Olympic Spirit Endures

Some things never change.

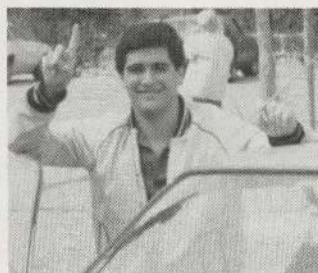

The roar of a crowd-packed coliseum. The expression of sheer determination on an athlete's face as he reaches his absolute physical limitations, then thrusts himself beyond them. The thrill of victory that a nation experiences when its athletes outperform their competitors. The agony of defeat that only an athlete can feel when he fails to fulfill the expectations of his teammates and countrymen.

In this changing world, few traditions have escaped the truncating hand of modernization. Most have been deemed unnecessary or foolish by the modern world, then have been discarded, no matter how long they have been in service. But the traditions of the Olympic Games, established in Rome and revived at the beginning of this century, have withstood the test of time. Of course, many aspects of the Games have been improved upon in recent years. Innovations in communication have widened the viewing audience of the Games considerably (it has been estimated that an audience of two and a half billion people viewed the 1984 Olympics). Sophisticated times pieces have increased the accuracy of all records set in Olympic events. Recent advances in transportation have assumed Olympic athletes and their countrymen safer and faster passages to countries hosting the Games. But the essential Olympic spirit, epitomized in the timeless athlete, thrill of wide-world competition, has been left unchanged and unimproved by the inventions of modern man.

Though this year's Hart students were not alive to witness the 1932 Olympiad when athletes from all over the world gathered in Los Angeles to compete in the Summer Games, many of them grew up among the remnants of that one busy summer. While some students, as children, visited old Olympic facilities such as the Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles, the Marine Stadium in Long Beach or practice shooting range in Elysian Park, others drove with their parents down the tree-lined Olympiad Drive and Athenian Way in Baldwin Hills, paved in 1930 to commemorate the Olympic Games.

Of course, few Hart students missed the 1984 Olympiad — nearly every student was able to experience the Summer Games in one way or another. Yet few students actually ventured into the traffic-congested city of Los Angeles to see the Games. For most,

the 1984 Olympiad was no farther than the living room television set — complete coverage of all Olympic events was offered for a total of 207 and one eighth hours, over an eighteen day period, by a national television station. Those students who did travel to Los Angeles were able to buy souvenirs such as tee shirts and coffee mugs with Sam, the Olympic Eagle, on them.

Others attended the various citywide cultural events that commemorated the event, such as concerts, art shows and museum exhibits displaying Olympian relics.

As America prepared itself for the twenty-first century in 1984, it underwent many changes. Students graduated, countries threatened each other, much-loved role models died and made way for new role models. Weighed down by the threat of recessions, depressions, world wars and cold wars, many Americans went through periods of skepticism and pessimism. Despite this fact, spirit, both national and personal, peaked in 1984. It was in the home, as families viewed the Olympic games together. It was in the eyes of the young Olympic runners as they struggled to attain their lifetime goals. And it was in the words and actions of students at Hart High School as they worked together throughout the 1983-84 school year to prepare themselves for the unknown but exciting challenges of the future.

For A Change

School began amid a mass of construction with the remodeling of the girls' locker room and the completion of the new "E" building. Construction wasn't the only thing new on campus though. The year was the first for the Homecoming parade — a tradition intended for years to come. These events and many others helped to make the school year one of special memories and new beginnings for students.

Rallies were as spirited as ever. Highlights were performances by the Drill and Flag teams and the Drum Corps before a packed gym of spirited students and teachers. The Olympic and Halloween rallies were especially spirited — along with class competitions.

Noontime concerts held at lunch became a popular form of entertainment for Hart students. Bands featuring student vocalists such as Stacey Rasmussen in Stormwatch and Kevin Morris, a graduate of Hart, in Forcefield, gave excellent performances that were much enjoyed by students.

All in all, the campus had a different look about it. Students became daring in appearance, conforming to current trends. Technicolor hair, along with layers of clothing and studded black leather belts, were a familiar sight.

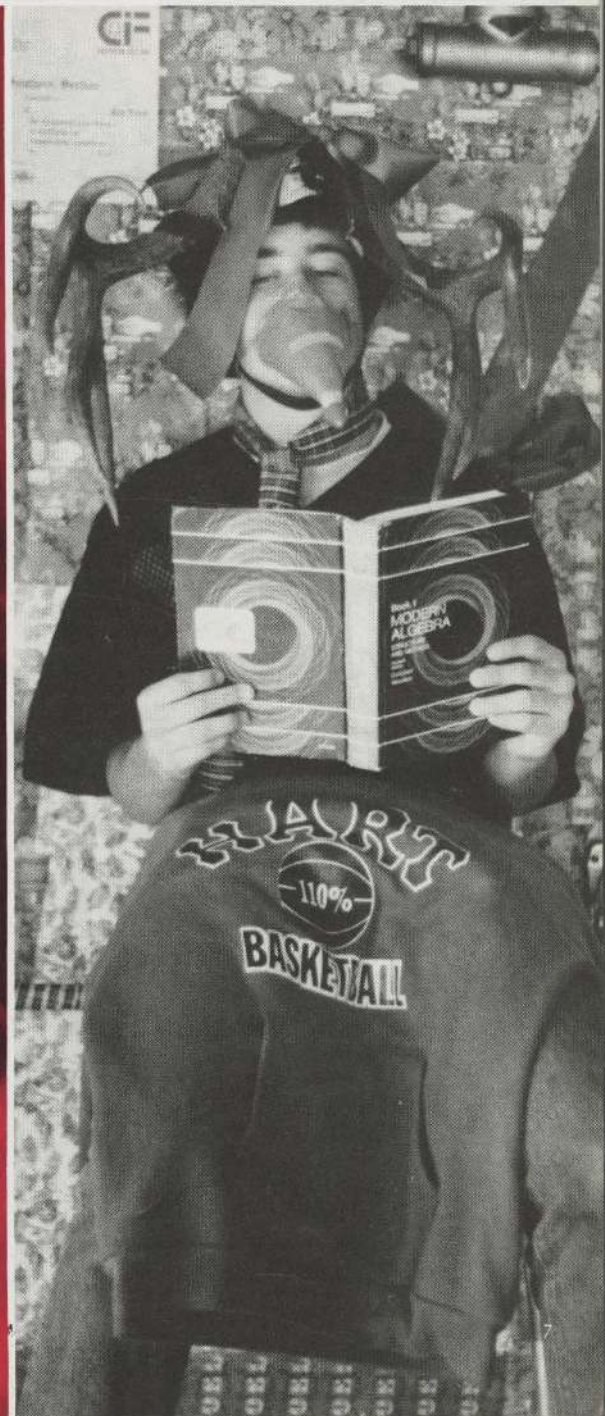

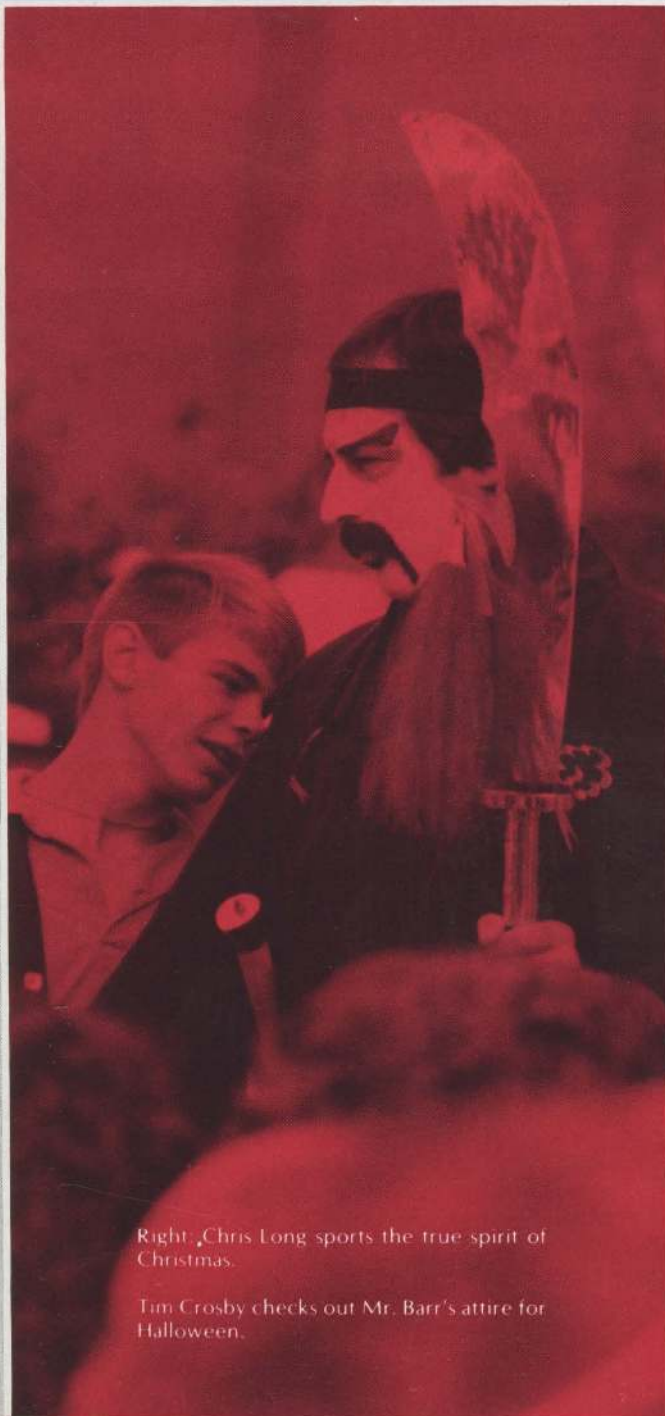

The school year was one of change in both appearances and in activities. New traditions were created while old ones were improved. Many memories were created for students to reflect upon throughout their lifetimes.

It can be said that Hart Alumnus Joe Kapp, the only man to play in the Rose Bowl, Canada Grey Cup and the Super Bowl in one lifetime, set a hard to follow.

But that didn't discourage Hart's later athletes from making names for themselves.

Steve Mehr, four year varsity starter in basketball, distinguished himself as a member of the All-CIF 3-A second team and All-Foothill League first team for two years, and All-SCV team for one year. Hart's MVP and leading rebounder for four years was voted the MVP of the Foothill League, and SCV. Mehr led the football team equally well, becoming All-CIF and All-Valley, All-League defensive lineman.

Darryl Ingram, two-year varsity basketball letterman and Most Inspirational Player, earned a place in the Hart Football Hall of Fame, becoming All-CIF, All-Valley, and All-Foothill League tight end, Hart's Most Outstanding Receiver, and MVP of the CIF championship team. In track, Ingram was an outstanding sprinter and long jumper, placing second in the league 100 and 220.

Having broken four football passing records, Tom Bonds became All-CIF and All-Valley second team quarterback, and Hart's MVP in 1984. In baseball, Bonds was the third baseman on the league championship team. He was voted team captain.

Football Player Kurt Holden, winner of Hart's Outstanding Team Player Award, and All-Foothill League first team defensive end, also excelled in track, with a record breaking discus throw of 185'-1" and a dazzling shot-put throw of 59'-8", earning state-wide recognition, placing second in the CIF 4-A discus and first in the shot-put.

Also of state-wide importance was track team member, Lisa Rizzo, who set records in the 1500, 3000, 1600, how to compete in America. Hart High gave us a chance to be all we can be. I hope all Hart students take the chance and do what it takes to be all they can be."

and 3200 yard run at Hart, fifth and sixth in the prestigious Mt. Sac and Arcadia Invitational Meets and went on to place fifth in the CIF 4-A girls' track meet.

Ron Masino, pitcher of the baseball team, became the MVP of the Foothill League and SCV and was voted All-CIF pitcher one year as a junior.

Samantha Ford, Hart's hottest softball pitcher, was voted the Foothill League MVP and CIF 4-A co-MVP for obvious reasons. Her record .00 E.R.A., eighteen shutouts and 340 strikeouts in 196 1/3 innings won her countless interviews and an appearance on "That's Incredible."

Teammate Lorie Fausett was selected All-CIF and All-League catcher for two consecutive years.

Outshining his opponents was golf team member Wayne Merich, who went to CIF for three years in a row and became the Jr. Club champion at Vista Valencia and the winner of a Foothill League medal.

Mark Ensing, three year starter on the basketball squad was a leading scorer and rebounder this year. He was joined by David Strauss as a stalwart defender and scorer on the league championship Hart team.

Jeff Stabile, the finest diver to hail from Hart, finished second in the 3-

A CIF diving competition for four years in a row.

Invincible and mighty Mike Harvey led the Varsity Boys' Soccer team to another Foothill League championship. Harvey was named to the All-League team and voted by the Signal as MVP of the All-Valley Soccer squad.

In the eyes of many Americans, the Right Stuff was something displayed by only the most charismatic men of space and the silver screen. Hart students knew better. They saw the Right Stuff at work in every record set, every hit or goal scored, every touchdown made.

Flash In The Pan

She wore a bright yellow sweatshirt, torn at the shoulders, over a pair of tight black denim jeans. On her feet were a pair of shiny yellow plastic shoes. The girl looked as though she had stepped from the pages of a fashion magazine or from a scene in the movie, "Flashdance." But she hadn't. She was merely a typical student on her way to class.

Plastic shoes, torn sweatshirts, and gaudy jewelry were only some of the fashions worn by Hart students this year. Other popular school wear included short straight skirts, zippered pants, cardigan sweaters, and high-heeled pumps. Of course, fashions from previous years were still popular among students. Preppy polo shirts, pleated pants and topsiders were as common on campus as the components of the traditional student "uniform:" Levi 501's, tee shirts, and tennis shoes.

Hairstyles on campus were as varied as the fashions. While some girls wore their hair in straight "pageboys," others opted for the short, curly styles that had been popular the year before. Some even sported multi-colored tresses. Many boys, on the other hand, favored short, conservative haircuts, although longer hair was still somewhat popular.

The movie, "Flashdance" inspired fads such as torn sweatshirts and "breakdancing." And several students, both male and female, emulated the stars of their favorite music videos, wearing dark suits, skinny ties, double belts, chains, and other new wave wear.

We Worked All Week, And Paid The Price, And Now . . .

Every Friday afternoon, with the ringing of the dismissal bell, the student parking lot at Hart was flooded — with students dashing to their cars and speeding home. Why were all the students in such a hurry to leave school? When posed this question, one student glibly replied, "I want my M.T.V."

Of course, M.T.V. didn't attract the attention of all Hart students. Many students were more impressed with the addition of four theaters to the local Mann's six-plex than they were with the availability of M.T.V. After the four new theaters opened in December, students were enabled to see popular films such as "Flashdance," "Vacation," "Risky Business," "The Big Chill," and "Terms of Endearment" without having to travel out of town. Some students enjoyed sampling cuisine of several new restaurants in and around the Santa Clarita Valley, such as The Blue Moon in Castaic. Others simply to stay at home to watch cable T.V.

Though videos dominated the music scene, many students still enjoyed recordings and concerts. Duran Duran, Madonna, Michael Jackson, the Police, U2, Big Country, and Culture Club were only some of the bands that became popular in 1984. The Arco AM-PM parking lot, a popular pre-party hangout, attracted not only Hart students, but their cross-town rivals, as well. And Westwood, Hollywood, the beaches, and the ski slopes at local resorts lost no favor among Hart students, though many found it difficult to decide where to go.

In order to finance the costly entertainment that they sought in 1984, many students worked. The majority of students found jobs at a local amusement park, either operating rides or working in kitchens and shops. Other students worked at supermarkets, private shops, or fast food restaurants. Ironically, many students found themselves working for the same establishments that they visited to relax in. In many cases, this was the price that students had to pay for over-indulging on the weekends.

Boosting Spirit With Cheers And Championships

Spirit. Though always evident, it reached its peak during the 1983-84 school year. Whether displayed by a frenzied crowd or by simply a few hardworking students, the school spirit surfaced at games, competitions, and other extra-curricular activities throughout the year.

Perhaps nothing boosted spirit more than the rallies presented throughout the year. Various organizations participating in these rallies worked their hardest to make them memorable. A particularly exciting rally was presented by the yearbook staff, in which staff members ran through the gym wearing clothing reminiscent of Olympic Games.

Of course, other events helped boost spirit, too. For example, the Hart ASB presented Hart's first homecoming parade in November. The school newspaper, the "Smoke Signal," was given a complete makeover. And the varsity football team participated in the CIF championship game against North Torrance, winning the CIF title for the first time in the history of Hart.

Tires In Turmoil

7:15 a.m. The sun's rays filtered through the fog, dimly lighting the Hart campus. In the students' parking lot were perhaps a dozen cars, huddled together near the campus. A battered blue and gray car crept toward its doom. Scraping bottom, the car crawled up the first of many three foot high speed-bumps, teetered on edge, and zoomed off the hill. It hit the next speed-bump at twenty miles per hour and grabbed air. It never hit bottom. The unsuspecting car had been eaten alive by a hungry sink-hole.

At 7:40 a.m., the lot was alive with chaos, chains of cars breaking and relinking as students battled their way through traffic. The student who arrived after 7:48 parked out in the boondocks and walked half a mile to class.

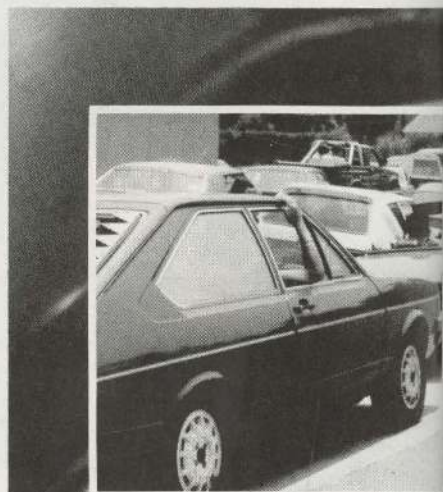

As classes began, a hush fell over the lot and landed with a metallic clang. Someone's fender had fallen off. The silence remained unbroken until ... buzzz! Lunch time.

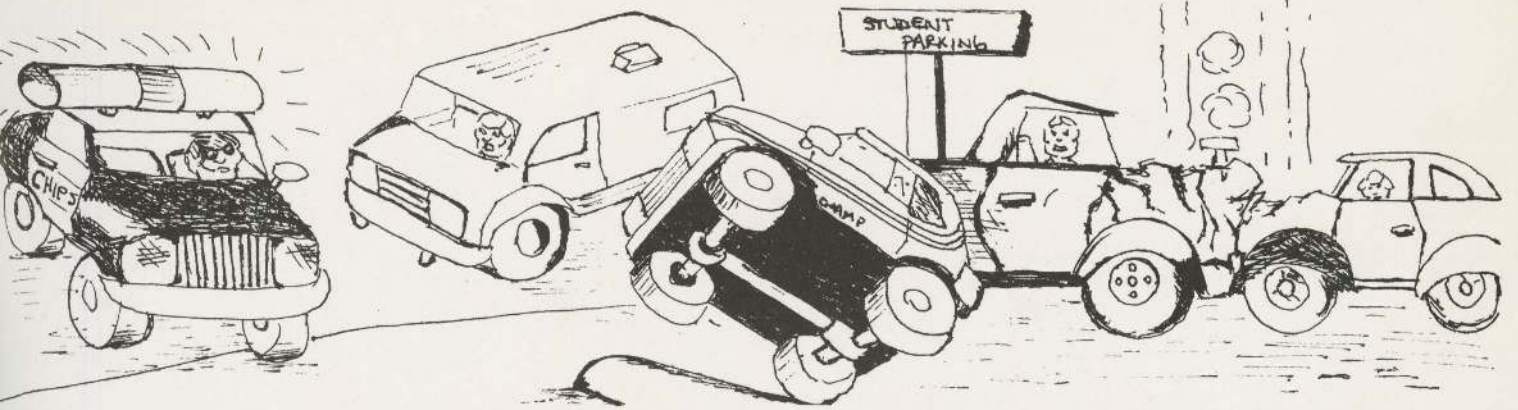

Students poured from their classes and raced to their cars, hoping to beat the jam. A lucky few made it and sped out of the lot, heaving sighs of relief. But for the majority, the nightmare had only begun.

Tempers flared and brakes squealed as students yelled at line-cutters. The experienced student driver had learned his lessons well through wasted minutes in the lot during lunch and after school. He knew, that to survive the parking lot, he couldn't drive defensively—he had to drive offensively. The 7:40 a.m. traffic jam was replayed at the end of lunch.

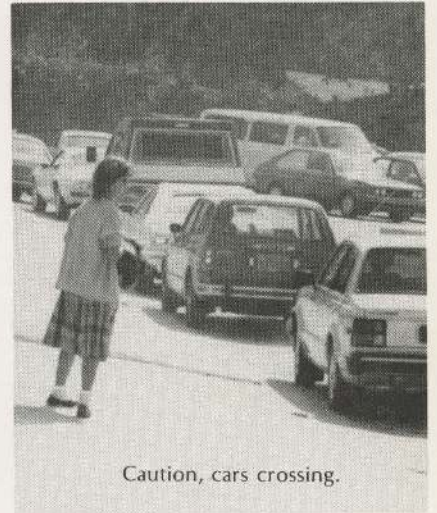

The local police had stake-outs and they fulfilled their "ticket-quotas" by catching unsuspecting Hart students who sped, cut in line, or rolled through stop signs. The experienced student knew these danger zones and was meticulously law-abiding, cautiously checking for black and white Mustangs, hidden in shadows, before racing off for lunch.

At 1:40 p.m., a steady stream of students flowed to the lot. Gilbert Vasquez valiantly attempted to direct traffic, and, without his guidance, the parking lot would have been a disaster area. Fender-benders were common, and patience, non-existent.

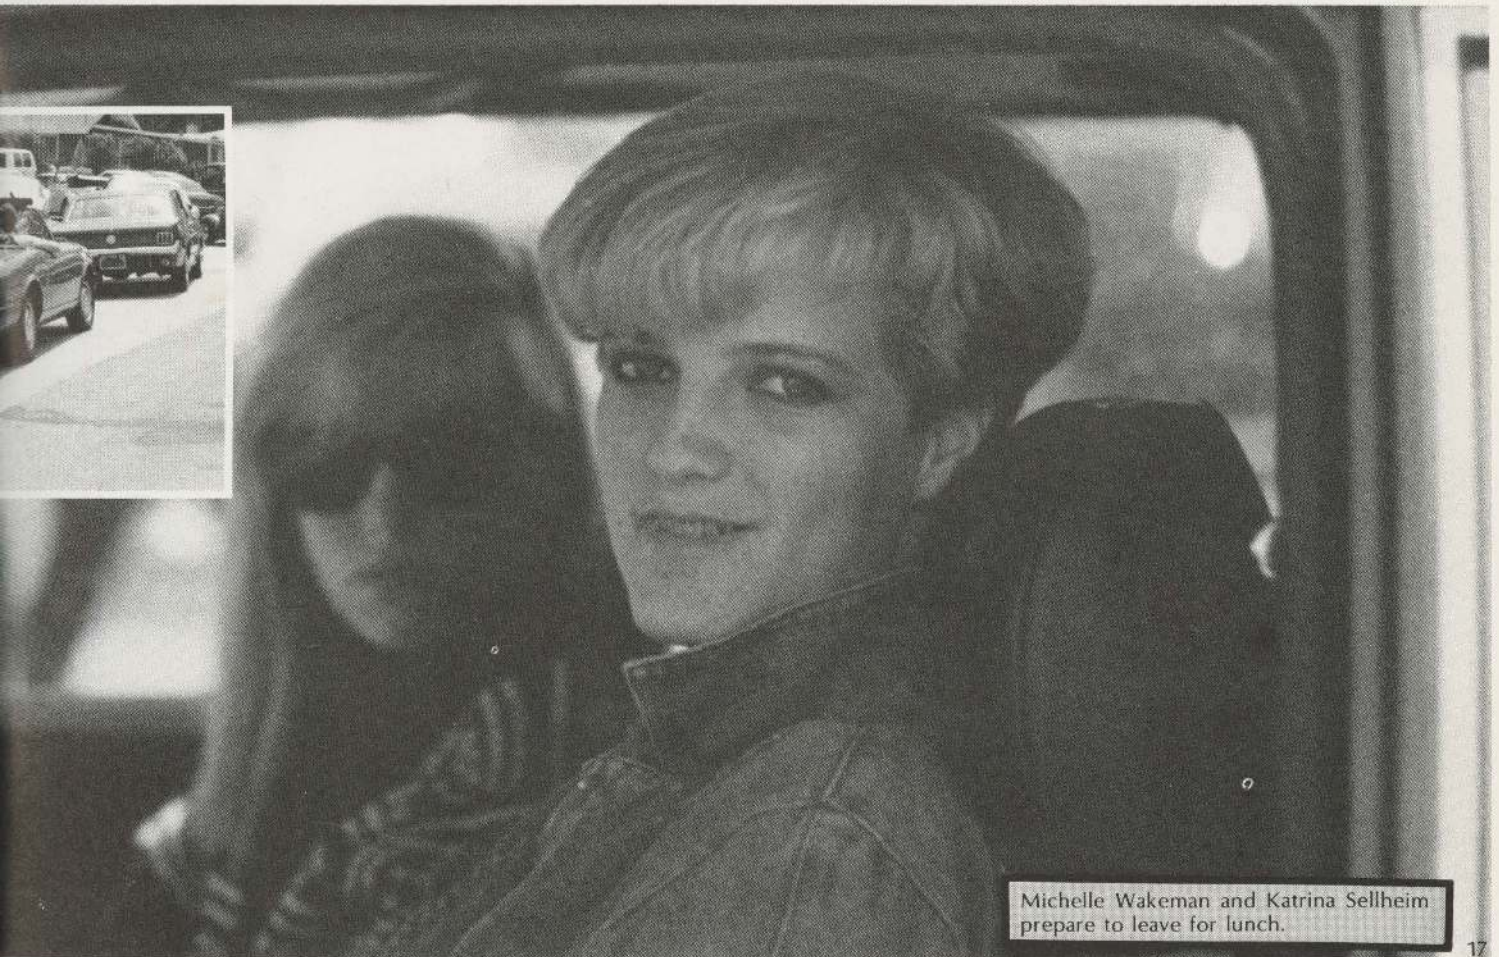

Thanks for the warning!

