinity as thoroughly disgusted as was his mentor, De Lacy, at the failure of their scheme to make trouble and obtain fees. It was a fruitless day's work for De Lacy. He could have made more money and had more fun if he had remained at his faro bank in the Bowery all day.

This concluded a most successful meeting. The cattle and live stock display was the best in the history of the Association. J. C Newton, R. R. Brown and J. W. Robinson officiated as judges the best part of the week. Steve Strond did the starting and made a success of it. L. J. Rose and E. B. Gifford were the official timers. Special attractions were sandwiched in between the races. The fair was also a financial success, which speaks volumes when it is stated that it was the second meeting inside of nine weeks.

I have a five year old colt just broken to harness. He is a good heavy draught horse, but has got a ring bone on the off fore leg. When going slowly he does not appear to go lame, but when I trot him he favors it a little. Will he get worse on it, and if so what should I do to cure him?

Answer.—If his work be slow and on soft ground, it is not likely to lame him much; but with fast work on hard roads, it will most probably get gradually worse. Firing and blistering, with a couple of months rest generally has a beneficial effect in horses of his age.

P. H.

In your issue of August 16th, you recommended firing my horse for spavin. I did so and he is still lame, though not so bad as before. Is there any way to get rid of the lameness?

Answer.—Firing a second time is generally of benefit, but there is no certain cure, especially if the horse be very old. Fire him again and blister him in about a month from the time you fire him. Give him at least two months rest.

I have a horse that has been lame in the hip for six or eight months. I blistered him over the joint three times since then and have done comparatively no work with him. He is still as lame as ever, and always appears worse after he gets a rest.

Answer.—Are you sure your horse is lame in the hip? Examine the hock and see if there be any sign of spavin there.

Better get a qualified veterinary surgeon to attend to him, or communicate with us again and give symptoms of lameness.

T. C.

I have a three-year-old work horse that last winter had mud fever in her hind legs, and all this fall one of his hind legs swell a good deal, and when he goes out of the stable in the morning, it is very stiff for a little while until he gets warmed up, then the swelling goes out, and he is all right, but it swells up again at night. Please inform me through your paper what is best to do to him.

Answer.—Bandage the leg daily after work. If he comes in warm, wait until he cools off. Give him daily one drachm of potassium iodide in a mash.

Injuring a Dog Costs $1 000.

The following report of the determination of a legal cause of actiou is taken from the American Field, and because of its importance to our readers, we give it entire:

J. L. WINCHELL. }
vs. }
NATIONAL EXPRESS Co. }

An action brought to recover damages for injuries to a valuable English mastiff bitch, Boss' Minnie.

On October 26, 1889, Mr. J. L. Winchell, proprietor of the Green Mountain Kennels, notified the agent of the National Express company to call at the kennels for a cage containing valnable dog referred to, which was to be expressed to Hnntington, L I., where it was intended to breed her to Dr. Derby's Pharaoh. The express van called at the kennels, and the cage containing the animal was loaded into it. In the course of transportation to the railroad station, the cage was thrown from tbe wagon and broken, tbe dog severely injured in the side and liberated. She was abroad twenty-four hours, and wben fonnd she was sufferiug from her wounds, and also from the exposure. Since that time the animal has never recovered from her injuries; and thongh np to tha' time productive, is now barren, although twice having been bred to good dogs.

Notice was once served on the expresa oompany that Mr. Winchell would hold them responsible for the injuries to the bitch, and suit was instituted by Mr. Winchell's attorneys, Messrs. Joyce, Kendall & Preston, and trisl was had at the September term of the Rutland Connty court.

The plaintiff showed that the barrenness of the bitch was a great pecuniary loss to him, it being set np in evidence that from three litters from her, Mr. Winchell had realized over $2,000.

The defendant company plead irresponsibility for the acts or omissions of its local agent; and further that at the time of the accident there had been no delivery of the animal to defendant. It was pleaded that the delivery and collection of express in the village was done by a private arrangement with the local agent, who owned tbe horse and wagon used for the purpose; and that the defendant company was not responsible for accidents in delivery or collections, claiming not to be responsible as common carriers until tbe articles were delivered to their agent at the station. The case was ably conducted on both sides, and much evidence of an expert character introduced to establish the nature of the injuries the animal had received. The arguments were exhaustive and citations of decisions which overthrow the defense were quoted by plaintiff's counsel.