Beginning A Tradition

At 3:00 pm on the beautiful fall afternoon of October 20, 1983, the crowd watched in anticipation as the Redskin Regiment led the first-ever Homecoming Parade. Honoring the five Homecoming couples - Kim Stella and Ron Masino, Laura Fitzpatrick and Adam Yofan, Kayleen Dugan and Drew Cubbage, Nancy Louis and Jeff Stabile, and Leilani Figalan and David Strauss this hopefully annual event culminated the hard work of not only Jeff Stabile and his committee (Mikala Limbrecht, Laura Fitzpatrick, Trevor Edmond, and Kayleen Dugan), but also of the many campus clubs and organizations that participated.

Beginning in late September, the parade committee planned the highly successful event. First, the Sheriff's Department was contacted and a parade permit secured. Then the route was planned and roads blocked off for the twentieth. Next, the entrants were notified of their positions in the parade and of the guidelines for their floats. Finally the committee executed the parade with the efficiency it takes to make such an event a success.

But the committee was not the only group that was hard at work in the days preceding the procession. Entrants in the parade - including the Redskin Regiment (our entertainment unit), the classes and various other campus clubs and organizations - worked for several days to ready themselves for the motorcade. An impromptu appearance from "Sarge" Philips added much spirit to the festivities.

Hopefully, the tremendous efforts given by all who participated were not in vain. These initial energies channeled into the parade made it a fun and auspicious event which the committee was sure would be continued the next year.

The Best In 36 Years

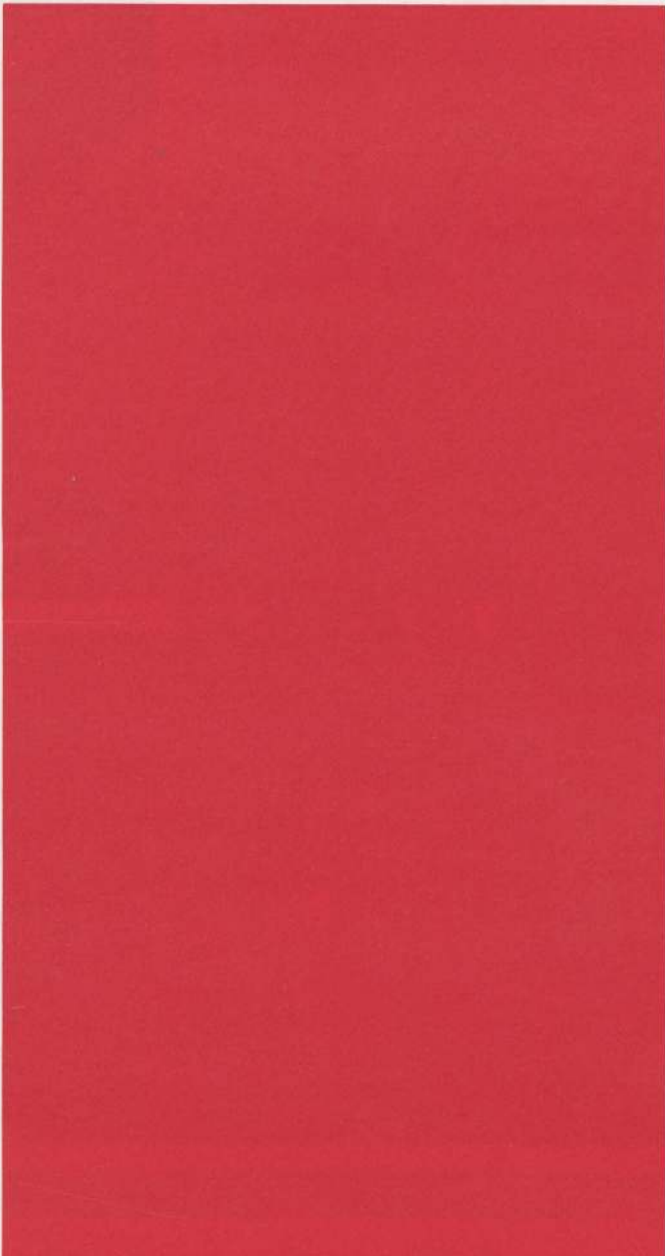

Hart's 1983-84 athletic teams were unquestionably the best in its thirty-six year history. Seventeen League Championships proved it.

Hart started its onslaught of the Foothill League early in the fall with the Boys' and Girls' Varsity Cross Country teams, as well as the Freshmen and Varsity Football teams. Later in the first semester, the winter season athletes made their marks on the League by capturing the Boys' and Girls' Varsity Soccer and the Freshmen and Varsity Basketball Championships. In this semester alone, Hart's athletes picked up eight League Championships.

In the spring season, Hart increased its momentum, capturing nine more championships. Frosh-/Soph Track, Varsity Baseball, and Varsity Softball all had outstanding records, with only four losses among them on the way to League Honors. The most amazing accomplishments however, came from the golf and swimming teams. Both won all of the possible League Championships in their sport; golf with JV and Varsity, and swimming with Boys' and Girls' JV, as well as Boys' and Girls' Varsity. It was a banner year for Hart.

It was also a year of firsts for Hart. The Varsity Football Team won the Coastal Conference Championships. The Varsity Boy's swim team broke into the top ten at 3-A CIF Finals with an outstanding fifth place finish. The Varsity Golf Team sent each one of its players to League Finals. And the list went on, with many more teams succeeding and individuals attaining personal bests.

We're Number 1!

For a long, long time, in a high school very, very near, the Varsity Football team struggled to overcome enemy teams, battled to become the victors and failed miserably. Until 1983. Until Hart went 11 and 2. Until Hart faced North Torrance across a football field, and won.

It all started with Canyon, and an emotional game against a cross town rival, lost in the last few seconds of the game, 21-22. But that loss sent Hart to Crespi with a fierce determination to win. The tough, private school fell 42-0, completely shut-out. Alemany, rated number one in California, lost on T.V., 17-7. Quartz Hill lost 17-7. And Saugus was buried in mud, 20-0.

Hart opened league play with Burbank Burroughs. Deep into overtime, Hart kicked a field goal to win 17-14. Alhambra, a weak team, fell 21-0. The game against San Gabriel was played at Canyon, and despite several called back touchdowns, Hart triumphed 27-7. The Burbank Bulldogs were defeated 14-3, clinching at least a tie for League Champs. And then came Schurr. The low point of the season, Hart was shamed, 15-21.

Entering the playoffs, Hart cleaned-up the homefield with Oxnard, 35-15. On enemy territory, Hart defeated Newbury Park, 19-14. West Torrance, an arrogant team who had already reserved a Jr. College for their next game, was upset 33-7. The last play-off game was played at home. North Torrance scored two touch downs right off to lead 0-13. But Hart battled back to take the Coastal Conference title game, 29-16. It was the first championship ever in Hart's thirty-nine year history. And it happened in 1983.

Fun And Games

The volleyball teams added new meaning to the old adage, "Winning isn't everything." They displayed the importance of teamwork and participation throughout the year.

The varsity team fared quite well. Despite a slow start, the team made C.I.F. for the first time in three years. Two of its members, Dena Block and Christine Smith, achieved the honor of joining the all-league first team. Noteworthy members of the team were:

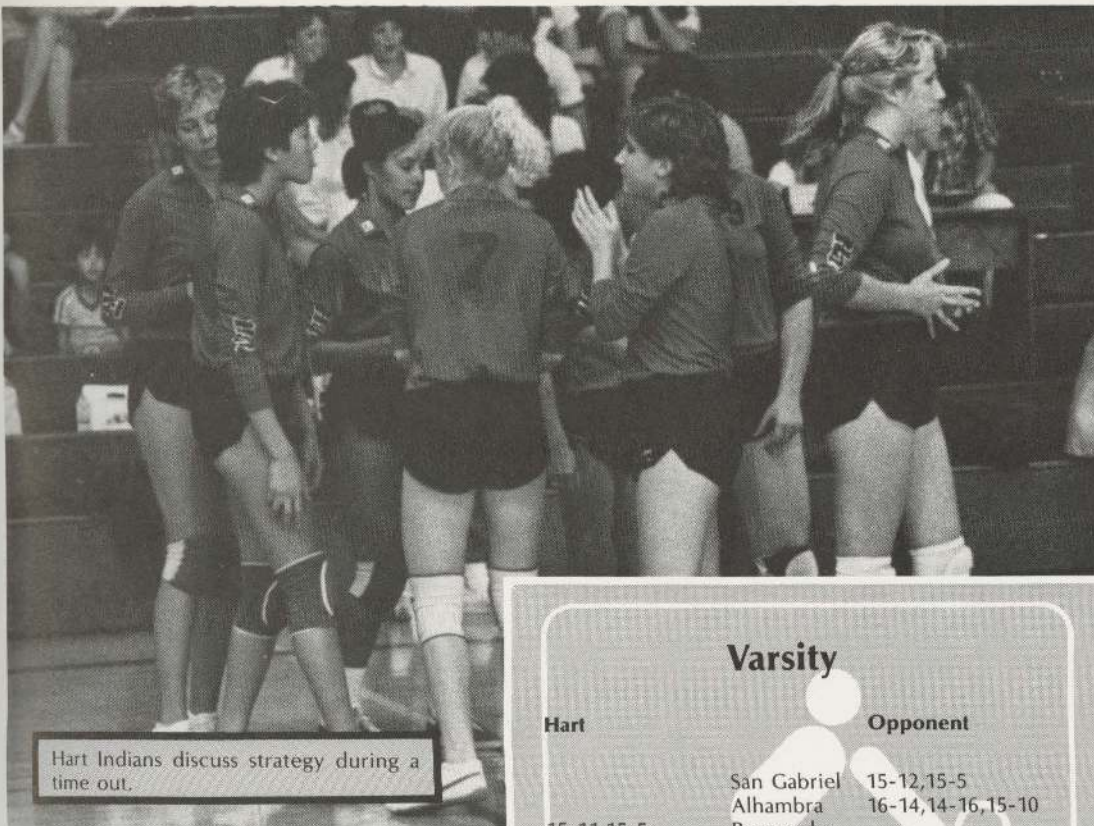

- Best Setter: Christine Smith
- Best Server: Michele Samuels
- Best Defense: Kim Flowers
- Best Spiker: Dena Block
- Most Inspirational: Julie Edwards
- Most Improved: Jill Daniels
- Coach's Award: Maria Persson

Like the varsity team, the J.V. volleyball team started its season off slowly. However, under the direction of a new coach, Dave Ferree, the team played some exciting games near the end of the season. It played especially well against the League champion, San Gabriel, promising an exciting season in 1984-85. Awards went to:

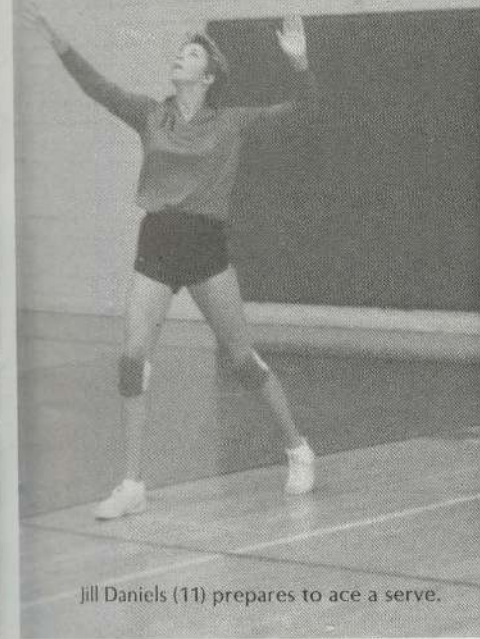

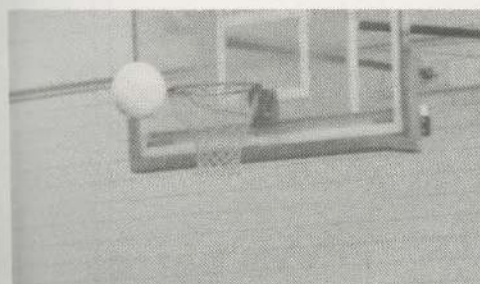

- Most Inspirational: Tracy Pullfer and Nancy Scribner
- Most Improved: Gina La Mantia
- Coach's Award: Kim Lee

The freshman volleyball team enjoyed an interesting season with its new coach, Chris Mansfield. Members awarded at the end of the season for their effort were:

- Most Inspirational: Monica Reilly
- Most Improved: Cindy Wong
- Coach's Award: Melissa Horton

Morale Wins

Something different happened with the girl's tennis team this year. Instead of battling with intense team competition, this year's girls' tennis team, headed by Carol Myerscough and Kim Barnett, became a closely-knit group. Being friendly helped the team's morale tremendously. Bus rides were now something to look forward to; telling jokes passed the time enjoyably. Practice for two hours everyday after school was actually fun this year; switching rackets with other team members behind coach Steve Loves' back seemed hilarious, until he found out.

The team greatly supported its number one singles player, Carol Myerscough, when she fought her way through the league prelims at East Los Angeles college becoming the number two singles player in the entire Foothill League and earning a trip to the C.I.F. individual tournament in Arcadia on December 3. She earned her recognition, though, on December 6 at Cal Islands, leaving with the most valuable and most dedicated awards. The most improved award went to Lori James; most inspirational was awarded to Kim Barnett; and the coach's award was given to Maria Westly. Furthermore, six team members contributed over one hundred dollars each, helping raise over one thousand dollars for the club funds, double of that raised last year.

Hard work and dedication along with new friendships described the 1983-84 season. Six senior players graduated, forcing the remaining junior, sophomores, and freshmen to practice even harder for 1985.

Hart Captures Third Consecutive League Crown

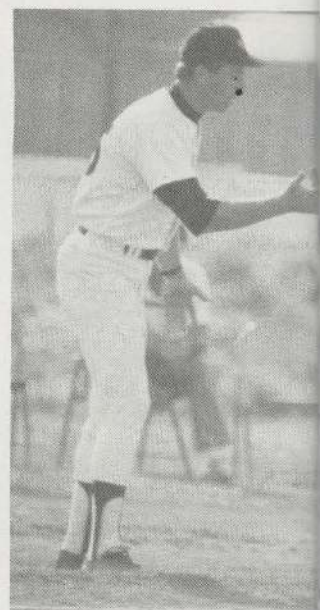

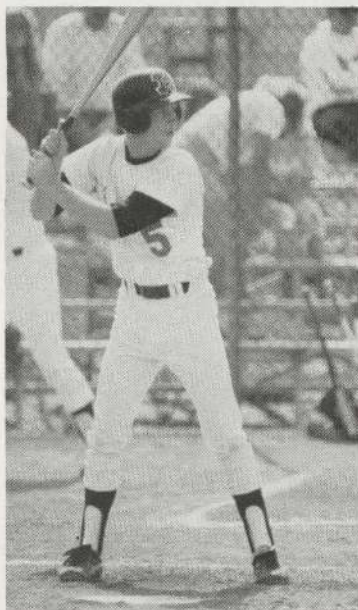

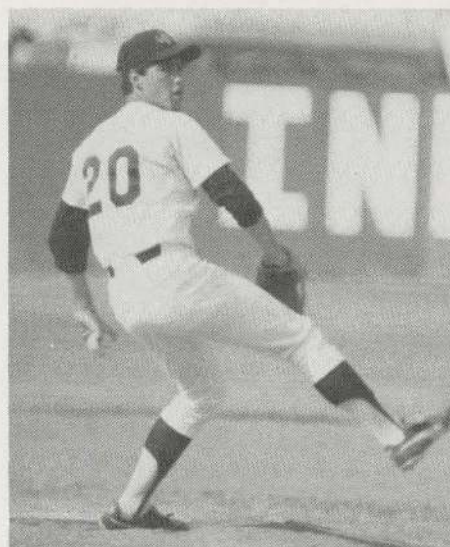

With much adversity to overcome, the Indians placed second in the prestigious 32 team El Segundo Tournament. But that merely tuned up the senior dominated team as yet another League Crown was captured.

With a 12-3 League Record, the Indians seeded 4th in the CIF Playoffs, hosted a tough San Luis Obispo Team and earned the right to the 2nd round. After a long bus ride and a well played game, the Indians wound up on the short end of a 3-2 score, compiling an overall record of 21-7.

Though the season ended abruptly, all of the seniors enjoyed great careers at Hart with many exciting memories.

Named to the All Foothill League First Team were Ron Masino, also the league MVP, Joe Pieper and Mike Neighbors. Dave Castagna was elected to the second team.

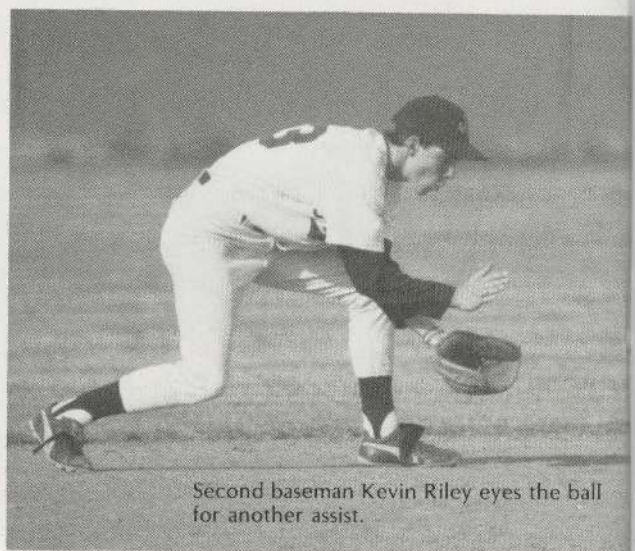

With the successful seniors leaving Hart, and a young team emerging, a true test in coaching will challenge Mr. Frank Sanchez and Mr. Andy Allensworth. But with outstanding coaching like this, the 85' Indians are sure to capture yet a 4th Crown in a row, and keep up Hart's winning tradition.

J.V. Wins AV Tourney

The 1984 J.V. Baseball team, was a relatively inexperienced team, consisting of twelve freshmen, six sophomores, and only four juniors. Nevertheless, it boasted quite a few outstanding players, among them: Outstanding Defense Player, Gary Smith; Outstanding Offense Player, Jim Bonds; Most Improved, Sheldon Sparks; Most Inspirational, Paul Stump.

The team's group spirit and cooperation were as instrumental to the team's success as its fine players were. At the end of the season the team ended up in a tie for third place in a very close Foothill race. Undoubtedly the highlight of the season was the Antelope Valley Easter Tournament. There the team won the prestigious Consolation Trophy, having won two games and lost only one in the three day tournament.

In 7 Games, 7 Shut-outs

According to the Good Book, the world was created in seven days. In the same amount of time, the 1984 Softball Team claimed victories at two tournaments and won seven shut-outs.

It took an extraordinary team to pull off this extraordinary feat, of course. Though the team was young, with only two seniors, it consisted of many strong players. Four girls, in fact, tied the school record for the most hits. One of these girls was Samantha Ford, whose excellent pitching won her a position as the MVP of both the Foothill League and CIF 4-A Southern Section. Another was Lorie Fausett who was voted the MVP at the Simi Tournament. Leading the offense were heavy hitters Natalie Davidson and Gina La Mantia.

Team unity was probably the greatest contributor to the team's success. "They worked well as a team," said Coach Dennis Ford. It was this togetherness that earned the team an end-of-season total of twenty-one shut-outs.

Coach Ford discusses the game's strategy with Gina LaMantia (12).

Golfers League Champs

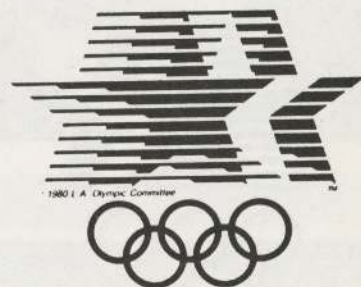

Savoir faire, esprit de corps and four scheduled practices a week all helped contribute to the overwhelming success that the golf team enjoyed in 1984. Each member of the team, "capable of playing exceedingly well," in the words of Coach Jim Seely, made his contribution at various times throughout the season.

Five standout players on the varsity team were Jim Armstrong, Bob Brown, Steve Lengyel, Terry Linneweh and Wayne Merich. Each had been on the varsity team for three years. Lengyel distinguished himself at the Foothill League Individual Tournament, where he garnered a third place award. Merich, at the same Tournament, placed first. Earlier in the year, after undergoing surgery, he had won a medal at the Debell Tourney.

Both the varsity and J.V. teams displayed an unmatched group spirit. It was this spirit that helped the varsity team to place 6th in the prestigious Burbank Tournament, enabled both the varsity and J.V. teams to attain the Foothill League Championship, and gave the varsity team a record of fourteen wins and four losses, and the J.V. team a record of nine wins and only one loss.

And They're Off

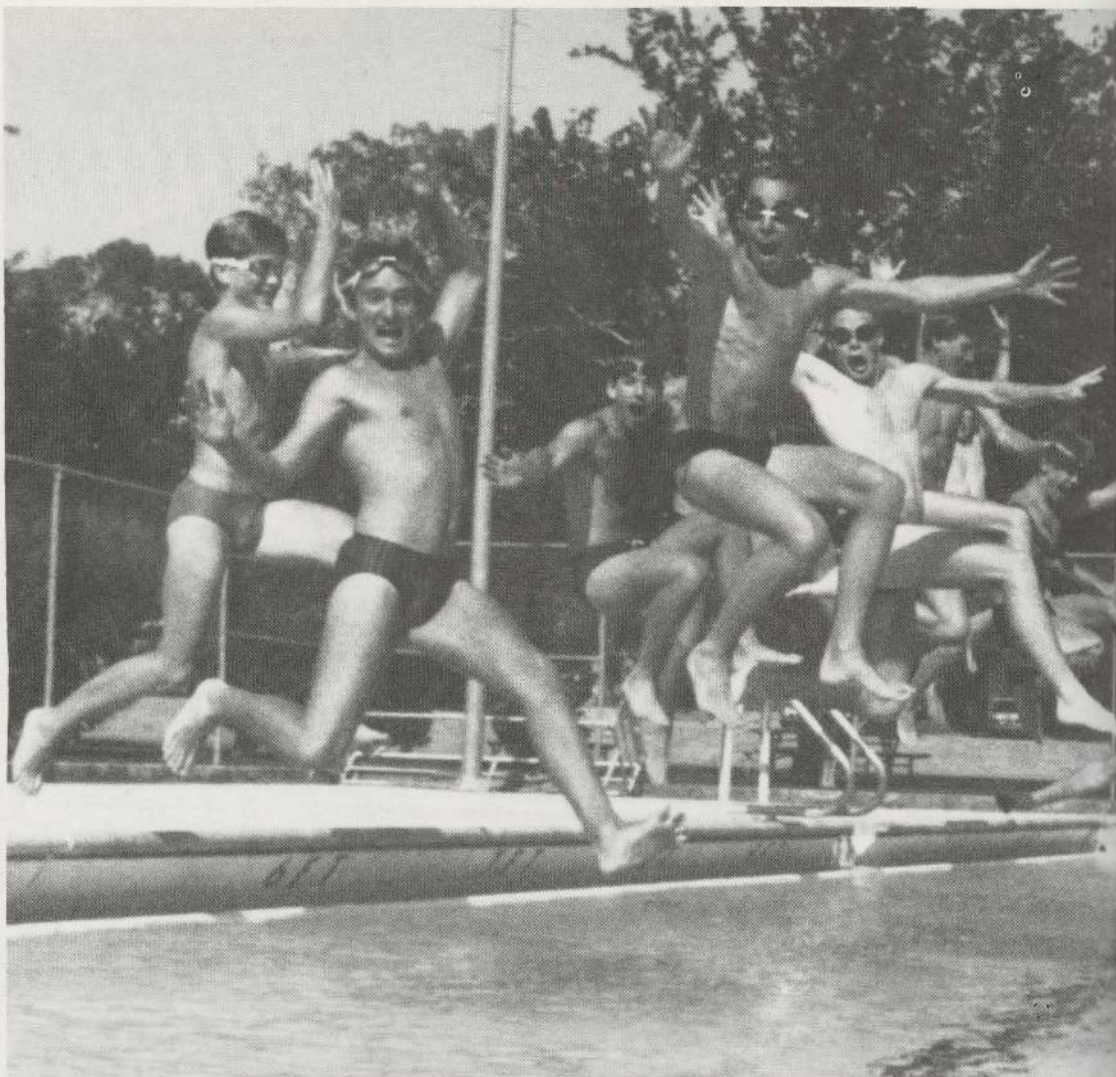

Swimmers up! ... Take your marks! ... Bang! And they're off! Such was the scenario for many a Hart swimmer during the 1984 season.