Col. Joyce of plaintiff's counsel, made an eloquent and able plea. He defended those dumb creatures which throughout the ages had aided and comforted mankind, and which counsel for defense had referred to as worthless and better dead than living. Col. Joyce argued that the worth or valne of an article or animal was based on what it would bring in market, and that these very dogs which defendant represented as worthless were worth many hundreds of dollars. This very animal has produced over $2,000 worth of dogs in two years. Since the accident, aside from the care and medical expense involved by Mr. Winchell, he had suffered great loss otherwise, as the dog was fit neither for show nor breeding purposes—the two sources from which her value arose. In regard to the delivery to the company, he argued it was complete when made to the driver of the express wagon, generally known to be in the employ of the company. He further showed the excessive rates Mr. Winchell was compelled to pay the defendant company for transportation of his animals, and that since the accident he has been compelled to sign a release to the company when shipping dogs.

The judge charged the jury at length, advising them as to the points of law involved. The jury retired, and after a short deliberation returned with a verdict for plaintiff in $1,000 damages.

Expert veterinary testimony introduced by both parties to the action agreed as to the fact that the barrenness from which the animal suffers was caused solely by injuries received at the time of the accident; and that the animal might again become productive, though the time which might elapse before productiveness returned was a matter of great uncertainty.

The above would seem to leave no doubt as to the questions involved. It would also seem to determine the fact that in Vermont at least a dog is property.

Something More of Style.

STOCKTON, Cal.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I have seen much recently in sporting journals relating to the matter of "style" in dogs. I am of the opinion that a good dog is alwaya stylish, that is his movements are graceful and easy, style being the natural result of a highly organized animal of any class. It would be impossible to find a swift horse, the movements of which did not indicate grace and I have never seen a good dog that did not possess style in movement. Of conrse a stylish dog may be out of condition, in bad coat and all that, yet the movements of ease and grace are always to be found. Such are tbe natural conditions of well formed dogs, as much ao as in birds. Some classes of dogs are more stylish than others, and so with birds, and I contend that style is a resnlt of the structure of the animal, added or resulting in the natural and unassumed movements of the animal. Is it not ao? B.

[In the main we think the above the oorrect view of the much discussed question, yet is it not a fact, that even the most stylish dogs, under the infinence of the game, particularly when the birds move in a circle after the point has been made, work themselves around into positions, which are the very antithesis of ease and grace?

Dogs, like all other animals or persons, become awkward when placed under restraint. But a well formed dog, of a snperior class when nnrestrained, will unquestionably be graceful and stylish.—KEN. ED]

What Dogs Cost Us.

There is in the United States a dog for every three inhabitants. Tbe cost of keeping 20,000,000 dogs is at least $200,000,000 per annum. The food given to an average dog every year if fed to chickens would yield a return of morethan $10. High toned dogs are very expensive, their food costing a good deal more than that of some people.—Public Opinion.

What a pity, now ain't it? It must have taken some dyspeptic, liver deranged individual, some moments of studied calculation to evolve the above. "If the food given to an average dog every year were fed to chickens it would yield a return of more than $10." Yes, and if the money spent for diamonds and laces and silks and chewing gum and other articles which go to clothe and amuse the langorously idle or viciously active beast—Luxury were spent on chickens, every day of the year could be Easter Sunday, but we fear the egg market would be glutted. If all the ascetics like the writer of the above article in Public Opinion, should take themselves off to the deserts, as their ancestors in this lino did and eschew every advantage of civilization, the world would be better for decent people to live in.

Dr N. Rowe, of the American Field, is home again, having reached Chicago last week on his return from England. His visit there is reported to have been rendered very pleasant by the sportsmen generally.

The Airedale Terrier.

Mr. Stephen Beale discourses on the Airedale Terrier so interestingly in the Cultivator and Country Gentleman that we produce the article entire.

Away up in the north of England is the lovely valley of Airedale, wherein we find many of the keenest breeders of smaller livestock to be met with anywbere. Almost every one appears to "go in" for some branch of breeding, either poultry, or pigeons, or dogs. It is to this district that many of the best Hamburgh fowls and Antwerp pigeons owe their origin, and the district has given its name to one of the best working dogs of the terrier type that we have, though from his size there can be no question that he is greater in statnre than it is generally supposed a terrier should be, and no other dog to whom this cognomen applies equals him in this respect. He ranges in size from 35 to 45 pounds, and is a big, powerful fellow, fit for any kind of work, ready to go anywhere and to do anything.

The origin of the Airedale Terrier is not very clear, but it is evident that several breeds have been concerned in his production. He bears the marks of having a goodly share of hound blood in his veins, and also that the Dandie Dinmont and the Bedlington Terrier have been used to the same end. But there are no authentic records as to how he was produced and the statements made are largely suppositions. For a long period of time he was known as the "Waterside" terrier, or the "Broken-haired or Working" terrier, by which name he was commonly called in Yorkshire, where until a few years ago he was only known. Here he was just suited to the demands made upon him—a rough-and-tumble dog, hardy wiry, and capable of going anywhere among the hills and dales of his native valley, where sport, legitimate and illegitimate, is a necessity for the inhabitants. After a time he began to find his way into other shows than those held in Yorkshire, and now there are few dog exhibitions without classes for this breed, which has become very popular in some parts of the country.

Perhaps the most successful kennel has been that of Mr. E. Newton Deakin, of Cheadle, Cheshire, Airedales ever seen. For a considerable time there was much confusion as to the pedigrees of most Airedales, and some of the best dogs had no such record at all, but this is being gradually remedied as breeding is continued on scientific lines. In "British Dogs" Dalziel describes him as very strongly built, the ribs rounder, and the haunches wider and more muscular than the Bedlington, and consequently proportionately shorter in the body than the Dandie; he is like the latter, very strong in the jaw, and the whole head is large; the ears fall close to the cheeks, rather wider and shorter for the size of the dog than either of the two other breeds; the neck is rather strong than neat; the whole body stout and compact, and good muscular shoulders, over useful, straight, strong legs and good feet. The hind quarters are firm and square, finished off by a thick, rather coarse tail, docked to about six or seven inches. The coat is a right useful one, short and broken, much harder to the feel than it looks, being a good mixture of hard and soft hair, and in fact just the coat to get dry after an immersion, with a few good shakes and a roll in the grass. There has been much dispute as to the courage and temper of the Airedale terrier, but those who know them best say that in both respects they are not surpassed by any other breed of dog. If an Airedale is brought up under conditions where there is nothing to develop courage, and some day is suddenly faced with some trial of courage, we can scarcely expect it, or any other dog, would come off at the best. Let us judge dogs fairly.

The following is the standard of points adopted by the Airedale Terrier Club:

Skull flat, and moderately narrow, tapering slightly to the eyes, and free from wrinkle; no perceptible stop between the stop or indentation between the skull and muzzle, except in the profile. Jaws long and powerful, free from flews, rather deep, and moderately square at the end. Nose black and nostrils large.

Mouth level; teeth large and sound.

Eyes small, bright, and dark in color.

Ears V shaped; moderate in size and thickness, carried forward, as in the case of the Fox Terrier, and free from long, silky hair.

Neck fair length, gradually widening to the shoulders, well carried, and free from throatiness.

Shoulders fine, long, and sloping moderately into the back.

Chest deep and muscular, but neither full nor wide.

The back should be short, straight and strong, the ribs well sprung and rounded; the loin broad and powerful, and well ribbed up.

Hind quarters strong and powerful, thick through the hams; good muscular second thighs, and stifles fairly bent. No tendency to "cow hocks."

The tail should be stont, and docked, set on rather high, but not raised to an angle with the back.

The legs should be straight, and well furnished with bone; the feet round and close, with a good, thick sole.

Coat rough and broken, dense and wiry in texture; free from lock or curl.

Color dark grizzle back from occiput to end of tail, extending also down the sides of the body, with dark markings on the side of the skull, rest of body a good tan, darker on ears than elsewhere.

Weight—Dogs, 40 to 45 lbs; bitches, 35 to 40 lbs.

Disqualifications—A Dudley nose; white on throat, face or feet (white on any other part of body objectionable), a thoroughly bad mouth, i, e , minus a number of teeth, and others cankered: also undershot; total blindness (partial blindness objectionable).

Hares and Hounds.

On last Sunday a goodly number of people assembled at the Oakland race track to witness the sport of the hounds and hares. The event was enlivened by Walter Sewell claiming and taking possession of a dog there, being entered as the property of J. Hill. Sewell finally got the dog and all was peaceful again.

The first contest was between P. Pegau's Lady Washington and J. Gellis' Miss Brady. The latter was the victor. Next was between George Sharp's Walk Up and D. Lenard's Berkeley Lass. The Berkeley Lass won the race. Next came T. Walton's Daily Report and P. Mullin's George Washington. The Report won the race. The fourth race was between J. J. Redemacker's Al. Farro and S. J. Cronin's Dan O'Connor. Al. Farro won the race. Next was between J. Coleman's Jessie and J. Hill's Evening Post. Jessie won the race, and beat Evening Post badly. The next was between J. J. Edman's Walnut and Sullivan's Fenian Boy. The Fenian Boy won the race. The last race was between P. Mullen's Lady Guess and J. J. Edman's Bones and Bones won the race.

Strange yet True.

So much of the truly wondertnl has been written of the dog, that people unacquainted with the more intelligent of these animals are inclined to put down as fiction any thing which is tinctured with the extraordinary. Any one doubting the following story are at liberty to write to Mr. G. W. Brown, of Cheyenne, Wyoming, who is a responsible jeweler of that city and verify the matter.

He has a dog that knows a good silver dollar with the same accuracy that a cashier of any of our banks does.