For the Junior Varsity Swim Teams, the season was successful. The JV Boy's Swim Team was named Foothill League Co-champs, with only one loss to its name- to Burbank. But the young Indians came back at League Finals to defeat Burbank, and tie for the Championship. The Girl's JV Team had a similar season, losing only once to San Gabriel, then rising to the occasion at Finals.

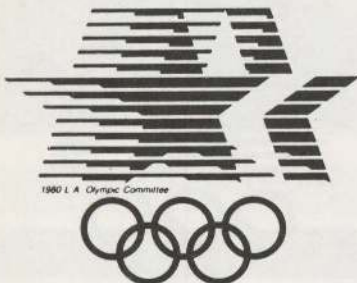

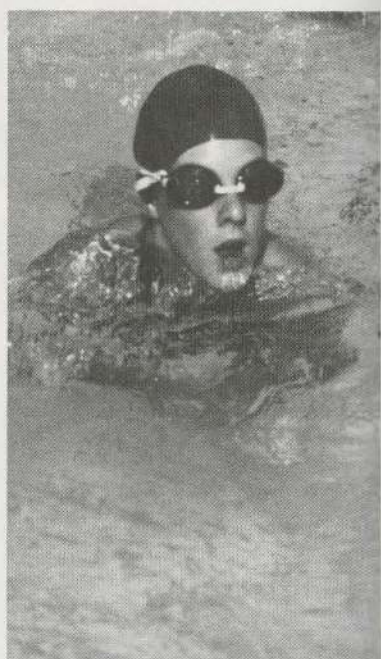

The Varsity Teams, however, had a superlative season. Both the Aquamen and Spidergirls were undefeated in League meets, and qualified a record amount of swimmers for 3-A CIF.

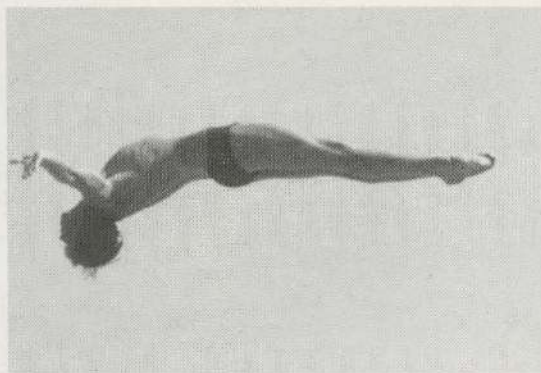

The Diving Team, though not allowed to compete in League meets due to a Foothill League Constitutional rule, had a dynamic season in invitationals. Increasing in members from four to nine, the diving team also qualified a record three divers for CIF-Willie Padilla, Mike Curran, and Jeff Stabile.

The team achieved its highest placing to date at the 3-A CIF finals: boys' fifth, and girls' fifteenth. With only three graduating seniors, the team looked strong for 1985. Individual standouts were Jeff Stabile, second place diving; Thane Blinman, fifth place 100 yd. breast stroke; and Donna Kroeger, top twelve in both the 200 and 500 freestyle. All of the relay teams made finals and placed well.

Boys' Tennis Finishes Second In League

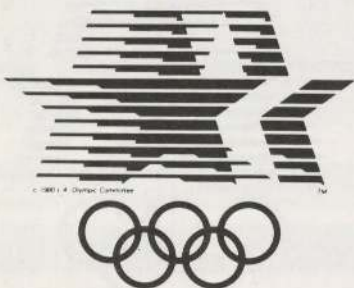

The Hart tennis team completed a very successful season finishing second in the Foothill League with a 7-3 record. The Indians competed in the play-offs for the first time in two years. Their overall record was 13-7.

In singles sophomore Jamey Mac Mullen had a great season finishing with a 32 and 6 record. Jamey also was one of the two singles representatives for the Foothill League in the CIF's individual's tournament.

The great doubles team of Loi Dam and Dennis Kuhn proved themselves one of the best as they over powered their opponents winning 33 out of 40 matches. Loi, a four year letterman, was the only senior on the young team.

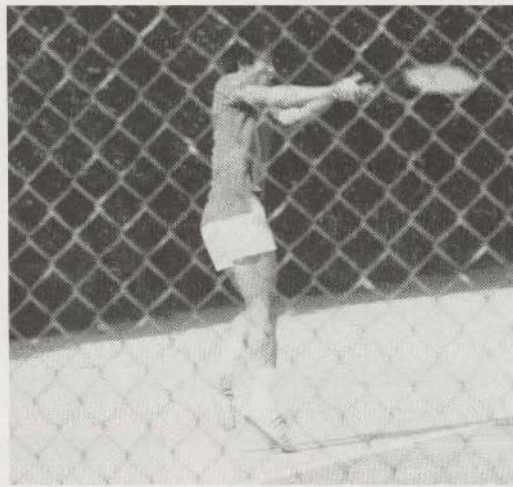

Bret Silverman came on strong in the second half to even some crucial points. Tuan Dam, the most improved player, finished the season defeating several number one players.

Reid Nichol became a steady singles and doubles player winning in clutch situations. John Beeby was a steady player with his fearsome serve and tough forehand. Also having a fine year were Hoi Dam, Alex Pecel, and Kyle Thomas.

Winning In The Last Minutes

The Hart varsity boys' soccer team had a difficult time winning the Foothill League Championship, securing the title with an undefeated 9-0-3 record. But the hardest part was each individual game. Most games were won in the last few minutes, by only one or two points. When the smoke cleared from Hart's onslaught, Mike Harvey, Shawn Bullock, Keith Kemsley, Mark Mariska, Fernando Fontal, Robert Benevidez, and Jeff Natter were chosen for the All-League Teams. Named by the Signal as the MVP of the All-Valley Soccer Squad was Mike Harvey.

The team strode to the CIF playoffs and advanced to the second round. Mike Harvey and Shawn Bullock were chosen for the All-CIF Teams.

The girls' team also had a successful season. Finishing first in the Golden League with a 7-0-1 record, the team qualified for the CIF 3-A Championships. Winning the first round against Sonora, 1-0, they traveled to Simi Valley to battle Royal, but were defeated. Selected to the All-Golden League team were Dawn Kapp, Ingrid Penuela, Kim Barnett, Michele Pitchford, Kathy Craig, Lisa Enger, and Heather Hauser.

By anyone's standards, the 1983-1984 soccer teams were some of the most successful in the history of the sport at Hart.

The Game For Fame

Before the season even started, Hart's varsity boys' basketball team was making plans. The team, headed by seniors Steve Mehr, David Strauss, Mark Ensing, Ken Bricker, Darryl Ingram and Tim Burke; and juniors Kevin Honaker, Dirk Hare, Greg Spencer, Russell Klehn, Brian Martin Matt Freeman, and Paul Kendall; spurred by Hart's long-standing reputation for success, vowed to carry on the winning tradition, making a name for itself and for Hart in both the Foothill League and C.I.F. Championships.

The team succeeded. Not only did it win the Foothill League Championship with an impeccable record of ten wins and no losses, but it advanced to the second round of the C.I.F. play offs. The team was featured in newspapers all over the southland. It was rated fourth in the San Fernando area by the Daily News and fifth in the final C.I.F. ratings. Five of its players, Steve Mehr, Mark Ensing, David Strauss, Dirk Hare, and Kevin Honaker, were selected for the Foothill All-League team. Small wonder; the teams' Foothill League record and overall record were the best that Hart had seen since 1958. The average winning margin for each game played in the Foothill League games was twenty-one points. No other team participating in the league games even came close. Besides, the basketball team had succeeded in conquering cross-town rivals Canyon and Saugus. If this wasn't reason enough for fame, then what was?

Experience Gained

When the girls' varsity basketball team started its season in the winter of 1983, it had only two senior players. It was what coaches call a "young team."

But what the team lacked in experience it made up for with enthusiasm and group spirit. The addition of a new coach, Randy Yamanouye; two sophomores, Gina La Mantia and Wendy De Boer; and two returning players from the 1982 CIF team, Monica Burke and Kim Flowers, boosted the team's spirit and lent some new blood to the team.

Awards were given to several players for their exceptional performances. The recipients of these awards were:

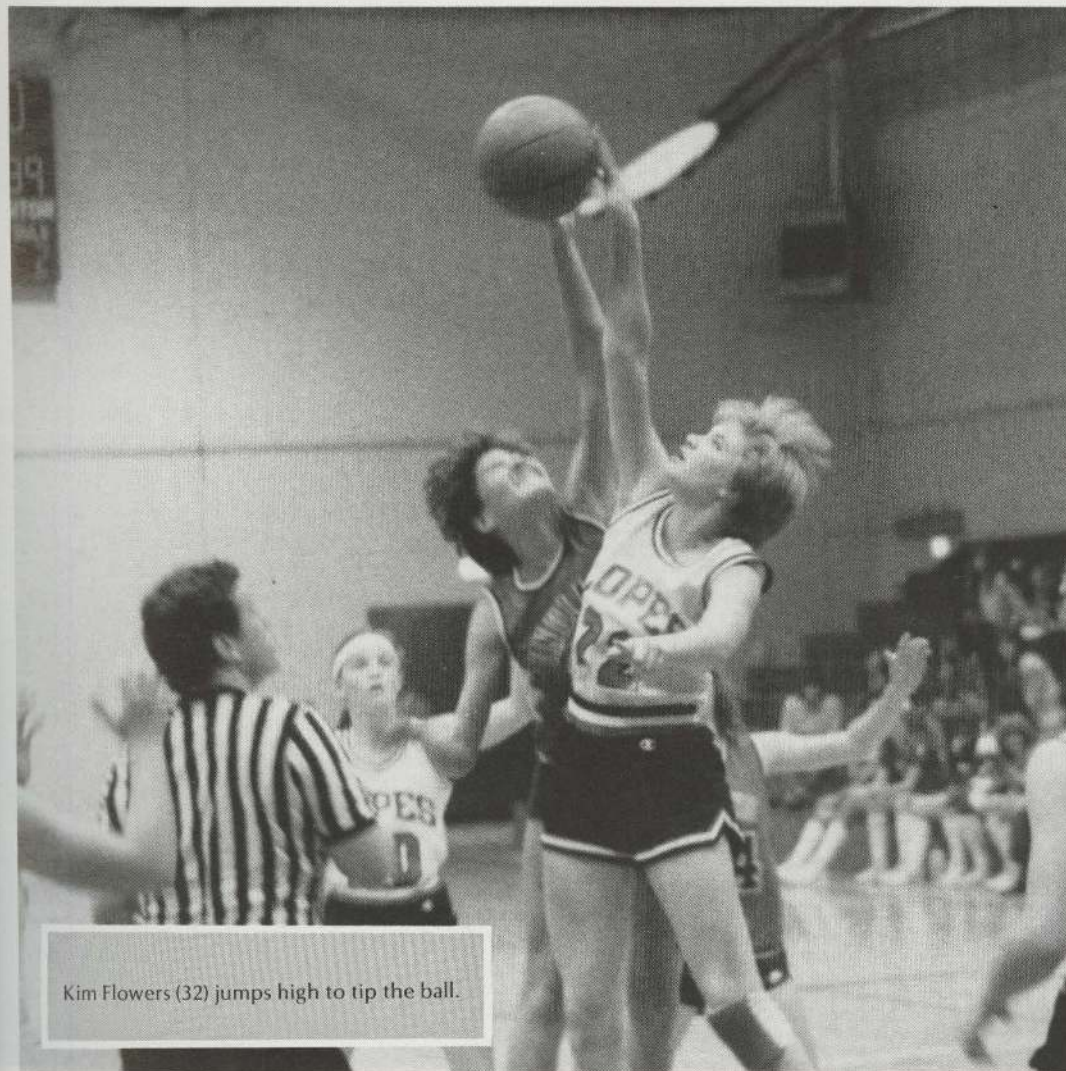

Most Inspirational — Julie Edwards

M.V.P. — Kim Flowers and Monica Burke

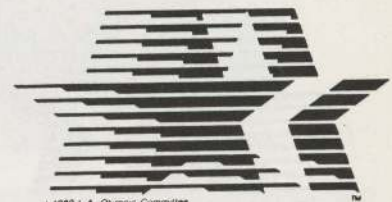

Best Defense — Lori Faucett

Most Rebounds — Jill Daniels

The team participated in both the Antelope Valley Tournament and the Hoover Tournament, in addition to many exciting games. Though the team was not always victorious, it picked up much valuable experience that it planned to draw upon in the future.

More Than Just Classes

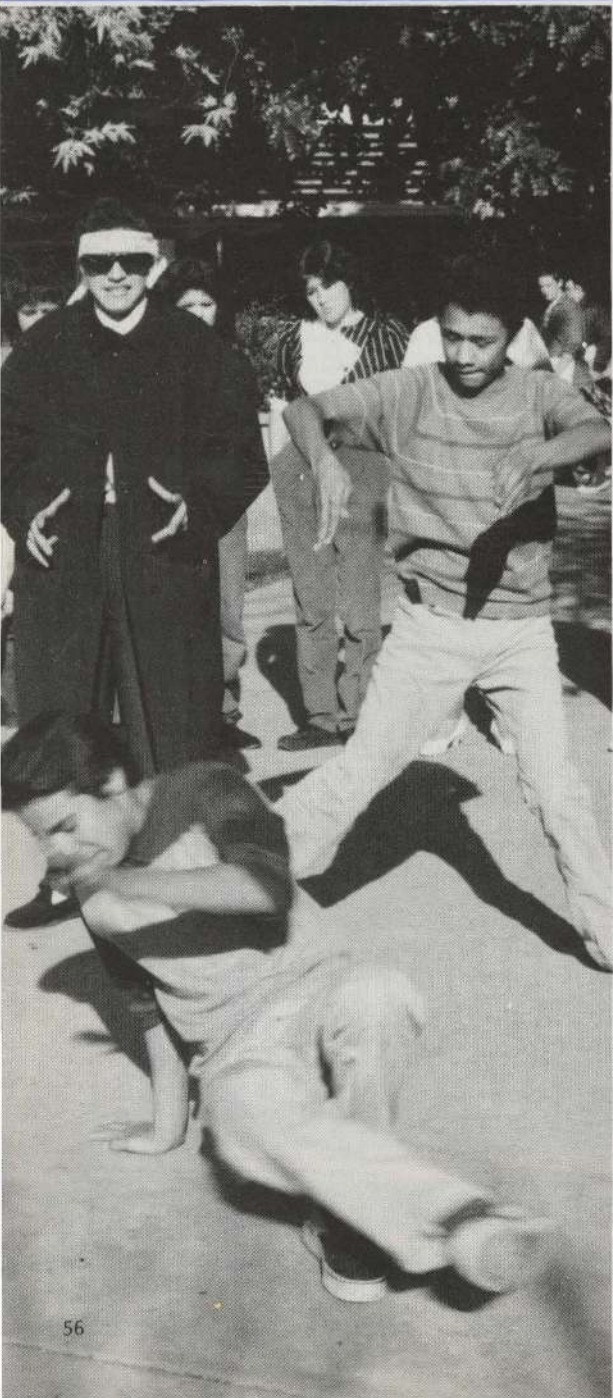

There is more to school than grades and classes was a familiar phrase uttered by Hart students desperately trying to explain poor report cards to parents. Luckily for them, the twenty-four extra-curricular clubs that Hart offered provided some evidence for their allegations.

Many established clubs, such as C.S.F. and F.B.L.A., went about increasing memberships, taking trips and competing for awards, and collecting money. Hart's infant clubs, namely War-games and Trivial Pursuit corps, spent their time enjoying the scenery of the illustrious F-33 where they met, not caring about roll call, constitutions, fundraisers and the like. Two enterprising seniors, Shawn Capistrano and Alexandra Stephens, took matters into their own hands when they found their Smoke Signal staffless and advisorless in the '83-'84 school year and Hart students read the best newspapers in their high school careers.

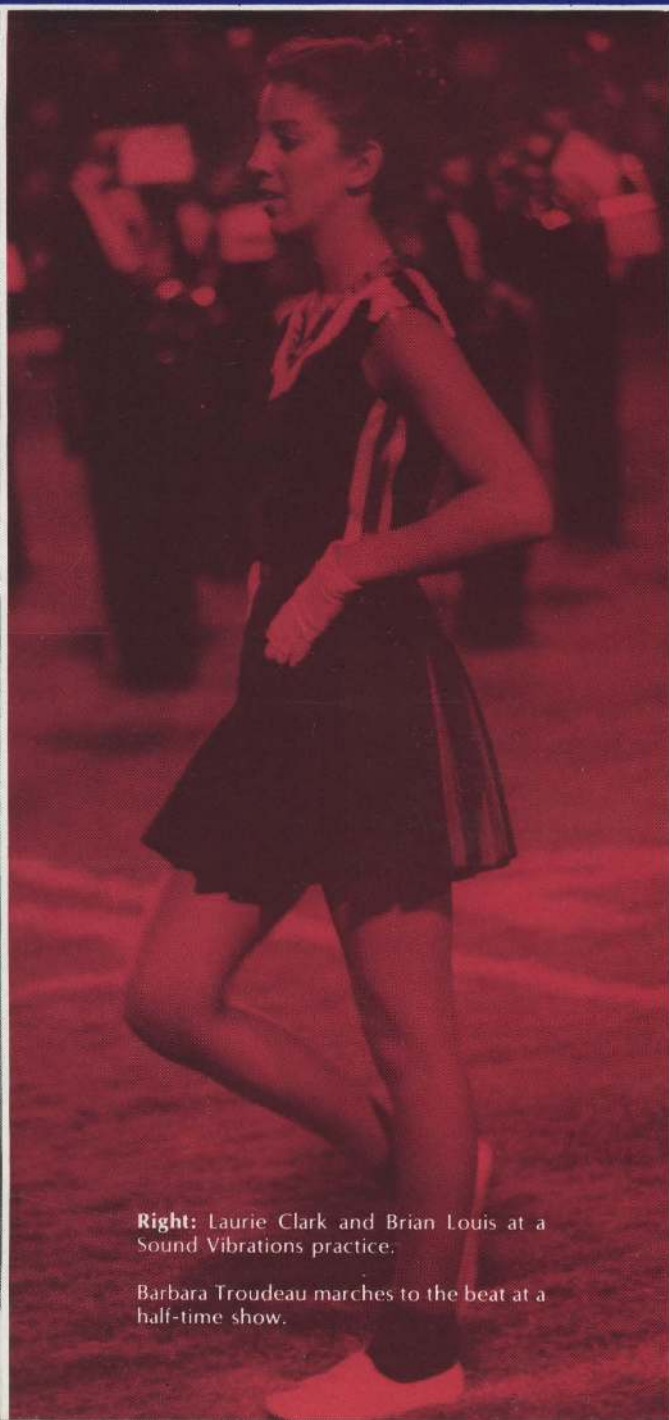

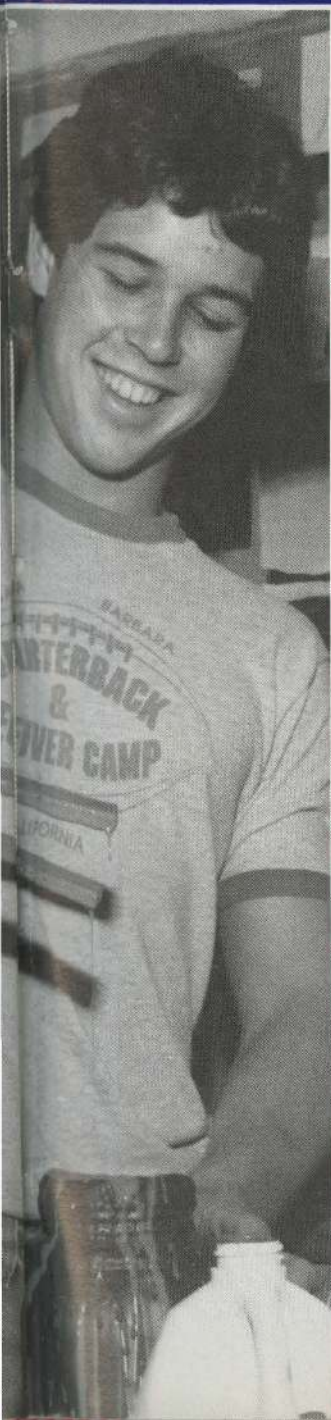

Other organizations — the Band, Flag Team, Drill Team, Pep Squad, Choir, and Drama Club — spent many hard hours practicing, competing, performing. The highly successful entertainment unit, the Redskin Regiment, performed at many football game half-times and competed in local contests to its theme — Collage. And the Drama Club presented two excellent plays, Murder on the Nile, and The Other You, for the student body's enjoyment.

Leadership And Prestige Together Again

Question: In 1984, which two organizations held the most activities and the most prestige?

Answer: ASB and FBLA. Both organizations, with the support of the entire student body, enjoyed a successful and profitable year.

ASB, which met every Wednesday at lunch under the direction of Mr. Dick Louis, sponsored its customary dances, class competitions, and dress-up days with its usual flair. The pajama Dress-up day was especially memorable. But even more memorable than the the traditional ASB activities were the unusual events that ASB planned for the student body. Some of the events, such as the ASB election assembly, the CIF team breakfasts, the CADA leadership conference, and Sprolic Week, had been held in past years by earlier ASB officers. Many other events however - such as the addition of a Historian to the Executive Board, the revision of the school constitution and the sponsoring of a Homecoming Parade - had no precedents.

FBLA, advised by Mr. Tony Grande, boasted eighty-seven paid members in 1984. Members of FBLA were introduced to the concepts of the business world through bake sales, at which caramel apples, rice krisies and brownies were sold, chocolate sales and jewelry sales. Throughout the school year, FBLA members attended FBLA conferences and competitions to increase their understanding of business. While the officers attended an officer training conference in Fresno to learn more about time management, office duties, parliamentary procedures and the history of FBLA, other members of FBLA participated in a Southern Section competition in La Palma. Yet others attended a state conference in Sacramento. FBLA activities weren't limited to sales, conferences, and competitions. Members of FBLA participated in ice cream socials and field trips, too.

Hot Off The Press

"woosh-thwack!" "Puff, puff, puff."

Many students have wondered through the year what these strange sounds signified. Obviously, or not so obviously, they signified the arrival of the Tomahawk yearbook and the Smoke Signal school paper.

The Tomahawk staff labored all year to compile a comprehensive yearbook. On deadline days, the room was a flurry of activity. Between deadlines, though, life was different. To furnish pictures for sections, staff members posed in summer clothes with beach paraphernalia and battled in Trivial Pursuit.

It was a year for records, too. 1000 copies of the 83-84 Tomahawk were sold. Two periods devoted their time to producing the yearbook, and with over 3000 pictures to include, the yearbook staff was kept busy working.

The Smoke Signal, after being retired during 1983, was reinstated this year. Advised by two parents, Marianne Grossman and Howard Kraye, the paper staff met at members' homes and worked completely on their own. Editor-in-chiefed by Shawn Capistrano and Alexandra Stephens, The Smoke Signal was run solely by students.

The format was modified to be more newspaperly and the first and Senior editions were on newsprint. The new tradition of student control and writing was left as a tribute to the supportive Hart staff, and as a goal for younger students.

Capturing The Spirit Stick

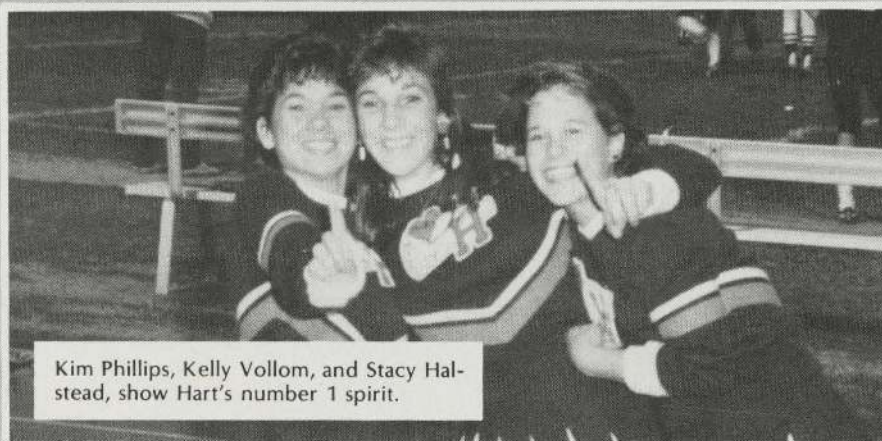

Once again, Hart's pep squad greatly contributed to the spirit of the school. Directed by Mrs. Jill Schenberger, the squad practiced from 7:00 am until 8:00 am before school everyday. Mrs. Schenberger, in her first year as pep squad advisor, emphasized supporting all athletic events. She also emphasized uniformity during moves.

The pep squad attended a three-day National Spirit Association camp at Pepperdine University, where they captured the Spirit Stick. At camp the squad also learned a routine to "Ease On Down The Road", which they later performed at a rally. Besides designing new uniforms, the pep squad made posters and held fund raisers. They created a new routine for the fight song, something that hadn't been done for eight years.