The test has been made repeatedly in this manner. Take three dollars—a counterfeit, a Mexican, and the third a genuine American silver coin, toss them up together, and the dog will invariably and without a single failure in more than a dozen trials noted, pick out the American dollar and bring it to his master. Toss the Mexican or spurious coin out alone and he will not touch them but the moment a good or American coin is thrown he will at once pounce upon it. He will pay no attention to halves, quarters nor dimes. His master says he does not know how the dog came to perform the trick, but he does it.

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreampt of in thy philosophy."

Coursing at Merced.

Preparations are now actively going on for the coursing event which commences on the 18th of November at Merced and continues during the week.

At a recent meeting held in this city the following named gentlemen were elected to preside during that event: Dominick Shannon, President; Henry Wormington, Vice-President; J. R. Dickson, Secretary; J. C. Nealon, Treasurer; John Gruce, Judge; James Wren, Slipper; J. R. Dickson, Slip Steward; William Halpin, Flag Steward; P. A. McDonald and Thomas Brady, were selected as Field Stewards, to some in connection with three other gentleman to be named by the Merced deligation.

Prizes offered are: First, the Interstate Cup, $500; second, $300, third $100.

Any dog winning four prizes will receive an additional commendatory one of $20.

A prize of $100, is offered by the association for a race confined to dogs that have been beaten in the first and second rounds for first prize, amounts given by owners of dogs to be added and the whole purse to be divided into three parts. Some lively work is anticipated.

Wanted Gordons.

We have inquiries this week seeking information as to where Gordon puppies of pure strain can be purchased.

We have inquiries also for an Irish setter dog, old enough for field use.

The interest in local coursing events is increasing.

Remember that there is nothing so essential to the good health of your dog, as good food, cleanliness and plenty of exercise.

The sportmen of this city and vicinity are looking forward with great expectation to the field trials which occur at Bakersfield on the 19th of January next.

The Executive Committee of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club meets to-day at 12 o'clock at 320 Sansome St., room 13. Matters of importance relating to the coming field trials will be considered.

A coursing event is announced to take place to-morrow at Ocean View Park, open to all dogs owned in the State. A badge is offered by C. W. Tabor, and Wm. Kreling generously donates the hares.

At the Haydock Park Open Meeting, England, held on the 23rd, 24th, 25th and 26th of September, a fine coursing event was witnessed. There were 284 subs and 168 acceptances. One of the youngsters bd d Times, by Greentick—Tinsel was sold for £400 and was considered cheap at that figure.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the mention of the Gordon Bennett Dog Pills and Salve, which is highly spoken of as an effective remedy for the purposes recommended. For sale by the trade and handled by Mack & Co., Wholesale Druggists, 11 Front street, this city.

The friends of Mr. Fred Taff, well known in local circles, will be pleased to know that he writes from his present home, at Dedham, Mass., saying that he is well and happy, and that he is putting in most of his spare time in training a splendid pointer puppy, a gift from Edward Dexter.

The Columbia Spectator gives an account of the wonderful vitality of a dog owned by Mr. A. G. Todd, that fell into a cave and there remained for fifteen days, when it was discovered and rescued. The poor animal had but one resourse with which to preserve life, that of water. When rescued it was very thin, but otherwise all right.

Perhaps no animal, not even the horse, occupies so proud a position in literature as the dog.

The remarkable, and by other animals and man as well, unapproachable beauty and extent of his devotion, has won for him the first place in the human mind. Of course, we remember that the Bible refers to him in a tone of sneering and contempt, but we must remember that those remarks were hurled at the dogs of that day and time—the yelping, useless curs of the East. If the writers of the Bible had been chosen to do their work in this day and generation, they would unquestionably use the dog as the most fitting example of the commendable principle of constancy and devotion.

Periodically some crank whose knowledge and experience is painfully limited, comes out denouncing the whole canine race, and usually the dog's friends pass him by, as does the dog, in silent contempt. Our Dumb Animals, in a recent issue, said to such: "You might as well attempt to strike out the Gospel of St. John from the New Testament as the songs, stories and pictures of the dog from our humane literature. The world has settled that matter long ago, and through the ages the dog will occupy a high place in the regard and affections of millions of human beings."

How to Care for Goldfish.

Authorities differ greatly in regard to the goldfish. There are those who maintain that it can stand almost any change of temperature; and instances have been recorded in which a goldfish found frozen in a solid piece of ice has so far recovered, on being gradually thawed, as to swim about a pond again as though nothing had happened. But hardy as, in its natural state, one of these little creatures may be, experience has proved that once transplanted to aquarium or globe, much of this vigor is lost. It then becomes sensative to almost any change. Too much sun or heat of any kind will kill it, and during a thunder-storm a globe must be removed from the window and the water changed almost immediately.

Not only after a storm, but every day as well, the water in the globe should be changed. While doing this, the fish should be carefully removed with the hand and placed in a basin of water, a net being apt to injure the scales, and so destroy their brilliancy of color. While in the basin—and the fish should remain there for half an hour in order that the globe may be thoroughly cleansed—they may be fed with bread-crumbs or biscuit. In this way the danger of having the water in the globe made impure by the bread becoming sour is avoided.

It is altogether wrong to suppose that the water of the globe supplies all the nourishment necessary for goldfish. It must have something to eat once every day. It is quite satisfied with bits of bread or biscuit—though it is wise occasionally to vary this with duckweed, lemma, aquatic plants and small fry.

A branch of box ought to be placed in every globe, against which a fish may rub and so rid itself of the slime that collect and clogs its gills. The globes should be large enough to a low free movement to the fish. In a globe of twelve inches in diameter only two fish, each of four or five inches in length, can live comfortably. For three fish of that size the globe should be at least sixteen lengths in diameter. A wide-mouthed globe is by all means best, and a square or oblong tank is best of all. Efforts should be made to introduce a small jet of water into the globe or tank, thereby introducing a constant supply of fresh air, without which no fish can keep well; for water has the power to absorb a given amount of atmospheric air, and a current of fresh water is in reality then a current of fresh air. Without this air no fish can live. One that is healthy has power in its gills to extract this fresh air while under the surface of the water. A sure indication of disease in a fish is its constantly rising to the surface to breathe.

Another symptom of disease is the languid undulating movement of the fish, the loss of brilliancy in color, and the lying motionless at the bottom of the globe. Such fish should be removed immediately from its fellows, and placed in a basin of fresh running water. Generally a few days will effect a cure.

Keep the globe not more than four-fifths filled with water. Let it stand in the coolest part of the room, near an open window. Protect it from the sun. Of all things have plenty of pure water and room.

In purchasing fish the greatest care should be taken, not only in regard to their being absolutely healthy, but also that no fish from different localities should be compelled to live together; for fish, like almost all animals, dislike outsiders. The oldest inhabitant will always hunt a stranger, sometimes even to death, just as one that is strong will destroy another that is sick.

In 1691 the first gold fish from China arrived in England. Now they are found everywhere; even in Portugal they abound so largely that yearly importations take place. When well cared for, as at Hampton Court, they grow to an enormous size.—Ex.

Work of the State Fish Commission.

The Mount Shasta Herald, has this to say of the work accomplished by the State Fish Commission during the season:

From the hatchery located here there has been fully 1,250,000 young trout sent out to stock many different streams, principally north of San Francisco. The greater number of those sent to a distance have been transported under the ever-watchful eye of engineer Ed Stewart, who reports having the finest success in landing them at their destinations.

Mr. Richarson, another expert in the handling and caring for young fish, passed a portion of his time at the Shovel Creek Hot Springs, in taking spawn for propagation at the hatchery, but is now here, as we believe, in charge. Mr. Hunt was sent to the Tahoe county early in the season, where he distinguished himself as a skillful manipulator of the finny tribes, but has returned to assist in handling the samlets to be hatched out during the winter months. Ninety thousand of those young trout were recently placed in the Sacramento river from Mossbrae falls south to Castle Crag. The last shipment, 40,000, was made to San Luis Obispo, which closed the trout shipments for the winter.

A Mr. Shelby, a new acquisition on the force in these parts is also here and is said to be an expert in determining the different varieties of trout or salmon, or of guessing the number in a dipper full. (It might be well enough to state that all young trout, salmon or other fish are measured in a small dipper.) About 1,600,000 salmon will be hatched in a short time and distributed as fast as circumstances will permit. The untold good that this institution is now accomplishing in distributing food fishes throughout the State can be estimated, but only fully appreciated by generations yet to come.

A Very Wonderful Fish Story.

Some time ago a remarkable story was sent out from Sibley, Ia., of a fall of thousands of fish in a cloudburst. The supposed fish were of a kind known only to abound in a lake near the city of Mexico, and this added to the wonder. Four specimens were secured by a business firm of Sibley, and have been on exhibition ever since. They are something like a lizard, have four legs, same number of fingers and toes as an alligator, equally happy in water or out of it. One of them walked across the stone floor as lively as a cricket, and on being returned to the water swarm equally well. Another thing about them, they are changing their personal appearance. When captured each had a row of feathers, or something like it, around the throat, or where the gills ought to be. These have disappeared, and they have changed or shed their skins and are now becoming spotted. As Artemus Ward said, one of them is an "amoosin' little cuss," having swallowed whole his little brother or sister.—Atlanta Constitution.

Do Bass and Trout Live Together?

San Francisco.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—In reading the communication of "A. L." in the previous issue of the Breeder and Sportsman I was much interested in his motives in defending the trout and giving a certificate of character to the black base, which, if accepted as final, would leave this fish with a very black reputation.