Tryouts were in spring, with the squad performing January to January. Hopefuls performed original and traditional routines, gymnastics and cheers. No longer did the songleaders exist. The cheerleader reigned supreme.

Jump, Shout and Boogie

For an average of five hours a day, the Drill Team grouped to rehearse drills. Though few students envied the team's rigorous schedule, the members of the 1983-84 Drill Team adhered to it faithfully, realizing that the time they spent practicing would reflect favorably upon them in the many competitions and performances of the year.

The first competition of the year, held at Simi High, was fairly successful. It was there that the team secured a third place award. The Drill Team's second competition was held at Cal Poly, where again, the team was awarded with a third place trophy. During the team's third and final competition at Bakersfield College, the Drill Team ranked first in its division, winning a second place trophy for its overall performance.

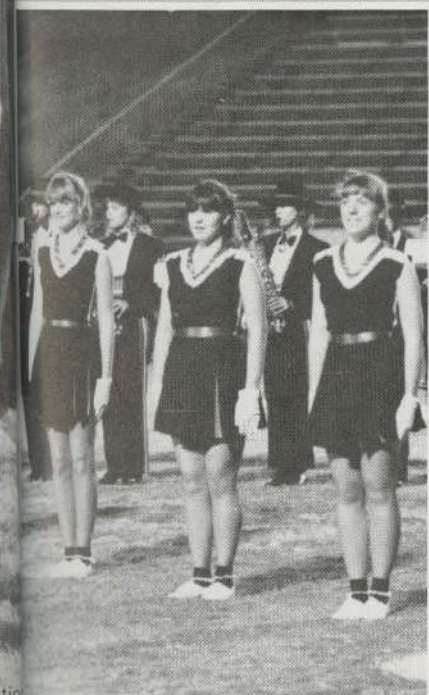

Competitions were not the only events in which Drill Team members performed. Before school started, the team traveled to Santa Barbara to participate in a three-day U.S.A. Camp. There, the Drill Team garnered an Excellent Banner for its execution of a routine called, "Jump, Shout, Boogie," and a superior award for each individual's routine. Later in the year, Beth Stabile, a first year member, was chosen to represent Hart at the National Miss Drill Team U.S.A. Competition. Of course, the Drill Team performed at various rallies and games throughout the year.

In 1984, the Drill Team took a weekend trip to San Diego. In order to finance this trip, the team sold See's Suckers to Hart students. Without a doubt, the Drill Team enjoyed a busy, exciting, and profitable year. As Drill Team President Cathi Virden said, "We've done a lot this year. It's been a real learning experience."

Perseverance Pays Off

In 1984, most performing groups were content to sell M&M's or See's suckers for their fundraisers.

The flag team was the one exception. To raise money for its uniforms and trips, the team sold candles, turkey raffle tickets, hot dogs and fruitcakes, as well as the customary cartons of coated candy. It also sponsored paper drives and supplied refreshments to hungry and thirsty guests at T.B.A.

The imagination and many hours of hard work that were funneled into the Flag Team's routines resulted in many awards and honors for the team. At the summer Flag Team camp in Santa Barbara, the team was awarded with a superior trophy, a spirit award, and a second-place award for the routine that they took to camp with them. Later, at the Cal Poly competition in November and at the Simi Valley competition in October, the team marched off with second-place honors. It was at the Bakersfield College competition that the team won a first-place trophy. This was one of the Flag Team's most successful seasons ever.

Gaining An Awareness Of Foreign Cultures

In 1984, while Los Angeles was preparing for the Olympic Games, Hart students, surrounded by foreign films, foods and fiction, were gaining an awareness of foreign cultures. Many of these students, who had been studying foreign languages, became members of special foreign language clubs on campus, such as Nosotros Unidos, the Spanish Honor Society and the Societe Honoraire de Francais.

Nosotros Unidos, sponsored by Mrs. Maria Lacy, was mainly comprised of students of Mexican-American background. The students held car washes and bake sales during the year to raise money for club sweatshirts. In December, the club collected over 4000 food items for the annual Canned Food Drive, an achievement that clearly reflected the club's spirit.

The Spanish Honor Society was intended to bring motivated students in Spanish classes together. The club, advised by Mrs. Maria Carlson, planned many successful events for its members, such as the Candlelight Ceremony held on May 9.

The Circle Honoraire De Francais was made up of students who had completed at least two years of French. Under the supervision of Mr. Bill Hughes, this group organized trips to Los Angeles to view French movies. Members of the group also collaborated on monthly French gourmet dinners.

Honors And Service

The California Scholarship Federation, commonly known as CSF, had an outstanding year in membership. One hundred and fifty-three students met the tough requirements for membership. Led by officers Adam Yofan, Bob Brown, Michele Samuels, and Christine Smith, CSF served the community, tutoring students of all ages, and helping out with the school paper's distribution.

The annual CSF pilgrimage to Disneyland was, as usual, a success. Approximately fifty members and guests attended, and despite the gusty weather, had a splendid time. They returned home with Mickey Mouse sweatshirts and dozens of photographs. The pilgrims arrived home at 2:30 a.m. exhausted and stuffed with junk food, but delighted.

Student League, advised by Mrs. Peggy Stabile, was responsible for the Homecoming half-time show, the Winter Formal, and the Tea and Fashion show. The League was led by president Michele Samuels, vice-president Christine Smith, secretary Laurie Gonzales, historian Kim Flowers, and treasurer Michelle Maker.

For the courts, the League tallied student votes, arranged for an M.C., and organized the coronation. The League worked hand-in-hand with the Senior class on the Winter Formal, transforming the gym into a beautiful dance room.

The League also produced the Tea and Fashion Show. Boy and Girl of the Year were announced, and fashions from local shops were displayed. The show was emceed by Mrs. Ruth Baker and Mrs. Lori Huenink. Thanks to Student League, the event was a success.

Spirit, Imaginations, and Ingenuity

What do you get when you add a little imagination and a dash of spirit to a pinch of ingenuity? Hart students got three exciting clubs — the Drama Club, the Chess Club, and Conflict Simulation.

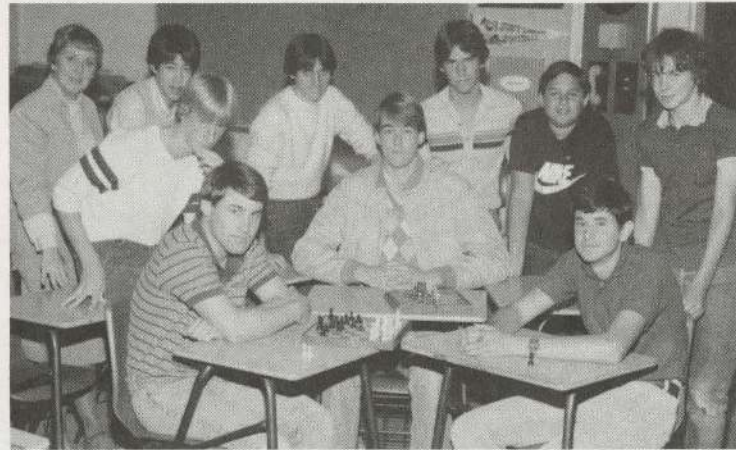

The three clubs enjoyed a faithful following in 1984. The Drama Club, which presented a rendition of "Murder on the Nile" and "The Other You," boasted the addition of many new members. Advised by Mrs. Elsie Smith, some of the members went to Washington High School in Los Angeles to compete in a Shakespeare Festival in April. They returned to Hart with a plaque commemorating their performance.

The Chess Club began when several friends began placing wagers on chess games. Soon after, the club expanded to include about ten members. All over campus, people could be seen bent in concentration over chess boards.

Conflict Simulation attracted Dungeons and Dragons fanatics and the players of other imagination/adventure games. At lunch, the club members gathered in F-33. It was not uncommon for a member of Conflict Simulation to be a member of the Chess Club, too. After all, both chess and Dungeons and Dragons provided their players with the challenge of "out-thinking the other guy."

Demanding Season Captures Audiences

Purple, pink, red, blue, fushia, green—the vibrant colors instantly captured the audience's attention. Sound Vibrations had arrived. Along with the glowing colors came a dramatic change in appearance and sound. Conservative three-piece uniforms and tuxedos with tails were left behind, and replaced by more daring one piece dresses and comfortable slacks and ties.

Sound Vibes' demanding season opened on January 3 with a half-time performance at a Hart vs. Saugus varsity baseball game. And at the first competition on January 13, a third place trophy was captured—the first trophy in two years.

In February, the singers performed at Town and Country Preschool delighting the youngsters by dancing with them.

And on March 22 and 23, surrounded by a nightclub atmosphere, Sound Vibes and the Chieftains gave their TBA spring performance. The Sound Vibe's Theme, soloed by Debbie Zielke and Brian MacKenzie started the evening off, followed by "Then Came You," and "It's the Talk of the Town," soloed by Stacy Ward. "Blue Moon," "See You in September" (performed A cappella), and "Flashdance," soloed by Stacey Rasmussen. "Get Up" was accompanied and Sound Vibes shared the stage to perform "Little Girl Blue", soloed by Laurie Clark, and "What'll I Do?", soloed by Stacey Rasmussen. Sound Vibes closed out the season with a combined performance with Concert Choir on June 7.

Choir Members Earn Varsity Letters

This year's Hart Concert Choir decided on a new look to match its new image. To promote a more formal appearance, choir members voted that girls would wear black taffeta gowns with red sashes and guys would dress in black tie.

The new image proved successful; this year, at the Cuesta Jazz Festival, the Concert Choir captured third place honors—the first place trophy our choir had ever won. At Cuesta, the chorus sang a variety of numbers—"Blue Skies", "Over the Rainbow", "String of Pearls", and "R-A-G-G-M-O-P-P—Ragmop!" Soloists for the event were Brian Lewis and Vic Casas in "Blue Skies", and Stacey Rasmussen in "Over the Rainbow." Other events in the year's course were the Fullerton Jazz Festival, the SCVA Festival, Open House, Spring Concert and the culmination of the choir's hard work—the baccaalaureate services.

Matt Reader and Stacy Rasmussen, respective presidents of the boys' and girls' choirs, also lobbied in front of the ASB office for a good cause—varsity letters for hardworking members. Obviously they presented a convincing case, as many choir members were later seen proudly wearing their letterman's jackets.

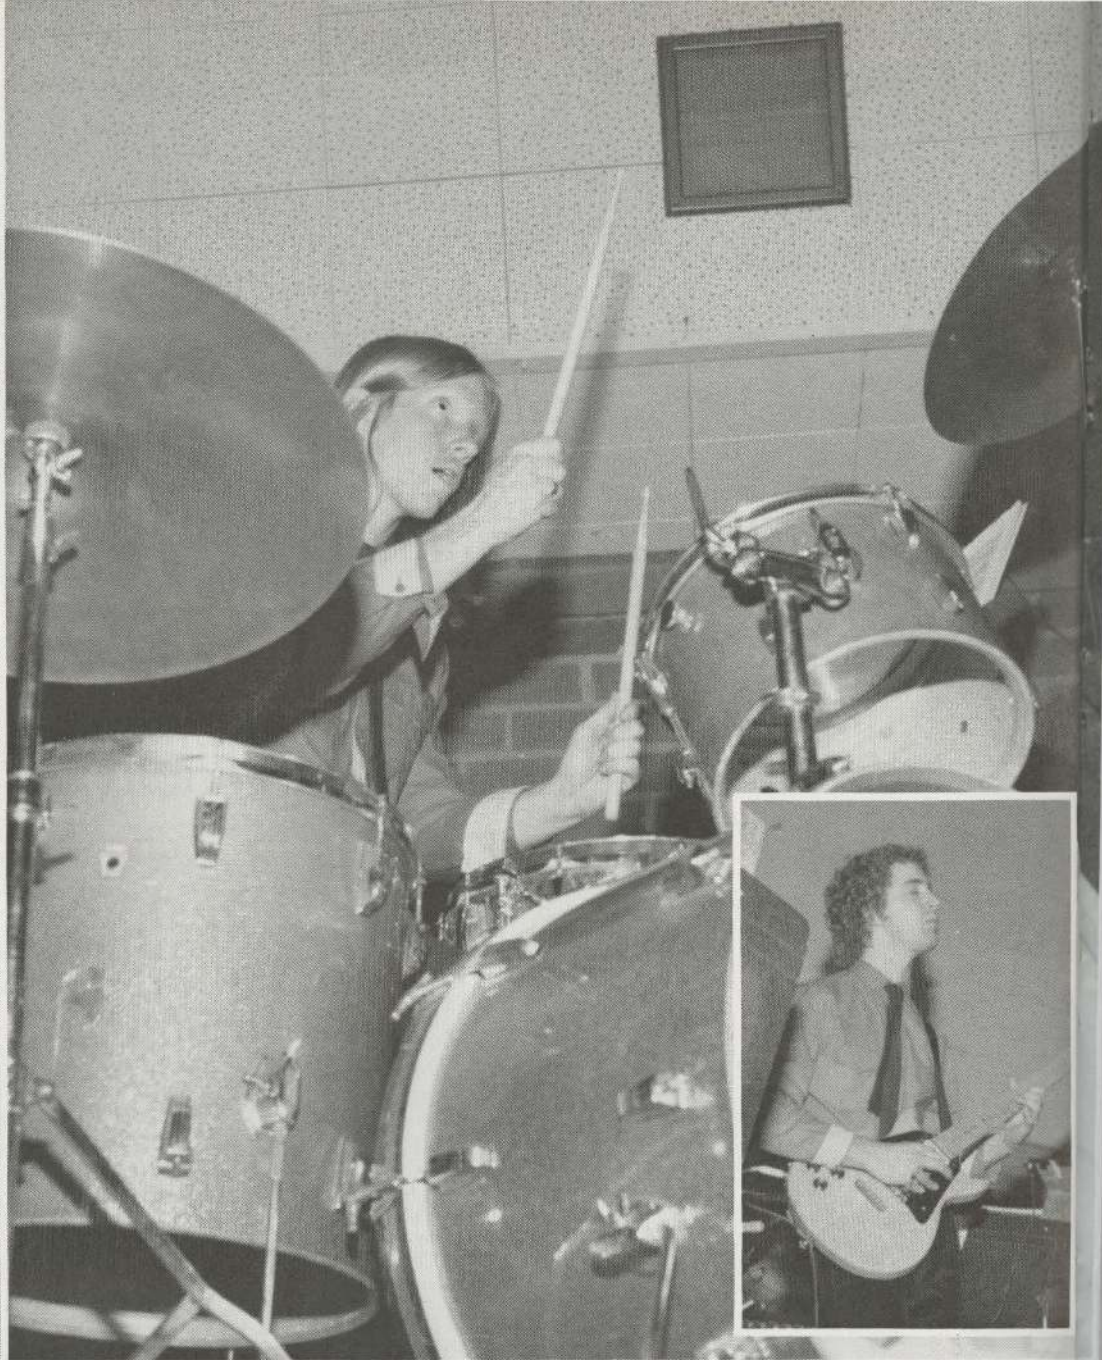

Super Jazz Band Does It Again

After assembling the seven returning members of the Chieftains, Mr. Thornton searched high and low for eight more talented musicians to round out Hart's own jazz ensemble.

Reconstruction began; Mr. Thornton once again worked toward molding his Chieftains into the awe-inspiring "SUPER JAZZ BAND" it had been in past years.

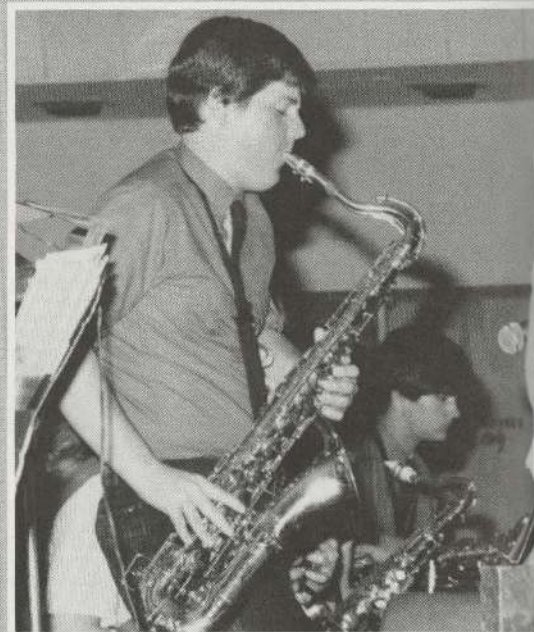

After a late start and several hundred hours of lip-breaking work, the Chieftains arrived. The night was Thursday, March 22. The performers, though nervous, sizzled through their numbers. The full-house audience responded appreciatively. TBA was one of the year's most successful events.

Two nights later, the young Indian band ventured north to Chaffey College for its biggest competition of the year. The hard-working musicians performed well, but their lack of experience proved to be their only obstacle. The Chieftains placed fourth. As the year progressed, the Chieftains continued to strive for the performing excellence that only professionals attain.

Redskin Regiment Returns

Although band membership dropped with the graduation of many seniors, and Mother Nature rained on more than one parade, the Hart High Redskin Regiment, under the direction of Mr. Larry Thornton, pulled through to make the season a great one.

The first competition of the year, the Simi Valley Music Festival, proved to be an educational experience for the band members. It was there that the importance of togetherness became truly apparent. As the band had done the previous year, it placed fourth in the competition. At Cal Poly Pomona, two weeks later, the band placed fourth again; quite a feat, considering the number of entertainment unit members that succumbed to injuries. The culmination of the season came on December 20, 1983, at Bakersfield College, when the Redskin Regiment placed above other bands in its division, also sweeping the Majorette Category, won by Kelly Gratland, and the I.D. Unit, won by Stacey Ward and Laurie Clark. This competition was the most successful one in recent history, a fitting end to a successful season.

Academic Excellence

In 1980, the school board reduced the academic load for students from six periods to five. In 1984, the school board announced that it would soon return to the full six period day for the class of 1986.

Despite such play with schedules, Hart's five faculty maintained the standard of academic excellence Hart is known for. Hart's students once again proved the teaching abilities of the staff by scoring well above the 90th percentile on the California Assessment Program Tests. In addition to this achievement, many seniors displayed their academic prowess by applying to colleges. Christine Smith ruined the perfect membership record of the Stanford Rejection Club by being accepted at the prestigious university. Hart proved beyond anyones shadow of a doubt that Hart's academic program is unequalled in the district by trouncing rivals Saugus and Canyon in the first annual tri-school "Battle of the Brains."

As evidenced, Hart had truly superior academic programs. Thanks to hard working teachers and harder working students, it reached a level of excellence that gave every indication of continuing in the future.

Foreign Foods, Computers, Contests, Skits And Movies

Hart's English and Foreign Languages Departments were definitely ones to be proud of.

The English Department, as proved by the previous year's State test score results, was rated as one of the best in California. One reason was the addition of the new Enriched Program, giving Hart a four level English Department!

Teachers used ingenious methods of instruction; Mrs. Warren, the Humanities teacher, had students write and perform skits exemplifying concepts taught in class, while Mrs. B.J. Smith, Mythology teacher, showed recent movies of classic plot on a VHS system. Mrs. Huenink, Speech, CPEG, and Advanced Composition teacher, prepared students for speech and writing contests such as the Optimist and the Bill of Rights contests. And, the English Department added an Apple II computer for both teacher and student work!

Four years were offered in both Spanish and French, and many special activities took place during the year.

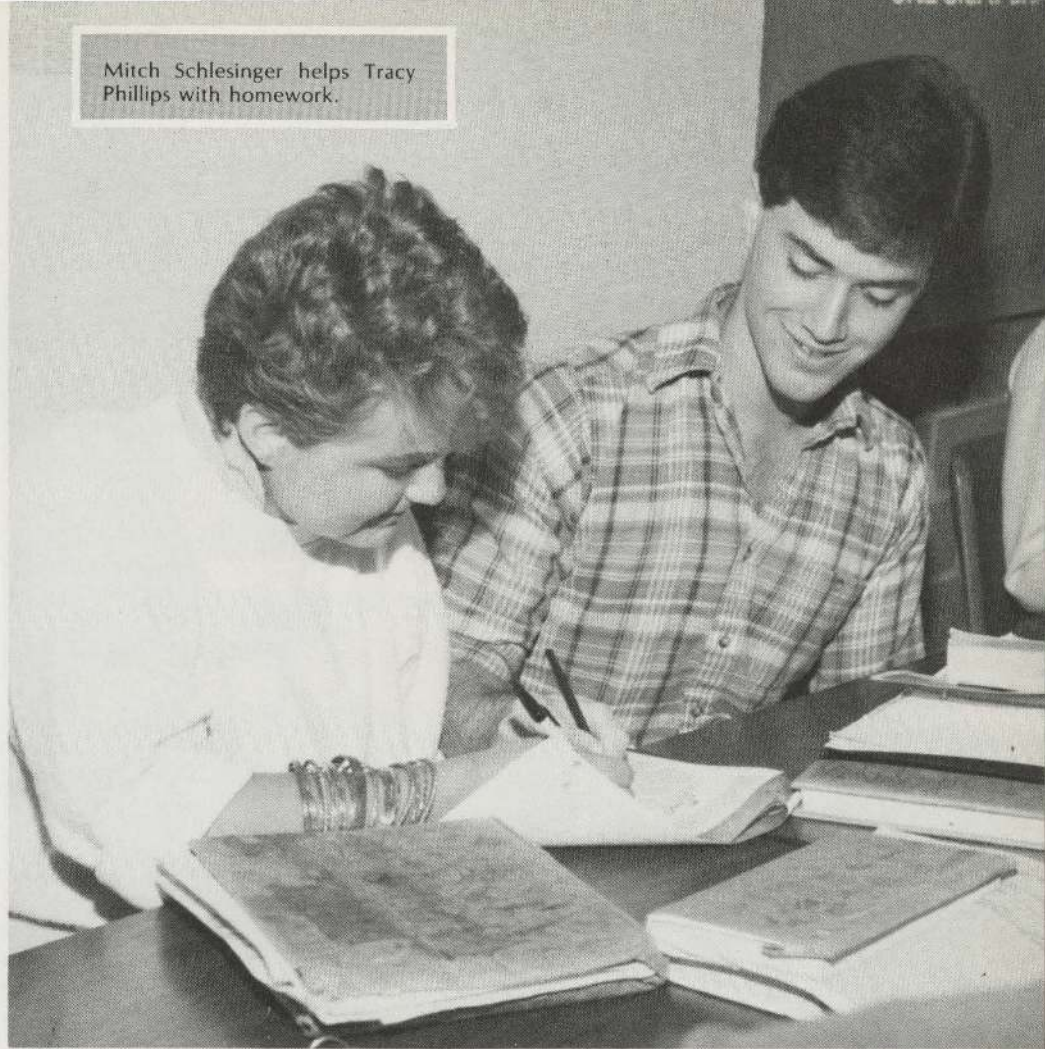

Five exchange students representing "Youth for Understanding," two from Sweden and one each from Switzerland, Chile, and Brazil, spoke to classes about their countries in Mrs. Carlson's classes, while Mrs. B. Smith's classes were famous for their singing. The Spanish Honor Society held its induction ceremony in May, and during Open House, all three classes offered homemade Spanish cuisine, one class presenting a restaurant complete with Spanish menus and food, a guitar player, and a dancer!

The French Department, not to be outdone had a French Honor Society, which met to enjoy authentic French cuisine.

Fine Variety Of Fine Arts

In 1984, students were required to enroll in at least one semester-long fine arts course. Hart's Art and Music Departments offered students a wide variety of such courses from which to choose.

The Art Department boasted classes in two areas: two and three dimensional art. Experience in Art, taught by Miss Mary Ann Guho, was geared toward students with no art background. In this class, students were given "hands-on" experience with a variety of media — cartooning, calligraphy, water-color, paper maché and pastel. In more advanced classes such as ceramics, instructed by Mr. David Hall, students were given additional experience in 3D art. Air-brushing on paper or on clay became a popular project among students enrolled in these advanced classes.

The Music Department offered classes dealing with both instrumental and choral music. Sound Vibrations, the choral/dance ensemble, and the Concert Choir, both directed by Miss Judy Starr, were immensely popular among students. The instrumental section of the Music Department was headed by Mr. Larry Thornton. This section consisted of the Jazz Ensemble, Marching Band and spring Symphonic Wind Ensemble. The Jazz Ensemble, known as the Chieftains, was open to all students with a keen interest in music who had previously performed with the Marching Band. The Marching Band was composed of students who had been selected from auditions during the summer. These students gathered every morning in the fall months to rehearse for half-time shows and competitions. In the spring, the Marching Band moved indoors to become the Symphonic Wind Ensemble. Students from each instrumental group were encouraged to audition for the district-wide Honor Band. Out of fifty-seven district members in the band, Hart members numbered thirty-three, a credit to Hart's fine Music Department.

New Honor Classes Offered In Math/Science Department

Hart's Math and Science Departments flourished with the influx of eager students, new and old.