Of course the black bass are cormorants. I've no quarrel on that point with your correspondent, but I would ask "A. L." or any one else for that matter, if it is not true that all fish are of the same nature in this regard, each feeding upon the other and smaller ones, with but little distinction or preference as to class.

Bugs, flies, frogs, snakes, in fact, almost everything which they can seize and conquer goes to make up their food. As a rule, the more active and moving the object appears in the water the keener the strike of the fish.

As to the point made by your correspondent, that trout cannot compete with black bass, we confess that our experience is limited as to streams in which the black bass have been introduced, which have been the home of the trout. Is it not the rule that these fish are not found in the same waters? Are they not so radically different that nature provides them with separate homes.

I think one would hunt a long time before he would find the bass in the natural home of the tront or the cold water beauties in the lower and more calm domiciles of the bass.

How to Preserve Fresh Fish.

The Ohio Fish and Game Protector gives the following instructions for preserving fish, which is vouched for as being an efficatious method:

To prepare fish, such as trout, it is better to remove the entrals without splitting the fish, unless they run very large, which can easily be done by cutting the peninsular that joins the head to the body at the throat then separate the gills from the neck by cutting. Also cut around the opening of the fish's body. Then by getting a firm hold of the gills the entrals can all be pulled out nicely; however, the vent must first be cut out, also take out the eyes, as the fluid of the eyes gives a bad flavor to fish.

Then with a napkin on a stick wipe out the inside as dry as convenient. After immersing in a strong solution of borax for fifteen minutes wrap the fish in towels that have been wet with the solution and wrung out. These when packed in a box or basket can be sent any distance in any kind of weather and be preserved perfectly wholesome and retain their natural look. For very large fish it is better to split them open to the skin on the back; don't fail to remove the eyes. This is perfectly reliable.

Tarpon Fishing.

The Tragedy of the Tarpon, or something which could be appropriately designated by some such high sounding and euphoneous title, appears in the Forest and Stream over the signature of "Big Reel." It is a tragedy in five acts with the tragedy left out.

He says, in short, that tarpon fishing as a sport is all nonsense. That there is no sport in it. Of it Mr. Alfred Jingle would say: Fine sea—boat rowed to the grounds—you make cast—wait, wait, wait—very tedious—very. Something bites—bites hard—keeps hiting. Now you pull—pull hard—keep pulling—boat rocks—sea foams—very tiresome—very. Presently fish grows weary—lays on the water—you gaff him—no skill—no sport—only murder—weigh him—found wanting—talk—talk more—keep talking—tarpon fishing.

Food Fishes.

It is a conceded fact that all life is dependent upon the conditions with which it is surrounded. And especially is this true of fish. The best fishes are found in swiftly running streams of clear cold water, having clean rocky or pebbly bottoms. Fish found in these conditions are much more vigorous, gamy and firm in flesh and of a superior flavor to those found in lakes or ponds, especially where the latter have no outlets. To cultivate fish to advantage the ponds must be run dry at intervals and allowed to become renewed, or rather to permit the air and sunshine to eliminate the gasses and fungi which accumulate more or less in all still bodies of water. Fish farming may be made both pleasurable and profitable. Fish may be as carefully fattened as any other creature.

The autumn fishing seems to be unusually fine.

It is said that vinegar used as a gargle will dissolve in a short time any small fish bones which may be lodged in the throat.

Wyoming and Montana have recently been receiving large numbers of bass and croppies from the United States Fish Commission.

The California trout planted in New York waters some years since are said to be doing remarkably well. Our Eastern exchanges note some fine catches of this species.

Mr. Mark H, Wood, of Barrington Center R. I. has notified the United States Fish Commission that he has taken from his three-quarter acre pond a carp weighing 17 pounds. Do they ever attain greater size?

Trout fishing is over now for the season. It has been a fruitful one in many respects. The weather has been favorable during these closing days and the fish have been hungry and vigorous, yielding a good degree of sport.

The dam located on Los Gatos Creek about one mile from Alma, is being prepared with fish runs in accordance with the plans of the Fish Commission. The proprietors at Reas and Lane's saw mills have agreed to no longer dump the saw dust from their mills into the stream, but will burn it, in accordance with the recommendations of the Commission.

Last week Mr. Houston and wife caught about twenty pounds of fine trout at Lake Pelarcitas. Mr. Terry and Captain G. W. Cunningham also made good catches at the same place, while Messrs. W. Crawford, F. E. Holland, Geo. Watson and Ed Cahill were fortunate in capturing some sixty pounds. Mr. Cahill was introduced to an involuntary bath in the lake at the invitation of a more than usually vigorous trout.