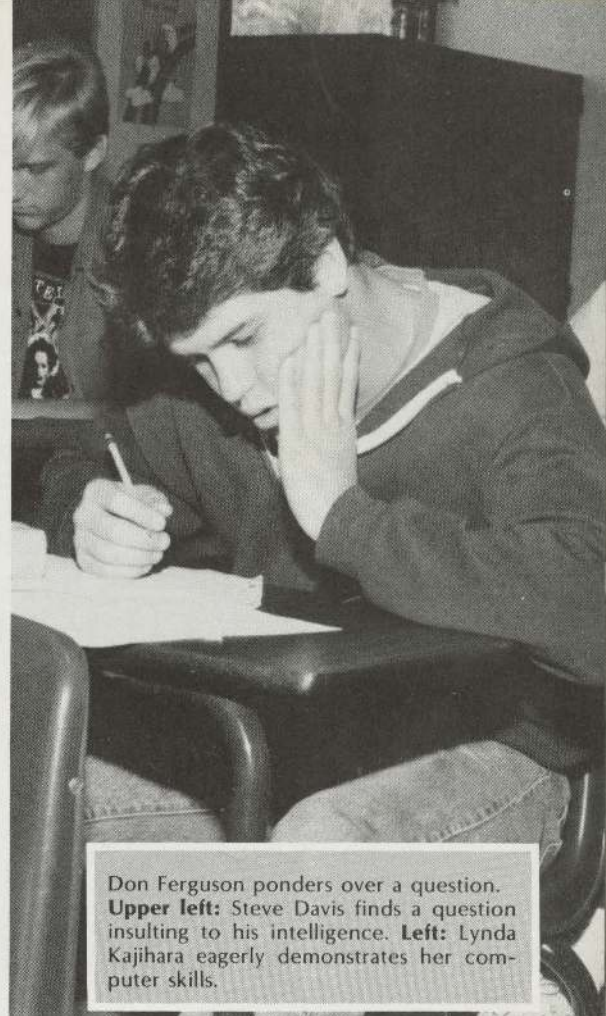

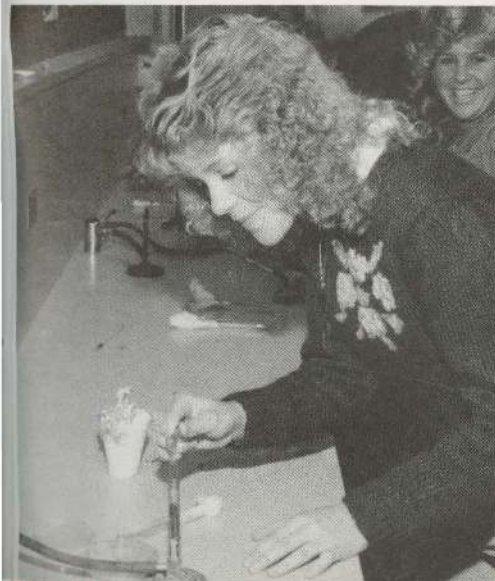

The math program saw the addition of geometry, advanced algebra/trigonometry, and math analysis honors courses, besides gaining an advanced placement calculus course. The department had three levels in which to place students, instead of placing students merely according to years of study. And the sounds of Mr. Mc Elroy explaining tests, Mr. Lund admonishing students to do homework, Mrs. Baker breaking up political debates, and students questioning Mr. Rose were heard often during the year, contributing to the learning atmosphere.

The Science Department offered basic classes and advanced classes, such as IPS, biology, chemistry, and physics. In IPS, Mr. Keil dazzled his students with a display of old-fashioned alchemy, while biology students grew cultures of mold and studied them. Meanwhile, Mr. Leth's physics students used a toy bulldozer to determine instantaneous speed.

A minimum of one semester of Practical Arts was required for graduation, but Hart's wide variety made the choice of only a single class hard. Students had to choose from classes in typing, recordkeeping, shorthand and California survival, not to mention the new word processing class offered on Computers. Drafting, woodshop and metal shop were some other choices offered.

Hart also expanded its Regional Occupational Program (ROP), enabling students to learn the entry-level skills needed to obtain a job. Over one hundred students were enrolled in the classes, in which they earned credits toward graduation while learning a trade. In addition to formal classroom instruction, local businesses provided students with "real" and current on-the-job training through the community classroom concept. Students learned hotel operations at The Ranch House Inn, banking occupations at Security Pacific Bank, Newhall, and child care in several local nursery schools and day care centers. After completion of a course, students received a certificate that listed all achievements.

The varied courses offered made fulfilling the Practical Arts requirement a rewarding and enjoyable experience for the students of Hart.

Activities Improve

The 1983-84 school year was one of change for the activities program at Hart. In addition to perennial favorites - after-game dances, spirit rallies, assemblies, theme days, fundraisers - Hart's ASB created a few new activities.

To start out the year on a pleasant note, a Welcome-to-Hart breakfast was staged for new students. This event was designed to make transferring students feel a little more comfortable on the first day at a new school. Soon after, Hart sponsored a parade; the ultimate event of Homecoming week. The first-ever procession drew a large crowd and proudly boasted bands — an accomplishment no other parade in the valley shared. Near the end of the semester, the student body elected its new officers. This year, however, elections were run a bit differently. Candidates gave speeches and were available at lunches to answer any students' questions. The elections proved to be a memorable, outstanding event that had a pronounced effect on every student at Hart.

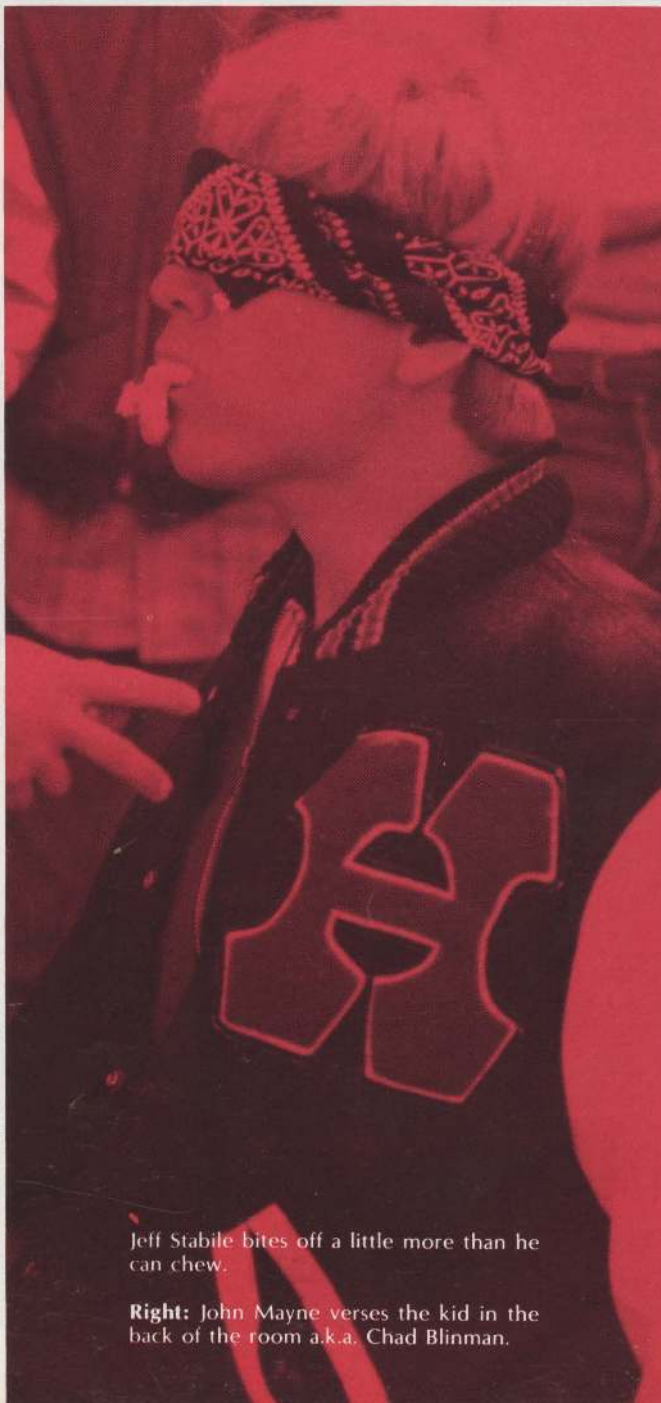

Once in office, the new ASB went about improving communications with the new student body, thereby improving activities. Every Friday a new brunch activity would storm unsuspecting students. Sprolic week, a spring-time week of non-stop activity, was another successful event. All in all, this year's activities showed vast improvement over last years, and would hopefully continue improving in the future.

Elegance And Style Characterize Winter Formal

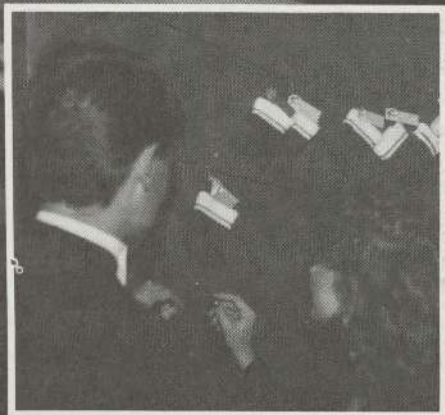

The barely audible rustle of taffeta skirts on a dance floor. The tantalizing scent of spicy hor d'oeuvres or sugary confections. The sight of over three hundred happy couples chattering beneath a filagree of colored paper streamers. These were only some of the sights and sounds of the 1983 Winter Formal.

The Formal, incorporated all the elegance and style of past Formal Dances at Hart. Under the supervision of Mrs. Peggy Stabile and Mrs. Ruth Baker, the Student League and Senior Class officers transformed the large Hart gym,-by day, a white-washed, empty basketball court-into an elegant ballroom. Streamers hung from the gym ceiling. Lights were darkened. A huge Christmas tree was brought in. And on one wall of the gym, a mock fireplace was set up on which tiny stockings, containing candy canes for each guest, were hung.

Food for the hungry couples at the Formal was provided by the Blue Moon restaurant and Hart's own cafeteria staff. Tables at which students could sit and eat lined the back wall of the gym. On each table was a centerpiece. Students who did not feel like eating could dance to the steady beat of the band, "Head First," or have their pictures taken by the Alfred and Fabris Studios. When, at 10:30, the couples reluctantly left the Formal, they carried with them miniature stockings and remembrance books, embossed with the theme of the Formal, "Only You." Needless to say, they also carried with them memories that would last them a lifetime.

Preparation Pays Off For Rookies

Hoop-de-la, the first activity sponsored by the rookie class of 1987, was a tremendous success.

The freshman class in charge of the project (Karin Montgomery, Trever Edmond, Amy Silver, Sherri Allan and Kim Hosek) took some tips from the members of the sophomore class who had been in charge of Hoop-de-la the previous year. Weeks before the event, they began planning the halftime crowning ceremony. The ceremony, held during the basketball game against Schurr, lasted fifteen minutes. A platform was set in the center of the basketball court, surrounded by plants and flowers. Soon, the gym became quiet as former King, Glenn Brasher, and former Queen, Robyn Volloom led a procession of anxious court members to the platform. Princesses were presented with red and white carnations while their escorts received $10 gift certificates at Tempo Records.

Shortly after the King and Queen, Mike Harvey and Cloud Mysko, were crowned, the freshman officers cleaned the gym for the second half of the basketball game. The evening ended on a happy note when the varsity basketball team claimed an outstanding victory over Schurr.

Amy Silver, freshman class officer, remembered the event with a smile. "It was really scary to think we might not make it," she said, referring to the hectic weeks spent in preparation for the event. "But everybody said it looked great and we did a good job."

We've Got Tonight

As the limos rolled up to the Foyer of the Ambassador Hotel's Coconut Grove Room and the valets carefully parked freshly-washed cars on the hotel's lawn, the most exciting night of many Hart students lives began.

Most started the evening in line for pictures. After the obligatory pose was finished and students ate dinner, the real fun began. The "Press" was scheduled to play, but the band canceled. "Restless" replaced the "Press," and provided all with a steady beat to dance to.

At 10:00 p.m., the festivities temporarily halted for the coronation. Principal Mr. Strauss emceed, and after introducing the court, announced

Tom Bonds and Leilani Figilan the King and Queen. After the traditional court dance, the festivities resumed.

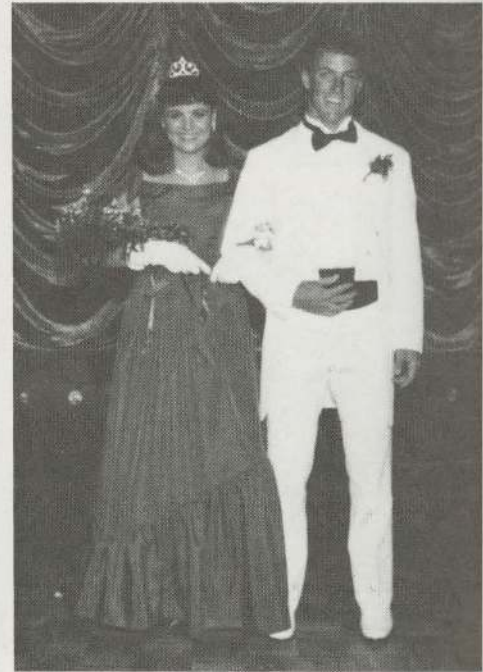

As students left the hotel for post-Prom activities, they took with them memories of an enchanted evening.

Student League Introduces New Spring Line

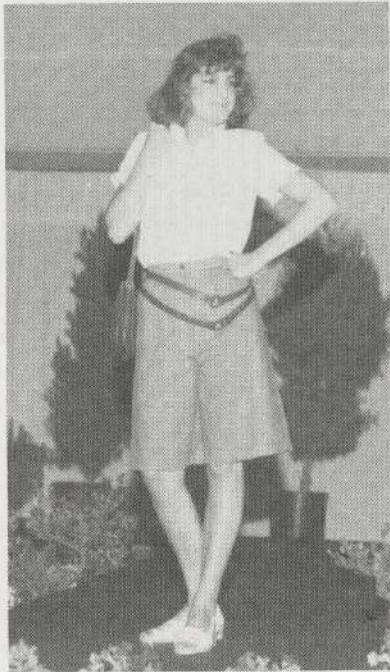

"Putting On The Ritz," was an appropriate title for the 36th annual Tea and Fashion Show sponsored by Student League. The gala began with a welcome from Michele Samuels, master of ceremonies. The Fashion Show was a smash. The models were poised and statuesque as they glided down the runway. The clothes, donated by local boutiques, ranged from summer casual to winter formal. The models' clothes were described by Jackie Holland as they made their way down the garden path. Next, the Boys and Girls of the month were announced by Mrs. Ruth Baker and

Mrs. Lori Huenink. The couples beamed from the riser which was set amidst a garden of shrubs and spring flowers. For the finale, the Boy and Girl of the year, Bruce Fuller and Christine Smith, were announced. Tea and cakes were served at the end of the very enjoyable evening.

Bleeding Hearts Give Blood

Bloodmobile this year was held on May 25, and the biggest one-day blood drive raised 166 units of blood, 6 more than the previous maximum of 160.

Jackie Holland and Drew Cubbage, the co-chairmen, organized a team of 35 captains who, in turn, solicited 10 donors each. Many of the would-be donors were turned away because of immunization problems or the intake would have been greater. According to Mr. Robert Henricks, the dean in charge of the drive, everybody was very cooperative, and noted that many of the donors were first-timers.

Hart beat crosstown rivals Canyon and Saugus by an average of 50 units. The most important aspect is that the blood the Indians raised can be used by members of the community, staff, and students.

Students Give Their Best Show For SCV

Seeking a change from the usual Friday night at the movies, many residents of the Santa Clarita Valley came to Hart to watch its students shine in TBA; the fall play, "Murder on the Nile;" and the spring play, "The Other You." They weren't disappointed.

TBA proved to be as fabulous as ever, studded with some new stars and some old songs. Performances by the Sound Vibrations and the Chieftains made the evening a memorable one.

The fall play, a murder mystery, was a great challenge for the Drama Club. With the addition of some new members, the play was a rousing success.

"The Other You" capped off the year with unforgettable lines, an imp in long underwear and a pie-in-the-face scene.

As it was, residents of SCV had the chance to watch Hart students perform on only three selected weekends. Had TBA and the plays been presented daily, local entertainment centers might have suffered losses.

Hart's Other Parking Lot

On May 17th, the fourth day of Sprolic Week, many students had trouble in telling the quad from the parking lot. Both were littered with an assortment of cars, trucks and students. What set the quad apart from the parking lot, however, was the presence of L'il John Lombardo's funny car, a ballot box and an enormous tow truck called the Tonka Truck. All had gathered at Hart for the fourth annual Car Show.

Student entries in the Car Show, sponsored by the ASB and Mr. Gary Newman, Auto Instructor, were judged in three areas. In the area of "Best Overall," the judges judged the cars inside and out. In the area of "Best Looking," they merely looked at the outside of the cars. In the area of "Most Popular," the students cast their votes for their favorite cars. The winners were:

Fun In The Sun

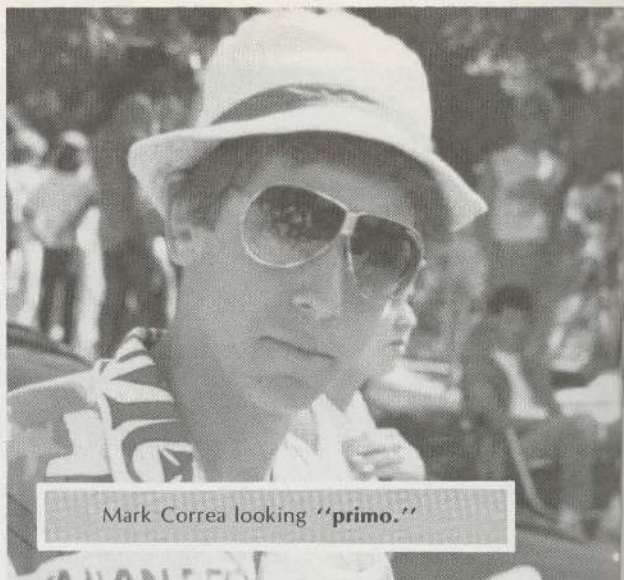

Sprolic Week was a tremendous success thanks to the planning of Jill Evans and Beth Stabile. Held May 14-18, the week was highlighted by sunny skies and theme days such as Toga, Tourist, Obnoxious, Beach, and 50's. People participated at brunch and lunch in a grape stuff, lawn chair sit, wheelchair race, saw a car show, an art show, and heard music by the band "Tamasha." It was a week that would be hard to follow in the years to come.

Once In A Lifetime-Homecoming

"Once in a Lifetime," Homecoming 1983, was an event of firsts. The ASB hosted a Homecoming Parade. The Student League added to an already elaborate half-time stage with plants and balloons. There were a variety of Homecoming Week events including dress-up days and a class competition, culminating with the election of King and Queen.

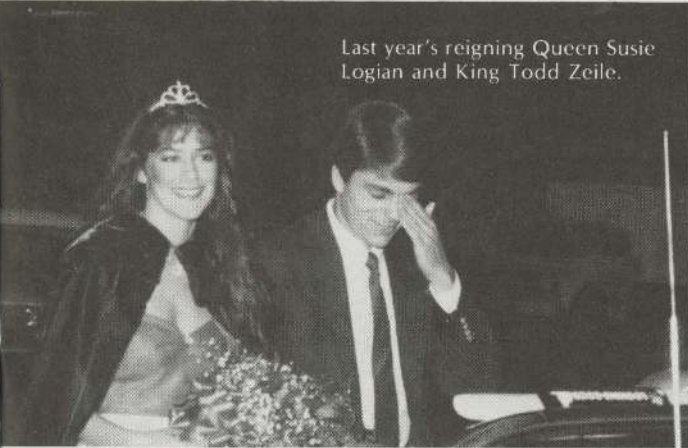

Some old traditions also continued with the return of alumni cheerleaders, football players, and band members. In fact, so many alumni returned for Homecoming that COC's stadium was practically "Standing Room Only."

Gentlemen in tails and ladies in lovely gowns graced the half-time as the court — crossed the football field to the coronation. Although half-time ran over-time and cost the football team fifteen yards, spirit was still high as Jeff Stabile and Nancy Louis were crowned King and Queen amid a shower of black and red balloons.

Pursuit Of Trivia

It spread more quickly than the common cold. It was more popular than a Cabbage Patch Kid. It was able to baffle geniuses with a single question. It was the Trivia Craze.

The game that started it — Trivial Pursuit — was created by two Canadians who were offered $20 million for the rights of a T.V. game show.

The original Genus Edition was at times impossible to obtain. It was mostly a matter of luck, as some toy stores had waiting lists of six hundred people. And though the game's price ranged from $24.50 to $34.50, it had been known to sell for over $100.00 during holiday seasons.

For two to twenty-four players, the Genus Edition had six categories of questions, blue/Geography, pink/Entertainment, yellow/History, Brown/Arts and Lit, green/Science and Nature, and orange/Sports and Leisure. To win, questions in all six categories had to be answered correctly. If someone won on his first turn, his opponents had a chance to tie.

Hart wasn't impervious to the Trivia Craze. The Trivia Club met twice a week, and once at the Battle of the Brainstormers, a trivia-type match between Hart, Saugus, and Canyon. There, Hart took top honors by soundly trouncing all her opponents with the small exception of the advisors, who, in turn, trounced Hart's student team.

The Hopefuls

Freshmen, whether on bike or on foot, travel everywhere in herds, and the class of '87 was no exception. They walked to lunch, going to Tommies, Carls Jr, Jack in the Box or Mac Farlane's. And when offered a ride by an upperclassmen, the freshmen traveled to Burger King, McDonalds, and Del Taco. They also adhered to all the latest fads, thus keeping Hart up-to-date on the fashion scene.

The freshmen were in charge of Hoop-de-la completely, too. They arranged the voting, organized the ceremony, and obtained crowns, flowers, and gift certificates for the Court. Hoop-De-La was a resounding success.

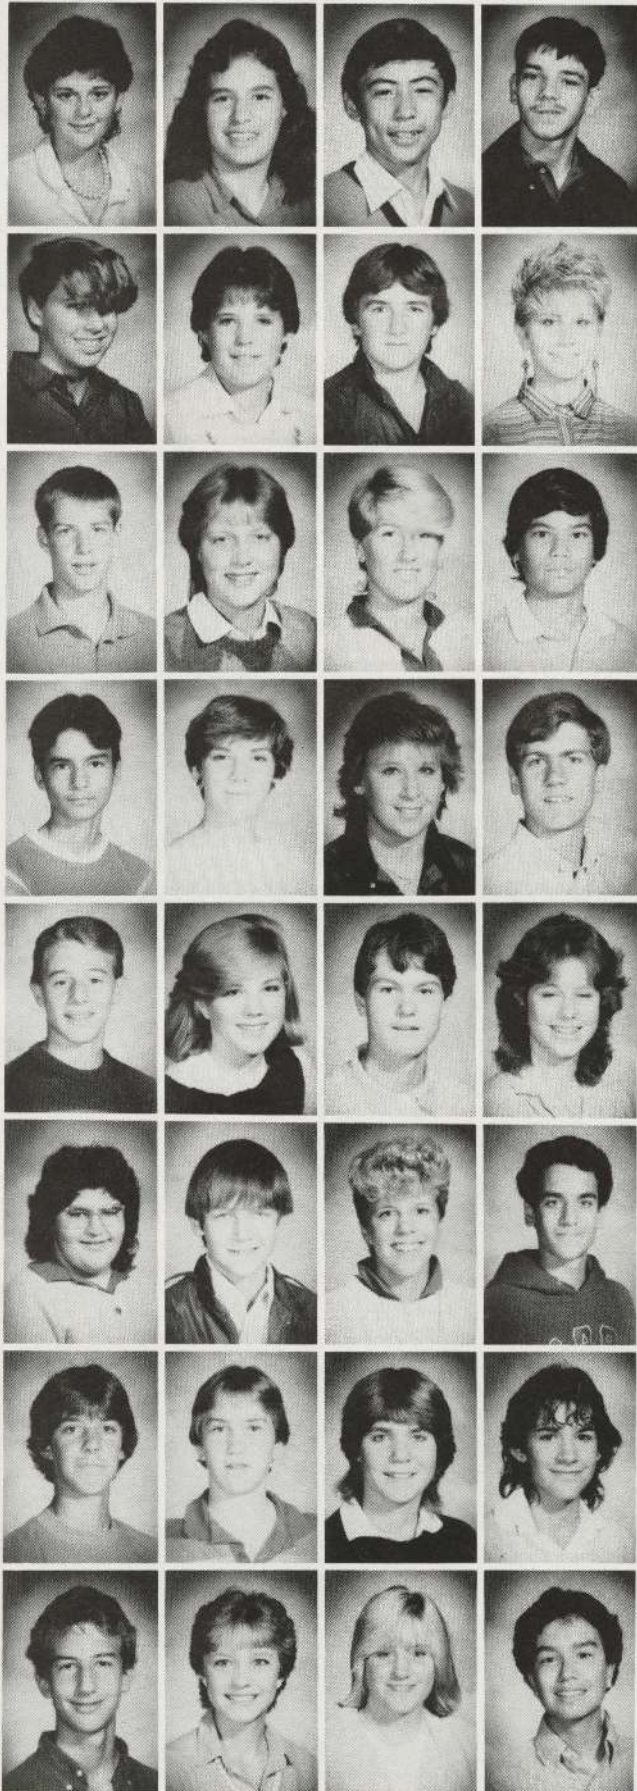

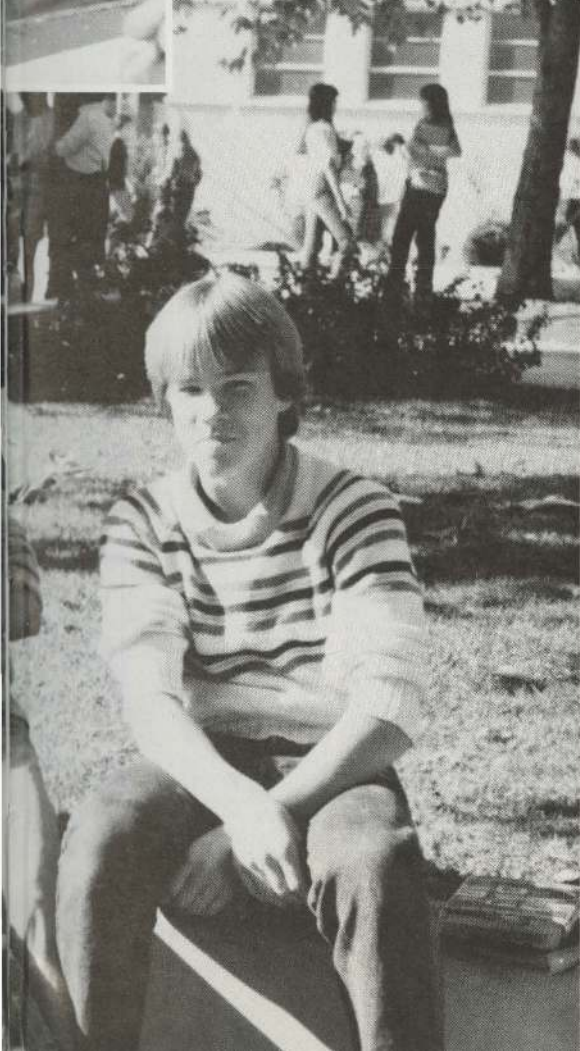

Aside from disliking I.P.S. (Introductory Physical Science), what did the class of '87 do. One wonders. The Frosh football and basketball teams took League Championships. And the class was treated "second rate" by upper classmen. But the hopefuls of '87 would no longer have to hope. And on June 15, 1984, the class of '88 arrived, and the class of '87 were no longer freshmen.