A large number of peasons were out on Snnday last at Saucelito after smelt and rock cod. Tbe fishing was very fine and some large catcbes were made. Messrs E. Hillman, Joe Beckler and William Board, were lucky enough to take about thirty five pounds to tbe line. Some of the lish were fine large beauties and made the matter of landing them of surpassing interest. Tbere were more than twenty-live boats, off Yellow Bluff, for most of tbe day and all seemed to have done very nicely in the matter of catch.

It would be a most interesting work for some one who has tbe opportunity, to make a collection of all the different species of fish to be secured on the coast and in the State of California. Not only would the work be interesting to tbe collector, but we assume to state that to the public there could scarcely be presented a subject of so great and varied an interest. Knowledge of nature is always interesting. Tbis field, generally speaking, is unoccnpied and presents most interesting features. We trust that some of our friends will occupy it.

The following report comes from Sacramento and nicely illnstrates what may be done in the line of fisb culture.

In a pond formed in East-street ditch by a dam just north of Main street are to be seen tbousands of fish, and people wbo reside in the neigbborhood amuse themselves by feeding them, as hundreds nop up to tbe surface and fight for possession of a morsel dropped into tbe water. Tbe pond is about twenty feet wide and seventy-five feet long, and is full of percb, carp and catfish. It is said tbat tbey came down with tbe flood last Winter, and as the employes in tbe harvester works near by bave taken them nnder protection the water is uow stocked with thousands of little ones.

THE GUN.

A New Gun and Explosive.

The following account of a new explosive will be of interest to all gamers.

Mr. Paul Giffard claims to have again given tbe world sometbing new and more powerful than anything that has yet appeared. In a word be aubstitutes for the expansive force of powder gas, tbe projective power contained in liquefied gas, which be claims to be far superior to powder with or without smoke.

The resnlt of an examination by a special committee of tbe Chamber of commerce of Saint Etienne is to the effect that tbe gun posesses a cartridge or metallic receiver containing liquified gas. Each time that the piece is tired a drop of liquified gas, larger or smaller, according to the force that it is wished to give the projectile, comes out of tbe receiver and propels tbe projectile with a regularity and accuracy very much snperior to other types of arms in actual use. The gas receiver on the gun experimented with waa able to fire 300 shots at a distance of about one hundred feet. Had it been desired to fire a greater distance a larger drop could have been drawn from the receiver, and it would then have been possible to fire 150 or 200 shots at tbe greater range. The size of the drop is regulated by a spring which checks the hammer and prevents it pusbing a piston that is in the passage of the feed pipe any fnrther thau is required.

The rifle looks very mnch like an ordinary gun. At the side it carries a litt'e bandle about as large as the thumb catch which is frequently seen on breech-loading fowling pieces. Under tbe stock is tbe reservoir, large enongh in tbe experimeutal gun to hold 100 grains of liquified gas. Tbe receiver is connected with tbe cbamber of the gun by a small pipe, in which is a valve, and tbe regulating of the valve aeems to constitnte one of tbe greatest difficnlties to be overcome. Something in tbe nature of a gas check is another of the requirements, and it will be very hard to make an efficient gas check for small calibres, as there is, as a rnle, not snfficient room to be obtained for tbe necessary expansion; at leaat, that has been the great tronble with powder guns. Two surfaces coming in contact, neitber of which has been renewed after a discbarge, generally results in an escape of gas and a consequent reduction in velocity. The uše of fixed ammnnition is on this acconnt snch a great improvement, as each fresh cartridge presents a new surface to the walls of the cbamber, and tbe cbecking of the gas is more readily accomplished.

The two or three hundred shots contained in tbe magazine of the Giffard gun can eitber be fired in succession as soon as the gnn is adjnated or they can be kept stored there for a montb. In otber words tbe gun is always ready. Wben one receiver is empty the only delay is occasioned by the few seconds necessary to replace it by a fnll one. It is proposed to have an extra one on tbe person as part of tbe necessary equipment of the soldier.

Tbe bnllet after each fire is put in the gun through the breecb, as is ordinarily the case with magazine gnns, and the operation can be easily, quickly and surely accomplished. —Ex.

Don't Kill Because You Can.

There is one important lesson that our sportsmen will have to learn before the public will come out and take the stand which we hope to aee regarding our game laws.

If the game laws are naed but for tbe pnrpose of preserving the game until a certain season, the last day of wbich is to be tbe signal for well equipped and signally destructive men, who claim to be sportsmen, to make use of the permission or ratber absence of the restrictions of the law to aally forth and see how much game tbey can slaughter in the shortest possible time, then indeed is the law a farce and our claim to being sportsmen purile and hypocritical.

The public becomes disgnsted with hearing of tbe fact, that high toned sportsmen are hagging birds in such quantities aa wonld put to blnsh the averag- pot hunter.