The Last Of Bonds' Magic

When Hart varsity quarterback and third baseman Tom Bonds graduated in 1984, many students thought they had seen the last of the "Bonds Magic." Little did they know, another Bonds was on his way to take his brother's place.

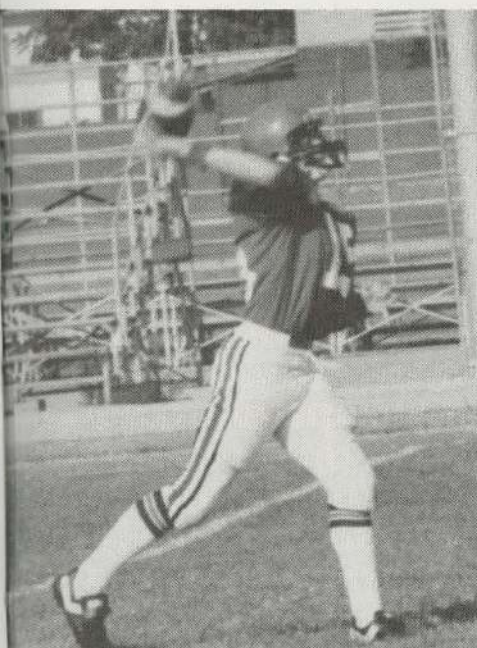

Having been raised in a highly athletic family was definitely a blessing for Jim. He had gained a great deal of experience and encouragement from his brother, Tom and from his father, who was also a quarterback in his high school years.

When Jim first started playing football at the age of seven, few people suspected that he would turn out to be a star athlete at Hart High; not only in football, but in baseball as well.

Jim's coaches were very impressed with his athletic ability. The athletic advisor, Mr. Dick Louis, said that "Jim shows a great deal of talent and potential."

Though Jim was the last of the Bonds to take an active role in high school sports, he didn't plan to let the Santa Clarita Valley forget about the "Bonds Magic" after his graduation. Instead he planned to continue playing football or baseball through college.

Collecting Foreign Money, Gems, and Languages

Sigrid Ebert was not an average freshman. Born in Stuttgart, Germany, she visited relatives in the United States every year until moving here in 1979.

Taught Spanish by her Mother, Sigrid also spoke German and English. While attending Hart, she also learned to speak French. Sigrid enjoyed learning languages because she loved being able to communicate when visiting foreign countries.

Because her family enjoyed traveling, Sigrid had traveled not only to Spain, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, France, Belgium, and Luxembourg, but also Colombia and Italy.

Sigrid considered Venice, with its canals and gondolas, a unique city. She compared it to a museum in which she was surrounded by history. By the time Sigrid was a freshman, she had already visited five states in the U.S.

Sigrid enjoyed collecting things from foreign countries. She had a gem collection that had been started by her aunt, as well as a collection of foreign money.

Since she enjoyed corresponding, Sigrid had penpals in Germany, Colombia, Sweden, and the Philippines. After graduation, Sigrid hoped to work as a translator.

Skating Her Way To The Top

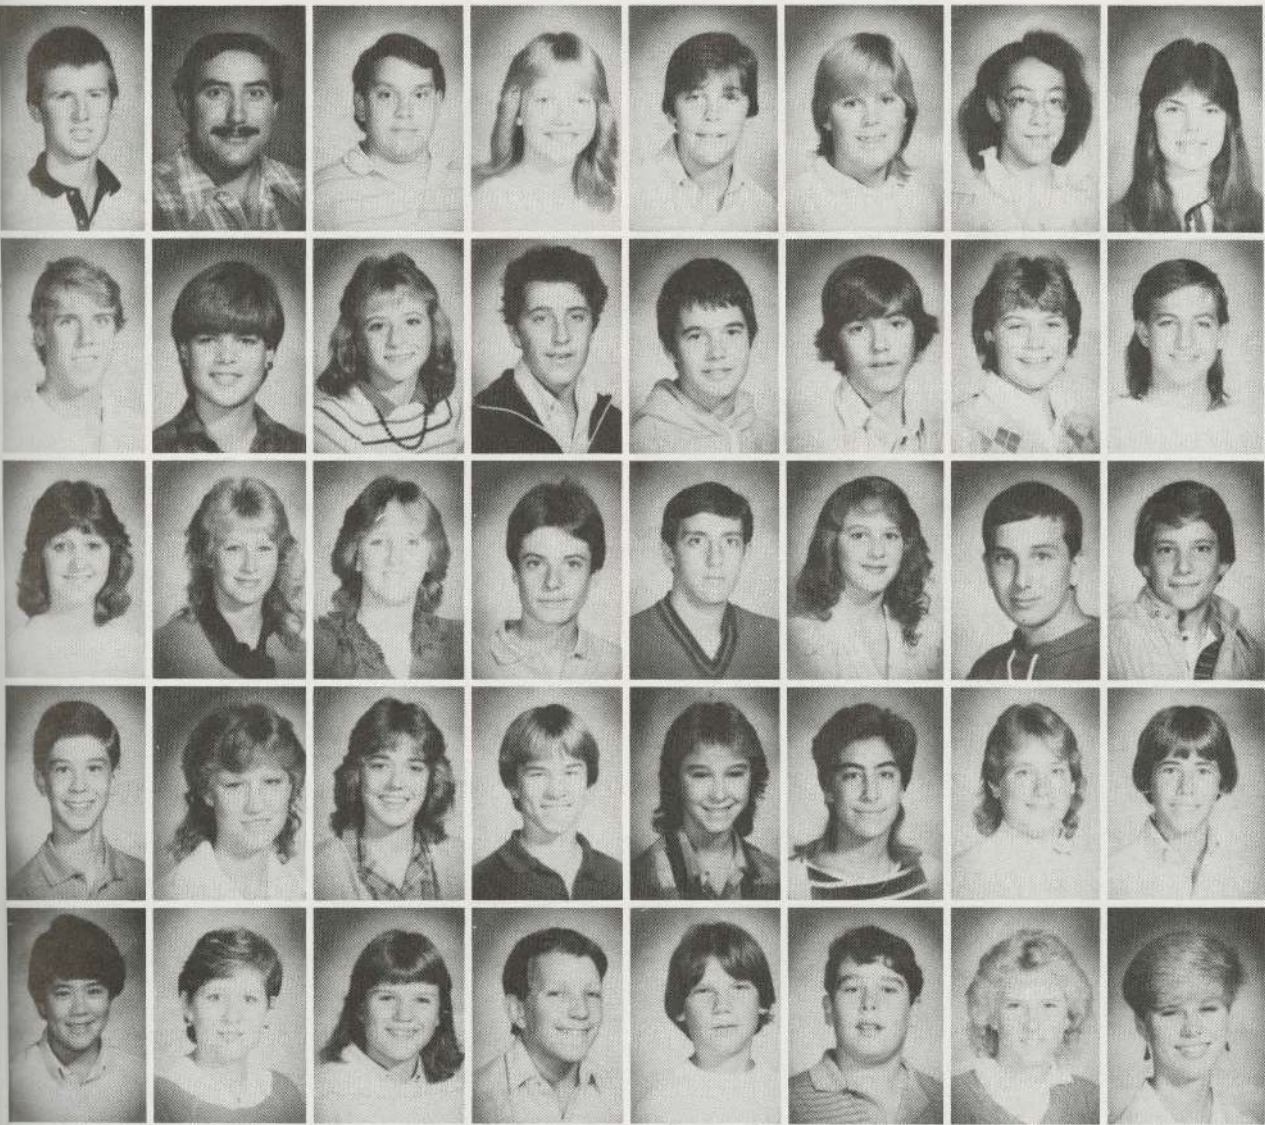

Richele Hurst reaches her way to the top.

The rollerskating rink was completely deserted, but for a lone figure sweeping across the floor on skates. With apparent ease, she made her way through a series of complex jumps and spins. Years of experience and training were evident in her every move, yet she was only fourteen and had been taking skating lessons for only a year.

Richele Hurst, a freshman at Hart, practiced at the Skate n' Place, two to three hours a day, six days a week. Although she received her first pair of skates when she was five, she didn't take actual lessons until she was thirteen.

When she did begin lessons, she found that they interfered with her social life. Nevertheless, she stuck with it, her family supporting her efforts both emotionally and financially. A single pair of freestyle skates cost $550, and figure wheels were an additional $95.

Richele made many friends skating. She also learned responsibility and discipline. She competed in her first invitationals in Fresno, California on January 29th. Although very nervous she was able to place 14th. Richele hoped to someday go to the World Rollerskating Championships.

Earning The Bronze With Spirit

The sophomore class of '86 was a spirited class. Led by President Trevor Waterson, the officers promoted that spirit all year. Vice-president Sandy Tapp, Secretary Lisa Guagliardi, Treasurer Jonelle Swanson, and Representative Mikala Limbrecht kept the sophomore class informed and enthusiastic.

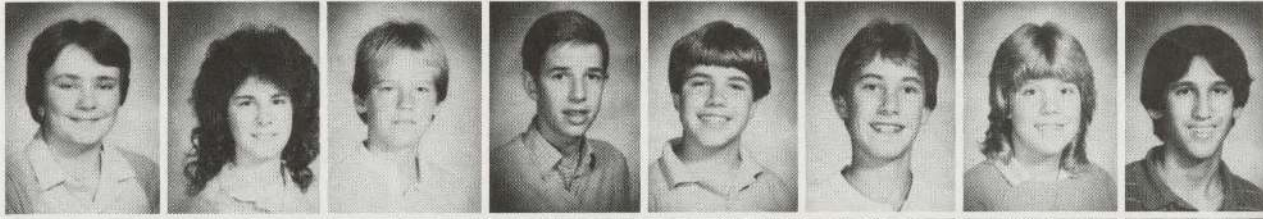

The sophomores sold spirit pom-poms for football and bumper stickers for basketball. Pictures with Santa Claus were offered for Christmas, along with carnation grams. A candy sale for Easter rounded out the fund raising.

As the sophomores concentrated on obtaining driver's licenses, they realized that they received more respect as tenth graders than they had as ninth graders. Why? As Trevor Waterson said, "Sophomores have more spirit than any other class." And it was this spirit that earned them the bronze, this spirit that will carry through into the future.

This Year The Silver

“Most people have the mistaken impression that being in eleventh grade automatically means you’re a junior. Actually, being a junior means you’re finally learning to relax about school and have fun.”

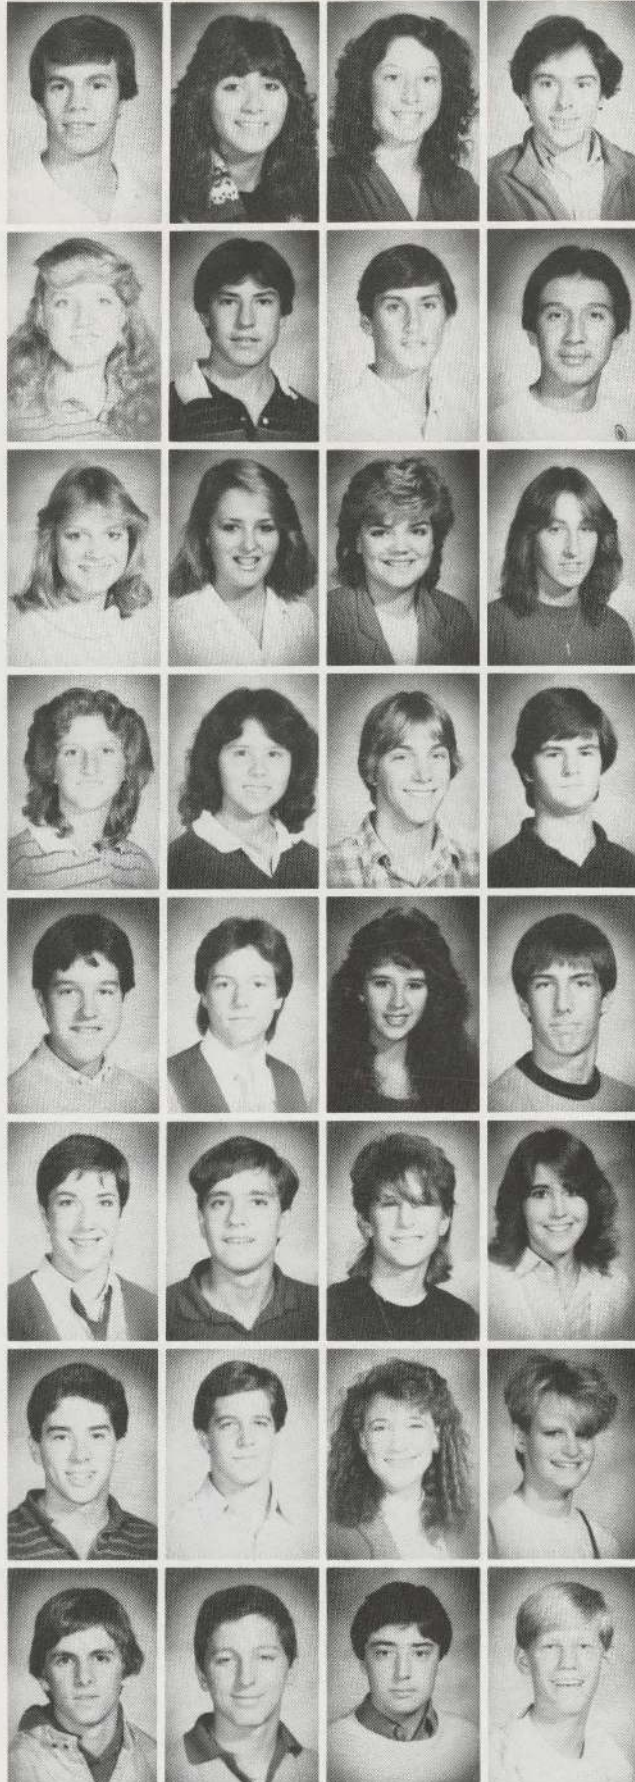

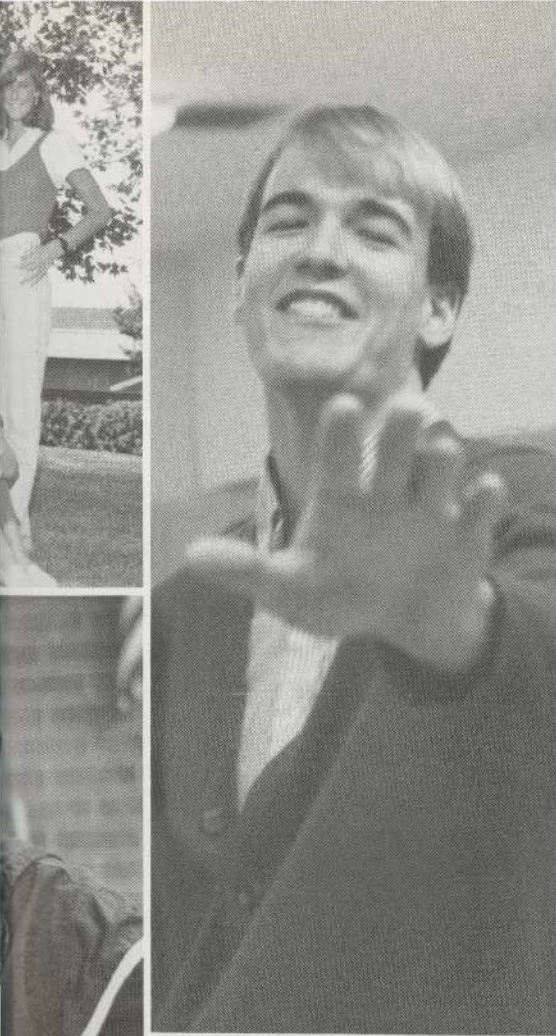

Led by President Jenny Joslen, and Vice-President Missy Fitzpatrick, the juniors planned the Prom, which was held at the Ambassador Hotel in the Coconut Grove Room. Finally upperclassman, the juniors enjoyed their new priveleges. Secretary Kathy Volding, Treasurer Megan Mariska, and Representative Lauri Caston helped out in the fund raising. Candycane-grams were sold at Christmas, keychains year round, and Easter chocolate bunny grams were sold, too. A raffle and bake sales also contributed.

The juniors looked forward to being seniors and preparing for college. This year- the silver. Next year- the Gold and the World.

Erik Knowles Challenges Fate

With deceptive ease, Erik Knowles maneuvered his father's Ultralight glide at a dizzying two thousand feet above the ground. Despite a heavy haze in the air, he could see the ground beneath his feet and the peaceful, open sky ahead of him.

Suddenly, Erik was jolted into action by the unwelcome sight of a rapidly approaching Cessna 150. Without a moment of hesitation, he cut his glider's engine to idle, went into a dive, and lifted one of the glider's colorful wings to catch the attention of the Cessna. As he was losing altitude rapidly, he was forced to make a landing. But due to his quick thinking and extensive training, he emerged from a potentially fatal situation safe and sound.

Erik was no newcomer to flying gliders when, in 1980, he received preliminary Ultralight training from his father, Chris. He had been flying conventional hang gliders (those without engines) since he was five. In fact, as a boy, he was featured in a magazine specifically for glider fans.

With such a background, it is not hard to see why Erik chose to pursue a career as an aeronautic pilot, or a trick pilot. A short term goal that Erik had was to begin a precision flyteam with his father. But what about the danger? Erik's attitude towards the risk of flying was probably best summarized in his account of his brush with the Cessna plane.

"It made my heart beat fast," he remarked with a smile, "but at least I knew how to react."

The Hart High Drum Section; truly a Lost Cause.

Drum Corps Grows Up

What do you get when you mix a little rebellion, a little non-conformity, and a few off-color jokes, topped with red berets? A Lost Cause — Hart's drum section. Over the last three years, the drum corps had grown to be a major performing group on campus. Much of this growth was due to the efforts of six upperclassmen: Jeff Stabile, senior, and Scott Headley, Tom Ray, Chris Okasaki; Chris Greene, and Melissa George, Juniors. Apprentices now in this rebellion were Michelle Seemann and Arlene Collier, sophomores.

Their saga began three years ago, when, led by Steve Wright, Linda Csernay, Ken Klar, and Pete Velloz, they were instilled with a fierce loyalty to being different, being proud of this difference, and being unaffected by the thoughts of others. Sporting such slogans as "Ol' Molly Hair," Chuck Berry's "My Ding A Ling," and Starz's "Cool One," they quickly worked their way into the hearts of everyone on campus. Some loved them; some hated them; but none were left untouched by their antics.

Each winter, the section put together a solo. It performed this drum solo at Hart's rallies and basketball games, but in 1983-84, for the first time, it also played it at Saugus High School under an assumed name. Each solo was created by the current section, with no outside help; ideas were submitted by each member and then perfected by the whole group. This resulted in a mishmash of musical tastes, with everything from Rush's "2112" to Jean-Luc Ponty's "New Country."

It was impossible to describe the drummers. Non-conformity was so prevalent that they didn't even conform to each other.

Eyes On The Gold

Success? Yes!

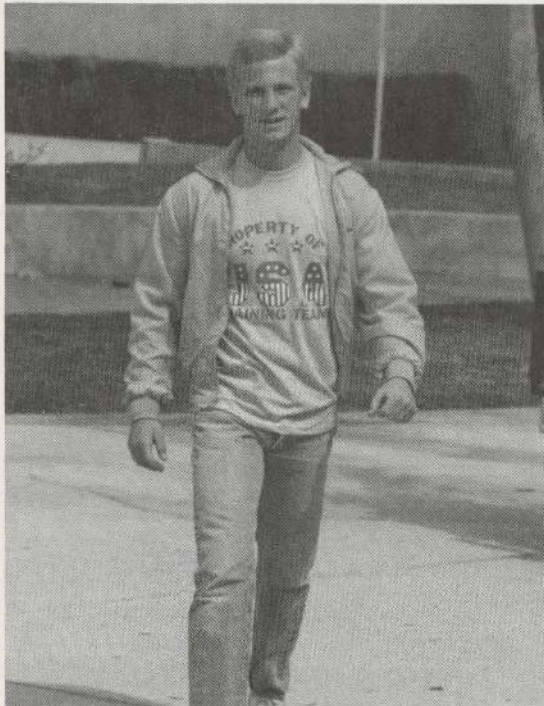

It was with this attitude that the class of 1984 left its mark on Hart High and the community. Throughout the year, members of the graduating class pursued their goals like true Olympic athletes; always aware of competition, but always working side by side.

In 1984, few seniors shared the same in interests or goals. For example, they were often divided on their after-graduation plans. While some looked forward to attending colleges or universities, others awaited apprenticeships or job offers. Few seniors could agree on ways in which to spend what little free time they had, either. Some enjoyed taking trips to the beach or to the mountains. On the other hand, some preferred the amenities of home: movies, food, and T.V.

Despite these differences between its members, the class of 1984 was unified. With their eyes on the "gold," the seniors of 1984 worked together to make their last year the best ever.

Team Calculus

"And closing up today's announcements are the Team Calculus Awards. Steve Lengyl- Most Inspiring. Bruce Fuller- Most Assists. Christine Sullivan and Eric Schuh- Most Talkative. And Mrs. Ruth Baker- The $6 \times 3 = 11,000$ Award. That's it for now, and have a nice day."

Team Calculus. The very phrase inspired awe in math students. For these students, who were enrolled in Calculus A/P, were at the top. And having earned that spot, they enjoyed it. Like the day that Steve Lengyl, Rich Autz, Gary Schram, Jeff Buhman, and Bob Brown decided to reassemble the VW "Thing" belonging to Steve Davis around his desk.

Mr. Thon's birthday would go down in history. Mrs. Baker handed out referrals, and Team Calculus went to work. Jackie Holland arrived in Mr. Thon's office first, followed by Shawn Capistrano and Stacie Gereb. Mr. Thon caught on when the rest of the class arrived en masse singing Happy Birthday.

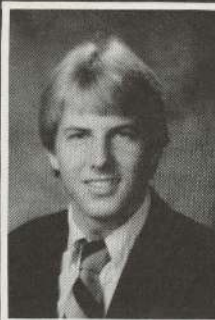

Team Calculus was not all fun and games. With many members preparing to take the Advanced Placement Calculus Test, class was often fraught with important questions such as, "What does Stan 3 do equal?" When you know the answer, you, too, will be a member of Team Calculus.

Steve Davis prepares to speed out of calculus in his VW "Thing."

Kim Volunteers

Kim Myers was out driving with a friend one night when she sighted a car come screeching to a halt. Its driver, who had not been wearing a seatbelt, was flung through the windshield. Without a moment's hesitation, Kim rushed to the scene of the accident. While bystanders watched on helplessly, she and an emergency medical technician treated the victim for shock.

Had the victim required artificial respiration or CPR, Kim would have been qualified to administer it. She had four weeks of CPR training behind her, on top of 63 hours of advanced first aid training.

Kim became interested in first aid in 1980 when former Hart student Ed Nauman asked her to help him count laps in a Red Cross fund-raiser, the "Swim-A-Thon." She then joined the Red Cross as a volunteer, and soon after, she became a member of the Red Cross Youth Council.

Kim was an active participant in many Red Cross activities, such as the 1983 Youth Safety and Disaster Conference, in which she was a member of the planning committee. She also attended both the National Red Cross Convention and the Leadership Development Center, and

Kim's activities outside the Red Cross included being the youth coordinator at the Alcoholics Olympics and the Santa Clarita Health Fair and giving safety demonstrations to the Bluebirds, a girls' club. Making Horse Sense

Six years ago, the Hauses bought an Arabian Stallion and moved to Acton. After four years, they moved to Newhall and leased the Rivendale Ranch. It was five years ago that Mike Haus, now seventeen years old, began training and showing horses.

Mike rode shows both Western and English, showed horses on halter and drove a one-horse cart. He trained nine horses, although the horses weren't broken until three years old. The horses were then sold.

Mike worked four hours a day during the week, and all day on Saturday and Sunday. Mike trained horses because "I was brought up around horses, and I like them." And even though he was kicked by a horse named, appropriately enough, Quicksilver, he was still training horses. His own horse, Spike, was a darkboy Arabian. At three years old, Spike had been shown by Mike only on halter.

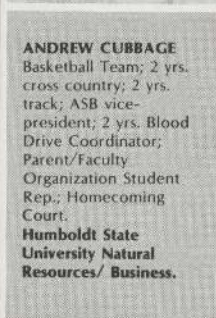

Mike wasn't to be at Rivendale much longer, though. In July, he started work at the Gil Chavey, Jr. Inc. Ranch. Here he hoped to learn more training techniques, horse care and management skills. And in the future? "Something with horses, but I don't know yet."

Atina Casas, 17, had been scuba diving with her family for about five years. She was certified with her Basic Openwater Certificate for the past two years. She earned her Advanced Certificate last year. Atina began diving because both her parents were certified, and felt that scuba diving would be fun on family vacations.

Last summer, she attended scuba camp for three weeks. Atina dived in Florida and the Channel Islands, and hoped to dive in Hawaii the following summer. Her favorite place to dive was the Channel Islands, because there were many species of fish and much plant life. "The sea weed forests are incredible."

To earn her Basic Certificate, Atina began in a pool, becoming accustomed to the equipment. She then made five ocean dives, two beach entries, and two boat entries. To earn her Advanced Certificate, she made night and recovering dives. She made a deep dive, which was below 100ft., and polished her res-

Challenging The Far East

Mitch Mc Mullen and David Strauss were in the United States when they heard the news. Flight 007 of the Korean Airlines had been downed by a Soviet fighter plane. There had been no survivors.

Though the whole world was shaken by the incident, Mitch and David were devastated all the more by the fact that only six days earlier, they had taken a flight from the Orient on Korean Airlines — flight 007.

Despite this shock, Mitch and David retained some happy memories of their trip to the Orient. The two, selected to play on the prestigious International Sports Exchange's Southern California basketball team, had traveled to Hong Kong and Macau in August to challenge three teams from the Far East. Their expertise in the sport had been reflected in their success. Of the three games they played, they won two.

Not all of the boys' time had been spent on the basketball courts, however. Mitch and David spent much of their free time touring and shopping. "We took a tour of Red China," reflected Mitch, "and saw a rice farm there. The people were so poor that they had pigs living with them in their houses; kids hung on our arms." "Our tour guide tried to sell us communism. But the coaches put him in his place," added David with a smile. Both Mitch and David raved about the shops in Hong Kong. "Go to Nathan Street, they sell watches really cheap," recommended Mitch, sporting a gold watch that he had bought while there. David agreed. "They have polo shirts there for only $3.00"

On the way home from their trip, Mitch and David stopped in Hawaii for four days. When finally they left Hawaii for Los Angeles, they did so reluctantly. As David said, "We were exposed to a background of different cultures. It's hard to tear yourself away from that." But as Mitch added, "We were sure glad to be home."

Marc Vasquez Pays Close Attention To Detail

Marc Vasquez shows off a finely detailed car.

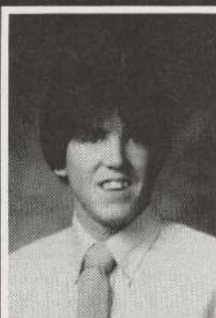

Though most of the cars in the parking lot of Don Allen's Beauty Salon had at least 25,000 miles on them, they sparkled as if they were brand new, thanks to the artistry of Marc Vasquez. Marc, who ran his own car detailing business, not only cleaned and waxed the cars, but top-coated their tires and sealed their interiors.

He began detailing at his father's car dealership when he was ten. There, he prepared cars to be sold. Six years later, his father helped him start his own business in the Santa Clarita Valley. Here, Marc gained clients by word of mouth. Before long, he was detailing ten cars on a weekly basis. "They kept me so busy," said Marc,

"that I had to hire another guy to help me out."

What made Marc's business special was the extra effort that he added to his detailing. In addition to waxing, vacuuming, and cleaning windows, he cleaned the engine and checked the oil and transmission fluid. He also compiled a "car care report," outlining the car's condition before and after the detailing.

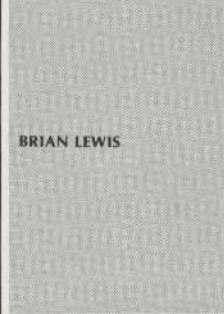

Marc had his eye on the future. After legalizing his business over the summer of 1984, he planned to pursue detailing as a career. "I like cleaning cars," he said. "And I like pleasing people."

Advisor, Friend And Confidante

Counselor, college expert, career advisor — Mr. Gerald Thon was all of these things. And he was much more.

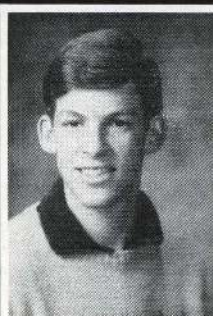

He was a friend, a father figure, a confidante to each and every one of his students. True concern and thoughtfulness were mirrored in his every action. He kept every student up-to-date on the ever-changing graduation requirements through personal contact.

Mr. Thon checks over senior class records.

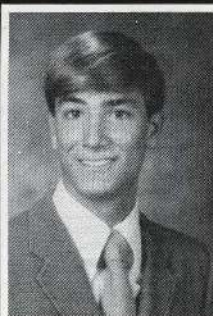

To bring faceless colleges closer to college-bound students, he often volunteered his telephone for long-distance calls. And it was not uncommon for him to send college application materials via express mail to give his college-bound students an edge on their competitors. Mr. Thon helped his students out with personal problems, too, dispelling their fears of college or their pre-graduation blues, and suggesting possible dates for the Prom. His door was always open to his students, whether they wanted advice or just someone to talk to.

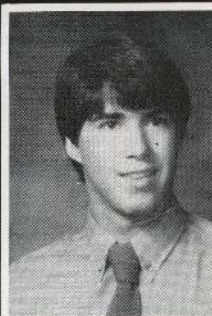

He came to Hart as a health teach-

Real Smart Cookie

When Roxanne Ryan began baking cookies for her friends several years ago, she never dreamed that she would be selling them to people she didn't know. But in 1984, she began taking orders from the community at large for her specialty; "cookie hearts," exclusive heart-shaped chocolate chip cookies. Attractively packaged in doily-lined boxes, these enormous cookie hearts became the most popular goodies to hit the Santa Clarita Valley.

Though Roxanne's new business took a great deal of time, especially during the holidays, Roxanne never

On Her Way To Success

It was safe to say that Stacy Rasmussen had been singing all of her life. Before she learned to walk, she began imitating opera singers on the radio. At the age of two, she gave her first performance during a church service, and during her years in elementary school, she sang to her classmates over the public address system.

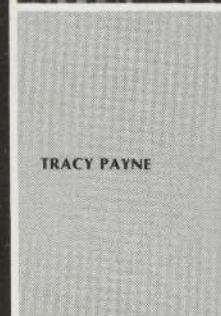

None of her friends were surprised when, at the age of nine, she was offered a children's scholarship at Cal Arts; they knew that Stacy was on her way to success.

In junior high, she joined the Placerita Vocal Ensemble. There, she became acquainted with Mrs. Judy Starr. Mrs. Starr directed Stacy for the next six years. When Stacy came to Hart, she began singing with the Concert Choir and Sound Vibrations. At this time, she was also singing in musicals at her church — Stacy was on her way to success.

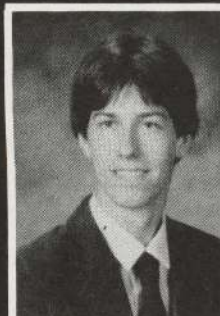

In September 1983, she joined a rock band called "Airwaves." The band, Jeff Stabile displays his Aussie souvenirs.

Diving For Aussie Honors

Last August and September, Jeff Stabile traveled to Australia and New Zealand to compete in diving tournaments. His trip included stops in Brisbane, Hamilton, and Christchurch.

In Brisbane, Stabile placed first on the one-meter board and second on the three-meter board against Australia's third best, Mike Rutherford. At the second stop, in Hamilton, he saw the U.S. win the World Age Group Championship. A workout in Christchurch, New Zealand ended the trip.

As a tourist in Brisbane, Stabile got $1.22 to every American dollar, although prices were comparable. While sight-seeing in the city, he noticed that video games were popular. He also recalls the "fantastic beaches with sugar sand and lots of sharks."

In Hamilton, Stabile met people from more than thirty nations—and everyone knew the "tall, blonde

Of New Zealand, Stabile said, "It has only two T.V. stations, and central heating is something new," but "both Aussies and New Zealanders bottle their milk, so the cream and all that good stuff is still on it."

David Lee, Tim Harper, and Mike McKeen work on plans for Western World.

Ingenuity At Its Finest

During the summer of 1983, three young entrepreneurs — Dave Lee, Tim Harper, and Mike McKeen — turned a hobby into a profitable business. Mike conceptualized a board game, Dave adapted this game into "Western World," a role playing game similar to "Dungeons and Dragons." In "Western World," participants could get killed or become a hero; it was all hypothetical and played with dice. One day, Tim Harper went to Mike and Dave and suggested that they market their product.

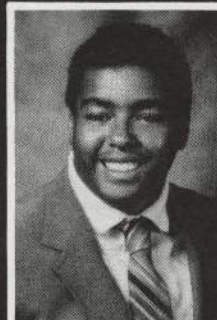

Receiving business advice from his father, Tim contacted RPG, a publishing firm, and sold the copyrights. Meanwhile, Dave and Mike were busy working eight hours a day on a computer, modifying the game. RPG took the basic idea of the game and redesigned it. The finished product was to be on the market nationwide by the end of 1985. Earning 20% of every copy sold, the students hoped to make thousands of dollars from the game. This was truly an example of ingenuity at its finest.

Mrs. Judy Star introduces the upcoming act.

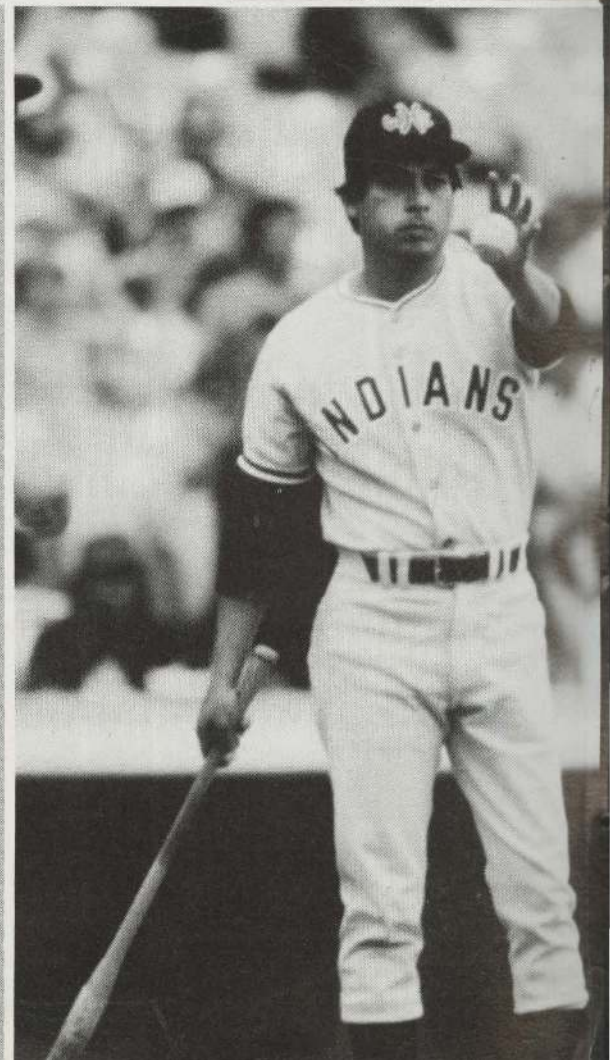

Hart Is A Great Place To Teach And Coach

His coaching accomplishments included winning back-to-back league championships, reaching the CIF playoffs every year that he had been Head Coach, coaching three different all-star teams, producing nineteen or twenty all-league players, having six players chosen for CIF honors in three years and having a winning percentage of .747%. He was selected by the California High School Coaches Association to coach in the California High School All Star Game between teams from Northern and Southern California.

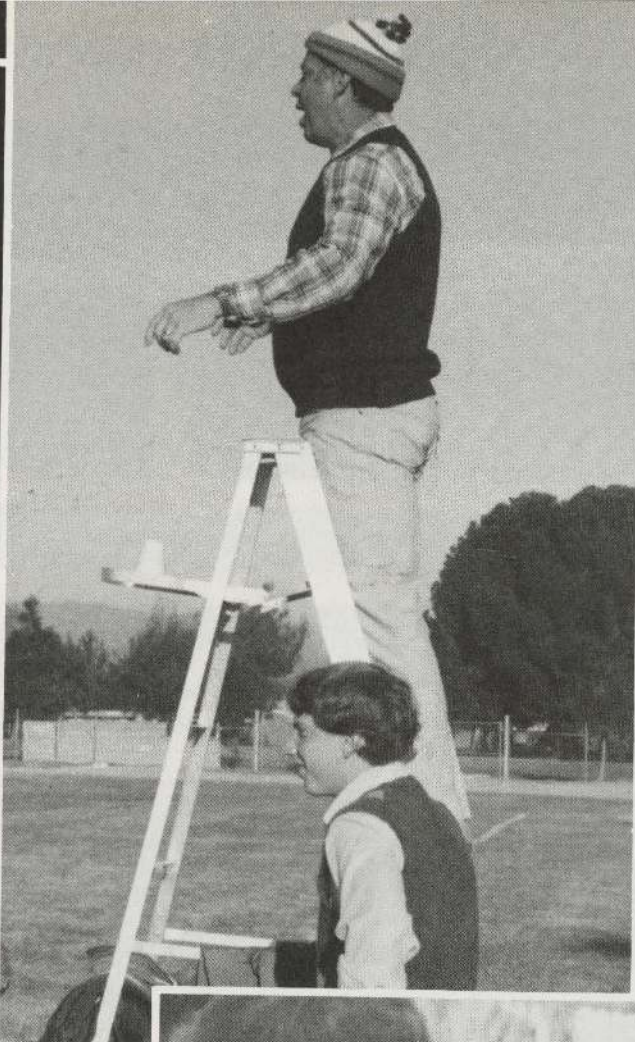

Who was this maverick? Coach Frank Sanchez, a teacher and coach at Hart for nine years. Coach Sanchez played for Hart in his Sophomore year of high school, then transferred to Canyon for eleventh and twelfth grade, where he earned all-league honors and was rated the Most Inspirational Player by his teammates. He played ball for COC from 1971 to 1972 and earned second team league honors.

As captain of the team, he again was voted the Most Inspirational Player.

Coach Doug Michelson, like Coach Sanchez, had a formidable record of success. He first coached at Polytechnic High, where he was voted Coach of the Year by the L.A. Times. Later, he moved to Pierce College, where he was promised a teaching position. Cutbacks came and the position didn't. Since Coach Michelson didn't want to become a "rent-a-coach" — just coming in every afternoon to coach — he came to Hart, where he helped the varsity team to compile a 36-14 record, earn one league Championship and produce seven all-league team members and three CIF players. He was instrumental in helping the 1983 team complete its first undefeated season since 1958. He attributed his success in part to the cooperation of the Administration. "Hart is a great place to teach and coach," he beamed.

A New Face On Campus

He knew that it wouldn't be an easy job. Filling the shoes of former Hart Principal, Mr. Daniel Hanigan, would require more than just skill and experience. It would require innovation.

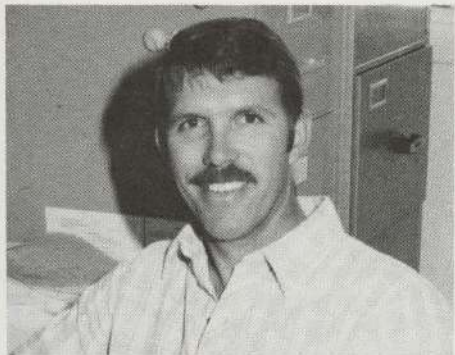

Fortunately, Mr. Laurence Strauss had what it took to become Hart's new principal in 1983. Once a teacher at Hart, a counselor at Canyon and a principal at Sierra Vista Junior High, he had acquired all of the skill and experience that he would need to over-see a school of nearly 2,000 students. What was more, Mr. Strauss had innovation. His plans for Hart High at the beginning of his administration included the promotion of a "program of education that met the needs of students" and "a good atmosphere for both learning and teaching."

As the year progressed, the effects of Mr. Strauss' innovative spirit became apparent. Extra-curricular organizations received his full attention and support. Both the Drama Club and the school newspaper staff benefitted from Mr. Strauss' enthusiastic support of their endeavors. Students got to know their principal well, as he made an honest effort to get to know them. The sight of Mr. Strauss talking to various students on campus between classes was not uncommon.

Becoming the principal of Hart High may not have been an easy job. But Mr. Laurence Strauss made it look simple.

Adieu, Adieu, Adieu

"Hei da! Bye"

As Maria Persson boarded her plane back to Sweden, she remembered her year in California...

She had arrived on August 28 to live with the Lusk family and immediately felt welcome. Her first impression of Hart was that the students were very fashion conscience. She remembered school in Sweden, where everyone wore levis. And Maria° remembered having ten classes rather than five, and recalled her good-times in Speech and Yearbook class not taught in Sweden.

Maria, a typical looking and sounding Hart High student, blended into the student body perfectly. Encouraged by Mr. Thon, Maria quickly became involved. She played basketball, volleyball, and ran track, but halfway through the season she broke her foot going over a hurdle. "It was the longest six weeks of my life."

During her stay Maria visited many areas of interest including Mammoth Mountain. She hadn't missed the snow all year until she got to Mammoth and quickly became homesick for Sweden's cold winter days.

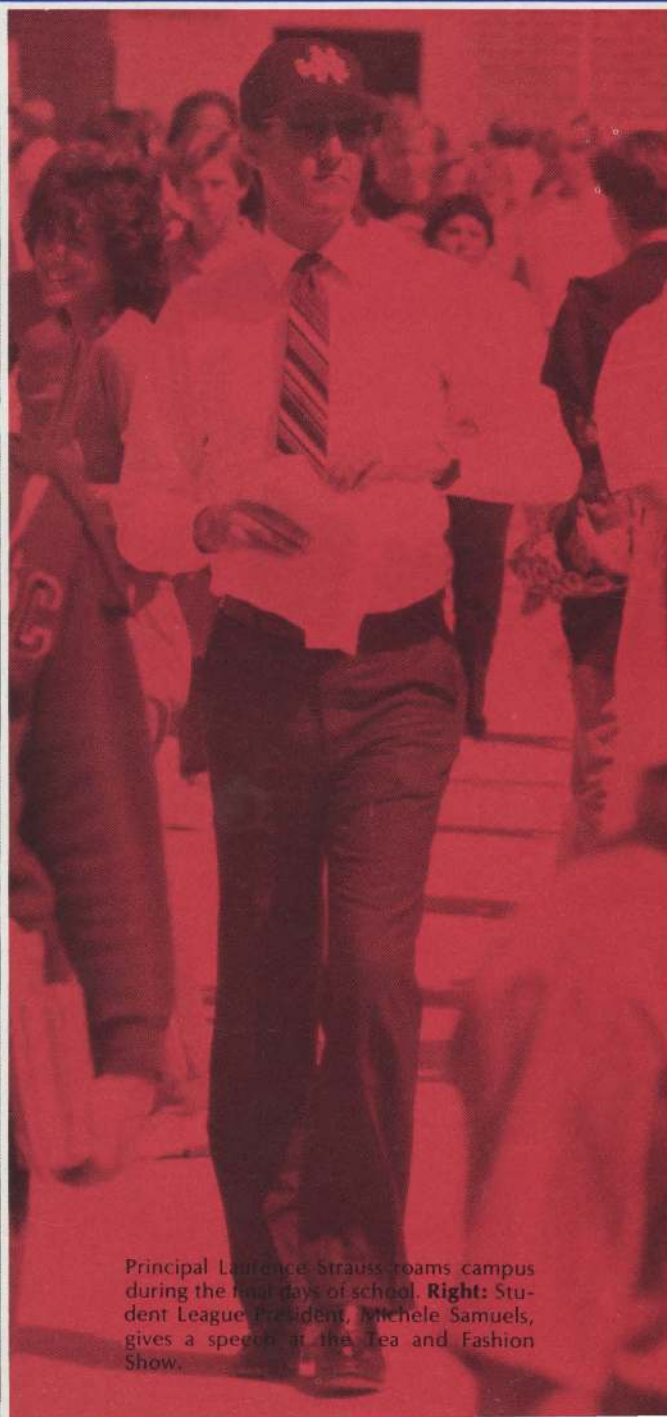

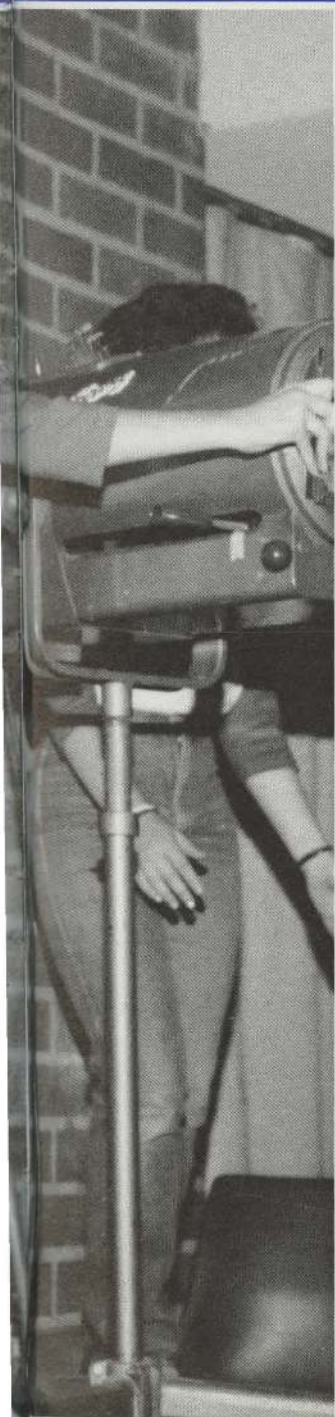

After leaving Hart, Maria planned to possibly join the Swedish Air Force and go to college. She hoped to eventually come back to America to visit.

"If I had the chance to do it again, I'd definitely do it."

What It Takes To Win

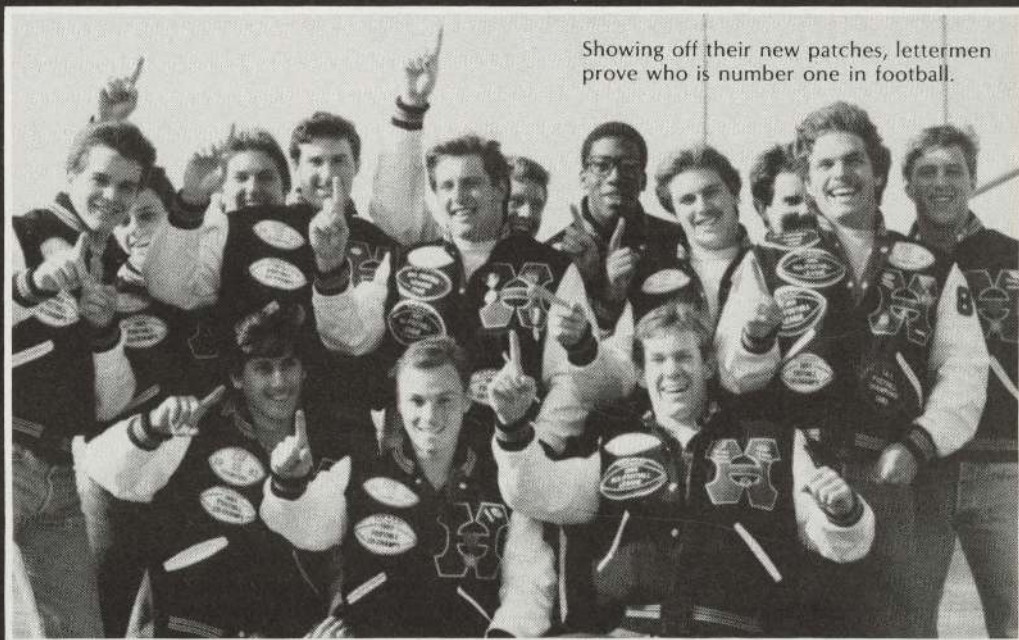

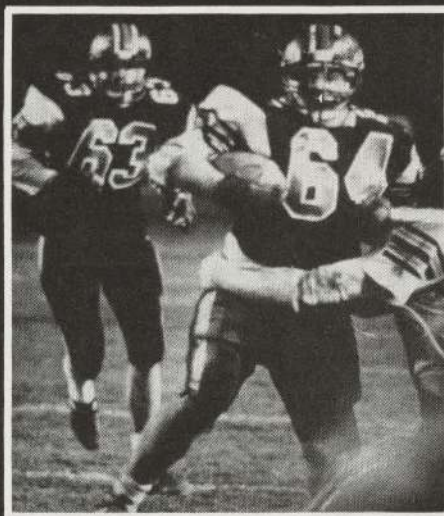

Football

The thrill of victory ... and the agony of defeat. Though no stranger to either of these emotions, Hart's varsity football team opened up a new dimension of this special thrill last year. Hart defeated North Torrance, and, for the first time in a thirty-five year history, brought a Conference Championship home to Hart.