The true object and spirit of th- law is that the game may he preserved so that it may exist in anch quantities as to furnisb sport and food in reasonable quantities for tbe public generally and not for the pnrpose of permitting men to vie with each otber in seeing how much they can slaugbter.

The game preserve that is used for such a purpose fails in its object and such control elicits only the contempt of the public and results in a consequent lacknesa and disregard for law wbich renders auch a state of tbings possible.

Let no man consider himself a aportaman, wbo allowa hia inordinate deaire for destruction, to surpass reasonable bounds. Be temperate in all things, and abuse not tbe privaleges permitted by the law.

A Deer Hunt in the Rockies.

The Magnificent Scenery and Splendid Sport to be Found Near Meeker Lake.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, COLO.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The weather for the most part during tbe month has been remarkably fine. A storm of a day has now and tben swept over tbe mountains, leaving the upper ranges clotbed with a new robe of white, the fringes of which have reached down lower and lower into the little pocket like valleys which are to be found here and tbere along their gigantic sides.

Dnring the fore part of last week three of us left Denver for a hunt in tbe region of Meeker Lake, which lies in a northwesterly direction from this beantiful little mountain city. We arrived here in dne season, spending a night at Leadville as we came tbrough on the Colorado Midland. Thia being my first trip over tbe continental range, I was much interested in tbe magnificent scenery presented by tbe route of this splendid line. Hagerman tunnel, at the crest of the divide, is a marvel of engineering skill, and as we emerged from this path throngh the solid granite of the mountain and looked down into "Hell's Gate," and away below beheld Lake Ivanboe, witb the Frying Pan leading away through tbe verdant valley tbousands of feet below, sbimmering in tbe sunlight like a silver thread, we could bnt acknowledge that we had seldom, if ever, looked upon a scene in which tbe elements of grandeur and beauty were more touchingly and harmoniously blended.

Away to tbe north and winding off to the west and south appeared tbe Snowy Range in the distance, forming the further border of the Arkansas river valley. Now the train plunges down, down, down the rocky way, tbe cnt on the one band presenting the granite of tbe mountains, while the tops of the great pines looked in at the windows on the other, springing from their beds, hundreds of feet below, so steep is tbe mountain slope. On down the valley of tbe Roaring Fork we pass, first going through Red Rock canyon, whicb, with its terraced sides and towering Castle rocks of the deepest red color, presented a scene never to be forgotten The green pines, growing out of the blood red mountain side, is a strange and peculiarly interesting picture.

After reacbing this point, we rested over nigbt, and next morning were fitted out with ponies and two pack mules for the purpose of transporting our camping outfit and supplies to the region of Meeker Lake. Mr. Cbarles S. Lee, the gentlemanly Passenger Agent, and Mr. Milton B. Ochs, the courteous and genial Tourists Agent, of the same line, furnisbed our party with every courtesy and information necessary for our trip. This information we found invaluable to our success and comfort on the journey.

Tbe early morning of Friday, the 3rd instant, found us wending our way along the monntain paths, leading in the direction of the hunting grounds above mentioned, wbicb are reputed to be the finest presented by tbe entire range of tbe Rockies. The day was exceedingly pleasant, and we much enjoyed our ride. Occasionally a large monntain grouse would spring from some open glade through wbicb we would be passing. Several of these fine birds fell before our guns during the day. They aeem slow and awkward of flight, presenting an easy abot, bnt many a one was missed, owing to tbe uneasiness of our ponies, which increaaed the uncertainty of our aim.

Late in the afternoon we met a party of two hunters returning from their onting and were much encouraged to find them in possession of four deer, a black bear and a magnificent set of elk antlers and hide which they had secured dnring tbeir hunt.

There reports as to the certainty of finding game in good quantities, enlivened the closing hours of the days. It was after sundown before we reacbed tbe apot determined on by our guide for camping. We impatiently awaited the call to supper for we were tired and exceedingly bungry. If you desire to know bow good a mountain grouae really is, just undergo a like preparation for a hearty meal, and my word for it you will agree with me that they are the finest eating to be found in the conntry.

We found the nights qnite cold, but this only made the roaring camp fires, which we kindled, the more enjoyable. Tbe first evening was spent in arranging our camp and putting tbings in order for a stay of several days. We started out early next morning, each one selecting a different route and all being in a state of high expectation as to the results of the day. I filled my haversack witb a good snpply of grnb and rode away from camp with my 10 gauge parker in my hands and a 45-90 Winchester alung across the bow of my saddle. I traveled most of the morning iu a straight line from camp, hoping to get ont of the range of my companions, which I most effectually did, and it seemed to me that I had auceeeded in getting out of range of almoat everytbing else. I went to hunting in good earneat, but beyond three gronse whicb sprung from cover almost at my pony's feet, I secnred nothing. It was now considerably past mid day and I began working my way back to camp.