But behind the scenes was a rather stunned team. "It's hard to believe no one's better than you," said Tim McKeon, echoing his teammates' feelings. To these players, football meant many things; it was fun, it was rewarding, it was friends working together since seventh grade on a Pop Warner team. And they agreed on the qualities that make a winning team. Motivation, the drive to succeed, was considered important; talent equally so. Self-discipline and team spirit walked hand-in-hand. The discipline to work out two and three times a day in 110° heat. The discipline to put team ahead of self. And while coaching rated highly, team spirit ranked highest.

Another factor contributing to the victory over North Torrance was the lack of injuries all year. Hart Out-coached, out-thought, and psyched-out its opponent. And the twelfth player on the field? The band, the drill team, the flag team and the fans. A winning team needs support and this year, Hart had it.

The Year Of Looking Back

As we looked back over the year, we saw the good and the bad. We saw the highlights that will last forever, and the tragedies that should never have occurred. We saw the year of 83-84.

Worldwide political stability was an unknown quality. For a while, it appeared that the Soviet shooting down of a Koren Airlines passenger plane would cause World War III. $20 billion was spent searching for the black box. It wasn't found. The war didn't start. Andropov disappeared, and was later announced dead. The marines in Lebanon were pulled out, and that, added to the Grenadan rescue mission, led to the War Powers Act. Gun control was allowed by the Supreme Court and ruled constitutional. The Presidential race began in 1984, with "Fritz" Mondale, Gary Hart, and Jesse Jackson competing for the Democratic vote, and Reagan leading the Republicans. A female vice-president named the probable choice, and the year ended with the Soviet Union and Block boycotting the LA summer games.

Martin Luther King Day was made official nationwide, and Jessica Saviitch died. Nancy Reagan went to war against chemical abuse with a tour of "Chemical People," designed to reach students. The Carson divorce made headlines.

The Silver Screen was filled with block-busters. John Glenn had "The Right Stuff," and "Flashdance" started a trend toward music and dance in movies. The "Footloose" sound track sold out, and Robert Redford returned to acting in "The Natural." Harrison Ford, as Indiana Jones, was back for more in, "The Temple of Doom." Walt Disney presented a new image with "Splash," a whimsical tale of a man in love with a mermaid. "Terms of Endearment" was the unanimous favorite, sweeping 9 Academy Awards, while Shirley McLaine finally received Best Actress.

The video craze went big in 1983, thanks to MTV, and Michael Jackson revitalized the music industry with "Thriller." The American Video Awards took place for the first time, and Breakdancing hit the streets. Cross dressing was popular, too.

"The Day After," a post-nuclear war TV movie caused protests both against the show itself and nuclear arms. Night time soaps led the ratings with Dynasty, Falcon's Crest, Knott's Landing, and Dallas out in front. Mini series pushed by the networks, were exemplified by "The Far Pavilions" and "Lace." And will true love ever triumph? Sam and Diane, of Cheers, broke-up.

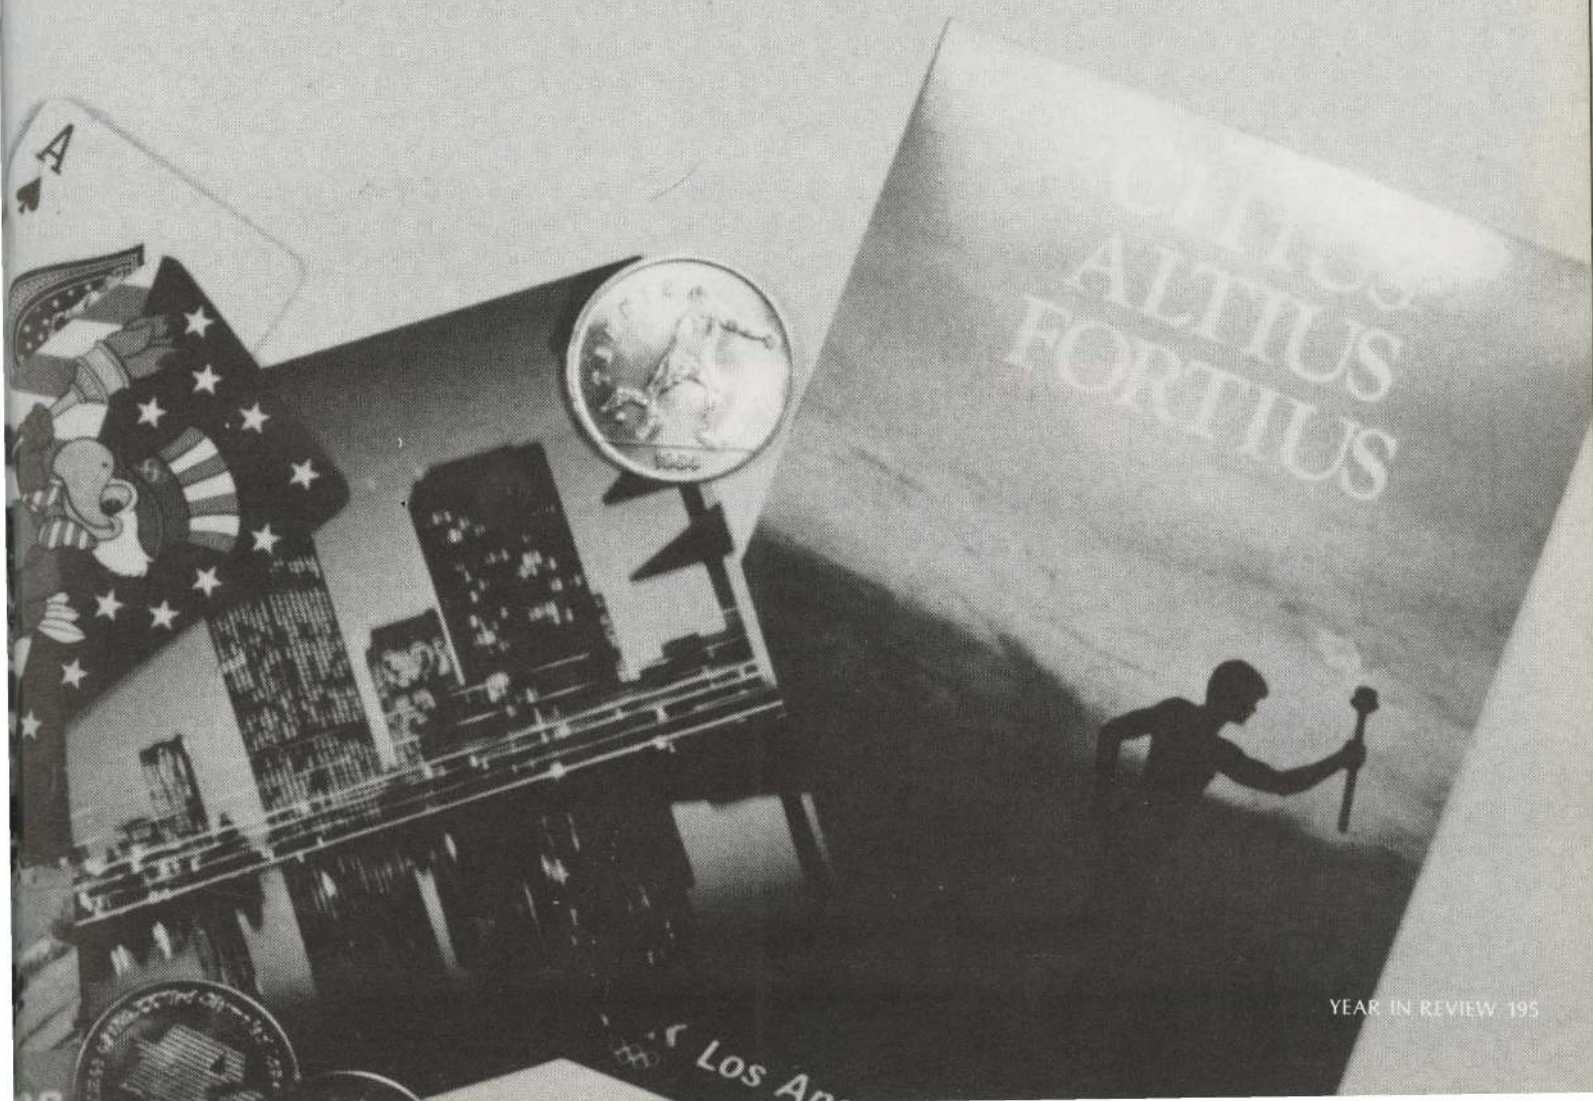

The famous trials of the year were undoubtedly the Hillside Strangler case and the Delorean cocaine trial.

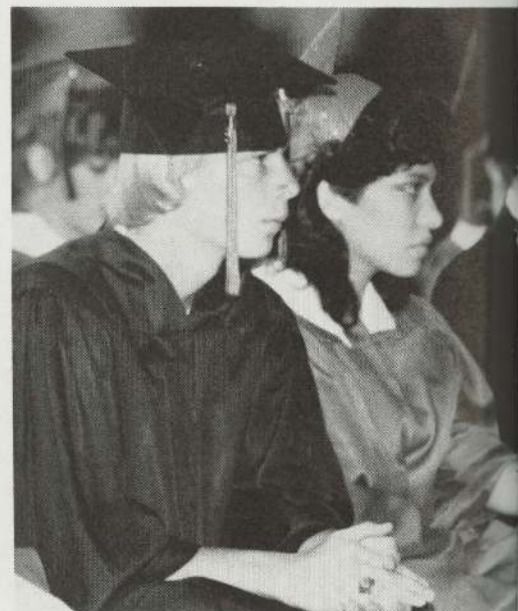

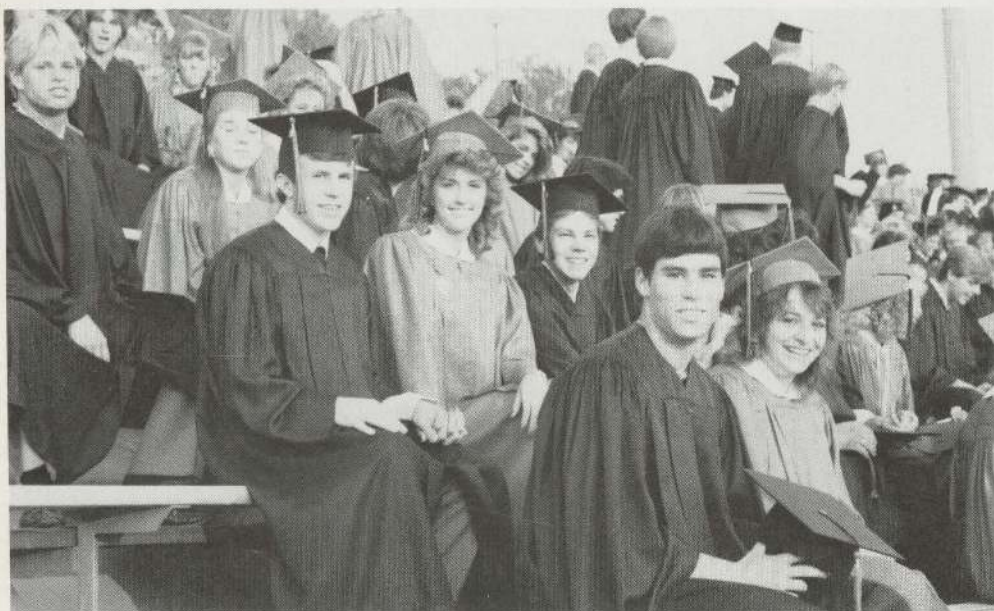

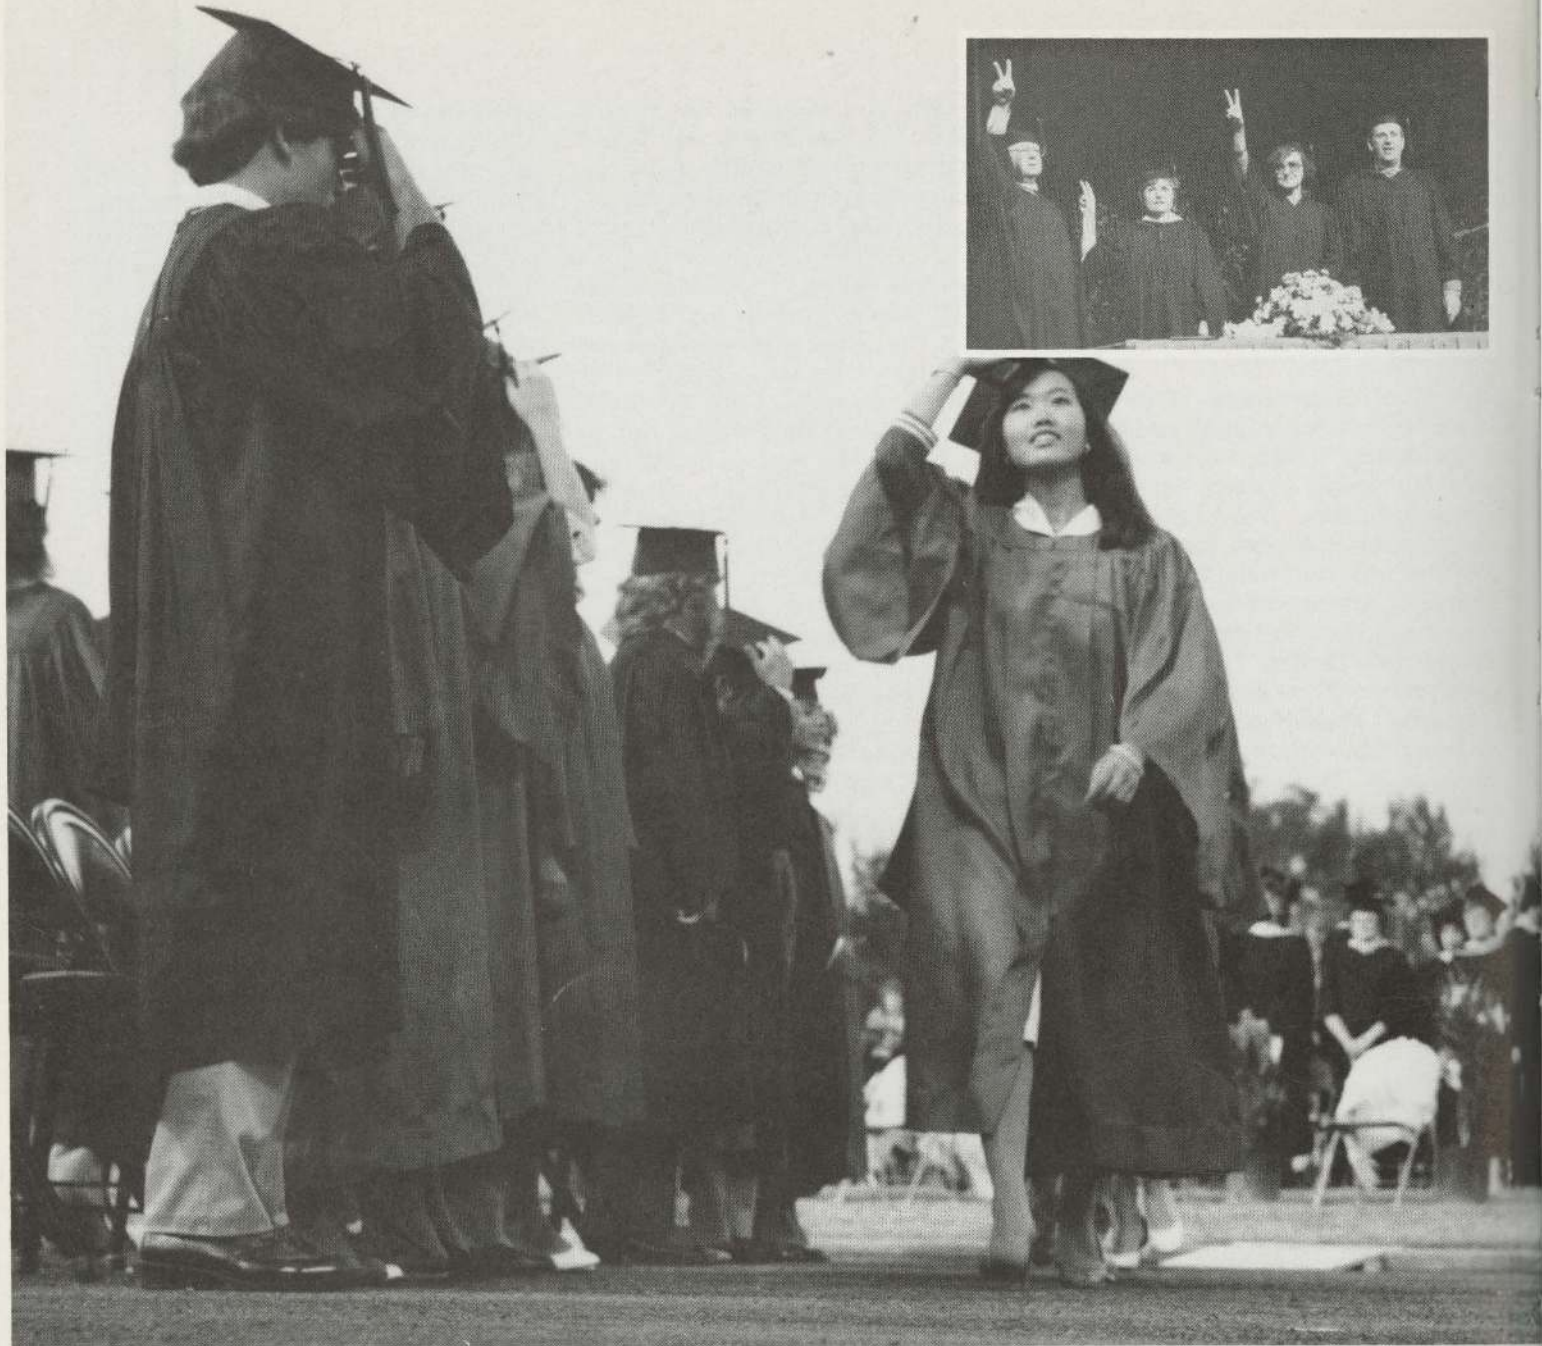

The Pan-American Games were pursued by a steroids scandal, and the Australians stole the World Cup sailing title from America. The Soviet Union and the Soviet Block boycotted the LA Summer Games, but the Games set a record of 142 countries participating anyway.

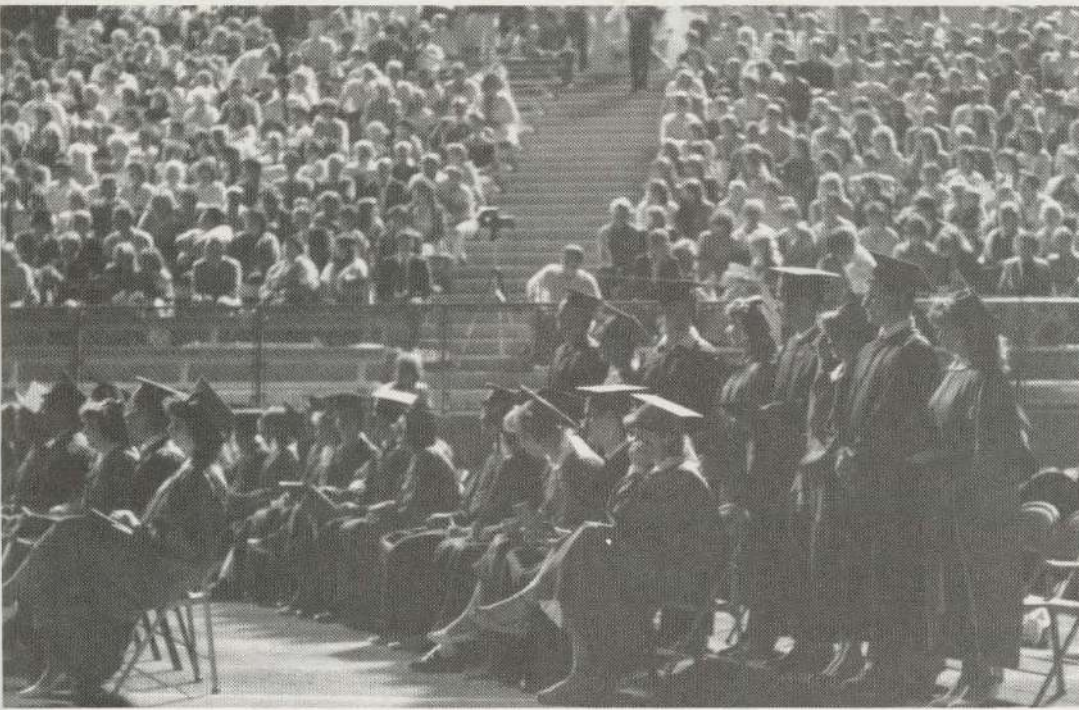

Sally Ride went to space in the Space Shuttle, and a break-through ear-implant for the deaf was created. AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) was rampant in the streets, and hospitals were panicking.

In 1984, Ma Bell broke-up and "Where's the Beef?" was shouted from the street corners. The Japanese influence took hold in fashion and food, with rags and layers and Sushi bars making the big time. Video games and arcades died, while music videos poured in the bucks. Plastic shoes and purses proved that the "Throw-away" society still thrived, and the sexual revolution (as reported by the Bloom County Newspaper) died as long skirts and layers replaced mini-skirts and gauze. Cabbage Patch Kids and Trivial Pursuit hit the Black Market at Christmas-time as shoppers battled for the ultimate gift.

1984. The book by George Orwell. The year by us. The year of nineteen hundred and eighty-four.

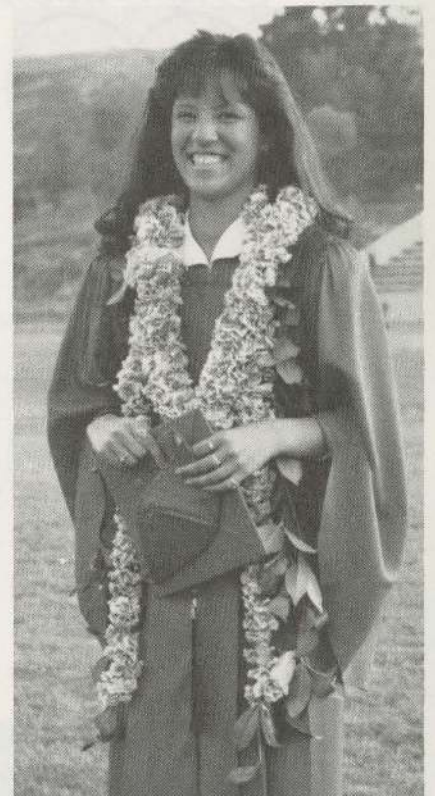

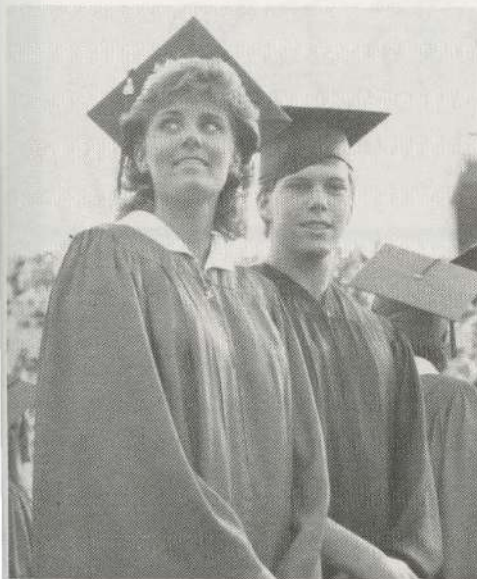

The Future Has Arrived

June 14, 1984. The band struck up Pomp and Circumstance. The Class of 1984 began marching across the College of the Canyons football field. Commencement had begun.

Mr. Strauss opened the ceremony with a brief welcome. Then, Laurie Gonzales led the invocation. Bruce Fuller gave a poignant reminiscence speech, and David Cagna had bright hopes for the future in his speech. Then the graduates marched solemnly up the steps to receive their diplomas. Once seated, the symbolic moving of the tassels, from right to left, took place. The benediction was offered by Christine Smith, and then, a loud roar was heard. Dozens of red and black caps flew into the air. The Class of Nineteen hundred and eighty-four had graduated. The future had arrived.

THE COMMITTEE

Shawn Capistrano (rear) collaborates with Alexandra Stephens on writing the final articles for the Tomahawk.

Adam Yofan and David Strauss work together on page designs.
